THE VOTE ON REFERENDUM

Result of Voting in Ontario Thursday

Majority Favor the Act,
But Required Number of Votes Not Secured.

Toronto, December 4.—With every incomplete returns from all constituencies and in a few instances, none at all, the vote on the referendum now stands as follows:—

For ..... 105,855
Against ..... 65,182

Majority for ..... 30,673

One of the surprising features of the contest was the heavy vote polled in Toronto, 27,930 ballots being cast, a majority of 4,564 of which were in favor of the act. In most of the cities the vote was only about two-thirds of that polled at the general election of 1897.

The liquor Act of 1902 could only have become effective by 212,823 electors having voted in its favor. This number was the majority of the votes cast in the provincial elections of 1898. That the task was not easy of accomplishment is apparent by a review of the polling at the two previous elections.

In 1894 it was decided to take a plebiscite in connection with the municipal elections. The vote cast was a very heavy one—192,489 years. These included the votes of 12,402 women.

In 1898 there was another plebiscite, this time under the direction of the Dominion Government. The vote in Ontario was 151,459 in favor of prohibition. The women's vote was missing and it was a significant loss.

The vote cast in the provincial elections in 1898 was a very large one, reaching 425,455. The bare majority is 212,723. The vote of 1894 (when the women exercised the franchise), fell 20,234 below what was required this time, and the vote of 1898 was behind it over 58,000 votes.

The licensed victuals polled 110,720 votes against prohibition in the plebiscite of 1898.

ORFORD MOUNTAIN RAILWAY.

Will Be Extended To Wind-

Work On Extension Has Been Begun.

The village of Kingsbury was the subject of a sensation Wednesday morning, when, under the direction of Judge Foster, president of the Orford Mountain Railway, a gang of men appeared and began the work of extending the line towards Windsor Mills. The distance is about seven miles and when the work is completed the Orford Mountain road will have connection with the best traffic producing point on its line. It is understood that rails for the extension have been ordered in Montreal, and if the weather does not become too severe, it is expected that the work will be completed in six weeks or so. The judges, who is personally directing the work, was spoken to about the lateness of the season, but remarked the weather was the business of Providence; his business was with the Orford Mountain extension. He left the village that afternoon going along the line of the extension towards Kingsbury.

TFMISCOUATA RAILWAY.
Annual Meeting Held At Quebec.

The annual meeting of the Temiscouata Railway took place in the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, on Tuesday, Mr. Frank Grundy, president, in the chair.

The annual report and financial statement showed this railway, now controlled by the English bondholders, in good condition and favorable future prospects. The Temiscouata Railway, which runs from Riviere du Loup, over one hundred and thirteen miles of track to Connors N.B., was built some years ago by money principally borrowed from England, the interest on the bonds being guaranteed for a term of years. This guarantee elapsed two years ago, when the bondholders got control of the road, which failed to pay a dividend, and Mr. Frank Grundy, manager of the Quebec Central Railway elected president, who has ever since held the destiny of the road in trust for the bondholders. The road was in rather a bad state when he assumed control, but by careful management and rigid economy he brought it out of a threatened chaos.

The report read by Mr. D. B. Lindsay, secretary, at a meeting today, was interesting and satisfactory. It went to show that the financial part of the railway was in a much healthier condition than heretofore, though not in a position to pay a dividend. Considerable repairs to the road bed and new rails were laid during the first year, besides repairs to the ten stations along the line. The rolling stock consists of five engines, four first class and postal cars combined, four second class baggage cars, fifty platform cars, sixty box and seven refrigerator cars, while it takes one hundred men to operate the entire business. The report also showed that express trains were run from Riviere du Loup to Connors N.B. last summer, and arrangements were now completed to run fast express trains commencing next summer from Riviere du Loup to St. John, N.B., in conjunction with the Canadian Pacific Railway company.

The following gentlemen were elected at the Board of Directors for the ensuing year:—Messrs. Frank Grundy, J. H. Walsh, D. B. Lindsay, G. G. Grundy, A. Steele, W. Cook, K. C. A. H. Cook, and Noble Campbell. At a subsequent meeting Mr. Frank Grundy was re-elected president, Mr. J. H. Walsh, vice president, Mr. D. B. Lindsay, secretary and general manager, and Mr. G. G. Grundy, superintendent and engineer.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

Street Car Went Over Bridge Into the Magog River.

MOTORMAN DUBOIS FELL ABOUT 35 FEET AND IS SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Alfred Dubois, a motorman in the employ of the Sherbrooke Street Railway, is lying in the Sacred Heart Hospital seriously injured as a result of the car on which he was on going over the Wolfe street, which spans the Magog, about seven o'clock yesterday morning. Grave fears are entertained as to his recovery. The accident is one of the most serious that has befallen the road since it was installed, and happened in this way.

