BRITISH MINISTRY SEVERELY BLAMED

Painful Impression Created by Swettenham Disclosures.

ATTACKED BY HYSTERIA

Incident Now Regarded Pending Official Explanation as Cowardly Sacrifice of Faithful Servant.

By Special Cable from Our Own Correspondent.

London, April 6.—A painful impression has been created here, especially among the Colonial Ministers, now assembling here for the conference, by the discosures respecting the circumstances of Governor Swettenham's resignation. It now seems from the published documents, which have evoked no official contradiction, that when Mr. Winston Churchill, speaking on behalf of the Ministry, informed the British Commons that Sir Alexander Swettenham had asked permission to retire on the ground of old age, he was committing what he himself would call a "terminological inexactitude."

The fact is that the Ministry allowed itself to get into hysterics and telegraphed Swettenham asking if he were willing to apologize to the American Admiral for the letter which, though admittedly a purely private and semi-jocular communication between two friends, had somehow found its way into the New York press, as did the Sackville letter long ago.

Sir Alexander replied that he would apologize if really necessary, but a compulsory apology would carry with it his resignation of the Governorship. The Colonial Office replied that an apology was necessary and an apology was consequently made. Swettenham at the same time asking to be relieved of his responsibility as Governor. Lord Elgin begged him to reconsider. He refused, adding: "I shall be heartily glad to be relieved."

Unless details are materially altered by the official explanation yet to come, the incident will go down to history as one of the worst illustrations of cowardly abandonment of a devoted servant of the State.

It lends new point to the remark of a prominent Radical journalist, Edmund Garrett, formerly assistant editor of the "Pall Mall Gazette," then editor of the Cape Times, who, writing yesterday of the South African policy of the British Ministry, said: "The loading of the dice to gratify our new fellow-subjects, the Boers, wins from them a momentary gush of compliments. It does not win and does not deserve their respect. In seeking the right hand of fellowship of virile peoples like our American cousins, and other more distant kinsmen, the Boers, it is a mistake to be always groping for it about the level of their boots."

It should be added that the United States in every department was seemingly ready to apologize for the hasty though well-meant action of its Admiral, if the British Government had not been in so great a hurry to apologize to Washington.

WINDERMERE.

A MONSTER BATTLESHIP.

Japan Will Order 21,000-Ton Fighting Machine in England.

London, April 6.—It is reported here that the largest battleship in the world, to have a displacement of 21,000 tons, is to be built in England for the Japanese Government. It is believed that Japan would, in the future, build all her own warships, but it is now thought that a vessel of this size would be too great an undertaking for her, and it is known that the Japanese navy has a full programme for its home yards. The cost of this new battleship will be about $11,250,000.

FIGHT IS BETWEEN PEOPLE AND TRUSTS

This is the British View of the Roosevelt-Harriman Affair.

By Special Cable from Our Own Correspondent.

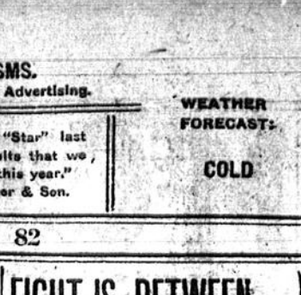

London, April 6.—Those Englishmen whose eyes are not on the Colonial Premiers now arriving, believe they see in the Roosevelt-Harriman affair a fierce fight between the people and the Trusts. They accept for the most part the picture the Daily Chronicle draws of Harriman as a man of gold with a tomahawk, who personifies the greatest problem that America has to solve. "Unlike Russell Sage, says the Chronicle writer, "Harriman is not money mad. His ambitions take a far more destructive and insatiable form of lust for power."

There is little editorial comment, but to-day's news headlines speak of the anti-Roosevelt conspiracy and of a great anti-trust crisis that is impending.

Teh Spectater in its heavy paternal way blesses Roosevelt as an impulsive, but honest, man, who has never yet been shown to have committed a mean or corrupt act.

The Manchested Guardian strikes the only cynical note when it talks of Roosevelt's big boy way and dubs his sensation as an absurdity. It says that his best friends fear his terrible energy which they think is morbid.

REORGANIZATION OF THE STAR PLANT.

New York, April 6.—The manufacturers of the famous Autoplate Machinery have received an order from the Montreal Star for an outfit whereby The Star will be enabled to turn out one hundred and eighty pages of Star plates per hour, instead of sixty, as at present. This new machinery, together with the type foundry which The Star has installed in its composing room, is understood to be the beginning of the reorganization of The Star plant to meet its expansion of business. The press manufacturers' representatives, who have just returned from an examination of the premises in Montreal, state that The Star's growth would scarcely be believed, even in New York, where they are accustomed to big things. The press makers are awaiting the decision of The Star to move into a new building, to equip the new offices with new presses. If the publishers fail in getting a suitable new site, it is understood the present building will be enlarged, and the press capacity increased.

Brockville, Ont., April 6.—At a meeting of the town council Mr. C. A. McLean was appointed town treasurer, vice Geo. McLean, deceased. The salary of Clerk Dewey was raised to $900 per annum, and W. C. McLean was appointed a light commissioner in place of Robert Bowie, who has resigned.

Water Dropped Two Inches.

The water in the harbor yesterday dropped two inches in depth. The fall commenced at 2 a.m. and from 30 feet 6 inches, where it had been stationary from 7 p.m. of the previous day, it gradually declined to 30 feet 4 inches.

CONSPIRACY STORY STARTED AS JOKE

President's Secretary Took Matter Seriously, and Reported it to His Chief.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Washington, April 6.—The blame for unfolding the "gigantic conspiracy" plot to President Roosevelt is now placed at the doors of William Loch, Jr., the explanation is as follows:

A short time before the adjournment of Congress last month Senator Bourne, the new member from Oregon, gave a dinner in Shoreham to a select party. Among the invited guests were Senators Hansborough, Penrose, and Carter, "Bill" Andrews of Pennsylvania, and Loeb. The story goes that when deep dullness overcame the party, Senator Penrose, thinking to have a little joke, of which he is fond on such occasions, said Roosevelt was "up against it," as wealthy men had united to have Roosevelt superseded in the White House by a President who would frown upon the radical tendencies of the present chief executive. Penrose, it is said, related solemnly that he knew a large campaign fund had been raised and that he hoped to "be in" on it, or something to that effect.

From what leaked out, it appears Loeb was deeply interested in the narrative concerning his chief. If the story got to the President's ears soon Loeb must have been the one who repeated it. It is evident, however, that Loeb really did take the Penrose yarn seriously and carried it to the White House.

HARRIMAN GROWS TIRED OF THE CONTROVERSY.

New York, April 6.—E. H. Harriman wants his controversy with President Roosevelt to end. He thinks the newspapers are too sensational and if they are not careful will overdo their market. He made the following statement: I do not intend to continue this controversy. Everybody knows that the contest for the senatorship in 1904 was between Messrs. Black and Depew and there could not possibly have been any other candidate. There was no bargain whereby money was to be raised in consideration of having Depew appointed as Ambassador to France or made United States Senator, and my letter to Mr. Webster dose not so state. That part of the agreement was for the purpose of harmonizing the Black and Depew forces, if it became necessary."

When asked about the alleged Rockefeller-Harriman-Hearst conspiracy to defeat all that President Roosevelt stood for in the matter of reforming the corporations, he said:

"That question is one of those to which I refer in my statement as carrying with them self-evident answers. Such a charge is ridiculous."

When Mr. Harriman was asked about the latest report from Washington that a $5,000,000 fund had been created by New York capitalists to defeat all of the Rooseveltian policies he turned away with a show of disgust saying:

"I won't say a word about it."

NORTH ATLANTIC SERVICE.

May Be Another Rate War to Squeeze Cunard Line.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Berlin, April 6.—A renewal of the North Atlantic rate war seems by no means distant of realization in the light of statements contained in the annual report of the Hamburg-American Company.

Since the long continued conflict of a few years ago, which resulted in the carriage of passengers across the Atlantic at almost nominal fares the position of the Cunard Company has been one of practical independence. The previously existing agreements have never been renewed despite the efforts of the Combine acting in co-operation with the German lines to re-establish them.

The Cunard Company have adhered to the agreements in principal, but it is claimed that when this is said it is about all that can be said. Moreover, the Cunard Company's close relations with the Austro-Hungarian Government in regard to the carriage of emigrants from the Mediterranean have always been a source of annoyance to the German lines, while the "all-British" company's share of the Scandanavian emigrant traffic is not a little begrudged in Teutonic shipping circles.

DARING INDIAN RAIDERS.

Loot a Seral Although Police are Stationed Close By.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Calcutta, April 6. — Considerable unrest exists among the Zakka Kheis. They have already carried out several daring raids in the Peshawar district during the cold weather, and only a few days ago a party of them believed to have numbered 20 men raided the seral at Motanni, a large village situated about fifteen miles south of Peshawar. This seral is on the main road connecting Kohat and Peshawar, and is a regular halting place for persons moving between the two towns.

On the night in question it was full of travellers. Information was received by the Border Military Police at Fort Mackieson that a raid had been planned and two sowars were despatched to the sub-inspector in charge of the police post at Motanni to put him on his guard. On their way, however, the sowars fell in with the gang of raiders, and one of them, named Akbar, had his horse shot under him. When they eventually reached Motanni it was found that the seral had been successfully looted and property worth about Rs. 2,000 had been carried off. The impudent daring of the gang is shown by the fact that Motanni is only three miles from Forth Mackieson, where a detachment of Border Military Police is stationed, and that there is a police post of fifteen men close to the seral.

MRS. DUCLOS SEEKS LEGAL SEPARATION

Wife of Man Who is Fighting for Liberation From Longue Pointe Enters Action.

Mrs. Alexandre Duclos, the wife of the man whose liberation from the Longue Pointe Asylum is now being sought by habeas corpus is suing her husband for legal separation.

The defendant meets this action with a cross-demand, asking that separation be declared not against him but against his wife. In the case of Mrs. Duclos the grounds are unfaithfulness, non support, and ill treatment, while Duclos in support of his action claims that his wife has been unfaithful to him.

Mrs. Duclos claims that her husband has often threatened to shoot her, that he has taken her by the throat and that since his first escape from Longue Pointe in July last, he has left her without means of support.

This morning Mr. N. K. Laflamme, K. C., argued the writ of habeas corpus in favor of Duclos. Prosecutor Lafortune opposing the maintenance of the writ on behalf of the crown. Assistant Attorney-General Lanctot is in the city in connection with the case.

IN THE REALM OF BOOKS

BY GEORGE MURRAY, B.A. OXON. F.R.C.O

Books of the Week Reviewed

The Dust of Conflict.

By Harold Bindloss. (London: John Long. 1907.)

In many of the most successful novels of the day the chief interest centres in the heroine, but "The Dust of Conflict" is one of the best books that we have read for some time, claims our admiration and sympathy mainly for its hero. Bernard Appleby is the son of an English military officer, but as his father has risen from the ranks, his mother's family, the Pallisers, had never given the boy a warm welcome. He had received his education from his wealthy relation, Geoffrey Palliser, but Northrop Hall and all that belonged to it would in due time fall to his cousin, Tony. Bernard and Tony had been school-mates and the former had always protected his cousin who was cast in a weaker mould than himself, and now Tony is in trouble and appeals for aid to Bernard. Unfortunately, in serving his dependent cousin he became liable to arrest for manslaughter, and though really not responsible he can scarcely defend himself without exposing Tony. As he was about to be married to a charming girl, Violet Wayne, Tony was afraid to confess his failings to his fiancee, and accordingly allows Appleby to leave England under a cloud. On the ship that takes him to America Bernard renders a personal service to a wealthy American, Cyrus Harding, who, being a keen practical man, foresees trouble in Cuba, and is trying to play a winning game. As Bernard had been born in Spain and knew the inhabitants and their language, he was attracted to Cuba, and on going there, joins an insurgent army. The time is just before the American invasion, and the situation is graphically portrayed. He was present at the siege of Santa Maura, and rescued Harding's daughter, Nellie, from a position of great danger. Through the friendship and quick understanding of this faithful American girl, who has won his confidence, the true history of Appleby's innocence comes to light, and the pusillanimous Tony at last roused to a sense of his cowardice and wrong-doing, seeks his cousin and makes generous amends for his former treachery. Tony is really no villain, and was incapable of voluntarily doing evil, but he had succumbed, and injured Bernard, through sheer weakness of will and fear of facing the consequences of his own folly. Each new volume produced by Harold Bindloss seems to please the English critics, and we are glad that Mr. Long has added "The Dust of Conflict" to his "Colonial Library."

David March.

By J. S. Fletcher. (Methuen & Co., London.)

Again we are in the atmosphere of a bygone age for this story of romantic adventure and love takes us back to the days of Charles II. For sixteen years the cottage of Michael Sampson and Gillian his wife near Wakefield, in Yorkshire, had been the only home that David March had known. But as the days of his apprenticeship to Michael, the owner of the wayside well-frequented smithy, ended on the evening when the story opens, David had determined to seek his fortune elsewhere, and to succeed in solving the mystery in which his early years had been enshrouded. The boy had been brought to Michael Sampson's cottage by an unknown man during a great storm in March—whence the child's name was borrowed—and the exhausted messenger had died without divulging his secret. Dear as the childless old couple were to David he could not longer remain quietly at the smithy. He had always cherished the notion that both his parents were alive, and he feels bound to discover them if he possibly can. The vision of a girl, evidently of gentle birth to the forge adds further complications. David has a consciousness that he is not what he seems, and the little cross and chain that were round his neck when he was brought to the cottage give a slight clue to the mystery. David is a skilful worker in iron, and from a clergyman who took a strong interest in the nameless child he has received his education, and some valuable instruction in the history of art. To London he makes his way, and there having been introduced to the notice of Sir Christopher Wren not only receives work from him, but instruction in the art of architecture. The great cathedral designer sends him to devise a screen of wrought iron to shut off the chancel of the chapel of Hautemprise, the seat of the Countess of Alchester. On his way thither he falls in with a man who in all save the color of his eyes, seems to be his double. But this double is a "knight of the road," and a case of mistaken identity puts David in an awkward position and disgraces him in the eyes of the fair Cynthia, and her father, Sir Gervase Heathcote. David can see that his striking appearance recalls the past to more than one with whom he is brought in contact. An attempt at the solution of the mystery is made, which involves not only a lady of high degree but King Charles himself. The brothers meet again and the secret of their birth is cleared up, but even a reader who unties such knots readily will find Mr. Fletcher's mystery worthy of exercising his powers of investigation.

Life's Shop Window.

By Victoria Cross. (London: T. Werner Laurie. 1907.)

How is it that to-day so many women novelists will have nothing to do with married heroines who are good, chaste, and lovable? Scott, Thackeray and Dickens, Charles Reade, Wilkie Collins, and Trollope, besides many other living writers of fiction, have been content to portray for our delight and admiration women as they should be, and as they are for the most part, but the authors to whom we refer prefer to write the lives and adventures of bold exceptions to womanhood, and the salacious results lead to a circulation of 70,000 copies, if we are to believe the statements of the publishers. Such books as "Amea Karenine" and "Sapho"—the so-called masterpieces of Count Lyof Tolstoin and Alphonse Daudet—not to speak of Zola's works of fiction, have done incalculable harm,—though the authors may claim that they did not mean it—inasmuch as English writers have copied only their descriptions of certain scenes, without having a spark of the genius which animated the foreign authors. "Life's Shop Windows," by a woman who has written nine novels under the assumed name of Victoria Cross, is a notable instance of what we have said. As regards Mrs. or Miss V. C., it cannot be denied, and even critics who dislike her admit, that she has more than a little of that indefinable something known as "the story-telling instinct"—the instinct that will give a book interest, even when it has no other merit whatever, and is objectionable in fifty ways. The identity of the novelist has, for good reasons, been successfully concealed under her pseudonym; and though her present volume pretends to be a picture of life, it is in reality not so, inasmuch as its personages are all drawn straight from sensational melodrama, and their humanity is only a faint semblance that is far from convincing. The plot of the novel is extremely simple and the incidents, though important as regards the lives of the actors, are not many.

The heroine is Lydia Wilton, aged sixteen, a sort of factotum in the house of Farmer Anderson, whose wife and grown-up daughter hate Lydia for her beauty, and take every opportunity of snubbing her. She marries Bernard Chetwynd, whom she eventually follows to a new home in Arizona. Thing of farm life, she falls in love with an aristocratic English traveller and eventually elopes with him. Following that incident she takes up with another man. Readers must discover for themselves the denouement of the story. Victoria Cross, though I have abstained from giving details, has, in "Life's Shop Window," transgressed all the conventional limitations of good taste, and even decency, and in her heroine has drawn an almost impossible character, consumed by sensual passions, over which she seems to have no control. The story is utterly unfit, "virginibus puerisque."

A Trip to the Orient.

By Robert C. Jacob. (J. C. Winston, Phila.)

This story of a Mediterranean cruise has been written in its simple narrative form, in response to the request of some of Mr. Jacob's fellow-travellers, who had found neither time nor inclination to make notes by the way, and yet were anxious to possess some means of recalling accurately their delightful tour. The first chapter tells us something of the luxurious steamer "Moltke," which for seventy days was to be the home of the tourists, and of the voyage until Madeira was first sighted. In a most entertaining way Mr. Jacob narrates his experiences in the quaint town of Funchal, Gibraltar is the next stopping-point, but, perhaps, because the rock is so well known, he tells us of Granada and the Alhambra, recalling to our minds many interesting historical episodes connected with the centuries of Moorish occupation. Algiers and Malta are then visited. The enjoyment of the view of the ruins of ancient Athens is intensified by the pleasant companionship of "The Professor," and the saying, "Keep close to the Professor, and never mind the guide," seems to have proved good advice, for, those who were not proficient in history and art, found in him one to whom they could always turn for trustworthy information.

Among the most interesting chapters of the book are those that describe the visit to the Holy Land. The writer has a keen eye for the picturesque, and very considerable powers of description. He therefore can give us what is called "the intimate aspect of things." After visiting Alexandria and Cairo, the Nile party took the train for Luxor, about 400 miles south of Cairo. More than 50 pages are devoted to the fascination of the land of the Nile, and the great monuments of Luxor and Karnak. Mahmoud, the guide, proves to be most diverting, and in a most pleasing way much is told that in an ordinary guide-book is so lacking in life and color. On their return the party visits Naples and Pompeii—but this is better known ground. The squalor of Naples leads the minds of the Americans to contrast the life of the Old World with that of the New. A most charming feature of the volume is the large number of capital illustrations made from photographs given to Mr. Jacob by his fellow travellers. The book should prove interesting, not only to those who have already visited the scenes described, but to those who hope to do so hereafter, and also all those who enjoy good pictures.

In the Days of Goldsmith.

By Tudor Jenks. (A. S. Barnes, N.Y.)

It is pleasant to turn from the feverish and vitiated atmosphere of "Life's Toy Shop" to the personal pictures by which Mr. Jenks in his new volume shows us select phases of 18th century England, and the literary Bohemia of the time, with all the vividness of graphic story-telling. The writer frankly confesses his indebtedness to many previous biographers of Oliver Goldsmith, and seems to prefer to the longer lives written by James Prior and John Foster, the shorter, but charmingly written, volumes of the American Washington Irving, and the English Austin Dobson, himself a sweet poet like Goldsmith. Besides these four there are the biography written by William Black, the novelist; Walter Scott's account in his "Lives of the Novelists and the Dramatists"; Macaulay's life of Goldsmith in the "Encyclopaedia Britannica," and Professor David Masson's life prefixed to the Globe edition of Goldsmith's complete works. The man of whom Dr. Johnson stated in the Latin epitaph which he wrote in 1774, that "Oliver Goldsmith was a Poet, Naturalist, and Historian, who left scarcely any style of writing untouched, and touched nothing that he did not adorn"—that man must have been no ordinary human being, and we are accordingly not surprised to find that his life seems a romance quite as much as a sad reality. We need not quote from the carefully written and sympathetic account given of the novelist, playwright, poet and essayist, by Mr. Jenks. He cautions us against believing everything that has been said about him, even by himself, and thinks that injustice is done him in Boswell's "Life of Johnson." But it was his own fault that he was often taken for a fool, and treated as an idiot, as he was ever undignified, and careless of himself in every way. No one has summed up the debt we owe the erratic Irishman better than Thackeray, with whose words we will end this brief notice: "His humor delights us still; his song is fresh and beautiful as when first he charmed us with it, his words are in all our mouths; his very weaknesses are beloved and familiar—his benevolent spirit still seems to smile upon us, to do gentle kindnesses, to succor with sweet charity, to soothe, caress, and forgive, to plead with the fortunate for the unhappy and the poor." This appreciation of Goldsmith by one of England's greatest novelists, should not be weakened by being put to weaker words, and evidently came from the writer's heart.

Baedecker's Canada.

A new edition of "Baedecker's Canada," the well known guide-book, has been issued, for which A. T. Chapman, 513 St. Catherine street West, is the special Canadian agent. Within the 300 odd pages of the book there is compressed an immense amount of information about the Dominion, compiled so as to be of special advantage to the tourist and traveller, and, in addition, there are thirteen good-sized maps and twelve plans. There is a good deal of space devoted to transportation facilities by land and water, and to information about hotels and restaurants and their rates. The points of interest worthy of the attention of the traveller are specially treated, and much attention has been given to providing the sportsman with details about the nature of sport to be had in different localities. One section is devoted to general information about the Dominion, which includes a condensation of the constitution of Canada by the late Sir J. G. Bourinot, geographical and geological sketch by Mr. G. M. Dawson, and sports and pastimes by Messrs. E. T. D. Chambers and W. H. Fuller. Canadian bibliography is concisely treated in a separate chapter. After a section devoted to the "Approaches to Canada," the different eastern and central provinces are treated in separate sections, the western and north-western provinces being grouped in another section, while the remaining one is devoted to Alaska and the Yukon. The "Handbook to Canada," as the preface explains, is intended to help the traveller in planning his tour and disposing of his time to the best advantage, and thus to enable him the more thoroughly to enjoy and appreciate the objects he meets with.

The Art of Living.

By Daniel S. Sager, M.D. (Sager Company, Brantford, Ont.)

The specific object for which Dr. Sager has written the present book is the "Teaching of Health," so that it may be a source of strength to many who are now "invalided," and wish advice, as well as to those who without due warning are liable to run on the shoals of ill-health. Almost all the standard works on physiology and chemistry have been carefully consulted during the composition of the treatise, and the technical and scientific terms, which are often a stumbling-block to unprofessional readers, have been made as plain and simple as possible. The summary of the author's views, drawn up at the close of the volume from p. 243 to p. 255 is worthy of careful consideration, however unpalatable some of his views may seem to readers who are averse to following any novel directions. Dr. Sager is a strict vegetarian, and discusses "the meat-eating question' in a temperate manner, claiming that all the great anatomists, Sir Charles Bell, Dr. Richard Owen, Dr. W. P. Carpenter, Baron Cuvier, and many others have shown that not only is man adapted by anatomical structure to a diet of fruit and vegetables, but that the meat-eating violation of this law has been the undoubted source of almost endless suffering and disease. But what is to become of "The Roast Beef of Old England?" Millions will still be content to eat it, and—suffer.

Joseph Howe.

By the Rev. G. M. Grant. Second Edition. To which is added Howe's Essay on "The Organization of the Empire." (Halifax: MacKinlay, 1907.)

This sketch of the life of the Hon. Joseph Howe was reviewed in the Star when it appeared in its first edition. It was originally reprinted from the columns of the Canadian Monthly and National Review, where it appeared in the May, June, July and August numbers of the year 1875. In its present form, with the addition of the famous essay, it is hoped that it will serve to keep fresh in the memory of all Canadians the name and fame of a distinguished statesman and orator, and of the important events, "quorum pars magna fuit."

NOTES AND QUERIES

The Keats-Shelley Memorial.

M. H. J. (Ottawa) wishes to learn what has been done up to the present time about the above-mentioned Memorial. In answer to this request I here print the following circular that I lately received on the subject:

THE KEATS-SHELLEY MEMORIAL.

"I have not the slightest feeling of humility towards the public or to anything in existence but the Eternal Being, the principle of Beauty and the memory of Great Men."—John Keats.

The American committee on the Keats-Shelley Memorial in Rome, of which Mr. Edmund Clarence Stedman is chairman, avails itself of the generosity of Mr. Mosher to call the attention of lovers of poetry to the project to buy and preserve in Rome in which John Keats died, and to establish therein for the benefit of visitors and students a memorial library of the works, portraits and manuscripts of Keats and Shelley and the ruin this agency to defend their graves for all time against still-threatened vandalism. The title to the Roman house was finally taken by the Keats-Shelley Memorial Association on December 30, 1906, at $21,000 and the committee is using every effort to raise promptly the amount placed on mortgage, about $8,000. It invites you to share the honor and the pleasure of this enterprise, by making it known to others and by sending a subscription to R. U. Johnson, secretary, 33 East 17th street (Century Magazine), New York, by check "to the order of the Keats-Shelley Memorial Fund."

"I have rigidly accustomed myself not to be seduced by the loveliest eloquence or the sweetest singing to regard with intellectual toleration that which ought not to be tolerated by those who love Liberty, Truth and Virtue."

Percy Bysshe Shelley.

Explanation of the Word "Mamamouchi."

"A McGill College Student" inclosure me three lines from John Dryden and asks me (if I can and will) to explain the last word in the third line. The lines are as follows:

"For all our women most decently swear
Each would be rather a poor actress here,
Than to be made a 'Mamamouchi' there."

These lines (though the Student does not say so) are the last three of the Epilogue to Dryden's play of "The Maiden Queen, or Secret Love." It was acted by women only, in 167... at Covent Garden Theatre, and the Epilogue was spoken by Mrs. Reeve in men's clothes. To explain fully the reference made in the use of the pseudo-Turkish title "Mamamouchi," we must go back to one of the famous "Quarrels of Authors" by employing the barbarous word Dryden was making a contemptuous reference to a play by E. Ravenscroft, called "The Citizen turned Gentleman, or Mamamouchi," adapted from Moliere's comic-ballet, "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," acted for the first time in 1670, before Louis XIV. and the Court, in this play M. Jourdain the wealthy, but ignorant and gullible ex-tradesman (the same who discovered, by a mere accident, that he had been talking prose for more than forty years without knowing it"), is fooled by Cleonte, the lover of his daughter Lucile, into believing that the son of the Sultan of the Turkey wishes to marry the young lady, and has in consequence bestowed upon him the Turkish title of "Mamamouchi." The whole truth is fully described in the last three scenes of the fourth act of Moliere's farce. Ravenscroft's adaptation of it had been lately produced at the theatre in Dorset Gardens, London and obtained a great success. Ravenscroft, in the prologue, just made a sneering allusion to Dryden's "Conquest of Granada," and thus provoked the poet's wrath. Dryden again ridiculed "Mamamouchi" in his prologue to "The Assignation," or "Love in a Nunnery," produced in 1672, and quoted some more outlandish words from Ravenscroft's play. Here are some of the lines in the prologue addressed to the audience:

"You must have 'Mamamouchi,' such a fop
As would appear a monster in a shop.
He'll fill your pit and boxes to the brim,
Where rammed in crowds, you see yourselves in him
Sure, there's some spell our poet never knew
In 'Hu'Bbabbabbab' and 'Chu, chu, chu';
But 'Marabarab Sahem' must did touch ye
That is oh! how we love the Mamamouchi!"

It may not be deemed out of place for the full understanding of the cabalistic word to quote part of Scene I, Act V., of Moliere's play. Mme. Jourdain speaks thus to her husband: "Bless us and save us, what's all this? What a figure! Are you going mumming? Is this the time to be masquerading?" Speak then, and say what is the meaning of it all. Who has been making a guy of you like this?" M. Jourdain replies: "How impertinent to speak that way to a Mamamouchi!" Madame: "What do you say?" Monsieur J.: "I say you must treat me with respect now. I have just been made a Mamamouchi!" Madame J.: "What do you mean with your 'Mamamouchi?' What sort of an animal is that?" Mons. J.: "Mamamouchi! that is to say in our language a 'Paladin.'" Madame J.: "A Paladin? At your age are you going to turn Morris-dancer?" Mons. J.: "How stupid you are! I said Paladin. It is a dignity like ceremony of which I have just come through."

This short extract from "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" will enable "A McGill College Student and other readers to understand all that it is necessary to know about the imaginary title.

THUMBS UP OR DOWN.

"Strange all this difference should be 'Twixt Tweedledum and Tweedledee."

John Byron (1691-1763).

"Thumbs Up" or "Thumbs Down." meant the signal of the populace for death or life, when in the Arena, 1900 years ago a gladiator according to his conduct, was, or was not, in the words of Byron,

"Butchered to make a Roman holiday."

In days long since gone-by I published many articles in classical and other journals, in which I contended, and proved to the best of my ability, that M. Gerome had shown defective scholarship in his famous painting which represented the death of a defeated gladiator. A few classical scholars sustained the French artist in his view of the question, and I had a long, but friendly, controversy on the subject with the late lamented John Leipoldt, who, in his "Ephemerides" column of the Montreal Gazette, vigorously maintained that M. Gerome was right. On my side of the debate, I may be permitted to quote the late Dr. William Smith, the learned editor of the "Dictionary of Greek and Roman Biography and Mythology," in three volumes. Dr. Smith also edited the "Dictionary of Greek and Roman Antiquities," in one volume, and specially wrote for this work the exhaustive articles entitled "Gladiatores." At p. 575 the Editor says: "When a gladiator was wounded, the people called out "Habet," or "Hoc habet"; and the one who was vanquished lowered his arms in token of submission. His fate, however, depended upon the people who pressed down their thumbs if they wished him to be saved, but turned them up if they wished him to be killed. (Hor. Ep. I., 18, 66, and Juvenal, Sat. III., 36) and ordered him to receive the sword ("ferrum recipere."), which gladiators usually did with the greatest firmness. Cicero, Tusc. II., 17; Pro Sext. 37, and Pro Mil. 34.)"

This important "thumb" discussion has recently "cropped up" again, and I clip the following extract from "The Academy," of March 9, 1907. It occurs in a review of "The Satires of Juvenal, with Introduction and Notes. By A. F. Cole, B.A.":

"The reviewer holds the same view of the matter as myself, and I have, therefore, much pleasure in quoting his words. He writes:

"When we meet an allusion interesting as bearing on manners under the Roman Empire of the Juvenalian age, we find that Mr. Cole gives a very uncertain sound. One remembers Geronie's picture in which 'thumbs down' is represented as the gesture which condemned the defeated gladiator to death; and a bas, 'down with,' and such expressions encourage the error. Here is Mr. Cole's note on III. 36:

"'Verso pollice vulgi
Quemlibet occidunt populariter':

"The spectators of a gladiatorial combat expressed by the turning of their thumbs their desire that the conquered gladiator should be spared or killed; whether it was the upward or downward gesture that signified death is uncertain.'

"But it is not uncertain, as Mr. Cole would have discovered if he had consulted Prof. Mayor's edition on the passage, or any good commentary on Hor. Epp. I. 18. 66. Prof. Mayor quotes Plin. xxviii., sec. 25, pollices cum faveamus premere etiam proverbio jubemur. 'Thumbs down,' therefore means, 'spare him,' 'put back your sword into its scabbard.' This was presso pollice, the signal for death was verso pollice, 'thumbs up,' which meant 'rip him up.' Prof. Mayor quotes Prudentius c. Symmachum II., 1096:

"'pectusque lacentis
Virgo modesta jubet converso pollice rumpi.'"

The American Loyalists.

C. H. M. asks: Will you kindly let me know if there has ever been published in Canada or England an account or history of the Old Loyalists after the American revolution; if so, where it can be purchased?

There can be no doubt that the best work on the subject to which you refer is "The History of the American Loyalists," by Lorenzo Sabine. It is published in Boston in two volumes. It contains the fullest account of the adherents to the British Crown in the Revolutionary War. For a good view of the English side of the war, see Earl Stanhope's "History of England," in two volumes, and Lecky's "History of England in the 18th Century," four volumes. The fourth volume is the one needed.

Author of "The Songs of Old Canada."

Last week I promised a Quebec friend to reprint from the late William McLennan's volume his version of "J'ai Perdu Mon Amant."

HE.

"I've lost my Love, in sooth,
For that my care is light.
What small despite I feel
Will soon have vanished quite.
For mourning I will wear
A suit of satin fine,
My only tears shall be
Of wine."

SHE.

"What have I done, my Love,
That thus displeases thee?
Have I not loved thee, Dear,
As thou had'st to be?
I've loved thee; love thee now;
I'll love thee, Dear, for aye.
For thee my heart shall beat Alway!

"At home, the house is now
A solitary place,
Where one but seldom sees
The light of lover's face.
And those we love go well.
With all love's tender pain,
We love to dream we'll see Again."

HE.

"Were I a swallow swift,
Towards thee, my heart's delight,
O'er all these rocky wilds
I'd quickly wing my flight.
There, safe from all the storm,
Soft nestling in thy breast,
I'd tell thee all my pain
At rest!"

Mr. McLennan, in his "Appendix," p. 82, thus comments on:

"J'AI PERDU MON AMANT."

Among the popular songs presented here, it is a surprise to come across so great a contrast to their general tone and feeling as this familiar lover's quarrel, which has come down to us as bright as the summer's day on which it happened so long ago. And yet a popular song it undoubtedly is, and may be found in all collections with slight variations of the words, the best evidence, however, being that M. Gagnon discovered it in the county of Maskinonge."

As I have my pen in hand, and Mr. McLennan's volume still before me, I will transcribe its first translation, viz:

"A LA CLAIRE FONTAINE."

"Down to the crystal streamlet
I strayed at close of day;
Into its limpid waters
I plunged without delay.

Chorus.

"I've loved thee long and dearly,
I'll love thee, Sweet, for aye.

"Into its limpid waters
I plunged without delay;
Then, 'mid the flowers springing
At the oak-tree's foot I lay.
Then, 'mid the flowers springing
At the oak-tree's foot I lay;
Sweet the nightingale was singing.
Highest on the topmost spray.
Sweet the nightingale was singing,
High on the topmost spray.
Sweet bird! keep ever singing
Thy song with heart so gay.
Sweet bird! keep ever singing
Thy song with heart so gay.
Thy heart was made for laughter,
My heart's in tears to-day.
Thy heart was made for laughter,
My heart's in tears to-day;
Tears for a fickle mistress
Flown from its love away.
In tears for a fickle mistress
Flown from its love away.
All for these faded roses
Which I refused in play.
All for these faded roses
Which I refused in play—
Would that each rose were growing
Still on the rose-tree gay!
Would that each rose were growing
Still on the rose-tree gay.
And that fatal rose-tree
Deep in the ocean lay!

Chorus

"I've loved thee long and dearly,
I'll love thee, Sweet, for aye."

Mr. McLennan adds the following comment on

"A LA CLAIRE FONTAINE."

This charming love story, with its attractive air, rightly heads our Canadian songs. It apparently enjoyed as great a popularity in France as here, for Dr. Larue cites no fewer than five variations of the words. Its origin is unknown, but it is sung in Normandy, Brittany, and Franche-Comte. 'A few years ago,' Dr. Larue says, 'our "Claire Fontaine," with its own Canadian air, was rendered in one of the principal theatres of Paris, and obtained an immense success.'"

Wanted—A Lawyer's "Ode to Spring."

M. C. P., Halifax, writes: Having been asked by a friend in England to try and obtain a little poem, I thought, perhaps, you would kindly help me in the matter. The lines in question are entitled an "Ode to Spring," and the author is supposed to be a lawyer; the ode is couched in legal phraseology. Unfortunately, my friend does not know the author's name, and only remembers one line:

"Whereas on divers sprigs and boughs,
the birds, etc., etc.

It was published in a book of Canadian and American poems.

Hoping you or some of the Star readers may assist me, I remain, yours truly.

I have seen the "Ode" in some collection of verse, but cannot find it at present. Some correspondent will, no doubt, be able to oblige M. C. P.

An Arithmetic Query.

In a recent issue of the Star, "Puzzled" wrote: The answer, 1 11-13 days, is given in an "Arithmetic" for the following question:

If 3 men and 5 women do a piece of work in 8 days, which 2 men and 7 children can do in 12; find how long 13 men, 14 children, and 15 women, working together, will take to do it. I make it 1 35-35 days. Will some reader kindly show which answer is correct, and how the sum is worked?

Principal J. J. Maguire, of the Edward Murphy School, of this city, has given one of the clearest solutions to the problem. The solutions of S. S. Oxton, Winnipeg, and A. P. J., Schenectady, New York, rank in merit. The following sent in correct solutions, and one had to have recourse to the reliable "X. Y. Z."—three unknowns": J. W. Clarke, Montreal; T. W. Johnson, Science Hill, Ont.; A. J. MacEwan, Fassifern, Ont.; C. H. Finn, Lachine; E. A. Lamoureux, Montreal; J. T., Montreal; A. H. Ward, Montreal; Mrs. James Dowling, Ste. Anne, Sennevill; F. W. Steacy, Adamsville, P.Q.; H. Reeves, Montreal; Albert Ridgell, Montreal; E. M. McManus, Montreal; A. B. C., Petrolea; Pedagogue, Alexander School, Halifax.

Mr. Maguire's solution is worked out as follows:

Replying to "Puzzled," the answer 1 11-13 days is correct.

(1) 3 men and 5 women do 1-8 in a day.

(2) 2 men and 7 children do 1-12 in a day.

Adding (1) and (2) and multiplying by two

(3) 10 men, 10 women, 14 children do 5-12 in a day.

To this add (1) and we have:

13 men, 15 women, 14 children do 13-24 in 1 day.

1 divided 13-24 equals 1 11-13 days.

Freezing Cold Storage.

J. A., Quebec, asks: Would you kindly let me know if in Montreal there is a sharp freezing cold storage plant where I could store fresh fish? Unfortunately we have none such in Quebec.

There is no sharp freezing cold storage plant in Montreal, but several ordinary cold storage companies, where frozen fish is stored. The Canada Cold Storage Company, 53 William street, is one of these.

Private Insane Asylums.

Are there in Canada any private institutions or homes for the insane. If you know of any, will you give the address?

