Leading congressmen say Nixon's "chances poor"

WASHINGTON (AP) — With House of Representatives debate on the impeachment of the president due to start in two weeks, some leading congressmen representing both parties and various political philosophies say President Nixon's chances are poor.

Rep. John Ashbrook (Rep. Ohio), a leading conservative who supports impeachment, said Wednesday that he expects the House to vote to impeach Nixon by nearly a 3 to 1 margin.

Republican whip Leslie Arends, considered the Republican congressional leader closest to Nixon, was asked how he would assess Nixon's chances of avoiding impeachment.

"I would not tell him it looks good," Arends replied.

Democratic Leader Thomas O'Neill predicted more than 75 per cent of the members will vote to impeach the president.

O'Neill said his discussions with members indicate no more than 38 of the 248 Democrats and fewer than 80 of the 197 Republicans will support the president on impeachment.

ODDS NOT GOOD

And the leader of the unsuccessful Nixon supporters the House judiciary committee, Rep. Charles Wiggins (Rep. Calif.) said, "At the moment, I would have to say the odds are that the House would pass them (the articles of impeachment)."

The statements came as the House prepared for debate on the three impeachment articles approved by the judiciary committee.

There were these related developments:

—White House aide Patrick Buchanan said the White House was keeping open the option of giving up a fight in the House of Representatives in order to expedite Senate action. However, a number of House members said this would amount to a cop-out.

—Senators began studying impeachment rules and the definition of what would be required to convict Nixon in a Senate trial.

—Sen. Joseph Montoya (Dem. N.M.) said Nixon should not use public money for his own defence in a Senate impeachment trial.

—Nixon's Watergate lawyer, James St. Clair, disclosed that more than five minutes are missing from White House tapes of a Watergate conversation between the president and two close advisers.

The 10 Republican members of the judiciary committee who voted against impeachment held a meeting of their own Wednesday to plan defence moves, and later met with House Republican Leader John Rhodes. Rhodes, who says he remains undecided how to vote on impeachment, is meeting regularly with groups of Republicans to find out where they stand.

Dissidents suspended remain Liberal: Bourassa

QUEBEC (CP) — The two Liberal members of the Quebec national assembly, who voted against the government's official language bill, have been suspended from caucus until their fate is decided but they still are Liberal party members, Premier Robert Bourassa said Wednesday.

The premier told a news conference the suspension of George Springate (Montreal-St. Anne) and John Ciaccia (Montreal-Mont Royal) means they will not be invited to any Liberal caucus meeting until a special caucus is held to decide if they will be expelled or subject to other reprimands.

Mr. Bourassa refused to comment when asked what his recommendation to the caucus in the case would be but said no other ministers or caucus members had demanded the two dissidents be expelled.

He added that "a factor to consider" in the case was that the two members represent the English and ethnic minority in the assembly minorities which are not represented by the eight-man Parti Quebecois and Creditiste opposition.

No date has been set for the caucus meeting at which the matter will be discussed.

Mr. Bourassa said he will discuss with Mr. Ciaccia his role as the premier's special representative in negotiations with native peoples in northern Quebec over the James Bay hydro-electric project.

"I didn't tell him to cease all contact with the Indians," Mr. Bourassa said.

BROKE PARTY LINE

Mr. Springate and Mr. Ciaccia broke party lines twice during the debate on the bill making French Quebec's official language, voting against it on second and third reading.

Both Mr. Ciaccia and Mr. Springate have said they were not told they were suspended but simply informed they would not be invited to the Liberal caucus until a decision on their fate had been taken.

The two men say the legislation discriminates against the English minority in Quebec and is in part unconstitutional.

Mr. Bourassa told the news conference he will be undertaking a publicity campaign next month after the assembly adjourns to explain the official language bill to Quebecers.

The campaign will include appearances on radio and television, in English and French.

The premier said he did not expect a violent backlash over the bill from the English minority in Quebec, adding "the majority of Anglophones believe that the government had to act so that there would be more Francophones in the business world."

A language minister will be appointed to oversee the administration of the legislation, but the task will be assigned to a current member of the cabinet, Mr. Bourassa said.

Live grenade killed cadets

QUEBEC (CP) — Officials at Valcartier Canadian Forces Base said Wednesday that a live grenade passed from hand to hand during an explosives safety course caused the deaths of six cadets Tuesday and the injury of more than 40 others.

But how the grenade came to be among the dummy devices for demonstration still is the subject of inquiries by the Canadian Forces, Quebec Provincial Police and a coroner's inquest ordered by Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette.

Three cadets are in serious condition and 11 other persons, including course instructor Capt. Jean-Claude Giroux, remain in hospital with minor injuries. Dr. Jean-Paul Vezina told a news conference.

About 30 other cadets were treated for shrapnel wounds or shock and released, he said.

Reporters who visited the pocked and blood-smeared classroom where the explosion took place were told that examination to date showed that an M-61 anti-personnel grenade exploded in the hands of a cadet seated on the floor in front of a display of explosives.

In Montreal, Blanche Milkowski, whose 16-year-old son Daniel was injured in the explosion, said the cadets, were being shown Second World War grenades.

Daniel saw one of the boys handling a grenade and saw him pull the pin, said Mrs. Milkowski, who talked to her son at the base hospital by telephone.

A boy standing immediately in front of Daniel absorbed the impact of the explosion and was killed, Mrs. Milkowski reported her son telling her.

Survivors said there were about 100 cadets, aged 14 to 17, in the room at the time, receiving instruction on how to identify unexploded ammunition that they might find in the training area of the military base.

"We were told how dangerous these things were and that we shouldn't touch them if we found them on the grounds," said Richard Borkiewicz, a 14-year-old cadet from Montreal who was injured slightly.

"The grenades were being passed around so we could look at them."

WITNESSES CONFUSED

None of the cadets interviewed by reporters saw clearly what happened.

"All of a sudden there was an explosion," said Ian Anderson, 15, of the Montreal suburb of Baie d'Urfe.

"Some guys jumped out the window, some ran out the door and there was a lot of screaming and blood," he said. "One guy had a black hole where his face was."

Cadets said rumors were running around the base that the ammunition for the demonstration was not in the instructor's possession for a while before the course session.

Col. Robert Whitelaw, in charge of the cadets at the base, said no conclusions could be drawn from the "confused" and conflicting versions given by the cadets.

He said about 80 to 100 parents had come to the camp to see that their children were all right but that no cadet had been withdrawn from the program.

There are about 1,600 cadets in summer training on the base.

Brig.-Gen. Robert Heitschu, commander of the base, said that it was possible that a practice grenade had been brought into the class by a cadet. Dummy models are color-coded differently than grenades used in field practice but their weight and appearance are the same.

Results of inquiries into the incident are not expected before next week.

Col. Roderick Sullivan said courses in explosives at the cadet camp had been cancelled until the cause of the explosion was determined.

Morgentaler bailed

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler, sentenced last week to 18 months in jail for performing an illegal abortion, Wednesday was permitted to await an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada free on bail.

Crown prosecutor Louis G. Robichaud had filed petition last Friday asking the Quebec Court of Appeal to either imprison Dr. Morgentaler or order him to surrender his passport and deposit a "large amount" of bail money.

Chief Justice Lucien Tremblay did not wait to hear from the defence before rejecting the Crown's request.

The Montreal doctor, who says he has performed 5,000 to 6,000 abortions during the last four years to demonstrate his opposition to Canadian abortion law, remains free on $25,000 bail pending an appeal Oct. 4 to the Supreme Court.

Court of Queen's Bench sentenced Dr. Morgentaler to 18 months in jail and a three-year probation last Thursday after overturning an acquittal last November of performing an abortion on an unmarried 26-year-old graduate student.

Assembly adjourned

QUEBEC (CP) — The second session of the 30th Quebec national assembly adjourned Wednesday until Oct. 29 shortly after the legislation making French Quebec's official language was given royal assent.

The adjournment of the session, which began March 14, comes after more than two months of tough debate on the official language bill, the most important piece of legislation dealt with in the session.