The rain and sleet of Wednesday night was followed by a hard frost yesterday morning, with the result that the rails of the track were covered with a coating of ice. To get a clear track before the regular cars were sent out work was begun earlier than usual, and two cars coupled together, under the direction of Superintendent Smith, with Alfred Dubois, motorman, and J. Hogan, conductor on the first car, and Motorman Roy and Conductor Cabana on the rear, left the barn shortly before six o'clock. They worked their way up through the South Ward, and reached the C.P.R. station shortly before seven o'clock. As the curve at the entrance to the bridge is not looked upon with favour by the men, as a previous accident had occurred there, Superintendent Smith, who was in the vestibule with Dubois, gave orders to apply the brakes. Both cars came on to the bridge with full power, and when the first car had reached a spot about twenty feet on the south end it suddenly jumped the track, and the roadway being coated with hard ice, the car slipped as if on skates. The sudden jerk of the front car snapped the coupling, and in an instant it was apparent that the car would go over the north side of the bridge. Motorman Dubois endeavoured to apply the reverse power, but by this time the front of the car was crashing through the wooden railing. Before the car was completely closed, and the only way of escape was by the rear door of the car. Dubois made this first, followed by Superintendent Smith. Each took a separate door, the latter on the left hand side and the former on the right. The rear end of the car was just moving off the platform of the bridge when both jumped. Mr. Smith, by the impetus of his jump, went up against a piece of the railing that was secure, and he grasped it with both hands. His body swung clear of the river side of the railing, but he succeeded in securing a foot hold, and saved himself from falling. Not so with Dubois, however. Eye witnesses state that he seemed to grasp for a moment a piece of the rail, but it was either insecure, or he could not gain his balance in time to save himself, and he fell on the rear end of the car 30 feet below, among the debris.

The car was shattered to pieces, only a portion of the roof and flooring remaining intact, and the heavy gears and wheels fell close to the water edge.

With the assistance of several parties going to work, the railway employes had Dubois removed from the wreck. In the meantime the ambulance was called and he was taken to the Sacred Heart Hospital, where he was attended by Drs. Camrond and Rioux.

It was found at the hospital that one of his arms was broken, one wrist bruised, and his face and head badly cut, while he is also suffering from internal injuries.

Motorman Dubois has been in the employ of the company for about a year, and acted as conductor until a few weeks ago. He is about 30 years of age, and has a wife and one child, having been married about the time he joined the company.

The scene of the accident was witnessed by many people during the day. The company immediately had men employed clearing away the wreck, and they will remove the gearing to the car station.

It was a most fortunate thing that there were no passengers on board, for had there been the result would have been awful as no one would have come out of the wreck alive. While the cars were proceeding through the South Ward, Superintendent Smith would not allow some passengers to get on board as he did not know how long it would be before they could make the circuit. These passengers certainly have reason to be thankful that they were not allowed to board the car.

DUBOIS IMPROVING.

The word received from the hospital this morning states that Motorman Dubois passed a good night. Last evening the doctors reduced his fractured arm, and they express the opinion that he will recover.

Below this in Philemon's hand: My wife is superstitious. Strong and capable as she is, she has felt that this sudden taking off of our firstborn as a sign that certain words uttered by her on her marriage day, unhappily known to you and, as I take it, to James also, have been remembered by the righteous God above us.

After this a gap of years. One, two, three, four, five children were laid away to rest in Porchester churchyard, then Philemon and she came to Sutherlandtown, but not till after the certain event had occurred, best made known by this last letter to Philemon:

DEAREST HUSBAND—Our babe is born, our sixth and our dearest, and the reproach of its first look had to be met by me alone. Oh, why did I leave you and come to this great Boston, where I have no friends but Mrs. Sutherland? Did I think I could break the spell of fate or Providence by giving birth to my last darling among strangers?

I shall have to do something more than that if I would save this child to our old age. It is borne in upon me like fate that never will a child prosper of my breast or survive the clasp of my arms.

Meanwhile I did not dare to kiss the child lest I should blight it. He is so sturdy, Philemon, so different from all the other five.

The next letter opens with a cry: Philemon! Come to me, Philemon!

I have done what I threatened. I have made the sacrifice. Our child is no longer ours, and now perhaps he may live. But, oh, my breaking heart, my empty home! Help me to bear my consolation, for it is for life. We will never have another child. And where is it? Ah, that is the wonder of it! Near you, Philemon, yet not too near. Mrs. Sutherland has it, and you may have seen its little face through the car window if you were in the station last night when the express passed through to Sutherlandtown.

some black again, and the story of my shame is forgotten in this never forgetting world. When come back and I will forgive you."

