It's play ball in Sherbrooke tomorrow

By CROSBIE COTTON
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — If you look in your closet Saturday and find the baseball bat and glove gone, don't blame it on your son. If you open up your back door and see your son is no longer in the yard don't worry.

Remember last year? The Sherbrooke Pirates, double A farm team of the National League's Pittsburgh Pirates are back in town tomorrow for their home opener campaign. Game time is 2 p.m. and the Pirate organization has set up opening day festivities enough to make a game-winning grand-slam with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning seem mundane.

The baby Bucs will face the Waterbury Dodgers on a field which Pirate general manager Art Bellone termed Thursday "pretty damned good." The weatherman is expected to smile on the Amedee Roy Stadium when festivities begin at 1:45 p.m. "All we need is weather like we're having now," local baseball enthusiast Jean Paul Thibeault, walking around the sparkling stadium, said yesterday. "We've got the team."

Crews of workmen are toiling daily to prepare the stadium. The seats have all been painted, the stadium washed, new cement added in some places, a new sound system has been installed (remember last year's atrocious static), signs are being repainted and the scoreboard is being given a facelift.

Beer trucks are arriving with loads of the cold brew to be joyously consumed by baseball fanatics who soon will end their winter-long drought. Soon the spectacle of the home-run, the double-play, the superb pitching effort, the sprawling one-handed catch and all the other attractions of the baseball season will be the subject of arduous debate in Sherbrooke's sporting circles.

Tickets are on sale until 6 p.m. today and the wicket will open at 10 a.m. Saturday. The second annual parade — sponsored by the radio voice of the Pirates CJRS — gets underway at 10 a.m. Players, management and the cute hostesses will travel through the city perched on convertibles.

The parade will travel down King East, along Belvedere South, down Galt, back along Alexander street and onto King West, through the centre of the city, to Parc Street and the stadium.

Festivities at the ball park start off with a hole-in-one golf tournament. Fans will attempt to drive a hole-in-one from centre field to a golf cup situated not far from home plate. The tournament will be a regular feature throughout the season.

The players will be introduced at 1:45 and many municipal, provincial and federal government officials will be on hand along with a color band from the Sea Cadets in Sherbrooke.

A Bavarian Beer band will be on hand throughout the game and will offer lively entertainment between the innings. The Pirates have a new organist, Cathy Baer from New York, who will lead the cheering this year.

Hostesses, a sight cherished by male baseball fanatics last year, will once again be available to serve drinks to and guide reserved seat customers to their seats.

"We have a whole new crop of beautiful hostesses this year," team assistant president Keith Morgan said. "They will be at all games."

Throughout the year numerous promotional gimmicks have been scheduled. After the first ball is thrown Saturday, after the first hard crack of bat meeting ball is heard, the first sound of the grounder smacking into the oiled glove echoes across the infield, the first thunderous roar is expelled as the ball flies over the fence and the first home victory is tasted or the defeat suffered, Sherbrooke baseball fans will have much to look forward to.

There will still be 69 home games left. Ticket prices remain the same this season. Reserved seats are $2.50, general admission is $1.50 and children can enter for $1. Tickets are still on sale. The Pirates are ready. Are you?

TO THE DOGS? Not really? But even Sherbrooke's canine population will be represented at the Sherbrooke Pirates' home opener tomorrow at 2 p.m. at Amedee Roy stadium. Amis de Baseball de Sherbrooke president Jean Paul Thibeault looked over the park yesterday and pronounced everything in A-1 condition. His dog seemed to approve as well.

The weather

Generally sunny today with a high in the 60s going down tonight to about 35-40. Some clouding later in the day. Chance of showers late today or early Saturday.

Work begins tomorrow on Montreal Olympic stadium

By JOSEPH MacSWEENEY

MONTREAL (CP)—Excavation work will begin Saturday for the 50,000-seat main stadium of the Montreal 1976 Olympics, it was announced Thursday.

Arthur Takac, Yugoslav-born international technical adviser to the Games organizing committee, sought in an interview to squelch any doubts regarding preparations for the 21st Olympiad.

"I am very happy with the conditions and the manner in which the Games are being prepared," said Takac, noting that he has visited and "co-operated" in the organization of eight Olympiads.

The former technical director of the International Olympic Committee, world governing body for the quadrennial Games, was making perhaps his most comprehensive statement since taking up his Montreal post two months ago.

"I can tell you that preparatory work is running very well," he said. "On Saturday, excavation will begin for the main stadium, the Olympic velodrome and the swimming pool."

CONCEPT EXCITING

The world cycling championships are scheduled for the velodrome in 1974. The giant stadium will have a tent-like retractable membrane to be employed for shelter in inclement weather and its capacity could eventually be enlarged to 70,000 seats as a possible new home for Montreal Expos of baseball's National League.

Takac endorsed an earlier statement by Willi Daume, German vice-president of the IOC, who visited Montreal in March and said after an inspection that 80 per cent of the facilities required for the Olympics were already in existence.

The remaining 20 per cent includes the main installation at east-end Maisonneuve Park, rowing facilities at Ste. Helene's Island on the Expo 67 site in the St. Lawrence river and yachting facilities at Kingston, Ont.

"I am absolutely sure that starting with these five venues and competitions all other questions will be solved in a very satisfactory way and the Games will be solved in a very satisfactory way and the Games will be well organized," said Takac.

He added that Daume was "misinterpreted" when he was quoted as saying in Munich last week that a final decision on the Montreal Games was yet to come.

"The decision to hold the 21st Olympiad in Montreal was made in 1970 in Amsterdam," said Takac, referring to Mayor Jean Drapeau's successful appearance before the IOC against opposing bids by Moscow and Los Angeles.

"I served four years as technical director of the IOC in Lausanne and never once heard this question discussed in terms of whether or not the Games would be held in Montreal. It was always without doubt that the Games had been awarded to the city of Montreal."

Takac said "difficulties are normal" in the preparation of all Olympiads because of the magnitude of the task out the IOC firmly supports the Montreal approach.

What are the chances of spreading the Games outside Montreal as urged by many officials?

Takac said the organizing committee now is studying the possibility of holding preliminary events in such sports as soccer, handball and basketball in different cities near and accessible to Montreal... perhaps Quebec City, perhaps Toronto and perhaps Ottawa. Final events would be held here.

Takac stressed that no "revolutionary changes" in IOC practice could be expected for the 1976 Games but even under present rules it "can be foreseen that some competitions can be held in the near, surrounding or reasonably accessible areas." The idea was still in the study stage. However, "there are possibilities acceptable to the IOC and perhaps useful for the Games."

Officials have declined to estimate cost of the Olympic stadium before tenders are called. Montreal city council is expected to vote today more than $16 million for excavations and related work at Maisonneuve Park.

Takac, 54, who began his association with the Olympic movement as an athlete in the 1936 Berlin Games, feels cost problems sometimes obscure the benefits in human terms.

"Personally, I think of 130 countries in every part of the world preparing the most human and beautiful show that young people can present," he said.

"All the governments voted money to help this preparatory work. Millions of dollars are being spent by 130 countries to prepare for the games, and out of 100,000 athletes prepared, the 7,000 best will be chosen to come to Montreal, with their expenses paid.

"Please, should not this money not be counted, too, in the positive part of the budget for the Games? Think of what it would cost to bring the New York Metropolitan Opera to Montreal, for instance.

"I think there is a unity in the Olympic movement and if you can see the problem of financing in this unity, the problem becomes more comprehensible."

TRUCKS COLLIDE — No one was injured yesterday when two trucks collided shortly after 10:30 a.m. on King street West. Police estimate damages of nearly $1,000. Cause of the accident has not yet been determined although police believe one of the trucks swerved to avoid a car.

Canada pension changes unlikely before fall

By VIC PARSONS

OTTAWA (CP) — Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde said Thursday it is unlikely that amendments to the Canada Pension Plan will be introduced in the Commons by fall, downplaying optimism expressed earlier by one provincial minister that increased benefits would come this year.

British Columbia welfare minister Norman Levi said during the afternoon break at a closed federal-provincial conference on social security that amendments would probably be introduced in Parliament for approval this fall.

Welfare ministers are meeting here for a three-day session to discuss an overhaul of the social security system. The meeting ends today.

Mr. Levi said there should be no problem in preparing amendments to the Canada Pension Plan (CPP). Changes must have consent of two-thirds of the provinces containing two-thirds of the population.

There was real unanimity on changes to the CPP, he added.

But Mr. Lalonde said later he could not imagine it would be possible to introduce changes before the fall. That would be the earliest possible time, he added.

ESTABLISH COMMITTEE

Mr. Levi's comments came as ministers revealed plans for establishment of a special committee, including federal and provincial deputy ministers of welfare, which will study recommended changes to the pension plan.

Mr. Lalonde said the first meeting of the committee could be held before the end of May. He said he hoped the group would proceed as fast as possible, adding that a deadline for an interim report of the committee would be set today. The committee would also discuss when the CPP amendments would be made.

The federal government proposed last week in a 14-point working paper that the plan be amended to include a full escalation clause that would be tied to the consumer price index and an increase of maximum pensionable earnings to $7,800 from the present $5,600 by 1975.

The maximum pensionable earnings are used to determine the amount of pensions payable to recipients. The present CPP escalator is two per cent.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS

Ontario has proposed amendments to the plan that would include a raise in pensionable earnings to $9,500 by 1975 and payment of actually-reduced pensions to persons who voluntarily retire between the ages of 60 to 65.

Mr. Lalonde said after the morning session that there was general consensus among the governments favoring a full escalation.

But he added there was some discussion of problems that might result with private pension plans that have indexes related to the CPP. There would have to be some study to ensure that changes do not detrimentally affect private plans, he said.

The committee would also examine other CPP amendment proposals, he said.

During the day the ministers also considered income supplements, social insurance and family allowances, Mr. Lalonde said.

There was also a unanimous decision to go ahead with family allowance changes that would raise average payments to $20 per child from the present $7.21, he added. The changes would also make the allowances taxable.

SUPPORT GUARANTEED

The provinces had already virtually guaranteed the federal government their support on that proposal.

Mr. Lalonde said he saw a large degree of consensus on federal guaranteed income and income supplement proposals that are designed to help disadvantaged groups such as the working poor, the aged and disabled.

Problems might yet arise with administrative definitions in the income supplements he conceded.

Escapee handed concurrent sentence

SWEETSBURG WARD (JD) — Judge Gerard

Normandin sentenced Clement Lebel, 25, to one year on the charge of evading legal custody plus two one-month sentences, to be served concurrently, on a charge of simple theft and another of breaking and entering.

