A SILVER LINING

That Makes Eveybody Happy.

In the darkest cloud there is said to be a silver lining, though it often happens most unaccountably and excrutiatingly that many people can't find it. The silver lining is there, no doubt, but you can't expect a man oppressed with the heat and taxes to see it readily.

The clammy warmth which distills itself over you in the blinding and exhausting dew of perspiration, and effects the extraordinary transmutations of glossy linen into limp and unsightly rags, is the dark cloud.

THE TROY LAUNDRY is the silver lining.

The public were ready to discover this. The TROY, with its unapproachable perfection of finish, unfailing care of material and safe and prompt return, deserves your patronage. Give it a trial.

A CHINESE REPUBLIC.

That is the Object of the Present Rebellion.

A POWERFUL SECRET SOCIETY HAVING A LARGE MEMBERSHIP.

HONG KONG, July 16.—The defeat of the Imperial troops near Woo-Chow is confirmed. Thousands of bodies have been recovered from the river and have been buried at Woo-Chow. The losses of the Imperial force are probably more than 1500 killed, which was the number first announced.

It is reported here that the Chinese doctor, Sun Yat Sen, who was inveigled into the Chinese embassy in London in 1896, and imprisoned there until he succeeded in notifying the British Government officials, through a friend, that he had been kidnapped, is among the leaders of the present rebellion.

It is said the rebels have decided not to advance farther than Shue-Hing, above Sams-Hui, fearing foreign complications in the event of Canton being attacked. The credibility of this report is questioned, as the inhabitants of Canton are greatly in sympathy with the rebels

(Sun Yat Sen, a Chinese doctor, was kidnapped by the officials of the Chinese legation in 1896. He succeeded in communicating with the British Government and was eventually released on the demand of the Marquis of Salisbury. The doctor said he was the leader of the conspiracy in Canton in October, 1897, to establish a constitution for China. The society which he belonged to was called the Hing Chung Wooy, meaning Chinese Progressive Society. It is alleged to have a powerful organization in America, with a centre at San Francisco and headquarters in New York. The American chief was said to be Walter Fong, the first Chinese graduate at Stamford, Conn., and his principal colleagues were alleged to be graduates of Yale, Harvard and other universities. Investigation in New York at the time showed that Sun Yat Sen's statements were practically correct. One of the best known Chinese merchants here said the Hing Chung Wooy had for its object the overthrow of the present Government in China and the substitution of a republican form of government. He asserted that in the United States alone its adherents could be numbered with six figures. Another leading Chinese merchant remarked at that time: "I cannot disclose anything with reference to the work of the organization, but when the time comes to strike a blow for the overthrow of the present dynasty and the formation of a republic, on American lines, the system of government now existing in China will receive a severe shock, and I think we will win.")

GUERNSEY'S KOLAPORE.

The First Time the Channel Colony Has Won It.

SMITH'S POOR SCORING SPOILED CANADA'S CHANCES IN THE MATCH.

(Special to the Star.)

TORONTO, July 16.—A special cable to the Mail and Empire from Bisley says:

The Kolapore cup will not go to Canada this year, the team from the Dominion being fourth in the contest. To the surprise of the whole camp the first place in this historic contest was won by the team from Guernsey, which had not been looked upon as a factor in the match. Last year was the first occasion on which any but a Canadian team had beaten the Mother Country in the contest. Guernsey therefore wins the cup for the first time, and the successful marksmen are in high spirits over their victory. Marksmen through the camp cheered the representatives of Guernsey with sportsmanlike heartiness.

The highest aggregate score put on by a member of the Canadian team yesterday was Broadhurst's 98, which included a 34 at the 600 yards range. For this 34 he started out with two bull's eyes dead on; his third shot being an inner to the left and above the centre of the bull's eye, and his last four were dead on, his score at the range thus reading: 5, 5, 4, 5, 5, 5, 5—total 34. At the 600 yards range, Smith shot very poorly, putting on only 21 out of the possible 35. This low score spoiled the chances of the team. The weather was fine throughout the day with a gentle wind blowing across the range. The light was very strong. All the Canadians are well.

The complete score of the Canadian team in the Kolapore match reads:

	200 yds.	500 yds.	600 yds.	T'l
Staff-Sgt. Hayhurst, 13th.	31	32	33	96
Pte. McVittie, 48th	31	32	26	89
Color-Sgt. Blair, 57th	30	33	26	89
Lieut. Forbes, 73rd..	30	34	31	95
Lieut. Ross, 13th	29	34	33	96
Sgt. Broadhurst, 5th	31	33	34	98
Capt. Hutcheson, 43rd ..	31	30	29	90
Lieut. Smith, 59th..	31	30	21	82
	244	258	233	735

In the Centaur, unsquadded competition, seven shots, 500 yards open, Miller, McVittie, Blair, Hutcheson and Smith, each made possibles.

Sergt. Simpson, in the Golden Penny, seven shots at 200 yards, made a score of 34.

For the Association Cup, 7 shots, 600 yards, Private Davidson, 48th Battalion, made a score of 33.

COMPETITION TO SAGUENAY.

GOLD FROM DAWSON.

Miners Arrive Out With Considerable Treasure.

"SOAPY" SMITH, THE SKAGWAY DESPERADO, KILLED AT LAST.

VICTORIA, B.C., July 16.—The steamer Cottage City brought down last night about twenty men, who left Dawson City about June 8th, travelled to White Horse Rapids, and transferred their steamer to the head of Lake Bennett. They bring about three quarters of a million dollars in dust and paper, mostly the latter. They say that the banking accommodation at Dawson is now so good that there is no necessity for men bringing out money in any other form than drafts. The Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Bank of British North America are storing dust for shipment via St. Michael's in boats of the transportation companies. Among the men believed to have most money on the Cottage City are the Butler brothers, of Ellaworth, Minn. The eldest went in three years ago, and the other three last year. They have cleaned up a large amount on Bonanza Creek, and now hold the claims. An English syndicate is represented by McFarland and Coleman, the latter of whom came down last night.

The price obtained cannot be learned, but Coleman, who is thoroughly reliable, is authority for the statement that it is a very large one.

All the men on board refuse to state the full amount of money brought out. Several of them have been working only on day's wages, at $15 a day.

The only boats which had reached Dawson from St. Michael's were the Hamlin, the Weare, the Bella, the May West, and the Victoria, all of which had been bound up all winter.

Among the men who have arrived out are Phil. Dobson, Los Angeles; Henry Cheney, Rochester, N.Y.; and Miller and Vines, New York State. All have money variously estimated at $10,000 to $50,000 each.

The health of Dawson City was good, and no lawlessness exists. The Mounted Police are giving great satisfaction.

Exceedingly good strikes have been made on New Bench, Eldorado, Bonanza, French Creek, and Skookum Gulch, which are reported to be enormously productive at high levels. The quartz claims prospected so far yield poor prospects.

"Soapy" Smith, the notorious desperado, was killed on July 8th by the City Engineer of Skagway on the wharf at that place. "Soapy's" gang had robbed a new arrival from Dawson of $2,700, and a meeting of citizens was called to devise some means of obtaining a refund of the money and rid the town of "Soapy's" gang. "Soapy" proceeded to break up the meeting, armed with a Winchester rifle. At the entrance to the wharf the City Engineer had been deputed to guard against interruption, and he resisted "Soapy's" intrusion, with the result that the latter struck him with the end of the rifle. The men closed and "Soapy's" rifle went off, severely wounding the guard, who immediately shot him through the heart with a revolver. "Soapy" died instantly, and at the inquest held subsequently the engineer was exonerated on the ground of self defence.

THE RAILWAY WAR.

Interstate Commerce Commission Takes a Hand In It Now.

A CONFERENCE AT CHICAGO.

Canadian Pacific Called Upon To Explain and Defend Its Action.

GRAND TRUNK SUMMONED

Along With Many American Roads to Attend at Chicago on the First of August.

(From the Star's Special Correspondent, Resident in Washington.)

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 16.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has issued an invitation to a large number of American railways, and also to the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railways to participate in a hearing by the commission in Chicago next month (as I wired yesterday), concerning the charges by American roads that the Canadian Pacific has unsettled the passenger business in this country. This invitation is a result of the hearing here on last Tuesday. Following, is a copy of the invitation:

"In the matter of the alleged disturbance in passenger rates by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

"Whereas, it has come to the attention of the commission that there exists at the present time a contest in passenger rates between the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, a corporation of the Dominion of Canada, upon the one hand, and certain American lines and their connections, including the Grand Trunk Railway Company, of Canada, upon the other; and

"Whereas, it is charged by the American lines that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has been, and still is, in open violation of the act to regulate commerce, making unreasonably low rates between various points in the United States, not as a measure of legitimate competition, but as a means of enacting certain unreasonable demands upon its part, and that such illegal conduct on the part of the Canadian Pacific Railway will result, if persisted in, in the utter demoralization of passenger rates over a large portion of the United States and incalculable damage to the interests of the American lines, all of which is either denied or justified by said Canadian Pacific Railway Company;

"And, whereas it seems advisable that the commission should be fully informed of the whole situation in respect to passenger rates, as induced or affected by the competition of the Canadian Pacific Railway; as above set forth, with a view to determining what, if any, relief can or ought to be applied or suggested or what action should be taken in the premises."

"Now, therefore, it is ordered, that an investigation into the above matters be made, and that this cause be set down for hearing at the Federal court room in Chicago, Ills., at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of August 1st, 1898, at which time and place all parties interested in the matters under investigation will be heard, and at which time and place the following named companies are directed to appear by their General Passenger Agents, or those persons having in charge the passenger traffic of the respective lines, namely, The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company; the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad, Nebraska; the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern Railway Company; the Chicago and Alton Railroad Company; the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company; the Chicago Burlington and Northern Railroad Company; the Chicago Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company; the Chicago Great Western Railway Company; the Chicoga Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company; the Chicago Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company; the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway Company, the Colorado Midland Railway Company; the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Company; the Fremont, Elkhorn and Missouri Valley Railroad Company; the Sioux City and Pacific Railroad Company; the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad Company; the St. Louis Kansas City and Northwestern Railroad Company; the Kansas City, St. Joseph and Council Bluffs Railroad Company; the Illinois Central Railroad Company; the Iowa Central Railway; the Jacksonville and St. Louis Railroad Company; the Missouri Pacific Railway Company; the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railroad Company; the Michigan Central Railroad Company; the Oregan Railway and Navigation Company; the Oregan Short line Railway Company; the Rio Grande Western Railway Company; the Rock Island and Peoria Railway Company; the St. Joseph and Grand Island Railroad Company; the St. Louis Iron Mountain and Southern Railway Company; the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad Company; the Southern Pacific Company (Atlantic System); the Southern Pacific Company Pacific System); the Southern California Railway Company; the Santa Fe Railroad Company; the Texas and Pacific Railway Company; the Union Pacific Railroad Company; the Wabash Railroad Company; the Wisconsin Central lines; the Great Northern Railway Company; the Northern Pacific Railway Company; the Boston and Albany Railroad Company; the Fitchburg Railroad Company; the Toronto Hamilton and Buffalo Railway Company; the Chicago and Grand Trunk Railway Company; the Grand Trunk Railway Company, of Canada; and The Canadian Pacific Railway Company."

MANITOBA CONSERVATIVES.

(Special to the Star.)

WINNIPEG, July 16.—At a largely attended meeting of the Provincial Conservatives in this city the executive of a provincial association was formed. Much enthusiasm prevailed and Hon. Hugh John Macdonald spoke enthusiastically of the prospects of defeating the Greenway Government at the next elections. Representative men from all parts of the country strongly endorsed their leader's optimistic hopes.

MANITOBA CROPS.

(Special to the Star.)

WINNIPEG, July 16.—The glowing accounts of the condition of the crops in Manitoba must be modified somewhat for the time being. The excessive rains of June and the succeeding hot weather have made the grain in many parts sickly and the present prospects are for a light crop, though grain still has a chance to recover very considerably between now and harvest with favorable weather.

The Eastern Ontario Dental Association met in annual convention at Brockville on Friday. Officers were elected as follows: President, W. R. Green, Ottawa; vice-president, J. A. Armstrong, Ottawa; secretary-treasurer, G. H. Weagant, Cornwall. A paper prepared by Dr. George W. Rearn, of Montreal, on the amalgam question, was read and thoroughly appreciated.

MADAME BOSSE KILLED.

The Wife of Judge Bosse Fatally Injured in a Runaway Accident.

(Special to the Star.)

QUEBEC, July 16.—Madame Bosse, wife of Hon. Judge Bosse, Judge of the Court of Queen's Bench, and ex-M.P. for Quebec Centre, was accidentally killed at River Du Loup, yesterday, in a carriage accident. The deceased lady was a Miss de Salaberry, granddaughter of the hero of Chateauguay, and a leading figure in Quebec's society.

Miss Bosse, who was driving her mother when the harness broke, that caused the accident yesterday afternoon, is a well-known whip, and is regarded as one of the best lady drivers in town. When the accident occurred the ladies were driving from Kamouraska to their pleasant home at the point of River Du Loup. When the horse dashed down the hill the carriage struck a telephone pole and was overturned, throwing out Madame Bosse, who lived but half an hour after. The news came direct here to Miss de Salaberry, sister of the deceased, and the body arrived this morning by the Intercolonial Railway.

A FATAL FIRE.

TORONTO, July 16.—About eight o'clock last evening a conflagration broke out in block of houses on Queen street east, all of which were occupied. Mrs. Brandon and her daughter, Maude, residents of the house in which the fire originated, were terribly burned. They were taken to the General Hospital in an unconscious condition, where Mrs. Braudon regained consciousness, and is likely to recover. Miss Braudon, however, died about one o'clock this morning. Pearl Brandon was also slightly burned. The fire was caused by the deceased, who was only 16 years of age. She was trying to light a fire in the kitchen stove with coal oil.

NOTICES OF NEW BOOKS

Hassan: A Fellah. A Romance of Palestine. By Henry Gilman. (Boston: Little, Brown & Co. Price, $2.00.)

"Who are the critics?" asked Disraeli contemptuously, and he answered his own question thus: "The men who have failed in literature and in art." It would be obviously wrong to accept this dictum as true, universally or even generally; but in some cases, it unfortunately is, and authors whose reputation is not firmly established have to suffer in consequence. The whirligig of time often brings its revenges, and what Byron said of Keats is now admitted to have been an unjustified exaggeration:

'Tis strange the soul, that very fiery particle,
Should let itself be snuffed out by an article.

Few respectable writers are killed by the critics, and even Robert Montgomery would have survived the fierce onslaught of Macaulay, had the gods made him a trifle more poetical. "Hommeteus anonymillus cetus," to borrow the title applied to a caricature by the late Charles Reade, is frequently inferior to the man at whom he carps, and smirches the latter's literary character at times by the mud with which he pelts him; but, as a general rule, a man is written down an ass by himself. We have an instance before our eyes of the very different way in which a novelist may be treated by professional reviewers. Mr. Henry Gilman's "Romance of Palestine," is dedicated by permission to the Right Honorable William Ewart Gladstone, the Scholar, the Statesman, the Orator. Now, the distinguished man whose loss the world has been lately deploring, was extremely kind and affable to literary aspirants, but as Mr. Gilman is not a man, "unus libri," (being known to the public by various clever works), it is probable that Mr. Gladstone knew what he was doing when he accepted the dedication. Nevertheless, an American critic, who twice calls the author George Gilman, instead of Henry Gilman, his real name, begins his review of "Hassan," thus: "This heavy and tedious 'Romance of Palestine' has the honor of being dedicated to Gladstone. It is written by George Gilman, who has lived many years in the East, and studied carefully the customs of the Jewish people. But a novelist needs other qualities than those of the historian, and Zola's nine books without Zola's imagination would never have given us 'Lourdes' or 'Rome.' All Mr. Gilman's facts are put together so crudely, and arranged with so little regards to the laws of art, that the story fails utterly in holding the reader's attention. The style of Mr. Gilman is old-fashioned and tiresome. He requires a page to say what a clever modern story teller would condense into a sentence. His characters are not real men and women, and his reflections are stilted platitudes. . . . The writing of such a dull, long winded novel shows industry and patience, and will require similar exercise on the part of the reader, but will hardly reward it." The whole notice is so spitefully worded that we feel inclined to say, "an enemy hath done this." We are not fond of long novels, though they do not seem to be disliked in England, and "Hassan" does undoubtedly contain 506 pages. But we are glad to find that our interest in Mr. Gilman's Oriental romance is shared by other journalists; and, in justice to the author, we will draw the attention of our readers to the opinions of two American critics. Mr. A. S. van Westrum, in his "Notices of New Fiction" in Charles Scribner's Sons' admirably conducted "Book Buyer," writes as follows: "Henry Gilman's 'Hassan; A Fellah,' is the result of much study. The author evidently knows his subject, and has a happy knack of imparting his knowledge. The shepherd of the Psalmist's days still lives, amid the new conditions, and the maidens still go to the wells, as they did in the days of yore. Thus did Hassan meet Dilwe, and begin the story of his martyrdom and hers. A romance of Palestine without the Jew would be manifestly incomplete; and, by contrast, the American tourist must find a place therein. All these conflicting elements have been woven into a consistent story, over which hovers the shadow of the Crescent, with its threat of ruin and despair that is always carried out. It is an excellent story, and not least among its merits is that an author's knowledge of the country, its people, its past, and its present unhappy condition."

"Nathan Haskell" Dole is known throughout the United States as a competent critic, whose good word must be earned by an author's good work. In the July number of Dodd and Mead's Bookman he gives a careful analysis of the plot of story involved in "Hassan," which must have cost him considerable trouble, and cannot fail to interest the readers of Mr. Gilman's romance. We would like if we had space, to present his estimate of the man's story, but must reluctantly content ourselves with publishing the notice Mr. Dole has written. These few hints will suffice to show that this is no ordinary romance. It is full of power and life, it will appeal to Bible students, as it throws light on many incidents in Scriptural customs; but even the satiated reader of fiction will not forget the character of Hassan, that son of Nature, who, in spite of his Mohammedan training (though veneered with schooling at the hands of American missionaries), appeals to our deeper sympathies by reason of his inherent nobility, his Oriental poesy, and his simplicity. "Hassan; A Fellah," is a novel sure to make its mark."

It may be unnecessary to say that we are not personally acquainted with Mr. Gilman, whose cause we have espoused, but that our action has been prompted simply by a British love of fair play. The publishers have done their best to produce a handsome book; the author has put forth his utmost power to write a charming romance, and the public should not permit these interests to suffer from the apparent malevolence a single reviewer.

Canada: An Encyclopoedia of the Country In Five Volumes. Edited by J. Castell Hopkins. Volume II. The Linscott Co. Toronto. Price $9.00 each volume.

We consider the second volume of the Linscott Company's Canadian Encyclopoedia to be a great improvement on the first. Possibly, this is due to the interest of the subjects with which it is concerned; for, as the Prime Minister of Canada, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, remarks in the preface which he has kindly written: "The Second Volume is devoted to three subjects which must ever occupy a large and prominent place in any work on Canada—The Hudson's Bay Company, the Railways, and the Churches. On each one of these topics Sir Wilfrid dwells briefly in neatly expressed language, and we turn to the body of the book, fully prepared for the treat that awaits us. Nor are we disappointed. In the words of the preface: "Lord Strathcona has written for this volume the article on the Hudson's Bay Company, and no one could write of the famous Company more fully and more accurately. By a curious coincidence, if indeed it be a coincidence, Lord Strathcona, whose name has been so clearly associated with everything that the very name of Hudson's Bay recalls, has also been intimately identified with the Railway development which has opened the realms of the once powerful Lords of the Forest to the feverish Ambition of modern civilization. He has himself had a share in the commercial revolution which has transformed the mode of transportation through the continent from the birch canoe which was paddled and "portaged" from St. Anne to Fort Garry, to the heavy locomotive which devours the way between Montreal and Winnipeg."

The volume opens with Lord Strathcona's article on "The Hudson's Bay Company, and Early North-west Annals." It occupies only twenty-nine pages, and professes to do no more than give a sketch of the inception, early history, and progress of the company. Its complete history has yet to be written, and, as there is ample material available the account will prove as interesting as any of the historical romances which have been popular in recent years. So far as it goes, Lord Strathcona's paper is a valuable one. It fulfils all he promised and intended to perform, and, with the indefatigable editor's fifty pages of notes, it will form a nucleus of facts for the future historian. As His Lordship remarks: "Whatever may have been the faults of the company history will record that it explored a vast territory, prepared the way for its settlement, and colonization, fulfilled an important part in the history of Canada, had not a little to do with the consolidation of the Dominion, and with the development of the western country, and that its work was for the advantage of the Empire as a whole."

Turning to the next important subject that is handled in the volume, viz., the history of Canadian railways, we find that Sir Sandford Fleming has furnished an historical sketch of the Intercolonial Railway. Mr. Thomas Keefer has treated of the early history of the Grand Trunk, while Mr. J. Lanning, formerly assistant general manager, has written an historical sketch of the same line. Mr. Molyneux St. John, late editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, and well known to many of us in Montreal, has compiled the history of the Canadian Pacific, which is followed by an article on the same subject by the Editor. Twenty pages then appear as "Editorial Notes" on "The General Railway Progress in Canada."

We have no time or space to dwell, at present, upon the 3rd, 4th and 5th sections, which extend from p. 247, to p. 552, and deal with "The History and Doctrines of Canadian Methodism; The Church of England in Canada; and finally "The Roman Catholic Church in Canada." Suffice it to say that the clerical gentlemen invited to contribute to these three important lectures of the "Encyclopaedia" seem to have performed their work conscientiously and enthusiastically, and that no religious animosity, as it is sometimes called, can be detected in any of the articles. A glance at the names of the numerous writers will prove how carefully they have been selected, and the space has been fairly apportioned among the churches whose Canadian history is recorded.

At present we need say no more, except to mention that the volume ends with an excellent index, comprising twelve pages of three columns each, and that in our humble opinion some of the portraits have, from age or otherwise, rather a washed out appearance. This from the nature of the case was probably unavoidable. Typographically the work is very creditable to the Linscott Publishing Company, and heartily deserves the support of all patriotic Canadians.

The Revenge of Lucas Helm. By Auguste Blondel. (Philadelphia: Drexel Biddle. 1898. Price, 5 cents, cloth.)

This story originally appeared in the "Revue des Deux Mondes," and was written by M. Blondel whose previous volume of short stories was crowned by the French Academy. Briefly, it is the tale of a Frenchman named Henri Verdiere, who went to Nuremberg to study the German language, and there fell in with a pork-selling visionary, Franz Lederback, whose strange adventures are related with an air of probability which is exceedingly well assumed. We will not spoil the interest of the reader by detailing the history of a portrait which is intimately connected with the denouement of the story. It reads more like one of Hoffman's fantastic tales than like the composition of a French writer. The translation seems well executed, though there are expressions to which objections might be offered. At p. 28 we read that the heroine's "blue eyes and her complexion of dazzling whiteness suggested the line of Heinrich Heine, 'a periwinkle bending over a cup of milk.'"

Again, here is a word wrongly used. Henri is speaking to Franz, and the translator writes: "The deuce, Friend Franz!" Soliloquized, Henri Verdiere, "I suspected you of being romantic." Here is "aureole" correctly employed at p. 31: "Perhaps you surround her with an aureole of beauty, which exists only in your fancy;" and at p. 42 the word is wrongly used. "She had really the air of a Madonna, with her blonde hair hanging about her head, like a golden aureole." Surely all "aureoles" are "golden." Again, the same tautology occurs at p. 67. "The head of most admirable proportions seemed bound around with a golden aureole." The story is unique, and was, perhaps, worth translating.

Wanderers. By Sydney Pickering. (London: James Bowden. Toronto: The Copp, Clark Company. Price, 90 cents.)

This paper-covered novel is one of Mr. Bowden's "Colonial Library," and was undoubtedly worth republishing in this cheap series, which is not to be sold or imported into the United Kingdom. In England the novel has proved a success, though as the "Athenaeum" mildly objected, the writing in the volume is good enough to suggest a wish that it was more consistent in its interest. The subject is sufficiently novel. A gentleman and his daughter tramp and camp out for ten years, until the girl becomes a woman, when she is sent to the luxurious country-house of her mother. Then, she has to make her choice between her father and her mother. The main attraction of such a story depends entirely on its treatment and the harshest reader will hardly grudge the authoress praise for her skill. There seems to be a curious alternation in the chapters, for which it is difficult to account—one is good, the next is less so, and the next again is excellent. The result is, however, by no means unpleasing, as it prevents monotony which often wearies. At p. 199, there is a good rendering of an old West County song on the subject of "Sweet Sally Gay." The story, which is one nearly of to-day, is the best that has yet been written by the lady, who has already given us "Margot," "The Romance of his Pictures," and other entertaining volumes. The only pictorial illustration in the book makes us wish that there had been more engravings in the same style.

The Balms and Lamentations. Edited with an Introduction and Notes. By R. G. Moulton. In two Vols. (New York: Macmillan. Price, $1.)

These two volumes, beautifully printed at the price of fifty cents a volume, form part of "The Modern Reader's Bible," a series of works from the Sacred Scriptures presented in modern literary form. The Book of Psalms, the editor considers, to be the perfection of lyric poetry. The musical meditation, which is the essence of lyrics, can find no higher field than the devout spirit that at once raises itself to the service of God, and overflows on the various sides, both of active and contemplative life. In addition to this reason, one of the chief interests of Hebrew among the world's great literatures is the uniqueness of its verse system founded less on verbal rhythm than on parallelism of whole expressions.

Cross Trails. By Victor Waite. (Methven & Co.: London. The Copp, Clark Company, Toronto. Price 90 cents.)

We have read in this volume of Methven's "Colonial Library" with considerable interest, as it is evidently the work of a clever artist in words, but at the same time our pleasure has not been unqualified. Our objection may be formulated in the words of a critic in the London Times: Dumas and Poe understood that in a treasure story, the reader must have a sight, at least, of the treasure. Mr. Waite, the author of the able and ingenious "Cross Trails," has failed us in this respect. In the "realistic" story we expect to find disappointment—we are prepared for lovers who are parted and live unhappily ever afterwards, for attempts that fail, and for heroes who break down. But in the romantic tale we demand, first, a central heroic figure; secondly a perilous adventure; and, finally, the success of the hero. The Spanish galleon in "Cross Trails" is all that can be desired; but the supposed "hero" is a miserable creature, and at the end of a cleverly written story we find ourselves cheated of our ingots and doubloons. It is as if the Wily Ulysses had been drowned within sight of Ithaca, or had been shot by one of his wife's suitors in the beginning of the fight. The story is a mere flash in the pan, and nothing comes of it. Mr. Victor Waite, however, has marked ability, and will probably hit the mark when he shoots again.

In other languages, hardened as they are with versification of counted syllables, and measured vowel sounds, the harmonious intricacies of lyric poetry have to be attained by a triumph of thought over mechanism; but Hebrew poetry carries its lyric rhythm into the very thought itself. In our English titles, these hymns and sacred songs have arbitrarily, on no known principle, been cut up into short sentences or paragraphs, which are numbered; and in this way they undoubtedly lose much of their significance and charm. Josephus, and others, maintained that they were composed in metre, and they certainly have a rhythmical tread which is best expressed in poetic lines. An example, taken almost at random from Mr. Moulton's book, will illustrate this:

Blessed is the Lord God, the God of Israel:
Who alone doeth wondrous things:
And blessed be His glorious name for ever.
And let the whole earth be filled with His glory.

LEGAL QUERIES.

MUST GET JUDGMENT.

Alf. A.—Can my landlady seize and sell my effects for a board bill due?

Ans.—She cannot do so without first taking judgment against you.

QUESTION OF LEASE.

Old Subscriber. — A leased an upstairs house over three stores; one of the three stores was occupied by him. He surrendered his lease in May last. B stays on and occupies the upstairs only without signing any lease. Fire takes place on the 15th of the month and renders the house untenantable. B takes keys to the landlord, who refuses to accept them. Is B responsible for half month, whole month or any rent?

Ans.—B is responsible for 1 month's rent. If the fire originated in his part of the premises he might also be held responsible for damages, and the presumption is against him.

ABOUT A WILL.

W. H. C., N.B.—A dies in New Brunswick, leaving farm, house, furniture, implements, etc., in the Province of Quebec; leaves two unmarried sons and one unmarried daughter besides three married daughters, a widowed daughter-inlaw with a son (A's grandson) of about three years of age. Said A makes last will and testament at the residence of a son-in-law, residing in New Brunswick, bequeathing all his possessions to be equally divided between the unmarried daughter, who is the executrix, and the youngest unmarried son, who is also the youngest of the family, 1. Can other members of the family than those named in the will claim a right to any part of what A was owner of and included in said will, and what mode of procedure would you suggest should be taken and who by, both sons having worked equally on the farm before leaving for the United States?

2. Has the widowed daughter-in-law or grandson any legal claim and upon what point, the husband and father being A's eldest son, lived at the old homestead and worked and improved the property until he died some two years ago, when his wife and child returned to her parents to live?

3. Would the children of daughters have the same claim as the child of son?

Ans.—None of the parties you mention can claim any part of the estate. Of course it would be different if you could prove undue influence on the mind of the testator, especially if he was not compos mentis when he made his will.

FIVE DOLLARS A SLAP.

There was rather a sensational scene in the Recorder's Court yesterday, when Emile Dube and Rose Piche, two young girls of about sixteen, appeared in the box, and swore that they had met Telesphore Roy, on Plessis street, and he had slapped both their faces, breaking one of the former's teeth. The girls said they were friends of the prisoner, but on that night the three had quarrelled. He was found guilty of simple assault, and on the complaint of each of the girls was fined $5 on each charge.

NOTES ...AND... QUERIES.

Doubtful Expressions, Etc.

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

Sir,—In the fifth chapter of a "Life of the Queen," now being issued through a Toronto publishing house, the following expression are made use of:

(a) "Buckingham Palace had been a seat of the Duke of Buckingham's."

(b) "In reply to the Speaker of the House of Commons' assurance of the . . ."

(c) "Besides its gardens, which are of some extent, it shares with St. James, which it is near, the advantage . . ."

May I ask if the use made of the possessive case in the first two of these extracts is grammatically correct, and if the expression, "which it is near," in the third extract, is one which, grammatically speaking, can be so used with propriety?

It would relieve an enquirer from difficulty if you would also decide whether "up to date" and "down to date" are expressions which mean the same thing, and if either of them be more accurate, which of them is so; and whether the word "loan" is correctly used in the expression "money to loan."

Yours respectfully,

A. G. C.

(Montreal.)

Worcester writes: "Todd notes 'loan' for 'lend,' as not in use. It is, however, much used in America, though rarely in England. It is quite superfluous. In answer to A. G. C.'s question I may say: (a) The possessive form may be used after "of," when the person is supposed to "have," or to have originated several of the things named as: "That is a painting of Sir Joshua's (paintings)." "Read a sonnet of Milton's (sonnets)." "Windsor is a castle of the Queen's (castles)."

I do not say that "Buckingham palace had been a seat of the Duke of Buckingham" would not have been correct; but as it is presumed that he has several grand residences, "a seat of the Duke of Buckingham's" is as correct as "a castle of the Queen's." A writer in the Philological Magazine, ii., 261, considers these possessive forms following "of" to be pleonastic; but they are really elliptical. They are never used, but when the sense of the first noun admits of a partitive usage, i.e., when it is admissible that the person may have more than one. We can say, "I met a friend of yours;" but not "I met a wife of yours," unless you are a bigamist, or polygamist. Moreover, "a painting of Sir Joshua "might mean "a portrait of Sir Joshua," and is therefore quite different from "a painting of Sir Joshua's." We can say, "a country house of my father's" with perfect propriety if "my father" has more country houses than one; but "the country house of my father" implies that he has only one. Dean Alford, in his "Queen's English" points out that the phrase "a creation of the dean's" (meaning one from among the "dean's creations") is preferable to "a creation of the dean," which would seem ambiguous.

That the possessive case has for a long time been allowed to follow the proposition "of," even when apparently superfluous, may be seen in our translation of St. Luke, xv. 17, when the Prodigal Son says: "How many hired servants of my Father's have bread and to spare." Here the apostrophe seems to be unnecessary.

(b.) The only objection that I can see to the words quoted in A. G. C.'s second query is that the preposition "of," occurring three times, makes the sentence sound awkward. But, my correspondent probably objects to the apostrophe after "the Speaker of the House of Commons." Of course, it is best avoided; but I will quote a case in point. The Board of Civil Service Examiners in Washington gave, as a test of the knowledge of the use of the apostrophe as a sign of the possessive case, the following sentence: The Commissioner of Custom's decisions are correct, and they required the apostrophe to be placed after "Customs." A dispute having arisen on the point, and it being contended that the proper form was "The Commissioner's of Customs decisions are correct," an officer of the Treasury Department submitted the question to the late R. Grant White, of New York, for his opinion. To be brief, he decided that the Examiners were right, inasmuch as "Commissioner of Customs" is a kind of compound substantive, as if it were written "Commissioner-of-Customs. We say "the Secretary of the Treasury's report," and not "the Secretary's of the Treasury report," and, in the same way, I think that "the Speaker of the House of Commons' assurance" is correct, though undoubtedly inelegant. "The assurance of the Speaker of the House of Commons" is preferable.

(c.) The third quotation is: "Besides its gardens, which are of some extent, it shares with St. James, which it is near, the advantage, etc." Here again, I find inelegance, but not inaccuracy. The writer meant to say that "Buckingham Palace shares an advantage with St. James' Palace, which it adjoins," or "which it is near." A. G. C.'s ear has perhaps remembered the vulgarism "which it is," and accordingly is displeased with the expression used in the quotation. Nevertheless, there is nothing wrong in its syntactical construction. The sense would have been the same, had the compiler written "near which it is."

(d.) As regards the phrasing "up to date" and "down to date," I think that the former is the expression generally used, and we can hardly take up any journal or periodical without lighting upon it. The London Times' "Literature," of June 11, is now before me. At p. 680 I read: "The most "up-to-date" of all the periodicals is McClure's, which in every page breathes the spirit of war, etc. But at p. 661 of the same periodical ("Literature"), I find: "The volume covers the period from the poet's eleventh to his twenty-third year—illustrating the composition of "English Bards, Etc.," and of the first two cantos of "Childe Harold." In fact, "they carry his history," as the editor says, "down to the eve of that morning in March, 1812, when he awoke and found himself famous." "Up" or "up to" means "to a certain point of time: as far as." Wordsworth writes:

'We were tried friends: I from my childhood up
Had known him."—"Excursion." Book I.

When we used "down," we think of time as a river flowing down to eternity.

"The Beggar's Daughter of Bethnall-Greene."

To the Editor of Notes and Queries:

Sir,—I am anxious to obtain a very old English ballad, entitled "The Blind Beggar's Daughter of Bethnal Green." I remember two lines only:

"A silly old man, God knoweth, is hee,
Yet hee is the father of pretty Bessie."

I thought, perhaps, that it was included in "The Book of Brave Old Ballads" published by Ward, Lock & Tyler, London, but it is not included in the work. As far as I remember, it is too long for quotation in your column, but perhaps you will greatly oblige by informing me where I can purchase a copy.

Yours truly,

T. MAXWELL.

755 City Hall avenue, Montreal.

The correct title of the old English ballad about which Mr. Maxwell inquires is "The Beggar's Daughter of Bethnal-Greene." It may be found in any complete edition of "Reliques of Ancient English Poetry," edited by Thomas Percy, Lord Bishop of Dromore, Ireland, and first published in 3 volumes in 1765. Percy was born in 1728, and died in 1811. He was a native of Bridgenorth, Shropshire, and was educated at Oxford. His famous, "Reliques" —a large portion of which was taken from the collection of Samuel Pepys—have exerted a wonderful influence on the poets of Great Britain, from Sir Walter Scott to Tennyson, and have been lavishly commended by all literary men, of course, with a few qualifications. In Chap. I. of Lockhart's "Life of Scott" we read: "But above all I then first became acquainted with Bishop Percy's 'Reliques of Ancient Poetry.' . . . The first time I could scrape a few shillings together, I bought unto myself a copy of these beloved volumes; nor do I believe I ever read a book half so frequently, or with half the enthusiasm." Again, in the "Remarks on Popular English Poetry," prefixed to his "Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border," Scott writes: "The taste with which the materials were chosen, the extreme felicity with which they were illustrated, the display at once of antiquarian knowledge, and classical learning, render it difficult to imitate and impossible to excel a work which must always be held among the first of its class in point of merit. . . . On the whole, we may dismiss the "Reliques" with the praise and censure of a gentleman, himself a valuable laborer in the vineyard of antiquities: 'It is the most elegant compilation of the early poetry that has ever appeared in any age or country.' But it must be frankly added that so numerous are the alterations and corrections, that the severe antiquary who desires to see the old English ballads, in a genuine state, must consult a more accurate edition than this celebrated work.'"

That this is truthful and judicious criticism may be shown from Percy's own introduction to "The Beggar's Daughter of Bethnall-Greene." He says: "The following ballad is chiefly from the Editor's folio MS, compared with two ancient printed copies; the concluding stanzas, which contain the old beggar's discovery of himself, are not, however, given from any of these being very different from those of the vulgar ballad. Nor yet does the Editor offer them as genuine, but as a modern attempt to remove the absurdities and inconsistencies, which so remarkably prevailed in this part of the song as it stood before; whereas by the alteration of a few lines, the story is rendered much more affecting, and is reconciled to probability, and true history."

And now as regards the poem, I may again quote Bishop Percy: "This popular old ballad was written in the reign of Elizabeth, as appears not only from verse 23 where the arms of England are called "The Queene's Armes," but from its tune's being quoted in older pieces, written in her time. See the ballad on "Mary Ambree." The late Mr. Guthrie assured the Editor that he had formerly seen another old song on the same subject, composed in a different measure from this, which was truly beautiful, if we may judge from the only stanza he remembered. In this it was said of the old Beggar that

Down his necke his reverend locks
In comelye curles did wave:
And on his aged temples growe
The blossomes of the grave.