And he was passing on when another touch detained him. He turned, this time in some impatience, only to meet the frank eyes of Sweetwater. As he knew very little of this young man save that he was the amateur detective who had by some folly of his own been carried off on the Hesper and who was probably the only man saved from its wreck he was about to greet him with some commonplace phrase of congratulation when Sweetwater interrupted him with the following words:

"I only wanted to say that it may be easier for you to approach your father with the revelations you are about to make if you knew that in his present frame of mind he is much more likely to be relieved by such proofs of innocence as you can give him than overwhelmed by such a show of the lack of kinship between you."

"Yes, by me. I am more closely linked to this affair than you can readily imagine. Some day I may be able to explain myself, but not now. Only remember what I have said about your father—pardon me, Mr. Sutherland—and act accordingly. Perhaps it was to tell you this I was forced back here against my will and best interest by the strongest series of events that ever happened to a man. But," he added, with a sidelong look at the group of men still hovering about the coroner's table, "I had rather think it was for some more important office still. But this the future will show, the future which I seem to see lowering in the faces over there."

Frederick passed at once to his father. No one interrupted Frederick after he had shut that door behind him, but the large crowd that in the halls and on the steps of the building awaited his reappearance showed that the public interest was still warm in a matter affecting so deeply the heart and interests of their best citizen. When, therefore, that long closed door finally opened and Frederick was seen escorting Mr. Sutherland on his arm, the tide of feeling which had not yet subsided since Agatha's letters were read vented itself in one great sob of relief, for Mr. Sutherland's face was calmer than when he had last seen it and his step more assured, and he leaned or made himself lean on Frederick's arm, as if to impress upon all who saw them that the ties of years cannot be shaken off so easily and that he still looked upon Frederick as his son.

But he was not contented with this dumb show, eloquent as it was. As the crowd parted and these two imposing figures took their way down the steps to the carriage which had been sent for them Mr. Sutherland cast one deep and long glance about him on faces he knew and faces he did not know, on those who were near and those who were far, and, raising his voice, which did not tremble as much as might have been expected, said deliberately:

"My son accompanies me to his home. If he should afterward be wanted, he will be found at his own residence. Good day, my friends. I thank you for the good will you have this day shown us both."

Then he entered the carriage. The solemn way in which Frederick bared his head in acknowledgment of this public recognition of the hold he still retained on the hearts of all who saw it, so that the carriage rolled off in silence, closing one of the most thrilling and impressive scenes ever witnessed in that time worn village.

CHAPTER XXV. FATHER AND SON. But Frederick's day of trial was not yet over. There was a closed door to open, a father to see in his heart he still called Mr. Sutherland. Then there were friends to face, and foes, under conditions no better than any one else knew were in some regards made worse rather than better by the admissions and revelations of this eventful day. Agnes, for instance, how could he meet her pure gaze? But it was his father he must first confront, his father to whom he would have to repeat in private the tale which robbed the best of men of a past and took from him a son, almost a wife, without leaving him one memory calculated to console him. Frederick was so absorbed in this anticipation that he scarcely noticed the two or three third hands stretched out in encouragement toward him and was moving slowly toward the door behind which his father had disappeared so many hours before, when he was recalled to the interests of the moment by a single word, uttered not very far from him. It was simply, "Well!" But it was uttered by Knapp and repeated by Mr. County.

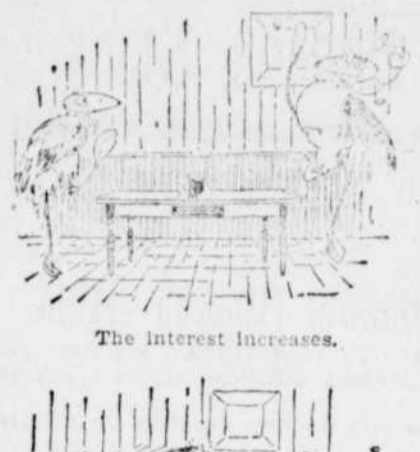

Frederick started and was hurrying on when he found himself stopped by a piteous figure that, with appealing eyes and timid gestures, stepped up before him. It was Amelia.

"Forgive!" she murmured, looking like a pleading saint. "I did not know, I never dreamed you were so much of a man. Frederick, that you bore such a heart, cherished such griefs, was so worthy of love and a woman's admiration, if I had!"

Her expression was eloquent, more eloquent than he had ever seen it, for it had real feeling in it, but he put her coldly by.

Municipal Ownership.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER.

Sir,—I notice that a municipal duel is about to be fought, in our quiet city, over the "municipal ownership principle."
The omniscient councillor, who considers Councillor Jenckes' statement as a challenge, and who accepts it as such, is again on the rampage. Look out for squalls!

