Chateaugay Valley Has A Further Taste of Winter

Severe Storm the Past Week Disrupts Traffic And Communications

The Chateaugay Valley had a further taste of real Canadian winter the last week. Wednesday was mild with a heavy rain in the afternoon, turning to snow later at night. The streets in Huntingdon on Wednesday afternoon were reminiscent of the canals of Venice.

Thursday produced the worst storm of the winter. Provincial Transport buses to and from Montreal were cancelled, roads were almost impassable. One of two taxi drivers motoring between Ormstown and Huntingdon braved the storm and a truck transport was known to have made the trip from Montreal to Cornwall to Malone. Nevertheless, visibility was poor and more than one car was found abandoned after a futile attempt to buck the heavily drifting snow on the highway. The school buses for the most part were not operating.

To add to the confusion the Telephone Company reported that 178 separate services were required to keep telephones in operation throughout the valley. A dozen or so poles were blown down in the area of Route 52, but, on the whole, the trouble with telephone lines was due to the dampness of the preceding day with rain water seeping through the insulation, causing a multitude of short circuits.

Part of the Athelstan Road was under water; traffic was cut to a minimum and the mail service was suspended in the morning. Similar conditions prevailed at St. Philomena.

On Friday, roads were blocked at all points with traffic delayed as much as seven hours on highway number four. There were no buses in either direction. Only three long-distance telephone lines, only three were available on that day making out-of-town calls virtually impossible.

Franklin also had its share of the storm. Water backed up from the ditches, overflowed the road and caused a Provincial Transport bus and one of the school buses to be delayed. Horses and sleighs had to be used for transportation. To make matters worse one of the snow plows broke an axle. Electricity failed at several points and was responsible for at least one rural school being closed for two days. Some telephone lines were reported to be out of commission. Residents of Franklin and the entire Chateaugay Valley may well consider this as the worst storm of the 49-50 winter.

Snow has been falling almost continually since Sunday and high drifts are being piled ever higher. Fortunately temperatures have not been too low although reported below normal for this time of year.

Serious Anchor Ice Condition

ATHELSTAN — Due to the unusual season, the anchor ice has caused high water around the buildings of George Boyce. At the beginning of this week, it was thought best to remove the cattle from the barns and on Tuesday with the help of kind friends and neighbors, this was accomplished.

Farmer Found Dead in Barn Near Herdman

James Gauthier, 63, Found Wednesday Afternoon

Mr. James Gauthier was found dead in a barn near his home on Wednesday afternoon. He was 63 years of age.

The body was discovered by Mr. Otis Travisee who had noticed that there was no smoke coming from the chimney of the home and no signs of life whatsoever. Suspecting that something was wrong, Mr. Travisee took it upon himself to investigate and found Mr. Gauthier lying dead in one of the horse stalls. Mr. Gauthier had lived by himself about one mile west of Herdman on the Brook Road.

Friends report that he had said as early as Sunday that he was not feeling well. It is believed he had been dead since Tuesday.

Dr. H. R. Clouston, County Coroner, investigated the death and released the body for burial, cause of death has not been ascertained, but is attributed to a heart attack.

Surviving Mr. Gauthier are his sister Mrs. J. Reid (Alice) of Covey Hill and two brothers, Messrs. Albert and Walter Gauthier, of Herdman. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon at the Huntingdon Funeral Parlour. The interment took place at St. Paul's Anglican church cemetery, Herdman. Pall bearers were Messrs. James Wallace, James Levers, Percy McGowan and Otis Travisee.

Barbara Ann Scott Guest at Huntingdon Chateau

Miss Barbara Ann Scott and 50 or more members of the Skating Sensations' Company were weekend guests at the Huntingdon Chateau. Miss Scott was also accompanied by her mother, her manager, Mr. Tommy Gorman, and two French poodles, Samba and Scoop.

Pres. Scottish Farmers Union To Visit Howick

Will Address Gathering of Farmers on Topics of Agricultural Interest

Word has been received from the United Kingdom Information Office in Ottawa that Mr. Matland Mackie, who is President of the Scottish Farmers' Union, is now filling a series of speaking engagements extending across Canada, and it is expected that he will be in Howick, Que., on March 21st on his way through the Province, taking in Cowansville, Sherbrooke, and on then by plane to Fredericton, N.B.

Mr. Mackie, junior, is one of the largest dairy farmers in the north of Scotland and is a recognized authority on modern farm methods. He is a graduate in the Science Degree of Agriculture from Aberdeen University, farms over 1000 acres of dairy farming land, and in addition runs a retail milk business in Aberdeen. His farms are highly mechanized and he has introduced many ideas which should be of great interest to all District of Beauharnois farmers and farmers who may take the opportunity of hearing Mr. Mackie speak on Dairy Farming, Mr. Mackie is interested in local youth activities, and was a Lieutenant in the Home Guard during the war.

Mrs. Mackie is accompanying her husband on this visit through Canada.

Arthur Sutton Shot by Son Following Long Quarrel

Charge of Counselling Murder Placed Against Mrs. Sutton and Murder Charge Against Son Earl

A bitter quarrel brought death and tragedy to the family of Arthur Sutton of Covey Hill, Que. A coroner's jury on Monday evening took but a few minutes to hold Earl Sutton and his mother criminally responsible for the death of Arthur Sutton, 48, who was shot after arguing with his wife and family.

Saturday afternoon, it is reported, Sutton and his son were chopping wood at the rear of the home when the quarrel began. The boy is alleged to have said, "I don't want to work with you anymore, you're always fighting". Sutton then drove in a horse-drawn buggy to St. Antoine Abbe, a neighbouring town, to sell a load of wood. He is said to have spent most of the afternoon in the tavern, but returned at 8:30 that night and had supper while the family listened to the radio. Later he went to the barn to feed the animals and afterwards, he allegedly returned to the house and ordered his son to turn off the radio, to which the latter replied, "Go to the source, I'm not standing in your way." It is reported that a heated argument ensued which Sutton continued with his wife upstairs in the bedroom. Some have stated that the man had attacked his wife but, in any event, the quarrel was violent enough that Elsie, his twelve-year-old daughter, called to her brother for help.

At that point Earl mounted the stairs with a 30-30 calibre rifle, warning his father to "lay off", threatening to shoot him in the legs "if you don't leave my mother alone".

He fired the bullet lodged itself in Arthur Sutton's thigh and a few minutes later he was dead. On Monday a medical expert testified that death was due to internal hemorrhage from a broken artery of the right thigh.

The doctor was summoned immediately by Sutton's 14-year-old son Gordon. When Dr. Pilon of St. Christy's arrived, he pronounced the man dead. Sgt. Leroux and members of the homicide squad arrested from Montreal the next morning, (poor roads having delayed them) and took Mrs. Sutton and her son into custody. They offered no resistance. Sutton's body was taken to the Lionel Demers morgue at St. Christy's.

