French-only federal jobs to double Cattle import quota lifted

WASHINGTON — (CP) — The United States is aiming at Jan. 1, 1976, as a target date for the lifting of all remaining meat import restrictions between the U.S. and Canada, senior Ford administration sources said yesterday.

"We've just taken the first step in agreeing to lift some of our quotas and there's a good bit of confidence that progress on the remaining ones will be pretty fast," a White House official said.

The official, who asked not to be named, was referring to an agreement announced earlier in the day lifting U.S. quotas on Canadian cattle, hogs and pork in return for Canada removing its limit on importation of U.S. live cattle.

However, both countries still have quotas on veal and beef products. In addition, Canada imposed strict limits last month on the import of U.S. eggs.

The official and U.S. agriculture department sources said there is continuing discussion and some progress on the egg issue, but they all stressed that an agreement on meat imports was much nearer than on eggs.

"If things go well," the administration official said, "we could have an agreement of meat imports by fall — maybe September — but the controls wouldn't likely be removed until the beginning of 1976."

The main difficulty, he said, arises from the U.S. Meat Import Law under which the United States each year negotiates voluntary restraint programs with its major foreign meat suppliers to keep over-all imports below a pre-determined ceiling. This has already been done for the current year.

"We now have to talk to a lot of our friends, like the Australians, and others," the official said, "to reassure them they won't be unduly affected once Canada comes back into the meat market fully. But we're well into that process now."

In Edmonton, Bill Dascovich Alberta co-ordinator for the National Farmers Union said the opening of the Canadian border "to meat trade will not be of any significance in returns to Canadian livestock producers.

Dascovich said the U.S.

move will not overcome the chaotic crisis-to-crisis market fluctuation experienced by Canadian producers.

"As long as producers here have to rely on a marketing system that is subject to rumors and an unstable economy, farmers will have no assurance they will receive a price that will cover their production costs, one that will include a return for labor and investment."

Angolan refugees escape to Luanda

LUANDA — (Reuter-UPI) — Long columns of refugees headed toward Luanda yesterday under the protection of Portuguese troops after the army pulled out of the northern Angolan coffee centre of Carmona and the nearby air base of Negage.

A military communique said hundreds of cars in a convoy several miles long had followed the Portuguese army out of the area.

About 20,000 refugees have poured into Angola's second-largest city, Nova Lisboa, to escape from the fighting between rival liberation movements, the communique said. Reports indicated they had been sheltered in a local fairground with inadequate sanitary facilities.

Most of the white settlers have arrived in the central plateau city destitute, bringing stores of purefying bodies littering the streets of the eastern town of Malange, where fighting seems to have been heaviest in the last week. The communique said many of them would be airlifted to Portugal in the next few days.

Shooting broke out in Luanda Tuesday night with local people reporting trouble in residential areas in the centre of the city, but there was no official word on the clashes.

OTTAWA — (CP) — The government announced yesterday it has set minimums for the number of federal employees who will work only in French, a move that was immediately questioned by the Public Service unions.

Treasury Board President Jean Chretien said the action is in line with bilingualism objectives approved by Parliament in 1973 and is to "ensure the equality of status . . . of both English and French."

Under the minimums, the number of purely Francophone public servants in the national capital area is expected to more than double to 8,000 from 3,500 by 1978, apparently without any permanent growth in the public service.

Chretien said the government plans 54,000 bilingual employees—those who speak French and English—by 1978, a substantial jump from the present total of 20,134. By contrast, 161,318 now work only in English.

He insisted the government is not setting Francophone quotas. "It is not a quota system. It is a certain number of public servants in the federal civil service who will have to work in French."

A treasury board spokesman said Anglophones in jobs designated for Francophones may be transferred to other positions if they do not take French lessons.

Spokesmen for the 18,000-member Professional Institute of the Public Service and the 130,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada said the new system should not have been introduced without consultation with the unions.

E. S. Eaton, president of the professional institute, said a parliamentary resolution in June, 1973, indicated any move to increase use of the French language in the public service would be taken only after consultation with employees representatives.

LITTLE COST

Chretien maintained that there would be relatively little additional cost to the taxpayer because there would be no permanent increase in the size of the public service. As well, existing language-training facilities could handle the anticipated increase in demand.

The bilingualism resolution adopted by Parliament two years ago included a section recommending steps "to produce a greater use of the French language at all levels in the public service."

Francophones now hold 26.8 per cent of the more than 233,000 federal jobs, compared with only 13 per cent after the Second World War. At the senior levels, however, where the latest move is expected to have its main effect, only 20.4 per cent claim French as their mother tongue.

Federal Terrorists head for Libya

Packing purchased

MONTREAL (CP) — Five Quebec food manufacturing and distributing companies announced Wednesday the formation of a consortium to acquire the assets of Federal Packing Inc.

Federal Packing of Magog, Que. went bankrupt following revelations at the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into the sale of tainted meat.

No details of the transaction were available, but the five companies are Grissol Foods Ltd., Provigo Inc., United Grocers, Hudo and Daudelin Ltd., and Merit Beef, which runs Metro and Richelieu Groceries.

A spokesman for the consortium suggested the merger was undertaken at the request of the Quebec government.

The departments of agriculture and industry had appealed to businesses to reopen Federal Packing of Magog, 75 miles east of Montreal, which was a major source of revenue and employment to the community.

KUALA LUMPUR — (AP-UPI) Five armed Japanese Red Army terrorists who held 52 hostages in the U.S. Embassy for two days boarded a plane at the airport yesterday and prepared to fly to Libya.

They were scheduled to leave 8 a.m. local time but the departure was delayed.

The five still held the U.S. consul and 14 other hostages, but officials said they were to be released in exchange for Malaysian and Japanese government officials who would go to Libya as substitute hostages.

Five other Japanese radicals — released from Japanese prisons and flown to Kuala Lumpur on Tuesday at the terrorists' demand — were waiting in an airport building to join the escape flight.

The Japanese foreign ministry had said earlier Libya was expressing reluctance to let the terrorists land and that other countries were being asked — Cuba, Syria and South Yemen.

But Malaysian Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak announced the plane would fly to Libya. He held closed door consultations at the airport, just a few hundred yards from where the Japan Air Lines DC8 sat.

Japanese ambassador Michiaki Suma said the guerrillas were allowed to keep their light weapons but any heavy weapons, hand grenades and explosives were unloaded and placed in the aircraft baggage compartment.

Malaysian home affairs Minister Ghazali Shafie told reporters that he and the Japanese ambassador were involved in "heated exchanges" several times during the days of negotiations with the terrorists but that they resolved their differences each time.

Ghazali said he was trying to persuade the guerrillas to unload their pistols and sub-machineguns and place the ammunition at agreed-on locations aboard the plane for safety reasons.

"They're not fully convinced about that."

He said Libyan foreign minister Attique Al-Obeidi agreed in a phone conversation that his country would accept the 10 and that he relayed the information to the radicals released by Japan.

In Washington, Japanese premier Takeo Miki said his government had yielded to terrorists' demands because "I think the sanctity of human life should be protected first and foremost."

Miki said he realized he might be accused of dealing too softly with the terrorists, "but I could not but attach the greatest importance to human life."

"I was truly saddened the day before yesterday when I received the news" of the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Kuala Lumpur and 53 hostages by members of the militant Japanese Red Army.

"I was really saddened by the rampant violence occurring the world over. I was particularly saddened that Japanese people were involved," said Miki, who cancelled his private program in Washington to devote his entire attention to the negotiations with the terrorists.

Portuguese civil war fear voiced

LISBON — (AP) — The armed forces rushed a company of marines to northern Portugal yesterday to try to stop an outbreak of anti-Communist violence. A senior military official said the country faces possible civil war.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said the violence would increase and might build into civil war unless the Portugal's political-military crisis, the worst of the 15-month revolution, is resolved this weekend.

Rioters demanding the overthrow of the government wrecked Communist offices in Santo Tirso early yesterday, shouting: "We are not with the Armed Forces Movement." In nearby Famalicao, demonstrators went on a rampage of smashing and burning Tuesday night, sacking the town's Communist headquarters and forcing the troops guarding it to flee.

The leftist-dominated 5th Division said the marines had been sent as reinforcements for troops in the north.

Premier Vasco Goncalves' office had said earlier the armed forces were going to crack down on mob violence and rioting with counter-measures but he did not specify what they would be.

The senior official said a new attempt to dislodge the Communist-backed Goncalves from the premiership and the ruling three-general junta may be made before the weekend.

Saying he believed Goncalves would be removed, the official termed untrue reports that Goncalves had received a vote of confidence from the country's top 50 military commanders.

More than 30 Communist party offices have been attacked by political moderates and rightists since the centre-left Socialist and Popular Democratic parties — the country's two largest parties — quit the government four weeks ago and charged Goncalves would be removed, the country toward a leftist dictatorship.

Hoffa abduction perhaps staged

DETROIT — (Reuter-AP) — Former Teamsters union president Jimmy Hoffa may have arranged his own disappearance last Wednesday to avoid testifying before a federal grand jury, a U.S. justice department official said yesterday.

"We may have another Joe Bonanno case here," the official said. On October 21, 1964, Joseph (Joe Bonanno) Bonanno was reported kidnapped by armed men as he drove down Park Avenue in New York City shortly before he was to appear before a federal grand jury investigating racketeering.

Bonanno, then 57, was said to be chief of an organized crime gang. He showed up alive and well and ready to testify 19 months later after his "kidnapping."

Hoffa was called before a federal grand jury investigating irregularities in the handling of funds by a Teamsters local in Detroit. He refused to answer most questions.

O'BRIEN RETURNS

The key to the theory that Hoffa disappeared voluntarily is the mysterious activity of Charles O'Brien, an adopted son of Hoffa, and his former bodyguard. O'Brien had not been seen by friends or relatives since last Friday until he appeared yesterday at a local union hall.