As Mr. Maxwell remarks, "the ballad is too long for quotation."

It consists of two parts—the first containing 136 lines, and the second 132. The two lines, given not quite correctly by my correspondent, are the 75th and 76th of part I: and will serve to show the metre. They are,

A seeley olde man, God knoweth, is hee,
Yett hee is the father of pretty Bessee.

For the benefit of those who have no copy of Percy's "Reliques," the following is the story of the ballad. "Pretty Bessee," the beggar's daughter of Bethnal green, was courted by four suitors at once—a knight, a country squire, a rich merchant, and the son of an innkeeper at Romford in Essex. She told them all they must first obtain the consent of her poor blind father, the beggar of Bethnal Green, and all slunk off except the knight, who went and asked leave to marry the "pretty Bessee." The beggar gave her for a dower £3000 (about $36,000 in present value,) and £100 for her trousseau; and informed the knight that he (the beggar) was son and heir of Sir Simon de Montford. At the battle of Evesham the barons were routed, de Montford slain, and his son Henry left on the field for dead. A baron's daughter discovered the young man, nursed him with care, and married him. The fruit of the marriage was "pretty Bessee." Henry de Montford assumed the garb and semblance of a beggar, to escape the vigilance of King Henry's spies.

I have before me Percy's "Reliques," in three volumes, with memoir and critical dissertation by the Rev. George Gilfillan, (1858.) But in Routledge's "Poets," there is a slightly abridged edition of the "Reliques," well edited by the Rev. R. A. Willmott. This is quite good enough for ordinary use, and I have sent it for my correspondent's inspection.

A few additional facts may be mentioned in conclusion. From Hotten's "History of Signboards," we learn that there is (or was) in the Whitechapel Road, London, a public-house with the sign of "The Blind Beggar of Bethnal Green." In 1659 Day produced a drama with the same title, and in 1834 Sheridan Knowles brought out a similarly named play, of which the plot is briefly, as follows: Bess, daughter of Albert, "the blind beggar of Bethnal Green," was deeply loved by Wilford, who first saw her on the streets of London, and subsequently, after diligent search, discovered her in the Queen's Arms" Inn at Romford. It turned out that her father, Albert, was brother to Lord Woodville, and Wilford was his truant son, so that Bessie was his cousin. Queen Elizabeth sanctioned this marriage, and took them under her especial patronage and protection.

In next Saturday's Star, I will, in answer to another letter from Mr. Maxwell, publish a translation of Schiller's "Diver," with some particulars about the ballad.—Ed. of N. and Q.

MRS. JOS. CLOUTIER

Left to Die by Best Physicians---She Was Sad and Discouraged to Leave Four Poor Little Orphans.

As a Last Resource She Took Dr. Coderre's Red Pills and They Have Brought Her to Life--Now She is Enjoying Good Health and is Bright and Happy.

MRS. JOS. CLOUTIER.

We want to say earnestly, positively and emphatically that there is neither need nor necessity for female troubles. All women's diseases can be cured certainly and surely and permanently. Physicians may think and say that many cases of leucorrhea (whites) falling of the womb, profuse, painful or suppressed menstruation are chronic and cannot be cured, but physicians make mistakes. They don't always think right. They do the best they can, but Dr. Coderre's Red Pills can do better. Most female troubles can be traced either to doubt or ignorance. Doubt comes from the failure of doctors to cure; ignorance, from the use of the wrong medicine.

Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are the only sure cure of all women's troubles. They act directly upon the distinctly feminine organs. They make them strong and healthy. They drive out weakness and bring in strength. They make the nerves steady and tone up the whole system. Dr. Coderre's Red Pills act upon all diseases of women like water acts upon fire. They put them out. They are both a preventive and a cure. They carry young girls safely over the shoals just this side of womanhood. They fit the bride to become a mother. They give strength and health to the coming mother. They safely guide the mature woman over the dangerous rocks known as the turn of life.

Read what Mrs. Cloutier says:—"For 15 years I cannot say that I have been one day well. I had womb disease, pains in my back, headache. I was so weak that I was obliged to stay in bed all the time. I had best doctors to treat me, but they could not do anything to cure me. At last, they told me that I had to prepare myself, that I had not long to live. Imagine my agony, when I was thinking of my poor children. A friend suggested to my family to give me Dr. Coderre's Red Pills. I took some, and in about four weeks, I was completely cured. I recommend them to all suffering women." (Signed), Mrs. Jos. Cloutier, 21 Head of the Falls, Waterville, Me.

The addresses that we publish are always those given to us with the testimony from ladies who have been cured. If you cannot find those ladies when you call on them or by writing to them, please be kind enough to let us know, and we will do our best to put you in communication with them. Dr. Coderre's Red Pills never fail. They are a certain and quick cure for female weakness, headache, sides and backaches, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, fainting spells, pains between the shoulders, bearing down pains, leucorrhea, irregularities and painful periods, loss of appetite, loss of memory, loss of sleep and nervousness. They make healthy, strong, vigorous and happy, all sick, disheartened, run-down women. Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are, above all, the woman's only friend. They act directly on the delicate and important organs that bear the burdens of maternity, and make them strong and healthy. They allay inflammation, heal ulceration, soothe pain and tone and build up the nerves. They banish the discomforts of the expectant months and make baby's coming easy and almost painless. They guarantee the little new-comer's health and an ample supply of nourishment. Thousands of women have testified to Dr. Coderre's Red Pills' marvellous merits.

Remember that we have at your disposal, a physician specialist of great experience in the treatment of women's ills. We want all sick women to write him for advice. Give him a full description of your case. His advices are ABSOLUTELY FREE to all sick women. He will explain your sickness so clearly that you will at once understand the cause of all your troubles. He will give you much valuable advice that will enable you to cure yourself at a nominal cost in your own home. This is the chance of your life to cure yourself. Don't miss it. Have more courage. No matter if you have been suffering for many years, write to him to-day. Delay is dangerous. All letters addressed to "Medical Department, Box 2306, Montreal," are opened by him only and kept confidential. Be very careful not to buy Red Pills by the dozen or hundred, or at 25 cents a box. They are not those that will cure you. Our Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are always sold in little round wooden boxes of 50 Red Pills each. They are never sold in any other way. Refuse all others because they are dangerous imitations. If your merchant does not keep them or does not want to give you the genuine Dr. Coderre's Red Pills, send 50 cents in stamps for one box or $2.50 for six boxes, in registered letter or money order, and you will receive by return mail the genuine Dr. Coderre's Red Pills—We send them to any part of Canada and United States. No duty to pay. When you write, always give your full name and address to prevent all delays of shipment. Address: Franco-American Chemical Company, Box 2306, Montreal. 165 1

INTOLERABLE ITCHING

Eczema All Over Head and Face. Two Doctors, No Benefit.

Tried CUTICURA REMEDIES with Rapid Cure.

I was troubled several years with cutaneous disease which developed into chronic Eczema, which spread all over my head, and down on my face. I took medical treatment from two doctors and received but little relief. Then I tried several lotions, etc., which we had in the store, but only received little relief from them. At times, the dreadful itching became almost intolerable. When I was heated, the Eczema became painful, and almost distracted me. I was advised to try CUTICURA REMEDIES and did so, and found them all that is claimed for them. The Eczema rapidly disappeared, and I am well, with no trace of any cutaneous disease. Shall always recommend CUTICURA to all.

Our babe, two months old, broke out in sores over her face and ears. She seemed to be in great misery, and would scratch continually. I noticed your advertisement in our home paper, and supposed it would be a good thing for our Sadie. I used the CUTICURA (ointment) and CUTICURA SOAP, and they were a great benefit to her. I did not like to give medicine inwardly to a child so young, but saw that she must have something to drive the disease out, so I got a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, to purify her blood, and gave her about one third of the bottle, and your medicines have done wonders for her.

Much Wealth was Taken From it, But the Storm King Eventually Caused Its Abandonment.

(Special to the Star.)

HOUGHTON, Mich., July 13.—The richest silver mine ever opened by man was not in Peru or Mexico, far famed as are the mines of Potosi and Guanajuato, but on a mere reef on that greatest of fresh water seas, Lake Superior. Far famed as is the Lake Superior district for its iron ore and copper, its mines of these baser metals being the most extensive in the world, it has been forgotten by all but a few of the older residents that only a quarter of a century ago the richest silver mine in the old or new worlds was operated under its waters. The story of its discovery, its development under the most trying conditions and against the power of all the elements, and the final triumph of nature over man affords a romantic chapter in the drama of real life equalling in apparent improbability some of the tales of Baron Munchausen, but all the details of which are verified by authentic records and the memories of men now living.

In the excitement attending the opening of the pioneer copper mines of the Lake Superior country, then a wilderness, in the latter forties, a mineral location was made on the north shore of the lake, off Thunder Cape, that natural fortress of granite which rises sheer fourteen hundred feet from the blue waters of the great lake. Included in the location was a reef of rock, unnamed and nearly overlooked by the surveyors. A Canadian mining company held the ground for a quarter of a century, but in 1870 transferred the property to a Detroit corporation, which began a systematic exploration of its lands, fortunately, in their agent, one Thos. Macfarlane, possessed the Scotch thoroughness, and among other explorations he set foot one calm day upon the nameless reef

NOW KNOWN AS SILVER ISLET.

The little island was but 75 feet long by 60 in width, rising but a few feet above the water on a calm day, and entirely submerged by the long swells from the east in stormy weather. Most men would have ignored it, for the islet was nearly a mile from the mainland, and the most unpromising place imaginable for mining work. To the surprise of Macfarlane, who was perhaps the first white man to set foot on that little speck of solid ground encircled by the deep waters of the lake, a plainly defined vein carrying small nuggets of silver was seen. Miners with drills, picks and blasting powder were transferred to the reef on the first calm day following the discovery, and it took but little work by them to prove the existence of a bonanza upon that insignificant ridge of trap rock which exposed a few square feet of its apex above the water. So small was the island that the miners waded into the lake and followed the seam until the water grew too deep, picking nuggets of virgin silver from the vein. Five tons of rock was secured by this exploring party, much of it taken from under the water by miners working to their waists in the lake, the water of which is always intensely cold, even on the warmest summer day. The returns from the five tons of rock shipped to the smelter were far richer than had been dreamed, giving more than $1,200 to the ton, or sixty cents per pound, in refined silver.

Encouraged by this result, the work of development was begun in earnest, under perhaps the most novel and discouraging circumstances that have attended the making of a mine. It was necessary to shelter both mine and miners from the angry waters, which threatened to swallow them and the mine was started, not by digging into the ground, but by building a substantial crib or block house over the spot where it had been decided to sink a shaft. This was imperative for the safety of the workmen and also to keep the waves from dashing into the shaft on their passage over the islet. The crib was built very solidly, on the plan of a lighthouse, with accommodation for the miners in the upper part, above the billows of the lake but not above the spray, which on stormy days blew over the top of the structure. Protected by this shelter a beginning was made, and a shaft was sunk for some twenty feet, but between the water percolating through the rock strata from the lake, but a few feet distant, and the water which found its way in from the surface during storms, despite all precautions, it was found impossible to proceed with the primitive means at hand, all the time of the men being taken in an unequal battle with the water which would fill the shaft. Thus matters stood until the autumn of 1870, when Capt. Wm. Frue, of Houghton, Mich., an experienced miner and a man of bulldog persistence, was put in charge. It required all his ability and all his courage to conquer a foothold upon the reef Capt Frue brought with him from Houghton a large supply of mining timber, food, blasting powder and tools, with forty miners. It was realized that if miners were ever to work safely under it, and work was begun and pushed diligently on the armor-plating of the reef. To the south-east the blue lake rolled for full two hundred miles without a break, and the force of its waves can be comprehended only by those who have seen the power of the ocean when lashed to fury by the storm. The first work was for the carpenters, not miners, and every man in the force was impressed as a builder, after the cargo had been unloaded in safety, though with a narrow escape from a gale which rendered the island dangerous for both vessel and crew. Heavy cribs of hewed timber, bolted together with iron rods and filled with rock, were sunk on the more exposed faces of the island. It was necessary to make more ground that the islet afforded for mine buildings, and the cribs were sunk several rods off shore, and a coffer dam constructed inside them, inclosing the outcrop of the vein for the full length of the island. When the ram was rendered water tight the water was pumped out, and mining begun. All went well until late in October, when a storm carried away all the cribbing exposed to it, and the coffer dam was ruined, thus flooding the workings, and rendering it imperative that the work be done all over, and rapidly, else winter would set in before the mine was secured. The efforts of Frue and his brave workmen were redoubled, and within less than a month the broken cribs were not only replaced, but built of twice their former strength. A week later the vessel was sent away with the rock mined during the few weeks the men had not been engaged in a hand to hand struggle with the lake. Short as the time had been, the reward was a rich one, the cargo netting more than $100,000 above the smelting charges, and visions of wealth incalculable rose before the eyes of the Detroit capitalists who owned the mine.

AGAIN SWEPT BY STORM.

A few days after the vessel sailed, and about the time when the bays and land-locked harbors were freezing over, a terrible storm arose. Again was the work of Frue and his men swept away, and when the storm abated the scene of desolation would have disheartened less courageous men. Not only was the new cribbing destroyed, but the islet was covered with a mantle of ice. Cut off from all communication with their base of supplies at Houghton and facing the numbing blasts blowing over two hundred miles of icy lake Frue and his pioneers took up their task for the third time. The work could scarcely have been resumed under more trying conditions. Without further supplies of timber for their cribs and threatened by the waters of the lake the men cut timber from the mainland and rafted it across the half-frozen strait separating the islet from Thunder cape, whose crest loomed a quarter of a mile above them from the shore. Working on the unsheltered island the heroic treasure-hunters framed new cribs, sunk them, and filled them with rock from the mine openings. The work was again made much stronger than before, and it was hoped the savage lake had been safely chained. Mining was resumed in mid-winter and rapid progress made for several weeks, but, alas for their hopes! Early in March a howling wind from the east piled the billows higher and higher for two days, and on the second day the cribs gave way for the third time. Great blocks of ice were brought from bays far to the eastward and hurled against the cribs in a cannonade which they could not withstand. Huge ice blocks were thrown upon all parts of the islet, invading the buildings and endangering life and limb. For three days the storm lasted, and during its height all attempts to protect property were useless, and the men counted themselves fortunate that life remained.

Undaunted, the brave captain and his brave followers began the work anew when the waves abated. It was apparent that all previous fortifications against the elements had been mere child's play. The new work was of the most massive character, and required many months to complete and a fortune to build. A framed breakwater of square and hewed timber was constructed of fivefold strength, there being five separate bulkheads, caulked with hydraulic cement, bound with three-inch iron rods, and filled with fully 10,000 tons of rock. With its base twenty feet below the water the cribbing rose an equal distance above the surface of the lake and the work stood. It stood, but the first storm threw the waters against it with such violence that millions of gallons passed over the cribbing and partially flooded the mine once more. Another coffer dam was built, and the mine shaft protected with a cribbing made watertight with hydraulic cement. The work was costly and tedious, but it was well done, and in that year, 1871, of silver was taken from the mine. The following year was unmarked by accident, and the mine prospered highly, but during the equinoctial storms of 1873, which were of unprecedented violence, the bulwarks protecting the island were again conquered. Part of the cribbing stood, but the damage was very great, the invasion of the waters undermining a portion of the made ground and demolishing a number of the mine buildings. Great holes were torn in the shaft-house and engine-house by rocks thrown by the waves with incredible force, and no beleaguered city was ever bombarded with more violence and under more threatening aspect than was this little colony placed on a reef in the waters. The machinery was disabled, and a large part of the coal supply washed off the islet by the waves. The pumps stopped and it was with great difficulty that the mine was kept from filling with water. So trying was this experience that many of the miners would no longer remain where they were threatened with drowning both underground and on surface.

The silver in the mine was always found as native, sometimes associated with copper, just as the copper mines on the southern shore of the lake occasionally carry silver in connection with the baser metal. There are very few mines in the world which carry silver otherwise than as an ore, the metal being usually associated in the ore with sulphur and carbon. For the reason that the silver was native the mine presented a beautiful sight, especially in the richer portions, where the sparkling masses of pure metal, many of them of several pounds' weight, shone in all their purity and reflected the light from the miners' candles in a manner presenting a similitude of the cave in which Aladdin gathered the jewels at the behest of his bogus uncle.

THERE WAS DANGER THERE, too, for the islet only afforded a breathing spot for the mine itself, being merely large enough to accommodate the opening of the shaft, while even that was most closely guarded to keep the lake from invading it. As in all deep mines with but a single shaft, there was danger to the miners underground, for in case of accident to the shaft all chance of egress was destroyed. The underground galleries were carried under the bed of the lake, and a single careless blast might let in the water from above, to the destruction of all beneath it. Taken all in all, a job in the Silver Islet was not one which would be relished by most men, but there was never any scarcity of workmen. The mine paid its men well, and there were rich pickings. It is a matter of principle with miners, the world over, that "specimens" belong to the man who finds them and not to the employer. When the "specimen" happen to be a mass of native silver of two or three pounds' weight the miner who secretes it runs no great risk of missing a collector willing to annex it, though the men who traded in "specimens" of silver at the Silver Islet and at the copper mines on the southern shore of the lake never paid above half the market value of the metal purchased.

The mine eventually reached a depth of over 1200 feet, or 200 fathoms, to use the vernacular of the miners. In certain of the upper stopes it was possible to hear the rocks grinding against the bed of the lake in time of storm, so closely had the silver been followed to the danger line. It was estimated that nearly half a million dollars worth of silver was contained in the upper levels of the mine so close to the bed of the lake that it would be dangerous to attempt its removal. The temptation was a strong one, and from time to time a little mining was done close to the danger line, but was usually soon dropped. It was not a pleasant thing to think about, even though the silver was brightest and apparently thickest there.

ITS DECLINE AND ABANDONING.

The largest year's production ever achieved was in 1877, when 750,000 ounces of silver, worth $1.32 an ounce, was refined from the rock taken from the mine. A single pocket of sixty tons yielded more than $100,000, and many smaller pockets yielded even more in proportion, some giving as high as $2 per pound, while masses of native metal were common. The mine produced, all told, a trifle more than $3,600,000 worth of silver during the period of its activity. The profits were great, but would have been many times as large but for the unusual location of the mine and the constant fight against the elements. A few years of unusually heavy expenditures wiped out the surplus of the company. Dividends had been paid too rapidly, and there was nothing left in the strong box for emergencies. The owners disliked paying an assessment to perform work that was vital to the mine's future, and it was decided to unload on the English public, which at that time, 1884, was buying mines extensively in this country. The apparent certainty that the mine would be sold at a big price so impressed the owners that the management forgot to send supplies to the islet that autumn. The superintendent became discouraged, fuel ran short, and eventually disappeared. The pumps stopped, the mine filled with water, and to complete the ill-fortune a big storm again attacked the islet and did great damage. Old miners say there is millions in silver still there, but it will take a million dollars to start work again properly and capital is afraid of silver mines now.

FAVORS RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

(Special to the Star.)

BOSTON, July 16.—Canadians will be much interested in the lecture tour of Dr. Osborne Howes, representing the special committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, who will make a series of addresses before commercial bodies at Buffalo, Indianapolis, Detroit and San Francisco upon reciprocity with Canada, a subject to which the Boston Chamber of Commerce has paid a great deal of attention during the last six months. Dr. Howes, vice-chairman of this committee, has made a special study of the subject, and has made addresses in most of the large New England cities. His object is to direct public attention to the matter, and to secure the co-operation and support of influential commercial bodies throughout the country. He will speak in Buffalo on the 16th, Indianapolis on the 18th, Detroit on the 19th, and San Francisco on August 2.

CANADA'S TRADE.

The German Consul Discusses Trade Relations Between Canada and Germany.

UNITED STATES PRODUCTS MAY BE SHIPPED FROM CANADIAN PORTS TO GERMANY.

The trade relations between Germany and Canada has been one of the principal topics of discussion between grain merchants and shippers on the Board of Trade during the past week.

Special interest was added to the subject by the report that United States grain, shipped from Canada, would be subjected to the same duty as Canadian grain. As this would have the effect of immediately squeezing out of business all freight agents engaged solely in securing cargoes for vessels sailing to Germany matters began to look very serious for the local freight agents of the Hamburg-American Company. Considerable apprehension was also felt by a number of grain merchants, forwarding companies, and others deriving a profit in handling the United States output in Canada, who would be loosers to the extent of the business thus lost to the country.

In order to ascertain the true state of affairs those interested cabled to the Hamburg office of the Hamburg American line, asking if the German Government would admit American grain, transhipped from Canada, under the preferential tariff, if accompanied by a certificate signed by the Collector of Customs and the German Consul in Montreal. All apprehension upon the matter has been removed by the reply which states that the Hamburg American Line having communicated with the German Government has been advised that the signatures of the Montreal German Consul and Collector of Customs will be considered satisfactory evidence that the goods are from the United States, and that they will consequently be admitted under the preferential tariff.

GERMAN CONSUL'S VIEWS.

At the request of a Star representative Herr F. Bopp, the German Consul, expressed his views upon the present tariff relations of Canada and Germany. The Consul had evidently given the matter considerable thought, for he was able to furnish ready reply to the questions of the reporter.

"Germany will be a very much heavier losor than Canada through the recent actions of the two Governments, will she not?"

"It all depends upon your point of view," said Herr Bopp. "Canada's exports to Germany were, say $1,000,000, and Germany's exports to Canada about $6,300,900 a year. The latter figure is undeniably the greater, but in relation to the total exports of each country, Germany's loss is not greater. For instance, Canada's total exports, if I mistake not, amount to about $140,000,000 while Germany's is about $800,000,000, a year. Germany therefore will not be relatively worse off in the matter than Canada. If population were taken into account I should consider that the loss would be very much greater per capita in Canada than in Germany, and as the individual has eventually to bear the loss, I presume that would be the proper point of view. Besides, $6,000,000 is not entirely German product, as a large proportion of it is composed of Austrian goods, shipped to German ports, and will be Austria's loss."

"Do you anticipate that the exports of each country will be entirely cut off."

"I do not know," was the reply. "I have made many enquiries of merchants here, as to whether they would import German goods in future, but not one could give an answer. As to Canada's exports to Germany I am hardly in a position to give an opinion. Every one buys in the cheapest market open to him at the moment. Such goods exported by Canada, as are not subject to duty in Germany, should not be greatly affected, but exports which are subject to duty, and which the United States can supply at an equal price, will naturally be excluded, I should think, by the higher tariff which Canada will now have to pay. This, however, should not kill Canadian exports to Germany altogether."

"But German exports to Canada will be pretty well killed in competition with the preferential of 25 per cent. in favor of Great Britain," said the reporter.

"Not necessarily," said Herr Bopp, smiling.

"The difference is, after all, not so very formidable, though certainly it puts us at a serious disadvantage. English goods will not be 25 per. cent. cheaper than ours, however, as some appear to think. It figures out about this way. The average duty is about 35 per. cent, and English goods will receive 25 per cent. off this amount only, thus paying about 27 per cent. to our thirty-five. Nine cents would thus be saved in $1.35, or one fifteenth. In lines in which there is competition, therefore, Germany would have to sell for 93c, what Great Britain would sell at $1.00. It is not impossible that in many cases this will be done.

"But there are other goods which Great Britain does not offer much competition in and it is unlikely that she would find it pay to manufacture for the Canadian market alone. I am in hopes, therefore, that the exports will not be seriously affected, but I cannot tell."

GERMANY ONLY RETALIATED.

"Do you consider that Germany simply retaliated in dropping Canada out of the favored nations, or that she acted on the aggressive, as many claim?"

"The facts are these: Great Britain and Germany had a treaty by which Germany admitted Great Britain and her colonies among the most favored nations, and these colonies admitted German goods at the lowest tariff. Great Britain being practically a free trade country, of course had no concessions to make. Last year Canada secured concessions towards making her own treaty, and dropped Germany and other countries out of her list of most favored nations. I have no doubt that Germany would have been quite willing to extend the treaty, and might still be willing to do so, but when Canada dropped her out, she simply dropped Canada in return."

"Do you think Great Britain will take any action in the matter?"

"You will have to ask some one else that question, but could you suggest any likely way for Great Britain to do such a thing, or any reason why she would likely do so? Canada wanted to take this action; Great Britain said, 'Go ahead.' Canada did so, and I hardly think the Canadian Government would expect Great Britain to abandon her policy of free trade on account of their action."

"But Germany only received the same treatment from Canada, as other countries, outside of Great Britain, and her colonies?"

"Well, Canada only received the same treatment from Germany as any other country which does not consider Germany as a favored nation. All the other colonies extend the preferential tariff towards us, and we towards them. The sentimental aspect of the question in no way lessens the fact that Germany has been placed at a disadvantage in comparison with Great Britain.

"Besides, it is not strictly true to say that Germany is on the same footing as all other nations, except Great Britain, for a special treaty exists between Canada and France, which almost entirely excludes German wines from Canada. The other articles in the list, I think, would not be exported by Germany to any extent, in any case, and I merely mention this matter to correct a wrong impression."

The Consul, while most courteous in his remarks, and abstaining entirely from criticism, was plainly fully assured that Germany's action was strictly one of retaliation and not one of aggressiveness.

PLEBISCITE CAMPAIGN.

Meetings Arranged for Organization in the City.

A meeting of the Provincial Executive Committee of the Dominion Alliance was held Thursday afternoon, Major Bond presiding. The approaching prohibition campaign was fully discussed. The various committees having charge of the work reported progress.

Mr. H. A. Moulton, chairman of the city work, announced that the organization in the various divisions had been practically completed. The county organization committee reported that the several counties were well organized. County conventions will be held at Bedford, for Missisquoi county on the 19th inst.; at Richmond, on the 22nd, for the counties of Richmond and Drummond. At each of these meetings members of the Executive will be present to discuss the county campaign.

The demand for plebiscite literature is on the increase, and the secretary was instructed to secure an additional supply.

The delegates to the Dominion Council meeting in Toronto, last week, submitted a report. They said that the movement was growing and that extraordinary interest was being taken in the Quebec campaign.

St. Louis division of this city was organized last night, at a meetng in St. Giles' Presbyterian Church. Hochelaga and Maisonneuve divisions, in St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Hochelaga, on Tuesday. St. Henry division, in St. Jude's Church, on Friday, the 22nd inst.

Members of the Central Executive will attend all these meetings.

The new post office building at Victoria, B. C., has been completed, but no order for its occupation have been received from Ottawa, which causes much dissatisfaction.

Sir Adolphe Caron has returned to Ottawa.

TO UNVEIL A STATUE.

Sir G. E. Cartier's Memory to be Honored.

An important Liberal-Conservative demonstration is being organized at St. Antoine de Richelieu, the native parish of the late Sir George Etienne Cartier, in honor of that statesman, for September 5. A monument in his honor will be unveiled on that occasion, and the leaders of the Conservative party are to be invited to attend.

SOHMER PARK.

The programme at Sohmer Park next week promises to be one of the most attractive of the season. The musical burlesque will be taken from "Girofle Girofla," and in addition to the tuneful music of this well known opera there will be several new and popular features. Among the specialties the greatest will be Herbert's troup of performing dogs, which made a great hit at Koster & Bial's, New York, last spring. One of the dogs is a wonder at diving, mounting a high ladder and making the plunge headfirst himself. Miss Mary Rogers, known as the female baritone, has proved such an attraction that she has been re-engaged for another week. A Spanish ballet has been arranged, and the company will also dance a sailor's hornpipe in striking and appropriate costumes.

THEATRE ROYAL.

At the Theatre Royal next week Turner's English Girls come with a programme—diversified to a degree—in an original melange of opera, extravaganza and burlesque, introducing several novel and artistic features not seen before in Montreal. The company has 28 people. Several elegant voices are in the aggregation. The vaudeville part is strong and gives an opportunity to display individual talent. The music rendered by this organization is out of the ordinary. All this is promised.

U. S. CUTTER GRESHAM.

Expected She Will be Ready for Sea on Thursday.

The American Revenue Cutter Gresham, which left the upper lakes bound for the Atlantic at the outbreak of the war, and which has met with so many mishaps, is still in Cantin's dry dock. The vessel it will be remembered was cut in two in order to permit of her passage through the canal. The work of fastening the two parts together is nearly completed, and it is expected that the vessel will be able to leave on Thursday for the sea.

VERY LATEST SKIRT FORM.

A Low Necked Gown --- Underskirts of Rich Material---Latest in Yachting Toilettes.

Special Correspondence of the Star.

PARIS, July 9.—"Le vernissage"—varnishing day—the first exhibition of the year's paintings at the "Academie" and the "Grand Prix" races at Longchamps have passed in quick succession, and have sounded the keynote for the season's fashions, which, to judge from the toilettes displayed at these important social events, are manifold as they are truly artistic.

Fashion is just now devoting particular attention to the form and fit of the skirt.

The serpentine ruffles have developed into double or even triple skirts, falling at equal distance, one over the other, or arranged over tablliers and panels at the front or sides. Stitchings, lace applique, borders, rounded flounces, and plisses, edge the different parts of the underskirts.

A new fancy which bids fair to appear on autumn costumes shows the arrangement of several different shades of one color, as grey or tan, in which case the bodice is constructed of the lightest shade, while the complex skirt is made of the darker shades, which are carefully graduated. The sleeves may also be of the darker shade, while the belt and collar may afford dainty bits of coloring by being made of bright colored velvet.

This novelty applies only to cloth and woollen dresses.

Among the richly trimmed foulards and taffetas, the revived fashion of knife pleating is a welcome change.

A DAINTY COSTUME.

Our dainty costume of black and white printed foulard has white lace insertions running horizontally around the knife pleated skirt and blouse. The latter is additionally trimmed with falls of white lace and the sleeves are of white lace. The collar and belt are of turquoise blue velvet. This style is amendable to all sorts of variations and color combinations.

Summer wash gowns are trimmed with laces or embroideries. Insertions are preferred to edgings, and are so applied as to simulate tunics or tablliers. Fine [illegible] organdies are covered with narrow valenciennes insertions, sewed on in diagonal squares. One cool gown is made of pale yellow organdie, having a large rose pattern running over it. Narrow black lace insertions appear like a trellis work for the climbing roses. The serpentine flounce on the skirt is edged with a narrow ruching of black chiffon. The bodice, like the skirt, is fitted over a lining of pale yellow taffeta. A large shawl collar of black lace ends in points over the blouse in front, on either side of a vest of shirred white chiffon, caught with straps and bows of narrow black velvet ribbon. The black velvet standing collar has a pleated butterfly cravat of white chiffon.

Why women have chosen the very high tight collar as a particular indication of the summer styles is the more incomprehensible since an exquisite gown of pale green cashmere has a V-shaped opening at the neck, which looks far more appropriate for hot weather wear and is besides more artistic and none the less elegant than the high collar.

SERPENTINE SKIRT.

The serpentine skirt of pale green cashmere is lined with white taffeta and trimmed with clusters of narrow tucks. The bodice is tight and seamless at the back and forms a square opening at the back and at the blouse front, which is edged with an exquisitive passementerie of lace, studded with pearls and falling in two long ends on both front gores of the skirt. The square opening is filled out by a folded shawl of pale lavender and green plaid silk interwoven with silver threads. The long sleeves have clusters of tucks on the slightly fulled upper arm and finish at the wrists with small flaring cuffs of green velvet. The folded belt is also of green velvet.

The serpentine flounce has been transported to the underskirt, and many exquisite models of plaid in changeable taffeta or brocade differ from the outerskirt in length only.

Our little illustration represents an elegant underskirt of heavy black moire procaded in diagonal stripes of pale yellow, showing a design of roses and foliage. The trimmings consist of short full plaitings of satin in two shades of old rose. Above the psaltings are black lace insertions with small beadings through which old rose ribbon is drawn.

Sport toilettes are allowed a wide scope by Fashion, and the object is to be characteristic rather than to be fashionable.

Our model of a unique yachting costume follows this rule.

Knife plaited crash linen of a terra cotta shade forms the full skirt over an underskirt of yellow silk, which is disclosed with every movement of the wearer. A very novel yoke of yellow cloth provides a graceful fit over the back and hips and is edged with a rich passementerie of brown steel.

The loose blouse, which closes in the underarm and shoulder seams is composed of a yoke of yellow cloth and alternate wavy bands of cloth and terra cotta colored crash linen, each band being edged with steel passementerie. The sleeves are of yellow cloth, with cuffs of crash.

A full black satin tie enriches the high white linen collar.

The wide-brimmed hat of yellow straw is trimmed with terra cotta colored silk cord and pompons.

VICISSITRIDES OF A WOMAN.

A New York paper takes up the career of Miss Leilah Kirkham, daughter of General R. W. Kirkham, once commandant of the presidio, or military headquarters at San Francisco. In his time it was but a rough stockade. Leilah, his youngest daughter, was the belle of the place, and without parental restraint, was known as the girl "like herself" and no one else. Her first husband was Boyle Blair, in the British Consular service, in South Africa. She met him at Oakland, married, and a few years after, she appeared in London a widow. Here she married Hon. Walter Yarde-Buller, who settled $2,000 guineas upon her. But they were not happy, and the lady alleges her husband actually maltreated her. She took a prominent place in society, was present at the Queen's drawing-room, and figured as the most beautiful American present. Despite her little breaches of etiquete she became a success in London. But domestic affairs went from bad to worse. Valentine Gadsden became the "man in the case" when her husband brought divorce proceedings in the courts. She on her part, filed charges of cruelty and made statutory allegations against her husband, obtained a divorce and her children's custody. Gadsden died meanwhile, and there were rumors that a duel had been fought in which he was mortally wounded.

It was then that Mrs. Yarde-Buller became noted as a litigant on both sides of the Atlantic. She brought suit against Baron Tweedmouth for the payment of certain sums of money which she alleged the peer had covenanted to pay her for the "protection of the realm." The suit was dismissed. Then it was that the English papers were emboldened to say that the American woman was crazy. She brought suit repeatedly to recover what she claimed was her rightful share of her father's estate after her $1,000,000 had been received. She sued American and English newspapers for libel, and recovered nothing. One evening she was found rambling aimlessly about Oakland. There was a dazed, strange look in her eyes. She was taken care of, and now, says the paper quoted, word comes from Paris that she is in a mad house there. And the conclusion that the writer arrives at is that the woman reached her present undesirable position just because she disliked "being like any one else."

A CURIOUS AUSTRIAN CUSTOM.

Emperor Francis Joseph Washes the Feet of Twelve Old Men.

The Emperor Francis Joseph, as the head of the most ceremonious court of Europe, has many curious duties to perform during the year. There is nothing more singular or striking among His Majesty's regular functions than the Easter one, known as the ceremony of washing the feet. The recipients of this extraordinary honor are twelve old men and the same number of aged dames. This year the ceremony of washing the feet of the old ladies was omitted, owing to the absence of the Empress from Vienna, but the ancient dames received substantial compensation for this imperial neglect in the shape of money and other presents.

At 9 o'clock the old men were conveyed to the ceremonial hall in imperial equipages. Dressed in antique German costume, they took their seats at a long table. His Majesty and the whole court were at divine service when the Lord Chamberlain announced that all was ready. His Majesty and suite entered the hall between rows of halberdiers. Diplomatists and their wives gazed upon the scene from the ambassadors' box. In the train of the Emperor were the archdukes, ministers, generals and the household. The splendid uniforms of the Hungarians and Austrian dignitaries contrasted with the brightness of the ladies' dresses.

The Emperor, surrounded by his courtiers, walked to the table and mounted the steps. Below stood the archdukes, behind the chamberlains and the aides-de-camp. His Majesty welcomed his guests and gave the sign for the meal. The Lord High Steward and the pages brought in the dishes, handed them to the monarch, who in turn placed them before the infirm old people.

The ceremony of washing the feet, which followed, was more symbolic than actual. Court officials took off the shoes and stockings of the old men and placed a towel across their knees. The court chaplain intoned an "Evangelium," the monarch handed his hat to a chamberlain, and the latter handed it to an officer of lower rank. When the words "Et coepit lavare pedes disipulorum" had been reached the monarch fell on his knees and formally washed and dried the feet of the twelve men in turn. A prelate poured the water over the feet, and a papal house prelate held the ewer. At the conclusion of the ceremony the monarch walked to the lower end of the estrade and washed his hands, a page holding the ewer and the Lord Chamberlain handing him the towel. The imperial bursar thereupon handed purses, each containing 30 silver crowns, to His Majesty, who hung them around the necks of the old men, and they were then driven to their homes.

BRETON COURTESY—A TRUE TALE.

French politeness reaches its finest development in the small provincal towns, as this story shows.

The only American family in St. Servan were at breakfast when the maid of all work appeared looking rather pale.

"Armand, you look ill," said some one.

"Well, mademoiselle, my rest was somewhat disturbed last night. As mademoiselle knows, it is my husband's custom to come home drunk. Quite late I heard him bawling 'help! help! au secours! they kill me, I die!' At first I thought he yelled merely through drunkenness, but in a moment I heard another voice, and ran down the stairs. Two strangers choke him. One sat on his head hitting him.

"I said, 'Pardon, messieurs,' but it is my husband you are strangling.'

"They said, 'A thousand pardons, madame, we have made a mistake. Pray forgive our stupidity. In the darkness we mistook your husband for your neighbor Picot, whom we desired to disable. When your husband comes to, convey to him our sincerest regrets.' With that they helped me carry him up stairs. But, strangely enough, I did not sleep well afterward. Madame, I hope, will forgive my lateness this morning."

HIS POETICAL ASSISTANTS.

