Mercury plummets as bitter cold snap grips Townships

A bitter cold snap, which has frozen the Eastern Townships for most of this week, tightened its grip on the area overnight and today.

The mercury plummeted to a low of eight degrees below zero last night.

The cold weather continues today. Although the sun shines brightly the high for today is forecast at five degrees above. The weather man forecasts more cold weather Friday. Snowflurries, which have dropped 6.4 inches of snow over Sherbrooke and area during the past three days, are also expected again tomorrow.

At eight o'clock this morning, according to the Lennoxville Experimental Farm, the temperature had climbed above zero. Many motorists faced the ordeal of getting the car motor started and scraping hard snow off the windshield.

The Department of Roads however, reported all roads in the area clear and sanded.

Last night's eight degrees below is by no means a record low temperature for the month in this area, but it is the coldest for this month in recent years.

Last year the lowest temperature in December was two degrees below on December 16. The record low recorded at the Lennoxville Experimental Farm over the past 47 years was a bitter 48 degrees below zero December 30, 1933.

A huge mass of Arctic air enveloped the entire eastern half of the United States today. The damaging and traffic effects of the prolonged late autumn cold wave and snowstorm mounted.

The unseasonably cold weather persisted from the northern borders deep into the southland, causing inconvenience to millions.

Damage to property and to vegetable crops in Florida was estimated in the millions of dollars. The continued cold threatened the multi-million dollar citrus crop in Florida. Temperatures ranged from the teens in northern Florida to the 30s and 40s in southern sections.

Deaths in connection with the severe wintry-type weather in the last week soared to near the 100 mark—with some estimates as high as 150.

The biting cold air dropped temperatures to record low levels for the season and for the date in many areas. The southland was especially hard hit by the icy blasts.

CENTRES IN GULF STATES

The main core of the Arctic air was in the northern gulf states. The mercury plunged to 11 below zero in Crossville, in eastern Tennessee. Temperatures along the coast dipped to the middle teens. Readings of zero were reported in north Georgia and in mountain areas of Alabama.

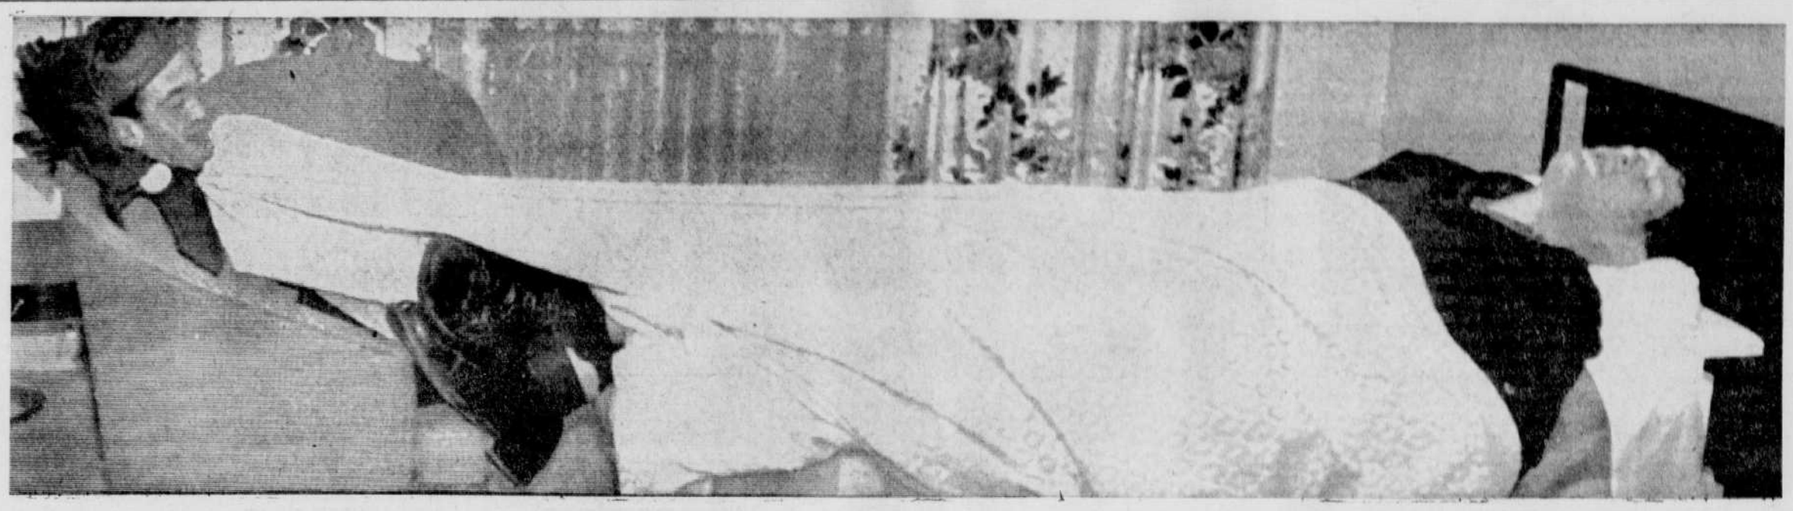
Kennedy announces regulations in effect within two weeks

Plan Cuban shipping penalties



WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has decided to impose penalties on non-Communist shipping engaged in trade with Cuba, chiefly by denying American cargoes to the vessels.

New regulations are expected to be put into effect in about two weeks.

The president's move, disclosed Wednesday at a press conference, involves reviving plans that were shelved when the Cuban crisis broke in October.

Thus, the United States is reverting to its pre-crisis policy of putting an increasingly tight economic squeeze on the Castro regime in Cuba and, at the same time, making the cost of Soviet support for that regime as high as possible.

Kennedy said regulations affecting Cuban shipping "should be available within the next two weeks."

The president said the U.S. government has used its influence with some North Atlantic Treaty allies and with other countries "to discourage shipping" to Cuba. Some countries have responded, he said, and the U.S. is going ahead with its work on regulations.

COULD NOT GET FUEL

The regulations would:

Close U.S. ports to ships on "continuous voyage" from some distant port to Cuba and return to a distant port. The effect of this provision would be to prevent such vessels from picking up fuel or other supplies in U.S. ports and from taking on American cargoes to pay the cost of the return trip.

Forbid the assignment of U.S. government cargoes — such as foreign aid supplies—to shipping lines which had any vessels engaged in the Cuban trade.

Close U.S. ports to nations whose ships carried arms to Cuba. As far as officials know this would apply only to Russia whose ships very seldom call at American ports anyway.

Several U.S. allies, particularly Britain and Norway, registered strenuous objections to the proposed U.S. regulations

Sets no deadline for Berlin

MOSCOW (AP)—Foreign Minister Gromyko said today the Soviet Union would like to negotiate a settlement of the Berlin question but is setting no deadline for an agreement.

Gromyko told the Supreme Soviet, in the presence of Premier Khrushchev and President Tito of Yugoslavia, that the Soviet Union is prepared to continue an exchange of opinions with the West on a solution of the German problem.

While saying no time limit was placed on such negotiations, he said the Communist powers ultimately would sign a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany if the Western powers refused to come to an agreement.

"But we will not count the pages of the calendar," he said.

Gromyko repeated the proposal by Khrushchev Wednesday to replace the Western allies' troops in West Berlin with the flag of the United Nations.

OFFERS GUARANTEES

He said that after a treaty is signed and the allied troops are out of West Berlin, the Soviet Union would give guarantees for the city's independence.

Without mutual understanding between the United States and the Soviet Union, it would be impossible to settle a single international conflict, Gromyko said.

"Either we must decide controversial questions at the conference table or slide into war—there is no other way out for the Soviet Union or the United States."

Says 'Skybolt' engineering is beyond U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy says engineering required to make the Skybolt work is of a kind that is "beyond us." But he is sure Britain will play a significant role as a nuclear power even if the ballistic missile is scrapped.

Emphasizing that no final decision on this 1,000-mile-range bomber weapon will be taken until he meets with Prime Minister Macmillan in the Bahamas next week, Kennedy made clear Wednesday he doesn't think there is much point in continuing development of the Skybolt which failed its first five tests. Britain is depending heavily on the Skybolt to extend the life of the British nuclear bomber force.

"The problem with the Skybolt is that it is the most sophisticated weapon imaginable," Kennedy told a press conference. "to fire a missile from a plane moving at high speed to hit a target 1,000 miles away requires the most advanced engineering and, of course, it has been really, in a sense, the kind of engineering that's been beyond us."

The U.S. has put $500,000,000 into development of the Skybolt and completion of the system as well as acquisition of the weapons would cost about $2,500,000,000. With other projects competing for the American budget, Kennedy questioned whether the project is worth the money. But he will wait to hear from Macmillan before making a final decision.

Without the Skybolt, Britain's nuclear strike power will be vastly reduced. But with the rapid expansion of its own nuclear missile strength, the U.S. now is reported to have concluded Britain's nuclear capabilities no longer are essential as a strategic deterrent against Russia.

Kennedy said also the U.S. will issue new regulations within two weeks to discourage the flow of international commercial shipping to Cuba. At the same time the U.S. will maintain daily surveillance to make sure no nuclear weapons are introduced on that island.

REACTS TO WARNING

That was the president's initial response to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's warning that Russia will safeguard Cuban sovereignty and will take appropriate steps if Kennedy fails to abide by a pledge not to invade Cuba.

Kennedy told reporters Khrushchev's remarks appeared to be directed to the Communist bloc rather than the West. The U.S. position, he added, remains unchanged from that of Nov. 20 when Kennedy said he could give no assurances against invasion of Cuba until the Communists agree to international inspection of Cuban territory. Negotiations on that point are continuing at the United Nations but State Secretary Dean Rusk already has indicated the outlook for agreement is bleak.

In addition to the daily watch over Cuba, the U.S. now is preparing new shipping regulations designed to discourage Western trade with Fidel Castro. Kennedy said the U.S. tried to use its influence with the North Atlantic alliance and other Western countries to take voluntary action. Some countries responded. Others did not.

CONSIDER PORT BAN

Within two weeks new regulations will be made public. While Kennedy did not spell out what the regulations will do, the U.S. has had under consideration for two months a proposed ban against use of American ports on the return journey of any ship delivering goods to Cuba.

While displaying an uncompromising attitude on Cuba, Kennedy said he is negotiating to establish "instantaneous" communications with Khrushchev. The two leaders had to rely several times on open broadcasts during the Cuban crisis because normal coding procedures slowed their message transmissions.

LIVELY COMMENTS IN UK PRESS

LONDON (Reuters) — The controversy over the future of the Skybolt missile project was the subject of lively comment in the British press again today —including a plea from the Manchester Guardian to let the United States make its own decision.

A British defence ministry spokesman said Wednesday night in Paris the program for the air-launched missile was still under discussion and no decision on its fate was expected before next week's Bahamas meeting between President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan.

Under the headline "Putting Skybolt Too High," a Guardian editorial suggests the U.S. Navy's Polaris missile is the best available weapon if Britain insists on a separate deterrent.

The Liberal newspaper reminds Britons the Skybolt "is an American program and has been entirely financed from Washington."

Seek probe speed-up

OTTAWA (CP)—An effort is being made behind the scenes to speed up the federal investigation of labor troubles on the Great Lakes.

Mr. Justice T. G. Norris met privately Wednesday with commission counsel Charles Dubin and SIU lawyer Gordon Henderson amid speculation that a new showdown was brewing over the slow progress of the inquiry into inter - union rivalries on the lakes.

The Vancouver jurist, who has held 65 public sessions in his searching investigation of union strife and shipping disruptions in the marine industry, has urged the SIU to avoid "trivialities" and concentrate on the issues before him.

"There are big issues here which have to be met—and I think should be met, head-on," said Mr. Justice Norris, in urging the union to cut short its parade of rank-and-file members as witnesses.

Rebellion collapses

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Argentina's latest pocket military rebellion collapsed Wednesday night, apparently without a shot being fired.

The short - lived insurrection ended when rebel leader Brig. Cayo Alsina, dismissed Tuesday as air force commander - in-chief, flew to Buenos Aires from his headquarters in Cordoba in his private plane to give himself up.

Alsina surrendered after a mock attack on his headquarters by government planes who loosed a few relatively harmless tracer bullets used in aerial displays and dropped several smoke bombs in a show of force.

His rebellion lasted only 40 hours and by the time he gave in most of the officers supporting him had either surrendered or been captured by loyal cadets at the Cordoba air force school he was using as a command post.

Brunei cleanup operation

Pursue rebels in swamps

LABUAN, North Borneo (AP) British troops pushed out from regained towns in Brunei and northwest Sarawak today chasing rebel bands seeking refuge in dense jungles and swamps.

Local British commanders were concerned that the rebels, whose strength still is unknown, would attempt to organize a long guerrilla war from swampland hideouts.

Several hundred tribesmen from the interior of Sarawak, responding to an ancient hostility to the rebel coastal dwellers, were reported prowling the Brunei-Sarawak border area in an effort to cut off rebel bands.

However, Lt.-Gen. Sir Nigel Poett, commander of British Far East land forces, declared after a visit to operations areas that the possibility of rebel guerrilla resistance was remote after six days of revolt.

"We have broken the back of the rebellion," he said.

REBELS POORLY ARMED

He pointed out that the rebels, who wanted to set up an independent state composed of the Brunei sultanate and the two neighboring crown colonies of Sarawak and North Borneo, were armed only with shotguns and a few rifles.

The lack of fierce fighting anywhere indicated the rebels wanted no showdown with British troops at this stage.

Rebel dead so far are believed to total about 50. The British have lost 10 dead. A number of civilians and police also have been killed.

A spokesman for Britain's Far East command in Singapore said 3,500 troops have been flown to Brunei and "the airlift continues at high pressure."

"We intend to stay there till the area is completely free, till normalcy is restored and till public confidence is regained," he said.

