

News in brief

To Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — A Sherbrooke lawyer, financier and publisher, Paul Desruisseaux was one of five men appointed to the Senate yesterday by Prime Minister Pearson. He fills the seat vacated by the death of Senator C. B. Howard.

Alan Macnaughton, Montreal lawyer and former Commons Speaker was a second.

The others:

C. W. Carter, MP for Burin-Burgeo riding in Newfoundland, a St. John's educationist.

James Duggan, St. John's, a former railway telegram operator.

Thomas Kickham, Souris, P.E.I., a former Liberal MP.

Leopold Langlois, Quebec City, another former Liberal MP.

Bit less anti-

MONTREAL (CP) — La Société St. Jean Baptiste de Québec announced Friday it is ending its opposition to the design of Quebec's 1967 license plates, but added it still supports unilingual highway signs in the province.

The society had been opposed to the design which included reference to Confederation.

The expense of re-designing the plates, which are already in production, was given by the society as the reason for the decision.

The group proposed instead that metal tags, numbered "67," be issued to motorists to cover the figures "66" on their current plates.

Though the society announced it was changing its stand on one issue, it said its opposition to the provincial government's decision to replace unilingual signs on the Trans-Canada Highway would continue.

Must get ready

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Friday the visits of retired Canadian diplomat Chester Ronning to Hanoi and other capitals have shown that the parties involved in the Viet Nam war would have to make some "preliminary undertakings" before a Geneva conference would have any chance of success.

Mr. Martin, speaking during an interim supply debate that centred on the Viet Nam crisis, said a conference to negotiate a settlement "lies at the end of the road, not at the beginning."

PEI deadlock

SOURIS, P.E.I. (CP) — The political deadlock in Prince Edward Island may be broken Monday. The decision is in the hands of less than 2,500 voters.

Fewer than five per cent of the island's 54,450 eligible voters will take their turn at the polls to register their decision in the deferred election in two-member Kings 1st riding that could give either the incumbent Progressive Conservatives or the Opposition Liberals the balance of power.

Trade arranged

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and the 13 Commonwealth Caribbean countries produced a new trading arrangement Friday compounded of immediate changes and tie-binding promises.

The deal, worked out at a top-level conference, also places trading relations between developed Canada and the developing Commonwealth Caribbean on a permanent consultation footing.

Opera enjoyed

STRATFORD (CP)—Mozart's opera Don Giovanni, directed by Jean Gascon, opened Friday night at the Stratford Festival Avon Theatre with critics proclaiming it splendid, tasteful, exciting and understandable.

Sung in English, the musical adaptation of the life and loves of Don Juan stars Cornelis Ophoff of Rotterdam as Don Giovanni and Sylvia Saurette as Donna Anna and Jan Rubes as Leporello.

Ready for riot

CALGARY (CP)—Squads of city police are prepared to head off a repetition of teenage outbreaks which marred last year's pre-Stampede weekend.

Police Chief Ken McIver said police dogs also were available. The city scheduled an open-air teen dance Sunday night to keep youths occupied. The six-day Stampede opens Monday.

Ottawa tells broadcasters what it expects, at last

By BOB BLACKBURN

OTTAWA — So now we know what the Government wants broadcasting to be — but don't get the idea that's all there is to it. We still have all manner of fuss in store.

When State Secretary Judy LaMarsh tabled the Government's white paper on broadcasting in the Commons, it was with the expressed idea that the public would have the rest of the summer to think about it.

Then in the fall, the Parliamentary broadcasting committee would consider it and hold hearings at which representations might be made. She doesn't expect to see a new broadcasting act before Parliament until early 1968.

FURTHER STUDY

Nobody can charge the Government with trying to rush this business through. In the white paper itself there are several references to matters which require "further study," and now the whole subject is still in for one big further study.

Would it be rash to suggest that broadcasting has been studied quite enough for the moment, and that it's time for action?

Since the last Broadcasting Act in 1958, we've had the Glassco Report, the Fowler Report and the Keate Report. We've had the CBC public opinion study, the CBC management survey, and the CBC president's report.

We've had the interim report of the broadcasting committee, the CBC's report on the Fowler Report, various reports and recommendations from the BGG, and I frankly have forgotten what else.

Now we have the long-awaited statement of Government policy and now it has got to be studied for six months. Still, it's a big step forward, and resolves enough doubts so that to some extent broadcasters will be able to get on with the business of broadcasting.

BITTER EXPERIENCE

The CBC, for instance, cannot now say it doesn't know what the Government expects of it, and it doesn't have to wait for legislation to start behaving accordingly, no matter how bitter the experience may be.

Wide open and Red

Yugoslavia bafflingly democratic

By RON POULTON

BELGRADE — (TNS) — Someone has scrawled a message in praise of the Rolling Stones on a wall of Belgrade's best hotel. Pepsi-Cola is on sale. Gambling casinos are open — for the use of foreigners only.

In such ways the tide of Western culture laps at Yugoslavia's shores, exerting influences on what to democratic eyes is the most enlightened of Communist countries.

1,100-ROOM HOTEL

Plans are afoot for an 1,100-room hotel to be built by an American airline and the state. It cannot go up too soon. There are nights in the tourist season when a thousand people have to sleep in Belgrade parks because hotels are jammed.

Yugoslavia baffles. Its prices are rising as though it were a democracy. It is possible to meet an independent cab owner who will charge double the proper rate from Belgrade Airport.

Its people are well dressed. Its capital is developing a traffic problem. Belgrade cops, amused spectators of the game of who hits who, contribute to the gamble by waving cars through crowded crosswalks. Soldiers are not in evidence except on a weekend pass.

One Class A hotel reeks with the smell of must and sweat. Another gleams with marble and mirrors. Supermarkets and restaurants are well stocked and busy. Construction booms. And I did not meet a foreign resident who was not happy living in the place.

Yugoslavia is wide open to democratic influences. Three million tourists visited last year. No barbed wire runs along the 1,800-mile land frontier which borders seven countries.

Tourists from Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland use it to skip into Austria where they find it easier to arrange visas to countries like Canada. One educated estimate placed the number at 2,000 such refugees last year. Yugoslavia does nothing to stop them because it refuses to play gendarme for other Communist countries.

Volunteers serve for two years on a project after a comprehensive three-month training program in Canada to study the language, customs, economy and history of the country in which they will work.

Volunteer David Henry, a boyish looking high school teacher, is a good example of a typical volunteer — if there is such a thing among these young people from a variety of educational and home backgrounds.

He is teaching English in Chowdar, a small town 270 miles south of Calcutta, India. His school, which is still being built, is a technical institute for boys 12 to 14.

Married couples are accepted as long as both are qualified.

There is no age limit (the youngest volunteer is 20, the oldest 53) but CUSO people must be qualified Canadian graduates from a university or recognized school, such as a nursing school or a technological institute.

Old religious tension in India-Pakistan ills

By Rangaswamy Satakopan

NEW DELHI (AP)—Ancient religious tensions underlying the long India-Pakistan quarrel once again are being debated in the troubled subcontinent. The issue is whether Hinduism, India's majority religion, is a threat to neighboring Pakistan, its Islamic religion and assimilate every emerging culture in the subcontinent.

Z. A. Bhutto, who has re-thereby finishing off each signed as Pakistan's foreign one's revolutionary qualities.

The Hindu culture devoured Buddhism, killed Jainism (a Hindu creed resembling Buddhism) and intended the Islamic culture to meet the same fate.

Bhutto's statement was an elaboration of a feeling often encountered in Pakistan that India, with its predominantly Hindu 485,000,000 people, intends to swallow 110,000,000 Pakistanis at the earliest possible moment.

Indian officials dismiss such fears as groundless but religious tensions nevertheless play a major part in the feud with Pakistan, which has erupted into all-out war twice since 1947.

India's spokesman in these matters often is Education Minister M. C. Chagla, himself a Moslem like Bhutto. Chagla put the Hindu case this way in an interview:

"Hinduism does not believe in conversion. It is not a militant fanatical religion, out to destroy others with a sword. India has declared itself a secular state, with equal rights for all religions."

He noted that about 50,000,000 Indians are Moslems, nearly 12,000,000 are Christians and about 10,000,000 are followers of the militant Sikh religion, a mixture of Islam and Hinduism.

But the absurd quality of Hinduism cannot be denied. This great religion, more a way of life than anything else, is universal in its appeal.

Historically, followers of non-Hindu religions in the subcontinent are converts from Hinduism. Thus, Chagla claims Pakistan's Moslems are, in fact, converted Hindus.

"By attacking Hinduism, Mr. Bhutto is attacking only his own Hindu forebears," Chagla said.

This attitude infuriates Pakistanis, who point to the disappearance of Buddhism from India, the land of its birth, because it was assimilated by Hinduism. Jainism has not disappeared but with about 2,500,000 followers is a weakened religion.

New Red menace reports arrive from Mexico

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There is a flow of somewhat disturbing letters arriving here from ordinary citizens in Mexico.

These letters report Red activity and Communist sympathy in the north of Mexico, especially in the rural areas.

To be known as an active anti-Communist has become dangerous in some places.

A Mexican student association president at one school recently asked that material be sent for him to use in combating communism on his campus. But he became frightened when that literature flooded in — and he suddenly began refusing to accept it from the mailman. It was returned marked the Mexican equivalent of "addressee unknown."

Excerpts from two typical letters will give the nature of the recent reports:

The first is from a man in San Luis Potosi, Mexico:

"I made a trip through Tamauipas, Coahuila, Nuevo Leon and Chihuahua and I was told of an armed encounter between government forces and a band of men whose leader is a teacher. More than 20 persons were killed during the fight.

"While in Tamauipas, I had the opportunity of talking with a Communist leader who was on the same bus I was riding, who gave me information on the (Red) armed movement in Chihuahua.

"I was also informed of the smuggling of arms into Mexico across the U.S. frontier. I was told this smuggling occurs with great frequency."

The other letter was from a businessman in Lower California, Mexico.

"What I can tell you is that I heard that here in Mexico there is a Red China secret movement going on. There are stores run by the Chinese who dedicate themselves to exploring our mountain ridges (Sierras). I am told they are working on subversion (presumably safe mountain areas for guerrilla operating bases) and that they have plenty of money behind them."

U.S. government sources report that the Independent Peasant Central — a major Red front organized in early 1963 — can now count on 50,000 active supporters, particularly among rural labor in the north.

Youth can serve

By MAGGIE SIGGINS

CANADIAN young people wanting to serve the underprivileged in Canada and abroad now have two agencies to work through.

Canadian University Services Overseas (CUSO), an independent organization receiving financial assistance from the federal and provincial governments, business and industry, foundations and private organizations, is similar to the United States' Peace Corps.