The legislature adopted 66 laws during the session, including 29 private bills.

RCMP not blackened

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Samson, a seven-year veteran of the RCMP currently under police guard in hospital, told reporters Wednesday he has done nothing to blacken the name of the police force.

Constable Samson, 29, is being questioned by Montreal police in connection with a bombing incident Friday outside the home of a Steinberg's Ltd. executive Melvyn Dobrin in suburban town of Mount Royal.

"I have two things to say," the policeman said.

"My work as a member of the RCMP was never to put bombs anywhere as it is not the work of a policeman. I do not have anything to reproach myself for."

Constable Samson also told reporters his father is in serious condition in hospital and fears the shock might be fatal should he hear his son's name being mentioned in connection with the incident.

CHARGES UNCERTAIN

A Montreal police spokesman Wednesday could not confirm whether charges would be laid against the RCMP officer.

A bomb, which apparently went off prematurely in the hands of the bomber, partially damaged the patio of the Dobrin residence early Friday morning.

Police investigators found a blood-stained glove at the scene which led them to believe the device was being handled when the explosion occurred.

Election Act legal today

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's first legislation limiting election spending takes effect today, less than a month after what was almost certainly the most expensive election in the country's history.

The Election Expenses Act received Commons approval and royal assent almost seven months ago, but inter-party discussion of the complicated bill plus an extra delay of about two weeks caused by the recent election meant it could not go into force until now.

Despite the post-passage deliberations and lengthy consideration of the legislation by Parliament, it seems likely some minor problems will have to be cleared up by means of legislation in the new Parliament.

Major parties spokesmen described remaining problems as minor and technical, while Chief Electoral Officer Jean Marc Hamel said there appears to be "a consensus for legislative amendments" to clear up some of the trouble spots.

The main purpose of the act is to limit spending by candidates to control contributions while providing some public money to political parties.

COSTS RISING

The act was introduced in the Commons June 22, 1973, about eight months after the October, 1972, general election in which more than $10 million was spent.

With inflation soaring since then and a close battle expected, there is no doubt that the July 8 election cost even more.

Already, there are unofficial reports on Parliament Hill of two western candidates in a head-to-head battle spending a combined total of more than $400,000.

Such expenditures should be things of the past under the new law. Candidates will be limited to spending $1 for each of the first 15,000 voters in their ridings, 50 cents for each of the next 10,000 and 25 cents for each voter over 25,000. Also, parties will be allowed to spend 30 cents for each voter.

Limited postage, travel and auditing expenses will be provided each candidate out of public purse. The maximum income-tax-deductible donation will be $500 and all donations of more than $100, whether in one or several contributions, will have to be made public.

Radio and television stations are to provide 6½ hours of prime time to registered parties during elections, partly paid out of public funds.

Mr. Hamel said it is difficult to estimate how the total spending of parties and candidates during elections will compare under the new system with the previous situation where some candidates spent huge sums while others run their campaigns on shoestring budgets.

"I suspect the net difference won't be that much, but the big spenders won't be allowed to spend as much."

The almost inevitable election-to-election gain in campaign spending also would be curbed by the new regulations.

Turkey violates peace

Turkish troops on Cyprus have seized two more towns in violation of the new ceasefire agreement, the United Nations reported, but one of the Turkish invasion commanders said he expects the accord to hold today.

Although the agreement prohibits territorial expansion beyond the lines held when it was signed Tuesday night in Geneva, a UN spokesman in Cyprus said Turkish tanks and naval guns on Wednesday shelled Karavas and Laphos, seven and nine miles west of Kyrenia, forcing the Greek Cypriot National Guard to abandon the towns.

The Greek-Cypriot foreign minister, Dimis Demetriou, said his government had protested to the United Nations, the United States, Greece and Britain. He said President Glafcos Clerides had issued "strict orders to Greek-Cypriot national guard to observe the ceasefire," and he indicated that they were told to retreat rather than resist Turkish advances.

Demetriou conceded that the Greek-Cypriots had not begun implementing the provision in the Geneva agreement requiring them to withdraw from Turkish enclaves they seized. He added that the UN peacekeeping force was "taking some time getting started" to supervise withdrawals required by the agreement.

DISCUSS POLICING

In New York, the Security Council began wrestling with the problems involved in the expansion of the UN force's task to include the policing of a buffer zone around the approximately 200 square miles of territory occupied by the Turkish invaders.

As a first step, the council took up a seemingly innocuous resolution authorizing Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to evaluate the new tasks set for the international force by the Geneva accord.

But Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik demanded that nothing be done until he could ascertain the Kremlin's views on the "new function" that the UN force is being asked to take on. When the council went ahead with a vote on the resolution, Malik vetoed it.

Western sources expressed fears that Soviet manoeuvring in the council might delay full application of the Geneva agreement and that this would result in a flareup of the fighting.

Groups plan British overthrow

LONDON (CP) — Alarming reports are beginning to filter out about plans by scattered clandestine groups to overthrow the elected government in Britain's mounting economic problems worsen in the months ahead.

Because of the secrecy with which most of these organizations surround themselves, it is impossible to determine their precise nature or the exact size of their followings.

But initial investigations, particularly a well-documented report in The Daily Mail, suggest that the groups are united in their belief that a new government of "inspiring leaders" may have to be placed in power—with military backing—if last winter's industrial strife is repeated this year.

Their strength, whatever its magnitude may eventually turn out to be, seems to be drawn mainly from right-wing well-to-do private citizens, former military personnel and some prominent financiers and bankers.

At least one leading political figure, Lord Hailsham, a Conservative former lord chancellor, already has warned of the dangers of the new developments.

WANT LEADERSHIP

Lord Hailsham attributes the growth of the largely-secret groups to the "kind of (economic) situation this country is now facing and the inability or unwillingness of politicians to give us leadership."

One of the leading "alternate government" networks appears to be a collection of people headed by retired Gen. Sir Walter Walker, once a top officer in NATO.

Walker refuses to discuss details of his organization but he says that one day recently he received 450 letters and 35 telephone calls before lunch offering to back him in his attempt "to warn the country of the disaster facing us" from a worsening trade balance, skyrocketing prices and industrial unrest.

Of the present leaders, Walker said: "None of them are trustworthy. . . None can inspire like Churchill could. And this is what this country needs—a Churchill figure."

READY TO ACT

Walker contends that all the diverse groups sharing his opinions now have established a nationwide, well-co-ordinated network ready to act at any time.

Another organization, calling itself the National Association of ratepayers Action Groups and claiming a membership of 13 million, has made public that it, too, is searching for a man capable of taking the full power of government away from the present leaders in the event of more economic chaos.

Maxwell Rebekah Lodge

BISHOPTON - A meeting of Maxwell Rebekah Lodge was held Wednesday evening with Sister Flora McIntyre N.G. presiding.

After the minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted a light bill was presented and ordered paid.

More walk-a-thon money was handed in and Sister Bernice Clarke brought the money that Maxwell cleared for making luncheon for a 50th wedding anniversary.

A discussion followed regarding the President's visit on August 22 and the District meeting November 2.

The members decided to pay Maxwell's share of the expenses incurred for items bought for the conclave drill.

Each member was asked to bring a small gift as prize for a Bingo party to be played by members after the next meeting.

The meeting was closed in ritual form with only five members present.

Business spotlights on Montreal metric plan introduction

TORONTO (CP) - The Canadian Manufacturers' Association (CMA) has established a metric resources centre to help ease its members into conversion to the metric system.

The centre will act as a clearing house for information on business and technical data on the progress of metric conversion programs in Canada, the United States and abroad.

The CMA also has also published its first issue of Metric News, an information circular to be distributed periodically to members, updating general and technical information related to the metric system.

The association says in the publication that metric conversion within manufacturing industries is likely to span several years.

It is anticipated that Canada will be a predominantly metric country by 1980.

In deciding when to convert, the association says, it is important to weigh internal data, such as production cycles and write-offs, against external data regarding the marketplace.

COMPILE DATA

It is here that the association sees its initial role in Canada's metric conversion program. The data will be contained in a central file with information to be published in digested form in the circulars.

