

Highwater centennial satellite launch site

MONTREAL (CP) — Celebrations marking the centennial of Confederation in 1867 may include the launching of the first space satellite from a Canadian base.

Under present plans, a 40-pound payload will be shot into orbit early in 1967 from Highwater, Que., 50 miles southwest of Sherbrooke and a few miles north of the Vermont border.

Shot into orbit is accurate because the satellite will be fired from a modified 16-inch gun and will be assisted to its 500-mile zenith by a three-stage rocket once the 2,000-pound carrier—called Martlet IV—is in flight.

Canada's first spacecraft, Alouette 1, was launched in September, 1962, from Point Arguello, Calif., to study disruptions in the ionosphere which interfere with radio communications.

When the gun-fired satellite moves into orbit carrying highly sensitive instruments, it will have a 38-year-old Canadian science professor and the United States Army to thank for giving the project its start.

Operation HARP—High Altitude Research Program—is the brainchild of Prof. G. V. Bull, Ph.D., University of Toronto, and now of McGill University, Montreal. HARP is primarily a science experiment and is operated as a project of McGill's Space Research Institute.

CHEAPER THAN ROCKETS
HARP is currently costing $2,500,000 but its acquisitions in equipment, land and material run to much more than that, and more than 500 persons are at work on various aspects of the experiment.

The most significant thing about HARP achievement is not that it is able to investigate space better but that it can do it as well as rocket-powered projects at a substantial reduction in cost.

For example, the U.S. Scout rocket with a payload of less than 200 pounds costs at least $1,000,000 or $5,000 a pound to orbit.

But the HARP goal is to stay within $25,000 per vehicle and $28,000 per payload so that our orbiting payload cost will be about $700 a pound and the total shot about $33,000," says Dr. Bull.

"If our plans are not interrupted, several satellites will be fired into orbit in rapid succession by the Highwater gun to dramatize the effectiveness and low cost of gun-launched vehicles."

HARP has placed Canada among the top launchers in the world in terms of the number of vehicles put into the ionosphere in a year. Dr. Bull says that next year 300 to 500 units will be fired into the ionosphere. "I think that possibly only the U.S. will shoot more than this—of course the Soviet Union may be doing as much but they keep their figures to themselves."

COST NOW SHARED
Dr. Bull says HARP, originally financed entirely by the U.S. Army, received a shot in the arm when the Canadian government through the department of defence production

McGill space lab plans firings from 16-inch gun range

HIGHWATER — (Staff) — The Aeroballistic Laboratory, Space Research Institute of McGill University plans to conduct firings from their 16-inch gun range at their laboratory here.

These firings are planned to take place between November 12 and December 21, 1965.

The range area has been posted with signs denoting the boundaries of the danger area. Sentries will be posted to restrict entry into this area during the firing period.

Red space probe

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union today launched an "interplanetary station" toward Venus, the Soviet news agency Tass announced.

Tass said that by noon the space probe was 36,000 kilometers (nearly 24,800 miles) from the earth.

Tass said equipment aboard the space station was functioning normally.

Step up war

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson has given American field commanders in South Viet Nam broad authority to call for—and get—additional fighting men to step up the war against the Viet Cong.

Defence Secretary McNamara told reporters, after a day-long policy conference Thursday at the LBJ ranch, that Johnson had "instructed me to meet the requests from our military commanders for additional personnel as they are received."

Snowdowns in sun

The Snowdowns sunned themselves Thursday around the pool at the home of their hosts, Lewis Douglas, former U.S. ambassador to Britain.

The danger area for the firing period is enclosed by Potton Township. Lot numbers, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 99, 100, (part of) 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, and Sutton Township lot numbers 96 and 97.

During each loading and firing period, red flags will be flown in the areas of the gun sight, the firing butt and at the main entrance gate.

Klaxon horns will be sounded with an interrupted note for ten minutes preceding each shot.

A one minute note will be changed to a continuous note.

All persons are warned not to enter the danger area during the periods stated.

Says Liberals stronger now

Gordon goes but policies stay

OTTAWA (CP) — Walter Gordon, who resigned Thursday as finance minister, said today the Liberal minority government now is in a stronger position than it was before the Nov. 8 general election and that it will carry on his economic policies.

He told a press conference he resigned because he believed he had given Prime Minister Pearson bad political advice in calling the election, but that if he had it to do it over again, he would give the same advice.

Mr. Gordon denied that he was making a scapegoat of himself for the election result, or trying to take the heat off Mr. Pearson.

"Mr. Pearson is quite competent to deal with whatever heat may come his way," Mr. Gordon said.

He said he thinks the government is in a stronger position now because the danger of another general election is lessened. It will be difficult for anyone in Parliament to force a new election, and the government can carry on "as if it had a majority."

Mr. Gordon, 59, had been finance minister since Mr. Pearson formed his first minority government in 1963, and he submitted his resignation Tuesday, a day after the general election resulted in another minority situation. The finance minister, also Liberal campaign chairman, had urged Mr. Pearson to call the vote in search of a majority.

"The conclusion is quite clear," he wrote to the prime minister. "I gave you bad advice, both as a minister and as campaign chairman. I accept full responsibility for this and therefore submit my resignation from the cabinet."

Two days after receiving the letter, and following a two-hour talk with Mr. Gordon, the prime minister accepted the resignation. But he refused to hold his finance minister responsible for the election.

TAKES RESPONSIBILITY

"I cannot accept your assumption of responsibility for the decision to hold the recent election which, while it confirmed our position as a government with considerably the largest support in the House of Commons, did not give us the majority of members we sought. You and others advised me to hold the election at this time, for reasons which seemed perfectly valid, but the decision was mine and the sole responsibility for the decision remains mine."

Mr. Gordon will remain in the Commons as a private member. The announcement from the prime minister's office Thursday night came as a surprise. Two years earlier, Mr. Gordon had survived a harrowing five-month ordeal in the Commons when he introduced his controversial first budget.

WALTER GORDON

Sharp seen as successor

OTTAWA (CP) — Mitchell Sharp ranks as the odds-on favorite to succeed to the finance portfolio vacated Thursday night by the resignation of Walter Gordon.

The 54-year-old trade minister stands high with close political colleagues to take on the most sensitive post in the cabinet.

Moreover, associates feel he has the confidence of the Canadian business community, an asset they look on as vital for the man who guides the country's fiscal and monetary policies.

Initial speculation as to the resignation might provide the opening needed for Robert Winters, the engineer who came back to political life Monday with a victory in York West.

Since his defeat in 1957 when he was minister of public works, the 55-year-old Nova Scotian has carved out a successful career in business at Toronto.

However, well-informed sources were inclined to put their money on Mr. Sharp, contending that his long career as high-ranking civil servant and businessman, followed by 2½ years as trade minister, provide the background for the challenging finance post. They suggest trade might be the portfolio for Mr. Winters.

Rome raps nuclear use

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican ecumenical council received today a drastically revised modern world problems document that totally condemns modern war and denounces deterrent policies based on nuclear weapons.

A number of U.S. bishops were reported deeply disturbed at the wording of the new text, complaining privately that they felt it would weigh heavily against the U.S. government's defence strategy.

In the view of these bishops the Soviet government can much more easily ignore any council statement than Washington can.

FLAMES POUR FROM JET'S HULK — A charred hulk with wings was all that was left of a United Airlines Boeing 727 jet which burst into flames upon landing last

42 of 90 aboard jet die in crash

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A United Air Lines Boeing 727 jetliner burst into flames on landing Thursday night at Salt Lake City Airport.

The airline said the jet carried 90 persons, and that 42 of them were "killed or presumed killed."

However, Dr. Hilmon Castle, a medical examiner for the Civil Aeronautics Board, said he counted only 41 bodies taken from the plane.

The discrepancy in the airline's list of casualties and Dr.

Castle's could not be explained immediately.

United said 43 persons were in hospital, and that another five either escaped injury or were treated at hospitals and released.

There were no Canadians listed among the survivors or among the dead with listed hometowns.

The flight originated in New York with stops in Cleveland, Chicago, Denver and Salt Lake City en route to San Francisco.

It was the third 727 involved in an airline accident since August—and the second this week.

A United spokesman in Chicago blamed the accident on nose wheel failure.

BUMPED HARD

"We had a hard bump, started swerving from side to side," said passenger Ralph S. Nesbitt, a Santa Monica, Calif., salesman. "And flames broke out from the rear."

