MILITARY HEADS SPEEDING PARLEYS

Single Point Now Prevents Triple Pact

Definition of Indirect Aggression Sole Snag Standing in Way of Mutual Defense Pact Between Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia—Representatives of Military Missions on Way to Russia.

London, Aug. 5.—(P)—Great Britain and France sent their military missions off to Moscow today to talk strategy with Soviet army and navy leaders in conferences designed to speed conclusion of a British-French-Russian pact.

Official circles were optimistic for ultimate conclusion of a mutual aid accord which they regard as essential to solidify the Anglo-French front.

Sailing today in the liner City of Exeter, the two missions are to arrive Wednesday at Leningrad. Official circles studied the latest report from Ambassador Sir William Seeds on the Moscow talks—still snagged as far as conclusion of a pact is concerned on a definition of "indirect aggression."

RUSSIAN JAPANESE WAR CLAIMED NEAR

Paris, Aug. 5.—(C.P.—Havas)—Genevieve Tabouis, foreign affairs commentator for L'Ouvre (Radical-Socialist), reported today that Chancellor Hitler had been advised by his Ambassador at Tokyo that Japan plans to go to war against Soviet Russia within the next five or six weeks.

The information was contained in a note addressed to the Fuehrer Wednesday by Maj-General Eugene Ott, the German envoy, according to Mme. Tabouis.

"The note says further that since Tuesday Japan has been mobilizing its reservists and is proceeding to ship the necessary munitions to the Manchoukou—Russian border," she wrote.

TRINIDAD'S OUTPUT OF SUGAR DECLINES

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Aug. 5.—(P)—Trinidad's total sugar production for the season just ended was fixed at 128,455 tons compared with 133,551 tons in the previous season.

Officials of the Sugar Manufacturers' Association attributed the drop mainly to a decrease in mill deliveries. Farmers were unable to make the deliveries because poor methods of cultivation were unable to cope with difficult weather conditions and excessive rains.

The colony left 17,000 tons short of its export quota but prospects for this year point to the next season as a favorable one.

Tiny St. Lawrence Village Prepared To Receive Trans-Atlantic Planes

Boucherville, Que., Aug. 5.—(P)—The Imperial Airways clipper plane Caribou will shatter the rural quiet of the St. Lawrence valley here tomorrow as it thunders to a landing on the St. Lawrence river after the first scheduled air mail flight from England to Canada.

The arrival of the clipper will officially put this South Shore town ten miles below Montreal on the map as a major link in the Empire air route around the world.

The plane, in command of Captain I. C. Kelly Rogers and with a crew of four, is expected about three p.m. E.D.T. from Botwood, Nfld. It will unload some mail and continue on to Port Washington, N.Y., after refueling.

Air officials here believe the Caribou will carry half a ton of mail in the form of 25,000 letters on the first of what is planned to be weekly trips during the next two months.

MINING ISSUES ASSUMED LEAD ON EXCHANGES

Development News from Junior Gold Shares Featured Trading on Canadian Exchanges During Week.

By Alex Pringle (Canadian Press Financial Writer) Toronto, Aug. 5.—(P)—Development news from the mines started a wave of buying in the junior Canadian gold stocks in the last week and some of them registered wide gains. Pick-up in the action resulted in the heaviest share turnover the Toronto market has seen since the second week of March. Pivotal issues lagged, however, and the indices are down narrowly for the week.

A few of the medium-price gold and base metal stocks trailed the junior pace-makers for a time but they wilted under profit-taking and the influence of New York's hesitating performance. Kerr-Addison's repeated storming of the $2 mark finally succeeded and it reached a new high for the year at $2.14 only to tumble under the inevitable profit-taking. It fell back yesterday to $1.99 to stand unchanged for the week. East Malartic, Chesherville, San Antonio and Aunor were other secondary issues to venture forward with the juniors and fail to hold.

Francour was the spectacular performer of the Toronto list. It moved up from twenty-three cents to 63½ while trading 50,000 shares or more daily. God's Lake, Bankfield, Naybob, Stadacona, Towamag and Madsen were other active shares.

NUFFIELD GIFT NOT WANTED IN JAMAICA

Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 5.—(P)—An iron lung, one of Lord Nuffield's gifts to hospitals in the British Empire, has been left here in its original packing case because officials of the Jamaica Medical Department refuse to unpack it. They contend the apparatus will never be needed in Jamaica.

Other colonial hospitals in the West Indies received their iron lungs with expressions of thanks and in some cases, ceremonies were held in connection with the handing over of the respirators to the various medical departments. Presence of the iron lung in Jamaica was not known to the public until after inquiries were made.

ITALY TACKLES "PIEDMONT PROBLEM"

With 50,000 soldiers massed in region of Bolzano and Trentino, Italy is holding army manoeuvres, in which German troops, now concentrated on frontier near Brenner Pass, may join. Problem is development of defense against possible French invasion of Piedmont province, shaded on above map. Piedmont is rich agricultural section, its capital, Turin, is key Italian industrial center. At least four trans-Alpine highways from France converge on Turin. If France were to attack Italy via these routes, attacking forces would draw closer together with each advance; if Italy were to attack France, each advance would take invaders farther apart.

LARGE SUPPLY OF EXPLOSIVES FOUND AT DAM

Four Cases of Dynamite and Three Dynamite Bombs Found Near Site of $4,000,000 Colorado Project.

Green Mountain Dam, Colo., Aug. 5.—(P)—Four cases of dynamite and three dynamite bombs were found near the $4,000,000 Green Mountain dam site, where workers were back on the job today under the protection of Colorado National Guardsmen.

"We have no idea to whom they belonged," said Major William Hunn, Guard commander. He said the dynamite was found last night in an abandoned shanty, and the bombs—bundles of dynamite sticks with fuses attached—at other points.

The Guardsmen, called by Governor Nunn, put down "a state of insurrection and rebellion" resulting from labor strife, previously took about three hundred firearms from persons in this area. The Guard took control Wednesday, the day after armed clashes in which seven men were wounded.

MODERNISTIC WORK FOR 'FRISCO FAIR

San Francisco, August 5.—(P)—Those red faces in the vicinity of the Fine Arts Palace at the Golden Gate International Exposition aren't from sunburn. After considerable study by the art and sculpture experts, Naum Gabo's little lucite carving was placed in the palace and a picture sent to Gabo in London. Came a cablegram:

"The sculpture was removed to the director's office 'until we learn just how it should be set up.'"

Belgian Embassy Damaged In Series Of Japanese Moonlight Air Attacks

Chungking, China, Aug. 5.—(P)—The Belgian embassy was badly damaged early today in the fourth Japanese moonlight air raid within the week on this temporary Chinese capital.

Bombs fell in residential areas but no foreigners were known to have been injured. The French and German consulates were damaged by Japanese bombs yesterday.

(Reports in Hong Kong indicated an intensification of Japanese air attacks on Chinese cities. Nine cities in three southern provinces—Hunan, Kiangsi and Kwangsi—were reported raided yesterday. Chinese officials said Kwelin, an important South China political and military center, suffered heavy property damage.)

U. S. CITIZENS TO FLEE KAIFENG

Shanghai, Aug. 5.—(P)—United States citizens are preparing for hurried flight from Kaifeng because of Japanese anti-American pressure there, it was reported today. Britons and Canadians already have left the North Central China missionary center.

United States officials were unable to learn details of the situation in Kaifeng because telegraph communications were broken. But available reports said the Americans were arranging to flee immediately.

SEARCH LEADS TO DISCOVERY OF BOY'S BODY

Seventeen-Year-Old Son of St. Evariste Farmer Drowned when Thrown into Brook from Bicycle.

St. Evariste, Que., Aug. 5.—(P)—A solo, all-night search along the slippery banks of a rain-swollen brook ended for Leopold Bureau shortly after dawn yesterday when he came across the body of his seventeen-year-old son, Albert, who disappeared while returning from a fishing trip.

Albert went fishing in Lake Francois, not far from this Beauce County town and on the return trip was believed to have been thrown into the brook when his bicycle stuck in a hole in the flooring of a bridge.

Worried over the failure of his son to return home last night, the father started a search and came across Albert's line, its front wheel jammed in the bridge's broken flooring.

Bureau spent the night plodding along the bank and scanning the muddy waters until he found the boy's body washed up on a farmer's property some distance below the bridge.

SHORTAGE REPORTED

Moncton, N.B., August 5.—(P)—A shortage of maple products in this province, due to an exceptionally short season, was reported at the annual meeting of the New Brunswick Maple Sugar Producers' Association. Figures for last year showed an increase in export of the products to the United States.

UNITED STATES RENEWS SOVIET TRADE TREATY

Russia Agrees to Buy Minimum of $40,000,000 of United States Goods Within Next Twelve Months.

Washington, Aug. 5.—(P)—The United States and Russia have extended for twelve months, effective tomorrow, an agreement under which Russia will buy at least $40,000,000 worth of American goods. The United States will accord Russia the same tariff reductions as countries with which it has trade agreements.

Russia agreed to restrict coal shipments to the United States to 400,000 tons.

Officials predicted Soviet purchases actually would total far more than the $40,000,000 minimum. In eleven months of the 1938-1939 agreement, they aggregated $58,700,000.

American imports from Russia amounted to $27,000,000 in 1937. United States exports to Russia consist largely of machinery. Imports are principally furs, flax fabrics and non-metallic minerals.

UNUSUAL CALL

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 5.—(P)—Taxi Driver Harold Holmberg has had some queer fares, but he was taken back when called to a fashionable home here to take a dog for a ride. The dog's owner banded Holmberg a dollar and told him to take Rover for a spin—and buy him an ice cream cone to enjoy during the ride.

Majority Of Empire Colonial Residents Lack Proper Food

British Government Committee Submits Lengthy List of Suggestions for Eliminating Malnutrition Among Workers in Colonial Possessions—Lack of Milk Apparent in Many Colonial Territories.

(By Fred Backhouse, Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 5.—(P)—The great majority of the 55,000,000 people in the British Colonial Empire are suffering from semi-starvation, says the report of the Government Committee of Nutrition in the Colonies.

Inside the formal blue covers of the official publication is unfolded a dismal story of hunger and disease.

The committee, headed by Earl de la Warr, President of the Board of Education, began work in April, 1936, and has considered material drawn from forty-eight different territories covering 2,000,000 square miles.

Says the report: "In almost every part of the Colonial Empire the income of a very large proportion of the population is a long way below the minimum required for satisfactory nutrition."

"This must result not only in the prevalence of specific deficiency diseases but in a great deal of ill-health, lowered resistance to other diseases, and a general impairment of well-being and efficiency."

Publication of the report has been followed by an outbreak of biting editorials even in Government-supporting newspapers. Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald did not have to face a full-dress debate on the report before yesterday's adjournment of Parliament but when the House resumes in the fall such a debate is expected.

Warning Mr. Chamberlain that unless he acted on the report he and his Government will lose valuable support in the coming general election, Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard said:

"We have made our Empire a slum. It is the blackest charge which can be levelled against ministers at Westminster."

Heading its editorial "Imperial Slums," the Liberal News Chronicle described the report as a shocking picture of the neglect of a great Imperial heritage and cried for a reconsideration of the whole economic position of the distressed territories.

The committee says malnutrition will never be cured until the peoples of the Colonial Empire command far greater resources than they do at present.