Members who want further information can retrieve it from the central file for a fee.

The association is asking for participation of all its members in supplying individual conversion plans for reference of all members.

Available information would include the situation in various industries, which stage-by-stage programs have been developed and what role governments perform in metric conversion.

The association also plans to assist members in planning for metric conversion through educational programs.

The centre is developing a training manual for executives who will be responsible for planning or co-ordinating their companies' conversion programs.

As an aid to implementation of metric conversion and its preceding staff retraining, the association will schedule a series of conferences, seminars and workshops.

East coast fishermen to get price support

OTTAWA (CP) - A $10 million price support program for East Coast fishermen was announced Tuesday by Don Jamieson, regional economic expansion minister, after talks with Newfoundland Premier Frank Moores.

The two men also announced a $3-million-to-$4-million program to replace gear losses suffered by Newfoundland fishermen in heavy ice conditions this year.

In addition, a series of federal and provincial public works programs will be stepped up to provide alternate employment for the approximately 9,000 Newfoundland fishermen who lost gear.

Mr. Jamieson said the price support program, expected to cost "about $10 million in the initial stages," will include three phases:

- A promotional campaign to sell high fish inventories on U.S. markets because many eastern processors have reported record fish stocks coupled with inadequate markets and prices.

- An assistance program to help processors with especially large inventories.

- Special credit assistance for processors who have used all financing available from chartered banks.

Mr. Jamieson said details of the program are being worked out and will be announced later.

The minister and the premier also said a special study group has been set up to co-ordinate efforts "to ease the burden of hard-hit fishermen in Newfoundland."

The group will be headed primarily by personnel from the regional economic expansion department, but will include representatives from other federal and provincial government departments and agencies. No further details were announced.

Premier Moores, whose visit included a half-hour meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau, said the gear replacement program will be financed jointly by his government and Ottawa.

Mr. Jamieson said Ottawa would pay about 53 per cent of the total if the cost is $3 million and about 60 per cent if it rises to $4 million.

Gear losses this spring, suffered primarily by fishermen on the northeast coast of Newfoundland, have been estimated at $3 million to $4 million.

ATTENDED MEETING

Mr. Jamieson and Newfoundland Fisheries Minister Harold Collins sat in on the meeting between Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Moores.

Mr. Collins, in a telegram to Mr. Trudeau earlier this month, described fishing conditions this year as "the most disastrous ... in living memory."

The premier said he found in his talks that the federal government is fully aware of circumstances facing the fishing industry and, in particular, hard-hit fishermen in his province.

For those whose gear cannot be replaced rapidly, he said, alternate employment will be available in many cases through expanded public works projects.

Some of these projects will be made possible through "sub-agreements" with the regional economic expansion department. Highways and municipal works programs are two examples, he said.

He told reporters Mr. Jamieson has agreed "to expedite completion of the sub-agreements." There was no estimate of the overall value of the additional projects planned.

Mr. Jamieson said the three-part price support program will be re-evaluated in October and a decision on whether to expand, alter or discontinue it will be made at that time.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) - The Toronto stock market's industrial index was sharply lower for the third consecutive session Wednesday. Trading in all sectors was light.

Industrials, widely-based indicator of market trend, fell 1.87 to 184.88 and western oils 2.79 to 183.09. Golds rose 19 to 528.11 and base metals .06 to 82.43.

Fifteen sub-components of the industrial index declined while only one gained. Industrial mining and banks lost the greatest while communication stocks went against the trend.

Observers attribute the loss to a depressed New York market. Apprehension among investors, they say, is growing that there may be a new round of prime interest rate increases. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which has fallen sharply for the fifth straight session, was at its lowest level since Nov. 19, 1970.

Declines outnumbered advances by more than two to one.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market dropped to its lowest point in nearly four years Wednesday under the weight of concerns ranging from the impeachment issue in Washington to drought in the Midwest.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 8.14 to 757.43, its lowest close since Nov. 19, 1970.

Losers outnumbered gainers 924 to 372 among the 1,706 issues traded on the NYSE in turnover of 10.96 million shares.

were simply unable to find much cause for optimism on any of the long list of worries troubling the market for months.

The market's performance for July - one of its worst months in a generally joyless year so far - was divided into three acts.

The market opened with a broad decline, rebounded in mid-month, and then hit another downward leg that left it with a 44.98-point loss in the Dow from its June close.

ESB Inc., Wednesday's most active issue, was unchanged at $41 1/2 on volume of 357,800 shares. The U.S. justice department said it was inquiring into takeover of the Philadelphia battery manufacturer by International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. through a $41-a-share tender offer now in progress.

Sears, Roebuck, biggest U.S. retailer, tumbled 4 to $67. Other sharp losses among high-priced issues were recorded by Eastman Kodak down 2 1/2 to $89 1/4, IBM 5/8 to $201 1/2, Hughes Tool 2 1/4 to $56 1/4, Digital Equipment 2 1/4 to $88 1/4.

Steels, autos and electronics issues were mostly fractionally lower.

Among Canadian issues, Dome Mines gained 1 1/2 to $59 1/4, Hudson Bay 3/4 to $19 1/2, Hiram Walker was off 1 1/4 to $42 1/2, Seagrams 3/4 to $33, Inco 3/4 to $27 1/2, Alcan 3/4 to $30, Massey Ferguson 1/4 to $16 1/4, Canadian Pacific 1/4 to $13 1/4.

No great success in sea laws

CARACAS (CP) - With the law of the sea conference more than half over, hopes for any wide-ranging agreement among the 150 member countries are dimming as the conference proceeds.

The spectre of failure has been looming almost visibly over the ultra-modern Central Park centre since Monday, when Alan Beesley, head of Canada's delegation introduced a working paper in the plenary session.

The 19 articles in the paper were thought to cover only generally-accepted issues, and the lengthy debate and vote it invoked were "not quite what we were hoping for," Beesley said.

The usually quiet and dignified plenary hall was buzzing with consultations and arguments for a half-hour following the announcement of the paper. The stir was technically over a procedural point of order, that the paper should have been introduced in a committee room.

Beesley explained that the paper would have more weight if presented in plenary, and that its contents went "beyond the mandate of any one committee."

It was noted by the Canadian government press officer Philip Kirsch that the countries which voted the presentation out of order were ones which had opposed Canada's position on one or more of the issues.

SEES LIKELY ALLIES

"The significant thing about the vote is not really who voted against us," he said. "It's those 39 abstentions. We can look to those countries for support when the push comes to get something accomplished."

Reaction outside the Canadian delegation has been much the same.

"A proposal like this was needed two weeks ago, but was held up by the never-ending speeches," observed an American delegate. "Coming as it does so late in the conference, I doubt very much it'll mean any more than the other two tons of paper we've produced here."

Government-school board disagree

Regional school house system in danger

By MICHAEL ISAACS
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — The house system at Alexander Galt and Richmond Regional High Schools has an uncertain future before it.

Created under the direction of Edward Perry, the system is intended to introduce an element of smallness into the two large regional schools by dividing students and faculty into groups, or houses, of approximately the same size as the total enrolments of the former local high schools.

Under the terms of an arrangement negotiated with the provincial ministry of education by Mr. Perry, the first director-general of the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, the government authorized and underwrote the expenses incurred by engaging additional above-norms administrators to staff the system.

The key to the success of the houses lies in the number of school vice-principals engaged at each of the schools, since they head the houses. At AGRHS, despite the fact that provincial norms permit only five assistant principals to be engaged for schools with enrolments similar to that of Galt, the ministry permitted the school to hire six vice-principals.

In addition, when the ETRSB was planning the physical complex for Alexander Galt, commissioners sought and received governmental authorization to construct the building on the basis of six sub-units with individual color schemes for desks and lockers programmed for each of the houses.

Similarly, governmental authorization permitted the engagement of three vice-principals at RRHS, instead of the usual two assistants allocated to schools with enrolments of slightly more than 900 students.