CUSO sends well-trained volunteers to over 30 countries. The Company of Young Canadians, a newly-formed organization under the auspices of the federal government, is sending 70 volunteers on its first pilot project in the fall to needy areas in Canada. It is similar to Vista, the United States' domestic peace corps.

CUSO was established in 1961 by Canadian universities and several national organizations, and has since become a successful and well organized service, dispatching over 500 volunteers around the world.

There is no age limit (the youngest volunteer is 20, the oldest 53) but CUSO people must be qualified Canadian graduates from a university or recognized school, such as a nursing school or a technological institute.

Married couples are accepted as long as both are qualified.

Bustling Magog tourist trade conceals strike ill effects

Vacation pay is offered

MONTREAL — Vacation pay to striking employees was the offer made public by Dominion Textile Company today.

A statement issued by the company read:

"Vacation time is approaching for all plants of the company. In the case of some 5,000 employees at Drummondville, Magog, Montmorency and Sherbrooke, including Domil, who have been on strike for several months, the regular vacation pay has not been made up because the union has closed the mills and forcibly prevented office and maintenance staffs from entering.

"Management feels that, strike or no strike, all employees should receive the vacation pay to which they are entitled and should get it at the earliest possible opportunity.

To this end the company is advising union officials and all employees that office employees will be at the mill gates at 8:30 a.m. on Monday, July 11 and if there is no interference of any nature the vacation pay will be calculated and mailed to the employees as early as possible during the week."

Tourists flock to Magog beaches . . . but strikers line up for food

Feast and famine in textile city

By CLAUDE LABRECQUE (Record staff reporter)

MAGOG — This city on the shores of Lake Memphremagog is really two communities in one this summer.

There is the bustling prosperous community of the tourist trade. Its members say they are enjoying one of the best vacation seasons in years. Their cash registers ring merrily.

Then there is the community of the striking textile workers — over 2,000 of them who have been on meagre strike pay since April 13. Many of them and their families stand in a union food line each week.

Their lack of salaries, in turn, have hurt year-round business in Magog — those built on the trade of full-time residents. At least one merchant has been forced out of business. Others are having a tough summer.

Before the strike, $100,000 in weekly textile salaries flowed into the city's restaurants, drug stores, supermarkets, clothing stores and other businesses.

But now, they say sourly, "my business has been cut down by 25 per cent", or "Compared to last year at this time my profits are down 17 per cent," or the meaningful commentary "business just isn't the same."

But austerity, a true fact for many merchants, is a daily problem for strikers who must now make do with a $13 weekly relief check from the local union.

"With eight kids, mister, I only exist," one striker commented, then added "course there is the free food" The "free food" is a relief plan set up by the union in the basement of Ste. Marguerite Church.

Here, 1000 families receive weekly rations of meat, vegetables, potatoes, milk and butter.

Also, each day, strikers go out and take a collection which is subsequently divided among the needier workers.

Thus far, $12,826.76 has been taken up in charity drives in churches, among merchants and in in neighboring towns.

But even with this relief many strikers can barely live. They certainly are not able to spend what they regularly did in supermarkets and clothing stores.

And those merchants most hard hit are the "Lower Town" merchants, those with stores close to the Dominion Textile plant and away from the highway and tourist areas.

In this strikers area one merchant has gone out of business since the strike.

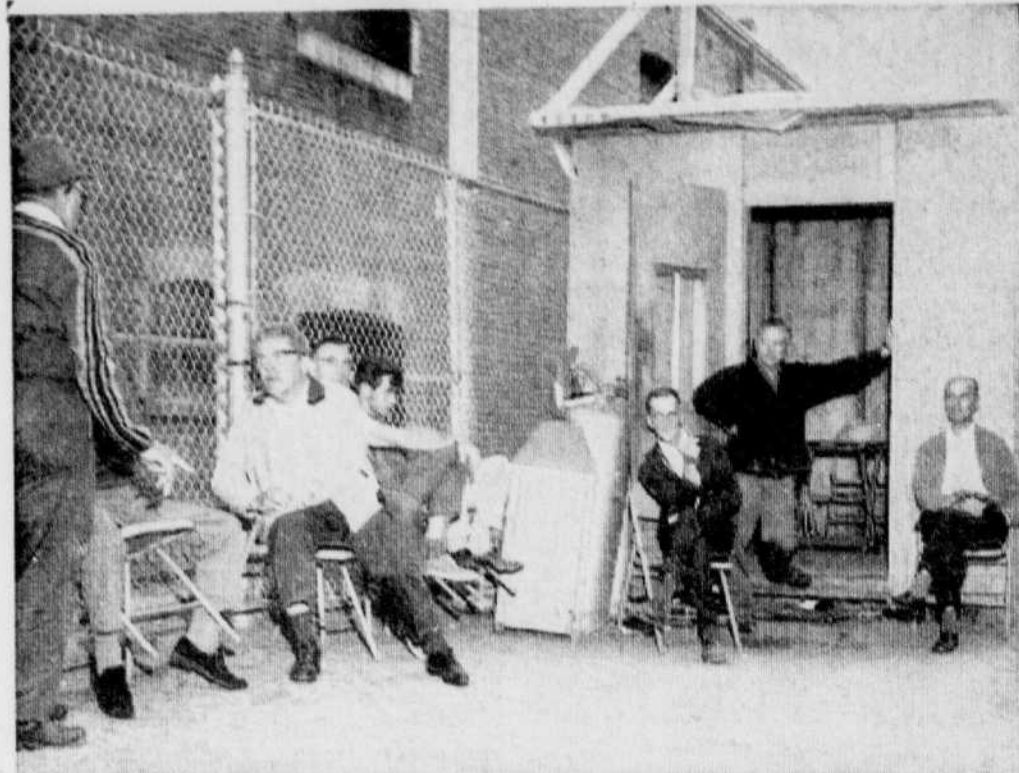

Another one, a grocery store owner, admits: "I don't know how long it will take me to get back on my feet once the strike is settled".

In sharp contrast to this "Lower Town" poverty and merchant privation is the booming tourist trade.

Tourist-oriented merchants agree "the tourist business is the best in years". The city's 3000 surrounding cottages and slogan "Centre de Villégiature" have brought on what might be a record year.

Surrounding beaches and hotels are astir with summer visitors.

Death of man found in his car is ruled accidental by inquest

A coroner's inquest into the death of Andre Clement 32-year-old Sherbrooke man found in his car on Duplessis Road near Route 5 on the outskirts of Sherbrooke last Tuesday, July 5, resulted in a verdict of accidental death by a jury yesterday morning.

Dr. Louis Gagnon, Sherbrooke coroner, led the inquest to determine if the death was accidental or suicidal. Clement had been found dead in his car which was in his garage on Duplessis Road last Tuesday. A neighbor who had not seen any sign of life from the house for a few days, called the victim's uncle, Richard Guillemet who came straight away and discovered the body.

Clement was found at the wheel of the car, the car keys were on and the battery dead. The body was in a state of decomposition.

Mrs. Andre Clement, the wife of the deceased, Marcel LaPierre, Clement's neighbor, and Richard Guillemet, Clement's uncle, testified at the enquiry.

Corporal Fernand Lanthier who investigated the case for Quebec Provincial Police presented a report from a medical legal laboratory in Montreal. The report was an autopsy performed by this laboratory which reported that the death was attributable to asphyxiation from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Mrs. Andre Clement said that her husband had been living alone for some time. Questions were asked by Leonce Cote lawyer representing the family of the deceased and by Gerard Allaire lawyer representing the widow.

Both sides appeared gloomy about prospects for a quick end to the crippling walkout by more than 35,000 mechanics and other ground personnel, members of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO).

Mr. Harold McKee and son, Moley, Montreal, were weekend guests at the Cruickshank summer home. Mrs. McKee returned to Montreal with them, after spending the week here. Traffic circulation increases on Eastern Townships autoroute Traffic circulation for the first five months of 1966 has increased 35.2 per cent on the Eastern Townships Autoroute, say Quebec Autoroute authorities.

This increase is compared to the circulation over the same period of last year.

From the beginning of January, 1966, to the end of May, the circulation, percentage-wise, has increased at each toll as follows: Chambly, 73.3 per cent; Marieville, 30.6 per cent; Granby, 28.3 per cent; Waterloo, 23.8 per cent; and Orford, 19.4 per cent.

The figures mentioned above represent an increase of 677,450 motor vehicles making use of the expressway. In 1965, for the five month period, 1,925,064 vehicles were counted, and this year, that figure has jumped to 2,602,514.

The release also mentioned that only one fatality has occurred in 1966, during the recent long holiday weekend. No fatal accidents happened during the previous weekend, St. Jean Baptiste.

Commercial use of the Autoroute this year has increased 65 per cent over the period of 65. This year of the 35.2 per cent increase, 8.6 per cent were commercial vehicles.

The tolls paid by these commercial trucks and vans has been reduced, it is reported, at each of the toll stations. The present rate is fifteen cents per axle at four of the five stations, with a double rate at Chambly.

"Financially," say Autoroute authorities, "the Eastern Townships route is doing well."

Girl, 8 is found drowned

MANSIONVILLE — (Staff) — An eight-year-old girl drowned here Thursday afternoon in an artificial lake.

Heather Burcombe, daughter of Mrs. Amber Burcombe disappeared at about 5:15 Thursday afternoon reported Cowansville Quebec Provincial Police who investigated.

She was discovered at about 7 p.m. Thursday.

When the girl was found missing the fire department was called in and they conducted a search. Not finding anything they came upon a small artificial lake. Firemen drained the lake by opening a dam. The body of the child was found in the lake. There was between 7 to 8 feet of water in the lake.

The date for an inquest into the death has not been set.

Mr. Ouimet said that the situation is very complex. He said that the complexity was partly due to the fact that there was only one channel available on the Very High Frequency, the type of broadcasting frequency discussed in their talk.

The other difficulty in the establishing of the station, said Mr. Ouimet was the question of whether or not the French-speaking majority of the region would have to be supplied with an alternative service.

Mr. Ouimet said that the question of whether or not to give the English-speaking minority the only available VHF channel was the reason for his inability to give complete details on the possibility of establishing the station.

Moreover, said Mr. Ouimet, the VHF frequency poses certain problems for the viewing audience. Only American built sets, he explained, are able to receive VHF transmissions.

This problem though, said Mr. Ouimet, can be easily solved by making modifications to the Canadian-made sets.

Mr. Ouimete also said that the financial factor influences the extension of CBC services and that this limitation would apply to the stations planned for Sherbrooke.

At the annual meeting held recently at Dorval, P.Q., Merrill E. Cook was elected president of The Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Quebec.

Mr. Cook, who is employed by the Canadian Ingersoll-Rand Co. Ltd., of Sherbrooke, is a member of the Eastern Townships Chapter.