Lebel pleaded guilty to all three charges in Sessions Court yesterday. He was sentencing 20 years seven months and eight days on charges of involuntary homicide, armed robbery and complicity to commit armed robbery.

Lebel, who fled the Cowansville Penitentiary April 18 at 8:15 p.m., was captured on Montee Lebeau, Cowansville, at approximately 8:30 Tuesday morning by Constable Jules Waltz and Sergeant Jacques Landry of the Cowansville municipal police force. They were assisted by Detective Sergeant Real Oimert of the municipal force and constables Phillippe Coley and Marcel Lachance of the Cowansville Quebec Police Force.

In essence this means Lebel will spend 259 months behind bars before he can be released on ticket of leave. Lebel indicated to guards at the Sweetburg jail he was with four other escapees from the Cowansville Penitentiary when Mr. and Mrs. William Henry were assaulted last weekend. He refused however to indicate whether any of his fellow inmates were wounded, or which direction they had taken after he gave himself up.

Brinks suspects held in Toronto

By DAN SLOVITT

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police have issued a province-wide alert for a man and woman following the surrender early Thursday of two Brinks Canada Ltd. employees suspected in the $700,000 theft from a Brinks vault in Saint John, N.B. during the weekend.

Police refused to comment further but some officers suggested that the man and woman may have harbored the Brinks employees for at least two days in Toronto.

Detectives said a truck had been impounded in connection with the theft. They said they believe the Brinks men slept in the back of the truck while in Toronto.

Leslie Dominey, 32, and Melvin Edward Downs, 36, both of Saint John, surrendered to Metropolitan Toronto Police early Thursday.

Two officers from the Saint John police detective division were to arrive here late Thursday and Saint John Police Chief Harry McKay said he expected the two men would be returned to Saint John sometime today.

Dominey and Downs, neither seen since the $700,000 in comparatively small bills was reported missing from the Brink's vault when it was opened Monday, surrendered after someone went to a telephone booth and called police, a news conference was told.

Staff Supt. Adolphus Payne said the men were picked up in the midtown area, less than two miles from the Yonge Street police station where they were taken. They had the $640,000 police recovered with them, but there was no indication as to the whereabouts of the other $60,000.

DISCOVERED MONDAY

The theft occurred last weekend after two employees had collected the Saturday receipts from supermarkets, liquor outlets and other stores. It was discovered Monday when Brink's employees found that the vault would not open, apparently because the time lock had been tampered with.

Staff Supt. Payne would not comment when asked by reporters if a third man could be involved.

He said investigation into the crime was continuing and he would offer no indication as to what transpired between the time the men left Saint John and their arrival in Toronto. He did say the men had "been here for some time."

The missing money was in Canadian currency in denominations of $20 and smaller. Brink's said there was more than $700,000 in the vault, but would not be specific.

Shortly after the vault was opened, Canada-wide warrants were issued for Dominey and Downs, neither seen since Saturday night.

March trade surplus down

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's March trade surplus was $30 million, a decrease of $6.7 million from the surplus of March, 1972, Statistics Canada reported Thursday.

The three-month total, however, still was substantially above the 1972 period. The January-to-March trade surplus this year was $288.1 million, up from $188.8 million for the same period last year.

Trade balances improved substantially for trade with Japan and Britain, but declined markedly with the U.S.

Imports from the U.S. increased with greater shipments of automotive products, industrial machinery, aircraft and food.

Total exports for the three-month period were $5.47 billion, up 24 per cent from $4.42 billion for the 1972 period. Total imports were $5.19 billion, up 22.7 per cent from $4.23 billion.

Exports to the U.S. totalled $3.93 billion for the same period, up 21.5 per cent from $3.24 billion, while imports from the U.S. rose 25.6 per cent, to $3.67 billion from $2.92 billion.

The surplus for trade with the U.S. was thus $261.5 million for the first quarter of this year, down from $315.2 million for the first quarter of 1972.

BRITAIN BUYS MORE

British purchases of Canadian goods rose 34.6 per cent from one quarter to the other for a 1973 figure of $338.9 million, up from $251.8 million.

Imports from Britain rose 9.2 per cent, to $251.6 million from $230.3 million. The trade surplus with Britain thus increased to $87.3 million from $21.5 million.

The trade balance with Japan switched from a $72.1-million deficit in the first quarter of last year to a $54.4-million surplus in the first quarter of this year.

Exports to Japan rose 74.1 per cent to $305.1 million from $175.2 million, while imports from

Statisticians hit for maniacal preoccupation

By KEVIN DOYLE
LONDON (CP) — Charles Dickens was among the first to damn them, these new men, ready to weigh and measure any parcel of human nature and tell you exactly what it comes to.

But Dickens' attack, in Hard Times, did little or nothing to slow the rise of statisticians and their mathematical methods to the summit of the social sciences and positions of astonishing prominence in Western societies.

Now, with an air of intense pessimism, British writer Harry Hopkins sets out to trace the effects on day-to-day life of the "maniacal preoccupation with figures, hard data and mathematical measurement."

In a book called The Numbers Game, published here by Secker and Warburg, he concludes that the over-all effect has been the creation of a "new sort of totalitarianism, bland, invisible, pervasive and now fast perpetuating a system in which... everything counts, nothing matters."

Hopkins singles out for particular attack economists and the politicians who ape them, takers of opinion polls and the newspaper and broadcasting outlets which publicize them.

His first tilt is directed at popular surveys and opinion polls which he says have had a profound effect on the moulding of society.

RAPS KINSEY REPORT
He takes as a specific example the Kinsey report of 1948 on the sexual behavior of the human male and the press reaction.

"Never had the natural attraction between statistics and popular press headlines been more vividly demonstrated.

"Eighty-seven per cent of American 30-year-olds have premarital intercourse—70 per cent of American men visit prostitutes—37 per cent of American males engage in homosexual activities—97 per cent of American men have committed sex crimes. This was how the headlines read.

"It (the report) had impact. It was crisp and precise. It packed a wonderful amount into a three-column headline. And most of all, it couldn't be faulted: It was authoritative, objective, scientific."

Kinsey's most misleading and damaging statistic, says Hopkins, was his figure of 3.27 for the weekly "total sexual outlet of the average white American male under 30."

This average completely obscured the fact that Kinsey had found, for example, "one perfectly-contented American man with a frequency of once in 30 years and another, equally pleased with himself, with a frequency of 30 per week."

CAUSED DESPAIR
The basic result of the report, declares Hopkins, has been to cause intense feelings of impotence, shame and despair among many of those above or below the average who might otherwise have led fulfilled and fulfilling lives. This was particularly true in North America where to be average was to be good.

"Common experience, social history and recent research all suggest that human sexual—as other—behavior is varied and reasonably malleable, adapting to circumstances," Hopkins argues.

Hopkins contends that the Kinsey report has determined, more than any other influence, the attitude in the West to sexual and emotional matters.

In North America, and more recently in Britain, it had become old-fashioned and stuffy to speak of the "art of love." Thinking on the subject now was governed by the "clinical or technology of sex in do-it-yourself manuals as from the pen of a conscientious, but facetious, plumber—a direct legacy of Kinsey; we are being instructed in how to be normal."

Newspapers, says Hopkins, first became slaves of the numbers game in the late 19th century when, on a September morning in 1884, the citizens of New York were startled by the boom of guns in City Hall Park. It was a salute of 100 guns to mark the attainment of a circulation of 100,000 copies daily of the now-defunct New York World.

QUALITY AIM LOST
"It was accomplished by ultra-sensational headlines, bold illustration, intense domestic news coverage, high-minded editorials, simple-minded writing and, above all, resounding stunts and crusades."

Gone forever, says Hopkins, was the ideal of producing small, quality newspapers at or slightly above, cost with the aim of provoking thought and debate. Now the aim was to write for the fictional "Minnesota milkman" who, the surveys said, was part of the largest reading audience. "He wanted simple stuff, nothing demanding," said the surveys. "And that, says Hopkins, is what the milkman, and everyone else in America, gets."

"It is a curious circumstance that the more often the social sciences fail us in their self-imposed task of measuring the unmeasurable to prove the unprovable, the greater becomes our dependence on them, the more total the abdication of our own capacity—and responsibility—for judgment.

"Commonsense, which really refers to insights derived from collective experience, takes flight, or becomes a dirty word."

For example, says Hopkins, it has become unfashionable to condemn an excess of violence on TV on commonsense or moral grounds. "We must wait for scientific proof that the effects are indisputably bad. In other words, we don't want to decide."

Violence erupts in Christ's tomb

JERUSALEM (AP) — A French woman schoolteacher pushed over a pillar in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre on Monday, damaging a tiled floor, authorities said.

It was the third act of violence this month against the sacred edifice over what tradition says was Christ's tomb.

Police identified the woman as Marie Claire, 37, a teacher at a Roman Catholic school in Paris.

Her motive was not immediately known.

A friar found the woman standing on a table in the Franciscan Chapel of the Holy Sacrament, trying to push over a marble column. He called for helping in getting her down from the table, but while he was away the woman sent the pillar crashing into the marble tiles of the floor, police reported.

Church spokesman Anton Issa said damage was negligible.

Shortly before Easter week began to crowd the church with pilgrims, a Frenchman, Jean Luneau, splattered paint on the floor of the 800-year-old holy place, claiming he was protesting world injustices.

A few days later three Jewish men broke into the church, knocked down and injured a Franciscan father, and removed a plaque from a statue of Jesus.

The incidents came alongside continuing Jewish activity against Christian missionaries and made this one of the most troubled Easter seasons since the holy places came under Israeli rule in the 1967 Mideast war.

seven diamonds he would be smart enough to underlead the ace in response to the clear suit preference signal. All this came off and poor South was one down.

The game was IMP team and at the other table there was an even worse crime. North opened one club and without bothering to check for aces South went all the way to six hearts.

West opened the ace of diamonds and continued in the hope that East could ruff but South was the man to ruff, draw trumps and eventually discard his three spades on dummy's clubs and last diamond to make his slam when four had gone down at the other table.

Suggestive Last Tango depressing but showing
PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — A threatened closing of the movie Last Tango in Paris has been rescinded by the prosecutor in Oakland county here.

After seeing the movie Monday, L. Brooks Patterson said it failed the "dominant-prurient-theme test." He said it would be allowed to open Wednesday at a local theatre.

"It's the most depressing movie I've ever seen," Patterson said. "But there's nothing wrong with a suggestive movie."