Subsequently, however, at the end of the 1971-72 academic year, the ministry advised school board commissioners that it would not finance the salaries of the additional administrators. Consequently, the ETRSB continued to engage these persons but underwrote the additional salaries by arranging for the house principals to teach on a part-time basis.

Nevertheless, a crucial element in the arrangement still involved annual renewal of governmental authorization allowing the ETRSB to hire beyond norms.

After more than a year of maintaining a situation in which these persons divided their time between doing administrative work and teaching, various elements within the school board structure began to demand that a re-examination of the needs and roles of the houses and the involved administrators be undertaken.

The outcome of the investigation has been that the ETRSB commissioners resolved to seek authorization from the ministry of education to engage the house principals to perform solely administrative functions.

According to Merrill Cook, secretary-general and director of finance of the school board, the ETRSB anticipates the government to react in one of three ways. "Either," he asserts, "they will say we can hire the principals and that they'll pay for them, or they'll say we can hire them but will have to pay for them ourselves, or they'll say we can't have them at all."

In any case, an additional snag has developed which is causing some friction between the government and the school board. The issue is that of how the assistant principals were paid during the 1972-73 and 1973-74 academic years.

Wendell Sparkes, ETRSB director-general, recently informed commissioners that ministerial officials had voiced disapproval of the practice of utilizing the money authorized for teachers' salaries toward payment of administrators' salaries, regardless of whether or not the administrators involved were teaching.

The outcome is that the board, if it obtains governmental approval at all, is likely to be obliged to offset the extra administrators' salaries from the funds collected from local taxpayers — funds which are specifically earmarked for inadmissible expenditures. Furthermore, however, before the board will be able to obtain authorization for the hirings, it will need approval of the department of labor.

Finally, still another problem — heretofore unexpected — is plaguing the proposal. For the first time, the enrolment at Richmond Regional High School appears to have dropped below the 900 student mark, as board administrators anticipate an enrolment of about 880 students during the 1974-75 academic year.

The 900-student mark is crucial because government norms allow schools with that number of students to engage two assistant principals. If the administration's predictions prove accurate, the ETRSB will find itself in the position of having to request authorization for three administrators not permitted by norm provisions — two, instead of one at RRHS, and one at Alexander Galt Regional High School.

Enrolments at the two schools will be even more significantly effected, albeit in the future, by the recent passage of Bill 22 — the government's latest offering in the field of provincial language legislation.

At present, significant portions of the student registrations at both AGRHS and RRHS are comprised of persons whose first language is French. Assuredly, a marked cutback in enrolment in ETRSB schools, by these students, will accompany the enforcement of the law in future years.

This decline, coupled with that produced by lower birth rates, will definitely reduce the government-authorized number of administrators for Alexander Galt Regional High School, probably by the beginning of the 1975-76 academic year.

Regardless of what the final results of enrolment declines will be, ETRSB administrators are concerned about the apparently-imminent modifications to the house system.

Bruce Taylor, principal of Richmond Regional High School, contends: "I think that stripping away the house system means taking away the one thing that makes our two schools as good as they are — it's the last thing we would want taken away."

Mr. Taylor, in fact, goes so far as to criticize the government for not developing measures designed to promote the implementation of the philosophy it outlines in its literature on education. "I like the humanized situation we have at Richmond," he declares. "Everything we hear in government documents about humanized education we're doing at Richmond."

Wendell Sparkes, ETRSB director-general, criticizes the government's motives. "They say they're doing it in the interests of equality of educational opportunity," he remarks, "that's the type of reasoning which prevents people from working to improve what they have."

ETRSB STUDENT TRANSPORTATION CONTRACTS

Later this week, the executive committee of the Eastern Townships Regional School Board will award three-year contracts for eight routes of the board's student transportation service.

According to Merrill Cook, ETRSB director of finance, the board will operate 73 of its own buses and will contact 19 additional routes to private contractors during the 1974-75 academic year. Mr. Cook stipulates that seven of the routes will be negotiated with Sherbrooke Transit and three will be negotiated with Autobus Drummondville because they are urban transportation companies in areas served by the regional board.

One more route, involving the transportation of three students, will be negotiated with Eldred Dawson. The remainder of the routes will be awarded following the opening of tenders.

ETRSB BUS FLEET DEPLOYMENT

According to Merrill Cook, secretary-general and director of finance for the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, the provincial ministries of education and transport have ruled that the school board must reduce its fleet of school buses by seven vehicles for the 1974-75 academic year, the board owned and operated 88 buses. However, under the governmental directives this number is being reduced to 81 for the 1974-75 academic year.

According to the revised breakdown established by the ETRSB, 73 of the units will now be allocated to routes and remaining eight will be maintained as spares. Further, while the board had sought authorization to trade in 13 buses for new ones, the government has permitted it to trade in only six buses.

Of the remaining seven units, one is being sold to the ETRSB adult education service for use as a mobile documentation center; another is being sold to the Lennoxville District School Board for use as an outdoor education storage van; and the remaining five are being sold to other school boards or to private owners by public tender.

Development at AGRHS underway

ASCOT (MI) — Earlier this week View Point Development (VPD) began giving Alexander Galt Regional High School's property a face-lift.

Under the terms of an agreement which took nearly six months to arrange, the company agreed to perform a series of projects for the Eastern Townships Regional School Board in return for the right to hook the projected 45 houses to be built during the project into the sewage line for the regional school.

The work, estimated at between $15,000-$20,000, involves the digging of ditches at several points on the property in order to improve drainage capabilities and the expansion of school parking facilities.

As a further project, the development company is to construct a retention basin for solid wastes to serve both its own houses and the school. VPD is to undertake the entire future costs for maintaining the basin and for emptying monthly the solid materials deposited in the basin.

Some members of the ETRSB and Frank Taboika, president of VPD, herald the agreement to establish a retention basin as a major step forward in a fight against pollution of water.

Wendell Sparkes, ETRSB director-general, contends the basin will eliminate nearly 60 per cent of the effluent which the school previously contributed to the St. Francis River each year.

Crash victim is held responsible

COWANSVILLE (JD) — Dr. Paul E. Roy, coroner for Missisquoi County, held Yvan Nault criminally responsible in the death of Raymond Fontaine, on Route 235 between Farnham and Bedford, May 18, 1974, at a coroner's inquest held here July 30.

Witnesses corroborated that the motorcycle, apparently driven by Nault, 26, of Cowansville, crashed into the right front fender of a car driven by Yvan Lariviere, 30, of Bedford. Three witnesses said the motorcycle crossed the white line to hit the car which was on its proper side on the road.

Weather conditions were sunny, and the pavement was dry at the time of the accident. Fontaine, 36, of Farnham, was killed on impact. Nault succumbed to gangrene and died in a Montreal hospital two days later.

Andre Desgreniers, 30, of Granby, who was on probation with the Farnham Kool Riders Club, testified Nault, the club president, had ordered him to lend him his motorcycle on pain of suspension from the club. Mr. Desgreniers said his vehicle had a top speed of between 115 and 120 miles per hour.

He added that Nault had taken Mescaline mixed with alcohol the night and morning prior to the accident, while Fontaine had only indulged in beer.

Constable Bertrand Huppe, Quebec Police Force, Cowansville, said the motorcycle was 112 feet past the rear fender of the car, and the bodies were between 30 and 45 feet beyond the motorcycle.

Sweetsburg Court

SWEETSBURG WARD (JD) — Stanley Davis, formerly of Bolton Centre, was visibly moved when Judge Gerard Normandin handed him a suspended sentence, in sessions court, Monday.

Davis, who was represented by Peter Turner, earlier pleaded guilty to three counts of theft of antiques.

Mr. Turner cited the presentence report. "It clearly shows that Mr. Davis has been gainfully employed for the past six months, he is living with a common-law wife who is pregnant, and he is her sole support. He apparently has his drinking problem under control. Furthermore he has not been in trouble since he has been domiciled in Montreal."

"I honestly feel this is one case where the interest of justice would be well served by a suspended sentence with severe conditions of probation," Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux said. "I, too, was most impressed with the pre-sentence report, not to mention a personal letter from the accused. His prior brushes with the law were mainly charges of fraud."