In a reference to paid labor, the report accuses some firms working in the colonies of adopting towards their employees an attitude two hundred years behind the times.

"We consider that governments should themselves lead the way by providing a well-balanced diet for their laborers."

The West Indies case is particularly cited. While there is "a steady and continuous increase" in development in many parts of the Empire, there is the problem, such as in the West Indies, of "an increasing population without any obvious prospect of an increase in wealth."

Quebec, August 5.—(P)—An announcement was made yesterday from the office of Premier Maurice Duplessis that the Quebec Government has acquired all rights on the Nedelee Indian Reserve in Temiskaming, near Angliers on the Ontario border, and the land will be opened to settlers.

The reserve consists of 9,000 acres of good, fertile land. The Government, in acquiring the land, compensated the Indians by depositing $30,000 into the Indian fund of the Dominion Government, branch responsible for their welfare.

Tokyo, Aug. 5.—(P)—The War Office unofficially expressed "extreme irritation" today over Prime Minister Chamberlain's assertion yesterday that Great Britain might send a fleet to the Far East "in certain circumstances."

The statement came as a third day passed without a continuation of the Anglo-Japanese conference over the Tientsin dispute. Earlier a high source declared:

"Britain is playing a dangerous game. Times have changed since Nelson's famous dictum that 'The navy is the strongest diplomatic argument in the world.'"

"Japan cannot be bluff. The effect of this threat will be to stiffen our attitude."

The War Office spokesman, who declined to comment officially on the ground that he had no official information on Mr. Chamberlain's warning in the House of Commons, declared it was "a shrewd remark designed to intimidate Japan."

FORMAL ADHERENCE TO PACT EXPECTED

Rome, Aug. 5.—(C.P.—Havas)—Japan's formal adherence to the Italo-German military pact is virtually certain, Fascist political circles said today.

Buttressing this conviction, Nipponese quarters here intimated that the broad lines of a treaty had already been laid down to transform the anti-Comintern agreement into a full military accord.

The Japanese ambassadors to Germany and Italy, Lieut-General Hiroshi Oshima and Toshio Shiratori, were still at Lake Como, awaiting a reply from Tokyo, it was reported, to their recommendation that Japan join the axis alliance.

The envoys, accompanied by large staffs including the military attaches at the Rome and Berlin embassies, were staying at the Villa d'Este, where they met by appointment this week to examine "the question of future closer adherence of Tokyo to the two axis powers."

Members of the staffs disclosed the envoys dispatched a joint cable to Tokyo urging the alliance after their conference Thursday night.

BERMUDA SEEKS NEW VEGETABLE MARKETS

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 5.—(P)—A group of experts in agriculture and marketing from Cornell University have announced they will investigate the possibility of exporting Bermuda vegetables to Canada and the United States. Although the "islands" local market offers high prices they will seek better markets on the continent.

At present they are conducting a survey of the colony's agricultural problems. After conducting experiments the group disclosed Bermuda vegetables have a high content of iodine, valuable for nutritional purposes and in certain deficiency diseases.

Oil Companies Seek Injunction To Prevent British Columbia Gas Cut

Victoria, August 5.—(P)—At noon today Chief Justice Archer Martin will hand down a decision on whether an injunction may be issued restraining the British Columbia Fuel Board from implementing an order of reduction in the price of gasoline.

In seeking the injunction, Senator J. W. de B. Farris, counsel for a group of British Columbia oil companies, said yesterday the companies have been "compelled to the serious consideration of whether they can continue to sell a single gallon of gas in the province."

A previous injunction was granted the oil companies last October when the British Columbia Coal and Petroleum Products Control Board ordered a reduction in the retail price of gasoline. This injunction was allowed to lapse in January when the board rescinded the order pending outcome of litigation which eventually resulted in its price-cutting powers being upheld by the British Columbia Court of Appeal.

Yesterday's application to the Chief Justice was prompted by a new order, effective next Monday, lowering the basic wholesale price of gasoline by three cents a gallon.

Senator Farris contended the situation is the same as when the original injunction was granted last fall. When the Chief Justice asked if it were possible to put the three-cent gasoline decrease "into a fund" pending a decision by the higher courts, he said the loss to the oil companies would be $1,550,000 per year.

(The reduction would bring the retail price of gasoline in the Victoria and Vancouver areas to twenty-four cents a gallon instead of twenty-seven. Prices in other areas vary upwards according to transportation costs. Retailers are guaranteed a five-cent price spread above the wholesale price.)

MAN MURDERED AS BOY MAKES FREEDOM BREAK

Youth Wounds Sweetheart and Stages Nine Hold-Ups After Becoming Tired of Work in Engraving Plant.

New York, August 5. — (AP) — Working for his father bored Leonard Nugent, 29, a High School graduate, so he ran away—and today police charged him with having killed a man, wounded his sweetheart and staged nine hold-ups in one crime-filled week.

The curly-haired, neatly dressed youth fainted when police told him of the death of Isadore Cohen, 42, a button broker who police said was shot under the heart while grappling with Nugent.

Inspector John Gallagher said the frightened boy had made a complete confession and gave this version of his week's activities:

"Living of working as a 'printer' in the engraving plant owned by his father, he left his Staten Island home after a family quarrel.

He rented a furnished room, then found his funds running low and turned to robbery to make some 'easy money.' Working alone, he pulled off eight holdups successfully, in one of them robbing eight men in a washroom.

Yesterday Cohen entered a washroom in a building where Nugent had just taken $22 from Charles Getzel. Cohen gave Nugent some small change in his pockets, then grabbed suddenly for Nugent's gun. Nugent stepped back and fired three times, two of the bullets going wild.

Panic-stricken, he fled to the office of Dr. A. M. Mulholland, where his girl friend, Elizabeth Collins, 18, worked as a receptionist. Shaking with fear, he told her of the hold-ups and babbled:

"It's the first time I've seen blood."

Nugent tried to pull the gun from his pocket but it accidentally discharged in his fumbling fingers. The bullet ripped through the girl's jaw. She dropped, seriously wounded.

Doubly terrified now, the youth ran from the office but was pursued and captured by passers-by and police before he reached the corner. Led away, he said wearily: "I'm glad it's all over."

WOODS PARLEY CONCLUDES ITS STUDIES TODAY

Conservation of Forest Resources Must Be Accompanied by Intelligent Exploitation, Congress Told.

Duchess, Que., Aug. 5. — (AP) — The Canadian Pulp and Paper Association's woodland section concludes today its three-day summer meeting after examining two admittedly big needs of Canada's forestry industry—conservation of lumber resources and improvement of operation through research.

Since the start Thursday of the meeting which brought two hundred of the industry's leaders and technical experts to the Provincial Government Forestry School here, the necessity of conservation and research was expressed repeatedly.

Yesterday R. A. McInnis, president of the Association, described conservation as the "really important question" facing the industry. But the industry wanted an "intelligent combination" of conservation and exploitation on an economic basis, he said.

"Governments, whether they be provincial, federal or whatever they might be, may have in mind conservation which is sound enough," he said. "But if they have conservation in mind without any reference to utilization on an economic basis—a competitive basis—then, such conservation schemes are useless."

Dr. C. Greaves of the Dominion Forests Products Laboratories urged "utilization" of forest products to a greater extent, mentioning the use of wood and charcoal as fuel for vehicles.

Establishment in Quebec of a service for inspection of the Government's permanent forest experimental plots throughout the Province, was announced at yesterday's meetings by Rene Gobeil, Director of the Entomology branch of the Provincial Lands and Forests Department.

He said Government experts also would undertake an inquiry into the damage wrought by timber-attacking insects and into the cost and waste involved in cutting operations.

DETERMINED TO OBTAIN PRICE FOR METEORITE

Retired Dentist Insists that Law of Supply and Demand Prevails Even in Case of Meteorites.

Chatham, Ont., Aug. 5. — (AP) — The law of supply and demand holds good even for meteorites, in the opinion of Dr. Luke Smith, and figuring by the law Dr. Smith wants between $80 and $1,000 for his bit of the meteorite that splashed over Western Ontario the night of July 11.

Dr. Smith has eighty-eight pounds of meteorite which he bought from Dan Solomon for $4 the day after it dropped into the beet field on the negro's farm near here, almost scaring the wits out of Mrs. Solomon and her four children standing less than two hundred yards away. After weighing a score of others, Dr. Smith set his price and is willing to wait for it.

"Right now the meteorite is with a friend who is getting the same prices on having it polished and cut," said Dr. Smith, a retired dentist who describes himself as "a sort of a gas and oil man" doing exploration work in those fields. "I haven't made up my mind just what to do with it—it would make a lovely souvenir—but I know my price."

"I might have it cut up, polished and have the pieces engraved with the date of the fall. There probably are lots of people who would like a piece of our up like that."

Dr. Smith has just about a corner on the meteorite market for he got the only decent-sized piece that fell in sight of anyone. Other bits, each about the size of a man's fist, were found on farms of Bruce Cumings.

A. B. Scott and George Highgate near Solomon's, but there was nothing to equal Dr. Smith's meteorite. His is a big chunk of metallic stone, carrying what Dr. Smith believes to be traces of iron and nickel. It is smooth as velvet on one side and heavily "thumb-marked" on the other. Black as if covered with shellac on the outside and light gray and fairly soft inside.

"I think it's worth from $800 to $1,000 because the demand for it exceeds the supply," Dr. Smith said. "There have been numerous private collectors in the United States who have standing offers in for it, but only one man has come close to my figure. It was just close, however, and I'm in no hurry about disposing of it."

Majority of Empire Colonial Residents Lack Proper Food

On the committee, is one of the chief factors of malnutrition.

A report received from the Barbados says it is known that the average weekly wage of parents is insufficient to feed the whole family for a week and many children have no regular meals after Wednesday in each week, and go to school hungry on Thursdays and Fridays.

Similar instances could be given for Jamaica, Grenada and most other West Indian islands, it is added. Other revelations from the lengthy report are:

"One of the most striking features has been the almost complete absence of milk from most tropical diets. The abolition of all tariffs on dried milk, especially cheap skimmed milk, is urged."

In St. Helena: "Disease, malnutrition, physical and moral weakness are concomitant with poverty, which is almost at starvation level. Many have never tasted cow's milk, butter, cheese or eggs."

Sierra Leone: "In the seventeenth century the natives were healthy. Now there are outbreaks due to vitamin deficiency manifested by glazed tongues, sore mouths and affected eyes, with lids gummed down by discharge."

The committee urge governments and employers to develop local agriculture, to give natives plots of land to grow vegetables on so that they can vary their diets and protect themselves from failure of the main crop of the colony.

They also urge propaganda by newspapers, leaflets, broadcasts and lectures to give natives the most elementary points on good feeding.

POSTMASTER OF BURY SUCCUMBS AFTER ILLNESS

Large Number of Friends in Townships Mourn Death of Geo. W. Stokes—Masonic Funeral in United Church Monday.

Bury, Aug. 5. — A large circle of friends in this district and in other sections of the Eastern Townships are today mourning the death of George W. Stokes, postmaster of this community for the past thirty-one years, who died at his home early this morning after an illness which had kept him confined to bed since last March. He was in his seventy-ninth year.

A kindly and generous man, he was beloved for his never-failing readiness to assist any in trouble and his death, although not entirely unexpected, brought a grief to the entire population of Bury.

