Large Horse Display Was Feature of Annual Two Day Huntingdon Exhibition

Good Holstein, Ayrshire, Shorthorn and Jersey Cattle Entries—Less Poultry and Apples Shown—Vegetable and Cooking Exhibits up to Standard

The Huntingdon Fair held on Thursday and Friday was favoured with ideal show weather. The showing of livestock, flowers and vegetables was all commendable. The great feature of the fair was the tremendous horse show. A few years ago the entry of horses was almost negligible but not so today.

The restoration of the popular horse for farm work, coupled with the favourable prices paid for horses and the fact that the United States is a commendable market for horse flesh has prompted many farmers to rear a colt or two each year. To further encourage this horse trade the National Breweries have had several Percheron Stallions located throughout the district a number of years. R. R. Ness and Sons have not been lax in promoting the breeding of better Clydesdales, and so the horse breeding business has been commendably restored, all of which has worked to the betterment of the farmer and our fall fair horse exhibit.

In the class for Dawes colts of the year, 16 entries were made. They provided a frisky time for the exhibitors leading the colts and gave the spectators a thrill for they were never just sure when a pair of heels from the spry young beasts might land on them. The colts were very highly regarded by Judge Thompson and the spectators as a whole. The prize colt was that owned by Theo. Beauchamp of New Erin. In the yearling class 13 entries were made.

The heavy draft classes were well competed for, most classes having from 9 to 11 horses in the ring. Ness and Sons, recent Clydesdale importation, "Coronation", was judged the champion, whilst W. A. White was awarded the ribbon for champion Clyde mare.

The driving horse classes were commendable, although the entries in the various classes were not very numerous. The excellence of the driving horses indicates that sight has not been lost of a good horse. Saddle horses appear to be receiving more attention by the farmer than heretafore. In respect to the driving horse classes most of the exhibitors had but one or two horses, and this augurs well for the future welfare of the fair.

With a hundred Holstein cattle, seventy-five Ayrshires, two herds of Shorthorns and a number of Jerseys, the cattle showing at Huntingdon Fair indicated an increased interest in exhibition work. The cattle were not shown to best advantage, due to the fact that rings were not provided, therefore the cattle were not paraded or viewed to advantage. Some of the exhibitors might well gave a little more attention to training their animals to lead properly before coming to the fair.

The quality of the animals were very commendable. One prominent Ayrshire farmer proclaimed the showing of grade Ayrshire cattle was superior to anything he had seen this fall, and the Ormstown Spring Show included. Unfortunately the showing of purebreds was lacking in numbers. Many of the grade Ayrshires might well have been rated as purebreds had they been duly registered.

The purebred holstein entry was gratifying to the local Holstein Club executive. The classes were very well contested and again Fred McGregor scored honors as an exhibitor. Mr. McGregor has not been at the exhibition work for a very long time but he is making rapid strides. This year his herd sire, Parkdale Posch Ideal Ormsby, was accorded the championship. His Holstein herd

School Fair Was Held at Ormstown

Seventy-seven Exhibitors Make Up Exceptionally Large Display

Ormstown annual school fair, the most successful of its kind ever held was attended by a large number of interested spectators on Saturday afternoon. They assembled in the Industrial Building at the Ormstown Exhibition grounds, to admire the efforts of the school children in their productions of vegetables and flowers from seeds given them in the spring by the Department of Agriculture of Quebec.

There were seventy-seven exhibitors and each one had two or more entries in the different classes, making an exceptionally large display.

Mr. H. B. Patton assisted Mr. R. J. M. Reid of Hemmingford in judging. Following the judging the public were entertained by helpful talks by Mr. Reid.

Miss M. I. Bazin, of the Ormstown Garden Club, expressed words of congratulations to the boys and girls for their successful achievements, and thanks for the help the teachers gave throughout the contest. Further words of encouragement were given by Rev. Father Delage and Dr. J. W. Turcot.

The prize fund was contributed to by the Protestant and Catholic School Boards, the Garden Club and by Dr. M. R. Stalker, Dr. J. W. Turcot, Dr. W. S. McLaren, Mr. John Dickson and a friend.

The School Fair was sponsored by the Ormstown Garden Club working with the Provincial Department of Agriculture represented by Mr. Reid.

The prize winners were as follows:

Students Receive Prizes at Annual School Opening Exercises Held in Academy

Government Educational Policy Changes Needed—Course Adjustments to Fit Rural School Education Best Investment

DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL DEBATING CLUB

Huntingdon Academy students who led their classes last year received their prizes and awards before a capacity audience at the annual school opening exercises held in the assembly room of the Academy Monday evening.

Rev. J. B. Maclean, D.D., of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Rev. W. S. Hatcher of St. John's Anglican Church, Rev. J. H. Miller, D.D., of the United Church, Dr. H. R. Clouston, and M. T. Robb, member of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction were the speakers, while R. N. Walsh, D.V., acted as chairman and the Principal, J. B. Macmillan gave out the prizes.

They were awarded as follows:

Primary—1, Melvin Harrigan; 2, Mervin Elliott.

Grade I—1, Ralph Connor; 2, Carrol Martin, Jimmie Robb; 3, Mary Dawson, Alison Carr, Howard Kelly.

Grade II—1, Nelson Beattie, Amy Donnelly; 2, Alister Anderson, Margaret Tatem; 3, Keith Fawcett.

Effort and Progress—Norma Goodfellow.

Grade III—1, Charles Nicholas, Vivian Dawson; 2, Donald MacNaughton; 3, Jimmy Bickford.

Progress—Stuart McDermid.

Grade IV—1, Arthur Campbell; 2, June Beattie; 3, Joyce Anderson.

Progress—Jean Thompson.

Grade V—1, Roberta Kelly, Marjorie Clouston; 2, Vera Fawcett, 3, Norman Dawson.

Progress—Charlotte Finn.

Grade VI—1, Roberta McDermid; 2, Keitha Pearce; 3, Helen Cunningham.

Progress—Malcolm Arnold.

Grade VII—1, Alan Mann; 2, Billy Bowden, Helen Harrigan; 3, Sidney Montle.

Progress—Burton McCartney.

Grade VIII—Victor Welburn, (Judge Brown); 1, Robert Cluff; 2, Margaret McDermid; 3, Donald Caldwell.

Progress—Alec Hatfield.

Grade IX—1, Joyce Hunter; 2, Alva Bockus; 3, Arline MacIntosh.

Progress—Brand Edwards.

Grade X—1, Alberta Braithwaite, (also Pringle, Stark & Co.); 2, Margaret Kelly; 3, Billy Taylor.

Progress—Maurice Robinson.

Grade XI—1, Ruth Caldwell, (Judge Brown); 2, George Lefebvre, (Lord Atholstan); 3, Myrna Wheeler & Winona McCallum; 4, Ruth Crutchfield; 5, Martha Cunningham

Progress—Earle Bennett.

Speaking about values of life that were not on the curriculum, Rev. Hatcher urged scholars to learn things that went to make up character as well as those that constituted an education according to curriculum standards.

"Make use of your opportunities while you are here and do your best at all times for the measure of your success depends on you yourself," as much as on your teachers," he said.

Rev. Miller congratulated last year's graduates on the creditable showing they had made and also the other students who had made such a fine record for the school. He extended a warm welcome to all new teachers and scholars.

Rev. Maclean commented on the large and enthusiastic audience in attendance saying that it augured well for a successful school term. He said that diligence, loyalty, and ambition, had always characterized Huntingdon Academy students and he hoped that those qualities would be found in the new students.

M. T. Robb suggested that a debating club be organized in the school and offered a prize for competition among the five district high schools. He felt that membership in such a club would prove a valuable experience for any student.

Dr. H. R. Clouston endorsed the idea of such an organization and said that he would be willing to help with the project.

Declaring that property and money values would change throughout the years, Dr. Clouston continued by stating that money spent in education was one of the best sources of investments. He deplored the attitude of those who protested against the school tax, stating that they should be ready to pay an even greater amount to give youth an adequate education.

Other sections of the country were paying higher rates he said, and we should be willing to do so here.

Dr. Clouston also suggested the advisibility of securing the services of one or two more teachers to make sure that the best obtainable training for all students may be had.

The Fishers Five Minute Travelogue

Visit With Their Majesties Found Them To be "Just Lovely People"

During the Huntingdon Fair it was the good fortune of many to enjoy short visits with the Hon. Mr. Martin B. Fisher, and Mrs. Fisher. Our Provincial Treasurer and party recently returned home from a trip to Europe. Whether Mr. Fisher or his estimable wife enjoyed the visit most in really hard to determine. In the course of a five minute talk the writer had with them, one can hardly refrain from getting ready to starting out on a European trip tomorrow.

The Hon. Mr. Fisher was delighted with everything he saw and was in the concordance of Mrs. Fisher. The business of London as well as their visit with their Majesties is to be held as memorable days in the eyes of the Fishers. The King and Queen and Princesses were "just lovely people" as Mr. Fisher expressed himself. "Buckingham Palace" did not measure up to their expectations after visiting many of the less important ones on the British Isles. "Buckingham" reminds one too much of a commercialized institution. The use of cement has been too lavishly used at the expense of beautiful green lawns. Like all travelers, "the changing of the Guard" was a compelling sight.

On the visit to Scotland, the land of Robert Burns was their principal center of attraction. The beauties of Scotland will long hold sway in their hearts.

In the course of their visit to Denmark, France and Germany they found Denmark an intensely Protestant with a very devout and religious lot of people. On Sunday you could see no one or visit with them before they had first been to church. Denmark is exceptionally well cultivated and is very prosperous. The people recalled quite often that Denmark did not suffer destruction in the "Great War" but they fear and dread the possibilities of another European war, which may prove to be impossible for them to avoid or participate therein.

The beauties of Paris with its underground railways and open streets for vehicle traffic proved most commending to Mr. and Mrs. Fisher. The erratic manner in which autos and taxis are driven in Paris was breathtaking. Road laws appeared to mean nothing. Autos are not taxed, but the government gets its revenue from taxation applied to gasoline. Gasoline costs 65c a gallon, tax included.

Upon their visit to Germany, an air of prosperity appeared all evi-

Unsuitable Weather Thins Attendance Figures And Gate Receipts at Havelock Fair

Recent Hail Storm Affects Apple Entry—Baking Exhibits Down—Junior Cattle Classes Make Good Impression—Horse Display Not as Large as Usual

The unfavourable weather that prevailed yesterday marred the success of the Havelock Fair. From the entries filed the directors and amiable secretary, Mr. Wilmer Fisher, had good reasons to believe the show records would be broken. As it was, the entry turned out to be small and gate receipts much diminished.

Though the weather affected the fair on Tuesday, it was a hail storm some weeks ago that played havoc with the apple orchards, thereby reducing the apple entry. In regards to the Havelock Apple Show, the day is not far distant when it will undergo many pronounced changes. The exhibiting of plates of five apples will disappear and in its place fine baskets, hampers and boxes of apples will make up the grand display. The commercial orchardists of the highlands of Huntingdon County will relish such an opportunity to display their fruit. The regulations regarding the grower ownership of the entries will of course have to be strengthened.

The Hon. Martin B. Fisher special for best packed box of McIntosh apples was won by Kenneth Sample, whilst N. M. Brooks won the society prize for best 11-quart basket of McIntosh apples.

Bread baking holds an important place at Havelock fair, but the bad weather deterred many people from going to the fair in time to file their entries. The various contests were well filled with excellent entries, but none of the classes were as numerously entered in as in past years. The Robert Simpson prize for best loaf of bread at the show, made from any kind of flour was awarded Mrs. H. L. Gilmour. This same loaf of bread won the Society prize. The McDonald & Robb special of a barrell of "Our Best Flour" for best loaf made from that brand of flour is always keenly competed for. This year's exhibition ran true to form and in this grand contest Mrs. N. J. Fennell won the prize. Mrs. Fennell also won the Society first prize for biscuits.

Robin Hood Flour has made big strides in the bread baking contests and at this fair we find Mrs. J. J. McArthur won the special for best loaf made from that make of flour.

The F. H. McKough special for best loaf made through the use of Ogilvie Flour found Mrs. A. L. Stewart the prize winner.

It would be a funny bread show if Mrs. James Lang did not figure to be a winner for some bread prizes, and this year we find she duplicated her Huntingdon Fair winnings by winning the first prize for graham bread and graham biscuits.

The showing of canned fruit, preserves, etc. was not very large, but the excellence of the canned pears, apples, raspberries and rhubarb displayed samples of perfection. The winners of these particular classes have real reason to be justly proud of their culinary art.

The showing of cut flowers is showing pronounced progress at Havelock. Only a few years ago this section of the show required a very limited space. Today they require more prominence and the entry is beginning to justify receiving more considered attention as to place of prominence it should receive in the show building.

The vegetable exhibit was not up to scratch, and what is more some of the entries were undoubtedly purchased from a fruit and vegetable truck in place of being locally grown. The judge was not being fooled, for he just overlooked a number of such entries. Exhibitors to attempt such practices ought to realize by this time they fool only

Agricultural Day Held At Ste. Martine

Farm Demonstrations, Judging Competitions And Other Events Held

Following a tradition recently established, the directors of Ste. Martine Agricultural College invited on Thursday last all their old pupils and sons of the neighboring farmers to an Agricultural Day held at the school.

More than 150 young and old farmers, accompanied by several agronomists were present.

The day opened with a series of farm demonstrations, relating to gardens, culinary achievements, fields on drainage, breeding of chickens and the results obtained from different grades.

In the stables, the demonstration dwelt with the judging of three purebred Belgian mares and all the young farmers were questioned on the judging. The winners were Messrs. Huntley Craig of Ormstown, and Irenée Biron of Coteau Station, both old pupils of the school. The first prize awarded was one rooster and three pullets, all purebred; the second prize was a purebred rooster. These prizes were donated by the school.

Dinner was then served in the dining room of the college where a short address was made by Mr. P. N. April, regional agronomist and director of the Ste-Martine Agricultural School; Rev. Father Goyette, Ste-Martine, parish priest; Rev. Father J. Sauvé, priest at Ste-Clothilde and Rev. Father E. Boileau, prefect of the school also spoke briefly.

The remaining part of the day was spent at the Ste. Clothilde Experimental Farm where an explanation of the experimental work carried on there was explained, and on the farm of Prof. Ampleman, who specializes in the cultivation of celery.

Hemmingford Ladies Talk Over New Plan

School Fair Arrangements Made, Award Offered For Intermediate School Competition

A meeting of the local W. I. was held on Friday afternoon, Sept 10th, at which there were 15 members and several viistors. The president, Mrs. G. S. Walsh, presiding. During the business period, after which Mrs. E. M. Cunningham, convenor of Education, took charge of the meeting.

The School Fair was discussed and final arrangements made for same. A report of the County picnic was given by Mrs. Cunningham. It was decided the Book Club be continued this year under the guidance of Mrs. Cunningham. The outline of Agriculture and also the outline of Education were read by the respective convenors. Mrs. V. C. Rose read an article by Dr. Whitehead, which proved most interesting to all. Mrs. W. F. Orr gave a demonstration on the use of a special make of can opener.

The teachers of the Intermediate School were present and were heartily welcomed by Mrs. Cunningham. It was definitely decided that by the end of the year either a plate or a shield would be procured and placed in the Intermediate School for competition by the Senior Grades. It was also decided that the Travelling Library for the School be continued. All members who had volunteered school prizes were asked to hand these in to Mrs. Cunningham for presentation in the very near future.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. A. A. Clayland served delicious refreshments after which the members visited the two cemeteries, placing flowers on the graves of each departed member of the W.I.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Brogan, Stella Brogan, Babe Ryan and Tom Brogan spent Labor Day week-end with W. H. Brogan, of Danbury, N.H. and

8 New Box Looms For Textile Mill

To Replace Plain Looms; Will be Used to Make Check Designs

Eight new box looms are replacing eight plain looms in the plans for general reorganization of plant equipment which is presently being carried out in the Leach Textile Woolen Mill at Huntingdon. A new twisting machine will be installed next week.

A good deal of the machinery on the first floor has been moved around to fit the new plan. The eight box looms are being placed together in a rear section of the building. When additional space is added to the building, and it now seems probable that this will take place in a very short time, more machinery will be installed. The plain looms that are now being taken out will be stored and kept until space in which they may be set up again has been secured.

The new machines will be running on day and night shift. Twelve more employees were added to the staff which now totals 80.

The new looms although slower in production turn out fancy check designs instead of the plain stripe effect made by the former looms. A better market for the former goods necessitated the change, the management explained.