The freeing of 45 hostages from Seria jail by the British forces Wednesday brought the first eyewitness accounts of the early hours of the rebellion last Saturday, as well as stories of heroic parts played by a Scottish nurse, an Anglican priest and an Australian doctor.

Rev. John Vyvyan led a group of hostages in the Lord's Prayer as the rebels forced them to march as a human shield in an attack on the police station at Penaga, west of Seria.

"Those 15 yards seemed like 15 bloody miles," said a Shell Oil Company aircraft engineer.

Two or three prisoners were forced to go ahead for a parley in front of the jail, while the others were lined up 200 yards in the rear.

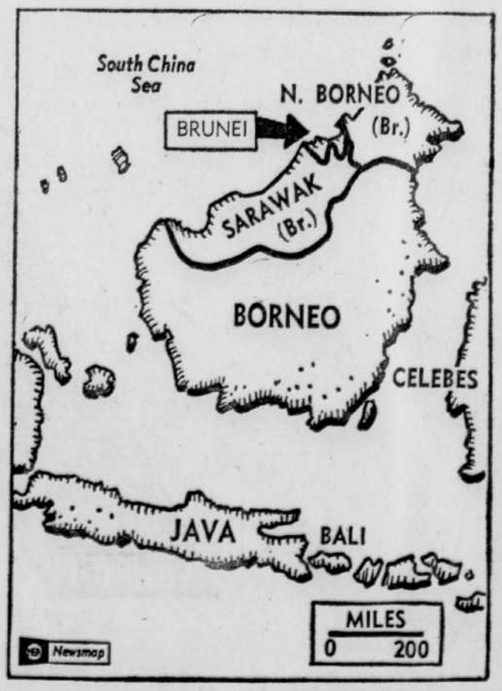
After a few moments the line was ordered to march ahead. When shooting started, the hostages fell on their faces. Several escaped in the confusion. But one hostage, a Eurasian engineer, was killed, and five others were wounded.

Originally 62 persons, including 12 women and children, were rounded up as prisoners by the rebels. But nurse Jean Scott of Glasgow persuaded the rebels to free the women and children. She refused to treat a badly wounded rebel unless they agreed to the exchange.

As the prisoners, grimy and unkempt, walked out of the jail they cheered "our brave little Jean."

Dr. Alan Maclean was praised for dashing under fire from the cover of a ditch to drag one of the wounded hostages to safety and give him first aid.

Some of the prisoners said the rebellion basically was anti-Malaysia—against the projected federation of Brunei, Sarawak, North Borneo, Malaya and Singapore. Many said they felt there was Indonesian influence behind the revolt.



TROUBLE SPOT — Newsmap loates Brunei, focal point for trouble in British protectorates of Brunei, Sarawak and North Borneo. British troops, airlifted into the area, have broken the back of a rebellion of nationalists, including insurgents of the North Borneo National Army.

Disappeared for six months

Former Canadian naval officer gets year in jail for desertion

HALIFAX (CP) — A former Canadian naval officer who was given six days' leave and disappeared for six months was given a one-year prison term Wednesday for desertion.

Unless granted an appeal, Oliver J. Grenon will serve his term in a city - operated prison in northern Halifax.

The 35 - year - old former lieutenant was convicted of deserting the destroyer - escort Kootenay in Portsmouth, Eng., last April. The navy said he will be committed to the city prison today.

The Radville, Sask., native and father of four pleaded not guilty at his court martial which opened Wednesday morning and ended in the afternoon.

Maximum penalty for desertion is five years imprisonment.

The decision of the five-man court will be reviewed by the district commanding officer and Grenon can appeal to the governor-in-council or the court martial appeal board.

Grenon did not take the stand and was not asked why he deserted or where he had been during his absence. He was released from the navy Oct. 12.

The defence counsel, RCAF Sqdn. Ldr. Clive L. Rippon, a service legal officer, said the main issue was whether Grenon had intended to desert. The prosecution must prove the "intention of never returning" and must produce supporting evidence, he said.

Grenon, subject of a six-month search before he was arrested in Germany last month, appeared calm during the trial.

Only two witnesses were called by the prosecutor, Lt.-Cmdr. Marvin A. Bisal.

Cmdr. Harry Shorten, Kootenay's commander when she visited Portsmouth, testified he had last seen Grenon April 6 in Portsmouth and had given him six days leave.

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 18 years ago, character Frank McHugh played the role of a priest in a movie called Going My Way, starring Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald.

Last night McHugh was back on Going My Way, only this tin e it was an ABC television program—and he played a safe-cracker's assistant.

McHugh, who started in show business in his native McKeesport, Pa., stock company as a youngster, has been in literally hundreds of plays, silent movies, talkies and, now, television. In the movies he was almost inevitably cast in parts calling for a funny drunk. He played innumerable comedy reporters, too, but perhaps is most often seen nowadays in the late, late TV shows playing a cab driver in James Cagney's famous Roaring Twenties.

There have always been good plays and bad plays, good movies and bad movies," says McHugh. "And there will always be good television programs and bad ones.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — That Katharine Hepburn wanted to talk was not unusual. That she would talk for publication was extraordinary, since she has been elusive for reporters in recent years.

The reason for talking was to help along Long Day's Journey into Night, the much-heralded film from Eugene O'Neill's autobiographical play.

"I think it deserves a hearing," she said. "It's a fine piece of work, a truly great play. I think it's encouraging that such a serious film can be done at a reasonable figure and that its commercial prospects are good.

"I was delighted to do it. It was a real challenge, making use of a range of dramatics that I have never shown on the screen before. O'Neill had a depth that is simply marvelous. Several years ago George Cukor and I wanted to do Mourning Becomes Electra with Garbo and me. But Roslind Russell got to it first."

The actress lives in a curious aerie amid the high-rent district in upper Beverly Hills. It is a cliff-hanging apartment adjacent to an estate.

"It used to be Jack Barrymore's," She explained. "Dear Jack, he was so kind to me. I did my first picture with him—Bill of Divorcement. The lower part of this place used to be his projection room."

She showed a stained-glass door leading to what now is her bedroom. Pictured in it were Barrymore and his second wife, Dolores Costello.

Pleads not guilty to car theft

A 19-year-old Sherbrooke youth was released on $950 property bail at the Sherbrooke Court House after he pleaded not guilty to stealing a car from the Val Estrie Automobile Ltd., garage early Saturday morning.

Richard Therrien, of 569 Wilson Street, pleaded not guilty before District Court Judge Redmond Hayes and had his trial set later this week.

Therrien is accused of stealing one of two cars from the Val Estrie Automobile Show window last Saturday morning.

Sherbrooke Police said the thieves drove the cars through the plate glass show windows to escape. Both cars were found damaged by Sherbrooke Police about three hours after they were stolen.

Gaston Laflamme, 32, of Rock Island was fined $50 and costs in Sherbrooke District Court Tuesday after he pleaded guilty of a hit and run charge.

Laflamme was arrested by police in Stanstead after he failed to stop after the car he was driving was involved in a collision with one driven by Maurice Loiselle, of Stanstead.

Crown Attorney Benoit Turmel told Judge Redmond Hayes, he had no objections that a $50 fine be imposed.

Mr. Bessette said the boy impersonated his 15-year-old friend as a Sherbrooke Daily Record delivery boy.

Rev. Dr. R. Cameron to preach at St. Andrew's Church here

REV. DR. R. CAMERON

The Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, the Rev. Dr. Ross K. Cameron, D.D., will be the guest preacher at the Sunday service at St. Andrew's Church on Frontenac Street.

Dr. Cameron will speak at the 11 a.m. service on The Evangelical Faith.

The same afternoon the choir will present a candlelight carol service beginning at 3.30 p.m The choir will be under the direction of Miss Thelma Crawford with Mr. Lou Jenne at the organ. The choir will be augmented with voices from other city choirs.

On December 15, from 3.30 to 5 p.m. there will be an afternoon tea for congregation and friends of St. Andrew's to meet the Moderator.

Dr. Cameron's father, the late Rev. Robert S. Cameron, was minister of North Easthope, Ross was born in Stratford, Ontario 57 years ago. Soon afterwards his father was called to Georgetown where Ross attended public and high school.

He has been minister of the Dovercourt Road Presbyterian congregation in Toronto for the past 22 years.

Leave of absence was granted for four years during World War II, when he served with the Royal Canadian Air Force as chaplain in Canada, Great Britain and North-West Europe.

Dr. Cameron graduated in arts from the University of Toronto, and after post-graduate work in philosophy qualified for an M. A. In 1932 he received the diploma of Knox College, and in 1960 the honorary degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon him by that college in recognition of an outstanding ministry.

After ordination in 1932 the young graduate became minister of St. Andrew's Church, Streetsville, Ontario for a year. Then he moved to Rogers Memorial Church, Toronto and during the next three years initiated a Sunday afternoon radio ministry in addition to his pastoral and pulpit duties. In 1936 he was called to First Church Edmonton.

Four years later Dr. Cameron moved back to Toronto, and was inducted as minister of Dovercourt Road Church. In the years since 1940 the district around Dovercourt has changed greatly, but the congregation has remained loyal, and Dr. Cameron has more than once refused tempting invitation to leave the pastorate there.

After the war he doffed this R.C.A.F. uniform in favour of a kilt, and became padre of the 48th Highlanders of Canada for the 12 years from 1948 to 1960 with the rank of major.

Dr. Cameron has been moderator of West Toronto Presbytery and moderator of the Synod of Toronto and Kingston. He is convener of the general assembly's committee on the status of deaconnesses, and a member of the pension board and the general board of missions.

Because of his deep concern for the changing nature of the inner city and the need for maintaining a ministry there, Dr. Cameron was appointed convener of his presbytery's committee on downtown churches when it came into being three years ago. For nine years he was on the board of the Neighborhood workers Association.

The new moderator is married to the former Audrey Bradley of Toronto. Their son, Donald R., graduated in law 1st year from the University of Toronto and is now a student-at-law with a Toronto firm.

New bridge to be built

ROCK ISLAND—At a special meeting of the Rock Island Town Council held on December 10, the decision was made that the Kathan Bridge on Center street be completely torn down and a new one be built in spring.

This bridge was damaged by a transport truck last February. Since then the question of what to do about the bridge has been a topic of discussion at about every council meeting.

In November it was agreed to accept the settlement of the trucking company's insurance of $3,000. A provincial grant has been promised and on Monday night the Council made its final decision.

Although estimates had been obtained about repairing the bridge, reconstruction was not recommended by the engineers who inspected it. The council expressed the opinion it would take about two months or more for the steel beams for the new bridge to be delivered. Once they are received, the work will commence as soon as favorable weather will permit.

SEWERS

Also at Monday night's meeting the decision was made that the sewer repairs started in the west section of Rock Island will have to be completed. The decision was reached as to what course to lay the drains. In this particular section, there is considerable granite stone deposit. Water from the old granite open quarry will also be drained into the same sewer pipes.

License bureau has snowmobile permits

The Sherbrooke office of the Quebec motor vehicles department announced Wednesday licenses are now available for snowmobiles.

Antonio Pinard, head of the district department said the cost of the license is $4.

He added that he also received notice from the Quebec General Attorney's department saying all snowmobiles of skidoo variety, must have a license, are not allowed to be driven on any public throughfare, and the driver of tht vehicle must have an operator's license.

Mr .Pinard said a recent release was received from Quebec advising that snowmobiles were not permitted to be driven on highways and thoroughfares.

"Anyone who wants to transport a skidoo across a highway or public thoroughfare, must have it on a trailer, and both the trailer and skidoo must have licenses," Mr. Pinar dsaid.

Theft spree in Asbestos

Teenagers will spend Christmas behind bars

Two Asbestos boys, aged 15 and 16-years-old, will spent this Christmas in the Winter Street Jail behind bars while awaiting their sentences for eight counts of breaking and entering and for theft.

The two boys were ordered back to their cells Wednesday by Sherbrooke Social Welfare Court Judge Roger Bouchard, after they pleaded guilty to eight charges of breaking and entering with theft in the Asbestos area.

Gerard Bessette, Social Welfare court clerk, said the boys went on a three week theft spree, during which they stole over $300 in cash and goods valued at over $100, from stores, and houses in the Asbestos area.

The two boys were arrested by Asbestos Police Chief Larivee after investigation.

Mr. Bessette said Judge Bouchard told the boys they would have to remain in jail over the Christmas Holidays to await sentencing.

The 16-year-old boy will be sentenced on Dec. 31, while the 15-year-old will be sentenced on January 8th.

U. S. weather department ruined this golfer's game

By SANDRA PICKFORD
(Record Staff Reporter)

The United States Weather Bureau ruined 29-year-old John Sorensin's unseasonal golf game at the Lennoxville Golf Course Saturday afternoon — and it wasn't by forecasting bad weather.

Mr. Sorensin was playing a good game until he stepped up to the third tee.

Hanging from a nearby tree he saw a red parachute with a box-like instrument dangling from it.

Forgetting the golf game he approached cautiously but decided not to touch anything. He left the golf course and found a third year science student at Bishop's University, Pat Draper who went back with him and got the "thing" out of the tree.

The "thing" turned out to be a weather instrument known as a Radiosonde, used by the United States Weather Bureau for measuring the temperature pressure and moisture of the air at various heights above the ground.

The instrument, packed in a heavy cardboard box with a protruding white plastic nose cone was tied to a balloon and sent up by a United States Weather Bureau Station.

An explanation on the side of the box said the instrument package operated as a radio transmitter which was tracked by a special radio receiver at the ground station.

There was no mention of where the balloon was sent up from or how long it had been up. Stamped inside the box was "USWB March 8, 1960." The battery inside is still good.

The balloon carrying the package burst at a height of 17 miles and came down on the attached parachute, the explanation read.

A notice to the finder claimed the instrument as the property of the United States Government, department of commerce, weather bureau.