Most of the insane asylums or hospitals throughout the Dominion, under either government or municipal control, have private wards for the reception of patients, where they are as private as they would be in a private asylum. There are no strictly private institutions of the kind, but there are several places where people suffering from the effects of liquor or drug habits are treated under restraint.

AN ORACLE OF CANADA

—OR—

EMPIRE—SCIENCE—FAITH.

By Rev. Charles Alexander Brodie Brockwell, M.A., Alexandra Professor of Divinity in the University of King's College, Windsor, Nova Scotia.

All hail! Ye happy sons of God's Dominion
Of Canada, the Lady of the Tides,
Robed in a rare ethereal radiance;
The queen of myriad islands, boundless lakes,
Of foaming rivers, rainbow waterfalls,
Of lightning rapids, eddying gulfs, and streams,
Of snow-capped mountains, moon-lit glades and dells,
Of sweeping prairies, and of forests vast,
The paradise of birds, and beasts and fish,
Whose rocky caverns, crags and monuments,
Tell of the ages, numberless to man,
Stamped on the potter's most primeval clay,
The most stupendous of God's handiwork;

Proud sons of Nature's prodigality,
Of peerless Shakespeare's most imperial tongue,
And glorious Milton's pure and dauntless faith
Scions of honor, justice, freedom, truth,
Whose hopes transcend your fathers' wildest dreams;
Whose waters are the pulse of many marts,
Prime springs of culture, art and industry;
Whose forests are the shipyards of the earth,
Which murmur prophecies of lasting peace;
Whose mighty mountains heave with mass of ore,
To link in hearts of steel the British race;
Whose valleys yield more wealth of purple fruit,
Than all the fertile gardens nature tills;
Whose prairies stand so thick with golden grain,
That half the world is nourished at your hand;

Ye greater sons of Britain's greater realm,
In whose strong grip God's greatest empire rests,
Think ye, so long as ye have sober wills,
Britannia's world-wide freedom can be crushed?
The mother and her children dwell apart?
Her elder daughters live in selfish state?
Her sons pay fealty to alien powers?
Her ancient glory perish in the dust?
Her sister tides of science and of faith,
Born of the contemplation of the stars
And yearning for the dayspring from on high,
Be hurled back rudely from their mutual course,
By indolent and timid anglers,
Who quail in blinded vision on their shores
And feed the hungry fish with musty crumbs?
Do not the tides of empire, science, faith,
In three-fold confluence breed divinest hope
Of fellowship in those rare gifts and graces
Which, disunited in our creeds and prayers,
We sorely need?
Yet, in their healing and commingling woes
E'en now a more pervading, thrilling power
Than iron order or external law
In pious commonalty knits our hearts
To the mighty Father on the eternal shore.

LEGAL ENQUIRIES.

Ques.—Would a will made by a husband, bequeathing all his possessions to his wife, be valid in the Province of Quebec on the simple written statement of the husband's intention of so doing in case his wife survives him? Or is it necessary to have same made out by a notary? Would not the simple written statement, signed by the husband, be valid without even being witnessed by a second party?

D. J. P.

Ans.—Simple, clear statement of husband's intention, wholly written and signed by himself, is a valid holograph will in this province.

Ques.—I had a letter from a lawyer requesting the amount of an account I owed to a firm in this town, with one dollar expenses added. I remitted the amount of said account, but not the extra dollar for his expenses. In a second letter he demands two dollars, else he will proceed against me for that sum (his expenses). Might I enquire if I am liable for this?

HERBERT.

Ans.—You are liable for the cost of a lawyer's letter.

Ques.—A purchases a mileage book over an U. S. railroad. When in Canada he loses it. B finds it and redeems it from the railroad, but in doing so uses the name inscribed in the book in endorsing the cheque sent in payment. 1. Is it forgery? 2. Where is it punishable, U. S. or Canada? 3. What penalty? B has no knowledge as to who or where A is.

W. P.

Ans.—1. Yes. 2. Wherever crime was committed. 3. Imprisonment, 7 years, probably.

Ques.—1. When we moved in flat, basin in bathroom was cracked and landlord promised to put in a new one, when it began to leak. For three years it did not leak, and in the meantime landlord sold house. Present owner refuses to replace basin, claiming it must have cracked during our tenancy. Can we compel him to replace it? 2. If basin had cracked during our tenancy, would he not have to replace it?

M. E. S.

Ans.—1. Under the circumstances, you have no recourse against your present landlord. 2. No.

Ques.—A sub-let house to B from August 1, 1906, to May 1, 1907, an agreement having been properly drawn up. A has taken on lease again from May 1, 1907, to May 1, 1908. What date can A compel B to get out?

W. V.

Ans.—May 1, 1908.

Ques.—1. Can a mother intercept letters of a son 23 years of age, open and burn them? 2. Is there any means of notifying a postmaster not to deliver letters only to the actual person they are addressed to, and, if so, from whom shall I seek redress. 3. Is it not a criminal offence for a postmaster to aid a mother in intercepting letters from a son of that age or for a mother to do it on her own account?

MATTIE HILDA.

Ans.—1. Mother has no right to open son's letters unless authorized by him to do so. 2. This is the postmaster's duty in any case. He may have been authorized to do otherwise, however. 3. Depends upon the circumstances; theoretically, yes.

Ques.—Am I compelled to pay school taxes, not being a real estate owner and not sending any children to school? I recently received a bill from the school commissioners for two pupils for four months at eighty cents a month, or $3.20. I have one little girl of school age and she goes to a private school.

J. D. McL.

Ans.—A monthly fee, that shall not exceed fifty cents per month, during which the school in the district is in operation, is exigible for each child from 7 to 14 years of age, whether they attend school or not. There are few exceptions to this rule, but the fact that your girl attends private school is not one.

Ques.—Can landlord force me to pay rent for a house I said I would take, but wish now to decline, not having signed a lease or made any agreement beyond having said I would take it?

INQUIRER.

Ans.—Yes.

Ques.—Last Sunday week abnormal weather conditions prevailed, raining hard the night previous followed by hard frost with very high wind. In the afternoon of Sunday a policeman called and notified me to put ashes on the sidewalk. I did so immediately, putting also salt with the ashes, which the wind blew nearly all away. On the Thursday following I received a summons to appear at the Recorder's Court for not having ashes on my sidewalk on Sunday. Is this right and just? Am I entitled to any notice in the circumstances? I was told I could settle the case out of court by paying the costs of the summons, which I did on the Monday, they charging $1.50. Is this amount right for the cost of a summons? 2. Re the heating of my house, my lease reads: "I agree to rent the house for one year as it stands, from May 1st, at a rental of .... dollars per month." This lease if not renewed terminates of itself on the 1st of May without any other formality being required, does it not?

A TEN-CENT SUBSCRIBER.

Ans.—1. The sidewalk must always be kept in a good condition. If not, you are entitled to be summoned. 2. Yes.

WANTS TO BUILD OWN NAVY.

Australian Measure of Self-Dependence in Acquiring Navy.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Melbourne, April 6.—Efforts are being made to establish the ship building industry in Australia on a scale which will enable the Commonwealth to build its own battleships. Eight coastal destroyers and four first class torpedo boats are now projected at a cost of $3,500,000, and while one vessel of each class will be built in England, it is hoped that the remainder may be constructed in Australia itself.

In a memorandum to shipbuilders in the Commonwealth on the subject the Acting Minister for Defence says: "The proposals are designed to attain a measure of self dependence in the provision of war vessels. Briefly the department desires to know if anything is lacking to make this much desired end attainable. The price is a sufficient one (in England) to ensure large profits to builders. What is there to prevent Australian builders, with the advantage of position, and of acting in pursuance of a policy desired by the Government from supplying these vessels?

Hon. W. A. Weir Presided at Distribution of Prizes to Pupils of Catholic Night Schools.

The distribution of prizes to the successful students of the Catholic night schools of the city took place last evening in the Montcalm School Hall, under the presidency of Hon. Mr. Weir. There were during the winter session, fifty-four classes with an enrollment of 2,122 pupils.

Hon. Mr. Weir spoke eloquently of the good work of the night schools and promised to place before his government the necessity of prolonging the term of the night schools instead of shortening it.

IS KEEN ON EDUCATION.

Begum Will Cut Down Parents' Salary for Truant Child.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Calcutta, April 6.—Compulsory education is being introduced in Oriental fashion by the Begum of Bhopal. In the Mohammedan State over which she rules the schools which owe their existence to the enlightened energy of herself, her mother and her grandmother, have not met with the support she requires from the nobles and high officials.

At a prize distribution Her Highness spoke her mind freely on the subject. She condemned the love of ease which was enervating the upper classes, and compelling her to go outside in order to find men qualified to carry on the business of the State.

She pointed out that for the sake of example she had kept her own son at the schools instead of sending him to one of the colleges outside the State, and that scholarships were numerous. But these inducements had failed.

"All my warnings and injunctions have proved futile in this direction, and I have given orders that a part of the income of the students and their parents shall be cut off, if the former unreasonably absent themselves from the school, and the money thus obtained will be spent towards the education and the scholarships of the promising students."

STRENGTH AND HAPPINESS FOR WEAK MEN

If you are losing the strength of youth and can see evidence, from day to day, that your physical system is going to decay, you should, in common justice to your future happiness, take steps to check this.

Don't make the mistake of thinking that this can't be done; it can and has been done in thousands of cases.

Don't deceive yourself into believing that it is natural for any person to thus exhaust his power.

Nature is appealing to you every moment to save yourself. The slight pains that you feel; the momentary spells of weakness; the periodical loss of memory, dullness of brain, drowsiness—all point to the necessity of curing yourself now. I have a positive cure for you in my

Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt

It will make you strong. It will send the life blood dancing through your veins, you will feel the exhilarating spark warm your frame, the bright flash will come to your eye, and a firm grip to your hand, and you will be able to grasp your fellow man and feel that what others are capable of doing is not impossible to you. This grand appliance has brought strength, ambition and happiness to thousands of men in the past year.

It is a quick and lasting cure for all Nervous Debility, Weakness, Rheumatism, Pains in the Back and Hips (Sciatica), Lumbago, Constipation, Indigestion, Weak Kidneys, Failing of Memory, and all evidences of breaking-down. It cures when all else has failed.

My arguments are good, my system is good, but I know you haven't time to study these. You want proof, and I give you that and lots of it. When your own neighbors tell you I cured them you will know I did it.

Here are a few of the many cures I am making daily. Why not be on the list of strong men?

MR. JAMES JOHNSTON, J.P., Ottawa, Ont., writes as follows: The Belt I purchased from you in August, 1903, cured me of heart disease, and I am able to work and attend to my business as well as ever, and my pulse is quite normal. I highly recommend your Belt for indigestion and all stomach troubles, from which I also suffered greatly. If your patients would pay attention to the advice you give them, they would not be long ailing.

F. W. NEWCOMBE, Box 366, Montreal, Que., says: I purchased a Belt from you last year, and am pleased to say it did all that was required.

MR. G. W. PRICE, Madoc, Ont., has this to say: As regards my health, I am improving every day, and I am not sorry I invested. My nerves are getting all right, and I am feeling much better every way.

JEROME SCANLON, Ancaster, Ont., writes: In one month's use of your Belt I have gained seven pounds. No bladder trouble, constipation or headache any more, and have developed a lot of muscle and strength. Thanks for your help.

T. J. SWEENEY, Care of Seaman's Institute, St. John, N.B., cured of weak back, varicocele and vital weakness.

ALEX. COULTER, Sault Ste. Marie, cured of stomach trouble.

N. C. RUSHOE, Loch Manor, Man., cured of weak back, kidney and stomach trouble.

JAMES BROWN, Hallville, Ont., cured of losses and stomach trouble, and finds life a pleasure.

J. D. RAESBACK, Vankleek Hill, Ont., cured of sciatic rheumatism.

NO CURE, NO PAY

is the offer I am making to any man who wishes to regain his strength and vitality. All I ask is security for the Belt while you wear it.

Men, arouse yourselves, break the chain that is to ever hold you bound to an existence of misery. If you are sceptical I can send you evidence that will convince you beyond a doubt that there is a complete cure for you in my Belt. One of my patients writes that my Belt is the production of a man who is a friend to suffering humanity in a true way. I have hundreds of just such expressions of gratitude from patients all over the country. Let me know where you are and I will give you their names, that they may tell you their experience.

CZAR TO ABDICATE.

Grand Duke Michael to Be Regent, Says London Rumor.

London, April 6.—The Daily Mirror claims to be in a position to announce upon the "highest authority" that the Emperor of Russia purposes to abdicate within a month, and that Grand Duke Michael will be appointed regent during the infancy of the Czarevitch. For the past three or four weeks, the paper says, the events in this direction have been proceeding with lightning rapidity in St. Petersburg, but the secret has been well kept. Continuing, the Daily Mirror says: "Lately, the Emperor's mind has given way even more completely, and he has shown himself incapable of performing the smallest duties of his rank."

The Lower House of Parliament is to be abolished, and there will be formed a military dictatorship, with the object of stamping out revolution, and putting an end to anarchy in Russia.

THE WOMEN'S WORK and INTERESTS

MY LADY'S BOOK-SHELF

Mr. Howells and Dufferin Terrace.

Last week we took Mr. Howells' playfully to task for calling the famous terrace at Quebec, Durham Terrace. But an old Quebecer has called our attention to the fact that what is now known as Dufferin Terrace was formerly called Durham Terrace. This will probably be news to the younger generation of to-day. It is of interest to rescue such scraps of information from oblivion. It appears when Lord Durham came to Canada in great state nearly seventy years ago he was so impressed with the view from the Upper Town of Quebec that he decided it would be an excellent idea to build a public promenade on the heights. This was done and for some time it was called "The Platform." Later the name was changed to Durham Terrace and so continued till the coming of Lord Dufferin, when the promenade was extended to the foot of the Citadel and was renamed "Dufferin Terrace", out of compliment to the popular Governor-General.

The same lady who kindly supplied this information also tells us that she distinctly remembers Howells when he was staying in Quebec some forty years ago. He lived with three old ladies on Ste. Anne street and the windows of the house overlooked the garden of the Ursuline Convent. She often used to see the famous author, who was in those days a heavily built young man, busily engaged acquiring data for his two pretty Canadian stories, "A Chance Acquaintance" and "Their Wedding Journey." It is probably from these bygone days that Howells dates his recollections of Durham Terrace.

A New Book by Fitzgerald Molloy.

Those who like to read truth that is stranger than fiction and history with a wealth of detail always enjoy Fitzgerald Molloy's works. The latest to be given to the world is entitled "Sir Joshua and his Circle." "In selecting Sir Joshua Reynolds as the central figure of his eighteenth century hall of fame, he brings us into an environment that includes an extraordinary galaxy of eminent names in all the artistic professions. Through the pages of his work, which might more easily be expanded to ten volumes than limited to two, we find among artists William Hogarth, Gains borough, Romney and Opie, among actors Garrick and Mrs. Siddons, among authors Johnson, Goldsmith, Fielding, Richardson, Sterne, Smollett, Sheridan and Fanny Burney. It is, therefore, no wonder that Mr. Molloy has been able to gather within his pages the very cream of reminiscential gossip and artistic anecdote. His work is, of course, of no especial historical or biographic value. Its chief interest is to mirror the lives and the manners, the habits and the foibles of its highly romantic period."

PRACTICAL FASHIONS

New Neckwear.

Jabots are strong features of the neckwear styles, and come in many attractive forms, the prevailing length being about five inches. Some of these are slashed up the centre with a contrasting material inserted, others are pointed in the centre, and still others are fan-shaped. Simpler styles are hemstitched or lace-trimmed across the ends. The jabots permits of attractive combinations, and we find many odd ideas worked out in embroidery and lace, with, perhaps, silk, ball fringe, and applique figures. The Peter Pan is a comparatively new washable collar in linen and lingerie effects. It is circular, flat, and usually finished with lace edging and fastens with a wide satin bow or muslin tie. In spite of the prophetic doom of the lace yoke, the continued vogue of the guimpe and bretelle styles of bodice keeps them in evidence, and guimpes, sleeves, and yokes of all sorts are to be had ready-made of net, lace, or mull. In these dainty and useful accessories filet, Cluny, Irish, and Venise laces are often combined with Appenzal and French embroideries, while handwork is, as it always is, at a premium. Charming collars of batiste and lace insertion are worn over the plain silk waist, transforming it instantly into a more dressy creation.

Two Pretty Frocks for Middle-Aged Women.

MAUVE RAJAH SILK.

A simple but pretty gown for southern wear is mauve rajah silk made short, with full circular flounce headed by incrustations of linen lace motifs dyed to match the gown. The waist has three small plaits on each shoulder and cut in a deep V embroidered in mauve soutache. The yoke and sleeves are of cream Valenciennes very much ruffled, and the shoulder seams joined by narrow straps braided, and there are a great many buttons on the gown covered with rajah silk and embroidered in mauve.

A flowered toque very pointed in front of several shades of the wistaria blossoms would be lovely with this dainty frock, and a short loose jacket of the rajah braided in soutache would make it more serviceable on cool days.

WHITE SERGE GOWN.

A good tailor gown of white serge has a short side plaited skirt and small jacket with tiny vest of white silk poplin braided in soutache. The coat fits snugly and has three tucks each side of the vest at the waist line, and a circular fitted tail to the coat all around with narrow strap of serge and two pearl buttons across the back. The collar and deep cuffs are of the poplin braided and in groups of three. Each side the front were little braided loops of the soutache and three small pearl buttons.

A pretty blouse to wear with this is all-over small hand-tucked cream chiffon cloth, encrusted with medallions of white Cluny, the Cluny ornamented with tiny roses of the taffeta. A white violet turban with a great many green leaves would be pretty with this.

Inexpensive Summer Hats.

One requires greater variety in hats during the summer than the winter, and there are clever little schemes for accomplishing effective changes without actually having such a great number. For ceremonious occasions and to top one's best gown choose a picturesque shape and ostrich plumes as trimming if possible, otherwise airy choux of tulle with flowers. One cannot skimp on this hat, the best materials must go into it, yet it need not be purchased at an extravagant milliners, for if a woman has the slightest talent for home hat making she can get splendid results if a good shape and luxuriant trimmings are purchased. Or if one be not naturally gifted in this wise take the frame and accessories to some unpretentious milliner of taste, culling meanwhile an effective working plan from the display in the windows of the leading shops or from illustrations, and one can have a model skilfully put together at a cost of not more than three or four dollars. For example, one could with plumes utilize a delightful French importation, just arrived from one of the cleverest of makers. The straws used for it is slightly rough in finish, the color a dull sage. The crown is broad and high, with a flat top and well-defined edge. The broad brim rolls up on the right side, and on the left juts out straight from the head. Two thick curly plumes are laid on this side with the quills to the front, the ribs set in cut steel. The feathers rise toward the back of the hat and just peep over the brim, a conservative arrangement when so many examples droop quite to the shoulder. The less exaggerated style is of course the better one for us to follow. Such a model had best be carried out in neutral tints, to be suitable for all frocks of whatever shade. Burnt straw with either black or white, black with white, or oyster white with steel gray are combinations that will tone in with almost any gown.

Fashion Points.

All shades of tan, castor and bright browns are to be used in spring costumes of cloth or silk, and all are equally approved by fashionable women. Champagne color is also a favorite, and buff or amber in linens are having unprecedented popularity. Any of the checked or plaided cotton goods with a line or two of either of these last named shades are to be bought at sight, for it has been purchased so promptly in various combinations that but few specimens can now be found of any fabric showing the clear pretty tint.

Flowers that rival those fresh from the garden are seen on the exquisite hats for southern wear and late spring. Clematis, morning glories and wisteria are among the loveliest of those in purple, and seem actually to have just been plucked, so perfect is the imitation. A fad for a veritable bouquet of assorted loveliness is shown in the decoration of leghorn or lace hats, and these can be caught up on the side, so that the grasses and leaves of the bunch can soften the brim edge, and dangle gracefully over.

Short-skirted frocks are having undisputed sway among the linen, cloth and rough weave silk models, and only the elaborate costumes appear with a trailing effect. Women, once emancipated from long skirts, will consider carefully before resuming them except for occasions when formality prevails.

For country houses the cretonne sets which comprise everything for bed, bureau, chair and table are attractive, especially if side curtains for the windows can be bought to match. With even indifferent furniture, this touch of daintiness can be of a great transformation.

The woman who can wear red will not go amiss if she chooses one of those soft columbine pink straws, trims it with clusters of Jacqueminot roses, a bunch at each side of crown, and a velvet ribbon crown band in a deeper Jacqueminot shade. This should have five or six small loops at front between the flower clusters that are caught stiffly out almost to the brim edge, which is a little on the mushroom order at sides and back, but straight at front. Under the brim on back bandeau put a few fluffs of the ubiquitous brown maline.

The Long Glove Mania.

What is more abominable than these arm-gloves which, since the vogue of the short sleeve, have found favor in many women's eyes. It is a purely American innovation, and illustrates only too well the chief fault with American dress. In a country where public opinion insists that every woman—whatever her income, her station, her individual taste, her type—dress like every other, and where there is always a fashion that is slavishly followed in one mad burst of popularity, there is sure to be endless examples of just such pieces of pretence as this kid armlength. Every virtue its wearers may claim for it only accents its pretentiousness. If one cannot afford to buy long gloves by the dozen or half dozen, then why cut off at the elbow the whole season's wardrobe, gowns, blouses, jackets and shirtwaists? Is it being well dressed to wear things that have neither sense nor beauty, and what can be more bungling about a well turned wrist than this slip-shod affair? Elbow sleeves are still very much the fashion in Paris, but I go to no assembly of elegant women, morning, afternoon or evening, but I see quite as many long sleeves as short, and very wonderful long sleeves, smartly mannish and cuffed and laced like a cavalier's, or tightly wrinkled from elbow to ring-laden fingers, or perhaps, swinging in long wingiike draperies that are of no particular epoch. I think in Europe the mode is less passionately worshipped, but more tenderly cherished—she is neither embraced nor abandoned so unreasonably.

Thus writes a woman from Paris, and we would do well to hark to her words.

Blue Voile Costume.

One of the best models seen was in navy blue voile. It was made after one of Doucet's models with thin new shield effect of bands of the voile piped with taffeta crossing the whole of the shoulder and coming down in shaped plastron effect each side of the front. Here there was a tiny vest of gobelin blue cloth heavily embroidered in soutache of various shades of the gobelin blue and a tiny collar and cuffs of the lace. There was a smooth girdle (the coat bagging a little from above it) of alternate folds of blue taffeta and the voile. The skirt was box-plaited, and three bands of the voile piped with blue were placed around the bottom.

5209 Breakfast Jacket. 5305 Six Gored Circular Skirt.

Design by May Manton.

FOR COLD MORNINGS.

The simple, shapely breakfast jacket, made as illustrated, is one of the very best and most satisfactory garments of the sort for cold weather wear, and is very generally in demand. In this instance the material is elderdown flannel, with trimming of plain colored silk, while the jacket is worn over a simple skirt of serge, but there are a great many flannelettes and what are known as cotton elderdowns that are appropriate and also French and Scotch flannels can be used with satisfaction for the jacket, while the skirt is adapted to all seasonable materials. The breakfast jacket being especially designed for the flannel, is absolutely simple, with a turn-over collar at the neck, and with pockets that are both decorative and convenient, while the skirt is made after the six gored circular model. For the medium size will be required, for the jacket 3½ yards of material 27 or 2¼ yards 36 inches wide, with ¾ yard of silk; for the skirt 8½ yards 27, or 5½ yards 44 or 4¾ yards 52 inches wide if material has up and down; 7 yards 27, 5 yards 44 or 4¾ yards 52 inches wide if it has not. A May Manton pattern of the jacket, No. 5209, sizes 36 to 46 inches bust, or of the skirt, No. 5305, sizes 22 to 32 inches waist, will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents for each.

THE HOME MAKERS DEPARTMENT

Cleaning Straw Hats.

A correspondent very kindly sends us a recipe for cleaning shabby and soiled white straw hats. This is her method of procedure. Take the straw hat, rip off all trimming and brush well with a stiff brush. Have ready a box of Salts of Lemon which may be bought at the druggist. Pour a little of the powder in a saucer and apply to the hat with an old toothbrush which has been moistened. Scrub it well all over with the water and salts of lemon and the stains and discolorations will disappear like magic. Let it dry thoroughly before retrimming.

Fruit-and-Nut Caramel Fudge.

Stir three cups of sugar and one cup of thin cream over the fire until the sugar is melted. Then boil without stirring to the soft-ball stage. At the same time stir one cup of sugar over the fire until it becomes caramel. Pour the first mixture into the caramel, and let it boil up once. Take from the fire, and beat until thick, adding at last half a cup of citron, candied cherries, pineapple, and plums cut fine, and one cup of pecan-nut meats.

Green Pepper Omelet.

Cut a sweet green pepper in halves, lengthwise, and remove the seeds. Then cut the rest of the pepper in tiny shreds. Put a tablespoonful of butter in the omelet pan, and, when hot, add the pepper and cook about five minutes without browning, stirring meanwhile, that all may be uniformly softened. Have ready in a bowl four eggs, a scant half-teaspoonful of salt, and a dash of pepper beaten until a full spoonful can be taken up. Turn the egg over the pepper, shake the pan, or pick up the cooked egg with a fork, to let the uncooked mixture down onto the pan; when the egg is lightly set, roll, and turn onto a hot dish.

Oyster Plant or Salsify Salad.

Scrub the salsify, and cook, without removing the skin, in boiling salted water until tender. Peel and cut in thin slices. Season with salt and pepper, cover and set aside to become cold. For a pint of sliced salsify take six tablespoonfuls of oil, and gradually beat into it four tablespoonfuls of lemon juice or three of vinegar, and about half a teaspoonful of onion juice. When thoroughly mixed, pour over the chilled salsify. Turn the slices over and over until they have taken up the dressing, and set aside until ready to serve. Serve on heart leaves of lettuce, also dressed with oil, vinegar, salt, and pepper. Garnish with figures cut from thin slices of pickled beet.

Apple Pie Decorated With Cream and Cheese.

Make an apple pie after your favorite recipe. Have ready a cream cheese, pressed through a ricer, and a cup of double cream, beaten solid. Cut and fold into the cheese as much of the cream as it will take up. Add also a few grains of salt. Pipe the mixture onto the top of the pie in any pattern that suits the fancy. Serve as dessert at luncheon or dinner.

LEAVES FROM A NOTE BOOK

A Correspondent on Brainless Englishwomen.

The Notebook has received a very indignant letter from the husband of a lovely and accomplished Englishwoman anent a paragraph in this column headed, "Are Englishwomen Brainless?" In fact, the letter was so furious and abusive that the poor editor of this page felt she was being belabored with a very big stick for throwing a very small pebble.

However, we are very sorry that the feelings of any of our readers should be hurt and think that if our correspondent had read the paragraph in question a little more carefully and also if he were not quite so ridiculously thin-skinned he would not have gone out on the warpath in quite so belligerent a mood. The first half of the paragraph was devoted to praise of the noble band of women who are fighting for the franchise in the Mother Country, and the second half deplored the fact that the majority of women in England are hopelessly unintellectual and unambitious in any direction. As for our correspondent's assertion, that the editor did not know what she was writing about, it is utterly unfounded. She has spent many months in England, and also many in the States and does not hesitate to affirm that the standard of brains and capability is much higher in the latter than in the former. For example: She once spent almost a year in a small town in England and knew all the younger set. In this town there was a Badminton Club, a tennis club, a golf club and various other clubs, all devoted to sport, and that is all, of course, not counting clubs in connection with church work. Now there is a town of about the same population across the border where she often visits, but where the average of wealth is much lower. But in this American town there is to her certain knowledge a Current Events Club, a Browning Club, a Dante Club and several other clubs, all aiming at intellectual development. These facts speak for themselves.

The writer is not alone in deploring the unadvanced state of the modern Englishwoman. About a year ago an article appeared in one of the heavy reviews on precisely these lines, written by an Englishwoman. And there are the tirades against the frivolity and brainlessness of the women of today being lunched in London by an eminent cleric.

Our correspondent's remarks on Burne-Jones women are in such bad taste that it's scarcely worth while noticing them. He says they cannot be appreciated by Canadian women, as one "could hardly imagine a Burne-Jones woman with her mouth full of chewing gum." We hope that he sent a copy of his letter to the English paper to which he sent our offending paragraph so that they can see that there is an Englishwoman in Canada capable of—the "retort courteous." However, we have no wish to repeat his offence and can only assure him that Burne-Jones is one of our favorite artists, but a type of beauty that is admirable on our walls is often strangely out of place in the practical affairs of every-day life.

Plain Women Versus Pretty Women.

In Paris, where they are always having amusing discussions, the old, old question has been revived whether men love best a pretty woman who is silly, or a clever one, who is plain. It is not said what decision was arrived at, if indeed any decision was possible. In the words of an old song, we should say "It all depends, it all depends upon the time and place." One would hate to live with Venus herself if she were a fool, but on the other hand a pretty woman is delightful at times, say to take to a little dinner or supper when it does not matter how silly are the remarks that fall from her Cupid's bow of a mouth. That is why so many excellent women are jealous. They do not realize that although their husbands may infinitely prefer to spend their lives with them, they may like occasionally to devote themselves to some merely pretty woman as a change. No sensible wife should be foolish enough to feel jealousy on th's score. Men are but human and a pretty face appeals to them all, but, as a rule, when they choose a life companion they look for more than mere prettiness. We are not saying that it is impossible to find the two combined. The day has gone by when a girl or woman was content to be simply beautiful. Nowadays they realize that if they would hold their own they must cultivate their brains as well.

An entertaining answer to the question was given by a judge in Paris, one who was qualified to say. At eleven in the morning he wired: "There is absolutely no doubt in the matter. A plain and clever woman is much more likely to be loved than a pretty and silly one." Twelve hours later he again telegraphed and this message read: "Pay no attention to this morning's telegram. In reality there is no doubt that a very pretty woman, who is not clever has more chance of being loved than a clever one, who is also ugly."

THE AULD BRIG OF AYR.

Lord Rosebery's Appeal for the Funds to Preserve the Historical Place.

Lord Rosebery spoke at a meeting of Glasgow citizens, in the Banqueting Hall of the municipal buildings in furtherance of the scheme for preserving the Auld Brig of Ayr, immortalized by Burns in his poem "The Twa Brigs."

Lord Rosebery, having described himself as "a jolly beggar," said he was there to ask for a sum of money to be got within a limited time to save what was not merely the subject of one of Burns's famous poems, but was also an object of national and antiquarian interest. If they failed to save the Auld Brig they might have it purchased by some great American multi-millionaire, who would have the stones numbered and put together again in his backyard in Chicago.

Did they ever realize, Lord Rosebery asked, what Burns did for Scotland? Did they realize how completely he transformed their national life and their national character? There was no birthday of any dead man, perhaps there was no birthday of any living man—the King included — which was so universally commemorated as the birthday of Burns.

They in Scotland were exposed to the charge of cant and want of patriotism when they honored and revered this memory, and could not raise £10,000 to its most cherished associations. In the train he made the couplet:

O'er Burns wept Scotland with annual pang,
But would not save the sacred stones he sang.

Suppose that by some magic power they could summon Burns there that day; supposing he came clumping in in his peasant shoes and his worsted stockings, and with his broad, peasant face, out of which looked those globes of fire containing a world of poetry and thought — those eyes which Sir Walter Scott never saw matched, though he saw the great men of a gigantic era; suppose that peasant could walk in with his somewhat uncouth form and speak to them as he spoke, and as few men had ever spoken—because all who knew him agreed in saying that his conversation was more wonderful than his poems; suppose he came in there and asked them to save the Auld Brig for his sake, why, they would have produced their shillings, emptied their purses, laid down their watches and chains and rings, and every personal ornament at the feet of Robert Burns. Yet they could not raise £10,000 now that he was dead to save the object on which his heart was set.

Chinese Economy and Character.

An insight into the Chinese character, frugal to the point of shortsightedness, was given in a lecture, at the Royal Geographical Society, by Colonel A. W. S. Wingate. The Chinese, he said, absorb everything, and have so bared the northern hills as to leave scarcely a tree. They are paying dearly for their foolish shortsightedness, for, by acting thus, they have probably altered the rainfall, which now descends in sudden heavy bursts, flowing quickly down the bare slopes, conveying with it much fertile soil, and often crops as well, besides causing floods and wholesale devastation in the lower reaches of the rivers of the Great Plain. In mitigation of the evil, however, is the fertilising nature of these lands once the floods have subsided. With a judicious system of afforestation, the region beyond the Wall would support a much larger population and enjoy a more equable climate.

CHAPTER XXIII.—Continued.

"There is something in what you say," he conceded, "but——"

"Oh come now," interrupted Daggett, "you know better than that. This town and this country is run by the whiskey ring. Why, there's Hickey, he daren't arrest saloonkeeper or gambler, though he hates whiskey and the whole outfit worse than poison. Why doesn't he? The Honourable McKenty, M.P., drops him a hint. Hickey is told to mind his own business and leave the saloon and the 'red lights' alone, and so poor Hickey is sitting down trying to discover what his business is ever since. The safe thing is to do nothing."

"You seem to know all about it," said Dick. "What's the good of your paper? Why don't you get after these men?"

"My dear sir, are you an old newspaper man, and ask that? It is quite true that The Clarion is the champion of liberty, the great moulder of public opinion, the leader in all moral reform, but unhappily, not being an endowed institution, it is forced to consider advertising space. Advertising, circulation, subscriptions, these are the considerations that determine newspaper policy."

Dick gazed ruefully out of the window. "It's true. It's terribly true," he said. "The people don't want anything better than they have. The saloon must continue to be the dominant influence here for a time. But you hear me, Daggett, a better day is coming, and if you want an opportunity to do not the heroic thing only, but the wise thing, jump into a campaign for reform. Do you think Canadians are going to stand this long? This is a Christian country, I tell you. The Church will take a hand."

Daggett smiled a superior smile. "Coming? Yes, sure, but meantime The Pioneer spells Church with a small c, even the Almighty's name with a small g."

"I tell you Daggett," said Dick hotly, "The Pioneer's day is past. I see signs and I hear rumblings of a storm that will sweep it, and you, too, unless you change, out of existence."

"Not at all my dear sir. We will be riding on that storm when it arrives. But the rumblings are somewhat distant. I, too, see signs, but the time is not yet. By the way, where is your brother?"

"I don't see much of him. He is up and down the line busy with his sick and running this library and club-room business."

"Yes," replied Daggett thoughtfully, "I hear of him often. The railroad men and the lumbermen grovel to him. Look here, would he run in this constituency?"

Dick laughed at him. "Not he. Why, man, he's straight. You couldn't buy him. Oh, I know the game."

Daggett was silenced for some moments.

"Hello!" said Daggett, looking out of the window, "here is our coming Member." He opened the door. "Mr. Hull, let me introduce you to the Reverend Richard Boyle, preacher and moral reformer. Mr. Boyle—Mr. Hull, the coming Member for this constituency."

"I hope he will make a better fist of it than the present incumbent," said Dick a little gruffly, for he had little respect for either of the political parties or their representatives. "I must get along. But, Daggett, for goodness sake do something with this beastly gambling-hell business." With this he closed the door.

"Good fellow, Boyle, I reckon," said Hull, "but a little unpractical, eh?"

"Yes," agreed Daggett, "he is somewhat visionary. But I begin to think he is on the right track."

"How? What do you mean?"

"I mean the West is beginning to lose its wool, and it's time this country was getting civilized. That fool editor of The Pioneer thinks that because he keeps wearing buckskin pants and a cowboy hat, he can keep back the wheels of time. He hasn't brains enough to last him over night. Boyle says he sees the signs of a coming storm. I believe I see them, too."

"Signs?" inquired Hull.

"Yes, the East is taking notice. The big corporations are being held responsible for their men, their health, and their morals. 'Mexico,' too, has something up his sleeve. He's acting queer, and this Boyle's brother is taking a hand, I believe."

"The doctor, eh? Pshaw! let him."

"Do you know him?"

"Not well."

"You get next him quick. He's the coming man in this country, don't forget it."

Hull grunted rather contemptuously. He himself was a man of considerable wealth. He was an old timer and cherished the old timer's contempt for the tenderfoot.

"All right," said Daggett, "you may sniff. I've watched him and I've discovered this, that what he wants to do he does. He's an old poker player. He has cleaned out 'Mexico' half a dozen times. He has quit poker now, they say, and he's got 'Maxico' going queer."

"What's his game?"

"Can't make it out quite. He has turned religious, they say. Spoke here at a big meeting last spring, quite dramatic, I believe. I wasn't there. Offered to pay back his ungodly winnings. Of course, no man would listen to that, so he's putting libraries into the camps and establishing clubrooms."

"By Jove! It's a good game. But what do the boys that does 'Mexico' think of it?"

"Why, that's the strangest part of it. He's got them going his way. He's a doctor, you know, has nursed a lot of them, and they swear by him. He's a sign, I tell you. So is 'Mexico.'"

"What about 'Mexico'?"

"Well, you know 'Mexico' has been the head centre of the saloon outfit, divides the spoil and collects the 'rents.' But I say he's acting queer."

Hull was at once on the alert. "That's interesting. You are sure of your facts? It might be all right to corral those chaps. The virtue campaign is bound to come. A little premature yet, but that doctor fellow is to be considered."

But the virtue campaign did not immediately begin. The whole political machinery of both parties was too completely under the control of the saloon and "red light" influence to be easily emancipated. The business interests of the little towns along the line were so largely dependent upon the support of the saloon and the patronage of vice that few had the courage to openly espouse and seriously champion a campaign for reform. And while many, perhaps the majority, of the men employed in the railroad and in the lumber camps, though they were subject to periodic lapses from the path of sobriety and virtue, were really opposed to the saloon and its allies, yet they lacked leadership and were, therefore, unreliable. It was at this point that the machine in each party began to cherish a nervous apprehension in regard to the influence of Dr. Boyle. Bitter enemies though they were, they united their forces in an endeavour to have the doctor removed. The wires ordinarily effective were pulled with considerable success, when the manipulators met with an unexpected obstacle in General Manager Fahey. Upon him the full force of the combined influences available was turned, but to no purpose. He was too good a railway manager to be willing to lose the services of a man "who knew his work and did it right, a man who couldn't be bullied or blocked, and a man bedad, who could play a good game of poker."