The plane was piloted by Capt. Gail C. Keimier, 48, of Denver. The captain and his crew survived.

Twelve investigators were en route to the crash. A Washington spokesman for the Federal Aviation Agency said it had no plans for grounding 727 jets.

A GIRL WITH A COUNTRY — Lesley Banting, 22-year-old Miss Rhodesia, arrives at London airport last night to compete in the Miss World beauty pageant in London next week. A political crisis arrived with her as competition organizers said they would have to check the rules to see if Lesley's 37-25-37 can go on parade with the 48 other contestants. Rhodesians warned they could face death

LONDON (CP)—The British government warned Prime Minister Ian Smith and his Rhodesian regime today their defiance of British authority is treason. The penalty is death.

Attorney-General Sir Elwyn Jones issued the warning in the House of Commons as the government sought emergency powers to restore Britain's authority over the breakaway, white-race colony in Central Africa.

Jones warned Britons inside and outside Rhodesia that actions furthering the aims of Smith's regime would be treasonable.

The bill giving the British government massive powers of retaliation against Rhodesia sped toward adoption in the House.

Quick passage was urged by Prime Minister Wilson, who Thursday night accused Smith's regime of taking police state measures and assuming "the sickeningly familiar attitudes of authoritarian rule."

Jones introduced the bill asking for these special powers:

- An order invalidating any laws passed or business transactions by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's regime after its unilateral declaration of independence

—Authority for the British government to exercise executive control and to make laws in Rhodesia;

—An amendment to British legislation to make it easier for "loyal Rhodesian citizens" to obtain citizenship of the United Kingdom and the colonies;

—An order enabling the British immigration authorities to confiscate passport documents issued or renewed by the Rhodesian regime.

Jones noted that other actions by Britain—such as the ban on import of Rhodesian tobacco and sugar—had already been carried out under existing statutory powers.

Jones said the illegal regime pretended to give to the people of Rhodesia a new constitution—a move which he described as "a grave aspect of this rebellion."

He added: "We have not yet seen this document, but it would seem clear that one of its objects is evidently to usurp the authority of the United Kingdom government and the sovereignty of Parliament."

"There is abundant authority for the conclusion that conduct of the kind that has taken place is treasonable."

There was a roar of approval from Labor supporters when he added:

"So would be steps taken by anyone, whether in Rhodesia or this country or by anyone else owing allegiance to the Crown, with the intention of furthering the objectives of the illegal regime or inciting others to take such steps."

Meanwhile, there was a possible threat to Britain's united front on the independence issue because of some rumbling in the Opposition Conservative party.

Britain assured of UN support on Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — UN, asked for the meeting and said Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart was flying to New York today when the Security Council takes up the Rhodesian question.

The 11-nation council was called together for an urgent meeting at the request of Britain, following Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence Thursday.

Lord Caradon, Britain's permanent representative at the United Nations, said that the resolution approved Thursday night at an emergency meeting of the assembly. The resolution called on Britain "to put an end to the rebellion by the unlawful authorities" in Rhodesia.

The resolution was pushed through the assembly after an Afro-Asian bloc turned down Britain's suggestion that study of the question be delayed pending the arrival of its foreign secretary.

Meanwhile, a group of 34 African countries and another group of 22 Afro-Asian countries tried unsuccessfully to have the Security Council meet on the Rhodesian action Thursday night rather than wait until to new Snow Cruiser with 'torque sensitive drive'

3 models for '66

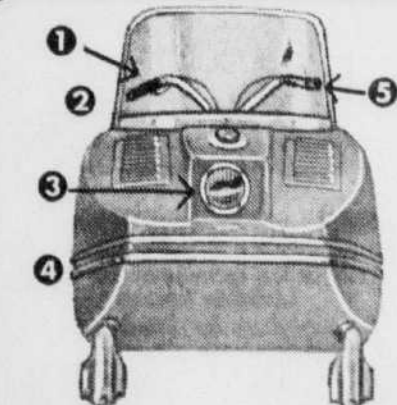

OMC Snow Cruiser's new 'Torque Sensitive Drive' is truly automatic—no buttons, no levers—your thumb on the throttle does the whole job and automatically selects the proper gear ratio for hills, for loads, for wide open spaces. 'Torque Sensitive Drive' is like your car's automatic transmission, only more so. Power stays always smooth and constant. The motor can't labour or race. So you get top performance, full horsepower under all conditions.

If you plan to use Snow Cruiser in deep snow country, you'll like its new floatation features, such as soft spring suspension of skis, dolly wheels and drive sprockets and its increased track-to-snow area. This makes Snow Cruiser ride high, wide and handsome. Adds extra stability, too.

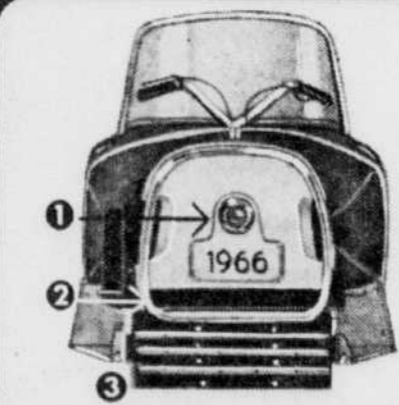

We've added a host of new features to the 1966 Snow Cruiser line to give you extra pleasure and dependability.

1. New quick detachable cab for easy engine access.
2. New soft spring ski suspension.
3. New style ski with replaceable runners.
4. New soft suspended dolly wheels.
5. New spring suspended rear drive sprocket.
6. Seat back rest with storage compartment.
7. Snap-on seat cushion.
8. In-tilted running boards.

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—An amusing—and mighty familiar—little comedy idea on NBC's Bob Hope Theatre Wednesday night was just the right prescription for some of the tired 30,000,000 people recovering from Tuesday night's power blackout.

And so was the problem of the Virginian's hard luck neighbor and the derring-do of the I Spy agents chasing an escaped spy. NBC, in fact, was a comfortable channel Wednesday night for a smooth sail away from stern reality.

Mr. Governess, the Hope show comedy, was busy building laughs on the old device of having a tall, husky, pipe-smoking man forced to disguise himself as a woman. It was broad comedy, of course, plus a mixed pair of romances and the anticipated windup—star Tom Tyron lost his wig.

Throughout the day—particularly in news shows and in a pair of news specials—the TV networks busily celebrated the big story of the previous night's big blackout.

Producers of CBS' What's My Line? after considering the matter for two days went back to their original idea of putting a close friend of Dorothy Kilgallen's into the late columnist's spot on the show panel Sunday night. They chose Kitty Carlisle. The other guest on the panel will be Steve Allen, once a regular on the show. For obvious reasons, it will be a difficult show for all participants.

Pleads For Dual Brake Systems

QUOTE: Every automobile should have a secondary braking system. The single braking systems now in most cars are grossly inadequate.

OBSERVATION: Studebaker has a (secondary) Dual Brake System. Only 1 other Canadian-built car has such a system. It's Standard Equipment on the 1966 Studebaker. Has been for 4 years.

QUOTE: Disc brakes have a lower incidence of failure than drum brakes.

OBSERVATION: Studebaker offers Disc Brakes as a low cost option on all models. Has since 1963. The rest of the automobile industry is beginning to catch on.

FACT: Many Studebaker owners already have a Dual Brake System. They can face the coming winter with Peace of Mind.

Mrs. Guy Bishop Funeral to be held tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. C. Guy Bishop will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow in St. Peter's Church, Sherbrooke, Rev. J. D. R. Franklin officiating. Burial will be in St. Peter's Church cemetery.

Mrs. Bishop, the former Ida Harriet Bailey, died at her home, 510 Quebec Street on Thursday. She was 85.

Mrs. Bishop was the widow of the late C. Guy Bishop, prominent Sherbrooke businessman, who died in July, 1960. Born in Leeds Village, Que., Mrs. Bishop attended school there. She received her teacher's diploma from McGill University, and taught in a number of rural schools throughout the Eastern Townships.

She was married in 1906 to Mr. Bishop, then a resident of Marlton. In 1919, they moved to Sherbrooke.