Mr. Stokes took a keen interest in all matters of a civic nature and for many years was chairman and a commissioner of the school board here. He was also a member of the Masonic Lodge and the I.O.O.F., and for a number of years a director of the Scotstown Fair, playing an active part in the annual success achieved by this exhibition.

With three brothers, who survive, Eddie, Carlos and Maurice, Mr. Stokes operated the firm of T. Stokes and Sons, carriage makers, until he became postmaster. He was the eldest son of T. Stokes.

After the death of his first wife in 1900, Mr. Stokes married for the second time. Surviving are one daughter, Eva, Mrs. W. E. Goodenough, and a son, Thomas G. Stokes, both of Bury. Since Mr. Stokes was forced to bed by his illness last March the post office has been operated by the son, although remaining in his father's name.

A Masonic funeral will be held on Monday at two p.m. in the United Church, with interment in the United Cemetery.

Fifty-One Gun Salute Indicates Birth of Second Daughter to Crown Princess Juliana — Princess Doing Well.

Amsterdam, Aug. 5. — (AP) — A fifty-one gun salute told the Netherlands today that Crown Princess Juliana had presented the nation with another princess and not the son it had hoped for.

The birth of a son to Princess Juliana and her consort, Prince Bernhard, would have been signalled by 101 guns.

A moment after the last report, streamers fluttered from every home. The nation's tinge of disappointment was tempered by happiness over news that the thirty-year-old Crown Princess and her 8½ pound second child were "both doing well" after a rather difficult birth.

The girl was born at 1:00 a.m. because of the hour, the artillery salute was postponed until 7 a.m. The official celebration of the royal birth was set for Monday.

The Netherlands last King, William III, died in 1890, and Queen Wilhelmina then ascended the throne at the age of ten. On the day of abdication of Queen Wilhelmina, Juliana would become Queen. Unless a son were born, she, in turn, would be succeeded by her eldest daughter, Princess Beatrix, born January 31st, 1938.

LACHINE MARKS ANNIVERSARY OF MASSACRE

Thousands Participate in Ceremonies Recalling Slaughter at Outpost of Civilization 250 Years Ago.

Lachine, Que., Aug. 5. — (AP) — In the flickering of huge bonfires on the St. Lawrence River bank, thousands of persons stood silently last night in tribute to the memory of the French-Canadian settlers who died in the Lachine massacre, slain by the dreaded Iroquois on a storm-ridden night in 1689.

It was the 250th anniversary of the massacre and a huge fiery cross burned on the Mall bordering the Lachine Canal while bells high in the old French convent tolled a funeral dirge.

Mayor Anatole Carignan, who also is Quebec Minister of Roads, paid tribute to the pioneers and re-told the tale of the massacre in the then tiny settlement of settlers slain in their beds or bound to stakes and tortured before flaming bonfires.

"The storm favored the Iroquois," said Mayor Carignan. "It enabled them to pass the sentries. It seems as if the Almighty were intervening." It had been said, he added, that the massacre was punishment for the illicit liquor traffic with the Indians but it must be remembered that not all of the inhabitants were guilty.

"The historic night which was celebrated here was not only an appalling one," said the Mayor, "it was above all a night of atonement, of regeneration, the benefits of which have been prolonged until today."

There was more owed to the victims than a cursory view will reveal, he told his listeners. "Living in an outpost of civilization, they belonged, these victims, to the vanguard of the pioneers who gave us the immense possibilities of a new world."

"Gratitude will impel us to adhere more firmly to the virtues which strengthened our pioneers: faith, hope and charity," he concluded.

BEGIN SURVEYING SHERBROOKE-MAGOG ROAD

Re-Construction Of Highway To Be Started In September

Cost of Rebuilding Sherbrooke-Magog Link of Montreal Route No. 1 Estimated at $250,000, Not Including Surfacing—Dangerous Curves to Be Eliminated and Road Widened.

Preliminary surveying work on the Sherbrooke-Magog stretch of Route No. 1 has been commenced and work on re-building the road will proceed definitely early next month, Col. the Hon. Johnny Bourque, Minister of Public Works and of Lands and Forests, announced today.

Col. Bourque also stated that the contract for the Holmes Bridge on the Sherbrooke-Norton Mills highway near Lennoxville had been awarded to the local firm of Tremblay and Bonin who submitted a bid of $18,300. The Holmes structure will replace the old covered bridge now in existence.

Dangerous curves along the road to Magog will be eliminated and the highway will be considerably widened when the extensive re-building project is completed. For the most part the old road bed will be followed although it is expected cross-country cuts will be made at one or two locations.

There are only two curves that might be classed as dangerous on the sixteen mile stretch, one outside Sherbrooke near the side road leading to St. Elie d'Orford, the other about two miles this side of Little Lake Magog. Balance of the route to Magog is comparatively straight this being especially true of the part between Little Lake and Magog.

Cost of re-building the Sherbrooke-Magog highway has been estimated at $250,000 which does not include surfacing. Only construction work will be done this year and the road will not be paved until the summer of 1940.

With letting of the contract for the Holmes Bridge on the Massawippi River another of the ancient and picturesque covered structures that at one time were common in Quebec will be replaced by a modern concrete bridge. This latest item in the Provincial Government's bridge programme will be about 125 feet long.

Other contractors and their bids were the Stewart Construction Company, $18,332, and the Newton Construction Company, $27,200.

ROAD CONTRACT NOT IRREGULAR, SAYS BOURQUE

Col. the Hon. Johnny Bourque today issued a statement denying irregularities had been committed in the letting of contracts for road work as had been charged last Sunday at a meeting of the Alliance Libérale Nationale in a political rally at St. Isidore d'Auckland.

Particular reference was made by Col. Bourque to the declaration of Arcadius Denis, Sherbrooke lawyer, who said one contractor had submitted a bid of $5,000 for fence posts along a road near Sherbrooke and was advised by the official who opened the bids that he was the only one and that he should raise his quotation to $18,000 which, according to Mr. Denis, he did.

In reply to Mr. Denis' statement the Minister declared that four contractors had bid for the contract in question and that the lowest bid had been accepted at a price of fifty-five cents a linear foot, one of the lowest ever given for this type of work.

"I do not want to give Mr. Denis any sense of importance," Col. Bourque said. "But I might say that before he made his declaration he might have procured his information at an official source so that it might be possible for him to name the contractor and the particular road where the work was done. Mr. Denis has been badly informed, had the wrong intentions or his organization made a mistake."

KEN JENCKES SAYS:

Whether because people are collectively becoming more literary minded or because they want their friends to think they're book lovers, built-in bookcases are once more reaching a new peak in popularity.

Such a bookcase may be either a vital decorative factor of a home or an unbalanced, out-of-place eyesore of inharmonious appearance. To make it an asset to the beauty of his home, every homeowner should consider not only the bookcase itself as a separate item, but also as a part of the general decorative scheme of the room in which it is placed.

A well-planned bookcase is particularly useful for breaking an otherwise monotonous appearance of a room.

I have in my organization carpenters and cabinet-makers capable of doing the very finest kind of work. I would gladly help you with suggestions on bookcases — or any other means of improving your home. Just telephone 3078.

MAKES ANOTHER EFFORT TO TIE UP C.P.R. WORK

Railroad Would Likely Have to Change Dimensions of Its New Freight Sheds if Bernard's Latest Suggestion Approved by Council.

A request that the Department of Roads proceed at once with establishing the street lines and levels of Belvidere street as a preparation for building a sidewalk along one side was filed for further study at yesterday's Council meeting. The communication was received from E. A. Bernard, who recently headed a delegation asking the Aldermen to intercede with the Canadian Pacific Railway in an effort to have the company change location of their new freight sheds.

One of Mr. Bernard's claims in opposition to construction of the sheds on Belvidere and Marquette streets was that the C.P.R. was exceeding its rights in building on land where sidewalks might be laid in the near future. If his latest request is granted and the city decides to build a sidewalk it is expected the railway company will have to change dimensions of the building.

None of the Aldermen commented on Mr. Bernard's letter but it was stated in well-informed circles after the meeting that the request will most likely be shelved indefinitely.

CABINET HEADS TO ENGAGE IN RELIEF STUDY

Four or Five Ministers Will Accompany Premier Duplessis to Ottawa to Discuss Unemployment Problems.

When Premier Maurice Duplessis goes to Ottawa to discuss unemployment problems with Dominion Government heads on August 10 he will be accompanied by four or five Cabinet Ministers, in addition to a number of mayors of cities and towns in the province, it was announced today.

It is possible Provincial Treasurer Martin B. Fisher will accompany the Premier, along with Labor Minister William Tremblay, Hon. J. S. Bourque, Minister of Public Works and Lands and Forests, and Roads Minister Anatole Carignan.

Mayor Marc-Aurèle Arsenault, of Sherbrooke, and the Mayors of Quebec, Verdun, Hull and other cities and towns affected by the unemployment situation are expected to join the Quebec delegation.

"JUSTICE FOR QUEBEC" Other than to state "We will try to get justice for the Province of Quebec," Col. the Hon. Johnny Bourque declined to comment on the delegation to Ottawa of Quebec Mayors and Provincial Government officials scheduled for next Wednesday when relief problems are to be discussed.

Asked for his opinion of the recent offer of the Federal authorities to pay half the cost of labor for public works if Sherbrooke paid for materials, Col. Bourque said this was the same plan which brought about the present impasse between Ottawa and Quebec.

Former Alderman Opposed To King Street Parking Spot

Removal of the grass plot in front of the War Memorial on the King street hill in order to make a parking place for automobiles would be an "act of vandalism," in the opinion of former Ald. J. R. Sangster, who states his views on the proposed project in an open letter addressed to Ald. J. W. Genest, Chairman of the Parks Committee.

Possibility that the hill would not be a safe parking place is pointed out in Mr. Sangster's letter. Cars parked at an angle would constitute a menace, he believes, and some of them would be likely to slip and block traffic as well as damage other automobiles in the vicinity.

Following is the text of the former alderman's letter, which is addressed to Ald. Genest:

"I was glad to note in the local press the attitude you have taken in regard to the proposed parking place on King street and I trust you will have sufficient support from the members of the Council to ensure that this grass plot shall not disappear.

"Only yesterday, walking up from the Sherbrooke House with a friend from out of town, he stopped to admire the place, and said to me: 'This is one of the remarkable beauty spots of your city, and a wonderful setting for your monument.'

"This wonderful setting would be utterly destroyed if the foreground consisted of a mass of parked cars.

"In any event, I am sure that the hill would not be a safe parking place. Cars parked at an angle would always be a menace, some of them would be sure to slip and block traffic, as well as damage other cars in the vicinity. The cars as parked now on the hill rest against the curb, but in the middle of the street they would have no such support.

"In any event, it would be an act of vandalism to destroy this outstandingly picturesque spot, and I am sure public opinion will strongly support you in the position you have taken.

"I have two friends, former Sherbrooke boys, now living in Pittsfield, Mass. One of them visits Sherbrooke frequently but the other has rarely seen our city since he left it many years ago. Last month he was persuaded to visit his home town, and remembering it as of forty years ago he was enchanted with its appearance. So much so, indeed, that on his return to Pittsfield he went before the Council there and asked that a delegation of the aldermen be sent to Sherbrooke to see just how attractive a city could be made.