Other officers elected for the 1966-67 term are: vice-presidents: G. Brown, R.I.A., Quebec; L. A. Gouzen, Windsor, Que.; J. Lanctot, C.A., Montreal; Z. Wojciechowski, B.Sc. (Econ.), Trois-Rivieres; J. C. Wynn, R.I.A., Montreal, Treasurer and D. W. Burke, C.A., Montreal, Secretary.

Alphonse Ouimet president of CBC, has answered a query from federal Member of Parliament for Sherbrooke, Maurice Allard concerning the possibility of establishing an English television relay station in Sherbrooke.

Mr. Ouimet said that the situation is very complex. He said that the complexity was partly due to the fact that there was only one channel available on the Very High Frequency, the type of broadcasting frequency discussed in their talk.

The other difficulty in the establishing of the station, said Mr. Ouimet was the question of whether or not the French-speaking majority of the region would have to be supplied with an alternative service.

Mr. Ouimet said that the question of whether or not to give the English-speaking minority the only available VHF channel was the reason for his inability to give complete details on the possibility of establishing the station.

Moreover, said Mr. Ouimet, the VHF frequency poses certain problems for the viewing audience. Only American built sets, he explained, are able to receive VHF transmissions.

This problem though, said Mr. Ouimet, can be easily solved by making modifications to the Canadian-made sets.

Mr. Ouimete also said that the financial factor influences the extension of CBC services and that this limitation would apply to the stations planned for Sherbrooke.

At the annual meeting held recently at Dorval, P.Q., Merrill E. Cook was elected president of The Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Quebec.

Mr. Cook, who is employed by the Canadian Ingersoll-Rand Co. Ltd., of Sherbrooke, is a member of the Eastern Townships Chapter.

Other officers elected for the 1966-67 term are: vice-presidents: G. Brown, R.I.A., Quebec; L. A. Gouzen, Windsor, Que.; J. Lanctot, C.A., Montreal; Z. Wojciechowski, B.Sc. (Econ.), Trois-Rivieres; J. C. Wynn, R.I.A., Montreal, Treasurer and D. W. Burke, C.A., Montreal, Secretary.

Many beauty spots in ET area

By now some of you are on vacation or just leaving. Others are here from other points looking over our many beauty spots.

The visitors who take pictures will find our lakes good spots for enjoying their hobby.

For those who like mountain climbing, Orford mountain, 2900 feet high could be a good spot and many good pictures could be taken from the summit. Don't forget a yellow filter for black and white pictures and a U. V. or 81 for colour film. This cuts down the blue content of the scene and helps to eliminate ultra-violet rays, which are invisible but cause a slight fogging and flat negatives. This is a problem at the high altitudes.

By the way, for those who like their mountain climbing, easy, try the chair lift. Full details can be had at the Sherbrooke Tourist Bureau or the one in Magog.

For the visiting shutter-bug, the main lakes around Sherbrooke such as Memphremagog or Massawippi and Bromel lakes are fun.

Also boats are available at a moderate rental rate with or without motors.

The lakes have many bays where lots of fine pictures may be taken and your rented boat makes for easy access to these spots. Take along the lunch and enjoy the whole day.

For those who don't like the heights or water the byroads and out of the way places are just waiting for your artistic eye and the camera. Many of the best roads are bordering the lakes.

Pollution also troubles Soviets

One of the prime arguments advanced by Socialists for public ownership of any enterprise is that it will do away almost immediately with the damage to the public welfare caused by those who cannot see beyond their private interest.

When the "horrible" profit motive is removed, say the Socialists, management will be prepared to accept the latest technology in the field of forest preservation, proper land cultivation and the prevention of water pollution.

But for almost half-a-century now Russia has had to learn the hard way that the bureaucratic factory manager, intent only upon achieving his production plan, can be at least as indifferent to the general welfare as the most narrow-minded capitalist, and consequently just as guilty of polluting the environment.

The Soviet record of outrages against that nation's air, water and other natural resources, is fully as shameful as the Canadian, and has aroused the same alarm among thoughtful Soviet citizens as expressed by conservationists on this continent.

According to news reports from the Soviet Union a crucial battle is now being fought by those who wish to stop the ruin of the country's natural environment.

A group of leading intellectuals in Moscow is attempting to prevent the poisoning of one of the world's natural wonders — Lake Baikal — by Soviet pulp and paper mills now almost ready to go into production.

The importance of their effort arises from the fact that Lake Baikal is the world's largest and deepest fresh-water lake.

The protesters are demanding that the economic planners recognize their mistake, write off their capital investment and prevent these plants from ever operating in their present location.

Times change. Nowadays it's rare to encounter anyone who is afraid to fly.

Hayden S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR:

Summer's a time for work and rest

This is the good old summer time. Fields and meadows, upland ridges and mountain shoulders reveal that already many of Earth's humbler plants have finished their cycle. It is part of Nature's inscrutable wisdom. A brier growth, blossom, and fruition time guarantees seeds which insure another generation when winter has passed.

The solstice has come and gone and the sun is retracing its path toward the horizon. The heat waves are ahead. It is a time of pale blue sky and blazing sun while ripened grasses on uplands turn a deeper amber. Corn is knee high and pushes toward tasselling time. Apples are swelling on the bough and acorns fill out filagree saucers.

The Old Farmer's Almanack, July 1875, had good advice. "The true way to go through the hot weather is to keep the mind so occupied that we shall not notice the condition of the atmosphere." This is indeed the heart of summer, and at high noon heat often lies like a hot blanket on the country-side.

There is soft beauty at dawn when gray mists resemble fluffy blankets above the swamps and swales, and slanting rays paint thin-hued pictures on the hills. When day is done and the shadows gather, it is good to sit on the farmhouse porch and watch fireflies stage a ballet over the lawn. Whippoorwills call from the pasture lane and cowbells in the night pasture tinkle in the moist darkness. July begins the downward trek to that shortest day in the last month; but during long hot days and quiet nights, the forces that govern our flowering world push forward on schedule.

Other papers say:

Justice should be seen to be done

In the light of sentiments existing in the minds of some lawyers and judges, a defence of the right of the press to cover and expose judicial proceedings is exceedingly important.

In Canada the attack has been levelled against newspaper reports of preliminary hearings in magistrates' courts. It has been said that such reports prejudice the rights of accused persons at subsequent trials. This form of the attack on the press has been paralleled in England. But in England there also has been a tendency to criticize preliminary hearings (committal proceedings, they call them there) as unnecessary anyway. Lord Parker, Chief Justice of England, disagrees on both counts. In a public speech recently he said not only that such proceedings should be retained in fairness to accused persons but there was need for giving them full publicity as judicial proceedings.

In the first place, he said, juries are becoming better educated and more independently minded. The sensational publicity given to a case such as the murders on the moors might have been distasteful but it did not mean there was a case for curbing publicity by law. If improvement is to be made it must come from the press itself.

A positive point made by Lord Parker is one often used in their own defence by the newspapers. It is that without publicity of committal proceedings rumors in a neighborhood could become more and more extravagant. But there is another and more important reason, linked with the foregoing, which his lordship did not mention, though it came from the mouth of one of his predecessors, Lord Chief Justice Hewart, in 1923:

"Justice should not only be done, but manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done."

Cheerful exchange is good business

Depending upon your politics, you may or may not like the fact that the Canadian dollar is worth less than its U.S. counterpart. But whether you like it or not, the fact remains that the greater value of the U.S. dollar stimulates the tourist trade in Canada. The fact that the U.S. dollar buys more in Canada encourages Americans to spend vacation time in Canada and spend money here.

Manitoba, which has high, though not completely fulfilled, hopes in the tourist field, could do much to increase its tourism potential if all who do business with tourists from the United States would exercise simple courtesy in any dealings involving U.S. currency.

The U.S. dollar is at a premium, and a careful payment of the proper rate of exchange would do much to stimulate good will on the part of tourists. Many restaurants, motels, hotels, and other establishments now follow a policy of giving the proper rate of exchange. Consequently, U.S. tourist now expect — and have a right to expect — the same consideration in all Manitoba business establishments. If tourists are reminded that their dollar buys more in Canada, and are paid the proper exchange, without grumbling, they will come back and encourage friends to do likewise. They will remember the extra consideration they received.

Cowboy craze now invades France

From sophisticated Frenchmen, America has frequently received scorn as being nothing but a land of cowboys and illiterate Indians swaggering across the West. It comes as a shock, therefore to learn that cowboy lore is the latest fad in France.

According to the Wall Street Journal, Frenchmen have been interested in the West for years. But not until recently, because of France's booming economy, have they had the time and money to live like westerners on weekends. The result is that Parisian cowboy buffets have formed a Western Club where they

(The Hartford Courant) shuffle the Big Howdy square dance. Opening soon will be La Vallee des Peaux-Rouges (The Valley of the Redskins), a replica of a western town featuring several Indian villages and the Crazy Horse Saloon.

Promoters of the western village expect 400,000 paying customers this summer, suggesting that Gallic merchants have discovered, as 19th Century American speculators did that "There's gold in them thar hills." Other French clubs, newly organized, are finding it fun to listen to western music, taking an occasional break for a lasso contest. In the retail market, outfits with an Indian motif are beginning to appear.

This development, no doubt, should startle American tourists this summer when they see French cowboys strutting down the Champs-Elysees, humming some ditty about the little dogie on the lone prairie. Since some United States tourists have long considered Paris to be scalping country, the shock may not be too great. For that matter, common ground may have been found at last.

IF WE LIVE THAT LONG...

Adventures with God

Thoughts after LOL invitation: God is best defence of faith

I was amused and disturbed when a member of the Loyal Orange Lodge invited me to join, amused because his invitation came at the end of life, and disturbed because there are so few younger people committed to the defense of the faith, and the principles which compel loyal men and women to stand up and be counted for the cause they espouse.

Something surprised I replied: "I couldn't walk in a parade."

Not to be thwarted he assured me: "You could ride in a parade!"

The invitation reminded me of a conversation I overheard many years ago. It was a blazing hot Sunday when LOL members boarded the car en route to a Church parade. The man with the big drum stood beside me chatting with a perspiring younger bandsman.

"Are you going to walk on the 12th?" the older man asked.

"I'll see what kind of a day it is first," said the youthful defender of the faith.

As a child I sat on the curb to watch the wonderful passing parade and I knew the date in July, 1890 when William III, Prince of Orange, won the Battle of the Boyne, and I admired the Loyal who lived in our community, but I had no desire to become involved in a parade, not even if they allowed me to carry a Bible which is a symbol respected by the organization. My father had given me the details, but had never suggested that I join anything but the Church, and like him I had become so involved in the Church that there was not time or energy to join a lodge, however commendable their aims might be. But I watched with pride and hope the long lines of men and women who walked at the turn of the century. But with regret I noted that the parades got shorter with the passing years, and I have wondered why.