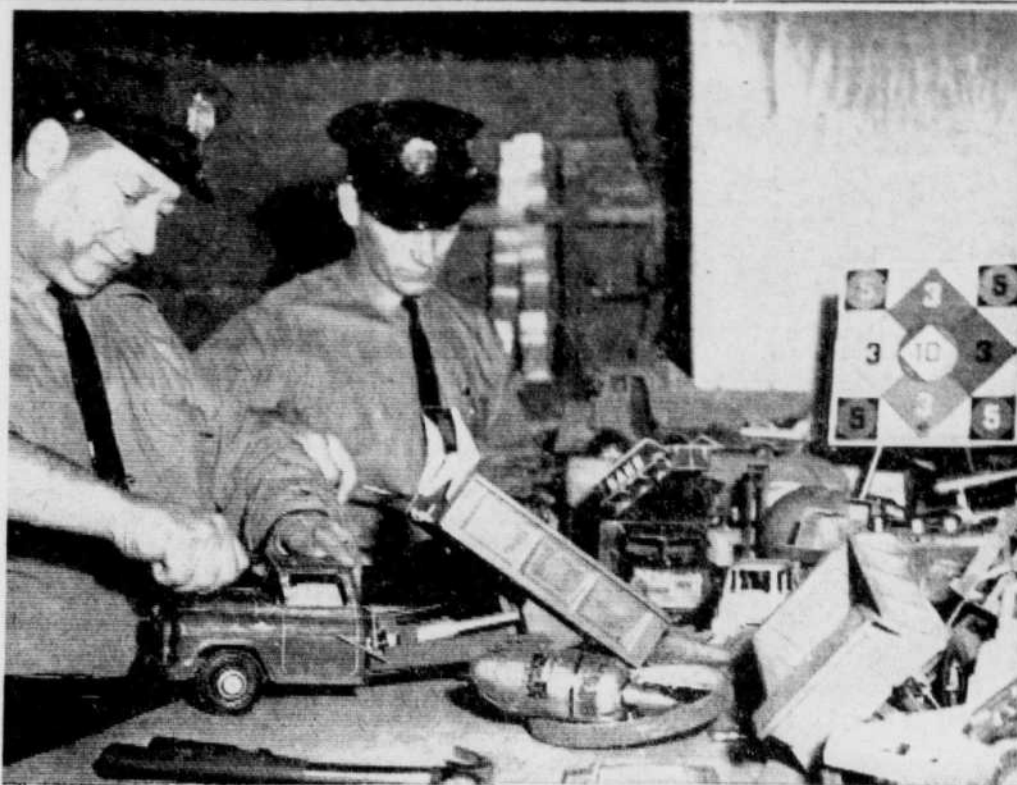

While in Marlton, Mrs. Bishop was president of St. Paul's Church Guild, and was active in other phases of church work.

In Sherbrooke, Mrs. Bishop was a past president of St. Faith's Guild of St. Peter's Church, and was active in all of the Guild's work.

Mrs. Bishop was a valued member of the Sherbrooke branch of the Red Cross, especially during the two World Wars when she knitted numerous articles to send overseas.

Remains are resting at the R. L. Bishop Funeral Home, 300

Sherbrooke firemen play Santa; need more toys for repair shop

Christmas is coming, and a child's fancy generally turns to thoughts of toys. Stores stock up, and catalogues full of glossy pictures of all the latest innovations from toyland invade every home.

But what about the unfortunate child from the poor family, whose parents cannot afford to buy toys?

The Sherbrooke Fire Department is trying to make sure these youngsters in Sherbrooke are not deprived this Christmas.

Toys, trucks, sleighs and doll carriages. Dolls, trucks, sleighs and doll carriages.

The basement of Sherbrooke's No. 4 Fire Station on King Street East is beginning to look like a cross between a repair shop and a toy store, as Sherbrooke firemen work feverishly to full the Christmas needs of more than 300 Sherbrooke families.

For the eighteenth year, the Sherbrooke Fire Department is well launched on its annual Christmas toy campaign.

By PAUL WATERS
 (Record staff reporter)

The president of the campaign, Sylvia Provencher, reports that he is sadly short of dolls. "Sometimes," he explained, "we use three or four old dolls to make one good one."

Mr. Provencher said that the campaign was doing well in its collection of boys' toys but they still need more. He said that anyone who had some old toys that he wanted to donate, could take them to Number Four Fire Station, or leave them with any Shell service station.

The campaign opened last Saturday morning with a show for kiddies, at which admission was paid with old toys. "The show went pretty well," Mr. Provencher reported, "but it would have been better if it had been in the afternoon."

The campaign lasts about five weeks. The toys are collected and sorted.

The broken ones are painstakingly fixed.

One of the campaigners, Lieutenant Jean Paul Charrest is a qualified welder, and his services are priceless when it comes to repairing tricycles.

The firemen also have a woman who repairs the dolls. She washes them and makes clothes for them.

The men work at these jobs in all the spare time they have, working sometimes as long as ten hours a day.

The men find it rewarding, though. As one fireman remarked "it makes it feel more like Christmas."

Mrs. Bourque pleaded guilty and was fined $100. The sentence was low as the judge said he felt that she was just an innocent pawn in a much larger setup.

 CAMPAIGN FOR THE POOR

The tremendous success realized last year through the sale of candy bags, whose profits were used to purchase food to fill Christmas Baskets for needy families of our city, has created renewed enthusiasm among the members of Company No. 2 of the Quebec Frontiersmen to resume this charitable work, this year.

We are confident that again this year, the population of Sherbrooke will respond generously to this worthy cause so that less fortunate families will enjoy Christmas. Thanks again to the generous citizens of our city for their support.

Fair dates are set tentatively

The tentative dates of the Eastern Townships 1966 county fairs were announced at the annual meeting of the Eastern Townships County Fairs Association, held at the New Sherbrooke Hotel yesterday.

The dates set were: Bedford August 12-14; Richmond, August 18-21; Cookshire, August 19-21; Ayer's Cliff, August 25-27; Brome, September 3-5. Sherbrooke, which is not a member of the association announced that its summer fair would be held from August 26 - September 1.

The county fair committees of all these areas had delegates at the meeting. The date of Drummondville's fair was not announced as Drummondville sent no delegates.

The officers of the association last year were all re-elected to serve another term. Lorne Hunter Cookshire was elected president; Tom Ride, of Ayer's Cliff, vice-president; and Mrs. R. J. Harrison, secretary.

The delegates from Cookshire and Richmond discussed re-arranging their fair dates so they would not fall on the same day. The main inconvenience, of this, the delegates said, was that it made it difficult to get a good midway show.

The discussion bogged down as the delegates were not empowered to change their fair dates, and so they resolved to hold a meeting between the two committees and solve the problem among themselves.

Representatives from two midways were present at the meeting. All Canadian Shows and Peter March Shows Ltd. The owners of Hell Drivers Regd. were also there.

Cars, truck
 in collision

Four cars and a van collided just outside Lennoxville last night, at 7:30. The accident happened at the intersection of Routes 5 and 22. No one was reported injured, though the cars were badly damaged.

The Sherbrooke detachment of the QPP said they had no report of the accident.

A scene from The Rake's Progress, with Jeremy Blanton and Lois Smith.

Colorful Rake's Progress ballet goes back to era of Tom Jones

On May 20, 1935, the Sadler's Wells Ballet, a company still in its infancy, gave the first performance of "The Rake's Progress," a ballet based on a series of engravings by William Hogarth. The music was a commissioned score by Gavin Gordon. The exquisite 18th-century settings and costumes were the work of Rex Whistler. Most important: the choreography was by Ninette de Valois, founder-director of the Sadler's Wells Ballet.

In Nov. 20, the National Ballet of Canada will present "The Rake's Progress" here at the University of Sherbrooke. As completely as human memory, dance notation, photographs and drawings allow, it will be an exact replica of de Valois' own realization of the ballet.

The ballet takes the spectator back to the Tom Jones county: as did Hogarth's drawings, it casts an ominous, moralistic eye at the decline of a wealthy young profligate as he wenches, drinks and gambles his way to penury, insanity and death in Bedlam. Its chief protagonist is the Rake himself, an innocent girl he betrays, and those who toady to him and hasten his decline.