"I am quite sure he would not have carried away such an impression if he had found this central point of our city converted from a thing of dignity and beauty into a parking space.

"Your department has to be strongly complimented on the work that has made our city so attractive to visitors, and I wish you every success in your efforts in this particular case."

URGE BEACH AT DRUMMONDVILLE BE RE-OPENED

Chamber of Commerce Feels Young People Swimming in Far More Dangerous Sections of St. Francis than Hemming's Falls Beach.

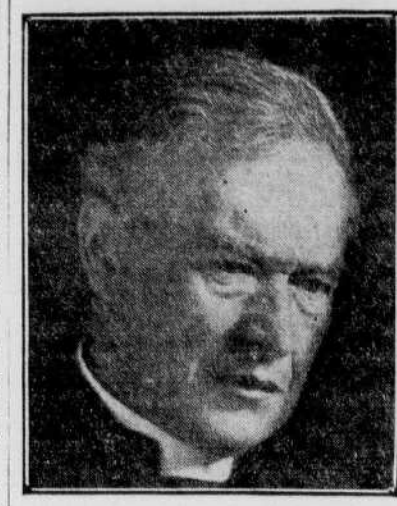

Drummondville, Que., Aug. 5.—The Drummondville Chamber of Commerce has urged the City Council to re-open immediately the Hemming Falls Beach, closed after the drowning of Dr. Yvon Larocque, July 23rd, it was learned last night in a letter read to the Council.

Since the closing of the beach, young people of the community are swimming in far more dangerous sections of the St. Francis River, the directors of the Chamber feel. They urged the city to take action toward re-opening the beach and to appoint a life guard before a major tragedy occurs.

Earlier in the season, the Chamber of Commerce had suggested that the city provide a properly supervised swimming pool, directors said. The City Council accepted the suggestion and later approved plans for a project to cost $65,000, the directors added. The plans did not materialize, they said.

Testimonial meeting Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock.

"Spirit" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, August 6th.

The Golden Text is from I Corinthians 2:11. "What man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? Even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God; thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness." (Psalms 143: 10).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Thus the belief that Spirit is finite as well as infinite has darkened all history. In Christian Science, Spirit, as a proper noun, is the name of the Supreme Being. It means quantity and quality, and applies exclusively to God. . . . In the Bible the word Spirit is so commonly applied to Deity, that Spirit and God are often regarded as synonymous terms; and it is thus they are uniformly used and understood in Christian Science." (Pages 93, 344).

By-Law Limiting Number Of Cabs In Sherbrooke Adopted

First, Second and Third Reading Given Legislation Fixing Maximum Number of Taxis at Fifty—Council Tightens Up on Restrictions Applying to Proprietors.

Powers of the City Council as regards control over the taxi industry in Sherbrooke were extended yesterday afternoon at a special meeting of the Aldermen at which Municipal By-Law No. 591 was adopted. The measure was proposed by Ald. Alfred Chénais, Chairman of the Police Committee.

Principal clause in the new by-law specified that the number of permits issued to conductors or proprietors of taxis shall not exceed fifty and that permits will be issued only to persons exclusively engaged in the taxi business.

Brought about by a flood of applications for licenses Ald. Chénais' measure will narrow the field of competition in the local "jitney" trade and ensure that proprietors of taxis will in future have a chance to make a comfortable living. In the past applicants for permits have had recourse to the Courts, as no by-law existed by which a license could be refused if the applicant's qualifications were in order.

While limiting the number of taxis the Aldermen also tightened up on the restrictions which apply to proprietors. Through another clause in By-Law No. 591 the Council may suspend the permit of any owner or driver of a taxi in the event of an accident in which damages are caused until said damages have been paid or repaired.

Cab owners will also be subject to cancellation of their license in the event they fail to carry on business for a period of fifteen days. In such a case the Council will decide whether the cab owner had sufficient reasons for suspension of his business.

Little business of any great importance other than the taxi question was discussed by the Aldermen at yesterday's session. In resolution submitted by various committees valuation of two West Ward properties was reduced; City of Sherbrooke bonds were ordered purchased for sinking fund purposes; the Mayor and the City Clerk were authorized to sign a servitude granting to the city the right to lay a forty-two-inch sewer pipe under the C.N.R. tracks near the Carleton Place plant; purchase of meters and supplies for the Electricity and Gas Committee was authorized and removal of telephone poles from Pig Forks, Portland and King streets was recommended.

CONGRESS AND FOREIGN POLICY

The session of the United States Congress which is rapidly nearing its close is likely to go down in history as giving more time and thought to the study of foreign affairs than any since the close of the Great War. The Sino-Japanese fighting in the Orient and the threat of war in Europe summoned Congress from its self-complacency and galvanized it into action on many frontiers of foreign policy. A dozen measures were approved dealing with foreign affairs, most of them originating with the administration but some cropping up in Congress itself.

However, the legislators did not see eye to eye with the administration on foreign policy as a whole, but the session ends with some leaders of both parties in accord on what may be one of the most important moves ever taken by the United States abroad—termination of the commercial treaty with Japan.

Congress did not follow along with the administration on the Neutrality Law revision, the House of Representatives passing a bill which differed greatly from the measure which the State Department proposed. Thereupon, the administration turned to the Senate, only to meet with a stalemate in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Although little definite was done in this respect at the current session, the Congress closes with a definite promise to the President by the leaders of both parties that neutrality legislation will be among the first, if not the first, subjects to be discussed when Congress reconvenes in January.

Although Democratic and Republican Senators could not agree on neutrality legislation, they seemed to look somewhat through the same glasses toward Japan. Democrat Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, introduced a resolution to place an embargo on the shipment of raw materials to Japan, and when it was found that this would be contrary to the Commercial Treaty of 1911, Michigan's Republican Senator, H. Vandenberg, introduced a motion to terminate the treaty. But before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee could complete its discussion of his resolution, the administration took the matter out of its hands by serving the required notice on Japan. As Congress goes home, the time margin of six months before which the treaty cannot expire, has already begun to run, and when the Senate and House come back they need wait only until January 26 if they desire to place the embargo.

BRITISH ELECTIONS LIKELY

With the British Parliament formally adjourned until October 3, when it is expected to sit for a three-week period prior to prorogation, the thoughts of the British people are turning to the prospects of a general election, the prevailing opinion being that unless the international situation deteriorates sharply, a vote is almost sure in November.

The Chamberlain Government could go for another year before appealing to the people, but the Prime Minister favors an election this year unless the events in Europe and Asia interfere, while Conservative, Liberal and Labor parties have had their machines in readiness for months for an election.

Developments in Europe are likely to have an important effect on the outcome of any vote, the campaign being probably based on the effectiveness of Prime Minister Chamberlain's appeasement policy. Should the present tension ease materially, the Government could reasonably claim credit for having averted a European war which might threaten the very basis of civilization, while if the crisis increases, the case of the proponents of direct action would be strengthened.

INTERNATIONAL GOOD-WILL

An example of international understanding and good-will which might be followed by European and Asiatic powers occurred during the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to Windsor, Ont., according to a statement made by Superintendent J. R. Wilkinson, superintendent of the Windsor Police, before the sixth convention of the Ontario Police Association now in session. During the Royal visit to Windsor in June, there were more Detroit policemen on duty in the Canadian city than there were Canadians, Mr. Wilkinson stated, as the result of the voluntary good-will action of the Detroit Police Commission.

Appreciating the fact that the Windsor police would have a serious problem on their hands during the visit, the Superintendent of the Detroit police made an offer of co-operation which was promptly accepted by the Windsor officials. When a call for volunteers was made from the Detroit force, "every man stepped forward" with the result that eighty-five detectives and two hundred traffic policemen crossed the international boundary that day and joined forces with their Windsor colleagues for the maintenance of order.

It is acts of this nature, often undertaken without any thought of their long-range international implications, that serve to bind the peoples of the North American continent together rather than the signing of formal treaties of friendship and the loud declarations of the national leaders.

PACT WITH PANAMA

There is every reason to be glad that the long-pending treaty with Panama, clarifying the rights and duties of both the United States and that country in case of world wars or disturbances, has at last been ratified by the Senate.

The United States has done well to make concessions, to yield on disputed points, for the world needs today the example of a powerful country willing to arrange amicably with a weak neighbor their mutual interests. There are countries in the world which would probably not bother to negotiate with Panama, but simply move in a military force and do as they like.

The world may well listen to President Roosevelt's words as he says, "With the putting in effect of the new treaty there will be initiated an era of frankest comprehension based on spirit and justice in the special relations between the two countries." We hope and believe President Roosevelt is right, and that the example will not be entirely lost on the world.

EDITOR'S NOTE-BOOK

The civic-spirited people of Waterloo have learned how to work together. When they tackle anything, they know how to get results. The continued success of their Fall Fair during the past few years bears testimony to their ability in putting over a good job. This year they are out again to make a hit. And they will. Attractions galore are on the tapis for their 1939 Fair. The drawing for a Studebaker car on the final night of the Fair will be one of the big features. Members of the Boosting Club are handling the sale of tickets. On Monday and Tuesday evenings, August 14 and 15, fireworks will be the main attractions. The officials of the Fair say these fireworks will be the best ever seen in Waterloo. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, August 14, 15 and 16, are sure going to be big days at Waterloo.

THE LONG LANE

It's a long, long lane I'm treading,
It's a stoney road to go,
And the sun is white and dusty
And the sun is hot, I know.
Yet, for all the thorny hedgerows,
There are roses bright and gay,
And they lift their shining faces
As I pass my lonely way.
So I pluck the scented blossoms,
Trudging bravely on again
For I know there waits a turning
Somewhere down the longest lane.

There are cobbles in my pathway,
There are ruts beneath my shoes,
I am warm and rather weary,
But I haven't got the blues,
For I'm dreaming of a dwelling,
And a little open door,
Where there's rest for lagging footsteps
And there's balm for bruises sore,—
Oh, I seem to hear them calling
In a distant, sweet refrain,
And I know I'll find them waiting
At the turning of the lane.

PRESS COMMENTS

GREAT BRITAIN'S POSITION IS DIFFICULT

(New York Times)

Whatever the real meaning of the new formula which the British have accepted in the East, there can be no doubt that the high command in the Japanese high command. Within twenty-four hours after the text was made public the Japanese command at Canton peremptorily notified the consular authorities of all Western nations, including the United States, that they must close for two weeks the Canton River (thereby blocking trade between Canton and the great British port of Hongkong), and further measures were taken in North China to intensify anti-British boycotts and other similar demonstrations. The new formula which Mr. Chamberlain defended in the House of Commons is ambiguous—no doubt, intentionally so. But there can be no doubt that the directors of Japan's war machine intend from the start to interpret it as evidence that Britain is prepared to yield ground in China under pressure. On this point the action they have taken speaks for itself.

Britain's position is no doubt difficult in the extreme. On the one hand, there is the enormous stake which the British have in China: Hongkong; the various "Concession" areas; private investments running into many millions; the likelihood that if British prestige is lowered in China it will be lowered in India as well. On the other hand, there is the fact that 10,000 miles of seaway separate London from Shanghai. There is the fact that this long line is menaced by the unpredictable policies of Italy and Germany. There is the further fact that none of the Western democracies has shown any eagerness to take a strong stand in China. This is as true of the United States as of any other Western nation. Our own Senate has just buried quietly, and none too decently, a resolution proposing to prohibit the export of American war supplies to Japan. At the Brussels conference in 1937—called in accordance with the Nine-Power Treaty which "guarantees" China's integrity—the policy of our Government and our delegates was as hesitant as that of anybody else.

