Sir John Bourinot Discusses Granting of Honors to Canadians.

HE ALONE HAS POWER TO MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS

City Clerk David Also Speaks on the Subject This Morning.

General listened to the advice of his ministry. But that does not affect the validity of his argument, viz., that the Governor-General is not obliged to heed to his ministers in this connection.

THE GOVERNOR'S RETICENCE. "Was it not unusual that the Governor-General, after having secured the nominations, according to custom, did not acquaint Sir Wilfrid with his decision?" queried the reporter.

THE K.C.M.G. Sir John also pointed out in reference to the protests about the K.C.M.G. decorations being granted to Mayors in connection with the royal visit that this decoration was not granted on such occasions as the present.

When the King, then the Prince of Wales, visited Ontario, no honors were granted to mayors and this was a hard case, even though the Speakers of the Legislative Council and Assembly.

These honors were granted because the legislative bodies addressed addresses to the Prince which the Speakers presented. Parliament presented no address to the Duke of York, so there was no opportunity or occasion for conferring honors on the Speakers.

There is a marked distinction between the position of an official and the K.C.M.G. In the latter case there is no connection with the royal visit, because the honor is given in recognition of merit. This is not the case with the former.

MR. DAVID'S VIEWS

City Clerk David also spoke on the subject this morning. He stated that the Governor-General is not obliged to heed to his ministers in this connection. He also mentioned that the Governor-General is not obliged to heed to his ministers in this connection.

SMITH'S FALLS.—Smith's Falls, Sept. 25.—(Special)—The citizens' band has been engaged to play at the North Lanark Fair, Almonte, on Wednesday. A special train will leave here at 9:20 a.m. returning about midnight.

Mr. Harry Layton, of this town, went to Ottawa on Sunday with the war canoe boys, and when getting off a car was struck by an approaching one and badly hurt. He was at once taken to the hospital where he remained unconscious for four hours, but the injuries will not prove fatal.

Mr. A. Armstrong, a Queen's student, occupied the Methodist Church pulpit on Sunday. His sermons were very interesting and instructive, and the large church in the evening was well filled. Mr. Pitre, the pastor, was in Perth, occupying Rev. Foster Macnamara's pulpit.

Mr. Paul H. Frost went to Ottawa yesterday to see the war canoe races.

Wales, Sept. 25.—(Special)—Dredge No. 6, owned by Manning & Macdonald, Coteau Landing, sank in the St. Lawrence river two miles west of Dickinson's Landing Friday afternoon. The dredge was on the way to prospecting to work for the Gilbert Dredging and Blasting Co., and while in the centre of the channel struck a sunken spar buoy which knocked out a plank in the bottom of the dredge. It sank in fifteen minutes in twenty feet of water. The crew had a narrow escape, but luckily got off safely, though they lost everything. Divers are at work and expect to have the dredge afloat in a few days.

COTEAU LANDING.—Coteau Landing, Sept. 25.—(Special)—Judgment was rendered Saturday in the case of Mr. Leroux, of St. Polycarpe vs. The Corporation of St. Polycarpe. This case which drew considerable attention on the part of the parishioners of St. Polycarpe, was dismissed with costs by Judge Curran. Plaintiff claimed possession of the public streets, for which he held titles, but the court maintained the defendant's plea that some of the titles to these streets were drawn after entering into court. Plaintiff yesterday entered an appeal, and the case will go to Montreal.

YANKLEEK HILL.—Yankleek Hill, Sept. 24.—A meeting of the Yankleek of Gleanery took place yesterday in Knox Church for the purpose of inducing the Rev. T. G. Thomson, M.A., of Toronto, to preach at the church. Rev. Mr. Millar, of Innes, presiding as moderator. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Beaton, of Roxboro. Rev. Mr. Lettich, of Elms, gave a very excellent address. The new minister, and Rev. Mr. Cormack, of Maxville, addressed the people on their duties to the new minister and the cause of Christ. After the induction was over, Mr. Malcolm McCreath stepped to the platform and read an address to Mr. Cormack, who had been their moderator for the past 12 months, and at the same time presenting him with a sum of $50 for his kindness to the congregation during the vacancy.