An inquest into the tragedy was held on Monday evening with Dr. I. K. Williams, of Chateaugay, acting as coroner. Mr. George Meloche was sworn in as the jury foreman. The jury were Messrs. Joseph Allen, James Allen, Herby Boileau, Francis Buchanan, Osborne Mannagh and Pierre Gagnier.

Three witnesses testified to the shooting. Gordon Sutton told in detail of the quarrels and the tragedy that followed. His testimony was corroborated by Marvin Jackson, a 17-year-old cousin who spent the day at the Sutton farmhouse. Mrs. Sutton stated that she had had "nothing but trouble" with her husband for the past fifteen years and she recalled that after Sutton had left to sell the wood on Saturday afternoon, Earl had said, "If he comes back drunk, I'll shoot him in the legs and cripple him". She added that she had warned her son, "Don't shoot to kill because we'll have trouble". A few hours later, Sutton was lying lifeless on the bedroom floor. The six-man jury rendered their verdict in less than five minutes; Earl Sutton and his father were held criminally responsible for the man's death. They appeared on Tuesday before Magistrate Fortin in Valleyfield. Earl Sutton was formally charged with murder and the mother with counselling murder. Mr. Albert LeBlanc of Valleyfield has been retained to defend the pair. Preliminary hearing has been set for March 27.

Canvassers Named For Red Cross Drive in Huntingdon

Weather Will Be Factor in Announcing Opening Date of Drive

Preliminary plans are being laid for the annual Red Cross Campaign in Huntingdon Town and County this week and while no definite date has been set in view of weather conditions, it is expected that it will officially open next week. The stormy weather we have been experiencing since the start of March has caused changes to be made several times and the weather will have much to do with the actual opening of the campaign here. The National campaign is in full swing however, but will depend largely on conditions prevailing at various points throughout the country.

More particulars will be announced in the next issue of the Gleaner as to the exact plans to be followed. Meanwhile below is published a partial list of the canvassers who have been appointed to carry out the canvass. It will be noted that several more canvassers are needed for certain districts to be covered and volunteers for this work will be appreciated. Those who would like to volunteer can get in touch with either Mr. J. M. Smellie or Mr. Doug. Stephens, who will be pleased to hear from them.

N. Foisy Heads Home Week Programming

County Council Supports Civic Center Project

The Old Home Week committee recently appointed Mr. Noel Foisy as Chairman in charge of the programming and Mr. George Dixon as secretary. Mr. Foisy is in charge of the project to build a civic center. The council was invited to send representatives to the committee meetings. Meanwhile members of the committee are expected to visit Keene, Ont., where a similar project is being erected for a reasonable price, a skating rink which seems to meet their requirements very adequately. It is possible that the building committee will seriously consider a similar rink, building which would appear to suit the needs of Huntingdon perfectly and would cost only 25,000 dollars (not including artificial ice).

Again the Gleaner urges its readers to send in names of relatives or friends who might like to attend the Old Home Week celebration, watch for the Red Cross Canvasser who will distribute a handy coupon.

More Textile Workers May Switch Unions

Three Thousand in Montreal Dissatisfied With Leftist Body

A strong possibility exists that 3,000 employees of Montreal Cottons, Ltd., Valleyfield, may follow the lead of Montreal Dominion Textile Co. Ltd. workers in quitting the allegedly leftist A.F.L. United Textile Workers of America.

The statement came from Sam Baron, international vice-president of the right-wing C.I.O. Textile Workers Union of America, who claimed the A.F.L. union had lost 2,500 of its Montreal membership to the C.I.O.

Union Denies Defection

The A.F.L. union denied it had lost the bulk of its members. "As far as we know, not one member of Local 102 of the U.T.W.A. has left the union," a spokesman declared. "The meeting (last Sunday) at which some 1,700 members were reported to have quit our organization, could not have been attended by more than 150 people."

Baron hailed the loss of membership by the A.F.L. as "a major defeat for the Communist forces of Canada." He said he had recommended approval of a charter application made by the former U.T.W.A. Local 102 for entry into the C.I.O. affiliate.

Baron said efforts had been made to smear Axelus Beauge, business agent of Local 102, who recently was suspended from the union. He said the attempts had constituted a "political lynching" of Beauge and added that the Montreal Joint Board of the Textile Workers Union would appoint him as a business agent "where he can function constructively in the democratic family of labor."

"Decision of the workers to join the C.I.O. will take them out of a dark and dismal political jungle in Canada. The starting light of free trade unionism," Baron said in a statement. "All Canada can be proud of them. They are most welcome additions to the progressive ranks of the labor movement."

The Communists, he said, are the enemies of the labor movement in Canada. "The starting light of free trade unionism," Baron said in a statement. "All Canada can be proud of them. They are most welcome additions to the progressive ranks of the labor movement."

Compost Making Important Item

When a proper compost is made, the addition of fertilizer is undesirable, at least for young vegetable seedlings, according to L. P. Oung, Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, Ontario. He has found that more damage is done to the seedlings by applying too much fertilizer than by not fertilizing at all. If it is felt that fertilizer should be added, thoroughly mix in no more than two level tablespoons per flat of soil, or three ounces per bushel.

Many growers are extremely careful about the source of their seed, are careful to treat the seed before sowing, and watch over the seedlings regularly, but use whatever soil is the handiest when it comes to seeding or transplanting. But a poor soil cannot be improved for seedling growth simply by the addition of quantities of commercial fertilizer.

A soil lacking in organic matter is difficult to moisten properly. In a three-inch layer of soil in a flat, the moisture is not easily retained unless there is sufficient organic matter in the soil. Thus, watering becomes more of a problem. In such a soil, aeration does not take place as it should and consequently the roots and the whole plant suffer. The soil becomes compacted and the roots find it difficult to develop in search of food.

A good seed-bed compost should contain at least one-third by volume of rotted manure or other organic matter such as leaf mould. The compost pile should be made up at least six months in advance of its being used. A good method of building such a pile is to put a layer of sods on the ground, a layer of rotted manure, another layer of sods, and so on, building the sides up as vertically as possible. Leave the middle lower than the edges. This will make a dish which will catch rain and keep the compost pile moist.

Girl Guides Enrolled at Valleyfield

Nineteen Girls Receive Tenderfoot Pins

VALLEYFIELD—On March 4th, Miss P. Anderson and Mrs. G. Grant, Guides of the newly formed 1st Valleyfield Company Canadian Girl Guides, arranged to have Mrs. H. Spencer of Beauharnois come down to enroll the Guides. 19 girls were enrolled at this time. Each received her Tenderfoot pin as enrolled.

Mrs. H. Spencer spoke briefly to the Guides and discussed various questions with Associate Members. She also mentioned that it was the largest enrollment she had made at one time and congratulated the girls on doing so well. After the enrollment ceremony, the local associate ladies served tea to Mrs. Spencer and Guides. The Guides were served chocolate milk and fruit bread. The Guides took part in the serving of tea and later helped in tidying the Hall. The meeting closed with the singing of "Taps."

The Brownies held their first meeting in St. Mark's Anglican Church Hall, on March 11, with Mrs. Brown and Mrs. C. Christie as leaders. All girls between the ages of 8 and 11 years were invited to attend.