Women first
MEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Anthropologist Ashley Montagu told a college audience Monday night his studies have convinced him "that the female in the human species is in all respects superior to the male."

This is partly proven, he said, by the fact that women are able "to maintain the male in the illusion of his superiority" and "to make him feel when they are married that indeed he is the master of the house when in fact, as everybody knows, he is nothing more or less than the chairman of the entertainment committee."

Montagu told an audience at Tufts University that the female "is very much more resilient, more able to take stress and strain."

This includes, he said, "the biggest strain of all, running the American household."

Increased fines for additional training

LOWELL, Mass. (AP) — Gov. Francis Sargent has proposed that additional training programs for police and court personnel be paid for by a "user tax"—increased fines for those convicted of crimes.

Sargent said Monday he will soon file legislation which would raise $3 million to $5 million a year through surcharges on fines imposed by courts.

"If a person is convicted of a crime and fined $20, he will pay an additional $5 to support the training centres," said Sargent.

"And for every additional $20 he will have to pay an additional $5 into the special fund," Sargent said. Traffic offenders would be assessed an additional $2 for every $20 paid in fines.

Sargent said Massachusetts will open in the next two months the first branch of a state "law enforcement and criminal justice training institute," which will train police, correction officers and court personnel.

It will be one of a series of regional centres intended to replace "haphazard training that has proved to be grossly inadequate," Sargent said in a speech prepared for delivery to the Lowell Police Relief Association.

He said his proposal for a "criminal fine assessment program" is based on the principle that "those who create the need for a criminal justice system will provide the funds to insure a good criminal justice system."

New poor of tomorrow?

By ROBERT HAMILTON

A news item out of Toronto in the past week tells us that clothing prices may jump 20 to 50 per cent this fall, bad news indeed, especially for the Senior Citizen who is stalling on a fixed income. This on top of the climbing costs of all the other necessities is just about going to be the straw that breaks the camel's back.

The Pensioner is beginning to realize that the much heralded raise in the OAP to a basic $100 per month has by now, even before it is paid out, been cancelled by rampant inflation, the assurance of our government notwithstanding. Each move the Government has made so far has only been made with the idea in mind of keeping the Canadian elector quiet for the present with the hope that something will turn up pretty soon to take them off the hook.

It would seem that the Government is afraid to admit its inability to cope with the ever-rising living costs and inflation in all fields of the everyday life of the Canadian voter. It has already been established that the tax policies of our government are largely responsible for the inflation Canadians have experienced in the past several years.

The tax system is inflationary because, as wages go up, the 'system' pushes the wage earner into higher and higher tax brackets so that the wage earner through his labour Union pushes for still higher wages, and so on ad infinitum. Welfare minister Lalonde in pushing his plan of new social assistance has himself said that the level of welfare payments in Canada is "a disgrace."

But the government was in office for four years previous to October 30th 1972. They have to accept the responsibility for the disgraceful conditions which reigned in the field of welfare during these years.

Members of the government have up until now been singularly quiet about their achievements since their return to office as a minority. They are hoping, of course, that the belated raise in the pension will soothe the ruffled feelings of the pensioners.

But, a reminder and a warning! Had the government made it back to Ottawa last October with a large majority, would the raise in pensions have been forthcoming?

We all know that it is only the minority situation that our government now finds itself in that has made them, yes, forced them to give some consideration to the plight of the pensioners and the underprivileged. For example, two delegates of the National Pensioners and Senior Citizens Federation, John Gayne of Moncton, N.B., and Chas. MacDonald, of U.A.W. Canadian Region, were asked to contact the four party leaders regarding commitments of their parties on OAPs. Here are their answers.

Real Caouette $20 per month basic, David Lewis $150 per month basic Robert Stanfield $95 per month basic and Pierre Trudeau nothing more than $82.88 basic. So what made Mr. Trudeau change?

The NPSC federation with over 300,000 active members is indeed a force to be reckoned with, especially at election time.

The Federation is still not satisfied that the increase in pension to $100 is sufficient to ease the burden for its members and is still in the forefront of the fight for even more improvement in the lot of all the Pensioners whether or not they are organized. What about the many hundreds of senior citizens' groups or clubs here in Quebec?

Why not consider organizing that we all may be one in a provincial federation to stand together with the national group in our fight to be able to stand up in dignity and independence? It only takes a dedicated group of men and women to show the way. The movement started in the early 1930s by the Old Age Pensioners Association in British Columbia and moved slowly eastward until today there are provincial groups in each province. Newfoundland is presently forming a Senior Citizens Federation to cover the Island and Labrador.

Why not talk it over at your club meeting? At the rate of inflation today the future looks bleak for those of us on fixed incomes or Pensions.

Today you may be fairly comfortable but you could be the new poor of tomorrow. Think it over.

1972 a stable year in Cowansville

By JOHN DINNING

Record Reporter

COWANSVILLE — 1972 was a stable year in Cowansville. The municipality issued 232 building permits valued at $3,170,673 and acquired 29 properties at a cost of $403,951 for urban renewal projects. 2.65 miles of roads were constructed, none rebuilt.

Work progressed on Place Bellrive, a low-cost housing project, and buildings were razed on Main street for the anticipated shopping centre.

The municipal police force put in a busy year. They logged a total of 17,458 duty hours handling 3,988 complaints. Squad cars turned over 95,386 miles consuming 10,002 gallons of gasoline. They investigated 506 accidents, five involving bicycles, the latter a tribute to their cyclist education program. Boys on the beat had their jollies handing out 2,239 traffic citations, which brought $46,815.20 to municipal coffers.

A total of 49 persons, 41 juveniles and eight adults, were reported missing. All were located. The plus-minus side of the ledger wasn't quite as good when it came to recovering stolen bicycles — 18 of 36. However they battled 666 in motorcycles — two of three, and 1,000 in stolen cars — 11 stolen and recovered.

There were two violent deaths in traffic accidents, one murder, and seven attempted suicides. Police investigated 55 charges of hit and run, booked 23 persons on charges of impaired driving, checked three qualified robberies, looked into 38 cases of breaking and entering, handled 47 thefts of under $50 and 109 of over $50. Thirteen cases of fraud were reported.

Fordyce Road, the entry to the Cowansville Penitentiary, was a hive of activity as the municipal force, assisted by the QPF and institution staff, were called out 22 times looking for 33 escapees. They also checked seven suspicious cars in the same area.

Smokeaters answered 46 calls, none rated major, and put in a total of 1,966 hours either on duty or in practise. The fire department comprises municipal police bolstered by volunteers.

Seventy-seven doors in commercial establishments were left unlocked, 110 bank alarms were answered — mainly for testing as there were no bank robberies, burglar alarms went off 66 times and fire alarms rang 141 times at town hall.

"To err is human." One constable on night patrol found a license plate on Main St. He called his operator, who in turn called the QPF to make a 10-12, or plate identification. His face must have been a bit red when they reported back the plate belonged to the vehicle he was driving!

One new industry, Technoma, a European firm which manufactures agricultural implements, opened its doors here.

Chateau-Neuf Boise officially opened the recreational phase of their apartment complex and started construction on nine new units.

Moore Business Forms enlarged their production with the addition of a new press and collator.

Vilas Industries signed a new labor contract for a three-year term. They also announced acquisition of a plant in Thurso, Que., and launched a new employee publication — Artisan.

Bruck Mills entered negotiation with the Textile Workers in the Autumn. The talks finally broke down which brought about the recently settled strike.

J.J. Barker Ltd. developed a new process for manufacturing wall board. At press time full details were not available, however it is understood they received financial assistance from the federal government for product and machinery development. The process is expected to revolutionize the wall board industry.

Mr. Thomas Toth was named a judge of the superior court for the districts of Bedford and St. Francis, replacing the late Mr. Justice Evender Veilleux.

On the lighter side the Cowansville Lions Club arranged a hockey game between a local girls' team and the Montreal Playboy bunnies. There was much lechering at the cocktail party at the town hall prior to the game and at the arena as the girls went through their paces.

Two new pubs opened, the first ones independent of a hotel in Missisquoi County. Both Le Baril and the Vieux Boek have proven very popular.

Heward Grafty took Cowansville in an almost perfect sweep in the federal elections, losing but one poll in Cowansville, and that went Creditiste.

Andre Hebert was re-elected president of Cowansville Branch 99, Canadian Legion.

The District of Bedford Associated for the Mentally Retarded, aided by a local initiatives grant, conducted a survey in Brome-Missisquoi-Shefford counties which determined that 30 per cent of the population are either retarded to some degree, or emotionally disturbed.

The new wing at the BMP Hospital was officially opened, bringing bed capacity to 105.

In all a calm year, the population remained static at 11,800 with most looking forward to prosperity and peace in '73.

who took top honors for French boys, and Cowansville Lions Club president William Vanha. Winners in the English sector, Connie Peacock of Waterloo, and Ross Smith of Bedford were not available when the picture was taken. All four will compete in the national competition, St. Catharines, Ont., May 4 and 5.

Lennoxville NOT going to the dogs!

LENNOXVILLE (CC) — There are rumors the Lennoxville police department is going to the dogs, but the rumors aren't true. The department is going after the dogs.

"We have just had so many complaints I had to do something," Chief Kasimir Kryszak said yesterday. "In the last three weeks I must have had at least 30 complaints."

"Most of the complaints were that the dogs were getting into garbage. They spread it all over the lawns."

"The council wanted me to start picking up the dogs right away," the chief added. "I wouldn't do it. I thought it was better to put notices in the paper to inform the citizens first."

Police constables have been ordered to fully implement the municipality's dog bylaw. The bylaw states all dogs must have licenses and are not allowed to run free.

"You can allow your dog to run free," town Secretary-treasurer Jules Gervais explained, "only the dog has to stay on your property. If it goes off your property then it will be picked up."

Licenses are now on sale and all dogs must wear a 1973 license by Tuesday. Fines for running loose and for not wearing a 1973 license are a maximum of $20 each.

"A person who owns a dog caught running free without a license could be fined $40 for the first offence," Gervais said. Kryszak said if a dog is picked up too often it will probably have to be put away.

The battle of the dogs had reigned at Lennoxville council meetings for nearly two years. The police department is at last trying to halt the minor problem.

"It is the good dogs which will suffer," the chief lamented. "The bad ones are doing all the harm and the good ones will pay for it."