FESTIVAL OF FRUITS AND FLOWERS.—It will undoubtedly be of great interest to know that the Pan-American Exposition will be the scene of pageants of great beauty and splendor, of extra fine entertainments and general amusements of greater magnitude than usual during the week of September 30-October 5, when the carnival will be given.

This event will be officially known as the "Festival of Fruits and Flowers," and the methods usually prevailing in the countries of the south will be employed to make it spectacular and gorgeous in its details. A queen and court will preside on a beautiful throne during the week and her maids of honor will be selected from the largest adjacent cities. This will insure great interest on the part of the residents of these cities.

LATE MR. GREENSHIELDS.—The remains of the late Mr. John Green-shields arrived in this city last night from Inverness, Ont. Messrs. K.N. Green-shields, K.C., and R.A. Green-shields, K.O., received the body at the station. The remains were removed to Danville, where they will be interred at 8 o'clock this morning.

ADVANCE FOR IRON WORKERS.—Fall River, Mass., Sept. 25.—Notices of an advance of 5 cent in the wages of the 3,000 operatives have been posted in the Fall River Iron Works mills here. It is considered probable that all other manufacturing plants will be compelled to follow the example of M. D. C. Borde, owner of the Iron Works mills, and that a similar raise will be given the 27,000 other operatives in this city.

Catarrozone is a Cure for Dyspepsia.—Irritating poisonous secretions laden with Catarrh germs find their way from the nasal passages and throat to the stomach. It is because Catarrh germs instantly relieve congestion and inflammation in the throat and nasal passages and effectively destroy germ life that it is so valuable. The poisonous and irritating mucous discharges are rendered harmless and prevented by Catarrhazine, some-thing known and proven by no other remedy. It permanently cures cases of Chronic Catarrh, Asthma and Bronchitis, previously given up for hopeless. Catarrhazine is the most pleasant and convenient treatment known, and contains no harmful ingredients. The complete dollar outfit is guaranteed, same size 25c. Druggists or Falcon & Co., Kingston.

DANGERS TO BE AVOIDED

City Analyst Hersey Points Out Some of These as Regards Milk and Water.

The report on the milk and water supply of the city for the month of August, prepared by Mr. Milton L. Hersey, the civic analyst, is most satisfactory. In regard to the samples of milk submitted only one contained objectionable preservatives in any notable quantity.

Of course the most reliable information, Mr. Hersey asserts, "can only be obtained by a fully chemical analysis of one or more samples of the city's supply, but as the city work is already costing more than twice as much as the remuneration I receive, I am unable to go to any further personal expense in the matter."

Water Supply. Upon the question of the water during the month of August, Mr. Hersey has this to say: "Sixteen (16) samples of the water supplied to the city were collected and carefully analyzed. From a chemical point of view, the results are very satisfactory, and as regards the number of bacteria per cubic centimeter of water, the same is true."

Another Milk Preservative. "A substance called 'M.' Preservative, offered for sale, and manufactured in New York, has been analyzed. It is mainly borax in the form of a white crystalline powder."

Cream Thickener. "A substance called 'Cream Thickener,' made in Chicago, and offered for the purpose of thickening thin cream, proved on analysis to be mostly gelatine of good quality, with a small percentage of sugar."

For Breach of Promise. A rather interesting breach of promise case came up before Judge Lavigne yesterday morning. Mrs. M. J. Lavigne, plaintiff, sued her former husband, Mr. J. M. Lavigne, for $1,000 damages as the extent of the injury done to her affections.

DR. GRANT'S HEALTH. Kingston, Ont., Sept. 25.—(Special).—Principal Grant rested well after midnight. The medical men on their examination this morning found that complications of the functions of the liver had developed, causing jaundice of the skin.