The notice asked that if the instrument was found in the US, to mail it at any US post office or hand it to a US rural carrier. It read: "Your assistance will permit the weather bureau to use the radiosonde again. Thank you for your cooperation in returning it."

Mr. Sorensin, of 10 Clough Street, Lennoxville, says he isn't sure what to do with the radiosonde. Pat Draper said the unit would probably be handed over to the local post office.

"Anyway, I never did get to finish my golf game," said Sorensin.

Snow Shoers entertained

Led by M. C. Fred Bampton, the newest members of the Sherbrooke Snow Shoe Club entertained the club with a variety show last evening.

Acting as hillbillies the group composed of Terry Howell, Ray Leech, Bob Sutcliffe, Don Cathcart and Norman Lockwood told stories, sang songs for their part of Green Horns' Night. Highlight of the show was a vocal and instrumental number by Terry Howell.

A chicken-pie supper was served to the group prior to the show by Honorary Purveyor Bill Lyon and his crew.

Guests of the club for the evening were Brad Shaw and Dick Bowllan.

Carols highlighted the weekly singsong led by Chorister Fred Barton-Slater with Irving Richards at the piano. President Doug Jones extended the compliments of the season from the executive.

Seated at head table with the president were Honorary President Jim Wark, Past President George Jobel, Vice-President Gordon Dougall, Honorary Treasurer Howard Woollerton, Honorary Secretary Ernie Kimmis, Past Presidents Bert Nobert and George Lothrop, Arthur Michie, Harry Haddon, Chorister Fred Barton-Slater and Dick Bowllan.

Society elects new executive

RICHMOND — Alfred T. Smith was again named to head the Richmond County Agricultural Society at the annual meeting which took place in the Richmond County Court House Tuesday.

Aubrey A. Carson was re-elected the first vice-president Robert Laberge, the second vice-president, Raymond Lampron, secretary-treasurer, and L. R. Boast auditor.

Plans were discussed for holding the 107th County Fair on August 15, 16, and 17.

A $1,211 surplus is expected for the Chamber of Commerce in the coming year according to the budget figures approved and released at a meeting on Monday, Henri Baudot, managing secretary, said Thursday.

According to the report, receipts for the coming year will amount to $18,250 and expenditures should reach $17,039 thus leaving the surplus of $1211.

Last year's budget was $13,417 and left a deficit of $209.06.

Mr. Baudot said that the main reason for the surplus that is forecast is that the membership fees will be increased.

Operations in the employment branch during November 1962 were as follows: registrations totalled 3,313. referrals were 940 and the number of placements reached 695.

In October 1962 there were 2,933 registrations, 1,152 referrals and 954 placements.

The figures for November 1961 were 3,308 registrations, 833 referrals, and 661 placements.

In the insurance fields, the Sherbrooke local offices and sub-offices of Richmond, East Angus, and Coaticook have registered in November 1962 1,404 initial claims in person, 643 renewal claims, and 65 postal totalling 2,112 claims compared to 2,325 in November 1961.

In October 1962, 1,304 claims were taken.

The number of active claimants at the end of November 1962 were 2,455 male and 1,013 female for a total of 3,468 or 103 fewer than in the corresponding month last year.

Seasonal problem

Placement service issues appeal to reduce number of unemployed

The National Employment Service has issued an appeal to employers to make use of the employment office with a view to recruiting workers.

As in previous years, seasonal unemployment arrives with the end of November and it's effects will continue up to the end of February or early March, service officials said.

At the end of November 1962, according to the local office manager of the Unemployment Insurance Commission E. Charette, the unplaced applicants numbered 4,291 compared with 4,042 in November 1961.

In October of this year the number of unplaced persons was 3,021, said Mr. Charette.

The Sherbrooke branch of the Red Cross has announced it will hold its annual meeting at 8 p.m. tonight at its local headquarters, 363 King Street West.

Poor reasoning in contract decision

The Sherbrooke aldermen will have some trouble convincing the ratepayers of the wisdom of rejecting the lowest tender for the new Wellington Street South parking garage merely because the president of the company lived outside the city limits.

Except for the apparent desire of the senior official of the country instead of the quiet of the city streets the lowest tenderer appears in every way qualified to bid on and receive city contracts. It maintains its head office in Sherbrooke. It employs Sherbrooke citizens. It pays taxes to the City of Sherbrooke. And it has performed several contracts for the city in the past. Apparently these have given satisfaction because no objections were offered as to the ability of the lowest tenderer to carry out the terms of the contract.

His great crime, apparently, is that technically he does not live in Sherbrooke, although he receives his mail through the Sherbrooke post office and his telephone calls through the Sherbrooke exchange. Probably he buys his gasoline at a Sherbrooke service station and his groceries from a Sherbrooke supermaket, both likely owned by outside companies.

Some of the aldermen admitted they were "confused" by the whole affair but went along with the sponsors of the motion to give the contract to the second lowest tenderer. Their "confusion" may not be shared by the taxpayers who have the right to ask why their money is being wasted because of some hair-splitting detail as to what constitutes a local contractor.

The only possible justification for restricting municipal work to "local contractors" is to assure that local labor is used as far as possible on the projects and that the contractor contribute normal tax revenues to the municipal coffers. In this particular case, the lowest bidder met both these requirements.

It would be interesting to know if the presidents of the other tendering firms maintain summer homes at nearby lakes and perhaps spend as much time there as the unsuccessful bidder does at his "country estate."

The autoroute and the world's fair

The significance to the Eastern Townships of two separate Quebec developments — the building of the ET autoroute and the holding of a world's fair in Montreal in 1967 — was pinpointed by a Townships speaker at a regional conference of the Quebec Industrial Commissioners' Association in Sherbrooke Tuesday.

Aime Laurion, president of the Granby French-language daily newspaper, La Voix de L'Est, and a member of the provincial autoroutes office, said that the autoroute would serve as a direct link between the world's fair and the Townships region, thus in effect, making the Townships a part of the fair.

He urged Townships businessmen to take advantage of the link, pointing out that there is much potential in this area that has not as yet been realized.

Mr. Laurion's remarks are timely. As The Record has stressed on several occasions, the completion of the autoroute combined with the Montreal World's Fair could provide an unprecedented stimulus to developments in many spheres in the Townships if the two projects are properly taken advantage of.

And the time to start planning is now. The beneficial effects of ambitious planning in conjunction with the fair will continue long after the fair is but a pleasant memory, exceeding even the fondest expectations of autoroute supporters.

Must not forget mental prisoners

On different occasions in the past 10 days, Sherbrooke courts have ordered two mentally-ill teenagers to be placed behind bars while they awaited openings for treatment in the proper institutions.

The judges had no alternative but to send the youths to jail because of the critical lack of space in Quebec's mental hospitals. In turning down a lawyer's appeal for a suspended sentence on behalf of his 18-year-old client charged with sexual misdemeanors, Judge Evender Veilleux, of the Court of Sessions, noted:

"It is impossible to give the boy a suspended sentence and let him go free because if he gets into more trouble while waiting to be admitted to a hospital, the court will be to blame and will be held responsible for what he does."

Judge Veilleux also explained that he had received calls from anxious parents who feared for the safety of their daughters if the youth was freed.

In the second case, a 17-year-old mentally disturbed boy, with a record of thefts, was ordered back to cells also.

Both youths have been incarcerated at the Sherbrooke Jail where, until last year, five mental patients languished for years with little or no psychiatric treatment. It was only after a public outcry about the condition of the men that authorities had them transferred to a suitable institution..

For the protection of society and for their own safety, mentally-disturbed criminals should be imprisoned until such time as they can receive the proper care. However, jailing should be considered only as a temporary, stop-gap measure. These prisoners must not be forgotten.

Other papers say:

Acheson repeats old misconception

It has been said often of Dean Acheson that he "looks, dresses, talks and thinks too much like an Englishman" to ever succeed in American politics. And Acheson, of course, has his roots in Canada.

When, then, this distinguished former U.S. Secretary of State and present advisor of President Kennedy on NATO affairs says that Britain's role in the world is "played out" let none of us dismiss him as anti-British or as some doom-shouting dunce.

But is he right?

One answer is that for nearly two centuries history has dealt hardly with prophets who saw Britain's end.

There were not many in Europe, not many among the politically wise and famous, who believed that Britain, a small island, could withstand the might of Napoleon. There were few in Europe in 1939 or 1940 who thought that Britain could defeat the vaunted power of Hitler.

Yet with both of these challenges history repeated; it was the story of the Armada over again.

Dean Acheson says that Britain has "lost an empire" and is now but "the head of a Commonwealth which has no political structure, or unity, or strength. . ."

But in the greatest period of Britain's world influence, the area of Elizabeth The First, Britain had no empire only the spirit and indomitable will of her race. And there never was a time when the Commonwealth had political structure or unity—not any unity or structure beyond that of spirit and ideals.

Is it possible that Dean Acheson is measuring Britain's greatness, or lack of it, by atomic bombs and trade statistics?

That may be the test of current statesmanship; it is not the test of the historian. For Britain's part over a thousand years cannot be measured alone, or even chiefly, by the ships and trade she sent over far seas, nor by "British bones on the sea floor," nor by traditions that have the color of blood, nor by numbers left on the field. As well as Drake and Nelson and Marlborough there were Shakespeare and Swineburne and Bacon, and many another.

So it may be that the famous and respected Dean Acheson is forgetting his history for the current hopes of his country's world politics. The hope of a strong Europe, or what is hoped will be a strong Europe, through Britain yielding much fo her old sovereignty, her old independent role, by joining the Commons Market. For that now, clearly, has become one of Washington's aims—a pro-American trade bloc as well as military bloc in Europe standing between the U.S. and Russia.

Whether Britain joins or doesn't join the Common Market, we cannot say. But many of us will refuse to believe Mr. Acheson's dictum that, out of the Common Market, standing by herself with her Commonwealth, Britain's role in the world and her influence on it, will be ended.

We think that Mr. Acheson's great countryman, Emerson, knew Britain better when he wrote of "Those people who see more clearly on a cloudy day."

They Fly So High They Touch the Sky

'Of the days that are past'

By REV. J. D. R. FRANKLIN

Further examination of the "Sherbrooke Illustrated" of 1898 provides the present day reader with much information about the civil religious and commercial life of the community.

For instance Sherbrooke and the Townships have had a long tradition of loyalty to the Crown as shown by the proud history of the Militia regiments. The Troop of Cavalry formed in 1818 by Colonel Nichols later became part of the 5th. Cavalry Regiment under command of Capt. King and Lieuts. Barton and Horton. Also we read that "the 53rd Battalion is one recognized all over the Province as an effective, well-drilled corps, composed of men of fine physique, well-officered, and with two fine bands." This Battalion took part in the Fenian raids of 1870, and when the "Illustrated" was published the field officers were Lt.-Col. E. B. Worthington, Major H. R. Fraser, Capt. Somers, with H. A. Odell as paymaster. The Colours of the old 53rd now are laid up in St. Peter's Church.

We are also told that no judical division of Canada can claim a succession of more learned and brilliant men upon the Bench. The Sherbrooke Bar enjoyed a reputation of the highest character and had always received marked recognition in the Courts of Review and Appeal. In 1898 the Judges of the Superior Court were Hon. Mr. Justice White, and the Hon. Mr. Justice Lemieux, and Mr. H. W. Mulvena was the District Magistrate. Other Officers of the Court were Hon. John McIntosh (sheriff) Mr. H. Moe (High Constable) and Mr. M. Read was Jailor and Governor of the Protestant Reform School.

The City boasted many fine churches serving the religious needs of the community. We are told that "the citizens of all denominations may be considered as devoted churchgoers" and that "the best citizens destire to have their families reared in a Christian atmosphere." The Anglican congregation was formed in 1822 and the Revd. Mr. LeFevre ministered in Sherbrooke and Lennoxville. The Revd. John Holmes was the Roman Catholic missionary in Sherbrooke and he conducted services in the old Court House built in 1823 on the site occupied by the College on Market Street. It is very interesting to note that in those early days this Court House was used each Sunday, mornings and afternoons alternately, for Anglican and Roman Catholic services. This amicable arrangement lasted for two years until the first Roman Catholic chapel was built in 1825, with the Rev. J. B. McMahon as their resident priest. In the year 1898 there were three RC churches, namely the Cathedral (1855) St. Jean Baptiste (1884) and St. Patrick's (1884). Older residents will remember the former St. Peter's Church which stood on the corner of Commercial (now Dufferin) and Montreal, but as it was inadequate for the growing congregation we read "that plans have been prepared and some $15,000 subscribed towards the building of a handsome brick and stone church." This refers to the present St. Peter's Church, known to many as the "cathedral of the Eastern Townships."

The Congregationalists built Plymouth Church in 1851, and it is now the oldest church building in Sherbrooke. The congregation formally worshipped in a building on Factory Street (where the present Presbyterian Church stands) and at the time it was noted that Plymouth "has taken an active part in all public movements for the raising of the standard of morality in the community." The other Protestant churches were the Methodist, Presbyterian and the Baptist, all with thriving congregations and substantial church buildings.

(To Be Continued)

This is the second in a series of three articles written by Rev. J. D. R. Franklin on Sherbrooke just before the turn of the century. Mr. Franklin is rector of St. Peter's Anglican Church, Sherbrooke.

Britain tries to quell fears

No entry into ECM at any cost

LONDON (Reuters) — British officials are currently attempting to dispel the misconception that the government is determined to take the nation into the European Common Market at any price.

Political sources say that though the government is as eager as ever to join Europe, increasing emphasis is being laid equally on its determination to secure safeguards it is pledged to obtain for the Commonwealth, its European Free Trade Association partners and home agriculture.

The mistaken belief in some European and British political quarters that government thinking here had reached the point of entry into the six-nation trade group on any conditions is ascribed by many politicians to the effect of the Common Market vote at the ruling Conservative party's annual conference at Llandudno, Wales, in October.