O'Brien was seen last Thursday morning on a street corner near the restaurant where Hoffa's car was found later that day.

Investigators speculated that he may have been involved in Hoffa's disappearance — perhaps with Hoffa's co-operation — and that he had returned the car to the parking lot early Thursday morning.

QUESTIONED

O'Brien arrived at Teamsters Local 229 headquarters early yesterday afternoon and went into conference with his lawyer, Jack Burdick, and Robert Holmes, a Teamsters vice-president who heads Detroit Local 337 and is close to

Spain hit by power struggle

MADRID — (UPI) — Spanish newspapers yesterday reported speculation that Premier Carlos Arias Navarro might soon be replaced as the result of a power struggle within the government. There was no official confirmation of the reports.

"These are purely personal opinions," a government spokesman said. "We cannot comment on them."

The Madrid newspaper ABC said there was "intensive talk" that Generalissimo Francisco Franco might soon name a successor to Arias, who has completed about a third of his five-year term. ABC listed six possible successors — two relative moderates and four men clearly to the right of Arias among them the right-wing military commander of Madrid, Gen. Angel Campaño.

The speculation was also reported by the newspaper Informaciones. The news magazine Cambio 16 dedicated its cover story to what it called "Arias counterattack" and said as long as a week ago Madrid's "political circles would not have bet a dime for Arias to remain in the premier's chair."

As summer heat boosts consumption, profits

Investment in brewing hits the spot

Warmer weather this summer has increased beer consumption, indicating that 1975 will be a profitable year for brewing operations, says Richardson Securities of Canada.

For the year ended Dec. 31, 1974, Canadian beer consumption was up 2.3 per cent from the previous year, compared with a 6.7-per-cent increase in 1973 from the year before.

The Winnipeg-based investment firm says the main reason for last year's poor performance was generally cool weather conditions during May through August, the prime months for beer drinking.

In a review of the brewing industry, Richardson predicts that beer consumption will be up at least five per cent from 1974 if warm weather continues until late September.

Despite the outlook for higher earnings for brewing operations, Richardson believes shares of John Labatt Ltd. of London, Ont., and Molson Cos. Ltd. of Montreal are fully-priced at current levels.

"In light of the current market strength, we would continue to hold the shares of both Molson and Labatt, but purchases would preferably be made on a pullback from current prices."

Other factors which will contribute to increased profits for the brewing industry include a stabilization of packaging costs and barley malt prices, says Richardson. However, the gains from lower barley prices may be offset by increasing costs of producing the malt, which will be passed on to the brewers, it says.

In projecting fiscal 1975 brewery earnings, the firm estimates that Molson will record 10-per-cent higher profits. For the fiscal year ending March 31, 1976, earnings should increase to $1.80-$1.85 a share from $1.43, says Richardson, basing the estimate on improved beer earnings and a higher profit from the company's Beaver Lumber operations.

With John Labatt holding 35.2 per cent of the domestic beer market, the company stands to benefit most from higher beer consumption.

Richardson says Labatt is expected to increase its market share in 1976 and looks for profits to rise to $1.95 a share from $1.84 in 1974.

"The current year is shaping up to be a good one for Labatt with respect to beer earnings," says Richardson. "We expect that earnings from Labatt's non-brewing operations will show only modest improvement over the previous year."

High temperature and pressure steam injection is a promising method to accomplish this. Once the oil is warmed up and can flow, this pump brings it to the surface.

CDC still seeking projects for investment

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada Development Corp. (CDC) officials said Tuesday they are still looking for projects in which to invest the millions of dollars they hope to garner from a public share issue.

The officials are on a cross-country tour this week to meet with investors and publicize the corporation's intention to go public with a record-breaking share issue either later this month or in early September.

A prospectus was filed with various provincial securities bodies last month.

Don Morrison, executive vice-president, suggested at a news conference Tuesday that the energy field was one of the top priorities of the corporation, currently 100-per-cent owned by the federal government. However, the CDC was not restricting its search to energy-oriented ventures.

Anthony Hampson, president, had said earlier this year that the Vancouver-based CDC was hoping to acquire or form a Canadian oil company. But Mr. Morrison said Tuesday such an oil company had not yet been found.

Mr. Hampson said the issue of convertible preferred shares with a par value of $100 was expected to exceed or at least match the record share issue of $125 million made by Trans-Canada Pipelines Ltd. and Bell Canada.

Preferred shares will be convertible without a time limit into 10 common shares with 10 votes a share. Each share will carry a cumulative cash dividend of seven per cent annually.

Only Canadian citizens and residents may purchase the shares and no one person or company may own more than three per cent of the total.

Corporation officials maintain the share issue is aimed more at "the little man" than at traditional investors.

However, Mr. Hampson has cautioned that it would not be sensible "for a little old lady or anyone to put all their eggs in one basket. "We have more of a spread than most companies but, nevertheless, we are still a high-risk company."

The CDC was formed in 1971 to help develop and maintain strong Canadian-controlled corporations in the private sector.

The CDC effectively controls Texas Gulf Inc., an international natural resource company, with a 30-per-cent holding. Other interests include a holding of 100 per cent of Polysar Ltd., and smaller ones in a petrochemical firm and some health-care companies.

AMC auto sales reported up

BRAMPTON, Ont. — American Motors passenger car and Jeep vehicle retail sales of 3,506 units established a new all time high record for the month of July.

AMC passenger car retail sales of 3,061 units in the month of July was the highest July in company history, exceeding the previous July record set last year of 3,044 units. Strong Gremlin and Pacer sales were responsible for the company's exceptional sales performance in July, accounting for 64.5 per cent of total sales.

Retail passenger car sales for the 10-month model year-to-date period total 26,965 units, a 13.7 per cent decrease from 31,231 cars sold during the comparable period a year ago. The downage is due primarily to the company's seven week strike which occurred last fall during the first quarter of the model year.

Jeep vehicle retail sales in July of 445 units was the highest July sales month in company history eclipsing the former record of 432 units set last July.

Jeep retail sales for the model year-to-date total 4,025 a 9.6 per cent increase from 3,674 sold to the end of July last year.

Debits here $251.1 mil

Debits to individual bank accounts during July in Sherbrooke and area totalled $251.1 million, the Canadian Bankers' Association reports.

The value of cheques drawn on the Bank of Canada, on the Government of Canada and by the chartered banks on themselves are excluded in order to provide an indication of economic activity in the private sector only.

Domtar, Copeland announce new fluid bed system

MONTREAL — Domtar Limited and Copeland Process Limited announce a joint venture to commercialize fluid bed kraft pulp recovery systems. A Copeland fluid bed combustion unit adapted to the recovery of chemical from kraft liquor and based on ideas of Dr. G.G. Copeland and Dr. G.H. Tomlinson II of Domtar, has been designed and installed in Domtar's Cornwall mill.

Now in operation, this unit relieves overloading in the kraft recovery boiler and also increases, at low capital cost, the mills pulping capacity. Steam generation from the Copeland unit is used for general mill purposes. The fluidized unit reduces mill emissions and makes a significant contribution to the ecology of the Cornwall region.

The system represents a significant advance in kraft mill recovery technology and should have application in many kraft mills throughout the world. The Companies will continue development work in kraft pulping recovery processes to increase economies in mill operations including steam generation.

Copeland Process Limited, a Canadian company, is the only concern in the world solely engaged in developing fluidized solids techniques for a variety of purposes and has built or is constructing a large number of units on five continents.

The President of the company, Dr. G.G. Copeland, says the Company has two main inter-related world-wide thrusts - to make a contribution to pollution abatement from both municipal and industrial sources and to increase industrial efficiencies in the recycling of chemical elements and the recovery of values such as heat waste materials.

Domtar Limited is a major Canadian company engaged in diversified industrial activities including pulp and paper, construction materials and chemical operations. It is a recognized leader in innovative technology in a number of fields. It was at this same Cornwall mill, then part of Howard Smith Paper Mills Ltd., that the late F.H. Tomlinson Sr. carried out the initial developments which led to the stationary recovery furnace, now the standard recovery unit in the kraft industry.

The Cornwall Research facilities were later transferred to the present Research Centre of Domtar Limited at Senneville, Quebec, where the Company's tradition of research, started nearly 50 years ago, continues.

Closing of abattoirs in Sept. is predicted

LENNOXVILLE (BS) — In one month the approximately 80 abattoirs in the Eastern Townships will close due to the planned enforcement of meat inspection and sanitary regulations, abattoir operator John Nichol of Lennoxville predicts.

Mr. Nichol is a member of the commission for the preservation of small abattoirs which was set up in the early spring to fight for the preservation of small abattoirs that were threatened with closure by Bill 31. The bill which was passed by the provincial government last year set up regulations to be carried out in the autumn of 1975 that would mean the closing of the majority of small abattoirs in Quebec.

The ensuing meat scandal has doubtlessly spurred the Quebec government to action in carrying out the Bill 31 regulations. Public inquiries recently revealed the lack of regular, efficient government meat inspection and irregularities by some meat companies in sales of meat unfit for human consumption.

Although regulations have been in the books for years regarding government inspection of abattoirs, they have not been enforced. However, local abattoir owners have been informed recently that these existing regulations will be enforced as well as the new Bill 31 regulations, which also affect small abattoirs, Mr. Nichol explained.

As a result no more meat will be accepted in wholesale or retail outlets that has not been inspected and stamped by a provincial or federal inspector. Consequently no farmer will be able to kill an animal or have it killed and then take it to a store to have it cut up. Instead he will have to find an abattoir where there is government inspection where his animal can be slaughtered.

Beef, lamb, veal and hogs will all be affected by these changes.