"Molly," he said to the wife, "I wish you'd finish this poem on 'Hobson'—I've got to get it off to-night. Just go ahead on it while I round up my fifteenth Dewey ode."

And then he pushed the following pencilled poem in "skeleton" toward her:

"—— bay,
—— crew,
—— way,
—— view.

—— skies;
—— fade
—— flies."

And in short order the wife handed him the following:

"It was in Santiago Bay
That Hobson and his crew
Speed like the lightning on their way
With Spanish guns in view.

"A charge as if in hell they made,
Beneath the blazing skies,
And never shall their glory fade
While Freedom's banner flies!"

"Good!" he exclaimed. "And now, if you're tired, just order some salmon for supper, and I'll let little Johnnie fill out that 'Little Green Apple Tree' poem, as he's been eating cucumbers and can put the proper spirit into it."—Atlanta Constitution.

Women In Council

By One of Themselves

The physical redemption of the next generation is undoubtedly being worked out in this. What a contrast the women of today present, as compared with those of sixty or a hundred years ago! Then it was the fashion to cultivate a delicate appearance; to faint on the smallest provocation; to eat in public at any rate, about enough to satisfy a good-sized sparrow; and to suffer at frequent intervals from interesting attacks of "nerves." Blessed be the bicycle, the tennis raquet, the golfing club, and the walking, ditto! It is a salutory change they have helped to bring about. Of course the tendency of modern thought and education have had much to do with the improvement in this respect. For the fathers, brothers, and cousins of these days had their own healthful outdoor games, but ladies did nothing more than occasionally look on at these; for taking part in any such boisterous proceedings was not to be thought of. Well, I for one say let us be thankful we are not our own great-grandmothers. It certainly is a fact that the average stature of women is increasing, and one meets many more square-shouldered well-set-up figures than one does of the old flat-chested, "bottle-necked" style. I take it that the men and women of the next half century should be a finer race altogether, for all the solemn head-shaking of those who deplore the ruin of business life, and over-pressure of education. The added attention given to all forms of athletics more than makes up for the extra strain of modern days.

By the way, "Sadie" wants to know how to pronounce the word "golf." Weel, Sadie, gin ye were dwellin' in the fastnesses of the golf country, au' Scotlan' herself, ye wad juist gie it the proper twang, and say gowf, ye ken. But, seeing ye are in Canada, and must needs be speakin' the English, ye had better do as maist guid Canadians do, and say golf.

The prettiest, and cleverest of the daughters of the Prince and Princess of Wales is Maud, generally known as Princess Charles of Denmark. This young lady married a couple of years, is a very expert photographer, and has succeeded in taking the best picture of her own beautiful mother that has ever been done. There is no small talent required in making a good photograph. The operator must know just what to tone down, in the subject, or object, as well as what to emphasize and make the most of. Great advances have been made in this particular branch of art, since the days our mothers stood up to be "taken" in balloon skirts, and "chignons,' and our fathers in extremely long coats, and very wide nether garments.

"There is a providence that shapes our ends," says the poet. But, oh! what disproportionate "ends" some of these ancient photos show. A favorite pose was to sit in a chair, with one's tall hat on one's knee, and the feet crossed, in easeful grace. Incorrect focussing often resulted in presenting the picture of a mild young man, apparently possessed of feet eighteen inches long. These old pictures are funny to look at, but are not to be despised. It is from small and poor beginnings that most great things come. Even now it is possible to produce pictures in several natural colors. What will become of our painters when we can carry out our camera, and "take a landscape just as it is before us, in all its glowing colors? That day may be nearer than we think.

This is the little folk's holiday time, and much they seem to enjoy it. Mothers and nurses know what constant demands for drinks of water there are during hot weather. The old Yorkshire thirst-quencher is as efficient as ever, and I may be pardoned for reminding my friends of the recipe. Take a cupful of fine oatmeal—rolled oats is not suitable—put it into a quart jug; fill up with cold water—not ice water—and stand in the ice chest until wanted. This is most cooling, and a capital thirst-quencher. Before pouring out give it a hasty stir, and allow it to settle for two or three seconds. The jug may be filled up again, once or twice, but do not try to keep it more than twenty-four hours. It is best to mix it freshly every morning.

Here is another recipe for the benefit of the bairns. They all like bananas, which, however, are not at all good for the youthful stomach, unless eaten in strict moderation.

However, when cooked there is no indigestion in a whole dishful, so peel your ripe bananas, and divide them lengthways, putting them in a pie dish, with a very small quantity of water at the bottom. Strew a little sugar over the fruit, and bake for half an hour, with a plate over the dish. These are good for breakfast or supper, and may be made into a dinner pudding by just filling up the dish with a sweet batter of eggs, flour and milk. Put small bits of butter over the top, and bake until the pudding is puffed up, and lightly brown.

A squeeze of lemon and sprinkled sugar are an improvement when ready for table.

"Alice" asks if there is more than one kind of eatable mushroom. Certainly, "Alice." A very learned student of the subject of edible fungus growths in America has come to the conclusion that their known number is limited only by opportunity of searching for them. He himself habitually uses some thirty-four different kinds of mushrooms at his own table. I should not care to gather and cook any but the ordinary meadow species, except under the direct guidance of some such learned person, for deadly poisons are contained in very innocent looking specimens. Never eat a mushroom which has a bulb, or cup, at the bottom of the stalk, for the poisonous species is always shaped so. There is never a cup at the stalk end of an eatable mushroom; it springs clean from the soil.

Here's a little poem for the tiny trots. They must get mamma to read it to them, or read it themselves. It is short, and easy to learn.

A LONELY MONARCH.

O, I'm mamma's own precious boy,
And dada's pet as well,
And as for grandma I'm her joy,
As any one can tell.

My nursery is bright and gay
I've toys of every kind,
Which on a gloomy indoors day
I very cheerfully find.

But oh! when grandma goes to sleep,
And mother takes a walk,
And nurse won't wind my music sheep,
And cannot stay to talk

'Tis then I wish that father dear,
To Mrs. Queen would write
And say "Please send more children here,
And please to send to-night!"

"Jimmie"—No, you must certainly not try to run over any animal when on your bicycle. Never mind what your boy companion says. It is not true that dogs cannot be run down. I have seen a poor doggie with a crushed foot, which he got by means of a front wheel of the bicycle of a careless rider. So don't you try any experiments.

The Courage of Faith. . . .

A SERMON.

Be strong and of good courage.—Deuteronomy xxxi. 6.

Nothing is more surprising to the careful observer than the qualities of character which are developed by an emergency.

Courage, that kind of courage which consciously and willingly faces death, is so frequently seen that it has become gloriously and almost awfully monotonous.

If we are entirely impartial, we must extend the limits of this criticism until it includes those whom we call our enemies also. Human nature on fire is the same all the world over.

No matter in what clime a man may be reared, or whether the cause he defends is by us considered worthy or not, if he is moved by a sufficiently strong impulse he is quickly changed from a pigmy into a giant, and thereafter he does a giant's work.

I am proud because I believe that all human beings are capable of extraordinary development under fostering conditions: that there is a grandeur in our common nature which needs only an inciting cause to show itself.

Mankind does not appreciate itself. God made men noble, and nobility should run through every phrase of life. We ought to bestow more thought on our high destiny, on the qualities with which we are endowed for its accomplishment.

We are dormant, sluggish, indolent spiritually. Unusual conditions produce great men. There never was a time when the right men did not step to the front to meet and conquer an exigency. The ability is always there, but it sleeps until it is roughly awakened by some terrible shock, and then the country is suddenly filled with heroes. That ability to overcome is in you as well as in the man behind the earthworks. You are larger than you think yourself.

We live in the delusion that life is common and ordinary; that we lack the opportunity to make ourselves really great. And yet there is neither one man nor one woman in a million who has not an environment to make a hero or a heroine withal.

If your lot is cast in poverty, in drudgery, in inharmony which hampers and discourages, amid confining duties which prevent and disturb—that is your battlefield, these are your enemies, and you must either conquer or surrender. It will never do to find fault with Providence, for perhaps Providence has put you where you are with a purpose. So might the soldier find fault with his general because he is not where he thinks he ought to be. That soldier's work is work that ought to be done, that must be done, and though he lies idle while others are winning victories the time will come when he also shall be called upon to show his mettle.

It is the foremost injunction of religion to do well what is disagreeable, to bend it to a noble purpose, to be brave in small things, to bear misfortune with a strong and sturdy soul, and, instead of doing nothing because your life is not to your liking, doing everything with fidelity, calmness and faith.

Take your life just as it is and thereby make yourself better than you are. Creep closer to God with an assured faith that you and He can perform miracles together.

The soldier believes that his country is worth the sacrifice he makes, and in that belief he sleeps amid dangers and bears the hardships of the campaign cheerfully. We all need to profit by that example. Our cause is also great, greater than that of the country even. It is the cause of character and of immortality. We can achieve the one and earn a right to the other by doing our duty honestly, rigidly, with a glad heart and the consciousness that we are getting ready for the eternal home.—Rev. George H. Hepworth in the New York Herald.

On the Peace River Trail.

ON TRAIL NEAR PEACE RIVER, N. W. T., June 22, 1898.

To the Editor of the Star:

Sir,—I and my partner, John Finkins, with 85 head of buuls, en route to Peace River and Pelly Banks, met with severe losses between the Big Smoky and Peace, having met with large bush fires which raged for days, causing the herd to stampede through the bush, losing 38 head, and 10 more head in crossing Muskegs, which were something terrible. The animals sank up to their backs, in some cases entirely disappearing. The trail for miles is impassable from fallen timber caused by previous heavy bush fires. We have been on trail from Edmonton, Alberta, since the 24th of April; expect to reach the Peace in two days.

Yours respectively,
WM. S. KIRKPATRICK.

Remedy for Whooping Cough.

At this season Whooping Cough is very prevalent among some of the Children in most families. It is not advisable to stop the coughing entirely, but relief should undoubtedly be sought. THE BAD SIDEWALKS.

More Complaints Investigated and Found to be Largely as Represented.

DANGEROUS FOR BICYCLISTS.

Unevenness of Some of the Block Pavements Makes Them Quite Impassable.

HARD ON LIGHT VEHICLES.

Street Railway Tracks Raised Above the Level of the Pavement also Dangerous.

Although the Civic Department which controls the destimes of the sidewalks and roadways throughout the city is at last doing something to show that they have not been altogether neglected in the way of repairs, it is quite evident to the observer that there yet remains much to be done in that connection. Star reporters have continued their rounds of the places about which complaints have been received at this office, and in the majority of cases it was found that the complainants had not exaggerated the condition of affairs. It is brought in the course of the facts presented below that some of the streets are impassable for bicycles and highly dangerous to light vehicles if driven at more than a very moderate speed.

The asphalt sidewalk on St. Denis street from Cherrier to Roy, is badly in need of repair. It seems to have been laid out of the proper season and the frost has damaged it considerably. The sinking of the chain stone along the outer edge has also had the effect of breaking it up. But worse than this the effect of the frost and heat has broken up the paving in some places until it rises several inches from the level in the shape of a triangle and makes it most unpleasant for pedestrians. The sidewalk in this place certainly wants to be looked after.

RAVINES ON NOTRE DAME.

Notre Dame street, between McGill and Chabouillez Square, is in a very bad condition. The worst holes are between the street car tracks. Any attempt to count the holes would be unsuccessful, for it is a continuous stretch of destroyed asphalt. That section of Notre Dame street is not very wide, and it is not uncommon for great inconveniences to be experienced owing to the dilapidated condition of the roadway. In front of the Balmoral Hotel there is a hole fully a foot deep, right beside the track, and it is almost impossible for the horses and heavy waggons to pull out quickly from before an approaching electric car. Where Inspector street crosses Notre Dame, all remnants of asphalt have long since disappeared, and nothing has been substituted, consequently the space between the tracks is one wide deep hole. Even the coal drivers, with regard for their own personal safety, walk their horses at this place. An immense amount of heavy trucking goes up Inspector street, and the jolting when crossing these ravines is very hard on the horses. Another hole at the corner of Inspector and St. James is worth y of notice. A very full and vivid description of this hole may be obtained by standing at the corner and listening to the remarks of those who are not skilful enough to avoid it. The representative of the Star asked some of the proprietors in the neighborhood the age of this hole. The first who was questioned, was unable to say, he had only lived in that vicinity for ten months. Better success was had from the next. He said the hole had been there for three years, and not long ago was 18 inches deep in one part. Ashes and the sweepings of the streets have been dumped there repeatedly, still it is large enough to receive anything that comes along. The exact area was not ascertained, the length extends from the car track to the sidewalk. Accidents are quite usual, and not long ago a farmer who was used to the "awful country roads" had the misfortune to get swallowed up in this bog, and when extricated the axle of his waggon was broken.

RAILS THAT ARE DANGEROUS.

A great source of inconvenience not to say danger to wheelmen and even to such vehicles as light waggons etc., is the projecting car tracks on most of the principal business streets of the city. An example of this is to be found on Notre Dame street, east of St. Peter street. The car tracks project several inches above the rest of the pavement, so that the wheelman has to cross them pretty straight or be precipitated, sometimes with great force, in front of passing vehicles. To make matters worse Notre Dame street is watered quite frequently which makes it all the easier for the rear wheel of a bicycle to slip. These elevated car tracks are also a source of inconvenience to other vehicles besides bicycles. For example a light four-wheeled waggon was going east along Notre Dame street near Chabouillez square one night this week, when it came to a street down which it wished to turn, the front wheels turned all right, but the rear ones clung on to the rails for quite a distance.

The old wooden block pavement of some of the chief business streets are in an especially poor condition. St. Catherine street east is a good example of this. The blocks put in as pavement seem to have been of different quality, some of them being worn away almost to the ground, and others hardly worn at all, making the road as a whole very rough. In some places it is the foundation of the pavement that gives. This is often apparent where the street is laid with stone blocks, McGill street being full of these inequalities. An especially bad example of this is a place about four feet long and three feet wide in the stone pavement of Lacroix street, just coming down from Notre Dame. It is hard to judge the depth of the hole because it is almost always full of water, but it is about seven inches deep and is especially disagreeable to the bicycle rider, because it is on a hill and the rider is generally in a hurry before he knows it.

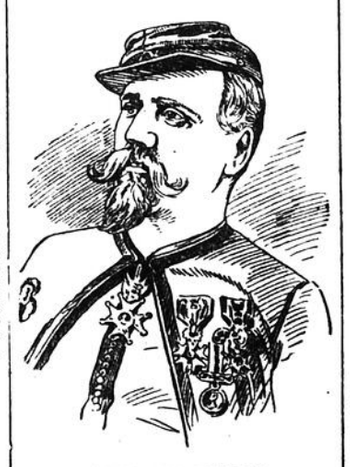
MR. DROLET'S "ZOUAVIANA."

A Valuable Book on the Experiences of the Zouaves.

Mr. Gustave A. Drolet, ex-Pontifical Zouave, Commander of the Military Order of St. Gregory the Great, Knight of the Legion of Honor of France, has issued a second and much enlarged edition of his volume "Zouaviana" which is a veritable pot-pourri or medley, and includes letters from Rome, recollections of voyages, studies, and concludes with extracts from the diary of M. Rene Bolleau the first member of the County of Kent (Chambly), elected in 1792, and great-grandfather of the writer. The volume is one of six hundred pages and is illustrated with portraits of the author, General de Charette, Mayor E. H. Richer, of St. Hyacinthe, the late Chas. Paquet, Recorder de Montigny, the Chevalier Alfred Larocque, Lieut.-Col. Hughes, the late Sir Adolphe Chapleau, Governor Vallee, of the Montreal gaol; L. P. Herbert, the sculptor, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales (presented to the author), the late Hon Honore Mercier, M. J. G. W. McGoun, the Chevalier Lucien Forget, the late Jos. Taillefer, and Rev. Edmond Moreau, Lt. A. Plamandon, Major Gen. Herbert, the late Hon. Felix Geoffrion, and M. Rene Folleau. With a few exceptions, all these were more or less intimately connected with the raising of the Zouave expedition from Canada previous to the fall of Rome in 1570.



CHEVALIER DROLET.

The work is most creditable to the author as well as the publisher. The volume will be found most interesting reading, and will save from utter loss many interesting facts which will help the future historian of French Canada. Dr. Drolet is a graceful and fluent writer, and his style is attractive. One is no sooner through with one chapter than he is anxious to go through the chapter following. Mr. Drolet gives some personal recollections of his service at the frontier at the time of the Fenian raid, as well as his campaigns in Italy, and all interesting facts connected with the Zouaves and the union allet of ex-Zouaves. There are also accounts of Mr. Frechette's decoration by the French Academy and Mr. Drolet's services at the Paris and Philadelphia exhibitions as one of the Canadian Commissioners. For his services he received an autograph letter from the Prince of Wales, which is included in the book. The extracts from the diary of Mr. Bolleau will be valuable for those who are interested in the history of Canada at that time. Mr. Drolet is to be congratulated upon his work.

DOMINION SQUARE.

To the Editor of the Star:

Sir,—Will you kindly spare a few lines to draw attention to the caterpillar nuisance in Dominion square? We justly pride ourselves in the grandeur and beauty of this square, but let any one sit for five or ten minutes upon one of the seats provided and his admiration will be turned into misery. During that time he will probably have half a dozen caterpillars crawling over him, and he is lucky if he manages to keep them out side of his clothes. They are a perfect pest, and I cannot see that anything is being done to obviate the nuisance. Look under most of the seats and you will find dozens of these creatures; also crawling up and down the trunks of the trees. Their nests are left unmolested. Surely the city can afford to have these accumulations washed from the benches if they cannot get at the trees, the leaves of which are almost eaten away.

I have half a gross of empty bottles upon my shelves. Everything my neighbors and friends would tell me to try I would go straight away to the drug store and purchase. I was in a terrible condition from dyspepsia and liver troubles and was getting worse all the time. I was so discouraged buying one medicine and the other and receiving no benefit that I was about giving up all hope of ever getting better, when my husband brought me home a box of Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills, which he said had been highly recommended to him. I began using them at once, when, to my great surprise, I felt better in a very short time and continued them for about two weeks more which cured me entirely. I have not the least sign of dyspepsia or liver troubles now, and have also gained several pounds in weight.

MILITARY HAPPENINGS

Steps have been taken to form a naval corps in the city of Vancouver, and the following article on the subject from the Daily World of that city will doubtless be read with interest by local military men:

"The visit of the warships to the harbor has been a benefit in more ways than one, and in a certain one of them it is likely to bear fruit to the lasting good of Vancouver and her citizens. For several years the formation of a volunteer naval corps has been talked of, but nothing definite, up to a few days ago, was done. On Wednesday a deputation interviewed Admiral Palliser on the Imperieuse, with the result of obtaining a promise of his hearty co-operation and assistance in recommending the scheme to the authorities. The Admiral has also signified his willingness, if a naval corps is formed, to have one of the ships on the station visit Vancouver every week for several years, so that the young men who take up the advantages of the training may have the best opportunities possible in making themselves efficient. Arrangements will likely be made for the sending up of an instructor from Esquimalt, until such times as a permanent one is appointed. According to Admiral Palliser, in case of war, no ship would be able to come to Vancouver, but if a corps were formed here a torpedo boat could be sent up and manned by our volunteers. G. T. Legg and G. W. Grant have taken a considerable interest in the matter, both having been naval men, and petitions are now being drawn up for signatures to be forwarded to the authorities. Meanwhile those who join the corps may be assured of being well repaid."

"A historic coincidence is related of the visit of the Ottawa troops to Burlington. One hundred and twenty years ago Captain Justus Sherwood, of Vermont, led a band of United Empire Loyalists from Vermont to settle in St. Johns, Quebec. Monday Lieut.-Col. A. P. Sherwood, great-grandson of Capt. Justus Sherwood, led the first body of Canadian troops into Vermont."—Ottawa Journal.

This is an error. The 43rd Battalion was not the first body of Canadian troops to enter Vermont since the United Empire Loyalists' settlement. The Sixth Fusiliers of this city have once or twice in recent years enjoyed the hospitality of their Vermont comrades, and other Canadian corps have also been warmly welcomed in the adjoining State.

The Lee-Enfield rifle, with which the Canadian militia are now armed, has rendered tall scoring in rifle matches a much more common affair than when the Snider or the Martini was the weapon used. At single range matches more particularly, it seems to be a comparatively easy matter to make any number of "possibles," and the problem that confronts rifle associations is how to deal with the numerous ties that occur. Lieutenant-Colonel Delamere, of the Q. O. R., Toronto, has written to the council of the Dominion Rifle Association, suggesting a change in the target in order to meet the new conditions which have been created by the adoption of the Lee-Enfield rifle. The recommendation by the Queen's Own commandant is made with a view to its being adopted at the forth-coming matches for the Dominion in August next, and will be considered by the council at a meeting to be held in Ottawa on Saturday next. Lieut.-Col. Delamere's suggestion, while changing somewhat the form of the target, will preserve the present system of scoring, and seems simple enough to be adopted without much difficulty. At present, as is well known, the hits on the target count as follows: Bull's eye, 5; inner, 4; magpie, 3; outer, 2. The sugegstion is to have an inner circle, one foot in diameter, on the present bull's eye, the diameter of which is two feet. A hit within the inner ring would mean a score of five, the other shots ranking as follows: Within the remainder of the bull's eye, 4; up to the edge of the former ring, 3; balance of the target, 2. The adoption of the change proposed would render it more difficult to score a "possible," and make "ties" less numerous. In that way there would be less danger of awkward complications in compiling the scores.

The Winnipeg Free Press of Monday last contained the following:

"The band of Toronto's crack regiment, the 48th Highlanders, arrived in the city last evening by the regular Pacific express, and was given a cordial welcome at the station. They marched up street, headed by their stalwart drum-major, to the Leland, playing several stirring airs en route. His Worship Mayor Andrews made arrangements for dinner for the band at the Leland, after which they marched to the barracks, where they will be quartered during their stay in the city. They will prove a leading feature among the many other attractions at the fair grounds during the week."

The Portland Argus has the following to say regarding the recent visit of the Royal Scots to that city:

A British-American celebration of the Fourth of July is a decidedly novel sensation for Portland and a mighty pleasant one. The braw Scotch Canadian laddies captured the town yesterday and were given an ovation all along the line of march, as hearty as that accorded to our own veterans and boys in blue. The Royal Scots are as fine a body of men as one would wish to see and made a brave show in their picturesque Scotch kilts. What memories and associations that Scotch kilt conjures up, of history, of romance, of war; of "Caledonia, stern and wild.

Meet nurse for a poetic child!
Land of brown heath and shaggy wood;
Land of the mountain and the flood."

Put your canny, hard-h[illegible] Scotchman in kilts and set him a[illegible] with his basket-hilted claymore [illegible] to the droning of the bag[illegible] and you throw about him the glam[illegible]ry, and romance that is his [illegible]om time immemorial. But [illegible] presents something more tha[illegible] and romance. It has flashed in[illegible] van of many a hard-fought battle all over the world, as did the Gordon Highlanders, the other day, when they stormed the heights of Dargai to the music of Piper Findlater's bag-pipe; and the story thrilled the world. Yes, Portland has been glad to welcome the Royal Scots, to do them all honor with open-hearted Yankee hospitality, and to wish them God-speed with the hope that this Fourth of July visit may be the fore-runner of many more to come. Henceforth, apparently, we are not to have a monopoly of Fourth of July celebrations, strange as it may seem. Portland was not the only place in which the two great nations came together yesterday in hearty reunion. Telegrapatches tell us that many Canadian towns along the border, at Niagara, and elsewhere, participated in our "Glorious Fourth," and word came from London that "for the first time on record the Fourth of July will be widely celebrated in Great Britain." The impulse to "get together" is spontaneous, hearty, and significant in this crisis. The Continental Powers will do well to make a note of it, for it means much.

Col. Percy Henry Noel Lake, who succeeds Major-General Gascoigne in the temporary command of the Canadian militia, is a son of Lieut.-Col. P. G. B. Lake, formerly an officer in Her Majesty's 54th and 100th Regiments, and now of Winmarleigh Grange, Grenfell, N.W.T., by his wife, a daughter of the late Wm. Phillips, of Quebec. He was born at Tenby, Pembrokeshire, Eng., June 23, 1855, and was educated at Uppingham. He entered the army as lieutenant in the 59th Regiment August, 1873, and was promoted captain of the East Lancashire Regiment October, 1883, being raised to the rank of major July, 1891. He became lieutenant-colonel in September, 1893, and colonel in December of the same year. He served in the Afghan war, 1878-79, as assistant field engineer with the Southern Afghanistan Field Force (medal); and in the Soudan campaign, 1885, when he was attached to the Intelligence Department, and was present in the engagements at Hasheen and the Tofrek Zereba, and in the advance to Temai (medal with two clasps and Khedive's star). He passed the staff collegiate course with honors, 1884; was on the headquarters staff of the army, 1887-88; D.A.A. General Intelligence, headquarters of the army, 1888-90; and D.A.A. General, Dublin, 1892-93. He acted also as secretary to Lord Wantage's committee on recruiting, and is reported to have displayed great ability, industry, and tact in the performance of his duties. On the creation of the new office of Quartermaster-General of the militia in Canada he was appointed thereto in September, 1893. In 1896 he was entrusted with a mission to England in connection with the rearmament of the militia. He is a member of the Anglican Church, and married in 1891 the only daughter of the late Harry Woodyer, of Grafham Currey.

An American surgeon who has been with the insurgents in Cuba reporting on the effects of the Mauser bullet, states that he saw a man who had been shot through the head fully restored at the end of a year. Another man lived three hours after he had been shot through the middle of the forehead; had this been an ordinary bullet he probably would not have lived as many seconds.

In another case a bullet entered about one-eighth of an inch above the heart, and for three hours it was impossible to tell whether the man's heart had been hit or not. The man was taken to the hospital, whence in a week he was discharged.

Still another man was shot through the thigh bone. The doctor reports having ripped open his trouser leg, and after having applied a plaster around the outer and inner wounds the man ten minutes later mounted his horse and led a cavalry charge. An ordinary bullet would have made amputation of the leg necessary.

The speed of a bullet, its initial velocity, is the number of feet per second at which it is travelling when it leaves the muzzle of the gun. This rate for Springfield rifles is about 1360 feet a second; for the Spanish Mauser it is 2286 ft. a second, and for the Krag-Jorgensen 2000 ft. a second, and,generally speaking, the faster the bullet, the further it will travel in a straight line. To illustrate this, in a 200-yard trajectory the greatest height of the bullet above the plane of fire will be at 150 yards from the muzzle, for the Krag Jorgensen approximately 14 feet, for the Mauser about 10 feet and for the Springfield about 32 feet.

Further details of the three guns, whose trajectories are illustrated, are appended:

	Name of Gun.	Calibre, in hes of Gun.	Weight Car tridge	Wht of tridge
U S Army	Krag Jorgensen	3.0	9 4	464
U S Army	Springfield	45	9 5	570
Spain	Mauser	276	8 7	373

The following table may prove interesting, since it gives the service data approximately of the three types of rifles used in the engagements before Santiago:

GAOL ATMOSPHERE.

Alex. St. Laurent Preferred to go to Penitentiary.

Alex. St. Laurent, who was arrested in Ste. Cunegonde two days ago, on the charge of stealing bicycles, was brought before the Police Magistrate yesterday morning, and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. Wednesday, it will be remembered, he appeared voluntarily, and owned up to the offence to save another man charged with the crime, and the Magistrate remarked that he would be lenient under the circumstances, and give him a sentence of eighteen months. "You might as well give me two years, Your Honor," he said, "I can't stand the atmosphere of the gaol." He was obliged.

FELLOW WORKMEN MOURNED.

The funeral service of the late Steven Maloney was held this morning at the Cote des Neiges Cemetery. It will be remembered that the deceased met his death by falling off the new Victoria bridge on Tuesday last. His fellow workmen showed their respect by attending the funeral in a body. They also sent numerous floral contributions, and intend erecting a tombstone to his memory.

SIR KNIGHT JAMES OSBORNE, OF BARTON TENT, No. 2, CURED OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

"Kootenay" was the Remedy.

Word was received by Barton Tent, No. 2, of Hamilton, Ont., that Sir Knight James Osborne was very ill, and the "sick committee" was instructed to wait upon him.

It was found that he was suffering from Bright's Disease, a disease heretofore pronounced incurable by the medical profession, and it was accepted as a matter of course that death was inevitable, and his lodge insurance would have to shortly be paid. What was their surprise to have him enter the lodge some time afterwards in good health.

His cure he ascribed simply to Kootenay Cure, as he took no other medicine.

Before starting its use he had all the characteristics of much-to-be-dreaded Bright's Disease. His skin was pale and puffy. He had Indigestion, Heart Palpitation, Shortness of Breath and great weakness. There was puffiness of the face and swelling of the legs. His urine was scanty, painful to pass and loaded with albumen.

He felt that life was slipping from his grasp with great rapidity. Kootenay Cure came to his rescue. It restored his kidneys to healthy action. It cleared out all the poisons that were pent up in the blood. It made him well.

SOME TRADE TOPICS.

The Cause of the Backwardness of Iron Ship-building in Canada.

MARKET FOR OUR HARDWOOD.

Canada Could Develop a Good Trade If Systematic Efforts Were Made.

NICKEL FOR WORLD'S NAVIES

The Trade of Japan --- Canada's Position in the English Butter Market.

The successful launching of the new steamer Toronto, and the decision of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company to have another steamer built in the same yards in Toronto, have drawn attention to the backwardness of Canada in the shipbuilding line. In the days of the wooden clipper ships Canada enjoyed an enviable reputation in this respect, and many of the finest vessels that floated were constructed in the ship-building yards of Quebec, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia. Since the advent of iron hulls and steam propulsion Canada has, however, lost her place as a ship builder. To a great extent the same thing took place in the United States, whose industrial development has far surpassed that of Canada, but of late years that country is regaining its position, and is even building vessels for foreign navies as well as for its own. Canada also should show some progress in this direction greater than she can boast of at present. The arrival of the steel tug Falmouth in Halfax harbor from Glasgow led the Halifax Herald to point out that it would have paid, even financially, to have the tug constructed by the New Glasgow firm, whose tender was rejected for the lower one from Glasgow. Delivery of the ferry boat has been deferred since last August, for one thing, and there has been all the loss consequent upon this. The depreciation on account of wear and tear in such a craft crossing the Atlantic, the loss of interest on the outlay, all make up a total greater by a good deal than the difference that the New Glasgow firm asked to build the steamer. Then the commission might have helped in the good work of encouraging what is destined to become an important local industry. The long delays, still unaccomplished, in the delivery of the new ferry boat, may teach a useful lesson. Certainly it is difficult to see why Nova Scotia with the finest beds of coal and iron in close juxtoposition should not have made more progress in ship-building. Something has been accomplished on the Great Lakes. The Canadian Pacific had one of their fine upper lake fleet constructed at Owen Sound, and the Government has had one or two fine revenue cruisers constructed there. Several ships for the navigation of the rivers leading to the Yukon were constructed in Toronto last winter, but there has been little done in building large steamers of the class of the Toronto. Commenting on the fact that Canada has not kept pace with other countries in this branch of industry, the Canadian Manufacturer says: "One reason given for this anomalous condition is that, even under the policy of tariff protection, no adequate provision was made for the encouragement of the steel shipbuilding industry; that we had no plants sufficiently well equipped for the construction of modern steel vessels, and that it would be cheaper to have our requirements supplied from abroad than at home. But these arguments are most successfully answered and controverted by the putting afloat of the steamer Toronto; and Mr. Bertram, the head of the company who constructed her, is to be commended in proving that the old arguments were wrong." As Canada's merchant fleet on the Great Lakes grows, as it will, to larger proportions, the ship-building industry will no doubt grow, but there should be room for work of this class in other parts of the country.

The Canada Lumberman advocates the sending of a thoroughly practical lumberman to Europe to report on the conditions of the markets and the openings for securing trade. Canadian spruce and pine sell freely, but little is done in hardwood. It quotes a gentleman conversant with the European trade as follows: "Until the manufacturer and the consumer are brought closer together, the hardwood trade will enjoy very little prosperity. There is no denying the fact that closer relations between producers and consumers is the tendency of the times. At the present time hardwoods are not taken out in sufficiently large quantities to enable manufacturers to put in the proper machinery for sawing the lumber in the manner required by the European markets, and I look for no improvement so long as the business remains in the hands of small mill men. The hardwood trade should be taken up by a few large dealers, who would be in a position, financially, to handle large contracts. To explain, I recently saw an order that was given to an American firm for 125 carloads of oak and ash. Now, where is there a hardwood firm in Canada that could fill an order such as that?"

He added: "I believe we have sufficient hardwoods to supply fully 50 per cent. of the British trade. The reason that the local consumption rquires nearly all the hardwoods produced is that there is no incentive to manufacture; you must create a market. Our hardwoods are now sold on too small a margin of profit; they are really sacrificed. Of course you know that one drawback in the past has been that you could not drive hardwood logs, but with the new railways recently completed in different parts of the province, there can be obtained immense quantities of hardwoods, and it is quite time that we took advantage of our opportunities. Taking a broader view of the question, and looking at it from a national standpoint, I think that the cultivation of the hardwood industry is very desirable."

The exports of Canadian creamery butter thus far to date this season show an increase of some thousands of packages, and the quality of the goods also is greatly improved. There is probably some room for progress yet on this score. A feature of the English market this season was that the supply from Victoria finished abruptly in March, instead of, as usual gradually decreasing in volume, until, with other Australasian supplies, it ceased altogether in May or June. The home production of 1897 is estimated at 85,000 tons, or 6,000 tons more than in the previous year, and 5,000 tons above the average of the five preceding years. Drought has, for three successive seasons, adversely affected Australia's dairying industry, the greatest export therefrom having been 12,166 tons in the season of 1894-95. In the following season it fell to 7,585 tons, in 1896-97 it was 8,784 tons, and in the season just closed it was 7,868 tons. New Zealand suffered far less from this cause, and her exports of butter to the mother country during the last four seasons have been 2,305 tons, 2,958 tons, 3,088 tons, and 3,689 tons respectively.

Discussing this situation of affairs, the Imperial Institute Journal says: Canada, however, is the colony that is making the greatest strides in this industry; in 1897 she sent to the United Kingdom 5,470 tons of butter, Victoria being the only other colony which exceeded that amount. Canadian and Australasian butters do not come into direct competition on our markets, but from the high quality of last year's Canadian product it became a serious rival to that received from the continent, and in future European exporters are liable to find Canada a formidable competitor. Meanwhile farmers at home are making no progress in their endeavor to meet the foreign competition in butter and cheese. The proportion of cows to the population is yearly steadily decreasing, and now stands at nearly ten cows per thousand people less than it did six years ago. With the high price of milk in this country, compared with the colonies and foreign countries, the British farmer enjoys a great advantage over his competitors. It is estimated that 95 per cent. of the butter and cheese imported into the United Kingdom is produced on the co-operative system, and it is the lack of application of this principle that handicaps the British farmer.

The exports of flour from Halifax for the months of April, May and June were six times as great as in the corresponding period of 1897. In the corresponding three months of last year the total foreign exports of flour from Halifax were only 2,751 barrels, approximately valued at $11,151. For the three months ending with June the exports had risen to 15,140 barrels, a low estimate of the value being $84,240. The shipment to Great Britain last year was nil. For the three months this year the quantity exported there was 1,350 barrels. The shipments to Newfoundland rose from 2,150 barrels to 6,920. The contrast between the quantity sent to the British West Indies in the three spring months last year and this is striking. The figures are:

	Bbls.	Value.
1897	14	56

St. Pierre is the only market that fails to show this extreme increase in its flour receipts from Halifax, but there also the quantity rose from 351 barrels in the 1897 quarter to 420 in the 1898 quarter. The total increase in the exports amounted to 12,383 barrels, a quantity nearly five times as great as the total export in the three months of 1897, and the total value was $75,099 more than in 1897, the difference being seven times greater than the total in 1897.

The British Government has decided to build more warships; in fact the programme is a very large one, while Russia, France and other countries are making strenuous efforts to outstrip their rivals in building navies. The result of the war with Spain will be that the United States will take steps to put its navy on an equality with that of European countries. The nickel world has entered upon a ship-building campaign, and every one of them uses nickel-steel for their armour. Canada has virtually a monopoly of this metal, and yet it is allowed to be exported out of the country to be refined. The American tariff is designed to make this condition permanent and might well be overhauled at the Quebec conference.

The Truro Condensed Milk and Canning Company, Limited, whose building and works were completely destroyed by fire in May last, have got their new premises completed, and work was resumed last week. The building is L-shaped, and covers a ground space of some 13,000 feet. The main portion is two-storeys high, the north-west angle, where the condenser is situated, towering to three storeys. The floor space in the building contains an area of 15,148 feet, with the addition of 3500 feet of floor space in the boiler room. The machinery, etc., placed in position is all of the most modern make, and will have about the same capacity as that of the old building.

Speaking of bee-keeping in Northumberland County, Ont., Mr. S. D. Austin says: "The output this year," he explained, "will exceed that of all others. There is hardly a farmer who has not at least ten to fifteen colonies of bees. And not only is the quantity large, but the quality is, I think, the finest I ever saw. You can see through it. There is so much clover this year; the country is covered with it. The section and cap manufacturer in Wooler cannot fill orders."

The Grand Falls Power Company, which is composed of Senator Proctor, of Vermont, Mr. James Manchester, Mr. G. F. Baird and Col. H. H. McLean, of St. John, N. The plans of the company include the construction of a large canal to develop 80,000 horse power, and the erection of extensive paper and pulp mills. The work to be carried on immediately will necessitate an expenditure of $1,000,000, but the whole work will require a capital of more than double that amount. The capacity of the Dominion Pulp Company's mill at Chatham, N.B., is to be doubled. A company has been organized to build a pulp mill on the Tobique River.