There are many contributing factors in the decline of interest in the defense of the faith, and our heritage of freedom. I believe the major cause of decline is lack of loyalty to Jesus Christ and resistance to any form of discipline. There are too many dress paraders in the world today who want to ride in the parade, when they ought to be slugging along the hard, hot road bearing the cross and letting their lights shine for their Master. Too many who spurn the tough rules of discipline and turn away from the "hard savings" that demand dedication, and sacrifice as well as loyalty to a person and His cause. Today it might well be written of many: "From that time, many of his disciples went back and walked no more with him." John 6:66. Religiously and politically many are ineffective because they only parade faith and fail to live it and demonstrate it in the heat of battle. The best defence of faith and loyalty is dedication and discipline and consistent application to the ideals and doctrines of the Founder of our faith. We must be prepared to live our faith and if necessary, die for it. Only such a positive demonstration will convince our godless neighbors of the reality of our experience and the power of God to change men's lives and altar the course of history.

Twenty years ago Alexander Clifford, a correspondent for the London Daily Mail, wrote: "Communism is a fully fledged religion which claims to be of universal application . . . it is rigidly orthodox and highly fanatical . . . and this religion has got a grip on the world." He continued: "A faith that is so firmly held cannot be combatted on political or diplomatic levels . . . it must be met with another faith, a positive and constructive faith with power to seize men's minds."

Clifford expressed doubt that even the Roman Catholic Church had power to combat communism. We know now that neither the Church of Rome nor the Protestant Church has been able to stem the tide of agnosticism and atheism which has swept the world in our generation. Neither communism or any other "ism" will supersede Christianity, but we do not stop parading and get on with living our faith, we may once again be called upon to die for our faith. Let us exalt Christ together in deed as well as word. No one with a smidgeon of common sense can look at the world today and not be aware that trouble is imminent. When we learn to live our faith, it will require less defending.

(From the Record of Tuesday, July 9, 1946)

Tribute was paid yesterday to Ernest Gaboury, Governor of Lions Clubs in District A.4, by J. E. Caron, president of the Sherbrooke Club, who pointed out that during the past 12 months the efforts of Mr. Gaboury had resulted in the creation of seven new clubs in his district with a membership of 400.

Mr. Caron included the praise of the district governor in his report of the recent district convention held in Niagara Falls to which he had been official delegate from the local branch — delivered at the luncheon meeting in the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

It was also through the forceful addresses of Mr. Gaboury that the convention had decided in future to open the annual oratorical contest, sponsored by Ontario and Quebec Clubs to French-speaking students.

The PRAYER for TODAY from The Upper Room

Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. (Corinthians 3:17, RSV).

PRAYER: O Lord a savior, may Thy spirit so dwell in me that I shall be free indeed! Help me to have Christlike love and compassion like His for all men, I ask in His name. Amen.

COMMENT

by Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — (TNS) — In all the attempts to streamline the cumbersome parliamentary rules and proceedings, the loudest advocates of drastic reforms have been the New Democrats. The most vocal of them all has always been their procedural expert and House leader Stanley Knowles. Right now it is the NDP group and particularly Mr. Knowles — that uses every delaying and obstructive device in the old rule book. When the last Parliament discussed procedural reforms, the New Democrats and a few other members pressed for a session timetable which would have fixed the dates for Easter, summer and Christmas recesses. This arrangement would have enabled both the Government and the MPs to plan their work schedules.

Tacit agreement

Although the idea was not accepted, a tacit agreement seemed to have emerged in the new Parliament that this year an all-party effort would be made to start the summer recess at the end of June.

The Government geared its legislative program to that date and despite the Spencer and Munsinger diversions, the Commons managed to process the bulk of the legislative load within the anticipated time schedule.

Everything went so well — especially since the shock of the bomb explosion — that last Wednesday morning Government House leader George McIlraith still confidently predicted summer adjournment the following day. All that needed to be done was to tidy up a few odds and ends, including passage of the generally acceptable Canada Assistance Plan.

At that moment, however, the opposition parties — and particularly the New Democrats — sniffed an opportunity for playing political football with the bill and decided to prolong the session.

The idea was to make approval of the Canada Assistance Plan conditional on the Government's willingness to accept the opposition's long-standing demand for raising the old age pension from $75 to $100 a month.

Need recognized

The Government, which recognizes the dire need of a large number of pensioners for more money but opposes an across-the-board $25 increase (which would cost the taxpayer an estimated $800 million), worked out a less costly and more sensible solution of the pressing problem.

The intention apparently was to outline this scheme — which would give a supplement of up to $30 a month to needy persons who are too old to benefit from the already approved Canada Pension Plan — before the summer recess for full implementation at an estimated cost of about $300 million.

Fearing that the announcement of such aid to those who really need it would blur their hoped-for image as the seemingly most ardent champions of solid welfare and relief measures, the New Democrats launched a filibuster of the Canada Assistance Plan. Mr. Knowles, the rules expert; knew very well that his blockade would make it impossible for Health and Welfare Minister Allan MacEachen to make the announcement as long as the talkathon continued.

The opposition adopted the Knowles - devised tactic and in an obvious attempt to squeeze every vote - getting drop out of this lemon of hypocrisy, kept the filibuster going for a whole week.

Scouting and Cubbing

One hundred and eighteen Cubs from six St. Francis District centres attended a monster campout at Spooner pond, near Richmond from June 23rd to June 28th. Twenty-five scouts and their boys from Danville, Asbestos, Windsor, Drummondville, Richmond and Sorel worked and played together to make this year's the most successful camp in years. There was friendly rivalry at the individual as well as the unit level. A new trophy - known as the J. Leckie Memorial Trophy - was presented to the boys of No. 2 Tent of the Danville Pack. Laurie Goguan, Chairman of the Windsor Group Committee donated the trophy in memory of the late Assistant District Commissioner of St. Francis Valley District. More than 287 individual proficiency badges were earned at camp. The Cubs from Drummondville led this field with 92 badges. The runners-up were Richmond with 63 and Danville with 60. Each evening campfire festivities were eagerly attended and every Pack had its turn organizing the program. A Cub's own divine service was held on Sunday morning with the Rev. Alex Cameron of the Richmond United Church as guest speaker. Many parents, attended the camp on Sunday visitors' day. A handicraft class was organized by the Drummondville leaders, and this proved to be one of the camp's highlights. At the formal opening ceremonies, District Commissioner Henry Arsenneau presented two Cub masters - Roy LeDrew of Danville and LeRoy Lister of Richmond with hat badges. They now have the title of District Cubmasters. Much of the camp's success was due to the tireless efforts of the staff - especially to Camp Chief LeRoy Lister, to Quartermaster Frank Davidson, to Program-director Bob Arsenneau, and to the Cooks Mrs. G. Miller and Mrs. Fred Hess.

3-ring circus at Thetford, Windsor and Asbestos

Sells and Gray Three-Ring young Captain Johnny Golden, wild animal trainer and former Hollywood stunt man. Armed with gun, whip and chair, he enters the steel arena at every performance to battle five jungle-bred African lions. His steel-nerved mastery of the snarling jungle cats keeps tension-filled audiences on the edge of their seats. Each of his savage pets weighs over 500 pounds and can break the back of a horse with a single sweep of a paw.

Sharing the spotlight are the sensational aerial team the Pedrolas, from Germany, and the beautiful young European circus star on the high trapeze, Carmen del Molino.

Both of these acts have been featured in major circuses in Paris, London, Rome, Madrid, Berlin and Copenhagen. Both scorn the use of a safety net as they perform high in the dome of the big top, and circus officials say that each tries to outdo the other at every performance in a continuing professional rivalry.

Another outstanding feature of Sells and Gray Circus for 1966 is the petite blond Miss Gerda, from Austria, who slides down a wire from the peak of the big top to the ground suspended only by her teeth. Then there is the lovely Patricia Miller, ballerina on horseback who performs intricate dance steps and graceful acrobatics with breath-taking verve on the back of a galloping horse.

The Hills, a featured last season with Ringling Bros. Barnum and Bailey present their lovable group of trained French poodles in an act reported to be as amazing as it is appealing.

Trained elephants and horses, jugglers, wire-walkers and other popular circus acts will be included, plus of course, the traditional clowns, headed by Bill Nippo with his timely take-off on "Batman" and the "Bat-car."

Performances are scheduled for 2 and 8 p.m. Activities on the circus grounds will commence an hour prior to show and tickets may be purchased in advance from the members of the Knights of Columbus, in either Thetford Mines, Asbestos or Windsor.

Summer sugar on snow

MORGAN, Vt. - Maple sugar on real snow will be served at the 21st annual sugar-on-snow supper at the Morgan Corner Church on July 13 with three servings at 5, 6 and 7 o'clock. Real fancy syrup from the sugar orchard of Mrs. Myrtle Hayward will provide excellent maple sugar to serve on snow with raised doughnuts and sour pickles consisting of baked beans, brown bread, salads, rolls, milk and coffee.

The women of the town are making final plans to serve 800, with Mrs. Ward Barrup and Mrs. Cecil Gray as co-chairmen.

Men of the town are assisting in many ways. Last winter they packed snow in preparation for this occasion and will help in serving it. At present repairs are being completed in the church dining room. George Lewis has charge of the cooking of the maple sugar in the little sugar house. This process may be observed by interested persons. Pony rides will also be available for the children attending.

Decorations used are under the direction of Mrs. Roland Gonyaw. These decorations consist of flowers, evergreens, old say buckets, sap yokes, skimmers, old iron kettles, appropriate place settings and aprons for waitresses.

The members of the Morgan United Church are trying to make this affair the usual success both financially and socially.

The elusive Loch Ness monster another guest appearance

GLASGOW (CP) - The elusive character, the Loch Ness monster, made one of his rare appearances Thursday to a party of four middle-aged Scots motoring home to Fort William from Inverness.

Mrs. Kathleen MacKinnon, a former official photographer with the Women's Royal Air Force, said: "It was maddening. I usually carry a camera wherever I go, but we set out in rather a hurry and I missed the scoop of the year."

Members of the party described the monster as jet-black and "serpent-like." Peter Hogg, a Fort William shopkeeper who was driving the car, said they stopped at the neck of the loch and saw the monster barely 80 yards from the shore.

"We had an uninterrupted view," he said. "First we saw a large white splash and then three dark humps, but we could not see any head."

Another member of the party, Fort William Baker J. Roy, said the loch was "dead calm" in the gloaming but the waves caused by the monster were "fantastic."

Each year up to 50 persons, many of them in parties, claim to see the monster, which first hit the headlines in the early part of four middle-aged Scots motoring home to Fort William from Inverness.