The dancers of Canada's National Ballet learned the ballet from Faith Worth, a personal friend of Ninette de Valois' and the Benesh dance notation expert of the Royal Ballet. Celia Franca, artistic director of the National Ballet, danced in "The Rake's Progress" when she was a soloist with Sadler's Wells, and she too has been coaching the company to polish any details that might have escaped the Benesh annotator. One of the most difficult problems of duplication in preparing the National Ballet's version of the work has been that of recreating Rex Whistler's sets. The Sadler's Wells Ballet lost the original sets when the company fled Holland in 1940, a couple of grand jets ahead of the invading Nazis. When the Sadler's Wells decided to restage the work, it was discovered that Whistler's designs for the sets had disappeared; and the artist had been killed during the war.

As a consequence, the Sadler's Wells company renewed the sets from photographs, published reproductions of Whistler's numerous backdrops, and from the reminiscences of those who had painted the sets or danced in front of them.

The National Ballet's designers have had to repeat exactly the same kind of artistic archaeology, piecing together a reconstruction of the Whistler designs from photographs and from the limited material available from the Royal Ballet. The work has been completed, the sets rebuilt and painted as closely as possible to Whistler's intention, except that they have been enlarged to scale and a false proscenium added.

Principal dancers Lawrence Adams and Jeremy Blanton will share the role of the Rake, and prima ballerina Lois Smith will dance the role of the Beltrayed Girl, one of the first important leads danced by Margot Fonteyn when she joined the Royal Ballet. Howard Marcus is cast as the Rake's dancing master, and Yves Couineau as the Man With a Rope, leader of the chorus of lunatics in the hair-raising Bedlam scene.

The National Ballet of Canada comes here as part of a six-month tour of Canada.

Blood bath likely for Rhodesians

With one African country after another declaring independence from their European overlords — Britain, France, Belgium or Portugal — the decision of Rhodesia to cut its ties with Britain normally would make little difference to the overall picture.

After all, it may be argued, why should Rhodesia be different than any other African state?

But circumstances behind Prime Minister Ian Smith's decision for a unilateral declaration of independence are vastly different from those governing the action of the Congo, Kenya or other countries in the Dark Continent.

For the most part, with the possible exception of South Africa, the idea behind the independence movement to date has been to give the colored majorities in these areas self-government. Sometimes willingly, sometimes reluctantly, the European nations freed their African colonies by placing the government in the hands of the native leaders.

But Prime Minister Smith's drastic action was based on a diametrically opposite foundation. He knew and his white advisers knew that any treaty with Great Britain providing for independence would place great powers in the black majorities.

This safeguarding of the majority rights was unacceptable to the 200,000 White Rhodesians who believe they have the inalienable privilege of governing and containing the 4,000,000 blacks. The only solution was to declare unilateral independence, which would obviate the controls planned by Whitehall.

Perhaps Prime Minister Smith may be able to establish a white-dominated state, but in all probability he will set off one of the greatest blood baths ever witnessed — one that might involve many other African nations.

Rhodesian blacks may be expected to resort to the only means at their disposal to win a decent place in the sun — armed revolt.

And when they raise their arms against their white masters they may expect support from their black neighbors.

Prime Minister Smith will have to go it alone.

The major democracies, pledged to the policy of self-determination for the blacks, will be prevented from providing the Rhodesian whites with any armed support — even if they wanted to.

Against the aroused millions of black Rhodesians and their sympathizers in other parts of Africa, the whites face a grim outlook indeed.

Heard (but don't believe it) that they're making a movie that is NOT a spoof on James Bond.

Johnson steps on dangerous ground

President Johnson's move to release 200,000 tons of aluminum from the government stockpile has produced the desired result of forcing major producing companies to withdraw price increases announced during the past week.

The thinking behind the US government move is understandable. It hopes to maintain the present remarkable expansion in the nation's economy. But it also must limit inflationary price increases which would boost aluminum imports and aggravate the balance of payments deficit. The government economists also insist that there is not too much free competition in this important market so the natural laws of supply and demand are not fully effective.

But grave concern may be expressed over government intervention in individual wage and price decisions.

Obviously any government has legitimate monetary and fiscal responsibilities to discharge for the maintenance of the welfare of the people, but to step from general policies regarding credit and taxation which affect all branches of the economy into the pricing policies of specified industries is a drastic move that should be made only after the closest study.

Except for a few theorists who believe that state planning holds the answer to all our economic woes, the average man will ask just how the government can determine just what increases in the prices of aluminum, or any other commodity for that matter, are justified, especially when it offered no objection to substantial increases in wage and fringe benefits for workers in the industry.

While scoring an immediate but perhaps temporary victory, President Johnson is creating a precedent that might cause him much trouble in the future.

If little children think you're pretty wonderful, how their elders regard you isn't too important.

Too many Communists, spoils cut

The Soviet Union currently is undergoing one of those periods of self-evaluation which sometimes produce rather remarkable conclusions.

Naturally the Soviets have their own line of reasoning on almost any subject so anything that is announced after one of these self-studies need occasion little surprise in the democracies.

For instance Moscow has made a declaration that will be endorsed by most of the western countries — that there are too many Communists. But this does not apply to Red propagandists in the democracies. Rather the decision concerns the number of Communists in Russia.

Pravda, the official Communist Party newspaper, is much vexed over the fact that there are now 12,000,000 official Communists in the Soviet Union, an increase of 2,000,000 in the past two years.

Entry into the party, which actually controls the political and economic life of the Soviet Union, is much too easy, Pravda claims. In some of the larger cities almost anyone who applies is taken into the party, without any check being made as to his background.

Another fact which worries Pravda is that the party is overloaded with intellectuals to the detriment of the workers and the peasants who supposedly form the basis of true Communist strength.

Possible reasons behind Pravda's concern are easy to find.

Special powers and privileges available under the Communist system are reserved for the members of the Communist party, strikingly similar to the North American practise where the fruits of patronage are meted out to the true supporters of the party in power.

But while the western politician has to seek the votes of the public at large at various times and therefore seeks to widen the base of his party organization, the Russian leader has only to go through some technical process called an election.

So any broadening of the party base only reduces the chance of each party member of receiving the benefits he desires. The fewer the faithful, the more for each.

Targets since Lenin's time

Bureaucracy, mismanagement the plague of Soviet industry

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Perhaps the biggest problem facing Soviet industry is how to curb bureaucracy and mismanagement.

Communist leaders have railed against them from the time of Lenin but the problem only gets worse.

Recently the Soviet leadership signalled a new drive to cut away government red tape blamed for stifling efficiency at the factory level.

"We must achieve utmost simplicity in the system of management of enterprises," Communist Party First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev told a meeting of the party's central committee.

"We must go painstakingly through the structure of every ministry, either existing or newly formed; reduce the number of stages of management of the production activities of enterprises, so as to make the machinery of the ministries more mobile, capable of promptly, efficiently and in a competent manner settling all the problems of the operation of enterprises."

Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin, in separate reports to the committee, gave some striking examples of how the bureaucratic malaise saps the strength of Russia's economy.

15 SIGNATURES NEEDED
Brezhnev told of the development by oilmen in the Volga area of a time-saving system for drilling oil wells with a turbodrill suspended on a flexible cable instead of with drill pipes.

"It would seem clear to everyone that this was a vital matter, but it took nearly a year just to agree on the schedule for the manufacture of the equipment and cable. Unfortunately it has not been agreed upon to this day because this matter required the signatures of 15 representatives of different organizations subordinated to state committees and economic councils."

Brezhnev noted another instance in which 30 signatures from various departments were needed to approve one "clear question."

Kosygin told the committee that at the present time plans for new equipment are examined and drafted by one state organ, plans for production and capital investment projects by another, and supply matters are dealt with by still another.

"There actually is no single organ that could examine all aspects and decide upon the issues of the development of an industry in all its variety."

Kosygin offered some startling data illustrating the underutilization of assets through poor organization.

About half of all journeys by state-owned road transport are empty runs, he said.

Factories reach their planned production indexes, in a number of cases, only four years or more after they have gone into operation.

The Moscow press frequently carries articles revealing other instances of bureaucratic mismanagement. One type not often written about was recently exposed by Pravda, the Communist party newspaper: Cancellation of orders after production has started.

During the last two years factories of the electro-technical industry and apparatus building of Moscow economic council received refusals for more than 30,000,000 rubles worth of production, the account said.

In some enterprises refusals reach one-third of the annual amount of production.

Other papers say:

U.S. view on Canadian vote results

The meaning of the Canadian election results is that Canada's quiet crisis simmers on. Or, to put it less dramatically, the elections leave things more or less where they were before.