Considerable talk took place some time ago over the proposed establishment of furnaces for the manufacture of pig iron in Cape Breton. The coal there is of excellent quality, while there is abundance of suitable limestone, the iron ore being within easy access by water of Newfoundland. The scheme has, however, been abandoned, at least temporarily, the reason assigned being that the Dominion Government would not give a guarantee that the present bounties on pig iron would be continued. The capital could have been obtained for the erection of the works on a large scale had such a guarantee of the extension of the bounty been forthcoming, but without this it was impossible to raise the money. Hence the abandonment. The idea is that the conditions for smelting are so favorable in Cape Breton that a very large foreign export business could have profitably been done.

Mr. A. H. Lay, assistant Japanese secretary to the British Legation at Tokio, has prepared a report on the growth of American exports to the Flowery Kingdom. The report discusses the foreign trade of Japan during the year 1897, and after showing that Great Britain's imports into Japan increased in 1897 by about 5 per cent. and that those from Germany amounted to only 8 per cent. of the total, instead of 10 per cent. as in the previous year, says: "The United States has acquired a very largely increased share of both the import and export trade, the values of her imports and exports having risen no less than 57 and 55 per cent., respectively." The table showing the total imports into and exports from Japan by countries shows that the imports from the United States increased 1,024,839 pounds sterling, against 332,488 pounds sterling increase from Great Britain, 629,915 pounds sterling increase from British India, 10,430 pounds sterling increase from Germany, 637,751 increase from China, 222,505 increase from Hong Kong, and a decrease of 304,651 pounds sterling in the imports from France. It will thus be seen that the increase in imports from the United States into Japan was greater in 1897 than from any other country.

The total imports from the United States and Great Britain in 1890, 1895, 1896 and 1897 are shown as follows:

IMPORTS FROM THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN INTO JAPAN.

	Imports from the U. S. Yen.	Imports from Gr't Br'n Yen.
1890	6,874,531	26,619,102

1897	27,030,537	65,406,266

The following summary of the principal items which formed the United States totals in these years will give an idea of the changes that have taken and are taking place:

Emphasis is laid in the report in the advantage possessed by the United States by the promptness and speed of delivery, a point in regard to which Canada should possess equal advantages.

THIS has been a truly delightful week for Montrealers fortunate enough to be spending the season in the country. There was a couple of rather uncomfortably cool days, it is true, but they just served to make people appreciate the warm weather the better. For the remainder of the week Old Sol has had things pretty well his own way during the daytime, while the evenings have been deliciously cool. It has perhaps been a trifle too hot in the middle of the day for indulgence in exercise, but it is not very likely that many summer resort people have complained on that score.

As a matter of fact the heat has been a good and sufficient excuse for many an active young athlete loitering in the country for his holidays to give his bicycle, his boats and the tennis courts a rest and indulge in amusements, just as interesting and entertaining, if less exacting upon the physical system.

These warm days are enough to tempt any well meaning young man to loiter his hours away beneath the grateful shade of spreading trees; and when to the shady nook and sun-bathed landscape are added those irresistible attractions of the daintily attired summer girl as she lolls gracefully in her hammock, what wonder it he prefers to kill time under the trees to indulgence in violent exercise with racquet and paddle or hot tennis court or glaring lake?

ST. LAMBERT.

The past week was Regatta Week here, and one which in days gone by, when aquatic sports were in their zenith, and formed the leading topic of conversation, and the most popular exercise at the summer resort, was looked forward to by residents and their visitors as the gayest days of the summer. But as we are all quite well aware the growing popularity of tennis and cycling has in a great measure detracted from the interest so warmly displayed at one time, and now one oftener sees a tennis racquet than a paddle. However, on last Saturday other amusements were laid aside for one day at least. All through the week, many who had not yet launched their crafts were busy making them waterproof for the important occasion. The early part of the day was very disappointing, and the committee, with rather doleful looking faces, but hopeful words, worked hard all the morning hoisting flags, placing buoys, and performing the numberless other minor details which devolve on the willing shoulders of those who undertake the office. Fortunately long before three o'clock, the hour for starting the first boat, the last black cloud had rolled away, and old father Sol smiled a bright welcome on the large number of visitors that lined the river bank from the old pier to the Victoria Bridge, anxiously waiting for the first pistol shot that was to announce the starting of the day's sports. Of course it was within the enclosed grounds surrounding the boat house that the largest number were assembled, from the infant in his perambulator to the white haired Spartan, who related tales of the feats performed in his youthful days. It was here that the summer girl was most conspicuous, fully armed for conquest, and if one is to judge by the bright eyes and sunny smiles that peeped from beneath the flower laden hats that flitted from one spot to another, Cupid's busy arrows must have found many resting places, for there was no lack of attendant cavaliers arrayed in spotless flannels, quite ready for the day's fun. There were many prominent visitors, among whom were the Hon. C. A. Geoffrion, M.P.

A large bus full drove up from Longueuil and many cyclists rode out from town, the roads from Longueuil being in very good condition just now. Many remained over for the hop and distribution of prizes in the evening. The ladies were kept busy until long after 8 o'clock providing tea for guests. When the music struck up for the first dance, it was with difficulty that all the couples found places in the densely crowded room, and the broad verandah was well patronized by the dancers, as a sitting out place between the dances, which were kept up until after eleven o'clock, the visitors returning by the 11.45 train to the city.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Horsfall, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Ramsay, Mr. and Mrs. Hooper, Mr. and Mrs. H. Williams, Mayor and Mrs. Whimby, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ramsay, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. HUDSON AND HUDSON HEIGHTS

The committee of the boat house have been working hard lately arranging for the usual concert, regatta and other stand ard events of the season, including the Daddy's race.

The dates arranged for are as follows: Concert, July 23; regatta, August 6; Daddy's race, July 30.

As yet no mention has been made of the illuminated flotilla. It is to be hoped that this affair will not be allowed to die out, as it constitutes a very pretty spectacle.

The regatta is open only to members of local club and a good time is anticipated.

A swimming club in connection with the boat house has been organized. The boat house committee are having a large pontoon with a small house on it, built for the convenience of the gentlemen. This is to be moved out in deep water in front of the boat house, and membership therein costs the small sum of 50c. per season. A list is at the boat house for the signature of intending members, and is being rapidly filled up. Only subscribers will be allowed the use of the float. This, it is expected, will fill a long felt want and stop the members from making a bathing house of the boat house at certain hours.

It was rumored that a service of song was to be held at the boat house last Sunday evening, and quite a few went there only to be disappointed. These services were very popular last year and the hope is here expressed that no time will be lost in starting them again. They don't in any way interfere with the church services. Many of the congregations of both churches go to the service of song as soon as church is over.

The ladies of St. James Church held their annual bazaar at the boat house, Thursday and Friday of last week. Proceeds were in aid of the church fund. The ladies in charge of the various tables had quite a busy time, and had the satisfaction of realizing quite a large sum as the result of their labor.

Tennis still continues to be king here, and all other sports are kept pretty much in the back ground. The boat house is well nigh deserted for the tennis courts. The shorter days as they arrive will, however induce a change, and the boat house will then be the centre of attraction.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitan and family are amongst those who have come out to enjoy the holidays at Hudson Heights and are occupying one of the cottages on Mt. Victoria.

Among those who helped at the bazaar were Mrs. Carmichael, Miss Pyke, Miss Mary Pyke, Mrs. Ward Whate, Miss Schneider, Miss McNiel, Miss Thompsn.

The young ladies of the Heights intend giving a hay cart ride this evening. The young gentlemen will be the guests, and a jolly good time is expected.

POINTE CLAIRE.

A well attended general meeting of the Boat Club was held in the committee room on Monday night last. The president, Mr. Laflamme, presided, and the business of the meeting, the election of a captain, was carried to a successful conclusion. Mr. Butler, the club's choice, is in every way worthy of the position, and under his guidance no doubt Pointe Claire's flag will once again speed to victory. After the adjournment of the meeting a war canoe practice was held and the chief difficulty therein was to pick and choose from the athletic enthusiasts desirous of seats in the canoe. The reward of well-earned merit this season will be a trip to Ottawa, to take part in the regatta of the Ottawa Boating and Canoe Club. Drop your cigarettes, boys, and try paddles for a while. Mr. Butler deserves the support of all, as his position as captain fully demands.

The fortnightly hop on Wednesday evening was as usual a success, although the attendance was not so great as usual. Miss Riley presided at the piano and encores were numerous throughout the evening. Among those noticed present were: Mr. and Mrs. Samuels, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Several 'bus loads of Pointe Clarites took in the concert and hop at Valois on Tuesday evening. The Valois Boat Club are to be congratulated upon the success of their entertainment and all from here declare to having enjoyed themselves thoroughly. Master Ethelred Nelson, son of Mr. Thos. Nelson, "Willow Bank," was unfortunate while climbing a tree on Tuesday, as to fall and break his arm. Owing to the absence of our local Med., Dr Lesage, Dr. Howard, of Lachine, was telephoned for, and arriving as speedily as possible, soon set the little sufferer on the road to recovery.

The Molly Bawn added another win to her credit last Saturday and nothing short of extra flag-halliards will suffice to fly the numerous burgees won by her so far in the handicap series.

LAPRAIRIE.

The quietness and tranquility which have characterized the last few days have had a soothing effect on the minds of the many weary of the past week's bustle and amusement: on the minds of those who although tired kept it up while it lasted, simply because they enjoyed the fun or perhaps just for the sake of being with the crowd. But now everybody is rested and in their continual search for something new, the scrutinising eyes of the more sanguine have sighted something wonderful, something extraordinary. I should not tell, but the secret is no more a secret. Perhaps you have heard of it already. Listen: At a meeting of the amusement committee of the Boating Club, held last (Friday) night, it was decided to give a "grand masquerade hop" next Saturday the 23rd inst. Wonderful, isn't it? So hurry, fair ladies! hurry! Have you decided what you will wear? If you have not you had better do so at once. It is an easy matter. First choice is always best. Moreover there is an infinity of designs to choose from. But......I do not want to advise anyone on matters pertaining to fashion or to taste. All I say is to be ready for the 23rd. To you gentlemen, I will urge: Cancel all ready made, all previous engagements for that evening. Laprairie has a glorious night in store for you. But above all don't give the secret away.

The great topic of conversation next week will be the "Masquerade Hop." This year's will be the second affair of the kind given by the Boating Club, and if it has the success, the one of last year achieved, the members of the Club can be well proud of their work. All we ask for, is fine weather and we promise to Laprairie visitors that particular night, a very enjoyable time. The weather last year was very bad, yet over two hundred and fifty took part and this year a greater number is expected. The boat leaves Bonsecours wharf at 4 and 6 p. m. Saturday, returning next morning at 7 and 9 a. m., and 5 p. m., Sunday. So all up boys next Saturday.

The officers are much missed by the fair Misses, and the "boys" have but partially recovered from the "shift" the girls gave them at the beginning of the camp. But matters are becoming again nice and smooth gradually, and by the time this is printed, old feuds shall no more exist, absorbed as boys and girls will be by the great thought of a "Masquerade Hop." For after all, what's the use? The cause of the trouble, the gay officers, have disappeared—at least from our view. Perhaps they live yet in the hearts of some of our lady friends, but......the least said about this, the better.

Notwithstanding all the good will possible, a few names escaped notice in the list of those present in the military hop. Among these were some of the most earnest workers of the club. Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Carson, Mr. Lucien Barbeau, Mr. Alfred Austin, Mr. Hector Bisaillon, Mr. Hector Demers, Miss Carson, Miss M. Racine, Miss G. Bourassa, Mr. Olivier Demers are instances of this.

Capt. Pelletier, 65th Batt., who acted as quartermaster of the camp, was here this week, supervising the packing of stores and things, the different battalions left behind them. He is accompanied by Sergt.-Quartermaster Lafrance, 65th Batt., and a detachment from St. Johns under the command of Staff Sergt.-Major Roberts, R. R. C. I.

The bicycle club is doing very well. The roads have been very bad, but now, without being as good as city streets, they are very well kept, and we are thankful they are. The most popular route is certainly the one to Longueuil and St. Lambert, although the macadamized road to "La Tortue" is very well patronized.

Quite a number of Beaconsfield people had friends out for the boat club dance on Wednesday evening. As usual, it was a very jolly affair, not an especially large number present, but entirely successful, for all that.

A large number were present from Dorval, Pointe Claire, etc. The new committee are working hard, the younger members especially taking a great interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of the club.

The war canoe is out two or three times a week, and we think we have a lot of steady young paddlers, who should give a good account of themselves this season. The club has invested in a fine canoe for the senior and junior fours. The boys say it is a dandy, and they intend it to be in the front of the procession at all regattas.

Mrs. Leslie gave a pleasant lawn party on Thursday. Amongst those present were Mrs. J. Exter Walsh, T. S. Paton, Mrs. Robert Turnbull, Miss Turnbull, Miss Nolann, Miss Francis, Mrs. Jas. Paton, Mrs. R. Wilson, and others.

Mr. Hemsley's knockabout, the "Habitant," has proved herself a little too speedy for the rest of the craft, but I understand the Ottowyn will soon be launched, and then perhaps we will hear a different story.

CHATEAUGUAY BASIN.

This beautiful little by-way of Montreal needs a house to accommodate the many families who are anxious to be its summer residents. It is situated on the little river of that name, and has every attraction to make it desirable. But, although several houses are still empty, as people going to the country do not wish to keep house, there are dozens turned away who seek board, but no one has sufficient enterprise to start the business on a large scale, though there is every encouragement to do so.

There are a number of families settled here for the summer. Mr. George Boulter is an old resident, and his pretty little villa is surrounded by old willow trees, and the well-kept lawn hints of tennis and tea. A steam yacht lies idly in the inlet, or steams off to Lachine or other north shore ports. Charming daughters and guests add to the attractiveness. There is near the village the white painted pretty residence of Mr. A. Robertson, and shrubs and flowers add to the adorning.

Mr. Lang and Miss Macfarlane have opened their houses to accommodate a few families, and prove the need of a more extensive house for city people who desire country air and fare, with good boating and fishing, plenty of shade trees, and inviting nooks everywhere; it seems almost possible to live an out-door life here, only the nights so far are chilly.

Mr. Dodswell, Mr. Hayes, Mr. W. Scott and F. McCullough, Mrs. Binning and others occupy cottages in sight of the steamboat landing, and Messrs. McLeod and Fraser are close to the train, which gives a very good service to accommodate passengers.

Miss Barry (Francoise) made a pleasant visit to Mr. and Mrs. R. Jack, of Chateauguay Basin.

EX-PRINCESS CHIMAY DEAD.

Death Puts an End to the Woman's Disgraceful Career.

A PERSON WHO HAS FURNISHED ONE OF THE GREATEST SCANDALS KNOWN.

PARIS, July 16. — The Buda Pesth correspondent of the Libre Parole announces the death of Clara L. Ward, the divorced wife of Prince Joseph of Chimay and Caraman. The cause of death is said to be puerperal fever.

This woman was born in Detroit, where her father (deceased), was a great ship owner. Her mother remarried, living in Toronto and Montreal, and finally taking up her residence in England. Clara Ward, whose escapades have shocked all Europe, was married to Prince Joseph about seven years ago in Paris. At that time her mother lived in Toronto, and Miss Ward's residence there also made some of the Canadian papers give here the title "A Canadian Princess." After marriage the Princess of Chimay spent her time pretty much in Paris, but visited at intervals her husband's beautiful estate in Belgium, where apparently she had all that a woman could desire.

Something over a year ago, it was announced that Princess Chimay had eloped with a Bohemian—a gypsy named Rigo. He was a musician whom she met in Paris and she became fascinated with the son of The Late Princess de Chimay.

Romany. Upon her elopement her husband sued for divorce, and this was granted, along with the custody of the children. The Prince retired to his estate, and the ex-Princess began to seek fresh notoriety.

She appeared on the stage in scant attire in the theatres in several of the European capitals; gave out sensational interviews to low-class papers, containing charges against the Prince; smoked cigarettes as she rode her bicycle in bloomer costume through the boulevards of Paris, and otherwise sought to make her name and shame as conspicuous as possible. In Berlin she was ordered to leave one stage; in Paris, on one occasion, a crowd got up a riot in the theatre where she appeared, as a protest.

Rigo left a wife to follow about the ex-Princess. She went with him to Hungary and they spent some time among the gypsy's people. Last winter the couple resided in Italian towns appearing in various theatres. The dead ex-Princess is less than thirty years of age, and was of divine form and also had most beautiful features. She was always of a wayward disposition, restive under restraint, self-willed and revengeful. Her case furnishes a strange chapter in the record of unhappy marriages contracted between titled foreigners and American heiresses. It must not be forgotten that Clara Ward was very rich in her own right when married, but her husband was equally well endowed. She fell in love with him in Paris and boasted that she would marry him. In this respect, therefore, it was not a case of the husband marrying for a fortune, but rather an impulsive woman carrying out her impulses by marrying, deserting and disgracing her husband.

TRADE RETURNS.

Figures That Show Big Increase in Business for Last Year.

THE YUKON MONEY HAS NOT BEEN INCLUDED IN THE RETURNS.

(Special to the Star.)

OTTAWA, July 16.—The increase in the trade of Canada for the fiscal year, which ended on June 30, is unprecedented in the history of the country. Last year's trade exceeded that of any other previous year, but the figures for 1898 are still more satisfactory, showing as they do an increase of over $44,000,000 in the aggregate trade as compared with 1897. The increased revenue from the duty collected is over $2,000,000. The official statement, as prepared by the Customs Department, only shows an increase of $1,938,263, but this does not take into account the $150,000 which has already been received by the Department from the Yukon, nor the $75,000 which is on the way to Ottawa. None of the duties collected in the Yukon are accounted for, and the amount from this source will be about $250,000. The increase on the year's imports over that of 1897 is $19,356,000, while the exports exceeded that of 1897 by $24,723,000. The following are the official figures for 1897 and 1898:

Aggregate trade—1897, $245,297,144; 1898, $289,336,996. Increase, $44,059,852.

Imports—1897, $111,284,021; 1898, $130,620,198.

Duty collected—1897, $19,891,997; 1898, $21,820,260.

Exports.	1897.	1898.
Canadian produce	$119,685,410	$139,942,279
Foreign	10,925,163	11,691,911
Coin and bullion	3,892,550	4,692,611
Total	$134,003,123	$158,726,801

The increase in the exports over 1897 is, therefore, $24,723,678, and the increase in the imports for the same period is $19,336,174. The large increase in the duty of $1,982,263 is all the more satisfactory when the reduced tariff caused by the operation of the preferential tariff is taken into consideration. As already said when the Yukon figures are included, the increase in duty will be over $2,000,000. The figures for the month of June compared with the same month in the previous year are as follows:

Exports—1897, $17,318,852; 1898, $15,581,853.

Although there is a big drop in the exports for the month, the increase in the imports has more than made up for this, so that the aggregate trade of the month is over that of June, 1897.

STATE OF TRADE.

Mid-Summer Quiet Conditions Exist Just Now.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Bradstreet's review of trade says: Pending the initiation of new autumn business, preparations for which are actively under way in all markets, there exists a quiet midsummer condition, accompanied, however, in most cases by price steadiness and confidence in a promising outlook for autumn trade. Retrospection and review continue to furnish many satisfactory illustrations of the favorable conditions experienced during the first half of the present year, some of which seem bound to be duplicated during the second half.

Canadian trade is of a seasonable volume. Toronto reports a better demand for dry goods, and that the recent frosts did little damage, except to vegetables. Cool weather has interfered slightly with the distribution of seasonable goods at Montreal. Midsummer dulness is reported at Halifax, but the apple and hay crop prospects are very good. St. John, N. B., reports lumber shipments heavy, while Victoria and Vancouver report a good business doing. Business failures in the Dominion number 28, against 16 last week, and 38 in this week a year ago.

Dun's review says: The new loan has proved a stupendous success, over $1,300,000,000 having been subscribed, and it is now the question of chief interest whether any banks will get enough, after personal subscriptions have been accepted, to support further circulation. Industries and business are at the naturally lowest point for the year, and therefore the records are the more impressive. Failures for the week have been 215 in the United States, against 263 last year; and in Canada 31, against 27 last year.

Concerning Canadian trade, Dun's review says: Reports for this week have scarcely any other feature excepting usually good crop prospects and midsummer dulness in trade. At St. John collections are not very good, and there is much repairing, with prospects for good autumn trade. At Halifax collections are dragging. Shoe manufacture is not busy at Quebec, but collections are fairly good. The hay crop at Montreal is excellent, and wholesale business in goods and groceries is large for the season. While remittances come in well, and funds are easy. Wholesale trade is fairly active at Toronto. Manufacturers are busy, labor is well employed, and the yield of spring grain will be unusually large. Hamilton reports harvesting favored by the weather, and the general tone of business is good. Owing to exhibition week at Winnipeg, wholesalers report increased volume of retail trade and money moving rather freely. In wholesale lines, trade at Victoria is only fair, though some improvement is noticed in retail dry goods.

WHAT IT COST TO TAKE SANTIAGO.

The United States have appropriated on account of the war $222,000,000, and the actual expenditures thus far aggregate $123,000,000. Most of this has been spent in operations resulting in the surrender of Santiago. Other noteworthy expenditures are coal and ammunition used by Dewey, by the blockading squadron and in Sampson's ineffective bombardment of San Juan.

In detail the war has cost, as nearly as can be stated in round figures, gathered from official sources in Washington, as follows:

A large deputation of taxpayers from St. Ann's and St. Gabriel's wards, waited upon Aldermen Turner and Jacques on Thursday, to find out when the Cote des Neiges line was to be finished. Both Aldermen said they did not know but would do their best to push the matter before the Road Committee and the Council at the earliest opportunity. On Friday evening, Aldermen Gallery and Kinsella were waited upon and similar promises were made.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Matters Connected With Labor Day Discussed.

A meeting of Local Assembly, 525, Knights of Labor, was held in their hall, 662 1-2 Craig street, last evening, Master Workman P. J. Quinn presiding, the semi-annual election of officers was held, and resulted in the following being elected: P. J. Quinn, M.W., re-elected; B. Dalton, W. F.; Henry Holmes, R.S.; S. McCarthy, F. S.; P. Sullivan, treasurer; M. Brodevict, statistician; J. Dowton, almoner; delegates to D. A., 18, P. Murphy, H. Clouston, J. Rodden; delegates to Central Trades and Labor Council, S. Holmes, J. Dowton and P. Sullivan.

A communication was read from Secretary George Dower, of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress requesting the Assembly to send a delegate to the next session of that body which meets in Winnipeg, on Tuesday the 13th of September. No action was taken on the communication until next meeting when it is expected that every member will attend. A special committee was appointed to wait on the municipal road committee, and have the attention of that body drawn to the disgraceful condition of Albert street.

The Assembly then elected Mr. S. Holmes as marshal for the Labor Day procession, and the secretary was instructed to notify the Central Trades and Labor Council that the Assembly would turn out in a body with a band and flag and also complete in the many events on the exhibition grounds in the afternoon.

A largely attended meeting of the Coopers' Union was held last evening and that body decided to take part in the Labor Day procession, and games in the afternoon on the Exhibition Grounds, under the auspices of the Central Trades and Labor Council, a committee was appointed to wait on the Superintendent of the Street Railway and arrange for an allegorical car, for their use in the parae. A resolution was adopted unanimously, requesting the City Council that all work ordered in future by that body be done by day work, and by bona fide citizens.

Mr. L. Belanger, of 549 Laval avenue, while changing cars at the corner of Ontario and St. Andre streets, got in front of one of them as it started to move so that he was thrown to the ground, but as the car was moving but slowly he was very little hurt. He was taken to the Notre Dame Hospital where the slight scalp wound he suffered was dressed and he was enabled to return home shortly.

The bride's niece, Miss Florence Clarke, made a charming little maid of honor, carrying a basket of pink roses. Mr. Bert Stanley acting as best man.

Sergt.-Major Currie, of the 5th Royal Scots, is about to resign his appointment after holding it for the past four years. Sergt.-Major Currie has accomplished a great deal for the Scots during this interval, and it is gratifying to learn that, although he is resigning his position, he does not contemplate leaving the corps, but intends to return to the ranks again. His reasons for relinquishing his appointment are partly that his business duties require the greater portion of his time, and, besides, he thinks a four years' tenure of the office enough for any man. It is learned that Col. Sergt. Gardiner, of "A" Company, will succeed him. Among other resignations in the corps is that of Quartermaster Sergeant Kennedy, another popular non-commissioned officer.

A PECULIAR CHARGE

In Connection with the Montreal Gaol Investigation.

Sheriff Thibaudeau stated this morning that the investigation at the gaol was being carried on by Dr. Aylen, under the instructions from the Attorney-General. The three changes to be investigated are that tobacco was smuggled into the gaol; that a certain number of supposed worn-out blankets were taken away by some of the guards; and finally that the commitments of half a dozen prisoners were changed by some of the prisoners employed to do clerical work in the office, and their terms shortened thereby. Similar changes in a dozen other commitments were discovered in time, and corrected. The party guilty of the latter charge has since left the gaol.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

W. H. Bowden Said to Have Forged Names to Cheques.

W. H. Bowden, a man of about fifty years of age, and who claimed to be an agent for a printing agency of Newfoundland, was arrested here at midnight last night by Detective Suthergill on a charge of forgery. Two days ago he presented a cheque for $16 to Mr. Clark, 16 St. Antoine street, in payment for two dollars' worth of goods. The cheque bore the name of Mr. Walter Paul, St. Catherine street. As Mr. Clark had no change, a counter cheque was given him by Mr. Clark for $14. When the paper was presented to Mr. Paul it was found to be a forgery. Another cheque for $50 was presented to Mr. S. E. Crawford, the proprietor of the Vancouver Hotel, for a long board account due, but was refused. He said that he placed the money with the courts to secure a patent, and it had been returned to him in bonds instead of cash. As it was after bank hours he was unable to get it cashed.

A TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

WASHINGTON, July 16. — Colonel Hecker, who is in charge of the transportation service of the War Department, is now busy trying to arrange for the conveyance home to Spain of the Spanish soldiers in Santiago. There is a disposition to appeal directly to the great steamship transportation lines to make bids to carry these people. The adoption of such a course would relieve the Government of a great responsibility. Assuming that the companies charged the usual passenger rates for soldiers, the transfer could be effected at a cost not to exceed $500,000, a sum which is probably less than would be the cost of the service if undertaken directly by the American Government. But a disagreeable complication has arisen from the fact that reports indicate that yellow fever exists among the Spanish troops. If these reports are well founded, it may be difficult to induce the transportation companies to undertake the task of conveying sick soldiers and those who had been exposed to infection. There is also doubt whether the Spanish authorities would allow the men to land on Spanish soil.

An Italian laborer named Frank Alviero was instantly killed near Bronte station on the Canadian Pacific Railway by an express train on Friday. In avoiding one train he stepped in front of another.

DR. SPROULE ON CATARRH

The Gateway of Consumption.

DR. SPROULE, B. A.

Twenty years ago catarrh was comparatively unknown. Now, no age, sex or condition is exempt from it, and no climate or locality is a cure for it. Catarrh is to be more dreaded than all the yellow fever, cholera, smallpox, diphtheria, and all other epidemic diseases—as it is more fatal. It is in the large majority of cases the forerunner of consumption, and vital statistics show that deaths from consumption in this country have increased more than 200 per cent. In the last five years, nearly all these cases having been traced back to catarrh as their starting point, and many physicians now contend that catarrh is only incipient consumption. We make the treatment of catarrh a specialty. We do cure catarrh. Catarrh has never been cured by nasal-douches, washes or snuffs. Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membrane and is curable only through the blood and by medicines peculiarly adapted to each particular case. Medicine that will cure one will not cure another.

It has been determined by microscopists that catarrh has as distinct a germ as any of the noted epidemical diseases, and again and again has it been shown that a patient had been treated for some other disease when the catarrhal germ has been present.

A remedy for catarrh must be used constitutionally, and it must possess a direct affinity for the mucous membrane, and of being absorbed by the purulent mucous wherever located. It must be homogeneous and each individual case requires treatment adapted to its conditions. Our treatment is based upon these plain theories and has proved to be infallible. It not only relieves but it cures catarrh at any stage speedily and surely.

Catarrh of the Head and Throat.

The most prevalent form of catarrh, and results from neglected colds.

Do you spit up slime?
Are your eyes watery?
Does your nose feel full?
Does your nose discharge?
Do you sneeze a good deal?
Do crusts form in the nose?
Do you have pain across the eyes?
Does your breath smell offensive?
Is your hearing beginning to fail?
Are you losing your sense of smell?
Do you hawk up phlegm in morning?
Are there buzzing noises in you ears?
Do you have pains across the front of head?
Do you feel dropping in back part of throat?

If you have some of the above symptoms your disease is catarrh of the head and throat.

Diseases of Bronchial Tubes.

When catarrh of the head and throat is left unchecked it extends down the windpipe into the bronchial tubes, and in time attacks the lungs and develops into catarrhal consumption.

Do you take cold easily?
Is your breathing too quick?
Do you raise frothy material?
Is your voice hoarse and husky?
Have you a dry hacking cough?
Do you feel worn out on rising?
Do you feel all stuffed up inside?
Are you gradually losing strength?
Have you a disgust for fatty food?
Have you a sense of weight on chest?
Have you a scratchy feeling in throat?
Do you cough worse night and morning?
Do you get short of breath when walking?

If you have any of these symptoms you have catarrh of the bronchial tubes.

If you have catarrh, answer the above questions, cut them out of the paper and send them to me with any other information you may think would help me in forming a diagnosis, and I will answer your letter carefully, explaining your case thoroughly, and tell you what it is necessary to do in order to get well.

CONTRACTOR ACCUSED

Of Erecting a Building Not Up to Legal Requirements.

The city has been committed to another legal fight, and yesterday Mr. Louis Riopel, contractor, 58 St. Lambert street, appeared before Mr. Desrosiers, the Deputy Recorder to answer to the charge of erecting a building contrary to the by-law. The place which is on City Hall avenue, near the corner of St. Lambert has been condemned as unsafe by Mr. Pierre Lacroix, the building inspector. Unsound foundations, weak walls and improper joists are the points complained of. Two notices were served on him, according to Mr. Lacroix, during the erection of the building to use other material. This was not complied with and hence the action. Mr. Riopel on his part claims that the building is in accordance with good arenitectural principles and resists the action.

ANAEMIA, OR BLOODLESSNESS.

Its Victims are Pale in Color. Subject to Dizziness, Palpitation of the Heart and Other Distressing Symptoms.

From the Echo, Plattsville, Ont.

Anaemia, which literally means bloodlessness, is prevalent to an alarming extent among young girls and young women of the present day, and is a fruitful source of "decline" and consumption. The symptoms of this trouble are many, but among the most noticeable are the pallor of the face, lips and gums, shortness of breath on slight exertion, dizziness, severe headaches, weakness of the vital organs, palpitation of the heart, and dropsical swelling of the limbs. The more of these symptoms shown, the greater the necessity for prompt treatment. Among those who have suffered from anaemia and found a cure is Miss Emily Webb, a young lady residing near Wolverton, Ont. Miss Webb says: — My illness first came on when I was about sixteen years of age. My complexion was a pale waxy color; I was troubled with general weakness, dizziness and palpitation of the heart. I was placed under medical treatment, but the medicine prescribed by the doctor did not appear to do me the slightest good. As time went by I was slowly but surely growing worse. I was unable to do any work about the house, and my limbs would tremble to such an extent at the slightest exertion that I could scarcely stand upon my feet. Then my stomach became so weak that I vomited almost everything I ate; I grew despondent and feared that I would not recover. While in this condition a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I followed the advice. After I had used two boxes I noticed an improvement and my heart was gladdened with the hope of renewed health. At the end of six boxes my appetite had fully returned, and with it strength, color to my cheeks, and brightness to the eyes. I still continued taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills until I had taken in all twelve boxes, and I can truthfully assert that I am healthier and stronger than I ever was before. I owe this to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I would urge all girls who suffer as I did to give them a fair trial.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done more to make strong, healthy, rosy-cheeked, bright-eyed girls than any other medicine ever discovered, and mothers should insist upon their daughters taking an occasional course of this medicine. Sold only in boxes, the wrapper around which bears the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Offered in any other form the pills are substitutes intended to deceive.

INTRODUCTION.

In presenting a part of my "World's Record" it is proper that I should bring before the public incontestable proofs of my genuineness and bona fides, and it is with this object in view that I append the following critiques, in justice to myself as well as to those who have benefited by my scientific method of electric treatment. I ask the public to consider the following testimonials of my success. Here I may state that I never give as references my private or public patients who have been treated by me. Expenses and space will not permit me to publish my testimonials of 28 years' active practice from the press critics, etc. The originals may be at any time investigated, and are at the disposal of the Government in authority for satisfactory and legal investigation. READERS WOULD REQUIRE SIX MONTHS' HOLIDAY TO PERUSE THEM!

THE MODUS OPERANDI.

Professor RICHARD charges himself with his Electricity before applying it to the patient; he feels the force of the current that passes from him to the patient; he operates and conducts the current from his finger tips! There is absolutely no danger of shocks to the most serious or debilitated person. The current is so completely under his control that a child may be treated without pain or fright.

From J. A. P., Police Magistrate Metropolitan Police Court, Melbourne.—My Dear Professor, I have been asked urgently to bring the case of the bearer, Miss Neria Ross, under your notice. PROFESSOR RICHARD.

THE FAMED EMINENT ELECTRICIAN SPECIALIST

Professor RICHARD, according to the Press of other countries in which he has travelled, has accomplished most remarkable cures, not merely of any one specific disease, but of many ills to which flesh is heir. Professor RICHARD has made Electricity, as applied to cure, his life study, and though he has been tested in numerous ways, the Evidence of Thousands of Cures has testified all over the world to the value of the curative properties that his system possesses. The Professor has received the highest patronage in the Colonies, having treated the lame, the blind, and the halt in the presence of H. E. the Governor and the Countess of Hopetoun, the Premier and the Attorney-General, Sir Graham Berry, Sir William and Lady Clarke, Sir F. T. and Lady Sargood, the Mayor and Mayoress of Richmond, the Mayors of Melbourne and Collingwood, the Solicitor-General, the Postmaster-General, the Minister of Public Works, and many of the duly qualified medical practitioners and created a great sensation in Melbourne.

HEALING EXTRAORDINARY.

PROFESSOR RICHARD AT THE TOWN HALL.

MEDICAL SCIENTIFIC ELECTRICITY.

The electric demonstration and healing exhibition given at the Town Hall last night was a brilliant success.

The object of the demonstration was to augment the funds of the Creche Institution. Patronage was readily accorded by his Excellency the Governor and Lady Hopetoun, the Ministry, and members of both Houses of Parliament.

The stage was elegantly furnished in drawing room style by Messrs. Wallach Bros., and the scene was a picturesque one. The hall was quickly filled, and on the stroke of 8 the Chairman (Mr. E. L. Zox, M.L.A.) stepped on the stage. He was followed by Messrs. Dr. W. Maloney, Taverner, Dr. L. L. Smith and Dyer, M's L. A.; Cr. Brown, and Cr. Kreitmeyer.

The chairman, in introducing, Professor Richard, said that not being a professional man, he was not there for the purpose of expressing any opinions as to the efficacy of experiments in electricity, but the Medical Committee would. The institution in aid of which the entertainment was to be held must strongly recommend itself to favorable consideration. He would lose no time in introducing the Professor to the audience.

Professor Richard, who was received with great applause, said:—In the first place, I wish to extend my thanks to the chairman and the gentlemen of the committee present upon this platform for the kind efforts they have made towards the conduct of this demonstration. I also desire to extend my thanks to the large audience here present with the object of helping on a good cause, mainly the assistance of such a deserving institution as the Creche.

Before I begin, I desire to tell you that I have not come here to establish a practice; I have simply attended here this evening for the purpose of aiding this institution.

My time is too limited to permit me speaking at any great length. I will be happy to lend my assistance to any physician in treatment of electricity. For 23 years I have practised the system which you shall witness, and the object of which is to relieve those who are in pain and suffering. (Applause.)

Any medical man may come on this platform, or at any time to my consulting room, and see how I treat my patients. I invite all medical men here present to come and take a seat on this platform with our well known and highly respected friends, doctors of the committee. (Applause.)

I shall retire from practice soon. I have worked for 23 years and have injured my health for the benefit of mankind. I will be happy to show any medical gentleman the way in which I treat my patients. All I ask in return is a friendly shake of the hand and no more. (Applause.)

I have worked so hard that a little rest will do me no harm. (Laughter.) I came as a stranger, but I will not leave as one. (Applause.) There are many people who will always welcome Professor Richard whenever he comes among you again. (Hear, hear and cheers.) I will now enter upon the programme you have before you. (Applause.)

In response to the Professor's invitation, Dr. Wolnarski stepped on the stage and sat between Dr. L. L. Smith and Dr. Maloney and others of the medical faculties of the committee.

An amusing episode was enacted during the course of the evening. The Professor is a patriot of French descent, and one of his cures was that of a sturdy old German, one of the real lager and sausage variety. "Well," said the Professor, "your country nearly killed mine, but you see I bear no malice." He replied: "You haf cure all der Frenchmen wot got hurt in dat war, and now cure der Yarmans." The manner of delivery rather than the words put the audience in a roar, which increased as the Professor and his Teutonic friend embraced. A long list of cases was then successfully treated, particulars of which are given in another column, after which

The chairman said the duty now devolved upon him of asking the audience to accord a hearty vote of thanks to Professor Richard for the way in which he was entertaining them that evening. The medical men present agreed with with him that what he had done was marvellous. The patients were recommended by men whose reputation was unquestionable. The joint honorary secretaries, Messrs. G. A. Lawson and A. Clarence Johnstone, were also deserving of great praise for the manner in which they had worked.