The circumstances being what they are, the British have chosen to yield. How much they have yielded is the question. Mr. Chamberlain insists none at all. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek refuses to let his dog, Britain, can or would let his dog, Japan, bite. The Japanese command goes into action. And the future holds the answer to the question.

THE DUKE THRUST THE "MIKE" AWAY

The position of the Duke of Kent has taken on an entirely new phase since he was appointed to be Governor-General of Australia. Instead of merely performing the incessant social duties that are inevitable for a man in his position, he now becomes an important factor in the official life of the Commonwealth. While he will not interfere in the political struggles of Australia, he will be in constant touch with his Ministers and cannot help but influence them in their point of view toward Imperial and world affairs.

What is more he will speak frequently in public, when he will find his Australian audiences kindly but appraising. Therefore it is heartening to note that the Duke of Kent is improving rapidly as a speaker. For one thing, at the Independence Day Dinner he thrust the microphone away from him, which is the sign of a man who knows nothing ever invented has done so much to express individuality. The texture of the voice and the very essence of personality are lost in the mechanical amplification of sound.

An even better sign was the action of the Duke of Kent at the occasion. A newspaper tried to secure a copy of the Duke's speech after the dinner but was told that the speech had been altered so much during the dinner that the manuscript was useless. It was worthy of a public man of far greater experience when he picked up the microphone and delivered a phrase about the Anglo-American friendship being taken for granted and said:

"It proves beyond a shadow of doubt that the ideal of peace can be achieved. It should enable every country to continue to work for the peace in the full knowledge that for one country to live in harmony with another is an established possibility. When I go to Australia in the autumn as Governor-General I shall most certainly bear that in mind. I hope I shall not have to put it in the forefront of all my thoughts and actions, because I agree with Mr. Kennedy that it should be a permanent background, a background so taken for granted that it is almost forgotten."

THE CHANGING WORLD

(Trinidad Guardian)

All the world with never-ceasing absorption watches the swiftly changing international scene as it shifts from Tientsin to Moscow and from London to Berlin, each step becoming more complex than the previous one and whole situation sometimes appearing to move towards a vortex similar to that which landed civilization into the abyss of 1914. It is a tragic game for high stakes—world domination on the one hand and world peace on the other. A grim test of strength is being waged in the chess-board of the world. The unsolicited prominence which Britain has been receiving everywhere because of her position as the chief protagonist of the democratic ideology has placed a deep responsibility upon all British subjects throughout the far-flung Empire. The remarkable advance in communications has caused the world to shrink to such an extent today that

CANADA SHOULD ABSORB MORE PEOPLE

(Le Jour, of Montreal)

Nothing could be more childish than the argument which claims that an increase of population would be a calamity in a country like ours. It would be as valid to counsel Malthusianism, for births are immigration. Year in and year out the excess of births over deaths in Canada is 120,000. Out of that number the Province of Quebec, alone, accounts for an average increase of 30,000. Must these 150,000 new citizens add so many to the number of unemployed? You would have to say "yes" if you agreed with the theories of some of our jugglers in economics. But everybody knows that is not so.

Each new child, on the contrary, creates new needs and to that degree increases industrial activity, the source of all work and pay. The case of the immigrant is a new "out-of-work." He must dress, eat, be sheltered, educated, amused; he must travel: all these activities, filling essential needs, mean only one thing: more work and more production.

Whole sections of Europe are contaminated by paganism and the cult of brute force and the horizon is dark for men, women and children who hold dear the things we cherish and who, in heart as well as in mind, are much like us. . . . We must beware! Our stupid, improvident egotism may cost us dear. It may even cost us our freedom. The appetites of peoples who are poorer in natural resources may be whetted against us.

In this era of rapid aviation, of giant dirigibles, of streamlined ships and of mass hysteria, any weak nation is liable to fall prey to others. We are the choicest morsel predatory nations could hope to snap up. Before that happens, we must choose for ourselves, having regard to physical, moral and intellectual qualities, the men we need here if we are to build a strong nation. Some day it may be too late. Some day others will choose for us. And it will be the end of the Canada we know.

The man in China is as concerned about the doings of Peru as in those of Hong Kong. This process has increased cohesion and solidarity within the British Empire, and the average person in Port-of-Spain is as interested in the developments in the Far East as is the Londoner or the New Yorker or the man who walks the Wilhelmstrasse. This is an eminently satisfactory development: for people throughout the Empire, watching the dignified conduct of affairs by British statesmen, feel themselves bound more than ever in bonds of loyalty to the cause which the democracies are pledged to support.

ADOLF JITTERY

(Detroit Free Press)

The report from Warsaw that "Hitler is suffering from a serious nervous shock and breakdown" is to be received with considerable caution. The more so because the story is generally embellished with lively particulars.

The account says that Hitler became so excited over the threat of a duel between the head of the Reich armed forces and the chief of staff of the air forces that he fainted in the midst of a policy conference and was carried from the conference room by his aides. It goes on to record that doctors have told him to rest for several months and that the need for quiet is an explanation of the order that planes shall not fly over Berchtesgaden.

And by way of further elaboration, the world is informed that a refugee physician in Warsaw refused a fee of $2,000 and safe-conduct if he would return to Germany to attend Dr. Fuehrer.

All this may be true. Certainly the person who sent the tale out seems to know something about Hitler and his excitable and tense temperament. But what makes one suspect the whole account is a special decorative detail which has Hitler biting his nails whenever Danzig is mentioned. That last touch punctures the general credibility very badly.

During the gay nineties, "soap grease wagons" were a common sight in Chicago. They collected grease, bones and fats from houses and exchanged bars of laundry soap for them.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

EXPERT PLAY OF TRUMPS IS NECESSARY TO MAKE THIS AMBITIOUS CONTRACT

To make a winner blossom where a loser is apparent frequently requires expert manipulation of the trump suit. This may include, as in today's hand, the use of a high trump in the closed hand for a ruff. The game contract was a difficult one to reach, and perhaps it was just as well, as the majority of those who did reach it went down.

This was the way one pair reached game, which is in my opinion a distinct overbid. There are two apparent losers in each of the red suits, and there still remains the problem of finding an even break in the club suit, the king in the East hand, and sufficient entries in dummy to lead clubs twice towards the closed hand. South was by no means hopeful, but went to work to make the best of it.

The third round of diamonds was ruffed with trumps. This spectacular use of the highest trump was not showmanship, but was done to create an additional entry to dummy.

To trick four the king of trumps was played, then the deuce of trumps was won with dummy's nine. The club finesse was taken, and the Jack held.

Now the Jack of trumps was over-

FROM THE PEN OF E. T. WRITERS

AN S.O.S. AND NOTHING LESS.

A little space I humbly ask,
Please grant it, I do pray,
While I set forth a grievance sad
I've felt for many a day.
If you my temper would improve
Then take this tip, I say,
Do call your bluff and spread some stuff
Upon the King's highway.

We cannot see a car ahead
Because we're choked with dust;
We're liable to be termed "quite dead,"
Or, in a traffic "bust."
Oh powers that be, do rescue me
From accidents remote,
Then you will claim my sympathy
As well as one more vote.

I do not wish to live a life
Far from the maddening crowd,
Where isolation e'er is rife
And solitude endow'd,
And friends, 'tis not my custom
To complain without a cause;
I'm a law-abiding creature
And respect my country's laws.

Yet, there's a limit surely
To the things one can abide;
Let me air my woes securely—
And put up with what betide.
Oh, I speak in heartfelt phrases
(For I feel I should, and must.)
Please put some mixture on our roads
To beam the clouds of dust.

Our froggies scarce dare lift their head
From out the village pond,
Because they spy with fear and dread
The clouds of dust beyond.
While in my neighbor's garden patch
I note to my surprise,
The "spuds" are using kerchiefs all
To wipe their dusty eyes.

Our birds claim they should, and must,
Wear masks most every day,
To keep from choking with the dust
Whenever they fly this way.
(Now, we can't soar above the dust
Because we lack the wings,
So, stand it for a time, we must—
Yet, hope eternal springs.)

Our gardens are smothered in dust,
Our houses and clothes are a sight,
Outside, our heads we dare not thrust
In safety, day or night.
Car-driving, we have grown to dread,
Our eyes we dare not trust,
Because, we cannot see ahead
For clouds and clouds of dust.

Do something for us, won't you, PLEASE,
We're driven to distraction;
We do naught now but cough and sneeze,
Oh! won't you soon take action?
Do spread a little "tar" on,
Or "calcium" to check
The dust which floats into our throats,
Our peace of mind to wreck.

Could we have the satisfaction
Just to hope this rhyme would start
The powers that be in action,
It would soothe full many a heart.
(Each little verse is getting worse
Of this dejected rhyme,
Because I'm mad and feeling bad—
And more so all the time.)

If you think this tale is funny,
Or discredit what I say,
I suggest some day that's sunny
You should motor out our way.

Derelicts, ships abandoned at sea, form a constant hazard to water travel. Every year, dozens of these wanderers are destroyed, but their numbers do not seem to decrease.

Unlike icebergs, which follow a more or less charted course, abandoned ships are likely to appear anywhere at sea.

WILL-POWER WINS THE GAME OF 'KEEPING HUSBY HAPPY'

It's about time someone broke down and confessed that it's no job at all for the average woman to hold on to a husband.

About all it takes is determination. Not determination to hold him, but determination to make him happy. The wife who honestly wants her husband to be happy and uses fifth grade common sense to bring it about, can have him as long as she wants him.

Wanting him to be happy eliminates such things as:

Letting him think for a minute that any woman in the world is luckier than she.

Ever seeming to care more for her possessions than for his comfort.

Keeping up a continuous stream of chatter.

Pulling a long face when he comes home too tired to go out.

Saying without spirit: "I don't care; whatever you want to do," when he says, "How about a show?" or "Would you like to go for a ride?"

Common Sense Is Solution
Expecting him to worry about the little things that go wrong around the house.

Making him feel that he isn't providing as well as other men who happen to earn more money.

Talking money and economy constantly.

Considering their house her special domain instead of looking on it as a place that can be her biggest ally in making him want to come home—if it is run with his comfort in mind.

A woman doesn't have to be smart to figure those things out, or work hard to avoid them. They won't trip her up, if she's too busy making her husband happy to worry about holding him.

Stockholm—The fund from inheritance law which reverts property of intestate persons, in the absence of near relatives to the state for the benefit of youth, has reached a total of 8,000,000 kroner ($1,936,400).

DIPLOMATIC PETTICOATS
Paris, July 31.—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, wife of the American Ambassador to London, after a visit here, took back a skirt which is almost flat in front, and just touches the floor, but bells out at side and back over layer upon layer of petticoats.

FLIES TO STONE AGE
Oxford, July 31.—Miss Beatrice Blackwood flew to New Guinea and spent a year among the Kukukus, whom she described as being "dour as the Scottish Highlanders," and neolithic in culture.