There, the 4,500-member assembly gave an overwhelming vote of confidence to the government's handling of the protracted Brussels negotiations for Britain's entry.

But government ministers contest this, saying a vote of, for example, 60 per cent in favor and 40 per cent against entry would not have eased the pace of Deputy Foreign Secretary Edward Heath's negotiations with the European "six" in Brussels.

Nothing in speeches made by Heath, Britain's chief Common Market negotiator, or Deputy Prime Minister R. A. Butler, at Llandudno gave credence to the idea that Britain would sign a blank cheque for entry.

British officials say tough bargaining and hard negotiations lie ahead for Heath and the Common Market "six" in Brussels. They emphasize that no British minister could, for example, sign the death warrant of British domestic agriculture.

The British government is standing firmly by its basic requirement that the system of deficiency payments which prevails in Britain for farmers should not be abandoned, as soon as Britain joins, in favor of the continental system of consumer subsidies. This would have to be done gradually, in the British view.

Political sources say it will again be made clear to the "six" the British government is not working to any set timetable or deadline for joining the Common Market.

Jan. 1, 1964, has frequently been mentioned as "going-in day." It is still thought this date is possible, but officials here say the government will not allow itself to be rushed into a settlement to keep to a timetable that would cramp its freedom to negotiate.

BIG MEAL SERVICE

HALIFAX (CP) — Nova Scotia restaurants served 18,000,000 meals to 80 per cent of the province's visitors last summer. The provincial branch of the Canadian Restaurants Association says this was a general increase despite an unusually wet summer.

Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA — Socred leader Thompson's crack that Parliament is suffering from "boardom" is further evidence that he's a good turner of phrases. Earlier he produced "House of Minorities" to describe this Commons.

The various boards the government is creating (e.g., productivity, economic, Atlantic and industrial) are so nebulous that nobody knows just what they'll do or how they'll do it. So the debates have become a recital of the economic needs of individual MPs' ridings, to the "boardom" of everybody else . . .

Another parliamentary newcomer building a reputation as a phrase-turner is the NDP member from New Westminster, BC, Barry Mather. Cracks that he imports from the coast are new here, like "Premier Bennett is selling BC for a mess of wattage" . . .

John Fisher, erstwhile sec-Canada-firster, is bucking for the top executive position in the centennial organization. Dr. Norman Mackenzie, retired university head (UNB, UBS) is president of the Canadian Centenary Council. Fisher, who quit publicizing the scenery to publicize John Diefenbaker, hopes to move from the PM's office to become Mackenzie's top aide-perhaps as general manager or managing director of the centenary . . .

Pete Robertson, the way freight conductor from Kenora who was summoned from his van ((railway parlance for caboose) to a seat in the Senate, contributes the quotes of the week — about the PM, the man who gave him his $10,000 a year lifetime job:

"He's a great man, always thinking about all of Canada. I mean that, all of Canada" . . .

The PM used to believe he had the vote of the running trades in his pocket, out of gratitude for his legal defence of a railway telegrapher in BC years ago who had garbled a message and caused a wreck. Before picking Pete for the Senate, he named Harry Campbell, retired Brotherhood official, to the Board of Broadcast Governors. Then someone found out Campbell was two years overage at 72, so the PM reached into the hat again for another name: Charles Chambers, a district fire department chief in Toronto. Aside from the fact that firemen vote too, it's just as hard to figure that appointment as the Hon. Pete's . . .

I owe the Winnipeg police an apology for intimating they clobbered a 12-year-old boy in the 1919 strike. The fact is that Harold Winch's career as a radical politician wasn't launched until some 15 years later, when the Vancouver police used their truncheons on him in a sit-down "strike" of unemployed in the Vancouver post office.

Works Minister Davie Fulton, leaving to become a Tory Moses in BC, has been called the best brain in the Diefenbaker cabinet, bar none. This opinion is not widely accepted by his cabinet colleagues . . .

The two-headed Socreds are the strangest animal in the Commons, but right across the way is another odd critter. The NDP has a small head, in diminutive Tommy Douglas, and a big rump of six MPs who are unregenerate CCFers. The rump comprises Bert Herridge, the former CCF-NDP House leader, old socialist Colin Cameron, hell-raisers Frank Howard and Arnold Peters, Murdo Martin, the MP for Timmins-Pigalle, and young rebel Reid Scott of Toronto. The NDP brass hates Hazen Argue; grits teeth when kindly old Bert Herridge tosses out complimentary refrences in the Commons to his former leader, now the Liberal MP for Assiniboia.

Makes peace with Tito

K declares war on views of China, Albania

By GEORGE SYLVERTSEN

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev has declared war on the ideological views of Communist China and Albania and publicly made his peace with his old enemy in the Communist camp, Yugoslav President Tito.

In his speech to the Supreme Soviet Wednesday, Khrushchev outlined to his people for the first time the details of his feud with the dissenting Chinese and Albanians.

A neutralist diplomat called the speech "a historic turning point" in Moscow-Peking rivalry.

Khrushchev declared that dogmatism, a Communist synonym for the extreme views of the Chinese, had become just as dangerous as revisionism, a word applied to such independent Communist thinking such as Yugoslavia's.

He swore that, from now on, "Soviet Communists, to whom there is nothing higher than unity of the ranks of the world Communist movement, will fight resolutely against both right-wing and left-wing opportunism, which today is no less dangerous than revisionism."

In an open affront to the anti-Titoist Chinese and Albanians, Khrushchev declared Soviet friendship for the Yugoslav Communists.

This drew an approving nod from Tito, seated behind him on the stage, and loud applause from the deputies of the Supreme Soviet.

Khrushchev blamed Stalin for the differences that led to Yugoslavia's expulsion from the Communist camp in 1948.

"But our Yugoslav comrades were not wholly blameless," he added.

"There are still serious divergencies on a number of ideological questions," but recent moves in Yugoslav domestic and foreign policy have "eliminated much of what we regarded as erroneous and as prejudicing the cause of building socialism in Yugoslavia."

He apparently was referring to Tito's recent economic reforms, tightening central controls over decentralized Yugoslav industries, and his close support of Soviet foreign policy stands.

'SINK IN QUAGMIRE'

While never mentioning the Chinese by name, Khrushchev accused them of "sinking deeper and deeper in the quagmire of leftist opportumis, splitting tactics and sectarianism."

"In the crisis over Cuba, Yugoslav Communists took a correct position, whereas dogmatists who pose as true Marxists-Leninists took a provocative position," he said.

"What the crisis in Cuba has shown is that the main danger was represented by those who stood and stand on dogmatic positions."

Khrushchev turned the argument that he was "soft on imperialism" back at the Chinese.

He noted that Peking tolerates the British colony of Hong Kong and Portuguese Macao on its territory.

With sarcasm, Khrushchev said: "There must be weighty reasons for this. It would, therefore, be ridiculous to level against (China) the accusation that this is a concession to the British and the Portuguese colonists, that this is appeasement."

He compared the Albanians to children who have been taught to hurl obscenities by adults who do not want to do it themselves.

when they were first advanced before the Cuban blockade. They may be modified to allow some flexibility in application, although state department informants said they did not yet know precisely what modifications would finally be adopted.

WEST DEEPLY INVOLVED

A report released by the Maritime administration of the commerce department in early October showed that non-Communist ship operations in the Cuban trade were about double those of the Soviet bloc.

From last Jan. 1 through Aug 31, the report said, 432 merchant ships, including 43 tankers, flying the flags of 22 non-Communist countries made a total of 571 trips to Cuba. During that period no U.S. flag ships called at Cuban ports, the report said.

Ships flying the flags of Greece, the United Kingdom, West Germany and Norway accounted for 61 per cent of the total number of ships involved and 60 per cent of the total number of trips, according to the report.

Round of parties exhausting chore for UN delegates

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS (AP)— "It's grim enough dealing with Cuba or The Congo all day," said the diplomat, staring glumly at the milling throng of drinkers. "To fight your way through this every night is a bit too much."

With 110 member nations determined to wine and dine each other before the General Assembly session ends soon, the average delegate usually winds up his day being jostled about a smoke-filled room.

The envoy first must stand in line up to half an hour to pay his respects to the host ambassador. Then he is free to battle his way through the packed room in search of a cocktail tray.

If the drink gives him courage to try the buffet, the guest attaches himself to another long line inching past the food tables. Then he has the problem of finding a place to sit.

After a three-week round of UN receptions and banquets during his 1960 visit to the Assembly, Soviet Premier Khrushchev told a reporter:

"This life would make a stone sick."

Ten years ago the UN had fewer than 60 members. A delegate averaged a couple of small parties a week during the session. Now he often attends two or three affairs in one evening.

LONG HAUL

By the time the Assembly is over he has gone to more than 80 such functions and consumed enough spiced food and strong drink to turn the ordinary stomach to suede.

He faithfully makes the rounds because diplomatic etiquette requires it, and he hopes to pick up useful information chatting with fellow delegates.

With the UN's rapid growth in recent years, receptions have become so jammed that it is difficult for a jostled delegate to indulge in any quiet lobbying.

The growth of the world forum has posed an acute problem for the UN catering staff which handles parties at the East River headquarters. "We can't accommodate more than 750 persons in the main dining room at one time," said Frank W. Reickert, who runs the network of bars and restaurants.

Countries with huge guest lists often solve the problem by holding their functions in New York's big midtown hotels. Oil-rich Saudi Arabia gives a glittering reception each fall at a rooftop room. Some of the wealthier African and Latin American nations also hold lavish affairs outside the UN.

The big powers usually entertain at their own missions and restrict the guest list to a small group.

A few Asian and African governments refuse on religious grounds to let delegations serve alcoholic drinks. Most observe the ban only on national holidays.

Soft coal firms made a comeback during this year

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The struggling U.S. soft coal industry made a relatively strong comeback in 1962. Production rose an estimated 3.2 per cent. Leaders expect even better things in 1963.

The National Coal Association said output should hit 422,000,000 tons when all the figures are in. Production in 1961 was 409,000,000.

Thus, coal men — fighting strong competitive pressure from natural gas and oil-notched their most productive year since 1957 when miners dug 492,000,000 tons.

Electric utilities, the No. 1 soft coal consumer, provided the biggest boost. Orders from other users remained fairly stable.

The upturn is expected to continue through 1963. The association forecast calls for production of 429,000,000 tons, a modest improvement of 1.7 per cent over 1962.

Also on the plus-side of the ledger was export shipments which gained 3,000,000 tons over 1961's 24,000,000. The Canadian market bought only 10,000,000 tons, compared with 11,00,000 in 1961.

NEW TOOLS USED

Coal companies turned to bigger and better digging tools in 1962. Other mammoth equipment was being built.

The largest mobile land machine ever built went to work ripping earth and rock in 200-ton chunks from above a coal seam at a Peabody Coal Co. mine near Paradise, Ky. The electrically-powered strip shovel—220 feet high—is capable of uncovering as much as 14,000 tons a day.

On the labor scene, peace continued among the large producers.

Members of the United Mine Workers Union haven't had a pay raise in four years. They average about $25 a day. There hasn't been an industry-wide strike since 1950.

The industry employed some 130,000 men in 1962, compared with about 131,000 in 1961.

The output of hard coal continued downward. However, there were hopes that when the year's final figure was in, the decline wouldn't be as severe as in recent years.

About 17,000,000 tons of hard coal was dug in 1961. There appeared to be a chance the 1962 figure would be only three per cent less.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

HOW TO OPERATE FOR CROSS RUFF

The first step in planning a cross ruff is to establish the pattern. Next cash the winners in side suits. Then you are ready for the actual ruffing. Here you plan to use low trumps until you can afford to start ruffing high. From then on you ruff high so that no unkind opponent can overruff and spoil your fun.

South ruffed the opening club lead and took stock. The repeated doubles indicated that finesses were not going to work for him, but he noted that if he could make eight trump tricks everything would be perfect.

Still he would have to play hearts sometime so South led a diamond to dummy's ace, returned a heart and finessed the queen. East won with the king and lead a second club.

Now South was ready for the cross ruff. He ruffed a diamond in dummy, returned to his hand with a heart, ruffed another diamond in dummy, ruffed a heart in dummy, led another club and ruffed with the ace after East followed. South could not afford to let West overruff and lead trump.

This gave South nine tricks. He led his last diamond and ruffed with dummy's last trump for his tenth.

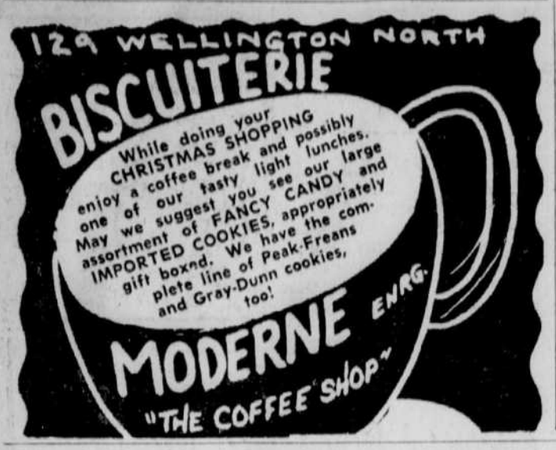
Guide Group elects officers

BEDFORD — The annual meeting of the Guide Association was held at the home of Mrs. George Palmer on Dec. 7, when the following slate of officers was accepted: President, Mrs. George Palmer; first vice-president, Mrs. John Pope; treasurer, Mrs. Harold Palmer; badge secretary, Mrs. W. H. Baglow.



If you remember time gone-by, you are aging

NEW YORK (AP)—Are you an old-timer?

An old-timer is a person who enjoys using the present as a reminiscent springboard back into the past.

You are probably an old-timer yourself if you can remember when—

You first learned to make music by humming through a piece of tissue paper on a pocket comb.