"He stays while I stay," was Fahey's last word in reply to an influential director, laboring in the interests of the party machine.

FAITHLESS WIFE ELOPES AND DESERTS CHILDREN.

Montreal was the starting point of a family tragedy that ended in the elopement of a faithless wife, and the desertion in Winnipeg of three children. The immigration authorities here were asked to seek some trace of the woman, but so far no success has attended their efforts.

The mother and three children came from England with the intention of joining the father, who is employed by the C.P.R., and who had built a home at Fernie, B.C.

It appears that coming out on the steamship Manitoba the mother of the children, who was accompanying them, fell in with some man, who was also an immigrant to Canada, and a flirtation was kept up throughout the voyage. On landing at St. John this man accompanied the family to Montreal, where he was successful in inducing the woman to elope with him.

The children went on through to Winnipeg in charge of the immigration agent.

The three children, two girls, one of fourteen, the other of sixteen years of age, and a boy of ten, are now in Winnipeg awaiting the arrival of their father.

DR. MACNAMARA'S VIEWS ON CANADA

Would Rather Sing "God Save the King" Than "Rule Britannia."

STORY OF CANADIAN BIRTH

This Canadian Britisher Thinks Canada Gets All the Attention Circumstances Warrant.

Special Correspondence of the Montreal Star.

London, March 25.—Of the various Canadians by birth who are at present to be found in the Lords or Commons at Westminster the most conspicuous figure is undoubtedly that of Dr. T. J. Macnamara, M.P., the recently appointed Parliamentary Secretary to the local Government Board.

Dr. Macnamara is noted for his many sided character, the variety of his interests, and the readiness of his wit. Not only is he remarkable as a man who graduated from Board School to Treasury Bench, but as a brilliant speaker, a quick thinker, a highly prolific writer, and an amusing conversationalist, whose gift of repartee has helped him out of more than one tight place. A sort of second cousin to Cinderella he has managed to make himself a factor in the affairs of the day.

My appointment to interview Dr. Macnamara for the Star was for twelve o'clock on a recent morning, at his office in the local Government offices, Charles street. But a fog of the pea soup variety which blotted out landmarks and turned day into night delayed everyone's business and postponed my interview until five o'clock at the House. Just at present it's a venturesome thing for an unescorted female to approach the sacred precincts of St. Stephen's for since the last suffragette outbreak every mere woman entering this stronghold of man, must be vouched for by a member before she is allowed as far as the lobby. Card in hand and using Dr. Macnamara's name as an "open sesame," to the various policemen who guarded the portals, I at last reached the inner stronghold and was given over to the chaperonage of Dr. Macnamara's secretary, who appeased the last grim blue-coated guardian by explaining that he was responsible for me. Never as far as I know having been heretofore an object of suspicion to the police I was glad when the last doubt of my being a suffragette with a desire to create a disturbance was cleared away and I found myself conveyed through the sacred lobby to Dr. Macnamara's room, which to judge of the distance travelled should have been in the neighborhood of the subterranean spot, where Guy Fawkes hatched his little plot.

But I had my reward. Dr. Macnamara gave me an hour's interview in the course of which he was frankness itself in his expressions concerning every topic touched upon. Undoutedly he not only has the courage of his convictions, but the ability to express his views clearly and to the point.

HIS PERSONALITY.

In appearance Dr. Macnamara is tall and straight, full of suppressed energy, quick and abrupt in his movements. His hair, and there is still a good deal of it, is tinged with grey. His eyes are piercing and if anything contrives to escape them it must be infinitesmal indeed. His enunciation is clear, and his voice has a wonderful carrying power but is somewhat marred by a peculiarity which takes the form of a sort of whistling note in his speech. He is a famous phrase maker and his "bon mots" are much quoted. It was he who, when interrupted by a suffragette during the course of a speech, replied to her query as to his views on the cause she held most dear, "I believe every woman should have a vote or a voter. Which would you like?" At a recent meeting he was asked, "Are you in favor of the repeal of the blasphemy laws?" and like a flash came his reply, "Madame, I am a golfer."

Dr. Macnamara is a journalist of some distinction and gave up his position as master in a Board School in Bristol to come to London in 1892 as editor of the "Schoolmaster." He still contributes many articles to the magazines and quite recently in one of them described the long hours and over work which from a Board School boy transformed him into a pupil teacher and finally into a school master. In still another recent magazine article Dr. Macnamara sketched the aims of last Session's Education Bill and in the course of it managed to present to the lay mind some idea of the complexities that underlie the great question that is agitating England. To the alien the question has so many ramifications that an ordinary intelligence cannot grasp them. Red tape and a general objection to the establishment of new precedents seem doomed to keep in existence a system of education, the country has outgrown. The educational system in vogue in Canada is too simple for the average English mind to accept on a working basis; it seems too practical to be true.

HIS CANADIAN EXPERIENCE.

Though Dr. Macnamara spent the first ten years of his life in Canada and there laid the foundation of his education, he never attended school until he returned to England, and has no first hand knowledge of our school system. His career has been picturesue to the verge of romance and reads rather like fiction than a sober page from real life. "My father," Dr. Macnamara said, "was a color-sergeant in the old 47th regiment, and was married to an Irish girl at Malta just after the close of the Crimean war, in which he took part. The regiment was immediately afterwards sent to Canada and in barracks in Montreal in 1861 I was born. For ten years we remained in Canada spending most of the time in Montreal, but also going west of Toronto to London and Hamilton." During this impressionable period the boy had his father's limited library at his command, the books which he studied, being the Bible and two others. To quote Dr. Macnamara: "Don Quixote and Gil Blas I knew thoroughly and could repeat whole pages from them, but the philosophy and morals were over the head of a child of my age. My last recollecion of Canada was sitting on a box on the deck of a river steamer which was taking the regiment from Montreal to Quebec to embark for England. I was reading and suddenly something dark rose close to me and looking up I saw the side of the Himilaya, the troop ship which was to take us home. That was my farewell to Canada. I have never been back since, but I hope to go some day."

The Macnamara family eventually found themselves settled at Exeter and there when twelve or so young Macnamara began his serious schooling, and finally through the instrumentality of Miss Temple, sister of the Archbishop of Canterbury, made up his mind to become a teacher. The subsequent hard work explains the keen interest taken in educational matters by the present Parliamentary Secretary of the Local Government Board. It is also little wonder that an improvement in educational conditions is an article of faith with him for he knows by actual experience what has been done and what left undone. In Canadian educational matters Dr. Macnamara expressed keen interest and his question showed that in this matter at least it is possible the British Government is finding something in Canada worth serious consideration.

FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

In view of the fact that the Commons just now is a place where militant suffragists are not tolerated for a moment, it was somewhat nervously that I put the question: "Dare I mention suffragettes?" "Why not?" he replied. "I want women to be enfranchised. I am in favor of an adult suffrage bill. I want men and women to sit side by side in Parliament. I am a Radical and want women to vote even if they do vote Tory for the first few years, and that is what the average woman who lives in a suburban villa will do. It is claimed that if women are enfranchised and sit in Parliament—for if they have one privilege they should have both—they will have a vote in declraing war and consequently should go to war themselves when occasion offers. Personally I believe women would make for peace, but if not it is nonsense to say they should fight. Men and women while thoroughly equal are complementary to each other and have different destinies to fulfil. Let men go to war, while women stay at home and raise children. And really," he added, "they have the hardest task. I would prefer to fight Zulus than be a woman and raise children."

DR. T. J. MACNAMARA, M.P.

It was suggested that the Suffragettes in their recent march on St. Stephen's had seemed to be in war like training by their employment of military tactics. "That's their mistake," said Dr. Macnamara. "Women should not put themselves in a false position. A man can pull down the railings in Hyde Park and bring about a reform, without being the less a man; a woman lowers herself by fighting policemen and lying down on the floor of the Lobby until dragged away by force. Fighting policemen isn't playing the game. Last session a motion in favor of the enfranchisement of women was before the House and would have undoubtedly been carried but for the cries of "Votes for Women" from the ladies' gallery. In consequence of the disturbance the House was cleared and the motion was not carried. Had the women kept quiet they would this session have been in the splendid tactical position of demanding from the Government: "What are you going to do about the motion carried last session?" Women cannot hope to succeed by outraging convention. The English people are very sagacious, very clever, very far-seeing, but if you make a cause ridiculous in their eyes you put it back several generations."

CANADA GETS FAIR PLAY.

It was pointed out to Dr. Macnamara that Canada has grown sufficiently important to no longer be regarded as a name lost beneath the tack that pins the map of the western hemisphere to the wall; that as the oldest of the Colonies and one of the richest she deserves a consideration that at least a section of Canadians does not think she receives. But Dr. Macnamara, while professing a deep interest in the land of his birth, holds the opinion that Canada is getting more than fair play, and when told that Canada did not always subscribe to that belief, said: "Everybody wants more than they can have and no one is ever contented with what they have got. It's a general principle to ask for more." Dr. Macnamara believes, however, that "an Imperial Council should be formed to meet from time to time when matters of common interest could be discussed and adjusted." Moreover, he regards Canada as a country that ungratefully fails to appreciate the many advantages bestowed upon it by the Motherland, and that it will only learn to appreciate present blessings when called upon to contribute liberally towards her own defences. In a word, he thinks Canada more interested in the success of Canada than in the welfare of the Empire.

Dr. Macnamara expressed polite disbelief that Canadian loyalty to the Empire was proved by the sending of soldiers to South Africa, or that such contingents could be regarded as more than "a straw to show which way the wind blew on the surface." While far from wishing to belittle Canada in any way he holds that those who went to South Africa did so because they were possessed of the venturesome spirit. As a body, he expressed an opinion, that the Canadians were among the finest soldiers who paraded in London after the war, but while not questioning their loyalty believes it was their love of adventure that made them take part in it. It was pointed out to him that had he been present at the unveiling by Lord Grey, in Quebec, of the memorial to those who did not return he might have thought it was not all fun for Canada, but while sympathetic he was unshaken.

Apropos of Canada, Dr. Macnamara coined a phrase which he seemed to think might be equally applied to her patriotism, her commercial interests, her tariff, and her relations with her neighbor across the border. Time and again he repeated it with evident gusto, and it's worth putting on record, however, one may quarrel with its interpretation. "I believe," said Dr. Macnamara, "I believe that Canada would rather sing 'God Save the King,' than 'Rule Britannia.'"

Spring Suits, Skirts, Coats and Blouses for Women.

AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

There is no monopoly of "style" in the market. The best style, like the best of everything else, goes to the store that can buy the most of it and pay for it quickest. We have our choice and we use it. There are no better styles in Montreal than those shown here. But good style costs less here than it does anywhere else. In test of this we ask nothing better than that we be judged by the present showing of ready-to-wear apparel. It is useless to try to describe the large and varied stock of beautiful Spring Suits we are showing. Our price range is immense—but the stronger point is that these prices are low—lower than the average; lower than the lowest elsewhere. Test the claim as closely as you please, and judge us by what you find. As a special feature for to-night and Monday, we select these for particular mention:

STREETS GOVERNED BY BUILDING LAWS

Building Inspector's Report Defines Streets Where Fortunes, Etc., May Be Erected.

Some time ago the City Council discussed the question of not allowing manufacturing establishments, etc., in certain streets of the city. As there was some confusion in regard to just what streets there were by-laws governing the erection of buildings the building inspector was asked to make a report on the matter.

This report has been compiled and is as follows:

"Residential streets—By-law. govern the erection of buildings on the following streets: Sherbrooke, from St. Denis to eastern city limits; Cherrier, from St. Denis to Park Lafontaine; St. Hubert, from Sherbrooke to Mount Royal avenue; St. James and St. Antoine (St. Henri), from Bourget to St. Ferdinand streets; St. Ferdinand, St. Peter, Metcalfe, Agnes, Park Terrace, Park ave., Annie street, from St. James to St. Antoine; Beaudoin and Delinelle, from canal to G.T.R. track; the district bounded by Beaudoin street, the G.T. R. track, Delinelle street, and the Lachine canal, Lafontaine Park west.

"There are no by-laws governing the erection of buildings on the following streets: The district bounded by Dorchester street, Dominion square, Peel street, to north and west limits; Pine avenue, Park avenue, Papineau avenue, Palace street; and all streets not mentioned above and which front on Cremazie Park, St. Louis Square, Mount Royal Park and St. Henry Park.

"Commercial streets—There are by-laws governing the erection of buildings on the following streets: Notre Dame, from Lacroix to Papineau ave., from Chabolliez square to Fulford st., and from McGill to Inspector street; St. Lawrence, from Craig to Sherbooke, and from Sherbrooke to Mount Royal avenue; Ontario, from eastern to western city limits; Bleury, from Craig to Sherbrooke; St. Catherine, from eastern to western limits; St. Antoine, from Craig to city limits (Atwater avenue); and Guy, from the canal to the northern limits. There are no by-laws relating to the erection of buildings on Craig and St. James."

It is now the intention of the City Council to pass new by-laws which will protect quite a number of residential streets against the invasion of factories and shops.

Lectures to Masters and Mates.

Captain Riley, local examiner of Masters and Mates, delivered a course of lectures on navigation and seamanship at the Monument National during the winter for the benefit of the mariners of the port. As the lecturer was able to enliven and illustrate the subjects under discussion by stories and anecdotes drawn from a rather varied and extensive sea experience, the lectures were as entertaining as they were instructive, and were much appreciated by those fortunate enough to be able to attend. In addition to delivering thirty lectures, Capt. Riley kindly placed his books and apparatus at the disposal of those interested in acquiring a better knowledge of navigation and seamanship. At the close of the series Capt. Sears, on behalf of the regular attendants, moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer, declaring that his interesting treatment of the questions taken up had proved a source of profit and pleasure to him as well as to others.

EDISON GOLD MOULDED RE[illegible]

Advance List For April. Price 40c.

9505 Gambrinus Polka (Bial) — Edison Concert Band.
The old, familiar and much played instrumental piece composed by the late Rudolph Bial, partner of the former well-known New York amusement caterers, Koster and Bial.

9507 Let It Alone (Williams) — Ada Jones.
Unique coon song, by the writers of "Nobody." The semi-conversational way in which it is sung puts it in a class by itself and marks it a decided and interesting departure.

9508 Captain Baby Bunting (Helf) — Byron G. Harlan.
A real "Mamma's Boy" song by the same composer. It should equal its predecessor's popularity. "Captain Baby" is of the "Rocking Horse Brigade."

9509 Angels Serenade (Braga-Hasselmann) — Charles Schuetze.
A harp solo, unaccompanied. The first made for the Edison catalogue. Requests have been numerous for a record of this instrument. Mr. Schuetze is the harp soloist and a member of the exclusive New York Philharmonic Society.

9510 Farewell, Killarney (Edwards) — Irving Gillette.
A new sentimental Irish march ballad. It is typically Irish, sweet and melodious. The "Killarney" referred to is the sweetheart to whom the Irish lad is bidding farewell.

9511 The Precious Name (Doane) — Edison Mixed Quartette.
The well-known gospel hymn, sung by a quartette of mixed voices. The selection is also known as "Take the Name of Jesus with You."

9512 If Anybody Wants to Meet a Jonah, Shake Hands with Me (Hoyt) Arthur Collins.
A "hard luck" coon song that already has a good start on the road to success. It is admittedly one of the best coon songs on the market. Mr. Collins' rendition is perfect. Edison Military Band.

9513 National Fencibles March (Sousa)
Another one of John Phillip Sousa's first and best marches, also performed a la Sousa.

9514 Far Away (Richmond) — Harry Anthony.
A beautiful ballad, both words and music. Its sub-title, "Some One Thinks of You To-Night," gives a better idea of the story.

9515 When Bob White is Whistling in the Meadow (Rosenfeld) — Harlan and Stanley.
A sentimental song with a pretty melody and a real touch of nature in the story. It is recorded as a tenor and baritone duet, which form enhances the beauty of the selection.

9516 If You Want to Pick a Fuss, Wait till the Sun Shines. (Furth) Bob Roberts.
A coon song, genuinely characteristic, and, of course, funny. The conversational line of the chorus, "'Cause I ain't a-goin' to leave home in the rain," makes clear the meaning of the title.

9517 The Silvery Brook Waltz (Braham) Edison Symphony Orchestra.
One of the best orchestra selections that we have recorded in some time. It is performed in concert style, with introduction, waltz and coda.

9518 That's What the Rose Said to Me (Edwards) — Louise Le Baron.
A ballad of a somewhat higher order, sung by contralto. It has attracted considerable attention throughout the country and will doubtless prove a welcome addition to our catalogue.

9519 My Kickapoo Queen (Reed) — Collins and Harlan.
A Zulu-Indian kind of a coon song, sung as a male duet. The idea of the words is quite new in a way, and the music is exceptionally catchy and odd.

9520 Ida-Ho! (Von Tilzer) — Billy Murray and Chorus.
The wild Western song, called the "melodious cyclone," that is sweeping the country. The Edison Male Quartette joins in the chorus.

9521 Popularity March (Cohan) — Vess L. Ossman.
A lively march played as a banjo solo. George M. Cohan is the composer. Among his former hits are the songs "Yankee Doodle Boy" and "The Grand Old Flag."

9522 The Tale the Church Bell Tolled (Van Alstyne) — Harry MacDonough.
A new descriptive song destined to become widely popular. The story is on a new and impressive theme and the musical setting is fully up to the merit of the composers' successes.

9523 How Matt Got the Mitten (Original) — Ada Jones and Len Spencer.
A vaudeville specialty describing a Down East courtship, which resulted unfortunately for Matt. As a climax to the record Miss Jones sings "I Don't Like Your Family" (Howard).

9524 The Bowery Grenadiers (Kelly) — J. W. Myers.
A song revival of more than ordinary interest. The late J. W. Kelly entertained thousands with it. As a record it loses none of its original attractiveness.

9525 Sunbeam Dance (Rolfe) — Albert Benzler.
A sparkling instrumental number in schottische tempo, played as a solo with the bells. The bell tones are particularly clear and combine with the orchestra accompaniment to make an unusually good record.

9526 Do, Re, Mi, Fa, Sol, La, Si, Do (Burt) — Edward Meeker.
A comic song with an odd title. We quote two lines of the chorus to give its character:
"Though means money, ain't it funny, everywhere we go,
It's Do, Re, Mi, Fa, Sol, La, Si, Do (dough)."

9527 Flanagan on a Broadway Car (Original) — Steve Porter.
Another vaudeville specialty in which, as in the restaurant, "Flanagan's troubles" is the chief comedy feature. It's just as funny and contains just as many laughs.

9528 When the Roses Are in Bloom (Sattus) — Edison Male Quartette.
A pathetic rustic-sentimental song specially arranged as a male quartette. The solo part by bass, and the duet by first and second tenors, stand out prominently in their harmonious surroundings.

9529 My Mariuccia Take-a Steamboat Medley (Originals) Edison Military Band.
A band medley of three songs that you can "Join in the Chorus" with "My Mariucca Take-a Steamboat," "In a Chimney Corner," and "My Irish Rosie."

Good whisky improves with age, but old age does not necessarily mean good whisky.

"ROYAL DISTILLERY" WHISKIES are good, to start with. They are distilled of the finest Canadian grain, by experts. Then they are stored away in the wood to age. It is purity and perfect distilling—as well as ripe old age—that give "ROYAL DISTILLERY" WHISKIES their smooth, mellow, delightful flavor.

AUTO AND SPORTSMEN SHOW THE ATTRACTION NEXT WEEK

Art is forcing out nature.

Artificial motion seems to be getting ahead of animal motion.

The automobile in the season's list of big functions has once more managed to set and get accepted the date of its public reception, its levee, before that of the horse.

The automobile is the first to make use of the new Arena annex, and the automobile is certain to have at night more people call on it, than even its spacious drawing room on the corner of St. Catherine street and Wood ave. can accommodate.

The progress in automobiling in Montreal and Canada has been a marvellous thing.

Eight years ago, there was only one machine in this city, and Mr. U. H. Dandurand created no end of sensation with his, which was then unique.

To-day there are scores.

USED FOR ALL PURPOSES.

Not only are they being used as a matter of pleasure, but they are being used for business purposes as well. Demonstration during the past year of the work some of these wonderful motor trucks can do has made a great impression upon the minds of wholesale dealers and manufacturers.

For a city where for several months in the year, the roads are not at all inviting for the automobilist, Montreal certainly has as many cars in proportion, if not more, than any other city in America.

One prominent auto man puts the number at between four hundred and four hundred and fifty.

BIG OUTLAY IN MONEY.

This means a big outlay not only for the machines themselves, but for the accessories, for gasoline, for repairs and for the help that is necessary to run these cars.

Nearly all those owning cars are members of the Automobile Club of Canada, and this club is doing all it can to ameliorate conditions especially as regard to the roads, which are not exactly what they might be as yet, although there are some very passable ones around the Island of Montreal.

A novelty this year is the introduction of a general sporting feature into the show.

The land auto has been used once in a while for hunting game, or at least for carrying people to the happy hunting grounds and other kinds, but it was the water auto that brought motors into close proximity to the best there was in sporting.

Berne Nadall, manager New Comet Auto Co.

Motor boats were already a part of last year's show. This year, the show is built on same principle as the big shows in New York, Boston and Chicago, and hunting and fishing implements, camping outfits, large views of scenery, live and stuffed game, and live Indians will all help to make the exhibition more interesting than it was the first time.

It really looks as if the motor had come to stay, as not only a luxury, but perhaps a necessity of modern social life, and by and by a way will be found through the building of more factories in Canada, and through cheaper processes to make automobiles not only accessible in price to the Four Hundred, but to the average middle class as well.

ACCESSORIES TRADE IS A GREAT ONE

Mr. J. Ernest Milne Supplies Land Autos as Well as Those That Go by Water.

The popularity of the motor boat has been steadily increasing in Eastern Canada during the past few years, and now that the cost of a launch has been reduced to a minimum, more young people than ever will go in for the aquatic sports.

Mr. J. Ernest Millen, of the firm of John Millen & Son Company, Limited, 321 St. James street, who travelled extensively in an automobile car in England last season, said he had come to believe that there was no better sport than running about the lakes in a motor boat. In the old days the sailing boat had the call, but now everybody wanted a motor boat, which was considered the proper thing. Mr. Millen said that these boats cost all the way from $350 to $1,100 and can be purchased from his firm at short notice. The Millen Supply House is known in all parts of the Dominion. They do not manufacture or sell automobiles, but they keep a large stock of auto supplies. An endless variety of rubber goods and from the smallest wrench manufactured to the biggest implement required are to be found in the Millen warehouses, on St. James street.

In regard to the advantages of the pneumatic tire over the old solid, an amusing story was told the reporter. It appears that a short time ago the manager of a well-known company was trying to persuade the King, who had for a long time insisted in keeping to the "solid tire" to allow him to place the pneumatic tires on the new car that was just being ordered. "That is all very well, said His Majesty, "but supposing when I get into the middle of a village some miles away from anywhere, one of these pneumatic tires gives out, all the little boys in the place will be poking their fingers at me while I am sitting on the fence, and saying, "There he is. That's the King." His Majesty has since then been convinced that the pneumatic is much better than the solid tire. The Millen Company, however, sell all kinds of tires. There is nothing too small or too big for the firm to handle. Mail orders are promptly attended to and the most skilled mechanics to be found on the continent are employed. Mr. J. Ernest Millen takes a lively interest in automobiling as well as motor boating. They are both very fascinating pastimes and are superior in every way, according to Mr. Millen, to any other line of sport.

THE MEN WHO WILL RUN THE SHOW

Mr. Di Lewis, Superintendent.

Mr. R. M. Jaffray, Manager.

T. B. Byrne, manager The Canadian Automobile Co.

NATIONAL ROADWAY FOR AUTOMOBILES

Manager Patenaude, of the Franco-American Automobile Company has some very effective ideas in regard to good roads and the benefits which not only automobilists, but the people in general would derive if, for instance, in the Province of Quebec, they could boast of such good automobile roads as New York state can boast of. During his experience in connection with the Quebec Legislature he has often wondered why so many members from the country districts were so greatly opposed to automobiles. If they only understood the situation thoroughly he thought that instead of being opposed to autos they would see that it would be to their advantage to have the number of these machines increased.

In New York state alone he said: "They are spending $50,000,000 on the improvement of roads for automobiles and in a few years their road will be as wonderful as those of France or any of the other countries in Europe where automobiles are now being used. As the result, hundreds of automobile parties pass through districts, which otherwise would, have no visitors worth mentioning, and these parties spend large amounts of money."

His idea is that if the Government of Quebec could see its way clear to build a national roadway, say, from the northern part of the state of New York through the province to the city of Quebec, it would cause United States visitors, with whom motoring is just now all the rage, to spend millions of dollars annually amongst the inhabitants of the districts to which this proposed roadway might run.

He thinks that the wealthy automobilists of New York and other parts of the United States would take to this road with avidity, not only because they are always looking for new directions in which to take trips, but also because they seem to be actually getting tired of being compelled to go south to enjoy themselves or to go to Europe. He says it is a well known fact that the country people of France are waxing rich and fat on the money spent by American automobilists on their trips in that country.

Mr. Patenaude is a great admirer of the French machine and of French accessories which are his principal stock in trade. He maintains that up to the present the French machines are the best finished of any built, and this he says is mainly due to the fact that French workmen seem more adapted to the work of automobile making and because the final touches are put to the French machines by certain experts known as "assembleurs," the like of which cannot be found anywhere else in the world. He admits, however, that English and American makers are taking such great strides forward, that, in a couple of years they will be able to do just as well as their confreres in France.

Mr. Patenaude's company is also agent for the Lamb Marine Engines, and Mr. Patenaude sees a great future for motor craft of every description in connection with the glorious lakes and beautiful rivers of which Canada ought to be so proud.

W. P. Kearney, manager of The Canadian Automobile Co.

Mr. L. N. Patenaude, of the Franco-American Auto Co.

CURLING RINKS USED AS GARAGES NOW

Mr. W.P. Kearney, of the Rubber Tire Wheel Co., and the Canada Automobile Co., says: Unquestionably the energy shown by your paper deserves that each and every one of the trade should promptly give you any expression of opinion regarding the automobile industry as well as the sport attached to same. I confess that my sporting tendencies were attracted to the automobile long before it was considered a means to further business ends, but at that time the prices charged for cars and the inefficiency of same to do the work that local conditions required, kept many people in this part of the country from making any investments.

However, as the rubber tire is a first cousin to automobiles, and as I was vigorously engaged in the manufacture and sale of same, I had occasion to establish offices in the principal cities from Vancouver to Halifax, and the more business we did in tires, the more we felt that the future of the automobile would increase same, and it, therefore, became more or less part of our interest to introduce the automobiles, and gradually I drifted in the business by acquiring one or two agencies for small cars, and the Thistle Curling Club Rink, at the corner of Monique and Dorchester streets is now one of our garages.

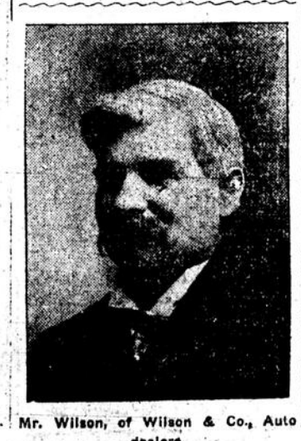

Two years ago we felt delighted at selling $25,000 worth of cars. This year, up to date, we have already booked and shall deliver before the first of May, $80,000 worth of cars, and one half of this amount is made up in cars valued at from $5,000 to $9,000.

We have been successful in our selection of houses to represent, inasmuch as four years ago, when we entered the field, we chose the Darracq car, first for its efficiency, and next because their output was large, and we were reasonably sure of getting deliveries. Last year the Darracq Co. made and sold 3,600 high priced four cylinder cars.

With the Cadillac Co., of Detroit, last year, their output was 5,600 light runabouts, and light touring cars. This output was, perhaps, the largest in the United States last year.

While in our Canadian made car, we have selected the Oldsmobile, which is made by the Canadian firm, viz., the Packard Electric Co., under the guardianship of the Oldsmobile Co., of Lansing. This latter company have used their Canadian builders output to supply a large percentage of their foreign market. In this way the Canadian concern have the advantage of gaining experience by building a large number of cars, as our Canadian market does not at present lend itself as a large market for any priculiar make of car.

I might add that Mr. T. F. Byrne, who for the past fifteen years has had a wide experience in the manufacture and sale of bicycles and automobiles, both in the United States, Canada, and abroad, has recognized the field which Canada presents for the automobile business, has taken an interest in the Canadian Automobile Co., and will act as its manager in the future. Although Mr. Byrne has been away from Canada for some seven years, he still has a fairly wide acquaintance, more particularly in the West.

FACTORIES IN CITY WILL BE NEXT MOVE

Manager Crombie, of the Auto Import Company, Thinks They Will Be Started Here Soon.

"This is going to be a banner year for all kinds of sport," said Mr. F. R. Crombie, manager of the Automobile Import Company, 96 Stanley street, when interviewed by a representative of the Star as to the outlook for the coming season. Continuing, Mr. Crombie said that his firm had taken over the sales department of the Reo Motor Car Company, of Lancing, Mich., and there was every indication that automobiling would be very much in evidence in Montreal during the summer months. The sales are doubling themselves weekly, many prominent citizens having purchased cars recently. Many of the firm's cars toured the continent last year. They were taken from Montreal, and not one serious accident was reported to the officials of the company. The garage, at 96 Stanley street, is probably one of the most important of its kind in Canada. The big establishment was crowded with elegant-looking touring cars and small runabouts, and the officers of the company were busily engaged in explaining the fine points of their cars to the large number of prospective buyers who filled the place when the Star man passed through. Great preparations are being made by the officials of the company for the show, which is expected to be the best yet held. The wonderful improvement made in the cars during the past year or two will be very noticeable. The big touring cars are now so perfect that ladies can manipulate them without the slightest fear of accidents. "Some people like to drive a good horse," added Mr. Crombie, "but give me the auto every time. Forty miles an hour is no light joke and there are many care in the Stanley street garage that can cover the distance without any difficulty on good roads. However, added Mr. Crombie, to an Englishman accustomed to travelling along the magnificent highways, the production of which has been the work of centuries, the automobile appears seriously handicapped by the condition of the Canadian roads. This drawback is being rectified as rapidly as possible, and before long the Canadian roads will be about all that can be desired. Mr. Crombie was emphatic in his statement hundreds of handsome cars will be sold in Eastern Canada this year. The manufacture of automobiles has vastly improved in England during the past few years, and there is every indication that several big factories will be started up in Canada in the near future.

Mr. L. D. Robertson, of the Eastern Automobile Co.

E. E. Fairman, of the International Auto Co.

MOTORS TAKE THE PLACE OF HORSES

That Is Manager Fairman's Experience in England During His Recent Visit There.

"Automobiling and motor boating, as a pastime, has got all other lines of sport faded," said Mr. Ernest E. Fairman, manager of the newly organized International Auto Company, who have their garage and headquarters in the Caledonian Curling Rink, 101 Burnside Place. Mr. Fairman is a popular member of the M. A. A. A., and enjoys all kind of clean sport, and has had some exciting experiences, but for comfort and enjoyment give him the automobile. Mr. Fairman says that his firm is handling the Dragon car, manufactured in Philadelphia, and he claims that it is one of the easiest riding and easiest manipulated cars on the market to-day. The cost of the machine is $3,200. The company will also handle the Golden Dragon, which is said to be one of the finest looking cars manufactured. The Golden Dragon will be seen in the streets of Montreal next week and will, no doubt, attract much attention. This car is capable of running forty miles an hour in a hilly country, and it is believed that three times as many cars will be sold this season than ever before. Mr. Fairman, while in London, was much struck by the radical change from the old two horse 'bus to the motor omnibus, which is rapidly taking the place of horse vehicles. In Montreal it cannot be doubted that before many moons wane the strets will resound with a medley of the street car gong and the automobile horn. The ancient horse, for working purposes as well as driving, will be displaced by the fast running auto. Already in New York and other large American cities, said Mr. Fairman, the "sight-seeing cars and, in fact, the hacks and carriages are operated principlly by motors. Many of the larger departmental stores have discarded the horse for the automobile. The new firm expects to do a prosperous business and many orders have already been booked in Montreal, Quebec, Brockville and other cities and towns in Eastern Canada. According to Mr. Fairman the line of autos they are handling are amongst the most useful ones that are turned out by expert workingmen to-day. Mr. Fairman expects the show to be a success in every way. The best cars manufactured will be exhibited and no stone will be left unturned to make the exhibition surpass anything of its kind ever attempted on this side of the Atlantic.

SOME AUTOMOBILE IMPRESSIONS THERE

Mr. Berne Nadall, of the Comet Motor Co., Talks About the Motor Car All Through Canada.

Mr. Berne Nadall, the general superintendent of the Comet Motor Company, has this to say:

With regard to the coming season the prospects for Canada in general and Montreal in particular, are very bright indeed. Even up to the present time sales of automobiles in the large cities have been almost double to that of last year, and with an International Automobile Show thrown in as a fillip to start off the season, Montreal enthusiasts should be elated.

It is not only the great fascination that motoring has for one that has made the sport so popular in both Eastern and Western Canada, but also the great interest that has been manifested by others. Even the farmer of the present day is not the farmer of but two years ago, but was weaned (as far as Quebec is concerned) by the Glidden tourists of last year, and to-day he is a freshman and to-morrow, perhaps, a sophomore. By the spring of 1908 he may be a graduate. The spirit has not spread any more rapidly than was expected by the knowing ones. Canada is as wide awake as any other country, and is quick to take hold of a good thing when they see it. In yachting Canada is to-day second to none, and as motoring is nothing more or less than land yachting, it is obvious to everyone that we will soon hold our own with other countries in this respect.

Even the country horse realizes his diminishing duties and is fast resigning his long-reigned sovereignty to the inevitable fate.

I have carefully watched the trend of the people's pulse for the past ten years, and only returned to Canada last year to build motor cars, believing that it was the one great field for the young man, not only in this particular line but in other branches of industry as well.

It has proved itself so, not only with regard to pleasure automobiles, but commercial vehicles as well, and it will be in this line that Canada will particularly forge itself to the front.

Over her vast plains will be heard the "Tueff-tueff" of the automobile engine on the immense harvesting machines, and on her roads the sound of the motor horn will be heard all over the land.

The impetus has already been given to the commercial side of the motor problem and there are but few large cities to-day that haven't their automobile waggons plying to and fro with their goods and merchandise. Calgary has already her motor busses. Winnipeg a Royal Mail waggon. Toronto a motor emergency waggon for the street car repairs, and Montreal the big truck, while Alberta claims first use of the motor plough.

Pleasure vehicles, of course, are to be seen everywhere in the country towns as well as in the cities, and it is only necessary to look at the motor statistics of the past year to see the millions that are already invested in motor cars in our Dominion.

The Comet Motor Company, Limited, is composed of some of Montreal's foremost business men, however, we do not want their names published, except the name of Mr. F. H. Anson, who is the president, and also you might mention the name of Mr. L. D. Robertson, who deserves the credit for getting the company together. The writer is responsible for the manufacturing side of it and is superintending the whole business at the present time.

They will shortly secure premises and commence to manufacture in quantities this first class car. The drawings and designs, etc., are completed, and in fact work has been progressing favorably for some months.

MILITARY HAPPENINGS

The programme for the military tatoo, to be held at the Arena on the seventeenth and eighteenth of May next, has just been issued. A total of about 2,000 officers and men will take part, and it is hoped that the affair will prove the finest and most successful of any of the kind ever held in the city of Montreal. The massed band, composed of all the bands of the city regiments will number about 140 pieces, while the buglars will muster seventy strong. Besides all the city corps, sixty five officers and cadets from the Royal Military College, Kingston, thirty six horses and thirty eight officers and men from the Royal Canadian Dragoons, St. Johns, and the first battalion of the Mount St. Louis Cadet Corps will take part.

It has been suggested that the proceeds of the entertainment be divided up between the Notre Dame and the Montreal General Hospitals. The main object of the affair is not charity, however, it first having been thought of by Colonel Buchan with a view to stimulating interest in the active militia, and this end, it is hoped, will be accomplished.

Following is the programme of events:

8.15 (10 minutes)—1. Massed bands of 18th Brigade "God Save the King," "March Militaire."

8.25 (20 minutes)—2. Free gymnastics, R. M. C. Cadets.

8.45 (20 minutes)—3. Physical drill, Mt. St Louis Cadets.

9.05 (10 minutes)—4. Wrestling on horseback, R. C. Dragoons vs. 3rd Field Battery.

9.15 (15 minutes)—5. Lance exercise, R. C. Dragoons.

9.30 (20 minutes)—6. Gun drill, R. M. C. Cadets.

9.50 (15 minutes)—7. Musical ride, R. C. Dragoons.

10.05 (20 minutes) 8. Trooping the color, Friday night, 1st P. W. R. F.; Saturday night, 5th R. H.

10.25 (15 minutes)—9. Cavalry melee, R. C. Dragoons vs. D. Y. R. C. Hussars.

10.40 (5 minutes) 10. First post, and march, massed bugle bands of 19th Brigade.

10.45 (25 minutes) 11. Entry of Guards, 1, English Guard, 1st P. W. R. F., British Grenadiers; 2, French Guard, 65th C. M. R., Marseillaise; 3, Irish Guard, 3rd A. R. C., St. Patrick's Day; 4, Scotch Guard, 5th R. H. C., Campbells Are Coming; Canadian Guard, section of each regiment, Maple Leaf Forever; massed bands of 18th Brigade, the German tatoo, "Zopfenstreich," led by brigade bandmaster.

11.05 (5 minutes) 12. March, by the pipers of 5th Royal Highlanders; last post, massed bugle bands of 18th Brigade.

11.10—13. Departure of Guard: 1, English Guard; air, Hearts of Oak; 2, French Guard, air, Regimental March; 3 Irish Guard, air, Garry Owen; 4, Scotch Guard, air, Highland Laddie; 5, Canadian Guard, Vive le Canadien.

"God Save the King."

Preparations for the usual Victoria Day parade are as yet in more or less of a chaotic state. General interest will be centered around the unveiling ceremony of the monument on Dominion Square, erected to the Canadian soldiers who fell during the South African campaign. Earl Grey has kindly promised to be present and officiate at the ceremony, but Dr. Peterson and the monument committee have not yet drawn up a programme.