As the ratepayers, who are called upon to pay the piper in the end, might like to be posted up before the deadly encounter takes place, allow me to lay a few facts before them.

A short time ago an epidemic of the same sort reached our sister city, Worcester, Mass., to have the city take over the property of the electric lighting company, and run it upon the above-named principle. As is the case here, the proposal was warmly opposed. It was argued that municipal electric lighting would in all probability be decidedly more expensive to the ratepayers than lighting by private enterprise.

To settle the question the Worcester City Council sent a circular letter to a number of cities owning their own electric plants, asking for figures on the cost of lighting on each. The result was given in a recent number of a leading publication, "The Municipal Journal."

Of plants outside the State answers were received from eight of fifty cities approached on the same subject.

The average cost of lighting per lamp hour in these, if the lamps were burned on the Worcester schedule and in the city, was 3.4 cents. This was 0.6 cents more than that paid for Worcester street arcs, which was 2.8 cents per lamp hour.

It is well to bear in mind that the municipal plants in Massachusetts were burned on the Worcester schedule and in the city, was 3.4 cents. This was 0.6 cents more than that paid for Worcester street arcs, which was 2.8 cents per lamp hour.

The average cost of street per lamp of the municipal plants in the State is 4 1/4 cents, and with two exceptions the lamps are of 300 watt capacity. In Worcester the lamps are of 500 watts. Thus to put them on the same level, it would cost 1.8 cents to equal the Worcester lamps.

As Worcester is in a neighboring State, under conditions much more favourable than ours with regard to electric plants and modern appliances, can it be seriously pretended that we can do better?

It has been said that the success of our water works, as a municipal enterprise, is an object lesson and an example. But we must not forget that water is used by every soul in our midst. Not so with electric light. How many are using it here? Very few as compared with the whole population.

Last year the lighting of our streets cost $5,072.75. Would it pay the city to invest, say between one hundred and two hundred thousand dollars, at even less than four per cent, for the sake of lighting the streets ourselves?

We are told that we might supply electric power. But where are the customers to come from? Nearly all of our leading industries have been spoon-fed, and yet they are just getting along fairly well. Would the offer of supply of power attract many more? Why, we have here the finest water power running through idle, and waiting for customers. Why don't they come?

By the way I see there is a "wild cat" scheme on the tapis in connection with the "white elephant" Basin water power. Would the promoter of that gigantic affair tell the ratepayers where the money is to come from to carry it out? Would he also inform them to what extent the credit of the city is now engaged in connection with the improvements of Strathcona Square, the new (?) City Hall, and the new (?) Court House?

He says the ratepayers have had no opportunity to vote on the question of municipal ownership as yet. Quite true. In Sherbrooke this is being decided with a huge debt, and when it becomes necessary to raise the money, the by-law required is sure to be carried by default.

There may be a day of wakening yet.

The Bye-Elections.

Government Supporters Returned in Argenteuil and Yarmouth.

The bye election in Argenteuil to fill the vacancy in the House of Commons caused by the death of the late Dr. Christie, was held on Wednesday, and resulted in the return of Mr. Thomas Christie, Liberal, son of the late member, over Mr. Perley, Conservative. The latest figures give Mr. Christie a majority of 158, with five polls to hear from, which may increase his majority.

At the last election the vote was: Dr. Christie, 1,230; W. S. Simpson, 910; majority for Dr. Christie, 320.

IN YARMOUTH COUNTY.

Halifax, N. S., December 3.—The Liberal candidate, Bowman B. Law, was today elected to represent the county of Yarmouth in the Dominion House by a majority of 818. The Liberal candidate had a majority in every one of the sections of the county but one, Yarmouth, with one exception, has been Liberal since Confederation.

At the last election the vote was: T. B. Flint, 1,750; T. E. Manning, 1,535; Majority for Flint, 215.

FIVE BURNED TO DEATH.

Mother and Four Children Burned Up With Their Dwelling.

Winnipeg, Dec. 2.—A holocaust occurred last night at the residence of a Galician family residing some distance north of Russell village. Five persons were burned to death, the mother and four children. The names are: Mrs. Hartook, aged 31; Mary Hartook, aged 9; McKay Hartook, aged 6; John Hartook, aged 6; baby Hartook, aged five months. There is some suspicion of foul play or poison. The constable and coroner are investigating.

The tragedy was not discovered until the return of the father this afternoon, when he found the partially dressed and charred bodies of wife and children on the floor of his cabin. His wife, with the baby clasped in her arms, was in an unconsumed part of the house, while the three elder children were lying under a mass of charred sticks which had fallen on them. These children were more or less burned, but the mother and baby were not marked in any way. A dog was found dead on the floor, and all the bodies remain frozen stiff.