MAYOR IS COMPLIMENTARY. Mayor Prefontaine has written letters of thanks to Chief of Police Legault, Lieut.-Col. Roy, D.O.C., and to Mr. M. Kennedy, superintendent of the Montreal Street Railway, for the efficient way in which, in their different capacities, they contributed to the success of the Royal visit last week.

SIR CLAUDE MACDONALD

Great Britain's Ambassador to Japan Talks of the Far East.

"China is fast awakening from the stupor in which she has existed for centuries. Not only the Government, but the general mass of the people are beginning to realize that there must be a radical breaking away from the old order of things."

HIS OWN FUNERAL. As he strolled into the Place Vigier Hotel today, calm as if he were a stranger, he looked like a man who had looked a frightful death in the face for nearly two months, who had read his own obituary, and who had been in the habit of looking at his own funeral.

ENGLAND'S POLICY. England's policy in the Far East has been throughout the century a trouble to China, directed to protecting her interests with which nothing would be allowed to interfere.

YESTERDAY'S TESTIMONY. The witnesses examined yesterday afternoon gave similar evidence. Mr. Napoleon Boulet stated that he had known Laplaine for some time, and had noticed that he was a man who acted in a very strange way.

THE SIFTON TRIAL. London, Ont., Sept. 25.—(Special).—The cross-examination of Walter Herbert, who had pleaded guilty to assisting in the murder of Joseph Sifton, was continued this morning.

THE JUDGES DISAGREE. Membership in G.T.R. Insurance Fund No Bar to Action. Chief Justice Meredith Takes a Different View to That Expressed Here.

DR. GRANT'S HEALTH. Kingston, Ont., Sept. 25.—(Special).—Principal Grant rested well after midnight. The medical men on their examination this morning found that complications of the functions of the liver had developed, causing jaundice of the skin.

WESTMOUNT LIGHT CONTRACT. The Town Council of Westmount has instructed its collector, Mr. Dunlop, to enter a notarial protest against the Royal Electric Company, which, having offered to light the streets of the town for a period of five years at the same price as fixed upon by the Council of this city, decided after the price here was made $900 per lamp, to withdraw the offer.

SAY LAPLAINE WAS INSANE

Evidence to This Effect Was Introduced by the Defence To-day.

The evidence of the witnesses produced by the defence in the Laplaine case yesterday afternoon and this morning was all for the purpose of proving the insanity of the prisoner with his peculiar actions and by heredity.

THE DAY OF THE CRIME. Joseph Leprieux, a laborer from Pointe St. Charles, was the next witness called. He testified that he had worked in company with the accused for about a year.

PRISONER'S MOTHER. The mother of the accused was called to the witness box, and stated that her father had become insane and had died in the lunatic asylum at Longue Pointe.

SPECIAL SESSIONS. The Court of Special Sessions had a busy time this morning, and Judge Desnoyers would appear to have enough cases on hand to warrant apprehension as to the rapidity with which they can be dealt with.

EAST END VALUES GREATLY ENHANCED

Rents Have Gone Up Largely in That Section During the Past Year.

The result of the new assessments will not affect the revenues of the city as a whole to any great extent; perhaps the $100,000, though that is a conservative estimate, will be in the neighborhood of $100,000, though that is a conservative estimate.

TITLES.

For the first time in our history there is a public controversy over the terms on which admission can be obtained to the orders of knighthood. Did Sir Wilfrid Laurier nominate Messrs. Prefontaine and Parent for K.C.M.G., and did Lord Minto have the honor reduced to simple C.M.G., which carries no "Sir"?

In England, perhaps, this description would not be inaccurate, for there the King only acts on the advice of his ministers in this as in other particulars.

It would not do, for example, for the King to confer on his own initiative, a mark of honor upon a leading critic of his constitutional adviser, any more than it would do for him to choose for the keeper of his conscience, the Lord Chancellor, someone not politically in sympathy with the reigning power.

A STEEL TRUST IN CANADA?