"I concur with the suggestion of the defence, however I suggest the following conditions of probation. He report monthly to a probation officer in Montreal, and he refrain from frequenting establishments where alcohol is sold for consumption on premises. The probation should run for at least two years."

Judge Normandin handed down the sentence suggested by the crown.

Davis was seen wiping a tear from one eye as he rejoined his wife.

Jacques Forgues, Granby, was ordered held in preventative detention until August 5, when he will undergo preliminary hearing on a charge of indecent assault, while armed, on a female of less than 18 years of age. The alleged offence occurred in Granby, July 26.

Raymond Jette, 58, South Stukely, was fined $500., in default 60 days. He had been found guilty of receiving 29 stolen pigs in sessions court here, July 22.

Defence attorney Louis Grignon told the court Mr. Jette still had two of his own children in his charge, and three grandchildren. The grandchildren's parents were fighting and the only haven they had was with their grandparents. He suggested Mr. Jette had had one brush with the law 15 years ago, however it was not a crime of a similar nature. He cited Mr. Jette was well respected by other farmers in his area.

"The interests of justice would be well served with a fine and probation," Mr. Grignon concluded.

Mr. Noisieux said: "If people knew they couldn't dispose of stolen goods there would be fewer thefts. The fact the persons who stole the pigs went to Mr. Jette's in the middle of the night proved they knew he would purchase them. Mr. Jette then told them he would have to receive at least $375 for them at the auction or the thieves would have to pay the difference. He then pocketed approximately $400 profit following the sale."

"This was not a naive act on his part. I suggest he must serve a prison term."

Judge Normandin said he reflected on the sentence for the week. "I do not like persons who purchase stolen goods, however in this case one must consider his family charges."

Judge Normandin then imposed the fine, and placed Jette on probation for two years. He was granted 30 days to pay the fine.

Firemen called to hospital

SHERBROOKE (RH) — A false fire alarm touched off by electricians working at d'Youville Hospital yesterday afternoon, brought six fire trucks to the scene. Lieutenant Gerard Belisle, spokesman for the fire department, explained that the alarm sounded when electricians inadvertently crossed wires while repairing the electrical system in the hospital, located on Belvedere street.

"When the signal goes off in a hospital, we automatically consider it a general alarm fire," he explained. "Six fire engines were dispatched, which is standard procedure in such a case. We had no way of confirming the accidental nature of the incident until we arrived."

The trucks returned to their stations when the cause of the mishap was discovered.

Monotonous

The Mediterranean, the Balkans and now the Iberian Peninsula — history seems to be repeating itself in a tediously monotonous rhythm. In Spain, Gen. Francisco Franco is alling at a time when in neighboring Portugal the one bright spot on the world's bleak democratic landscape threatens to be obliterated. The period of transition in Spain, when it comes, is bound to be blustery and must needs be affected by the ominous sequence of events across the Portuguese border. There, the moderates, led by former premier Adelino da Palma Carlos, by resigning committed the same fatal error that in 1948 allowed the Prague Communists to seize power. In Prague, too, the democratic parties, angered at the overweening attitude of the Communists, resigned, hoping to force President Benes to call a new election. Instead, the Communist ministers remained in power and staged their "legal" putsch.

Dr. Palma Carlos, Portugal's first democratic premier, is thus out in the cold and the new government is a strong leftwing coalition in which the Socialists are playing the traditional suicidal part they chose, after 1945, in every Central and East European country. What is even more ominous is the shunting aside of General Antonio del Spinoza, the leader of the coup that overthrew the decaying post-Salazar dictatorship. Gen. Spinoza planned to install a moderate leadership to succeed that of Dr. Palma Carlos and was instead forced by his junior officers, most of them with views best described as Nasserite, to appoint a strongly leftwing administration in which the Communists play a decisive role.

The Socialists, led by Portugal's foreign minister Mario Soares, have been losing what little public support they had while the Communists who are receiving "uncharacteristically large" financial subsidies from the Soviet Union, are filling all sensitive posts in the civil service, the media and labor unions with their own appointees. The election, scheduled for next year, will probably produce a large Communist party, especially in view of the growing inflation and unemployment.

The lessons are fairly obvious. One is that democracy and totalitarian ideology do not mix, and all those who believe that a Communist party could ever be persuaded to abandon its totalitarian pretensions are living in a fool's paradise. The moderate members of Portugal's first democratic cabinet seemed surprised at developments, which the reading of recent history should have taught them were inevitable. The Socialists, in Portugal as in France and in so many other countries, still cling to the outmoded idea that there are no enemies on the left, although it is only the left which, when it reaches power, liquidates them — often in the accepted Stalinist fashion.

Neither Portugal nor Spain have any democratic tradition to speak of, and in the turmoil that always follows the removal of a dictatorship, it usually is the opposite extreme that comes out on top. The Francos and the Salazars have much to answer for, but the present turn of events in Portugal is not surprising, and indeed was foreseeable once Gen. Spinoza invited the Communist leader Alvaro Cunhal to return from Moscow and enter the new government.

However, one can safely assume that all these lessons will be lost on the liberals, moderates and socialists who may shortly come to the fore in Spain. It has been argued that our era began with the Spanish civil war that was then to lead to the Second World War. One can now wonder whether the era will close as it began: with anarchy and turmoil in southern Europe.

Greek government to face intense difficulties

While Greece's allies join in the joy of her people in their unexpected freedom from military dictatorship, many realists foresee intense difficulties for the new government unless it is given a period of calm in which to establish itself.

With the self-deposed military leaders still hovering in the background and the restless elements of the left suddenly released after seven years of repression, the ingredients for turmoil seem already built into the situation.

Much will depend on the degree of influence conservative Premier Constantine Karamanlis, recalled from exile, can exercise over these opposing forces. He will need all the cooperation his personal popularity can buy him as he tackles the problems of a country left battered by years of inept foreign and economic policy and with the worst inflation rate in Europe.

Karamanlis, the nearest thing Greece has to a dominating political figure in the stamp of a Churchill or a de Gaulle, must reassure and calm all elements of the traditionally explosive Greek political spectrum if he is to succeed.

In the eyes of many observers, if he moves too swiftly in tackling the problems and carving a new constitution he may irritate the army. It might be emboldened to take over again, despite the cries of joy that greeted its downfall. If he moves too cautiously towards reform he risks incensing the left, impatient for sweeping changes and punishment of collaborators in the succession of military regimes which have ruled Greece since 1967.

STUDENTS RESTLESS

What is seen to be needed is a period of calm and reconciliation, but this is not likely to be the mood of students and others who have become increasingly radical during seven years under the lid of military domination.

What worries skeptics is that Karamanlis, 67, and those around him are conservative and elderly and have been out of touch for a long time.

A more optimistic view is that the premier, a shrewd politician, would not have undertaken the job unless he was confident he had a decent chance to succeed and was sure that he was to have real power. He would not accept the role of a puppet of the military, in this view.

Also, there is a certain amount of confidence that the failure of the Greek-directed coup in Cyprus so discredited and demoralized the military regime in Athens that it would not so soon be tempted to try to take over again.

On the plus side also is that the new government will provide a new basis for relations with Turkey.

The fact that the prospect of war between two such vital members of NATO now has been averted will help to enhance Karamanlis' stature even more and perhaps give him the period of peace essential to the survival of the new administration.

Economics like weather predicting

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Government economists, like mathematicians, use figures. Many employ calculators to perform operations in minutes that once took weeks or months. But there the similarity with science ends.

It is now clear to many top-ranking Washington economists the figures they use aren't relevant to the real world or don't mean what they seem. The data they do have is woefully incomplete and quite frequently altered somewhere along the line.

Worse, much of the economic data considers the U.S. as a unit virtually in isolation from the rest of the world. But with the large-scale growth of multinational corporations and the now-heavy U.S. dependence on foreign markets and foreign raw materials, U.S. data alone, however complete and accurate, is not enough. It is ridiculous, for example, to estimate market conditions and prices for wheat without knowing in detail the demand, stocks, crop outlook and availability of substitute foods in a wide range of countries worldwide.