One theory is that poison was used before the match was applied. The stomachs will be sent to Winnipeg for analysis.

The Coming Municipal Elections.

Several Names Have Been Mentioned For Centre Ward.

From the talk on the street, and from what can be learned at close range, there is every reason to believe that the contest for municipal honours in the Centre Ward will be a hot one. Several names, prominent among the French Canadian section of the community, are mentioned as probable candidates for this ward against Councillors Jenckes should be seek re-election. It is round this ward that the fight in regard to municipal ownership will centre, and judging from past events it will no doubt be a hot one. Who is coming up for Mayor is also a question. There is every reason to believe that an ex Mayor will be one of the candidates, and a successful one; that. The pot is still boiling.

E. T. Bank at St. Johns.

The Eastern Township Bank in St. Johns opened its doors for business yesterday, with Mr. Joseph McLaughlin as manager; Mr. E. H. Campbell, as accountant and Mr. Geo. Duak as teller, all gentlemen of established reputation in the service of this solid and well managed institution. The offices are situated on the corner of Richellon and St. James street, adjacent to Wight's Medical Hall, and are equipped in a manner that would do credit to the Bank of England. It is quite evident that the E. T. has come to stay, and we have no doubt that the branch will prove to be a substantial benefit to this section of the country. Mr. E. Winn Farwell, the superintendent of branch, has been here this week in connection with the business of the bank—St. Johns News.

There was a good attendance at the Y.M.C.A. Mock City Council last evening. Various matters affecting the welfare of the city were discussed. Municipal insurance was before the members, and after a lengthy discussion was voted down. The advisability of the purchase of the Westbury Basin power will be discussed at the next meeting, and a bylaw will also be introduced in connection with the sanitary and plumbing work done in the city. Much interest is being taken in these meetings as they instil an interest in municipal matter among the young men of the city.

Owing to illness Bishop Laroque was unable to attend.

TRAIN SERVICE BETWEEN

Montreal, Arthabaska, Quebec, and intermediate Stations, via Grand Trunk.

For some time past the train service between Montreal, Arthabaska, Quebec and intermediate stations during the winter months has not been as satisfactory as the Company would like to have it, although being able to do so. The amount of travel in that section justifies. But realizing the unsatisfactory condition on account of the several appeals that have been made to the Company for an improved service, the Grand Trunk has decided, on and after Sunday, Dec. 7th, to extend two of their present trains, now running only between Montreal and Arthabaska, through to and from Point Levis. This service will enable passengers leaving Montreal at 4 p.m., to reach any station between Montreal and Point Levis early in the evening. The westbound train will leave Point Levis at 8 a.m. stopping at intermediate stations and arriving at Montreal at 1 p.m.

Annual Sale and Supper.

The annual sale and supper of the Guilds of St. Faith and St. Peter took place yesterday afternoon and evening and was well patronized. Both the convent, St. Peter's congregation as well as those of the other denominations of the city. The work of the ladies of the combined guilds was placed on sale early in the afternoon and found ready purchasers at fairly good prices. At the supper in the evening the tables fairly groined with all the dainties and delicacies of the season and many were the encomiums heard about the fine spread the ladies had prepared for their patrons. The fancy work was nearly all sold before the close of the evening, and the total amount realized will reach about $150, which is to be devoted to the organ fund of the new church.

Goyette. It is hoped that all these gentlemen will see their way clear to accept the appointment, as the need of a batch of good, strong Justices of the Peace in Magog to administer the law has been long felt. By accepting and dealing out good law to disobedient law breakers they will win for themselves the unstinted praise of a peaceful neighborhood—Magog Enter prise.

The expression "watered stock," which describes so well the expansion of the stock of a company beyond the value of the property, originated, it is said, in connection with Daniel Drew, who was once the wealthiest and most unique manipulator in Wall street.

There are about 100,000,000 stars discernible through modern telescopes. In the mere matter of listing the stars there is an enormous amount of work.

A writer in the "Outlook" says of the Donkubors settled in Western Canada: "One of the few English words they know is 'grease' and upon my offering them any food, bread, for instance, they would look at it suspiciously and enquire, 'Grease?' They were afraid that lard or tallow might have been used in making the bread, and if so they would not eat it.

There they undergo a regular medical examination.

In the old days—and probably to some extent at the present day—the Scotch clergyman was very much the pastor of his flock. He looked out for the big and little needs of their souls, and also of their bodies.

Gloomy Predictions In Moore's Almanac.