For Prime Minister Lester Pearson and his Liberal Party this is disappointing and frustrating. The whole point in calling the election was to try to put an end to the situation that has persisted since Mr. Pearson became Prime Minister in April, 1963.

Since then, the Liberals have not had a majority in Parliament in Ottawa—although they were the single biggest party in the legislature. Ironically, it looks as if the voters gave Mr. Pearson's party Monday exactly the same number of seats—129 out of 265—that they did two and a half years ago.

Thus Canada once again gets a minority government, for the third time in three and a half years. Of course, an administration with a firm majority can usually give stabler government in any parliamentary democracy. And in that context, there will be many friends of Canada who would probably have preferred to see the Canadian electors pronounce themselves more decisively this week, one way or the other.

But given the present circumstances in Canada, an argument can be made that there is some advantage in having in power a Liberal government so inhibited by the division of seats in Parliament that it has to proceed cautiously and watch its step.

Canada's basic problem today is the working out of a way in which French-speaking Canadians can continue to live within a healthy and united confederation without losing their cultural identity and without feeling (rightly or wrongly) that they are forced into second-class citizenship. Over the past couple of years, Mr. Pearson's Liberal Party has strengthened its identification with French-speaking Canada—although in Monday's election, the French-speaking province of Quebec rallied less vigorously to his support than he had hoped.

Opposition leader John Diefenbaker's Conservatives, on the other hand, have tended to speak for the English-speaking backlash to French-Canadian pressures.

Monday's election results can be fitted into that mold. But they stop short of that complete polarization which would have been harmful rather than helpful to Canadian unity. At the same time, Liberal losses in the Maritimes suggest a continuing evolution in the process whereby the provinces—all of them, and not only Quebec—are apparently winning back some of the independence lost to Ottawa during the war and afterward. This process offers the best hope for Quebec's eventually finding a status acceptable at the same time to itself and all Canada.

Concentration and diversification

In US big business gets bigger

WASHINGTON (CP)—Big business in the United States keeps getting steadily bigger, says a Congressional study.

Concentration is one word for the latest trend among the business giants; diversification is another, suggests the study by the judiciary subcommittee on anti-trust and monopoly headed by Democratic Senator Philip A. Hart of Michigan.

The findings support the conclusion of economist Gardner Means recently that the 100 largest manufacturers in the United States had increased their share of net capital assets in the country's manufacturing to 36.9 per cent from 45.8 per cent in the 1947-1962 period.

Thus, within 10 years, 200 firms might own two-thirds of the country's manufacturing assets. The Hart committee has been doing its research quietly in an area where the U.S. anti-trust laws have gone as far as they can go.

Take, for example, the Borden Company, once associated with milk and lots of it. Borden's today is one of the 200 biggest firms and since 1950 has added two plastic companies, glue and gelatin, two plastic products, fabrics, surgical appliances, printing inks and cosmetics—not to mention seafood.

Latins plaintive

Canada's absence from OAS deplored

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP)—South American diplomats usually sound plaintive when they speak about Canada's absence from the volatile Organization of American States.

Brazil's 62-year-old foreign affairs minister, Vasco T. Leitao Da Cunha, is no exception.

Over a cup of strong Brazilian coffee in a drawing room at the pink-stucco Brazilian foreign office here, Da Cunha said Latin American governments usually find Canada's disinterest in the OAS a little hard to understand.

"We think Canada could make a very positive contribution to the work of the organization. Brazil and Canada have always had somewhat similar roles in foreign affairs."

"Diplomats from both our countries take time to look at a situation from all sides before taking a stand. More of that sort of thinking would certainly be an asset to the organization."

He was echoing the remarks of Brazilian President Castello Branco, who said in an earlier interview: "I do believe Canada should join the OAS. Through its political and cultural organization it could make an important contribution."

Da Cunha, a distinguished diplomat who was formerly his country's ambassador to Russia and Cuba, said he was among those who helped to draft a resolution passed at a December, 1964 meeting of the organization which makes it possible for new members to be accepted.

DOOR IS OPEN
The new members must only indicate their willingness to join and be supported by two-thirds majority of the organization's members.

The foreign minister said he thought few Canadians knew how close in viewpoint Canada and Brazil are in the field of foreign affairs.

"Both of our countries are generally in agreement with United States policy, but we both disagree from time to time with the United States, either publicly or privately."

Brazil fully supports the U.S. position in South Viet Nam, he said.

"We also supported, with military aid, the U.S. action in the Dominican Republic."

"I don't think the American action was hasty. When you see a fire, you don't always wait for the fire brigade before you start to put it out."

Brazil considers the Communist threat in the Western Hemisphere posed by Cuba to be one of its biggest foreign problems. Cuban-trained infiltrators have been at work in the poverty-stricken northeast, but the government so far has been successful in curbing their activities.

"To fight the Communist influence, the government of President Branco is having success in controlling inflation and in showing up Communist subversion."

The foreign affairs minister said the Communist party, outlawed here since 1948, has very little power in Brazil.

The Communist regime in Cuba was also weakening.

"I don't think Castro has even 20 per cent of the Cubans behind him. The only answer there is to get rid of Castro. Let's hope the Cuban people are soon able to do it."

West Shefford citizens inquire regarding amalgamation project

WEST SHEFFORD — The monthly meeting of the Municipal Council was held Tuesday evening, Nov. 2. The mayor and all councillors were present. Several property owners appeared to inquire about the notice in the press of a petition to the Lieutenant - Council seeking letters patent to amalgamate the two adjoining municipalities of the Town of Bromont and the village of West Shefford. Bylaws had been passed by both municipalities authorizing such amalgamation, which would create a new municipality to be named "Town of Bromont." Property-owners objecting to this, during the month following the publication of such notice, had the opportunity of writing to the Quebec municipal commission registering their dissent and requesting an inquiry, which the commission could grant or refuse, at its discretion.

By LINDA A. KEARNS (Record correspondent)

The report of the Blier Commission and the passing of Bill 13 in March of 1965 have curtailed the remedies hitherto available to municipalities under a referendum when two municipalities wished to amal-gamate, although the Union of Municipalities, representing 237 local administrations, had endorsed the bill at the time of its passage through the Legislature.

Mayor Germain Desourdy, of Bromont, was present at the council meeting and answered questions put to him as to the advantages and disadvantages of the proposed amalgamation which will require the consent of the Quebec government before becoming effective.

The Town of Bromont, created within the last two or three years and adjoining West Shefford, has a property valuation, at 45 per cent, of $1,900,000; whereas West Shefford, at a valuation of 65 per cent, has a valuation of $463,000.

The benefits to be derived from such amalgamation would be improved water, sewers, fire protection and other amenities. Industries would be invited to establish themselves in the new town, thus providing employment.

But West Shefford, as an entity, would disappear. Incorporated as a village in 1889, after 76 years, with a population of 400, it will cease to be an individual and become part of what, in our modern terminology, may be described as a complex.

This elimination of a historic village, one of the earliest settlements in Shefford County, is felt most keenly by its residents, many of whose families have lived here for generations. It will lose its name and be known hereafter as "Bromont".

Recall 1963 split

But causes sharply different

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

OTTAWA (CP)—Walter Gordon's resignation from the federal cabinet Thursday hit political circles with almost the explosive force of the three resignations from John Diefenbaker's cabinet over the nuclear weapons issue in 1963.

But the circumstances were different.

Mr. Gordon's letter of resignation emphasized that he was leaving the cabinet because he had given Prime Minister Pearson faulty advice about calling the Nov. 8 election.

Mr. Gordon's resignation as finance minister was the 13th departure from Mr. Pearson's cabinet since it was sworn in April 22, 1963, following the Liberal election victory two weeks earlier.

First resignations were announced near the end of 1963. Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier to become Canadian high commissioner to Britain and Postmaster - General Azellus Denis to enter the Senate. Early in 1964, W. Ross Macdonald resigned as minister without portfolio and government leader in the Senate.

In the succeeding shuffle, three new ministers were sworn in Feb. 3, 1964—Maurice Sauve as forestry minister, and Yvon Dupuis and Senator John Connolly as ministers without portfolio.

On Jan. 22, 1965, Mr. Pearson asked for and obtained Mr. Dupuis' resignation over influence-peddling accusations in a race-track franchise affair.