Huntingdon Medical Service Is Again Hard Taxed

Only One Doctor Left to Administer to Needs of Sick in the District

Dr. Clouston's recent illness has presented a serious situation in the Huntingdon district, and has emphasized the fact that for the last few months a few hard-working men have been bearing the entire burden of administering to the sick of this area. Dr. F. G. McCrimmon has taken a special course and is absent. Dr. George Lefebvre is now the only active physician in the town. General opinion is that Huntingdon should have at least four doctors.

The Medical Centre at Ormstown has agreed to help as much as possible and it is expected that emergency calls will be handled there. Meanwhile residents are asked not to call a doctor unless it is deemed absolutely necessary.

What will be done in the future to make sure that this town is adequately staffed with medical men remains to be seen. Attempts have been made and are being continued to encourage young graduates to come to this district. One thing, however, is certain: Huntingdon is not alone; there is a general shortage of general practitioners throughout the continent. Par too many young graduates have preferred to specialize and there are now few generalists in the city. Another factor is that many internes have lived most of their lives in the larger centers and have no desire to take up residence in a smaller town. Whatever the reason, Huntingdon and many other small towns could use a few more general practitioners of the calibre of Dr. Clouston and Dr. McEwen.

Huntingdon County Hospital has been quite busy the past few weeks and its capacity is being taxed to the utmost. Dr. Lefebvre is thus not only looking after his own patients and those of the other doctors, but is frequently called upon for extra work at the hospital.

Huntingdon Business Survey Shows Optimistic Spirit

Businessmen Report 1949 One of Their Best Years—Slightly Off 1948 Peak

Huntingdon businessmen report that 1949 was one of their best years. They are optimistic about the future and, although their turnover was, for the most part, a little lower than the year before, they are not expecting more than a slight increase in 1950. The year 1948 remains the year of a record in many respects. A survey of 53 places of business in Huntingdon reveals that these enterprises had an approximate turnover of $3,190,000 in 1949. Some merchants reported a marked increase for the year. In a few cases the value of retail sales was up 15% over that of 1948. Needless to say, the degree of change varied from place to place and a great deal depended on the line of goods or type of service offered. One of two said that they were seeing a lessening of demand, of a swing towards a buyer's market, but that they were able to offset it by working harder, by more vigorous sales promotion, or by taking on new lines which the changing market had not taken on the whole. Huntingdon's business, and that of many other smaller centers, was slightly off the 1948 peak; but not more than 5%, a figure which is too small to be indicative of a trend.

The gross value of Huntingdon's textile production in 1949 amounted to an approximate $6,700,000. The mills employed about 690 persons and paid out about $1,300,000 in wages and salaries, 8-10% more than the previous year. The industry expanded at least 60,000 square feet (floor area) in 1949, a figure which includes three new buildings, either erected or converted for the purpose, and a few minor additions.

The town's wage earners, on the whole made more in 1949 than in the previous year. A group of 943 working persons (including textile labour) earned an estimated $1,700,000 last year. This would mean an average income of $1,700-$1,900 (Executives, professionals—doctors, lawyers, etc.—and individuals in the higher income brackets were not included in these evaluations).

Huntingdon businessmen offer many reasons for the reported levelling of last year, but undoubtedly one of the principal factors can be found in the influence of the farmer. The amount of business they bring to Huntingdon was found, as might be expected, to vary considerably from one enterprise to another. One merchant who caters to the townsmen stated that in his particular business not one order in fifty came from the farmer. On the other hand, certain retailers (dealers in farm equipment, for instance) might expect that 75-100% of their trade would come from outside the town. All things considered, Huntingdon retailers have a healthy respect for the farm dollar. One progressive small-town storekeeper went so far as to advertise of last year, but undoubtedly in a more informal way, the atmosphere of home-spun informality to their business, make their shops places where the farmer can feel free to drop in to "chew the fat", suggesting that this was one way of boosting the trade from outside. In any case a conservative estimate would be that the farmer accounts for at least 60% of Huntingdon's retail turnover. This being the case, down slightly in 1949 would be an important reason for the tapering off of sales in 1949. Figures are not available on the amount of reduction in agricultural income in the Chateaugay Valley. Some believe it was slight. The man who remains the fear of a dwindling market, falling prices or a depression meant that, not only the farmer, but everyone was more economically minded, more price conscious. Customers were not spending with as much gusto as in 1948.

Many small-town retailers blame their lowered turnover in part on the weather. Trading in the Christmas season was not up to that of 1948. A sore point with many is that in a prospective customer may get shopping in the city; if the weather is mild and the roads good, more and more people flock to Malone, Cornwall, Montreal or Valleyfield. It is a fact that, when people decide to economize, they are more likely to look to the larger centers where they hope to find bargain sales and lower prices. They are, however, not necessarily right. Many commodities have a fixed price, one that is at the same level in all parts of the country and a comparison of some of the advertisements in the Montreal Star and the Gleaner will confirm this statement. Buyers would do well, before undergoing the expense of motoring to the city, to investigate their own local market. Be that as it may, the small town merchant will always face a considerable amount of competition from the city, for even if roads are bad, there is still the mail-order catalogue.

Finally the mild weather meant that the sale of many an overcoat or electric heater was postponed until the following winter. Directly or indirectly, the warm 1949 winter, coupled with the caution of the consumer accounted for more than a few dollars of lost trade.

Some merchants, in addition, have observed that they are not having as much tourist trade. In 1948, when certain commodities were scarce or expensive in the city or over the border, it was not uncommon for the outsider from the metropolis to try his luck in the smaller town. City dwellers looking for radios or refrigerators, Americans in the market for beef or butter, brought a good deal of business to Huntingdon in 1948. Last year, however, this phenomenon had ceased to exist and the trend of consumer dollar, it is claimed, is now in the other direction. General opinion, nonetheless, is that we are in a period of adjustment and, rather than a depression, we are headed for an era of greater security and stability. Therefore the bargain-minded individual going to the city is not likely to become a serious factor.

A few retailers have accounted for part of their lowered turnover with the statement that new stores have arisen to compete with them. Half a dozen or so new businesses came into existence in 1949 and it has been noted by some local economists that, although Huntingdon and the surrounding area has become more densely settled, the number of new enterprises coming into the field is

T.V. Channels 2, 5, 9, Assigned to the CBC—Station in Montreal

MONTREAL — The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has been assigned channels 2 and 5 for its proposed television operations in Montreal and channel 9 in Toronto, it was announced by Donald Mansour, acting General Manager.

"The CBC expects to start its telecasts in the fall of next year. As in the case of ordinary radio, TV frequencies are assigned to stations by the Department of Transport in Ottawa. The Department is in constant contact with other governmental authorities in North America since all stations share the same frequencies. The standard broadcasting band runs from 540 to 1,600 kc/s, whereas the TV frequency band uses much shorter waves in a band running from 54 to 216 mc/s. This latter band, explained J. E. Hayes, CBC engineer, contains 12 channels of six megacycles width for TV transmissions. (It also contains some channels reserved for FM, amateur and other services). The TV channels are numbered from 2 to 13 and the receiver dial is numbered accordingly. To reduce interference, TV stations sharing a channel must be at least 215 miles distant and stations on the immediately adjacent channels must be at least 190 miles apart.