One of the major changes in the plant reorganization is the change in the office quarters. The new office will be situated on the ground floor near the front of the building facing Lorne street instead of on the second floor as before.

The mill is now entering its busy season and will soon be running at capacity speed, with complete day and night shifts.

Former Georgetown Couple Celebrated Golden Wedding

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. G. Whillans, Elm avenue, Montreal, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage quietly on Monday evening. They were married on September 12th, 1887, in Greenwood Church, Baddeck, C.B., by Rev. Dr. John Forrest, President of Dalhousie University, assisted by Rev. Allan Simpson, of Halifax, N.S., and Rev. Kenneth MacKenzie, father of the bride.

Dr. Whillans is a graduate of McGill University, and of the Presbyterian College, Montreal. For upwards of 45 years he was minister of Georgetown Church, and is well known throughout this district. Five years ago he retired and went to live in the city.

Out-of-town members of the family present were: Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Whillans, of Ottawa, Mrs. F. A. Warner, of Halifax, Dr. and Mrs. Wilfred Watson, of Howick, Alex. MacKenzie, brother of Mrs. Whillans, and Mrs. MacKenzie, of Halifax.

Ormstown Couple Celebrated Golden Wedding Anniversary

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Henderson, Ormstown, was the scene of a very happy event on Saturday, September 11th, when friends and relatives gathered to extend to them their heartiest congratulations and good wishes on the 60th anniversary of their marriage.

In the afternoon they held an At Home where they received felicitations from over forty friends. It being an ideal September day, the tea tables were laid on the lawn at their daughter, Mrs. Elder's home and were decorated with yellow flowers. Mrs. W. T. Payne, Mrs. W. S. McLaren and Mrs. R. E. Walsh poured tea, while those assisting were Misses Ruby Tate, Isabel and Olga Elder.

In the evening they entertained over sixty of their relatives, neices and nephews with their families.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Henderson are enjoying excellent health. He is 86 years of age, while Mrs. Henderson, (née Hannah Simpson) ten years younger. They are life-long residents of this district. He was born on the Gore and she at Rockburn, and after they were married they made their home on the Gore until they retired to Ormstown 28 years ago. Their family of two daughters, Mrs. James T. Elder and Mrs. George Tate are both living at Ormstown.

Among the relatives to be present on this occasion were Mr. Henderson's sister, Mrs. Bell, of Huntingdon and Mrs. Henderson's sisters, Mrs. Martha Henderson and Mrs. Lottie Graham, the Gore. Mr. Robt. Henderson, Huntingdon. Mr. Henderson's brother was unable to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson received many lovely gifts and a purse of money, and also many cards and letters of congratulation. The good wishes of all are extended to them for many years of health and happiness.

Rev. Lucien Maheu, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Maheu, pronounced his final vows for priesthood in the order of Oblates of Mary Immaculate at Ottawa, Ont., on Wednesday last. The ceremony was attended by his parents and his sister, Mrs. Romeo Brunet. Father Maheu is sent on mission to Western Canada and in June next will say his first mass.

Mr. Bob Bryson, of Moncton, N. B., spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Wm. Bryson. On Saturday the Bryson family met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross Bryson. All members of the family were together for the first time in eighteen years. Mr. Harry Bryson left that afternoon for his home in Simcoe, Ont., after spending his holidays here.

The Week at Ottawa

Royal Commission Dominion-Provincial Relations To Investigate Unemployment, Social Legislation and Tax Distribution

By Wilfrid Eggleston

The royal commission on Dominion-Provincial relations has held its preliminary organization meetings here, and now waits on the provinces to complete their representations. It will sit in every provincial capital, and in Ottawa as well. It will hear the cases of the governments, and also of all bodies of public opinion, but will not be able to hear individuals. The work is of great magnitude and will take much time. The commission, of which the chairman is Hon. N. W. Rowell, chief justice of the province of Ontario, will appoint experts and delegates of its own to inquire into special technical aspects, and these may even go to other countries for some of their data.

It appears likely that the western provinces will have their cases ready first. It has been suggested that the first meetings will be held in November. It is the general desire of all parties to have the recommendations of the commission ready for the coming session of parliament, and yet there seems very little likelihood of this. The issues are too important, and, in some respects, too controversial.

Beyond the fact that it is to study the economic and financial relationships of the Dominion and the province—abstract words that may mean much or little—many people seem to be puzzled just what is hoped to accomplish by means of this commission. One hears, also, considerable criticism that any more commissions are being appointed. "Government by royal commission" is being held up to scorn in some quarters. Actually, it consists merely of the sensible practice of getting an expert report on an intricate problem. The real attack on the problem comes later, and must be made by the governments in power. Before it acts, the Dominion desires to have the advice of the most enlightened public-spirited citizens, and it uses the Rowell commission as a means of getting this. The commission is mainly to collect and transmit—not to originate its own ideas on the subject.

The commission part of the work may take a year, and in some respects it is the simplest phase. The commission will make recommendations for changes in the British North America Act. The Dominion and the nine provinces will meet to discuss these proposals. It is then that the real difficulties will be met. It is not impossible that a general election may be fought out on the issues that come to the front.

The commission will, it is expected, keep two questions to the front of their inquiries:

1. Which governments — dominion or provincial—are best fitted and most willing to bear the new burdens of social legislation and unemployment relief?
2. How can the tax sources of the Dominion be fairly divided between the governments, in view of the above division of responsibilities?

At present the provinces complain that whereas they are, as the constitution is now interpreted, responsible almost completely for social legislation, they cannot finance such a burden. The cure might be to take away some of their responsibilities, or give them new tax sources, or a little of both.

No doubt the provinces will have their own views on that, and will express them. The difficulty will be, undoubtedly, that they will have nine different views on the subject, while the Dominion may have a tenth. It will be the reconciling and adjusting of these variant points of view that will be the heavy task of a Dominion-Provincial convention later on.

If the commission does nothing more than provide Canada with a more scientific taxation system, it will have accomplished a useful purpose. At present the test of any tax is: will it raise the necessary money, easily and quickly? There is little regard for the fairness of the tax, its effect on industry and employment, or anything of that sort. The provinces have been collecting taxes which obviously would be much more fairly and much more cheaply collected by the Dominion. Also, they have been compelled, because of the B.N.A. act, to collect taxes in the most laborious and expensive method. All these things will be examined.

The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada Monday approved resolutions calling for amendments to the British North America Act, affirming its stand in favor of liberty of organization, asking reduction in the interest rate on home improvement loans, favoring a Government-instituted house building programme and asking clarification of laws regarding picketing.

In addition the Congress, holding its 53rd annual convention, heard delegates vigorously denounce the Ontario and Quebec Premiers for allegedly challenging the right of labor to organize in unions of its own choice.

It ran into violent debate on a resolution of the Quebec and Levis Federated Trades and Labor Council taking cognizance of a declaration by Premier Duplessis of Quebec that he would permit no "closed shop" unions in his province while he was Premier. The resolution affirmed the Congress stand "in favor of liberty of organization, collective bargaining between employers and employees for the establishment of wages and hour conditions in the various industries and commerce."

Re-organization of Protestant School Board Now Imminent

The flash news that pertained to the requested resignations of seven members of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction during the past week was further augmented on Monday when orders were issued to request resignations from the remaining nine members. The question, who authorized Dr. W. P. Percival, Director of Protestant Education to make such resignation requests, was an interesting topic.

On Monday, our member, the Hon. Martin B. Fisher, Provincial Treasurer, stated the resignations were made upon his official orders. Mr. Fisher stated that this was the decision after the Protestant members in the Legislature had given the matter their serious consideration.

From various angles it was generally viewed and agreed that the Council of Public Instruction should have the course of studies, particularly in rural schools improved. To bring this about it was evidently felt new men should be placed on this Council. Although all members have been requested to resign, it is probable a number will be re-appointed to office.

The Hon. Martin B. Fisher did not request the resignations on his own accord but upon the endorsation of the Protestant colleagues in the Legislature, viz Hon. Gilbert Layton, Minister without portfolio, Mr. W. R. Bullock, M.L.A., Mr. Jonathan Robinson, M.L.A., and Mr. P. A. Sherman, M.L.A.

The following men constituted the membership of Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction. Hon. Gordon W. Scott, chairman, who tendered his resignation immediately after the Unon Nationale party came into power. This resignation has not yet been acted upon. Rev. A. H. McGeer, Lennoxville, Rt. Rev. Lennox Williams, Quebec, C. B. Howard, M.P., Sherbrooke, Howard Murray, Montreal, P. C. Duboyce, Richmond, H. R. Cockfield, Montreal and R. Eric Fisher, Lennoxville.

Those now asked to resign are the following appointed members: Dr. W. O. Rothney, professor at Bishop's College University; Malcolm T. Robb, of Huntingdon; Mr. Justice W. L. Bond, of the Court of Appeal; Dr. G. W. Parmelee, of Quebec, and Rev. Dr. Leslie Pidgeon, of Montreal.

The following four remaining members of the six joint members' section, who are elected by the appointed members of the Committee, will also be asked to resign: A. Kirk Cameron, Montreal; Dr. W. L. Shurtleff, K.C., Dean Sinclair Laird and T. M. Dick. They are looked on more as advisory.

Calf Clubs of Ormstown to Hold Joint Field-day

On Saturday, September 18, sixty-eight head of young cattle are to be judged at Ormstown Exhibition grounds. These cattle have been reared by the boys on farms near Ormstown.

Two years ago the Ormstown Ayrshire Calf Club and the Chateauguay Valley Holstein Clubs were organized. These clubs now have a membership of 15 in the Ayrshire Club and 18 in the Holstein Club. Each boy in the club will have at the Ormstown Exhibition grounds a calf and yearling. In the morning at 10 o'clock the demonstrations and judging commence and will continue on into the afternoon. At the noon hour lunch will be served in the Dining Hall.

All those who are interested in the work being done by the junior farmers throughout the province are invited to attend and are assured a worthwhile exhibition.

Flower And Vegetable Show Held

Teachers From High School and Ste. Martine College Help Judge

The flower and vegetable show held annually by the Howick Institute and assisted by the Aubrey Branch, was held Saturday afternoon, Sept. 11th. Miss Agnes McEwen judged the baking and canning. Three members of the staff of the High School, Mr. Donaldson, Mr. MacDonald and Miss McOuat judged the reading and reciting contest. Mrs. Ross, Mrs. J. H. Lang and Mrs. A. Younie inspected and gave prizes for the darning. These prizes were a special given by Mrs. Jas. McKell. The vegetables and flowers were judged by members of the staff of the Agricultural College at Ste. Martine.

The following is the prize list:

Prizes won at Howick School Fair

Sweet corn—1, Robbie Younie; 2, Donald McKell; 3, Walter Brown; 4, Wilbert Brown; 5, Gordon Lang.

Cabbage—1, Murray Elliot; 2, Wilbert Brown; 3, Walter Brown; 4, Donald Elliot; 5, Gordon Lang.

Mangels—1, Murray Elliot; 2, Wm. Bott; 3, Willard Greig; 4, Donald McKell; 5, Robert Ness.

Tomatoes—1, Murray Templeton; 2, Muriel Younie; 3, Ina Bennie; 4, Betty Templeton; 5, Walter Brown.

Huntingdon Fair Requires New Blood

ANOTHER chapter to Huntingdon Fair has been written with the 1937 annual exhibition. The fair, as an agricultural show, was indeed very successful. The showing of produce of the land, vegetables and flowers were magnificent. The livestock exhibit was remarkably large. From the exhibitors standpoint it is all evident that the Huntingdon Fair is essential and should be maintained.

To hold a successful exhibition year after year it requires organization and executive ability injected into the management. In this respect the Huntingdon Fair has decayed to a critical point. One need not think for a moment that the present board of directorate is wholly to blame for the decayment that has taken place. If such were the case the fine exhibit seen each year would not be found at this fair. What is essential to maintain the fair to a greater extent of perfection is more new blood added to the show board. The new men and women might well be selected from the town and rural populace that have not been asked to participate in such a capacity as yet.

The youth of Huntingdon have done a great deal of damage to the property of the Huntingdon Agricultural Society Div. A. The buildings have been unkept and unlocked. No genuine effort put forth to keep the buildings intact, consequently, children, and perhaps many of them grown-up, but with minds of children, have entered the buildings and caused much destruction. Thieving goes on year in and year out, and so it is that it costs the agricultural society more each year to maintain property than it would to make Huntingdon Fair a real outstanding rural agricultural exhibition. The destruction of property that is permitted to flourish will spell failure to our fair.

Many people in Huntingdon and community are quite in harmony with maintaining the fair and would willingly lend their personal assistance towards making it a better show. Under the circumstances it might be very advisable for the Show Board to call a general meeting of all exhibitors, members and public generally interested in maintaining the fair. The meeting, if held, ought to be held within the month of September.

At such a meeting the exhibitors would be able to outline what improvements might be made in the way of bettering the already good exhibits. How they could be more effectively displayed. About the cattle rings, no attempt is made to even give the semblance of a ring, consequently when the public go to the fair they can not get a real good view of the stock being judged. A chairman of the cattle division is essential, and likewise for the horse section. The grounds have become a general eye-sore to the public, therefore a grounds committee is very essential. An active grounds committee named would be able to do much for the fair in years to come.

The grounds and buildings have so deteriorated that it might be well to consider converting the Fair Grounds into a recreation park and be used as such one evening each week throughout next summer. To bring this about a caretaker might well be engaged and have him live in one of the buildings on the grounds throughout the summer months. During the summer season his time could be used advantageously repairing and painting buildings, fences, etc.

To achieve this reparation objective it would require funds, but that would not be a difficult matter to bring about as the show grounds offer facilities to raise money. One night a week next summer a twilight game of ball could be played, and at the same time provide a programme for the evening on the grounds. Money could be obtained from the games and refreshments sold, thereby netting a profit for the caretaker and renovation expenses. This entertainment is essential for the welfare of the community.

We have long urged the advisability of a band being started in Huntingdon. If we could now start a band, by next summer they would be able to provide a simple programme of band music for evenings spent on the fair grounds. If we can start a band with that objective in view, we know right well that would mean the band stand on the Fair Grounds would be made plumb, painted and take on a commendable appearance. The lack of a band for our Huntingdon Fair is very noticeable. A band would put real pep in the fair and do a great deal towards providing general interest in the maintenance and building up of Huntingdon Fair.

The Huntingdon Fair board have sometimes felt the Gleaner was averse to it, not so; but we are averse to holding a fair that is not truly representative of this outstanding agricultural section of Canada. Huntingdon is worthy of holding the finest rural fair in all Canada, and all that is required to make it such is some new blood added to the show board directorate. The constitution of the agricultural societies determines how, and almost who, the directors are to be selected but further augmentation to the board is quite within the scope of the Agricultural Society.

Opinions and letters to the editor would be appreciated, so that further ideas might be presented to our readers.

Town Water System Inspection Desired

THE frequency of calls given to local plumbers reveals that they are called on many occasions to repair hot water pipes that have sprung leaks. The plumbers will freely state that they believe the numerous breaks are due to the chemical action of the water. The chemical action is believed due to the fact that the water had not sufficient time to mix with the alum after its being injected into the water. The unpleasant taste of our town water, at many seasons of the year, is attributed to the fact that the water well is not large enough for the chlorine or alum to become diffused. The unpleasant taste of the water is more particularly noticed during the winter months. It would appear to the man in the street that the wells of our filter plant are being taxed to capacity. The Town Water Committee might, for the benefit of the citizens, request the services of an engineer from Quebec who would undoubtedly provide the Town Council with his considered opinion and how best to go about to eliminate the objectionable features of our present water system.

Maintain Schoolgirl Complexion

OUR schools, unlike those of our neighbouring province, Ontario, are now open for the school term 1937-38. It is most unfortunate that such an epidemic as infantile paralysis should invade a province of our fair Dominion. It is to be hoped the disease will not spread throughout Quebec although cases are being announced as found in Pictou, Nova Scotia.

The school buildings, in many cases are congested and that would mean quick spreading of the dreaded disease if it were ever allowed to evade the portals of school buildings. Should the symptoms of the disease ever appear in our midst our medical doctors should be promptly informed so that no opportunity to save the youngster's life will be lost.