On Feb. 12, 1965, J.-P. Deschatelets resigned as works minister and left the cabinet for personal reasons. Last July 7, William Benidickson resigned the mines portfolio for health reasons and was named to the Senate.

There was another resignation, but not a cabinet departure. Guy Favreau submitted his resignation as justice minister last June 29 after criticism of his judgment in the Dorion report on the Rivard affair. He was prevailed on to remain in the cabinet and was shifted to president of the Privy Council.

Death removed one cabinet minister, John Garland, revenue minister, in March, 1964.

Two ministers were defeated in Monday's election — Harry Hays, agriculture minister, and Watson MacNaught, minister of mines and technical surveys.

Sutton Jaycees name Cusson man of year

SUTTON — (Staff) — The Junior Chamber of Commerce here this week announced its choice for the title of "Man of the Year". Chosen was Ferdinand Cusson, of Sutton. Mr. Cusson who has spent his entire life in the town is a well-known businessman and is to be honored at a banquet Saturday, November 27 at Auberge de Sutton.

During the course of the meal a tribute will be offered Mr. Cusson. It is because of his many realizations and his civic interests throughout his life in the town, that he was chosen for the title, a Jaycee press release states.

The committee appointed to head the program to honor the top citizen is to be headed by Charles Kelly. He is to be aided by a group of active Jaycee members. They are Jean-Guy Potvin, Richard Mireault, Desire Marchand, Hercule Boulanger, Richard Bazenet, Real Boulanger and Jean-Paul Bedard.

The release states, "but this group would not be so vigilant were it not for two lovely and efficient young ladies in the persons of Miss Lise Bergeron and Michele St. Jean."

West Shefford churches looted

WEST SHEFFORD — (Special) — St. Francois Xavier Church and St. John's Anglican Church in West Shefford were visited by thieves during the past week. In St. Francois Xavier Church, the microphones of the public address or loud-speaker system were all taken, resulting in a loss of over $500, the cost of their replacement.

In St. John's Church a set of double windows was carried away, the thieves breaking in through a rear door. Police are investigating, but the microphones are difficult to trace as they could easily be sold to dance halls or such public places, where they are in demand.

Utility, not showing, standards new basis for judging at Royal TORONTO (CP)—The world's biggest annual agricultural show, the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, has undergone an important change.

A new system for judging livestock is being instituted, placing the emphasis on utility rather than on so-called showing standards.

W. P. Watson, general manager of the Royal, said the new method of judging is being used to encourage more breeders to participate by reducing the number of classes for each breed and limiting the number of entries by one person in each class.

He said the number of entries this year was down slightly from last year, but the number of exhibitors was up.

However, the winter fair doesn't deal only in livestock—world championships are decided in various field crop categories.

18,000 EXHIBITS — Farmers have entered more than 18,000 exhibits in competitions ranging from the best bull to the best butter and from the best oats to the best team of Clydesdale horses.

Always a big drawing card, particularly to Toronto's social set, is the international horse jumping competition.

Teams from Canada, Mexico, Argentina, Ireland and the United States will compete in the last show on the North American horse jumping circuit.

Other crowd pleasers include flower displays by six international-known floral arrangers, exhibits of new-model cars, a display of about 70 photographs by camera enthusiasts and a poster competition on agricultural and horse - show themes that has drawn about 180 entrants this year.

With this to offer, the Royal—which opened today—confidently expects more than a record 250,000 persons to pass through the turnstiles and make this year's fair the biggest and best in its 37-year history.

Strawberries in November

STANBRIDGE EAST — On November 4 K.D. Tree, of this village, picked two quarts of everbearing strawberries from his garden, in spite of all the recent hard frosts and dull weather.

The secret, they are a new very hardy variety and he covered them up every night when there was any danger of frost. He has picked 52 quarts of lovely berries from a row fifty feet long since Sept. 1.

These two quarts are definitely the last. The daddy of them all was a berry which measured three inches across and one inch thick, half moon shaped.

DUKE OF WELLINGTON CHAPTER IODE

The regular monthly meeting of the Duke of Wellington Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was held on Thursday, Nov. 4, at the rooms in Moore Street, with regent Mrs. P. A. Dauncey, presiding.

The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. R. Bishop, and it was decided that all necessary commitments be paid.

A letter had been received, by Mrs. R. Hough, educational secretary, from Elizabeth Jamieson, thanking the I.O.D.E. members for their gift of money, which she had received at the Sherbrooke High School's commencement exercises.

Services home and abroad secretary, Mrs. S. Cohen, reported a change in the family who are receiving the daily quart of milk, this was due to the fact that all the children in the family were now working. Two nighties for the layettes and one pair of Korean socks had been made by Mrs. Cohen and were presented.

Mrs. Dauncey commenting on forthcoming events, mentioned the Royal Oaktree Chapter's tea to be held on Saturday, Nov. 13, and the Municipal sherry party to be held in December, which, it is hoped, will be well attended.

Mrs. Dauncey also mentioned the need for French paper back books for the library, which is taken care of by the I.O.D.E. at the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Next under discussion was a concert by the Singing Girls of Sherbrooke and Miss Hough's ballet pupils, which is to be held January 13, at the Mitchell School. Mrs. F. Clarke is in charge of tickets, anyone interested may telephone her at 562-5166.

Following the close of the meeting a bingo game was enjoyed and refreshments were served by the hostesses Miss McDonald and Mrs. Tellow.

As there will be no meeting in December, hostesses for the meeting to be held in January will be Mrs. F. Clarke and Mrs. S. Cohen.

It was suggested among the members that attention be brought to the fact that any woman who is a British subject, desiring to join the I.O.D.E. Duke of Wellington Chapter, may do so by contacting Mrs. A. A. Munster at 569-1949.

TRINITY U.C.W.

The regular monthly meeting of Trinity United Church Women was held in Wesley Hall on Tuesday evening, Nov. 9, with the president, Mrs. S. Falconer in the chair.

The Christian citizenship and social action convener, Mrs. G. Hall, presented the program, which was a thought provoking play enacted by some of the members, based on gambling and lotteries.

It was reported that plans for the annual Christmas Sale and Tea, to be held on Wednesday, Nov. 17, are well underway.

On every family visitation Sunday, Nov. 28, coffee and doughnuts will be served to the campaigners, by the women of the church.

A reminder was read regarding annual reports, which are to be completed in triplicate for the annual meeting.

Mrs. R. Bauman led the devotional period based on the meditation, "Habits of the Hands," by Dr. Fraser Munro.

At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. Hazle and Mrs. B. Crawford.

Questions readers ask

Q—How should I keep leftover turkey stuffing to use later?

A—Remove leftover stuffing from the turkey immediately when dinner is over. Cool it at once. Then store in separate dish in refrigerator. Use the next day or, at least, the second day.

Q—We like to use a bowl of grapes, pears and bananas with autumn leaves as a holiday centerpiece. Should we keep the fruit in the refrigerator when it is not on the table for dinner?

A—If the grapes and pears are ripe, yes. Store uncovered in the refrigerator, but use within 3 to 5 days. If they are not fully ripe when you buy them, let them stand in the open air at room temperature. Do not place in the sun. As for the bananas, store them at room temperature, NOT in the refrigerator. Polly has some pointers

DEAR POLLY — My bedroom is small and the bed has to be quite close to the window. We are great ones for fresh air and the room can get a bit drafty. But that ingenious husband of mine solved the problem. He took an old window shade, mounted it below the sill, took out the slat and replaced it with a dowel stick about 4 inches longer than the slat so it sticks out about 2 inches at each end. A screw eye was put on each side of the window casing at the height we usually raise the window. When it is too breezy we just pull the shade UP from the bottom of the sill and the dowel ends project enough to fit in the screw eyes for support. This works fine and is a dandy draft deflector. — BERTHA

GIRLS — Such an idea is also good for providing privacy in a bedroom. Many decorators use shades that roll up from the bottom, made of fabric that adds to a room's decor. The effect is very smart when the shades start at the floor and are left pulled just up to the sill when not needed for privacy. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My 5 - year-old Nancy saw me trying to get the last of the liquid hand cream out a bottle without luck. She reminded me to put the bottle in hot water, which I did and it worked. I like to use every drop but Nancy is the bright one as I never gave hot water a thought. — ELLEN.