New Silhouette Lines Are Drawn From 1880 Style

By Rachel Gayman
Copyright, 1939, by the Haves News Agency

Paris, Aug. 5.—(C.P.-Havas)—The new silhouette for 1940 is flat in front, such fullness as it may contain being gathered at the back. Its lines are frankly drawn from costumes worn in the 1880's as exemplified in the paintings of Constantin Guy and Claude Monet.

Pleats, Godets, flounces, and even a suggestion of bustle are used to take in the fullness. The bodice is close-fitting, with hips molded. Sleeves are plain rather than puffed. The waistline is frequently marked by a wide, tight-fitting band. Shoulders are square without being exaggerated.

Coats and suits are cut in classical style buttoning high with rounded necklines. They are usually trimmed with fur or velvet. Coats falling straight, such as redingotes, gather all fullness at the back.

Evening gowns feature the sheath silhouette. Crinoline, which had a brilliant success last season, is now limited to party dresses for young girls. Satins, silk or cotton velvets, and rayon are the most popular fabrics for evening clothes.

Worthy of special notice is a magnificent series of stylized Egyptian evening gowns. The material is wound around the body like bandages around a mummy, but is sufficiently elastic to allow complete freedom of movement.

Military braid and frogging are emphasized for decorative purposes, although gold embroidery and paillettes are still in vogue.

Women Opposing Working Wives Only Give Their Sex "Economic Kick Downhill"

Wherever you find women opposing married women working (and pay) you find a class of women who think they would stand to gain should all married women be kicked out of their jobs.

Roughly the classes are about like this:

Politically ambitious women, who think they will get the support of men by such stand. (Besides, every time they sound off on the subject they get their names in the paper.)

Housewives who like their home-making jobs and, whether they realize it or not, are looking down their noses at married women who work because they want desperately to feel superior to them and to make their husbands think they are superior.

Old maids who have given up the hope of marrying, and feel that they could have a better chance of getting somewhere in their business or profession if all the married women were removed from competition.

Young women, just out of school, who think that if all the married women were kicked out of their jobs the jobs would fall to them.

Aside from the fact that anything which hurts one group of women is a bad thing for women as a class, these near-sighted women ought to realize that:

A woman in politics stands to lose in the end if women are discriminated against in any way.

The very housewife who wants to close office doors to married women may some day desperately need a job herself.

The old maid may actually find a husband, if a potential one knows she can keep her job and help support the marriage.

Like Cutting off Noses to Spoil Their Faces
The young girl may very likely fall in love with a young professional man and find that whether or not they can be married while they are still young depends on just one thing. Will or will not the firm she works for let her keep her job?

Women are women all their lives. That is one class they can't step out of. And they are dumb indeed when they disregard such an obvious fact to help men give women an economic kick down hill.

DO MAKE-UP MAGIC WITH TRICKY NEW COSMETICS

New beauty preparations, featuring midsummer cosmetics counters these days, are interesting enough to make the average shopper forget the heat and resolve to try to be more glamorous, hot weather or no.

There is, for instance, a new compact which might very well be put under some sort of "nearest trick of the month" heading. In addition to rouge and a compartment for loose powder, of course, it contains a tiny well of cleansing pads, and the clasp turns out to be a lipstick. In other words, with this in your purse, removing stale makeup and applying a fresh coat is no problem at all—no matter where you are.

Furthermore, in the box with the all-purpose compact, is a large jar of the cleansing pads to keep on your dressing table. When necessary, replenish the supply for the well from the jar. The lotion with which the pads are saturated is non-drying.

To wear with navy blue, navy green, black, white, beige and gray, a well-known cosmetics firm is featuring rouge and lipstick in a clear, true red. They maintain that it illuminates the complexion as neither blue-red nor orange-red can do, and is fresh and youthful looking.

Later on, with harvest wine, plum, royal blue, Bordeaux rouge, marine green and various winy browns, the same firm will advocate butyrdy rouge and lipstick. With medium blue, royal blue, raspberry pink and purplish rose, which you may be wearing now and later, deep orchid (a very fuchsia tone) is recommended.

Another well-known firm, makers of smart nail polish and manicure sets, is featuring a sweet little, amazingly reasonably priced manicure kit. Containing a bottle of oily remover, an orange stick, a couple of emergency boards and a bottle of polish in any one of a number of chic shades, it is especially handy for the frazzled woman who makes a practice of changing nail polish at least once between regular weekly manicures.

YOUR POISE IS SHAKY IF COMPLIMENTS UPSET YOU

You've been a good girl about sticking to your diet, brushing your hair and keeping the polish on your nails. And you've really learned to put into practice the rules you read about buying clothes to suit your type and figure. You're chic these days. Others think so, too, because they tell you.

However, are you quite sure that they have as high an opinion of your smartness after they have complimented you as they had before? Think carefully. If you never have learned to accept compliments charmingly, then the answer is no. Chic or smartness, after all, has to do with you, your manners and mannerisms, as well as with your makeup and clothes. She who says, "Why, I can't imagine why you like this," when someone finishes telling her how nice her new hat is, probably has her lack of poise. And there's no chic without poise.

If you don't know how to accept compliments charmingly, it's high time you learned. Being brusque, almost to the point of rudeness, simply to cover up embarrassment, is a little sad but not exactly excusable.

Just Practice Accepting Praise
The ideal way to get into the habit of accepting compliments, thus making the payer of them feel pretty good in return, is to practice with a member of your family or some good friend who won't think you're silly just because you want to correct a fault. Let her tell you how nice you look over and over until you can say, "Thanks so much. I'm glad you think so," without feeling embarrassed or looking it.

The only other method is to have two-way conversations with yourself while standing in front of a mirror. Either method will work if you stick to it, firm in your determination to be a poised individual who can look and act as gracious as you really are inside.

American Dressmakers Set Fall Modes Without Awaiting Nod From Paris Salons

Without waiting to hear "what Paris reports" or what the stars of Hollywood or the titled ladies of London will see, like and buy, New York's Seventh Avenue, the largest manufacturing centre of women's clothing in the world, presents its fall and winter collections.

The town's many showrooms are filled with buyers from all over the country, and from other countries, too.

Glances Behind the Curtains.
From between the drawn curtains that lead to the dressing rooms come the tall, slender models, wearing the original models, copies of which will be sold from coast to coast. This fall, the general impression gathered goes something like this:

Important! Skirts short, but modestly so. Femininity the keynote look replaces schoolgirl effects. The short fur jacket practically a must in any wardrobe. All fabrics more luxurious. Shoes getting higher, gloves longer, stockings lighter and sheerer. The silhouette of the hour: slim-waisted with high bosom and rounded hips. Bustles everywhere.

Fabrics . . . Silk and rayon jersey, bengaline, faille, tie silks, taffeta, crepes in odd and interesting weaves, and sheer, pastel woolsens for daytime. Taffeta stiff uphustery materials, velvet, glittering metallics, sheer wools and rich, mossy crepes for evening. Needlepoint weaves, rough-textured woolsens and fairly smooth tweeds for daytime coats.

Colors . . . Black leading, with brown a close second. Autumn-leaf red, olive green, purple, garnet, gray and navy. Black and white checks, all pastels and a variety of plaids featured.

Dresses . . . The bustle silhouette, achieved by huge bows, shirred or ruffled peplums and intricate draping at the back. Ruffled aprons that make for the desired flat-stomach look and the back-fullness effect. Long bodices to which ultra-full skirts are attached. Slim skirts as well as flaring ones. The balanced silhouette—for example, cartridge pleats in back of skirt repeated in front of bodice. Skirt, back and sleeves of one fabric with waistcoat front of another.

Coats . . . Lavishly fur-trimmed for daytime, fur-lined for sports. Fitted and flared, or straight-hanging with back pleats, or raglan-shouldered and loose. The bloused-back silhouette with dolman sleeves and flared skirt. Dressy fur-trimmed reefer.

Suits . . . Jackets boxy, fitted short, long, medium. Skirts slim or subtly pleated or flared—but not in the "little girl" manner. The costume suit including dress and jacket. Town tweeds, soft finish wools and, for early wear, bengalines, faille and taffeta. The swallow-tail suit.

Evening Gowns . . . Bustles and more bustles! Crinoline types. The formal shirtwaister of luxurious fabric. Sequins and gold embroidery for trimming. Picture gowns of softly tinted brocades.

Afternoon Dresses . . . Sometimes frivolous, often luxurious, this fall vastly important. Hemline trimmings. Gold embroidered and headed details stressed. Stunning materials. Back fullness. Draped waistlines. Balanced back and front fullness. Black broadcloth, moire, bengaline and duvetyne featured in all dressy daytimers.

Hats . . . Deeper crowns. (Many of them actually stay on the head without benefit of rubber band or snood or strap.) Turbans, pillboxes, berets and postilion shapes. Visor brims and forward-jutting quills. Towering effects, achieved by means of wired bows. Feather trimmings in profusion. New half-moon which covers back of hair but not rimlet ends. Velvet, softest felts, bengaline. Poined crowns and softly draped ones.

His clothes are tweedy, and if he can't live at a good address (he usually can't) he tries to make his way of living "amusing" in his talk. When he entertains, he does it at the best places—even if he has to economize for months afterwards.

He is impressed by names, money, position—and usually by snootiness. He reasons that if a person is snooty enough he must be worth knowing.

He identifies himself with the wealthy. Never has he admitted to himself that he is nothing more or less than a $40-a-week clerk, and that the logical girl for him to marry is the girl at the next desk who would know how to get along on his salary.

Maybe it's just as well—for the girl at the next desk has her eye on a young man who didn't go to the right school, has never met the right people, and has a toe hold on the success ladder, instead of the social ladder.

PIQUANT HERBAL JELLIES GROW POPULAR IN U.S., AT LAST

Herbs, either fresh from the garden or dried and packaged, produce those special jellies which make such welcome gifts. Herbal jellies have been used in England for centuries and now Americans are beginning to realize how good they are.

Dried Herb Jelly
(Makes about 4 medium-sized glasses)

One cup herb infusion (using either rosemary, thyme, sage, tarragon or majoram), 1-4 cup vinegar, 3 cups sugar, coloring, 1-2 bottle fruit pectin.

Place 1-4 cups boiling water over 2 tablespoons dried herbs. Cover. Stand fifteen minutes. Strain to remove herbs.

Measure infusion into 3-quart saucepan, adding water if necessary, to make one cup. Add vinegar and sugar and mix.

Place over hottest fire and while mixture is coming to boil, add coloring to give desired shade. Use coloring which fruit acids do not fade. As soon as mixture boils, add fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 1-2 minutes. Then immediately remove from fire, skim and pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once.

Red Currant Mint Jelly
(Makes about 11 glasses of 6 fluid ounces each)

Fresh mint from the field or garden gives a delicate herbal flavor to jellies.

Five cups (2 1-2 pounds) juice, 7 cups (3 pounds) sugar, 1-2 bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare juice, crush about 4 pounds fully ripe red currants. Mash mint. Do not remove leaves from stems. Measure one cup of mint, solidly packed. Add mint and 1 cup water to crushed currants. Bring to boil and simmer, covered, for ten minutes.

Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to boil over hottest fire and at once add pectin, stir-

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

Skinny, The Human Ostrich

TELL us a story, Uncle Bill!" Carl and John Towner, cousins, had been playing catch. Mr. Towner, Carl's father, had been sitting on the porch reading a newspaper, but the fast-gathering twilight had caused him to put it aside and watch the boys as they tossed a ball to and fro. Growing tired of the game, the boys approached the porch. It was John who voiced the plea for a story.