In the immediate region only Abattoir Giroux at Bromptonville will remain open for beef, lamb and veal, Mr. Nichol predicted. Cote & Fils of Stoke will continue to handle hogs.

Nichol's abattoir which has been operated at the Nichol farm near Lennoxville will be closing in two weeks, Mr. Nichol said. Further slaughtering done by Nichol's will be carried out where there is inspection.

The effect on the farmer will be increased transportation costs, he added.

Some of the new sanitary and building regulations which will also come into effect in September are that there must be a stainless steel cabinet to sterilize all slaughtering tools; there must be two separate coolers for the meat; there must be a refrigeration room for hides and bones; there must be different pens to hold cattle, showers for workers, a separate office and bathroom for the inspectors and a separate bathroom for the abattoir workers. A certain height must be established in the building as well as wall and floor finishings that are easy to keep clean.

School mark mix-up mars year

RICHMOND (RH) — A series of bureaucratic mix-ups, emanating from Quebec City, may cost a large number of Richmond Regional High School students a year of education, it was learned recently.

The school has been plagued with problems this year, starting when provincial government budget cut-backs threatened the innovative house system there, early in the school year. Now, results to some provincial examinations appear to have been mislaid by the Quebec bureaucratic machine, affecting every graduating student who wrote the exams this year, which could mean delays in career and education plans. In addition, a controversial marking system for English exams employed by officials in Quebec has deprived some students of a passing mark in this subject, required for a high school leaving certificate.

"The loss of examination results happened last year as well," commented Alton Price, a vice-principal at RRHS, "and the marks were still dribbling in in April and May of this year. Fortunately, most of the marks lost were those of level four (grade 10) students who weren't graduating. This year, since many of the students affected are graduating, we'll have to work out a solution if the marks don't arrive soon."

Moreover, the Quebec Department of Education has decided to uphold its decision regarding the marking of English papers despite the fact that Richmond officials say the formula employed for obtaining the marks is questionable.

The system, which calls for a mark from the high school indicating the student's performance during the school year and a mark from the June provincial exams, has resulted in "glaring discrepancies" according to Sister Susan Cleveley, chairman of the English Department at the school, who maintains no formula exists. As an example, she cites one case in which a student received a mark of 80 for the school year, a mark of 73 in the June examination, and was given a mark of 46 on the provincial certificate. Sister Cleveley described this as a "flagrant error."

Vice-principal Alton, meanwhile, agreed that he has been unable to discover the basis of the formula. "We gave the figures to some math experts," he said, "and they couldn't determine any formula at all, but when we confronted Quebec about it, they stuck by their decision to let the marks stand." A Quebec official, who preferred to remain anonymous, said the formula was "too complex for the math experts at Richmond."

According to Mr. Price, Quebec officials admitted they had lost examination results.

"At first, they tried to suggest that we had made a mistake in submitting the marks," he remarked, "but we knew there was no way it could have been us, because we double-checked it. I must say, however, one person in the Department of Education has been extremely co-operative, and since she deals with all the errors made in all the English school boards across the province, it's understandable that there's been a delay getting the problem resolved."

He added that he hoped the search for the exams proved fruitful, commenting that he had copies of exam results.

"But I don't know what we'll do if they aren't found," he concluded.

Forest fire hits region

BROMPTONVILLE (RM) — Firefighters are still at the scene of a forest fire which began Tuesday a few miles northeast of here.

The Southern Quebec Conservation Corporation (SQCC) reported yesterday the fire, in the Lac Bisson region, was caused by lightning.

First learning of the blaze, the SQCC Sherbrooke office called in a CL215 water bomber aircraft from Quebec City, which passed over the fire six times to bring it under control.

Yesterday afternoon, six men were supervising the site, and according to Irving Blaney of the SQCC, they may have to remain there until the weekend or longer.

About two acres of the forest, owned by Domtar Limited of Windsor, were destroyed.

This week's fire is the latest of a series of forest fires in the Sherbrooke area.

The SQCC, which deals with all forest fires in the areas of Richmond, Sherbrooke, Compton, Wolfe and Stanstead, attended to 11 forest fires between May 1 and July 31.

The most serious of these were in the Rock Forest and Waterville regions.

The primary cause of the fires this year was industrial operations, followed by recreation and residents.

6 die in car crash

RICHFORD, Vt. (IH) — Six of eight persons were killed in a highway accident on the weekend near Berkshire, Vt., while the other two remain in critical condition in the Burlington Medical Center.

Dead are three brothers: Randy Kennison, 19, Steven Kennison, 17, and David Kennison, 16, residents of the Canadian Border Town of Richford, Vt., Sherl Goodhue, 18, and her two-year-old daughter, Brandie and Floyd Flood, 31, also of Richford.

Wreckage and bodies were strewn along the roadside it was reported by witnesses. Nearby residents said the car was apparently travelling at a very high speed when it veered out of control, skidded more than 200 feet along a narrow road and went spinning into a large maple tree. The tree split and fell, it was reported.

Mr. Flood was reported to have been the owner of the car but the police investigating the accident were unable to say who was driving or where they were going.

The two hospitalized in Burlington are Maurice Taro, 17, and Donald Willequer, 23. Funeral services for the six were held Monday and Tuesday, August 4 and 5.

Strike settlement sought at Esmond

GRANBY (RM) — Representatives of the 350 striking employees of the Esmond Mills textile plant here are due to meet with company officials sometime this week.

The president of the Esmond Mills Employees' Union (CSD), Jean-Guy Lapierre, said yesterday a date for the meeting, the second since the strike began July 28, has yet to be determined.

The employees are calling for a two dollar an hour increase in a two year contract, while the company is offering a 46 cent per hour increase per year for the length of the contract.

If it goes through, the employees demand will mean parity with employees in plants owned by Esmond Mills' parent company, Dominion Textile Limited.

Mr. Lapierre said morale among the strikers, who vowed to remain out until their demands were met, continues to remain high.

The workers voted 89 per cent in favor of the strike.

Concert held at Border a success

BOUNDARY (IH) — Despite the hot weather a large number of people came to the Haskell Opera House for the third in a series of four concerts sponsored by The North County Concert Association Inc., last Friday evening.

It was well worth it as the artists gave an excellent performance. The first part was by the New England Baroque Ensemble who began in 1972 to present concerts featuring John Sanders on the trumpet, Robert Mark playing the violin, Joseph Elliott, the harpsichord and Peter Brown, the piano.

Their selections included works of Johann Friedrich Fasch, Henry Purcell, Giuseppe Torelli, and Johann Sebastian Bach.

During intermission refreshing fruit punch was served. The second part of the concert was presented by Jack Reilly of New York City at the piano keyboard. His first selection was of his own composition, In Memoriam to Ben Webster, Prelude Intermezzo, chorale, Ariosa, Passacaglia.

Improvisations were A Train by Billy Strayhorn, Mr. Reilly's composition of Waltz for Fall and others. George Gershwin compositions included Nice Work If You Can Get It and Summertime. Mr. Reilly is a jazz pianist and has recorded on Carousal Records by the Jack Reilly Trio. He teaches, composes and is an accomplished piano player.

The reception of the audience was tremendous and curtain calls were given in appreciation of their performance on the very warm evening.

U of S names 2 appointments

SHERBROOKE (RH) — The University of Sherbrooke announces two new appointments.

Gerald Gosselin has been named to the post of assistant to the vice-principal in the faculty of business administration here.

The main responsibility of Mr. Gosselin consists of helping the vice principal in the preparation of course outlines and curriculum, and in the practical organization of the faculty.

Employed by the University of Sherbrooke since 1966, Mr. Gosselin has been a professor with the faculty of business administration, an assistant to the dean of the same faculty, and assistant to the vice-principal for administrative affairs. In 1971, he was named for the position which he occupied until his recent appointment.

MA PROGRAM

The appointment of Jacques Landreville to the post of director of the Master of Administration program for a mandate of one year, expiring May 31, 1976 has also been announced.

Originally from Montreal, Mr. Landreville, 29, studied at the Montreal School for Higher Commercial Learning, the University of Sherbrooke and Harvard University.

Prior to his employment as a professor at the University of Sherbrooke last July, Mr. Landreville was a finance professor at the University of Quebec at Chicoutimi.

QUEBEC (RM) — Two more grants for Megantic-Compton have been announced by the county's MNA, Omer Dionne.

$1.3 million has been slated by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs for the construction of waterworks in the municipality of St. Sebastien, while the High Commission for Youth, Recreation and Sports is providing La Patrie $15,000 for renovations in its arena.

The sum to St. Sebastien will be forwarded in 10 consecutive annual sums, beginning in the 1976-77 fiscal year.

La Patrie, meanwhile, will be paid in one lump sum.

Beebe council meets

BEEBE (CA) — The August session of the Beebe municipal council met in the council chamber with mayor H. Lapenna presiding. Before the session was called to order, the mayor and councillors inspected the newly remodeled and occupied section of the town hall by the Caisse Populaire. Routine reports were presented and approved. Correspondence included a letter from the Highway Department stating that Fairmont Granite Street, Stewart Street and other streets would be repaved as soon as the men are available.

Lengthy discussion took place regarding a trailer park in the municipality. No decision was taken. The purchase of a sidewalk snowplow and a pump to be used to clean the sewage receiver tank, came under some planning. These will be given immediate attention. The water used throughout the municipality for several years, must be checked each month, by sending a sample to the proper department in Quebec. A suggestion was made that a storage shed be erected to be used for gravel which is used in the wintertime on roads and sidewalks. A plan has to be drawn up for acceptance.

A building permit was requested and this was attended to by the committee. Complaints were heard about the noise made by motorcycles on lower Junction Street.

There are several water bills in arrears. These people will be notified informing them if the bill is not paid in 15 days after date on bill the water will be turned off.