The military end of the affair is in the hands of Colonel Buchan, C.M.G., A.D.C., O.C.Q., and although he is not quite sure of the details he has already drawn up a general scheme. Troops will surround the monument on all sides and as Earl Grey unveils the statue every man will present arms. A salute of twenty one guns will then be fired from the square, and the troops will be reviewed on Dorchester street by His Excellency. Besides all the Montreal troops which will take part, it is expected that the 48th Highlanders from Toronto, the 8th Royal Rifles from Quebec, the 43rd from Ottawa and other out of town corps will be present. This will make one of the largest bodies of troops ever massed together in the city, and should the weather do its best, there is little doubt but what a gala scene will be witnessed.

The annual brigade church parade of the 18th Infantry Brigade will be held this year on either the twelfth or nineteenth of May. Colonel Ibbotson, the brigadier, has not yet finally fixed the date, but it will be on either of these Sundays.

Company drills have been going on since the first of March on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays in the armory of the Victoria Rifles, and the men of this corps are now becoming more than usually efficient in the use of the small arm. Attendance has been fully fifteen or twenty per cent. better than any season since the formation of the regiment, and enthusiasm has been unbounded.

The bugle band, under Bugle Major Hogan, practises every Monday and Wednesday, recruits practise on Saturday, and the boys are handing out a very fine quality of music.

Basketball and hockey seasons both being closed, and the Vics Reserves having come out on top in the bowling, sport is put aside for the nonce and all attention and time given to shooting on the Morris ranges. The different companies are detailed for different times and a systematic course of shooting is being given recruits and old hands alike.

The annual meeting of the Victoria Rifles Association will be held on Saturday evening the thirteenth inst., when reports of the year's progress will be read, and officers elected for the coming season.

The Victoria Rifles Basketball League has now brought its season to a close. All the scheduled games have been played, and as the league is composed of some ten different teams these were many.

The games were very hotly contested, as the members of the regiment were very keen on basketball during the whole winter.

As a result of the season's work, the Yates trophy, a handsome cup, presented last year by Dr. Yates, falls to the bands of No. 6 company. This company's team, captained by Sergt. W. Bruce Taylor, showed up well during the whole season, both in its practices and in the actual games, being fortunate enough to win every game from the start.

COL. B. H. VIDAL, who will become Inspector-General Militia Forces.

The Prince of Wales Fusiliers had a battalion parade called for last Tuesday evening, but owing to a misunderstanding the parade was a very small one. The battalion will parade next Tuesday evening at 8.15 sharp when the real commencement will begin. The regiment will have a busy time this drill season, as the ceremony of trooping of colors, and other fancy manoeuvres will be done by this regiment at the tournament in the Arena on May 18th next. The outlook for the regiment was never better than this season and the men all hope that by next season they will be quartered in their new regimental armory on Esplanade ave.

The non-commissioned officers' mess of the Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars held a private dinner in La Corona Hotel on Saturday evening last at 10.30 p.m. The non-coms class of instruction occupied the earlier part of the evening, and directly after the class was dismissed the men adjourned to the Corona to form an attack on a squad of oysters, commanded by Major Half Shell, who were reinforced by a squad of juicy steaks, commanded by Major Sir Loin Steak. The non-coms succeeded in completely annihilating the enemy in less than forty minutes. Sergeant-Major P. P. Littlewood transacted the honors at the head of the table, and was ably assisted by Regimental Sergeant-Major T. Leblond, of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, St. Johns, P. Q. Mr. Leblond was the only invited guest, and a special invitation card was prepared and forwarded to him at the Cavalry Headquarters, St. Johns. The different members of the mess furnished the necessary talent for the evening's programme. The evening proved a most enjoyable one, and was wound up by God Save the King being sung in real military fashion.

The squadron have an excellent body of recruits this season, who are now ready to take their places in the ranks on the first squadron parade, which has been postponed from Monday, April 1st, on account of Easter, until Monday, April 8th.

Lieutenant A. G. Nutter, who recently resigned the position of Sergeant-Major to take out a commission, was presented last week by a few of his friends with a very handsome officer's cane, silver mounted, with the squadron crest engraved on the handle.

Since the South African war the London Scottish Rifle Volunteers have so steadily decreased in numbers that it would appear as though this ancient corps were about to disappear altogether. During the five years before the war the London Scottish numbered 882. From 1900 to 1902 it numbered 1,036, but since then it has steadily diminished until now it has only a total of 602. As the funds for keeping up the headquarters of the regiment are derived mainly from its active membership and as there is an annual deficit of some £250 to meet each year, the members are making a strong appeal to all Scotsmen to step forward and help out the old corps.

No 1 Battery, 2nd Regiment Canadian Artillery, held their annual "At-Home" last Monday evening, which proved a decided success. Euchre was indulged in the first part of the evening, in which the following were the successful winners: Miss Fina, Mrs. Kerr and Miss Philpots, Messrs. R. S. M. Wilson, Gunner A. Ramsey, Gunner J. J. Denman and Gunner Martin. After the euchre dancing was kept up until an early hour, at which everybody thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

On Tuesday evening of last week an informal meeting of the officers and non-commissioned officers of the 2nd Battalion Royal Highlanders was held at the Armory on Bleury street. Very encouraging reports were received from the several companies as to the progress made in recruiting up to date, several of the companies having already recruited over seventy-five per cent. of their strength. Sergt.-Maj. Eakin occupied the chair and in the absence of Lieut.-Col. Cantlie, Major Gault addressed the non-coms, and congratulated them on the excellent progress they were making, which, he said, spoke well for the future of the new Battalion. The meeting was also addressed by Captains Norsworthy McCuaig, Hill, Walkem, Rexford, Fysche and Lieut. McGibbon. Refreshments and cigars were very much in evidence and during the evening a very enjoyable programme of songs and recitations were rendered by Col.-Sergt. Sharpe, Sergts. Skinner, Stagg, Massey, Drum.-Sergt. Nobbs, Corporal Stubbs and others.

Color-Sergt. Scott, No. 6 company, 2nd Battalion Royal Highlanders, has severed his connection with that regiment, owing to having accepted a position in Winnipeg. Before transferring to the 2nd Battalion, he was a sergeant in No. 8 company of the 1st Battalion, and his departure from the City will be a great loss to the regiment generally. Before leaving he was presented by the sergeants' mess, of which he has been the able secretary for the past two years, with a handsome 18-kt. gold ring duly inscribed and engraved with the crest of the regiment, as a memento of the esteem and friendship of his old comrades. The presentation was made at a special meeting of the Mess, which was called for that purpose and to wish Color-Sergeant Scott good luck and prosperity in his new home in the West. The presentation was made by Sergt.-Maj. Bethune, who referred to the able manner in which Color-Sergeant Scott had fulfilled the arduous duties of secretary and his untiring zeal at all times for the welfare of the Sergeants' Mess. Color-Sergt. Scott feelingly responded and expressed his sincere regret that circumstances obliged him to sever his connection with the old corps.

The Sergeants' Mess of the Royal Highlanders will hold its annual meeting on Monday next, 8th inst. It has been decided that in future the Mess will be jointly composed of the Staff Sergeants and Sergeants of both Battalions, which will bring the active membership up to about eighty-five. At the conclusion of the old business of the Mess on Monday evening the Staff Sergeants and Sergeants of the 2nd Battalion will be formally introduced by Sergt.-Maj. Eakin, after which the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place. The Highlanders' Mess has a bright outlook before it, being now one of the largest institutions of its kind in Canada in respect to membership. In this connection it might also be said that the quarters of the Sergeants' Mess in the new Armory are superior to anything at present existing in Canada and are being furnished in keeping with the building. Attached to the large Mess Room proper are large cloak and dressing rooms, lavatories, private rooms for the Sergeants-Major, etc., also a large kitchen and pantry equipped with the most up-to-datae appliance for a department of this kind. In fact, no money has been spared either by the officers or sergeants themselves in making the Mess as attractive and up-to-date as possible.

The vacancy in No. 6 company 2nd Battalion Royal Highlanders which has been caused, owing to the departure from the city of Color-Sergt. Scott has been filled by the appointment of Sergt. Marsh, transferred from No. 3 company 1st Battalion. Color-Sergt. Marsh has been a member of the Highlanders for many years, and has the congratulations and good wishes of all his comrades on his well deserved promotion.

The Bowling Alleys at the Highlanders' Armory have just been completed and while too late for this season, the Highlanders hope to become an important factor in the bowling competitions next winter. The alleys are up-to-date in every particular and are already being well patronised by the members of the regiment.

No. 1 company of the 2nd C. A. held their annual at-home on Monday evening last and was largely attended, both by officers and men. Euchre and dancing was indulged in. The n.c.o.'s and men presented B. S. M. Slade with a gold signet ring in recognition of his endeavors to bring the battery up to a high state of efficiency, which he has done.

Sergt.-Instructor Harris, of the R. C. F. A., Quebec, is instructing the corps this year, and prospects are encouraging. Now is the time for recruits to make their appearance.

The Sergeants' monthly mess meeting will be held on Monday evening, and a large attendance is expected.

ICE IN HARBOR REMAINS UNCHANGED.

There is very little change to-day in the ice in the harbor and river. The water in the harbor is still going down and at noon to-day registered 30 feet 4 inches, a drop of about six inches since yesterday. Between Three Rivers and Quebec, however, the water is continuing to rise, and the officials in that vicinity are expecting a considerable flood. The roads across the ice on the river are now unsafe, and people are using them at great risk to themselves.

Well Known Railway Man Dead.

A well known railroad man died yesterday when Mr. F. H. Small passed away at Bangor, Maine. Mr. Small had been for several years general travelling agent for the C.P.R., and in this capacity was well known throughout the country, but especially in this city, where he had resided for the past six or seven years. He had been suffering for about a year from paralysis brought on by injuries received in a collision while driving. He is survived by his wife, who was with him at the time of his death.

Glimpses and Players

Ellen Terry, whose name for so many years was associated so closely with that of the late Sir Henry Irving, will return to this city next week, and will be the attraction at His Majesty's. Miss Terry has been so often pronounced the one great high priestess of dramatic art that she can be so referred to in a manner quite impossible with any other actress now upon the stage. Her position at the very head of the English speaking stage is undisputable and whatever she does is with the authority of time and position that no one now has the temerity to dispute. Charles Frohman induced her to make this present tour of America only after great persuasion. Although the lady is now in her sixtieth year she has, according to the critics of New York and Chicago, retained all the infinite charm of her more youthful period. It is said that this remarkable woman has not a single wrinkle in her fair face, that her eyes are as bright, her smile as fascinating, her step as elastic and her manner as winsome as of old.

The plays in which she will appear and the arrangement of the repertoire follow: Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee George Bernard Shaw's latest comedy "Captain Brassbound's Conversion." Tuesday and Friday nights her great double bill "Nance Oldfield" and "The Good Hope." "Nance Oldfield" is the delicious comedy in which she has been seen before, where she portrays the role of the mature actress who has excited the love of an admiring man. She thinks so well of the play that in order to disillusionize him she reveals herself to him as being in private life made of much coarser stuff than she really is. She does this reluctantly, but, once started, determinedly and succeeds in her purpose.

"Captain Brassbound's Conversion" is the latest addition to Shavian literature on the American stage. Unlike Shaw's usual plays which have for their themes topics best discussed in the privacy of the home among mature people, "Captain Brassbound's Conversion" seems to be an effort upon the part of the Irish satirist to demonstrate that he can go to the other extreme in the construction of a play, and in this one he has built a drama in which the element of love between the sexes does not enter until the very last moment of the play and then is discussed, but very slightly, and not at all as an abstract question. Captain Brassbound is a smuggler, brigand and a pirate, though his one ambition in life is to avenge the imagined wrongs of a low caste Brazilian mother upon the head of an uncle, his father's brother, who is an eminent judge of the High Court of England. This judge visits Africa, accompanied by his sister in law, and they fall into Brassbound's hands. He is about to sell the uncle into slavery when he is dissuaded from doing so by the woman, and their rescue is effected in the sudden and convenient appearance of an American man-of-war. Miss Terry has the only feminine character in the play, and, as it was written for her by Shaw, it is meant as a vehicle which would display her in the full majority of her power. There is not a sad nor a tragic moment in the play, although the general atmosphere is quite melodramatic.

"The Good Hope" is a translation from the Dutch of Herman Heijermans by Christopher St. John. It is a terrible tragedy. Death comes to nearly every one of the men in the play, but it is unseen by the audience, as all are drowned at sea. Heijermans wrote the play as a protest against the cruelties of the discipline in the Dutch navy, and also for the purpose of exposing the nefarious practice of sending to sea old and rotten hulks that carry heavy insurance, the lives of the crews not being considered by the owners. The scenes of the play are in a Dutch fishing village. An old fishwife, who has lost her husband and her two eldest sons by being drowned, has two surviving sons who have grown to manhood. At the time of the play, the eldest of these sons has just been released from jail where he has served a six months' sentence for striking a superior officer. The other son, who had served his time in the army, had come home, and, despite a born dread of the sea, he is, through the pleadings and upbraidings of his mother, induced to sign an article to ship on the Good Hope along with his brother. After doing so he is told by a drunken shipwright that the Good Hope is so rotten that she will go down in the slightest storm. The eldest son, after signing articles, learns that his sweetheart would present him with a nameless child possibly before he could come back from the cruise, and the two sons beg to be released. The owner of the hulk, however, insists upon their going, and, under the young laws, they had to go. The youngest son in his fright, clung to the furniture and to the doors in resisting the officers who came to impress him. The old mother even helped tear away his protesting fingers. Seven weeks after the Good Hope sailed, a ship came into the harbor booming its fog horn, a signal that there had been loss of life at sea. The women folk were gathered in the shipowner's office to learn the news, for they knew there had been a terrible storm. The Good Hope had gone down with all on board. The mother realizes that she helped her sons to their death, the sweetheart curses her for depriving her child of a father, and the play ends in a terrible gloom of despair. In New York and Chicago, where the play has been seen the critics are enthusiastic over the extraordinary emotional power displayed by Miss Terry in "The Good Hope." It is in very striking contrast to anything in which she has been seen before.

Helen Byron is the announced attraction at the Academy for the coming week in "Sergeant Kitty." While "Sergeant Kitty" has been before the public for several seasons, this will be the first time it has ever been offered at this theatre. The comedy of the opera is evolved from a series of situations arising from the complications into which a number of people already wedded are drawn through the determined efforts of a headstrong young woman to marry the man of her choice despite the strenuous opposition of her old guardian aunt. It is a case of young wit against old opposition, and, the young blood wins, but not until the audience has laughed its way through a maze of merry scenes, for "Sergeant Kitty" was written on laughing lines. James McElhern and Tom Hadaway are the two comedians, while others of the cast are Ferol Desmond, Garrick Major, Marion Langdon, Jack J. Clark, and George C. Zwick. The chorus is promised to be attractive in person and clever in work. Regular matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

That melodrama, founded on Western border life, entitled, "Young Buffalo, King of the Wild West," by Chas. E. Blaney, will be held here at the Theatre Francais next weeks. "Young Buffalo" is a typical American hero, and is surrounded by frontier characters of the sort that "shoot up" things when the notion strikes them. Its author claims actual happenings as the basis of his plot. "Young Buffalo," the hero, is said to be an actual resident of Arizona, a former miner and cow-puncher, who finally developed a genius for the stage with sufficient success to attract the notice of Mr. Blaney.

Patrons of the Theatre Royal will revel next week in the frivolity, light extravaganza and vaudeville provided by the famous Reilly and Woods's Company, including Pat Reilly. For the past twenty-three years this organization has been under the personal direction of Mr. Reilly. The company will be introduced in two laughable satires called "A Night in Atlantic City" and "A Supper for Two." The olio will include Berg's Six Merry Girls, a novel act; Henshaw and Fransioli, the well-known sister act; Daly, "the Madman", in his novel specialty; Cunningham and Coveney; Williams and Allyne, and the Reillygraph, besides a chorus of twenty.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

Chas. E. Blaney and Howard Hall's new comedy melodrama, "The Millionaire," will be presented for the first time in this city at the Francais the week of April 22. The authors, it is alleged, have written a play that sustains its interest throughout. There is novelty in the plot and the climaxes are dramatic.

Owing to the early departure of Mr. John A. Mauds for England, the production of "The Society for the Protection of Suffering Servants" has been inevitably postponed until the autumn. "The S. P. S. S." is a farce on the servant question. Mr. and Mrs. Domesticus, finding great difficulty in procuring suitable servants, join a society "for the benefit of the deserving rich," which sends them eight applicants for the position of cook. Each one of these applicants is more hopeless than the one before; and the climax is reached when the last servant—a Chinaman—refuses to remain unless allowed to marry the daughter of the house. The parts of the seven impossible servants are taken by Miss Frances de Wolfe Fenwick, the author, who possesses undoubted stage ability; that of Mr. Domesticus by Mr. J. A. Mauds. The latter is a cousin of the famous English actor, Mr. Cyril Maude. His unexpected departure renders the production of the play impossible this spring. Other members of the caste are Miss Dorothy Brown, Miss Eileen Lapthorn Smith, Mr. Hope Scott, Mr. Bruce Crombie and Mr. Arthur Fenwick. The play will probably be produced next October.

Francis Wilson during his engagement at His Majesty's, beginning Monday, April 15th, will present in addition to his great success, "The Mountain Climber," the one-act dramatic story, "The Little Father with the Wilderness," in which he appears as Pere Marlotte. The scenes of the little play let are laid in France during the reign of Louis VI., and its story treats of the early settlement of Canada. Its authors are Lloyd Osbourne and Austin Strong, who will be remembered by all readers of Robert Louis Stevenson's works.

The entertainment to be given by the young Canadian singer Donalda, in aid of the Montreal General and the Notre Dame Hospitals on the 22nd of this month in the Monument National promises to be one of the biggest successes in the way of testimonials that Montreal has ever known. Donalda will be supported by Mons. Seyeilhac, who was a member of the Manhattan Opera Co. all last season. It was in this same company that Donalda won her New York fame, as the leading soprano in the operas in which she sang she achieved marked success. Arthur Rosenstein, the young Russian pianist, will be soloist, and also accompanist to the singers. The concert is given to the hospitals by Donalda in return for the compliments shown her when she came back to her native city an artiste of universal reputation.

The long engagement that "The Mountain Climber" had at the Criterion Theatre New York, with Francis Wilson in the principal role, is a strong recommendation for the comedy. It will be presented at His Majesty's a week from next Monday. Mr. Wilson will be seen in the role of Montague Sibsey, whose wife publishes letters sent by him to her descriptive of his adventures in the Alps. Sibsey really never had been in the mountains, but had copied most of his letters from a book on Alpine adventures, written by Arthur Lidbrooke. The Alpine deception was intended to keep secret a trip that Sibsey had taken to Paris. Of course many complications arise, but Sibsey in the end emerges unscathed from the ordeal. Mr. Wilson is said to have one of the greatest successes of his career in the part. Charles Frohman has provided a company which includes May Robson, Ellen Mortimer, Edna Burns and Joseph Brennen.

Mr. Emile Tarranto, who was to have given his annual violin recital at the Art Gallery on the 22nd of this month, has changed the date to the 24th, owing to conflicting engagements. A feature of the recital will be the playing of two new compositions dedicated to Mr. Tarranto by a French company.

DOINGS OF THE PLAYERS.

The musical critic of the Boston Transcript, writing of Mme. Le Grand Reed, who gives her first song recital in Montreal, at the Karn Hall, on Friday evening, April 12th, says that "superadded to a beautiful voice she possesses the great gift of magnetism and dramatic talent." Of Mr. Kelley-Cole, the New York tenor, who will be associated with her in this recital, the same critic remarks: "He possesses a voice of wide range, whose quality combines the purity and sweetness of the tenor with the warmth and richness of the baritone." This recital will be further enhanced by the appearance, as solo pianist, of Mrs. Cave Cole, an American pianiste of high reputation. The sale of seats opened this morning.

A short season of grand opera, where society may display its finest gowns, where musical devotees may study a repertoire of classic works and the musical-loving masses may revel in the glorious melodies of the French and Italian masterpieces, is announced at the Theatre Francais for April 30th and May 1st, by the San Carlo Opera Company, numbering 160 persons. Madam Nordica and Alice Nelson are the stars of the organization, and it is announced that they will both positively appear on this occasion. While the repertoire has not been fully announced, it is distinctly understood that Alice Neilsen will appear in her celebrated role of "Mimi," in Puccini's opera "La Boheme." It is quite probable that Campanari will also be in the cast.

The attraction at the Nouveautes for the week of April 8th, will be "La Tosca," with Mlle. Rose Syma in the title role. "La Tosca" it will be remembered is one of the achieved successes of Victorien Sardou, the great French playwright. It has been translated into and played in every language and is considered as one of the masterpieces of dramatic literature. "La Tosca" has been staged at the Nouveautes by Mr. Dhavrol, according to the original methods of Sarah Bernhardt, and most effective scenery has been painted for the occasion, while the costumes are being made after Parisian models and will be exact copies of the period. Mlle. Rose Syma has been pronounced by French critics as one of the best actresses playing "Tosca," and her strong emotional talent is entirely adequate to the character. Mr. Dhavrol will play the "Baron Scharpia;" Mr. Cosset, "Mario Cavaradossi;" and Mr. Perny, "Cesare Angelotti." The whole company is in the cast and "La Tasca" promises to be a real artistic event. Matinee Saturday.

THE STAR GAZER.

HOW MR. NOVELLI DIES ARTISTICALLY

New York, April 5.—It chances that the second wedlock is the theme of two new plays in New York this week. In "A Marriage of Reason" it is a man who renews a risk in matrimony and in "The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott" it is a woman. "The lady first." So I will introduce the Widow Alcott to you. Can you call Dorothy Dorr to mind? If so, it helps to a clear idea of the creature who raises the row-de-dow in the drama put forth as original by Percival Pollard and Leo Ditrichstein; for Miss Dorr is a beauty so ripe that widowhood seems more suitable to her than maidenhood; yet she is still so lovely that it doesn't look unreasonable when a fellow ten years her junior develops calf love for her.

THE AMBITIOUS MRS. ALCOTT.

That is the affair of hearts in "The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott." A callow Mr. Winthrop, in the service of the State Department at Washington, meets this Mrs. Alcott, whose dead husband used to be the American minister at an Old World court not definitely designated; or perhaps he was an ambassador, as the country may have been one to which we send a top-notch diplomat. But the authors don't dare to be geographically explicit, because Mrs. Alcott had an affair with the king of whatever country it was, and wouldn't do to identify the royal rascal. Anyway, the widow's wickedness is bygone at the time of the play, and is brought forward from the past by an official report of it, which gets misplaced among other documents, and thereby falls into the hands of a senator. As the action of the play is placed in Washington, and dated 1907, this Senator Pierce may be meant to stand in the fiction for that particular senator, who is, in fact, chairman of some committee handling foreign diplomatic affairs, and who wears whiskers under his chin. Far be from me the desire to agitate Washington's officio-society circles, but Percival Pollard is, or has been, a Washington journalist, and in his play he gives to that senator a jolly chubby wife and a sensibly sentimental daughter. I place the responsibility on Pollard because, but for his reputation as a journalist, I would assume that his collaborator, Ditrichstein, had indulged in a habit of adapting German plays and asserting them to be original in English. It is a fact, too, that there is no atmosphere of Washington, excepting only such breezes as may waft themselves through Senator Pierce's chin whiskers. In all other respects, the characters might as well be assembled in Berlin, London or Paris. President Roosevelt is in it, to be sure, but not visibly, and his order to suppress the widow's record, so as to oblige some monarch or other, might come as well from a European ruler.

A SINGULAR RESEMBLANCE.

Audiences look nowadays to see a third act of compulsory interest in every serious drama, and if it is not there, why then the play is turned down. Now, for the life of me, I can't be sure whether the third act satisfied this demand on the opening night. This is the reason for uncertainty: The official report on Widow Alcott's naughtiness is in her calf-lover's pocket, and he doesn't know its purport; but the widow does; and so does an aged but still gallant Count Regedy, who desires to marry her nevertheless. Well, now, consider that the widow's happiness or misery depends on the publicity or privacy of that paper. The court grabs it away from the calf-lover, and throws it into the fire of a grate. Have you got that? And if so, would you if you were the author, drop your curtain at once? Pollard and Ditrichstein do not. They give heart disease to Regedy, so that the row may agitate him fatally, and the result is that his death puts the heroine out of the spotlight at the third act's climax. That is one of several reasons why this "The Ambitious Mrs. Alcott" resembles Sardou's, "Diplomacy" with no similar success.

NOVELLI'S PETRUCHIO.

Ermete Novelli has acted sixteen roles here within three weeks; but more than half of them, being unknown outside of the Italian language, have not seemed interesting topics to write about; and by describing his Shylock, Lear, Hamlet and Othello as lacking dramatic greatness, I may have belittled his art unfairly; so permit me to tell you that as Petruchio, the wife-trainer, in "The Taming of the Shrew," his oddities are delightfully ingenius, because they are in a Shakespearean comedy, which even Edwin Booth and Henry Irving used to present in a farcical spirit. This Petruchio evinces a love of Katherine that is more than hopeful from the outset; it is so confident that no shadow of doubt that he will conquer her falls for an instant on his joviality; and therefore all of his bullying looks good-humored to the audience, no matter how hateful it may appear to the astonished and bewildered bride. When he has brought her to the bridal journey's end, he is careful to not let her perceive his pity of the tired creature, but makes an ado over his own fatigue only, with no seeming regard whatever for her exhaustion. So careless of her does he pretend to be that, in washing his hands, he flips water into her face.

MADDENING KATHERINE.

His most persistent device of aggravation, however, is to hum a ditty—an Italian peasant tune of exasperating monotony—which makes her believe that he is utterly oblivious of her sufferings from hunger, thirst and fatigue. As they take their seats at the supper table, he says grace at a silent length that maddens Katherine, and while with one hand he makes signs of the cross on his breast, he holds her in her chair with the other. It has been customary with Petruchio to become mock angry at the table over the food and the service, but Booth and Irving together never broke as much crockery in twenty performances as Novelli does in one, and by the time that the meal is over the floor is littered like the stage of a vaudeville theatre after the act of Sparrow, the "mad juggler."

After the repast, which has not yielded a mouthful to the starved bride, she is dragged up a stairway and along a balcony to the bridal chamber. Presently her screams and other noises of a scrimmage are heard Petruchio flings the door open and tosses out the pillows, sheets and counterpane. Then he drags forth a mattress and drops it on the heads of the servants below. The poor wife, deprived of food and drink, and now without even a bed on which to rest, emerges from the room dejectedly, comes down the stairs and takes a seat by the fireplace, limp in body and crushed in spirit. Petruchio is moved to relent, but, lest he stop the curative treatment too soon, he begins again with the tiresome song which Novelli has interpolated in Shakespeare. But Katherine is now too weary to be annoyed any more by a tiresome tune; she falls asleep in her chair; and then he kisses her hair fondly, and tenderly covers her with a cloak.

Novelli has died for us in several differently awful ways. I have described his end of Louis XI. as a graphic study of death in senile old age. The chemists of to-day don't know what it could have been that, inserted into a man hypodermically on a blade's tip, killed Hamlet in five minutes. The most hasteful and hustling of swift America's rattlesnakes can't compete with this Denmark record of deadliness. So the actor of Hamlet, being licensed to substitute his own fancy for scientific fact, may kick the bucket of life in any antic way that he pleases, and there is no one with the authority to dissent. He may slump in a collapse, like Booth, or gyrate in a whirlphrenzy, like Irving; or skip hither and thither in a somewhat ballet motive of graceful gyration, like Sarah Bernhardt; and who can gainsay the symptoms of the peculiar poison with which the King tempted Laertes to tip his sword. Novelli's Hamlet dies of something that makes him gasp, thrust out his tongue, and fall headlong down the steps of his king-uncle's throne. On the evening that I saw him, something went wrong with the music cues. He had got his mortal hurt, and was abjuring Horatio to "absent thee from felicity awhile,

And in this harsh world draw thy breath awhile in pain
To tell my story,"

when the orchestra leader let loose his whole blatant band prematurely, and it sounded like an uncommonly big Salvation Army band blowing its soul out in a street appeal to sinners to come into Pandemonium Hall and be saved from the still more torturing hullaballoo of Hades. The actor didn't visibly flinch, or betray a wish to divert the remaining poison from his foil's tip from the king to the musical director. That misguided person shooed and sissed his gang in silence in time to let Hamlet roll down the throne's steps in a dying agony which had no orchestral opposition.

Novelli is pathological in his phenomena of death; and the most horrifying of his mortuary exhibitions is in "Alelula," where he portrays a dotingly good father of a wantonly bad daughter. He has believed her lies of purity; and he voices the fury of his wrath—until suddenly paralysis benumbs one side of him. With one arm dangling limp, one leg crumpling under the weight of his body, and one side of his face sagging while the other is contorted, he talks a little, with a half disabled tongue, violently, but incoherently, and then falls on his face dead—more awfully dead than I have ever before seen in stage simulation.

AN OLD FRIEND RECALLED.

There are single lines which, in the course of years of play-going, retain an ineffaceable place in the mind long after the dramas containing them are forgotten. Such a line is in the third act of "A Marriage of Reason." It was night at Belcombe Abbey, as you who saw the play in Montreal will recall. Suits of armor and liveried flunkeys were all about the ancestral hall. The youthful heir to the title lay dangerously ill, while a house party, in decollete as to the ladies and immaculate evening dress, as to the gentlemen, breathlessly awaited news from the sick room. Nevertheless, they discussed their sentimental relations and developed complications in passionate whispers; and the ancestral armor threw back the glitter of jewels on heaving bare bosoms and linen shirt fronts. Then it was that Fanny Ward, beautifully dressed to represent the second Lady Belcombe, clasped her hands over her heart and, with a roll of her eyes towards heaven, murmured: "I've tried—oh, I've tried so hard—to be genteel." Kyrle Bellew was, ostensibly, the star of the new play, and his acting supported his claim to the position. But the smart set of New Yorkers felt an interest in Miss Ward that gave her first place in their attention. She is remembered here for her appearance years ago in the role of Cupid, and in little else. In fact, the costume of the part was as slight as its words; and the only lines worth while were Miss Ward's own. She showed that she could look lines better than she can utter them. She was a charming little love godlet; and she went to London, where she fascinated the whole town in general, and one of its rich men in particular. Millionaire Lewis married and retired her; and from time to time she breaks out from connubial bliss to reappear on the stage. Her latest emergence in "A Marriage of Reason," is her first in her native land.

A Sad letter from a lady whose Husband was Dissipated.

How She Cured Him with a Secret Remedy.

"I had for years patiently borne the disgrace, suffering, misery and privations due to my husband's drinking habits. Hearing of your marvellous remedy for the cure of drunkenness, which I could give my husband secretly, I decided to try it. I procured a package and mixed it in his food and coffee, and, as the remedy was odorless and tasteless, he did not know what it was that so quickly relieved his craving for liquor. He soon began to pick up flesh, his appetite for solid food returned, he stuck to his work regularly, and we now have a happy home. After he was completely cured I told him what I had done, when he acknowledged that it had been his saving, as he had not the resolution to break off of his own accord. I hereby advise all women afflicted as I was to give your remedy a trial." 96

Have You Heard of

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

The New Scalp Prophylactic?

Newbro's Herpicide is the first Prophylactic for the hair and scalp. Its formula harmonizes with the theory (now a recognized fact) that dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair are of microbic origin. Herpicide defends the hair and scalp against disease, and by destroying the scalp microbe or dandruff germ (a tiny vegetable growth), it eradicates dandruff, stops falling hair, and permits the hair to grow as Nature intended. Almost marvellous results sometimes follow its use. Miss Clutter's letter and photograph certainly speak for themselves.

"I herewith enclose you one of my latest photographs, which will show you what Newbro's Herpicide has done for my hair. Since using your remedy my hair is much longer than it was, and it has that lustre to it that one's hair always has when their scalp is in a healthy condition."

(Signed), MADELINE CLUTTER.
4350 Berkeley Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Herpicide is delightfully fragrant and refreshing. It is free from oil, and makes the hair light and fluffy.

Glidden Tour of 1907 Will Start From Cleveland Wednesday, July 10

Big Touring Contest Will Go West As Far As Chicago and Return Eastward Through Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, Finishing in New York City--Interesting Points of New Conditions---How to Reach Cleveland by Rail and Auto.

Chairman F. B. Hower, of the American Automobile Association Touring Board, has announced that the Glidden Trophy event of this year, which brought the competitors to Montreal and Quebec last year, will start from Cleveland, O., on Wednesday, July 10, and end in New York on or about Tuesday, July 23, making approximately a fortnight's trip. The route was only suggested. From Cleveland the motorists will go to Chicago and from the Windy City turn eastward and pass through the states of Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey en route to New York city when the competition will end.

The exact route will be between 1,300 and 1,400 miles. Good and ordinary roads are included with some mountainous, as well as level country. The daily runs will be about 125 miles.

The Glidden trophy is to be awarded to the club whose entrants proportionately finish with the greatest number of points. The owner of every car finishing is to receive a certificate which will tell his exact standing. Those going through the entire tour without penalization will be marked "Perfect." A class of "non-contestants" has been provided for those desiring to accompany the tour, but not participate for the trophy.

SOME INTERESTING CONDITIONS.

In glancing over the governing conditions which are published in full, several interesting differences from those of last year are noted. The same idea of a time schedule for each day's run is to be in force, and penalties wil be in order for arriving at a checking station on or before the .unni..; time, but a leeway of two minutes for differences in watches is allowed. Last year there was no penalty for replacements or repairs providing a contestant could make the same and get into the next control on time. This year there are penalties.

In view of some things which happened on the last Glidden event another clause is noteworthy. This is one to the effect that one mechanician is allowed to each car and in making repairs, only he and the operator may work. This stipulation removes the opportunity of carrying on the tour a load of expert factory men to keep the cars in running shape.

ENTRIES CLOSE JULY 3.

The entrance fee for the tour is $100 and the entries close July 3 at noon. Chairman Hower wishes to impress on prospective competitors the wisdom of entering early so that the arduous duty of providing hotel accommodations and arranging for supplies can be disposed of successfully and to the satisfaction of all. Contestants are each day to be allowed to start at 7 o'clock or after. In entries the minimum number from each club is three.

Cleveland is 568 miles from New York by rail and 643 miles by the best automobile highway. The fare by train including sleeper is $15.65, or $3.00 without the night accommodations and the journey required on the fastest train is 15 hours. The freight rate on automobiles to Cleveland from New York is 53 cents a hundred and the minimum weight at 4,000 pounds. A majority of contestants from New York, in view of the long trip ahead of them, will undoubtedly send their cars to the start by rail. It has been suggested that a fast freight devoted exclusively to the autos be chartered, as was done in transporting the cars from the Garden to the Chicago shows.

AUTO ROADS TO CLEVELAND.

A good auto route from New York to Cleveland starts up through Central Park to its northwest corner, through One Hundred and Tenth street, to Riverside Drive, to Broadway, up Riverdale avenue, to Yonkers, to Tarrytown, then parallel to the river to Garrison, turn inland, to Fishkill Village, to Wappingers Falls, to Poughkeepsie. Poughkeepsie to Rhinebeck, to Hudson, through Kinderhook, to Rensselaer, thence to Albany.

The Glidden Trophy.

From Albany the route is through Lisha Kills, to Schenectady, to Amsterdam, to Fonda, to Little Falls, to Herkimer, to Utica, thence to Syracuse. From here road winds through New Hartford and Kirkland, to Oneida, to Sullivan, to Mycense, to Fayetteville, to Syracuse, to Auburn, to Canandalgua, to Batavia, to Buffalo.

From Buffalo the route is practically parallel to the shores of Lake Erie. After leaving this city the route is by way of Wanakah, East Evans, Irving, Fredonia, Westfield, Ripley, across the state line to Moorehead, to Erie, to Girard, to Geneva, Ohio, through Painesville and Willoughby, to the city of Cleveland. Total distance 643 miles.

The conditions were decided on only after consultation with the leading manufacturers who desired a contest which would demonstrate the endurance qualities and reliability of their product. There is very little to be found in the rules which suggests that the tour will be anything but a test, and there will undoubtedly be much hard work of all, the conditions follow:

CONCERNING ENTRANTS.

1. It will be assumed that every entrant is acquainted with these rules, and by entering for the tour agrees to abide thereby, agrees to accept the official records and authorizes the American Automobile Association to publish them in such manner as it shall determine.

2. Each entrant shall hold the American Automobile Association harmless and indemnify it against all loss or damage resulting directly or indirectly from or growing out of the operation management or control of the car entered by him.

3. It is one of the conditions upon which entries of cars are accepted by the American Automobile Association that said American Automobile Association shall not be responsible for any damage that may be done to any car, its passengers or contents during the tour, nor for theft of any car or any of its accessories or contents, the same being at all times subsequent to such entry and until the close of the tour at the risk in all respects of persons entering the same.

QUALIFICATIONS.

1. Each entrant shall be a member of the American Automobile Association, but if competitor for the Glidden Trophy must be a member of a club affiliated with the American Automobile Association, and each club to compete for the trophy must have at least three entries.

ENTRIES.

1. The time for receiving entries will expire on July 3, 1907, at 12 o'clock noon, at the office of Frank B. Hower, Chairman Touring Board, 760 Main street, Buffalo, N.Y. Each entry for the 1907 event must be accompanied by the entrance fee—$100. Numbers for the tour will be issued in the order in which entries are received.

2. Each entrant shall give all details asked for in the entry blank and such additional information as the committee may from time to time require.

3 The American Automobile Association reserves the right to refuse any entry.

4. Each car shall have its official number prominently displayed on each side, or in front and rear.

5. No record of any previous performance, or sign, or other indication of the maker's name, other than the nameplate, usually attached to the vehicle as sold to private owners, shall be displayed on any car at any time during the tour.

6. The trophy will be awarded to a club, but the score of each individual car will be recorded during the tour, and at the finish of the contest each entrant, unless previously disqualified, will receive a certificate in accordance therewith.

7. Each entrant must furnish the manufacturer's list of the regular standard equipment and the manufacturer's price list of all extra parts carried, and for any parts replaced which parts not regularly furnished as standard equipment by the manufacturer, contestants will be penalized as per penalty schedule hereinbelow set out.