"A story, eh?" replied Mr. Towner. "Oh, go along and play catch. It will do you a heap more good."

"Aw, we are tired playing catch, dad," said Carl. "Now's just the time to tell stories."

"Yes, please do, Uncle Bill," begged John.

"You boys are a nuisance," Mr. Towner said, and he pulled his chair around so he could put his feet upon the railing, threw his head back and studied a moment.

"Well, boys, what shall it be about?"

"Baseball," replied John, who was a devoted baseball fan.

"Yes, make it a baseball story," said Carl.

"All right, boys. Then you must give closest attention."

Mr. Towner scratched his head, screwed his mouth out of shape and winced as if undecided where to begin.

"Ostriches," he commenced very slowly, "can kick powerfully hard. They have very strong muscles. That's what makes them run so fast. But the queerest thing is that when pursued they will stick their heads in the sand and imagine that no one can see them."

The boys looked at each other, flabbergasted.

"Aw, dad!" protested Carl. "We want to hear a baseball story. We don't care for ostriches. We learn about such things at school."

"That's all right, son," replied Mr. Towner. "Just hold your horses. This is a baseball story and I just want you to remember that fact about the ostriches. It is necessary to my story."

Carl and John began to feel that Mr. Towner was playing a joke on them, but said nothing and listened attentively.

"Well, now, if you'll remember what I said about ostriches," continued Mr. Towner, "we'll proceed. Skinny Brown was a pitcher on the Cloverhill Club. He was just an ordinary pitcher and managed to win about half his games. The season was almost over when Skinny and some other members of the club went out to the park one morning. To pass away the time they stopped at each of the cages, viewing the various animals with much amusement hospital within three days. When the players asked him how he felt he replied that he never felt better in his life, though he admitted he did feel a little queer in his head sometimes.

"Skinny returned to the ball field but did not pitch for a few days, for the manager said he wanted Skinny to be fully recovered before he started a game. To keep his arm in shape, Skinny pitched to the second-string catcher, warning up in case one of the pitchers should 'aviate.' You boys know what 'aviate' means, don't you?"

"Sure," replied Carl, confidently. "It means being pounded all over the lot."

It was evident that both boys knew baseball to perfection.

"The queer part of it was," continued Mr. Towner, "that the catcher who did the receiving for Skinny in the warming pen complained to the pitcher that he was throwing too hard."

"What's the use of putting so much speed on the ball?" asked the catcher. "If you throw like this in practice you'll not have enough steam to start a game."

"I'm not throwing hard," replied Skinny. "I'm just lobbing them over."

"And Skinny meant it. He was actually throwing easy, but for some mysterious reason his arm had grown powerfully strong and he was able to throw a ball with unusual speed, even when not exerting himself. The catcher thought Skinny was joking when he said he was not throwing hard. So the manager did not hear of it."

"About a week after he had been out of the hospital Skinny started a game. It was with the Rock Hall team. Well, to get to the heart of the matter, Skinny found himself pitching the best game of his life. Both Cloverhill catchers had retired claiming that Skinny's twirling was too hot for them to handle. The manager himself, who used to catch in his playing days, took up the receiving, though he could scarcely hold Skinny's delivery. Skinny struck out man after man and didn't allow a single hit."

"But the other pitcher was doing fine work, too, and the Cloverhill players had been unable to get a run around. Unfortunately Rock Hall had scored two runs without a hit, both runs being due to past balls and dropped third strikes. As a result, the home fans were bewailing their hard luck when Cloverhill came to bat in the ninth inning two runs behind."

"The first man up cracked out a single to right. The next man sacrificed. Skinny was up next and responded with a crash double to center. He was advanced to third on an infield out. Now let Skinny tell the rest himself:

"I felt that queer sensation in my head. For some reason or other I got the idea I was an ostrich. As I waited at third I felt like eating the sack, sawdust and all. Jimmy, the next man up, beat out a safe hit to second. As I started for home, the second baseman shot the ball to the catcher. I saw him waiting there with the ball, so I ran back toward third and the baseman had the ball there waiting for me. When I saw myself surrounded by the enemy I just naturally was scared plum crazy. So what did I do but kneel down and try to poke my head in the sand that filled the running path? Oh, Oh, I'll never forget it!"

"So you can imagine how badly Skinny felt, losing the ball game 2 to 1, just because he acted like an ostrich."

"What became of Skinny?" asked John, who had been much impressed with the story.

"Oh, he's still pitching, but he's quit trying to be an ostrich, both in arm and head."

There was silence a few seconds. Presently Carl said to his cousin:

"Do you believe that story, John?"

"No, I don't. Do you, Uncle Bill?"

"Oh, come now, boys. Next time we go to Cloverhill I'll take you out to the zoo and show you the very ostrich. Now run along and don't bother me."

"A pound of weight, you know. Limbs I have, but I never walk. On the good old earth below."

"Ostriches," he commenced very slowly, "can kick powerfully hard. They have very strong muscles. That's what makes them run so fast. But the queerest thing is that when pursued they will stick their heads in the sand and imagine that no one can see them."

The boys looked at each other, flabbergasted.

He was just an ordinary pitcher and managed to win about half his games. The season was almost over when Skinny and some other members of the club went out to the park one morning. To pass away the time they stopped at each of the cages, viewing the various animals with much amusement hospital within three days. When the players asked him how he felt he replied that he never felt better in his life, though he admitted he did feel a little queer in his head sometimes.

"Skinny returned to the ball field but did not pitch for a few days, for the manager said he wanted Skinny to be fully recovered before he started a game. To keep his arm in shape, Skinny pitched to the second-string catcher, warning up in case one of the pitchers should 'aviate.' You boys know what 'aviate' means, don't you?"

"Sure," replied Carl, confidently. "It means being pounded all over the lot."

It was evident that both boys knew baseball to perfection.

A SUMMER PICNIC!

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

YELLOW-haired Susie May and BROWN-haired Teddy are having a picnic on the nice GREEN grass. The tall BROWN trunks spread their GREEN leaves overhead to make a cool shady spot. The sky is bright BLUE without one cloud.

The Stream

SOMETIMES I love to sit and dream Beside the little grassy stream That runs below the house and goes To where I'm sure nobody knows. Beneath the maple's arching roots Its shallow tinkling current shoots. Beneath the ferns as tall as me, And then goes looking for the sea.

Just where I sit magnolias bloom And scent the pale-green leafy gloom, And sunlight tries in vain to send Its rays the coolness there to end. Out thro' a leafless branch I still Can see my house up on the hill. And watch the smoke-wreaths float in crowds Up from the kitchen to the clouds.

Above my head the catbirds' nest Holds four blue eggs—I think it's best That I should guard it day by day To keep the big black snake away. Last year he robbed the nest, and oh, The little birds were sad I know. But they have nothing now to fear For I will guard their home so dear.

And while on duty I remain Of weariness I can't complain, So many friends keep watch with me I'm happy as a child can be. Sometimes the frogs in green and brown Hop from the stream and nestle down Close by, and sometimes from his tower The crayfish watches for an hour.

Oh, how I love to sit and dream Beside the little grassy stream! I'm sure until it finds the sea The little stream remembers me. Perhaps it tells the ocean, too, About the little fellow who So often spends among its flow's The dreamy, drowsy summer hours.

Dogdays and Dogs

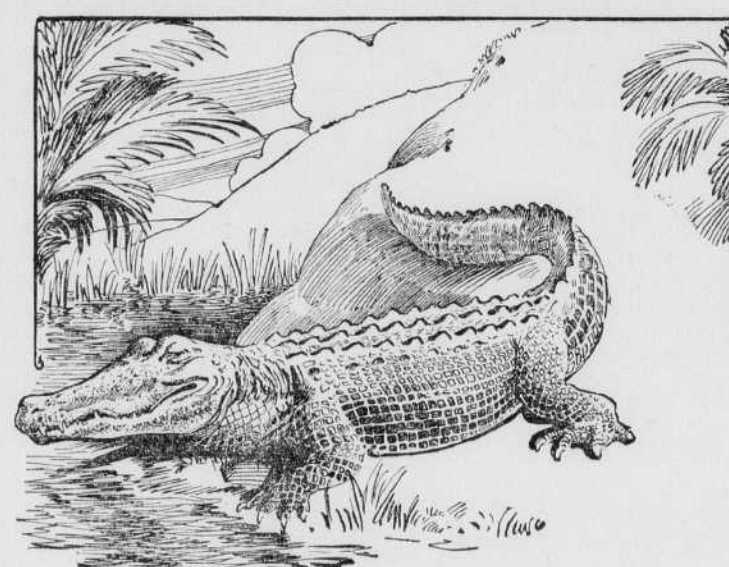

MANY people associate the dog-days of midsummer with dogs mad and otherwise. The truth of the thing, however, is that dogs and dogdays have nothing to do with each other.

The origin of the name of this stretch of hot weather is connected with Sirius, the Dog Star, rather than with the dogs of the earth. The use of the name came about from the fact that ancient astronomers figured that during this period the Dog Star rose in the heaven each day at the same time the sun rose. The fact that the two rose at the same time was regarded as responsible for the sultry heat of summer and for the illness resulting. Originally the period was called "canicular days," and the word canicular being derived from the Latin word "canis," meaning dog.

The word "dog" plays an important part in the English language. "Dogged" means "with obstinate resolution," as indicating that a person sticks to a thing as persistently as a dog. The verb "to dog," means "to hunt or track like a hound." "Dog-eared," as applied to a book, indicates that the leaves are turned down from careless use, their appearance suggesting the drooping ears of a dog. A "dogcart" was so called because this form of vehicle was first used by English sportsmen, and had a box at the back for carrying dogs. "Throwing things to the dogs" and "going to the dogs" are slang terms which have come into good usage.

THE JUNIOR COOK

SPAGHETTI WITH MEAT

Put one teaspoonful of butter into a frying pan and when thoroughly hot add a sliced onion and fry to a light brown. Cut one pound of chuck steak and three slices of bacon into short lengths.

Put in with the onion and cook for five minutes. Now, add a can of tomatoes and cook until the meat is tender. Take care the contents of the pot do not burn. No water is added because a good deal of gravy cooks out of the meat. In the meantime put spaghetti into boiling slightly salted water and boil for twenty minutes.

Drain off the water and lay half of the spaghetti upon a large platter. Over this pour half the contents of the pot and sprinkle a little grated cheese over all. Add the remainder of the spaghetti then the meat and gravy and serve very hot. When the meat is about half done season with salt and a little red pepper. A few mushrooms are an improvement, but the dish will be delicious without them.

Stinging Trees

In the southern part of Formosa grows a tree about ten feet in height having long leaves which possess the property of the nettle and produce a maddening irritation of the skin when incautiously touched. The natives call it "chiao-jen-kou," meaning "man-biting dog." Scientists who have made a study of the tree have renamed it the "viper tree."

There is another species of stinging tree in Australia which attains a height of fifteen feet, and the effect of whose touch appears to be even more maddening to men and animals. Horses stung by it have to be shot, and dogs when affected by the poison of the leaves run about whining and biting themselves.