Lennoxville farmer honored

LENNOXVILLE (CC) — Farmers from throughout the region will congregate in Lennoxville this evening to fete the retirement of local agricultural expert J.A. Lambert. Mr. Lambert recently retired after 44 years with the livestock division of the Department of Agriculture.

Most of his working days were spent helping Eastern Townships farmers, Don MacMillan said yesterday. It is for this reason the farmers in the region have decided to organize a party for him.

All farmers are invited to the party, which begins at 9 p.m. in St. Anthony's Church Hall in Lennoxville. Local farming associations will be on hand to make presentations and the evening will be followed with a buffet lunch.

BCS holds bargain fair

LENNOXVILLE (WM) — Fun and bargains for all were available at Bishop's College School Spring Fair Wednesday. There were side shows, games, and stalls selling everything from second hand books to home baking.

The aim was to raise $200 for the students' social services program. This program, devised some years ago because it was felt the school was too isolated from the community, is a thriving activity now.

About 35 students actively involved in the program visit old people in the homes in the area and spend time helping children with their academic studies and sports in homes such as the Maplemount Home in Huntingville.

The idea of the fair arose because it was decided that it would be good to have a small amount of money so the students could provide things like Christmas dinners, birthday parties and gifts.

The students collected all the goods for sale at Wednesday's fair and devised games and sideshows for the event.

Bill 65 changes in effect here soon

SHERBROOKE (WM) — The board of governors and corporations of all hospitals and other health centres in the region will lose their authority as of July 1 this year.

According to regulations in Bill 65, the law passed last year governing health and social services in Quebec, a new board of directors for each establishment has to be formed in June this year. This board, to be made up of patients or users, doctors, dentists, staff of the establishment as well as members of the former corporation, will have complete authority over the management of the establishment.

The only function which will be left to the former corporations or boards of governors is to elect four of their number to the new board of directors.

At an information meeting on the new bill in Sherbrooke earlier this week, government officials from the Ministry of Health insisted that there was no law forcing the corporations to disband.

As of June 1, all hospitals and social service centres will be given one month to organize the new bureaucratic structures regulated by Bill 65.

These consist of the Board of Directors and an administrative committee which will have

BORN LUCKY — Mrs. Gertrude Robson just couldn't lose no matter how hard she tried at the Spring Fair in Bishop's College School Wednesday. The game was solo patience but it seems she was born lucky. Three weeks ago she won $5,000 on Quebec Mini Loto.

Family planning said 'dehumanizing'

By JEAN SHARP

CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Treating family planning as a health problem that needs only to make enough services available to people is a dehumanizing approach, Raymond Doyle of Ottawa said Thursday.

Mr. Doyle is a social worker who is interested in Serena Ltd. His wife, Marie-Paule Doyle, is executive director of Serena. Serena is a Roman Catholic organization that trains couples to teach their birth control approach based on charting individual fertility periods.

Mr. and Mrs. Doyle were part of a panel held here to discuss Serena and family planning at the Catholic Hospital Association of Canada convention. The convention ends today.

Mr. Doyle maintains the current approach to family planning has been dominated by a few small groups, including drug companies, doctors and feminists, with strong support from the media.

He said unwanted pregnancy is regarded as an illness to prevent or cure, and the doctors' offices become treatment centres.

He said services are organized in such a way that providers see family planning only as part of the problems of poverty, of urban blight and to be provided

New tax forms mean more phones

SHERBROOKE (WM) — The Federal government tax office in Sherbrooke has had to install four more telephone lines and two supplementary personnel to deal with the influx of enquiries on the new government tax forms.

Most of these are telephone enquiries. An officer in the Sherbrooke department said he did not think the form was really more difficult than previously, however. He said more people were coming in just to have their returns checked. An unusually large number of the requests have come from taxpayers concerned about the new capital gains tax.

Government tax officers reported 30 to 40 percent more enquiries and requests for help with the form than in previous

Watergate

Opponents of President Nixon are determined to wreck the president's long-term ambition. Rather than having his niche in history as the president who ended America's involvement in Vietnam, established links with China and endeavored to find a modus vivendi with the Soviet Union, Mr. Nixon is to be marked as "The Man of Watergate." It is a questionable enterprise and judging from recent precedents, one might doubt that it will succeed.

It will be recalled, for instance, that President Eisenhower was reluctant to drive in the inaugural parade side by side with President Truman, whom he considered the epitome of corruption in high places. Even Adlai Stevenson, who campaigned as the Democratic presidential candidate to succeed Mr. Truman, promised that he would "clean up the mess in Washington." Who today remembers those "cronies" — a term stamped on the Truma era by the president's enemies? Viewed from historical perspective, Mr. Truman appears as a shrewd politician whose achievements — in saving Berlin from Stalin's clutches and in preventing totalitarian communism from encroaching further upon Europe — have by far overshadowed the minor peccadilloes that from this distance appear quite insignificant.

We remember Dwight Eisenhower as an Able war commander, a president who fearlessly enforced desegregation and who presided over a country that, at home and abroad, was largely at peace. Yet he too had troubles with his own "cronies," only they were no longer cronies but respectable Republican governors who somehow lost their bearings in the White House maze. Sherman Adams of vicuna coat fame wrote a thick book about it but today only a specialist will recall Mr. Adams' name; and how many know what a vicuna coat is, or even can spell the word?

Yet at one time the word was as much on everybody's lips as is Watergate today. Instead of Democratic cronies with refrigerators and Republican governors in vicuna coats we now have up-to-date electronic gadgetry. But the basic motives of the accused and the accusers have not changed. Once one had to bribe a hotel porter and a chambermaid to be allowed to peer through keyholes. Today one plants an electronic device — a far costlier procedure, no doubt — and it's called progress.

It was undeniably an egregious blunder to bug the Democratic campaign headquarters, particularly when there was so little doubt about President Nixon's re-election. It was both foolish and unethical, but in this scientific age electronic ethics have become regrettably blurred. We are so proud of our inventiveness, of what the device can do, that we have stopped questioning the ethics of employing such clever devices. In a society in which, according to the 1967 findings of the President's Commission on Law Enforcement, 58 per cent of all urban white males are arrested at some time in their lives (the figure for non-white males is 90 per cent) and where the FBI computer receives daily 29,000 sets of fingerprints that are stored and made freely available to whoever asks for them, the implanting of a bugging device in a political opponent's headquarters was probably considered by those who conceived it, smart rather than criminal.

Perhaps it did require this minor earthquake to wake up American public opinion and make it aware of the direction society has been taking. Nor is it a bad thing to bring forcibly home all concerned — and this includes every politician and every bureaucrat — that eavesdropping is something that just is not done. However, having said all this one cannot but feel that the Watergate affair has been blown out of proportion, and that those who have called the present ballyhoo McCarthyism-in-reverse are not entirely wrong.

Opinion from the French press

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: Marc Lalonde, federal welfare minister, tabled an excellent working document on social security in Canada.

This "yellow paper," one must call it by its name, contains measures which may result in an important breakthrough in negotiations between the central government and the provinces, particularly Quebec.

It is generally known that for several months the question of reforming social affairs has created a series of disputes between Claude Castonguay, Quebec social affairs minister, and Mr. Lalonde's predecessor, John Munro.

This misunderstanding was so great that one could not foresee a day when Canadians could profit from a new welfare system.

However, Mr. Lalonde, without completely rejecting the most important principles of federal theory, suggests fundamental modifications that will satisfy Quebec leaders.

Naturally, we understand that certain aspects of the "yellow paper" will be subjected to new discussions and substantial modifications may take place after Mr. Lalonde has heard the provinces' viewpoint.

However, it is interesting to note that the federal government no longer wants to wrap itself exclusively in its position. On the contrary, it has opened the door wide for discussions with provincial representatives.

One must also note that the 14 proposals contained in the document presented by Mr. Lalonde clearly identify the provinces' priorities. This is an aspect which was neglected, voluntarily or not, by the former federal welfare minister, Mr. Munro.

It is heartening to see that the "yellow paper" marks an important step towards solving the difficult problem of social affairs. The next meeting of provincial welfare ministers... can begin on a good footing, thanks to this document.

We don't pretend the federal suggestions will solve all the problems. But they are of a nature to establish the beginnings of an agreement between the federal government and the provinces. —Rejean Lacombe (April 20).

Granby La Voix de l'Est: Unemployment has decreased in Quebec and in the other provinces. Perhaps not enough for us to shout it from the rooftops but enough for us to draw attention to it.

In March, according to Statistics Canada, the number of unemployed was 218,000 compared with 235,000 in February and 220,000 in March, 1972. The unemployment rate has therefore decreased from 9.7 to 8.9 per cent.

As observers remarked, Mr. Bourassa's promise of 100,000 jobs made for the year 1970, has become a reality this year. That is to say, two years late.

One must admit, however, that since 1970, the situation has not been very easy, either from a social or economic viewpoint. Quebec has passed through periods hardly conducive to lowering the unemployment level.

The premier attributes this evolution to his government's economic policies.

Mr. Bourassa has in fact more reasons to congratulate himself than the New Democratic leader in the House of Commons, Mr. David Lewis, who, in his comments, does not hesitate to say that the decrease in unemployment is due to economic policy which his party has imposed on Mr. Trudeau's minority government.

The least one can say is that Mr. Lewis is exaggerating. A new policy cannot exert such an influence on employment across the country in only a few months.

Rather, it is towards the middle of the summer that one will be able to analyse the effects of the government's fiscal and economic measures.

In other respects, one must not forget that the arrival of the good weather is always marked by a resumption of seasonal activities, therefore by a decrease in unemployment. And the situation, in our opinion, will continue to improve in the coming months.

According to Mr. Bourassa, Quebec should see its lowest unemployment rate in six years this year because of measures taken to accelerate the evolution of the economy, particularly the industrialization of urban centres. Huge projects are being developed. They will require considerable manpower.

This certainly does not mean that this problem is heading for a solution. Unemployment will remain a major problem for a long time due to the phenomenal increase in manpower in our province over the last few years. —Roland Gagne (April 19).

Ottawa Le Droit: Finance Minister John Turner may be right. Perhaps the time to impose effective price controls has not yet come in Canada. It is possible... that currently the fight against inflation is less important than the fight against unemployment.

Why not consider a compromise formula, halfway between absolute control of prices and complete absence of control? We are not thinking of the organization just created to better study the problem of food prices; this government creation will be an amorphous entity because it will be totally deprived of the power to make decisions. Rather, we have in mind development of a method to impose price control by means of a price arbitration board, like those which exist for salaries.

We admit that we did not think up this idea. It comes from a former president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions who became a member of parliament and a federal minister.