It was agreed to hire a man and equipment to drill test holes on a small farm on the Vermont side of the town. This will be done as soon as possible. The September meeting will be held at 7 p.m.

Concern About Crime

The Canadian public is showing mounting concern about such crime and punishment issues as the death penalty, mandatory prison sentences and parole. A recent Gallup Poll shows that 73 per cent of Canadians believe the courts are too lenient with criminals, compared to 66 per cent who shared this opinion in March, 1974 and 43 per cent in 1966.

The federal government, however, does not seem to agree; on the contrary, it appears to believe that the public, in this case, is wrong. In response to demands from the public and in Parliament that the present law on hanging be enforced, the government has said that since the law allows the cabinet to commute death sentences, as it has done in every case, that law is in fact, being enforced, a sophistry which deliberately misrepresents the purpose for which that clause was adopted.

Attempts by individual members of Parliament to return to the original purpose of the law by restricting the cabinet's right to commute the death penalty have met with strong opposition, particularly from Solicitor-General Warren Allmand. Restricting the cabinet's right of reprieve to cases where the jury recommends clemency or is unable to agree on it is wrong, Mr. Allmand says, because juries across the country are inconsistent in their verdicts. He wants the cabinet to retain its right to review each case on its merits.

In the past this has meant that in cases where a jury has recommended clemency, the cabinet has accepted that recommendation; in cases where no such recommendation was made, the cabinet has commuted the sentence anyway and there is no doubt that this practice will continue as long as Mr. Allmand has a voice in the decision.

The government has also rejected demands for mandatory prison sentences for such offences as armed robbery, kidnapping and other crimes involving violence. Justice Minister Otto Lang has said that mandatory sentences are not as effective as the discretionary sentencing powers of judges, although it is difficult to see how he arrives at this conclusion. If it is true, as he says, that "it is open to judges under our present system to increase the penalties they are imposing," it is also true that if the judges do not exercise that option the federal government has the duty to see that mandatory sentences are applied.

There would be two advantages to this. First, it will make prison terms both certain and — which will please Mr. Allmand — consistent. Second, it will put an end to that aspect of parole which most worries the public — the release from prison on temporary passes or early parole of criminals convicted of violent and serious crimes.

Recently in British Columbia a man on parole from a seven-year-sentence for kidnapping and armed robbery was being sought in connection with the murder of a woman. In another recent case in British Columbia a man serving an indeterminate sentence as a dangerous sexual offender murdered a seven-year-old girl while out of prison on a three-day pass.

The director of the National Parole Board defends the issuing of day paroles and temporary absence passes as a valuable system. As the Gallup Poll indicates Canadians do not share his opinion of its value.

Where did the $1.10 go?

To the Editor:
On July 14 I sent what we call a good calf to the commission sale. It sold for 15 cents a pound.
On July 18 I bought a roast of veal and paid $1.25 a pound. I was wondering where the other $1.10 went.

Mulching with lake weeds

To the Editor:
Pollution of our beautiful lakes is greatly distressing to those of us who are conservation-minded as well as those who are sufficiently fortunate to own summer houses on a lakeshore.

Last summer, the weeds in the lake fronting my cottage were so thick that they made swimming uncomfortable. I decided to pull them up and use them for mulch on my flower beds. In the shallow water, I pulled them by hand near the base, and in deeper water, I wore old running shoes to scrape them loose with my feet. Then I netted them with an old french-fry strainer. On a hot summer day, it is a comfortable way to exercise and a very effective way to "weed" the lake! As a mulch for my flowers, they were very effective.

This summer, I noticed I had very few weeds where I had "harvested" last summer. But my neighbours' lakefronts are thickly weedy and attracting slime.

So each person CAN help in his own way. Just keep pulling the weeds for mulch.

Yours truly,
(Miss) H.G. Pye

US energy problems remain unresolved

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congress now has recessed for a month until September leaving President Ford's proposed new energy policy in tatters and raising serious questions about the future of fuel prices throughout the United States.

Before adjourning last week, the legislators voted to continue the president's oil price controls for another six months but Ford is almost certain to veto that measure formally later this week.

Earlier, Congress had overturned a compromise proposal submitted by the president aimed at removing the controls gradually over a period of 39 months. Underlying the dispute is Ford's belief that the best way to hold down oil consumption and further reduce imports is to let prices rise. This, in turn, he argues will both increase company profits to finance the search for more domestic oil and stimulate the development of less-costly alternative energy systems. Congress, on the other hand, seems convinced company profits are already too high and that increased prices will cause inflation and halt the country's recovery from recession.

Meanwhile, however, nobody is getting what they want because when Ford vetoes a further extension of the controls they will lapse entirely at the end of August. EFFECTS UNKNOWN

The effects of this on fuel prices is difficult to estimate precisely. At the moment, the price of oil coming out of refineries is a mix of the costs of three types of crude going into the refineries.

"Old oil," or oil from U.S. wells in production before the dramatic price increases at the end of 1973, is controlled at $5.25 a barrel. Oil imported from the Arab states and other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) is priced at about the Saudi Arabian benchmark for crude of $10.46 a barrel and crude oil from new wells in the U.S. is about $11 a barrel. There is also a $2 federal tax on all imported crude.

Under de-control, the price of old oil would likely double quickly, experts say, but the over-all price of the mix would move up less, probably by about 30 per cent.

This might mean, for example, an increase of about seven cents a gallon for gasoline and considerably more for such things as jet fuel. There would then be corresponding increases in the costs of heating oils, air fares, public transport fares and a range of other related costs, all with some inflationary effects.

If the OPEC states raise their prices this fall, the effects would be more pronounced. Many experts now believe the only hope for the consumer is that Ford and Congress may yet agree on a compromise allowing prices to rise, taxing away increased profits from the oil companies and giving it back to individuals through credits on income tax. Optimism, however, is not high.

Resurrection

A surprising TV marriage

WASHINGTON — Bitter are the ways of sweetness and light!

For a vagrant hour, I laid down my muckrake, put aside the adversary scowl and sat down with a President to sing patriotic paeans. For which lapses I have now been suitably punished.

The President's press secretary, Ron Nessen, has accused me of having duped the President. "I think we have been had," Nessen howled from Helsinki. "I think we got conned."

For a mischievous moment, I was tempted to let Nessen's statement stand. It isn't everyone, after all, who can claim credit for snookering the President.

I recall how my late mentor, Drew Pearson, reveled in the notoriety of having been called nasty names by three Presidents. How the old master would relish from beyond the pale the spectacle of his awkward protegee charged with traducing a President.

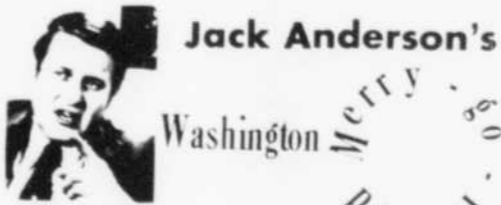

But a long-indentured slavery to the facts compels me to decline Nessen's unintended accolade and to set the record straight.

My appearance before the TV cameras with President Ford grew out of my Bicentennial activities. I was supposed to talk with the President about America, its past and its future, its failings and its greatness.

I got into the act because of my notoriety as an establishment baiter. It was thought that two such disparate figures would give the program an extra dimension, having somewhat the unifying effect of a joint endorsement by beauty and the beast.

Nessen has now charged that I hoaxed the President into a television interview under false pretenses, claiming for it a wider distribution than I could deliver. Not so. He was told from the beginning that it was not planned as a network program, that it would be offered piecemeal to individual stations across the country.

This is confirmed by Nessen's own account to The New York Times, which reported: "When the interview was completed, Mr. Nessen informed the President that it had been made on 'spec' (speculation). Mr. Ford shrugged and said it was worthwhile anyway."

In the meantime, the producers got enthused about the program, and the distribution rights were raised to the network level. It came as a genuine shock to me that none of the networks, not even the Public Broadcasting Service, would broadcast the President's patriotic reflections.

I let my outrage get the best of me and wrote a column assailing the network czars. Something is wrong somewhere, it seems to me, when no network will carry a Bicentennial program featuring the President. It troubles me that a few network czars have such a stranglehold on the public airwaves.

The column brought forth a flood of letters and calls. Readers protested the affront to the President. Lawyers urged me to bring an antitrust suit against the networks. Station owners offered to run the program. And on Capitol Hill, Democrats and Republicans alike took to the floor to denounce the networks.

In all the uproar, not a person supported the networks. Everyone agreed that the President's views on America should be aired. It was unanimous.

But then Nessen, who is paid to promote the President, spoke up in Helsinki. Curiously, the genial Ron was not the least upset at the networks for refusing to broadcast his boss' views on the greatness of America.

"I am mad but not at the networks," he told The New York Times. "I'm mad at Jack Anderson."

Let the record show that Nessen wasn't mad at anyone before I excoriated the networks. I spoke to Nessen twice after my TV stint with the President. Ron expressed his delight with the program. He had no complaints, he said nothing about being "conned." Not until I got naughty with the networks did he get mad.

Allowances should be made, of course, for Ron Nessen. After all, he served President Ford for only 10 months. Ron's heart, apparently, is still with NBC News.

It is a bit astonishing, nonetheless, that Democratic stalwarts lambasted the networks for rejecting the President's patriotic remarks while his own press secretary defended the networks.

On the House floor, Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., a power on the House communications subcommittee, declared: "I am deeply concerned when the network executives, who have such a major effect on this nation's awareness, are of the opinion that the patriotic comments of the President are not appropriate news for a nation nearing its Bicentennial."

Witnesses who heard Murphy's speech reported that he received a standing ovation from his House colleagues.

From the Senate, Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., the No. 2 Democrat on the Senate communications subcommittee, fired off letters to all the networks and sent me copies. "Is it necessary," he demanded, "to remind the networks that communications channels they use are a public trust?"

And Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott pleaded: "Certainly, there must be time on some television network for a discussion with the President of the United States about the greatness of America."

More than 60 TV stations, which disagree with the networks, have offered to carry the program. I have decided, however, to accept an offer from columnist William Buckley to present the entire interview as part of his regular "Firing Line" broadcast on August 9th. Buckley and I have looked horns in the past. It is in the spirit of America that we now join together to present the President's answers about America.

Commonwealth's parish church is in danger

LONDON (CP) — St. Paul's Cathedral, often called the parish church of the Commonwealth, is in danger. At the moment traffic and pollution give the greatest cause for concern and while not as immediate as the problems of the Great Fire of London in 1666, experts place the fabric of the cathedral in just as great peril.

Vibration from traffic can accelerate movements in the structure redesigned and rebuilt by Sir Christopher Wren in 1674. Also high-frequency air-borne vibrations can set up resonances in vertical features such as pinnacles and statues which can loosen pointing and lead to rapid decay.

However, only substantial elimination of traffic from one of London's busiest thoroughfares would eliminate this problem.

Pollution in the air is responsible for the decay of the stonework and although London's air is the cleanest it has been for many years, the products of the internal combustion engine combine with rain to form acids that are literally dissolving the cathedral.

HIS GREAT TASK
The present Dean of St. Paul's, Rev. Martin Sullivan, sees his greatest task as looking after the magnificent building with which he has been entrusted.

"St. Paul's is not just a national monument, it is a living cathedral," he said in an interview. "On this slight eminence of Ludgate Hill, it has on its west side Fleet Street, the centre of communications, and to the east of us is the City of London with the Stock Exchange, the finance houses and the Bank of England.

"Surely here is the place from which we can continually challenge men to recall that the real issues are not of profit and loss."

When Sir Christopher Wren's design for the great dome of the cathedral was being laid out for the stone masons, the surveyor to the fabric of the new structure called for a piece of stone to be brought from the debris of the old cathedral destroyed in the Great Fire.

He wanted to put it at the centre of the plan as a reference mark for the builders. A laborer pulled a flat stone from a great heap of rubbish and brought it to the surveyor.

It was part of a tombstone bearing one word of a Latin epitaph: "Resurgam"—I will rise again.

So the new Wren masterpiece rose from the ashes of the old church, and now, in the crypt of Wren's cathedral, an exhibition has opened to mark the 300th anniversary of the placing of the foundation stone.

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Frank Hawks, Los Angeles aviator, today held the record for the quickest east-west crossing of the United States.

Flying at an average speed of 179 miles an hour, Hawks yesterday flew his low-winged monoplane from Curtiss Field, New York, to Municipal Airport, Los Angeles in fourteen hours, fifty minutes and forty-three seconds. His plane landed here at 4:50.43 p.m., (P.S.T.), after leaving New York at 5 a.m. (E.S.T.).

Hawks lowered by three hours and fifty-two minutes the recent east-west record set by Roscoe Turner. He made several refueling stops. Subtracting time for them, Hawks actually flew the distance in thirteen hours, thirty-five minutes and forty-three seconds. He expects to start back for New York in a few days in an effort to better the west-east record of fourteen hours and forty-five minutes, set by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An unusual happening at work today will spur your optimism. Don't leave practically out of the picture.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Taking chances or speculating will prove to be fun today. Keep it under control or large losses could spoil your fun.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'd be better off to avoid making promises to the family today. You'd be kidding yourself. You won't follow through.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Extra cash in your pocket today could give you a false sense of security. It takes much hard work to bring in a good harvest.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're unusually talkative today, but be sure you don't talk yourself into a financial bind and become a loser.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Sudden windfalls could come from unusual sources. Don't spoil your joy by being obnoxious with the family.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll behave more boldly in seeking what you want because, for once, you'll put your desires ahead of keeping peace in the group.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Just because you feel like a world-beater today, you'll think you're a financial wizard. Careful — your skill wanes in dealing with dollars.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll meet people today who can introduce you to new places and interesting people. Don't spoil it by trying to take over.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Changes are part of this day. Prepare to act on unusual opportunities or evening will find you brooding because you didn't.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Get an early start. That's when the good things happen. Later you'll find yourself edgy with others over trivia.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Unusual people will make your day interesting. You may feel, wrongly, toward evening that you haven't kept up with them.

Why does he only rebid to three spades? Because he and

Wales Home News

By MRS. M. ARMSTRONG RICHMOND — The beautiful warm summer which we are experiencing has been greatly appreciated by the Residents here, especially those confined to wheel chairs, as they are now able to sit on the nice shady patio under the huge willow trees and enjoy the lovely well kept grounds.

Residents have been able to watch and enjoy the "Shuffle board" tournament which has been in progress for several weeks. The competitors, 9 couples in all, are all residents and the eldest participant is Mr. A. Slack, formerly of Ayer's Cliff and in his 94th year. He plays a keen game too.

Those celebrating birthdays in July were honored guests at a party in the Rec room recently.

The hostesses, all members of the Kirkdale A.C.W., were Mrs. M. Riff, Mrs. Wm. Hawthorne, Mrs. S. Weare and Mrs. E. Davidson.

Several games were played and prizes given before the guests were seated at a beautifully decorated table for lunch. Individual birthday cakes, complete with tiny candles, and sweet breads, were enjoyed.

The guest list included Mrs. G. Draper, Miss M. Ewing, Mrs. M. Fowler, Mrs. P. Driver, Mr. and Mrs. M. Fraser, Mr. W. Wallace, Mrs. E. Carr, Mr. G. Brooks, Mr. G. Snodgrass, Mrs. E. Booth, Mrs. N. Slater, Mr. E. Rick, Mr. A. Slack, Mrs. V. Davy, Mrs. M. Bruygom, Mr. W. Coles and Miss K. Moore. All received a personal gift.

Cards have been received from Don Chamberlain our faithful and genial secretary who is spending a month in Norway with his son James and Scout Craig Dewar of Richmond.

Don is a Chosen Leader representing the Quebec Section of the Boy Scouts of Canada at the 14th World Jamboree of Scouts being held this year in Norway. They will spend some time in Sweden and Denmark while away.

Don has been an active Scout Leader for many years and has given freely of his time and talent in this work so his friends are proud and pleased that he has the honor of representing Canadian Scouts in a foreign Country.

Residents admitted to the Home this summer are Mr. R. Whitehead, Danville; Miss K. Moore, Montreal; Mrs. E. Patterson, Inverness; Mrs. L. LeVallee, Sherbrooke; Mrs. T. Michaud, Sherbrooke; Mrs. Mildred Lockwood, Danville; Mrs. Marion Goodenough, Sherbrooke and Mr. H. Rodgers, Cowansville.

Mr. R. Butler has resumed his administrative duties at the Home after spending a short vacation with his family at their summer home in Stanbridge East.

Miss J. Bell R.N. (Asst. Matron) has returned from a restful holiday spent at Windemere Lodge in the Muskoka Lake Area.

Mrs. L. Farley R.N. (Matron) is spending a short vacation with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. D. Bockus in Toronto.

Miss V. Miller, N.A., has returned from a vacation spent in the Canadian West. She accompanied other members of her family by plane to Regina and attended the marriage of her nephew Robert Miller of Danville and Dieder McLean of Moose Jaw and later the graduating exercises of the newly weds both as psychiatric nursing assistants.

Friends of Mrs. C. Lloyd (N.A.) are glad to know that she is progressing well at the Sherbrooke Hospital where she was taken by ambulance early in the week.

Mrs. Y. Hallam of the domestic staff was also a patient in the same hospital for a few days recently, when she underwent minor surgery.

Mrs. Nancy Hayes of the domestic staff remains a patient in a Sherbrooke Hospital when she is undergoing treatment.

Mrs. Leo McCart is in the University Hospital, Sherbrooke, where she has successfully undergone eye surgery. Best wishes to all!

A very enjoyable cookout was held on the patio recently when Nurses B. Keating, J. Humphies, H. Heckley, and K. Christie were guests of honor at a birthday party. The evening was perfect with 20 nurses present to enjoy the fun. Several games were played and birthday gifts presented before the party broke up. The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. M. Fleck, Mrs. M. Copping, Mrs. J. Blais, Miss E. Salaway, Mrs. D. Gallup and Miss L. Ouellette.

FOOD FOR AMERICANS

Jam it up with blueberries

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

For thousands of years blueberries have been a favorite fruit. Considered one of the most distributed of fruits, this special berry is eaten by those in the tropics and the tundra. Many still gather their blueberries wild, but thanks to a New Jersey woman's interest in the early 1900s, more varieties of blueberries were developed and now specially bred blueberries keep fans munching away year round. Fresh blueberries are good eaten-out-of-hand or cooked in jams, citrus marmalades or as mincemeat for relishes and pies. Quick freeze fresh blueberries now for use throughout winter months.

BLUEBERRY RHUBARB JAM
3 cups rhubarb cut into 1-inch pieces
3 cups fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
5 cups sugar
2 packages (3 ounces each) raspberry jello
Juice from 1/2 lemon

Mix rhubarb and blueberries (frozen blueberries may be used) with sugar and lemon juice and let stand in refrigerator overnight. Following day bring mixture to a boil over low heat and cook for 12 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in jello. Chill before serving. Ladle into sterilized jelly glasses and pour a 1/4-inch deep layer of melted paraffin over tops. Makes about 10 glasses.