The CBC was assigned two channels in Montreal as the Corporation expects eventually to operate two outlets in the city, one French and one English. The first one to be used will be channel 2. It is the first of the band and runs from 54 to 60 mc/s. Channel 5 operates from 76 to 82 mc/s and channel 9 from 186 to 192 mc/s.

In turn, the channels are divided in two parts of unequal width: the video and the audio. Video means image and audio, sound. Sound in TV is frequency modulated; the video portion in amplitude modulated.

In addition to these channels, the CBC will use microwave frequencies in still higher bands to enable it to establish direct links from studio to transmitter and from mobile units to studio or transmitter or both. Some of these will be in the

Athelstan

ATHELSTAN—The March meeting of the Willing Workers' Mission Band was held in the Presbyterian Church parlour, at the Sunday School hour. The meeting opened with a hymn and devotional exercises were conducted by Gerald French, who gave the Bible lesson, while Jimmie Waldie led in prayer. Two new members were enrolled, making a total of twenty present. The offering amounted to $1.35 and Offertory prayer given by David Grace. Mrs. Grant read the third chapter of the study book, "Where the Carp Banners Fly." This was an interesting story of the Boys' Festival held on May 5th in Japan, a holiday in honour of brave heroes. The meeting closed with the members repeating the Mission Band prayer in unison.

Ladies' Aid Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was entertained by Mrs. Donald Hamilton on Friday afternoon, the regular day, Thursday, being too stormy to venture out. The work on hand was quilting and other work. The business meeting was conducted by Miss Bessie Graham. Miss Kimball read Psalm 8, followed by prayer. There was a good attendance of members and guests. A letter of thanks was read from Mr. D. P. Grant for box of fruit sent him, and Mrs. Watson also thanked the members of Ladies' Aid for fruit sent her recently while ill. Miss Graham reported that the meter on electric stove had been disconnected the beginning of the year, this step seeming advisable considering the high rate charged for rent and the little use made of same. Meeting closed with another hymn and Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. A delicious supper was served by the hostesses.

S.S. Notes

A silver and enamelled pin was given to David Grace on Sunday, for one full year of regular attendance at Sunday School.

Mrs. Selby Dunlop has been called to Baltimore, Md. on account of the serious illness of her brother, Mr. John Grant.

Mrs. Lionel Gray was unable to preside at the organ in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday, through illness, consequently the morning service was held in the Church Hall, with Bessie Graham, pianist.

Kilbain

KILBAIN—Miss Annie Foran and Mr. Joe O'Neill were Sunday visitors in Valleyfield.

Mrs. Dan Murphy, of Huntingdon, was a week-end visitor at the home of her sister, Mrs. Bill Smythe.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ferns were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Smellie on Saturday, the occasion being the birthday celebration of their daughter Sharon, who was three years old the 10th of March. Sharon received many beautiful gifts and a large number of birthday cards.

Allan's Corners

ALLAN'S CORNERS—Mrs. Edie Hooker, of Ormstown, is spending some time with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Tannahill and baby, Keith.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet McWhinnie and family, of Montreal, were Wednesday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McWhinnie.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Tannahill were Mr. and Mrs. D. Templeton and daughter, Howick, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Bell and family, of Huntingdon.

Mr. Gordon Hope and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hope and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray McMillan, Franklin Centre.

ALLAN'S CORNERS—The Allan's Corners Farm Forum group met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hope on Monday evening, March 6th. Seventeen members were present. A very full report of all the meetings, bringing in the highlights of the main addresses. This proved most interesting and Mrs. R. E. Ness moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Knox for bringing a resume of the various sessions. Mrs. Melville Brown gave short temperance items. The first was a comparison of the money spent on education compared with what was spent on liquor and gambling. The second was an item in memory of Mrs. Dougall, a life-long worker for temperance. Mrs. Albert Hope read a beautiful poem, the thought it contained being to talk happiness and faith, talk health. The meeting closed by repeating the benediction in unison.

THE LATE MR. DAVID ANDERSON MACFARLANE

Mr. Davidson Anderson Macfarlane, a life-time resident of Elgin, passed away on Tuesday, March 7th, after a short illness. He was the oldest member of Elgin Presbyterian Church and President of the Elgin Cemetery Company since its incorporation in 1912, in both of which he took a deep interest.

The service was conducted by Mr. Howard Grace, Student Minister. Miss Janet Arthur sang "The Lord is My Shepherd" and "O God of Bethel", a favourite of the deceased. The many beautiful flowers testified to the esteem in which he was held.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. B. J. O'CONNOR

Margaret Jane Fox, a native of Schenectady, N.Y., came to Canada on November 6, 1912, as the bride of Bernard J. O'Connor, to reside on his Ridge Road farm in Huntingdon. Mrs. O'Connor passed away on March 5th, 1950, at the Huntingdon County Hospital, where she had been a patient several times during her five years of illness. Surviving children, Bernard in British Columbia, Stanley, Customs Officer at Lacolle, Virginia (Mrs. Jos. Weaver, Maple, Ont.) and Ralph at home with his husband, gave her the most affectionate and devoted care.

Rev. Thomas Knowles conducted service at the home and in the presence of a large congregation of relatives, neighbours and friends, who thus evinced the love and respect due to a kindly, generous, conscientious wife and mother, whose peace had come and labours ceased. Interment was in the Protestant Cemetery, Huntingdon.

Among relatives from a distance attending were a sister of the deceased, Mrs. Wilson Rolfe, Schenectady, a niece, Mrs. John Hunter, Elmira, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Duffy, Cobble, Mr. George Lucey and family, Malone.

DEWITTVILLE—Some of our citizens are still indoors with colds, laryngitis, etc. Those who have taken the new anti-histamines seem to have escaped these virus diseases to a great extent. Showing a Fine Example

A DONATION of $178.20 has just been received by the Huntingdon County Hospital from employees of Leach Textiles and Spinners Ltd., and is very much appreciated by the Governors. It indicates a real interest in this institution by the people whom it serves. During the war years the employees of these mills voluntarily contributed .10c per week from their wages to the Red Cross.

Last July at a meeting of the employees they decided that as the war was now over and the drain on Red Cross funds reduced, they would apply their collection to the Huntingdon County Hospital, and the above amount only represents six months' collections. For 1950 they have decided to apply the proceeds of the first six months to the Estate of Lucien Brunette, who was formerly one of their foremen, and the second half to the benefit of the Hospital. They plan to make this donation annually unless some more pressing need arises. These employees are to be commended on this plan; no one misses the .10c very badly, but in the aggregate it can be a great help to the Hospital, and it is hoped that if any of them need hospitalization some special consideration can be given them.

We think the employees of these Mills are setting a fine example of what can be done to support necessary public institutions, which have to depend on the public for voluntary support. It might also be an example which could be followed by other employees in places of business in town.