The healthy environment of the Chateauguay Valley makes us feel more or less confident that we will not be subjected to the dreaded disease, yet that is no good guarantee. In past years the school pupils have suffered from various epidemics such as mumps, chicken pox and the "just a bad cold," which any doctor will tell you has accounted for more people resting in "God's Acres" than any other ailments. The health of children is essential if our school teachers are to have a proper chance in imparting their knowledge to the pupils. It is therefore essential every child be careful in regards to health forming habits so that the knowledge of other children as well as they themselves will not be deterred.

Mens Sana in Corpore Sano

A REPORT that should be of interest to all teachers has just been issued. It is a report by a delegation consisting of senior officers of the Board of Education and the Scottish Education Department and a few other experienced observers who went to Germany, at the invitation of that country's government, to study the methods of physical education there.

This is a view expressed in the report: "That physical education in itself is an excellent thing nobody can deny, but its continued prosecution to excess at the expense of the things of the mind and the soul in a whole nation of the size and standing of Germany might lead to fearful consequence for her and to trouble for the whole world.

The delegation state that they were not convinced "that as regards performance, technique, and methodology physical training in Germany is superior to that which is being done in Great Britain."

They agree that the developments in the sphere of physical education in Germany are novel, far-reaching, highly interesting, and often very instructive. In schools it had been raised to the importance and dignity of a principal subject of the curriculum; in the universities the student had to reach a degree of efficiency before he could go forward beyond a certain stage; and in industry its value as a corrective, restorative, and alternative was fully realised.

"Physical training in Germany," states the report, "is bound up with National Socialism, and all the new social and political institutions that have sprung up in the country within the last few years stress its importance and seek to foster it, whatever their other aims may be."

The delegation raises the question whether in Germany there is not already a tendency "to seek to develop the body at the expense of the mind and to regard it as a mere machine to be kept constantly tuned up to the highest possible pitch of efficiency rather than as the habitation of the mind and the temple of the soul."

The Germans reply that what is happening is the natural swing of the pendulum away from the excessive preoccupation with the affairs of the mind that was the prime source of the weakness of Germany in the past, "and that led to mental instability, indecision, crankiness and egocentricity, and tended to paralyse the national effort at moments of crisis. Modern Germany has no use for a horde of young men and women carrying too much intellectual top-hamper, neurasthenics, pessimists, cranks, and rainbow-chasers, a prey to 'Weltschmerz' and defeatism."

"That the young people of Germany are being subjected, or are subjecting themselves, to an intense nervous strain is obvious. The nation is only too conscious of the fact that it is at 'war'—at war with circumstances—and that the war it is engaged in is a young people's war. Whether the strain will be relaxed when Germany is satisfied that she is at last out of her difficulties the event alone will prove. Meanwhile can the young people stand the pace?

Let's Catch More of the Tourist Dollars

THE flow of tourist traffic through the Chateauguay Valley is often belittled. We are perhaps slow to grasp the possibilities offered to obtain a greater amount of commercial trade from these folks than we do. With 96,000 American people passing through the Trout River port this summer, surely our community ought to profit to some extent. Just how to grasp a greater proportion of the tourist trade is a problem that has to be solved by individuals and local business concerns. There is no doubt about it but that little effort is exercised along Route 4 to induce tourists to remain in our midst even over night, let alone for any lengthy duration of time.

Our American cousins at Chateaugay, N. Y., have made a bid for tourist business through issuing an elaborate booklet depicting the beauty spots and drives in the Adirondack mountains.

The following table provides some interesting figures. One might well ponder over some ideas and put them into action so that in 1938 the Chateauguay Valley may reap a larger proportion of the tourists' dollars spent in Canada:

Chronicled News Bits

Specially Written For The Huntingdon Gleaner

ITALY LIVING COSTS UP

Living costs in Italy since Mussolini sent his troops to Ethiopia to find their place in the sun have gone steadily upwards. During the period from November 2, 1935, to February, 1937, Rome reports show the average cost of living has risen 60.9 per cent. Meats have advanced 27.6 per cent, all other foods 12.9, fuel 16, and household textiles 155.8.

HER SIT STRIKE FATAL

To keep her drunken husband Olaf from carrying out his threat to kill her as she slept, Hilma Olsen sat down on his chest and held his hands until he could sober sufficiently to arbitrate. But Hilma weighed 165 pounds, and in five minutes Olaf was dead. The jury at Olso, Norway, which tried her for wilful murder has brought in the verdict of "Not guilty."

CROW STEALS GOLF BALL

In the middle of a game at Petersburg, South Africa, a crow intercepted a golf ball on the fairway, picking it up in spite of the shouts of players and caddies. Mrs. Max Maryus, owner of the ball, set out in pursuit with her husband and caddie. The bird dropped the ball in the rough. Mrs. Maryus recovered it, paid a penalty and continued the game.

MAN DEFIES ALL GERMS

Suti Chi, of Canton, China, applied at the Central Field Health Station in Nanking to demonstrate by tests that he is immune to smallpox, influenza, cholera, tuberculosis, dysentry and bubonic plague. He is ready to eat a mouthful of any of the germs or a mixture of all. He draws the line, however, at their injection into his blood stream. That would be risky, he concedes.

FLEAS ON RELIEF

Odd recipients of relief among the inhabitants of Bonn, Germany, are a Negro tribe, lions, tigers and performing fleas. They belong to a circus, which has now gone bankrupt, and the town is looking after the whole show, numbering 130 performers, in addition to all the animals.

LONG LOST SISTERS

Twenty-six years ago Mrs. Agnes Roux and Mrs. Margaret Fowley, sisters, were separated when adopted out from a New York orphanage. They met for the first time since their separation at the home of Mrs. Fowley, Chicago, following a long search for each other.

MADDENING DRINK

Close guard is being kept by the South African Sugar Association over all treacle supplies in an effort to stamp out a traffic in illicit liquor which is sending the natives of Natal and Zululand raving mad. The spirit, made from treacle, popularly known as "gavini," is so strong that it can easily be ignited by a match

CHILDREN FORBIDDEN

A young couple in Aberdeen have been forbidden by their landlord to have any children. If they do they must leave the house. The identity of the couple is being kept secret, but the matter has aroused tremendous indignation and is being investigated by the Aberdeen House Proprietors' and Factors' Association.

WORLD'S LARGEST ACCORDION

The largest accordion in the world, it is claimed, has been made by a firm of organ and mouth organ manufacturers at Klingenthal, in the mountains of Saxony. The instrument is six feet high and six feet long. It will be played simultaneously by six music-hall artistes, for whom it has been constructed.

WORSHIPERS COOLED

To combat the heat wave, which warmed even "cool Colorado," the Park Hill Baptist Church one Sunday night was banked with synthetic snow and the sermon delivered from a synthetically frost-encrusted altar.

PET COYOTE KILLER

For 12 years a coyote, known to have a piece of chain dragging from his neck, had killed so much poultry and young stock in western Idaho that it became known as a "killer." Every farmer and ranchman in that region was on the lookout for this animal, but it evaded all traps, poison as well as hunters. Captured as a pup in 1921, a rancher named it Susie and kept it chained to a post for four years when it escaped, taking the collar and chain with it. Susie was finally killed near Grangeville, Idaho, last month, still wearing the leather collar and a five-foot length of chain.

MOVIE CURE

The police department of Quincy, Mass., is trying a new cure for reckless driving. Violators of certain traffic rules are sentenced to periodic showings of a gruesome moving picture taken of traffic crashes in which drivers or passengers were killed or maimed. The first showing was witnessed by 100 violators, both men and women, who were so shocked by the realization of what an auto crash may mean some of them vowed they would never drive a car again.

EASE UP ON SINNERS

The Mohammedan world is much wrought up over a new edition of the Koran, holy book of the Moslems, recently published. The revision is by prof. Abdel Saidi, who eliminated or toned down most of the severe punishments for wrongdoers listed in the book, as being abhorrent and not in accordance with the spirit of modern times. This upheaval recalls the controversy over the Bible between fundamentalists and modernists a few years ago.

NOTE FROM AIR

Near Lancaster, Ind., Walter Owen, out in his cornfield, was watching an airplane circling above him. Soon a sheet of paper floated down from the plane. Owen watched it light and retrieved it. On it was this message, "Nice field of corn you have there." It was signed by the flier, unknown to Owen. "Anyway, it was kind of encouraging and made me feel good," Owen remarked.

AS ARABS SAY IT

A man summoned at Christchurch, England, for non-payment of rates was said to have named his house "Insh'allah." "Do you know what that means?" the chairman asked the rate-collector. He shook his head. "It means, 'If God wills it—I shall pay,' said the chairman—and made an order for payment. "Insh'allah" is a common Arabic pious ejaculation.

ROMAN HOUSES DUG UP

Three houses built by the Romans are coming to light in Sussex, England. They were found within a few weeks, all near Worthing. At Wiggonholt, a wall 65 feet long has been unhearted, and several rooms and bath have been found. One of the valuable discoveries is a floor of herringbone work.

ODDITY TENNIS PLAYED

Novel tennis matches are being played at Dunolly, Australia, Manager Lawson of the Wedderburn hotel was defeated when using a racquet, he met R. A. Hill, civil engineer, armed with a mandolin. To get revenge he wagered that Alfred Greenhall, with a frying pan, could beat Hill, wielding a racquet. Lawson lost his bet.

DANCER'S MOTHER WINS

Through the intervention of the authorities at Moscow, Russia, the aged mother of Anna Pavlowa, has obtained a part of the estate, left by the celebrated dancer. The husband of the ballerina filed claim for the entire fortune in London. Moscow contended that because the mother had been supported by her daughter she was entitled to some of the estate. Madame Pavlowa will get $75,000.

Matrimonial

Moore-Stewart

The marriage of Elleda Winnifred, daughter of Mr. William H. Stewart and the late Mrs. Stewart of Hemmingford, Que., to Mr. Norman Stanley Moore, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore, jr., of Lachine, took place at the home of the bride's father on Saturday afternoon. The Rev. Victor Rose officiated. The bride was attended by Miss Ina Bell, of Lachine, as bridesmaid; Miss Dorothy Stewart, niece of the bride; and Miss Sheila Beattie, cousin of the bride, as flower girls. Mr. Kenneth Moore, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an afternoon dress of Coronation blue crepe with a turban to match and carried a bouquet of Columbia roses and baby's breath. The bridesmaid wore a dress of teddy-bear brown crepe with a turban to match; her bouquet being composed of supreme roses. The flower girls wore pink and blue organdy dresses and carried bouquet of sweet peas. Miss Annie Wiggins, aunt of the bride, wore a dress of black georgette with a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Moore, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of black transparent velvet with a corsage of Talisman roses.

Later the bridal couple left on a motor trip to New York, the bride travelling in a navy blue printed silk dress and a navy blue lama wool coat with accessories to match. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside at Lachine.

Out-of-town guests included: Mrs. Chas. Moore, jr., Mr. Kenneth Moore, Mr. Aubrey Moore, Master Ross Moore and Miss Ina Bell, of Lachine; Mr. Randolph Moore, of Toronto; Miss Gladys Pelletier and Mr. W. B. Stewart, of Montreal; and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Allan, of Elizabethtown, N. J.

Obituary

The late Harry Prouse

Harry L. Prouse, 38, of 149 West Main St., well known Malone restaurant man, passed away on September 6th, at the Alice Hyde Hospital of heart disease after a week's illness.

Mr. Prouse had been associated with his father, the late George Prouse, for many years a prominent figure in Malone business life, in the Prouse Restaurant at 36 East Main St., for the last 20 years. Since his father's death he had managed the business.

The deceased was born in St. Albans, Vt. He came to Malone as a child and had lived practically his entire life there. About nine years ago he was married to Miss Marie Smith of Port Huron, Michigan, who has also assisted in the operation of the restaurant.

Mr. Prouse was a veteran of the World War and had served with Company K, Malone's wartime unit. His untimely death brings grief to a wide circle of friends who extend sympathy to the bereaved family in their loss.

Surviving are his wife; his mother, Mrs. George Prouse; a sister, Mrs. Thomas P. Kendrick of Brookline, Mass., several uncles and aunts in Glen's Falls, besides an aunt, Mrs. R. P. Calvi, of New York, who is there now.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning at St. Joseph's Church with military rites under the direction of Malone Post, American Legion. Burial was in Notre Dame Cemetery.

St. Louis de Gonzague

Mrs. John Mabon and Edith, accompanied by Mrs. Jim Alexander, motored to Burlington, Vt., on Tuesday afternoon and visited at the Fisher home, returning again Thursday by way of St. Johns.

School opened on Sept. 1st with Miss Una Kerr of Tullochgorum as teacher.

GOLF BALL ON BIRD'S BEAK

While playing on the Kinston Heath course, Victoria, Australia, a golfer struck a magpie with his ball. The ball became impaled on the bird's beak, which snapped off and remained embedded in the cover. The bird flew away before the players could capture it.

SERUM FOR INFANTILE PARALYSES TREATMENT AT STE. MARTINE

Dr. Patenaude, our Health Officer for Chateauguay-Huntingdon informs us that in the Province of Quebec outside of Montreal 18 cases of Infantile Paralysis have been reported. In Montreal 38 cases have been recorded. In the event of Infantile Paralysis breaking out within our midst Dr. Patenaude has the necessary serum for treatment on hand in Ste-Martine. The serum can therefore be delivered to any doctor within one hour's time of notification received at Ste-Martine.

Rockburn

Mr. and Mrs. Millen and Mr. C. Paddock, all of Boston, were guests recently for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gibson.

Miss Hill of Meriden, Conn., is spending a few weeks with her friend, Miss Dunsmore.

The Misses Edith and Margaret Rennie spent Saturday in Montreal visiting their mother in hospital there, and bringing home good report of her improvement.

Mrs. Pennington and Miss Buchan of Williamsburg, Ont., visited Mr. Henry McMillan and other friends on Saturday, remaining with the Misses Sutton a few days.

Don't carry around a lot of opinions with which to start an argument. Facts are better—Houghton Line.

Of Course we buy goods

-BUY RIGHT HERE IN THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC

Too many people think of chain stores as interested only in selling goods. To sell them, we have to buy them first and in so doing, we create jobs and wages for thousands of Quebec workmen and a market for hundreds of Quebec farmers.

Chain store purchases from Quebec manufacturing plants and farmers aggregate the huge sum of $30,000,000.00 annually, in many cases taking the entire output of considerable plants. These purchases have to be transported to our warehouses and individual stores, an aggregate volume of traffic that means much to Quebec's transportation systems and transport workers.

The ladies of St. John's Church of England conducted a booth at the fair. The sale of candy, vegetables and cooking, and a small amount of sewing amounted to $61. Practically everything was sold and had more home-made candy been in stock, it also would have been sold.

The ladies of the Huntingdon Women's Institute had a food table. Their entire stock was sold thereby augmenting their treasury in a satisfactory manner.

The Women's Association of the Athelstan United Church booth operated on a large scale than the aforementioned. Their receipts aggregated $120.

Miss Yvette Parent of Montreal, spent the week-end at her home, accompanied by her cousin, Miss Veronica Parent of Howick.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Garneau, of Val d'Or, Que., visited for a few days last week at the home of Notary and Mrs. Baillargeon.

Dr. M. T. and Mrs. Barrett returned home to Philadelphia on Sunday night after spending their summer holidays visiting at the home of his brother, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Barrett.

Mr. James (Mike) Ross of Lennoxville, Que., was a week-end visitor at his home here.

Miss Madeleine LaSalle is attending the Hair Dressers' Convention in Montreal.

The Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada, Quebec Branch, announced last week that Mr. J. J. Murphy of Huntingdon, has obtained a production record with his cow "Francy Ormsby Caroline" 278956, with 15,040 lbs. of milk, 589 lbs. of fat, averaging 3.51%. This cow was milked three times per day during thirty-one days, at the age of two years.

This same Association made known that during the months of June, July and August, more than 290 head of purebred Holstein cattle were exported to the United States. Of this number, the Huntingdon-Ormstown breeders club exported 135.

Dundee

Rev. J. H. Lynn and Mrs. Lynn motored to Waterloo, Que., on Friday where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Lynn's uncle which was held on the following day. They arrived home early Saturday evening.

Mr. Phillip of New York City was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming and Mrs. Jessie Vass on Sunday.

The newlyweds, Mr. Norman McPhee and his bride, the former Miss Nellie Smellie, returned home from a very enjoyable honeymoon last Saturday and have taken up residence at the McPhee homestead.