The idea has a lot of good sense. If workers, through their unions, must prove that their demands for higher salaries are well-founded, why shouldn't it be the same for manufacturers and suppliers when it comes to increasing the sale price of their products?

The idea is perhaps simplistic. All the same, it merits study. Mr. Turner's specialists should be consulted and, if necessary, members of the cabinet as well. —Louis Rocque (April 19).

Montreal La Presse: There have been some famous documents written from prisons.

Louis Laberge does not aspire to contribute to any collection of selections chosen from literature. His is a simple letter.

The first part of this message is devoted to organized crime, justly described as the result of collusion between the criminals and people close to political power.

In a second part, Mr. Laberge devotes long paragraphs to "patronage" of which the Bourassa government has been accused.

However, there is a big difference between "patronage" and organized crime. Organized crime is based essentially on violence or the threat of violence, whereas patronage is so discreet it can continue for a long time without being detected.

In order to bring these underground patronage networks to the surface, Mr. Laberge wants a sort of public Salvas inquiry (named for Mr. Justice Elie Salvas, who presided over the inquiry ordered by the first Lesage government to study the practices of the Union Nationale.)

How 'Gemstone' broke Magruder

Reader forum

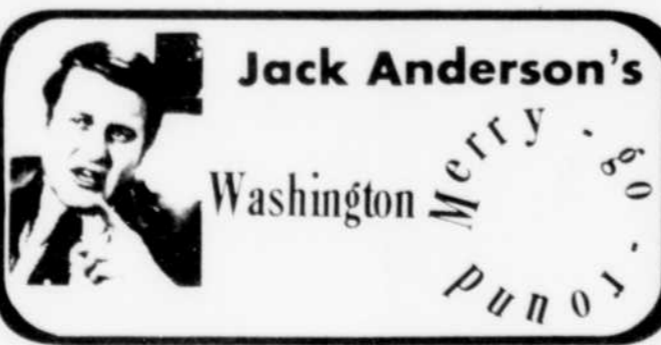

WASHINGTON — The story can now be told how one word, "Gemstone," slowly tightened the Watergate noose around the neck of Job Stuart Magruder until he decided to confess.

Magruder has confirmed Watergate wiretapper James McCord's written statement, quoted to us on April 2, that the Watergate bugging was planned in the Justice Department office of then-Attorney General John Mitchell in February 1972.

Present were Mitchell, Magruder and White House counsel John Dean. They were briefed on the bugging plan by Watergate ringleader G. Gordon Liddy who used huge, professionally prepared charts to illustrate how he would tap the telephones of Democratic party officials.

Magruder has also confirmed our reports of December 26, January 11 and January 15 that the Watergate defendants were offered money to plead guilty and keep their mouths shut. The attempt to buy their silence, Magruder has now said, was ordered by Mitchell and Dean.

SALLY OPENS UP
Throughout McCord's revelations, Magruder stuck to his sworn testimony at the Watergate trial that he had no knowledge of the bugging. It was Liddy's secretary, Sally Harmony, who finally shook his story. She held back during her first appearance before the grand jury. But she went back this month and told all she knew.

"Well," she confessed, "I find it difficult to explain why I did what I did, or how it came about. I was absolutely petrified of all of you to begin with, but I had no one to talk to, and I felt my loyalty was with Mr. Liddy and the committee at that time, and I just — did it."

In secret session, she told how she had typed up the telephone conversations of Democratic party official Spencer Oliver on secret stationery marked with the code word "Gemstone."

"Do you remember," asked Assistant U.S. Attorney Earl Silbert, "whether or not there was ever any reference by any of the participants to conversations with anyone?"

TAP TALK
"Yes," she answered. "There was one conversation dealing with the name of Terry Sanford (former Democratic governor of North Carolina)."

Asked about the substance of the tapped telephone conversations, she recalled: "There was one conversation at one time, something that had to do with Mr. Oliver's taking a trip either to North Carolina or South Carolina — I have forgotten which."

Liddy instructed her, she said, to "give it to Hugh Sloan (the campaign treasurer). He will give it back to you. Call Howard Hunt and ask him to pick it up."

"Did you do that?" asked Silbert.
"I did that..."
"And where did you give it to Mr. Sloan?"

"I took it to Hugh's office, which was right in the same area."

"And," asked Silbert, "was it different in any way when you got it back?"

SEALED
"Yes," she testified. "It had something in it and it was sealed."

"Do you know what was in it?"

"I do not."
"Was it the same size as money would have been?"

"Yes," she said. "I would assume it was the same size as money would have been." Thereafter, she handed the envelope to Hunt.

But it was the code word, "Gemstone," that upset Magruder's appellate. His assistant, Robert Reiser, testified that he had been instructed by Magruder to remove all sensitive material from his office after the Watergate burglary-bugging team was arrested. One of the files that was removed, stated Reiser, was a blue folder marked "Gemstone."

I am asking you to withhold my name as the writer of the enclosed "Letter to the Editor." I trust that you will see fit to publish it.

So many "Letters to the Editor" are rather dull and get practically no replies, that perhaps this one will get a reaction. I thank you.

MORE FRESH AIR AND LAUGHTER NEEDED

The heading of this Letter to the Editor may be somewhat misleading, but, as you read on you may become as puzzled as I am.

All through last fall's election campaign and a continuation of the doom and gloom preached by the Conservative party, in particular by Robt. Stanfield along with a few disgruntled turncoats, I am amazed that there is such a place called Canada still in existence. The Conservative party, if you believe in what they have said, have apparently lost all respect for this Canada of ours.

Why do the Conservatives call themselves Progressive Conservatives when for the past several years they have run their country down at every opportunity, wasted millions and millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money by holding up the proceedings of parliament, by every means possible and by their silly demands for a "Vote of Confidence."

Do they call that being progressive? Is it Stanfield, or is it Wagner? Many people are wondering who the real leader is. Why is Wagner on TV and radio here in Quebec so often and quoted oftener in our papers than Stanfield? Why is Wagner given so much coverage by our news media? Isn't he the man who was going to hand Quebec over to the Conservatives and turned out to be such a flop by getting them only one seat, his own? No! Grafty won his own seat and needed no received any help from Wagner.

By the way, what has become of poor old Heward Grafty? The man who spent four years shaking hands and visiting with his constituents in Brome Missisquoi and by dint of hard work won an overwhelming upset victory for his party, the man who was snubbed at a public meeting in Montreal by Robt. Stanfield and walked out of that meeting in righteous indignation? Is it by design or incompetence on the part of the Conservative party that he has been relegated to a minor role on some committee?

Wake up, Stanfield and give credit where credit is due. Stop giving Wagner all of the kudoos, he hasn't earned any of them. Now dear reader, I trust that you will understand why I say that a bit of fresh air is needed to drive away the doom and gloom that we have listened to for too long. As to the laughter, I will keep that for myself, after having kept you guessing as to whether I may be an optimistic Liberal or a pessimistic Conservative, disgruntled by the shabby treatment that Heward Grafty has received from his party.

Thus, I have asked the editor to withhold my name in order to keep the guessing game going.

Still Wondering?

ASKS DOCTORS TO STAY
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin of Uganda appealed Saturday to foreign doctors working in his country not to leave. He was quoted by Radio Uganda as saying the services of foreign doctors are greatly appreciated. Scores of doctors, mainly non-citizen Asians, were forced to leave last year when Amin deported thousands of foreigners.

"It is time to move on to a new challenge," Sandbach said.

RELEASE JEWS
MOSCOW (AP) — Two Jewish scientists in the Georgian capital of Tbilisi, charged with defaming the Soviet state, have been released from jail in what Jewish sources said is a landmark case. Josef and Gregory Goldstein were set free Saturday on their own recognizance three days after their arrest. The sources said this is the first case they know of in which provisional liberty was granted after a political charge.

Youth move to break barriers

By VICTOR STANTON
Kitchener-Waterloo Record
KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Up With People, while designating both a performing group and the contemporary folk-rock musical production it performs, might better be described as an international movement of young people aimed at breaking down the barriers of language, race, religion and nationality through music.

Statistically, Up With People is an independent, non-profit educational organization composed of upwards of 300 youths and young adults from about 20 different countries.

Since its incorporation in 1968 Up With People casts have been seen live or on television by an estimated 400-million people in 30 countries. Performances have been given in schools, prisons, nursing homes, on Indian reserves, in bull rings, New York's Carnegie Hall, London's Albert Hall and at the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich, Germany.

Each year, about 90 per cent of the faces in Up With People change, but the spirit and the message remain the same. Communication through brotherhood might well be a definitive slogan.

TOUR ONTARIO
 A 110-member cast version of the 1972-73 Up With People show now is touring Ontario with stopovers in Kitchener-Waterloo April 23-29 and in Oshawa the following week.

In addition to one or two major public concerts in each community, during their stay group members are staging free mini-concerts in area schools and other institutions.

This particular cast, featuring a number of Canadians, are veterans of a 2½-month tour of Spain, appearances at the Munich Olympics, scores of performances in Mexico and throughout the United States, album recording sessions and the taping of a CBS television special.

This is the academic cast, the majority of whose members are senior high school or freshman college students combining studies with their travelling and performing.

(There are two other casts. One is a larger non-academic group made up of high school or college graduates or those who have taken a year off from school or are between school and college, and the other a group of about 25 members also consisting of non-students picked with greater emphasis on talent for the more specialized type of performance that can't accommodate the larger casts.)

STUDY ON ROAD
 The high school students all take part in a Grade 12 program accredited with the Tulsa, Okla., school system while those at a higher level of learning take up studies that will give them credits accepted by the University of Arizona in Tucson, where the Up With People organization has its administrative offices.

Three high school teachers and two college professors travel with the group and classes, which take up perhaps two days of each week, are usually held in facilities made available by the schools in which the group appears.

The organization has an annual budget of $2.5 million, with funds acquired through donations, tuition fees and monies raised by performances and accompanying sale of programs and records.

"It costs Up With People approximately $7,000 a year to keep one person in the cast, to cover all his or her travelling and living expenses," Linda Froio, in her second year with the group and filling the non-performing role of academic secretary this year, explained during a recent promotional visit here.

"To help cover this we ask the students if they can pay $3,200. If students cannot afford that much money, we have a scholarship program available where they can get up to two-thirds of the amount paid for, but they are expected to earn at least one-third of it, either through working or savings, or by getting sponsors, such as individuals in their community, or a TV station, a radio station, newspaper or some civic club, to put up the money for them."