Business Appears To Be Holding Up

OVER the past few months The Gleaner has been conducting a survey of the economic conditions as they obtain to the Town of Huntingdon and our first report on same appears in this issue. It will be followed by other reports of conditions which affect the general economy and which have an effect on the general prosperity of all citizens. Fortunately, Huntingdon is not affected by unemployment conditions which have been reported from many parts of the country and the survey will tend to show reasons why we are not so suffering. Our business men have watched conditions continually and have safeguarded against possible trends to every extent of which they are capable and can foresee. The portion of the survey which is now being published has to do with industrial and business conditions -- later it will deal with agricultural conditions as they affect this part of the country. Other items will be discussed in later issues until a complete picture has been given.

In this survey only the main business places have been contacted as being the principal business section of the town. There are many lesser businesses which could be added, but from which it would be much harder to obtain the figures needed to make such a survey possible. While these lesser businesses have a good turnover, they would not add greatly to the figures given and we believe it will be found that the picture traced is quite a bright one. There have been continued reports that a decline has set in and that 1950 will be a gloomy one before its end. From the facts revealed to The Gleaner, we are of the opinion that while there is a slight levelling off, there is no sign of a rapid decline that could herald a depression. Our business men are not of that opinion and that bids well for the number of citizens who depend for their livelihood on the success of business in Huntingdon.

Huntingdon is fortunate in the fact that it had men of foresight in the years back and that they worked hard to induce the various mills to locate here. It is fortunate that these mills did locate here and that the owners have so much faith in the stability of our town that they have seen fit to expand their mills on more than one occasion. As will be seen by the amount paid out in wages to employees in these mills, there is much potential circulation of money to promote confidence in the business of the town. In turn the fact that these mills have located here has provided other means of employment in many fields. The town has grown in assessed value as well as population and all these factors have contributed to a spread in business for all who offer services to the consumer.

On the other hand it tends to show the need for increased display in shop windows, and more need to tell the public of the goods and services which the business men have to offer. Such information would tend to keep business at home rather than it being routed to the cities. A well informed public will respond by taking advantage of what can be bought at home. Many of the business places have improved their places of business and have improved their services, but there is still much room for improvement. Huntingdon being near to two cities must be prepared to do business on a city basis, prices, selection and services must correspond as nearly as possible to what can be secured in those cities. We cannot afford to be behind, we must remain out in front.

A Worthy Appeal

ONCE again the annual appeal on behalf of the Canadian Red Cross Society is being made across the country and the Counties of Huntingdon, Chateauguay and Beauharnois are included. In Huntingdon the campaign will open on Monday, March 20th and preliminary collections will be made during a part of the present week. The actual canvassing will start on Monday and it is the hope of the committee to complete it by the end of the month.

It is during a war that the Red Cross comes into the most prominence, yet its work goes on in peace time without abatement. There have been many disasters of small or large proportions since the war and the Red Cross has stood ready to offer assistance and services to those in need. While we here in this portion of Quebec have not evidenced any of these disasters, there may come a time when we will be thankful that there is such an organization as the Red Cross. We do not want to meet such things, but it is a grand feeling to know that should they occur we can fall back upon the services and assistance that is offered. Many individuals have received assistance from the Red Cross in these three counties and they have been glad that such assistance was forthcoming. This assistance has not been blazoned forth in large headlines, for that is not the way the society works. It does its job quietly and unobtrusively, so little is heard of what has actually been accomplished. In a time of great disaster, as often as not, only a few lines are devoted to the work that the Red Cross has done, yet it is actually deserving of more publicity. But the great and noble are seldom given the praise they deserve and in the case of the Red Cross it is considered as only its duty.

Money is needed all the time in order that the Red Cross can provide its services and assistance and at this time each year an appeal is made to the public to give and give generously. We hope that when the canvasser calls on you in the next few weeks that you will do your part and give as much as you can afford to help along the work being done by the great international society. We never know when we may need the Red Cross--meantime the Red Cross needs you, don't turn it down.

Cold Water

WE are all familiar with the man whose self-appointed mission in life is to throw cold water over the good ideas and suggestions of others; the man who strikes an attitude of tolerant superiority and tells you why it is impossible that your idea could work. Unless you have plenty of faith in yourself and in your idea, this attitude can be most discouraging and can result in your abandoning it entirely.

Inventors and pioneers in new fields are probably more familiar with these "experts" than anyone else. We remember seeing in a collection of old newspapers, a front page feature in a New York journal carrying a date line early in the century, written by a medical authority well known at the time and giving a number of excellent reasons why it is impossible for the human organism to sustain life when travelling at more than 30 miles an hour. It was only a short time before the learned doctor had to eat his words.

Alexander Graham Bell was told many times that, while the telephone was theoretically possible, there were many insurmountable difficulties that made it practically impossible. Dr. Bell was far too occupied listening on the receiver of his mechanism for the signal that would mean that his experiments were a success to hear this "good advice."

There are those who would throw cold water over the idea of the proposed civic centre and Old Home Week, but the committee in charge of plans is not listening to them. It is going right ahead and meeting with much success in so doing. No plan, no matter what it is can go through without some opposition and oftentimes the more opposition it gets, the greater the success it is. Then again, those who throw the cold water are not often the ones who would buckle to and lend a helping hand, they are too busy criticizing.

The sum raised by the Old Timers and the Huntingdon Merchants hockey games is a gesture that is commendable, it is that help that is worth a pound of pity and has done much to boost the idea of a civic centre for Huntingdon. More and more help of this nature will be required during the forthcoming months and it is the earnest hope of the committee that many more organizations will see fit to do something that will be a benefit for the project in hand. What others have done elsewhere can certainly be done in Huntingdon. A thing to remember is that the project is county-wide and not just a town proposition--it is also the idea to provide the centre as an all-round useful building and not just a skating rink. If you have any ideas, the committee will be pleased to hear of them.

Random Glimpses of The Past Taken From Gleaner Files

March 15, 1900

The Queen has surprised and delighted the people of London by unexpectedly appearing among them, driving through the streets on three successive days and holding receptions in Buckingham Palace. As one correspondent expressed it, "A little grey-haired Lady in black, peering through her spectacles has come to London and with simplicity and gentle grace she has proved anew that she has no rival in the affections of her subjects."

Howick--Mr. Heber, hotelkeeper in this village has purchased the old Bachant property for $800 and has rented it to Etienne Lussier.

When the N.Y.C. train was on its way to the city a passenger in the second-class car suddenly died. He was an Italian and had boarded the train on the U.S. side. He seemed to have been in good health up to the time of his fatal seizure.

The trains on the G.T. have been irregular. The evening express, although assisted by the Hemmingford locomotive spent all night getting through the drifts and did not reach this station until 7 a.m.

The progress of the war during the week has been satisfactory. On Saturday there was desultory fighting along a line of 12 miles ending in the Boers abandoning their camp and retreating. Monday saw a general advance and by dark, General French reported that he had taken possession of two hills.