But however incomplete or inaccurate U.S. data, the confusion and slipshod condition of most foreign economic statistics staggers the imagination. To build economic predictions on the basis of such is like playing with loaded dice without knowing to what degree the cubes are unbalanced.

Adding to the confusion is the fact that political actions in a dozen countries around the world may have more effect on economic conditions than supply, demand and other conventional pressures. No mortal economist can predict what the multi-variety of worldwide governments will do in restricting imports and exports, controlling prices or manipulating currencies. Yet without this unobtainable data, much economic forecasting is so much propaganda, as the honest men will tell you in private.

Every day, the stock market columns give detailed and learned explanations on why the market went down or up — after the event. Even the best analysts are usually wrong when they predict what the market will do tomorrow.

This is the state of government economic forecasting and therefore of economic planning. The economists can explain in great detail what happened last year (or last week) in the economy. Their theories are modeled to fit the results.

But there are no accepted economic theories to explain what we are going through today. The chart lines have run off the charts. Each economist is now on his own. He develops his own economic models, based in part on his own experience but heavily larded with his own emotional and philosophic outlook. It is wise these days, before reading the analyses put out by any economist, to know whether he considers himself a conservative or a liberal, a Republican, Democrat or Independent and be warned accordingly.

These then are the reasons that government economists who predict on the record turn out to be consistently wrong. Moreover, this inability to predict means they do not know with any degree of certainty the effects of government actions they approve or disapprove. Actions designed to combat inflation may actually trigger a run of higher prices. Moves aimed at increasing employment may, in the long run, add to the number of unemployed.

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-go-round

WASHINGTON — We predicted on May 27 that "the military junta now in power in Greece will be toppled before the end of June." We missed the date by only 23 days.

Our prognostication was based upon the observations of experts inside the State Department, Central Intelligence Agency and Pentagon. A confidential May 1974 report to the North Atlantic Assembly, for example, reviewed the Greek situation and offered this conclusion:

"Many observers predict that the most affected classes, supported by senior military officers shocked by the junta's primitive terror tactics, may move into open revolt soon."

In our May column, we warned that a Greek revolt might bring to power hostile forces who could deny the United States the use of its military and intelligence installations in Greece.

As the dust settles in Athens, however, the situation appears less drastic. The new premier, Constantine Karamanlis, has been a friend of the United States. Still, he isn't likely to forget his years in exile in Paris, struggling to obtain the ear of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Karamanlis and other exiled Greek leaders pleaded in vain for U.S. help in restoring democracy in their homeland. But the Nixon Administration preferred to do business with the military junta. Up until the day before Karamanlis was called to Athens, our sources say, high-level State Department officials snickered at the idea he might return to power.

Karamanlis' relations with the United States, therefore, probably will be restrained and businesslike. If Washington wants to maintain bases there, our sources say, "they will have to pay for the privilege."

Analysts are still wondering how much power the new civilian government in Greece really has. Some predict that the military will keep a wary eye on events to see that they don't get out of hand.

According to our sources, however, the Karamanlis government won't be hobbled by the military. On the contrary, these sources say that a special court will be convened to try the deposed strongman, Gen. Dimitrios Ioannides, and his band of political primitives.

One of those who will feel the ax, our sources predict, will be the Greek ambassador to Washington, Constantine Panayotakos.

Unfortunately, Kissinger ignored appeals to end U.S. cooperation with the Greek junta. At least one confidential document predicted months ago that such action would bring down the military dictatorship, with the United States getting the credit.

If NATO would withhold its cooperation, suggested the document, "not only will the alliance gain enormously in prestige, but from that time the days of the dictatorial regime will be numbered."

But no one in Washington was listening. Now the United States is blamed by many Greek people for keeping the dictatorship in power.

Footnote: There was rejoicing in Washington as well as Athens upon Constantine Karamanlis' return from exile. For years, a small but determined band of anti-junta Greeks has lobbied day and night for the restoration of democracy in their homeland. They include journalist Elias Demetracopoulos, Profs. Ted Couloumbis and John Nicolopoulos, parliamentarian John Zighis and Gen. Orestes Vidalis.

Transportation Troubles: The taxpayers spend $8.1 billion a year for a Transportation Department that is fragmented, wasteful and often misguided.

This is the confidential conclusion of a consulting firm, McKinsey & Co., which has just produced a detailed report for Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar.

The study cost the taxpayers $365,000, but the money will be well spent if Brinegar implements the hundreds of recommendations.

The Transportation Department was created seven years ago from federal agencies handling highways, airways, railways, subways and their social, environmental and cultural impact. Thus, the department touches part of every American's life.

The McKinsey report, though couched in careful enough language to ensure it won't be blackballed for outspokenness, makes clear that the department needs major reform.

"The principal need (is) to improve the way in which the department is managed overall," the report states. The problems extend from Brinegar's office throughout his sprawling, bawling, bureaucratic empire.

For instance, the department has wasted millions on impractical projects such as a personal kitycar transport system in Morgantown, W. Va., an air-cushioned passenger train and a superbus that runs on a magnetic rail. But it has failed to provide a proper mix between air, auto, bus and rail service.

The report attributes this failure to lack of "clear-cut rationale" at the top. "There was no sufficiently disciplined process," states the report, "to enable...the Office of the Secretary...to evaluate the programs and decide on further action. There is a growing sense of groups working at cross-purposes."

In its dozens of pages of recommendations, the report lays out a primer for writing memos, coordinating programs, monitoring the activities of the farflung agencies and extricating clear decisions from the present mass of red tape.

Will food experts eat their words?

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The world's weather map this early summer, looks fair which is to say foul. The monsoons are late on the Asian subcontinent, usual rain is not falling in northern Mexico and the skies over Texas are clear as a mirror. Some climatologists are forecasting drought, disaster and global disruption.

As if the planet did not have enough woes, something is apparently amiss in the heavens. A think-group including weathermen and political scientists meeting in Europe in May said people can no longer take a benevolent climate for granted; their conclusion was the climate is changing and severe consequences may be the result.

One of the consequences: crop loss and famine. Another: food wars between the "haves" and "have nots." The predictions may come as a surprise to Americans concerned not with the availability of food but only its cost. True, there has been some news about starvation in Africa's sub-Sahara, and occasionally a reference to the fact that half the world is already undernourished. But real worry? The U.S. government will have none of it; on the contrary, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz encourages citizens to gorge themselves on beef so growers will prosper.

And as for the climate change that might set off the distant catastrophes, the government seems equally disinterested. A spokesman for the National Weather Service admits it has not rained in much of the Texas wheat plains since the spring of 1973, and that the weather has been "mucked up a bit" all over the planet lately, but can make no further comment on anything but tomorrow's routine forecast.

We are left, therefore, with only the warnings of those generally regarded as doomsayers — Reid Byrson of the University of Wisconsin, for one. He is the chairman of that institution's environmental studies, and is blunt as a cannon ball: "The weather is changing significantly. It is becoming more unstable and difficult to predict. I hope I'm wrong but I believe it may lead to mass starvation. We'll still be able to eat here in America, I suppose, but I don't believe we can feed the rest of the world."

Byrson is not talking about tomorrow. He's pessimistic about now. "The question is, how will the world eat next year?" If something isn't done, he suggests that United Nations estimates of 400 million people facing starvation may develop into something more horrible than figures: "Millions are going to die."

Hopefully, mercifully, the doomspeak is excessive. But right now it seems to be the only talk heard concerning weather change and its consequences.

The U.S. bureaucracy in charge of such, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, spends $421 million a year but talks very little, at least of pessimism. "Yes," says an official, "there does seem to be an over-all trend toward cooler global temperature, but you can't say, willy-nilly, this means disaster. Anybody can shout that the weather is changing, but the fact is it takes thousands and thousands of years to determine whether this is so."

Clearly, the world does not have thousands and thousands of years it can spare. By this time next year, there will be 75 million more mouths to feed, thus if climatic-famine calamity is to strike, the time to prepare is, at best, already too late.