BLUEBERRY CITRUS MARMALADE

2 navel oranges
2 lemons
2 green apples, peeled, cored and chopped
1/2 cup water
3/4 cups crushed fresh blueberries
5 cups sugar
1 bottle (6 ounces) liquid fruit pectin

With a sharp knife thinly slice off colored part of orange and lemon peel. Cut peel into thin shreds and place in a large saucepan. Add apples and water. Cover and simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Slice away white membrane and seeds of oranges and lemons and chop pulp. Add fruit pulp and blueberries (frozen blueberries may be used) to saucepan. Cover and simmer 12 minutes. Stir in sugar. Bring mixture to a full rolling boil. Boil hard for 1 minute. Stir in fruit pectin. Remove from heat and skim foam. Ladle mixture into sterilized 1/2 pint jars. Pour 1/4-inch deep layer of melted paraffin over tops. Store in a cool, dry, dark place. Makes 7 1/2

Blueberries are good base for marmalades, jams and mincemeat.

Cover and simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Slice away white membrane and seeds of oranges and lemons and chop pulp. BLUEBERRY MINCEMEAT
1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 beef bouillon cube
3 green apples, unpeeled, cored and finely chopped
1 pint fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
2 medium zucchini squash, trimmed and finely chopped
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup orange peel
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup water

In a large saucepan, mix water, lemon juice, bouillon cube, apples, blueberries, squash, orange peel, spices and sugar. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir gelatin into cold water. Stir this mixture into hot mincemeat. Spoon mixture into jars, cover and cool. Store in refrigerator until needed. Makes about 2 pints.

(Note: Use as a relish for meats or poultry, or as a filling for pie. Two cups of the mincemeat is enough for one 8-inch double crust pie. Bake pie as usual for mincemeat pie, serving warm or cold. This mixture cannot be frozen, since freezing would break down the gelatin. Keeps two months easily in the refrigerator.)

Sprouts break menu monotony

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Everyone wants some variety in his foods. Too often changes in menu get lost in the shuffle of busy schedules or through reluctance of family members to sample new dishes. The saying, "Try it, you'll like it," may not always hold true but it often opens new eating horizons for the more venturesome.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS IN EGG CREAM SAUCE
3 packages (10 ounces each) frozen Brussels sprouts
1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk

Brussels sprouts fans will want to share a great menu asset — Brussels sprouts in an egg cream sauce — as the next cooking venture.

1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon parsley flakes
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced

Cook Brussels sprouts as directed on package. Drain if necessary. Turn into serving dish and keep warm. In same saucepan, melt butter and blend in flour. Stir and cook until mixture begins to brown.

Gradually add 1 1/2 cups of milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils 1 minute. Lower heat. Blend raw egg with remaining milk and seasonings; stir into white sauce. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Pour over Brussels sprouts. Garnish with hard-cooked egg. Makes 8 servings.

Mrs. R. Moore honored by Loyalists

STANBRIDGE EAST (KDT) — On Thursday, July 31, Mrs. Gwendolyn Fuller, President of the Sir John Johnson Centennial Branch of the United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada gave an afternoon tea party at her home in Westmont in honour of Mrs. Ruby Moore, to show appreciation for her untiring work as genealogist of this branch.

Mrs. Moore was one of the charter members and it was greatly through her endeavours that the Branch was founded in Stanbridge East, at a formative meeting held on Nov. 21, 1967.

The Charter was obtained from the Dominion

Headquarters in Toronto, granted on Dec. 16, 1967, and presented at a semi-annual meeting in Lennoxville, June 8, 1968.

This Branch soon grew to become one of the largest of the 13 in the Dominion of Canada, if not the largest and continues to be a very active organization, always in quest of new members.

There are undoubtedly many residents of the Eastern Townships who would be eligible for membership, by contacting Mr. Charles McCaw, Abercorn, Que., who is the present genealogist, having replaced Mrs. Moore who has resigned, due to ill health.

Mr. Fuller pinned a corsage on Mrs. Moore who was completely taken by surprise when Don McCallum presented her with a substantial purse of money, from the guests.

Having regained her composure, Ruby very graciously thanked everyone for their kindness and generosity.

This gesture having been accomplished, the more than twenty guests partook of a lovely buffet lunch, provided by Mrs. Fuller and ably assisted by Mrs. Joyce Bradford, who, by the way, was beautifully gowned in period costume, 1880s.

In a sense, this was a U.E.L. farewell party to Mrs. Fuller's lovely old home which she has just recently disposed of.

Mrs. Fuller being an artist of note, has a great many oil paintings which were greatly admired.

It was a pleasure for all to meet Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hawke of Toronto. Mr. Hawke has represented our Branch at several U.E.L. annual meetings in Toronto. It was also nice to meet Mr. and Mrs. Herb Derick of Lennoxville, Mr. Derick being one of our past presidents.

A very enjoyable afternoon came to a close with everyone thanking Mrs. Fuller and Mrs. Bradford for their kind hospitality.

Vacation Bible School

DANVILLE (MF) — In spite of a record breaking heat wave, the children of this town enjoyed their annual week of Vacation Bible School and the teachers and helpers worked faithfully under rather uncomfortable weather conditions to make all this possible.

On Friday evening, all gathered at St. Augustine's Parish Hall for the Grande Finale, when the children gave a short program of songs and had on display the many items of handicraft made during the past few days.

The Rev. J. Johnson presented the collection received each day throughout the week to Mrs. Allan Sutherland, a donation for the Bible Society, while the silver collection received on Friday evening will be used towards financing next year's school.

The evening opened by a short prayer from Rev. J. Johnson, after which Mrs. J. Pye, chairman, expressed her appreciation for all the help given, especially to Mrs. M. Barlow, Mrs. L. Findlay, Mrs. G. Miller and Mrs. C. Perkins, who did the soliciting for cookies and Kool-aid, and a special thanks to Miss Karen Frost, who does the required typing each year.

The pre-schoolers met each morning in the Anglican church hall under the leadership of Beverly Findlay, Linda Murchie, Sandra Frost, Dorothy Bushey and Janet Gillim, with Barbara Cook, Bonnie LeRoux, Cindy LeRoux, Susan Findlay, Carol Mastine, Wendy Smith and Kelly Andrews.

Devotions and Music were the responsibility of Joan Pye, with Marion Sutherland as pianist, while Kathy Duffy was in charge of registration.

The stories and games were handled by Pat Hall, Judy Carson and Shelley Cook, while Hazel Pezzi prepared the mid-morning snacks each day.

In Trinity United Church hall the juniors were under the leadership of Phyllis Morrill with Ruth Perkins in charge of the primary.

Handicrafts were ably handled by Nancy Marston and Barbara Lundeborg with Joann Perkins and Bernice Andrews as helpers. Ruth Perkins was also in charge of music and had Mrs. Young as her pianist.

Linda Lodge, assisted by several others, took the devotions each morning and Klea Miller was in charge of the kitchen.

Joan Pye acted as treasurer for the entire group.

Becoming involved in this venture is the one sure way of being made aware of the great need that it fills in the lives of the town each summer, and it is always amazing at the hidden talent that is found as preparations are started quite early in the summer for this week of activity.

Throughout the winter months those who are actively involved in this venture are busy searching for new ideas and for handicrafts that can be made from material that is readily available. Then all start scrounging from their friends, so that the cost is kept at a minimum.

Now the workers have become real experts at coming up with new ideas each year that are practical and inexpensive.

Ann Landers

Kids as victims of crime

Dear Ann Landers: You have, in the past, printed some very useful suggestions and guidelines sent in by readers. As Superintendent of the Allegheny County Police, I would like to share with you some literature put out by the Boys and Girls Crime Prevention Corps. We hope young people everywhere will profit from these rules:

1. Keep out of wooded areas, empty lots and empty buildings.
2. Do not talk with strangers or get into a car driven by a person you don't know.
3. Never thumb rides.
4. Don't permit anyone you don't know to touch or handle you.
5. Turn down any offer by a stranger who asks you to sell things or pass things out.
6. Do not take candy or money from strangers.
7. Keep away from strangers who get friendly in a movie, park, swimming pool or other public place.
8. Never eat anything or puff on anything given to you by a stranger.

If someone should grab hold of you, do the following:

1. Scream as loud as you can. Keep screaming. Don't stop.

2. Jerk free and run as fast as you can.

3. Run to the nearest home or building and tell the first person you see what happened.

4. Call the police and your parents. Remain there until someone comes for you.
5. Try to remember the description of the person who bothered you. — Robert G. Kroner, Supt., Allegheny County Police, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dear Friend: Thanks for the expert advice. I hope parents everywhere will go over your suggestions with their children and reemphasize the importance of each one. It could mean the difference between life and death.

Dear Ann: I've heard of married men who lie and say they are single. But what about a single man who lies and says he is married?

I've been seeing Dick for six months. He has promised to marry me as soon as he is able to get a divorce. I learned today that he isn't married.

What do you make of it? I'm — Zonked

Dear Z.: Wake up and smell the coffee, honey. He's a liar — out for whatever he can get. And if, after you read this, he gets anything more than a Methodist handshake and swift farewell, you have oatmeal where your brains belong.

Dear Ann Landers: I need help with a problem concerning my intimate life. I'm 24, female and have trouble with men. To be honest with you, Ann, I can't stand them. When it comes to sex, men turn me off — completely. I haven't expressed my feelings to anyone because I'm sure they'd think I was a lesbian. I have never had sexual relations with anyone, although I am strongly attracted to certain women I know.

Could this be a passing phase? Is it possible that I can somehow learn to like men? Believe me, I've tried — but they leave me cold. What do you make of this? My future depends on your answer. — Very Anonymous

Dear V.A.: If you are 24, "can't stand men" and are "strongly attracted" to certain women you know, I can tell you it's no "passing phase."

I urge you to get counseling. You need a great deal more help than I can give you in a single letter. That help is tied in with the answers to many questions a counselor would ask. Get moving.

Are drugs O.K. if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill., 60120.