Members of the party described the monster as jet-black and "serpent-like." Peter Hogg, a Fort William shopkeeper who was driving the car, said they stopped at the neck of the loch and saw the monster barely 80 yards from the shore.

"We had an uninterrupted view," he said. "First we saw a large white splash and then three dark humps, but we could not see any head."

Another member of the party, Fort William Baker J. Roy, said the loch was "dead calm" in the gloaming but the waves caused by the monster were "fantastic."

David James, a publisher who runs a bureau for investigating Loch Ness phenomena, firmly believes that an unidentified species was trapped in the depths of the loch after the ice age receded.

PHOTOS BLURRED - His ambition is to achieve a surface photograph of head and neck clear enough to satisfy any doubts about the existence and nature of the creature. Most photographs claiming to be the monster are blurred and unsatisfactory.

James says similar so-called monsters have been sighted in inland lakes in Canada, Ireland and Scandinavia as well as Scotland. He has never spotted the Loch Ness monster himself, but this doesn't shake his conviction.

"I wasn't at the Battle of Waterloo," he once said in an interview. "But it doesn't alter my faith in the fact that it happened."

Kicking out Kwame doesn't alter fact, Ghana's gone to debt

ACCRA (AP) - Ghanaians who believe all their troubles since their Russian experts were deported, and a sugar factory Kwame Nkrumah had far from any viable sugar plantations.

LAND IS RICH
Ghana is rich compared with most developing countries. Its 7,300,000 people have been earning more than $280,000,000 in foreign exchange in recent years, mostly through cocoa exports.

But immediate problems are staggering even allowing for exaggeration by a new regime anxious for aid.

The International Monetary Fund is expected to help. But it, foreign investors and Ghanaian businessmen expect strict economic reforms by the National Liberation Council.

The bitterest medicine will be cutting the public payroll. Nkrumah put more than 100,000 Ghanaians to work for 55 state corporations. Two show a profit.

Christian Science Churches to Hold Communion Services on Sunday, July 10

Communion Services will be held Sunday in Christian Science churches throughout the world. This is a semi-annual occasion at which, in many of the branches of The Mother Church, new members are formally received. Among the special observances followed by all the churches are when the First Reader reads the Church Tenets in their entirety, and when the congregation kneels in silent communion—the only occasion on which kneeling forms a part of a Christian Science church service.

In the reading of the week's Lesson-Sermon on the subject "Sacrament", emphasis will be laid upon the inability of ritual and ceremony to take the place of obedience, humility, and spiritual understanding.

Today's recipe EXCELLENT RAREBIT

This is a very good recipe for those who like cooking with beer. It's important that it should be served as soon as done, or there is danger of separating.

1 tablespoon butter

1 pound cheddar cheese

1/4 teaspoon paprika

1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

3/4 to 1 cup beer

1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Melt butter in chafing dish or double boiler. Cut cheese in small pieces and add, along with seasonings. As cheese melts, add beer very gradually, stirring constantly in one direction until smooth. Add Worcestershire. It is important not to allow the cheese to get too hot, or it will become oily. Also, stirring in one direction only is important to success. Serve on toast or crackers. If the beer is allowed to become flat before using, results are improved. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Polly's pointers

OPEN BOX SAVES STRUGGLE

DEAR POLLY—I have a simple way to have clean, fresh kitchen window shades at all times. I buy medium-weight yard material such as denim, Indian Head or the like, in white or ivory in the width to fit my window shade roller. Cut to the desired length and make a hem in the bottom wide enough for the wooden stick to slip through. Fasten this shade on to the old roller with five or six thumbtacks. When soiled it is easy to remove and pitch into the washing machine, starch lightly (optional) and replace on the same roller with the same tacks. A colorful remnant might be used for such a shade and brighten up the kitchen—MRS. J.J.B.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY—I have a pair of new, washable black cotton gabardine jodhpurs. As I do not want them to fade, I wish someone would tell me how to treat them to prevent this. I have heard of soaking garments in a vinegar solution but I do not know the "recipe"—D. L. P.

DEAR POLLY—The following Pointer has worked well for me and my children and friends. We never seemed to know what to do with pot lids. They presented a real storage problem. I simply put a double row of nails or screws on the inside of the lower cabinet doors and run a heavy string or wire across each set of nails. Fasten it to the end screws, and slip the pot covers inside the wire or string. The knobs will hook over the wire to hold them. Every lid is immediately accessible. Metal screws can be used on metal cabinets. I have enjoyed doing this for 75 years.—MRS. H. E. L.

READERS—Can any of you top that record for the length of time a particular homemaking help has been used? I would say Mrs. H. E. L. is truly speaking as the voice of experience.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Do you want to safely transport a homemade pie or cake to a party, to Aunt Susie's house or to a picnic? Take a large tin box (perhaps one that a fruit cake came in), remove the cover and place the cover upside down on the kitchen counter. Now place the cake or pie in the cover and invert the bottom of the tin box in the cover and over the baked goods.

Assoc. aims to obtain certification of agents

MONTREAL (CP)—Immediate adoption of collective bargaining by nurses might lead to a work stoppage and loss of the strong public support now held by the profession, Dr. Brian Williams of Edmonton said Thursday.

Dr. Williams, an associate professor of business administration and commerce at the University of Alberta, was addressing some 1,500 nurses at the Canadian Nurses' Association annual meeting.

The five-day meeting ended Friday. One of the current aims of the association is to obtain certification for collective bargaining agents on the provincial level.

To date, British Columbia is the only province with a certified body to bargain for its nurses.

Quebec, Ontario and Alberta have bodies to bargain for various groups of nurses in those provinces, but have no province-wide body.

In the other provinces, collective or voluntary bargaining has been started in a few hospitals.

Dr. Williams said he was "disappointed" that the association had not given more consideration to alternatives to collective bargaining.

SUGGESTS COMMITTEES

He suggested labor-management co-operation committees which would represent the hospital administration and the nursing staff. The purpose of these committees would be to work out a voluntary agreement between the employer and the employee.

Another alternative was a joint educational workshop, at the local, regional or provincial level, to establish a "more direct dialogue" between the hospital and the nurse.

A third possibility was "getting pickets and parading before the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa to make your cause known to the public."

The nurses are seeking higher wages, better working conditions and a re-organization of existing nursing education systems.

"There has to be a certain unionized province."

passage of time before collective bargaining will work," Dr. Williams said. "The hospitals must assess themselves and find funds."

He explained that the hospitals have the power to conclude agreements with nursing staff, but that they often do not have the funds to cover concessions granted.

FUNDS RESTRICTED

"In many cases employer negotiators are faced with fixed budgets and their sources of funds are largely restricted to city, provincial and federal grants."

He said the hospital's lack of funds might lead to a deadlock at the negotiation table which would result in a work stoppage.

"And why call a strike or a work stoppage against a hospital that does not have the power to give you what you are demanding?" he asked.

He said that many nurses would be unwilling to strike and that a successful strike had to be managed by trained people.

Provincial intervention, conciliation and arbitration to break the deadlock might produce a settlement "which may not be to your liking," he told the nurses.

IDEA SAID UNWORKABLE

In an interview following Dr. Williams' speech, Evelyn Hood of Vancouver said she does not think the voluntary discussion between the hospitals and the nurses advocated by the speaker would work.

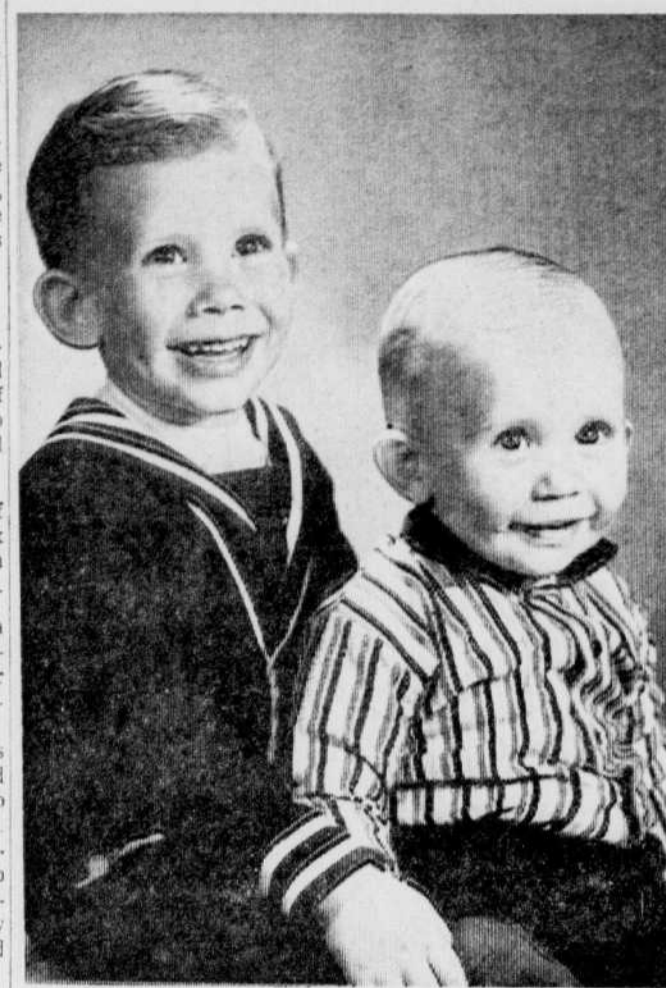

"No employer is going to bargain unless he has to," said Miss Hood, who is director of personnel service with the Registered Nurses' Association in British Columbia.

She said nurses in B.C. began collective bargaining in 1946, rather than starting with voluntary bodies.

"In British Columbia the hospitals sign contracts with the nurses and then go to the government and say they are obliged to pay for the benefits contained in the contract."

She said the nurses were able to implement collective bargaining because B.C. is a "more unionized province."

Lennoxville couple honored on wedding anniversary

On the occasion of their 15th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Deacon, of Lennoxville, were guests of honor at a surprise party held in the Milby Hall recently.

Some 200 friends and relatives were present for the evening, which was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Naylor, Jr., of Moe's River; Mrs. William Sutor and Mrs. E. Sutor, of Milby, and Mrs. Gordon Pocock, of Waterville.

The hall was attractively decorated with blue and white streamers and summer flowers. Silver '15s' were used to decorate the tables and over the stage.

Upon the arrival of the couple, the Gerald Haseltine orchestra played the wedding march. Mrs. Naylor presented her sister, Mrs. Deacon, with a corsage and Mrs. Gordon Pocock pinned a boutonniere on her son, Stewart.

Music for dancing was provided by the Gerald Haseltine and Sam Hopper groups.