Mr. Robert G. Steven is at present a patient in the Alice Hyde Memorial Hospital in Malone where he underwent an operation for appendicitis on Friday night. Mr. Steven felt ill during the afternoon while he was at the Huntingdon Fair grounds. On his return home, being decidedly worse, Dr. Gorman was called and he advised his immediate removal to the hospital. Shortly after his arrival at the hospital the operation was performed. His condition is reported as quite favorable. Mr. Steven's many friends wish him a quick recovery.

The W.M.S. of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. Marion Vass on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 11th. A former President of the Society, Mrs. Stewart McNicol conducted the meeting in the absence of both of the regular President and Vice President. Mrs. Jessie Vass read the lesson from the Study Book. The roll call was responded to by each member reading a short article on Temperance. The ladies spent the afternoon quilting. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Miss Hazel Vass.

Mr. Clarence Ferguson of North Bay, Ont., arrived home on Tuesday night from that place and will spend a couple of weeks at the home of his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McNicol.

Every occupation lifts itself with the enlarging life of him who practices it. That which will not do this no man has a right to occupy himself with.

Former graduate: "Professor, I have made some money and I want to do something for my old college. I don't remember what studies I excelled in." Professor: "In my classes you slept most of the time." Former graduate: "Fine! I'll endow a dormitory."

Serve your muffins piping hot. If you cannot serve them as soon as they are baked, leave them in the pans covered with napkin or clean towel.

The Shawinigan Water & Power Co. were the only business firm of the town to have an exhibit at the Fair. In their booth they exhibited the ever popular household electric appliances and that which is now interesting many farmers, the electric milk cooling system. The Shawinigan Water and Power Co., are continually extending their rural lines and lose no opportunities to acquaint their patrons with the latest in electric devices.

DeLaval Milkers and separators were on exhibit during the fair. Mr. R. N. Mitchell, the DeLaval manager for Quebec favored the Huntingdon Fair with his presence on Friday. Mr. Mitchell's many local friends were delighted to see him present.

Mr. Ralph Hayter has been at Lanoraie, Co. Berthier, for the past few weeks doing landscape gardening. When at Lanoraie he drank water from an old well and also went swimming in waters that proved to be polluted with typhus fever germs. Ralph is now at home and has been isolated, not that such is demanded but merely for the sake of family protection. Dr. Patenaude states the public need not express any fear of contracting the germ through purchasing vegetables, etc., from Mr. Arch. Hayter. We sincerely hope Ralph makes a complete recovery, leaving no ill effects.

Matrimonial

PEDDIE-GILMORE

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the house of the bride's mother on Saturday, Sept. 11th, at twelve o'clock noon when Hazel Maud, daughter of the late Wm. F. Gilmore and Mrs. Gilmore of Havelock, Que., was united in marriage to Mr. Peter Edwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Peddie of Howick, Que.

The bride who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Herberet L. Gilmore, was gracefully gowned in powder blue georgette made in princess line with turban to match and a corsage bouquet of ophelia roses. They were unattended and the bride entered the room to the strains of the wedding march played by her cousin, Mr. Leslie Austin of Montreal.

The house was tastefully decorated with a profusion of autumn flowers, the bride and groom standing under an arch of evergreens and white lilies from which extended a large white bell.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. S. Belbin of Russeltown United Church assisted by the Rev. T. J. Watson of Georgetown Presbyterian Church.

After the signing of the registry the bridal couple led the way to the dining room which was beautifully decorated in pink and white, where a sumptuous dinner was served, after which the bridal couple left amidst a shower of confetti on an extended motor trip through the Eastern States. The bride travelled in a turquoise blue knitted dress with brown accessories and fawn coat.

They were the recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts. On their return they will reside in Howick.

Athelstan

A very successful sale of aprons, quilts, towels, sweaters, etc., food and home-made candy, under the auspices of the Woman's Association of Athelstan United Church was held both days at Huntingdon Fair. The booth was nicely decorated in Coronation colors with flags, etc. A hearty vote of thanks is extended to all who helped in any way to make this sale such a success, over $120.00 being realized from same.

Mrs. Hutchings of Montreal, spent the past week at the home of her son, Mr. Fred Hutchings.

Mr. Gordon Shearer, Melville, Sask., Mrs. Margaret Loudon and daughter, Miss Helen Louden of Minneapolis, have been recent guests at the home of Mr. George Shearer.

Miss Jean Anderson of Montreal, is spending a few months at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Boyce.

Mrs. Pansera, Malone, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Reese.

The following have been recent guests at the home of Mr. Peter Munro and family: Miss Mabel Young, New Carlisle, Mr. and Mrs. F. Cowan and daughter, Mansonville, Mrs. Elsworth and daughter Elizabeth and Mrs. Cushman of Fort Covington and Mrs. G. McMullen and daughter Marjorie of Blythwood, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Bruce and son Stanley of Lachine, spent the week-end at the home of their mother, Mrs. Mabel Wattie.

Miss Lucy Taylor, Brooklet, visited among friends here this week.

Obituary

The Late Mr. Thomas English

The late Mr. Thomas English, of Barrington passed away Friday, August 20th, and was laid at rest on Sunday, the 23rd. The deceased was in his 85th year. He has always been a resident of Barrington. He served two years in the Fenian Raid in 1866, and in 1870 was awarded a medal.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. English, formerly Isabella Wood and family, Mrs. Walter Cauldwell, of Hemmingford, Mrs. William Orr and Mrs. William English, of Barrington, one brother, Mr. Hiram English of Barrington. Three nieces and a nephew, Mrs. Jack Auger, Mrs. James Pink, Mrs. George Dumas, and Mr. William Waite, all of Montreal, and twenty-two grandchildren of which eleven attended his funeral, which was held in St. Luke's Anglican Church, Hemmingford, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Howard conducting the service taking as his text, "Peace with thee."

Unsuitable Weather . . .

themselves when they resort to such unfair tactics.

The showing of quilts and fancy work was amazing, but here again the judges did not relish their task 100%, as a few items were purchased in place of being hand made and furthermore some of the entries were judged by the same judges in past years.

The Livestock show was a bit short in numbers, due wholly to the weather conditions. No cattle were taken to Havelock from the west end of the County, whilst many exhibitors close at hand only took part of their intended entry. The Holstein and Ayrshire classes were well filled, particularly in the junior classes. The cattle did not show off to advantage, for they like the people responded unfavorably to the weather.

The swine entry was judged by Mr. James Hunter, of Ormstown, and he pronounced them to be a very excellent lot. The entry was made up by a large number of local farmers. W. D. Sample was awarded the Canadian Bank of Commerce silver bowl, for best bacon type hog.

Sheep occupied their usual place of prominence and likewise the poultry.

Horses were carefully looked over by the critical eyes of scores of farmers. They admired the many colts and draft horses on exhibition. The driving classes were not well filled, but thanks are due Mr. D. E. Black, M.P., who with his string of horses very materially helped in the staging of the driving classes. Unfortunately our old friend, Mr. Charles Collings did not exhibit his string of drivers. He fully intended to make an entry but the bad weather made him decide otherwise, much to his personal regret as well as that of the public.

The ladies of Covey Hill Church served the dinner at noon hour.

The Hon. Martin B. Fisher, M.L.A. Provincial Treasurer and Mrs. Fisher graced the Havelock Fair with their presence. The electors certainly enjoy meeting their members of parliament at such local events as are our fall fairs.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Pettes, Misses Mary and Sarah Standage motored last week to Toronto.

MODERN ROOMS

Glass niches strike a new note in modern rooms.

The glass reflects the room and makes it appear much larger than its actual size. Glass shelves form an excellent setting for a favourite collection of china figures, coloured glass, porcelain animals and other knick-knacks.

Flowers placed in these niches are reflected and add a note of colour.

This feature is particularly attractive in dining rooms but may be used with equal success in living rooms or halls. These niches may now be built by funds obtained under the Home Improvement Plan.

An enthusiastic golfer came home to dinner. During the meal his wife said, "Willie tells me he caddied for you this afternoon."

"Well, do you know," said Willie's father, "I thought I'd seen that boy before."

Athelstan

Steele-Shearer

A very quiet wedding took place on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 11th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Shearer, Athelstan, when their youngest daughter, Edna was united in marriage to James Steele, youngest son of Mrs. Martha Steele, of Glenelm. Rev. A. Nimmo officiating.

The bride looked charming, dressed in navy blue taffeta suit, with matching accessories.

The bride and groom, being of very retiring dispositions endeavoured to avoid any demonstration by keeping the hour of the wedding a secret, but as murder will out, by a happy chance several of the neighbours became aware of the proceedings and were on hand to greet the newlyweds with the customary showers of confetti, while the young nephew of the bride, Master John Foers was responsible for the hastily decorated car with streamers, placards, old shoes and all the usual fixings.

Our best wishes go with Mr. and Mrs. Steele to their new home in Lachute.

Correction.—

In the list of prize-winners in the Garden Plot Competition in last week's paper the name of Isabel Elliott was unintentionally omitted. With a score of 70% Isabel was 18th, coming next in line to Marguerite Elliott, who scored 73%.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Rowat and Miss Shirley Rowat are visiting this week with friends in Levis, Que.

Miss Christena Lawrence has returned to Trout River after spending the past three weeks a guest at the home of L. D. Watson.

dent. Though they recalled losing the "Great War" it apparently was not interfering with their life enjoyment. True to form the German was found very industrious and far advanced in many respects.

The final minute of our conversation was about the Irish Free State. Old Dublin where the peasant farmer drove a little mule to market. The mule is so small the farmer might well have carried the mule under his arm. Such were the sights to see in Ireland. The Irish Free State impressed Mr. and Mrs. Fisher as being a land 100 years behind times. Beautiful and expensive parliament buildings were to be seen. Scenic rural country and magnificent estates owned by English gentlemen were the redeeming features of Irish prosperity. The Irish are exceedingly jealous of these English estates. Were it not for these estates, the Irish Free State would be in a sorrowful condition, was the opinion of Mr. Fisher. Before leaving Ireland they visited Ulster, in the north. It was equally as beautiful as the Irish Free State, but it enjoyed a prosperous atmosphere. No visit to Europe would be complete without a visit to "dear old Ireland" says Mrs. Fisher.

The inexpensiveness of travel in Europe was found very striking by our friends. Auto travel was exceptionally reasonable, one trip they made of around 250 miles cost but $15 in Canadian currency. Mr. Fisher recalled that in all Europe there was but one real kind of money, and that was the English Pound. The Pound Stirling is recognized in every land and it can be readily exchanged. The currency of other lands is only recognized in its own country. The frequent changes in government in the various countries is responsible for this respect to the face value of money.

Huntingdon Takes Verdict From Malone

Score Four Runs In Sixth Inning To Make Sure Of Game

An augmented Huntingdon baseball team defeated a Malone amateur club by the score of 8 to 6 at the Huntingdon Fair Grounds Friday afternoon before one of the largest crowds of the season.

Both teams were held scoreless until the first half of the third inning when the visitors scored their first run on a single and a base on balls. They made the score read 2-0 in the following inning when Adams and Smith each single to center field.

This two point lead did not dishearten the locals, however, and in the last half of the fifth inning O'Connor and Lavair came home on singles by Bush and Tennyson, tying the score. The Huntingdon team then scored four more runs in the sixth inning while their opponents were able to score only one tally in their half at the plate.

Pete Donald, one of Malone Stars brightest stars, who was pitching for the visitors performed well on the mound. The visitors were not able to connect with Monique's pitching as well as they thought they might and the latter struck out eight men at bat.

The Huntingdon team brought their last two runs in the last half of the seventh inning to bring their total to eight, while Malone was able to score once in the seventh and twice in the first half of the eighth inning to bring theirs to six.

Both teams worked very hard and played snappy ball throughout.

Monique yielded only six hits while Donald was charged with eleven singles.

Following was the score by innings:

| Malone | 001 001 220—6 |
| Huntingdon | 000 024 20x—8 |

Covey Hill

So far about 18 pupils have been enrolled in Miss Virginia McCracken's school here. The beginners' class includes June Waddell, Frederick Bourdon and Ross Whyte.

American officials recently seized a truck load of cattle in the Mooer's Forks district, the additional duty probably having tempted the smugglers.

Mrs. S. M. Simpson and Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson visited the metropolis last week.

Mr. John Simpson of Chicago spent a night last week with his brother here and called on other friends.

After being rocked in the cradle of the deep by St. Anthony the Abbot and rubbed on the washboard over the atrocious road between Ormstown and the new highway, the autoist not unusually is fain to make his return trip by St. Chrysostome and Howick, wondering whereabouts in the province the high license fees he has been paying for years past have gone into hiding.

However, with Mr. Fisher's splendid surplus to cheer us, we take fresh heart of grace for the future.

Mr. Earl McNiece of Montreal, his son Kenneth and Mr. Hubert Sheran were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. John Waddell, and Mr. Carol Anderson is spending his vacation at Mrs. Waddell's.

Mr. Kenneth Meyer of Ottawa is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Waddell.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Louden and family were guests this week of Mrs. Louden's sister at East Greenfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude F. Halsey and the former's brother Wendell, all of Pittsfield, Mass., accompanied Mrs. Olive Dowling to the Hill.

Georgette, the 20-month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bourdon, died early, Sunday morning after a short illness. Interment took place at Hemmingford on Monday afternoon.

Mr. Fred Foy of Rouses' Point has been spending part of his vacation with relatives here.

Mrs. J. C. Barr is home after a visit paid to her sister, Mrs. John Wilson, Watertown, N.Y. Mr. Barr is at present employed in the creation of a bungalow at St. Bruno, Que.

One is always hearing "news" on a farm. We heard the other day for the first time that it was a mis take to put rakings on top of a mow as the dust sifts through its whole depth.

A recent American visitor was a farmer from Dannemora, N.Y., in search of a young gray colt to match his own, his ideal being a pair of grays, a colour which many farmers shy at. The price of horseflesh seems unlikely to soar since numbers of horses are being shipped from the prairies free of freight charges.

Havelock

Mr. Torrance Brisbin who spent several days in the Valleyfield Hospital returned home the past week slightly improved.

Mr. A. F. Ballinger, Mr. Herbert Ballinger, Miss Isabel Hay, Misses Megan and Gwen Ballinger and friend of St. Lambert, also Mr. and Mrs. Harold Marsden and son of Montreal spent Labor Day with Mr. Leslie Stevenson and daughter, Miss Doris Stevenson.

Dundee Girls Win Trophy On Fair Day

Dundee again continued its winning streak when they defeated Leach and Huntingdon Girls during the ball programme offered at the Fair Grounds on Thursday afternoon, opening Fair day.

The winners were presented with a beautiful trophy donated by the Huntingdon Agricultural Society. The presentation was made by D. J. O'Connor, director of the Fair Sports committee and in turn presented it to the Dundee field captain, Miss Janet Fraser.

The first game scheduled to start at 1.30 was somewhat delayed but the teams had sufficient time to play nine innings. The first game was closely fought but Dundee always had a few runs ahead of their opponents in this contest against Leach. The home team played better than at any other time this year although they missed a few of their regular players.

Kathleen Cahill played a good game for the losers with Janet Fraser doing her usual good catches on the mound for Dundee and throwing as hard as in any other previous game.

The second and final game of the day played between Huntingdon Girls and Dundee began at three-fifteen. The home team began hitting hard and it looked for a while as if the first game had been too much for Dundee as Huntingdon Girls scored nine runs in two innings to one for Dundee. But this lead was soon overcome and Dundee could not be stopped from hitting after the third inning, placing their hits in the most awkward places for any fielder to reach.

Eileen Herdman, who was playing her first game in Huntingdon for the home team, played one of the best games of the day at short-stop. Janet Fraser and Merle McCartney along with R. McCartney were undoubtedly the best players on the winning team.

Dundee girls worked hard in both these games and deserved to win the cup as they were playing very cautiously and batted hard whenever they had to do so.

A GOOD IDEA

The mortality in new ideas must be and probably is overwhelming. The human mind could never hope to grasp the number—and it would probably stagger all human imagination. And the reason for overwhelming mortality in ideas may be due to the absence of one tiny idea without which any idea is worthless—putting it to work. Millions of men get new ideas—a handful of men are struck by the notion of putting their ideas to work—and fewer still than a handful are prepared to pay what it calls for in time and trial and sacrifice—without which ideas die aborning.

Get five men into a room and tell them of a new idea a man has just put to work, and at least one in five and sometimes four in five will be able to say in absolute honesty: "Funny, I had that idea." And one or two may even be able to say "I started to do something about it once." And there recollection will end—somewhere a man had an idea for his idea—putting it to work. A good idea for any idea.—The Shaft.