8. Each entrant must furnish an inventory, previous to the start, of all extra parts carried in his car, and the same shall be put in the records.

9. A car may carry but one mechanician, and all repairs must be made by him, the operator, or both, and no one else shall participate in any way in making any repairs or replacements.

10. A statement must be made by the operator and attested by each occupant of the car at the conclusion of each day's run, as to what new parts were put on the car and what repairs or adjustments, if any, were made, and failure to do so, fully and correctly, shall disqualify.

ROAD REGULATIONS.

1 Entrants must conform to all laws and ordinances and rules of the road, and any entrant violating any of the provisions of these rules, or of other rules adopted by the committee, or who shall fail to show due consideration to other participants in the tour, or other users of the highways, may be disqualified by the committee.

2 Any car whose owner or driver shall be arrested for a violation of speed laws, or of any law or ordinance, may, in the discretion of the committee, be disqualified

CONTROLS.

1 All contestants must have their cars ready at 7 o'clock each morning. Checkers will be at their stations at that time prepared to start the cars.

2 Each entrant must, upon starting on each day's run, sign a statement submitted by an official of the tour fixing the time of his departure. Failure to comply will result in disqualification. Each day's tour shall be preceded by a pacemaker, designated by the committee, and any entrant who passes the pacemaker shall be disqualified. If the pacemaker breaks down or is compelled to travel at the rate of speed so slow as in the opinion of the committee to unduly impede the progress of the tour, his flag shall be transferred to the first car overtaking him, which car shall thereafter become pacemaker, subject to the same conditions.

SCHEDULES.

1. The committee will publish a schedule for each day, establishing such checking points as it may deem proper. This schedule will fix the exact time when each car must reach each control, and when it shall finish each day's run, but will not require any entrant to operate his car at a higher rate of speed than is permitted by law. Each car failing to reach controls, or to finish the day's run at the time fixed by the schedule, will be penalized according to the penalty schedule herein given. The committee shall have power to disqualify any car for travelling at any speed which the committee may consider excessive under the conditions existing at the time, and without reference to these rules.

2. On arrival at night controls, each car must take its place in line, and register in regular order. Cars failing to do so will be disqualified. Contestants for the Glidden Trophy shall, however, be entitled to precedence in registration over non-contestants.

3. Immediately following the registration at each night control, each car shall be delivered into the custody of the officials of the tour, to be by them held at owner's risk, and kept under direct charge and supervision of such officials or their agents until the hour for starting on the following morning, and no car shall be available for tuning up, adjustments, filling with gasoline or water, or for any other purpose until after it shall have registered as starting on the next day's run. The committee shall have power, etc., at all times to make such examinations of the cars and their contents as may be deemed advisable.

POWER BOAT'S GREAT PROGRESS

Its Development from Old Launch Most Remarkable.

SPEED, BEAUTY, FEATURES

The Early Speed Craze and Its Effects —The Marine Motor for Transportation Uses.

One of the most notable features in connection with the growth and development of the automobile is the marine side of the industry. In fact this phase is now quite distinct and the power boat in all its forms is entirely separate from its land cousin. Looking back only a few years the development of the power boat is nothing short of marvellous. From the old-fashioned and lumbering launch, with a hull never designed for the engine which propelled it, we now have the fast speed launches and the beautiful cruisers, capable of going almost anywhere on the high seas. We have our ocean races for power boats, and this year they have their own shows quite separate from the automobile.

Years ago the launch in its then crude state, was not a popular means of navigation. The development of the internal combustion engine started a boom that was progressed by leaps and bounds until it is hardly possible to estimate the number of power boats in commission from the little eighteen-footer up to the palatial eighty-foot cruising yacht. Between the two there is every conceivable form of power boat, including the racers of tremendous horse-power and speed, the fishing craft, the cruiser and the day pleasure craft.

People who never took an interest in boating before the day of the gasolene engine are now enthusiasts. There are various reasons for this. First, the reliability of the motor boat has been fully demonstrated. It is safe to handle and easy to control. Secondly, there is no need of waiting for winds or tides in going from one place to another.

In the earlier days of launch building it was the engineer that controlled the situation, to the detriment of the hull. The launches were, like the first automobiles, open to the weather, with no pretence at protection. This was followed with a movable awning with additions of side curtains to keep out rain and spray. The next step in the evolution was the addition of glass windows in front, these being later extended all around. The result was the type of launch so well known that looked like a cross between a tughoat and a forecar. The hulls were defective in model, the construction poor and strength was sacrificed to lightness for the sake of speed.

With the advent of the naptha engine improvement began and the "hunting cabin" type came into existence.

There are now at the disposal of the yachtsman a large variety of craft to fit almost any requirements of use or any size of purse. The new type has a greater proportion of breadth than the old launches and materially greater freeboard. The new models show the general form approved by years of test in sailing yachts—round, easy lines, with no pronounced hollows, giving a more buoyant form, with added displacement. There is a moderate amount of overhand, forward and aft, with a full deck line forward, the flare of the bows above water lifting the yacht over a sea. The glass house has been superseded by other forms of superstructure—low, shipshape and strongly built trunk cabins, either of full length, or in two parts with a bridge deck between. The marine engine now possesses a wide range of speed, something that was lacking in the earlier types.

The development of a serviceable engine and seaworthy boat has been the aim of the long-distance races, and these have amply demonstrated that the cruising power-boat has come to stay. The two big events this year will be the ocean race from New York to Bermuda, and the race from New York to Marblehead. Such contests are no longer experimental, and one cannot say that the participants are foolhardy, for the boats that will compete are staunch and able and quite capable of standing almost anything that can come up on a summer sea.

OLD CARS IN PART PAYMENT OF NEW

Now that the motoring populace is clamoring hungrily for more new cars than all the plants of the land can produce, what shall that populace do? Representatives of the thriving second-hand industry find the reply to this query ridiculously obvious.

"By an old car, of course," they retort.

And buying an "old car," they explain at more length, is a form of procedure in nowise to be sneezed at. While there are "old cars" in the second-hand marts that have been touched by the musty hand of time—cramped, sawed-off, wheezy little traps, that rattle when they run and shuit when they stand still, decrepit relics of the pioneer days five, six or eight years agone—there are also "old cars" that only the keen critic can distinguish from the magnificent creation that emerged last week from the factory.

With used cars of high and humble degree for sale, the dealer in second-hand machines has a varied business in his hands. In its development, it has taken many forms. There are companies which devote their whole attention to it.

Some make it an adjunct to a repair shop or garage, while others deal in old cars in connection with the sale of new, accepting the used vehicle in part payment for the 1907 article. Still others become dealers to dispose of a single car, their own, which they wish to sell before they buy another—or, perhaps, they have found motoring is, after all, too much of a luxury for men without property, as the last tax lists proved a goodly proportion of the automobile owners to be.

Men of money have so thoroughly gratified their inclination to own cars that are new up to the very week and hour that the great public is sometimes at a loss to find new machines for sale.

"Every car of the 1907 allotment is already sold," is the doleful plaint at more than one agency.

Confronted by such conditions, not only those who are seeking to relieve the drain on their wallets, but many who are able and willing to pay the price of a new car, have turned perforce to the second-hand dealer. They have found a wide and constantly changing range of vehicles that may be had at a fraction of the original price. In durability, seaworthiness, and, in the cases of the newer models, outward appearance, they frequently prove wholly as satisfactory as new machines, if the testimony of a large part of the public may be believed.

"The life of an automobile is not less than ten years," declares one of the local representatives of the second-hand industry. "This is, of course, provided proper care in its use has been exercised. Occasionally cars fall into the hands of incompetent men and are treated so scandalously that they soon become utter ruins.

"Good cars are expensive, and it is better to buy a second hand high grade automobile in good condition, that has withstood the tempest of a season's use, and is ready to breast more storms, than to buy a new machine of inferior construction for the same money. Cheap machines are offered on the market in large numbers, but their life is comparatively short, due to the cheapness of material and general construction, resulting in breakdowns and disappointments."

So thoroughly satisfactory have used machines proved themselves to be that there is hardly an agent on the "row" who will hesitate an instant over accepting a standard car in part payment for a new machine. The old car is practically never a drug on the market.

Country towns, where few users keep fully abreast the styles of motor cars, become the last resting place for some of these machines.

Gloomy tales may, of course, be gathered from some who "fell for" a plausible argument and discovered too late that they had purchased a disorganized assortment of junk which should have been cast on the scrap heap. But this, the apologists of the second-hand system remark, has happened occasionally when new cars were the merchandise in question.

BEGINNING OF THE AUTOMOBILE

Shrouded in Mystery Which Has Extended Over Every Age.

TRIUMPHAL CAR AT ATHENS

Steam and Other Cars of Queer Designs and Queerer Motive Power In Various Lands.

Right now, when every one in the busy, big town, from the railroad president who has his private parlor car down to the pushcart proprietor, is affected by the automobile influenza, it is natural to reflect upon the almost magical development of the motor vehicle within a few years and to wonder where it will end.

From prehistoric times the idea of eliminating the horse and donkey as hauling powers took possession of imaginative minds, and the horseless carriages was a recarrying dream which at various times found more or less definite expression on paper, thought not in fact.

The fact is that the desire to get rid of draught animals and produce an automatic wagon came first of all, and the primary products of it were manumotive vehicles, from which the dandy horse, the velocipede and the modern bicycle were developed. Considering this, it may be accepted that the automobile was not evolved through the bicycle, that neither is the automobile the father of the manumotive vehicle, but that the automobile idea is the parent of both. The bicycle was the first fruition of the thought and striving, that is all.

A road vehicle propelled from within appears to have actually existed before the Christian era dawned, for in "The Aethiopics" Heliodorus refers to a triumphal car at Athens that was "moved along by men carried therein." Pancirollus also mentions these chariots. A Chinese contrivance with wheels that was pushed along by poles and others that were moved on land are recorded as wonders in the sixth or seventh century.

While during the seventeenth century waggons driven by spring power and by sails were employed in Germany and the Netherlands.

It even seems possible that there was in Turkey a genuine automobile driven by explosive power, though not of a practical sort, as long ago as 1585, for Edward Webb, an English writer of travels, describes a cunning piece of fireworks, framed like an ark, that carried forty men within it and was driven by "thirteene thousand severall peeces of fire worke."

Prophesies of the motor car and explicit forecasts of it there were in plenty. In the thirteenth century Friar Roger Bacon (1214 1294) declared that it would yet be possible to make waggons go without horses and not long after Leonardo da Vinci (1452 1519) made a sketch of a gearing for a self moving carriage, which he declared was practicable, but which he did not demonstrate.

In 1625 a petition was filed in England by John Marshall for "a new invention of a cart of 15 cwt., to carry a great burden without help of horses and guided but by himself." Letters patent dated October 10, 1644, were granted by Louis XIV. to Jean Theson for "the privilege of employing a little four wheel carriage, set in motion without any horses, but merely by two men seated."

In 1782 he patented a double acting engine, which he thought "might be employed to give motion to wheel carriages." Before this, in 1769, a Frenchman, Nicholas Joseph Cugnot, invented what is most generally conceded to be the first steam automobile. This was a trolley vehicle, built with state funds, and in the following year he built a second one, showing improvements, which was exhibited at the Galeries in 1789. This contrivance was fatally defective in that it had only a single wheel for both driving and steering. Watt did not put his patent to the trial, but other British experts took up the subject, and for more than fifty years, well into the nineteenth century, there was remarkable activity in the building of steam carriages in both Europe and America.

Geo. Stephenson, Richard Trevithick, Walter Hancock, Goldsworthy Gurney, David Gordon, William Brunton and others were the leaders of the movement in England, while in the United States steam vehicles were brought out by Oliver Evans, Nathan Read, Thomas Blanchard and others. Read produced his carriage in 1789, and it was more practical than that of Cugnot. Evans obtained in 1787 the right to operate steam road waggons in Pennsylvania and Maryland, and in 1805 built a combined road waggon and boat.

The first notable improvement of the nineteenth century was that of Richard Trevitheck of England, who with Andrew Vivian patented in 1802 a steam carriage having a flywheel on the crank shaft and the latter connected with the driving wheels by gearing. This was the first steam vehicle with transmission gearing. The first steam automobile having comfortable accommodation for passengers appears to have been that of Julius Griffiths, built in England in 1821.

Soon after the close of the first quarter of the nineteenth century the interest in steam road carriages grew to impressive proportions in England, and it seemed for a time as if this type of vehicle was destined to permanent use and to revolutionize travel on the highways. In 1833 there were not less than twenty such vehicles in and around London and a dozen corporations had been organized to operate motor roadway lines over stated routes. That was the time when the automobilists of to-day who rant about prejudice and adverse legislation should have lived, for these were what chilled and killed the budding bloom of steam highway lines.

The modern automobile period began about 1889, when the Daimler liquid hydrocarbon engine appeared in a form which held out some promise of success in the use of it for road vehicles. Not that the gasolene engine was new at this time, but the adaptation of it for motor cars was the object being sought. In this work, however, Daimler and the other Europeans were anticipated by an American, according to the historians, for in 1879 there was filed in the Patent Office at Washington an application for a vehicle with a liquid, hydro carbon engine of the compression type, having a transmission capable of being disconnected with the engine, the feature so necessary on all practical automobiles to-day.

This application was issued in 1895 as patent 549,160, being kept alive during the interim by amendments. Concerning this grant the patent commissioner in his official report for 1895, said that it was one "which may be considered the pioneer invention in the application of the compression gas engine to road or horseless carriage use." Following the adaptation of the compression and explosive engine, the work of development hinged upon carburetion, ignition, cooling and transmission, but the industry advanced by giant strides and leaps.

DR. DUNLOP'S STORY OF PNEUMATIC TIRE'S ORIGIN

"Often I have been asked the question 'What made you think of the pneumatic tire?'" writes J. B. Dunlop, the Irish veterinary surgeon who invented the pneumatic tire, in a foreign contemporary. "It is a question that cannot be answered in one word. For years previous to the invention of the tire I had been thinking of spring wheels—not wheels with rigid rims, having springs between the rim and the hub, but wheels with flexible rims, which would flatten out on the road surface, the object being to intercept vibration at the ground before it reached the wheel, and also to reduce the pressure per area of the tire on the road.

"I never was a believer in spring wheels with rigid rims, because the rims, to be sufficiently strong, would be required to be made heavier than the weight of the modern wheel and hub combined, and, that being so, there would be no reduction in the weight of the dead part, or part subject to vibration, not to speak of the many necessary complications. When I made the first pneumatic tire I considered the tread portion of the cover the part subject to vibration, and, with a view to obtaining great speed, the first covers were made as thin and flexible as possible.

"At one time I thought of flexible steel rims, but made no experiments in that direction, as I formed the opinion that the finest quality of steel would not withstand continued bending without becoming brittle or fatigued, and crystalline in structure. Large pure rubber solid tires, no doubt, would to a certain extent flatten on the road and intercept vibration, but large solid tires were out of the question, as they were well known to run dead and increase road friction enormously. As a matter of fact, large solid tires had been tried by a number of cyclists in various parts of the Kingdom, and though they reduced vibration considerably, they were found to be very hard to push.

"After well considering from time to time several devices, some of which were rather peculiar, at last I thought of a pneumatic tire. This would be about October, 1887. I at once perceived that it would be far and away faster than the tire then in use. I mentioned the matter to my son, who, at that time rode a child's tricycle. I explained how the tire would overcome the vibration at the proper place, and make a bicycle or tricycle exceedingly fast, and that I could make him the fastest bicycle ever made.

"I thought of postponing all experiments with the tire for two or three years, until I should retire from more active practice, but my son would brook no delay. He often asked me to make the proposed bicycle or tricycle for him and frequently complained of the vibration he experienced, especially on the tram lines, because his little tricycle was so slow over the square sets, and he wanted to beat the other larger boys at racing.

"I may say, however, that the Belfast tram lines were thoroughly up to date, and that cyclists of to-day can scarcely realize what it was to ride over sets on solid tires. My son, however, seldom rode on the streets of the city except when going to and from Ormeau Park, where the roads were as level as a cinder track.

"I proceeded rather cautiously in carrying out the preliminary experiments, and without neglecting my multifarious professional duties, I procured a block or disk of wood about sixteen inches in diameter and one and one-half inches thick. I constructed an air tube out of the purest soft sheet rubber, one-thirty-second of an inch thick, and inserted in the tube, for the purpose of inflation, a short piece of rubber tubing commonly in use for children's teething bottles, placed the air tube on the periphery of the disk of wood, covered the air tube with a strip of thin linen cloth, and secured the cloth in a temporary manner to the disk of wood by means of small tacks. The tire was inflated by means of a pump used for inflating footballs, and the little air supply tube tied with a piece of thread. This tire was made one evening in December, 1887.

"At night, when the gate was closed, I conveyed from the house to the yard the disk fitted with the pneumatic tire, and also the front wheel of a tricycle having a solid tire. No one was present except my second assistant, John Caldwell, M. R. C. V. S., my head hostler, my son and a friend. Mr. Caldwell always took an interest in scientific problems and was interested in cycling. I showed him the disk of the wheel and asked him whether the wheel with the small tire or the wheel with the large tire would be the faster, and his reply was that he would back the small tire.

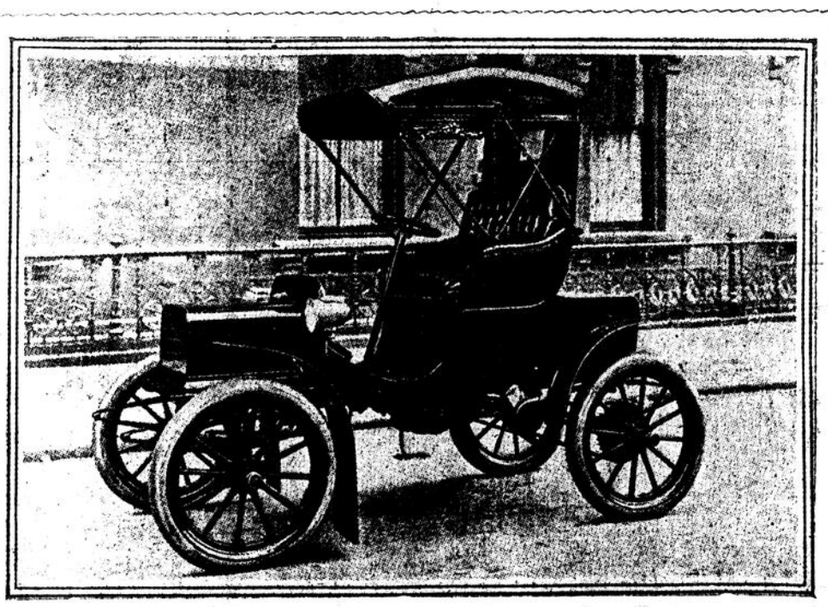

"I first threw the solid tired wheel toward the front gate, and it did not run the whole length of the yard, and then in a similar way threw the pneumatic tire disk. It happened to run against the side wall, but on the second trial it ran the whole length of the yard, struck the front gate and rebounded with considerable force. I then went to the front gate and threw both wheel and disk as before, and with the same result, the pneumatic tire disk rebounding off the coachhouse door.

"Mr. Caldwell seemed much surprised at the result, and he also had a throw with the wheel and disk. The friend, who was merely an interested spectator, afterward reported that I had made a small wheel and that there was some mystery in its construction, inasmuch as the further it ran the faster it went. I dare say the pneumatic tired disk did appear to go faster as it approached the lower and rougher end of the yard, where he was standing and where it commenced hopping, and rebounded off the coach house door.

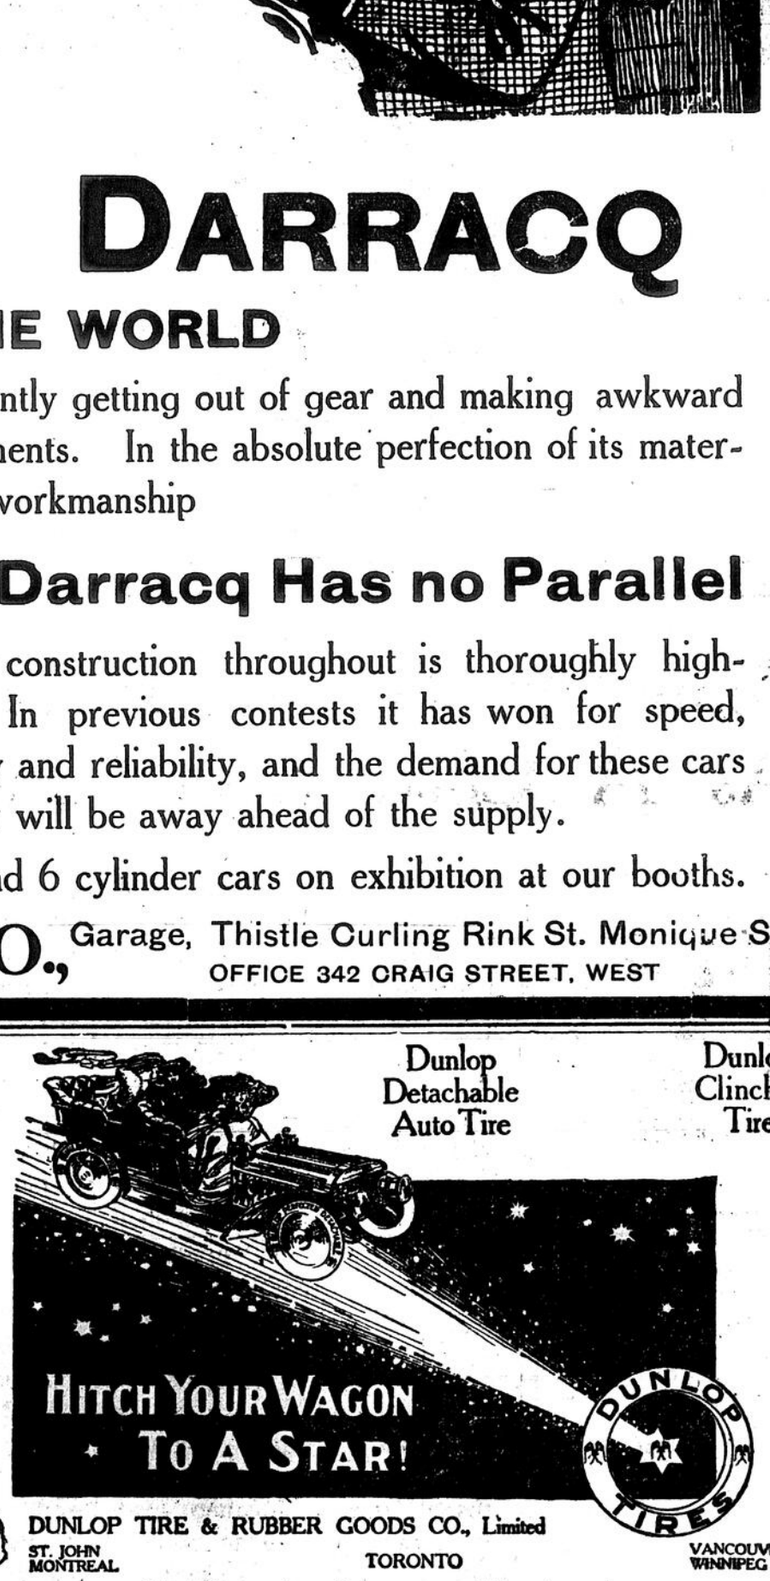

"The above experiment as to rolling friction having been concluded, the pneumatic tired disk was then tested for its resiliency. The disk was dropped to the floor from a height of about four feet and it was found to rise nearly to the point from which it was dropped. I explained to my son that this test was one way of estimating speed of a tire.

"When the pneumatic tire is being ridden power is expended in compressing the tire in front as it comes in contact with the road, and power is given out again behind as the tire leaves the road; the difference between the power expended in front and the power given out behind represents the power required to drive the tire, or the amount of energy lost by friction, and this energy can be roughly estimated by testing the tire as regards resiliency. On a hard floor hard pumping increases the resiliency of the tire, due to the impression made on the road, and this indicates that the tire should be pumped very hard for a smooth track and softer for a rough, soft track.

"I explained these two methods of testing the speed qualities of a tire in an interview with R. J. Mecredy, which was published in 1889. Other tests were made relating to lateral and circumferential rigidity of the tread of the tire, and this rigidity is a most important factor contributing to the speed of the pneumatic tire on the smoothest of tracks. It may be of some interest to relate that the first pneumatic tired safety was designed with a view to its being ridden on a cinder track in England, but it was not finished in time.

THE CANADIAN AUTOMOBILE CLUB AND THE HISTORY OF ITS GROWTH FROM SMALL TO GREATER THINGS

The Automobile Club of Canada was formed in the spring of 1903 by several of Montreal's prominent and enthusiastic citizens with the object of promoting the sport of automobiling for recreation and amusement.

Mr. D. McDonald, President of the Auto Club of Canada.

Mr. A. J. Dawes was elected president at the inaugural meeting, and held the position until last season, when he was superseded by Mr. Duncan McDonald, the manager of the Montreal Street Railway. Although short, the club's history is interesting and shows that the organization has been built upon a firm foundation, with boundless possibilities for the future. The first season was naturally a quiet one. There were not many members, and the idea being new it took them most of the time to get accustomed to the fact that there was a club.

Two years ago the club became a recognized fact and the members branched out into entertaining each other and their friends. The most enjoyable of these many functions was on the occasion when the club entertained the local members of the Legislature to a drive and breakfast at the Forest and Stream Club. All the members of the Quebec Legislature who reside in the city were present, and a very enjoyable morning was spent. Everybody drove out to the club in automobiles, breakfast was served immediately upon arrival there, and then the visitors were taken for a tour around the city and suburbs.

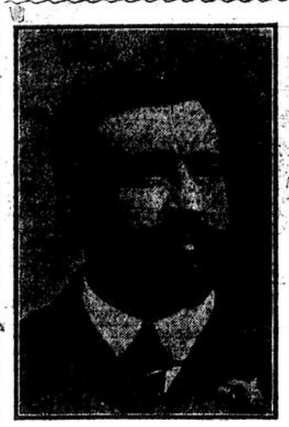

Mr. Clarence F. Smith, of the Auto Club of Canada.

Last year a movement was set on foot to have a club-house which will belong to the Auto Club itself. The intention of the members is to fit up a quiet country club, either at Dorval or Lakeside, and make that the headquarters of all the club's entertainments and functions. The management will have there supplies of gasolene, all kinds of auto accessories, everything in fact that a motorist could possibly require. A competent repairing man will be put in charge so that in case of accident it will not be necessary to seek outside aid.

In addition to this, the comfort of the members will be attended to in other ways. Food and drink will be procurable at the club-house and comfortable arm chairs and shady verandahs will await the weary autoist after a hard day's work in town. In short, it is the intention of the club to have a home unsurpassed for comfort and enjoyment. Here enthusiastic chauffeurs will meet to talk autos, argue about the respective reliability of respective makes and converse on all topics of interest to those who love this form of enjoyment.

These plans, however, will hardly see maturity this year. For the present season arrangements have been made with one of the more prominent country clubs a short distance from the city to look after the wants of the autoists, but next spring it is hoped that the Automobile Club of Canada will have a home of its own.

Up to 1906 the club membership totalled only twenty-four, but since then the directors have succeeded in increasing this number to close on to seventy-five, and it is expected that this year will see a tremendous increase in the club membership, and that the record of the club will be far ahead of anything in the past. Many Montrealers are taking to autoing and some of the most influential citizens are purchasing machines. Naturally these gentlemen will join the Automobile Club, its ranks and its treasury will be swelled and it will not be long before this organization will stand on a par with some of the older institutions of the city.

Mr. U. H. Dandurand, of the Auto Club of Canada.

THE FIGHT FOR GOOD ROADS.

During the past year the Automobile Club of Canada did its best to secure better roads on the Island of Montreal, and while its efforts in this connection have only met with partial success, they are not in the least down hearted, and a new scheme is under way by which at least a few of the important sections of roadway will be put in standard shape during the present summer. In this connection the sympathy of many of the members of the Provincial Legislature has been obtained, and realizing the soundness of the cause, it is more than probable that some definite steps will soon be taken in the right direction.

Speaking of legislation reminds one that the president and directors of the club are now endeavoring to obtain changes in the Quebec Motor and Vehicle Law, viz., to increase the present lawful speed to a reasonable rate. Eight miles an hour was at first the maximum. This was successfully changed to nine, and it is now desired to obtain another concession of two or three miles. Most cars now made will hardly crawl along when set to go eight miles, and it is impossible to go much slower than six.

Among the entertainments held by the Automobile Club of Canada last year was the Gymkhana or Field Day, which proved conclusively with what ease and celerity a motor may be handled. Plans are now under way for a repetition of the sport this year, and an even more enjoyable and instructive day of motor driving is promised.

Although not a great many trips were made off the Island of Montreal by local motorists, still some pleasant times were put in on short voyages. One member ran from here to Buaffalo very successfully, while a trip to Bluff Point, Lake Champlain, over the fine roads to the south was very much appreciated.

The present officers and members of the Automobile Club of Canada are as follows:

A VETERAN DEALER ON THE PROSPECTS

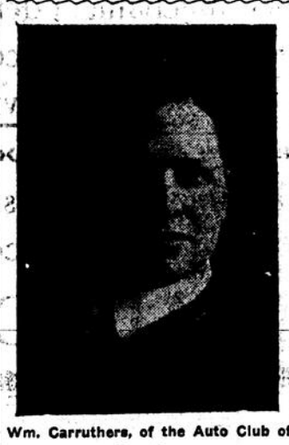

Mr. B. S. Wilson, Who Went From Bicycles to Autos, Forecasts Great Sales.

If the word of a man who has been selling automobiles as long, if not longer, than any man in the business in Canada, is to be relied upon the coming auto season in Montreal ought to be a very prosperous one indeed.

Mr. B. S. Wilson, of the Wilson Automobile Company, is the gentleman referred to and he ought to know what he is talking about, for he has been in the wheel business for years and drifted gradually from being a dealer in bicycles into becoming an automobile merchant. For some time he ran one of the largest bicycle and motor stores in Canada in the capital of the Dominion, Ottawa, and last year, deciding to branch out, came to Montreal. Mr. Wilson is one of the most energetic men in the trade. He is always ready to take hold of anything for the general benefit of automobilists, be they dealers or simple users, and the good roads movement has no more enthusiastic backer than he. Mr. Wilson is a dealer in the Great Arrow, which is the largest car run on this side of the water. Last summer Mr. Wilson gave a number of newspaper men the pleasure of taking a spin in one of these cars, quite opening their eyes as to the possibilities of climbing hills and speeding in a heavy car. The run was from the city to Lachine, the day was fine, and the road was as good as could well be expected on the Island of Montreal. Climbing hills the Great Arrow showed herself at her best, and driven by an experienced American chauffeur she did stunts winding in and out between street cars and cabs which made the occupants open their eyes.

Mr. A. J. Dawes, of the Auto Club of Canada.

Wm. Carruthers, of the Auto Club of Canada.

The Glidden tourists were here at the time and some of them out speeding in the country expressed great appreciation of Mr. Wilson's car.

Mr. Wilson's place is at 117 Craig St. west, and handles some of the best-known cars of the American market, including the Pierce Great Arrow, the Franklin air cooled, the Buick, and the Babcock Electric.

He has already sold cars to some of the best-known people in the city, among whom are: Mr. E. S. Clouston, Mr. A. A. Allan, Mr. J. C. Stanton, Jr.; Mr. E. H. Lemay, Mr. R. B. Angus, and many others. They are also developing a nice trade in business or delivery waggons in different parts of Canada.

FINEST TOURING CAR IN CANADA TO-DAY

That Will Be Sir H. Montagu Allan's Laudaulette, Says Manager L. D. Robertson.

"The finest touring car in Canada this year," said Mr. L. D. Robertson, manager of the Eastern Automobile Company, 19 University street, when seen by a Star representative, "will be a six-cylinder Napier, purchased by Sir Montagu Allan, through the Eastern Automobile Company. It will be a 60-horse-power Landaulette car, and will cost in the neighborhood of $11,000." Mr. Robertson talked about his trip abroad last September, when he drove one of the Clement-Bayard cars 1,988 miles in eleven days, besides sight-seeing—about 180 miles a day. According to Mr. Robertson the French car, which is the Clement-Bayard, is exceedingly popular in Montreal and Eastern Canada, and promises to be in great demand during the coming season. Already some 80 large touring cars have been sold by the Eastern Automobile Company in Montreal and Toronto, during the past few weeks, being an increase over last season's sales of more than 100 per cent. The firm also has a branch in Winnipeg, which is the distributing point for the West. In a short time the automobile will be used for hauling grain to the railway stations throughout the prairie country as well as for pleasure. Wonderful improvements have been made in the cars since the first automobile was introduced in Montreal, and for genuine sport and comfort there is nothing to equal a day's outing in one of the up-to-date touring cars of to-day.

Mr. Robertson, whose photo appears on this page, is one of the pioneers of the automobile trade in Canada. Mr. Robertson embarked in the motor trade four years ago, and since then his rise has been rapid.

Besides being managing director of the Eastern Automobile Company, Mr. Robertson is a director of the Dominion Automobile Company, Limited, of Toronto, and the new Comet Motor Company, Limited, of this city.

TRICKS OF THE TRADE.

Getting After Customers Who Can Be Caught by Bargains.

"Make me some cheap shoes, good lookers, that I can sell for bargains in February or March." This is a usual order given to the shoe manufacturer who can make a shoe that looks like a shoe—and that's the best one can say about it. The dealer uses these shoes ashamed-of-their-name to sell at a profit to people who are not his regular customers. Ever buy a pair? Then you know them to be as worthless as a shoe that's been through a fire.

The man who knows how to conserve his earned income buys the shoe upon which is stamped the Seal of Certainty, and he likes to see the ladies, too, buy the real Slater shoe. They are made and marked by the Slater Shoe Company.

LOOKS count for a great deal with many automobile buyers. Bulk counts with others,—people who want a great deal of horsepower or a great deal of carrying capacity for their money. It is perfectly possible—it is even easy—to get a maximum of these several qualities in the same car. Possible, too, to pay the right price, and get out of the whole wilderness of makes the one that will surely suit you best. That is possible, and easy, and certain if you utilize our knowledge and experience by using us as your purchasing agent. Certain, because our staff of expert automobile mechanics has passed in review the typical car of every standard factory in Europe, United States and Canada, judging solely on a basis of mechanical merit—which means strength, simplicity, sanity of design, practicability, and staunchness of service under Canadian road conditions. These experts select a make solely upon merit, regardless of price,—the business staff deals with that factor. And so, when a car's name appears on our list of makes, it is there because that car has satisfied exactions more stringent than any amateur motorist can conceive, has withstood tests ordinary usage never approaches. Wherefore we guarantee, independently of the maker, each car we sell; and wherefore, also, you can buy of us simple certainty that the car you buy is the car best suited of any to your special and individual requirements. A warrant of certainty! Is it not significant that we dare offer it so explicitly? We shall be glad to satisfy you of its actual scope and value to you in your own automobile buying.

...S OF A ...UTOMOBILE

...at a Limousine Recently Did for One Busy Man and His Entire Family.

Local auto people are sure that the time is fast coming when the horse will cease to be a feature in the routine transportation necessary to the incidents of everyday life. Aside from the great amount of ground a motor car can cover in a single day, Mr. Bowler believes there is a humanitarian standpoint from which the replacement of horses by motor-driven vehicles strongly forces itself on the public.

Where is there a man or woman with one spark of feeling who does not pity the poor horse after it has been driven a long enough distance to show signs of fatigue. Yet in the round of daily existence if one depends on equine power for transportation, it is often necessary to send the animals distances which draw too much on their vitality and from the contentment of the passenger through pity of the faithful beast's predicament.

A short time ago an owner of a limousine car gave out a schedule of the trips made in one day. This man had employed five horses and two men to transport the various members of the family on their daily rounds of business, shopping, social functions and domestic service. Then entire transportation is now accomplished by a limousine driven and cared for by one man.

The schedule is a strenuous one, but the service it indicates is little greater than the regular requirements. The owner says the limousine averages about 65 miles per day, including Sundays.

His residence is just four miles from his office, and the run is made in sixteen minutes through crowded streets. The same trip uses up thirty-one minutes behind horses, if they hurry, and thirty-five minutes by street car, if one catches a car promptly. Here is the day's work:

The value of the five horses formerly used, together with their harness and four vehicles and the thousand and one barn implements, was much greater than the cost of the automobile. The chauffeur is a very competent man, and receives almost as much as the two coachmen whom he displaced. But he eats half as much as they did, and his livery costs less. Outside of the matter of wages, the saving in cost of transportation is found to be over $25 per month.

Referring to the schedule, it will be noticed that it totals 103 miles. Three teams of horses, employing three drivers, could have made the same mileage, but all six horses would have required a full day's rest the following day. On the other hand, the limousine, after running 103 miles, was ready at a twist of the crank to make even a greater mileage on the following day.

ADVANTAGES OF SIX-CYLINDER MOTOR

Limitations on the Four Cylinder Cars Are Many.

SIX CYLINDERS MORE SILENT

Great Power, More Flexibility and An Absence of Noise are Some of Its Features.

Those who, from various points of view, watch the automobile development most closely, cannot ignore the latest radical departure, the advent of the six-cylinder motor as applied to road vehicles. Those who had the privilege of observing the European industry as evidenced at the last Paris show, and more especially at the Olympia show in London, could not fail to be impressed with the seriousness of the European engineers in this particular. Naturally, the maker and the purchasing public give heed to this evidence of a new and somewhat radical advance, and search to find the significance and the advantages. There are two ways of accounting for this trend—either it is serious and meritorious, or it is for publicity, pure and simple. In this brief article it is the writer's purpose to submit a few thoughts on the first view, and as applied only to touring cars of high power. The users of high-powered fine cars demand many things, and from this viewpoint are entitled to them. Quietness, flexibility, highest efficiency, endurance hill-power and the full gamut of speed—these they naturally expect and demand. They expect, and rightly, too, that the automobile shall accomplish all these things without failure or undue effort, accommodating itself at the driver's will, without undue stress or mechanical strain, to the requirements of the congested city thoroughfare, as well as to the liberty of the secluded country road, and, I may truthfully add, on the highest gear of the mechanism.