La Presse yesterday published the following:—"The Dominion Steel Company has already announced that the purpose of the meeting held last week was simply to consider the issuing of a dividend and that the length of the session, which lasted from ten o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock at night, was due to no other cause."

AUTUMN.

Principal Grant is seriously, even dangerously ill. The illness comes as a sudden reminder that there are many Canadians who deserve and who have received high honor, who are passing out of the hurly-burly of political strife and making way for younger men.

of a painful melody. Mr. Ellis has gone into the Senate with Dr. Landerkin and Mr. Mills. Sir Henri Joly is a Lieutenant-Governor. Sir Wilfrid Laurier stands between these old companions of hard fought fields on the one hand, and on the other a new set of men, who are revealing their strength.

Sir Charles Tupper and Edward Blake, giants set over against each other in Canadian politics in other days, find scope for their activities in Great Britain, the one in political, the other in business life.

A DIFFICULTY.

President Roosevelt has already set his hand to the plough. He has signified his return to Washington by sounding his political friends on the subject of reciprocity, hoping thereby to ascertain what progress Mr. McKinley had made with his programme. It has not taken very long to reveal the difficulty of the task that confronts him if he wishes to make good his dramatic promise to carry out Mr. McKinley's policy.

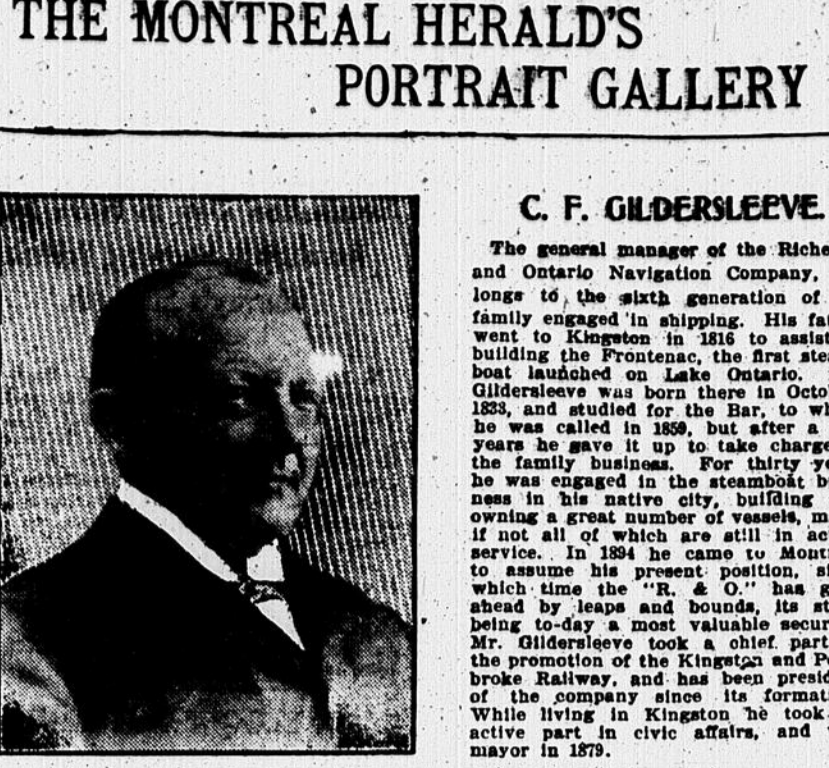

The story of the Duke of Cumberland's fortune says London Truth, has been just related by Henry Von Hasselt, an American, George V. had a narrow escape of finding himself, both kingdomless and penniless. The state treasures of Hannover were only placed in safety a few hours before Prussia declared war on the excellent blind king.

Few men have ever entered within the palace precincts of the Queen of Norway, for there the women reign supreme. It is known, however, that there are beautiful courtyards and rooms, with floors and wall of mosaics of tiles, with ceilings of gorgeously painted and carved wood, and arches that are marvels of delicate plaster work.