Your Editor Tells the Story

Fishing

Sail Fishing Derby stimulates a great deal of interest in deep sea fishing. Each day yachts go out with loads of anglers, irrespective of how rough the sea may be and many tales come back at the close of the angler's fishing day, which is 4 p.m.

Some people just naturally get sick and sometimes yachts with such passengers have to return to land.

If a sail fish is caught, a particular flag is unfurled and should it be some other species of fish, a flag indicating the type is displayed. The sail fish, however, produces the comments and the long descriptions of anglers regarding the problems they encountered in landing them. A few days ago Mr. Hickler, of this hotel, had the good fortune to land two sail fish, one measuring 7 feet, six inches long and weighing 60 lbs. The second fish measured just over six feet in length. The big fish is being smoked and will be sent to his home in Mount Vernon, Ohio.

Athletes in Training

The ladies have their fishing and at the same time the national American sport is being practised on Wright Field. The Philadelphia Athletics of Connie Mack are practising baseball every day, starting at 10 a.m. During the afternoon games may be played amongst the various members of the Club. The Athletics have a group of young players practising at the Air Field and these "farm teams" started playing games on Friday afternoon at the Wright Field. How many boys from these farm teams will qualify for the Athletics for this season is yet unknown, but they do play a good brand of ball, even if they are a bit lacking when it comes to handling the stick. Commencing Saturday, March 11 the Athletics start playing a series of games with Washington, Brooklyn, Baltimore, Memphis, Buffalo and Toronto.

"Sun Dance Trail"

The local Horticultural Society staged its annual flower show this week. The flowers, were of course, largely southern specie and quite different from those we grow in Quebec Province. On the whole, the flowers are not as spectacular as would be seen at exhibitions in Montreal or its suburbs. The orchids were, of course, magnificent, but if you wish to make a comparison, take a look at the gladioli; the northern spikes would win every award. Others were few and far between; nasturtiums were excellent. Corsage, coffee table, baskets, etc., were on display in great numbers, all of them using a southern species of flowers and a few roses. A handsome basket made up of yellow Darwin tulips took second prize; many would think the entry warranted first place but the judges settled upon a basket of roses.

"Cutting Capers with Flowers" This was an innovation and created a great deal of interest. Evidently the interest was well divided for there were a great number of entrants. Flowers and vegetables were used in designing the various figures. "Jack and the Bean Stalk" took first place. One entrant received special mention for the creating of a "vegetable man". It was made up of the size of a scarecrow with a cabbage for a head, parsley was used as hair, onions for eyes, a beet for a nose, kernels of corn for teeth. The clothes of the man were made up of hatched cabbage leaves, a bleached leaf being used for the patch pockets. Carrots were used for fingers and toes, the storekeepers for 14 cents a dozen, butter at 20 cents per pound. Cranshaw--Rev. A. S. Grant gave a most interesting account of his experiences in the Yukon on Thursday night in McDougall Hall. The sum of $26 was added on Sunday to the India famine fund at St. Paul's Church, bringing the total to $178.

The W.C.T.U. have entered into warfare with the liquor traffic in Huntingdon which they will carry on until they have taken from it the last shred of legal authority.

April 5, 1900

Howick--An accident happened to Pierre Varin in the bush near St. Pierre de Howick, which may possibly cause his death. While sawing logs, a large, loose limb of a tree fell, striking him on the head and fracturing his skull. There will probably not be a serious flood this spring as the snow is rapidly disappearing and the rivers are falling.

April 19, 1900

Ormsdown--The shop of John Maw, boot and shoe dealer in Ormsdown, was entered a night or two ago and 12 pairs of gents' boots were stolen.

The last of the cheese factories opened for the season on Monday. The Barron factory was the first to make a shipment, sending 22 boxes on the 19th which fetched 11 cents.

March 21, 1901

The Waragraph drew good audiences. The first night the apparatus did not work properly and the waiting was annoying but Saturday night there was no hitch. About half the views were new. The Queen's funeral was disappointing for the rapid movement necessary to give life-like action does not suit funeral scenes. The comic views were received with the most favour.

March 28, 1901

St. Stanislas--There has been considerable activity in the matrimonial market here and, strange as it seems, the demand is almost exclusively for widows and widowers between 50 and 75 years. On the 18th, no less than two worthy disciples of Hymen led their blushing brides to the altar. One was among the first settlers of the village.

April 11, 1901

The Band of Hope meeting on Friday evening was well attended, and the programme was an excellent one. Mr. Dewick presided and Rev. Mr. Lewis delivered a most suitable address on the subject of making a stand. He held his hearers spellbound. Solos were rendered by Miss Brown, Miss Hunter and Miss Thompson. John McArthur gave a reading and there were recitations and dialogues by the youngest members.

The plague, which has never left India, has broken out in the province of Punjab, where the deaths average 2000 daily. The government is powerless to stamp out the disease and religious ideas of the natives prevent the enforcement of even the simplest sanitary measures. The plague has also reappeared in Australia causing much alarm. Everyone is agreed that between the 20th to the 27th there was never a better run of sap. The sugar social in the basement of St. John's Church was attended by 75 persons. A merry time was had by all.

New Technicians

Dominion Textile Company Limited takes pleasure in presenting to its many friends in the province of Quebec a group of young men who, we feel sure, will go on making history in the textile industry in this province and whose future efforts will guarantee you, as users of Tex made products, the continued high standard of quality to which you have become accustomed.

They are the company's graduates from the St. Hyacinthe Textile School, pictured above with G. B. Gordon, president of the company, as they received their diplomas recently.

These young men, on bursaries provided by the company, completed four years technical study at St. Hyacinthe--part of a new plan to develop our own textile technicians in Quebec rather than bring them in from other countries--and are now hard at work in various Dominion Textile plants.

We wish them luck and congratulate them.

Listen...in your heart

When disaster strikes somewhere in Canada, your ears may not hear the prayers for help. But listen in your heart and you'll hear the voices of the little children, homeless and afraid, the voices of the mothers, heart-broken and weary. They are calling to you! ... And today, on their behalf, the Canadian Red Cross appeals to you for urgently needed funds to carry on the work of mercy in disaster-stricken areas... to provide Free Blood Transfusion Service... to support your Red Cross Veterans' Services and Outpost Hospitals... to maintain and extend many other humanitarian activities. Give generously, from your heart. And give today!

This year the need is urgent for $5,000,000 to carry out the work you expect your Red Cross to do

The work of mercy never ends...

Car Responsible for Broken Window

At 9 a.m. Monday, the window of Lucien Piven's home on Chateaugay St. was broken by a piece of wood. It was thought that a malicious passerby might have been responsible for the incident but investigation led to the conclusion that the damage had been caused by a car running over the wood and sending it through the front window of the Piven home.

THE PICTURE YOU HAVE WAITED 37 YEARS TO SEE

Above — Hedy Lamarr who plays Delilah in "Samson and Delilah", playing at the O'Connor Theatre for three days only: Saturday, Sunday and Monday, March 18, 19 and 20.