Folks feared the first family that started cooking with gas would blow up the whole neighborhood.

No baby had got off to a proper start in life until its fond parents had had it photographed, sans diaper, lying tummy down on a cloth of plush.

Johnny not only could read —but could also write legibly and work out problems in arithmetic.

Few schoolboards would hire a married schoolmarm, because a married woman's place was in the home.

The liniment for men and horses came out of the same bottle.

You could cure most ailments either by drinking a solution of epsom salts—or by taking a bath in it.

Foods were fried in lard, and nobody had even heard of poly-unsaturated fats.

TAUGHT MUSIC

Every well-brought-up girl learned to sing and play the piano, and a father, sitting on the front porch on a summer night, could feel his eyes water in pride as he listened to his daughter perform The End of a Perfect Day.

If you left a waitress more than a dime tip, she knew for sure you were from out of town.

You told which way the wind blew by sticking your finger in your mouth and then holding it up in the air.

It was part of growing up to take a correspondence course in how to be either a ventriloquist or a private detective.

There was no such thing as a joint family bank account. If a wife wanted a new bonnet, rather than ask her husband for the money she'd save it up from her household allowance.

Yes, that's how it used to be. Remember, old-timer?

FOSTER — The regular meeting of the local Farm Forum, met with Mr. and Mrs. Byron Mizener on Dec. 3, when Howard Salisbury acted as discussion leader. The subject being, The European Common Market.

Findings: It is difficult to assess the effect the Common Market will have on Canadian agriculture, as even experts have divided opinions. In any case when it is an established thing we will no doubt adjust our program accordingly .

Hungry sea cows may be captured to clean canals

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The sea cow, properly known as a manatee, is a homely, dark grey, docile one-ton hulk of a mammal with a single objective in life—eating.

Certain marine scientists believe this ravenous appetite could be channeled to useful purposes.

They suggest the sea cows could be "grazed" in the miles of Florida canals, where they could munch away to their hearts' content on hyacinth, water lettuce and other aquatic plants whose prolific growth results in clogged waterways.

Feasibility of using these animated underwater mowing machines was demonstrated in an experiment at Georgetown, British Guiana, by Prof. W. H. O. Allsopp, a Briton now with the United Nations in Lome, Togo, West Africa.

The manatee nibbled some pools so clean, Allsopp wrote, that they had to be fed supplemental grass. He estimated each sea cow consumed 100 pounds of foliage a day.

Word of this whalelike glutton came as music to the ears of directors of the Central and South Florida Flood Control District, which directs construction and maintenance of more than 500 miles of canals in 18 Florida counties.

PLAN ROUNDUP

This last year, the FCD spent $40,000 on chemicals alone to eradicate hyacinth, water lettuce, alligator weed and other aquatic plants growing on or below canal waters.

"At our present rate of construction, we'll soon spend $500,000 a year just for materials to clear weeds from canals," estimated Robert R. (Jack) Horner of Palm Beach, vice-chairman of the FCD.

Horner is giving serious thought to a huge sea cow roundup next spring. Great numbers of the manatees congregate at least once a year in the calm inlet waters of Lake Worth, between Palm Beach and West Palm Beach.

Horner thinks 2,000 or 3,000 sea cows would be needed at the start.

He feels more sea cows would have to be netted later to keep pace with canal construction.

"All of the manatee's time is apparently occupied with eating," Horner commented. "They have a slow rate of reproduction."

St. Luke's W.A. issues report on active month

SAND HILL — During the month, St. Luke's Jubilee branch of the W.A., has been active. Two oil circulating heaters have been installed — one in the church and the other in the parish hall. A W.A. corporate Communion was celebrated on Advent Sunday at 11 a.m., members of the W.A. taking part. Archdeacon Matthews preached the sermon. The ladies have been conducting regular monthly Bible studies under the leadership of Mrs. T. J. Matthews.

Two events of importance have been successfully organized by the W.A., a banquet served to the Kiwanis Club at which Archdeacon Matthews gave an address, and more recently, a card party with refreshments.

Prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies first, Mrs. Ronaldo Turcotte; second, Miss Jean Kirkby, and consolation, Mrs. Mabel Davidson. Successful gentlemen were: First K. F. Johnston; second, Stuart Coates, and consolation, Ronaldo Turcotte.

Plans for the future include a Christmas party for the children and adults.

Regular services are conducted at St. Luke's Church, every Sunday, generally at 2:30 p.m., and from time to time at 9:30 a.m. or 11.00. Notices of service may be seen in weekend editions of the Sherbrooke Daily Record. Mrs. Aylmer Pickett presides at the organ at all services.

The church wardens are Milton Labaree and Lawrence Copping.

Nuclear -powered transport subs may handle oil

CALGARY (CP) — Nuclear-powered submarine tankers may be the answer to transporting crude oil out of the Arctic, says a Calgary oilman.

S. D. Moore, president and general manager of Phoenix Canada Oil Co. Ltd., said he expects the Japanese will have built a prototype of such a vessel before crude oil production facilities are in operation in the Arctic.

Phoenix, a Canadian independent which has acreages on Cornwallis and Bathurst islands, plans to participate with Bankeno Mines Ltd. of Toronto in one or more drilling projects next year.

The discovery of oil sands and seepages on several arctic islands was reported in October

Mr. Moore said the deep-sea channels between the islands, while restricting overland access, make tanker shipping the most economical method.

A submarine tanker, he said, could operate for five years on a few handfuls of fuel, leaving space normally occupied by fuel oil available for the vessel's cargo of crude.

Such a submarine would be able to operate on a year-round basis, he said. Without the armaments and expensive equipment of military submarines, the tanker would evolve into a simple tube.

The delays, discomforts and dangers of bad weather would be avoided. Mr. Moore said another advantage is that submarines require 40 per cent of the horsepower of surface vessels because of the absence of rsistance.

"This means that a decrease in the time it would take for a round trip decreases the total number of tankers which would be required."

Any problems of radiation from nuclear reactors would solve themselves, said Mr. Moore. The crude oil cargo would act as a shield between the crew and the reactor while the sea would be an automatic cooling medium without expensive pumping and piping requirements.

League leading Granby Vics here tonight

Green Bay Packers' Jim Taylor is voted 'Player of Year' award by writers, Y. A. Tittle is second

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Taylor, Green Bay's crashing fullback who is noted for his great second effort, was voted Player of the Year in the National Football League today by an Associated Press committee of sports writers and broadcasters from the 14 league cities.

Taylor, a 27-year-old former Louisiana State ace in his fifth year of pro ball, grabbed the award won last year by Paul Hornung, the Packers' glamorous triple threat halfback who has been crippled by a knee injury this season.

With one more game to play, Taylor already has tied the NFL record by scoring 18 touchdowns, all on the ground, and leads the league in scoring with 108 points.

FANS GET WISH

Packer fans have been insisting that Taylor deserved to be named the All-Star fullback over Cleveland's Jimmy Brown. They finally got their wish this season. Brown's fabulous five-year reign as rushing champion is sure to end and Taylor appears sure to succeed him. Taylor has gained 1,318 yards in 249 carries, 206 yards more than John Henry Johnson of Pittsburgh, his closest competitor. Brown is fourth with 861 yards.

Y.A. Tittle, the old "bald eagle" who has thrown 27 touchdown passes for the New York Giants, finished a strong second to Taylor in the voting. Taylor drew 19 ballots, Tittle had 13 and Bobby Mitchell, Washington flanker back, had four.

A head-on meeting of the two top vote getters appears to be in the making for the Dec. 30 championship game at Yankee Stadium. Taylor, who was injured and played second fiddle to Hornung a year ago against the Giants, will get his chance unless Green Bay surprises everybody and loses to Los Angeles in its last game Sunday and forces a tie playoff with Detroit.

Tittle with 179 completions in 33 passes for 2,883 yards has pitched the Giants into the total offence and passing leadership.

Taylor runs over people in the open field and grinds out every yard possible behind the crunching blocks of his front line. He is a good blocker too and often set Hornung or Tom Moore free on key runs. At six-feet and 215 pounds he is not as big as Jimmy Brown or a Nick Pietrosante but he makes up for it with that big second effort.

Tittle, 36, has been tremendous in his second year with the Giants. He threw seven touchdown passes, tying the league record, when the Giants ruined Washington's winning streak in mid - season. A canny play caller, adept at the automatic, Tittle also can run when necessary.

Eskimos finish season with a $7,700 deficit

EDMONTON— (CP) —Edmonton Eskimos finished the 1962 Western Football Conference season with an estimated net operating deficit of $7,700, sharply below predicted losses ranging to $20,000.

President Hastings (Red) McMahon credited careful budgeting with cutting the operating deficit from a $77,000 figure experienced in 1961.

He told the annual general meeting of the Edmonton Eskimo football club and Touchdown Club that despite medical expenses through player injuries of $35,000, revenues were increased by $22,000 and expenses were pared by $44,000 from 1961.

McMahon said injuries to football players normally cost from $8,000 to $10,000 a season.

Team salaries, maintenance and travelling expenses were cut by $28,236 to $390,333. Total expenses were $486,600, compared with $548,300 last year.

Edmonton finished last in the five-team WFC for the first time since 1949.

Worsley returns but Rangers lose 4-3

Ranger goalie Gump Worsley proved Wednesday night he didn't lose any form during a three-game layoff with a shoulder injury.

But the fifth-place Rangers showed they haven't improved any during his absence, losing 4-3 to first-place Chicago Black Hawks in the only NHL game Wednesday night.

Chicago outshot the Rangers 42-20 and needed two unanswered goals in the third period to come from behind for the win.

Black Hawks centre Bill (Red) Hay beat the roly-poly Worsley midway through the third period with the winning goal. Hay returned a week ago after missing four games with a charley-horse.

The win was the Hawks' sixth in the six meetings between the two teams this year. It boosted their hold in first place in the league standings to four points over the Detroit Red Wings.

DETROIT PLAYS HABS

Detroit and fourth-place Montreal Canadiens, who are seven points behind the Hawks, both play at home tonight. Boston visits Montreal and New York plays in Detroit.

Chicago and the third place Toronto Maple Leafs, six points behind the Hawks, are both idle.

In Chicago Wednesday night, the Rangers built up a 3-2 lead after two periods of play in which they were outshot 27-17.

The Hawks monopolized play in the final period, outshooting the Rangers 15-3.

The Hawks' flying Scooter Line tied it up 3-3 after two and a half minutes of bombarding Worsley. Right winger Ken Wharram scored from linemates Stan Mikita and Ab McDonald. Seven minutes later Hay fired the winner.

Defenceman Pierre Pilote gave Chicago a 1-0 lead early in the first period when he stickhandled through the Ranger defence and beat Worsley. Dean Prentice of New York tied the score 22 seconds later when he scored from a goal - mouth scramble.

Mikita put Chicago out in front again early in the second period, but Rangers' Andy Bathgate beat Chicago goalie Glenn Hall with a 20-foot drive just 23 seconds later to tie things up again.

Rangers' veteran centre Bronco Horvath tipped in a blueline drive by Doug Harvey midway through the second period for New York's last goal of the night.

Mikita's goal and assist increased his league-leading scoring lead to 28 points. McDonald and Bathgate remain tied for second spot with 26 points adding a point each in the game.

Mikita also moved out of a three-way tie to take the league lead in assists with 18. Bathgate and Detroit's Alex Delvecchio are tied behind him with 17 assists.

Canadiens will be playing without veteran defenceman Tom Johnson when they meet the Bruins tonight. The club announced the 34-year-old rearguard will probably miss Canadiens' next three games with a wrist injury.

Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk will be playing his first full game tonight against New York since suffering a shoulder injury 10 days ago.

Sawchuk was hurried into his equipment midway through the second period of the Wings' game against Detroit Sunday night when his substitute Dennis Riggin tore a groin muscle attempting to stop Toronto's Dave Keon on a breakaway. Wings won 4-3.

US Track and Field Federation and AAU to submit differences to panel as suggested by President Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP)—Spanked by President Kennedy for "continued bickering" that threatened United States participation in the Olympics, the Amateur Athletic Union and the new college-dominated U.S. Track and Field Federation have agreed to submit their differences to an arbitration panel.

The president called for such arbitration at his press conference in Washington Wednesday "on behalf of the country and on behalf of sports."

Kennedy warned that if the organizations refused, "we will not have an Olympic team in 1964."

"We will submit to the panel suggested by the president," said Col. Don Hull, executive director of the AAU.

"I think the president is absolutely right," said Chick Werner, head of the federation and track coach at Penn State.

"The federation has stood willing to work out a solution with the AAU and I am sure federation officials continue to hold that position," said Walter Byers, executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which spawned the federation.

HAS LONG HISTORY

The dispute between the two organizations over the control of amateur sports in the U.S. has raged for 2½ years. Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, the president's brother, sat in on a meeting last month between the two groups in New York at which a solution apparently was reached.

But the agreement quickly fell apart.

The NCAA, through federations set up in track, gymnastics, basketball and baseball, has challenged the right of the AAU to certify athletes as eligible for international competition. The AAU holds the right under international rules.

As a result of the dispute, participation in the Olympics and the Pan-American Games in Brazil next year is threatened.

At the heart of the dispute is the fact the colleges turn out most of the amateur athletes in the sports in which they have formed federations, but the AAU controls their participation in international sport.

The federation has demanded a large voice in internationaal affairs. A coalition of the two groups was agreed upon but disintegrated.

Wings order farm clubs to make trade

EDMONTON— (CP) —Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League are reported to have ordered their two top farm teams to carry out an eight-player trade.

Edmonton radio station CHED says Edmonton Flyers of the Western League were told to send forwards Chuck Holmes and Warren Hynes and defencemen Keith Walsh and Lou Marcon to Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League.

The Hornets would ship forwards Ray Ross and Norm Corcoran and defenceman Jack Price and John Miszuk to Edmonton. Miszuk played with the Flyers last year.