The Gore

Many will be pleased to hear that Miss Eileen Herdman, who underwent a serious operation in the General Hospital, Montreal, is doing as well as can be expected.

Matrimonial

Smith-Hamilton

The marriage of Agnes Helen, daughter of the late Wm. J. Hamilton and Mrs. Hamilton, of Huntingdon, Que., to Mr. John Roxborough Smith, was solemnized quietly on Saturday morning at eleven o'clock at Calvary United Church; the Rev. T. W. Jones officiating. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Smith left immediately after the ceremony for a motor trip to New York and Atlantic City. On their return they will reside at 2048 Union Avenue, Montreal.

The Late Rev. T. Roy

Friends from every section of the Eastern Townships gathered at Richmond, Que., Saturday to attend the funeral service of Rev. Telesphore Roy, minister of the United Church, who died last Thursday in Waterloo in his 72nd year.

Mr. Roy served as Methodist pastor in Magog, Lawrenceville, Actonvale, Ormstown, Richmond, Bethel, St. Jovite, Ponsonby and Franklin Centre as well as the Delisle street and Trinity churches in Montreal. Following Church Union he took over the Mount Royal United church which he ministered for 8 years. Ill-health forced him to resign and he was superannuated, though he continued to do light duty as pastor of the United Church at Lake Megantic for a few years. A stroke forced him to give up all work. A year ago he established a home in Waterloo, so that Mrs. Roy and himself could be near their daughter, Mrs. W. A. Parkes, of that town.

He was buried in St. Anne's Cemetery at Richmond.

Ant. Beaudin Enquiry Takes Place Saturday

Untimely Death Generally Believed Due to Arsenic of Lead and Not Alcoholic Poisoning

The enquiry pertaining to the untimely death of Antonio Beaudin, aged 27, of St. Chrysostome, was supposed to take place at Hotel Dieu, Valleyfield this morning, Dr. Fontain, Montreal, who performed the autopsy was unable to be at Valleyfield to-day, so the enquiry will be held at the Hospital on Saturday morning.

The late Mr. Beaudin died on August 30th from what was supposed to have been alcoholic poisoning. It is generally believed arsenic of lead was the cause of death. Provincial detectives have been working on the case.

BLACK HORIZON

BY JOSEPH LEWIS CHADWICK

Sonya and Rand walked along the beach that morning. Sonya was gathering tiny pink shells washed in by the night's tide.

"Sonya," Rand said, half humorously, half seriously, "you are the most amazing creature I have ever known."

"Why, Rand?" she asked, smiling at him.

"Because of what you accomplished with Pete Barker. Why, you've made a new man of him! Look at him now. He actually swaggers! And LaBlanc last night. No man could have done that—"

"They are like children, Rand. Big, overgrown children. I suppose it is a maternal streak in me that makes me understand them."

"What miracle are you going to perform next? Whom else are you going to rehabilitate out of these wrecks who were once men? Me? Maya Jack? Or Kelly Burk?"

Sonya's tone was bantering. "Not you. Nor Maya Jack," she said. "You two are not children. You—you are men. The strongest willed men I have ever known. No woman could bend either of you to her will.."

"But Kelly Burk?"

Sonya turned and looked along the beach. Rand followed her glance. Kelly Burk was shuffling through the loose sand toward them. He had been drinking from his metal flask; it was in his hand now.

"Call Kelly Burk," said Sonya to Rand.

Rand called to the pudgy-figured man. Kelly Burk looked up, but not at Rand. His bloodshot gaze sought Sonya's face.

Rand suddenly knew that Kelly Burk was already conditioned to be bent to Sonya's will. He was still profoundly impressed by what Sonya had accomplished with Pete Barker and LaBlanc. He came shuffling up to her.

Chapter 10

Kelly Burk came shuffling over the sand, an ungainly figure. His sparse sandy hair was mussed and knotted. His eyes were shifty, bloodshot. He halted a dozen paces from Rand and Sonya, slipping his big metal flask inside his shirt. He looked at Sonya, though it had been Rand who had called him.

"What did you want of me, ma'am?" he asked.

"How did you know I wanted you, Kelly?" Sonya asked, smiling faintly. "It was Rand who called."

Kelly Burk shifted his gaze to the sand at his feet. "I don't know how I knew," he muttered. "I guess it was just a—a hunch."

"Well, Kelly, I did want to talk to you," Sonya said. "I've been wondering why you keep drinking all day and all night long. Oh, I know it's none of my business. But it just seems so—so stupid your being in a stupor all of the time. It's much like Pete Barker's baseless fears."

"I—I reckon it's just habit, ma'am," Kelly Burk said.

"How many years have you been at it?"

Kelly Burk looked up at Sonya, was unable to meet her gaze, so switched his glance to Rand who was watching and listening, fascinated.

He said, "For maybe eight-nine years. I didn't always drink."

"You'd like to stop wouldn't you—I mean, this excessive way you have?"

"I don't know. I did stop already, but things sort of crowded up on me and I had to drink to forget."

"It sounds silly to me," said Sonya. "Kelly, didn't Pete's cowardice appear silly to you?"

"Yes'm," muttered Kelly Burk. "I often laughed at him."

"Well, possibly Pete is laughing at you this very instant."

Dull color came into Kelly Bnrk's face. He said nothing.

"These things that crowded up on you, as you say. What sort of memories were they? Painful, of course."

Kelly Burk did not speak. He looked as though he wanted to flee.

"It was a woman, wasn't it, Kelly?"

Kelly Burk nodded.

"You lost her—how?" Sonya quietly insisted.

For a long time the man did not answer. There was only the pounding on the surf. Rand looked from Kelly Burk to Sonya. She seemed oblivious of Rand, of everything but Kelly Burk. She looked at him almost pityingly.

"We quarreled," Kelly Burk said at long last. "We quarreled, and I went off in a temper. I never went back."

"It was easier to drown memories than to swallow your pride by going back and begging her forgiveness, is that it?"

The man nodded, a suspicious moisture in his eyes. He said nothing.

"It was a false pride, Kelly," Sonya said. "Just as false as Pete Barker's fears. Can you see that?"

"I can now—yes. But what difference does it make after all these years?"

"She may be waiting, Kelly," Sonya said, tenderly.

"Not all this time," he replied stubbornly. "She would have forgotten."

"She loved you, didn't she? If she did, nothing would make her forget."

Kelly Burk raised his bowed head, looked at Sonya distressed. "It's no use talking!" he said gruffly. "She wouldn't be waiting!"

Then abruptly he turned and shuffled off along the beach.

Rand looked at Sonya curiously. "Have you failed?" he asked.

"No," said Sonya, but uncertainly. She was looking after Kelly Burk.

The man had taken out his flask. He unscrewed the top, lifted the flask to his lips. Then abruptly he jerked it away, held the thing before him, staring at it. His shoulders hunched as his figure drooped. Beyond him, Rand could see Maya Jack Cannaghan and the others watching, too.

A struggle was raging within the man, habit against new-born hope. Rand looked at Sonya. That amazing person was smiling serenely, confidently. She seemed to know what Kelly Burk would do.

And Kelly Burk did it. He turned the flash bottom side up, poured its contents out onto the thirsty sand. Then abruptly he turned and walked stiffly to the jungle brush and disappeared into it.

Sonya laughed, softly, pleasantly. "You see, Rand," she said, "he too is but a child."

Rand nodded, looking at her wonderingly. "And you were afraid of Maya Jack Cannaghan!" he said.

Her laughter died. "I was," she said, tersely. "I tell you Maya Jack is no child. A woman can't trifle with him, nor play upon his emotions. I—Istill fear the man. He is fire, Rand, and yet chill ice. I don't understand him."

"I do," Rand said. "I understand him because I understand how he feels toward you. I too feel so about you. I too am tempted to try what he tried."

Sonya gasped, involuntary. "What do you mean?" she asked.

"Maya Jack loves you, Sonya. Loves you as only strange lonely men can love. There's nothing halfway or restricted about his loving you—or about my loving you, Sonya. Maya Jack would never have loved if he had not known you, of that I am sure. Nor would I have loved. Neither he nor I ever planned to fall in love. That is what makes it such a mad consuming thing. We're the sort that fight until we're pushed into the sea. That is why Maya Jack took you off Magalaya; it was the only chance left him."

She was looking at him with shining eyes. Her lips were slightly parted, and she breathed heavily. "You—you almost make him seem fine, strong, admirable, Rand."

"I don't mean to," Rand said. "His love is true, fine, but it is also a preverse thing. He should have known that he could not win your love by taking you to hide you somewhere in the islands. Women like you aren't won that way."

"He must have known that, Rand," she said softly. "I don't believe Maya Jack misunderstands anything."

"I don't say he misunderstood," Rand said. "I—I think he couldn't bear of the thought of not having you, the thought of someone else possessing you."

"Possessing me?" Sonya murmured. "That's rather a disturbing phrase."

Rand smiled faintly. "That's the way men like Maya Jack and me take it. What we have, whether a ship or a plantation or the woman we love, we possess. We like to think of it as ours wholly and completely."

"You, too, Rand?" she asked. "You, too, would think of—of your wife as your possession?"

"She would be my prize possession, Sonya," he said, earnestly.

"The men I knew at home," Sonya said, "those in my set, those married to my friends, weren't—weren't downright possessive."

"I tell you Maya Jack and I are not men of your social set," he insisted. "Perhaps——" He grinned ruefully. "Perhaps it is fortunate that you are not in a position to have either of us forced on you as a husband."

Sonya laughed amused, surprising him. "Perhaps," she said; she turned abruptly and moved off along the beach.

Rand walked to where Maya Jack Cannaghan was stitting, fashioning a fish trap out of bamboo and vine tendrils with Balu's knife. Maya Jack looked up at him expressionlessly.

"Maya," Rand said directly, "you must admit your game is up. Why not repair the schooner's radio communication set which you 'fixed' on leaving Maglaya?"

Maya Jack looked at him steadily. Then: "I never intended repairing the set. I dropped the parts I removed overboard."

"You never intended bargaining with Henri Duraud for Sonya's return in exchange for rights to Maglaya?"

"No," said Maya Jack Cannaghan tonelessly.

"You are a fool, Maya."

"Am I? Well, I notice you've become as great a one as I."

"Meaning?"

"Meaning that you've fallen as hard for the girl as I have."

"Yes. I am in love with Sonya," Rand said, flatly. "But that's not getting her off this island——" He broke off as shouts arose.

Rand turned and Maya Jack got hastily to his feet. Pete Barker was shouting excitedly and waving his arms. He pointed into the sky.

"A plane!" he called. "See it over there to the west?"

Rand saw the plane. It was so distant that it seemed no bigger than a mosquito. It was headed for the island, but not at any great speed. Sonya came running along the beach, her eyes bright with excitement.

"Oh, Rand, do you think it will be friends?" she asked, breathlessly.

"Possibly a constabulary plane," Rand said, glancing at Maya Jack.

Maya Jack's face was expressionless. He watched the oncoming plane as if, no matter whom it carried, its arrival meant nothing to him.

The plane winged unfalteringly toward the island. It was flying low, and they could hear the drone of its motor now. A half mile out from shore it nosed down, skimmed over the water, then landed gently on its pontoons. It headed for shore at a none-too fast clip.

Sonya gripped Rand's arm. "Why—why, it's Philip Burnell's ship," she exclaimed.

"Burnell!" Maya Jack snapped. "Are you sure?"

"Yes!" cried Sonya. Then she was running across the beach to where the plane was heading.

"LaBlanc! Pete!" Maya Jack shouted. "Come! Give me a hand!"

Maya Jack ran down to the water. LaBlanc, his red beard flaming in the sun, followed. Pete too pounded after him. Rand followed more slowly; confused thoughts filling his mind. Philip Burnell, he thought. Burnell was the man with whom Sonya had planned to leave Maglaya.

Maya Jack, LaBlanc and Pete Barker were towing the plane up onto the beach as Rand approached. Rand saw that two people occupied the ship. He recognized the pilot, a dark-haired, dark-eyed man, with the pale skin the tropic sun gives some men. Philip Burnell was a handsome man, undeniably.

He was called one of the luckiest men in the islands; he had struck oil on many of the lesser isles and was considered wealthy.

Burnell's companion was unknown to Rand. It was a woman, a young woman, a little older than Sonya perhaps, blonde and strikingly good looking. Burnell was helping her from the cockpit. She wore flying togs, carried her helmet and goggles in her hand. There was a parachute strapped about her slender person.

Philip Burnell and the woman faced Sonya with embarrassment upon their faces. Sonya herself looked ill at ease.

Rand heard her saying, as if with a great effort, "So you came to find me! How grand of you, Philip! And of you Helene!"

Burnell and the girl called Helene exchanged quick glances. Both looked relieved. Burnell said nothing. Helene smiled, crookedly.

"Yes," she said, quickly. "How fortunate we spotted this island. But what happened? Why are you here? Is that your ship on the rocks?"

"Yes. We struck that reef in a storm," Sonya said, as if carefully choosing her words. "But how did you happen to be on this course?"

Color, bright and guilty, tinged Helene's cheeks. She did not answer.

Then Maya Jack Canaghan came and planted himself before Philip Burnell.

"Burnell," he said, his voice edged. "Why did you land here?"

"Saw the ship, thought I'd land," Burnell said, in a way that made Rand think he lied.

"Rot!" exploded Maya Jack. "Burnell, is that plane in flying condition?"

Burnell met Maya Jack's blazing glance, then looked frowning at Helene. He said, "No," almost inaudibly.

"What's wrong with the ship?" Maya Jack demanded.

"Something wrong with the gas line. I had to make a landing to check over it."

"I see," said Maya Jack. Then: "Of course you didn't send any radio messages as to your whereabouts?"

"No. Of course not—yet."

"How long will it take you to check the gas line?"

"I don't know. An hour perhaps. Maybe a day. I don't know. Why?"

"Because," said Maya Jack Cannaghan grimly, "I want to know. When you get it repaired I'm flying the plane out of here!"

"You!" exclaimed Burnell, his face flushing angrily. He took a threatening step forward, then halted uncertainly as he saw Maya Jack's hand close over the revolver in his belt. He glared for a moment, then shrugged.

Rand turned to Sonya. He took her hand in his and led her away from the others. They walked far along the shore, then finally faced each other. Sonya's face was distraught. She seemed emotionally upset.

An inkling of what this was all about came to Rand. He wanted to hear the whole truth from Sonya. Grimly, deliberately, he said:

"Sonya, who is this woman with Philip Burnell?"

Sonya's eyes met his steadily. A wan smile curled her lips.

"Helene," she replied softly, "is my father's wife."

"And your father——" he began.

"And my father is whom you suspect—Henri Duraud."

That was only part of what he wanted explained, but at the moment so much sufficed. He slipped his good arm about Sonya's shoulders and crushed her to him. She was pliant in his embrace.

"Darling——" he whispered. "Darling, so you—you are mine!"

He tried to find her lips with his own, but they eluded him. She put her hands against his chest and pushed him from her.

"No!" Sonya said flatly. "No, I'm not."

What 60 Girls Saw on Tour Of Scotland And England

- By -

ALBERTA SHANKS BRAITHWAITE

On July the second I sailed with a party of sixty Canadian school girls for a visit to England and Scotland. We left Montreal aboard the SS. "Duchess of Richmond". The sail down the St. Lawrence was beautiful—something long to remember. We reached Quebec City that evening. When we got into the Gulf it was much cooler. Off the shores of Labrador we saw icebergs but they were a long distance away. Shortly after we ran into a fog and were held up for several hours. We thoroughly enjoyed our trip, but were glad to sight the beautiful hills of Scotland in the distance.

At Greenoch we were taken off in a tender, went ashore, got our baggage and then proceeded to Glasgow by a boat train. Buses were waiting for us there and we left that afternoon for Edinburgh. On our way we went through the Trossachs. I cannot begin to describe the gorgeous scenery—the beautiful heather-covered hills and the chains of lakes.

While in Edinburgh we stayed at the Edinburgh University. Our short time there was most interesting. We visited Edinburgh Castle and I think the Scottish War Memorial on the Castle grounds was the most beautiful building I saw on my trip.

The most wonderful event of our stay in Edinburgh was seeing the King and Queen and the two Princesses while they were visiting Edinburgh. On Sunday morning we saw them driving to St. Giles' Church in their carriage and again returning. In the evening we had special seats to see the departure of their Majesties from Edinburgh.

Other places we visited were Inchcolm Abbey on Inchcolm Island, Roslyn Chapel and Castle and the Zoological Gardens. We left Edinburgh and Scotland on the thirteenth.