Up to this time the four-cylinder motor has been regarded as the fulfilment of this ideal, and that it has done well is not an overestimation. But to the engineer, always seeking conservatively to achieve perfection, the limitations of the four-cylinder motor have been and still are obvious. He is confronted with the limit in the dimensions of a single cylinder, and finds, when he increases the sizes, new problems arise. The noise increases, flexibility decreases, there are more mechanical shocks, and vibration becomes more pronounced. Hence the only outlet for this thought is to increase the engine volume by additional cylinders. By actual demonstration he finds the six-cylinder motor a distinct advance at least, and incidentally discovers other collateral advantages.

But the six-cylinder motor must have the benefit of the most expert designing, the finest and most durable materials, and the most careful and efficient workmanship. Given all these, he can supply what the public demands in the most satisfactory manner, producing a car which promises to outlast in duration of service any yet devised. In this connection it is well to consider, also, the possible disadvantages with such intelligence as can be mustered before the new motor has gone into general public use. Naturally, the motor of given dimensions will weigh and cost more than its four-cylinder brother.

Equally, it is obvious that its base must be greater; hence, with prevailing fashions and good engineering, the wheel-case must be increased. Also, that the duplicating of working parts will entail more care and replacements of those parts. But to offset these, the other mechanical parts—clutch, gears, brakes, etc.—should wear longer and be less liable to break from shock, owing to the constant torque obtained. It is the writer's view that the advantages briefly stated are worthy of consideration, and that the six-cylinder motor, in suitable cars, is a distinct advance, and possibly will herald automobile perfection in mechanical design.

I would briefly summarize the advantages of the six-cylinder motor in this wise:

1. Silence, by reason of the rapid sequence of explosions being practically continuous.

2. Flexibility, by reason of the constant torque obtained by the constant impetus by continuous explosions, and the ability to run equally and smoothly at any speed from 150 to 1500 revolutions per minute.

3. Great power for all purposes, enabling the car to be driven at practically all times on the high and silent gear.

4. Absence of vibration on account of the perfect engine balance which can be thus attained.

5. Absence of mechanical shocks due to the foregoing, and thus making for longer use with less liability of breakages.

6. Less effort in starting the engine on account of the more likelihood of a cylinder being full of explosive mixture, which will be fired by switching on the spark from the seat.

7. Easier to operate, owing to less necessity for changing gears or nursing the engine when running slow or climbing hills.

8. Simplification of speed-change gear, there being no desirability for four speeds ahead, three being ample.

9. Possibility of making a car of a given power for touring purposes even lighter than a four-cylinder car of the same power.

10. Less wear and tear on rear tires, owing to more even propelling impulses.—Daniel Ferguson in Harper's Weekly.

C. P. R. OFFERS TO TAKE THE EAST END MARKET.

When the Market Committee met yesterday afternoon a communication was read from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company offering to rent from the city the east end cattle market. The company explained that it was willing to spend a generous sum in putting the market in good order.

There was a short discussion over the matter. It was shown that if the city put the market in the condition which it ought to be about fifty thousand dollars would have to be spent. There was a feeling on the part of the committee that the company's offer was one that should be given serious consideration.

The offer will be fully discussed at the next meeting of the committee.

Nazareth Blind Institute.

On Thursday evening next, April 11, the pupils of Nazareth Institute for the Blind will present their annual musical recital and concert in their hall on Mance street. Cesar Franck's "Ruth," and the "Seasons" of Haydn will be rendered on this occasion, under the direction of Professor Fortier, Madame Damien Masson acting as accompanist.

The first production is simple and religious in style, but full of rich harmony, offering splendid scope for solo and chorus work. A striking contrast will be found between Franck's composition and Haydn's "Seasons," the latter being a pleasing description of the charms of spring and summer time.

Judge Fortin yesterday issued an order for the placing in liquidation of the Louis Labelle Quarry Company, of St. Francois de Sales. It was issued at the request of Messrs. According to the statement filed at the insolvency department of the Superior Court, the liabilities amount to $17,858, while the assets, consisting of quarry machinery, amount to $12,458. Mr. Amedee Lamarche has been appointed provisional guardian, and the meeting of creditors was fixed for the 17th instant.

AMERICAN INFLUX IS ON THE INCREASE

Nearly Every State in Union Contributes Quota to Canada.

RANCHERS HARD HIT

Severe Winter Inflicted Heavy Losses —Fur Trade Has Had An Unsatisfactory Season.

Special Correspondence to the Montreal Star.

Edmonton, April 6—The influx of settlers, which began while the West was still under zero weather and several feet of snow, is marked this spring by the numbers who are coming from the Western States, and by the movement toward the north country. The department has endeavored to discourage immigration too early in the season, but apparently the idea has gone forth that the first on the ground will have the best pickings, and the Immigration Hall in Edmonton had occupants in late February. The tide has now fairly set in. One of the earliest parties to arrive, comprising thirty-two prospective settlers, was made up as follows: Two from Montana, two from Oregon, one from North Dakota, one from Massachusetts, one from Washington, one from Indiana, five from Illinois, three from Kansas, one from Ohio, two from Nebraska, two from Missouri, two from Oklahoma, six from England and two from Scotland.

This diversity is typical. Through all the American western country, so a recent letter said, the cry is for Canada, and northward-bound parties have been organized in nearly every state, the first of which are now arriving.

GOOD CLASS OF SETTLERS.

Last year something more than 5,000 homestead entries were made in Edmonton, and the figures for 1907 will be even larger; but the majority of these American settlers are not looking for homesteads. They have sold their farms in the States at from $30 to $100 an acre, and with the money in their pockets, are now asking for Alberta improved farm lands, which at $12 and $15 an acre appear to them an attractive proposition. They are good men for Alberta to get, for as practical farmers and already familiar with western conditions they need not to be told what to do nor how to go at it. By such a class of immigrant, it is reported, considerable areas of farm land are being taken along the line of railway between Calgary and Edmonton, real estate transactions being nearly as active in the country between as in either of the cities. Edmonton, however, is the centre of a great new district and an important immigration work will be carried on from here this summer into territory, as yet only sprinkled with a handful of settlers.

Northwest from Edmonton lies the great Peace River country, a tract whose agricultural possibilities have already been proven by bumper crops of northern hard wheat and five-pound potatoes. Farmers from Dakota and Minnesota who have gone into this new hinterland are enthusiastic about it and are organizing parties in those and other states who will follow after them this year.

RANCHERS ARE HARD HIT.

Whether the Alberta farmer will lose or gain by the severe weather of the past winter is not a subject of unanimous opinion. The ranchers in the south have undoubtedly been hard hit, and although the cattle losses have not been nearly so heavy as numerous press despatches have made them appear, it is still a question whether the winter has not put an end to ranching in certain districts at least. The province will lose nothing, if such be the case, for it will mean farms to take the place of the ranches, and wheat-growing is better for the country at large than stock-raising. The natural ranching ground is to the West, in the foothill country, and if the hard winter should have been the means of driving the ranchers from the open prairie and centralizing them in the country where they most naturally belong, the agricultural interests will stand to gain, not to lose.

The unusual depth of snow means that the whole surface of Alberta has a natural irrigation this spring, for the melting of the snowbanks gives a volume of moisture that will admirably fit the land for crops. Sowing will be considerably later than last year, for while some crops were put in then in March, the end of March this spring found the ground still covered with snow. The warm chinooks of April will now, however, very soon wipe off every trace of winter.

GOVERNMENT AID FOR FARMERS.

The Minister of Agriculture for Alberta announces several important moves that his department will make shortly with a view to improving farm conditions throughout the province. Poultry raising is to be encouraged on an extensive scale. Last year Alberta imported poultry and eggs to the value of $400,000, and during the past winter Chicago eggs sold in Edmonton at 65 cents. There is no reason for this, says the department, and Alberta must in future produce its own eggs. The Government proposes to do some poultry-fattening at the Government creameries, and a proposition to this effect is now being made to the farmers. The work will be done by the Government at cost, and the balance will be sent to the farmers. An active campaign for pure seed grain is also being carried on, and seed grain fairs have been held at a number of points. The beef inquiry, in which Alberta has reason to be interested, will resume this month.

POOR FUR SEASON.

Reports from the north in regard to the fur trade indicate a somewhat unsatisfactory season. The unusual depth of snow on the ground all over the north as well as the western plains, has not only made trapping very difficult, but it has kept the animals in their dens, and the consequence is a much reduced fur catch. The skins brought into Edmonton thus far, from the outlying country, have been little more than half an average and something of the same proportion is looked for from the north, though the exact result of the winter's operations will not be known till next autumn. The importance of the northern fur trade may be gathered from the fact that in normal years the total value of furs passing through Edmonton is more than a million and a quarter dollars.

Nomad Club Officers Honored.

The members of the Nomads Club assembled in large numbers at their rooms in the Reform Club on Wednesday night to pay tribute to the officers of the past year. The gentlemen thus honored included Mr. Robert McGlaughlin, whose services as president were of inestimable value to the club, and Messrs. Wesley McConnell and John Aitken, both of whom did great work as secretary and treasurer respectively. The club, during its three years of existence has accomplished much, and now sixty young men are in regular attendance at its weekly meetings. As a memento, three valuable books were presented to the gentlemen above referred to, the presentation to Mr. McGlaughlin being made in a fitting speech by the new president, Mr. William Smart. Messrs. MacFarlane and Dennison, past presidents, did similar honors for Messrs. McConnell and Aitken.

TERRIBLE SWORD CUTS.

Incident in Indian Mutiny of Sowar's Great Death Strokes.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Calcutta, April 6.—In a publication, Sergeant Forbes-Mitchell, of the 93rd Sutherland Highlanders gives some reminiscences of the Indian Mutiny, and incidentally relates an instance at Lucknow that came under his own notice of the force of a cut from a curved sword of rigid steel.

"There were three brothers of the name of Ready in the 93rd, called David, John and James. They were all powerful, tall men, in the prime of life, and all three had served through the Crimea. David was a sergeant and his two brothers were privates. When falling in for the assault on the Begum's palace, John Ready took off his Crimean medal and gave it to his brother David, telling him that he felt a presentiment that he would be killed in the attack, and that David had better keep his medal and send it home to their mother. The assault took place and in the inner courts of the palace there was one division held by a regiment of dismounted cavalry armed with swords as keen as razors and circular shields and the party of the 93rd who got into that court were far outnumbered. On entering James Ready was attacked by a sowar armed with sword and shield. Ready's feather bonnnet was knocked off, and the sowar got one cut at him right over his head, which severed his skull clean in two ,the sword cutting right through his neck and half way down through the breast bone. John Ready sprang to the assistance of his brother, but too late; and although his boyonet reached the side of his opponent and was driven home with a fatal thrust, in doing so he came within the swoop of that terrible sword. He also was cut right through the left shoulder diagonally across the chest and his head and right arm were clean severed from the body. The sowar delivered his stroke of the sword at the same moment that he received the bayonet of John Ready through his heart and both men fell dead together.

PREMIER PROPOSES PLAN.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, April 6.—Mayor Scott on Friday received a letter from the Prime Minister written before his departure for London, in which he suggests that the cost of cleaning up the west side of the canal, in order to make room for the proposed G. T. R. station and hotel, be equally divided among the Government ,the Grand Trunk and the City of Ottawa. Several large warehouses line the canal which will have to be removed. Mayor Scott is in favor of accepting the Premier's proposal and estimates the cost at $100,000.

Mysterious Duel in Germany.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Berlin, April 6.—A mysterious duel, the outcome of which will probably prove fatal has just been fought in a secluded spot in Grunewald Forest, on the western outskirts of the city. The combatants were Count von Berken and another nobleman whose name has been kept a secret. Pistols were used at fifteen paces, and Count von Berken received a terrible injury internally from a shot which passed through his body. He was conveyed to the hospital in a hopeless condition. Von Berken is an assumed name, which conceals a personage of high rank. All efforts to ascertain the name of his antagonist and other particulars of the affair have proved futile, owing to the strict secrecy observed by all concerned.

Americans Buy Old English Titles.

Special to the Montreal Star.

London, April 6.—The Great Western Railway Company have just demolished two quaint old semi-detached houses and a number of ancient cottages at Newbury, preparatory to the commencement of the construction of a new station in that town. The contractor has disposed of some thousands of old tiles for shipment to America at something like 25 per cent. more money than new tiles could be purchased for in England. They are to be used in some old-world houses on the other side of the Atlantic.

Customs Returns at Sherbrooke.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Sherbrooke, Que., April 6.—The total duty collected by the customs at the port of Sherbrooke for the month of March, 1907, amounted to $20,098.70, an increase over the corresponding month of the previous year of $2,813.68. The duty collected for the fiscal year, which closed on March 31st, was for nine months only, and amounted to $167,652.13, an increase over the corresponding period of the previous year of $32,421.85.

Let Edison Furnish the Music

HOW else can you have music in the home unless you have the Edison Phonograph? You have a piano, but how many of the family can play it and how much can they play? You may be able to sing, but think what it would mean to hear the world's greatest singers singing the world's greatest songs.

The Edison Phonograph gives you your kind of music as rendered by the best musicians. When you play the piano you play a piece your way. With the Edison Phonograph you hear a march the way Sousa, who wrote it, would play it.

THE EDISON PHONOGRAPH
and Edison Gold-Moulded Records

place the world's repertoire of music at your feet. They bring into the most remote home music ordinarily heard only in the world's capitals.

Edison spent years perfecting this invention so that it would be the most perfect reproducer of sound that could be made. There is no Phonograph but the Edison. Hear it as soon as you can. If there is no dealer in your town, write to us, and we will put you in touch with some one who can show it to you, but by all means hear it.

National Phonograph Company

A Lightning Proof, Fire Proof Barn

is actually cheaper, when covered with "Acorn Quality" Corrugated Galvanized Sheets, than the dangerous all-wooden structure.

There is a big saving in both lumber and carpentry, when using Corrugated Sheets. For the metal, being very rigid, may be applied to a much lighter framework than any other construction, and no sheeting boards are required.

There is no trick in applying

"Acorn" Corrugated Galvanized Sheets.

Anybody can use them to roof or side any barn or outbuilding, and such a roof will outlast a generation without repairs. It is absolutely proof against lightning and fire from the outside. Being heavily galvanized, it will never rust and admit the rain. It is the best you can buy, and the cheapest, in both first and last cost.

Deleware, February 26th, 1905.
"I cannot speak too highly of your metal roofing. If I had another barn, to roof I would prefer your corrugated galvanized iron roofing and pay for it, rather than use wooden shingles for nothing."

NOVI-MODI WARDROBE.

MUSICAL AUTHORITIES AGREE:

The great public, too, has spoken in no uncertain voice, for more Pianolas have been sold than all other makes of Piano-players combined. The purchasers of Pianolas include those who are accustomed to own the best of everything—the royal families of Europe, the financial magnates of Wall Street, the leaders in the world of society and the foremost educational institutions where the Pianola (not somebody else's Piano-player) is used in the regular musical courses.

LESCHETIZKY (the teacher of Paderewski and most famous of all piano-teachers):
"Your Pianola is the only one deserving of serious consideration from the musical world."

PADEREWSKI (the magic of whose name draws great audiences all over the world):
"The Pianola is perfection."

ROSENTHAL (whose tour of America is one of the most notable events of the present season):
"You have through these improvements placed the Pianola in a class of its own."

GRIEG (the great Norwegian composer):
"Before hearing the Metrostyle Pianola I had thought that all such instruments were only machines."

HAROLD BAUER (a pianist of international renown):
"I consider the Pianola superior in every way to all other piano-forte players."

KUBELIK (the celebrated Bohemian violinist):
"I have seen all the different Piano attachments, but the Pianola is the only one which could be considered seriously, for it is the only one which is musical or artistic."

KREISLER (the world-renowned violinist):
"I would like to own several piano-playing machines for curiosity, but I would play only the Pianola, for that is far superior to all of them from every point of view."

DE PACHMANN (the celebrated interpreter of Chopin):
"The Pianola is the only one that can be considered really musical."

JOSEF HOFMANN (one of the world's great pianists):
"It is my opinion that in all essentials of artistic piano-playing the Pianola is the best instrument of this type."

Such a list could be extended indefinitely by the most celebrated names among living musicians, Richard Strauss, Saint-Saens, Puccini, Joachim, Moszkowski, Chaminade, Scharwenka, Humperdinck, Caruso—composers, pianists, singers of every nationality.

Here is the best court of authority—in fact the only one competent to decide conclusively upon matters affecting the great art of music. And this emphatic preference given to the Pianola by the musical authorities is echoed by the purchasing public everywhere, for in any quarter of the world where there is any sale for Piano-players whatever, the Pianola is the recognized leader, the absolute standard.

The Metrostyle Pianola and the Pianola Piano can now be obtained with the Themodist (which is to be had in no other instruments) and are on daily demonstration to the public in Montreal, irrespective of any intention to purchase, only at

MORE "MEEK AS MOSES" COUNSEL.

The Toronto Star thinks that there was nothing to be gained by "renewing the Parliamentary discussion over the unsavory question raised by Mr. Fowler, as Mr. Bourassa proposed. The attention of the Premier," it continues, "has now been called to the matter; the responsibility rests with him." Nor is this confidence reposed blindly. We know what the Premier does when he finds the air loaded with "rumors." He summons a mutual friend who knows the victim of the "rumors" more intimately than he (the Premier) does; and he sends him on an errand of enquiry to the victim. He asks that he be told the truth; and he confidingly sends to the very man who must know the truth best. When the message comes back that the "suspect" admits his own innocence, the Premier closes the case. The evidence is all in. He is prepared now to get up in the House of Commons and prove the foundationless character of the "rumors" by quoting this "admission" of the man most concerned. It is no wonder that the Toronto Star feels that there is no need for a Parliamentary enquiry when the attention of the Premier has been called to the matter.

But our contemporary goes farther than this. It thinks that Mr. Borden should sit silent under the aspersions cast upon the Opposition members by Mr. Emmerson. It says:

"The leader of the Opposiion takes a position that is not only wrong but absurd when he says that the House must investigate the remarks made by Mr. Emmerson in a very trying position and under very strong emotion. He says that Mr. Emerson aspersed the character of seventy-five members of the House. Surely the House is not to be asked to conduct an inquisition into the conduct of seventy-five men. It is better to make allowances for the painful position in which Mr. Emmerson was placed, and to regard the incident as closed so far as the House of Commons is concerned."

The Toronto Star gives us no reason for this opinion. Yet it would have been easy for it to have ruled Mr. Borden out on the same ground that it bowled over Mr. Bourassa. The attention of the Premier was also called to this wholesale charge made by Mr. Emmerson. Why did not the Toronto Star tell us that this was sufficient—that, as the great man whom it follows was now seized of the facts, it was unnecessary for anybody else to do anything about it. "Father was at the helm." Why should Mr. Borden bother himself about a little insult of that sort flung into his face when Sir Wilfrid would make it all well in his own good time. The Toronto Star must make a very satisfactory Sunday School scholar in the good city of Toronto.

Happily Mr. Borden is not made of such namby-pamby or of such cowardly stuff. When a man, speaking from his place in Parliament, accuses him and his colleagues of improper conduct, and adds that there is evidence of it in existence, Mr. Borden thinks that it is a man's duty to deny the implied accusation and to insist upon retraction or proof. It is true that the leaders, in whom the Toronto Star is willing to confide the honor of Parliament, did not so meet the aspersions of Mr. Fowler. Mr. Fowler said that he had "data" which would enable him to discuss their private characters in connection with "women, wine and graft." This seems to have been more definite than Mr. Emmerson's "aspersions." Yet the Minsters, and the members behind them—who were also included in the sweeping insinuations—took it all lying down. They, too, are qualified for the Toronto Star's Sunday School class, if meekness be a qualification.

The people in the country, however, will think that, when a man is insulted, he should resent the insult. They will further think that, when a public man is told that "evidence" of his misconduct exist, he should insist that the "evidence" be brought forward or the aspersion withdrawn. They like their public men to be sensitive regarding their honor; and they are inclined to distrust public men and public journals who are all for swallowing insults, as, perhaps, the quickest way of getting them out of sight.

MILITARY TRAINING FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN.

If we are to accept the plea that a country's best guarantee of peace is a preparedness for war, Sir Frederick Borden's proposition to give military training to the male school children of the country may be accepted as a good thing. There need be no surprise, however, if the scheme is opposed in some quarters as a first step toward the introduction of old world "militarism," a notion which the growing military expenditure of the country—now approaching the $5,000,000 mark—will tend to foster. There will be those who will maintain that anything approaching universal military training will lead to militarism and ultimately to war.

The judgment of military men of wide experience is, however, strongly opposed to this view, and it cannot be far wrong to develop among the rising generation an intelligent patriotism—a patriotism of responsibility and preparedness for intelligent action in time of need. If it be granted that every man owes a duty to his country, a duty to take up arms if necessary in its defence, there should be little objection to such a course of training in his youth as will fit him to act with wisdom and intelligence. Lord Roberts has very properly said that "the days of muddling through a war to a satisfactory conclusion by dint of dogged perseverance and physical courage are over."

The Minister of Militia gave no hint as to the mode of training to be adopted, but, provided it is carried out along proper lines, it should redound to the physical and disciplinary advantage of the rising generation, even if the country derives no greater benefit. There need be no interference with the civil life of the subject, no compulsory military service, but such training should be provided as would fit young men to take a useful part in any great national emergency. We need a broader patriotism than the passion which prompts a man to serve his country; patriotism to be effective must be intelligent and capable of proper direction.

CHINA PREPARING FOR PEACE.

It is regrettable that China should be so slow to learn. Several times she has been cuffed and kicked and had her government compelled to change their centre of gravity. European nations who engaged in the joyous occupation of chasing the whole visible Chinese dynasty into the woods now and then, carrying away from the country nothing more than they could lift, and permitting the Chinese ratepayers to hand over the entire cost of the picnic, did so only in the interests of peace. They were going to compel the Chinese to be peaceful.

Now the nations of Europe and America are engaged in discussing the advisability of reducing armaments, lessening the probabilities of war, and making the ways of killing less unpleasant, what about China? It has seemingly been forgotten to tell her that the Hague Peace Conference is on. Therefore the Chinese—in their benighted, old-fashioned way—have been arranging for peace by training and drilling an army of five hundred thousand men for territorial defence alone. They have a population of over found hundred millions to draw upon for recruits, and military experts who have had an opportunity of seeing the nucleus of the Chinese army say that in physique, equipment ,discipline and skill in evolutions, there is nothing in a European regiment superior to those of China.

It is interesting to note that, while the Hague Conference was preparing for preliminary work, the Imperial Government of China was preparing for peace in that old-fashioned way she had been taught by her erstwhile European visitors. She has placed an order in Germany for two million of the most approved modern type of rifles. The time may be not far distant when questions with China will have to be solved by the use of diplomacy instead of a meat axe.

THE FUTURE OF BIG MEN.

When big men retire from positions where they have long been in the public eye, speculation is rife as to what they are up to. The full, complete and sincere nature of their retirement,even, is sometimes doubted. The suspicious look all around the suburbs of the resignation, so to speak, to see if there is any string hanging out. As the time approaches for President Roosevelt's term of office to expire all sorts of answers are being given to the conundrum: What is he going to do? As far as the President himself is concerned, he evidently believes with Euripides that "Silence is an answer to a wise man."

Some think that the mayoralty of New York would be a fitting sequel to the term at the White House, while others are prepared to see him carry on a hurrah campaign for the gubernatorial chair of the state of New York, and now they are having him appointed to the Senate of the United States, where he can say things viva voce that he now writes about. Some there are who still hint that he has another term of his present occupation in view, notwithstanding his confession that he would not run.

A close second to Mr. Roosevelt in the field of speculation just now is Mr. James J. Hill. The selection of his son as his successor seems to be taken to act at rest any doubt as to the genuineness of his retirement from the Presidency of the Great Northern. Now some say that he is going to devote his vast energy and great resourcefulness to developing canal transportation, which he has always contended should be regarded as a feeder rather than a rival to railway transportation.

Others suggest that he will simply settle down to enjoy the possession of a delightful art gallery and superb library, containing books which are readable and read. It is a pleasing picture for the evening of a life so full of labor, that of the stormy petrel of American transportation reclining in an easy chair on the veranda of his country home, reading his books and occasionally strolling down to the station to see the train come in.

The railway men seem to have begun to fight back at Roosevelt with a viciousness that can hardly fail to hurt. This is, perhaps, the highest compliment which has yet been paid the man in the White House; but a campaign against any man, organized with the brains at the command of great wealth and pushed with the tireless vigor which that "good soldier"—money—always shows, is not to be regarded lightly. It is probably not so much against Roosevelt personally as against his policy, which he is trying to hand on to Taft or some other successor, that the fight will be made. By discrediting Roosevelt,they will discredit his policy; and will weaken his power to name his successor. But Roosevelt is something of a fighter himself; and he is in a position whence projectiles can be launched with great effect. More than that, if the railway assault is successful in stinging him keenly enough, he may decide to lead the defence of his policy in the next campaign himself, and appeal to the people for a vindication. It is a dangerous game to stir up a Bengal tiger.

"THE MORE THE MERRIER"

Under this heading The Star will publish brief communications, if accompanied by the name of the writer, as a guarantee of good faith.

Veterans Not Invited.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—I was very much disappointed when I read the announcement in the Star concerning the unveiling of the monument to be erected on Dominion square to the memory of the Canadians who fell in the South African War to see there was no mention of the South African Veterans in Montreal being invited to attend. I am sure that all the South African Veterans who are able would be glad to attend the unveiling of a monument erected to the memory of their comrades who fought by their side.

SOUTH AFRICAN VETERAN.

Spitting on the Streets.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—Now that the snow is cleared off the sidewalks and the spring-time has come, I hope that our police will not forget that there is a by-law prohibiting spitting on the sidewalks, and that they will enforce this law. I hope that this law won't be allowed to become a dead letter,for we have too many dead by-laws already. We want our city to be healthy and clean.

FRANK FRASER.

The Ice Question.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—I am at a loss to understand why the ice companies should charge the citizens of Montreal $8.00 for 10 lbs. of ice for the season of 1907. Last year they put up a cry of "ice famine." What reasons have they this year? Surely they got more ice out of the river this year than they did last, and the cost of carting it to the ice-houses was considerably less, as they did not have to transfer the ice on to waggons. The price of ice in 1905 was $6.00, and I was certain that it would be the same this year. Surely they have not formed an ice trust in this city. Could not someone enlighten me on the question?

I. F.

How Long Did It Take?

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—I hope, in the interests of citizens generally, it will be possible to get an official statement from the Fire Department as to the length of time which elapsed between the giving of the alarm and the turning on of the hose in yesterday's fire at McGill University. The Engineering Building was not in the "congested district," nor were there any overhead wires to fight, but, to the spectators, it seemed a shameful time before water was played on the flames.

M. D.

Typhoid and Three Rivers.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—I see the prosperous and up-to-date little city of Three Rivers has had nearly one thousand cases of what the local euphuists call "intestinal grippe," but which might as well be known by its more common name, "typhoid," and nothing definite is being done about it. This may be all right for Three Rivers, but what about the other towns farther down the St. Lawrence, who draw their water supplies from the river? Have they no interest in the prevention of this infection?

QUEBECER.

A Free Public Golf Links.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—In many cities of the Old Country, and even in the United States, free public golf links have been laid out on the public parks. I understand that there is a golf course on Fletcher's Field, but that it is not open to the public. Why would it not be a good idea for the Parks Committee to open negotiations with this club to allow the public to play, at least on Saturday afternoons?

Carnegie Has "Peace Evening."

New York, April 6.—There was a unique and notable gathering at the East 91st street home of Andrew Carnegie. Several hundred persons identified with, or otherwise interested in, industrial affairs, had responded to an invitation to spend at the residence what the host termed a "Peace Evening." The affair was arranged by the officers of the National Civic Federation.

Spains Agree on Compromise.

Ottawa, April 6.—The case which has been outstanding for two years between Mr. Ritchie, of Halifax, as trustee for Mrs. Spain, against Captain Spain, is now settled by compromise. Captain Spain will pay $4,250 and the claim for allmony will be dropped.

In Memoriam—Dr. Stockton.

Death stricken in the zenith of his fame,
Across the land the sad news comes to-day.
Another patriot has been called away;
Down by his sea home, the beloved name

Of one so good, and free from earthly blame,
Shall never be forgotten. As we pay
The final tribute, let us humbly pray
He rests in peace, within the silent frame.

With flute clear voice, and fervid eloquence,
To guide aright his fellows, was he born.
This scholar statesman. As the hours roll

His dear name shall be held in reverence;
While thousands, with the sorrowing family, mourn
"The passing of a strong and gentle soul."

THE PASSING HOUR

The plan to tax whiskers in the States would produce a great revenue if they could only entice the members of the Canadian Senate over there on a visit.

Detroit, having had the courage to refuse one of Mr. Carnegie's libraries, is now a logical candidate for one of his medals.

Although Thaw is not insane, we are still inclined to suspect some of the lawyers.

However, in its own quiet way the Fowler-Emmerson bout is nearly as good as the Roosevelt-Harriman "go."

A scientist says that any jar of the earth's crust is liable to bring on an earthquake. Premier Whitney should be careful in handling his salary not to let it drop.

A statue called "Quiet" will be erected in Boston. It will tend to offset the row kicked up by Thomas W. Lawson.

Harriman probably regrets that he did not add, "Burn this letter."

(Chicago News.)

A sportsman who had a $20 bill stolen from him received the following letter: "Dear Sir,—I stoled your money. Remorse naws my conshence, and I will send you $2. When remorse naws again I will send you some more."

THE UNHAPPY MILLIONAIRE.

("Wealth decreases happiness. The millionaires who laugh are rare."—Mr. Carnegie in a recent speech.)

With burdens is he weighted down
And when it comes to feel,
A ton of gold as heavy is
As any ton of steel.
That all would help to carry it
Is aught else but a boon;
So millionaires who laugh are rare
As icicles in June.

Wealth brings with it unhappiness,
And his pile will increase
Until he looks with longing eye
On penury and peace.
How envies he the happy poor,
Free from gilt bond or stock!
The millionaires who laugh are rare
As white crows in a flock.

List to the wails of millionaires
Condemned to luxury!
From yachts and autos, marble halls
And jewels they're never free;
And when they try to help themselves,
State legislatures come;
So millionaires who smile are rare
As rosebuds on a bomb.

Oh, ye, uncrushed by riches' weight,
Who know not what it is
To suffer from wealthitis pangs,
Or straight on fortune whizz,
Do not despise, but pity him'
He has a canker sore;
The millionaire who laughs is rare
Because he wants still more.

The only thing we can recommend to women for the management of a husband, is to feed him well and trust to luck.

tions for a few August skating parties.

Appreciation of Austin.

(Chicago Record-Herald.)

Alfred Austin, the English laureate, says he likes Longfellow's poetry. This does not indicate that Longfellow was not a great poet. Many other people who can't write poetry themselves like Longfellow's work.

Because he was supplied with stale eggs, Montreal man is suing his grocer. Defence of grocer will probably be that he is a lover of literature and supplied customer with "The Lays of Ancient Rome."

One of London Punch's cartoonist is 87 years old, and his work appears in the next column to jokes that are about 187.

This kind of weather will teach people the folly of pawning their winter overcoats too soon.

Canada's fleet is not mentioned in the latest list of the great navies of the world. The next time the statisticians are looking we will confidently expect our rowboat to come out and make a noise like a navy.

No doubt, Mr. Emmerson also feels as if he could use a little European trip and sea-air in his business about this time.

Canadian Missionaries Heard From.

City of Troy Burned to Water's Edge —Passengers Escape.

Dobb's Ferry, N.Y., April 6. — The steamer City of Troy, of the Citizens' Line, was burned to the water's edge here. All the passengers, some sixty-five in number,were landed safely. The steamer was destroyed with its cargo of freight and thirteen horses. Edwin Gould's dock,to which the City of Troy tied up when it was found impossible to control the flames, was also destroyed.

The City of Troy was built for Navigation on the Citizens' line in 1870, at a cost of $250,000.

Six Million Gift to Trustees of Carnegie Institute.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 6.—W. N. DEVELOPMENT SHOWN IN ART OF CANADIAN CONTRIBUTORS SEEN IN R. C. A. EXHIBITION

Works in Gallery Shows Growth Approaching a Definite Development and Advancement—Patrons Have Taken a Practical Interest and Large Numbers of Canvasses Have Been Sold—Resume of the Exhibits.

Whether second thoughts are best or not is a moot question too big for another consideration. What is more to the point at the moment is that a second visit to the exhibition of the Royal Canadian Academy, now in progress at the galleries of the Art Association, will reveal much to be indicated by the state of its art. In evil times men have no thought for art, no matter how expressed. In better days and in prosperity there is field for opportunity, and Canadian art is yet in development. It cannot be said to have reached far beyond the embryonic stages. There are reasons for this, practical reasons. Despite all to the contrary, the advancement of art depends to a considerable extent upon foundations built up from the practical of life.

Men who must hew and build may have all the emotions and feelings which expressed form art. It cannot be expected that while yet they are compelled to hew and build they will be in a position to express that inner consciousness. But in Canada there has been a closer approach to stability and maturity, and now men have time to look about, to mingle with one another and to discuss the finer affairs of life. It is this particular condition that is apparent in the present exhibition; growth approaching a definite development. There is room for further development and there are signs visible that give birth to anticipation of better things to come.

The public has shown some shade of interest in the exhibition and there has been a fair daily attendance of people. It has appeared that it is an intelligent interest and this is one of the hopeful signs of the growing times. Those in a position to act as patrons of art seem to have taken a practical interest in the matter, with the result that there has been a pleasing increase of the tags announcing a terse, "sold."

SOME OF THE PAINTINGS.

A good example of thoughtful work is to be seen in No. 199, shown in the new gallery. This is a painting of a Methodist minister, the offering of Mr. Curtis Williamson, A. R. C. A., Toronto. The execution is good throughout and the tone effects pleasing.

The character of the contribution from Mr. J. W. Morrice is in range with high standard of that artist. This is No. 149 "Le Place Chateaubriand, St. Malo," and is on the east wall of the new gallery. It is a worthy specimen of the painter's art.

Adjoining canvases are those of Mr. Curtis Williamson, Nos. 196 and 198, being so executed as to give an impression of age. The desired end was gained, but it is doubtful if any real purpose is gained by such work. Mr. Cullen has an offering in the old gallery that has attracted attention. It is a view of Windsor street showing St. George's Church, with the Windsor station showing in the background.

No. 186, "Breaking the Sod," by Owen Staples, is not far away. It is well executed and has attracted attention.

In this new gallery there are two fine watercolors by Mr. Robert F. Gagen, R. C. A. These are 241 and 242, "Calm before Storm" and "Off for Bologne" Both are marine subjects and are sympathetically treated.

Mr. G. A. Reid's "A castle in Spain" is a charming picture hanging on the other side of the entrance. It is No. 181. No. 251, a pastel by Miss Ruth Harrington shows promise. No. 128, "Greta, a portrait of a child," by Mr. D. Park Macmillan is the best example of his work yet exhibited.

A big canvas in the old gallery is No. 56. This is by Mr. W. Cutts, of Toronto." "Frothed and whipped to a foam like snow." Mr. Cutts has made his rapids seem very real and there is a pleasing spirit of freshness about the canvas. No. 48 "Bretonne en Prieres" nearby by Mr. A. Suzor Cote is work well done.

On the other wall a big picture is No. 178 "Girl with Doll." It is by Miss Henrietta M. Shore, of Toronto, and may be said to loom out from the others hung in its immediate neighborhood. It is peculiarly treated and it cannot be said that the result is quite pleasing, but at all events it shows originality in handling.

Mr. Alson S. Clark, of Quebec, has four paintings in this room, and three of them of subjects in the Ancient Capital, are of merit. The detail of No. 43 "The Market Day" is excellent and the artist has thrown a beam of sunlight, escaping from the shadow of a high building, across his scene in a striking manner.

—or as "old." When you put your dainty Spring Hat on to-morrow, I hope it will nestle on rich, glossy hair, that has all the beautiful color of youth. When the hair turns grey and the skin wrinkles, it is high time to consult a specialist. IS IT A DREAM OR A REALITY ?

FAIRVIEW

That depends upon your faculty for grasping a really good proposition—never has there been such a valuable property placed on the market with the same advantages attached to it, situated in a location recognized as beautiful as any on the Island of Montreal. Only 150 lots have been placed on the market—over forty are already sold to date. It will all be sold in a few more days—it is too good a proposition to be overlooked by the wise investor. Values will more than double within a few years at the most. Every person who buys will find the dream of their ambition actually materialized. A most ideal location. Iron-clad restrictions to keep it ideal. Within the reach of every economical purse. Space is too limited to go too much into details. It is your opportunity. Don't delay—it is too real. We can prove it. Quick action, good judgment on your part will win you a prize.

FAIRVIEW is situated facing on Rockland Ave. It commences 800 feet from St. Catherine Road (2 minutes' walk). In this short distance three beautiful residences are erected, including that of Mayor A. Joyce, the grounds of which are the pride of Outremont. FAIRVIEW commences from the magnificent property of Mayor A. Joyce.

IT IS ONLY 15-MINUTES' RIDE FROM ROCKLAND AVE. TO CRAIG STREET AT CITY FARES.

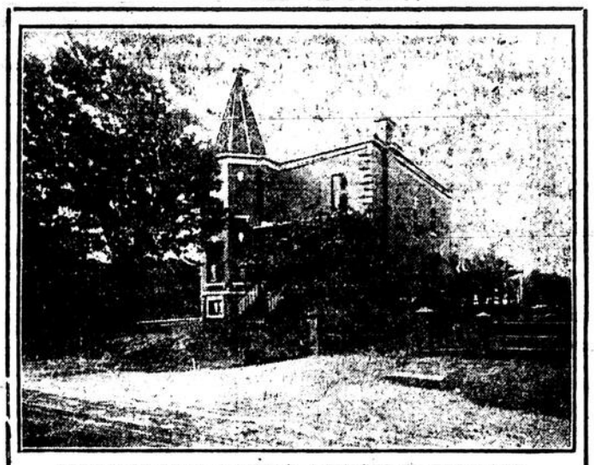

Rockland Ave. is this side of the Convent on St. Catherine Road, and branches off St. Catherine Road at the Toll-gate. No toll can be collected for Rockland Ave.