Moose Skowron may quit ball to coach Purdue

CINCINNATI — (AP) —First baseman Bill (Moose) Skowron, traded recently by New York Yankees to Los Angeles Dodgers for pitcher Stan Williams, is reported planning to quit baseball and take a 10-year contract to coach baseball at Purdue University.

The Cincinnati Enquirer quotes an "authoritative source" and says Skowron is unhappy over the manner in which Yankee manager Roy Hamey informed him of the trade.

Beavers will be gunning for their sixth straight win on home ice, second place at stake in Drum'ville

Sherbrooke Beavers face tough opposition this evening at the Arena when they will receive the Granby Vics at 8.30. The Vics are setting the pace in the Provincial Hockey League and will try to put an end to the Beavers' home winning streak. The locals will be seeking their sixth consecutive victory.

At Drummondville second place will be at stake when the Rockets will receive the Montreal, Olympics. There is only one point separating the two teams with the Montreal club holding the edge.

The Vics have an eight-point bulge over the second place Olympics and Coach Roger Bedard will have his club going all out to post a win on Sherbrooke ice. If the Beavers can come through with a victory this evening they will be the only club so far with such a record .

Coach Dube is hoping that Serge Nadeau, a rearguard, will be ready to take his position this evening. Nadeau has been nursing a sore back for the past week or so but it is expected he will be given the green light for tonight's tilt.

Pierre Gendron, who was sidelined with bruised ribs, will be kept out of tonight's game but it is expected he will be back for Sunday's game with the Drummondville Rockets at the local Arena. Michael Ducharme won't be in uniform as he can't get away from his work.

Coach Dube with the return of Serge Nadeau will have to determine where he will use Leon Bouchard. For the past few games he played him on the blue line although he is a centre player.

On their last trip to Sherbrooke the Vics went down to a 5-2 setback at the hands of the Beavers but they hold 3-2 and 4-1 decisions over the Dube crew here earlier in the season. At home the Beavers are the hottest team in the O'Donnell circuit and a win tonight would help them to pick up a little ground on the top clubs.

The clash at Drummondville should be a real ding-dong affair as the Rockets will be out to register a victory. On their last visit to Drummondville the Olympics belted the Rockets to the tune of 7-4.

Coach Lou Poliquin has reinforced his team with the addition of Bob Chevalier and Rene Beauregard and these two players will be facing the Olympics for the first time. The Rockets dropped Sherbrooke last Thursday 6-0 for the first win at home since Nov. 22 when they posted a 6-4 decision over Montreal .

In their last outing they held the Vics to a 2-2 deadlock in Granby after losing a close 5-4 verdict at home on Sunday. Coach Poliquin is looking for a victory this evening and the Olympics will be facing a different club than on their last trip to Drummondville.

Eddie Machen is placed in hospital 'for his own protection' when found with suicide note and gun in hand

NAPA, Calif. (AP)—Heavyweight boxer Eddie Machen was confined to the Napa State Hospital "for his own protection" late Wednesday night after California highway patrolmen reported they found him sitting in a car with a suicide note in his hand.

Highway patrolmen said Machen told them he was contemplating suicide because "things have been bad" and he had been unable to get a fight in recent months.

A highway patrolman found Machen sitting in his auto on Highway 40 south of Vallejo, Calif.

The patrolman said Machen was holding a .32-calibre gun and told him that he was going to kill himself. Machen also had the suicide note.

The officer recognized Machen, who readily admitted that he was the heavyweight boxer.

Machen offered no resistance and was taken to the sheriff's office at Vallejo.

Three bullets had been fired from the gun. Highway patrolmen said Machen tested the gun by firing the bullets into a mud bank.

Patrolmen said the suicide note was addressed to Machen's wife in Portland, Ore., his fight headquarters. They declined to give contents of the note.

The matter was taken to the Solano County District Attorney's office. A Superior Court order was obtained, committing Machen to Napa for observation "for his own protection," highway patrolmen said.

Machen told patrolmen he was "broke, in distress and despondent."

Dr. B. J. Whelan of the state hospital said the Redding, Calif., boxer who fights out of Portland, will be completely checked today.

"Until that time we won't know how long Mr. Machen will be here."

Machen has been mentioned as a possible opponent for champion Sonny Liston and also for fast-rising Cassius Clay in a turn-of-the-year bout in San Francisco. Clay reportedly was guaranteed $55,000 to take the bout but his camp has not acknowledged the offer.

North Shore Hockey League strike seems to be over as Sept-Iles club and city reach a working agreement

SEPT-ILES, Que. (CP) — The hockey dispute, virtually a strike by the three teams of the eastern division of the North Shore Hockey League, has come to an end or at least an armed truce.

The dispute started more than a week ago when the league and team heads asked for a greater share of the gate, claiming that otherwise they would have to quit playing in the arena, operated by the city.

Up to then the league received 50 per cent of the gate for the first 400 admissions and 25 per cent for more than 400. The remainder went to the city. Sunday games draw about 1,500 and week-night games about 600.

No agreement was reached and the teams quit playing.

City council Monday offered the league 45 per cent of the full gate, the city to get 55 per cent. The teams said no. They said it costs $10,391 a year to operate each of the three teams.

The league subsequently countered with an offer to pay the city $150 a game for the remaining 53 games scheduled this season plus amounts to cover expenses such as dressingrooms, practices and wages of ticket sellers, for a total amount of $9,651.

Four aldermen gave a gentleman's agreement to try to have this proposal accepted at the next council meeting.

On that basis the teams agreed to resume operations and a scheduled game was played Tuesday night. Games missed will be re-scheduled at the end of the regular schedule.

Ken Watson's CURLING

Loss of status in lead position

Most of us served our apprenticeship as a lead under the watchful eye of the number two man while the mysteries of the game of curling were being unfolded. Because of the seniority of his position, his bonspiel scars or badges, and his superior knowledge, the second assumed the propertions of a deity—at least for a year or so.

He was the sergeant-major of the rink who took the green lead under his wing and introduced him to the intricacies of the ancient pastime as well as to the failings of the skip. With pride and feeling for his role he drilled the fundamentals into us freshmen as if he were on the parade square.

His injunctions were clear cut and forceful — stay on this side of the hog line! Clean your rock! Don't be short! Don't cross the ice! Move up. I'll sweep next to the stone!

The years haven't changed things much. Mr. Second Man still considers himself a better sweeper and a more accurate hitter than the number one but he doesn't "pull rank" as often as his predecessors. He still exercises his sovereignty by sweeping next to the rock but only because he is a better broom pounder and a more astute judge of the weight of a moving stone.

As sophomore on the rink his more accurate striking shots make amends for the lapses of the lead. Occasionally he is called upon to execute an "across the rings" double kill to thwart a threatening end.

SLICING EXPERTS

Among the power play rinks in modern competition a second man and the lead are expected to be experts at "slicing" off guards in front of the rings.

The object is to remove both guard and the shooting stone so that the latter cannot remain as a rock behind which the opposition can bury their rocks. Present day strategy among championship contenders places great emphasis on "blanking" key ends. Stones left in front constitute a threat to this manoeuver. See the illustration.

"Slicing" off a guard requires exceptional broom accuracy and confidence on the part of the player trying the shot. Some try to hit the guard on the outside — others on the inside. Striking the inside portion is preferable because there is more "spring" away from the stone being hit.

The ability of the second or lead to pound the ice surface in front of a moving stone is a prime factor in selecting your front end. Now that experiments have fairly well proven that a rock can be pulled up to 14 feet further on keen ice by power sweepers, a good broom wielder is worthy of his hire.

For the team which does not aspire to winning the Tankard, keep the draw man at lead and let the sock-em boy play second stone irrespective of seniority and experience. The skip who ignores this in selecting his rink for bonspiels or special competitions is asking for a hastier exit than expected.

NEXT WEEK — "The Clean-Up Man."

CURLING QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Question: When calling for removal of a rock in front of the rings, what ice should be given by the skip?

Answer: Under normal conditions where the ice pulls with both turns and firm hitting weight is used — place your broom dead centre on the stone to be removed. If the ice is swingy or the player doesn't own a fast shot place the broom alongside the stone. If there is a "run" with one turn, use the ice that swings.

Readers are inivted to mail their questions to Ken Watson's Curling in care of Sherbrooke Daily Record.

(TNS)

For slicing off a guard, use your best hitting turn and try to hit the guard inside centre.

Leafs' Frank Mahovlich seems well on way of scoring 50 goals, has 15 to his credit, puck bouncing right

The way Frank Mahovlich is playing now, you'd have to give him a good chance of scoring 50 goals this season. That is, if you can forget what happened to him the last time he came close to that seldom-attained mark.

The big left winger for Toronto Maple Leafs has been flying of late. He has scored eight goals in the last eight games to take over the National Hockey League leadership in that department with 15.

His play gives every indication he's headed for his best season ever—and that would almost have to mean more than 50 goals.

But he has one big hurdle to pass: The late-season scoring blues that have cropped up more than once in his career.

Two seasons ago Mahovlich had 40 goals in 48 games and even the long-shot gamblers would have hesitated before betting he wouldn't make it. The ones that took the chance made a killing. He scored only eight goals in his last 22 games.

And in 1957-58, his rookie season, he scored 18 goals in the first half of the season, two in the second half.

Last season things were better. He had 15 the first half and 18 the second half.

This season the six-foot-two native of Timmins is a much more polished performer. Leaf manager - coach Punch Imlach sees a number of improvements.

"He's trying harder and I think that's why things are starting to break for him," Imlach says.

"He's shooting the puck instead of slapping it. He's staying on his wing and not stopping as much inside the other team's territory to try to set up a play. He's driving right in and this makes a difference. And he's coming back farther to get the puck."

This last change in his style of play has produced some of the most colorful end-to-end rushes seen in Toronto for some years. If he can get the puck near the Leaf goal with time to build up speed the opposition defence finds him one of the toughest men in the league to stop.

BOUNCING RIGHT

Mahovlich himself won't attribute his recent goal-scoring streak to anything.

"You get the bounces and a few go in for you once in a while," he says. "And I guess they're going to start asking questions if I don't start producing."

Imlach has been quoted as saying that if Mahovlich played to his full potential, the Leaf coach would be laughing at the rest of the league. And Chicago Black Hawk co-owner Jim Norris let money do his talking on Mahovlich's worth. At an early-morning party after the All-Star dinner in October, he offered Leafs $1,000,000 for Mahovlich.

If he makes it, Mahovlich will be the fourth man to score 50 goals in an NHL season. Now-retired Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens' was the first. Montreal's Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion equalled the mark in 1960-61, the year Mahovlich was stranded at 48 goals, and Chicago's Bobby Hull tied it again last season.

But the Leaf winger isn't thinking in terms of that accomplishment yet. "It's possible," he says, "But it's too early to start talking about it."

Terry Baker oustanding college player

NEW YORK— (AP) —Versatile Terry Baker, Oregon State's do everything quarterback, was named the outstanding college football back in the nation today in an Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Baker, who is being buried in an avalanche of honors in post season activity, was a narrow choice over Jerry Stovall of Louisiana State.

Baker previously had been named to the All-America team, won the Heisman and Maxwell trophies and was the No. 1 draft choice of the National Football League.

"You name it, he can do it," one voter commented in casting his ballot for the slender, 195-pound Baker who finished with a career total of 4,980 yards gained, second highest in collegiate history.

Baker, however, edged Stovall by only two votes in the balloting by 132 sports writers from coast to coast. Stovall, a powerful, explosive runner, got 24 votes.

Baker, who passes left-handed, kicks with his right foot and pitches baseball right-handed, was the first draft choice of the Los Angeles Rams, who had the No. 1 pick in the NFL.

Baker, however, said he is undecided about a professional football career.

Baker gained 2,276 yards rushing and passing and threw 13 touchdown passes in leading Oregon State to an 8-2 record.

Packers' Jim Taylor and Steelers' Lou Michaels are in tight race for NFL scoring honors, a week to go

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Taylor, Green Bay Packers' fullback, and place - kicker Lou Michaels of Pittsburgh Steelers' are in a tight race for National Football League scoring honors going into the final week of the season.

Neither will approach the record 175 points set by Paul Hornung of Green Bay in 1960. Hornung, also the leader in 1961 with 146 points, dropped out of this year's race due to a knee injury.

Michaels broke the NFL record for field goals in one season when he boosted his total to 24 last Sunday by kicking four in the Steelers' 36-17 victory over Philadelphia Eagles. He had kicked four the week before against St. Louis Cardinals.

Taylor, also in a record-netting mood, tied the league mark with his 18th touchdown of the year Sunday against San Francisco '49ers.

Steve Van Buren of Philadelphia set the mark in 10 games in 1945 and Jimmy Brown of Cleveland Browns tied it in 1958 in 12 games. Taylor will have played 14 games after the season finale against Los Angeles Rams next Sunday.

Taylor remains the top ground gainer with 1,318 yards in 249 attempts. League statistics released today show that he also paces the scorers with 108 points as compared with 101 for Michaels.

The Packers' Bart Starr leads the passers, having completed 54 per cent of his tosses, 162 of 253 attempts for 2,233 yards.

Bobby Mitchell of Washington Redskins ranks as the leading pass receiver with 68 catches for 1,294 yards. Willie Wood of Green Bay has intercepted the most passes, nine.

San Francisco's Tommy Davis has replaced Danny Villanueva of Los Angeles as the top punter with a 45.8 average.

Canadian swimmers turning in fine performances in New Zealand meets

AUCKLAND (CP)—Canadian swimmers turned in some fine performances in two meets in New Zealand Tuesday night as they continued their tour following the British Empire Games in Perth, Australia.

At Rotorua, Sandy Gilchrist of Ocean Falls, B.C., picked up two victories. He won the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 50.9 seconds—considered an excellent time because splash ditches at each end of the pool hampered the swimmers' turns—and also won the 220-yard freestyle in 4:35.0.