Dr. Maloney, in seconding the motion, said he could say emphatically that the mode of passing electricity through an instrument was not as good as passing it through the human body, because in the latter case the physician could know exactly the strength of the current that was good for his patient and could never make the mistake of giving too much. (Applause.)

The chairman said that the total expenditure on the evening's entertainment was £165 17s, and the receipts £96 16s, leaving a loss of £69. The Professor would pay the whole of the loss, and would also give £100 to the Creche Institution besides. (Loud applause.)

The vote of thanks was carried by acclamation.

On returning to the stage Professor Richard received an ovation. He thanked the audience, the chairman, the committee, and the secretaries for what they had done.

The secretaries, Mr. G. A. Lawson and Mr. A. Clarence Johnstone, also acknowledged the vote.

The entertainment was then proceeded with and Professor Richard went through amusing and remarkable experiments. He extracted electricity from sword points, played with electric sparks on a tea tray, and concluded by passing "a wonderful electric power flame" through his body.

The certificates handed in relative to cases treated have been shown to our reporter. He also saw Professor Richard's cheque for £100 forwarded to the patroness, Lady Hopetoun, today, by the joint honorary secretaries.

Bathurst Time, N.S.W., 18th June, 1894.

TO THE EDITOR.—"A gentleman well known and highly respected in official circles in Sydney writes as follows in regard to Professor Richard, who appears to-night at the School of Arts Hall, Professor Richard is about to visit Bathurst, and I know you will not mind my saying what I know of him. I have been present at some of his lectures and have been astounded at his success in bad cases. I was at first sceptical, but after what I saw had to confess that the man was thoroughly genuine. You will find the Professor an honorable man in business matters and a man with a kind heart too, and as well able to fight opponents as you are to manage the parsons."

PROFESSOR RICHARD.

To the Editor, Newcastle Herald.

SIR.—Will you allow me space in your columns for the following remarks:—Professor Richard is one of the most advanced medical electricians of the present day. He has practised for many years in Australia and New Zealand; and were you to examine the documents he has in his possession, I think you would arrive at the same conclusion. Four or five months ago I consulted the best specialists in Auckland, Christchurch, Sydney and Melbourne. One and all came to this conclusion — that no mortal skill could remove the obstruction to my sight, and the only thing they attempted to do was to order very strong spectacles. I determined, however, as a last resort, to seek the Professor's advice. I have travelled thousands of miles in order that I might place myself under his treatment, and I am to-day in a position to say publicly that the mark is daily disappearing, and I expect in two or three weeks to have my sight restored. Is this not a great triumph for electricity! If any doubt the veracity of these statements, I am to be found at Mrs. J—s, W—and K—streets where they can have ocular demonstration. I am, &c.,
J. R., Financial Agent, Auckland, N. Z.
Newcastle, April 29, 1894.

Wellington Times, New Zealand, 21st July, 1895.

PROFESSOR RICHARD IN WELLINGTON.

Probably the greatest triumph that Professor Richard has achieved in New Zealand up to the time of publication has been during his season in Wellington. From the first night the success was assured. The people were not only taken by his unquestionable ability as a healer, but by the philanthropic liberality with which he gave his time and services to those from whom he could expect no reward. Cases were sent to him from the Benevolent Institution which he treated both publicly and privately, and the grateful acknowledgment from the patients and the master of the institution set the seal of genuineness on his desire to benefit suffering mortals and his undisputed ability to carry that desire out. His lecture at the Opera House on Sunday 17th July, which, in addition to the press notices has been reported in full in these columns, was attended by the largest and most sympathetic audience which the Opera House has ever held, and the cases which were treated on that occasion so firmly established the Professor's reputation that private patients flocked to his consulting rooms. The Professor was urged to revisit Wellington, as there were many desirous of placing themselves under his scientific electric treatment.

Wellington Weekly Herald, July 13, 1895.

People may talk about faith-healing cures, but Professor Richard has knocked all these simple means into a "cocked hat" through his skilful use of electricity. It was only in one of our last issues that we referred to the rapid strides which medical electricity was making in France as a curative agent, but not until we witnessed the wonderful cures that the Professor made in public before everybody did we really believe in that system. It is quite evident that the secret of the Professor's success lies in knowing how to use electricity. Fancy a mob of blind, deaf, limp, and half old buffers restored to their former functions in less than ten minutes. If the Professor lived in the "dark ages," he would be put down as a wizard, and either put on the frying-pan or sent down the river on a raft, but thanks to science and education Professor Richard is allowed to live.

CIGARETTES.

Good-bye, Richard,
Not Premier Richard is?

No; the Professor of that name who has been of so much benefit to paralytics and others here.

New Zealand Times, 7th August, 1893.

"Professor Richard, who has been practising in Wellington for the last four weeks, leaves for Masterton this morning. His season has been a most successful one, not only in his public demonstrations, but in his private practice, which has been phenomenally large during the time he has been here, notwithstanding the Professor has treated so many poor people gratuitously.

TESTIMONIALS TO PROFESSOR RICHARD.

(Extract from the [Calcutta,] Indian Mirror, December 14th, 1895.

ELECTRICAL CURES—AN M. D.'S TESTIMONY.

(To the Editor of the Indian Mirror.)

SIR.—The Calcutta public know very well that since October, 1894, I have been suffering from a serious illness, and had to relinquish my practice altogether. I had been suffering from hœmpeysis (blood-spitting), fever, cough, hoarseness, and other complications. My case was given up as a hopeless one by my physicians, and to this time the majority of the Calcutta public think that I am not now in the land of the living, having been gathered to my fathers. My case was indeed a very bad and serious one. In six consecutive days I brought up more than six seers of blood, and for four months continually I expectorated bloody sputa. I must state here frankly that I derived at times immense benefit from the able treatment of Kaviral Binjoyratina Sen. But, unfortunately, the improvement each time was of a short duration, as every fortnight or so I would bring up a large quantity of blood, and the fever would increase to 106 degs. F.

Be that as it may I placed myself under Professor Richard's special treatment on the 15th October last. I had to be carried in a chair to my "palakeen" and I fainted when a mild electrical current was applied. From the third day of his special treatment I began to improve; the blood-spitting ceased entirely. I am now almost well. I can walk and drive about. I did not purpose publish an account of my case, simply because I was so long ailing, to see if the benefit would last long.

My wife also had been suffering from bronchitic asthma since 1886. Since the last ten years she was generally confined to bed—more especially in the winter. Since under this treatment, she has been quite free from her complaints, and can now walk about freely without the least difficulty of breathing.

I have seen many other had cases benefited. I shall, however, mention only two. A European lady, about 65 years of age was stone-blind when she first came under this treatment. She can now see quite well by the help of one eye; the other eye, however, is still as bad as ever. The second case is that of Mr. Abbersteen, formerly a Railway Sergeant Police, at Hawrah, and now of Kotchanpore, Jessore. He was suffering from paralysis and softening of the brain, and his case was pronounced incurable by eminent European physicians. He is now "thoroughly cured." Space will not permit me to mention scores of other cases of cures.

The object of my writing to you this letter is to inform the suffering public of Bengal that electrical healing is not a myth, but is a scientific method of cure. Those who are hopeless of a cure, and have not benefited by other methods of treatment, ought to try his system without delay, as Professor Richard's stay here will be till the 1st February, 1896.

As a medical man myself, I think it my duty to make known cases of cures by a method of treatment which I find practically quite sufficient of itself without the help of any drug. I must state here that since under this special treatment I have not taken any medicine whatsoever. I must also state here that I am under no obligation to the Professor for my treatment. I have paid his proper fees, cash in advance, but I am under deep obligation to him for making me fit to pursue my avocations after an interruption of 14 months. Apologising for the length of this letter—I remain, yours, etc.

CORRESPONDENCE.
(To the Editor.)

SIR,—The other day you referred to the new mode of treatment by electricity. Here is a letter which has been received from the Rajah of Mymensingh, and which shows how efficacious the treatment is:—

MY DEAR PROFESSOR RICHARD.

SIR,—Thanks for your kind inquiry: I am keeping well. I have to apologize for not writing before, and telling you how I kept my health after the discontinuance of the electrical treatment under you. I am glad to say I have had no more pains or stiffness of the joints, though the treatment has been discontinued over six weeks. Now, you know my case was not a simple one. I had been suffering from gout and rheumatism for four or five years, and had swallowed enough of drugs to convert my stomach into a medicine chest, but the benefit derived from the use of drugs had been comparatively poor when contrasted with the effect of your healing touch.

I was at Deoghur when I read your announcements of the wonderful cures you professed to effect by your new method of introducing electricity into the human system.

I confess I was not without my doubts, but I seldom run shy of a new idea, and can lift myself out of the old groove if it be necessary.

I thought your treatment was something reliable at the bottom of it, and I made up my mind to give you a fair trial. Of course, you charged me a very large fee, but I do not consider it now as money thrown away. I shall probably be leaving town shortly, and shall carry away with me a very pleasant recollection of your invariable courtesy and friendliness to your patients, and I shall not forget in a hurry the two instances of your wonderful skill and power in driving out the fever and cramp from me by grasping my hands tightly and giving me a severe shock, while saying: "That cramp will not be there any more," and "that fever won't come again."

Wishing you every success in your noble enterprise.

I am very sincerely yours,
(Sd.) S. K. ACHARYA,
Rajah Bahadur of Mymensingh, A. B.

Extract from the Newcastle (N.S.W.) Herald 24th June, 1896:—

Professor RICHARD and Dr. MALONEY.

The sick, the lame, the blind, the deaf, and the halt, and the friends of all invalids in the Newcastle and Maitland districts will be interested to learn that Professor Richard and Dr. Maloney (M.P., of Victoria), physician and surgeon, has decided to give a series of demonstrations of his method to electrical treatment of disease in the Town Hall. This well-known specialist has just returned from a tour through India which occupied six months, and which placed his name prominently before the public throughout those portions of her Majesty's dominions. Professor Richard's remarkable electrical skill was displayed so conspicuously in Newcastle, Melbourne and Sydney about two and a half years ago, and attracted so much attention during that gentleman's stay in Newcastle. Professor Richard and Dr. Maloney appear in a new, or rather perfected branch of healing science. Professor Richard has for years devoted himself to the great science of medical electricity, as applied through the body. With the knowledge so acquired under the tuition of Professor Richard, medical electrician, Dr. Maloney, the medical gentleman, has decided to fearlessly stake his reputation on the result of his treatment. In so doing he is convinced that his labors will be of incalculable benefit to thousands of wretched beings who have been pronounced incurable. The Bombay Gazette of 17th March last, in referring to one of the demonstrations, says: "On Saturday night, to the surprise of six native and four European doctors Professor Richard and Dr. Maloney, in the space of 30 minutes, effected a radical improvement in four cases. The first a blind and paralysed man walked, a thing he had not done for several years. The next a case of locomotor ataxia of long standing—also walked as briskly as he did before he became a victim to his complaint. Following these two, a tiny child of seven years was brought on to the platform. For three years poor little Sherifa had been a confirmed cripple, yet, after being manipulated by Professor Richard she was able to follow the Professor round the platform. Needless to say Professor Richard was enthusiastically cheered by his great audience, and these cheers were repeated anew when he made another hopeless cripple walk around the stage."

PROFESSOR RICHARD AND DR. MALONEY, OF MELBOURNE.

AN APPROACHING SENSATION.

The Madras (India) Standard, May 5, 1896, says: Professor Richard and Dr. William Maloney, member of the Legislative Assembly for West Melbourne, has arrived in Madras, and that on Thursday, will give public demonstrations, in the Victoria Hall, of his extraordinary treatment of every ailment that human flesh is heir to, by the aid of electricity. The interviewing member of our staff, exercised by a natural amount of curiosity, was tempted to look up Professor Richard and Dr. Maloney at the Grand Hotel yesterday. He found his subjects up to their eyes in work unpacking great trunks of mysterious looking electric paraphernalia, and in stating his business urged the desirability of an adjournment on the spot. Neither gentleman manifesting the slightest hesitation, iced drinks and smokes were called up, and conversation proceeded as follows:

"Now then, Doctor, something of your early life, please, before we investigate the profounder details of electricity. Are you an out-and-out colonial?"

"No, not precisely that. Born in Melbourne in the fifties—'54 to be correct—I matriculated at the University of Melbourne, and then went on to London to study Medicine. Here during a long course, I became who was considered the greatest Medical Electrician Europe has ever known. I made electricity as applied to medicine a speciality of my studies, and on qualifying with honors as a Physician and Surgeon I returned to the colonies, where an extensive practice in ordinary Medicine and Surgery brought me unvarying success until 1893, when I met my present partner, Professor Richard. My meeting with him changed the whole programme of my medical career, for I turned to the deeper study of electricity and you see me here to-day

ON SIX MONTHS' LEAVE FROM MY PARLIAMENTARY CONSTITUENCY.

'I understand then,' our representative resumed, 'that it was your partner who encouraged you to continue the study of electricity—is that so?'

'Yes, certainly. You see it came about in this way. In January of 1893 Professor Richard announced, under perhaps that he would give an electrical entertainment in aid of the Collingwood Creche Institute. These were some of the items of the programme:—Searching in and out, the Professor treating the halt, the lame, the deaf, and defective sight on the stage, charging of a great volume of electricity through the entertainer's body, besides about a dozen instances of electricity as supplied to mirth-provoking pastime. The demonstrations took place, in the presence of H. E. the Governor and the Countess of Hopetoun, the Premier and Attorney-General, Sir Graham Berry, Sir William and Lady Clarke, Sir F. T. and Lady Sargood, the Mayor and Mayoress of Richmond, the Mayors of Melbourne and Collingwood, the Solicitor-General, the Postmaster-General, the Minister of Public Works, and a dozen other notable personages of the medical, legal and other professions, and created a great sensation in Melbourne—a sensation which had not yet subsided when we left the colonies. The exhibition I am speaking of in particular was and so that public expectation should be justified to the fullest degree a strong and influential committee was appointed to see fair play right through the demonstrations on the stage. It was chiefly this great willingness on his part to do things perfectly above board that enamoured me of Professor Richard and strengthened my resolution to learn from the demonstrator.

THE HIGHEST ARISTOCRATIC PATRONAGE IN THE COLONIES,

THE GREAT SECRET

—a secret as dead to the outer world almost as the component parts of electricity itself—of applying electricity to human ailments. With that knowledge I realised there was a world-wide good to be done so divorcing myself from the strait-laced professional etiquette of the Medical Faculty I persuaded Professor Richard to impart his valuable secret to me. Cases that were pronounced absolutely incurable by the medical profession were under stipulated recommendation brought up to him and he proceeded in many instances cases of partial blindness, paralysis, deafness, asthma, consumption and other confirmed invalids which had taken the ordinary profession years of labor without success. When I saw this with my naked eyes I could no longer hesitate to spend all I possessed to master the science, and then there was the opinion of the large body of the Faculty who witnessed these demonstrations with me.

THE COLONIAL PAPERS TEEMED WITH REPORTS

in praise of Professor Richard's wonderful abilities, and I am pretty sure that personally I very far from regret the circumstance that I did make up my mind and did study this marvellous unique electrical treatment.

In support of details Dr. Maloney at this stage handed his interviewer two ponderous albums containing press cuttings. These most unmistakably stamped the electric undertaking as a stupendous business for the East.

VAUDREUIL—DORION.

The Euchre Club had the weekly meeting on Wednesday at the club-house, and the popularity of this move on the part of the ladies is increasing. There were about 65 present and the following took part in the game: Ladies, Mrs. Perodeau, Mrs. Rainville, Mrs. Bordley, Mrs. Lafontaine, Mrs. Robier, Mrs. Sadler, Misses Geoffrion (2), Macdonald (2), Tough (3), DeBeaugen, Clark, Davis, Dawson, Clerihue, Papineau, Rainville, Bordley, McNiece, Mathieu (2). The day for the annual regatta is fixed for July 23rd. This may account for the unusual activity shown round the club house during the evenings. The boys taking the necessary practice to get into condition for the different events. The war canoe has more than the necessary number of paddlers, and keen rivalry exists between the boys as to who will get a place in the canoe. The rumor that the canoe may be sent to compete in the regatta at Toronto in August is also an incentive to miss no evening practices.

Among the arrivals at the Ottawa Hotel, this week are: Geo. Brown, A. R. Paterson, C. L. Shorey, and wife, H. Martin, G. W. Lambly, Montreal; Alex. Calder, Toronto; Frank Richards, Richford; W. P. Hibbard, Stratford; E. W. Halpenny, N. C. Robbilard, John Loreson, Montreal; J. H. Armstrong, Sherbrooke; W. T. Lifliton, Jno., R. Cole, C.D. McColl, Arthur E. Ibbotson, C. M. Mills, J. F. L. Harwood Square has been put into good order at last, and the bicycle track is once more the favorite resort of the bicyclist. Quite a number of the ladies and gentlemen may be seen there during the afternoon and evenings. There are quite a number of nice long rides about here, the favorite ones being to Hudson and the Cascades. Messrs. H. English, B. Giles, C. Tough and P. Leduc rode to the latter place on Saturday last and returned from there to Dorion in the fast time of 22 minutes.

The little difference in the appointment of trustees to the church here caused a flutter on Saturday night last, and at a meeting held in the Town Hall, the summer residents were successful in having the name of Hon. C. A. Geoffrion substituted for one of the others.

Mr. A. H. Foster and Mr. Winfield Foster, of Boston, are the guests of their grandparents, Mr. Jas. O'Halloran, Q. C., and Mrs. O'Halloran. On Wednesday evening a reception in their honor was held at the O'Halloran residence and was a brilliant affair.

Mr. H. Normandeau has his yachts from Lachine now anchored in the snug little bay near his island. This addition to our fleet will, no doubt, cause further rivalry, as to the sailing qualities of the different boats.

The cold weather of the past week has put a stop to our regular outings, the addition of a fall overcoat to wear during July is rather too much for most of us.

WATER WORKS COAL.

The Superintendent of the Water Works Gives His Explanations of the Tangled Accounts.

APPROPRIATIONS NOT DIVERTED

Money Voted for Coal Used for That Purpose, but Some of Last Year's Supply Paid for This Year.

A VERY BITTER REPORT.

Mr. Laforest Accuses Aldermen of Injuring His Reputation—Want Further Appropriations.

A meeting of the Water Committee was held yesterday afternoon, Alderman Kinsella in the chair, when the following report was presented by the Superintendent:

Montreal, July 11, 1898.

To the President and Members of the Water Works Committee:

Gentlemen.—

For several days the most violent criticisms have been raised in the Financial Committee and also in the Municipal Council against the financial administration of my department; the word fraud has been used and they have frankly accused me of not having used the sums which were voted for that which they were intended. This violent campaign was raised on account of the repeated and pressing demands of creditors for the coal voted by the Financial Committee on my recommendation.

As a reply to these accusations, I have made record in my accounts of all the coal bought during the year 1888 and 1898, and of the appropriations which have been used for the purchase of the said coal.

This record shows that the expense of the coal per million gallons of water pumped by steam, is, for the eight years, 1888 to 1896 .... $ 7.62
Years 1897 and 1898 .... 7.81
This expense was raised in 1893 even to 10.77

Annexed with the present report you will find a detailed account showing that the real expense in coal for pumpage during the year 1897 was $34,183 and that up to the present date of this year has been 19,196

ONLY NORMAL CONSUMPTION.

These figures will demonstrate beyond all doubt that, contrary to the claims of those, who have attacked us, there has been nothing abnormal in the consumption of coal during last year, and the portion of the present year so far, and if there is anything strange in appearance it is the payment that we made of part of the coal used in 1897, with the appropriations of 1898. It is this fact that has brought against the the Water Works Committee and against myself the violent criticisms of the Financial Committee.

If I allowed these attacks to pass without defending myself, I would be the victim of my devotion to the public, and I believe myself perfectly in the right in re-establishing the facts in all their exactness.

You have seen, this year, gentlemen, with what difficulties and restrictions we have been accorded the necessary appropriations for the performance of our duties; and how we have only been allowed a part of the funds we asked for coal, replying that we had only to ask for a new appropriation when the first was exhausted. This we did, but they then replied that the treasurer had not the necessary funds, and, actually, so that the 250,000 inhabitants of the largest towns in Canada would not be deprived of water, it was necessary to have recourse again to expedients if the Finance Committee fails to provide the necessary funds for this object.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

This is the same situation as was presented last fear, the same lowness of the treasury which drove us to the expedient for which I have been reproached so violently.

That action I took at the suggestion of the then members of the Water Committee, and most of the members of the Council agreed that it was the only way out of one of the gravest situations.

The citizens of whom I have spoken are for the most part still aldermen, and they, as well as those who have ceased to belong to the Council bear witness that what I did was in the public interest, acknowledging that I, in the execution of the duties committed to my care, assumed necessary obligations, which they were unwilling to assume, because illegal.

I wish to add that if I did not do this at the solicitation of the aldermen I probably undertook in my proper initiative this measure because I consider that in the circumstances, there were only two alternatives; either to procure credits for coal in some way or another to avoid shutting down the water works and precipitating a public calamity, or to give in immediately my resignation with an explanation of my action, thus precipitating the risk of a popular uprising of the population of the city against their representatives.

You will see, gentlemen, that under the present state of the city finances, to maintain our important service regularly, it is necessary to obtain the indispensable appropriations, or we shall lay ourselves open again to the most violent attacks on the part of those who persist in regarding the acts from the point of view of ofrm without considering the motives.

I hope that in defending my course before the Finance Committee and the City Council you will be able to throw the necessary light upon the discussion of our position, and trust that the thorough explanation of this incident, will assist in procuring for us a more equitabe treatment on the part of the Council, which I hope will not persist in trying to injure my reputation.

In this hope I have the honor to be,
Your very humble and obedient servant,
L. J. O. LAFOREST,
Superintendent of Aqueduct.

Ald. Laporte concurred to a certain extent in the statement of the Superintendent, said he was satisfied that all the money voted had been spent, but he regretted that some of the old members of the committee were not present to throw some light on the report. The question was a difficult one, but he would offer a suggestion which was to the effect that, in addition to the $12,000 already asked for, they make a report for an additional sum of $3000 to carry them through the present year, and $15,000 to buy coal for use up to the end of June, 1899.

On motion of Ald. Gagnon the following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, according to the explanations of the Superintendent, it is shown that the money voted in 1897 and 1898 for the purchase of coal was spent for such;

"Whereas, by the same report it is shown that the sum of $7643 was paid for coal burnt in 1897 and taken out of the appropriations of 1898;

"Whereas for want of funds to repair distribution pipes a considerable waste of water is caused, requiring an additional quantity of coal for pumping since the beginning of the year;

"Whereas it is shown that from August 1st next there will be required $15,000 for coal to finish the year;

"It is resolved, that a further report be made asking for $3000 in addition to the report now before the Finance Committee, asking for $12,000 for coal to finish the year."

ASSESSMENT QUESTION AGAIN

Motion to Impose Special Taxes to Provide Necessary Coal for the Water Department.

The Finance Committee held another lengthy meeting yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Robb, the City Treasurer, presented the following report:

RECAPITULATION.

Memorandum of Experts' Accounts.

On 25th January last the following claims of proprietors' witnesses, re the 1894 expropriations, were referred to the City Attorney, Treasurer, Comptroller, and Secretary of the Expropriation Commissioners to report as to whether they were made in accordance with the tariff.

On March 1st we reported as follows:

"Account rendered by Mr. Lesage, $6522, should have been, according to tariff, $2270.

Account rendered by Mr. Perrault, $5332, should have been, according to tariff, $1700.

Account rendered by Mr. Beaudry, $2916, should have been, according to tariff, $1123.

Account rendered by Mr. Larose, $1076, should have been, according to tariff, $328.

But, as a rigid adherence to the tariff would have been too severe in some cases, and the city's witnesses, whose accounts had originally been made out on the same basis, were paid 50 per cent. of the amounts, a similar settlement was recommended for the proprietors' witnesses, provided they furnished their clients discharge to the city.

This would give the following amounts: Messrs. Lesage $3260, Perrault $2670, Beaudry $1460, Larose $540.

In addition to the above the following accounts have been rendered for expert work in connection with the Law Department (damage cases, etc.):

Messrs. Jas. Nelson $1908, H. Senecal $1000, P. E. Lamalice $605, Jos. Lamarche $1325, J. Z. Resther (Guerin vs. City) $250, Jos. Rielle $240; and Messrs. Beique & Co., costs, $617.50 and $189.50, $807.

A. M. ROBB,
City Treasurer.

Montreal, 15th July, 1898.

OUTSTANDING ACCOUNTS.

A letter was read from His Worship the Mayor, in which he referred to the deputation which had waited upon him that morning in regard to the payment of the outstanding accounts of the various committees. His Worship recommended either the imposition of a special tax, or giving instructions to the City Treasurer to advance the money, pending provincial legislation.

The committee took no acton.

The Craig st. paving report of the Road Committee was then taken up, and Ald. McBride moved that in the interests of the citizens it be sent back. It was alleged that some of the tenders had been changed, and although he would like to see the work commenced at once, he thought the citizens would not suffer if the paving was delayed for a year. He would also ask that the committee be instructed to call for new tenders.

Ald. Ekers hoped the Finance Committee would not for a moment entertain the letter of Messrs. Bellhouse, Dillon & Co. The Road Committee had no right to entertain it, as it was not the lowest.

Ald. Beausoleil moved that the street be paved with 10,000 yards of granite blocks, and that the contract be given to the lowest tenderer.

Ald. Sadler thought the committee was entitled to an opinion from Mr. St. George, the City Surveyor, as to the merits of the different kinds of pavement. He was sure Mr. St. George would not be averse to giving that opinion. He moved an amendment to that effect, of course, the whole question of the nature of the pavement would have to be settled by the City Council.

Ald. McBride offered a motion that a recommendation be made to Council to pave the street with granite blocks, the work to be done by the day.

Ald. Sadler said that he thought that there could be no question about the desirability of rejecting the report. It was stated that one firm had done an irregular thing, and had sent in an amended offer after the tenders had been received, and that tender had been accepted. That tender should certainly be thrown out.

THE HIGHEST TENDER.

Ald. Beausoleil contended that the tender accepted had been really the highest put in.

He moved that the street be paved with granite, and that the work, to complete 1000 yards, be given to the lowest tenderer.

Ald. Ekers said that at any rate he would oppose the use of asphalt. It was the most unsuitable paving for Craig street that could be recommended.

Finally all the other motions were withdrawn, and a motion moved by Ald. McBride carried, stating that as the contract had not been awarded to the lowest tenderer, the committee could not vote concurrence.

The report of the Water Committee for $12,000 to purchase coal for the pumping engines up to the end of the year was brought up just as the chairman, Ald. Rainville, left to catch a train.

Ald. Ekers said that something had to be done. The citizens could not be deprived of water, and they would be without money was provided. He did not suppose that the city had the right to borrow money, but it would have to be got from somewhere. The present Water Committee could be depended upon to spend the money economically. He did not wish, however, to express any approval of the conduct of the old committee, which should be censured.

ILLEGAL, BUT IN PUBLIC INTEREST.

Mr. Ethier, City Attorney, explained that the borrowing of money to supply coal was clearly an illegal act, but it would probably be excused as being done in the public interest.

Ald. Ekers said that he did not feel disposed to run the risk of doing an illegal act. He did not propose to risk a cent of his own money. He did not go to the Council for that and was not expected to do it. The only thing to be done was to raise the money by special assessment, and he made a motion that steps be taken to raise the money in that way.

Ald. McBride remarked that he was not in favor of imposing a special assessment, without it was to provide for the liquidation of all the outstanding accounts.

Ald. Ekers' motion was voted for by the mover and Ald. Beausoleil, and against by Ald. McBride, Paquette and Archambault, and consequently defeated.

THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE.

The proceedings of the approaching International Conference at Quebec will be watched by more people than those who compose the populations of Canada and the United States. More really than any similar conference in the past, this will have an Imperial character. Lord Rosebery and Mr. Chamberlain may not select the same language with which to refer to the understanding to be desired between Great Britain and the United States, and Mr. Morley may warn the Americans against being led into an aggressive colonial policy, but All England is united in wishing to see friendly relations established with the United States, and the Americans are realizing, now as never before, the advantage that the support of Britain can be to them in their relations with "the Powers." More than that, the Powers themselves are fully awake to the importance of this projected Anglo-American alliance in the politics of the world; and they thoroughly understand that the principal point of the contact, which may be a point of friction or a point of union, lies where American interests touch those of the Canadian Dominion.

Now this point of contact has been in the past far too frequently a point of friction. We have been trying to settle the question of the Atlantic fisheries for generations, and it is still in a condition that can hardly be regarded with entire complacency. We both have now alien labor laws on our statute books, and these are not measures calculated to breed good neighborhood. Speaking for the Canadian side of it, we all know that much individual bitterness against our neighbors has been caused by the rigid operation of their laws. Then there is the tangle over the Behring Sea fisheries which two civilized peoples ought to be able to unravel, but which is still a subject of dispute.

The Klondike discoveries have brought us a new set of troubles, which at times have threatened to reach a critical state of inflamation. The Alaskan boundary, too, has become a matter of immediate importance. And so it goes. We agree on the other hand in protecting ourselves against each other's trade, in holidaying in each other's country, in liking each other individually, in cherishing many of the same ideals, in exchanging clergymen and lecturers, in reading the same books and listening to the same players, in bonding through each other's goods, in abusing each other's politicians, and in most of the things, in fact, which make up life. And if we can only get these sore spots healed, the "Canada boundary" will be a line of union and not of possible cleavage in the Anglo-American alliance.

This will be the task of the Quebec Conference. If it succeeds all along the line, history may date a new era for this continent—and possibly for all the continents — from its meeting. Even a partial success will be both gratifying and full of promise. The only things to be dreaded are absolute failure, and a false success secured by getting the delegation from one of the countries to give away more than the people behind it are willing should be sacrinced. Should one of us come out of the Conference with the feeling that we had been badly overreached, it were better that the Conference had never met. No friendly understanding between the two peoples can endure which is not founded upon the good will of both. Neither delegation can do its own country a worse turn than by manoeuvring the other into an untenable position. Nor, on the other hand, will either delegation be borne out by the nation behind it in bringing the proceedings of the Conference to naught through a stubborn insistence upon some minor point. The delegates have before them a task of delicacy and tremendous importance; and they should receive sympathetic support and friendly forbearance from all parties.

UP THE NILE.

The Home Government is preparing for the forthcoming advance on Khartoum by placing at the disposal of Sir Herbert Kitchener, a larger force of British troops than has ever been employed in Egypt before. By the end of this month 5000 picked troops, including the Grenadier Guards from Gibraltar and the two crack cavalry regiments, are to be landed at Alexandria, so that when provision has been made for holding the railway and other lines of communication with the base at Cairo, it is calculated that 20,000 effectives—one-third British—will be available for the forward movement on Omdurman, which is situated 180 miles from the present headquarters of the advance.

The consistent regularity and success with which the programme of the Sirdar has so far been carried out, and the dearth of detailed news of the military operations owing to the rigid press censorship which has been exercised, has contributed to minimize in the public mind the difficulties which may have to be encountered before Gordon's brother officers again stand where Gordon fell in January, 1885.

How different are the methods of warfare now employed by the fanatical warriors of the Khalifa to those which then delayed Wolseley, Earle and Herbert Stewart, may be guaged by the experiences of the last fight at Atbara—a conflict which caused a loss of life far greater than has so far attended the entire Spanish-American war. Instead of the old-fashioned rush which, despite a storm of bullets then carried the Arabs right up to the British squares—and upon one memorable occasion inside them—they have learnt to entrench themselves and use rifle-pits and cover with all the sagacity of Shafter's best troops. It was the hand to hand conflict after an hour's ineffective artillery fire that was responsible for the great mortality at Atbara and it was our side which made the rush.

The military authorities are showing humanity as well as wisdom by providing to meet with an opposition even greater than they may actually encounter, though experience tells us the puniest of foes becomes dangerous when driven to its last ditch, and, this time, it is the religious fanaticism of the Mahommedan as well as the last stronghold of the arch priest of slave-trading, which is about to be cornered.

Notwithstanding rumors of the exact date when the operations are to commence it must depend upon the local conditions of the Nile and the weather. When the advance up the Nile is made from Berber the practically rainless country is left behind and a region of torrential rains is entered upon which last, says an old campaigner on the spot, for some weeks during the months of July and August. Not until a succeeding period of dry weather has made the ground passable for artillery and cavalry, can the real attack be developed. The experts anticipate that at least two formidable fights will occur—one above the sixth cataract on the Nile, where the formation of the country lends itself favorably to a defensive force and at least another under the fortifications which for many months—aided by the advice of European strategists—the Khalifa has been throwing up around his last stronghold.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has just told the House of Commons that the military operations so far have been carried out at an expenditure of no more than 1,850,000 Egyptian pounds—the Egyptian pound is almost five dollars—and more than one-third of this sum has been spent upon such permanently valuable assets as railway and telegraph lines. Indeed the more the subject is studied the more apparent is the enormous advantage which Egypt, as well as her bondholders—most of whom, by the way, are not Englishmen—has reaped from the intervention of Britain.

If the ruling powers in China require a testimonial as to British capacity and administrative fairness before entrusting the re-organization of their civil, military and naval affairs to the foreign regime they have hitherto despised, no better record can be given than the work achieved among an older civilization than their own, where taxation has been relieved, an army rendered efficient and a Government made stable.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL.

Golden Jubilee of the Society to be Celebrated.

The St. Vincent de Paul Society for the relief of the poor and suffering, which has twenty-four branches in the various parishes of the city will celebrate its golden jubilee on Sunday, July 24. In this connection the Archbishop has issued a pastoral letter to the clergy and faithful, eulogizing the good work of the society, and pleading for the co-operation in its work of all connected with the church.

The Society was originally founded in Paris by Frederic Ozanam, and a number of other students and it was transplanted to Montreal 50 years ago by the late Mgr. Bourget. The day will be observed as a day of thanksgiving by the members of the society, who will partake of Holy Communion on that day, and attend High Mass in a body in their respective parishes. The collection will be taken up in the various churches for the benefit of the society's funds, and sermons appropriate to the occasion will be preached. In the evening all the branches will meet at the cathedral, where there will be benediction of the blessed sacrament, followed by a sermon and the benediction by the Archbishop. After the ceremony, His Grace will hold a reception at the palace. On Monday morning, the 25th, a Requiem Mass will be chanted in the various churches for the deceased members of the society.

The examiners were L'Abbe Urreau, of Jacques Cartier Normal School, and Prof. Isaac Gamell, of the High School, Montreal, with Mr. J. E. Dube as supervisor for Quebec City and District. The next examination will take place on October 6th.

A REQUIEM SERVICE.

Archbishop Bruchesi Will Officiate at the Cathedral.

There will be a religious profession at the convent of the Holy Cross at St. Laurent on Thursday next at 8 o'clock.

All the bells of the city churches will be rung to-morrow even at seven o'clock, on the occasion of the return of the Archbishop from his pastoral visit.

WHEAT VARIATIONS.

The Week's Markets Reviewed.

SPOT WHEAT IN CHICAGO LOOSES 4 1-2—THE MARKET WEAKER.

Notwithstanding the many confident predictions by western brokers and others, that the market could not remain down any longer, it has steadfastly refused to rise. Not only that, but it has actually fallen during the past week, exclusive of to-day. Various explanations are offered by the bullish manipulators for their failure to predict correctly. The fact would appear to be, however, that there really has been no substantial reason for a rise just now. The damage to crops was evidently overestimated, or overstated, and now that the weather has improved the outlook for good crops is reassuring. The reserve supply is doubtless low, but not sufficiently so, as yet, to bull the markets either in America or Great Britain.

In Chicago, cash wheat closed last night 4 1-2c lower, at 73 1-4, than it opened on Monday morning, the lowest price of the week being one-half cent less, yesterday, and the highest being Monday's opening price. September option also opened on Monday at the higest price of the week, viz., 69 3-8. It closed last night 1 5-8c down, the lowest price, 7-8c further, having been reached on Thursday. December also saw its highest price on Monday, 68 1-4, and its lowest on Thursday, 67 1-8. The week's opening price, 68 1-8, was about 1-4c higher than the closing.

New York showed less of a change than Chicago, cash wheat only losing one cent over Monday's closing price. September option, on the other hand, gained 7-8c, while December stood even.

The receipts at Chicago for the five days were 66,000 bushels and the shipments 33,000. The receipts in New York were 28,750 bushels and the shipments 527,287. New York enjoyed the unique position on Monday of having neither receipts nor shipments to report.

THE ILLEGAL EXPENDITURES.

Our readers will remember that a few years ago the City Council had over-expenditures amounting to $750,000, the accumulation of three or four years, which it carried forward from year to year. At last it asked, and obtained permission from the Legislature to charge this sum against loan account; and thus the aldermen who were to blame got whitewashed. When the Citizens' Committee and those aldermen who had the true interests of the city at heart consented to this course being adopted it was urged that the most stringent law should be enacted to prevent a recurrenec of such unbusiness-like and illegal action on the part of aldermen and committees; for it was pointed out that it would be utterly impossible to carry on the affairs of the city if this was permitted to go on, and that some day the city would be found in a very unenviable position. The result was that a most stringent act was passed, making it illegal for the aldermen to vote any sum of money for any purpose whatever without first having obtained a written certificate from the City Comptroller that there were funds available for the requirement, whatever it might be; and further enacting that any alderman voting money without first having such certificate, and for any object for which funds were not available would be personally liable for the amount, and would be disqualified to sit in the Council for five years.

Furthermore, if the City Treasurer paid out any money under the foregoing conditions, he would be personally liable for such amount.

The law must be enforced, and those in authority should take steps in this direction.

What is the Municipal Association doing?