Prior to the serving of refreshments, Archdeacon T. J. Matthews, of Lennoxville, on behalf of assembled relatives and friends, extended congratulations.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley B. Saughnessy, of Hamilton, formerly of Sherbrooke, Que., announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Margaret Laura, to Mr. Frederick James Charters, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Charters, of Hamilton, Ont. The wedding has been arranged to take place Saturday, July 30, at 4 o'clock, in Olivet United Church, Hamilton.

Wedding announcement

The marriage of Francine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Paul Goyette, of St. Mary's, to Mr. Gerald Plante, of Mansonville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregoire Plante, of St. Mary's, took place on July 2, at St. Mary's Church. Rev. George Leveille officiated. A reception was held at the Brompton Lake Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Plante will reside in Mansonville.

Time on your hands?

Who in the world, I ask... has plenty of time on—or for—her hands?

Women as busy as we are generally give hands the tag end of our glamorizing time. Now, with a new gadget that has just come on the market, even a tag end of time is enough for a really professional manicure!

This gadget's called Cutipen—and it takes all the fuss and mess out of home manicures.

As you press the handy shaper-nib of Cutipen against your cuticle, a lovely creamy lotion feeds out, drop by drop. All the rough cuticle and excess tissue you don't want wipes off with a stroke of the nib. In a few seconds, it can get any cuticle, however neglected, under control. And do it gently and safely, without irritation or those painful nips you get with cuticle scissors.

Use it under your nails, too. Wonderful bleach and whitener. For pedicures—what could be easier?

I'm keeping an extra one in the medicine chest for "Himself" to prove that well-groomed nails are easy for even thumb-fingered males. As for teenagers—and their hangnails—it is really smooth going.

It has been on the market in England and France for five years. Now Fulford Dodds Limited has brought it to this country.

FRECKLES ARE IN — Many glamor girls such as actresses Samantha Egga, left, and Doris Day, right, have long been sporting their specks with pride. Now, according to a fashion trade publication, freckles, once despised by almost any woman over 12, are to be considered as coveted beauty marks. (AP Wirephoto)

Considered beauty marks, freckles latest fad

NEW YORK (AP)—the women without freckles are painting them on.

Freckles — those sun-induced flecks on the face over which almost every woman more than 12 years old despairs — now are considered beauty marks to be coveted and admired.

This spot report comes from Paris where, according to the New York fashion trade publication Women's Wear Daily, the women without freckles are painting them on. Spreading like the pox, the spot fever is expected to become contagious soon among fashion-conscious ladies elsewhere. The U.S. cosmetics industry is ready for it.

"Charming and irresistible" is the way Amelia Bassin, an executive for Faberge, reacts to freckles. The firm intends

MUSIC ON RECORDS

By JOSEPH and SUSAN WEARING

LISZT — Sonata in B Minor; SCHUBERT — Wanderer Fantasy; Arthur Rubinstein, pianist. (RCA VICTOR Stereo LSC-2871) — After the many fine records that Rubinstein has made recently, this one comes as somewhat of a disappointment. The tone is hard and the playing is simply not as imaginative as that of other pianists who have recorded these two wonderful masterpieces. I still prefer Curzon or Gilels on the Liszt — Curzon has moments of sheer enchantment and I find Gilels's overall conception of the work more convincing than Rubinstein's. Rubinstein plays the gentle slow section of the Fantasy very beautifully, but there are times in the other movements when the playing sounds awkward. This is partly the fault of the music, but Fleisher throws off these passages with the necessary virtuoso flourish and his playing is altogether more exciting.

VERDI — Arias from Il Trovatore, Aida, Don Carlos, and Macbeth; Grace Bumbry, soprano; Orchestra of the German Opera Berlin, Hans Loewlein, cond. (DEUTSCHE GRAMMOPHON Stereo 138987) — Miss Bumbry has a lovely, mellow tone and an impressively wide range. There is some glorious singing in the arias by Lady Macbeth, but she doesn't chill the blood the way Callas does. She is more eminently believable as the pathetic Azucena, Aida, or Elizabeth.

Chinese burial notes are a most unusual form of money and have been used extensively for many years. There are numerous varieties and one in the writer's collection is a Hell Bank Note of 5 million yuan denomination. This burial note pictures a man, probably a farmer, in red and green apparel on the obverse and a blue pagoda on the reverse.

The reasoning behind "burial" money is that a departed relative enjoy all the comforts to which he had been accustomed in the former life and the burial notes are placed in the mouths of the dead to pay their passage to the new world. From about 200 BC, coins, clay images of wives, servants, dancing girls, animals and household goods were contained in Chinese graves. In some cases the money was real and many of the ancient Chinese coins have been preserved in this way. For relatives unable to afford real money, substitutes in the form of clay ingots and imitation coins made of slate were used.

The Chinese invented paper money over a thousand years ago and for much of this period the burial notes have been in use. Due to post-war inflation the denominations of these notes have risen sharply as the Chinese figure that the cost of dying must keep up with the cost of living.

The burial notes are obtainable at temple vendors' stalls in a mourner's kit which includes incense sticks and firecrackers. They can also be obtained from funeral supply firms in Formosa and Hong Kong.

Trio of quests fails, producing depression

LONELY FOR THE FUTURE by James T. Farrell; Double-day; 263 pages; $4.95.

LONELY FOR THE FUTURE is James T. Farrell's third book in a trilogy which supposedly studies present day young people. One would hope the picture is not as black as Mr. Farrell presents it.

The three main characters in the book, ambitious Alex McGonigle, fun-loving George Raymond, and reality-seeking Eddie Ryan, have something in common. All are seeking something which keeps escaping them.

Alex has given up his legal studies to be a "big wheel" in the Bohemian Forum, a meeting place for young people like himself, looking for thrills and new experiences, for a place or group where they can experience a sense of belonging.

It is here that Eddie and George meet Alex and the three team up.

Eddie has come hoping to experience a type of life with which he is unfamiliar so that he will bring more realism to his writing. His ambition is to become a renowned author, and he feels he must experience life before he can write about it. He, therefore, leaves university where he has been an honor student.

George sees the Forum as a centre for carrying out his money-making and fun-producing schemes.

The tragedy is that, although none of the three find what they are seeking, they appear to have learned little from the experience, and seem to be heading for the same disillusionment in another setting. Eddie and George decided to move to another city and "start again," while Alex will probably remain in the same rut with his vision of success still in his mind.

I found the book most depressing.

Just as art collecting has, belatedly, come to be recognized in Canada as a profit-making investment of money, the Alcuin Society believes limited editions of the books they plan to publish will prove equally profitable to those far-sighted people who "get in on the ground floor".

The Alcuin Society, Canada's first Limited Editions Book Society, was founded in 1965 by a group of Vancouver bookmen. Its purpose is to "further the interests of book collectors and to promote a wider appreciation of fine books by publishing unusual and worthwhile works in finely wrought limited editions".

The Society will be limited to 875 members. Its quarters are in the Ats Club of Vancouver where Alcuin members are to be accorded lunch-time guest privileges.

The society's books will be selected and designed with an eye to both beauty and interest. The first selection will be a handsome edition of an 1861 travelogue called "A Theatrical Trip on a Wager! Through Canada and the United States".

The society has several other projects underway - one of them, the compilation of a wryly amusing anthology entitled "The Worst Canadian Poetry Ever Published" could, one suspects, - if it arouses enough irate poets - make being a member of the Alcuin Society a risky business!

Dorothea Mitchell, now living in British Columbia, recently entertained Victoria authors with a showing of a silent moving picture, entitled "A Race For Ties", made by the Thunder Bay Amateur Film Company in 1931 and produced in Fort William. The picture is said to be the first of its kind produced in Canada.

Una Wardlaw, convener of the Montreal Poetry Group reports that first prize winner in their annual contest was Mrs. Elsa Dykerman. Winner of the second prize was Betty Warshaw and third prize went to Bluebell Phillips, reviewer for this page. Judge of the contest was Mr. Loomer, former editor of the ATLANTIC ADVOCATE. Mrs. Dykerman is to be particularly congratulated in view of the fact that she has only been writing in English for the few years since she moved here from Holland.

Nova Scotia writers recently honored Dr. Will R. Bird with a special presentation and illuminated scroll in tribute to his many books and his many years devoted to the cause of writing generally. The presentation was made by Dr. R.S. Longley, National President of the Canadian Authors Association and the scroll was presented by Geraldine Garnett.

Catechism translated

TORONTO (CP)—A new catechism for French-speaking six-year-olds adopted by Quebec's Roman Catholic school system in 1965 has been translated into English.

It will be tried out in several English-language dioceses in Canada this fall and is expected to be in general use in 1967.

The decision to adapt the French version for English-speaking children is seen as a step toward breaching the barriers that have kept French and English Catholic communities isolated from each other.

"It was a scandal to have Christians separated in this way," says Sister Chabanel, a member of the team that adapted the catechism. She is attached to the office of religious education in Toronto.

The catechism's French version has 100 pages and is called Viens vers le pere; the English version has 120 pages and is titled Come to the Father.

Rational middle line is trod along the wilderness trail

UNDER WILDERNESS SKIES by W. Phillip Keller; McClelland and Stewart; 304 pages; $6.95.

The conservation of wild life is stressed in W. Phillip Keller's book Under Wilderness Skies, but not in any fanatical way. The author steers a middle course between blind advocacy of conservation and ruthless disregard of natural resources.

Under Wilderness Skies might perhaps have been better entitled Wild Animals of Canada except that the book does not deal exclusively with animals and it does carry its discussion beyond the borders of Canada. Nevertheless, the bulk of the book is about animals.

The author is not telling a pleasant nature story, which might be partly fictitious, nor providing a boring scientific treatise, but rather striking a truly happy medium in giving an interesting and lively report containing a great deal of information.

Personal experiences are plentifully drawn upon, and sometimes the style is so informal as to include reference to "last night" and "the other day", but this does not seem strange at all. It works in very naturally.

The first part of the book is devoted to conservation, but it also introduces the reader to the wilderness; when these 69 pages are over, the author goes right into big game. This and the smaller game following comprise the bulk of the book.

Here we read of the mule deer found in the West from Alberta to Mexico and the white tail deer found all over North America and even down into Bolivia and Peru. Little is said of the black tail deer found along the Pacific Coast from Oregon to Alaska, but it may be that this is the same species as the mule deer.

We read of the cougar and the bison, the Rocky Mountain Bighorn sheep and the mountain goat, the moose and the caribou, the elk and the antelope, and the timber wolf. The black bear, our author tells us, is not necessarily black it may be brown, cinnamon, tawny, blue-grey, or even white. Its chief characteristic is its short, sharp, rounded claws, which make it an excellent climber. The grizzly, on the other hand, has long slender claws and so cannot climb.