ACCEPTS INVITATIONS
 The organization sends the casts only where they are invited, with continental travelling done in their own buses and housing at each stopover provided on a volunteer basis by people within the community.

Each cast also has its own orchestra and 15 tons of stage equipment which the members assemble and operate themselves.

"We're on the road for 10 months every year," said Miss Froio, a native of Syracuse, N.Y.

Each year sees the preparation of an entirely new show, with all songs, except for a global-tribute medley of folk songs native to cast members' own countries, being written by the young people themselves.

Tony McGee, 17 and a Grade 12 student from Ottawa, has wanted to be part of Up With People since he witnessed the first talent show at the Mackinaw youth conference in 1965.

He said his experience with the group "has taught me to become more involved in my community," and when he leaves he wants to return to Ottawa and go into the field of dance therapy.

Stephanie Moss, also a Grade 12 student formerly of Hamilton, said Up With People for her is a means of communication, "a way of reaching out to people and saying 'I care about you.'" She would like to go into guidance counselling.

Swim-suits should be eliminated

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss America, 23-year-old Terry Anne Meeuwssen, says the bathing suit competition should be eliminated from the annual Miss America pageant because it's "unnecessary."

Miss Meeuwssen, a winner in the last swim-suit contest, said Monday she becomes angry when someone calls her a beauty queen.

Here for the traditional boardwalk Easter Parade, she was asked whether her views had changed since her crowning last September.

"Well, I'm convinced now that the swim-suit competition is unnecessary and should be eliminated," she replied. "I haven't worn a swim-suit since I was in the pageant."

She said she appreciated the pageant officials' view that "walking the runway in a bathing suit does put a contestant under stress and allows the judges to see how she reacts, and in a way it's a good test."

"But if they have to have it they should do away with the vital statistics, for that 36-24-36 bit is always with you wherever you go and it makes Miss America more of a body symbol than anything."

Miss Meeuwssen, of Depere, Wis., had said after her crowning that she believed it was her singing talent, not her beauty or figure, that gave her the edge over the 49 other contestants.

Singing convict

RAHWAY, N.J. (AP) — Reginald Haynes is due for parole from Rahway State prison May 29, but he'll be coming back to harmonize with his buddies now and then.

Haynes used to sing on street corners, in churches and anywhere anyone would listen to him before landing in the maximum-security prison four years ago. There he made some friends and organized The Escorts, a prison singing group that this week is releasing a long-playing record album, All We Need Is Another Chance.

The nine Escorts recorded the album in a nine-hour session in a psychological counselling room of the prison.

Local radio stations have played the title song.

"It was like a dream come true, waking up and hearing the record playing," said one of the lead singers, Robert Arrington, up for parole in September on a manslaughter conviction.

The songs are mostly soul music. The title cut was written by George Kerr, who heard the group perform at a prison talent show while visiting a friend there three years ago and offered to produce the album.

Proceeds will go to the prisoners' families and lawyers. Some funds also will go to the prison to improve facilities.

W.I. meetings

INVERNESS — The monthly meeting of the Inverness W.I. was held at the home of the President, Mrs. Weston Graham, on Saturday evening, April 7. Eight members and two visitors, Mrs. Edith Learmonth and Mrs. K. Kelso, attended. The President opened the meeting with the Salute to the Flag, the Creed and singing the Opening Ode. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The Treasurer's report showed a good bank balance. The Welfare Convenor, Mrs. A. Little, reported sending out five get-well and three sympathy cards. Plans were made for the Annual county meeting to be held in the evening of May 8 in the I.O.O.F. Hall at Inverness. Plans were also made to hold a Card Party in the I.O.O.F. Hall on April 27.

It was decided to send a floral gift to a former member now in hospital at Theford Mines. The Secretary, Mrs. A. Muir, reported that the garden seeds for the Children's Fair had arrived and some had already been distributed. The President reminded the members to collect papers and glass bottles for re-cycling. She also read a list of the names of the new doctors now on the Staff of the Jeffrey Hale's Hospital in Quebec City. The members decided to send maple sugar to the F.W.I.C. in Banff, in June; this product typical of the Province. A Quiz entitled What Letters prepared by Mrs. K. Cox was enjoyed by everyone. The meeting was adjourned by the President who then served delicious refreshments.

DANVILLE — The April meeting at the Supton W.I. was held in St. Augustine's Church Hall on Saturday afternoon, April 7, with hostesses Mrs. F. Bourner and Mrs. Shirley Blake. The President, Mrs. J. Olney welcomed the 14 members, and opened the meeting with the Mary Stewart Collect repeated in unison. Due to illness the secretary, Mrs. Saffin was unable to be present and Mrs. W. Brocomb replaced her, reading the minutes of the March meeting which were approved as read. Motto for the day was Before saying what you think - THINK. Roll Call - Wear your W.I. Pin or pay a fine of 25 cents. Four members were not wearing their pins. The treasurer, Mrs. A. LeRoux, reported all bills were paid. Mrs. LeRoux also thanked the W.I. for a gift sent to her while in hospital in March. The mystery prize was won by Mrs. Marjory Bagley. The Ways and Means committee of Mrs. Blake and Mrs. Bourner had a large box of hand-made pot holders and hot dish mats of which most of the members are helping sell; it is hoped we can sell two hundred in the month of April. The Supton Branch will send four pounds of maple sugar to the F.W.I.C. national convention in Banff in June; this Branch is also looking for maple leaf shaped molds to cake this sugar in.

The next meeting will be held on Friday, May 4, in St. Augustine's Church Hall beginning with a food sale, potted plants, bulbs and seeds (home grown). At 1:30 p.m. there will also be a table of greeting cards, some hand-made. This being Agriculture Convenors day it is hoped that there will be a good turn out with the home grown products.

NORTH HATLEY — The April meeting of the Hatley Center branch of Quebec Women's Institutes was held at the Community Hall on Tuesday, April 3. Eleven members and two guests, Mrs. Nelson Pierce, County President and Mrs. Ron Olson met for a delicious spring luncheon provided by Mrs. L. Naeve, Mrs. P. Wilson and Mrs. A. Cheal. The meeting was called to order by the 1st Vice-President, Mrs. R. McLellan, who led the members in the repetition of the Mary Stewart Collect. Members answered the roll call with a no-bake recipe. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. G. Bennett, and accepted. Thank you notes were read, and Mrs. A. Marlow thanked the branch for the plant sent to her mother, Mrs. Anna Thwaites, who is in hospital. The president, Mrs. A. Cheal, who had been delayed, then took the chair. The treasurer, Mrs. W. Shaw gave the monthly statement.

AGRICULTURE Convenor, Mrs. L. Naeve drew attention to the activities of the Massawippi Water Pollution Committee and their efforts to improve sewerage conditions in the area. CITIZENSHIP Convenor, Mrs. P. Wilson drew attention to the upcoming Hospital Campaign and in particular the public meeting in June, which all are urged to attend and vote on the new arrangements at the hospital. HOME ECONOMICS Convenor, Mrs. McLellan spoke about frozen foods and announced that Miss V. Moranville, County Home Economics Convenor, will give a demonstration of macramé at the Hall on April 18. PUBLICITY Convenor, Mrs. Bennett announced that all reports had been made, and read a brief article from Federated News stressing the importance of all trying to interest new members. EDUCATION Convenor, Mrs. Cheal drew attention to the casserole supper to be held at the Hall to raise money to send pupils to Ottawa. It was announced that Mrs. L. Burnham would serve on the Sunshine Committee while Mrs. F. Fletcher was in hospital.

The branch was happy to have present the County President, Mrs. Nelson Pierce. In her remarks, Mrs. Pierce drew attention to the County annual meeting in May at which time, it is planned to have a guest speaker who will help clarify the present situation at the Sherbrooke Hospital. Mrs. Pierce also spoke of the Quebec Service Fund, reading information from the Federated News. The chief purpose of her visit to the branch was to present three of the members with their 25-year pins. Mrs. Grant LeBaron and Mrs. Glen Bennett were two of the pleased recipients whom Mrs. Pierce "pinned," the third member Mrs. R.W. Bowen was unable to be present. The drawing provided by the branch was won by Mrs. P. Wilson.

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I disagree with your notion that young boys should be discouraged from playing with dolls and young girls ought not to play with toy guns. You seemed to think that these youngsters would be confused about their sex roles and just might possibly grow up to be queer.

What's the matter with boys learning to be fathers the same way girls learn to be mothers? One of the major problems in our family was that my dad never had anything to do with his children. As for guns, I played Cowboys and Indians with my brothers until I was in my early teens and I still love to hunt and shoot. So far as I know I am perfectly normal.

Please change your advice before you do some serious damage. Millions of people accept your word as gospel. — I'm O.K., How Are You?

Dear O.K.: Thanks for your letter, but the advice stands as stated. I see nothing wrong in boys playing with dolls at a very early age, but when they get to be ten and eleven, they should not continue to imitate their mothers, which is the thrust of my objection.

As for girls playing with toy guns, I am opposed to toy guns for BOTH girls and boys, of any age. Guns are for killing and there are already too many gun-lovers loose in this "dangerous and untidy world."

Dear Ann Landers: I worked as a sale-person for five years and decided to go to secretarial school at age 29. It was a wonderful decision and I have an excellent position with a good firm.

My first problem has arisen and I don't know how to cope with it. The boss left for an overseas trip last week. I decided to be super-efficient and straighten out his disheveled desk drawers.

Unfortunately, I came across some pornographic pictures and obscene literature which I wish I had never seen. When he returns he will know I saw it because his drawers will be orderly. I'm afraid we will both be embarrassed. What should I do? — Meant Well In Jacksonville
Dear M.W.: Put the drawers back the way they were. And from now on, stay out of the boss's desk.
Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me if you think I am overly sensitive. The problem concerns our grandchildren, aged 11, 12 and 13. They have never given their grandfather or me a little gift of any kind.

Not that we need anything, mind you, but how we would appreciate a box of homemade cookies, or something turned out in school. I see my friends with their hand-hemmed dish towels, pot holders, a paper plant, a

Easter Baptism

WINDSOR — The baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dubuc, formerly of Windsor, now of Limehouse, Ontario, was baptized during the morning service at St. Andrew's United Church on Easter Sunday.

The child received the names, Heather Marie. She wore a white, hand-knitted dress. Rev. P. Gaudine officiated at the christening ceremony.

With Heather Marie there were four generations of the Dubuc family present for the service.