"BETTER TO WAIT"

Under the caption, "Better to wait," La Patrie last night published the following:—"We notice with a deal of interest that a certain number of our Conservative conferees, English especially, are denouncing His Excellency the Governor-General on account of what they believe his attitude to have been in the matter of knighthood."

HITHER AND YON

A veritable Pan-American study in gold is on exhibition in the New York State building at the Pan-American Exposition. The display consists of two gold bullion, figures fashioned in solid gold bullion, representing North America and South America.

Letters to the Editor.

REGULATING VICE.

Sir,—I quite approve of the remarks in your editorial of yesterday's date under the heading "The drinking habit in this city." It is a habit which has been taken at the railway or the port of embarkation, where Prussian agents were reported as on the lookout.

BLEUZY STREET WIDENING.

Sir,—After the vast amount of money spent by proprietors in widening Blury Street, it does seem strange that our building inspector will allow such a building to be erected on the corner of Blury and Bleury Street.

MISS GLASER'S NEW OPERA.

Mr. D. W. Haynes, the business manager of the Lulu Glaser Opera Company, arrived in the city this morning from Toronto, where the company opened its season on the 19th inst. with a new comic opera, "Dolly Varden."

Elasticity of Law.

Unfortunately, another phase of the act are considering, unlike picketing, has not been defined with any definite precision, and has generally been rendered unworkable by its being enforced against the members of a trade union according to the personal bias of sympathy, or non-sympathy, of the presiding judge, and really the unions must have been living in a state of anarchy since the first foot's paradise with respect to the penal clauses of the act, because until a recent decision they were under the im-

Old Guilds and Modern Trade Unions

BY E. B. DRUMMOND-HASTINGS.

VIII.

Although the repeal of the Combination Laws in 1824 and the subsequent amendment of 1825 gave the workmen freedom to combine in associations for their mutual benefit and for the settling of such amount of wage as would be a fair wage for their labor, yet any combination amongst them in restraint of trade still remained unlawful—this, of course, carried with it many galling disabilities, one of them being that any funds accumulated by a society had no legal protection against fraud or peculation, so that in the case of any official of the union embezzling its moneys it was possible to do so without any legal redress.

Meant a Revision.

So outrageous was this piece of class legislation that Professor Besant, in one of his lectures on the subject of trade unionism, whether or not to put his own interests upon the act and consequently considerable trade agitation took place over what was really the intention of the statute and the meaning of its somewhat ambiguous wording, which resulted, in 1873, of a complete revision of all the then existing laws and enactments relating to labor which was followed, in 1876, by another amendment to the Trade Union Act of 1871, and which conceded most of the demands of the unions, freeing them from a mass of arbitrary restrictions and placing them on an equal footing with other friendly and mutual benefit associations, and extending the same to the combined action to all conditions of employment; but for another 16 years after this date the unions were continually harassed by the ordinary confusion and haziness of the law, and by the constant changes of the judges as they dealt with cases of "intimidation," "picketing" or "criminal conspiracy," most of them regarding as a criminal and punishable offense any threat or warning uttered by a trade unionist to a non-unionist or to an employer, even if the consequences alleged to be of the most harmless kind.

No Direct Interest.