Old Moore's Almanac for the first six months of 1903 has just been published in London, and some very gloomy predictions appear in it. In January, it says, there will be troubles in the east and a conspiracy in Ireland; in February there will be trouble and bloody riots in Spain; in March and Great Britain and Spain will meet with serious losses, the former in the Transvaal and at the Cape, and the latter at home; in April there will be political assassinations in England, furious conflicts in China and conspire in Turkey; in May there will be a famine in India and a civil war in Spain, and in June a prosperous epoch will begin for England and one of misfortune for Germany.

RUTS

The walking sick, what a crowd of them there are! Persons who are thin and weak but not sick enough to go to bed.

"Chronic cases" that's what the doctors call them, which in common English means—long sickness.

To stop the continued loss of flesh they need Scott's Emulsion. For the feeling of weakness they need Scott's Emulsion.

It makes new flesh and gives new life to the weak system.

Scott's Emulsion gets thin and weak persons out of the rut. It makes new, rich blood, strengthens the nerves and gives appetite for ordinary food.

Scott's Emulsion can be taken as long as sickness lasts and do good all the time.

There's new strength and flesh in every dose.

We will be glad to send you a few doses free.

There are many who believe that while milk is warm, or warm enough to throw off steam, it will not absorb any odors. This is a mistake, as experiments made at the Wisconsin station showed that warm milk had the same power of absorbing odors from the surrounding atmosphere as cold milk. The only way to keep the milk sweet and clean is to keep everything around it clean and sweet.

Lamb's should be allowed to eat very sparingly of second-growth clover in late summer and fall.

Lamb's should be allowed to eat very sparingly of second-growth clover in late summer and fall. If a lamb can be carried through the watery and slushy period of the fall rains and into winter quarters without scours there is hope of him. But if the debilitating disease, which is itself an indication of weakness, once lays fast hold of the young animal, it will be a hard matter to bring it through to spring.

Humor of the Hour

"That young doctor says he is treating some swell patients." "People with pedigrees." "No; people with numps."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"An ideal match," they say, indicating the new married couple "eminently suited to each other," they continue. Here they pause and watch the happy pair.

"Seems like a made-to-order meeting of affinities," they conclude. "He is a vegetarian and she is a grass widow."—Judge.

Appropos of the story of Bishop Potter having indulged in the Virginia reel at the recent wedding of his now stepson, comes the story to the effect that when the party were taking their places one of the gentlemen was being coached in the intricacies of the figures.

"Oh, it is perfectly simple," explained his fair partner, "the gentlemen stand on this side and the ladies on the other, then the first couple balance down the middle and back, then they swing each lady and gentleman alternately down the line, then march on the outside to the head, and again balance down the centre and take their place at the foot, then the next couple do the same thing."

"I see, the gentlemen come down in regular succession, do they not?" "Precisely—all except the Bishop—he comes down in Apostolic succession."—New York Times.

"Gimme one," remarked the ad-eyed man, as he laid five cents down on the counter in the kitchen-furnishings house and picked up a coffee pot.

"Those pots are sixty-nine cents," "Sixty-nine cents?" repeated the ad-eyed man. "Then you want to get after your promoter of publicity who writes your signs. The one in the window says: 'New line of nickel coffee pots.' I thought you were having a bargain sale."—Cincinnati Commercial.

"It must make those poor horses dreadfully tired to go running round the race course," said the sympathetic woman.

"No," replied the guileless man who bets, "the horses are all right. It's the man who went over there with a sure tip who is tired."

Observing the unmistakable Erin brogue of one of the Central Park attendants, a visitor who was strolling through the park remarked to him: "You come from the old country, don't you?" "An' shure, Oi do."

"Oh, beaded, if Old lived in 'th' old country as long as Old lived in New York Oi guess Old 'd 'th' oldest man in the city."

"You're a pretty old man, then?" "Oim oulter than me fayther—bless his soul—he lived till next October he'd be did this twenty years."—New York Times.

"But can you cook?" asked the prosaic young man.

"Let us take these questions up in their proper order," returned the wise girl. "The matter of cooking is not the first to be considered."

"Then what is the first?" he demanded.

"Can you provide the things to be cooked?"

She—He's very much in love with his wife. He says if she should die he doesn't know what he'd do.

He—What's the matter? Hasn't he got money enough to bury her?—Philadelphia Press.

Dick—I say, Harry, can you change a $5 bill for me?

Harry—I guess so (producing the notes); yes, here you are.

Dick—Thanks, old fellow; when I get a $5 bill I will hand it to you. So long.—Boston Transcript.

A Judge and a joking lawyer were conversing about the doctrine of the transmigration of the souls of men into animals. "Now," said the Judge, "suppose you and I were to be turned into a horse and an ass, which would you prefer to be?" "The ass, to be sure," replied the lawyer. "Why?" rejoined the Judge, "because" was the reply, "I have heard of an ass being a Judge, but of a horse, never."