The good name and credit of the city will be endangered if laws are not enforced. Such barefaced ignoring of stringent enactments should not be tolerated.

SURRENDER IS SIGNED!

Agreement Concerning the Capitulation of Santiago is Ratified

ALL DIFFICULTIES ARE OVERCOME.

The Americans Are at Last in Full Possession of Eastern Cuba

(Special to the Star)

SIBONEY, July 15, via Playa del Este, July 16.—The agreement to surrender Santiago and all the island of Cuba east of a line drawn from Aceraderos to Sagua de Tamano, was signed at 4 o'cock this afternoon It was approved by Generals Miles, Blanco and Toral, and awaits the approval of Madrid.

In the meanwhile the two armies remain in the trenches.

General Shafter said this morning: "The Spaniards claimed that the surrender must be confirmed by Madrid. I refused to consider any such contention, for the surrender was complete and ordered by Governor-General Blanco, and was made by General Toral. But General Linares sent me a letter begging that the Spanish soldiers be permitted to take their side arms back to Spain. He asked me to intercede with the President and, if possible, arrange for a return of the arms to the prisoners after they had surrendered them."

CONFIRMED AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, July 16. — 9.20 a.m.—The War Department has posted the following bulletin:

Before Santiago,
Spanish surrendered. Particulars later.
(Signed) SHAFTER.

This news came as a decided relief after a night of much anxiety Shortly before midnight a despatch was received from General Shafter stating that the arrangements of the Spanish and American commissioners for the surrender of Santiago had come to a standstill, through he insistence of the Spaniards that they be allowed to retain their arms. The difficulty was that Gen. Toral asked that his men should have their arms returned to them when they reached the coast of Spain. They were willing to surrender their arms now, but desired to be allowed to have them back when they reached their native land. This point has probably been got over amicably.

THE NEGOTIATIONS.

How the Commissioners Conferred Before Santiago.

GENERALS SHAFTER AND TORAL EXCHANGE COMPLIMENTS.

With the United States Troops before Santiago de Cuba, July 14, 6 p.m., via Kingston, Jamaica, July 15, 12.15 p.m. The reverse to the Spanish arms in eastern Cuba is complete. Santiago has fallen and with it all the eastern end of the island.

General Toral, the Spanish commander, agreed to the general terms of the surrender at a personal interview with General Shafter this (Thursday) afternoon, at which General Miles was present.

The victorious American army, after a campaign of three weeks of almost unprecedented hardships for both officers and men, heard the news with heartfelt relief. The victory is greater than appeared at first. All the Spanish troops in the fourth corps of the military division of Santiago province from a line drawn north from Aseraderos, eighteen miles west of Santiago, through Los Palmas, Palmas Soriano, Alcantaza to Sagua del Tanamo, on the north coast, and eastward to Cape Maysi, are surrendered, and the territory is abandoned. Between 18,000 and 20,000 Spanish prisoners are taken, about 10,000 of whom are in Santiago. The remainder are at Guantanamo, and others are garrisoned in the towns of eastern Cuba. All these troops are to be embarked and sent back to Spain under parole.

GEN. SHAFTER SPEAKS.

General Shafter bears his honors modestly. He said: "The enemy has surrendered al lthe territory and troops east of Santiago. The terms were dictated from Washington It has been a hard campaign, one of the hardest I ever saw. The difficulties were great. The character of the country and the roads made it seem almost impossible to advance. The problem was hard, but all the difficulties have been satisfactorily surmounted. Our troops behaved gallantly, they fought like heroes, and I am proud to have commanded. During all the great hardships they have suffered, they have shown spirit. They deserve to conquer

"The resistance of the enemy has been exceedingly stubborn. General Toral has proved himself a noble man, worthy of any man's steel."

TORAL PLAYED FOR TIME.

The negotiations which culminated in the surrender have been dragging on for ten days with the intermission of Sunday and Monday, when our batteries and fleets bombarded the enemy's position. Throughout these periods of truce, General Toral has shrewdly played for time, always declining to surrender unconditionally and finally when hard pressed fell back on the statement that he was merely a subordinate and could not surrender without the sanction of his superiors, except under the penalty of being court-martialled. At the same time he seemed to intimate that personally he thought it hopeless to hold out any longer.

It was at the personal interview held by Gen. Shafter with Gen. Toral yesterday (Wednesday) that the American General made the Spanish commander understand that temporarizing must cease and before noon to-day (Thursday) a categorical affirmation to his offer must be received or the bombardment of the city would begin in earnest. In the meantime, all the plans had been perfected. The delay was utilized to good advantage The American lines had been extended until Santiago was nearly surrounded and the light batteries had been so posted as to be able to do more effective work. In addition, arrangements had been made to land troops at Cabanas, west of the entrance of the harbor of Santiago. The Spanish batteries opposite Morro Castle were to be bombarded and stormed, their guns were then to be turned upon the city and General Lawton's division at the same time was to fall on the enemy's left flank under the cover of our artillery fire. We would then have enfiladed their lines and have driven them into the city.

BLANCO HEARD FROM.

General Toral must have realized that he was trapped and that to hold out longer must mean a useless sacrifice of his men, but he made one last effort to gain more time this morning. While nominally yielding to the terms General Shafter proposed, before eight o'clock he sent a communication to General Shafter, enclosing a copy of a telegram from Captain-General Blanco, explaining that the surrender of such an important position as Santiago and the abandonment of Eastern Cuba would require the direct sanction of the Madrid Government and requesting that time to hear from Madrid.

At the same time Blanco authorized Gen. Toral, if it was agreeable to the American General, to appoint commissioners on each side to arrange the terms of capitulation of the forces under his command on the condition of this paro e and transportation to Spain, pending the sanction of Madrid. He also communicated the names of the commissioners he had se'ected, namely, Mr. Robert Mason, the British Vice-Consul; General Toral's chief of staff, Colonel Fontaine, and General Escarrajo.

This communication was so ambiguous that it might al.l be upset by the refusal of Madrid to sanction the terms agreed to by the commissioners, and General Shafter resolved to have all the ambiguity removed before proceeding further. At 11 o'clock he mounted his horse, and, together with General Miles and the staffs, he rode to the front. At General Whee'er's headquarters, General Shafter, General Miles and Colonel Maus and an interpreter left their retinue and passed on over the American trenches with a flag of truce, to the mango tree, under which the interview was held Wednesday. They were soon joined by General Toral, his chief of staff and two other commissioners appointed by him. General Miles took no part in the negotiations. He has been careful since his arrival here not to assume the direction of affairs or to detract in the least from the glory of General Shafter's achievement.

Genreal Shafter insisted at the outset that the commissioners to be appointed should have paramount authority to make and conclude the terms of surrender, in accordance with the general conditions of the American demands. After parleying, General Toral seceded to this, explaining that since his last communication he had received direct authority from Captain-General Blanco to do so. This being the main point, the interview was concluded.

COMPLIMENTS EXCHANGED.

Before parting, General Shafter complimented General Toral highly upon the skill and gallantry of his resistance. Upon the return to General Wheeler's hadquarters the news of the complete victory was communicated to General Lawton, and to General Kent, and to the brigade commanders. A scene of general rejoicing followed.

General Shafter held a regular levee before he dismounted, and was congratulated and complimented by all. He immediately appointed General Wheeler, General Lawton, and Captain Miley to be commissioners on his behalf, to treat with those appointed by General Toral. He then issued orders to permit the American troops to retire from the trenches, but absolutely forbidding any one, soldier, or civilian, from going into the Spanish lines.

MUCH WORK AFTER SURRENDER.

The refugees are to be permitted to return to their homes, but neither the United States troops nor the Cuban auxiliaries are to be permitted to enter the city at present.

The order as to Cubans is very specific. They have shown a disposition to loot everything, and any place. But they are not to have the privilege of glutting their appetites for plunder in Santiago.

A guard is to be maintained about the city, and the camps of the American soldiers are to be removed just to the front or to the rear of the lines, as in individual cases is most practicable. The change of the camp sites will undoubtedly improve the health of the troops.

The whole purpose of the American commander now is to protect the health of the army, especially from the dreaded contagion.

It is claimed there is no fever in Santiago, but the city is full of filth and stench, and if the United States are allowed to go in it will undoubtedly become a pest hole.

General Shafter appointed Col. Astor and Captain McKittrick to convey the welcome tidings along the lines.

Some of the officers favored celebrating the victory with bands, and a noisy demonstration, but General Shafter vetoed the proposition.

The Americans are to supply the Spanish prisoners with food, pending their concentration, and embarkation. General Toral requested this, saying that there would be very little food.

TRIALS AT OYSTER BAY.

Seawanhaka or Akabo May Challenge Canada.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The wind at Oyster Bay yesterday blew fresh from the north-west, making an ideal day for the third of the trials of the twenty-footers.

At the start the Seawanhaka got across the line first, with Cicada second, and Akabo third. It was a close reach to the first mark, with Akabo leading rapidly, outfooting her rivals, but after turning the first mark, Cicada gained, and rounded the second mark first.

In the run to the finish Akabo was too far to leeward to stand for the mark, so she had to come about. She crossed astern of Seawanhaka and Cicada.

In the second race, Akabo got away first, Seawanhaka second, and Cicada third. On the run before the wind, Cicada passed Akabo, with Seawanhaka 100 yards astern, Akabo again pulled up on Cicada, and it was nip and tuck between these boats to the second mark. Cicada crossed first, Akabo second, and Seawanhaka third. Then began the thrash to the finish line. Seawanhaka held out in the sound for ten minutes, to get to the windward, and came about astern of the two leading boats. As the boats neared the finish, Seawanhaka was seen to luff, and coming about for the committee's boat, reported a broken spreader, and signified her intention to withdraw, so the race was finished with Akabo first. Summary.

First race.

	Elapsed time.
Seawanhaka	40.25
Cicada	41.12
Akabo	41.38

Second race:

Akabo	49.25
Cicada	51.09
Seawanhaka, withdrew.

Akabo is the favorite in the matter of choice to select a boat to contest in the international race.

A BRITISH TRAITOR.

Stoie a Naval Signal Code to Sell to Foreigners.

LONDON, July 16. — A sensation was created here by the report published that William Matthews, a signalman on the British training ship Ganges, has been sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment and dismissed from the service with disgrace for stealing the confidential signal book to sell to a foreign power.

The news agency which circulated the report is the authority for the statement that the foreign power whose representatives had tempted Matthews with a big bribe is the United States, and that the transaction took place at Falmouth when the cruiser Topeka and the torpedo-boat Sumemrs was lying there.

The actual transfer of the signal book never was accomplished, as Matthews got remorseful or frightened, and destroyed the book and deserted.

The United States Embassy declares that the statement is a fabrication.

A high British Admiralty official declares that the United States was not the power referred to, but that, as a matter of fact, Matthews stole the book at Malta, and he believed France was the power concerned.

THE PENNY POSTAGE.

New Imperial Arrangement Will Extend to Letters to Australia,

AS WELL AS WITH CANADA.

(Special Cable to the Star.)

LONDON, July 16.—Talking with Englishmen just now and reading English journals one is especially struck with two things—first the keen appreciation of the fighting qualities of the American seaman as worthy his common descent from the Drakes and the Frobishers; second, admiration for the self-control and restraint of the Administration at Washington and its fighting agents abroad under most provocative circumstances. Both points naturally serve to illustrate the naturalness of the value of Anglo-American co-operation. The Spectator in no way exaggerates English feeling when it says to-day: "President McKinley is slowly rising to the height of his great position. He exhibits many of Lincoln's qualities, in particular his remarkable decision and nerve."

NO INTERFERENCE.

Admiral Dewey's quiet decisiveness at Manila in the face of the German designs excites general admiration. Special enquiries made yesterday indicate that the Ministers here, while anxious to keep good terms with Germany especially, seeing how mutually advantageous Anglo-German co-operation might be in Shantung, Shansi and other Chinese provinces, yet this anxiety could not be expected to survive any serious attempt by the European powers, headed by Germany, to repeat towards the Americans the tactics used towards Japan in the Chinese war, and interfere to the advantage of Spain. English Ministers, in a word, show no disposition to rush an Anglo-American understanding into a written formula. They are quite prepared to leave events to shape themselves on both sides of the Atlantic. No one, for example, now talks as Mr. Chamberlain did formerly, of an immediate Anglo-American alliance or the Union Jack and Stars and Stripes floating together over bloody battlefields. But on the other hand England will certainly not stand quietly by should the foreign powers attempt to coerce America as they coerced Japan. It is necessary to say this emphatically in view of the unauthorized statements to the contrary effect published during the past week.

A FISCAL WAR IN SIGHT.

There is talk in certain quarters to-day that the coming autumn may probably see a tariff war between the United States and Germany, the recent general elections in Germany having returned a much stronger commercial element to the Reichstag. Members representing commercial interests all over Germany are urging the Government to tax prohibitively all American manufactures, chiefly cycles, machinery and hardware, which are competing with German markets. The Government has already gone to the length of instructing the Ministry of Commerce to ascertain what alterations are possible in the tariff to this end. This report is expected before the end of this month.

PENNY POSTAGE.

A timely illustration of the present English feeling towards America is to be found in the suggestions that the Imperial penny postage just secured be extended to include the United States, so that a half ounce letter from any one part of Anglo-Saxondom may be sent to any other for two cents. Though so quietly accomplished this Imperial penny postage will probably live in history as one of Mr. Chamberlain's great achievements in Imperial politics. For a dozen or more years this dream of a common postage within the Empire has been agitated in vain here and in the colonies. The permanent officials in the Treasury and Post Office opposed the change, and permanent officialdom is generally powerful enough to kill anything in England. There is, indeed, only one living man who can coerce permanent officialdom. That man is Mr. Chamberlain, and Canada having given him the necessary lead in this postage matter, as recently in the matter of the German and Belgian treaties, he has done it this week. The officials carried their opposition to incredible lengths.

One day their attitude in the inter-Imperial Conference, which has been in session here, was almost mutinous, but Mr. Chamberlain stood his ground, and in a few weeks the Queen's penny will take the place of the present rate of two pence-halfpenny and carry a half ounce letter to or from any part of the United Kingdom, Canada, Newfoundland, Cape Colony, Natal and the Crown Colonies. The Australasian Colonies pleaded financial reasons for not adopting a penny rate to England, but on January 1 a penny outward rate to Australasia will be established, leaving each colony to take its own course regarding the homeward rate. The change is one more potent reminder of the growing solidarity of the Empire.

Mr. Chamberlain may yet be induced to similarly tackle official obstructions to the much needed reform in the cable communications of the Empire now in the hands of a group of monopolists and perilously open to foreign interference in the Far East, Africa and everywhere else

PREMIER TURNER AND THE TIMES.

A Colonial Premier, emboldened probably by Hooley's blackmailing charges against leading London journals, has had the effrontery to level a kindred accusation against the Times, that ark of British respectability and rectitude. Hon. J. H. Turner, Premier of British Columbia, is this daring man. He charges the Times with having criticised adversely his connection with certain British Columbia Klondike mining companies and then on receipt of a full page advertisement quietly stifling further criticism. Other journals at once laughed down the charge as obviously preposterous, for whatever one may think of the Times' politics every Englishman has supreme faith in its honesty. The Times itself takes the charge very seriously and literally knocks Premier Turner out of Court by a quotation of the criticisms of his conduct which appeared after the insertion of the advertisement even longer and severer than those published before the advertisement. This exposure of Mr. Turner will increase the growing public opinion that Ministers of the Crown should not be concerned in company mongering of any kind.

RESIGNATION ASKED.

Actions of the Racing Boards Were Severely Criticized Last Evening.

GREAT SYMPATHY WITH TUFF.

His Friends Openly Denied the Charges Against Him in Toto Last Night.

SPITE WORK IS CHARGED.

Dominion Board Petitioned to Have Tuff's Case Reconsidered at Once.

CYCLE clubs all over the city held a meeting in the Turkish Bath Hotel last evening, the business being to discuss the case of Walter Tuff. The meeting was largely attended, among those present being Messrs. Chas. Manhire, McDermot, H. Davis, W. C. Hampton and W. E. Wilson, of the Temple Club; Messrs. A. B. Dawson and F. W. Shaw, Y.M.C.A. Bicycle Club; Mr. T. Mooney, Primrose Bicycle Club; Messrs. O. Ladsoux and Chas. Desormeaux, Voltigeurs Bicycle Club; Messrs. Hough and W. H. McManus, Victoria Rifles Bicycle Club; Mr. R. Smith, of the Idlers; Mr. J. A. Bryson, Wanderers. Mr. J. S. Clunie, of the M.B.C.; and Messrs. F. W. Richards, Charlebois, O'Neil and Laz. Rubenstein, of the C.W.A. Club. Mr. A. B. Rattray, chief counsel, was in the chair.

The chairman, in a few pithy remarks, first explained to the representatives the object of the gathering, namely, in the Walter Tuff case, and any other business any member present of the C.W.A. might wish to bring up, and called on Mr. Charlebois, of the Gendron agency, to express his views of the case. Mr. Charlebois spoke of the charge that Tuff received $13 as expenses on one occasion, as published in the Star. He said that the $13 had been paid to another man altogether, and therefore could not have been received by Tuff.

TO DISCUSS THE ACTIONS OF THE DOMINION RACING BOARD

Mr. Dawson expressed the opinion of the Y.M.C.A. Club, of which he is captain, that Tuff had been dealt with very harshly, and suggested that perhaps Tuff should have been at the meeting to answer questions that might be put to him.

Mr. Manhire, in answer to Mr. Dawson's suggestion, said that it was better that Tuff should not be at the meeting, as his presence might fetter the tongues of those who wished to speak on the subject. He also expressed, on behalf of the Temple Club, the sentiment that Tuff had been dealt with very badly, not having been allowed to say a word on his own behalf, which was contrary to all the laws of justice.

Mr. O. Ladsoux, president of the Voltigeurs, was called upon to express the opinion of the club, which he represented. He did this, saying that justice was all that was wanted in the present case, and stated in common with the rest that Tuff had been

ROUGHLY DEALT WITH BY THE PEOPLE IN POWER.

The Primrose Club was represented by Mr. Mooney, who, when called upon, expressed the opinion of his club, that Tuff had been unjustly dealt with, but expressed the opinion of his club that Tuff had been unjustly dealt with, but excused the Dominion Racing Board, the chairman, Mr. Walton, having taken the matter into his own hands, and transferred Tuff without the authority possessed by the board.

Mr. O'Neil, of the Gendron agency, spoke about the $13 Tuff was supposed to have received, saying that the accusation was entirely false, and that he was prepared to swear that he himself had received the money.

Mr. Snell, of the Overlands, the club of which Tuff was a member, said that in his opinion the root of the whole trouble was spite, Tuff having refused to race for the clubs, which the high officials favored.

Mr. Hampton, of the Temple Club, emphasized the injustice of the board in transferring Tuff without a fair trial, saying that because the accused was innocent of the charges set down to him, as Mr. O'Neil and others could prove, spite being, in his opinion, the cause of the whole thing.

Capt. McManus, of the Victoria Rifles Bicycle Club, was called upon to present the feelings of his club, but he referred the racing to the letter of Mr. Campbell Stewart, president of the club. The letter was read, stating the regrets of the writer because of his inability to be present, and asking that should the meeting find that the Racing Board has been somewhat hasty in its decision, something should be done to put matters to right at once.

Mr. Horace Davis, who acted as secretary, inquired as a member of the C.W.A., why the Racing Board should hold a kind of Star Chamber conference, condemning men without their having the least chance of defending themselves. He thought that they should come out manfully with their charges. At it was members were getting suspicious that personal spite had a good deal to do with their moves, and stated that Mr. Walton had altogether exceeded his authority in transferring Tuff. He dwelt on the fact that if on Good Friday when the Board meets next, it should reinstate Tuff; this could never recompense him for a whole year lost, and he suggested that a resolution against the action of the Board be made and forwarded to Toronto.

Mr. Charlebois spoke of the second charge against Tuff, namely that of riding a Gendron wheel saying that was sanctioned by the then chairman of the Board and by Mr. Granger, and asked why the same wheel should be questioned this year, especially as it bore no resemblance to the Gendron wheel at all. He also brought up the question of the Montreal Racing Board, asking who were the members, three only being known, while there should be five, their names not appearing on the C.W.A. Bulletin.

To this question Mr. Robert, a member of the Board, could not answer fully, being only able to name one other besides the three known members.

It was then moved by Chas. Manhire seconded by W. H. MacManus, that the following resolutions be sent to the Racing Board. "The members present at a special meeting called by those interested in Amateur Bicycle Racing in the Montreal District feel that one of the most popular races of the Amateur ranks has been unfairly transferred inasmuch that Article 2, Clause "B" of the Duties and Powers of the Racing Board states that when an Amateur's standing is questioned the Chairman shall appoint an Investigation Committee and the member or members of said Committee shall see the person in question and lay all charges before him either in person or by registered letter and call for an answer to the charges. This rule has not been carried out neither was the case even brought before the Dominion Racing Board as a board, the Chairman having admitted that himself, but acting on evidence received, transferred Mr. Tuff without a hearing. In view of the above facts this meeting protests against such high handed actions which if allowed to continue will be detrimental to bicycle sports and also to the C. W. A. as an Association. This meeting strongly advises the reconsideration of the Dominion Board Chairman's action at once. This was carried unanimously.

It was also moved by Mr. Manhire, seconded by Mr. Hampton, that a petition to the Racing Board to have Tuff reinstated be made and signed by the members of the different clubs. After some discussion this was carried and Messrs. Manhire, MacManus and Lasoux were appointed a committee to attend to that business.

Further discussion ensued in connection with the question on hand during the course of which Mr. Davis suggested that the Overland Club file a protest against Tuff's transfer with the Board in addition to the resolution already passed.

There was considerable talk about in that and other cases about the mystery surrounding its make up, which resulted in a motion by Mr. Manhire and seconded by Mr. Hampton requesting the Board to resign, which was carried.

At this several members of the M. B. C. disputed the justice of this course; but as the motion had been passed nothing could be done but an amendment moved, which the main portion of those present declined to do.

After some discussion on different subjects pertaining to bicycling the meeting was declared closed by the chairman.

ATHLETICS.

LAST NIGHT'S WRESTLING.

A Fine Exhibition in Which Dwane and Roebor Won.

There was some very fine wrestling at the Theatre Francais last night, and considering the heat, there was quite a crowd present including several ladies, who seemed to be greatly interested in the struggles that took place upon the stage.

There were two couples matched, and they certainly gave an exhibition that was worth seeing, and only marred by frequent disputes about decisions. A prominent feature of the show was the talk about challenges for the future, in which Mr. Quinn, a well-known wrestler of some years ago, and Roeber took part. The first match was between Dwane of this city, and Pardello, from New York, the latter a gentleman of particularly knotty muscles and a grim face that kept twisting in all sorts of shapes from some nervous affliction. There were three bouts, the first being awarded to Pardello but refused by him, the second being awarded to Dwane because he refused to follow the instructions of the referee, and the last awarded to Dwane on its merits. Both men were well matched, but

Ernest Roeber, the Great Wrestler.

PARDELLO HAD THE GREATER STAYING POWER, and in the first two bouts, catch-as-catch-can, and Graeco-Roman, outpointed the local man, who, however, had the best of him in the collar and elbow.

The Roeber-Atlas bout was magnificent, although from the beginning it seemed evident that Roeber had the best of it, and was aware of the fact, which he tried hard to hide as much as possible from the audience. Atlas is a finely built, and magnificently developed man, but Roeber, who has been in training, with wrestling here and there all the time of late, has the best of him for the present. Atlas did his utmost to turn the German, but he simply succeeded in using up his own strength, and leaving himself an easy prey for Roeber, who never exerted himself till he was good and ready.

Mr. Quinn, true to his promise, came towards the front of the stage, between the two matches, and challenged Roeber for five hundred dollars, to wrestle in five different styles. Roeber did not accept the challenge, but stated that as his only style was Graeco-Roman, he would be unable to accept Quinn's challenge, but was willing to give Mr. Quinn or any one else in Canada any amount agreed upon, if they could stand up to him for fifteen minutes. Quinn went one better then, and offered to wrestle Roeber five different styles, give him one fall, and beat him three out of the remaining four. The question was left in abeyance, however, though Quinn tried to revive it towards the end of the evening, meeting with little success, as the audience filed out while he was speaking. Roeber, also made a little speech towards the end, in which he detailed some of his experiences. The entertainment was under the management of Mr. H. T. Phillips. It is the first time for years that a good wrestling exhibition has been seen here.

Y. M. C. A. FIELD DAY.

A mass meeting in connection with the above will be held in the Association Building on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. All members interested in athletics should keep this in mind.

LAWN TENNIS.

WELL ATTENDED GAMES AT THE NIAGARA TOURNAMENT YESTERDAY.

QUEEN'S ROYAL, Niagara, Ont., July 16. — The play was brilliant in the extreme, the final in the all-comers' between Whitman and Fischer being one of the finest expositions of tennis ever seen in Niagara-on-the-Lake. The terrace at the Queens' Royal contained the largest crowd seen at a tournament here since the championships in 1896. A large crowd came down from Buffalo, and the Toronto boats contributed a handsome quota. To-morrow will see the finals in the handicap, besides the challenge match in the ladies' (single) and all-comers. Scores:

Singles, final round — M. B. Whitman, Harvard, beat E. P. Fischer, New York, 9-7, 2-6, 1-6, 6-3.

Doubles, first round — P. H. Charleton and Beals Wright, of Boston, beat Ralph McKitrick and Caleb Whitbeck, Harvard, 6-4, 6-3.

Semi-final round — E. P. Fischer and M. D. Whitman beat R. W. P. Matthews and Scott Griffin, 6-4, 6-2. L. E. Ware and J. D. Forbes beat R. H. Carleton and Beals Wright, 7-5, 7-5.

CRICKET.

THE INTERNATIONAL MATCH.

Philadelphia Accepts Dates Suggested by the Canadians.

TORONTO, July 16. — Secretary J. E. Hall, of the Canadian Cricket Association, has received a letter from Mr. J. B. Coolahan, chairman of the associated clubs of Philadelphia, stating that they would accept the dates of August 29 and 30 offered by the Canadian Association. After the receipt of Mr. Hall's letter a meeting of the Philadelphia clubs was held, at which the desire that the match should take place was expressed by all present.

SECOND DAY RACING.

Three Favorites Won and South Africa Lowered the Half Mile Record at Bel-Air.

IDEAL DAY, EXCELLENT RACING.

A Large Number of Well-known People Were Present and Seemed Well Pleased.

SEAGRAM WINS A SECOND.

Hendrie's Springwells Catches the Favorites Napping in the Five Furlong Race.

THE racing at Bel Air track, yesterday, was about the best seen by the majority of racegoers in this vicinity for ages, and to say that an enjoyable day's sport was had, is putting it mildly.

The races, with the exception of the last one, were all close and exciting, and everybody had a run for their money, and even a loser can be cheerful after a good race. The finishes in the first five races were close enough for anybody and the judges had their work cut out on more than one occasion. In the last race Aunt Lida romped away from the field and came home an easy winner. Aunt Lida was a good thing and was fairly well backed at 15 to 12 to 1.

The attendance at yesterday's races was fairly good and to-day a large audience is expected. There is an excellent programme and the weather is sure to be fine. The two days' racing which have taken place at Bel Air in this district, and the public has been treated well in the matter of good fields and good horses.

For a while yesterday a few of the light-fingered gentry had some profitable amusement at the expense of the general public, and several bettors found when they went to cash their tickets that they didn't have any tickets to cash. One of the victims was no less a personage than a well-known police official, but a pick-pocket has never had a reputation for being a respector of personages. However, the police official knew a thing or two about ticket snatchers and he quietly went to the bookie before the race was run, explained the matter and then waited for the ticket to be presented. It was not brought in and so the police man recovered his money.

One of the amusing things at the race track is the generous and benevolent gentlemen who come quietly up to anybody standing in the enclosure and straightway proceed to give away the whole history of every horse in the coming race and show how a certain horse is sure to win. Of course, all this is done out of pure philanthropic motives and for the general good of the world at large, but at the same time the disinterested gentlemen would not object to a slight remembrance.

HOW THE RACES WERE WON.

First race, 3-year-olds and up; selling; six furlongs:

Mamie Callan, 98 (Valentine), 3 to 1..... 1
Josephine K., 88 (Weber), 4 to 1..... 2
Isen, 92 (Mason), 2 to 1.....s..... 3

Violent, 99 (A. Dean), Belle of Corsica, 88 (Howell); Fontomka, 92 (Tully); Hartford Boy, 105 (Burrell); Spanish Princess, 104 (N. Hill); His Brother, 105 (L. Smith); Solid Silver II., 104 (Dyment) and Edith, 100 (Mitchell), finished as named.

The race was a beautiful one from start to finish. The horses got off well together. Josephine K., who ran so clever a the day before, took the lead, followed by Isen and Mamie Callan. At the quarter, the latter forged ahead, but the three were bunched well together. Thomas Costello's Isen, a three-year-old, by Ludwig Vaga, proved a favorite in the betting ring, but she was easily beaten by two others, coming in third with Violent a close fourth. The other horses were strung out.

Contravene, 103 (P. Clay), 7 to 5..... 1
Sir Casimir, 106 (McGlone) 5 to 2..... 2
Mouzeltoff, 99 (Tully), 15 to 1..... 3

Time—.58.

Ruth Black, 107 (Powers), Ivy Cotta, 102 (Mason), Lucy Blazes, 103 (Sherland), Jim Lick, 102 (Reitz), Logan Laudeman, 104 (N. Hill), and King's Ransom, 100 (Burrell) finished as named.

This event for two-year-old aroused great enthusiasm among the spectators. It was a neck and neck struggle for supremacy from start to finish between the plucky youngsters. Ruth Black held the lead for nearly two furlongs, when she was overtaken by Contravene, who proved a hot favorite in the betting. Clay, however, had his work cut out for him. It was anybody's race in the home stretch. Sir Casimir, closely pressed by Mouzeltoff, finishing second by half a length.

Frank Jaubert, 106, Shields, 1 to 2..... 1
Stray Step, 103, Powers, 11 to 5..... 2
Little Ocean, 100, Mason, 8 to 1..... 3

Time, 1.53 1-2.

Rolandis, 100, Valhagen; L. W., 102, Aker; Hermano, 105, N. Hill; and James Monroe, 103, Sherland, finished as named.

There were seven starters in this event. The horses got off well together, Little Ocean leading at the quarter by half a length, closely pressed by Stray Step, with Frank Jaubert a close third. The heaviest plungers, however, did not lose faith in Jaubert, who had been selling as a strong favorite. Stray Step was leading until the home stretch, when Jaubert, closely driven, made a terrific spurt, and finished first by half a length. Little Ocean won third money, beating Rolandis by four lengths.

Springwells, 97, Mason, 4 to 1..... 1
Weller, 105, McGlone, 9 to 10..... 2
Pell Mell II., 102, Aker, 6 to 5..... 3

Time, 1.04.

No other starters.

There were only three starters in the five furlong race, for two-year-olds, but Mr. J. E. Seagram's stables, and that of Mr. George Hendrie, Detroit, were well represented. For Mr. Hendrie, Jockey Mason rode Springwell, a handsome filly by Derwentwater, the imported stallion that is at the head of the stud on Mr. Wm. Hendrie's farm near Hamilton. Springwells was quoted low in the betting, but she easily out-ran her competitors. She repaid her backers 5 to 1 for their confidence. Weller disappointed many admirers in the start, but warmed up well toward the finish.

Fifth race, selling; 3-year-olds and up; 6 furlongs—

South Africa, 103, (Powers), 3 to 5.....1
Skillman, 89 (McQuade), 3 to 1.....2
Jim Lisle, 92 (Mason), 20 to 1.....3

Time: 1.17 1/4.

Judge Quigley, 103 (P. Clay); Helmsdale, 98 (Scherrer); Our Bishop, 98 (Stark); Onagon, 93 (Valentine), and Herman the Great, 92 (Hyland) finished as named.

Adam Beck's South Africa repeated the performance of the preceding day. The black colt Helmsdale led off, but they had not gone far when the favorite went to the front like a flash. The first half mile was run in 50 seconds, the best ever run over the Bel Air course. Skillman was second, a length behind, and Jim Lisle was a good third, at three to one for a show.

Aunt Lida, 103 (Sherland), 12 to 1..... 1
Bob Leach, 99 (Tully), 11 to 5..... 2
Lord Farandole, 102 (Garvin), 5 to 1..... 3

Time—1.18 3-4.

Annie Lauretta, 98 (Powers), Brown Girl, 101 (Tanner), Gainsay, 112 (Keeble), Tessie B., 88, (Reitz), and Green Jacket, 102 (Valentine), finished as named.

There were eight starters. In the betting ring Bob Leach and Annie Lauretta were the choices, but a large element backed Aunt Lida and Gainsay. Sherland took Aunt Lida to the front, and won all the way. Lord Farandale crept up from eighth finishing a good third.

NOTES.

It has been decided by the management of the club to declare Monday, Wednesdays, and Fridays ladies' days. On these days ladies will be admitted free to the course and stand.

In the absence of Mr. J. H. Wardlow yesterday, Mr. J. P. Dawes acted as steward for the Bel Air Jockey Club, with Judges Carter and Nelson. The time was kept by Mr. James Carruthers and Mr. T. H. Love.

Souders was as steady as a rock, and kept the heavy hitters guessing. Score:

A MAN KILLER

Fierce and Ravenous is Diabetes, which Defies all Medicines

Except Dodd's Kidney Pills, the Only Remedy on Earth That Removes the Cause of the Disease—Dodd's Kidney Pills Never Fail.

QUEBEC, P.Q., July 15. — There are certain diseases that sap the brain, and dry up the springs of life, besides undermining the strength.

Diabetes is such a disease.

Its symptoms are great thirst, failing sight, dry mouth, coated tongue, paleness numbness in the thighs, pains or aches in the loins, or small of the back, increase of urine, sugar in the urine.

Any one, or two, seldom more, of these appear in the same case.

Diabetes is caused by poison in the blood.

Poison gets into the blood through defective action of the kidneys, which should filter it out.

Heal and strengthen the kidneys, and they will cleanse the blood. Then Diabetes will vanish.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only medicine on earth that can cure Diabetes. They are the only medicine that can cure the kidneys.

Here is proof: Mr. Sam Desrochers, of 167 St. John Street, Quebec, says:

"I have suffered with Diabetes for five years.

"My feet were always cold. I had pains in my loins, and a terrible thirst.

"I tried a dozen remedies before I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They all failed to relieve me.

"Five boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me completely. To-day I am well and strong."

Reader! Have you any of the symptoms above?

If you have, you have Diabetes, and nothing on earth but Dodd's Kidney Pills can cure you.

AT KNEBWORTH.

The Beautiful English Country Seat That Has Been Leased by Lord Stratheona.

THE HOME OF THE LYTTONS.

First Held as a Fortress by Eudo Dapifer at the Time of the Norman Conquest.

A QUIET, RESTFUL RETREAT

Full of Historical Associations, Charming Mem ories,and Rich in Sylvan Beauties.

A few days ago a special cablegram to the Star announced that Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal had leased for a term of years the English estate of Knebworth. This ancestral home of one so various and accomplished as to unite in himself the characters of the dramatist and poet, the novelist and statesman, possesses great attractions, and when to this living interest is added the historic vista of centuries in the transition from the hill fortress of the Norman period to the picturesque mansion of the Elizabethan age, much may be expected from the olden story of such an abode, and its eventful associations, as well as from the instant interest which attaches to the present distinguished owner. Such is Knebworth, Stevenage, Hertfordshire, the seat of Lord Lytton, who, on succeeding to the Knebworth estate, by the will of his mother, in 1843, took the surname of Lytton by sign-manual.

Knebworth, which is placed upon the highest elevation in the county, was held as a fortress by Eudo Dapifer, at the time of the Norman Conquest. Sir Bernard Burke in his "visitation of the seats and arms of the noblemen and gentlemen of Great Britain," tells us that Knebworth was possessed by Thomas de Brotherton, fifth son of King Edward I. His eldest daughter and co-heiress brought the lordship of Knebworth to the celebrated Sir Walter Manny, Knight of the Garter, and at his decease she continued to hold it under the title of Duchess of Norfolk. From her, Knebworth passed to her daughter and heir, Anne, the wife of John de Hastings, the Earl of Pembroke. It was then sold to Sir John Hotoff, Treasurer of the Household to Henry VI. From him it went to Sir Thomas Bourchier (son to Sir John Bourchier), Knight of the Garter, and was purchased of him by Sir Robert Lytton, of Lytton in the Peak, a Knight of the Bath, Privy Councillor to Henry VII., Keeper of the Wardrobe, and Under-Treasurer. Sir Robert Lytton immediately set about enlarging the fort, and the work was continued by his successor, William de Lytton, Governor of Boulonge Castle. Knebworth was completed in the reign of Elizabeth by Sir Rowland de Lytton, lieutenant for the shires of Hertford and Essex, at the time of the Spanish invasion.

QUEEN ELIZABETH

frequently visited Sir Rowland at Knebworth, and the room in which she slept at the time of the Armada is preserved, and named "Queen Elizabeth's Chamber." Knebworth, thus enlarged in the early Tudor style, was a large quadrangle, the east front or gateway having been a part of the ancient fort. For many years it was but in part inhabited, till in 1811 Mrs. Bulwer commenced the restoration of the mansion, when three sides were, of a necessity, removed, and the fourth side, built by Sir Robert de Lytton, in a style resembling Richmond Palace, and erected in the same reign, was restored. Its embattled towers and turrets are seen from the Stevenage station of the Great Northern Railway, with which Knebworth is two miles south, Stevenage lying 28½ miles from the metropolis.