Should the purchaser of a lot die even a week after his first ten dollar payment has been made a clause is provided to give a free deed to his heirs.

$10 Cash Secures a Lot--Balance Payable Monthly Within 8 Years.

Only Self-contained Houses Built of Brick or Stone (at least $3,000.00 in value) can be erected in FAIRVIEW. The Ideal Savings, Loan & Land Company will erect houses if requested---Payments monthly same as rent, when half the price of the lot has been paid.

THIS PROPOSITION IS A REAL WINNER—THE FULLEST INVESTIGATION INVITED—FAIRVIEW IS OWNED BY THE SAME COMPANY WHO OWN FAIRMOUNT.

RESIDENCE OF W. J. LITTLE, SITUATED ON ROCKLAND AVENUE.

FAIRVIEW has all the features of wise investment combined with every other advantage, and is an ideal location for a beautiful home.

If FAIRVIEW looks good now, what will it look like when summer is here and developments are made?

We will commence to erect houses as soon as the snow is gone.

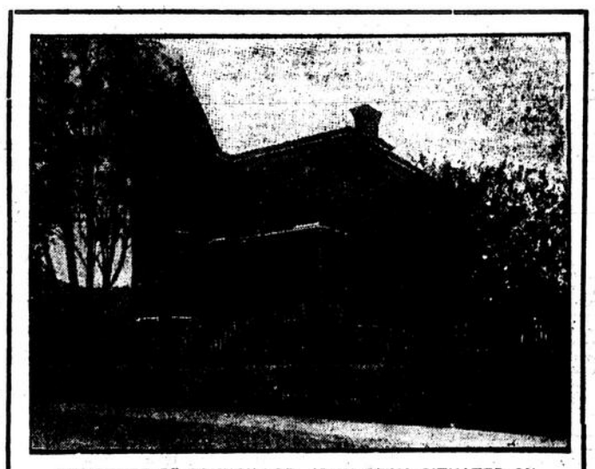

RESIDENCE OF MAYOR A. JOYCE, SITUATED ON ROCKLAND AVENUE.

THINK WELL, ACT QUICKLY, one hour's delay may cause keen regret for years to come. Write for further information immediately.

Don't wait until tomorrow. $10.00 deposit will secure your choice of a valuable lot.

Plan your future developments in the future—your first and best move is to secure a lot.

RESIDENCE OF COUNCILLOR JOHN GRAY, SITUATED ON ROCKLAND AVENUE.

The Most Striking Proposition Ever Made to Real Estate Investors.
Quick Decision Means Hundreds of Dollars.

THE SMITH-WILDER PROMOTION CO. are handling both Fairmount and Fairview. The firm of H. A. WILDER & CO. and THE IDEAL SAVINGS, LOAN AND LAND CO. have hundreds of thousands of dollars invested in these properties. A proposition such as we are making, calls for the public confidence because we carry out all our plans to the letter. FAIRVIEW will be the choicest location in Outremont. You are surely looking for one of two thing—an ideal location for a home, or a chance to make an investment which will give you the largest returns. Both are combined here. Only a few days will be necessary to sell the remaining 120 lots now on the market.

Send $10.00 as a Deposit---We will use our best judgment in selection---if you are not satisfied it will be refunded.

If you wait till next week you will be too late—We ask you to have confidence in us and we show confidence to you by stating that if you are not satisfied in every way, we will return the deposit made. SECTION "C"

All the legal requirements in connection with Westmount Plateau, Section "C," have been satisfied, and we have just been notified by the Government that the sub-division plan of this Section was duly registered in the Registry Office last Thursday, the 4th inst.

This means that the 283 beautiful restricted home-sites comprised in Section "C" now have legal existence and shall hereafter be known and designated by Official numbers.

All those who have already bought lots in this Section, and which lots had to be described by "interim" numbers, will please call at our office to have the Official numbers of their lots inserted in their contracts and have them duly registered.

Although Section "C" is placed formally on the market only to-day, the demand for these lots has been so pressing that in order to satisfy our clients (some of them buyers of lots in every property we have handled during the past 18 years), we finally consented to open the sale of them in a quiet way, with the result that out of the 283 lots which Section "C" contains, 121 have already been sold, so that there remains only 162 to sell. Judging from the unprecedented demand in this Section, it is only reasonable to expect that the remaining 162 lots will not be long on the market.

NOW, DON'T IMAGINE that we have sold the cream, because every lot in Section "C" is as desirable and offers as good investment for your money as the adjoining ones. If you have not been quick enough to secure lots in Sections "A" and "B," BUY NOW in Section "C," because this is POSITIVELY the last "addition" to Westmount Plateau, as there is no more land in this vicinity for love or money.

Although we have paid a much larger figure for land in Section "C," the opening prices now prevailing are but a shade higher than the prices lots in Sections "A" and "B" went for last summer; but, of course, if you wanted to buy lots in those Sections now, you would have to pay 50 per cent. and 100 per cent. more than we sold them for.

Section "C" includes the continuation of such beautiful streets as Sherbrooke Street, Cote St. Antoine Road and Church Avenue, and all the lots are in the immediate vicinity of the New Public Park, some of them fronting on the Park.

OPENING PRICES OF LOTS ONLY $425 and up, according to size and location. Terms 10 per cent. down and the balance payable as little as $5 per month, if desired. All the prices of lots remaining unsold will positively be increased on the 1st of May next.

DON'T TAKE ANY RISKS! Invest in these lots and your money will work 24 hours a day for you. DO IT NOW. Real Estate is the basis of all security.

ROYALS DID NOT PLAY ROANOKE YESTERDAY

Johnson Will Report Some Time Next Week and Kittredge is Delighted That he is to Join His Aggregation.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Roanoke, Va., April 5.—The game scheduled here yesterday etween Montreal and Roanoke was prevented on account of rain. In the morning Kittredge took his team to the park and they worked hard for two hours. The players are fast rounding to form and some of them are already in middle of season form.

Doc Newton shows up the best of the pitchers, the big Southpaw has great speed, fields his position well and displays plenty of vigor.

well and displays plenty of vigor.

Manager Kittredge hands out the following line of talk about the club's prospects and players. The men have been working hard and are looking better every day. Madigan the out-fielder has proven to be the 'best baseball find in years and he is one of the greatest hitters since the days of Delehanty. Jack Phelan is showing up exceedingly well in the outfield and is one of the fastest men in baseball.

Brown on first is the equal of any man in the country and will be the sensation of the Eastern League. Hill is a strengthened the team at third. The Royals have picked up a prize at Needham and he will be one of the best short stops in the league, he is a gingerly and lively player, always in the game and very fast on his feet. At the present time it looks very much like he has won the position from Hartman. Simmons at second is showing up surprisingly well and improving every day. Johnson, the hard-hitting outfielder, who was sold from Detroit to Montreal and now with New York Americans, will join the club April 20th. It has been reported that he is a great hitter, which is just what the club needs. Newton, Stalley and Herbst are in excellent shape. Romer another South Paw twirler, proved to be a good man, but with such good men as the above trio, he will not be needed.

Kittridge expects to land Barmer and Hughes from New York. Both men are in fine form and will greatly strengthen the already strong pitching corps. These men are the best twirlers in the minor leagues. Connor and Kittridge will take care of the backstop.

Kittridge says that on April 25th he certainly will be ready to meet Baltimore as they will be in great shape and with bats on. He further states that without making any boast he will be in the race from the start to the finish. The club is 75 per cent. better than last season's team, and when the Montreal fans see them on the field they will be agreeably surprised. Every man on the club is a clean cut gentleman and can play the game. Small, the youngster from St. Johns, N.B., is one of the finest youngsters ever seen. He is exceptionally fast and a natural batsman and with one year's experience in minors' company he will make a strong man for Montreal team in 1908. Dubois is suffering with a slight lameness in shoulder, but will be O.K. in a few days. No curve pitching has been allowed thus far. If Needham continues to play in present form Kittridge will sell or trade Hartman; but, of course, he will get the best man for the position. Stanley will work today against the local club.

Hesterfer is Willing.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Toronto, Ont., April 6—President J. J. McCaffery yesterday received a wire from Larry Hesterfer, the missing pitcher, saying he was ready to join, but had not been asked to report or told where the team was practicing. Hesterfer is at Bloomfield, N.J. "I guess it was an oversight," said Mr. McCaffery. "I left it to Kelley and he left it to me, and we both fell down. Hesterfer will report to-morrow."

CAREFUL TREATMENT GIVEN LONGBOAT

Toronto, April 6.—Great difficulty is being encountered in finding six men fast enough to pace Longboat in his race on April 13 against the five-mile indoor record at the Armories. In order that the Indian may lower the record, it is necessary that five or six runners, capable of going a mile under five minutes, should be put in as pacers, and the Indian's managers are on a still hunt for one or two more of this class. Sellers, Tait, Cummings, Parkes, Goldsboro, Galbraith, Young, Knibbs, Lawson and Petch are the candidates so far.

Longboat is suffering from a heavy cold at present and only jogged a few laps last evening. To-morrow night finishes his indoor work at the Armories until the meet. After Friday Tom will be put on the road for a week's hard work.

After the five-mile race at the Garrison the Indian will go to Boston and put in a week's light work and accustom himself to the route of the big Marathon race.

West End Y.M.C.A. authorities are to be congratulated on the close attention and care they are giving the fleet-footed redman.

Much jealousy exists over possession of the Indian, but the critics will have difficulty finding room for complaint over the manner in which he is now being handled. He is met every evening as he leaves his place of employment and taken home. The boys at the "Y" make a companion of him and watch and nurse him carefully. He is taken every evening to the Armories and given a workout, and after that is either escorted home or taken to some place of amusement. He occasionally chafes under restraint, but his kindly treatment is fast making an impression and every day he is becoming more amenable to discipline.

GANS AND LEWIS ARE NOW MATCHED

Chicago, April 6.—Joe Gans, the lightweight champion, and Harry Lewis, of Philadelphia, have been matched to fight at 133 pounds, weigh in at the ringside stripped. The representatives of both men met here yesterday and agreed upon all the details of the match.

The articles signed called for a fight within the next three months for the best purse obtainable. Forfeits of $5,000 each were posted, and no purse less than $20,000 is to be considered. Neither man will be permitted to engage in championship fights during the life of the articles.

Battling Nelson, who was present when the match was made, was given the preference by Gans, but the Chicago man declined, stating that he had enough money to retire.

Westmount Lawn Bowling.

Preliminary work is being done for the lawn bowling season in Westmount. Last year the lawn of the Westmount Bowling Club suffered somewhat from winter-killing, although a good season's sport was enjoyed by the members. Last fall, after the close of the season, considerable attention was given the green about one-half to three-quarters of an inch of rich dark vegetable mould being spread over its entire surface, then seeded and levelled; and just before the snow came a thick covering of straw was laid upon it. After all danger from freezing and thawing is past the straw will be removed, and the green re-seeded and re-levelled, after which the green committe will have to trust to nature to do the rest. The outcome of this new treatment is being watched with considerable interest, not only by the members of the Bowling Club, but by the owners of lawns throughout Westmount, one of whom stated to a member of the club a few days ago: "The owners of most of the private lawns of Westmount will be anxious to see the result of your labor, and if it proves a success, there will be more straw drawn into Westmount next fall than ever before."

THE STAR'S ANNUAL BASEBALL CONTEST

How Will the Montreal Baseball Club Stand on May 25th.

After figuring out the chances I come to the conclusion that Montreal's percentage in the Baseball race will be after the games played on May 24, 1907:

MUCH PANICS AND SOME OF THEIR FREAKS

Toy

Last Month's the First in History to Come in Month of March.

MISSISSIPPI BUBBLE ONE OF THE EARLIEST.

A Surprising Number of Panics Have Taken Place in the Month of May.

Attention is called by the Wall Street Journal to the fact that the recent flop in Stocks was the first panic in financial history to take place in the month of March.

It is a common belief that panics usually occur in the fall of the year, generally in September and October, and some economists have taken pains to explain this phenomenon. Their explanation is that during the summer months, when the days are long, the productive forces are most active, and large extensions take place, which, in connection with the harvests, produce a strain upon the money market, that often culminate in a break and panic.

THEORY BREAKS DOWN.

The trouble with this theory is that it does not not always work. As a matter of fact a large number of panics take place in the first part of the year, most of them in May. For instance, the Mississippi bubble of 1720 culminated in May; the disastrous American panic of 1837 started in May; the panic of 1866, caused by the failure of Overend, Guerney & Company, took place in the same month; the Grant & Ward failure was a May disaster, and our great silver panic of 1893 began in May with the collapse in Cordage. The Flower panic in the stock market in 1899, and the great Northern Pacific panic of 1901 were also in May.

On the other hand the South Sea bubble culminated at the close of 1824; the first Black Friday took place on December 6, 1745; the American panic of 1814 started September 1, and the minor panic of 1818 began in October. The English crisis of 1825 started in December; our tremendous crash of 1857 began on August 24; the collapse of the gold corner in 1869 resulted in Black Friday, September 24; the panics resulting from the Chicago and Boston fires occurred in October, 1871, and November, 1872; the Baring panic took place in November, 1890, and the Venezuela panic in December, 1895. The following is a record of the principal panics which have taken place in England and the United States during the past 200 years.

LIST OF PANICS.

1683—Earliest recorded English panic.

1711—English commercial crisis.

1720—Mississippi Bubble in Paris, culminated in May.

1720—South Sea Bubble in London, culminated in end of year.

1731—Another English crisis.

1745—First Black Friday, December 6, caused by progress of Pretender's Army, with run on Bank of England.

1763—First of modern English panics.

1772-3—Another English crisis.

1783—Panic in England.

1792-3—Financial upheaval in England and first panic in United States.

1814—American panic following capture of Washington by British on August 24. Banks in New York suspended specie payments September 1. English crisis came in 1815.

1818—Minor American crisis began in October.

1825—English panic started in December; experienced in United States in 1826.

1837—Great panic and commercial depression starting with suspension of banks on May 9.

1848—Minor American crisis, felt in England in preceding year.

1857—Another great panic started by failure of Ohio Life & Trust Co., August 24.

1866—Panic caused by failure of great London house of Overend, Guerney Company, May 11. This was the second Black Friday.

1869—Collapse of gold conspiracy in New York, causing the third Black Friday panic of September 24.

1871—Panic caused by Chicago fire, October 8-11.

1872—Panic caused by Boston fire, November 9.

1873—Tremendous commercial crisis, often called "The Panic," starting with the failure of Jay Cooke & Co., on September 18.

1884—Panic in May caused by failure of Grant & Ward and Marine Bank. Clearing House certificates issued May 15.

1890—Panic in November caused by suspension of great London bank of the Barings.

1893—Collapse of McLeod combination on February 20.

1895—Panic on December 19, caused by President Cleveland's Venezuelan message.

1896—Bryan panic, culminating at the time of his Madison Square speech in August.

1899—Panic caused by sudden death of R. P. Flower on May 12.

1901—Northern Pacific corner and panic, on May 9.

1903—Undigested securities panic, reaching its culmination in September.

1907—Mystery panic of March 14.

WARD PANIC OVERWORKED.

These panics were not all of corresponding magnitude. In fact the word "panic" is very much overworked. We commonly use the word to describe alike tremendous industrial depressions, like those of 1857, 1873 and 1893, and stock market eruptions like those of Black Friday in 1869, and the Northern Pacific upheaval of 1901, and the great slump in March of this year. Of course these events were entirely different in character and size. There is, however, a very close resemblance between the different great commercial crises, such as those of 1857, 1873 and 1893. So close is the resemblance that many economists have held that they were traceable to similar causes and were moreover regulated by a law of periodicity. They appear to come about once in every ten years, those of the greatest severity being separated by twenty years. Jevons, the English economist, advanced the theory that panics, famines and disasters were phenomena of sun spots. Astronomers calculate that the sun spot periods are about 10.45 years apart, and it is certainly a suggestive fact that the great panics do closely correspond with those periods. For instance there have been eight big panics in the United States in a period of eighty years, or an average of ten years apart. On this showing the reaction of 1903 was a true successor of the panic of 1893, and on the same basis the next panic of national dimensions should be expected about 1913.

SOME HABITS.

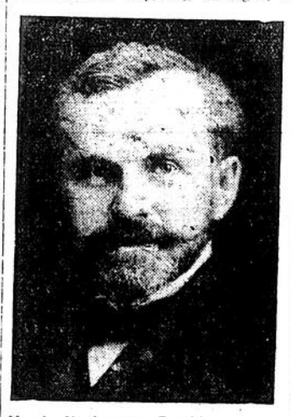

There are other interesting facts concerning panics. One is that they are often preceded a year before and sometimes succeeded a year after by lesser financial disturbances. For instance, the panic of 1837 was followed by a flurry in 1839 and was preceded by a stock market collapse with failures in 1836. The panic of 1866 was preceded by a disturbance in 1864. The panic of 1873 was preceded by a severe pinch in the money market in 1871. The panic of 1884 was preceded by a severe break in prices in 1856.

All true panics are international in their influence. Their effects are not always experienced in all countries in the same year, but if they are felt in the United States in one year they are, at least, experienced in Europe the year preceding or the year after. The connections between the international markets are so intimate that what takes place in one must necessarily communicate its effects to the others.

It may be said regarding panics that, to quote the words of John Mills, "they do not destroy, replete; they merely lower the excess to which it has been previously raised by its betrayal into hopelessly unproductive works."

Canada's Army of Photographers.

A general meeting of the Association of Professional Photographers of the Dominion was held on Thursday at the Monument National. The election of officers resulted in the selection as president of Mr. J. N. Lapres, of the firm of Lapres & Lavergne, of this city. Interesting facts brought out at the meeting were that there are 8,420 professional photographers in the Dominion, and that in the city of Montreal alone there are 52 studios and 340 men engaged in the work.

Mr. J. N. Lapres, President of the Association of Canadian Photographers.

ANOTHER CANADIAN OUTLET TO PORTLAND.

That the Canadian Pacific would find an outlet in Portland during the winter months was the effect of a Portland despatch, which is given below: "The Portland and Rumford Railway, of which Hugh Chisholm, of New York, president of the International Paper Company, is president, has purchased large tracts of shore property at East Deering and South Portland, on both sides of Portland Harbor, for terminal purposes. At South Portland steamship docks will be constructed, so that steamers bringing pulpwood, sulphur and supplies for the big pulp mills at Rumford Falls can unload directly on to the cars of the Rumford Falls line. It is believed here that as soon as the extension to the Canadian border, recently authorized, is built, and the Portland terminals established, a great deal of winter freight over the Canadian Pacific, from the North-West will find an outlet here."

Mr. C. M. Bosworth, fourth vice-president of the C. P. R., when seen to-day relative to the despatch, said: "The C.P.R. will continue to send its freight to Canadian ports as at present."

Duclos Case in Argument.

Argument in the habeas corpus case of Alex. Duclos was yesterday postponed until to-day at 10 a.m. Duclos was in court yesterday in charge of two guards of Longue Pointe Asylum. Dr. Georg. Villeneuve, superintendent of the asylum, was also present, while Mr. N. K. Laflamme represented the prisoner. Mr. D. A. Lafortune, K.C., as Crown prosecutor, represented the Attorney-General, and Mr. Gustave Lamothe, K.C., appeared for the sisters of the asylum.

Old Montrealer Passes Away.

Montreal lost an old citizen yesterday in the person of Mr. Geo. E. Phelps who for many years carried on an oyster and fish business on Victoria Square. The deceased, who was in his seventy-second year, was a native of Pittsfield, Mass. He retired from business three years ago, owing to ill health. His remains will be taken from his late residence, 22 Drummond street, to-night, and placed on the N. Y. Central train for Pittsfield.

Open Up Papineau Avenue.

At the last meeting of the Montreal South Council it was decided to open up Papineau avenue, from Josephine avenue to Washington avenue, across the Quebec Southern track. This will prove of great benefit to the residents on the upper end of Papineau avenue, who have had considerable difficulty in the spring and fall in getting to and from the depot.

A Heavy Box Fell on Him.

D. Demers, 32 years of age, of 529 William street, employed as a driver by the Shedden Forwarding Company, had his right leg fractured while he was unloading a heavy box at the Arena yesterday. Demers slipped and the box fell on him. He was taken to the Western Hospital.

TRIAL OF JUVENILE CRIME.

Bill in Senate to Provide Separate Courts for Children.

Ottawa, Ont., April 6—Mr. Scott, the Secretary of State, has introduced into the Senate a bill to authorize the establishment of juvenile courts. The bill goes on the principle that a child is a child even when it breaks the criminal law, and is to be treated as a child and not as an adult. Separate courts are to be provided for children and juvenile offenders are to be detained when necessary in "Detention" houses and not in jails. No child is to be sent to the penitentiary.

The bill will be advanced to its second reading, and then allowed to stand over for discussion.

Peculiar Incident at Church Service.

During the course of a mission service by the Capuchin Fathers at St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church at Kingstown, recently, a youth, who put his head through the communion rails and could not extricate it, alarmed the congregation by his cries. A priest called a doctor from the congregation, but he was unable to render assistance, and is was only when two crowbars were used to widen the rails that the boy's head was extricated. The boy, who was in a state of collapse, was removed to the hospital.

ST. MARY'S YOUNG MEN. — St. Mary's Catholic Young Men's Society entertained the dramatic section of the association to a dinner at the Lakeview Hotel, Lachine, Wednesday. The party consisted of about fifty of the "boys" who were conveyed to the point of destination by a special car. Arrived at the hotel dinner was served, after which several toasts were proposed, among others being those to the reverend clergymen present, Rev. Father Cullinan, chaplain of the Society; Rev. Father Peter Heffernan, instructor; and the Rev. Father Robert Callahan. At the conclusion of the toasts, songs, recitations, and step dances formed the order of the evening. An address was delivered by Mr. J. A. Heffernan, president of the Society, showing the organization to be in a first class condition, financially and otherwise. It is the intention of the society for the future to make the dinner an annual affair.

Copper Mad

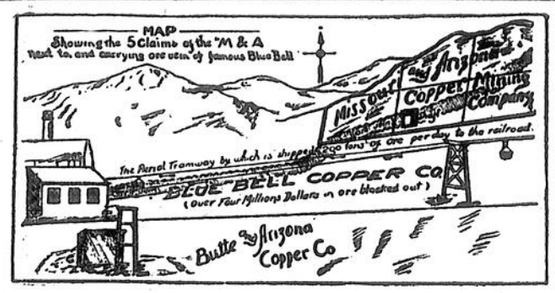

The world is copper mad. So universal has become the use of this metal that the demand exceeds the supply. It is not a question of price but, "we must have copper at any price" is the frantic cry.

An ownership of a copper mine means an income for your life and for your family after you are gone. You can buy stock for 10c per share in an extension of one of the biggest copper mines in Arizona.

The Blue Bell is second only to the United Verde in copper production in the county, and is producing 200 tons per day. Adjoining this famous mine is the Missouri and Arizona Copper Mining Company which has a shaft sunk to a depth that copper sulphides have been reached. The results of the development of this property are equal to those of the Blue Bell at the same depth. The investment offered you in the purchase of this company's stock is an opportunity which you will do well to investigate. Write the secretary of the company for full particulars, which will be mailed you free.

The mining engineer, who made a most thorough examination of this property, had entire charge for seven years of the development of the Blue Bell.

He is E. A. Haggott, E. M., of the well known Haggott, Girand, Smith Co. Consulting Engineers, Prescott, Arizona, a director in a bank and prominent citizen of that city; read the following extracts from his report on the property of the Missouri & Arizona Copper Mining Co.

EXTRACTS FROM ENGINEER HAGGOTT'S REPORT.

"The main vein of the Blue Bell extends into and through the M. & A. claims, as may be plainly seen by tracing it on the surface. * * * * * In the shaft on the M. & A. the sulphide ore began to appear at a depth of 36 feet. * * * * * The sulphide ore shows a value of .1 oz. gold; .14 oz. silver and 4 1-2 per cent copper per ton. * * * * * As pay ore was opened by me on the Blue Bell at a depth of 100 feet, the same condition will undoubtedly obtain on the M. & A. Group which carries the same vein."

Rapid and Successful Development.

Mr. Jas. B. Girand, Deputy U.S. Mineral Supryevor of Arizona, and probably the highest authority on mining matters in the Territory, has recently reported on this property. Following are a few brief extracts from this report:

"The ledge, as it outcrops in and around the shaft, varies in width from 20 to 60 feet. * * There can be no doubt whatever but that with the development the opening up of large ore bodies will prove an assured fact * * The location of the shaft is quite correct, since upon attaining the depth of 100 feet, the cross-cut which I have recommended will cut this zone within a very few feet * * The timber supply is plentiful and very cheap * *. The conditions for mining are far above the average."

MUCH DAMAGE DONE BY BIG TORNADO

Towns Devastated and Many Were Killed in Track of the Storm.

New Orleans, April 6.—A score of persons were killed by the tornado which swept for three hundred miles across portions of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. Parts of four towns were devastated, with damage exceeding $500,000.

The tornado began at Alexandria, Alabama, killing four persons and then spread to the Mississippi river, killing five persons at Jackson, La. At Bayou Sara, La., at least a half dozen others were killed. The tornado next appeared at Carson, Miss., where great damage to property was done, and disappeared near Selma, Ala., where the inhabitants saw whirling clouds rise into the air over the river.

The damage at Alexandria is estimated at $200,000.

At Jackson, La., the insane asylum was wrecked, with a loss of about $200,000. Three female inmates and many other persons were injured.

At Carson, Miss., the Mississippi Central Railroad depot was blown down; also a church, a school house, two business buildings and several cabins. Here the tornado's path was only two hundred yards wide.

SHOT DOWN WHOLE FAMILY.

Crazed by Financial Troubles Father Kills Wife and Children.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Berlin, April 6.—A family tragedy of a particularly distressing character has just been enacted at Dresden. In that city lived a man named Wilsdorf, who had been in the Royal service as chief forester. It had been known through the neighborhood that the family had got into pecuniary embarassment and had incurred heavy debts, but no one suspected the extent to which these circumstances had preyed upon their minds. The other morning as the milkman brought his can to the door of the flat he found that one which he had left the day previous had not been removed. He called the attention of the police to this fact and inasmuch as it was feared that all might not be well with the family inside, the police forced in the door.

It was then discovered that with the exception of the eldest daughter, who still manifested faint signs of life, the whole family had been shot dead. The corpses of the mother, three sons and two daughters lay on their beds, while that of Wilsdorf, whose hand still grasped a revolver, was extended on the sofa in his work room. Everything pointed to the tragedy having been carried out with the consent of the victims, excepting the eldest daughter, who had apparently engaged in a fierce struggle with her father.

FREDERICTON INCOME TAX.

Personal Assessment Placed on Level With Real Estate.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Fredericton, N.B., April 6.—Supply has all been passed and the supplementaries, which will be few in number, will be brought down early next week. There were two divisions in the House last evening, both of which were of vital interest to Fredericton. In one case the legislators decided that the crude sewage of the city must not enter St. John river and the other decision was that real estate and income in the province must be placed on a level basis for assessment purposes. The latter decision will affect only Fredericton, which is probably the only city in the world in which the income has been assessed at full value, while real estate has been assessed at only 1-5 its value. The taxation question was brought up on a resolution of Hon. George F. Hill, of Charlotte, and carried on vote of 31 to 4.

To Church on Toboggans.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Vienna, April 6.—Two enthusiastic tobogganists, Herr A. Mayer and Fraulein Schwarz, celebrated their wedding the other day in an original manner in their mountain home at Payrbach. Owing to the unusual length of the winter the streets were still deep with snow and the wedding procession slid down a steep hill from the residence of the bride to the church on seven toboggans decorated with pine branches and flowers.

Terribly Injured in Mine.

Fernie, B.C., April 6.—Archibald Nicholson was seriously injured in a mine in attempting to adjust the drum on one of the inclines. He failed to notice some descending cars, was struck by the trip, and terribly injured.

CANADA'S REVENUE STILL EXPANDING

Increase of Nearly Nine Millions Over Corresponding Period Last Year.

Ottawa, April 6. — The fiscal year ended on March 31st last; 1906-7, was a broken year, from July 1 to March 31, or only nine months, so that comparisons with former years are rather difficult. During the nine months, the total revenue was $65,814,457 as against $57,015,562 in the corresponding months of 1905-6, an increase of $8,798,895.

The revenue of 1905-6 was just about $80,000,000, the three months of April, May and June, adding about $23,000,000 to the revenue. If the ensuing three months barely equal last year's record, the revenue will work out at the rate of $90,000,000 a year.

The returns for March show revenue of $7,827,943, as against 37,255,187 in March, 1906; the increase being rather less than 8 per cent.

The expenditure shows an expansion; for the nine months it has been $41,858,739, as against $41,706,380, an increase of only about $150,000. The expenditure in March was less than that during March, 1906. Standing at $4,229,015 as against $4,543,672.

The principal items in the revenue were: Customs, $39,212,990. Excise, $11,630,879. Public Works and Railways, $6,794,632. Post office, $4,689,213.

The expenditure on capital account was $10,385,690, as against $9,146,337 in the corresponding period of 1905-6.

The net debt at the end of the financial year stood at $152,576,841, a decrease of $6,527,790 since March 31, 1906.

The Most Promising Property in Cobalt.

SPECIAL REPORT.

On the west side of the Strathcona is the Thompson Mine, from which ore is being sacked from a shaft between 40 and 50 feet deep. On the north side in the north-east quarter of the north half, on which a splendid strike of native silver was made, practically on the surface, on the 28th of February last, with the result that the value of this claim has been enhanced fourfold; on the east side is the Loeb lot, from which silver assaying 3,000 oz. to the ton has been taken, and practically all the remaining subdivisions of lots 10 and 11 have been withdrawn from sale. Fourteen veins have been disclosed on our property. Some of these veins are 4 1-2 inches wide. Moreover, the vein from which the Thompson Mine is sacking ore is leading directly into this property.

TWO ENGINEERS AGREE

Mr. John Black, Mining Engineer, of Cobalt, who has had over 25 years' experience, mining in Old Mexico and in the Western States, reports as follows: "In the property there is a contact of Diabase and Slate Rock which is considered in this part of the country one of the best indications. Some of the greatest finds in this camp have been made in this contact."

Mr. J. Hyland, a mining expert of many years' experience in South Africa and the States, says: "In No. 4 pit, there is seen a contact of the Diabase with the Conglomerate Rock. I attach considerable importance to this discovery, as it is on a similar contact that the very rich ore was found on the Green Meehan Mine, distant only 1 1-2 miles to the south-east; as also on the Red Rock Mine, south of the Green Meehan."

- THE - STRATHCONA.

Read the Engineers' Report above, also notice that two different engineers practically agree as to the value of this property. You cannot afford to miss such an opportunity. It is one of the best mining propositions that Cobalt has yet offered.

Besides the 40 acres situated in Bucke Township, The Strathcona Silver Mining Co. of Cobalt, Limited, owns 240 acres on Larder Lake, situated immediately on the Lake where the richest Gold finds have been made, adjoining the well-known locations owned by Dr. Roddick.

Moreover, the company has an exceedingly low capitalization for such rich properties. Shareholders are promised good dividends, so soon as the work of opening up the 14 Veins already disclosed is well under way. The Strathcona will be one of the biggest shippers in Bucke Township. The ore is there—14 veins of it—rich in silver; the price of the shares will quickly advance. Buy now! Send in your subscription now! The shares are 50 cents each (Par value $1.00). An early increase can be predicted with certainty.

A large part of this stock has already been sold, and subscriptions will be filled in order as received. Prospectus with Maps will be sent free on application. Address the Secretary:

DISAGREEMENT LOOKED FOR.

End of Thaw Trial May Be Reached by Thursday.

New York, April 6.—The trial of Harry K. Thaw will proceed on Monday, when Mr. Delmas will begin his summing up to the jury. District-Attorney Jerome may argue briefly against the confirmation of the report of the lunacy commission, which declared Thaw to be sane, but he is aware that Justice Fitzgerald's disposition is to confirm the report, which was unanimous. The District-Attorney has many witnesses still under subpoena, but it is said he has decided not to call them, and that he will press the trial forward to an early verdict, or what is regarded more likely, a disagreement of the jury.

On Monday the trial will enter its twelfth, and, it is confidently expressed, its final week. The long delays which have characterized the proceedings from the first have imposed upon the attorneys who are to sum up the extra task of making a resume of the testimony, so as to freshen the memory of the jury, who for two weeks have been out of touch of the trial.

It is thought that a verdict may be reached on Thursday.

MANY CHINESE HOMELESS.

Fire Swept Through Steveston Destroying Their Homes.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Vancouver, B.C., April 6.—The Chinese district of Steveston, the seat of the Fraser River canning industry, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning and five hundred Chinamen were rendered homeless. The fire started from a defective flue or stove pipe in a house near the river bank, at 3 o'clock. Many inhabitants barely escaped with their lives. Vancouver owners of the burned buildings estimated the loss at a high figure.

Better Than A Bountiful Harvest Will Soon be Reaped

During the past few months the Seed Sown "Development Work" in Canada's Eldorado will shortly produce bountiful results. Mr. Investor, have you placed yourself in a position to participate? IF NOT, WHY NOT. THERE IS TIME IF YOU ARE QUICK TO ACT. There is a big bounty coming, and it will keep on growing in size—PHENOMENALLY SO. It will cost you less to participate and your profits will be ENORMOUSLY GREATER if you follow the wise and purchase at to-day's low level prices than if you wait for the higher market about to prevail, and which promises to bring with it A MINING BOOM THAT WILL ECLIPSE ANYTHING KNOWN IN MINING HISTORY.

The settlement of the Lawson disputes, for which credit is given to one of our prominent fellow-townsmen, will now permit of the working of the famous Lawson Mine, which it is estimated will produce from ore within 20 feet of the surface TWENTY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS. The Lawson Mine is a marvellously rich one. You cannot remain a skeptic on Cobalt and its future after having once seen the famous Lawson veins, which is an example of what can be expected from the many other good properties in the vicinity.

IN COBALTS there will be thousands of dollars made in the future to every dollar that has been made in the past. We, the undersigned, are fully alive to the glorious possibilities of this startling camp, and have an efficient up-to-date staff devoting their attention to our clients' interests.

There is much to be gained in buying Cobalts through our firm. At all times we have an active market both ways, and we aim to satisfy our clients. Our wire connections leading to the principal American and Canadian markets places us in an excellent position to furnish latest official quotations and satisfactory execution of orders.

Should Prove a Fortune Builder

When you buy this stock you buy an interest in North Cobalt Hotel Company, North Cobalt Building Company, 600 Acres North Cobalt Townsite and 160 Acres Mining Claims in the Proven District.

Think of the possibilities, and you will see the attractiveness:

Cobalt Development

Is a stock which, at present low development price, possesses every attractive feature for large profits. The Company, amongst its valuable assets, owns five mining claims, having a total area of 160 acres, all of which have been examined by competent mining experts, who report each claim to possess well-defined veins. Some are in a direct line with veins running from the famous Tretheway. One property has four well-defined veins in close proximity to the Tretheway and property of the Nipissing, and only 60 chains east of the wonderful Timmins-La-rose mine, now valued at over ten million dollars. The claim known as No. 4 has 6 valuable veins, which are being actively developed. Surrounding this claim, wonderfully rich discoveries of silver have been made. We recommend Cobalt Development for three good reasons:—First, because the veins have been reported to be enormously rich, from which source alone great wealth should be produced. Second, because there is a further security attached to this Company's shares by the Company owning the town site of North Cobalt, 600 acres of the finest ground in Northern Ontario, in which lots have sold as high as $125.00 each. Third, for a remunerative investment with very great possibilities, Cobalt Development shares present a magnificent opportunity, as the stock has been introduced throughout the continent and is now being eagerly purchased. We fully expect to see this security commanding in the near future many times the present asked figure.

The Mining Claims of this Company are all most promising and well placed in a mining camp whose Mineral Wealth surpasses computation. The coming Cobalt Boom will carry prices to very high figures—and we believe that the present moment is the opportune time to buy Cobalts.

CANADIAN MARKET FOR CANADIAN FISH

Appropriation for Cold Storage and Lower Express Charges.

ST. HELEN'S ISLAND WHARF

Acting Minister of Public Works Would Not Promise Needed Improvement.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Ottawa, April 6.—A statement of the Federal Government's attitude in regard to the disputed jurisdiction with provinces over the control of the fisheries, was made yesterday in the House of Commons by the Minister of Finance, who is acting leader of the Government in the Lower Chamber.

The statement was made in the course of discussion on the fisheries estimates. Hon. William Templeman, Acting Minister of Marine, was putting the votes through, but Mr. Fielding found it necessary to interpose with considerably more frequency than is the custom of the Premier. This may be due somewhat to Mr. Fielding's greater readiness to come to the rescue of his colleague, somewhat to the fact that the estimates were being put through by an acting minister, and somewhat to the fact that Mr. Fielding is not only leader of the House but also Finance Minister and as such has a general responsibility for all estimates.

The latest decision of the courts had still left the subject in an uncertain condition, stated Mr. Fielding. It seemed reasonably clear, however, that the provinces had certain proprietary rights in inshore fisheries growing out of their ownership of soil, while the right of regulation belonged to the Dominion. The Federal authorities recognized the value of a common control and were desirous that the provinces should surrender their rights to the Dominion. The provinces, on the other hand, put a monetary value on their rights, such as the issue of licenses, and so far were not willing to surrender them unless for a financial consideration. Negotiations were still in progress, but he could not state when an announcement could be made as to an agreement.

In response to Mr. A. A. McLean, of Prince Edward Island, Mr. Templeman added that a stated case was now being discussed between the Dominion and the provinces with a view to clearing up doubtful points.

FOR TRANSPORTATION OF FISH.

A vote of $25,000 towards the encouragement of better transportation and conservation of fresh fish, roused vigorous opposition.

The acting Minister of Marine had no details to offer in explanation of the purpose of the vote. It was to aid by cold storage or other methods in the transportation of Maritime Province, or Great Lakes, or Pacific Coast fish, to markets within Canada. The details had, however, not been worked out.