The judges, in fact, though conceding that the workmen were not acting from malice, and that their motives might even be meritorious, yet the ultimate benefit of the act, and even of mankind, failed to perceive that their intention of increasing their own wages and of reducing the burden cast upon them by their own unemployment, was not a selfish one, but a public one, and that the law was really a legitimate motive, viz. the bettering of their own condition; but in a sympathetic spirit, and by the aid of the law, they had been working for the benefit of the trade union, and we also notice that a similar distinction has been made in the United States with regard to sympathetic strikes or combinations to boycott. A strike for the strike's own benefit is legal because they have what the law regards as a legitimate motive, viz. the bettering of their own condition; but in a sympathetic strike or boycott, the motive is the intention of benefiting the conspirators, but at best a desirous to help their fellow workmen; and the law does not yet recognize altruism to the extent, if the consequences which are alleged to be of the criminal law amendment act is correct, and taken in conjunction with the later decision of the Appeal Court in making a trade unionist liable for damages, and attaching its corporate funds for damages, trade unionists have a stormy future yet before them. For they will have to fight over again the battle which they believed had been won in 1873, when they secured their freedom and corporate existence had been firmly and finally settled. It is not a pleasant reflection, but the truth is, the bias of the judges has been against the act against trade unionism, and they have failed to realize that industrial administration is in the democratic state a more complicated and powerful agency, than the management of one's own business in one's own way. An examination of our social history would prove that as a rule trade unionists have been guilty of but few offenses for which they could not find a precedent in the conduct of unscrupulous employers and unscrupulous trusts. Thorold Rogers' words in this connection have considerable significance:—"The violence which characterized the actions of the trade union men against those who abstain from their policy, complete against them for employment in a strike, and, as they believe, selfishly, is not a proof of their narrowness of mind to assist, but from their own small advantage, is indefensible and suicidal. But it has its parallel in the actions of joint stock companies to interfere with the power of their rivals, who have over and over again striven to ruin rivals who will not abide by trade customs or even seek to be independent competitors against powerful agencies. There is no difference beyond the rattle of a Sheffield saw grinder and the expeditors by which in Parliamentary committee rooms railway directors seek to extinguish competition schemes. Men who are not and the refinements of education and who are not practised in the arts of polite manners, may be coarse and rude in the execution of their duties, but their process is essentially the same, when the motive is practically identical, and the result precisely equal, the manner is of no importance to the analyst of motives and of conduct."

DUNCAN ROSS' CASE.

Quebec, Sept. 25.—(Special.)—Yesterday morning Duncan C. Ross, the retired soldier, who failed to give an exhibition of rough riding and swordsmanship after having advertised such and collected entrance money from several hundred citizens, was again before Judge Chauveau, when he not only reiterated his plea of guilty, but admitted that the money found in his possession after arrest was part of the same collected from the citizens and paid to see the performance that did not take place. He was again remanded to jail.

provision that they were protected in their combinations by the third section of the act of 1875, which reads that an agreement or combination by two or more persons to do or procure to be done any act in contemplation of furtherance of such trade dispute between employers and workmen shall not be indictable as a conspiracy if such act committed by one person would not be punishable as a "crime." We will here refer briefly to two actions as an illustration of the way the judges have decided the Criminal Conspiracy Act in England.

In the case of Thompson vs. Russell, tried in 1883, the officers of the Amalgamated Society of Building Trades, and of a joint committee of such trades in the Town of Hull, were held liable in damages to an employer merely for having persuaded some workmen not to renew their engagements, this being admittedly within the workmen's rights and coercion or intimidation of the workmen not being alleged. According to this decision, a combination of workmen to leave a particular firm at the expiration of their contracts, and after due notice may render the members of that combination liable to an action for damages personally sued for damages; and in the case of Flood vs. Jackson the judges even went further. In this case the district delegate of the bolter makers had informed an employer with perfect politeness that the members of his union would not renew their engagement with him if he continued to employ two shipwrights on certain iron work. The employer thereupon, after due notice, dispensed with the services of these two workmen, who then brought an action for damages against the district delegate and the members of the union. The committee of the Bolter Makers' Union. The Court of Appeal held that no conspiracy to procure their discharge had been proved, that decided that it was an actionable wrong for even a slight degree of "intimidation" to procure the discharge of workmen to their detriment, and the bolter makers' district delegate was cast in damages. Nothing has been forcibly pointed out, but the combination here was not one aiming to increase their profits, the agents would not have been liable for the damage, but because the combination was a trade union not aimed at commercial gain, the judges refused to recognize that the members had any lawful adequate motive for jointly exercising their admitted rights, by their appointed agent, to the incidental detriment of other persons.

No Direct Interest.