The principal apartments in the mansion are the banquet-hall, the oak drawing-room, the library, and the great drawing-room or presence-chamber. The hall ceiling is of the age of Henry VII., the screen Elizabethan, the chimney-piece in the style of Inigo Jones, and the walls are hung with suits of armor. A door leads to the capacious cellar, whither, in the olden time, it was customary for the gentlemen to adjourn after dinner from the hall to finish their potations. Another door leads to the oak drawing-room, where in the reign of Charles I. the great Parliamentary leaders, Pym, Eliot, and Hampden, met their staunch supporter, the Sir William Lytton of that day. The library fitted up in the style of Henry VII.'s day, contains two bronze candelabra with lamps inlaid with silver; they were dug up in Apulia, on the site of the Palace of Joan, Queen of Naples, and are supposed to be genuine Roman antiquities.

THE STATE ROOMS.

A double flight of stairs leads to the State rooms, the carved balustrades supporting the lion rampant, one of the ancient family crests. The staircase is hung with armor and trophies, and family portraits, and the windows are blazoned with descents from the alliance of Barrington and that of the St. Johns. The first State room has stamped and gilt leather hangings, carved panels, and an armorial ceiling. The long ante-room is hung with bugle tapestry, very rare. Hence, an oval drawing-room conducts to the old presence-chamber, now the oak drawing-room, with armorial ceiling and windows charged with ninety-nine quarterings. The furniture includes items of the seventh and eighth Henry's reigns, portraits of rare historic interest; armour from the crusades of the civil war, and some fine specimens of Italian and Dutch art. Over the hall is the music gallery, communicating with the round-tower chamber, where John Hampden once slept; and beyond is Queen Elizabeth's room. The fine old mansion is charmingly and lovingly described by its present owner, Lord Lytton, the poet, novelist, and essayist, to whom Knebworth was the cradle of childhood, the home of youth, the retreat and solace of a life struggle. That he knows every chamber and turret of the mansion, every wide prospect, and sequestered nook of the estate is, of course, only to be expected, but that he should write of them as he does in the following delightful and exquisitely finished passages, and of himself so candidly, and with so much spontaneous feeling—taking the reader into his confidence, and imparting to him his impressions as they arise—is a graceful concession to the natural and intelligent curiosity of the tens of thousands who admire and regard him and are interested in hearing him talk of himself, which must be appreciated. In an essay on Knebworth, by the noble owner of this ancient hall, the following morceaux of charming description and just and candid reflection occur:

"Amidst the active labors in which from my earliest youth I have been plunged, one of the greatest luxuries I know is to return, for short intervals, to the place in which the happiest days of my childhood glided away. It is an old manorial seat that belongs to my mother, the heiress of its former lords. The house, formerly of vast extent, built round a quadrangle at different periods, from the date of the second crusade to that of the reign of Elizabeth, was in so ruinous a condition when she came into its possession, that three sides of it were obliged to be pulled down, the fourth yet remaining, and much embellished in its architecture, is in itself one of the largest houses in the country, and still contains the old oak hall with its lofty ceiling and raised music gallery. The place has something of the character of Penhurst, and its venerable avenues, which slope from the house down to the declivity of the parks, giving it its wide views of the opposite hills crowded with cottages and spires, impart to the scene that peculiarly English, half-stately, and wholly cultivated character which the poets of Elizabeth's day were so much delighted to dwell upon. As is often the case with similar residences, the church stands in the park, at a bowshot from the house, and formerly the walls of the outer court nearly reached the green sanctuary that surrounds the sacred edifice. The church itself, dedicated anciently to St. Mary, is worn and gray, in the simplest architecture of ecclesiastical Gothic, and standing on the brow of the hill, its single tower at a distance blends with the turrets of the house, so that the two seem one pile.

THE MAUSOLEUM.

"Beyond, to the right, half-way down the hill, and neighbored by a dell girded with trees, is an octagon building of the beautiful Grecian form, erected by the present owner—it is the mausoleum of the family. Fenced from the deer is a small surrounding space sown with flowers; those fairest children of the earth, which the custom of all ages has dedicated to the dead. The modernness of the building, which contrasts with those in its vicinity, seems to me, from that contrast, to make its objects more impressive. It stands out alone, in the venerable landscape, with its immemorial hills and trees—the prototype of the thought of death—a thing that, dealing with the living generation, admonishes them of their recent lease of life and its hastening end. For, with all our boasted antiquity of race, we ourselves are the ephemera of the soil, and bear the truest relation, so far as our mortality is concerned, with that which is least old.

"The most regular and majestic of the avenues I have described conducts to a sheet of water that lies towards the extremity of the park. It is but small in proportion to the domain, but is clear and deep, and fed by some subterranean stream, its tide is fresh and strong beyond its dimensions. On its opposite bank is a small fishing cottage, whitely peeping from a thick, gloomy copse of firs and larch and oak, through which shine, here and there, the red berries of the mountain ash; and behind this, on the other side of the brown, moss-grown deer pailing, is a wood of considerable length. This, the further bank of the water, is my favorite spot. Here, when a boy, I used to while away whole holidays, basking indolently in the noon of summer, and building castles in that cloudless air till the setting of the sun.

A BEAUTIFUL SPOT.

The reeds then grew up long and darkly green, along the margin and though they have since yielded to the innovating scythe, and I hear the wind no longer glide and sigh among those early tubes of music, yet the whole sod is still fragrant, from spring to autumn, with innumerable heaths and wild flowers and the crushed [illegible] the sweet thyme.

"And never have I seen a spot that the butterfly more loves to haunt, particularly that small, fairy, blue-winged species which is tamer than the rest, and seems almost to invite you to admire it, throwing itself on the child's mercy, as the robin on man's. The varieties of the dragon fly glittering in the sun, dart over through the earth and along the water. It is a world that the fairest of the insect race seem to have made their own. There is something in the hum and stir of a summer noon which is inexpressively attractive to the dreams of the imagination. It hits us with a sense of life, but a life not our own—it is the exuberance of creation itself that overflows around us. Man is absent, but life is present. Who has not spent hours in some such spot, cherishing dreams that have no connection with the earth, and courting, with half-shut eyes, the images of the ideal.

SOLITARY YET ELOQUENT.

"Stretched on the odorous grass, I see on the opposite shore that quiet church where the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep—that mausoleum where my own dust shall rest at last, and the turrets of my childhood's home. All so solitary, and yet so eloquent! Now the fern waves on the slope, and the deer comes forth, marching with stately step to the water side to pause and drink. O Nymphs! O Fairies! O Poetry, I am yours again!

"I do not know how it is, but every year that I visit these scenes I have more need of their solace. My departed youth rises before me in more wan and melancholy hours, and the past saddens me more deeply than the present. Yet, every year, perhaps, has been a stepping stone to the ambition of my boyhood, and brought me nearer to the objects of my early dreams. It is not the mind that has been disappointed. It is the heart. What ties are broken — what affections marred! the Egeria of my hopes,—no cell conceals, no spell can invoke her now! Every pausing place in the life of the ambitious is marked alike by the trophy and the tomb. But little men have the tomb without the trophy!

"The churchyard — the village—the green sward—the woods—the fern-covered hills — the waterside, odorous with the reeds and the thyme — the deep, shaded dells—the plain where the deer couch—all united and blended together, make to me the place above all others which renews my youth and redeems it from the influence of the world. All know some such spot—blessed and blessing—the Kaabba of the earth—the scene of their childhood, the haunt of their fondest recollections.

"And while it is yet ours to visit at will—while it yet rests in the dear and sacred hands to which it belonged of yore—while no stranger sits at the hearth, and no new tenants chase away "the old familiar faces," who has not felt as if in storm and shower there was a shelter over his head—as if he were not unprotected—as if fate preserved a sanctuary to the fugitive and life a fountain to the weary."

A STRANGE TRADITION.

"It would be strange indeed if this noble remnant of past times had not, in the progressive ages, and amid the varying fortunes of its owners, gradually surrounded itself with traditions. One of the strangest of these was that of "Jenny Spinner, or the Hertfordshire Ghost," which is the title of a very interesting little book published at the beginning of the present century, and which tells the story of the nightly visits of the ghostly housewife that haunted the old mansion of Knebworth, and thrilled the hearts of the sleepless o' nights with the sound of her spinning wheel. Under what doom this ghostly lady was compelled to draw out the thread after her own hand had been cut short, and at that witching hour, when every hooded ghost—whatever his occupations during the remainder af the 24 hours—gives himself up as a rule to mere vagrancy and aimless revisitings of the glimpses of the moon, it would be difficult to say. The old wheel upon which the spectre spinner used to perform and which was extant at the beginning of the century, has been destroyed, and the ghost is seen no more.

HELLO! DYSPEPTICS!

Read the Words That Tell How to Cure Dyspepsia.

The Cure is Simple, Easy and Sure It is Effected by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, Which Cure by Removing the Cause.

"Oh! he's dyspeptic! There's no use talking to him."

How often we hear such expressions used with regard to some poor, suffering victim of a disordered stomach, or an imperfect digestion.

His misfortune is viewed as a wilful fault, and he is called a "crank," or a disagreeable boor, and is avoided and mistrusted by those who once were his friends and companions.

His physical sufferings are very great, and very hard to bear, but when mental torture is added, his lot becomes unbearable.

Very frequently suicide is the result

There is a way to escape all these tortures—all the physical and mental agonies that Dyspepsia brings. It is a very simple and easy way.

To get rid of Dyspepsia, we must remove the cause.

Dyspepsia is caused by imperfect digestion. Therefore, to get rid of Dyspepsia, we must make the digestion perfect.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets do this. They digest the food themselves.

Thus they remove, thoroughly and absolutely, the cause of disease. Therefore the disease itself and all its effects must go too.

Two or three weeks' use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets rests the stomach sufficiently to allow it to regain its strength.

The Tablets act on the stomach iself, imparting to it strength and vigor.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets quickly and permanently cure Indigestion, Biliousness, Sick Headache, and all other stomach troubles.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists, at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. 165 2 to 7 1

HON. PETER MITCHELL

Last Dominion Day Revived His Recollections of How Confederation Came About.

THE PART HE PLAYED THEREIN

He Succeeded in Bringing New Brunswick Into Line After a Hard Struggle.

NOVA SCOTIA FOLLOWED SUIT.

The Ex-Minister Speaks of Several Interesting Incidents of the Campaign.

On the first of July, while hundreds thronged the Windsor Hotel, chatting in groups and trying to get as much pleasure as possible out of the national holiday, an elderly gentleman of medium height and portly figure paced quietly up and down the rotunda, apparently paying little attention to what was going on around him. Occasionally he would go to the door and look out at the flags flying high upon the poles, or watch the crowds sauntering past and again resuming his walk.

HON. PETER MITCHELL.

The eyes of the habitues of the Windsor would frequently seek him out, and many were the greetings exchanged and hands extended as he passed by. And well there might be for this was one of the Fathers of Confederation, the Hon. Peter Mitchell, to whom, as much as to any living man, Canadians are indebted for the events which the national holiday was set aside to perpetuate.

The name of Peter Mitchell is indelibly associated with Canadian history, as being one of those, of whom there are but four survivors, who fought for and accomplished the confederation of the Canadian Provinces.

Many of the events of that time are now forgotten and others but dimly recollected, yet it is small wonder if the mind of the man, under whose leadership New Brunswick was brought into the union, should wander back on Dominion Day over the intervening years and dwell upon those incidents with considerable pride.

The story is best told in his own words:

"It is so many years since we first commenced the agitation for confederation," said Mr. Mitchell to a Star representative, "that I necessarily do not recall the circumstances as clearly as if they occurred but yesterday. However, I will try and relate a few of them exactly, as they occurred.

"You must know that for some considerable time the subject of the confederation of the Canadian Provinces had been discussed by the press and by many of the politicians and people of the country.

"It was in 1865 that this discussion first took a practical form. The leading men of the three Maritime Provinces, of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island agreed to hold a meeting at Charlottetown, P.E.I., with a view to discussing first the desirability of such a union, and secondly the terms and conditions thereof. Upon the morning of the appointed day the Government steamer Napoleon, from Quebec, steamed into port having on board several of the leading statesmen of Ontario and Quebec, or as they were then called Upper and Lower Canada. I recollect that among others there were on board the Napoleon, Sir John A. Macdonald, Hon. Geo. Brown, Sir Hector Langevin, Sir George Cartier and Hon. William McDougall. Upon their arrival these gentlemen lost no time in communicating with our delegation and requesting permission to have an opportunity of presenting several matters to us. This request was gladly complied with and the whole conference then met together. The delegation from the west explained that they had come down on purpose to meet us at this conference, with the idea of bringing about a wider confederation which would bring together not only the Maritime Provinces, but also Upper and Lower Canada. In the end they also asked us to defer further consideration until a later date, in order that the scheme might be more fully gone into.

"The outcome of the deliberations was that a further conference was agreed upon to discuss the confederation of the four provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Canada, that is, Ontario and Quebec. The city of Quebec was selected as the most convenient place for the conference.

PARTY FEELING SUPPRESSED.

"Up to this time there had been great political differences between the Liberals and Conservatives of Upper and Lower Canada, with Hon. George Brown and the Hon. William McDougall on the one side, and Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir George Cartier on the other. Before this greater question, of confederation, however, party feelings were for the time being suppressed as was seen in the combined visit they had paid to Charlottetown with the one object of advancing the interests of that great cause.

"The Quebec conference took place at the appointed time, and the terms and basis of the agreement were soon gone into.

"The result of their conference was that confederation was more than ever considered practical, and it was decided to get the opinion of the people upon the subject at the earliest possible moment.

"The delegates viewed the position of New Brunswick as the strongest, and as being more likely to result in a victory for unity than that of any of the other provinces.

"I might say that the Prince Edward Island delegates were the only ones who disagreed respecting the conference and that consequently confederation, as it was there agreed upon, only extended to the provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Upper and Lower Canada.

"In accordance with the decision arrived at in Quebec, confederation was made the question at the New Brunswick elections. It was espoused by the Liberal party, which was then in power, to such a degree, that the defeat of the party meant a defeat for confederation. Yet it must be remembered that confederation, while a political question, was not a party one, or rather was not a party question emanating from party grounds, as was illustrated by the relationship of Sir John A. Macdonald and Hon. George Brown who, although life-long opponents on other grounds, were unanimous upon this one.

"The appeal was made then in New Brunswick, under the leadership of Sir Charles Leonard Tilley and the Hon. Charles Fisher, both staunch Liberals. At a general election the Liberal party was defeated by a majority of three to one, and in consequence we thought that the confederation of the colonies was practically killed.

"At the time of the conference I was living in Miramichi, where for some years I had been conducting a shipbuilding business. I was, at the same time, a member of the Cabinet, without portfolio. The Governor was the Hon. Arthur Hamilton Gordon, uncle to the present Governor-General of Canada, and to him, upon the defeat of the party, the Ministers all handed in their resignations. Sir Albert J. Smith, who was hostile to confederation, came in as Premier of the province and Attorney-General.

"The Governor called upon Sir Albert J. Smith to form a Ministry, and then sailed for England, where he was to be married. He was opposed to Confederation in its broad sense, taking place immediately, but was desirous of first inviting the three Maritime provinces under his administration, in order that when they came into the union later on there would be less disparity in their size as compared to Ontario and Quebec.

"I always imagined that he had received a talking to by the Colonial Minister of that day, during his stay in England, for upon his return he sent for me to go over to Fredericton, as he wished to see me. There were no railroad facilities that day such as there are now, and it was necessary for me to drive all the way, a distance of 108 miles. However, feeling that it must be a matter of considerable moment upon which he wished to see me, I quit business, hitched my horses to my buggy, and drove over. After I had presented myself he told me that his object in sending for me was in consequence of a remark I had made at the time I had handed in my resignation, some months previous, in which I had expressed my belief that had the matter of Confederation been put properly before the people at the elections there would have been a very different result. He also stated that in conversation with the Colonial Minister upon the subject he had told him of what I had said. He expressed a desire to know if I was still of that opinion, as the Colonial Minister was strongly desirous of seeing Confederatin brought about, ing to make another appeal to the people at a general election, providing the opportunity of doing so should arise. I replied that I still believed that if Confederation were properly presented to the people they would declare in favor of it, but that Sir Charles Leonard Tilley was a stronger and better man for the purpose than I was, and it would be advisable to get him to undertake the matter instead.

MEETING WITH THE GOVERNOR.

"The Governor then told me that he saw an opportunity of raising an issue between the Government, and himself, and he asked me to see Mr. Tilley, and let him know if he would undertake to make another appeal to the people if that issue arose. Accordingly, I saw Mr. Tilley, and it was agreed that in case the crisis arose he would undertake the duty of going to the country again upon the question. The negotiations went on for some weeks, and at last the crisis was at hand. I went to Mr. Tilley, to tell him to be ready, as the Governor would send for him in the morning, the difference between him and Sir Albert Smith, the Premier, being likely to arise at any moment. What was my consternation, when, at the last moment, after negotiations had been going on for some weeks, and plans had been laid, Mr. Tilley, for some reason or other, refused to proceed. Said he: "I have tried, and failed once, already, and I'm afraid we will only have another failure. After being defeated only four months ago by a sweeping majority to go back to the people again with the same question would only be to court a second defeat, and the people would call me a fool. But you can go ahead, and try it, you don't need to care what they say."

"'No,' said I,' 'I do not care what they say and if you don't do it I will, and I will win.'

"He consented to back me up, however, and I went away to report to the Governor. When I found him I told him that a change of mind had come over Mr. Tilley and informed him about the conclusion that we had arrived at. He said 'I'm not at all disappointed, Mr. Mitchell, for I would a great deal sooner have you than Mr. Tilley, anyway.'

"He then gave me carte blanche to go ahead, and form a new Government. I set about the work of organization immediately. I made Sir Charles Leonard Tilley my finance minister, and the Hon. Charles Fisher my Attorney General; I was Premier and and President of the Council. We went around the country speaking at different places and educating public opinion throughout the province. We held the General Elections and the people not only reversed their previous decision, but returned us power by a majority of four to one and thus New Brunswick gave the first victory for confederation only a little over four months after it had declared by a majority of three to one against it.

"The other provinces had now to be brought in. Nova Scotia was at that time under a Conservative Government, with Sir Charles Tupper as Premier, Joseph Howe, a British Government officer, and a Liberal of great influence, though naturally in favor of confederation, opposed it, because he was not one of the commissioners upon the conference. He had certain duties to perform in connection with the fisheries and as the Government supplied him with a steamer at certain seasons only, he had no choice but to go when the time arrived. When he returned from a trip to Hudson Bay and heard, the result of the conference, he, took a hostile attitude towards it and opposed it in every way possible. The result was that confederation was a real issue in Nova Scotia although, as with the other provinces, the division was not on strictly party lines. However, the Government never dared put it to the people; a sufficient number of the opponents of the measure being brought over by practical means and confederation won in Nova Scotia by a vote of the Legislature without ever having been submitted to the people.

"I do not think that Sir Jno. A. Macdonald and the Hon. Geo. Brown, ever acted together upon any question before they came on the Napoleon to Charlottetown, and after the defeat of the Liberals in New Brunswick, under Mr. Tilley, I do not think they ever came together upon any subject again.

"When Upper and Lower Canada, by vote of Legislature, decided in favor of confederation Sir John A. Macdonald became Premier of all the confederated provinces. He selected Samuel Tilley as his finance minister, George E. Cartier as his Attorney-General, and Sir Hector Langevin, myself, and others, as the members of his cabinet. He then went to the country and was sustained by a large majority, consequently forming the first ministry under confederation.

"Thus was laid the foundation of our glorious Dominion which has since proved such a magnificent success and which, I am fully convinced is destined to become one of the greatest nations under the sun."

RUDOLPHE PLAMONDON.

The young Canadian tenor, Rodolphe Plamondon, is achieving great success at present in London society, invitations pouring in upon him for concerts and musical matinees which tend to show that he is quite a favorite already in the great metropolis.

On the 22nd of June, he dined and sang with Madame Melba, at the residence of Lord and Lady Feo Stert, receiving a great number of congratulations for his beautiful voice. On the 27th, the Earl and Countess of Connemara gave a grand recital, at which H. R. H. the Prince of Wales was present, and in which our young compatriot took part. He was presented during the evening to the Prince who highly complimented him, expressing at the same time a desire to hear him again soon.

A concert was given June 30th, by Lord and Lady O'Neill at which he sang, and on the 4th of July he was, with Madame Melba, listed on the programme of Mrs. Newman, they are to sing again together on the 14th instant before the Prince and Princess Christian, of Denmark.

Rodolphe Plamondon is a native of Montreal, having been sent by his parents, three years ago, to study the 'cello in Paris; possessing a very fine voice, he was induced to develop it and now promises to be one of the coming tenors, although still giving up part of his time to his instrument. Strange to say, he sang very little before leaving this city, notwithstanding that he received great compliments after singing once or twice in the Cathedral (St. Peter's), and Notre Dame Church. He is not quite 22 years old yet, and stands about six feet and is a fine specimen of manhood.

three boys and four girls. He took up the study of law at eighteen, having entered a lawyer's office before that time, and passing his examinations successfully, was admitted to the bar. He then entered into partnership with the late John M. Johnston, who was at that time considered to be at the head of his profession. Subsequently Mr. Mitchell abandoning the practice of law, entered into partnership with the late Mr. John Haws, in the ship-building business, which was then one of the leading industries of New Brunswick. The firm built some fifteen or twenty ships and it was on account of the wrecking of the first of these, through want of coast lights that Mr. Mitchell afterwards turned his attention to one of the great works of his life, viz., the organization of an efficient coast light service.

He entered into Parliment, defeating the member for the county of Northumberland, and continued to represent that county for many years. He entered the Cabinet as a representative without office. It was during this time that the Liberal party was defeated while espousing the cause of Confederation. Under the leadership of Mr. Mitchell the party shortly afterwards went to the country and was sustained.

After Confederation Mr. Mitchell went into the Dominion Parliament and became the first Minister of Marine and Fisheries which department was at that time created, and which is to-day one of the most important departments of the Cabinet. He took a deep interest in improving river navigation, coast lighting, and railroad facilities, and during his regime great advance was made in these important undertakings. In selecting a location for the Intercolonial railroad a struggle arose between different parts of New Brunswick, and although Mr. Mitchell succeeded in having it put through his part of the country, in doing so he created opposition which lasted for the rest of his political career.

During Mr. Mitchell's term he organized a fleet of ten vessels to guard the three mile limit and introduced a great many other valuable innovations.

He remained in politics until the general elections of 1891, when he was defeated, since which time he has lived in retirement.

STORIES OF DEEDS OF BRAVERY

SPANIARDS FOUGHT BRAVELY

Roosevelt Was in the Fight and Went About Encouraging His Men.

WASHINGTON, July 13. — Sergt. Ousler, of the regular army, the man who carried Hamilton Fish to the rear after the first Santiago fight, arrived in Washington a few days ago to get the commission that was promised him for his gallant work on that occasion. His term of service was up several days before the fight took place, but he stayed on with his outfit, over time, in order to be in at the beginning of the game before the heights of Santiago.

"That story about Assistant Surgeon Church, the young Washington medico of the rough riders, who dressed a fallen man's wound away out ahead of the line amid a hail of Mauser bullets, has been published, I see," said Ousler, "but the coolness of that young fellow wasn't even half described. While he was making an examination of his wounded comrade, paying no attention to the whistle of the bullets, a young private of the rough riders who had been a college mate of Church at Princeton yelled over to him from a distance of about twenty feet—he was in with half a dozen fellows doing sharpshooters' work from behind a cluster of bushes—to ask how badly the patient was hurt. The young surgeon looked over his shoulder in the direction whence the private's voice proceeded and he saw his former chum grinning in the bushes.

"'Why, you whelp!' said Church, with a comical grin on his face, 'how dare you be around here and not be killed!'

"Then he went on fixing the wounded man, and he remained right there with him until the arrival of the litter that he had sent to the rear for.

"In my cavalry outfit there was a fellow with whom I soldiered out West four or five years ago. He was a crack baseball pitcher, and he would rather play ball than eat, any time. He got a Mauser ball plumb through the biceps of his right arm early in the engagement. I never saw a man so mad over a thing in my life. The wound pained him a good deal, but it wasn't the pain that hurt him so much. I met him at the rear after the scrap was over. He had tried to go on shooting with his carbine, but he couldn't make it go with his left hand and arm alone, and so he had to drop back. He was alternately rubbing his arm and scratching his head when I came across him.

RIGHT IN HIS PITCHING ARM

"'Hurt much?' I asked him.

"'Hurt, nothing!' said he, scowling like a savage; 'but did you ever hear of such luck as this, to get plugged right in my pitching arm? Why the deuce didn't they get me in the neck, or somewhere else, anyhow? I'll never be able to pitch another game. I'll bet $2, for these muscles are going to contract when the hole heals up,' and he went on swearing to beat the band because the Spaniards hadn't let him have it 'in the neck, or somewhere else.'

"One of the fellows in the rough riders, an Oklahoma boy, got a ball clean through his campaign hat, which was whirled off his head and fell about five feet away from him. He picked up the hat, examined it carefully, and said:

"'I'll have to patch that up with stitching, plaster, or I'll get my hair sunburnt.' The fun of it was, that his hair was about the reddest I ever saw.

"Roosevelt was some place ahead of the line during the whole scrap, moving up and down with a word here and there to the company and troop commanders. One of the rough riders from New York followed Roosevelt around a good deal and watched him narrowly, and then he turned to one of the men alongside him and said:

"'And yet, by jing, a couple of years ago we people in New York didn't think Teddy knew enough to review a parade of cops.'

"There wasn't a single case of the yellows during the entire fracas. There wasn't a man that tried to edge behind the fellow in front of him, and it's a good thing the skirmish was executed in extended order by direct command, for column formation wouldn't have done at all. The men would have made it extended order anyhow. They all wanted to be in front, and the further in front the better. We had to do a good deal of firing for general results, on account of the screen, from the shelter of which the Spaniards fought, but there was some very brave and chesty ducks on the other side, who stood right out in the open and blazed away at men in our line that they picked out deliberately. These nervy Spaniards got plenty of credit from our men for their rameness, too. One of them, a young, small-looking fellow, stood on a little level plateau within dead easy range, letting us have it as fast as he could load for fully five minutes before he went down. If he wasn't simply crazy with the excitement of the game, then he surely was about as game a kid as they make 'em. He was noticed by about a dozen men near me, and one of them said:

NERVY LITTLE SPANIARD.

"'That little monkey's too good, and I guess I'll just let him have one or two.'

"'Ah, let him alone,' said another fellow; 'there are so few like him in that bunch on the other side that he ought to have a show for his taw alley.'

"The nervy little Spaniard's work became altogether too accurate and vicious, however, and he got a volley from about a dozen of our men, and he went down in a heap and rolled down the hill like a log from his little rock table.

"While there wasn't a single case of the yellows on our side, it would be plain tommyrot to say that none of us was nervous. I was a heap nervous for one, and I've been in the outfit a long time, and I heard a lot of the roughies say, after the scrap was over that they saw the gates ajar in a whole lot of different colors by the time the action was fully under way. One of the rough-ides, an Illinois fellow that had to be simply pushed back two or three times, he was so eager to break out of the line air by his lonesome and go at 'em single-handed, was talking with one of his friends after the firing had ceased:

"'I never felt so wabbly in my life,' he said, 'and it was nothing but pure hysterics that kept me going. I had to keep saying to myself all the time: "Steady, there, old fellow, and see to it that you don't welch,' and every time I tussled with a thing like this I made a jump forward and got out of line.'

"One of the rough riders from New York, an educated fellow, who probably had his little whirl at playing the horses when he had nothing else to do, said after the fight was over:

"'By jove, but that games more nerve sapping than dallying with 100 to 1 shots.

"I had often read about men in action dodging bullets out of nervousness, but I never took any stock in them stories until this fight. Then I found that it was true. Men do dodge bullets. I caught myself doing it half a dozen times, and all the other fellows did it. They didn't dodge all the time, but only when the Spaniards were engaged in volley firing. When the sound of the volley reached them, although the volley's bullets had long passed them, they involuntarily gave little ducks of the head, like a man does in a boxing match. They didn't know they were doing it. I called the attention of one of my bunkies, who fought alongside of me, to his imbecile game of ducking his head, and he turned to me and said:

CACTUS FOOLED THEM.

"'Why, you jay, I've been watching you do the same thing for the last fifteen minutes,' and he was right.

"There's a mean kind of a squat cactus growing around the woods down there, and the digs of the cactus point fooled a lot of the men into believing that they had been pinked in the legs. I saw one of the regulars, a corporal, sit down suddenly and rub his left leg down near his foot.

"'Been nipped?' asked one of his swaddies.

"'Yep, in the ankle,' was the reply.

"Then he pulled up his trouser leg, lowered his sock, and saw nothing but a little abrasion of the skin, from which the blood was trickling. He had struck his ankle against a cactus point. He got up suddenly, looked at the cactus for a second, and then trampled it into the ground.

"'I won't get fooled that way again,' he said. He got a ball in his left shoulder later on.

"A lot of the fellows were gagging and whistling and humming during the whole thing—not loud, but just loud enough to hear themselves. When the firing was the hardest, along the left of the line, a half dozen of the fellows, I heard afterward, struck up the coon song, 'Get Your Money's Worth,' and kept it going until another bunch in the same outfit drowned 'em out with another coon song, 'I Don't Like No Cheap Man,' which they twisted into 'I Don't Like No Cheap Spans.'

"There were very few of the fellows who were killed who didn't have some kind or other of a girl trinket on them when they were laid out in the rear. The officers went around and gathered these things together, making notes of them on pads that they carried around with them. A good many of these lockets and miniatures and little strands of sweethearts' hair were sent to the people back here of the boys killed, on the despatch boat Dolphin, that brought me over from Cuba.

SPANIARDS HAD AN ADVANTAGE.

"The Spanish soldiers had the bulge on us during the engagement in this respect, that they fought without any gear whatever except their rifles and ammunition belts. All of their individual belongings, such as knapsacks, haversacks, ponchos, and so on, they left behind them with storekeepers, and they didn't have any packing to do during the scrap. A good many of the troops on our side fought in practically heavy marching order—that is, they went into the fight that way. They didn't all come out that way, though. The temperature was something fierce, and the way they chucked gear right and left was a caution. Most of them hung on to their canteens, though, for water certainly tasted sweet in that heat. The thrown-away gear was nearly all gathered together after the rumpus was over, and the men got their belongings back, and without having anything said to them for throwing it away, either. It was funny to hear the talk of some of the rough riders at mess that night.

AMERICAN DISADVANTAGES.

Superior Arms of the Spaniards in the Fight in Cuba.

CAPT. KERR THINKS 300,000 MEN WILL BE NEEDED TO SUBDUE THE ISLAND.

NEW YORK, July 13.—"We are fighting a second-class, broken-down, impoverished nation. It is shameful to be forced to admit it, but they have more soldiers and better things to fight with than we have. They have smokeless powder for their artillery as well as their small arms. We will lose many a man and gun on that account. We cannot finish this war anyway without losing thousands of men. Unless the war is ended by diplomacy, nothing except the extermination of the Spanish soldiers in Cuba will take the island. We will have to have two hundred thousand more men, and we might as well get them out right away."

In this wise is Capt. J. B. Kerr, of the Sixth Cavalry, quoted by a Tampa correspondent of the Tribune. He came from Cuba among the wounded as the result of a Spanish bullet received in his arm last Friday week. He is a Kentuckian, well versed in warfare, outspoken, and knows whereof he speaks.

He says that the Americans' antiquated Springfield rifles are worse than useless against modern arms; three-fourths of the people of Cuba are in sympathy with Spain, and those who are not cannot be expected to render any effective assistance to American troops. Without action at Madrid, seeking peace, only a war of extermination, carried to the bitter end by three hundred thousand American troops, can make Cuba American.

POOR RIFLES THESE.

He said: "It is nothing but a crime to send men into the field carrying old pot-metal, antiquated muskets, called Springfield rifles, that have been in the hands of schoolboys and militia companies for 20 years. In the fight at Caney it was simply murderous. Every time one of them was fired it was like starting a signal fire, and it was followed instantly by a hail of bullets from Spaniards we didn't see, and who didn't know where we were until they saw the smoke from the Springfields going up out of the bushes.

"After a company armed with Springfields had fired a couple of rounds their position was plain to every Spaniard within rifle shot of them, and our men armed with Springfields were so surrounded with smoke that they could not see each other. All they could do was to blaze away blindly, with the comforting knowledge that even if they knew where the Spaniards were who were shooting them down their rifles probably would not carry far enough to hit them."

INCIDENT OF EL CANEY FIGHT.

After the American soldiers got close to El Caney Capt. Kerr described their hand-to-hand fight with the Spaniards, saying:

"When our men got into the ditch it was from three to five feet deep with dead Spaniards; there were only a few wounded. They must have sent their wounded to the rear during our advance. Most of the men in the ditch broke and ran when we reached them, but some of them stayed and fought like devils. We surrounded about twenty and captured them. One man, a private of the regulars, after he fired his last cartridge, pulled out a phial of poison, drank the contents, walked away a few paces, and fell among a heap of dead men.

"I got winged just as the fight was about over for the day. The Spaniard who shot me was not twenty yards away; his bullet entered my wrist as my arm was extended, and came out near the shoulder. I don't know what became of him, but I guess he's up there yet."

CUBANS ARE NO GOOD.

"What sort of fighters are the Cubans?" Kerr was asked.

"No fighters at all," he replied. "They are so used to running from the Spaniards that you'll never break them of it. At Caney the creeks and other safe hiding places were full of them. They have nothing in common with our soldiers and will not co-operate with them. They are Spanish in their language and their habits. Nearly all of the Spanish volunteers and guerillas are Cubans, and they are better fighters than the Cubans are on our side. The guerillas especially are dangerous. They fire from tree tops and thickets, where you can't see them, and they are crack shots. They all have Mausers."

Refugees getting away from Santiago.

Conceits of the War—At Coney Island; An Incentive to Cash, "Three for Five."

THE CHAPLAIN'S TALE.

Rev. Harry Jones Tells of the Battle of Santiago.

A chaplain's story of the sea fight at Santiago de Cuba is given herewith.

The narrator was Rev. Harry W. Jones, chaplain of the battleship Texas, who was in the thick of the battle, which ended with the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet:

"When the general alarm rang, I got my clothes on, went to the after port, and, sure enough, I saw the 'dogs of war.' The Maria Teresa was already out and fired her gun just as I looked through the port. I then went to my station. On my way I passed the after 6-pounder and 6-inch gun crews, and said 'Now, men, remember the Maine!'

"We will, Chaplain' was the cheerful reply. 'You just watch us; they will be sorry they ever saw the Texas.'

"Going through the handling room, I said: 'Well, men, how do you feel?'

"'Fine, sir; this is where we are going to prove what our ship is able to do.'

"And, God bless them, every man on board did his duty.

"The captain by this time had reached the bridge. The Texas had been dashing on to meet the foe, as she and the Brooklyn were the only two ships to the west of Morro when the enemy first came out. And I want to say right here that I am proud that I was an officer on board the Texas, as the way she plunged into the fight was simply astonishing. Dear old Texas, I love her!

SHOOTING WAS GRAND.

"The shooting was simply grand.

"During the first part of the battle Captain Philip had stood on the bridge, but about six minutes after ten o'clock he said to Lieutenant Commander Harber and Lieutenant Heilner, 'We had better go below now and stand on the outside of the conning tower.'

"They went below, and four minutes later a shell struck where they had been standing. A moment later another shell struck below the conning tower, hitting the ash chute and hammock netting."

After describing the destruction of the torpedo boats and recording the fact that the Maria Teresa and Oquendo were on fire the chaplain continued:

"Such shouting of delight I never heard before, but above the hurrahing I heard many a man say: 'Oh, fellows, thank God for that,' and many a prayer in silence went up to Him from the forward magazine and handling room of the Texas, for we all realized that God was with us.

"It was five minutes after eleven o'clock when the next joyous shout was heard. 'The third ship is on fire and headed for the beach,' was the welcome news shouted from above. This was the Vizcaya. At half-past eleven o'clock there was a terrific explosion on board of her, and one of the crack Spanish vessels was a total wreck."

The chaplain told a spirited tale of the chase after the Colon, her final beaching, and he then said:

PRAYED ON DECK.

No one would have thought we had been in a fight, except for the appearance of our deck. It seemed more as though we had had a snowstorm. While the band played on the New York, the men, by the request of Captain Philip, were praying on the deck of the Texas. I shall never forget that sight as long as I live. To see our gallant crew bowing their uncovered heads in the presence of God was a scene without comparison.

"I went to my room. When Lieutenant Haester came below I held out my hand to him and congratulated him, saying: 'I went to thank you, sir, for making the Texas a possibility.'

"'Oh, pshaw, chaplain!' he said, 'she is indeed, more than a possibility.'

"When we assembled in the ward room later Lieutenant Bristol said: 'Fellows, I move we start a subscription and present Admiral Cervera with a silver service, as it was a brave thing for him to come out to fight.'

"One officer after another said, 'I will give five dollars,' I sincerely hope that the suggestion will be worked up, so that Cervera may see that, although he was an enemy, and is yet, still officers of the American navy can appreciate a gallant act, just as he did in regard to Naval Constructor Hobson.

SOME HUMOROUS INCIDENTS.

"There were humorous incidents," said Mr. Jones, "as well as serious ones during the battle. At half past nine o'clock one of the officers was deeply occupied. Ensign Gise had been carefully raising a beautiful crop of auburn whiskers, but they had become too bushy to suit him, and he decided to have them trimmed in Van Dyke style. The barber was active and had trimmed one side (the starboard) down to perfection. Suddenly the alarm was sounded. Without waiting a moment 'Handsome Willie,' as we call him, hurried to his station with a decided list to his port so far as his whiskers were concerned. There was no list about his sight, however."

PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE.