Following the service, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dubuc, paternal grandparents, entertained at a buffet luncheon. The linen-covered dining-room table was centered with an arrangement of daffodils. Yellow tapers on either side completed the table decorations.

The baby received several gifts for which her parents expressed their thanks. Attending were the baby's parents, her brother, Eric, and sister Sandra; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Burford, maternal grandparents; Mrs. Nora Dubuc, paternal great-grandmother; Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Duffy and three children, Danville; Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Farant and family and Mr. David Taylor, Richmond.

corner bracket made in woodwork and wrapped in second-hand gift paper but carried in loving hands. I tell myself it's not their fault, these little ones — that their parents never taught them to give, just take. Every year since they have been old enough to talk they've let us know what they want for Christmas, and we never disappointed them. Am I expecting too much? — A Grandma

Dear Grandma: Children can learn from grandparents as well as parents. When 11, 12 and 13-years-old, they are not babies. They will understand when you tell them that people should be givers as well as takers. And I hope you will provide them with this lesson in living in the presence of their parents. They might learn something, too. +++

Bridal showers

DANVILLE

Mrs. Gerald Cleveland entertained at a Trousseau Tea on Saturday, April 14, for her daughter Susan, whose marriage takes place the following Saturday.

The many guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Cleveland and were then escorted to the rooms where gifts from the showers which had been given in her honor and her wedding were on display.

The dining-room was festive with Spring flowers and the lace covered table was presided over by Mrs. Velma Snaden and Mrs. Kay Brock in the early afternoon. Mrs. T. Wallace and Mrs. Nelson Brock replaced them later. Mrs. Irwin Brock capably managed the kitchen, while Wendy Lodge, Sandra Frost, Lucy Cleveland and Rachel Willey served the guests.

WINDSOR

Miss Marlene McGee, a May bride-to-be, was guest of honour at a miscellaneous shower, held Saturday afternoon, April 21, at the Langlois Hall.

Miss Marlene McCourt arranged the shower, assisted by several ladies of the community. Over fifty relatives and friends were present for the occasion.

Yellow and white streamers decorated the special chair for the bride-to-be. Several confetti-filled balloons were suspended over head and these were broken at intervals to shower her with confetti.

On arriving at the hall, the guest-of-honour was greeted at the door and presented with a corsage by Miss Lois McCourt. Her mother, Mrs. Bert McGee, and the prospective groom's mother, Mrs. Melvin McCourt, were presented with corsages by Misses Glenna and Norma Watson respectively. All three ladies were escorted to seats of honour.

A shopping cart, suitably decorated in blue and yellow was used to carry the many beautifully wrapped gifts before the guest-of-honour. Marlene was assisted in the pleasant task of opening her gifts by her mother and future mother-in-law.

The gifts were passed around the large circle of guests to be admired and later placed on a long, linen-covered table. When all of the parcels had been opened, the bride-to-be graciously thanked all for the gifts and coming to help make the day one to remember.

A "lucky card" game was played while refreshments were being made ready. Several of the guests received small prizes.

The ladies were assisted in serving by several of the young folk. A very lovely shower cake, made and decorated as a bride doll, was presented to the bride-to-be.

Mrs. Steve Perkins made and decorated the cake. The guest-of-honour made the initial cut and the cake was cut and served to the guests.

Attending from a distance were relatives and friends from Brompton and Ottawa, Ontario, Chateauguay, Melbourne, Richmond, Cleveland, and St. Zacharie.

DANVILLE

Feted prior to her marriage on Easter Saturday Miss Janice McMorine of North Bay, Ontario, was pleasantly surprised on Thursday evening.

She rang the doorbell at the home of Mrs. Denis Dubois to be greeted by Mrs. Dubois and her cousin, Miss Karen Frost, co-hostess for the shower, with corsages for her and for her mother, Mrs. Ray McMorine.

Escorted to a chair decorated with yellow and white streamers over which were suspended the traditional confetti filled balloons, Miss McMorine was assisted by her mother and by her cousin, Mrs. Anatole Demers in the very pleasant task of opening the many beautifully gift wrapped parcels.

After all had viewed them, Miss McMorine expressed her sincere appreciation to those present. The hostesses had a guessing game. Mrs. Manville Williams won the prize while the two lucky cups were held by Mrs. Anatole Demers and Mrs. Gordon Miller.

Lunch was served by the hostesses, assisted by Miss Sandra Frost and included a shower cake which had been made and decorated by Mrs. Dubois for the occasion.

This centered the dining-room table, which was covered with a hand crocheted table-cloth, and was flanked by yellow lighted tapers. A vase of Spring flowers added a festive touch.

Ayer's Cliff celebrates Midget hockey win

AYER'S CLIFF — Proud are the coaches, the Border Minor Hockey League officials, the people of Ayer's Cliff village and the surrounding communities. The Ayer's Cliff Midget hockey team, Class C won the provincial playdown Hockey games on Easter weekend at the CCRGL arena at Pointe-Aux-Trembles.

The boys and coaches as well as some parents took the players in Friday night to be ready for their first game on Saturday morning, April 21 at 8 a.m.

The first game was played against St. Fidele, Que. The game ended with Bruce Burnham, the goaler, earning a shutout. The score was 6-0 for the Ayer's Cliff team. Brian Dezan, Tim Kennedy, each scored twice while Ernie Whyte and Jim Sharman, counted one a piece.

For the second game at 5 p.m., the Ayer's Cliff team played a team from Tracy, Que. This game was another shutout for goaler Bruce Burnham with the score 7-0.

Shane Whipple and Ernie Whyte each made two goals, and one each went to Brian Dezan, Tim Kennedy and Dale Mosher.

Another night in town and the boys were ready for the team from Rouyn, Que., at 9 a.m. In the first period at 8:50 Marc Coulombe tallied the first goal of the game. He popped one in the net for Ayer's Cliff.

Soon after Rouyn scored to make it a 1-1 deal.

Dale Mosher scored the second for Ayer's Cliff and this was matched by Rouyn. The third period ended with a 2-2 and tension was mounting not only for the players but also for the over 300 supporters from this area attending the game.

The two teams, both the best in the Province in this class, went into sudden-death overtime. At 2:46 Brian Dezan scored the winning goal and became the hero of the Ayer's Cliff fans.

The Ayer's Cliff team was coached by Gordon Johnson and Warren Robinson. In their opinion while all the players were stars, Burnham, the goaler, outdid himself, especially on Sunday.

All the team and coaches were presented with gold medals by officials of the QMHA or in French the AHMQ of the Province at the Arena at 3 p.m.

It was a joyful four car-loads of boys, coaches and supporters — in a bus as well as cars — travelling homeward to Ayer's Cliff only to be greeted enthusiastically by some 400 people to include Gordon Booth, Mayor of the village and the municipal council.

At a later date the boys will be guests of honor at a league banquet to be held in the Cliff.

The coaches, the League officials and team are grateful to North Hatley, Border Towns and Ayer's Cliff for their good support and the opportunity to reach for the top.

Hunting and fishing in the Townships with Norm Nicholl

Today marks the opening of the fishing season for most species. Anglers have been chewing at the bit to wet their lines for the past month. The early departure of ice from the various local lakes, ponds and streams has made for an unpredictable spring fishing opener.

Many of the brooks' and lakes' water levels are far below normal and the smelt have in some areas had their run. I'm sure that the opening weekend of fishing will see anglers out in full force and I wish them good luck.

The Massawippi F & G Protection Club have for two years stocked rainbows in Massawippi with a yellow tag near the dorsal fin. Anyone taking one of these tagged fish is asked to return same to either one of the weighing stations of the Club or to return it to the Wildlife Service, Galt Street West in Sherbrooke, with details of where the fish was taken, length and weight. This information will aid in future stocking of the lake. The Club as an incentive will send the angler a membership for one year to the Club.

Don't forget that the bass and walleye seasons don't open 'til later in the spring.

If you haven't taken your smelt as yet a reminder that the only stream open for legal smelt fishing is at the Ayer's Cliff end of Massawippi-Hibbard Brook. All other streams in the area are closed for dipping smelt.

Persons over 65 can get their licenses for 50 cents once again this year. Things have been made easier in that this special licence can now be obtained from any authorized sales outlet. However, your Quebec Medical Card on which the date of birth is marked is required as proof of age.

The Conservation officers last winter were working the deer yards and have released the following info. In Brome-Shefford they found 38 dead deer; 19 dogs were found running in the yards, 14 coyotes and 1 bobcat.

Sherbrooke-Richmond: 12 deer found dead, 26 dogs, 7 coyotes; Compton-Frontenac, 12 deer, 5 dogs, 3 bobcats; Wolfe-Frontenac, 2 deer, 5 dogs, 2 bobcats. Total deer found dead due to predators and starvation 64; dogs running deer 65; coyotes 21; and 6 Bobcats.

Where identification of the dogs could be made the owners were fined. The report from the Wildlife Service has as yet not been made available.

All are happy to hear that little Rebecca Ham is improving after her very serious accident, but is still in Sherbrooke Medical Center.

Congratulations to Dixville Home Inc., who celebrated their 15th anniversary on April 7. She Sunday morning service was largely attended by parents and friends of the children. The guest speaker was Mr. Harold Ressor of the Mennonite Church in Montreal.

After service a delicious lunch was served by Dixville Home in the recreation room of the Therapy Building.

After refreshments many guests attended the Sunday School in the Home Chapel. This is most interesting being carried on by Mr. John Visser. There were solos and very fine renditions by the Children's Choir.

Mr. Visser and the children held a brief discussion on Thanksgiving. Many interesting thoughts were brought up by the children. After this the guests departed, much impressed by Dixville Home Inc.

Many local people attended "Oliver" at Alexander Galt School. All report a very fine show with many talented young people taking part. Congratulations to our own talent namely Miss Kathi Bellows and Miss Mary Visser, with their fine soprano voices, and Edward Blokzy, baritone tenor. A special mention to William Visser as the Artful Dodger. He is a fine actor and singer and put on a fine performance as he had done in Sound of Music and Oklahoma.

Hockey's a CON-tact sport

Cowansville hockey fans are so desperate to squeeze into the Montreal Forum at playoff time they'd almost resort to dishonesty to secure a pair of tickets inside that hallowed building of hockey tradition.

In fact, just last Tuesday two keen shiny-watchers came up with prize duets to the Canadiens - Flyers semi-final series, only because at a certain point in their past they'd managed to pass off a bogus cheque or two, or pull a small job — some sort of misdemeanor which landed them in the pokies.