Perhaps doom prophets such as Byrson are, as it's hoped this season's grain fields will be, all wet. Then again, perhaps they are Cassandra after all, cursed to be always right but never heeded. "We can wait until next year to see," says a glum Byrson, but by then, of course, if the worst happens, it will be too late to take action.

The better way, perhaps, would be for concerned nations to bend this once to the voices of gloom and store food, create multilateral famine defense strategies and establish priority distribution systems. Then if nothing happens, if there is no need, we can all eat, get fat, and toss the doomspeak out with the rest of the abundant garbage.

Stanstead County Jersey Club holds annual picnic

THREE VILLAGES—The annual picnic of the Stanstead County Jersey Club was held on Sunday, July 21, at the beautiful farm of Mr. and Mrs. George MacDonald and Mr. Hugh MacDonald at Lennoxville.

The day was perfect for a picnic but many of the farmers stayed home to do haying however, their families joined the day of activities to swell the attendance to a good number.

The luncheon was on the spacious lawns where picnic hampers were in evidence. Leslie Bliss, president of the Stanstead Club cooked barbecue hot dogs served with rolls and relishes by Mrs. Bliss.

Hugh MacDonald filled glasses with 'delicious punch and Mrs. MacDonald served cheese and crackers. Later, a variety of squares and ice cream cups were served.

A tour of the barns was taken. In the dairy barn were several spring calves and part of the dairy herd of Jerseys. All were admired and patted.

In groups of four, the cows were paraded in the barnyard. Several of the men folk and some of the ladies viewed the cows, then later the menfolk chose number 1-2-3-4 as best and gave their reasons why.

Among the jersey provincial officials present were Clifton Berry, provincial president of the Quebec Jersey Club and director to represent Quebec in the national club; Robert Young, president of the Quebec Jersey Club; Robert Simpson, secretary of the Quebec Jersey Club; and John Ross, president of the Richmond Club.

These men and Leslie Bliss, president of the Stanstead Club, made their comments on the cattle as they were displayed.

Hugh MacDonald spoke about another four young cows on parade, giving their history, sires and cows, date of freshened cows and tests as well as averages.

Questions were asked and responses given by the experts.

All too soon, the day was over, another tremendous success.

PICNIC — The Stanstead County Jersey Club picnic was held in Lennoxville on Sunday, July 21.

ON PARADE — Four of the Jersey cattle are seen on parade at the Stanstead County Jersey Club picnic.

The people expressed their thanks and appreciation to the MacDonalds for their friendly hospitality and to the club officials for the extra goodies at the picnic.

Anyone can buy an acupuncture 'diploma'

By David Hendin
NEA Science Editor
(First in a series)

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Contrary to the best interests of their patients, hundreds — and perhaps thousands — of doctors in the United States are practicing acupuncture after three- or four-day "short-order" courses often taught by individuals with questionable qualifications in the field.

Frequently well-meaning physicians are duped into taking such courses by outright lies and exaggerations about "official" credits given for the course.

There are inducements such as official looking — but meaningless and sometimes illegal — diploma certificates which are given to anyone who pays the tax-deductible enrollment fees.

Physicians often feel pushed into such courses because of the frenzied demand by many patients for acupuncture treatments. Many people believe acupuncture to be a panacea.

Its mystique has fanned the zeal of tens of thousands of Americans who are rushing headlong into the arms of ill-equipped and often illegitimate practitioners of acupuncture — and paying millions of dollars for the dubious privilege.

I recently attended a four-day acupuncture course in New York City and discovered a "scientific" atmosphere so questionable that several physicians admitted to me that they were "almost ashamed to be here." I was invited to attend as a journalist.

The course was called the "Complete Course #377 in Medical and Surgical Acupuncture," and was put on by the American Institute of Hypnosis of Los Angeles. The course ran from June 27 to 30 at the Summit Hotel in New York. A similar course is scheduled to be held Sept. 26 to 29 at Atlanta's Hyatt Regency Hotel. One was held in Dallas earlier this year.

R. L. Rubottom, M.D., the director of the course and an official of the American Institute of Hypnosis (AIH) said that 96 physicians, physicians' assistants and non-physicians attended the course. Tuition, exclusive of room and travel, was $498 and wives or assistants accompanied by fully paid registrants were charged $150.

SCIENCE EDITOR DAVID HENDIN, who is not a physician, nevertheless received certificate from "American Institute, Inc." saying he had "successfully completed the postgraduate course #377 in Medical-Dental-Surgical Acupuncture." He and a number of doctors received the certificate after attending a four-day course.

(These wives and assistants also received certificates saying they "successfully completed" the course.)

Attending the course were doctors from New York, New Jersey, Ohio, California, Illinois and other states.

A brochure for the course, direct-mailed to thousands of physicians, stresses that the tuition fee includes "syllabus, needles, charts, instruction manual and all materials necessary for the course (also includes four luncheons and a cocktail party)."

Each participant was given one dozen disposable acupuncture needles, a $1.95 mass-market paperback book on acupuncture, a paper acupuncture wall-chart and a mimeographed syllabus, the scant contents of which bore practically no relationship to the course that was actually given.

Furthermore, the brochure for the course promises physicians "26-1/2 hours fully approved Category I." This refers to a type of continuing education credit required by professional groups such as the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP) for ongoing membership in their medical specialty organization.

The American Medical Assn. (AMA) also requires such credits for its Physician's Recognition Award for continuing medical education.

Investigation reveals, however, that none of the AIH courses in acupuncture has been approved for Category I credit by the national offices of either the AMA, the AAFP or the American Osteopathic Assn.

The brochure for the AIH acupuncture course also promises "University Credit." In January 1974, the "Journal of the American Institute of Hypnosis," also noted that "every single one of our courses which we are giving now, and which we have given in the past, will be given hour for hour university credit toward a Ph.D. in Psychology by the California Graduate Institute."

In an interview, Dr. Rubottom added that "the California Graduate Institute is an accredited college in California."

However the California State Board of Education said that the California Graduate Institute "operates legally but is not approved by our office." And the Western Assn. of Schools and Colleges, which accredits for California, Hawaii and Guam for the Federation of Regional Accrediting Commissions of Higher Education says that the Institute is "definitely not accredited."

In addition to lacking the approval and accreditation it claimed, the AIH distributed diplomas and certificates of "successful completion" of the course that are apparently illegal under New York State Law.

The certificate they gave me says:

"This is to certify that Dave Hendin has successfully completed the postgraduate course #377 in Medical-Dental-Surgical Acupuncture of the American Institute, Inc. With lectures, demonstrations, workshops and practical training in Anesthesia, Analgesia and Therapeutics of Classical Chinese Acupuncture, Moxibustion, Japanese Nakatani Methods and Modern New Scientific Techniques given at New York City from 27 June to 30 June 1974."

The certificate is signed by the four "faculty" members who delivered medical lectures in the course.

On the last day of the session, when participants were told to "pick up your certificates on the table in the rear," there was a quick rush on the table and within 15 minutes it was clean. Even the bona fide physicians had snatched up the phony credentials.

"Not bad for five hundred bucks," I heard one doctor say as he admired his newest wall decoration.

But the certificate was given illegally, according to Michael Eadry, a lawyer with the New York State Education Department in Albany.

"The American Institute of Hypnosis is not authorized to give postgraduate work. It is fraudulent and a misrepresentation as to the authority of the school itself. They have no authority to operate courses of advanced study in the field of medicine in this state," Eadry said.

He added that the fraud is compounded when such a certificate is given to a non-physician — since to have "postgraduate" training in areas of "Medicine-Dentistry-Surgery" implies some undergraduate training.

In fact I never went to medical school. Neither did most of the doctors, wives and assistants who received diplomas. Nor did several other "psychologists" and "hypnotists" who were allowed to enroll in the course with no apparent prerequisite other than the $498 tuition fee.

By Ira Berkow

WASHINGTON, D.C. — (NEA) — Tourism at the White House reportedly is down about 50 per cent.