THE QUEBEC SCENE

To improve French usage in province administration

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government announced Thursday it will form a commission to improve the French language used in administration.

The cultural affairs department, said the commission will be interdepartmental and its main purpose will be to study the French language as it is used in Quebec province.

The study committee in charge of setting up this commission held its first meeting Thursday and was addressed by Guy Fregault, deputy minister of cultural affairs.

"There are few administrative papers and few legislative texts which do not contain Anglicisms... archaic language and Canadianisms of doubtful value."

"The Quebec administration can no longer use colloquialisms. I say times have changed."

At the moment when Quebec is opening itself to the world, it is our job to give our administration a language which will serve as a means of communication not only with the French-speaking world but also with foreigners who are learning and, to a greater and greater extent, will learn, international French.

"The government of Quebec created the French language office and joined it to the department of cultural affairs because the language is the best method of expression of a living culture."

Hootenanny

MONTREAL (CP)—A Roman Catholic priest who instituted a "hootenanny mass" in his church says the church's "product remains the same, though the package may change."

Rev. Russell Schultz of St. Dominic's English-language Catholic church in east-end Montreal told a service club Wednesday he introduced the guitar-accompanied mass with a warning to older parishioners to stay away if they felt they'd be offended, but most who attended were older persons.

The idea was to "use within the church things which the young know and like."

Father Schultz has also introduced in his church the Protestant custom of having the officiating cleric greet churchgoers as they leave after the service.

Final stage

MONTREAL (CP)—Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor, said Thursday night that the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (CLC) has reached the final stage in its drive to organize 9,500 employees of the Bell Telephone Company in Quebec and Ontario.

Speaking before a meeting of 250 Bell employees, Mr. Laberge said that within 15 days the union would ask for recognition as bargaining agent.

Possible explanation for blackout studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government and industry power experts study today the pattern of Tuesday night's massive blackout in which a power failure surged through city after city in the northeastern United States and in the Ottawa and Toronto areas.

Chairman Joseph C. Swidler of the Federal Power Commission, who heads the investigation, said the panel wants to find out "how the cascading process worked" and also what "reverse action" was taken to restore service.

Coming suddenly during the evening rush hour, the blackout at its peak enveloped 80,000 square miles in an eight-state area and affected up to 30,000,000 persons. Power in New York City was off for more than 10 hours, with hundreds of thousands of persons stranded in subways and elevators.

Swidler indicated he had doubts as to whether he would have a preliminary report to President Johnson ready by this weekend as he first had hoped. After meeting for 14 hours Thursday, Swidler said the problem still was one of finding where the failure occurred. PROBLEM COMPLEX "The breakdown is not traceable to any unit," he said. "The systems went back into service with the same equipment. The problem of tracing is a complex one."

The power commission, a panel of government power experts and officials of the private power companies affected and several others are taking part in the discussions aimed at preventing a any similar power blackout in the future.

In a press conference Thursday, Interior Secretary Udall said he agrees with those government and private experts who believe that stronger interties between electrical power systems would have made Tuesday's power blackout less severe and might have averted it.

Udall said there had been reports that some private power officials had said the massive power loss was due in part to the present inter-tie system, connecting various power companies across the northeast.

agreed to enter the program on a 50-50 cost basis in the summer of 1964.

"The $2,500,000 a year we now get is quite a jump from our first grant of $2,000, but even so it is still spread rather thin," he says. "If we could be guaranteed the money—the defence department's agreement is only on a year - to - year basis—it would certainly solve a number of problems."

Dr. Bull first approached the U.S. Army in 1960 with his plan to investigate the upper atmosphere with instruments shot from a gun without, and with, the help of rockets.

Many officials were sceptical but the U.S. Army Ballistics Research Laboratories at Aberdeen, Md., finally came through with a contract for $2,000. The money was primarily to allow the acquisition of property.

Several years and millions of dollars later, HARP now operates a firing range in the Barbados which includes two radar stations, a tracking ship, scores of cameras with photographic stations on the islands of Barbados, St. Vincent, Grenada and Tobago. A new gun site is being installed at Yuma, Ariz., aside from the one at Highwater, and plans call for another one in the Arctic.

New Waterloo Hospital opens on Sunday

By ALICE BUCKLAND
(Record correspondent)

WATERLOO — Waterloo Hospital had its first start in 1935 when Mrs. Vivian Courville took in elderly persons as boarders.

Mrs. Courville opened a hospital in South Stukely under her name, the Vivian Courville Home. As it grew in size, her son, George and his wife, Evelyn took over. Mrs. Courville, Senior, moved to her own home in South Stukely, taking a few favoured patients whom she could not bear to leave.

George and Evelyn Courville are dedicated to their work. They are not satisfied with any substitute for the best. A book written on their efforts to improve the Home and raise its status would have many chapters. The final chapter is being written this month when the Waterloo Hospital, will receive its first Chronically-ill or convalescent patients. Thirty-five beds are ready and many reserved even now, so great is the need for a hospital of this type in the area.

Official opening ceremonies will be held on Sunday at 2.30 p.m.

The history of the Courvilles' devotion to their work and their aim to have a modern hospital is an example of courage and persistence. Delays or disappointments did not deter them; no effort was too great to further their dream. George and Evelyn studied the laws governing this type of hospital. They attended conventions for private hospitals. They served on committees, addressed several groups of interested people, made innumerable trips to Quebec City or Montreal in this connection, and they succeeded! A lesson in perseverance.

At last Mr. and Mrs. Courville had their permit by "Order in Council" issued by the Government, to build.

Interested citizens of Waterloo asked them to build in the Town with the assurance of a certain amount of financial help. Now to choose a location. An ideal spot was found on top of Clark Hill. Valuable lots were reserved by Messrs Holliday and Bonneau, real-estate agents from Montreal. These two public-spirited men arranged a special price for this project. Six generous citizens of Waterloo bought the lots and donated them for the new hospital.

To go up to this height of land with its view of the lake and mountains is an experience in itself. Every window in that hospital opens onto breath-taking scenery. Nothing obstructs your vision. All rooms are bright and sunny.

The Waterloo Hospital is a one storey building. The exterior is of brick. It measures 190 feet in length by 50 feet in width.

As you enter by the lobby, facing you are the waiting room and office. To your right are the nurse's station, bathing failities, seven private bedrooms and eight semi-private bedrooms all with toilet facilities adjoining to each room. To the very end of this main hall is a large day room or sun-room where patients may visit. To your left are two deluxe private bedrooms, with adjoining bath-room. There are four semi-deluxe private bedrooms with adjoining showers and toilet facilities and three semi-private bedrooms with toilet facilities adjoining each room.

Walking straight ahead, from the lobby, you follow a large hall leading to the service annex, which measures 39 feet by 39 feet. There you find the utility room, storage room, employees locker room, dining room and to the very end, the kitchen.

This building, unique in the Province of Quebec, is built to provide maximum care to all patients under ideal conditions. The rooms will vary in size from 120 sq. ft. to 200 sq. ft. The windows will be large in size and all draperies of fireproof fabric. The halls are to be eight feet wide. This facility is to be heated by a hot water system. It is a modern building designed to meet the needs of our times. The cost seems luxurious but the services provided will meet the total health needs of all patients admitted.

The Hospital will have a well-organized and experienced staff to create a proper medical and social atmosphere for the successful care of the patients. . . . The approximate personnel, when in full operation

Beavers rally to nip Rockets in hard-hitting tilt

Lionel Robidas gets winner as locals pot two within 15 seconds to win, Gauls edge Tigers 4-3

Rallying for two quick goals within fifteen seconds Sherbrooke Beavers eked out a close 6-4 win over the Drummondville Rockets at the Arena last evening in a hard-hitting battle. In the other tilt the Gauls of St. Hyacinthe continued their winning ways posting a close 4-3 victory over Victoriaville Tigers.

The Beavers' next game is Sunday afternoon when they clash with the front-running Gauls of St. Hyacinthe at 2:30 p.m. In the other tilt on the agenda in the Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League the Rockets of Drummondville will journey to Victoriaville Tigers.

A record crowd of 2,325, plus 400 children, paid admission to witness the bang-up battle and they saw a little bit of everything. An argument developed prior to the start of the game between Coach Georges Roy and Manager Lou Poliquin over a player's name on the lineup.