Our first stopping place in England was Carlisle. On our way we visited Dryborough Abbey, Melrose Abbey, Darwick Castle and Sir Walter Scott's old home in Abbotsford. While in Carlisle we saw the Cathedral and went to an old castle. We had lots of fun roaming through these castles, down in the dungeons and up in the beautifully furnished rooms. One afternoon we visited the Roman Wall. It is just as I pictured it—a huge stone wall, running over the hills as far as the eye can see. The wall is very high and wide enough for about six people to walk abreast. We walked along on top of it for a mile or so and got a wonderful view of the surrounding country.

On our way to York we visited Grasmere Church and Dove Cottage, Woodsworth's home, which was very interesting. Some of the highlights of our stay in York were our visits to the Yorkminster Fountains Abbey, Merchant Adventures Hall, Guild Hall and Mansion House where we were welcomed by the Mayor.

Leaving Stratford on the twentieth, on our way to Exeter we stopped at Bath. As its name suggests, this place is famous for its old Roman baths. We saw many old ruins and ancient baths that were used by the early Romans. We went into one chamber where the water from the hot springs was 120° F.; the heat was stifling.

On our first evening in Exeter we attended an illustrated lecture on the British Isles. While in Exeter we visited the Guild Hall, Exeter Cathedral and a beautiful estate owned by Sir Francis Acland. We all thought the English homes very beautiful with their gorgeous flower gardens and wonderfully trimmed hedges.

We went to London by way of Stonehenge. We all agreed that London was simply grand and enjoyed ourselves immensely. While there we stayed at the University of London. We visited Madame Tussaud's and saw her famous waxworks, saw the changing of the guard at Buckingham palace, were shown through the Parliament Buildings, visited the Guildhall, Mansion House, Royal Exchange, Zoo, London Musuem, Tate Gallery, Lambeth Palace, General Post Office, Hampton Court and the Tower of London. We were shown through St. George's Chapel and Windsor Castle from which we had a wonderful view of the Thames. We attended several fine plays while there and had a great deal of fun riding in high buses and tubes. Perhaps the event that will live longest in our memory in connection with our London visit was the witnessing of the Tidworth Tattoo. It was so magnificent that it would take pages to describe. Towards the end of our visit a few of us had a great thrill. We learnt that the Queen-Mother was on a shopping tour so we waited at the gates of Marlborough House until she returned. When she passed she smiled and waved to us and I shall never forget her graciousness. I cannot leave London without mentionning one thing which particularly interested me, namely, the King's horses. We spent an afternoon in going through His Majesty's stables.

On our way to Eastbourne, our last stop, we passed through Canterbury and visited Canterbury Cathedral. I think this was the most beautiful Cathedral we saw. Our ten days at Eastbourne were wonderful. Eastbourne is by the sea so we had swimming and then riding on the moors to "Beachy Head." We witnessed the Professional Tennis Matches of Great Britain, went to Compton Place, owned by the Duke of Devonshire, Herstmonceux Castle, Battle Abbey and Pevensey Castle. We attended four very interesting lectures. I enjoyed the one that Miss Irene Ward, M.P., gave on "Democracy."

We sailed from Southampton on the seventeenth of August aboard the S.S. "Duchess of Richmond." Our return trip was just as enjoyable as going over. However, it was quite rough, but I did not have the experience of being sea-sick. We were very close to several ice-bergs and saw a few whales. The weather was beautifully warm coming up the St. Lawrence. We were just as pleased to arrive at Montreal as we were to leave it. We girls from Montreal and vicinity were very happy in having such a nice chaperon as Miss Norah Shanks.

won five first prizes.

The junior champion bull was Southview Canary Fancy whilst the female champion was Brackenglade Patricia Kerk, these two animals are owned by Mr. W. L. Carr. The junior female champion was owned by Mr. J. J. Murphy.

Though the grade showing of Holsteins was rather light, J. J. Murphy scooped the honors through winning all the first prizes.

Shorthorn cattle were again exhibited by our two staunch supporters of the breed, James Ritchie & Son of Dewittville and Mr. Reginald Graham of Huntingdon.

The Jersey exhibit was small in numbers. Mr. D. M. Rowat, N.P., being the principal exhibitor.

Sheep and swine occupied all the available space on the grounds. More interest was exemplified over this section of the show than has been evidenced for years. The great number of swine with large litters was particularly noticeable. In regards to the showing of sheep it was noted that the exhibitors were not very particular about having the animals trimmed up so that they might look their very best. Stiffer competition is evidently being invited by the exhibitors.

The poultry show was at low ebb.

Apples were exhibited by a few growers in the east end of the county. The hail storms this summer affected several of the large orchards therefore the showing was not quite as large as might otherwise have been expected. The apples were very excellent, in the more popular varieties around 7 entries in each class were made. The principal apple exhibitors were Messrs. C. C. Waddell, C. E. Petch, John Waddell and N. M. Brooks.

Vegetable entries were numerous as the following figures indicate. Beans 12 entries, beets, 13, carrots 14, onions 13, squash 12, tomatoes 16, green cucumbers 13, ripe cucumbers 13, baskets of tomatoes 12, pie pumkins 13, etc.

Looking across from the vegetable counter one saw a magnificent lot of home made cooking. The home made bread show was remarkable. 19 entries being exhibited for the society prize and was won by a young school girl, Miss Jean Perkins. Home Made Biscuit honors went to Mrs. R. A. Arthur. Mrs. J. D. Lang, who has frequently claimed the honors for bread baking took 1st on both Graham bread and biscuits.

The McDonald & Robb special for best loaf of bread made with "Our Best Flour" was won by Mrs. George Elder, whilst Miss Jean Perkins took 2nd place, and Mrs. N. J. Fennell the close third.

In the fancy work department, it was the great array of tea cosies that attracted so much attention amongst the ladies. The Salada Tea company offered a prize of 5 lbs of the Salada Orange Pekoe Tea for best tea cosie and one pound for each exhibitor. As a result of the contest 16 tea cosies were on exhibition and Miss Pearl McClatchie won the coveted prize.

The cut flowers made a magnificent showing. The entries would run anywhere from 6 to 14 to a class. In regards to the floral exhibit Judge R. J. M. Reid states that Huntingdon Fair is undoubtedly the largest and finest flower show in Quebec province outside of Montreal. It is a pity that we do not make a lot more of this feature of the show when we are already holding such an enviable position. Whilst the ground floor of the red building is devoted entirely to potted plants the cut flower show might be further extended so as to take in one half of the ground floor of the white building.

During the fair the Ladies of Elgin Presbyterian Church served excellent meals at the dining hall.

PENSIONED OFF A FIT MAN

Rigours of Police Life Did Not Harm Him

At 50 years of age he was presumed to be beyond the arduous demands of police duties. But was he? Read what he says now—five years after he was pensioned:—

"I am a man of 55 years. It is now five years since I was pensioned off from the ——— Police. I went through thick and thin, day and night in all weathers, while I was on the Force, and am today as fit as any man still serving on the Force. People often ask me 'How do you keep so young?' and my answer is 'Kruschen Salts.' I have used Kruschen now for the last 13 years, and I will certainly use these Salts for the rest of my days."—W. J.

The numerous salts in Kruschen provide just that gentle daily aid your internal organs require to enable them to perform their work properly. These vital salts keep your liver and kidneys in top-notch efficiency, so that they help to free your system of poisonous waste matter. The result is a feeling of youthful health and vigour—"that Kruschen feeling!"

FEMININE FANCIES

What's in the Wind

by PAULA DICKS

A pleasant contact at Huntingdon Fair, meeting Mrs. Haven, who lives on a farm near Ogdensburg, N.Y. It was her first visit to Huntingdon, although her daughter, Dr. Helen Dollar, is a graduate of McGill University, Medicine '37, and is now an interne in a Philadelphia hospital. Mrs. Haven has had experience in marketing home cooking and told me about her stall at the Ogdensburg Saturday Market. Some of the delicacies she prepared and sold sounded very delicious. I was so interested in the account of her method of earning pin-money by capitalizing her gift for cooking, that I hereby break an agreement I made with myself never to discuss in this column the practical problems of women, such as cooking, beauty hints, etc., preferring to leave them to experts.

Mrs. Haven has promised to send me some of her most successful recipes and I wrote down on the spot, at her dictation, the following:

Molasses Cookies

2 cups white sugar; 2 cups shortening; 2 eggs; 2 cups molasses (Braer Rabbit); 2 tablespoons vinegar; 2 tablespoons baking soda; ½ teaspoon cinnamon and ginger; ¼ teaspoon cloves; pinch salt. Seven cups flour. Mix and drop with a teaspoon on greased pans. Little white sugar on top of each if desired. Makes 7 dozen.

Help! Help!

At the first of August Willow Farm took on a new staff of three men. Then things began to happen. The first barn threshed was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. While the Boss was absent on a trip, No. 1 developed boils and had to depart. At the first silo filling No. II fell through the rack when the horses bolted, badly bruising a finger. A heifer calf objected to getting a bath in preparation for the Fair and bunted No. III against the barn, running her horn through his hand. No. II rushed him in a car to the doctor who put in four stitches.

Reggie (No. II) is a sport and kept right on after bathing his injured finger and using linament. But here he was alone with 25 cows to milk! No. III also showed a loyal spirit by refusing a chance for a holiday. He stayed around, using his car for messages and sitting up with the cattle at night during the Fair, letting the regular herdsman go home for milking. The good neighbors also did their part by helping with chores that night.

Misfortunes, we are told, are never single or double, but come in threes. Sure enough on Saturday things took a turn for the better. Reggie came in from the mail box, beaming, and holding up his first letters from home. One with an Air Mail Stamp, 25 cents postage—from his best girl. It was postmarked High-Wycombe, Bucks, Sept. 7th, 1937, and marked received in Montreal Sept. 9th, delivered by rural mail in Huntingdon on Sept. 11th. It appeared to have been opened by the Censor.

"I've good news, too", he said, "the man I used to work for before comin' over 'ere died and left me a nice legacy in his will. That's better than a kick, what-o!" Well he must have deserved his good luck, for he has carried on without a grouch during all the hard work, heat and confusion of a new job and disorganized staff. The morning after accident to No. III, he was up at 3.30 getting in the cows from the meadow in the pitch dark. During the day he directed a stray man, sent to the job by No. 1 who knew help was needed, in cutting around a corn field. The fellow was a typical road-worker, quit before the cows were all milked, refused to stay for morning chores and of course, demanded fifty per cent above the going wages.

Reggie is Canadian born but has spent six years in England where his family now live. He was chauffeur for over four years to a retired Harley Street physician. They traveled a great deal on the Continent and last year toured Australia in a Lincoln car. Reggie says he prefers Canada to any country he has yet seen and when the Doctor died he booked passage. On arrival in Montreal the Immigration authorities were determined that he should waste no time in reaching his native village in Ontario. They put him in a taxi for Windsor Station and told him when the next train left. But he had other ideas and went to the Y.M.C.A. instead. He was directed to the C.P.R. Employment Bureau and the next day they sent him to this district in answer to a call for farm help.

They have things well organized to prevent newcomers taking work in Quebec, even when farmers are in desperate need for help.

Speaking of doctors, at a recent Institute meeting when the discussion was directed to welfare work an ex-President told the following story.

Some years ago a returned soldier who was placed on a farm applied for assistance in view of an expected addition to the family. The Department sent $25.00 to the Women's Institute with instructions that it be used to the best advantage in relieving the situation. The Child Welfare Convenor investigated and found that almost everything would be needed, clothing, nursing care, etc. Then she interviewed the Doctor as to his charge. He claimed that $25.00 was his lowest fee, in the circumstances.

"But", asked the C.W.C., "what do I get for our expenses?"

"My dear woman," he replied, "you will receive your reward in heaven."

"Ah, I see," she retorted, "you have no hope of getting there."

Brush Hair For Beauty

Whatever the color, texture and condition of your own hair, it's bound to be better for brushing. It may be any of the shades between honey blonde and blue black, by Nature or by art. It may be dry (as most heads of hair are at the end of a Summer of salt sea bathing and bright sunlight), or so oily that it looks positively "greased" a few days after a shampoo. Perhaps it's soft and fine, the type hairdressers call "baby hair," or coarse and wiry. That doesn't matter. There isn't a single exception to our first rule for hair beauty—daily brushing.

The long pull you get with a good, stiff-bristled brush stimulates the roots and normalizes the flow of natural nourishing oil, so your hair won't get too much or too little. It cleanses your scalp and polishes off each hair so it contributes its bit to the effect of shining beauty.

You don't have to be afraid a brush will ruin your "set," now that hair styles favor the soft, natural-looking coiffures. The days when we touched our waves gingerly with a comb and wore nets over them at night are gone forever, we fervently hope. Even the most fashionable hairdressers are setting hair so it can be brushed, then combed and patted back into place.

Sliced Cucumber Pickles

Soak 2 quarts of salted pickles in cold water until quite fresh; it may take 2 days; be sure and change the water 2 or 3 times a day; when fresh, wipe dry and pack closely in jars. Take 1 quart vinegar, 1½ cups brown sugar, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, and 1 teaspoon cloves tied in a bag; bring to a boil, and turn it on to the pickles while hot.

Plum Butter

One pound cooked plum pulp, 1 to 1½ cups sugar. Wash plums. Add sufficient water merely to prevent burning and cook until soft. Put through a sieve or colander to remove pits. Measure, add sugar and cook until thick.

Helpful Hints

Q. How can I pack flowers so that they will keep fresh when sending them away?

A. The best way is to pack flowers in a corrugated pasteboard box. Sprinkle the flowers with small pieces of ice, then cover with wax paper.

Q. How can I take away the strong taste of turnips when boiling them?

A. This can be done by adding a teaspoon of sugar to the water when boiling the turnips.

Q. How can I save snap fasteners from an old garment so that they will be ready to use again?

A. When removing snaps from clothing, fasten them together on a piece of heavy paper, and they will be conveniently ready when wanted again.

Facts of Interest to Movie Fans

You have seen Marlene Dietrich on the screen and know of the world of glamor she now lives in but how much do you know of her before all this "world acclaim" became hers. Miss Dietrich was born in historic Weimar, city of Goethe, where her father, Edouard von Losch was a Prussian first lieutenant in the patrician Regiment of Grenadiers.

One day news came that her father had been killed on the Russian front. Then her mother took her to Berlin where she was placed in a boarding school. After the revolution was over Miss Dietrich enrolled as a violin student at the Hochscule fuer Musik, where she was to be a pupil of the famous Professor Flesch.

Her nascent career as a violinist, however, was brought to a sudden end when she suffered an injury to the left wrist which made fingering difficult. Disappointed in this, she decided upon the stage. Her first appearance was a bit in "The Taming of the Shrew" under Reinhardt. Progress was slow, her funds ran out, and it was during this period that she worked as an extra in the Berlin studio of the U.F.A. producing company. At this time she met and married an assistant director, Rudolph Sieber,

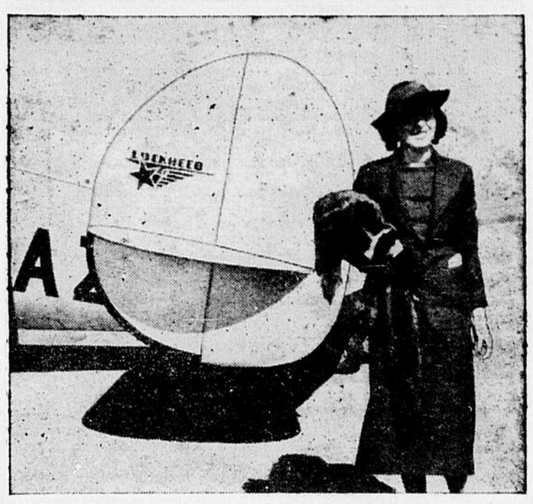

Later followed her appearance in a series of successful motion pictures which made her known not only in Germany but to the United States as well. Finally she accepted an offer from Hollywood and has become the Marlene Dietrich that American fans so admire. Her latest starring vehicle is "Angel."

Did You Know That:—

Zasu Pitts is really so attractive that make-up men have their hands full in keeping her plain for her movie roles,

Francis Lederer brings his own lunch on the set when he's working—a quart of milk and four bran muffins.

Colleen Moore at Vancouver

Declaring she had no regrets in leaving the films, Colleen Moore was enthusiastically greeted by a host of friends upon her arrival recently in Vancouver by Trans-Canada Air Lines. She told reporters who met her at the plane that she was supremely happy with the exhibitions of her famed doll's house, the proceeds of which go to aid crippled children.