Among the smaller animals described are the coyote, the beaver, the pack rat, the weasel, the skunk, the chipmunk, the squirrel, the lynx, and the porcupine.

Then there is a section on trees and a section on birds.

Under Wilderness Skies is a nature book that a reader can really romp in and return to from time to time for reference. It contains photographs and line drawings by the author, and these help to enliven the text. This is one of the finer naturalist books dealing with Canada.

Vancouver stamp left without buyer at London auction

LONDON (CP)—A rare five-cent stamp issued at Vancouver Island in 1865 and valued at $8,400 did not find a buyer at an auction of British Columbia stamps and covers held here Thursday.

A spokesman for the auctioneers, the famous London stamp dealers Stanley Gibbons, said the price was evidently too steep for the two dozen or so collectors who attended the sale. He declined to give details of the bidding but said the auctioneer would likely have started the ball rolling at £2,500 ($7,500).

The five-cent rose-colored stamp, described in the catalogue as "the finest known example of this stamp," was the gem of the $50,000 collection put up for sale by a European philatelist.

Total realized by the sale was £8,620 ($25,870). Unsold lots, including the costly five-cent stamp, would go back to the owner and might be offered for sale again at some future date, the Stanley Gibbons spokesman said.

Highest price paid was £900 ($2,700) for an extremely rare Wells Fargo 10-cent cover showing triple mixed franking with U.S., British Columbia and British stamps. The catalogue described it as "most probably unique" and probably the rarest item in the collection. It was bought by a European collector.

A family wallows in host of modern problems

A FEAST OF CANNIBALS by Frank White; Hodder and Stoughton; 254 pages; $4.90.

A FEAST OF CANNIBALS revolves around a working-class family in the present day urban and business world of Lancashire, England. This novel is not unlike a poor man's Peyton Place, with various members of the family falling prey to the tyranny of the senior female character.

The family members react in different ways to this tyranny, with contempt, indifference, insecurity, or in their own turn trying to dominate.

This rather involved story of woes, work and romances, is built around people who are striving to find their role in life with different emphasis on values; it touches the fringes of labor-management relationships and depicts problems that confront this present-day society. (Although let us hope this is not an average family), with unwed motherhood, suicide, boredom and more than one nefarious affair, all wrapped up in one package.

This novel is well presented, and the author does a magnificent job of setting his characters apart in all the confusion of the plot, while still maintaining continuity. The characters are depicted with clarity and understanding. The reader alternates between anger and pity as the story unfolds and the frailties of human emotions are laid bare. Through all the intricacies of the interwoven plots one basic theme emerges—the cannibal instinct that can so easily destroy the best in human relationships.

The Watsons are depicted as a typical working class family. Bill Watson feels no match for his domineering wife, consequently he loses himself in the "local" from time to time, playing into the hands of his wife who holds him up for ridicule in the family circle, and uses this as an excuse for her behaviour. Bill, meanwhile, finds himself a comfortable niche with an understanding widow, and is content to remain a spectator on the sidelines until the last chapter.

Such is the appeal that some two million spectators are expected to watch 32 games in the final series with enthusiasts travelling from almost 100 countries.

Children, food and knowledge

HOW THE WORLD GROWS ITS FOOD by Betty Nickerson; Ryerson; $4.50; 140 pages.

From our nomadic ancestors who were food-gatherers centuries ago and down through history, man has shown great skill in his search for food. The food producers of today have introduced a major revolution in man's way of life.

The varied aspects of food production, its preparation, transportation, planting and the effect it has had on the story of man and his culture are well covered in this book.

The tremendous increase in world population and the loss of much of our once fertile land to agriculture because of misuse is becoming a crucial problem. Forests have been cut off and not replanted, leaving land arid and unproductive. It is of utmost importance that we learn to grow two stalks now where one grew before.

Betty Nickerson points out that increased understanding of world food problems is especially important among today's young people. Because older people often resist change, it is through the children all over the world that scientists, teachers and agricultural workers are introducing new methods such as insect control and new tools to help raise the standard of living, especially in countries where starvation is common.

There are more than 70 full-color illustrations in this book, all done by children from four to 18 in classrooms all over the world. Of the more than 4,000 collected, the author says about one quarter of the paintings had something to do with food. They are delightful in their simplicity. Whether it is one depicting the olive harvest in Greece, a herdsman in Ghana or the preparation of rice in India as seen through the eyes of a child, each one tells a story without words that can be readily understood by a child in any other part of the world.

MY SWEET CHARLIE by David Westheimer; Double-day; 255 pages.

This novel deals with the relationship between a frightened pregnant white girl, and an intelligent, educated Northern Negro, Marlene, the white girl, is a product of a fundamentalist, bigoted Southern society, and Charlie, the Negro, is a man who has killed in a moment of anger.

The two young people meet when Charlie breaks into the same deserted summer home that Marlene had earlier entered. The novel develops in a series of dialogues between the two characters, and, after each discussion, Charlie starts to hate white people less, and Marlene slowly begins to realize that "niggers" are people. Finally, they start to co-operate, and to plan and share mutual experiences. They eat and talk together, forage for food, and console each other.

Two climaxes pin point the development in understanding. The first is when Marlene, instead of betraying Charlie to some white people, lies to them, and even says that Charlie is her husband. The second comes the night that Marlene is to give birth. After he has gone for help, Charlie is shot by a white storekeeper, and this rather melodramatic act removes him from the story, leaving Marlene alone with what she has learned. She refers to Charlie as her "daddy" the source of strength and knowledge. Her new son, Charlie, will not be bigoted as Marlene herself was.

By symbolizing the entire Negro-White relationship in these two young people, the

The plans for the annual picnic and get-together of stamp collectors from the Townships sponsored by the St. Francis Stamp Club are now complete. This annual event is made possible through the close cooperation of stamp clubs throughout the area. A cordial invitation is extended to all stamp collectors and their families to attend this social gathering. There is no cost, although you will be asked to contribute to a drawing to be made during the afternoon. You are urged to bring along anything that may be of interest to other collectors, and old documents and covers have proved very popular in the past. There will be tables available for display of your material. The picnic will be terminated with a barbecue. We will look for you on Saturday the 16th any time after one o'clock.

The folklore issue from New Guinea is a fascinating set of stamps with Papuan myths as the basis of their designs. There are four stamps and all have motifs of the Elema people of the Papuan Gulf.

The Elema people, who consist of ten dispersed clans, have one of the most notable art and mythological traditions of the territory. Their traditional art is in fact virtually pictorial mythology. Although far-reaching social changes have made Elema traditional art a thing of the past, the motifs and myths behind them have not been allowed to disappear.

For more than 25 years the Rev. H. A. Brown of the London Missionary Society, has studied them as he carried out missionary work among the people. Previously the designs had adorned such items as charms, bark belts, paddle handles, shields and ceremonial masks. Now Mr. Brown has used them to design this set of stamps.

He has incorporated two features which did not appear in the strictly traditional art. One of them is the inclusion of lettering, which began to intrude into the motifs after the Elema people began to become literate a couple of generations ago. The second is the use of a slightly wider range of colors. The traditional colors derived from available local materials such as clay, roots, charcoal and coconut oil were black, white, red ochre, yellow, pink and blue gray. Mr. Brown has used green, orange and blue in addition to some of the old colors. But the designs still fulfil the traditional aim — to represent myths of these people who live along the coast of the Papuan Gulf between Cape Possession, 80 miles northwest of Port Moresby, and the mouth of the Purari River.

The competition for the World Cup, for the championship in football or soccer is without doubt the greatest sporting event of the year.

Organized football began in England 103 years ago. Now it is undoubtedly the most universal of all sports, with the Federation of International Football Associations having 126 countries in its membership. The summit of competitive achievement for the member nations is the Jules Rimet Cup, competed for every four years, with the finals embracing the world's 16 best teams competing over a period of three weeks, this cup is commonly called the World Cup.

In 1966 it is England's turn to stage the competition for the first time and, with football with this most spectacular event to its birthplace, interest is higher than it has been before. This is the eighth occasion on which the competition has been played since its inception in 1930. During that time the trophy has been won twice by Uruguay, twice by Italy, once by West Germany and, on the last two occasions by Brazil.

Such is the appeal that some two million spectators are expected to watch 32 games in the final series with enthusiasts travelling from almost 100 countries.

By NORM NICHOLL

THE RESULTS of this year's Quebec Wildlife Federation's Conservation Essay Contest were recently released. Top winner in the English section was Christa Staudenmaier a 14-year-old student attending Bedford High. Christa's teacher was Mrs. D. J. McIntosh. The subject for this year was an essay on Speckled Trout. It was suggested to the pupils participating that they explain what they knew about the speckled trout, what they could do to help preserve this species and if possible describe their personal experiences. For her efforts Christa will receive $100 prize money along with the Sterling Pollock Trophy. In the French section top winner was Johanne Pelletier a student of Bon Pasteur Convent, Riviere du Loup. She also picked up $100 and the Gaetan Benoit Trophy. In the fourteen and under section an honorable mention and $50 was won by another E.T. student Charlyne Potvin a 12-year-old student attending St. Patrick School, Thetford Mines whose teacher was Sister Andree Avellino.

IN THE 15 YEARS AND OVER there were eight winners. The only one from the E.T. was a grade 11 Bedford High student, 16-year-old June Campbell, whose teacher was Mrs. D. J. McIntosh. For her efforts June picked up $25.00. Total of $640 was awarded to the winning 34 pupils taking part in the two sections. In all 50,000 students attending many schools took part in this year's contest which ran from January to April. Most of the winners were from the Montreal area. It might add a little more interest to the pupils of this area to have some of the F & G Clubs push the idea a little more to have the schools of the area take more interest in this contest.

THREE WINNERS of Canadian Wildlife Services scholarships for Quebec of $1,200 each were announced to continue graduate course in terrestrial wildlife biology. They are: Rene Jones, 29, of Harrington Harbor who attends the University of Western Ontario; Daryl Guinon 23, of Laval University and David Nettleship, 24, who attends the University of Saskatchewan.

STANSTEAD COUNTY F & G Club secretary Ivy Hatch sent me some fine fishing news this week regarding the Club's participation in the Molson Fishing Tournament. Hugo LaPenna broke the Club record the other week for rainbow trout when he landed a 13-pound rainbow in Lake Memphremagog breaking the former Club record held by Gerry Lepitre of Beebe with his 12 lb. 10 oz rainbow. Two other anglers who have made fine catches recently were Leslie Bullock of Montreal with an 11 1/2 lb. salmon all fish were taken at Lake Memphremagog. All fish were entered in the Molson Fishing Tournament. Last year the Club took top honors and it might just be that they'll be right in there again this year.