A MENAGERIE

Bobbie and his playmates have planned to start a menagerie when they grow up, and have drawn a plan of the enclosures for seven animals. Not being very well acquainted with the circus business, they have mixed up domestic and wild animals in their plans. However, you are to draw straight lines connecting the little points shown on the border lines, in such a way that you will have seven enclosures, each one containing letters which, when properly arranged, will spell the name of an animal. What are they?

NOTED BRITISH MUSICIAN MAY SEEK ELECTION

Sir Thomas Beecham, Taking Rest from Musical Activities, May Turn to Politics as Relaxation from Orchestra Conducting.

London, Aug. 5.—Sir Thomas Beecham—part of his fortune comes from pills—is taking a year's rest from musical activities because his doctors believe it would be a good idea. Sir Thomas, conductor at Covent Garden, admits he has been overworking for ten years.

The famous conductor said he would spend part of the next year out of Britain, "for reasons both of health and the preservation of my sanity." He admitted he was seriously considering the invitation of "certain people in the political world" to enter politics. How serious were his intentions could not be learned as he told reporters who asked him whom he would support: "I cannot see myself as likely to support anything in our present social and political life."

The sixty-year-old warhorse of the concert and opera stages, said he proposed to carry on but not conduct opera at Covent Garden next winter, "to give the public an opera season, although, frankly, I don't think it deserves one." He said he attributed the poor support of the past season less to lack of public taste than "to its condition of moral collapse."

Sir Thomas explained: "The public has not yet recovered from that contemptible condition of nervous prostration caused by the entirely anticipated events of last autumn and this autumn. 'Sooner or later,' he continued, 'this country will recover its sanity and its lost manhood and will realize that the beatings and blatherings of fourth-rate foreign journalists and all the machinery and flummery of a transparently despairing propaganda are nothing more than a gigantic but silly, childish bluff.'"

Antarctica Again Takes Stagelight

Berkeley, Calif., August 5.—(AP)—

Antarctica, the frozen continent at the bottom of the world, came before the spotlight of an international scientific group yesterday.

Explorers, geologists and other participants in the Pacific Science Congress here reviewed discovery claims dating back as far as 1820, discussed theories as to Antarctica's possible physical connection with other continents and exchanged views on its potential usefulness in the future.

Antarctica has been coming in for public notice with increasing frequency. Less than a month ago President Roosevelt commissioned Rear Admiral Byrd to head another expedition into the South Polar region. Several other countries have shown renewed interest.

Dr. Bahrne Aagaard, of Stavanger, Norway, told the Science Congress it never had been definitely established who discovered Antarctica.

On the basis of available information, the first person known to have reached the continent, was John Biscoe, a Briton credited with the discovery of Enderby Land in February, 1831.

Dr. Aagaard reviewed the explorations and alleged discoveries of Dirk Gerritz in 1599; Bransfield in January, 1820; Palmer in November, 1821; Bellingshausen, in January, 1821, and Briscoe in 1831.

FINE SERMONS ARE DELIVERED AT SCOTSTOWN

Rev. E. A. W. Godwin, of Gaspe, Preaches in St. Alban's Church—Dr. Kenneth MacLennan Heard in United Church.

Scottstown, Aug. 5.—Rev. E. A. W. Godwin, of Gaspe, preached in St. Alban's Church here before a large and responsive congregation. Rev. Mr. Godwin took as his text the eighth verse of Matthew, twenty-fifth chapter, "Our lamps are going out," and entitled his sermon the "Falling Lamp".

He brought out clearly the dangers of letting the lamp of faith grow dim, pointing out how the lamp of religion was burning low in many lands.

"Many," he said "say the churches are failing. It is not the churches but the people who make up the churches that have failed or are failing." He dealt with the light of error with skill and forcefulness, and his sermon impressed the congregation.

The congregation of St. Andrew's United Church listened with interest to the speaker there, Dr. Kenneth MacLennan, of Toronto, who conducted the services in the absence of the pastor, Rev. C. J. Gustafson. The text for Dr. MacLennan's sermon was taken from the fifteenth verse of the second chapter of First John, "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him."

The speaker stressed the need for Christian service and faith and pointed out that the one great quality in the Kingdom of God is humility.

A solo, "Near To The Heart of God," was sung by Mr. S. J. Scott. The beautiful flowers on the communion table were placed there by Miss Mary Black in memory of her brother, Herbert Black, who passed away July 28, 1932.

After the service Dr. MacLennan, after an absence of several years, was welcomed by many friends, a number attending the service from where he was pastor of Chalmers United Church for a lengthy period.

It was reported that valuation roll for 1939 had been homologated and the secretary was instructed to prepare the collection roll for September 1. THREE RIVERS CAPTURED FIFTH STRAIGHT

Saints Downed Quebec By Score Of Four-Two

St. Hyacinthe Remains Game and a Half Behind Leading Three Rivers Squad, Which Chalked Up Eight-Four Win Over Drummondville Yesterday.

Now that Three Rivers finally has captured the lead in the Provincial Baseball League after watching St. Hyacinthe from second place for about a month, the Trifluvians seem in no particular hurry to depart with it.

It took a winning streak of three games for Three Rivers to oust the Saints and since then they've added two more victories to the string. The Trifluvians won their fifth straight yesterday, beating Drummondville Tigers, 8-4 at home. The Saints also won at home meantime when they took a 4-2 victory from Quebec Athletics but remained a game and a half behind the leaders.

Three Rivers whalloped 13 hits off three Drummondville hurlers for the decision over the cellar-dwellers. Red Hoffman, Henry Bloch and George Andrews each batted three safeties to pace the attack.

Three Rivers notched four runs in the initial frame, one each in the second and third, and another two in the fourth. Hank O'Leary was the winning hurler, relieving Coppel when Tigers rallied for four runs in the third.

At St. Hyacinthe, pitcher Bob Swan banged out a double in the second inning that drove in two runs, providing the margin of victory in his win over Quebec. The Saints already had counted one run in the frame and added another in the third.

Swan allowed ten hits on the mound but scattered them so well that Quebec were scoreless for eight frames, notching both in the final inning.

The line scores:
Quebec, 000 000 002—2 10 1
St. Hyacinthe 031 000 000—4 6 1
Duncan, Browning and Jones; Swan and O'Flaherty.
Drummondville 004 000 004—4 2 3
Three Rivers 411 200 008—8 13 3
Tracola, Sullivan, Smith and Castiglia; Coppel, O'Leary and Pickens.

Hank Winston Of Granby Sox Tops Provincial Hurlers

Montreal, August 5. — (P) — If Henry (Hank) Winston, of Granby Red Sox, hopes to pitch in faster company next year he probably won't have much trouble convincing managers that at least he deserves a trial. For Hank is tops in the Provincial Baseball League hurling corps right now, according to statistics released today by President Jean Barrette.

Winston has won eleven and lost four for Red Sox, compiling an average of 733 per cent. He has struck out 73 and walked 47. Joe Dickinson, of Three Rivers, follows close on the Granby Hurler's heels with eight wins and three losses. Ted Veach, of St. Hyacinthe, and Fred Browning of Quebec, occupy the next two berths.

In the batters' division, Larry Fisher, of Sherbrooke, is setting the pace with a .382. Walter Ringhofer, Mike Pociask and Joe Cicero, all of St. Hyacinthe, following that order with averages ranging from .350 to .336. Paul Martin, leading the League with 66 hits, is in a five-way tie for fifth position.

CAGER BREAKS LEG

Milwaukee—Erwin (Moose) Graf, centre and co-captain of Marquette's 1939-40 basketball team, is in a hospital with a compound fracture of his left leg, received while working in a local brewery.

BAER'S FRIENDS

Sacramento — Max Baer says the best thing boxing did for him was to give him two real friends: his manager, Ancil Hoffman, and Jack Dempsey.

McCULLOUGH TAKES WHIZ WHITE'S POST

Pittsburgh—Convinced that Whizzer White of Colorado will remain a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, John Blood, coach of the Pittsburgh professional football Pirates, plans to plug the vacant left halfback position with Hugh McCullough, triple-threat star of Oklahoma.

SCHMELING COOLS OFF

New York—Max Schmeling's enthusiasm for regaining the heavyweight championship has cooled since he was informed by Promoter Mike Jacobs that he must defeat Tony Galento, Lou Nova and Bob Pastor to earn the right to meet Joe Louis again.

NOS-D OUT

Washington—Washington already has lost more than twenty games this season by one run.

Boston Red Sox suspected they had lost Jim Tabor in the spring of last year. Neither Postmaster General Farley's rural agents nor the telegraph companies could locate New Hope, Ala., where Tabor resides. The fiery 180-pound boy with the bullet arm intends to return to Tuscaloosa and make up the credits required for a degree.

James Rueben Tabor was a crack running guard for Alabama, but he had the baseball fever. Offered a contract by Little Rock, he quit school.

Joe Cronin wished he had lost Tabor when third baseman reported. Collegian had hitch in swing. He had no idea where ball was going when he threw.

But Tabor, a right-hand batter who hits ball savagely and on line, found himself in Minneapolis, finished strong with Hub entry, and has performed well this season. No third sacker covers wider range. Cronin is confident his find will not let club down in stretch. He nominates the six-foot three-inch lad as recruit of the year.

Durable Bucky Walters Hurls Reds To Victory

Brooklyn Dodgers Bow 5-3 as Cincinnati Mound Ace Chalks Up Nineteenth Win—St. Louis Cards Run Winning Streak to Six Straight with 13-Inning Triumph Over Phillies—Yankees Best Cleveland.

(By Judson Bailey, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Lots of people have been waiting for Cincinnati Reds to crack but by now it ought to be clear the only cracking the Reds care to do is crack a whip over the rest of the National League.

With the durable Bucky Walters in the saddle last night the Reds ripped through Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-3, and quickly rinsed away the bad taste of a pair of losses to New York Giants earlier in the week.

It was Walters' 19th victory, his second within a week and his eighth straight. With this kind of a pitching rock for ballast it's hard to conceive of Cincinnati capsizing.

The second-place St. Louis Cardinals, coursed from behind to beat the Phillies 9-8, in thirteen innings, for their sixth successive triumph.

After spotting the tail-enders a seven-run advantage, the Redbirds finally flew into action. Ducky Medwick doubled home the tying run in the ninth inning and then pounded the winning tally across with another double in the fourth extra stanza.

Another extra-inning contest was the eleven-frame affair which the Giants gave to Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-2. After Mel Ott had hit his twentieth home run of the season with a mate aboard in the first, Harry Gumbert lost control in the seventh, walked in one run and left the bases filled for another score on a double play.

Claude Passeau bested Lou Fette in a tight pitching battle at Chicago with the Cubs nosing out the Bees, 1-0. Passeau gave only four hits and no bases on balls.

New York Yankees greeted Cleveland with a 5-4 victory, thirteenth in fifteen games with the Indians this year. Ora Hildebrand and Marvius Russo gave the Tribe a five-hit diet.

Washington Senators extended their winning streak to five games with a 6-1 ten-inning triumph over Chicago White Sox. The winning run was scored when a couple of the Sox outfielders lost a fly in the sun.

Opening a series at Philadelphia, St. Louis Browns broke their losing streak with a 3-1 victory at the expense of the Athletics. The Red Sox game was postponed to make a Sunday doubleheader.