Townbird—Say, Subbubs, now that you're a sort of horticulturist, perhaps you can give me information I want. What is a forget-me-not?

Subbubs—Why—it's a piece of string your wife ties around your finger when you go to town on an errand.

Jennings—Have you heard the story about the coal bin?

Mitchell—No, what is it?

Jennings—That's nothing in it. Mitchell—That's nothing; every time I look at mine I get a lump in my throat.

As Enduring as Brass

After three days spent in examining the antiquities of the home counties the members of the British Archaeological Association will have had their opinion strengthened that, of the various historic records—stained glass, stone monuments, and so forth—those written in brass are the most reliable and satisfactory, because the most durable.

Scotland and Ireland are almost devoid of such memorials of the past. Of the three to four thousand in England which have survived the Reformation, the Civil Wars and the Puritan iconoclast movement are to be found on the east coast. In this matter Kent and Norfolk are rivals. But the oldest, dated 1277, has its place in the Church of Stoke d'Abernon, a small village near Leatherhead. Like all the early brasses, it is life size and gives a perfectly preserved impression of a figure in chain armor. Of smaller size and more plentiful are the brasses of the next three centuries, affording between them an unmistakable fashion plates of the changing attire both of men and women in every class of life—not only the nobleman, who alone could afford the stone monument, but the merchant and tradesman. Always the date is attached, and it is invariably found that the oldest are the finest.

A Memorial Church. The Greek church which was opened recently at the Shipka Pass was erected by the Russians as a memorial of the repulsion by combined Russian and Bulgarian forces of the Turks at that place twenty-five years ago. The church is of Greek pattern, the architect being Professor Vosnesenski. The double Russian cross is a feature of the architecture. Shipka is a pass in the Balkans, on the side nearest to Roumelia, about fifty miles northeast of Philippopolis, and eighty-seven miles southwest of Rustchuk, on the Danube. It was held stoutly by the Russians in the war of 1877 in an entrenched camp against the desperate assaults of the Turks, under Suleyman Pasha, from the 21st to the 26th of August, and later from September the 9th to the 17th. These battles were, in fact, the turning point of the war. The losses on both sides were enormous. The church was opened during a

Article on Economics

An article in the October Scribner's, written by Mr. Walter A. Wyckoff, a well-known American writer on economics, bears out the statements made from time to time in interviews by British manufacturers and public men visiting Canada. Time and again these men have declared that more was heard of the "American invasion" of Britain on the side of the water than in the old land itself, that most of the factories and industrial establishments of Britain were crowded with orders, and that the sharp reaction expected to follow on the close of the war had failed to materialize. There was, however, an increase in the number of unemployed. According to The Labor Gazette (England), the 222 trade unions, with an aggregate membership of 551,565, reported 4.5 per cent. unemployed at the end of August compared with 2.8 in August, 1901. The mean percentage of unemployed returned at the end of August during the ten years 1892-1901 was 4.4. The following extract is taken from Mr. Wyckoff's article, which bears the title "Great Britain's Prosperity."—"The present prosperity of Great Britain is perhaps without a parallel in her history. It has been the fashion to represent her as falling into economic decay, and Englishmen have consequently looked on the illusion to serve some desired end. I have found it highly diverting to watch this process operating from the opposite poles of social policy. An opponent of the necessity of the war has been converted into a weapon of attack upon trades unionism, while a staunch trades unionist erects it into a bogey with which to frighten the British public into a sense of the necessity of technical education. Each of them has his tongue in his cheek while he speaks of Great Britain's industrial decline. The demonstrable truth, as it seems to me, is that Great Britain's commercial loss is a relative one, as compared with the gains of the United States and of Germany, and that her own progress in wealth and in commercial strength is an absolute one, as measured by the necessities of the war. These are matters which are reducible to statements in the terms of the coin of the realm. A fact less capable of precise statement, but quite as convincing as testimony to her present prosperity, and to the wide incidence is the practical disappearance from Great Britain of the problem of the unemployed. When, under existing conditions of competitive production and a pretariat struggling for the means of subsistence, there ceases to be an unemployed class in the usual sense, one may rest assured that the commercial prosperity for the time being is indisputably real. At all times he is a rash man who becomes prophetic of industrial changes.