Indians urged to fight pollution by mercury

MINAMATA, Japan (CP) — Japanese mercury victims have told Ontario Indians to become militant over their pollution problems in the Kenora district. The advice was given aboard a bus that carried five representatives of the Grassy Narrows and Whitedog reserves of north western Ontario to this village where more than 100 residents have been killed and more than 700 maimed and blinded by mercury. The touring Indians were from reserves downriver from the Dryden Chemical Co. and its pulp and paper plant at Dryden, which in 1970 was found to be discharging mercury waste. High concentrations of mercury were discovered in fish, and commercial fishing on the reserve was closed. The Indians also lost about 100 jobs guiding visiting anglers because of the closing of two large fishing lodges. Andy Keewatin, the soft-spoken chief of the Grassy Narrows Ojibwa band, reacted cautiously to the suggestion to adopt confrontation tactics. But former chief Tommy Keesick, 29, disagreed. "I believe from now on one has to be a little radical to get things done. We, the younger generation, feel we have to take radical alternatives to wake up the government."

SYMPTOMS DETECTED
Several symptoms of Minamata disease have been detected on the two Ontario reserves, but no deaths have been confirmed and no acute cases documented. However, the Indians suspect some of the residents are affected. "Does the government," Mr. Keesick asked, "want 300 of our people to die before they do something about it? They have got to wake up. They are doing a poor job for the people and the province they control."

The Indians met misshapen and mentally-retarded children during their tour as the devastating effects of mercury pollution were displayed for them. Forty children were born in the late 1950s and early 1960s with congenital Minamata disease because their mothers had eaten too much mercury-contaminated fish during pregnancy. Seven of them have died. Edouard was born at Rock Island, a son of the late Laurence Simoneau and his wife, Mrs. Beatrice (Bolduc) Simoneau. He was educated at Sacred Heart School, attended St. Anselm College and graduated from Bugbee Business College. Shortly after, he enlisted in the Canadian navy, then transferred to the army division and served with United Nations in the Congo. He was at the time of his sudden death employed by the Quebec Cartier Mining in the Purchasing department. The funeral was held at St. Paul's Church in Montreal on July 21 with interment in Cote des Neiges Cemetery. Edouard is survived by his wife, the former Lillian Kane and their seven children, his mother, Mrs. Beatrice Simoneau, two sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Karl (Therese) Haffbauer, Mrs. Gerald (Jeannette) Dupuis, all of Montreal, Rene Simoneau of Toronto, Ont., Albert Simoneau, Rock Island, his grandmother, Mrs. Walter Simoneau, Rock Island, uncles, aunts, nieces, nephews and more distant relatives.

But there are fewer and fewer old. Government programs likewise seem geared towards a work force of middle-aged husbands and fathers who are the sole breadwinners in a household and must have and hold a job. Unemployment insurance programs had such workers uppermost in mind. Parliament seemed to have the adult male breadwinner in mind when it approved the present unemployment system in 1971.

Manpower programs designed to move workers between industries and places often founder on attitudes that put living satisfaction above job security. Labor economist Kenneth Strand of Vancouver says he sees managerial attitudes changing substantially in the next 10 years because many now in senior positions started working during the 1930s Depression when jobs were much more vital than today. But they are being replaced by those developing in less harsh economic conditions.

ISSUE FORECASTS
In any event, the federal manpower department has begun issuing forecasts of the number of new jobs expected to develop in new industries as far ahead as six years. Companies do little such planning, says Duncan Campbell, assistant deputy minister for planning and research in the manpower department.

—The increased participation in the labor force, especially the growth in numbers of young people and adult women, has been accompanied by a change in the old view that it is important to get a secure job and hold it—to stick to a line of work, if not one employer, for life. "Young adults and adult women . . . are typically secondary income earners in the family and, therefore, may have weaker job attachments," says the annual spring review of the economy published by the federal finance department. EASY TO SWITCH

Adequate unemployment insurance, "together with the growing social acceptance of the right to seek satisfying jobs," has made it easier for people to change jobs and even stay unemployed for stretches between jobs, the finance department observes. But planners and policymakers—and employers—will have to adjust to the changed employment habits and attitudes, economists say.

The idea is no longer valid that young people and women moving in and out of employment constitute the fringe of the labor market, says Mr. Raynauld. Preliminary results of a study of the labor force indicate that the so-called fringe makes up a major proportion of available employees. "The regular employee—stable, keeping his job—is not yet a minority, but almost."

DOING WHAT COMES NATURALLY it may be for most people, but walking is quite a feat for young Anthony Johnson of Newton, N.C. Anthony was born with severely twisted legs which were amputated when he was 18 months old to save him from a life in a wheelchair. Now on his second set of legs, Anthony, Newton's March of Dimes poster child, rides a tricycle, runs and plays like any other four-year-old.

Canadian labor force mainly young and female

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian labor force is predominantly young and female now.

It involves a greater proportion of the population than ever before.

But a diminishing fraction of that work force—10.34 million in June, reflecting the usual summer swelling by students and others—is employed making things.

In these and other ways, the nature of employment has been transformed in the last decade or more.

And economic planners inside and outside governments say they worry that public attitudes and programs have not kept pace with the fundamental changes.

Education, recruitment, retraining and unemployment programs in many cases are geared to a long-gone workaday world when male heads of families dominated a labor force comprising less than half the working-age population and most employees were engaged in turning out products of factory, forest or farm. "The view of our labor market has to be changed very drastically," says Andre Raynauld, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada.

Canadian skiers leave for 21 days in Argentina and Chile

TORONTO — Thirteen of Canada's top alpine skiers leave here today for three weeks of intensive training in South America as part of their Olympic preparations. The team of eight men and five girls will train for 10 days in Bariloche, Argentina before travelling to Portillo, Chile for the balance of the training period. The squad returns to Canada Aug. 26.

Members of the men's team are Gary Aiken of Trail, B.C., Jim Hunter of Calgary, Dave Irwin of Thunder Bay, Ont., Joey Lavigne of Ottawa, Bob Miller of North Vancouver, Dave Murray of Abbotsford, B.C., Steve Podborski of Toronto and Ken Read of Calgary.

On the girl's squad are Betsy and Susan Clifford of Old Chelsea, Quebec, Karen Cloutier of Lorraine, Que., and Kathy and Laurie Kreiner from Timmins, Ont. "It is a small squad compared to recent years," commented alpine program director Luc Dubois of Hull, Que. "It reflects a change in policy in so far as these 13 have proven their worth to us and can benefit most from the South American camp."

However, as in previous years, the men's team continues to be oriented towards the downhill event. Four national slalom and giant slalom racers remain behind namely Yvon Blackburn of Chicoutimi, John Hilland and Keith Humphrey of Calgary and Bob Safrata of Willowdale, Ont.

Humphrey has been selected to join the Australian racing circuit during August where he will compete in six events.

Two other members of the men's national team from 1974-75 have since retired. They are Russell Goodman of Montreal and Alain Cousineau of Brownsburg, Quebec.

In charge of the men's program in South America will be head coach Scott Henderson of Bolter and assistant coach Wayne Gruden of Grand Forks, B.C. Lyn McIntosh of Thunder Bay will again coach the women's squad.

By LEN O'DONNELL
Heat didn't seem to be a problem with the odd 182 young aspiring hockey players at the Ghislain Delage Hockey School which was held at the Sports Palace this week.

The school, which is under the control of Ghislain Delage, coach of Junior Beavers of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, is well prepared to handle the large number of young players between the ages of 7 and 18 years of age.

The School is divided into six groups and each instructor has a limited number of youngsters to handle. They are shown the basic points of the game of hockey and are given an opportunity of putting them in effect under the watchful eye of their instructor.

Coach Delage has seven well informed instructors besides himself to take charge of the pupils. Joe Leduc, Alain Chicoine and Robert Simpson, members of the Beavers, are helping out along with Reg Vallieres, Jacques Lachance, Jacques Cote and Luc St. Jean. This makes a well balanced squad to look after the various phases of the game.

The classes opened at 8:00 a.m. and continued until 6:00 p.m. Each instructor gets a new group after a couple of hours while the kids take a well earned rest, but the instructors continue throughout the day.

All the fine points of the game are pointed out and the youngsters can put them into effect immediately. This way they are shown their faults and are corrected right on the spot.

Despite the large number of youngsters on the ice there is no problem, in fact they seem easier to control than the older pupils. The players are placed in their own age group which is a good method as they don't run up against the bigger boys and the risk of getting hurt is eliminated.

It is a well organized school and everybody goes about their work and there are no hitches any place on the ice. They each have their own place on the ice and there is no wandering around, they remain within their proper group.

The school opened Aug. 2 and ended today Aug. 6 and no doubt everybody had a pleasant four-day camp. We are sure the youngsters learnt plenty as they had the proper instruction under good supervision and this is a big factor in the success of such a school.

Hall of Fame Bill Cowley says tomorrow more important than recalling his NHL playing days

OTTAWA (CP) — For Bill Cowley, National Hockey League Hall of Fame member, scoring titlist and Hart Trophy winner, tomorrow is more important than recalling the days of his hockey exploits.

Now 63 and wanting to retire from his tavern business and involvement with Ottawa 67s junior hockey team, Cowley says he gets his greatest kicks by going to the YMCA and engaging "one of those young studs in a game of handball."

"I can run the hell out of them," he says. "They pour sweat but I never do. Most of them have the legs but nothing between the ears. That's where it counts."

It all means more than recalling the late 1930s and '40s when the smooth centre turned routine hockey players into scoring sensations. Mel Hill was an unknown until he scored three overtime goals in one playoff series after being set up by Cowley and was dubbed "Sudden Death" Hill.

OWNS TAVERN, TEAM
Cowley was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1968, 21 years after he retired from Boston Bruins to enter the hotel business in Smiths Falls, Ont. He now is a major owner of a large Ottawa tavern and co-owner of the junior hockey team.