Dahlia's Whatnots

Plums, plums, plums, greengages, damsons, Lombard and peach plums, preserved plums, plum jelly, plum jam—the country is full of them and the shelves at the fairs bear a fine display. The damsons for which people with Scotch and English tastes hanker are dropping to the ground disregarded another missing link in the chain of distribution. Would a co-operative union get the plums to the slums?

There was a time when our local storekeepers would take in barter almost any surplus product the farmer had, but that day is largely a thing of the past. The seasoned farmer tells me he can remember when eleven double wagons loaded with plums left Covey Hill for Mooer's Forks, N. Y., where the fruit was shipped to Boston. They loaded the wagons in the afternoon and by evening the procession was ready to start. Some time through the night, they stopped at Mr. Nichols' store to buy lunch, but could procure nothing but boiled eggs. That was before the grading and candling of eggs had been thought of, but they had good appetites in those days.

Puff-balls.—

You perhaps are aware that these are a kind of mushroom and very palatable, peeled, sliced, and fried in butter. Of course, they need to be fresh. You will find them late in August or early this month after a warm rain. I found them in the same place as last year, but a good deal later. Mother Nature, like the One whose handmaid she is, keeps her promise in due season but seems to abhor monotony as much as a vacuum.

School Days.—

What an important event has taken place in the lives of all the wee boys and girls who have started going to school.

We agree with Mr. Ford when he says that teachers should be experienced in the things of life, but where and when is the young girl, fresh from training class, going to get any more experience? We are reminded of the ads. which all call for experience, but where is inexperience to make a start. Perhaps, however, the youthful teacher's sympathy with the spirits and feelings of an age which she has not long left behind may stand her in good stead while she gains practical experience.

It has been remarked that the training of a child should begin with his grandparents. In the case of the teacher, we need to go back to those who trained her. The late Dr. S. P. Robins was a striking example of the kind of personality needed to mold the characters of those who themselves aim to be preceptors of youth. No one, however, frivolous could attend his lectures without being made to realize the serious nature of a teacher's work. In originality and practical efficiency he takes rank in my mind with the late founder of the Gleaner.

Training and experience are both important but the parent's co-operation will help both teacher and pupil, even though there be no formal parent-teacher association. Remember that there are few faults in teaching so likely to retard your child's progress in school as will be a critical attitude on your part, for this will make him unresponsive to the teacher's demands on his attention and obedience.

Just think how difficult it sometimes is for your father and mother combined to manage three or four children, and then try to grasp the magnitude of the task facing our young girl teacher, herself probably still in her 'teens, and with maybe over a score of children from many different environments, and all their parents watchfully waiting to detect a flaw and with as many diverse notions as to what should be taught and how. Some one says only a born teacher is equal to the work. But a mother is either a teacher or a failure. Therefore a love for children is the main qualification for success in the profession.

Housework Not Degrading.—

They say that only the men read the editorials, but you ladies should make a point of reading the one with this title in last week's paper.

Cubical Contents of a Peck

It takes eight quarts to make a peck and four pecks one bushel, but how many cubic inches are in a peck? Ordinarly speaking the cubical content of a peck is not often required but as the pickle season is on the measure for a peck is not always procurable about the average home. For the convenience of such housewives we may say it takes 554.548 cubic inches to make one peck.

JUNIOR RED CROSS RECEIVE VEGETABLES GROWN BY CHILDREN

Following the Hinchinbrook Horticultural Society School Fair held at Herdman, the vegetables grown and exhibited by the boys and girls were shipped to the Junior Red Cross in Montreal. This contribution was gratefully acknowledged by Mrs. R. B. Shaw. In her letter of thanks, mention was made that the vegetables were being used in the Red Cross Nursing Home for men.

Hemmingford

Miss Alice Fisher of Lancaster, Mass., accompanied by Mrs. Sidney Baldwin and son Murray, of Ayer's Cliff, Que., and their mother, Mrs. Alfred E. Fisher, called on friends here Sunday, on their return from a motor trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls, and New York State.

Ethics of Etiquette

It is the little things! An introduction graciously acknowledged. The right word at the right time. Courtesy on the crowded street car. The hundreds of little things we are called upon to do and say daily in association with our fellows. Only little things—but they make life finer, they win us friendships, they bring us pleasure and happiness.

Manners, however, are of secondary importance, and it is your manner that counts most. Manner is the spirit; manners are an expression of the spirit.

But how can your manner be right, if you are not sure of your manners? How can you be poised, calm, at ease, if you do not know what to do, what to say? How can you radiate cheer and good fellowship when you are tortured by doubt, embarrassed by mistakes? Whatever your personality may be, it can be improved and made more attractive by the added touch of complete self-possession.

Learn to conform to the established customs. Find out what is correct, and make it a practice to do that correct thing always, in private as in public; so it becomes natural and instinctive for you to do it—as simple as saying "good morning." That will give you poise and confidence. It will make you sure of yourself. You will be able to forget about the details of conduct and devote yourself to your manner—to the enfoldment and enrichment of your personality.

The Beauty of Simplicity

All the great things of life are inexpensive. We can pay for pleasures and luxuries, but we cannot buy love. We can buy palatial homes and extravagant furnishings, but we cannot give gold for peace or for happiness.

A woman whose life had been embittered by much hardship and disappointment, was strolling, one day, through a mountain farmyard. She did not know where she was going, and she did not care. She just wanted to forget, if but for a moment, the bitterness of her life.

She stopped near a well and gazed angrily around her, wondering how there could be so much peace and quiet in a world that held nothing but turmoil and heartache for her. Suddenly she glanced toward the ground. A tiny girl was watching her intently—a little girl who had lived all her seven years in the untutored expanse of the mountains. The woman was annoyed, and she did not hesitate to show it.

"What are you looking at—what do you want?" she demanded irritably.

Instead of returning the frown, the child smiled and stepped a little closer. "I was just thinking how pretty your face would be if it smiled instead of frowned," she answered.

The woman's face relaxed. The bitter look in the eyes vanished and was replaced by a bright, new light. The scowl became a grateful smile, and with an impulsive sob of pure joy, she knelt down and drew to her the little girl who had been the first in a long time to speak gently to her, the first in a long time to return her frowns with sincere smiles of friendliness. And when she finally left the child and returned to the exacting conventionalities of the town, she was a nobler, better, and finer woman.

It was beautiful, the simplicity of that child. It triumphed over the bitterness of a woman who had known years of education and worldliness. It brought happiness into a heart that had tasted of all life's pleasures—and found them empty.

You will be surprised at the dividends your good manners will pay. You yourself will be infinitely happier. You will make friends wherever you go. You will be conscious of a new sense of power and assurance in your contact with people.

BABIES NEED A SPECIAL LAXATIVE, TOO

Isn't it logical that if a baby's system is too delicate for adult foods it is also too delicate for "adult" laxatives?

Modern mothers agree with this thinking. So they give their children CASTORIA—the laxative made especially for babies and growing children. Castoria is safe, gentle, and thorough. It won't upset tiny stomachs because it acts chiefly in the lower bowel.

Montrealer Named With Gilbert Arnold to Confer on Breed Types

PERCHERON SHOW

To take a show horse figuratively apart to see what makes it win will be one of the features of the first exclusive National Percheron Horse Show (and National Dairy Show) to be held at Columbus, Ohio, October 9th to 16th. Gilbert Arnold, extensive breeder and exhibitor of Grenville, Quebec, and Kenneth T. Dawes, Vice-President of The National Breweries Limited, 990 Notre Dame Street, West, Montreal, have been selected as members of the National Breed Type Conference Committee which is working to establish a school of instruction to study the ideal conformation of a Percheron draft horse.

True Percheron type will be demonstrated with the actual models and discussed by several internationally draft horse judges. Canada is sending as representatives James Ramsey, of Lauder, Manitoba, and A. M. Macpherson, of Brandon, Manitoba, President and Secretary-Treasurer, respectively, of the Canadian Percheron Breeders' Association, to take part in this conference school.

Approximately 400 head of Percherons will be exhibited at this show which is expected to be the greatest buying event for Percherons ever held in the United States. Premiums totalling $5,500 will be offered, the largest amount ever given at any Percheron show in this country. In addition to the many special features, the National Horse Pulling Contest, with its awards of $1,700, will be staged in the arena from October 11th to 16th.

Mr. Dawes, who has unlimited faith in the qualities of the Percheron, which have and will perpetuate his popularity, avers: "Their outstanding advantages are their combination of strength with activity and great endurance; and their remarkable adaptability to all climates and weather conditions that makes their universal use possible and opens up an export industry. The Percheron naturally holds his head high and possesses an unusual amount of intelligence. He has a fine muscular system in proportion to his weight. He is thick-bodied, wide-chested and comparatively short-legged. Their ability to surmount nerve wreck and hardships was never more dramatically shown than in the World War when their magnificent performances were directly responsible for the establishment of that breed in Great Britain."

Huntingdon County Council

A regular meeting was held on Wednesday, the 8th day of Sept. 1937. Members all present, Mr. Wilfrid Lacasse, Warden, presiding.

Mr. S. Gosselin came before the board representing Mrs. Jos. Girouard in connection with the filling of the St. Louis discharge.

The resignation of James E. Barrett, as special officer over the Brethour Creek and Branches was accepted and Mr. Joseph Chartrand was appointed in his place and stead.

Mr. Thos. Irvin was instructed that the County Council have nothing to da with the opening and closing of the controlling dams on the Laguerre River Drainage Ditch.

Mr. G. Poupart, N.P. was appointed Special Superintendent over a watercourse which originates in the Township of Hemmingford and terminates in the County of Chateauguay, in the Cranberry Brook. He was also appointed Special Superintendent on those two ditches which run on each side of the 4th range in the said Township of Hemmingford and terminates in the county of Chateauguay.

The Agricultural Society Division A. and B. were granted $600.00 each, and the said amounts to be paid when the said amounts to be paid when the money is available.

Letters of O. F. Cummins, Ildege St. Onge, David Clerk, (3) A. Paradis, Laurendeau & Cossette were read and filed.

The Secretary was authorized to write the Quebec Municipal Commission for their approval on an amount of $29,026.28 for a term of six months.

Anselme Leger's will be paid for the filling of St. Louis discharge when the Collection Roll on the Laguerre River is made and the money collected.

The Secretary was asked to write the Department of Public Works at Ottawa and the Department of Agriculture at Quebec informing them that the contractor, Mr. O. F. Cummins made a statement that he would not be in a position to terminate his contract by the 31st of December. A similar statement was also made by Mr. P. Marion, Engineer, therefore the County Council feels itself relieved of all responsibility on this Scheme after the 31st of December next.

Councillors Gardiner, Latulipe and the Secretary were appointed a committee to investigate the complaints of Raoul Brisson, Arthur Brisson and J. H. Legault on the Laguerre River.

A rate of one mill on the dollar was laid on all taxable property within the limits of the County of Huntingdon.

The Secretary was authorized to write the Quebec Municipal Commission asking their approval for a loan of $3,000.

Cheese Production Greatly Increased in Quebec Province

The production of butter in the Province of Quebec has decreased 2.9% up to August 1937 over the corresponding period of 1936. This loss is more than made up by the increase in cheese production which increased 30.5%. The butter production was 48,399,804 lbs and the cheese 20,785,611 lbs.

The chesse market has been more profitable to the dairyman in 1937 than was butter manufacturing and for that reason many factories equipped to manufacture either product switched to the making of cheese.

Robert Rolfe, proprietor of the Maybank Creamery, has had the cheese he manufactured graded A No. 1 and has been paid the highest price. Until this year Ontario cheese fetched a higher price than that made in Quebec, but so far Mr. Rolfe has been favoured by obtaining the Ontario price.

Huntingdon Fair Will Declare Net Profit For Year

The financial standing of Huntingdon Fair stands to be further improved this year, says Secretary John Smaill. The loan was considerably reduced a year ago, and this year we hope to reduce it to about the same extent, he said. The aggregate prize money paid out will be in the neighbourhood of $1600 plus the merchandise that is given by many companies as special prizes.

The gate receipts for 1937 totaled $566.65 which is $103 less than in 1936. The net dance receipts totaled $91.90 which is $20 more than in 1936. The gross receipts of the tents amounted to $380.01 which is $50. better than 1936.

Produce of Province to be Featured

Quebec Merchandise to Be Specially Featured From Sept. 15 to 22

Quebec products go on parade during the week September 15 to 22, which has been designated by the Canadian Chain Store Association as Produced-in-Quebec Week. The purpose of the week is to show Quebec citizens the thousands of articles produced by the fellow-citizens on farms and in factories throughout the Province.

Lists of chain store purchases in the Province, amounting to $30,000,000 annually, show an almost unbelievable variety of goods which are now manufactured in the Province of Quebec. One small chain alone purchases its ware from nearly 150 different manufacturers, including such diverse items as bathroom fittings, hair curlers, soft drinks, auto robes, safety pins, inks and cosmetics. An alphabetical list of some fifty Quebec food products served in a chain restaurants begins with asparagus and ends with weiners. One Quebec shoe factory sells its entire output to a chain of shoe stores. The grocery chains sell the products of thousands of Quebec farms and are large customers of Quebec canners and packers, who in turn buy their raw material from the farmers of the Province.

Produced-in-Quebec Week will be a Province-wide exhibition of the skill and industry of the Quebec worker. In every neighborhood where there is a chain store there will be special displays of goods of Quebec growth and manufacture. Customers will be urged to keep their fellow-citizens employed by buying goods produced in Quebec.

Every purchase of a Quebec product, whether it be a package of cigarettes or a suit of clothes, means employment for Quebec workers. It is the hope of the promoters of Produced-in-Quebec Week that when the wide variety of goods produced in the Province is known, Quebec purchasers will demand the products of their fellow-citizens and so increase employment and prosperity for all.

Robson

Knox W.M.S. were entertained at the home of Mrs. Robt. Jackson, 49 Lynn St., Plattsburg, on Thursday afternoon. There were thirty-three in attendance. The ladies quilted and did sewing. A delicious supper was served by the committee in charge. The Society are very grateful to Mrs. Jackson for entertaining them and also the drivers who conveyed them in their cars. Rev. Rose, Messrs. Whiteside Kearns, Robert Blair and Hollis Grey.

The past week Mr. Geo. Simpson and Mr. Jos. Barrière each was a loser of a fine horse.

Several in our neighbourhood have been making improvements on their property lately. Among the number we notice, Mr. W. H. Stewart, who has been painting and repairing. Mr. Geo. Simpson, the addition of a verandah and painting, also Mrs. Fournier and Sons, who have painted their residence and buildings.

Mrs. Stanley Taylor of Montreal, spent the week-end with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Gordon.

Mr. Harold Orr and mother, Mrs. Eliza Orr, of Claremont, N.H., are visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gordon.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard McAllister are rejoicing over the birth of a baby daughter.

Miss Eileen Perras, of Plattsburg, spent a few days the past week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Sample.

Ste. Agnes

Mrs. C. Masters and children of Howick spent the week-end at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al. Leblanc and family.

Mrs. J. Myre of Huntingdon is spending some time with relatives here.

A reception was held in Dundee Community Hall on Thursday evening to greet the newly-married couple, Mr. and Mrs. O. Deschambault, who had just returned from a trip to Ottawa.

Politician: "I never question the fact that I owe a lot to my country."

Campaign Manager: "Sh-h! They may think you haven't paid your income tax."

"Have you heard of the timber merchant who had the 'phone installed for the first time?"

"No. What happened?"

"Well, he kept putting trunk calls through to his branches!"

Letters To The Editor

The Editor,
Huntingdon Gleaner,

Dear Sir:

I read with interest of the four million dollar surplus which the Quebec Government is able to report this year. I agree with you that the Hon. Martin B. Fisher is worthy of congratulation, and I feel great pride now that I was able to persuade my men folk to vote for this gentleman a year ago. I did my electioneering at my own table, and the job was not an easy one, believe me.

As the Government has been able to pay the much needed Old Age Pension, and still have such a fine surplus, I would like to suggest that they grant the Mother's Allowance for widows with young children, and give women the right to vote, and they may then have even greater financial prosperity and also the gratitude and support of the women of this province to keep them in power for years.

I would also be very much interested to know how many women would sign a petition in Huntingdon County, asking for the franchise. I would.

Yours truly,

A WOMAN.