A Motor for the Farmer. Hitherto the British farmer has not looked with very friendly eyes at the motor as they "passed" his best nag on the way to the market town, but Dan Albion, the well-known cyclist, will soon change all this. He has just brought out a motor which will be the farmer's friend indeed and in need, for it will reap and sow, plough and mow, and perform all manner of husbandry. The cost of his own way or haul a load to the barn where it will thresh and grind corn, cut turnips and chaff, turn the churn and make itself generally useful at a very small cost. This is no fancy picture, for my correspondent has been to the machine and photographed the machine at work, and when attached either to a six foot cut reaper and binder, a mowing machine, or a two-furrow plough, it did its work equally well, while the cost of fuel—eight-pence per acre—compared very favorably with horse traction. It is a petrol motor

The Horse Markets.

The following is a synopsis of an address delivered by Dr. J. Hugo Reed, one of the expert judges employed by this Department at the recent Charlottetown Fair.

HEAVY DRAUGHTS. Prince Edward Island is certainly in a position to produce good heavy horses. The Clydes are a good breed and seem to be in most demand.

CARRIAGE HORSES. The distinction between carriage horses and roadsters is evidently not well understood by exhibition managers or people in the Maritime Provinces.

in any country. The horse men, have, however, the whole question in their own hands; the scrub stallion only exists because he is patronized.

Standard bred owners claim that their stallions will get good carriage horse. This is true to some extent but the percentage is very small.

Refering to the term "Thoroughbred" the word is much abused. It can only be correctly applied to the English Thoroughbred racing horse or his pure bred descendant.

SADDLE HORSES. As above indicated saddlers can best be got by the use of a Thoroughbred stallion. Many of the strong conformation should be chosen.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES. Whatever line of breeding a man may follow he must have definite object and know what he is doing.

It would not use a coarse or cold blooded mare but would endeavor to get one with Standard bred or other warm blood. As a general rule a good driving mare will cross well with a Hackney.

Womanly Troubles.

Should Not Be Allowed To Undermine Health And Beauty, But Should Be Treated At Once By Ferrerozone.

It is impossible to go into details on this subject, but the experience of many a poor woman who is crippled for life, just because she did not use a good remedy in time, should be a warning to others.

There is nothing better for the complexion than Ferrerozone. It removes the dark circles from under the eyes, removes and cures all manner of skin eruptions, gives brightness and brilliancy to the eyes, a rosy tint to the cheeks, whitens the teeth and develops a well rounded plump and handsome form.

Ferrerozone is the ladies' favorite, and should find a place in every household. It is prepared in the form of a chocolate coated tablet, convenient and pleasant to take.

FROM A BANKER'S STANDPOINT.

BANK OF HAMILTON,
Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 30th, 1902.

HOLLAND A. WHITE, Esq.,
Manager Sun Life of Canada,
Hamilton, Ont.

Dear Sir:—I beg to convey my thanks to your Company for the prompt payment of my Endowment policy No. 302.

The policy was a Ten Payment Twenty-five Year Endowment, for which I paid an annual premium of $35.00 for ten years, so that the total paid to the Company amounted to $350. I have to-day been handed the Company's cheque for $1348.05. Therefore I have received $700.05 more than I paid, or over 4 per cent compound interest, besides having had my life insurance of $1000 for the 25 years.

This policy was on the Five Year Distribution Plan. Had it been on the Reserve Division Plan I understand the profits would have been much larger.

From my own experience I have no hesitation in recommending the Sun Life of Canada to intending insurers.

Yours faithfully,
H. S. STEVEN,
Assistant General Manager.

The above was a Twenty-five Year Endowment Policy for $500, and payable by ten annual premiums. Annual premium, $35.00.

Total paid at maturity	$1348.05
Total premiums paid by assured	$350.00
Return over cost	$700.05

Representing twenty-five years' assurance for nothing and BESIDES a return of all premiums paid, $750.05 IN ADDITION.

C. C. KNIGHT, Manager, Sun Life Building, SHERBROOKE.

CHEESE

Montreal, Wednesday evening.—The cheese market continues extremely quiet at present, so far as new business is to note, but the fact does not make holders the least bit anxious, as they are confident of full prices, and will not shade their figures for the sake of attracting orders. Nominally the range is 12c to 12 1/2c as to quality and section of manufacturers.

BUTTER.

The butter market maintains its strong tone and the bulk of the current daily movement in finest creamery is on home account, as domestic jobbers are paying 22c, and this cuts out the exporter to a large extent, the latter wanting supplies around 22c.

Pe-ru-na Promptly Saved Her Life.

Miss Alice O'Neil, 212 Adams street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I cannot say too much in favor of Peruna. About a year ago I was completely worn out, had a serious cold and a hard cough which seemed to be in danger of affecting my lungs. If my system had been in a stronger condition I would have been much easier to throw off this cold, but I could not seem to get any relief until I took Peruna, and I must say that it did the work thoroughly. Within a week I could see a wonderful improvement, and I took Peruna four weeks and am in perfect health now."