This picture was produced by a great artist, Cecil B. DeMille, and this is his story:
"37 years have passed since I made my first motion picture and from the beginning there was one story I have always wanted to make — the story of Samson and Delilah — for Samson and Delilah is one of the greatest of all love stories, the drama of two people who loved each other with a wild and cruel passion yet knew that each was destined to destroy the other.
14 years of preparation were necessary to bring to life the settings, the costumes and the barbaric splendor of this colorful age when the Philistines ruled with a hand of iron the land which was to be the cornerstone of the world's spiritual strength. One of the greatest of all stories — The Holy Bible. A romance that has captured the imagination of the world for over 3,000 years.
Hedy Lamarr and Victor Mature give their greatest performances in a crowded panorama of splendor and violence, of heroism and treachery. The external conflict between the spirit and the flesh. I promise you that in Samson and Delilah you will see something in motion pictures that you have never seen before."

Fred Malloy Victim Hit and Run Driver

Car Stolen; Man Arrested For Fuel Oil Theft

Mr. Fred G. Malloy, 78, of Henderson Street, was struck and knocked unconscious by a car belonging to a hit-and-run driver, on Monday evening. Mr. Malloy was found lying in the street not far from the police station by Mr. Harold Daniel, who immediately summoned help from Chief L'Heureux and Dr. Geo. Lefebvre.
There were no witnesses to the incident although it was obvious that Mr. Malloy had been struck by a car. After he regained consciousness, he remembered nothing of the accident and seemed confused. He was suffering from shock and moderate concussion and bruises about the head. He was ordered to bed for a few days.

On Monday evening, Mr. Neil Henderson of King Street found that his car, left parked in front of the Chateau had been stolen. Chief L'Heureux was summoned and they, assisted by Mr. Myers of the Shell Garage, began a search for the car. The car was found at Dalhousie St., about 200 yards from the Huntingdon Woolen Mills. Chief L'Heureux stated that it is only a matter of time before the thief will be apprehended.

Mr. Lorenzo Hamel of Chateaugay Street was arrested on Monday by Chief L'Heureux when he was caught stealing fuel oil at the rear of Marchand Freres. A number of complaints had been received regarding thefts of this sort and the police had been on the lookout. Hamel is being detained at the police station and it is expected that he will be transferred to the Provincial authorities shortly.

Hemmingford

HEMMINGFORD — The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held on February 28th at the home of Mrs. P. Pelletier with Mrs. Geo. Brown presiding.

The meeting opened by the singing of the first and last verses of the Hymn "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross". The devotions were taken by Rev. W. Holmes who read 4th chapter of St. Luke and afterwards led in prayer. It was decided to hold the usual St. Patrick's Tea on March 17, 1950.

The ladies who had attended the Montreal Presbyterial Meeting, Mrs. T. E. Clelland and Mrs. Chas. Smith, Mrs. Geo. Brown, Pres., Mrs. Halton Kennedy then gave their reports. These were all most enthusiastic and inspirational.

Mrs. J. P. Simpson very fittingly thanked these members for the fine reports they had brought back to us. There were fifteen members present and several visitors. Mrs. R. T. Brownlee read a poem entitled "Responsibilities" which was appreciated and gave much food for thought.

At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Pelletier with Mrs. Mabel Kedy as co-hostess and a social hour enjoyed by all.

Mrs. P. Porter, Montreal, is the guest of her father and mother.

Trout River

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Moore and children, Janet and Donald, from Cartierville, were weekend guests of their brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pare.

Mrs. R. J. M. Reid, Mrs. D. M. Laurie and Mrs. R. P. Hadley were joint hostesses at a farewell tea at the latter's home on Tuesday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. A. E. Hilditch, who was leaving here and intends making her new home in New York. Eleven of her neighbours were present to wish her all the best and bid her good-bye.

Mrs. Laurie, on behalf of those present, gave Mrs. Hilditch a small gift and in a few well chosen words expressed how sorry her neighbours were to see her leaving.

Mrs. Hilditch replied briefly, expressing her thanks and said how she would miss her friends. Most delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses and a delightful afternoon was spent.

St. Luke's W.A. held its regular monthly meeting in the Figsby Memorial Hall, on Wednesday afternoon, March 8th, with a good attendance. Mrs. T. R. Clelland presided, the meeting opened with prayer by the Rev. T. E. Bennett.

In the absence of Mrs. Henry Stewart, Mrs. C. E. Petch gave a report on the annual Diocesan W.A. held in Montreal the past week. This report was indeed much enjoyed. It was decided to hold a dance in the hall at Easter and to hold a card party and food sale later in April.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Tom Clelland and Mrs. Aymer Hadley and a social time enjoyed.

Due to the extremely stormy weather on Thursday morning the school buses did not make their usual rounds so school was cancelled and on account of there being no electricity on Friday school had to be cancelled again.

ROCKBURN—Mrs. W. R. Tannahill and children, of Trout River, were recent guests for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Sloan.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Sloan of Athelstan and Mr. and Mrs. R. Williams were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rosevear, Jr.

On Wednesday evening, a few of the friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. Robert Simpson to celebrate with her her 96th birthday. A very pleasing feature of the event was that Mrs. Simpson was the recipient of the beautiful bouquet of spring flowers, made of Daffodils, Tulips and Snapdragons, from "Today's the Day", of C.J.A.D. good neighbour" was discussed and brought forth a number of different comments. "A little milk in the water of a fern once a week will help the plant", so said Mrs. N. D. McPhee, the president, and thus she won the monthly household hint. Mrs. Hewson, as convener of agriculture, read an article on how to improve garden soil by using scraps from the kitchen. Mrs. J. Fleming, convener for citizenship, read an article about an evil street in Toronto. Mrs. A. H. Fraser, publicity con., read an excerpt from Maud Kerr's letter concerning the help of the Institutes towards poor children in Europe.

Mrs. B. Hewson was chosen to pack the Easter parcel for Britain. Members have donated several items towards this parcel. Mrs. McPhee showed the new packs of cards which she had bought for the Institute, making everyone wish there was to be a card party soon. Mrs. Platt has had several of the hall chairs repaired recently. $5. was voted towards the Canadian Cancer Society. Mrs. Earl Gardiner and Mrs. L. Currie were named as auditors of the Institute books. Mrs. S. Cameron was named as delegate to the county convention. The new slate of officers for the coming year is as follows: President, Mrs. N. D. McPhee; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. J. Platt; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. L. Currie; assist. sec., Mrs. Chas. Smallman; treas., Mrs. Hewson. Con-trace of the missing needles. And finally there was the ironic touch of authorities instituting frequent radio broadcasts to warn the possessor of the stolen articles to get rid of them. The rays emitted by the radium-filled needles were highly dangerous.

As scientists and police investigating theft of the needles from a small frame storehouse at the rear of N.R.C. headquarters became suspicious that children were in possession of the needles, the search took on a frantic note.

Near or in contact with a person, the needles' rays gradually eat into the flesh, causing deep and lasting burns. If swallowed, the needles could cause death. Worse yet, the burns might not be noticeable for days or weeks.