PANELLED WALLS WILL ADD NEW LIFE TO OLD ROOMS

The housewife who wants her living room to radiate hospitality while it maintains an air of dignity may well choose panelled walls as a background for the furnishings. A room that has become tiresome will take on new life with the added distinction of panelled walls.

One housewife decided on this means of bringing the interior of her house up to modern fashion. She did not feel that the expense of making structural changes to the house was justified, so concentrated her efforts on the rooms in which the family spent most of its time.

The wall panels used were in an interesting design. The wood was not of a uniform size and the irregularity kept the room from too formal an atmosphere. Over the mantel small squares of the panelling formed a design, obviating the necessity of any wall decoration.

Chinese tiles were used in the fireplace, striking a note of colour against the sombre background of the wood. The floor was refinished and leaded windows replaced the regulations one which had formerly graced the room.

When the transformation of the room had been completed the owner had gay chintz covers made for the furniture and matching drapes hung. No curtains were used at the leaded windows. The entire character of the room was changed and the family had an individual room which stood out from others of the neighbourhood.

Funds for modernization and redecoration of the home are now available under the generous terms of the Home Improvement Plan.

Students Receive Prizes . .

R. N. Walsh, Commissioner, speaking on behalf of the school board, congratulated last year's students and teachers on the splendid record they had made. Such records he felt were only obtained through close co-operation of students, teachers and parents and he hoped the harmony that had existed among these three in the past would continue in the future.

The high standing of the school throughout the years he said, had largely been due to the Academy principals, who had all been men with a larger and broader view in teaching.

"Education in this province needs more men of that standard and not so many who are guided by percentages in examinations," he said.

"We need an agricultural course in rural schools the speaker continued. They have that in Ontario. We also need a Household Science course. Training in those subjects would be of much more value to a student who is going to spend his life on the farm than a lot of Greek.

The speaker stated that he felt the time was not far off when some of the much needed reforms in the Protestant system of education in the province would be affected.

During the evening several songs and hymns—"O God of Bethel", "O Canada", "Lord while for all mankind we pray" and "God Save the King," were sung. The singing was led by Principal Macmillan, with accompaniment by Miss Elsie Sellar.

Royal Canadian Dragoons March

Ninth Day—Carp to Arnprior, Ont. 22 Miles.

"Today's march, starting at seven o'clock, found us travelling through rather uninteresting country, without much shade and very flat. We paused to water the horses at a pretty town—Galetta—which is on the banks of the Mississippi river (a namesake only, of the great river in the United States), and splendid grassy shoulders four or five feet wide. These roads, for traffic trained horses are perfect for marching, with no dust, easy grades and soft footing without the risk of small stones in the horses' feet. Hoving on both sides of the road in single file, the traffic was free to pass in either direction at high speed without much danger of mishap.

We made use of the party line telephone as a means of recalling the car carrying the farriers, which had moved up to make some minor repairs to some horse's shoe, and was needed at the rear of the column some two miles back for the same reason—one horse having lost a shoe. By getting one of the subscribers to put our request on her phone, we were able to have the message relayed ahead in a few minutes, and back came the car to carry out the repair.

Reaching Arnprior in a blazing sun, we received a great welcome from the townsfolk. The arrival of the rear party caused considerable amusement, having mounted a number of children on the spare horses. With ceremony befitting a chieftain, they were duly presented to the Squadron Commander as recruits—to be attested in 1945.

After caring for the horses, and getting the bivouac all settled, we learned that we were to spend the next day here also, to allow time for a good clean up, and a rest for all. Again we were fortunate to have the advantage of a nearby river, this time the Ottawa, where we adjourned in force—less an envious piquet, to revel once more in a good swim. This had been arranged by the Officer Commanding the Lanark & Renfrew Scottish Regiment, Lt. Col. Gardner, in conjunction with the Chief of Police. These examples of thoughtfulness were much appreciated, and nearly everyone had at least two good swims during our stay. We had nother visit from Col. McMillan and Col. and Mrs. Blue, as well as a visit from the Director of Military Training, Lt. Col. E. S. Sansom, which was a reminder that Defence Headquarters knew we were in the vicinity. These visits were a great encouragement to all of us, and the interest shown by our visitors together with their complimentary remarks was most welcome.

The Lanark & Renfrews invited our officers to dinner and our NCOs were entertained by theirs. Passes were provided for the remainder, through the kindness of this unit as well, to attend the local movie. These diversions, arranged for the second evening in Arnprior, were further evidence of the advantages of such a march as we were on, as all ranks agree that we have made many friends en route with members of other arms—and Arnprior will be remembered by us for a long time.

On account of the continuation of the hot spell, and the excellent night-march conditions, with the same good shoulders on the side of the highway, and a full moon, it was decided to move to our next bivouac under cover of darkness. Consequently, after a meal of scrambled eggs and bacon, served at midnight, we saddled up and moved quietly out of Arnprior at one o'clock in the morning."

Eleventh Day—Arnprior to Olmstead Lake, 34 Miles

"As a protective measure, a warning sign was placed on the rear of the reconnaissance car following the column—'Marching Troops ¼ mile ahead—Please drive carefully' and proved to be a very successful measure. Overtaking motorists were able to check their speed and enjoy the spectacle of a Cavalry Squadron moving through a bright moon-lit night, many of them stopping after passing the column, to get another glimpse of a beautiful sight. Some outdoor dancers at a road side platform had quite a thrill when we halted for ten minutes beside them. Regretfully we heard the bugle sound 'Mount' and moved on again. Quite a temptation, but no stragglers, and—no stowaways! A few men dozed momentarily in the saddle—strangely enough this is easy to do, even at the trot. However, no untoward incidents resulted, and all ranks enjoyed this lovely ride through the moon-lit, pine-scented night probably more than any other one march on this trip.

Reaching Renfrew early in the morning, we paused for an hour, to water and feed, and enjoy a cup of tea and a sandwich, before pushing on to the secluded lake that was to be our next stop. On this lap of the journey, we had the pleasure of the company of an officer of the Lanarks, Capt. Pottinger, who had waited up for us to reach Renfrew with this in mind, after the officers dinner. Another example of the co-operation of all arms!

The bivouac was undoubtedly the pleasantest of all, we enjoyed a little privacy for the first time since leaving St. Johns, and were able to swim 'in birthday suits,' as well as letting the horses have a good swim too. Our Squadron dog 'Erbert' distinguished himself as the first one to swim across to the other side of the lake, about half a mile, but was soon followed by some of our indefatigable men, whose energy is abundant, even after an all-night ride.

Here, as this was the last opportunity to enjoy the pleasures of a 'Detached Force' unhindered by official visits, or curious citizens, we opened two barrels of beer, as the sun went down. Soon a rousing sing-song was in progress, although a good many of the numbers rendered are best left in the 'unwritten legend' condition! Failing, through a false sense of security, to take protective measures to prevent Surprise, we soon found that our vocal efforts had attracted a large group of local inhabitants to a position of observation (and no doubt listening also) on our flank. The discovery was announced in true soldier's humour by the sudden merging of a ringing chorus into 'Abide with me'.

Twelfth Day—Olmstead Lake to Pembroke, 22 Miles

"Reveille rang out clear and true over the still lake at six o'clock. All ranks bustling with activity, the pleasant smell of frying bacon rising from the kitchen, packing of stores, a number of men enjoying a last swim, the Trumpeter sounding 'Feed'—all the pleasant sounds of a Cavalry Squadron getting ready to march from bivouac.

We moved off again at fifteen minute intervals, and soon reached our last bivouac. Although we stopped to water and give the horse a small feed on this lap, bearing in mind the necessity of arriving the next day at Petawawa Camp, ready to commence strenuous training and manoeuvres as soon as we were joined by HQ and "B" Sqn, who were coming by rail.

Reaching our halting place—Fraser's Farm, about three miles South of Pembroke, we commenced the task of making every horse, saddle and part of our clothing and equipment as spick and span as it was possible to do. Orders were issued for the final march to commence at ten o'clock the following morning, in order that everything could present its very best appearance, as we rode through Pembroke and into Petawawa. The Squadron Commander realized that the arrival of Cavalry in the Camp would be an event of great interest, since the Artillery are all mechanized, and no horsed units have been there since we were last at Petawa in 1929.

Thirteenth Day—Pembroke to Petawawa Camp, 15 Miles.

"We arrived at the entrance to the Petawawa Camp on schedule, with only one horse out of all those that had marched out of Cavalry Barracks, St. Johns, P.Q., so many days ago, unable to march in good condition. This horse was brought in in the horse van, and although a remount without much service, will soon be at work again.

Halting at our horse lines, Major Berteau congratulated all ranks upon the manner in which they had succeeded in bringing all their mounts into camp after a long, but very pleasant and memorable march. And so, completing three hundred miles in fifty seven actual marching hours, we dismounted at last, looked after the horses and adjourned to the Canteen to renew old acquaintances, and reminisce on the various incidents of the march.

Moved by Councillors Murphy and Hampson that Erville Lindsay be placed as owner of Lot No. 38, 2nd range and Lot No. 36bc 3rd range in place of the heirs of late W. W. Watson, and Wilfred Faubert be changed to Thomas Foers as owner of Lot No. 37, Athelstan.

HE ATE ALL-BRAN AND IMPROVED WONDERFULLY

Read this voluntary letter: "In regard to your ALL-BRAN, it is marked on the package 'best as a cereal, best for cooking,' and, as far as I am concerned, you might add best for health. Since I have begun to eat it, I have improved wonderfully."—Mr. H. E. Poole (address on request).

ALL-BRAN corrects common constipation, due to meals low in "bulk." Within the body, it absorbs water, and forms a soft mass, gently sponging out the system.

ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood. Isn't this food better than taking weakening pills and drugs?

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily, either as a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes. In chronic cases, with each meal. Sold by all grocers. Made and gaurantced by Kellogg in London.

PRIVATE HERD Record Book

Good cows are a result of good breeding, if the cows come from good ancestry they will be good producers if well cared for. It therefore follows that good breeding is essential on every dairy farm. A proper record of the breeding should be kept of every animal. A milk record of every cow is valuable information for every farmer.

Have this information at your disposal by maintaining a "PRIVATE HERD RECORD BOOK," such as has been approved by the various cattle breed associations in Canada, and published by the Huntingdon Gleaner.

A book sufficiently large to list the pedigree and milk records of 50 animals, for a period of 12 years can be secured for 50 cents.

LOCAL MAN WINS CHALLENGE SHOOT AT BERMUDA

Following is a clipping from a Bermuda daily, "The Mid Ocean," which tells of the expert marksmanship of Dr. L. T. Hooker, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Hooker, Huntingdon.

Prizes for the highest aggregate and the highest individual scores in a miniature rifle shoot arranged at the Consolidated Rifle Club at "Inglewood", Paget, Thursday night, were won by Dr. L. T. Hooker. The shoot was a challenge shoot between the Somerset Miniature Rifle Club and the Consolidated Miniature Rifle Club, and it is expected that further meetings between the teams, in Paget and in Somerset, will be arranged.

Following is the prize list: highest aggregate, Dr. Hooker (Consolidated), C. Hollis, (Somerset); runner-up, Mackey, (Somerset); lowest scorer, T. Tucker (Consolidated); Sloper (Somerset); highest individual score in shoot, Dr. Hooker; highest team score, Somerset (Fretwell, Jones, Hollis and Orr), Consolidated (Cresdee, Lindley, Guest and Hooker); highest score by visiting team, B.V.E. (Saam, Hayward, Crawford, Long).

Old Age Litany

When stealthy age creeps on me unaware
And, undetected, robs me of my powers,
When I must learn to face infirmity,
Then from rebellion, Lord,
Deliver me.

When all that is familiar fades away
And I must tread a new, uncertain path,
Finding no landmarks save in memory,
Oh then from sick self-pity, Lord,
Deliver me.

And when the tide of life begins to ebb
And neither grief nor joy can stir my soul,
When time begins to merge into eternity,
Then from the craven fear of death,
Deliver me.

—Una W. Harsen.

I dream of mountain peaks of snow
Where only whisp'ring breezes blow;
Of silver streams that ripple down
Vast jagged rocks of golden brown;
Of great green trees so tall and proud,
Of waving ferns in mossy shroud;
Of trout that flash in waters gay,
Of rising sun in misty grey.

I dream of all these things and then,
My heart turn aching, back again
To dusty, rolling, sweeping plains,
Parched and thirsting, dying for rains!
Yet, because my love was once so true,
There's very little I can do
But stay, and nurse her through this fever;
God! How could I bear to leave her!

— Ruth Blackwell.

A DIFFERENT ROOSEVELT

James Roosevelt has become a full-fledged secretary to his father, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, at a salary of $10,000 a year, $4,000 more than his pay as assistant secretary. There once was a President Roosevelt—Theodore—who refused to appoint even the most distant of relatives to public office.

Talk to the newspaper men who have been conspicuously successful and you will find that most of them won their place in the front rank just as G. K. Chesterton won his. In his Autobiography he wrote he owed his success (as the millionaires say) "to having listened respectfully and rather bashfully to the very best advice, given by all the best journalists who had achieved the best sort of success in journalism: and then going and doing the exact opposite."

In the deep, unwritten wisdom of life there are many things to be learned that cannot be taught. We never know them by hearing them spoken, but we grow into them by experience and recognize them through understanding. Understanding is a great experience in itself, but it does not come through instruction.—Anthony Hope.

It's either Lousy or Lovely

For the sake of the record we want to share with you Wilfred J. Funk's list of the ten most overworked words. Your education, charm and related qualities, he thinks, can be measured inversely with the frequency with which you use those words. He not only gives the list but also classifies the chief offenders.

1. Okay—children and shopgirls.
2. Terrific—all persons "exposed" to Hollywood for 24 hours or more.
3. Lousy—ditto.
4. Contact (both verb and noun) —advertising workers.
5. Definitely—society.
6. Gal—Broadwayites.
7. Racket—tradesmen.
8. Swell—interior decorators.
9. Impact—columnists and commentators.
10. Honey—stock brokers.

A year or so ago Mr. Funk chose his most beautiful words in the English language; dawn, hush, lullaby, murmuring tranquil, mist, luminous, chimes, golden and melody.

Three fourths of the habitable globe is in the hands of six nations. The other quarter is divided among the remaining sixty—odd countries. All told, there is only 57,000,000 square miles of earth, good, bad, and indifferent. Of that the British control 13,172,00 square miles, or approximately one quarter. The second largest landowner is the Soviet Union, with 8,144,000 square miles—about one seventh of the total. France ranks third with nearly 5,000,000 square miles, and China fourth with some 4,250,000. Brazil comes fifth and the United States last, each with some 3,000,000.

In Jacksonville, Florida, high school boys and girls are getting training for future jobs in the community at the same time as they attend school. They go to school part of the day and the other part they spend in the department store, advertising office, broadcasting station, theatre hotel, tea-room, telephone office, learning practical work right on the job. Since the inauguration of the "Jacksonville Plan" in 1934, 86 per cent. of the vocational pupils have secured jobs upon graduation, and the plan is spreading to other cities of the South and West.—Christian Science Monitor.

Health Service

THE HEART

The heart is a most important organ which acts as a pump and thus keeps blood moving throughout the body. Any unusual condition of one part or organ of the human body may result in the upset of other organs, such as the heart, with perhaps some permanent damage.

Pain in the region of the heart does not always mean heart disease. It may be due to some heart condition, but it is much more frequently caused by some condition of the stomach, such as improper digestion of food. Usually the first symptom of the heart's being below par is shortness of breath on slight exertion.

In old age, it is not unusual to find that the heart is not doing its work as well as it did. This is part of the general wearing out of the tissues, and means that life must be so regulated that neither at work nor at play is the heart given more to do than it can accomplish without exhaustion. Persons, young or old, who have a weakened or damaged heart, can live long lives of usefulness, providing they avoid doing such things as heavy lifting, which throw a sudden strain on the heart. They must also avoid those activities which cause shortness of breath or pain, always stopping immediately to rest when symptoms appear. Exercise in the form of work or play which does not cause symptoms is usually of benefit.

The most common cause of heart disease in young people is infection. The germs which settle down in diseased tonsils, adenoids and teeth very often travel around the body and they may, and very frequently do attack the heart. The heart may also suffer from the germs and the poisons produced by the germs in such diseases as diphteria, scarlet fever and influenza. Damage to the heart is a comparatively common result of acute rheumatism. Syphilis is also an infection which is very liable to attack the heart and blood vessels. The removal of infected parts, such as diseased tonsils, and the avoidance of infection are the basis of the prevention of heart disease.