Jack Kelso, another Ocean Falls resident, was hastily called in to fill up the eighth lane in the 100-yard breaststroke and ended up winning it. His clocking was 1:08.1.

Patty Thompson of Hamilton had a battle with S. Nicholson of New Zealand in the 400-yard women's freestyle but edged her out with a winning time of 5:14.0.

In a meet at Stratford, Montreal's Madeleine Sevigny won the women's 220-yard freestyle with a time of 2:25.3 but Alison Glendenning of Hudson Heights, Que., was edged out by New Zealand champion Valeria Haddon in the 110-yard breaststroke. Miss Haddon's time was 1:16.3.

In the men's events at Stratford, Aldy Meinhardt of Vancouver won over D. F. Gerrard of New Zealand in the 100-yard butterfly and Steve Rabinovitch of Montreal beat out New Zealand champ T. Graham to win the 100-yard breaststroke.

Sonny Liston may fight Harold Johnson

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Unless heavyweight champion Sonny Liston is paid the $207,000 he claims he has coming from his fight with Floyd Patterson within a week he will defend his crown against light heavyweight champion Harold Johnson, Ray Grody of the Milwaukee Sentinel said Tuesday night.

Grody wrote that he received the information from Jack Nilon, a Liston adviser, in a telephone interview from his office in Chester, Pa. A fight with Johnson probably would be held in Philadelphia Grody said, possibly in March.

FILED SUIT

Liston filed suit in Federal court in New York Monday seeking an order directing the Internal Revenue Service to "forthwith pay over" to him $207,000 which was part of the $1,379,517 impounded by the IRS after Liston dethroned Patterson last September in Chicago.

"There's no use talking about a rematch with Patterson when we haven't even been paid for the first fight," Grody quoted Nilon as saying.

He added, Grody said:

"We're broke. Sonny wants to fight and everyone wants to fight him. So unless the dough is forthcoming, we'll go ahead with Johnson. And after him it will probably be Ingemar Johansson on the West coast."

Indians' top line dominate AHL scorers

NEW YORK (AP) — Springfield Indians No. 1 line of centre Bill Sweeney and wings Bruce Cline and Wally Boyer hold the top three places in the American Hockey League's scoring race.

Sweeney, the playmaker, is the top scorer with 40 points on 11 goals and 29 assists. Cline and Boyer are tied for second with 33 points. Sweeney is the league leader in assists while Cline is No. 1 in goals with 18.

Willie Marshall of Hershey Bears is in fourth place with 32 points.

Quebec Aces' Charlie Hodge is the most effective goalie, with a 2.80 goals against average. Denis DeJordy of Buffalo Bisons is second at 2.83.

Self-exiled Sean O'Casey lives in England, still writes

By ALAN WALKER

TORQUAY, England (CP)—Sean O'Casey's misty eyes searched for an ashtray but finally his wife had to guide his hand—a hand that had gripped both picks and pens.

O'Casey was born in a Dublin slum 82 years ago. In those 82 years he went from poverty to a comfortable income, from obscurity to fame as one of Ireland's greatest dramatists.

"Bloody near time," the frail man said a bit grumpily from inside layers of sweaters and mufflers as he sat in front of an electric heater. "The money might have come earlier."

He brushed back wisps of white hair trickling from beneath his little felt cap and puffed his pipe.

"My eyes have got worse in the last six months," O'Casey said sadly in an interview in his apartment in this Devon resort town. "I have to expect it I suppose. I don't really mind, except that I can't read. Eileen has to be my eyes now.

"But I have to keep on working. I don't want to be a dead thing walking around, useless."

BANNED IN DUBLIN

The strange thing about O'Casey, as an Irish dramatist, is that although his plays deal sympathetically with the Irish people, since 1958 he has not allowed his work to be performed professionally in Ireland.

That year the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Dublin objected to The Drums of Father Ned, a play he regarded as anti-clerical in its attacks on bigotry, puritanism and phoney piety.

The archbishop publicly announced he wouldn't permit any priest in his diocese to say a votive mass for the festival that was to produce the play if any work by O'Casey or James Joyce were performed.

"That started all the pious people protesting," O'Casey said. "All the religious societies got up on their hind legs and demanded the play be rejected. The committee took fright and worked in such a way that I decided to withdraw the play."

The aged playwright waited for Dublin to protest against the archbishop's stand.

"It was an impudent and an uncalled-for thing to ban a play written by me, one of my best plays, and a play that was hopeful and joyous and gay, with nothing in it that anybody could possibly object to."

AUDIENCE RIOTED

He twisted his all-but-useless glasses in his hand. The perfectly round, old - fashioned lenses swung slowly to and fro as he recalled his disappointment that the Irish people had remained silent. The Archbishop had won, so O'Casey decided to ban all his plays in Ireland forever.

Conflict in Dublin over an O'Casey play was not new. The audience had rioted at the first production of The Plough and the Stars 35 years before.

"Rowdy, clenching, but well-groomed hands reached up to drag down the fading black and gold front curtain," O'Casey recalled. "Others, snarling curiously, tried to tug up the very chairs from their roots in the auditorium, while some, in a frenzy, pushed at the stout walls to force them down.

"And in the midst of the fume, the stench, the shouting, Yeats the poet, as mad as the maddest there, pranced on the stage, shouted out his scorn, his contempt, his long hair waving, confronting all those who cursed and cried out shame and vengeance on the theatre."

And all this because O'Casey had dared to suggest that the cause of the Irish rebels was not 100 per cent right; because he wrote about an Irish girl who was not 100 per cent pure; and because he showed the Republican flag inside a pub.

TB AFFECTED EYES

There is no violence in him now. He lives quietly here with his wife, writing articles and talking to occasional visitors. His 21-year-old daughter studies drama in London. His son died of leukemia.

O'Casey sat there in the hot room and his pale, egg-white eyes that can see only colors peered through blue pipe-smoke as his thoughts went way back to beginnings.

He was the last of 13 children. Environment killed eight at an early age, and young Sean caught tuberculosis that lodged in his eyes.

"There was one happy result of that, though," he chuckled. "There are very few evils that haven't got some kernel of good in them, and the kernel of good in that one was that I couldn't go to school. I was saved that terrible oppression."

Left to roam alone, O'Casey, unable to see properly, developed other senses.

"There must have been at that time the first inception of things seen and things heard within myself because I had nobody to interpret them for me but myself," he said. "I had to form my own opinions about everything when I was only six or seven years old and I had to make my own amusements."

BECAME LABORER

His father died about that time. His mother kept the family going, and at the age of 16 O'Casey became a laborer. This did him good. He was able to buy enough food, for the first time, with his earnings and the fresh air and exercise left him a "vigorous, gay, healthy, song-singing young man."

He joined an amateur dramatic society, wrote many short stories and plays, and then there began his association with the Abbey Theatre of Dublin, with William Butler Yeats and Lady Gregory, the key figures in the Irish literary renaissance.

O'CASEY STILL WRITING — Going blind and living in self-exile in England, the brilliant Irish playwright Sean O'Casey is still adding to his long literary career. But since 1958 the 82-year-old Dublin-born dramatist has refused to allow any of his work to be performed professionally in Ireland because of a running conflict with Roman Catholic clerics in his home-land. (CP Photo)

His first major play to be accepted by the Abbey Theatre was The Shadow of a Gunman, a realistic drama concerning what O'Casey usually refers to in his Dublin brogue as "d' troobles in Oirland."

"They accepted that to my great delight because I thought I was going to become a rich man and could give up work immediately." But the financial returns were small.

"I found that I'd have to go to work at six o'clock in the morning just the same as if I'd never written a play."

While he helped build cattle sidings he thought about his plays, jotted down notes and worked on handwritten drafts at home. "And this took years."

OBSERVED WORLD

Habits of observation learned in his youth stayed with him and helped produce such masterpieces as The Plough and the Stars and Juno and the Paycock.

"I was interested in everything around me. My sight was poor but I still had a keen sense of observation and I watched carefully for the little foibles, gestures and eccentricities of that individual or the other individual, and I never forgot them once I saw them.

"I had a very acute ear for any little phrase that interested me. It remained in my mind. I usually added to it, or wove another completely different phrase from it, to suit my own fanciful idea of what a character might say in a play.

"It's a never-ending work. You must never separate yourself from real life if you're going to write a play. You must be ready to hear anything and everything, because you never know when a person may use an extraordinary and interesting remark that may be witty — unconsciously in most cases, but consciously to you—and you store it up, and you may use it years afterwards."

The heroine of Juno and the Paycock is a proud, courageous woman intent on being a binding force in her family. Such a character reappears in many O'Casey plays and critics trace this repetition to O'Casey's feelings about his own mother.

WON'T GO HOME

"There are thousands of Junos in the Irish slums, he said. "The Irish people are kind, generous and self-sacrificing — the working classes I mean. Juno is not an uncommon thing among the slums, and my own mother was a typical example of what a Juno could be, and was.

"I knew hundreds of them and I always had a profound respect and regard for them, toiling through life under tremendous difficulties and keeping a bright heart among it all."

O'Casey's plays now are on university courses. His plays have "classical status" and when London's Mermaid Theatre produced three of them this summer it was as if they had been taken from the shelves for a periodic airing. Many people were surprised to find that O'Casey is still alive and is still writing.

He has lived in England for 36 years. He says he will never go home. The control of the Roman Catholic church over Ireland is too much for him.

"At least nine-tenths of the English people are completely indifferent to religion and consequently you can live in peace here," he said. "The English don't ask you what you are, or who you are, or what you believe. They don't care."

The great Irishmen are passing on. Yeats, Joyce and Shaw have gone. Now only the blind O'Casey, self - exiled genius, shrouded in wool, remains to remind Ireland of her golden age of modern literature.

General de Gaulle's enhanced authority means further complications for Europe

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Larger than life-size, the shadow of Gen. de Gaulle broods more massively than ever over the European scene.

Fortified by a secure majority of Gaullist supporters in the newly elected Parliament, the 72-year-old chief of state goes into the last three years of his seven-year term with powerful new backing for controversial policies based on the willpower of a single individual.

De Gaulle appears certain to press forward with his plan for a nuclear force and to resist, perhaps even more strongly than in the past, Britain's bid to join the European Common Market.

The French president's enhanced authority thus ensures complications for the new Europe.

BRITISH CRITICAL

From the British standpoint it is felt that de Gaulle's policies frequently rest on a narrow and exclusive view of French national interest, incompatible with the move towards European togetherness. Similarly there are doubts about the wholesomeness of democratic values in the German Federal Republic, caused by the Bonn government's action in imprisoning members of the staff of the Hamburg publication Der Spiegel.

In the French elections, conducted in two rounds Nov. 18 and Nov. 25, voters gave an unexpectedly powerful blessing to candidates carrying the Gaullist banner.

Out-and-out de Gaulle supporters and their allies won 260 of the 482 seats in the National Assembly, the first time in French history that a single political group has won an absolute majority.

The Gaullist triumph shattered the multi-party system, biggest losses being suffered by the independents, representatives of the traditional right.

Communists and Socialists emerged somewhat stronger, partly because of electoral pacts involving a pooling of forces against the Gaullists. Socialist Leader Guy Mollet, who owed his re - election to Communist support though often critical of the extreme Left, saw the link-up as a temporary expedient. But some feared the emergence of a Popular Front, the old bogy of pre-war days.

Certainly the opposition to de Gaulle had moved sharply to the left. If the ultimate result proved to be another Popular Front, most observers would place the blame on de Gaulle's determination to get rid of the old political system.

It was felt that de Gaulle's clear-cut triumph would stiffen his resolve to exact the biggest possible price for British entry into Europe. De Gaulle has always been jealous of the close relationship between what he calls the "Anglo-Saxons," Britain and the United States, and fearful that Britain would change the nature of the new Europe.

ALGERIA PEACE

The biggest event affecting France was the advent in July of peace to an independent Algeria. After nearly eight years of bitter fighting between French and Arab and a war-within-a-war by diehard supporters of a "French Algeria," French and rebel negotiating teams reached peace accords at Evian in Switzerland, leading to the Moslem takeover in mid-summer.

The transition was accomplished with remarkably little bloodshed, despite a struggle for power among both the Moslem leadership and some of the rebel military groups.

Victory in the power struggle finally went to Ben Bella at the expense of moderate - minded Ben Khedda, who had headed the provisional government in exile, and Belkacem Krim, one of the Evian negotiators.

Algeria faces a hard future. Gravely weakened by the long-drawn war and the loss of more than half of its European population, it has to try to build a new state against a background of unemployment, economic strains and shortages of trained workers of nearly every category. The leaders of the new Algeria have vaguely socialist aspirations and want to construct an Arabo-Islamic nation, but ideology seems likely to give way to pragmatism at least in the early months.

ECM SPLIT WIDENS — Key figures in negotiations for Britain's entry into the European Common Market are Prime Minister Macmillan and Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who met this year for talks near Paris. Listening to the statesmen is Mr. Macmillan's wife Dorothy. Gen. de Gaulle's sweeping victory in recent elections is expected to strengthen his resistance to Britain's ECM bid. (CP Photo from UKIO)

Wedge-shape lipstick outlines and colors

By ALICIA HART

For the girl who finds it difficiult to use a lipstick brush, yet can never achieve a clear lipline with her regular lipstick, there should be a pleasant surprise awaiting on the cosmetic counters.

For the first time in a long time, there is a major change in the design of lipstick. A unique wedge-shape case will give the support you need for perfect application. And the precision angle at which the case and lipstick are matched, maintains the wedge-shape down to the last application.

All you have to do is swivel the lipstick a little above the wedge top of the case and hold the flat surface against your lips. It will outline and color your lips at the same time.