Mr. Loggie, of Northumberland, N.B., suggested that the vote might be used in reducing express rates. Thus the disadvantage under which Maritime Province fishermen suffered owing to higher express rates from Halifax to Montreal and to Toronto than to those cities from New York and Boston might be overcome.

This suggestion met vigorous criticism from Hon. G. E. Foster. It was one of the strangest propositions any Government had ever presented to a House of Commons. The Government had the idea "we are the people, therefore we will get whatever we ask."

Mr. Fielding came to the rescue of Mr. Templeman. He admitted criticism might be directed against the lack of details, but he thought that as Hon. L. P. Brodeur was absent, the House should accept the explanation offered and trust to the Minister to work out the details.

If the Minister will assure us that no sum will be spent in reduction of express rates, said Mr. Foster, there will be no objection.

"I would not like to limit the Minister," replied Mr. Fielding, "the money will probably be spent for cold storage. But it might be that a payment might be made, as I believe has been done in the past, to the express companies in consideration of a reduction of rates."

Dr. Sproule came to the support of the Government in an unexpected way. Mr. Foster did not believe the Government had ever paid money for the direction of express rates or freight rates. It was in his view money thrown away. In this view Mr. Foster was supported by Hon. John Haggart.

Then came Dr. Sproule to the front. He understood that the Government had made payments to railways for reduction of freight rates. When there was not a full carload of produce for refrigerator cars, the Government had made up the difference to the company, so that the company charged shippers full carload rates instead of the higher rates for small parcels.

Mr. Haggart disputed this. What the Government had done was to pay the difference between the cost of refrigeration for the whole car and the cost for the section used.

"Well, it accomplished a reduction in freights," commented Mr. Fielding, and Dr. Sproule supported him.

Then a compromise was reached. Mr. Fielding gave assurances that the vote would be used "as nearly as may be" to do for the fishing industry what had been done for agricultural produce. "Then there is no objection to the vote" said Mr. Foster, and the vote was passed.

A vote of $25,000 for a re-organization of accounts of Marine Department gave Mr. David Henderson, (Halton), chance to join Dr. Sproule as an irregular supporter of the Government. Mr. Henderson's support had in it a distinct tone of criticism. The opposition to the vote had been based on the needlessness of the expenditure because the finance department should be able to do the work; Mr. Henderson supported the vote but he did so because he criticized the work of the Finance Department. In justification of his criticism Mr. Henderson cited some egregious errors in the published public accounts. For instance, in the accounts for 1904, the Nova Scotia expense account is given in one place at $15,000 and in another at $40,000 while the balance sheet for the same year shows an error of $10,000 on the credit side. Mr. Henderson therefore favored a thorough revision of government accounts. The vote was, however, held over in deference to criticism until a full account is rendered of the expenditure of $12,000, already made in connection with the work and report so far presented by the expert accountants who have been engaged to make the revision.

BENNETT SUGGESTS BANNER.

Finally the estimates of the Marine and Fisheries Department to the amount of over $5,000,000, were disposed of, after having given rise to a quip by Mr. W. H. Bennett, that the department should adopt a flag with this crest, "A Tree with Some Person Applying Grafts All Over, It." Mr. Bennett's suggestion was inspired by citations from the Auditor-General's account of luxuries provided for Government steamers, such as Stilton cheese at 50 cents per pound, and new potatoes at $4.50 per barrel.

CUSTOMS VOTES PASSED.

Hon. William Paterson next claimed the floor with the Customs estimates, which were quickly passed. Mr. Paterson announced that he had hopes of considerable increases in salary for the employes in the outside service throughout the Dominion. His desires, he feared, however, might not have the consent of his colleagues. The total vote for salaries is about $1,500,000, and the remnant of the departmental vote, about $300,000.

NO WHARF FOR ISLAND.

Some progress was made with the public works estimates before the House adjourned at 12.15. On the vote of $75,000 for Montreal harbor, lower division, Mr. Gervais strongly urged that a sum be provided for the construction of a permanent wharf on St. Helen's Island, Montreal. Mr. Gervais described this as a crying necessity in view of the thousands of people who visit the Island every week. Hon. Mr. Fisher, the acting minister, would not make any definite promise that a wharf would be construeted.

CAR SHORTAGE AND CIVIL SERVICE OCCUPIED SENATE

Ottawa, April 6.—The shortage of transportation facilities in the west was brought up by Senator Perley on Friday afternoon. He complained that so much capital was being spent on building new lines that not enough was left for the purchase of equipment, with the result that proper facilities were not afforded the farmers to get their grain to the market. They had in many cases, to leave their wheat in the granaries and borrow money from the banks on which they had to pay interest.

Hon. Mr. Scott said the Government had brought pressure on the railways to provide adequate motive power. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy wrote that in Canada and the United States locomotive works were loaded up with orders and a number could not be immediately obtained. Conditions were worse on United States railroads than on Canadian lines.

Senator McMullen confirmed this.

Senator Jones thought there was not much comfort for Canadians in this. He had been advised that cars of goods shipped for the west from his factory in Toronto had not yet reached North Bay. Railroads favored competing points. An instance of this was the case of some cars shipped on November 10th. They had been carried through to the point where competition ceased. This was only fifteen miles from the destination, but on March 3rd the cars were still there. Senator Jones thought it would be a good thing if the railways were compelled to devote themselves to the proper operation of the lines they had rather than to racing with other corporations for the construction of new lines.

A senate bill to amend Civil Service Act was taken up in committee and Hon. Mr. Scott explained that it was intended to do away with the necessity for a man to pass a civil service examination to qualify as a railway mail clerk. A postoffice examination would be substituted. The age at which examination could be taken would be reduced to 16 years. The minimum age for permanent appointment remains at 18 years. Hon. Mr. Scott said he had been informed by the Postmaster General that the change was needed because he could not obtain enough young men, who had or would pass the civil service examination to supply the post office with the number of mail clerks it requires.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell charged the Government with inconsistency in administering the civil service act and asked Senator McMullen what he thought about it.

Senator McMullen said he had sat in the Lower House for fourteen years and had been an industrious critic. He thought he was entitled to some rest though there remained plenty of points to criticize.

Hon. Mr. Scott said that the civil service act was full of inconsistencies and he hoped to have it revised by a commission before the end of next session.

LORD AYLMER'S RETIREMENT.

It is Said Colonel Otter Will Succeed Colonel Vidal.

Ottawa, April 6.—The statement that Lord Aylmer, Inspector-General, was retired because he had reached the age limit for officers is not founded on fact. There is no fixed rule governing the retirement of officers. The best evidence that this was not the real reason is the fact that Lt.-Col. Vidal is just one year Lord Aylmer's junior.

It is now asserted that Col. Otter is to be promoted to fill Col. Vidal's position and when Col. Vidal is retired a little later on will step into the post of Inspector-general. Then Col. Lessard will become adjutant-general.

Lord Aylmer's retirement is still causing much talk in militia and political circles, and members of the Opposition declare that if his compulsory retirement had been announced a few days earlier Sir Frederick Borden would not have been so successful in getting his estimates through the House before his departure.

Liberal members seem to feel as keenly over the retirement of Lord Aylmer as the Conservatives. One prominent member on the Liberal side wired the Minister yesterday to ask if the report of Lord Aylmer's compulsory retirement from the public service were true, and for what reason. The reply was "Yes, because he has reached the age limit."

GUIDED BY A DEAD MAN.

Pilot Dies in House While Crowded Ship Steams on.

Pittsburg, April 6.—George W. Conant was found dead in the pilot house of the packet Lorena, near East Liverpool, Ohio.

Without a guiding hand, the big packet, filled with passengers, who were peacefully sleeping, wandered through the dense fog, and was running at high speed into a rock-studded pool, when Capt. Richardson stopped the craft from running to destruction. Conant, exhausted his last bit of strength trying, vainly to reach the signal rope to the boat.

NOT PLEDGED TO ANNEX CUBA

Washington Opposed to Such Course Unless People Demand it.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Kingston, Jamaica, April 6.—Speaking of the annexation of Cuba to the United States, Speaker Cannon while here said: "Annexation is a word that irritates. Let us not use it. The United States is pledged not to annex Cuba, and the policy of the Government has always been opposed to annexation except in response to any appeal from people who desire to come under the protection of the American flag. We were compelled to take Puerto Rico and the Philippines by the fortunes of war, and to prevent them from becoming means of discord to other nations of the world.

"We annexed Texas and Hawaii at the request of the people who were the dominant force in these territories. We shall follow the same policy in regard to Cuba. Perhaps in the future that policy may apply to other islands here, forming a continuous chain from the coast of Florida to the South American continent."

TEMPLE OF BLACK ART.

Italian in House of Mystery Composes Metal for Coiners.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Rome, April 6—Lately the police have arrested many people in several towns of Italy for passing spurious silver coins. It having been discovered that the metal came from a certain Saverio Zaraffa, of Tunis, who lives in an elegant country house at Bagno Ripoli, near Florence, the police of that town searched his residence and found there a complete chemical laboratory, and next to it a large magnificent room hung with rich stuffs and turned into a temple of the "black art," furnished with triangles, church missals, white robes and chalices upon an altar. All this evidently served for a mysterious ceremony, but the owner refused to make any explanations.

He only stated that by mixing antimony with mercury he had succeeded in composing a new metal, similar to silver, which he put on the market, not knowing it might serve for forging coins. He has been arrested, but so cunningly has he conducted his operations, after throwing the shadow of religious mysticism around them, that the police despair of making a case.

HUGHES VICTOR IN UTILITIES FIGHT

Measure is Likely to Pass In Substantially Its Present Form.

Albany, N.Y., April 6.—That Governor Hughes' Public Utilities bill will be passed by the Legislature substantially in its present form is the belief here, with the series of hearings on the measure finished. Three important changes will be made to the bill, but they will not be the amendments that the public service corporations are most anxious to get. The three amendments that will be made are:—

Providing that the proposed Commissioners shall be removable by the Governor only after a trial and approval by the Senate.

Increasing the salary of the Commissioners from $10,000 to $17,500 a year.

Dividing the expense of the first or Metropolitan District Commission between New York city and the State, instead of putting all the expense on the city.

These are amendments the friends of the bill as well as the railroads have asked for. It is argued that a better class of men can be obtained if larger salaries are provided and tenure of office is guaranteed. It is believed all three amendments will be acceptable to Governor Hughes.

Unless there is a marvellous change in the situation not one of the important demands of the railroads and other public service corporations will be acceded to. No specific court review will be granted, and the carefully framed provisions as to rate and equipment regulation and the prohibition as to holding companies will stand as they are.

A FORTY-MILE OCEAN ROW.

Shipwrecked Crew of the Pandur. Displayed Staying Powers.

New York, April 6.—Somewhere on the Atlantic Ocean, southeast of Bermuda, there is floating on her beam-ends—if haply, the seas have not rended her apart—all that remains of the Swedish bark Pandur, whose hull was pounded open by the fierce northeast gale which swept the West Indies, for four days, beginning March 25.

After a gallant fight, Capt. Bengston, Mate John Jensen, and the crew of eight men and a dog, took advantage of the failing seas on Thursday, March 28, and lowered a lifeboat from the main rigging. By a long pull of twenty-four hours, over forty miles of salt water, the men finally made the coast of Bermuda, whence they journeyed to Hamilton and were shipped to this port, en route to Sweden, on board the steamship Bermudian, which arrived here to-day.

Even Better Than Frumenty

Old English Dish Is Now Surpassed by a Malted Grain Food.

Writing on the food problem and advocating a rational health diet, Dr. Josiah Oldfield, author of "The Claims of Common Life" and other well-known works, declares a sufficiency of grain food is necessary and refers to the old English dish of frumenty as a most excellent article of food. He also speaks of malted grain as a food for increasing years. This eminent author thus strikes the very keynote of health and strength.

There is a modern food which embraces all the qualities of frumenty and has even more, for it is malted grain. We refer to Malta-Vita—all pure grain and nothing else.

Malta-Vita is made by an extended and elaborated process of the old way of making frumenty. The whole wheat grain is thoroughly cleaned, then boiled in water and cooked in steam to gelatinize the starch. After the starch cells have broken down, the wheat is mixed with pure barley malt extract which converts the gelatinized starch into maltose, or malt sugar, highly nutritious and easily digested even by the weakest stomachs. Then each grain of wheat is rolled into little wafer flakes and goes to the great ovens where, under intense heat, it is baked crisp and brown, "done to a turn," and ready for your table.

All grocers sell Malta-Vita. 10 cents.

JAMAICA'S FORMER GOVERNOR COMING

Sir Alexander Swettenham Will Visit Canada During the Summer.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Kingston, Ja., April 6.—Canadians will shortly have an opportunity of seeing in the flesh Sir James Alexander Swettenham, the British Colonial Governor who snubbed Rear-Admiral Davis, when that admiral came to Kingston shortly after the disaster to render aid.

Sir James, who has resigned the Governorship of Jamaica on account of "old age," leaves this Island in June for England. From there he will go to Japan, and then across Canada by the C. P. R. He will be accompanied by Lady Swettenham, and will remain for some months.

GAME LAWS IN ONTARIO.

Legislature Discussed Amendments to Bill Fixing the Seasons.

Special to the Montreal Star.

Toronto, April 6.—The discussion of Hon. Dr. Reaume's bill respecting game, fur-bearing animals, and fisheries of Ontario, in committee of the whole occupied the members of the Legislature during the greater portion of the sitting. Only about one-half of the clauses were disposed of. One amendment to the clauses fixing the seasons for hunting deer, moose and caribou was inserted. Deer may be killed only between November 5 and November 20, south of the mainline of the Canadian Pacific Railway; moose and caribou may be killed between the same dates, and north of that line they may be hunted between October 20 and November 20. The bill originally proposed a clear month for all these animals.

There was considerable discussion over the clause prohibiting the use of automatic guns and four amendments to strike out the clause, or defer its enforcement, were voted down.

An amendment was made permitting lumbermen to carry guns.

Hon. Mr. Foy introduced a bill respecting the Butlers burying ground at Niagara-on-the-Lake. The measure empowers the Victoria Niagara Falls Park Commissioners to take possession of the resting place of the leader of the first organized military corps which existed in what is now Ontario, to keep it in a presentable condition, and to expropriate a 40-foot highway to give access to it. The cemetery contains the remains of Colonel Butler, of Butler's rangers, and many of his followers.

Relics of Historic Battle.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Quebec, April 6—A quantity of human bones have been discovered by the water works laborers in excavating on St. Augustin street. As no cemetery is known to have ever existed there, it is thought the remains, which were only two feet under the ground, were those of some of the killed in the battle of the Plains of Abraham, many of whom were interred on the day following the battle where they had fallen under the guns of the city.

SAMPLES OF CIVIC INEFFICIENCY

Who Is Responsible for Dilapitated Structures Which are An Eyesore and a Danger.

Citizens have for a long time past been asking themselves the question which City Attorney Ethier put to the Fire and Light Committee on Thursday with regard to the enforcement of the by-laws concerning buildings all over the city.

Whether the neglect to care for buildings in the course of erection or for those being repaired is due to laxity on the part of the building inspector, Mr. Clausse, or the inspectors of the Road Department is a question for the city authorities to settle. The fact remains, however, that all over the city buildings are in a dangerous condition, and that dangerous situations are created for the passers-by on account of the failure to enforce ordinary rules of safety.

One sample of the laxity prevailing in these matters was brought to the attention of the committee by the city attorney on Thursday in the case of Dr. Dubeau, who is building a house on Sherbrooke street outside the homologated line of the street.

This case, however, while it may make for irregularity in the street at least presents no danger to the passer-by. Those whose business carries them along St. James's street, near the corner of Inspector, are witnesses for days back of a case which presents a real danger not only for those going along the street, but for the people living in the building bearing the numbers 477 to 483 St. James's street.

The building is a three storey brick structure. The entrance at No. 477 leads to several flats occupied mainly by Italians, while that at 483 is labelled "Furnished Rooms with Board." In between the two are an Italian grocery, a shoemaker shop, and there was up to a few days ago a barber shop. The last-named has been moved, however, because the bricks over the cornice of the door have bulged out towards the street, and may at any time tumble right out. The only thing apparently which keeps the wall from going out is a heavy piece of timber which is stuck up from the sidewalk and upon this the cornice running over the entrances to the building rests. Huge cracks appear for some feet in the walls right over the entrance to the barber shop, and the bulging out was so pronounced that the glass over the door was broken.

Though this dilapidated structure is in danger of falling at any time, the grocery and shoemaker shop, with the families living in rear of them, still keep doing business, and people are going in and out all the time, while the residential parts upon the upper floors are occupied as usual.

Citizens who pass the spot have been wondering for some days whether the building inspector would take action to remove the eyesore and prevent the danger of a catastrophe by which several lives might be lost. Nothing seems to have been done, however, and the unsightly structure remains as a sample of civic inefficiency.

ROOSEVELT READY FOR FINISH FIGHT

Harriman Charges May be Excuse for Third Term.

THE FIRST GUN FOR 1908

Issue Rising Out of Harriman's Letter May Seriously Influence Next Presidential Contest.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Washington, April 6. — There is no sign of any abatement of the strife between President Roosevelt and his enemies led by Mr. E. H. Harriman. A conspiracy of corporations and rich men to defeat the Roosevelt policies by controlling both National conventions is openly charged by the President himself. He is convinced that Rockefeler, Harriman and Hearst are at the head of the movement and that the work of the conspirators is now confined chiefly to the States of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan and the Dakotas, but is to be extended to all the other States of the Union.

This is, in the Chief Executive's opinion, the motive behind the publication of the Harriman letter to Sydney Webster, on Tuesday, which caused all the trouble. That letter was the opening gun in an attack upon his policies, which he expects will continue until all the delegates to the nominating conventions of both parties have been chosen.

THE HARRIMAN CHARGES.

The substance of Mr. Harriman's charges was that President Roosevelt had appealed to him to raise a big campaign fund to help carry New York in 1904. Harriman also asserted that the President had promised him to appoint Senator Depew, ambassador to France and then failed to do it.

There are four subscribers to the fund, each of whom gave $50,000. They were E. H. Harriman, Hamilton McK. Twombly, J. Pierpont Morgan, William K. Vanderbilt.

The $200,000 was paid to Cornelius N. Bliss with the express understanding that if Chauncey M. Depew were not appointed ambasador to France he was to be returned to the United States Senate.

PRESIDENT DENIES CHARGES.

President Roosevelt, after denying that he had appealed to Harriman for financial aid and denounced Harriman as an enemy to the Republic and declared that he is worse than men like Debs, Moyer and Haywood. He pronounced Harriman's statements deliberate and wilful untruths. The reply was in the form of a letter, written in October 8, 1906, to Representative James S. Sherman, of New York, chairman of the republican congressional campaign committee, and contained the copies of letters passing between Roosevelt, Harriman and Secretary Loeb during the campaign of 1904 and subsequent to it.

It was also denied that he promised Harriman to appoint Senator Depew as American ambassador to France. This letter shows clearly that Harriman appealed to President Roosevelt to request Cortelyou to assist in bringing about the election of Higgins as governor of New York. It is shown that Harriman urged the President to appoint Depew, but that later Harriman deserted Depew and urged the appointment of James Hazen Hyde, of the Equitable Life Society. This letter placed Harriman in the rather unfavorable position of deserting Depew.

Harriman handed it back to the President by charging that he equivocated when he denied he had ever asked Harriman to raise a dollar for the presidential campaign of 1904. He alleged that it was the New York States committee to whose funds the president asked him to contribute, not the national committee.

SOME ROOSEVELTIAN STRATEGY.

By a stroke of political strategy Roosevelt seized upon the incident of the Harriman letter to fire the first big gun in the presidential campaign of 1908. He turned a bitter attack upon himself into an instrument for sounding the keynote of the next great struggle—"Rooseveltism against a Rich Men's Conspiracy." It needs no particular penetration to see in the talk which the President had at the White House Thursday with the newspapermen that he intends to take the aggressive in the coming battle. He furnished what many will consider effective ammunition for the Ohio campaign, for instance, where Taft, who represents the Roosevelt policies, is backed in political combat with Foraker, who, without question, stands for the opposite extreme.

He dropped all pretence, and indicated clearly that he would be a candidate for renomination. He said that a fund of five million dollars had been raised by Rockefeller, Harriman and Hearst to control the coming National conventions of both parties and to defeat his plans. He said his policies were to be fought in the next Congress. He did not discuss the $250,000 corruption fund and seemed to be anxious to distract attention from that phase of the scandal and direct discussion into other channels.

Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, is catalogued by the White House as the chief conspirator, and it is alleged that he accidentally gave Roosevelt the cue with which he learned of the plot.

SENATOR PENROSE DENIES.

Senator Penrose issued a denial. He said: "It is absolutely an untruth; I have never said any such thing. It is all untrue. I have always been a supporter of and believer in President Roosevelt's administration and all its policies."

The Senator was asked: "Have you ever heard of a $5,000,000 fund to prevent President Roosevelt naming his successor?"

"No, absolutely not."

"Have you ever heard of the combination termed the 'rich men's conspiracy' to thwart the President in the development of his policies?"

"No, I have never heard of any such combination and have no knowledge of it."

Secretary Loeb declared that no names were mentioned at the White House when reference was made to some public men who had been present at a dinner and had told the story of the alleged combination to accomplish the defeat of the President's policies in the coming Presidential campaign. Secretary Loeb emphasized the belief that the publicity which had been made on the intrigues against the interests of the President would "nip the whole scheme in the bud" before the campaign of 1908 is fully on.

It takes 8 days to make perfect malt by the famous Pabst process. Perfect malt means rich, nourishing, wholesome Beer—Pabst Blue Ribbon.

Peasants Showed Desperate Valor.

Bucharest, April 6.—The determined bravery of the insurgent peasantry in some of the recent fighting is illustrated by a story of the battle of Balanesti, near Craiva, published in a local newspaper.

The insurgents, who numbered ten thousand, armed with guns, axes, knives and scythes, accompanied by their wives and children, made a desperate attack on a body of Roumanian infantry and artillery. The latter opened fire, killing large numbers of the peasants, who, after an unequal combat, retreated to a village, carrying their dead and dying.

Military Dance in Cobourg.

Cobourg, April 6.—A military ball was given in the armory by the president and members of the Sergeants' Club. The dance room was beautifully decorated. There was a display of rifles used in the Boer War, and interest was also shown in the fact that some of the decorations used were first displayed when King Edward, then Prince of Wales, visited Cobourg. The officers' quarters were thrown open to the visitors. The dance was a great success and was well attended.

Our Model Incubators and Brooders are the only PANACEA for failure—past present and future. Just take a few minutes and read the following one of many hundreds of unsolicited testimonials from our customers:

Masonville P. O., Ontario.

Dear Sir,—

After trying an incubator for two years and spoiling eight hatches of eggs, I threw the incubator away in disgust, never meaning to try again, knowing that it was not the fault of the eggs, as I "Incubation and Its Natural Laws," after which I "Tread Chas. A. Cyphers' book, "Incubator and Brooder," and followed it out to the letter. I ordered a Model, which I had to work under trying conditions. First, I only had eggs from pullets mated with cockerels, mated up only five days before I set in cubator. Second, the location in a room that varied from 65 to 28; for two days and nights the temperature was at 30 to 32, and your Model only lost one half degree—from 103 to 102½. The results are just grand. Out of 71 eggs I got 65 of the strongest chicks I ever saw. All came out on the 20th day, within five hours of each other. Two of the eggs I broke. The other four must have died about the 16th day (weak germ). They are now all safe in a Model Colony Brooder, and all 65 as healthy and well as though it were summer. Temperature inside brooder steady night and day at 90. Outside blowing and snowing as hard as it can.

Send for our catalogue and get the same treatment and results Mr. Crump has got. Manufactured by

A rebellion in China, as a rule, is a comparatively harmless affair. The people inform the Governor that his exactions are in excess of custom and that he must reduce them. If he agrees the matter ends. If not, there is a demonstration and perhaps some shooting, but this is only preliminary to a compromise, for the Peking Government never backs up its officials when force has to be resorted to, and the people have far too much respect for authority to push any successes to extremes.—London Times.

A collection of orchids from Chilling ham Castle, one of the seats of the Earl of Tankerville in Northumberland, was sold by Messrs. Protheroe and Morris at auction yesterday. A plant of the Odontoglossum Crispum Leonard Perfect was sold for £735. Two of the Crispum Mabel Whately variety fell at £210 and £189 respectively. Among other prices were £231 for a Cattleya Warneri alba, £165 each for an Odontoglossum Crispum Tankerville and an Odontoglossum ardentissimum and £147 for a Crispum brilliantissimum. — London Times.

Toronto Fencers for States.

Toronto, April 6.—The Fencing Club, of Toronto University, champions of Ontario, are sending a fencing team to Ithaca to meet Cornell, the inter-collegiate champions of the United States. The team, which leaves to-night, is as follows: J. A. D. McCurdy, R. B. Beverley, A. R. Goulding, L. P. Sherwood, and L. W. Klingner. Instructor Williams also will go. The contest will take place to-morrow night.

Donlin Has Quit.

Chicago, April 6.—Mike Donlin, the crack centre fielder of the New York National League team, has quit baseball. He has accepted a position with the Whitney Theatrical Company, in which his wife, Mabel Hite, is a member. Donlin entered upon his new duties last night, and stated that he did not believe he would ever be seen again in professional baseball.

NOVICE BOWLER MAKES BIG SCORE

Special to The Montreal Star.

Toronto, April 6.—The surprise of the day at the international bowling tournament Thursday was the high rolling of Ben Humphrey, of this city, who is in the novice class. Humphrey rolled the high score of 570, which is to date the highest individual score.

In the open event, Bowsher, of Galt, a southpaw, and Dan Koster, of Erie, one of the best bowlers in the States, are high, with 568. Dan Meyers, of Detroit, is next with 559.

In the doubles O'Connell and Nimmo, of Detroit, are still leading, with 1,117, and Kerr and Widdes, Detroit, second, with 1,103. Boyd and Frost, of Peterboro, put in a total of 1,087 yesterday afternoon, and are third on the list. Joe Lee and Geo. Doran, of this city, are fourth with 1,082.

In the five-man events last night, A Company, Q.O.R., put in a total of 2,502, and are pretty well bunched up with the leaders.

Prof. Gaetano Lanza, head of the mechanical department of the Boston School of Technology, has been knighted by King Victor Emmanuel III. of Italy. Professor Lanza was born in Boston in 1848, was appointed instructor in the Institute of Technology in 1872, became professor of the engineering department in 1885 and is widely known as an author.

NOT TROUBLED OVER OLYMPIC GAMES

There is not much alarm felt here over the supposed decision announced by President Stark, of the C. A. A. U., to the effect that none of the members of the Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada will be permitted to compete in the Olympic games.

The general feeling here is that the present officers of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union, even with the Y. M. C. A. at their back, will not be able to sway the people who will have a say over the management of Olympic affairs.

Captain Victor Buchanan, of the Athletic Federation, says:

"The question of the Olympic games has not yet come up. When it does, I have no fear that any of our members who care to compete will be barred. President Stark may be assured that the Federation is very much alive, both in fact, and in regard to the interests of its members, no matter whether they are competing in Canada or in England."

India will eventually control the Oriental coal markets. At present Japan is her only competitor, but Japan's coal area is only 6,000 square miles, with an annual output of 10,000,000 tons. India's present output is not so much, but her possibilities as a coal producer are far greater than Japan's, even including the Fushun mines in Manchuria.

CARPETS.

Furnishing your rooms with carpets means more than covering the floors. Many ladies actually cannot sit in a room if the color tones are out of harmony, hence the advisability of consulting such expert carpet men as those at the dry goods store of Messrs. Jas. A. Ogilvy & Sons, St. Catherine street west, corner of Mountain street. Their announcement on page 5 of this issue of the Star gives much information of interest.

TURNED OUT GAS, IS HARTHAN'S STATEMENT.

The McGill student, Hans Harthon, who was found unconscious in his boarding house last Monday evening, left the hospital yesterday afternoon. He is at present the guest of Prof. Armstrong, Westmount Avenue.

Mr. Harthon states that after studying in his room until a late hour Monday night, his eyes became fatigued, so he turned off the gas at the student's lamp, which was attached by a tube to a jet on a chandelier. He then lay down, and remembered nothing until he awoke in the hospital on Thursday. His statement agrees with that of his landlady concerning the defective condition of the tube, attached to the student's lamp. He is not aware that he was suspected of attempted suicide. His parents were made aware of the accident on Tuesday and have since been kept posted by his friends concerning his condition.

HAMLET LAURIER—"This bodes some strange eruption to our state!"

EXAM. PAPERS WERE SAFE FROM FIRE

McGill Science Examinations Will Continue as Before—Cause of Fire Still a Mystery.

The Faculty of Applied Science of McGill University held a meeting yesterday afternoon to discuss the situation brought about by the disastrous fire to the Macdonald Engineering building. It was reported that the examination papers, which it was supposed had been lost with the rest of the building, were not all in the Dean's office at the time of the fire, some having been transferred to the secretary's office in the Arts Building. The results of the exams in first year descriptive geometry and mechanical drawing, on which subjects the students wrote on the day before the fire, were lost. The other papers are said to be safe and examinations will continue in accordance with the rules laid down by the college curriculum.

The cause of the fire is as yet a mystery, and it is doubtful if it will ever be known. Professors of the university were loth to express an opinion yesterday, and in fact any opinion would be little more than a guess, for by the time the fire was discovered it was so far under way that nobody could very well determine what started it.

It was stated yesterday that the work of the faculty would in no way be impeded by the fire. All arrangements necessary for carrying on the work of the summer school would easily be made, and although the practical work would have to be curtailed to some extent, it was hoped by the opening of the next session in the autumn to have a new building in which to do the work. For the present lectures will probably be held in the Normal School on Belmont street, and in the Arts Building.

DR. DRUMMOND IN SERIOUS CONDITION

From a despatch received late this morning, grave fears are entertained for Dr. Drummond. The despatch states that his condition is very grave, indeed, and that he is at present very low.

No Loitering in Post Office.

The following notice has been issued by Mr. H. S. Harwood, postmaster at Montreal:

"As within the past few days a boy sent by his employers to their P. O. box in the Montreal Post Office has been detected, during the time he was apparently waiting for the mails, tampering with other boxes, the postmaster desires to make it known to the public, and especially to the holders of P. O. boxes, that any loitering about the lobby on the part of these boys will not be permitted in future, and that the constables on duty have instructions not to allow the same.

"In cases of mails being late in arriving, these boys will, after visiting their boxes, be required to leave the lobby and return later for such mails.

"It would be in the interest of the public, therefore, if the holders of P.O. boxes would give their message boys instructions accordingly, as the constables on duty have instructions in cases where necessary, to arrest any boys caught loitering, after having had their attention drawn to the fact that they are not to do so."

The Biter Bitten.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star.

Sir,—Referring to the recent campaign of the Star against the Shylock fraternity, the following extract from Truth (England), may not be uninteresting reading, if you have not already seen it:

"Matilda Bernstein, a female Shylock, plying her nefarious business in Birmingham and Shrewsbury, found a Daniel come to judgment at the Shrewsbury County Court last week. A bricklayer was sued by Matilda for £12 10s, the balance due on a promissory note. Seeing that the defendant had already been fleeced in a most outrageous manner, Judge Harris Lea decided to revise the terms of the transaction, under the provisions of the Moneylenders' Act. He directed that an account should be taken on the basis of allowing the plaintiff interest at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum on the amount that she had actually advanced. It was ascertained that on this basis Matilda, instead of receiving £12 10s, would have to repay £4 14s to the bricklayer, and His Honor made an order accordingly. An excellent example of the biter being bit!"

If justice of that kind could be dealt out in Canada, there would be little business for the loan sharks.

DRUNKEN ROW HAS A TRAGIC SEQUEL

Dead Body of Man Found in Shack With Wound in His Head.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Edmonton, Alberta, April 6.—Murder, as the result of a drunken row, was discovered when Geo. Wood, a carpenter, being missed from his usual haunts, a search was begun, which resulted in the finding of his body in a shack, where he and two chums, Dick Hood and John Peacock, had "bached" together for some time. There was a pool of blood on the floor and a wound at the back of the dead man's head. A small axe was lying under the bed and another was standing behind the door. It was evident that a struggle had occurred, as the body had been dragged across the floor.

The men who were associated with Wood were all promptly gathered in by the police, but all were too drunk to tell an intelligible story. They are John Pepper, John Peacock and Hood. Pepper, however, told a story which indicated that there had been a fight.

Another man, Albert Jones, volunteered information to the police that he had seen Hood strike the fatal blow, hitting Wood on the back of the head with a bottle, at the same time exclaiming, "You beat this afternoon, but I will do you now."

Pipe-Smoking.

To the Editor of the Montreal Star:

Sir,—One does not have to read the newspapers to note the large and growing influx of Old Country immigrants to our city. It is patent to the most unobservant, for, as we walk along the streets, our ears are incessantly assailed by accents, which certainly had their birth within sound of Bow Bells or by the banks of the Clyde or the Liffey. Unfortunately it is not only the accent which betrays the birthplace of many of our British friends, for they have brought with them and practice a custom which is all but taboo to Canadians. I refer to the habit of smoking pipes on the street. Note any afternoon when St. Catherine street is crowded with women shoppers, and you will observe many of the other sex wending their way through the immense crowds calmly puffing away, the smoke being blown in the faces of many who have decided objections to it. Alone, or in company with a male friend, the habit does not appear so offensive, but what shall I say when a lady is of the party? In such a case I hold that it is, to say the least, discourteous to the fair one, for surely she is worthy of his undivided attention. I know that it is an Old Country custom, even among the "better" class, but we would have our good friends know that, even we benighted "colonials" esteem it unchivalrous to slight a lady in this manner. By observing the old adage about doing in Rome as the Romans do, they will rise in the estimation of the Canadian girls. Let me explain that I am a votary of the weed, but "there is a time for everything under the sun."

STRIVING FOR ENGLAND.

Canada and Australia Need Willing British Workers.

Special to The Montreal Star.

London, April 6.—A keen struggle is going on between Canada and Australia for the British emigrants who leave these shores every year. Both Colonies proclaim their need of men, and their agents are equally alert in endeavoring to paint the prospects of their respective lands in the most favorable light.

Mr. Walker, chief of the Canadian Emigration Office, is the authority for the statement that the construction of the New Grand Trunk Railway, which is to stretch across the continent, and will be 4,000 miles in length, will take at least seven years to complete. Sixty thousand men will be wanted as soon as they can be had," he said. "But they must be resolute workers. An idle man who fails here will fail in Canada if he is idle."

The Federal Government of Australia is equally anxious to secure workers, but they must understand something of ground cultivation. Some States—notably Western Australia—assist intending emigrants to such an extent that the passage money comes to only $30 or $35.

About two years ago Mrs. Close propounded a scheme to the various boards of guardians in the Metropolis for the bringing up of work-house children in the country districts of Canada. No practical steps were taken, however, by any board of guardians to put it into operation. Mrs. Close, therefore, decided to make an experiment with 10 children at her own expense. She visited Canada and obtained a model farm at Nauwigewauk, N.B., and last June 8 boys and 2 girls, ranging in age from 10 to 14, left England. They were in charge of a lady who now writes glowingly to Mrs. Close of their progress, and Mrs. Close is satisfied that her scheme is a pronounced success.

GROW COTTON IN COLONIES.

Sir Alfred Jones Dislikes Dependency on United States.

Special to The Montreal Star.

London, April 6.—The British East African Corporation gave a complimentary dinner recently at the Hotel Cecil to Colonel Hayes-Sadler, C.B., His Majesty's Commissioner in British East Africa. Sir Ralph Moore, chairman of the corporation, presided.

Mr. Hamar Greenwood, M.P., in the absence of Mr. Winston Churchill proposed, "The Trade and Development of British East Africa." He said that one fourth of the people of that country depended for their living on cotton, and that instead of "give us this day our daily bread," they would soon have to pray "give us cotton," because if there were no cotton there would be no bread. The great British Cotton Growing Association was doing more good than all the speeches in the House of Commons in drawing the Colonies closer to the Mother Country.

He believed there was a growing feeling in the House of Commons and the country that one of the first functions of any governor was to develop the trade of the Protectorate.

Sir Alfred L. Jones, in responding to the toast of "The British Cotton Growing Association," which was given by Mr. H. E. Miller, said, if Lancashire could not get cotton except from America she would become bankrupt. He believed we should get cotton under the British flag and he did not hesitate to say at a price which would enable us to supply America.

At a big luncheon Beerbohm Tree sat next to the Dean of Manchester. Said a guest: "Well, Mr. Tree, what have you been doing to-day?" "Oh," replied the actor-manager, "I went for a long motor ride this morning and I lost a bet." "Indeed!" remarked the dean. "May I ask what the bet was?" "Certainly," said Mr. Tree. "I made a bet that we should pass through 400 different odors and we only encountered 399." "Ah," was the quick reply, "you missed the odor of sanctity."

KEEN RIVALRY FOR TRAFFIC.

Cunard and White Star Lines to Follow German Example.

Special to The Montreal Star.

Berlin, April 6.—One of the most remarkable shipping organizations in the world has just celebrated its jubilee. It was just fifty years ago that the Norddeutscher Lloyd Company was formed in Bremen and its anniversary occurs, curiously enough on the eve of a fresh and most interesting development in the keen rivalry for the Atlantic traffic. This great German corporation was the first to order its New York liners, outward and homeward bound, to call at Cherbourg. Another innovation was marked by the institution of a service from New York to the Mediterranean. These decisions enabled the Norddeutscher Lloyd vessels, apart from the advantage they gained by making Bremen their headquarters, to "tap," very effectively Northern and Central Europe and at the same time Americans were about to visit Paris or the South of France they were given the choice of a convenient Continental port, while by putting into Southampton the German boats served also the British Isles. This effort to centralize Transatlantic traffic in Europe was an entirely new idea, and its success is attested by the announcement that the White Star is about to make Southampton instead of Liverpool the headquarters of their express steamers. It is believed here that the Cunard Company will adopt the same course. In any case the travelling public stands to gain by this increased competition in ocean communication—this centralization of express services—between the Old World and the New since travellers from all parts of Europe and from the American continent will have greater freedom of choice in making their arrangements.