I don't know how anyone managed to get the boys highly coveted tickets into the Forum last week, but do you think it would be stretching the truth to say it must have been a good 'con' job?

Unfortunately, there weren't enough tickets to go around — the inmates got two, the guards just one, and any wrestler who's been ambushed will tell you those kind of odds aren't overly secure.

Too bad they had to send even one guard along. With the extra ticket, someone could have looked up Lucien Rivard and invited him to join in the trip. After all, you never know when the Forum might need another guy to water the rink, and Lucien has vast experience in the field.

Can't you picture the conversation between the three parties on the way to their destination?

"Well," grins the guard nervously, "I guess it's been quite a while since you've seen a game at the Forum?"

"Oh yeah," answers an inmate with mocking scowl. "The last time I was in the joint I couldn't have been more than seven-years-old. I remember it as though it was yesterday. I dropped my autographed picture of Al Capone in front of the ticket-taker and, while he bent to pick it up, I scooted under the turnstile."

"That's nothing," snorts the other. "The last hockey game I saw there was on the night of the Richard riot in 1965, and it's probably the greatest game in the history of hockey. Someone tossed a bomb at Campbell, fighting broke out in the crowd, looting and fire began on St. Catherine Street. I mean it was total chaos... really beautiful, man."

By now, the guard is getting a little apprehensive. "Er, well, let's change the subject," he pleads. "Don't you guys have a favorite hockey player?"

"I sure do," booms one of the inmates. "To tell you frankly I never used to like Mike Walton of the Bruins. But ever since I heard about him pulling a practical joke on one of his teammates causing him to step through a plate glass window, he's been my boy. Kind of reminds me of the time I put a rubber snake on my schoolmate's seat, and sent him into deep shock for a month."

The guard slips a little lower in his seat, while his face turns a lighter shade of green, but he brightens when the other companion begins to speak.

"Well, my favorite player's on the Bruins, too," he reveals. I like Carol Vadnais because he's a tremendous defenceman, a good scorer, fine checker and everything you might expect of a complete hockey player."

"Now, you're talking sensibly," beams the guard. "Oh, but the real reason I admire Vadnais," he adds, "is because he managed to get accused of that bank robbery down in Philadelphia. He wasn't guilty mind you but who knows, he might have possibilities?"

Finally, seeing that his friendly questions are only honing their devious minds to a razor's edge the custodian lapses into a silence that's disturbed only by the occasional cackling of the inmate.

Meanwhile, as the game progressed, and the heat in the Forum intensified to match the tight and tense struggle that was being waged on the ice, it looked as though the evening would be nothing but enjoyable for the guard and his pair of guests. Heck, a 3-3 tie and increasing indication of overtime. What more could anyone ask?

Again, a thinking cap combined with a wild imagination is needed to envision the conversation which transpired.

"It's warmer than the last ditch-digging job I had," puffs an inmate, wiping droplets of sweat from his brow. If this keeps up it looks like we won't have time to stop by and see my mother as we planned."

A pause follows, during which you can almost hear the wheels whirring inside three brains.

"Say, I wonder," continues the inmate at last. "Do you think I could phone my mother and at least tell her the score. She's got a radio, but no television, so probably she won't know the score. At the same time, I'll let her know we won't be coming."

The guard ponders the request as does a teacher when a student asks permission to go to the bathroom. He's got a dilemma, however. If the inmate goes, everyone must go, since he's outnumbered. On the other hand, the hockey game is heading into its crucial moments...

"Very well, go ahead... but make it snappy," he replies and settles back to watch Yvan Cournoyer throw a beautiful deke into Flyers' defenceman Joe Watson.

Maybe the phone was out of order, or maybe he didn't have any change in his pocket, but whatever, the inmate hasn't returned from making the call yet. Who knows, he may have decided to walk to mother's place and deliver the message personally.

He slipped unnoticed past Forum personnel out the nearest exit and it's probably too bad he wasn't wearing the numbers that are usually tacked on to the uniform of inmates. At least that way it might have aroused suspicion.

I mean no one normally goes around sporting the numerals 357F2743 or whatever, because hockey numbers don't go that high and it's too many digits for the Mini-Loto.

One thing is certain: An inmate(s) is on the loose and probably the best place to find the guy is at Jerry Park since he might be a fervent baseball fan.

How is anyone going to find him among that throng of people? Simple. He'll be the only guy that does a jig when a ballplayer steals a base!

Rentzel to appeal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lance Rentzel and film producer William Bellasco were indicted wide receiver, pleaded guilty by the county grand jury Tuesday in Superior Court to a charge of marijuana possession.

Judge William Caldecott will sentence the 29-year-old National Football League veteran May 22. Rentzel faces a possible possible term of one to 10 years.

After the proceedings, Rentzel told a newsman that he had no comment about his football future. He said he thought the conviction would be set aside on appeal.

Rentzel's lawyer Robert Lee, said a pre-trial motion to suppress the evidence had been denied and that the guilty plea in no way limits Rentzel's right to appeal the denial of the motion.

"We'll go as far as we have to get this reversed," said Lee. "I fully expect it to be reversed."

Radio Free Ross River tunes in

By DENNIS SENGER
 CP Correspondent

ROSS RIVER, Y.T. (CP) — Contrary to rules and regulations, a band of broadcast pirates in this isolated mountain mining community has kidnaped a television signal from the CBC just in time for the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs.

At the beginning of April, the 300 residents of Ross River began getting live television broadcasts for the first time by erecting a "do-it-yourself" TV relay station to snare a signal from Faro, Y.T., 40 miles away.

And they did it without the approval or prior knowledge of the federal and territorial governments, the Canadian Radio-Television Commission or the CBC. Residents say they're willing to pay the price, which could include possible fines or jail sentences, but they are determined nobody is going to tear down what has come to be known as Radio Free Ross River.

Ross River is about 150 miles north of Whitehorse, the territorial capital, in the heart of the Yukon mining country, and prior to the private TV relay station had no radio or television service.

Its residents have been battling bureaucrats and red tape for years in an effort to get television into their community, but with a marked lack of success. The final straw was when the federal government's multi-million-dollar Anik northern communications satellite went into orbit at the New Year, bringing northern communities with more than 500 residents live television for the first time.

DIDN'T QUALIFY
 Ross River missed the boat because it was 200 people short of the criteria set for construction of legal TV relay facilities, and the CBC wasn't allowed to build a relay station here.

The problem was especially vexing to millionaire mining prospector Al Kulan of Ross River—once the proud owner of the only Rolls-Royce limousine in the Yukon. He's a hockey fan and has had a color TV set sitting in his living room collecting dust for several years in anticipation of the advent of TV service.

When he learned that Ross River wouldn't be joining the Anik network, he took the matter up with some engineering and electronics experts in Whitehorse.

Although Faro, which has a legal Anik relay station, is only 40 miles away, Ross River is nestled in the Pelly Mountains, which effectively block reception of the Faro signal.

The engineers confirmed it would be possible to pick up the Faro signal by building a mountain-top relay station lined up with the Faro station on one side, Ross River on the other.

They established a company known as Total North Communications, and bankrolled by Mr. Kulan, started shopping for a suitable peak, mountain-hopping by helicopter.

TESTED SIGNAL
 Armed with a portable TV and a 12-volt battery, they tested the signal from Faro from a number of mountaintops and finally settled on Grew Creek Hill. Mr. Kulan gave the Total North crew the go-ahead to build the pirate relay station and work was completed in early April.

Total cost: $6,200. Mr. Kulan has since turned the pirate operation over to the Ross River Community Club, which plans to repay him by instalment and assume ownership. All club members have signed a statement accepting full legal and financial responsibility for the station.

Ken Shortt, spokesman for the club, said community residents also voluntarily built the access road to the mountain-top—by temporarily expropriating a territorial government bulldozer which happened to be sitting idle in town at the time. The station generates its power with a propane gas burner.

"Everyone in the community signed the statement, except two people who were out in the bush—they were angry because they missed signing it," said Mr. Shortt. "If someone tries to shut it down, there's going to be hell to pay."

"All of the people are going to be behind trees with bows and arrows just waiting for someone to try it."

At last count, Ross River boasted 20 television sets with more coming in almost daily. Mr. Kulan said he has been enjoying the Stanley Cup playoffs in color, and was looking forward to the baseball season.

MAY EXPAND SERVICE
 And Total North Communications thinks it has hit upon a method of providing other small northern communities with television. The company said it has been approached by five other villages that want to obtain the same sort of setup as Ross River.

Total North approached Canadian National Telecommunications to see if the utility would allow the firm to use its microwave relay sites in the Yukon.

The idea would be to build TV relay stations alongside the CNT microwave towers that would utilize the line-of-sight path used for microwave transmissions. CNT officials have not voiced any objections to the proposal.

The big hurdle would be in obtaining CRTS permission.

The four Yukon communities interested in TV service on this basis are Carmacks, Haines Junction, Burwash Landing and Teslin. In addition, the community of Cantung in the Northwest Territories 125 miles northeast of Watson Lake, Y.T., wants to join in.

Total North spokesman John Dunne estimated it will take the CRTS about five months to get around to reviewing the Ross River case.

Meantime the bleary-eyed residents of Ross River are happily soaking up every piece of TV fare from Secret Storm to Bugs Bunny. Thanks to an irate millionaire, a territorial bulldozer, and a relay station assembled from scrap metal, plywood and a propane gas generator.

Streaking Giants take fourth straight

CHICAGO (AP) — Chris Speier and Gary Thomasson batted in two runs each Thursday as San Francisco Giants won their fourth straight National League baseball game by beating Chicago Cubs 7-3.

Speier opened the scoring by driving in a run with a single behind second base with the bases loaded in the third inning. The Giants added three more runs on a sacrifice fly by Willie McCovey, and singles by Dave Kingman and Thomasson. San Francisco made it 6-0 in the fourth when Tito Fuentes walked and scored on Speier's double and then Speier scored on Thomasson's single.

Chicago scored a run in the fifth on doubles by Carmen Fanzone and Glenn Beckert and two more in the sixth when Ron Santo scored on right fielder Bobby Bonds' throwing error and Jim Hickman came in on a wild pitch.

LOOP-CHARGED CYLINDERS

Evinrude's loop-charged cylinder design develops more horsepower from less fuel. This system allows the engine to run cooler at higher rpm's, generating even more power.

PRESSURE-BACKED PISTON RINGS

Increases engine life and improves fuel economy. The higher the combustion power, the tighter the piston ring seals the combustion chamber. When the pressure reduces, the ring relaxes, minimizing friction.