The makers claim that, because of the design, there will be no need to reapply the lipstick to achieve the desired shade depth. One application with do the trick. And its creamy smoothness provides protection against chapping and dryness during the winter months.

The tall, slender gold-tone case is decorated with elegant fluting, which serves a double purpose. It makes the case scratch-resistant, and also makes it easy to hold and manipulate.

Anyone who has had trouble wielding a lipstick brush, should find this new-shaped lipstick a simple way to an unsluttered lipline.

Zipper enjoys finest hour in Singapore

The zipper is enjoying its finest hour in Singapore—enabling cheongsam slits, and male eyebrows, to rise as the lights dim.

The cheongsam is that simply elegant garment with a high, formal collar and provocative slits in the skirt which Chinese girls wear so well.

A few Western women try to use the cheongsam to exploit their charms, but not many can match the cool elegance of their Chinese sisters in this garment.

The basic style of the cheongsam is immutable, but the height of the slit is a matter of personal choice. More demure girls have the slit only a little above the knee. But from then on, the way is up, with only limiting factors being the courage of the wearer.

The more daring young misses of Singapore have the slits reaching two-thirds of the way up the thigh.

But the zipper has brought flexibility to the cheongsam. Thus, a girl can be innocently demure in the office and for general daytime wear, then tug at the zipper to raise the slit for the evening.

The zippers now in fashion can set the height of the slits anywhere from two or three inches above the knee to two-thirds of the way up the thigh.

The coming of the twist, too, has had its effect. The cheongsam fits like a glove, with little room for manoeuvring, and the extra height of the slits is needed for freedom in such dances as the twist.

Winter's tale

By Janet Henry

Search for their mittens,
Struggle with boots,
Button their sweaters,
Zipper their suits.
Tie on their mufflers,
Wrap on their heads,
Tuck in some hankies,
Drag out their sleds.
See how they scamper
Off in the snow!
Now for a peaceful
Hour or so . . .
Five minutes later
Hollers begin;
"Mommy, hey, Mommy,
Wanna come in."

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Bryce, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Sue Ann, to Mr. Robert George Keenon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Keenon of Cobourg, Ont. The wedding has been arranged to take place in Christ Church of England, Gananoque, Ont., at 4 p.m. on December 22.

Anyone having items of interest for the Social Column please phone Mrs. P. Pickford, LO. 9-3636, Local 38.

Today's recipe

Spice Nut Cake

2⅓ cups sifted cake flour, 1¼ cups sugar, 1½ teaspoons baking soda, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg, ⅓ cup hydrogenated vegetable shortening, ⅔ cup tomato ketchup, ⅔ cup milk, 3 eggs, ⅓ cup milk, ½ cup finely chopped walnuts, grated rind 1 lemon.

Heat oven to 350°F. Sift first 6 ingredients together into mixing bowl. Add shortening, ketchup and ⅔ cup milk; beat 2 minutes at medium speed with electric mixer or 300 strokes with spoon. Add eggs and ⅓ cup milk; beat 2 minutes longers. Fold in nuts and lemon rind. Spread batter evenly in 2 greased and floured layer pans (9" x 1½"). Bake 35-45 minutes or until surface springs back when touched lightly. Frost with butter cream or cream cheese frosting. Makes 1 9-inch layer cake.

Note: Cupcakes — Makes 2 dozen. Use ¼ cup batter for each cupcake. Bake 350°F 20-25 minutes.

Christmas trimmings

One way to recapture some of the magic of an old-fashioned Christmas is to participate more in the actual preparations for it. By making your own tree trimmings and decorations, for instance. For there is joy in doing . . . and never before have there been such tempting and easy materials to put you in a "doing" mood. Modern sprays, fabrics and plastics can transform humble, everyday objects into glittering ornaments. All that is needed is a touch of imagination . . . and a little ingenuity goes a long way!

HOLIDAY TABLE CENTRE

You'll be surprised to find that an uncut loaf of bread makes an excellent base for a centrepiece. You can choose a loaf that is circular, oval or rectangular. First, spray it with silver or gold spray. Once dry, it's simple to pierce the crust of the loaf with tufts of pungent pine needles, holly sprigs or even shiny ornaments . . . in fact, anything your imagination suggests. Or, if you'd rather have individual table decorations, or a holder for a place card, use the same spray treatment on a crusty roll. If the crust should prove a little unyielding, try puncturing it first with a knitting needle . . . then any other decoration will slip in easily.

SEE RED

Boys will see red this Christmas — when they take girls out on dress-up dates. Clear, vibrant red is the perfect color for holiday parties. With high-necked sleeveless bodices and narrowly shaped skirts, red dresses spotlight tucking, smocking, gold braid, ruching, shirring or glittery embroidery.

If there are still some blank places against names on your Christmas shopping list, there's no need to panic. Just step off smartly to your neighbourhood branch of the BANK OF MONTREAL. There's a good chance you'll be able to fill in every one of those worrying blanks there. You'll find gaily-decorated cheques and money orders in seasonal folders or envelopes—and, for the small fry, children's passbooks in special Yuletide covers. But time's a-wasting — see the B of M Xmas line-up soon.

ADD RUM FOR FUN IN SAUCY FLAVORS! For festive treats and tastes try adding a dash or two of SHIRRIFF IMITATION RUM EXTRACT. It's the quick way to better flavor.

RUM SAUCE

In a heavy saucepan combine ¼ cup sugar, 1 tbsp. cornstarch, ¼ tsp. salt; add 2 well beaten egg yolks. Stir in 1½ cups milk and cook over moderate heat until thick, stirring constantly. Add 2 tsps. Shirriff's Imitation Rum Extract. Yield: 1⅓ cups. Serve hot over your favorite Christmas pudding.

THIS IS THE BLUSTERY TIME OF YEAR when I'm sure most of us think of summer-in-the-country . . . warm, soft breezes and soothing lake water. Well, I've discovered a mid-winter substitute! . . . a warm, fragrant bath made as soothing as summer Zephyrs . . . with CALGON BOUQUET. Just feel the winter tensions disappear when you bathe with Calgon Bouquet! Your bath water feels soft as silk . . . soap lathers luxuriously . . . it's like a summer holiday. You owe yourself the inexpensive luxury of a Calgon Bouquet bath . . . any time of a cold winter day. And, P.S.! . . . Calgon Bouquet makes the water so silky soft, there's never a "bath-tub ring".

FOR ENTERTAINING WITH A FLAIR . . . and on a budget! . . . here's my tip: — serve Bright's MAZEL TOV when company comes. You'll find that even people who claim they don't like wine change their tune after the first sip! A pure, Concord grape wine, Mazel Tov is sweet and hearty — a 'man's wine that women like'. Try a bottle. Bright's Mazel Tov comes in a handsome decanter that looks both right and gracious on your table, and it costs much less than you'd think!

Typical scene in Venice, the "Queen of the Adriatic" — popular stop-over on many all-inclusive KLM tours through Europe

KLM offers you a new idea in all-inclusive tours... visiting European capitals, Mediterranean countries or the Caribbean. Ask your Travel Agent for complete details.

KLM's new brochure "A Bag Full of Miracles" (see coupon) offers a choice of exciting off-season tours to Europe, Israel and the Caribbean.

1. From October 1st to March 31st KLM's special 17-day excursion fares are in effect—enabling you to fly from Montreal to Europe for $138.60 less than the usual cost.

2. KLM's 17-day "Sun Sojourn to Israel" offers you a glorious tour to the cradle of the world's great religions and civilizations. This sun-filled trip to Italy, Greece and Israel is actually an air-sea cruise, mixing swift, relaxing flights on KLM DC-8 Jets with a 6-day sea cruise through the beautiful Mediterranean. KLM's all-inclusive fare is surprisingly low. Flights are from either Montreal or New York.

3. Another vacation worth investigating is KLM's "Grand Tour of Europe", a bargain-priced 17-day whirl through the glamorous capitals of old Europe—at the height of the cultural season. You'll visit six countries and taste the sparkle of life in Amsterdam, London, Paris, Rome and other exciting cities. The price is unbelievably low—thanks to KLM's special 17-day excursion fare. Flights from Montreal or New York.

4. KLM's "Mediterranean Highlights" takes you to three countries with rich and contrasting cultures: Italy, Greece and Turkey. You will fly on KLM's DC-8 Jet and cruise the crystal-blue waters of the Mediterranean aboard the S.S. Marco or San Giorgio. A KLM 17-day excursion special, this air-sea vacation is yours at a bargain, all-inclusive price. Flights from Montreal or New York.

5. KLM's "Caribbean Island Hop" is a 17-day air-sea cruise to Curacao, Aruba, Jamaica, Costa Rica and Colombia. Let your Travel Agent tell you how KLM Jets bring this wonderland of perpetual sun within a few hours' reach—and also how special tour prices make a stay in the tropics surprisingly reasonable.

6. Ask your Travel Agent about KLM's seven unusual city-hopping programs each based on a different destination. This wonderful KLM Multi-Stopover Plan enables you to visit as many as 17 cities for the same fare that you pay to one!

7. KLM's convenient Fly-Now-Pay-Later Plan not only covers your roundtrip ticket, it can also be used for all-inclusive tours, hotels and sightseeing. Only 10% down.

You relax on a KLM Jet

8. When you're first-class on a DC-8 Jet you relax in a seat that costs KLM $1,500. It is as wide as an arm-chair, has built-in table lamp, prefocussed reading lamp, air blower and finger-tip control panel.

9. The cabin of a DC-8 Jet is 12 feet wide. This is wide enough to take 6 seats abreast comfortably. KLM's first-class cabins have only 4 seats abreast.

10. The cabin of a DC-8 Jet gets a fresh supply of air every three minutes.

11. On KLM's Intercontinental first-class flights, you get slippers, hot towels, sleeping masks, champagne, and other wines on the house.

12. KLM can meet you with a car at any of the airports it serves in Europe. AVIS drive-yourself rental rates at Amsterdam's airport are lower than in any other European country.

13. The tax-free shopping center at Amsterdam Airport is probably the best in Europe. You can buy German cameras, Swiss watches, French perfumes and wines and spirits at low, tax-free prices.

Family plan saves you money

14. KLM has a family plan that saves you money. From October 1st to March 31st, your wife—and children from 12-25—can fly across the North Atlantic with you for much less than the usual fare.

15. The fare on a KLM flight from Amsterdam to London is now about half what it was 40 years ago.

16. KLM carries an average of 3,830 passengers every day—about twice the capacity of a big ocean liner.

Your KLM Captain

17. Your KLM captain sees the weather 150 miles ahead, "Flight watch" on the ground can see still farther ahead, and advise the captain on weather and traffic conditions. If necessary, the flight operations officer can plan alternative routes and pass them on to the captain.

18. KLM pilots help choose the instruments they will use on board a DC-8 Jet. One of these instruments is called the Sperry Integrated Flight System. With IFS, three dials do the work of seven. Captains get flight information faster.

19. KLM pilots help choose the type of aircraft they themselves will fly. No new aircraft is ever purchased by KLM until it has been approved by Senior KLM pilots.

20. Having themselves been professionals in the field of air transportation for 43 years, KLM recognizes that it takes professionals to plan trips efficiently. In every city in Canada, KLM is represented by a professional—your Travel Agent.

Demonstration of cooking at Granby C.W.A.

GRANBY—The Church Women's Association of the St. George's Anglican Church held its regular monthly meeting on Dec. 6, at 2.45, instead of the regular hour at 3:15.

After the meeting was opened by the Ven Archdeacon I. M. Lidstone with prayer, a business meeting took place and a program followed.

Mrs. C. Scott demonstrated the making of sausage rolls and while the ladies watched, she commented. Finishing her assignment she sent the rolls to the kitchen to be baked and they were passed around during the tea.

Next was Mrs. C. Nelthorpe, who demonstrated the making of lemon curd (lemon butter filling) which is called 'Queen Filling' in England. She showed how the lemon curd was used in filling, tarts, cupcakes, lemon roll and a sponge layer cake.

Some of their demonstrated baking was awarded to the holders of lucky numbers. The ladies who took part in the program had typed the recipes, which were passed to those present.

Mrs. R. Webster introduced the ladies and Mrs. K. Stapleton thanked them. There was a large attendance.

The pleasant afternoon concluded with a tea served by the tea committee, Mrs. T. B. Robson, convener, Mrs. H. C. Wade, Mrs. W. O. Lewis, Sr., Mrs. H. A. Stanley and Mrs. C. Scott. The tea tables were attractively arranged with Christmas decorations.

A few articles remaining from the Fall Bazaar were sold.

Officers elected at UCW meeting in Birchton

BIRCHTON — Eleven members and one visitor attended the December meeting of the U.C.W. at the home of Mrs. Howard Picard with Mrs. Neil Taylor as co-hostess.

Mrs. J. A. Murray conducted the devotional period.

The nominating committee brought in the slate of officers for the new year, which was accepted as follows: President, Mrs. Howard Picard; vice-president, Mrs. George Latewood; secretary, Mrs. Charles Spalding; treasurer, Mrs. Leslie MacCallum. The standing committees will be appointed at a later date by the new executive.

The president, Mrs. Nutbrown, reported that 200 pounds of used clothing had been collected in the area and forwarded to Sherbrooke for distribution at Ste Anne des Monts.

The treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand and as Mrs. Nutbrown reviewed the activities and projects of the past year, it was evident from this report that the group had been busy.

The members were asked to make candy for sale at the Variety Hour on Saturday night, and a committee was appointed to serve supper to the Sunday School children following their party on Dec. 15.

Mrs. Stanley Taylor read an interesting article, pointing out the far reaching results of Christianity. Mrs. Murray gave a resume of a talk by Dr. A. Edinborough, of Queen's University, concerning present day literature, which sparked a very lively discussion.

The next meeting will be held on the second Tuesday of January, at the home of Mrs. J. A. Murray, with Mrs. Charles Spalding as co-hostess.