STANSTEAD COUNTY FISH & GAME CLUB will once again be holding a "Youth Night" this coming Tuesday, July 12 at 7:30 in the County Building, Ayer's Cliff. A slight change has been made this year the Youth program will start the evening with a short business meeting to follow.

Last year the turnout of younger fishermen and hunters was disappointingly small and it is hoped with starting the evening off with Youth program it might help to get more out. So fellows why not bring along the children to the meeting, and get them interested in conservation work. The films and discussions are of interests to all. The Stanstead Club is the only conservation Club that I know of that has such a meeting for the younger set and it should be supported by all. If you don't have any children what about the kid next door who fishes. Bring him or her along and get them interested. So get over to Ayer's Cliff next Tuesday evening at 7:30 and make this a real evening for the kids.

LAKE MASSAWIPPI FISH & Game Protection Club Inc. will be sponsoring a summer picnic at the Club's Conservation Park one-half mile from (East) Hatley next Saturday, July 16. There will be amusements for the children and a canteen on the grounds. Friends wishing to have lunch should bring along their own. It will be a good time for all to take a look at this project that the Club has undertaken and see what is being done to promote both conservation and improve Lake Massawippi through the Club operated rearing ponds. (In case of rain the picnic will take place on Sunday, July 17.)

ARMBRO EXPECTED TO WIN

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—No mare ever has won the $100,000 Roosevelt International Trot, one of harness racing's most glamorous events, but Armbro Flight of Canada is expected to be the first of her sex to gain that distinction tonight at Roosevelt Raceway.

A big four-year-old with a ground-devouring stride, Armbro Flight has been beating the boys with regularity.

A crowd of close to 50,000 is expected to watch Armbro Flight, with Joe O'Brien of Alton, P.E.I., in the sulky, try for her 50th victory in 64 starts. Owned by Armstrong Brothers of Brampton, Ont., she goes against Noble Victory, a U.S. standard bearer, and late scratch.

INTERLOCKING

The main variation in the basic grip lies in what you do with the little finger of the right hand. The interlocking grip, which I favor, was introduced in this country by Francis Ouimet, who beat Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in the United States Open Championship in 1913. I was an 11-year-old caddy at the time. Ouimet became my idol. I copied many things from him, including the grip. My physical makeup called for it. I was stocky, but my hands were small, my fingers short. Most of my competitors were tall and had long, strong fingers that were ideally suited to the overlapping grip. For the interlocking grip the club as previously outlined, except that the left thumb goes around the shaft instead of pointing toward the clubhead. Then instead of letting the right little finger rest on the club just touching the left forefinger, interlock it with the index finger of the left hand. The interlocking grip gives more power because it permits freer wrist action in the backswing. It allows the so-called right-hand hitter more power. The fact that a modern powerhouse hitter like Jack Nicklaus uses the interlocking grip would seem to bear me out.

Durocher fights

CHICAGO (AP)—Manager Leo Durocher of Chicago Cubs considers himself a logical man who doesn't like illogical rulings. That's why he is protesting Friday's 3-4 loss to Philadelphia Phillies. In the third inning Friday the Cubs had runners on second and third with two out. Billy Williams hit a pop fly toward third base. Philadelphia third baseman Richie Allen tried to shove Ron Campbell off third to get the ball. Campbell refused to move, the ball dropped and the umpires ruled interference on Campbell.

DEEP IN THE ROUGH — Edinburgh, Scotland. Nicklaus led the field after the second round Thursday, but slumped yesterday and was trailing Phil Rodgers by two strokes. Rodgers, from La Jolla, Calif., had a 70 yesterday to Nicklaus' 75. (AP Wirephoto via cable from London)

Invitation Pace headlines card tonight at local track, $4,775 up for grabs in purses on weekend

An Invitation Pace for a purse of $400 will headline the week-end card at the Sherbrooke Race Track while Sunday evening will feature a Handicap Trot and a Preferred Pace will be the main event. This evening only six starters will go the gate in the Invitation Pace but the sidewheelers are some of the best around the local oval. The Great Spencer has been assigned the pole position while Rhythm Mac has second, Fair Wick, third, Drummond Law, fourth, with Santa Glory and Clever Adios completing the front line. Florent Brochu will be in the sulky following his suspension he drew at Quebec City and this could make a big difference. Amede Beaudoin won the last time out in 2:08.35 and must be considered a probable winner.

Sam Fahi with Santa Glory set a torrid pace last Sunday when they went to the half in 1:02.4/5 for the best half registered at the local track this season. Rhythm Mac came back strong on the second trip with Davis' Clever Adios pushing him to the wire. Sunday evening the Invitation Handicap Trot will see five going to the gate with Beaudoin's Lynn Ibb the favorite. On the last outing he was clocked in 2:09.4/5 to earn the honors. He has drawn the outside spot.

Gordon Adamson's Mary Al Melody has the favored spot, the pole, and if she can get a way to a flying start she could make things tough for the rest of the field. Pince Acres Scott, Markab Pick, who was second Sunday, and The Mixer complete the field.

In the Preferred Pace seven have filed their entries for a purse of $350. This should be a good battle as several have posted victories this season. All the other classes have seven starters in each dash. A total of $4,775 will be for grabs in purses on the week-end. This evening $2,425 will be at stake while Sunday evening it is a little lower, $2,350, to complete the amount. This is a little higher than usual and should meet with the drivers' approval.

Short hibernation ends

Alouette 'grizzlies' are growling again

The warning seen in any animal park or zoo, "Don't Feed the Bears" had better be heeded this weekend by two Provincial Baseball League clubs. If they don't, they won't be thanked. They'll be bitten.

The 'bears' are the Sherbrooke Alouettes, fresh from a week's hibernation in their Sherbrooke Municipal Stadium. They'll be roaming in the Granby Provincial Park tonight, and the Quebec Provincial Park Sunday night, growing with hunger, waving a heavy paw, ready to perform for any treat sent their way.

And the biggest treat for these "grizzlies" would be a series of victories to make up for lost time, and overcome that half-game margin separating them from the top of the league and Acton Vale Beavers.

Actually, the Als have a three-game weekend, and one is scheduled at the Sherbrooke Municipal Stadium tomorrow afternoon, at 2 p.m. This game is the first of a back-to-back double with Quebec Indians.

The Indians are presently in fourth position, 3 and 1/2 games from the top of the pile, and one full game behind Granby Cardinals.

Their appearance will be the first of the current season, at the Municipal Stadium, but the third time the teams meet. Regular attendance at the Capital City Stadium is in the thousands, reaching a peak of 2300, and averaging 1500 fans.

Paul Molloy, the papa bear of the lot, along with Mama Bear, Andy Pratte, feels that their 'cubs' will be more than playful in their upcoming games.

"That game in Thetford early this week sounded a lot worse than it actually was," said Papa Bear, without a growl, in a telephone conversation with The Record.

The General Manager, who is always optimistic about the shortcomings of the Als, boasted that the longest string of losses the team has recorded thus far is two, and that, he stresses, should be the MOST they lose in a row.

Whether Goldlocks, be she from Granby or Quebec, can eat the Als' porridge, or sleep in their dugout, remains to be seen.

Krausse passes, Mantle slugs A's win 2-1 and Yankees split

Southpaw Lew Krausse, a former $100,000 bonus baby who failed in three trials with Kansas City Athletics, will sharpen up American League batters before the All-Star game in St. Louis Tuesday.

Krausse showed his stuff Friday night when the Athletics edged Cleveland Indians 2-1. He allowed only four hits in eight innings while boosting his season record to 6-4 and lowering his earned run average to 2.76.

It was the third victory for Krausse in his last four decisions, giving him a 10-15 career mark since breaking in as an 18-year-old in 1961.

Meanwhile, Mickey Mantle smashed two home runs for a total of 11 in his last 14 games as New York Yankees divided a hit for seven innings by Sonny Siebert, pulled out their fifth Senators—losing 7-6 and winning 7-5—and Boog Powell belted a ninth inning homer Roger Repoz knocked them in that lifted first-place Baltimore Orioles past California Angels 2-1 and tied him with teammate Brooks Robinson for the major league RBI lead at 67.

Neither Powell nor Mantle were selected for the All-Star squad. Powell finished third in the first base voting—behind Boston rookie George Scott and Detroit's Norm Cash. Mantle was No. 6 in the outfield balloting but reportedly requested that he be bypassed for the first time since 1953.

TWINS WHIP TIGERS Minnesota Twins whipped Detroit Tigers 6-1 behind All-Star leftfielder Jim Kaat and Boston Red Sox swept a double-header from Chicago White Sox 3-1 and 5-1 in other AL games. The Athletics, limited to one Mantle connected in each game for a season total of 18 but was forced to quit the nightcap in the fifth inning after pulling a hamstring muscle in his left leg. He is expected to be out of action two weeks.

Dodgers win fifth 7-6

Los Angeles Dodgers have re-verted to last year's pennant winning formula while running up a five game winning streak. The Dodgers edged Atlanta Braves 7-6 Friday night on Jim Lefebvre's tie-breaking double in the eighth inning. It gave the Dodgers their fifth successive one-run victory and a 19-8 record overall in games decided by that margin.

The Dodgers remained four games behind front-running San Francisco Giants, who rode Juan Marichal's three-hit pitching and a pinch-hit, grand-slam homer by Jim Davenport to a 7-2 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

That's a .667 percentage in the tight ones, compared to last year's .533 when the Dodgers topped the National League with 32 one-run triumphs en route to the World Series. The only trouble is they still are in third place.

Second-place Pittsburgh Pirates closed to within two games of the top as Willie Stargell and Bill Mazeroski each drove in seven runs in a 10-2, 9-2 doubleheader sweep of New York Mets, Philadelphia Phillies edged Chicago Cubs 5-4 and Houston Astros whipped St. Louis Cardinals 6-1.

Don Sutton started for the Dodgers and struck out the side in the first and third innings. But in between he allowed the Braves to pull out to a 4-0 lead. The Dodgers moved in front with a six-run, third-inning explosion, but the Braves tied the score 6-6 in the sixth.

Then, in the eighth, Wes Parker singled and Lefebvre doubled. Phil Rodgers first handled a golf club when he was five years old, and he hit the ball right off. Twenty-three years later the former U.S. marine leads the field in the British open golf championship on 210 with one round to go in the 72-hole test of skill and nerves.

His 40-30-70 in the third round Friday put him into a two-shot lead as favorite Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, faded with a 75 for a 34-hole total of 212.

Making his fifth try for the British open title in the best year of his career, Rodgers has a reputation as a clown on the course. But this time he has been playing like steel and restraining his antics.

The British crowds still love his little touches like solemnly holding his cap over his heart when the long putt goes down. Rodgers is paired with Nicklaus today in the feature of this battle for one of the great prestige titles in golf. They will be the last pair to tee off.