He broke into the NHL in 1934-35 with the old St. Louis Eagles and was bought by Boston Bruins the next season. In his 12 years with Boston, the five-foot 10 centre won the Hart Trophy as the most valuable player in 1941 and 1943.

He won the league scoring title in the 1940-41 season with 17 goals and 45 assists, a tribute to his play-making ability. He was selected to the NHL first all-star team four times and the second team once.

WON STANLEY CUP
Bruins won three league titles and two Stanley Cups, 1939 and 1941, with players such as Cowley, Milt Schmidt and Dit Clapper.

Cowley says there is no one thing from his illustrious career that stands out in his memory.

Undoubtedly the finest hockey player ever to come from Ottawa, he was also an outstanding basketballer, having performed with a Glebe collegiate team that won a Canadian championship.

He has been a forceful voice for indigent NHLers. A special fund has been set aside by the league for players of his era and he has argued for payments to players whom he thinks really need help.

"RACING IS DEAD IN SHERBROOKE"
 How often we have heard this remark but if you were at the Sherbrooke Track Tuesday you would have seen that there certainly wasn't much truth in the saying as far as the local fans are concerned.

I AGREE THAT PERHAPS the Quebec Circuit-Export A competition had something to do with it but on the other hand I wandered around Tuesday evening I remarked that the majority of the people were from local surroundings who have been racing fans for years.

THIS YEAR THE TRACK is having a great season judging from the results to date. On Tuesday 2,811 fans shoved the amount of $67,700 through the mutual windows. This is a new figure for the current season and was just short of beating the all-time high by a few hundred. This should be sufficient to put an end to all the rumors about the track.

GILLES GENDRON PROVED once again that he is one of the top reinsmen in Canada when it comes to handling a race horse. He paced his mile in perfect style. He went to the quarter in 30-2 seconds, the half in 1:02 and the home in 1:02-2 for a 2:04-2 mile which you must admit it was well balanced.

GARCON ANGUS, owned by Gaston Tremblay of Chicoutimi, had a little bad luck in the second division. He had just finished the mile when just beyond the finish-line, he seemed to dip a little and went on three legs. Jean got his horse back just beyond the grand-stand but that was it. No one could say just what happened but I was standing near the finish line and saw it. It certainly was a tough break for Andre Jean and the owner. He had picked up the sum of $14,536 for the current year and seemed to be on his way home to a good season.

ANYWAY IT WAS A pleasant evening and we are sure that the majority of the fans enjoyed it. Even the Weather Man came through with a fine performance.

CONGRATULATIONS ARE IN order for Denis Roch who has won the Eastern Townships Junior Girls championship. It was played at Valcourt Golf Club. She posted 79 for her opening round and then came back with 81 to cop the title by six strokes over Carole Caron, Josee Perusse, both of Asbestos, and Guylaine Cliche of the Sherbrooke Country Club. Nice shooting girls.

LAKE MEGANTIC GOLF CLUB will be staging their 9th annual Open this Saturday and Sunday and a large group of contestants should be on hand for the popular event. 191 golfers took part last year in the tourney.

THE COURSE IS IN perfect condition and although it is only nine holes it can give golfers plenty of trouble if one should stray from the fairways. It is a well laid-out course and the scenery is out of this world, overlooking the lake. It can be seen from at least six holes and is just beautiful.

RCMP OFFICERS ARE moving into the sporting circles judging from a story out of Montreal and Ottawa. They seized 143 sets of golf clubs, worth around $60,000.

IT SEEMS THAT golfers are bringing clubs into Canada without paying the proper duty and taxes. They are using serial numbers and model numbers to identify the American clubs. This has been going on for years. We wonder what caused the RCMP to take action finally.

A RCMP SPOKESMAN said it will cost pro shops, involved, double the original purchase price. 50 sets were seized at Hillsdale Golf Club. RCMP detachments have been conducting investigations all over Canada. So boys watch your clubs, especially if you bought them across the border on a trip down south.

SUTTON VALLEY HORSE SHOW, for children 16 years and under, will be held Saturday, Aug. 9, on Academy Street, according to information received from President Robyn Quigley.

ENTRIES HAVE NOW reached 23, compared to eleven last year, and President Quigley figures there will be a lot more. Nice work Mrs. Quigley and congratulations to you and your committee.

IT WILL BE INTERESTING to watch CBC-TV special Sunday at 1:30 about the Montreal Olympics regarding the cost and everything else. No matter what one says Mayor Jean Drapeau is confident the Games will pay for themselves. This is hard to understand when you eye the cost of everything but Mayor Drapeau isn't worrying about it. It must be nice to have that confidence when the odds are all on the other side.

I WOULD LIKE to congratulate Ghislain Delage and his group of instructors for their fine work at the Delage Hockey School. A total of 182 youngsters, between the ages of 7 and 18, were on hand to attend the School.

IT WAS ONE OF THE best organized affairs I have witnessed during my years of kicking around the hockey world. It was well set-up and with about 60 kids on the ice at once everything was under control. There was no shouting or running from one group to the other. It was strictly business, and I mean business. The kids stuck to their job, and remained with their instructor. It was a pleasure to watch. So Ghislain on behalf of the youngsters I would like to pay you and your instructors a "BIG THANK YOU" for a perfect job accomplished in tip-top style.

Rally gives Mets win over Expos

NEW YORK — Senior umpire Tommy Gorman halted the New York Mets-Montreal Expos game in the top of the ninth inning last night with the Mets leading 9-6. In steady rain, the delay came as the Expos had the bases loaded, none out, and two runs already in.

The Mets surged ahead from a 4-2 deficit in the sixth inning by scoring seven runs aided along by five walks.

FIRST HOMER

It was Mackanin who brought in the game's first run when, with two outs in the second, he homered over the left field fences.

The Mets, however, nearly got that run back in the bottom of the second when Mike Phillips tripled into the right field corner past Carter. But the hit came with two outs and the next batter, Stone, ruined the scoring threat by grounding to Mackanin.

As in the previous day's doubleheader, the Expos exploded in the third. Manquel started it by homering to left.

With Carter at bat, Stone tried to pick Frias off first but the ball hit him in the head. He went to second and Kranepool's attempt to get him there ended up as a throw into centre field.

That came on a 3-0 count on Carter. The next pitch was into the dirt and to the backstop enabling Frias to go to third and giving Carter a walk. Then Morales hit the ball over centrefielder Del Unser's head scoring Frias and Carter and going to third himself.

POPPED OUT

Morales didn't score when Bailey grounded to Kranepool and Parrish popped up to Felix Millan.

Hank Webb came in to pitch for the Mets in the fourth. Stone had shown some difficulty in the second and third innings and forced Mets' new manager Roy McMillan to go to the mound to check on him.

Webb allowed only one baserunner, Renko on a walk, in the inning.

The Mets finally scored some in the bottom of the fourth. Staub led off with a looping single into centre that nobody could quite reach. Then Wayne Garrett hit the ball off the left field fence, just over the home run line to score the Mets first two runs of the game.

Phillips got a single following the Garrett home run but the inning ended when Webb struck out and Unser flied out to Carter.

Webb did a fine job on the Expos in the fifth and sixth innings allowing only one hit. With one out in the fifth, Carter doubled down the left field line. But then two pinch-hitters, Mike Jorgensen, up for Morales, and Jim Dwyer, hitting for Bailey, was out leaving Carter at second.

Mets fire Yogi Berra

NEW YORK — (AP) — What more was he supposed to do, this short, funny man who came out of the Italian barrios of St. Louis to give New York's sports lovers three decades in winning?

For his troubles, Lawrence Peter Berra, only the second man in history to manage pennant winners in both major leagues has been fired again. He now has the distinction of having been given the boot by both of this city's teams, the ones he took to the pinnacle.

Maybe because he never won the World Series, Yogi Berra was expendable. If so, what reward is there for three decades of sterling service to a city and a sport?

An original in a business that has too many matched bookends, Yogi has been an embodiment of the best of sport since 1946, when he joined the Yankees.

The man with the fireplug build, who made it from the sandlots of St. Louis to that revered hall in Cooperstown, was said to be one of the best clutch hitters the game has seen.

His detractors would say that was because this man with only an eighth-grade education didn't know enough to be bothered by pressure. They would also say his teams won despite his managing, or that his teams lost because he managed poorly.

His record is impressive. After a brilliant 18-year playing career, he became manager of the Yankees in 1964. The club won 99 games and the American League pennant.

Fergy quits as president

MONTREAL — (CP) — John Ferguson resigned yesterday as president of Montreal Quebecois of the National Lacrosse League, apparently after growing disagreement with co-owner Nelson Stoll and general manager-coach Jim Bishop.

"I have been obliged to make this decision due to my numerous outside activities which leave me very little time to attend to my duties as president of the team," said Ferguson. "I will, however, remain in close contact with professional lacrosse in Montreal."

Robert Dagenais, now becomes president of the club." Ferguson and Stoll have owned the team since the NLL was formed last year.

There has been a growing rift between them since Bishop was hired by Stoll last winter. "I just don't see eye to eye with Jim Bishop," Ferguson said recently.

The Quebecois statement made no mention of Ferguson selling his shares in the team, although he is expected to do so. He was not available for comment.

Third-seeded Richard Nakon of Toronto advanced meanwhile with a 6-2, 6-4, 7-6 victory over Peter Sutcliffe of Dorval after Sutcliffe botched match point.

That sets up semi-finals today sending Brunner against Ralph Dinkla of Toronto and Nakon against Jon Schachter of Montreal.

In the boys 16-and-under, all four top seeds have been eliminated. No. 1-ranked Danny Whittaker of Toronto fell 6-2, 6-2 to Terry Robinson of Toronto while sixth-ranked Martin Lachapelle of Laval ousted fourth-seeded Bill Cowan of Toronto 6-1, 6-2 and Montreal's Greg Boire, No. 7,