A French Military Officer Tells of the Superiority of American Soldiers—Praises Their Work at Santiago.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Major De Grandpre, military attache of the French embassy, has just returned from the American headquarters near Santiago, where he has been observing for his government the progress of military operations. He paid a glowing tribute to the fighting ability of our soldiers.

"I have the most complete admiration for your men," said Major De Grandpre. "They are a superb body individually, and as an army, and I suppose not throughout the world is their such a splendid lot or fighting men. It is the fighting characteristic of the men which is most apparent. They are aggressive, eager for action, never needing the voice of an officer to push them forward. Another marked characteristic is the self-reliance of each man; what we call the character of "initiative." It is almost unknown in European armies, where every movement and the move to meet each action of the enemy awaits the initiative of an officer. But with your men they fight to the front, meeting each emergency as it occurs. This it has the effect of inspiring a morale among the troops, making them feel that success is assured and at the same time carrying disorder and depression to the ranks of the enemy."

Maj. De Grandpre says the fighting about Santiago is something entirely different from the warfare of European and other armies of modern times. The dense vegetation and tangle of tropical vines makes it impossible to observe the usual military formations. As a result there is little or no effort to fight in solid formation. Every man is fighting for himself, pushing forward through the shrubbery vines and tall grass. It is impossible to see the enemy. There is no line of battle ahead against which the assault is directed. Only through the reports of pickets and from the crack of rifles here and there ahead is it known that a fighting force is there. The main result of this is to bring the two fighting forces close together gradually until they are fighting at short range. As is always the case in close range fighting the casualties are far greater.

Major De Grandpre also speaks highly of the efficiency with which the American troops and supplies were started on the expedition and debarked in Cuba. This has come in for considerable criticism in this country but Major De Grandpre believes that considering the brief time allowed for equipping the expedition, remarkable results were secured.

European military expeditions such as those of England or France to Africa or other points, he says, are planned six months ahead, which allows ample time for working out the most minute details. The first word of Cervera's entering Santiago harbor was on May 16, and the vast military preparation was well under way and the expedition started early in the following month of June. This and the insignificant loss of men and animals during the landing, Maj. De Grandpre says, was an exceptionally good standard, judged by the best military standards. He says the foreign military observers were more concerned with this matter of embarking and disembarking troops, supplies and animals than with the actual manoeuvres, as the moving of large forces constitutes one of the most important problems of military science.

Maj. De Grandpre will remain here for about a week and will then return to Santiago if the place has not surrendered by that time. In case of a surrender he will proceed to Porto Rico or such other point as may become the centre of military operations.

WAR NOTES.

The United States SS. Harvard, Captain Charles E. Cotton, arrived at Portsmouth, N. H., on Friday with 800 Spanish prisoners on board.

The Spanish Government has decided to suspend the payment of salaries to all civil and military servants, as the money is needed for war expenses.

The British schooner, F. R. Nickerson, captured by American gunboats, off Cape Cruz, while attempting to run the blockade, has arrived at Key West in charge of a prize crew. She has a cargo of provisions.

An official note issued in Rome says an Italian squadron has been ordered to cruise in the waters off the coast of Spain. This action is probably taken in view of the expected operations of Commodore Watson's fleet.

The Governor of Ceuta complains of the unfitness of the guns and defences there. All the guns that can be spared are being shipped to the Balearic Islands. Admiral Camara's squadron, it is said, will be sent to Cartagena.

A POSTAL HINT.

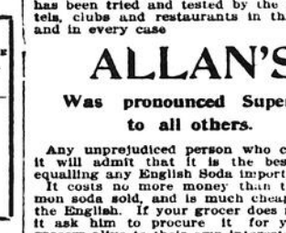
How the Department Seeks to Avoid Delay.

IN THE RETURN OF UNDELIVERED LETTERS.

(Special to the Star.)

OTTAWA, July 16.—The following notice to the public has been issued by the Post Office Department:

It is particularly requested that the name and address of the writer or sender of any letter, book-packet, legal, or commercial paper, sample or parcel should be printed or written on the upper left hand corner of the envelope, or wrapper, thus:



So that in case there may be any deficiency in the postage or address, the article may be returned or the sender communicated with by the local postmaster, and further trouble and delay thus avoided.

In the case of letters there will be an additional advantage, inasmuch as any letter bearing the sender's address, which may fail of delivery at the office of destination, will be returned direct to the sender, saving the charge of 3c., which would be made if returned through the Dead Letter Office.

It is pointed out that not only will the observance of this request save time to senders of letters, but that by greatly lessening the work of the dead letter branch of the department, as it will prevent large numbers of letters being sent to that branch, it will also lead to an appreciable lessening of the cost of that particular branch.

THE PASSION FLOWER.

(Special to the Star.)

BERLIN, Ont., July 16.—Mrs. Langmen, living on Courtland avenue, owns a very interesting plant, namely the passion flower. The bloom is about the size of the palm of your hand. In the centre are petals similar to nails, and represent the nails driven through the hands and feet of Christ on the cross. The centre of the flower is like a sponge, upon which the nails rest, and underneath the sponge is the crown of thorns, surrounding the crown sponge, and nails, is a ring of black dots, which represent the soldiers, and comprising an outer ring are twelve white leaves, which represent the twelve apostles. The flower in shape is like a sunflower, only much smaller. A great many people have called to see the plant within the past few days. It is said to be a very rare flower, and the only one probably ever seen around here. It grows in a flower pot.

SAFE FROM DEATH

Are Those Who Use Dodd's Kidney Pills For Kidney Diseases.

Proof is Abundant—Mr. T. H. O'Reilly, Motorman, Testifies That Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him of Diabetes.

TORONTO, June 3.—There have been very many cases of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Lumbago, Rheumatism, and other phases of Kidney Disease in this city during the past winter and spring. It is a noticeable fact, however, that only a few resulted in death. In the great majority of cases Dodd's Kidney Pills were used, and in every such case the disease was cured. The fatal cases were among those in which Dodd's Kidney Pills were not used. Every reasoning, thinking man and woman can draw but one conclusion from these facts.

One of those who was cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills was Mr. T. H. O'Reilly, motorman, No. 624, Toronto Street Railway, and who lives at No. 27 Niagara street.

Mr. O'Reilly says: "I was for three years a sufferer from Diabetes, which defied every attempt to cure. My case was an unusually severe one, and I was glad to test any and every remedy recommended to me. They all failed, however, until I gave Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial. A few doses convinced me that I had at last found a cure. I used only three boxes, but they swept the disease entirely out of my system. I heartily, confidently recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to any sufferer from Diabetes, as I know they are the only cure for that complaint."

Let any person suffering from any form of Kidney Complaint test Dodd's Kidney Pills. It will cost only fifty cents and will prove the worth of the medicine.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or sent on receipt of price, by The Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. 165 1

Most People Think All Soda Water Is Alike

But there's a great difference between our Soda Water and that generally sold. In the first place, we know how to make it, and next, we have the proper machinery, and the best ingredients.

We begin by passing the water through seven processes of Filtration. The gas is made from pure carbonate of Soda. The machinery pumps the water and gas into the cylinder, where it is raised to a pressure of 160 lbs. At the same time the two are constantly kept agitated, so that in bottling the most perfect pure Soda is produced. There is no other factory in town where so much care is taken. Allan's Soda has been tried and tested by the best hotels, clubs and restaurants in this town, and in every case

It costs no more money than the common soda sold, and is much cheaper than the English. If your grocer does not keep it ask him to procure it for you. All grocers alive to their own interests keep it in stock. You can get it in the best Hotels, Clubs and Restaurants. ASK FOR IT.

FACTORY IN FLAMES.

The Macdonald Tinware Manufacturing Premises Badly Damaged.

TENEMENTS WERE IN DANGER.

Firemen Had a Difficult Task to Keep the Fire From Spreading to Houses Around.

IT BURNED VERY FIERCELY.

The Building was Once an Oil Warehouse and the Floors Were Well Saturated.

The factory of the Macdonald Tinware Manufacturing Company, at 100 Nazareth street, St. Ann's Ward, was badly damaged by fire at an early hour this morning. The building was at one time, used as an oil warehouse, and the floors were well saturated with the inflammable material. The consequence was that once the fire got properly started it spread with great rapidity. The alarm was given at No. 3 Fire Station, at the corner of Wellington and Dalhousie streets, only a block away from the burning factory, but when the men from that station arrived at the scene the whole top flat was blazing fiercely.

The factory is surrounded on all sides by tenement houses, and so threatening was the appearance of the fire that a second alarm was turned in from box 42. That brought a lot of apparatus to the place, and a hard fight was commenced on the part of the firemen. It was about half-past five when the flames were discovered, and it was not until almost seven o'clock that the last of the firemen got their apparatus, in shape to return to the stations.

The part of the building in which the most damage was done was on the top flat, where most of the manufacturing was done. The fire appears to have started there, and although the lower flats were not much damaged by fire, the immense quantities of water poured into the place by the firemen caused a lot of damage. The men who were located at the rear of the burning building, had in hand the difficult task of preventing the spread of the flames to a large number of wooden sheds adjoining the factory belonging to the tenements in the vicinity. For the most part they were successful, but the people residing around the scene of the fire had an anxious hour or so until the danger of the fire spreading was over.

The cashier of the firm, who was on the scene, said it would be difficult to estimate the damage until an inspection of the building could be made, but he stated that the firm was well covered by insurance. In the basement a lot of damage would be done by water, as it was filled up almost level with the sidewalk. On the flat above were the offices of the firm fronting on Nazareth street, and in the rear on the same flat a lot of heavy machinery was located, which would also suffer considerably. Above that again, where the fire seems to have originated, the loss will be complete. Between ten and fifteen thousand dollars will likely cover it. The building is owned by Mr. A. A. Ramsay.

FRUIT AUCTION SALES.

An Active Week at the Great Fruit Mart.

HOW CALIFORNIA FRUITS AND TENNESSEE TOMATOES GO.

The large consumption of American fruit in Montreal is steadily on the increase. The City of Quebec is also a liberal buyer and is represented at every sale by Mr. Thomas Johnson for R. Bardon, and Mr. Pierre Rheaume, and occasionally by Mr. L. Beauchamp. The rapidity of the bidding and the quickness of the auctioneer is shown in the great quantities sold in such a short space of time, nine, ten and eleven carloads being distributed under the hammer in less than two hours. Yesterday six carloads and some sundry small lots were sold in one hour and twenty minutes, whilst a sale of one carload of 500 boxes of pears only took three minutes. Very few realize how interesting one of these sales is, especially to business men, who like to see quick work. It is well worth a visit. The fruit is brought over 3000 miles in refrigerator cars, and as the track runs on a siding right into the auction warehouse, there is no change of temperature. The carloads of beautiful plums, pears, peaches, apricots, figs, nectarines, etc., from California, the tomatoes from Tennessee and other fruits and vegetables from the States, are very quickly unloaded and placed in lots. Neat catalogues on fine stiff paper are printed for every sale. Each lot is numbered and sample boxes are temptingly displayed on the top of each lot, filling the whole of the Montreal Fruit Auction Company's warehouse. The intending purchaser takes a catalogue of each car and carefully examines the offerings before the sale. This part of the work takes about an hour. Then punctually at 2 o'clock the auctioneer commences, first with the looser ends and odd lots in the ware room or mounts on a Shedden waggon outside on the street, to sell several hundred or perhaps one thousand or more watermelons, or the same quantity of bananas. So rapid is the pace of auctioneer and buyer that this part consumes only a few minutes. Then all adjourn to the salesroom, where seats similar to those in the Academy of Music are provided for each buyer. A desk also is in front of each buyer. Every one has examined the fruit before entering this room and has his catalogue marked as to quality, price, etc.

Then the auctioneer calls off any alterations there may be, and every one corrects his catalogue. Then the fast and furious bidding commences, and the uninitiated on-looker not in the trade will be puzzled to know what they are all saying or buying, how the auctioneer can interpret it all, and stand the awful din and excitement that sometimes prevails, and go through the whole thing without error as he does, or how the buyers can follow the auctioneer. The auctioneer has an elevated rostrum, and desk like a pulpit, and is armed with a good sized gavel, with which he pounds the desk vigorously and often to keep order and concentrate attention. With lightning speed he sells off car after car, marking the lines sold with his blue pencil. With a ringing strong voice he calls the bids with pistol-shot emphasis. The eager bidders, many of whom have as strong lungs as the auctioneer, bid, shout, yell, gesticulate, and compete against each other; but it is really all more pleasant than it looks. They are a jolly lot these fruit buyers, and when in an almost incredibly short space of time a big sale is over; any temper exhibited in the heat of the conflict in the fruit auction arena is quickly forgotten. The auctioneer yesterday seemed to enjoy every bit of it, and at no part of the sale did he appear at all to be making "heavy weather" of it. Rapid as the sale has been, still more rapid is the disappearance of the six or seven thousand boxes sold. A whole street full of waiting expresses load them up and whirl them away to make room for more, to sell next day.

For the week ending July 14, the total sales are as follows: 8019 crates tomatoes, 160 boxes tomatoes, 2325 watermelons, 55 beans, 320 lemons, 2002 oranges, 2709 plums, 1760 peaches, 4426 pears, 26 cots, 62 apples; total 21,924. Messrs. Potter and Morin, auctioneers, conduct all these sales for the Montreal Fruit Auction Company.

GAOL INVESTIGATION.

The Attorney-General has instructed Messrs. Aylen and Chevrefils to hold an investigation into the Montreal gaol, at the request of Messrs. Gouin and Lacombe, members for St. James and St. Mary's divisions. The commissioners are the regular inspectors of the provincial institutions. The investigation is to be non-political and with a bearing especially upon a charge that a quantity of articles, including a hundred quilts, have lately been stolen.

THE STOCK MARKET.

A Week of Extreme Dulness—Most of the Buying for Investment.

The present week has been one of extreme dulness on the Stock Exchange, and the business was of a very narrow range. There were only 20 securities dealt in and three lines of bonds, the number of shares sold being 15,103, and of bonds $14,000. The dulness is seasonable, and is helped out by the fact that money is so plentiful and cheap that investors quickly picked up all dividend paying stocks that they could lay their hands upon. In fact, not only here, but also in New York there has been a decided scarcity of stocks on the market, which, of course, has quickly squelched speculation.

At the same time prices of all lines of securities have been firmly held, and most of those on the active list made gains during the week. Transportation interests were most largely dealt in, and Halifax Street probably attracted the greatest attention, going up from 266¾ on Monday to 267¾ on Thursday. Yesterday it sold at 264¾ ex-dividend of 2½ per cent. payable on the 1st of August.

War Eagle stayed pretty steadily between 260 and 263, closing at 262. The sales aggregated 5750, and the stock seems to be pretty firmly held. The recent excitement having died out, a healthier tone prevails.

The house and stable of John Eldon, at Winnipeg, were destroyed by fire on Friday morning. Two cows were burned to death.

A man may stand under the running slip-noose of death and not realize it. Diseases, fatal to both body and brain, like nervous prostration and exhaustion, creep upon a man slowly. A man overworks. Then he neglects his meals, and pays no attention to his digestion. His liver gets sluggish. His appetite falls off. The blood is improperly nourished and becomes impure. The brain and nerve tissues do not receive proper nutriment and are befogged with the poisons in the blood. The man cannot sleep or eat.

Then comes nervous prostration, and exhaustion. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the appetite hearty, the digestion perfect, the liver active, the blood pure, the brain clear and the nerves steady. It makes pure blood and healthy flesh, muscle, brain and nerve tissue. It cures nervous diseases. No honest dealer will urge an inferior substitute for the little extra profit there is in it.

"About fourteen years ago," writes C. P. Williams, Esq., of Perrows, Campbell Co., Va., "I had a severe attack of sickness. I became very despondent about my situation. I thought I was going to starve to death. I could not rest at night and could not describe my feelings. I employed three or four doctors and they pronounced my disease to be Nervous Prostration. I was weakened down almost to a skeleton, and every body thought I was going to die. I procured two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and they made a perfect cure of me. My system built up rapidly. From a living skeleton I became robust and healthy. I am 67 years of age and am enjoying good health."

Something to His Advantage

As she interrupted me her voice rose almost to a scream.

"I must speak to you—I will! I can endure no longer. Sit down and let me speak to you."

Perceiving that, unless I made a scene, I should have to let her at least say something, I did as she requested and sat down. I wished that she would sit down also, instead of standing in front of the door, twisting her hands and body, and pulling faces—for only so can I describe what seemed to be the nervous spasms which were continually causing her to distort her attenuated countenance.

"I never wished to marry him," she began. "He made me."

"I suppose you mean that he made you in the sense in which all ladies, when their time comes, are made to marry."

"No, I don't. I never wanted to marry him—never. He was almost as great a stranger to me as you are. Why should I marry a perfect stranger, without a penny to his name—me, who had been a single woman, and content to be a single woman for nearly forty years?"—I could not tell her; I am sure I had no notion—"This house belongs to me; it was my mother's house before me. He came in one day and asked me if I wanted a waiter—came in with hardly a shoe to his foot. It was like his impudence! I did not want a waiter, and I told him so; but he mesmerized me, and made me have him!"

"Mesmerized you, Mrs. Barnes! You are joking!"

"I'm not joking." To do her justice any one who looked less like joking I never saw. "I've always been a nervous sort of a body. Directly he saw me he could do anything he liked with me. He was always mesmerizing me. In less than a month he had mesmerized me into marrying him. As soon as we were married I began to think that he was mad!"—In that case, I told myself, that most promising couple must have been something very like a pair!—"He was always asking me if I would like to sell myself to the devil. He used to say that he would arrange it for me if I wanted. Then he used to dream out loud—such dreams! Night after night I've lain and listened to him, frightened half out of my wits. Then he took to walking in his sleep. The only thing he brought into the place was a little wooden box, tied up in a pocket handkerchief. I could never make out what was in this box. Once when I asked him, I thought he would have killed me. One night, in the middle of a dream, he got out of bed and went downstairs. Although I was so frightened that my knees were knocking together, I went after him. He came in here. This box of his was in that bureau—it's in that bureau now." She pointed to a tall, old-fashioned bureau, which was just behind my chair. "He kept muttering to himself all the time; I could not catch all that he said, he spoke so low, but he repeated over and over again something about the devil. He took this box of his out of the bureau. He did something to it with his hands. What he did I don't know. I suppose there was a secret spring about it, or something. But though I've tried to make it out, over and over again since then, I've never been able to find the secret of it to this day. When he handled it the top flew open. He put the box down upon that table; and I stood watching him in the open doorway—just about where I am standing now—without his having the least notion I was there. I believe, that, if he had known, he would have killed me."

"Do you mean to say, while he was doing all you have described, that he was asleep?"

"Fast asleep."

"You are quite sure, Mrs. Barnes, that you also were not fast asleep?"

"Not me I almost wish I had been. I've never had a good night's sleep from that hour to this. I've grown that thin, for want of it, that I'm nothing but a skeleton. As I was saying, when he had opened it, he put the box down on the table. He gave a laugh, which made my blood run cold." She struck me as being the sort of woman whose blood on very slight provocation would run cold. "Then he took something out of the box. When I saw what it was I thought I should have fainted."—A nervous paroxysm seemed to pass all over her; her voice dropped to a whisper: "It was a woman's finger."

"A woman's finger, Mrs. Barnes?"

"It was a woman's finger. There was a wedding ring on it; it was too small for the finger, so that the ring seemed to have eaten into the flesh. He stood staring at this wedding ring."

meet. Why, if I had secured the evidence

"What! staring! and he was fast asleep!"

"I dont know much about sleep-walkers; he was the first I ever saw, and I hope he'll be the last. But I do know that when he was sleep-walking, his eyes were wide open, and he used to stare at things which I suppose, he wanted to see, in a way which was horrible to look at. It was like that he stared at this wedding ring. Then he said, right out aloud: 'I'll cut you off one of these fine days, and see how you look upon my finger.' Then he put the finger down on the table, and out of the box he took three other fingers and a thumb."

"You are quite sure they were real, genuine, human fingers, Mrs. Barnes?"

"I know fingers when I see them, I suppose. You hear me out. He placed them on the table, nails uppermost, close together, just as the fingers are upon your own hand. He spoke to them. 'You'll never play any more of your devil's tricks with me, that's a certainty!' he said. And he leered, and grinned, and chuckled, more like a demon than a man. Then he took something out of the box, wrapped in a piece of calico. I saw that on the calico there were stains of blood. Out of it he took the palm of a woman's hand. Raising it to his lips, he kissed it, looking like the perfect devil that he was. He put it down palm downwards, on the table, and he did something to the fingers. Then"—Mrs. Barnes gave utterance to a gasping sound, which it did not do one good to hear—"he picked it up, and I saw that by some devil's trickery, he had joined the separate parts together, and made it look as if it were a perfect hand."

She stopped. I do not mind owning that if I had had my way, she would have stopped for good. Unfortunately, I did not see my way to compel her to leave her tale unfinished.

"I suppose that at that dreadful sight I must have fainted, because the next thing I can remember is finding myself lying on the floor, and the room all dark. For some time I dared scarcely breathe, far less move; I did not know where my husband might be. How I summoned up courage to enable me to creep upstairs, to this hour I do not know. When I did I found my husband fast asleep in bed."

"You really must excuse my asking, Mrs. Barnes, but do you happen to recollect what you ate for supper that night, and are you in the habit of suffering from nightmare?"

"Nightmare! That was the first time I watched him. I have watched him over and over again since then. I soon found out that regularly every Friday night he walked in his sleep, and went downstairs, and gloated over that dreadful hand."

"You say that he did this every Friday. Are you suggesting that with him Friday was some sort of anniversary?"

"I don't know. What was I to think? What was anyone to think? Don't laugh at me—don't! You think I am a fool, or lying. You shall see the hand for yourself, and tell me what you make of it. I will show it you, if I have to break his box open with a hammer."

In a state of considerable, and evident, excitement, she crossed the room. I rose to enable her to approach the bureau. She took a small canvas bag out of the pocket of her dress. Out of this bag she took some keys.

"He has my keys. He made me give him them. He never knew that I had duplicates. But I always have had. He seldom went outside the front door; I think he was afraid of being seen in the streets. Whenever he did go, I used to lock myself in here, and try to find the spring which opened the box. I had an idea that there might be something in it which I had not seen. I will open it now, if I have to smash it into splinters."

She let down the flap of the bureau. Within there were nests of drawers, and one small centre cupboard. This cupboard she unlocked. When she had done so, she gave a stifled exclamation. "It has gone!" she said.

I stooped beside her. "What has gone?"

She turned to me a face which was ghastly in its revelation of abject terror. Her voice had suddenly degenerated into a sort of panting hiss.

"The box! It was here last night. After he had gone I unlocked the bureau, and I looked, and saw it was there., She caught me by the arm, she gripped me with a strength of which, in her normal condition, I should imagine her incapable. "He must have come back like a thief in the night and taken it. He may be hidden somewhere in the house this moment.'

CAUTION.

HOUSE OF LORDS SCOTCH WHISKY

The following letter from the Sole Purveyor to the House of Lords, dated 7th April, 1898, states the true facts of the case—that Saunders has been the sole Scotch Whisky supplied to the House of Lords for the last nineteen years, except ten cases and one cask, supplied by another firm:

H.B.

HOUSE OF LORDS,
Refreshment Department,
7th April, 1898.

I hereby certify that from 1st January, 1879, to the 31st March, 1898, the whole requirements of the House of Lords in Scotch Whisky have been supplied by Messrs. James Saunders & Co., Ltd., under their mark, H.B. about 10 cases and one cask of which were supplied by another firm.
(Signed), WILLIAM AGGAS.

When 600 hypercritical connoisseurs (members of the House of Lords) fix upon a single brand of spirits as a favorite beverage, the fact speaks pretty plainly of its exceptional claims.—The Indian Leader, Calcutta, May 14, 1897.

HAVANA IS HUNGRY.

ST. THOMAS, W.I., July 16.—A despatch from Havana says the city is now facing a real condition of famine. There has been no bread or fresh meat obtainable for fifteen days, and a mob of 10,000 gaunt-looking, hungry men and women assembled around Gen. Blanco's palace on July 3. The Captain-General appeared, and made a speech, urging the mob to be patient a while longer, and assuring them that food was coming.

The Alberta Irrigation Company, of Lethbridge, N. W. T., begins immediately upon the largest system of irrigation works yet attempted in Canada. The district to be covered by the system requires only a supply of water to become excellent agricultural country.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS.

The Great Gathering in London This Month.

WHERE THE WORLD'S LEADERS OF SABBATH EDUCATION ARE MEETING.

Three world renowned conventions mark the month of July of the present year—the International Christian Endeavor Convention at Nashville, the World's Young Men's Christian Association Convention at Basle, Switzerland, and the World's Sunday School Convention in London, England.

The first World's Sunday School Convention was held in London in 1889. The idea among leaders in the work at that time was to have a gathering of a similar nature every nine years. Accordingly, the second convention was held in the British metropolis in 1889, and the third one was arranged for July 11-15 of the present year.

The year 1880 was the centenary of the Sunday school movement. London did handsomely in arranging for the commemoration services. Her Majesty the Queen expressed a desire, through the Archbishop of Canterbury, to become patron of the movement, which the London people were bestirring themselves to commemorate. The Lord Mayor of London presided at the inaugural conference in connection with the centenary, and in the name of the city placed the Guildhall at the disposal of the committee in charge for the first meeting. The meetings were held in the Guildhall and the Albert Memorial Hall, in the City Temple and in Spurgeon's Tabernacle, at Exeter Hall and at the Crystal Palace. On one of the mornings of this convention the statue in bronze to the memory of Robert Raikes was unveiled in the gardens on the Thames embankment by the Earl of Shaftesbury. Between forty and fifty Canadians were at this convention. Among the subjects treated were: The past history of the Sunday school system; position and prospects of Sunday schools on the continent of Europe; the Sunday school, the best means of enabling the church to fulfil its responsibility for the religious instruction of the young; and the future of the Sunday school system.

The delegation from Canada and the United States of America makes up a large and attractive party to the London gathering of 1898, pastors, teachers and well-known Sunday school workers of national reputation. A party of Canadians and Americans sailed from Boston on June the twenty-ninth on the Cunard steamer Catalonia, and arrived in London on the ninth of the present month. On the evening of Monday, the eleventh, a reception was tendered the delegates by the Lord Mayor of London at the Mansion House. The convention will run over twelve sessions, the greater number of which will be held in the City Temple on Holborn Viaduct. The formal opening took place on Tuesday forenoon. After the roll call addresses of welcome were given by the Marquis of Northampton, president of the London Sunday School Union, and by Edward Towers, chairman of the London committee.

The feature of the convention of 1898 is the reports of progress from the corners of the earth and the islands of the sea. Conferences are arranged for at which the relation of the Sunday school to foreign missions will be emphasized. "The work of the Holy Spirit," "The Bible," and "Teaching" are three of the main subjects on the programme. At the sessions to be held this year again at the Crystal Palace the primary department will be considered with blackboard and object teaching. Five thousand smaller scholars will sing at one of the sessions. The closing meeting will be held in Queen's Hall.

There are social events arranged for. A delegates' tea has been provided, and a garden reception similar to that tendered by the Earl of Aberdeen in 1889 will mark the convention of 1898.

Five excursions have been arranged for at the close of the convention. The first and shortest is from London to Paris and return, including Newhaven, Dieppe and Versailles. The second leaves London for Antwerp and Brussels, Cologne, Coblence, Heidelberg, Baden-Baden, Lucerne, Paris and back to London. The third reaches Geneva from London by way of the French Capital. From Switzerland the excursionists will run north to the Rhine attractions. A few centres in Germany will be visited, after which a little time will be given to Leamington, Stratford-on-Avon, Warwick, Birmingham and Chester, in England, and thence to those districts of Scotland in which Melrose, Dunbuy, Stirling and Glasgow are centres. The fourth party will cross the channel from London to Paris, make their way to Turin and Rome, continue through the picturesque route via Cortona to Florence and Venice, and then by way of Heidelberg and Cologne return to England. The fifth excursion will run through France, Germany, the Rhine region, Belgium and Britain.

MAKE STEAMERS SAFE.

(Special to the Star.)

QUEBEC, July 16. — The coroner's jury upon the case of the lad Sigouretti, who was drowned a few days ago in the St. Lawrence before the steamer Queen, which made no effort to save him, returned a verdict to the effect that deceased came to his death through asphyxia from drowning. They also found that Captain Sample, of the Queen, should have made more efforts to save the life of the deceased, and that the life boats carried by the steamer were defective. The jury regretted that the Queen was not officially inspected and recommended that the boats and tackle of all ferry steamers be regularly inspected at the opening of navigation each year and kept in proper order and that an inspector be appointed for this purpose who shall also make at least two inspections during the season of navigation. Great indignation and apprehension are openly expressed here on all side in the inefficiency of the life boats and tackle on almost all of the local ferry and market steamers, while some of the steamers themselves are said to be none too safe. A strong agitation on the subject is now on foot and may have far reaching results.

MR. SIFTON'S PLANS.

(Special to the Star.)

WINNIPEG, July 16.—Hon. Mr. Sifton, Minister of the Interior, states in an interview here, that arrangements had been made with the Canadian Pacific Railway for the extension of the Pipestone branch to Moose Mountain and of the Stonewall branch northward to settlements west of Lake Manitoba. Mr. Sifton estimates that the output of gold from the Yukon this season will be about ten million dollars. The excess of revenue in the district is considerably over the expenditure.

Calvin Speck, aged 12 years, was drowned in the Ottawa River at Torbolton on Friday.

POURPALERS FOR PEACE.

Spain Seeks Honorable Means of Ending the War.

GENERAL BLANCO, HOWEVER, WANTS HOSTILITIES TO CONTINUE.

LONDON, July 16.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: "The Government has definitely decided to open peace negotiations without delay, proposing as a basis the renunciation of all rights over Cuba, and the immediate discussion of any other reasonable proposals the United States may make."

The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "Despite the official denials, it is strongly suspected that preliminary negotiations for peace are already under way in the shape of indirect enquiries regarding the terms of America, which Spain might accept. It is asserted that M. Cambon, the French Ambassador at Washington; and Sir Henry Drummond Wolffe, British Ambassador at Madrid, are acting respectively on behalf of Spain and America, in the conduct of enquiries which at present are quite informal.

"Duke Almodovar de Rio, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Senor Camazo, Minister of Public Instruction and Public Works, have been appointed by the Government to conduct the negotiations.

"Senor Camazo said yesterday to a newspaper representative: "I cannot talk on the subject, as any indiscretion might spoil the work and create difficulties.

"Probably the news of the termination of hostilities will not be published until the conditions are arranged. No suspension of arms will precede the negotiations, because the scarcity of food in Cuba would cause the armistice to operate disadvantageously to the Spaniards, who might consume their remaining stores during its continuance. In any case, the Government is absolutely decided on peace. The Queen Regent has had three interviews with Lt.-Gen. Correa, Minister of War, and has persuaded him to cease his opposition to peace. Pressing despatches in the same sense have been sent to Captain-General Blanco.

DUKE ALMODOVAR DE RIO,
Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs, who has been entrusted with the peace negotiations.

"One of the chief reasons which have driven the Government toward peace is a fear that the Americans may get a footing in Porto Rico, thus establishing a stronger claim to include that island in their demands for territory."

NEW YORK, July 16.—The Herald publishes a despatch from Havana, in which Captain-General Blanco declares that he is opposed to peace. "For my own part," he said, "I shall always opppose all negotiations for peace which have not, as their foundation the acknowledgment of Spanish sovereignty in Cuba. This sovereignty has been universally recognized, and it has been disputed by no one since the discovery of the island. I have heard no one speak in favor of peace, with a country, which, in return for all it owes to us, goes to the extreme point of believing us to be intentional authors of the explosion of the Maine, that declares we are not capable of guaranteeing the safety of foreign vessels in our harbors, and which, against all reason and without any other right than that of mere strength, attempts to take away from us a territory that has belonged to Spain absolutely for four hundred years, and which forms an integral part of the Spanish monarchy."

"REMEMBER THE MAINE."

The Indiana's Men Sent a Shell So Marked Into the Vizcaya.

NEWARK, N. J., July 16.—Augustus Keller, of this city, is one of the gunners aboard the battleship Indiana. In a letter to his brother Charles, Keller claims the distinction of having fired the first shot in the naval battle off Santiago, a shell from one of the forward thirteen-inch guns.

Keller said that a thirteen-inch shell from his vessel went clear through one of the torpedo boats and then exploded, sending the boat to the bottom. Toward the end of the battle, he writes, when it was seen that the Vizcaya was almost defeated, the sailors of his turret scratched on one of the shells in big letters, "Remember the Maine." It was then run into the breech, and the gun carefully sighted. Every one was expectant as to the result of the shot. When the lanyard was pulled, Keilert says, the big shell was seen to strike the stern on the Vizcaya, tearing it to pieces and setting the vessel on fire.

WHY DEWEY WON.

Mr. Cunningham Graham Says "Most of Dewey's Gunners Were Englishmen."

LONDON, July 16. — Mr. Cunningham Graham, the former member of Parliament, who wrote a series of articles most insulting to Americans in the Westminster Gazette, has written a letter to the St. James's Gazette, saying that the excellent gunnery exhibited by Admiral Dewey's squadron was due to the fact that "most of the gunners were Englishmen," who were "decoyed from our Chinese squadron by promise of $500 monthly." Mr. Graham urges that this matter be brought to the attention of Parliament.

THE BOURGOGNE HORROR.

To the Editor of the Star:

Sir,—From the time of the announcement of the dreadful catastrophe that has befallen the steamer of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, La Bourgogne, the newspapers have reproduced the most odious accusations regarding the conduct of the crew in this sad circumstance. When I was told of the pretended facts which had happened and asked if I had been officially informed of them, I protested with indignation and have refused even for an instant to discuss them. I have lived for a long time among our maritime population on the coasts of Normandie Bretagne and Provence; I have had often opportunities to observe sailors of all nations; I know their sentiments of abnegation, and I am positive that it would be impossible to find a single sailor of any nation able to commit such an infamy as that charged to our unfortunate crew.

It would be useless for me to defend the captain and his officers; they died at their posts, thus giving until the last minute an example of abnegation, of which I was speaking, and were engulfed with those they could not save. There were eighteen officers of the deck and engine departments, and only the second purser and three engineers saved themselves by leaping into the sea after having accomplished their whole duty.

Immediately after the collision each officer and man of the crew reached the posts assigned to them in such a case. Several starboard lifeboats had been smashed by the bowsprit of the Cromartyshire; three others were lowered and were able to rescue a number of people floating. One of the lifeboats loaded with women and children had been smashed by the falling of one of the smokestacks.

The lifeboats on the port side had been rendered useless by the heavy list of the steamer to starboard. The crew, aided by some of the passengers, succeeded, however, to lower two of them, in which women and children took place. Unfortunately, these boats had to be slipped along the hull of the steamer to be lowered and they capsized. It is only at the last minute, when all efforts were of no avail, that the steamer was about to disappear and upon the order of their chiefs, that the sailors jumped into the sea, and so late that of 60 seamen, 25 only were not engulfed in the suction. The three lifeboats that had been launched after having unloaded their passengers in safety on board the Cromartyshire, made three more trips and brought all the survivors.

Capt. Henderson, of the Cromartyshire, has made to the Consul of Halifax a statement declaring that the appreciations attributed to him by the critics in the newspapers are absolutely false, and that he is pleased to testify of the courage shown by the sailors of La Bourgogne, who returned several times from his ship to the place of the accident to save more lives.

The firemen and coal passers were down in the engine-room, until the end striving against the water which was invading it to secure the good working of the pumps. It was only five or six minutes before the steamer sank that the chief engineer, who also died victim of his duty, gave at two different times two blows of his whistle signalling to cease the work and hasten away. Part of these men only were rescued at sea by the lifeboats and rafts. The three engineers saved succeeded in cutting the ropes fastening two of the rafts on the grating of the engine-room, and owing to these rafts floating after the steamer went down saved the life, to a number of people. Two facts were brought to my attention by two passengers, which may have, being misunderstood, started those accusations of brutality and barbarism. One of them, a young man, showed me a scar on his cheek, saying that it had been inflicted with an oar in repulsing him by one of the men, passenger or sailor he does not know, who was on one of the rafts. He added that he did not blame him, as the people were so numerous on that raft (18 or 20) that the platform was one foot under water, and certainly if he had tried to climb on it the raft would have capsized and caused the death of all on it.

The other passenger told me of an identical fact. One of his friends repulsed by the blow of an oar from a sailor, but he also said that there were a score on his raft, and that had his friend attempted to climb on it he would most likely not be here to tell of the fact. What was the duty in these two cases of those in charge of the rafts, repulse one man who might have been able to find succor elsewhere or let twenty perish?

Mention was made of another lifeboat in which very few people took place; I can make no criticism, not knowing the reasons which may have induced those on board to act so, but in that boat there was not one sailor of the crew.

All these facts were reported to me by passengers. Several relatives of the unfortunate victims have questioned themselves, Friday night, the cabin and dining-room waiters saved, they have been able to obtain a few details about the place where they stood at the last moment and on the words they spoke to those waiters which were warning the passengers to go up on deck. They, like myself, have had the proof that those inventions of stabbing with knives and other barbarisms were false. If I insist on this point it is because I wish that the families already so afflicted by the loss of dear ones, not to have another grief in thinking that their wives and children might have been subject to acts of savagery. It is false! The passengers, men, women, and children, who, finding safety by remaining on the steamer instead of jumping in the sea where the lifebelts would have supported them, had grouped themselves around the bridge, where the captain was at his post with his officers. Even the anguish of their near end had been spared by the calm, and the encouragement given them by the captain.

We all partake deeply in their grief, as they know, and it is inhuman to increase it by misrepresented and false statements.

The entire crew of La Bourgogne did its duty until the last moment.