Serge Aubry was hit in the face by the puck during the warm-up and this delayed the game thirty minutes. He returned to action and finished the fray. During the tilt a lot of close scrambles broke out but only one battle took place between Levesque and Lagueux.

Just before the end of the initial frame Claude Cardin was knocked cold when hit by the puck when Raymond Fortin was clearing his zone. He was carried to the room and then taken to the hospital but it is hoped he will be out today.

The players seemed determined to belt each other around and from the opening whistle the busiest man on the ice was Referee Jack MacAuley. He dished out a grand total of 18 minors, two majors and a misconduct to Andre Lagueux.

The only people who didn't get in the act were the fans. They seemed content to watch activities from a distance and this was wise as the way things were going somebody could have been hurt.

Serge Aubry with one side of his face all swollen up turned in a terrific game and was ably assisted by Lionel Robidas, who had his best game of the year. The chunky rear-guard was dishing out stiff bodychecks and was also carrying the puck well. The Beavers' defence was a tough aggregation the whole evening.

Coach Roy shifted his lines around a little and the boys seemed to have more determination. Lou Poliquin was handling the Rockets from the bench and his changes were smart and came at the right time. Haworth was the ice general and Poliquin the bench manager. They make a good team.

Michel Labrosse opened the scoring just after the start and then four minutes later Gordie Haworth made it 2-0 for the Rockets. Rod Gaudreault evened the count when Jim Beckman made a passout after carrying the disc down the ice on a pass from Yves Cossette.

Play was moving at a good clip. Levesque went off and then Therrien and Picard moved in to join him on two overlapping penalties. During this point the Rockets held the fort. Cardin was hit in the face during this stage when Fortin was clearing his zone.

Gilles Cartier was the big-boy on Sherbrooke's second goal as he stick-handled his way down the ice only to see his shot hit the goal post but Bill Dupre was in the right spot and on went the red light to tie the score.

Weather big problem in tomorrow's WFC tilt

CALGARY (CP) — Weather conditions may force Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers to play a slogging defensive match in the first game of the Western Football Conference best-of-three final Saturday, despite their good offensive records.

Driving snow continued to sweep Calgary Thursday and forecasts called for much the same type of weather today. Temperatures were to hit the five-degree mark.

The Stampeders, under freshman coach Jerry Williams, are looking for their first WFC championship and Grey Cup since 1949.

Bud Grant's Bombers are after their first WFC title and Grey Cup since 1962, earning the chance by eliminating Saskatchewan Roughriders in the WFC semi-finals.

Men with shovels and snow-blowing machines have been removing snow from McMahon Stadium nearly all week. But the field, although not covered by a canvas, was in good condition.

At least eight inches of snow—some of it melted—has fallen since early Tuesday. The weather office predicts a "slight chance of snow" Saturday, with light winds and a game-time temperature of about 25 degrees.

SOLD OUT AGAIN — The game, to be televised nationally by CTV, marks the fifth straight sell-out here. Closed-circuit TV was to be set up at the Stampeders Corral to accommodate other fans at $3 a head.

The second game of the series will be Nov. 17 in Winnipeg and a third, if necessary, in Calgary Nov. 20.

A scant 42 yards separate the two clubs in total offence piled up during 16 regular-season games. Winnipeg has the edge but the Stampeders finished in first place and the Bombers second.

The Bombers had a total offence of 5,134 yards on 3,016 yards rushing and 2,118 yards passing. The Stampeders gained 5,092 yards on 2,525 yards rushing and 2,566 yards passing.

Eagle Day of Calgary completed 124 of 215 passes for 1,892 yards, while Winnipeg's Kenny Ploen was good on 124 of 213 tosses for 1,789 yards.

Los Angeles—Jerry Quarry, 191, Paramount, Calif., and Irish Tony Doyle, 203, Draper, Utah, drew, 10.

NEW York Rangers may give up their fifth-place lease in the National Hockey League standings and buy some playoff property.

The Rangers, who dwelled in fifth place for the past two years, have come alive early in the season and are giving the "first division" clubs a run for their money.

New York extended its current unbeaten streak to six games Thursday night, holding Detroit Red Wings to a 3-3 tie in the only scheduled game.

Don Marshall, formerly of Montreal Canadiens and who was a standout as a penalty killer during his Montreal days, paced the New York attack with a goal and an assist.

Bob Nevin, New York's leading scorer to date and formerly with Toronto Maple Leafs, put the Ranger's ahead at 1:04 of the first period when he banged in his own rebound past sprawled Detroit goalie Roger Crozier.

Defenceman Harry Howell gave New York a 2-0 lead at 13:46, just 15 seconds after Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby was penalized for interference.

Crozier grabbed Howell's shot from the point but the puck slipped out of his glove and dribbled into the net.

GETS FOURTH GOAL
Paul Henderson put Detroit on the scoreboard with his fourth goal of the season with less than two minutes remaining in the first frame.

His goal climaxed a three-way play involving Bruce MacGregor and Billy Harris after MacGregor got the puck away from a New York forward and caught the Rangers skating the other way.

Marshall's goal at 7:23 of the second period climaxed New York's second successful power play of the night. The puck barely left the ice as Crozier and defencemen Warren Godfrey and Gadsby tried to cover up.

Detroit came back with ageless Gordie Howe scoring his fourth goal of the season with less than a minute left in the middle period.

Howe's goal was also his 599th during regular season play and climaxed a power play. Howe passed the puck from the back of the net to Andy Bathgate, then deflected Bathgate's shot into the lower left hand corner.

MacGregor scored the only goal of the third period to tie the score and also snap the Red Wings' two-game losing streak.

Detroit outshot the Rangers 42-20 in the game with 18 of the shots coming in the final 20 minutes.

Stanstead County Fish and Game Club holds general meeting to discuss changes in resolutions

AYER'S CLIFF — A general meeting of the Stanstead County Fish and Game Club took place Tuesday evening here in January. Upon recommendation of members, and requested by the public, the suggestion was made that stickers be given in place of the buttons with the membership card. This to be voted upon at the January meeting.

Mr. Poops reported on the resolutions presented by the club at the ET Federation meeting held recently in Sherbrooke. These will be forwarded to the Quebec Federation for meeting taking place in Quebec the first week in December.

Mr. Poops and another voting delegate of the Club will attend the Quebec session.

Billings were presented and voted to be paid. It was noted that the club membership for this year was about 500 members.

Suggestions of Louis Auger, Wildlife Supervisor for the Townships, were presented by President Poops and discussed, and he will take the answers back to Mr. Auger.

Why did Cliff Egerton switch to Black Horse Ale with the new gold label?

Mr. Clifford Egerton of Chateaugay, Que.

Cliff Egerton knows a winning flavour when he tastes it. He tried Black Horse Ale, and now it's his favourite beer.

In a recent taste-test (no looking at labels) among Quebec beer drinkers, 3 out of 5 picked Black Horse Ale over another popular competitive ale.

(This test was conducted by an independent research company) Make the flavour test yourself! Pour a glass of Black Horse Ale. Look at the head. Sniff the pleasant aroma. Best of all, enjoy the rewarding taste. You'll realize why the winning flavour of Black Horse Ale really quenches a beer thirst.

Ticals respect Russ Jackson and figure him tough when he rolls out and dangerous when running

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats concede that Russ Jackson, quarterback for Ottawa Rough Riders, is more dangerous when he rolls out to pass or run than when he drops back into the pocket to throw.

The Ticats, busy preparing for Sunday's opening game of the Eastern Football Conference final in Ottawa, aren't afraid of Jackson, but they respect him.

Kickoff Sunday is 2 p.m. EST and the game will be carried on the CBC television network. The second game of the two-game total-point series will be back here the following Saturday.

"We've never gone into a game with Ottawa that we didn't expect Jackson to run," Ticat coach Ralph Sazio said.

"When he rolls out he has two assets. He can run or he can pass. But it has a minus, too. When he rolls out he narrows down his passing area. Any rollout quarterback is practically committed, on pass plays, to the area he's running toward. He must give up the side of the field he's running away from."

SAZIO WORRIED
But there's one aspect of Jackson's rollout game that worries Sazio.

"It's the busted play that makes Jackson most dangerous," said the Hamilton coach. "We've handled rollouts before, but when something goes wrong his improvised running can be real dangerous."

Sazio's opinion of Jackson as a runner is shared by almost everyone who has seen the Ottawa signal-caller in action.