The judges, in fact, though conceding that the workmen were not acting from malice, and that their motives might even be meritorious, yet the ultimate benefit of the act, and even of mankind, failed to perceive that their intention of increasing their own wages and of reducing the burden cast upon them by their own unemployment, was not a selfish one, but a public one, and that the law was really a legitimate motive, viz. the bettering of their own condition; but in a sympathetic spirit, and by the aid of the law, they had been working for the benefit of the trade union, and we also notice that a similar distinction has been made in the United States with regard to sympathetic strikes or combinations to boycott. A strike for the strike's own benefit is legal because they have what the law regards as a legitimate motive, viz. the bettering of their own condition; but in a sympathetic strike or boycott, the motive is the intention of benefiting the conspirators, but at best a desirous to help their fellow workmen; and the law does not yet recognize altruism to the extent, if the consequences which are alleged to be of the criminal law amendment act is correct, and taken in conjunction with the later decision of the Appeal Court in making a trade unionist liable for damages, and attaching its corporate funds for damages, trade unionists have a stormy future yet before them. For they will have to fight over again the battle which they believed had been won in 1873, when they secured their freedom and corporate existence had been firmly and finally settled. It is not a pleasant reflection, but the truth is, the bias of the judges has been against the act against trade unionism, and they have failed to realize that industrial administration is in the democratic state a more complicated and powerful agency, than the management of one's own business in one's own way. An examination of our social history would prove that as a rule trade unionists have been guilty of but few offenses for which they could not find a precedent in the conduct of unscrupulous employers and unscrupulous trusts. Thorold Rogers' words in this connection have considerable significance:—"The violence which characterized the actions of the trade union men against those who abstain from their policy, complete against them for employment in a strike, and, as they believe, selfishly, is not a proof of their narrowness of mind to assist, but from their own small advantage, is indefensible and suicidal. Clearly Defined.

A specially constituted court of Queen's Bench division, presiding on the clear intention of Parliament as shown by the Trade Union Act of 1871, as well as that of 1873, pronounced the first of these interpretations to be the correct one. The "intimidation" is now, therefore, clearly defined and theoretically narrowed down to a threat of committing a criminal offence against persons or tangible property. This decision was a great victory for the unions, as it legally emphasized their contention that under the heading of intimidation nothing is a criminal offence which would be committed by a trade unionist to another organization. With regard to "picketing," a long battle had likewise to be fought in the courts, although from the wording of the section any non-legal mind would be at once come to the conclusion that in picketing the workmen were acting strictly within their legal rights. When a strike is in progress the strikers undoubtedly have the right of communicating the fact to other workmen not aware of it, and, in fact, the wording of this portion of the act is so clear on the point that it seems impossible that a wrong construction other than that intended could have been put upon it, for it reads thus:—"Attending at or near the house or place where a person resides, or works, or carries on business, or happens to be, or to be about to do so, for the purpose of obtaining or communicating information, shall not be deemed 'watching or besetting,' however annoying such a practice may be to the employer whose objects are affected thereby," and, as by the act, it puts it, the practice of picketing, has, therefore, received explicit legislative sanction, and any act committed by trade unionists ought not to be regarded as an offence unless they were actually engaged in the pursuit of some admittedly laudable object, such as disseminating men from an unworkable, debauchery or theft. This, however, the average legislator is not likely to understand. He habitually assumes that strikes, although not legally or exactly criminal, are morally reprehensible, and he generally proceeds in defiance of his clearly expressed intention of Parliament to consider the moral sanction of the most peaceful picketing as an unwarrantable interference with personal liberty. He is therefore often led to regard as criminal, when perpetrated by trade unionists, acts of obstruction or annoyance which would be overlooked in the religious propagandist, the trade distributor, the organ grinder or the corporation engaged in the sale of Salvation Army. Such an exercise of legislative discretion is not only unjust, but embitters the workman against the administration of the law when he sees how unfairly and unjustly it is administered.