In the end it was a pretty, 18-year-old laboratory worker, wielding a Geiger counter much as a housewife uses a vacuum cleaner, who helped recover the needles.

Found At Last Youthful Louise Gobeil accompanied an N.R.C. physicist to a school where a grade six student was reported to have been playing with the needles. After questioning the boy, the authorities rushed to his home. There Miss Gobeil put her Geiger counter into action and began unearthing the needles.

Most of them were found in a cardboard box in a garbage container. Four were found in a nearby mailbox, where the youngster had mailed them to the N.R.C. office.

As the week ended R.C.M.P. detectives continued their investigations. The boy, his story verified by a chum, told police he found the needles on the ground outside the storehouse. N.R.C. officials made one point clear: There has been no suggestion of security involved. The needles have no military value of any kind.

Downward Trend The Canadian Trades and Labor Congress presented its annual brief to the government last week. Prime Minister St. Laurent and cabinet members gave the T.L.C. delegation, headed by Percy Boughough, a courteous hearing - but little comment in the way of meeting Congress requests.

Mr. St. Laurent said the number of jobless was decreasing, and blamed this winter's unemployment largely on climatic conditions and on production cut-backs in some industries.

Canada's economy generally is going to be "all right" through 1950, the prime minister said. The construction industry had a big year ahead of it and the Congress suggested that the government launch large-scale public works to create jobs was unfeasible.

The Commons adjourned debate at the week-end on a note that sounded optimistic for Canada's old folk.

Health and Welfare Minister Martin put forward a motion that a joint committee of the House and Senate be established to study the whole question of old-age pensions. He said the committee would study all phases of old-age security, with the eventual aim of establishing the "best possible" old age and retirement system for Canadians. All parties in the Commons agreed that the pension system could stand improvement - but there the agreement ended.

Donald Fleming, Progressive-Conservative spokesman, said his party wanted immediate implementation of a national contributory old-age pension scheme and said the government was establishing the committee to relieve itself of "pressure" from all parts of the country for improved pensions.

Stanley Knowles, C.C.F. member for Winnipeg North Centre, called for immediate removal of the means test while Rev. E. G. Mansell, Social Credit member for Macleod, said he was opposed to a contributory system.

Throughout most of the week the speeches in the House of Commons were pretty dull affairs. The underlying theme speech debate, rolling through its third week, mainly concerned private members' views of what was needed to help local conditions in their own ridings; or reiteration of charges and counter-charges about Canada's trade position.

But a Progressive Conservative member from the new province of Newfoundland injected a fiery spark into the otherwise dull debate.

Rising in the Commons, Gordon Higgins said the federal government has not lived up to its agreement on freight rates for Newfoundland. The lawyer-member said he would give up his seat - St. John's East - if the agreement wasn't lived up to.

What's more, Mr. Higgins said that if he resumed he would do everything in his power to get Newfoundland to secede from Confederation if his province continued to pay higher freight rate than the three Maritime provinces.

Outside the house Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland said he is carrying the province's fight for a better freight rates deal to the federal cabinet.

As for secession, he said he was confident that the controversial issue would never sever the bonds that now tie the best of Canada with the island province. He felt sure Newfoundland residents were more in favor of confederation now than when they had voted to become the Dominion's 10th province.

OTTAWA - (CP) A 12-year-old schoolboy with a yen for dabbling in science touched off a bizarre, frantic search for 20 stolen radium needles in Canada's capital last week. The ensuing commotion shovelled the weighty deliberations on Parliament Hill into the background.

There was a Buck-Rogersish atmosphere to the incident that caught the attention of Canadians from coast to coast.

The very word radium had an association with dread atomic power that caused newspaper readers and radio listeners in all parts of the country to sit up and

WHY SOCIALISM WON'T WORK

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

I never liked the word "classes" as applied to the differences between people in a community. In the recent general election in Britain, the voters were divided into upper, middle and lower or working classes. There are undoubtedly differences and more or less sharp distinctions between individuals in every community, and "birds of a feather flock together." The upper class flock to the West End of London, and the lower to the East End, while the middle class, I suppose, flock somewhere in between. The distinctions between these classes are—or were—monetary. The wealthy were at one end and the poor at the other, with the more or less well-to-do in the middle. The wealthy would, of course, claim that they were cultured, and the well-to-do that they were respectable and educated. The poor didn't make any claim at all. They just lived or existed and for the most part were quite happy in their own way.

It has been said that every Englishman loves a lord, and that is or was true generally. The English people, as I knew them, did not regard the different grades of society as unnatural. They were rather proud of their aristocracy and they liked to have in their midst someone with a title to look up to, especially if he were a self-made man. In fact most of the Sirs and many of the Lords had "risen from the ranks" and were held up as examples for youthful ambition and aspiration. Even in England today there are few Socialist leaders who would refuse a knighthood, and some of them have not scorned the offer of the feudal title of "His Lordship." In their callow days these new Labor members of the nobility were fond of quoting "A Man's a Man For a' That."

Ye see yon birkie, ca'd a' lord,
Wha struts, an' stares, an' a' that,
Tho' hundreds worship at his word,
He's but a cuif, for a' that.

Last Christmas a Socialist friend in the Old Country sent me a booklet illustrated with photographs of historical places in England. There were pictures of ancient cathedrals, castles, lordly mansions, inns, humble thatched cottages and all the rural scenes of old romance. With the booklet he sent me a poem he had written, entitled "Think on These Scenes," in which he sought to lure me to come over again and admire the entrancing beauty of Old England. In his letters this same "friend" rails against the wealthy aristocracy, the nobility and even the Established Church as "relics of feudalism," which he says socialism will eliminate. And yet it seems he loves to think nostalgically on those "old, unhappy, far-off things."

The Labor Government tourist bureau has issued illustrated booklets which include pictures of recent hunting scenes, with the red-coated hunters on their pure-bred horses, surrounded by retive pedigree fox-hounds. Such scenes are not as common as they used to be, for the aristocracy has largely been levelled-down, in some cases to near-poverty, and the lower class has been levelled-up, at least financially. That is all to the good, but the people of England can never be permanently reduced or raised to one dead social level. Although they may abolish the hereditary nobility, there will always, in the past, be a circulation of individuals and families between the lower and upper strata of society. They have an old saying in Lancashire, "Three generations—from clogs to clogs," which briefly describes that process.

The civilized society can never be static, because human beings are not all alike; they are diversified mentally and temperamentally. That is why Socialism or any so-called "classless" system of society can never work. Karl Marx himself was no idealist in that respect, for, although he talked about "class struggles," his system was a scientific one in which he divided labor into classes of "use value." To him individuals were mere parts of the

The Young Women of the United Church repeated the play, "Too Many Relatives" on Thursday, March 9, by request. Many tickets were sold for this second performance but owing to the heavy storm during the day the roads and streets were impassable which made it difficult for many to attend, thus the audience was quite small. However, the play went on and all who attended enjoyed it immensely. It is hoped that once the roads and