"The line of visitors waiting for the doors to open used to wind from the east entrance on 16th Street near Pennsylvania Avenue all the way round the back to 17th and Pennsylvania," said J. W. Lee, a White House guard. "Now it's usually only half that long. Maybe it's the energy crisis that's keeping folks away."

And maybe it's not. There is a trust crisis, too. One wonders if many Americans just don't have a strong enough stomach — or heart — to take such a tour anymore. Even if the building is supposed to be our property. And even if the tour is free, no small matter considering there is an inflation crisis too.

Recently, I took the tour. I had never done so before. It begins at 10 a.m. I arrived at 9:15 and already there was a pretty long line. A family of four from Denver was at the head, having staked out at 7:30.

The few persons I passed the time with seemed more concerned with Washington sights than with politics. In front of me, a prim lady from Kansas with sequined earrings rumpled through a map with her lady friend, and then turned to me. "Do you know where Ford's Theater is?" she asked. "I heard it's something to see, too."

We waited quietly alongside the tall, iron-shafted fence separating the maple-and-magnolia-lined street from the manicured White House garden. It was just about 10. Suddenly, there was a great clash of cymbals. I almost jumped. The ladies were startled. The sound was immediately followed by a blaring orchestration of "America the Beautiful." It came from small speakers half hidden in the shrubbery on the White House side.

When my nerve chords had begun to unjangle, I wondered if President Nixon had installed those speakers when he put in his bugging system. I soon came to terms with something else: Although this is the "people's house," I had much trouble separating the premises and edifice from the current occupant.

The line started moving. One grows up learning of the majesty and awesomeness of the White House. As I entered the white-columned double doors, the first president to greet me was William Howard Taft, all 300 pounds of him and his walrus mustache.

I remember learning two facts about President Taft. One, he did not like being president and, two, he had an immense problem trying to navigate his bulk in and out of the zinc-lined, mahogany bathtub in the White House. I never learned whether one fact had anything to do with the other.

I felt that my musings on the portrait of President Taft were getting my tour off on an irreverent foot, so I decided to buy all three of the guide books sold at the end of the first corridor.

Now as I went through the East Room and the Red Room and the Blue Room and the Green Room and the State Dining Room, I was dutifully aware of the historic background of the cut-glass chandeliers, the various Americaners, the chinoiserie (European furniture in Oriental style), the savonnerie (tapestries inspired from a French soap factory), and the gifts from aliens such as the howdah ladder — for getting on and off elephants — from Asian Indians, and the feathered headdress from American Indians.

One could feel the sense of history all around. President Teddy Roosevelt said, "I think of Lincoln, shambling, homely, with his strong, sad, deeply furrowed face, all the time. I see him in different rooms and in the halls... he is to me infinitely the most real of the dead Presidents."

After President Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, and after shaking hands for three hours at a reception here, he said, "I never felt more certain that I was doing right. But my arm is stiff and numb. If they find my hand trembled, they will say, 'He had some compunctions.' But anyway it is going to be done!"

Coincidentally, I read recently that President Nixon's hands have begun to shake very much in the last two years.

President Lincoln and President Nixon also shared a problem with spending too much of the taxpayer's money on home improvements. Mary Lincoln, on her own, spent $6,700 to spruce up the living quarters. "Angrily," said a guidebook, "Lincoln refused to ask for a deficiency appropriation, saying: '... it would stink in the nostrils of the American people.'"

The White House has been the scene of several scandals and near-scandals. For example, when President Benjamin Harrison ascribed his narrow victory to Providence, Boss Matt Quay of Pennsylvania exclaimed that

Harrison would never know "how close a number of men were compelled to approach the penitentiary to make him president."

The difference between then and now is that President Nixon knows.

Such a melancholy realization of the historic corruption at the highest levels of the government can truly choke one up as he walks in a pack through the magnificent and — one wishes — hallowed halls. The echoes of faith sound through the corridors: "May none but honest and wise Men ever rule under this roof," said President John Adams.

"James Monroe is so honest that if you turned his soul inside out there would not be a spot on it," said President Thomas Jefferson.

"I never forget that I live in a house owned by all the American people and that I have been given their trust," said President Franklin Roosevelt.

The whole tour takes about half an hour, and 174 years. As I walked outside, I looked back at the great white mansion. I felt a mingling of outrage about this building and love for what it symbolizes: strong, trustworthy leadership in a free and humane society.

It was Silent Cal, of all people, who shed the clearest perspective. The guidebook, "The Living White House," relates how President Coolidge and a guest, a Missouri senator, strolled outside the grounds. As they returned to the White House, the senator joked, "I wonder who lives there?"

"Nobody," replied the President. "They just come and go."

It is simply the presidency that remains.

Burgess-Lowry united

MR. AND MRS. LLOYD GEORGE BURGESS

SAWYERVILLE — On June 29, 1974, Miss Margaret Elaine Lowry, daughter of Mr. Chilton Lowry and the late Mrs. Evelyn Lowry, of East Clifton, Quebec, was united in marriage to Lloyd George Burgess, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Burgess of Eaton Corner, Quebec.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Gordon Simons and took place in the United Church, Sawyerville at 7 p.m. Mrs. Lloyd French presided at the organ. The church was attractively decorated with white bows and pink flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was in a gown of white pompadour, having long full sleeves with a wide cuff at the wrists. Wide lace trimmed the yoke and empire waistline, also the bottom and train. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a crown of colored sequins. She carried a bouquet of red roses. The pearl earrings worn by the bride were a gift from the groom.

Miss Laura Lowry, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor. She wore a long dress of iceblue pompadour with a white picture hat decorated by blue ribbon. She carried a bouquet of blue roses and white carnations.

Miss Cheryl Lowry and Miss Charlene Lowry, sisters of the bride, acted as bridesmaids. They wore long dresses of pale pink pompadour with white picture hats decorated by pink ribbons. They carried bouquets of pink roses and white carnations.

Miss Andrea Lowry, sister of the bride and Miss Angela Hodge, niece of the groom, acted as flower girls. They wore long dresses of ice blue pompadour and blue ribbons were streamed through their hair. They carried bouquets of blue roses and white carnations.

Mr. Lynn Hodge, brother-in-law of the groom, acted as best man. The ushers were Mr. Leo Boutin, brother-in-law of the groom and Mr. Keith Lowry, brother of the bride. Master Michael Patafie, nephew of the groom, was ring-bearer.

The groom and other male members of the wedding party wore white jackets trimmed in black, white shirts trimmed in black, black bowties and black pants.

Mrs. George Burgess wore a long blue dress of fortrel with white accessories and a corsage of peach colored roses.

The reception was held at the Sawyerville School. The school was decorated with pink, blue and white flowers.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Burgess left for their honeymoon to the States. The bride travelled in a beige and brown pantsuit and brown accessories with a corsage of pale yellow roses. The groom wore a brown and white shirt.

The couple are residing in Eaton Corner.

Golden anniversary

On the occasion of the Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Salls of Beebe, Quebec, they will receive relatives and friends at open house, arranged by relatives to take place at the Beebe Town Hall, Saturday, August 10, between the hours of 3 and 6 p.m.

Golden Age Club

KNOWLTON — The Knowlton Golden Age Club are meeting regularly every Tuesday afternoon throughout the summer in the Legion Hall, where they enjoy light talk, refreshments, and card games.

Recent winners have been Mrs. Hilda Marsh, Mrs. Eva Carrera, Mrs. George Mizener, Mr. Robert Hastings, Mr. Leon George; the door prizes have been won by Mrs. Ethel Hastings and Mrs. Elvia Johnson.

On July 23 the Knowlton Social Club entertained the Club to an afternoon of Bingo, with winners being Mr. George Mizener, Mrs. Pearl Williams, and many other winners of the smaller games.

Refreshments were served and the thanks of the Club are expressed to the Knowlton Social Club for the games and prizes.

DR LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Obesity worsens high blood pressure

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has high blood pressure which is inherited. Everyone in his family has it. My problem is, he goes to a doctor who doesn't weigh him or put him on any kind of a diet. He has been going to him for the past 15 years and keeps putting on weight. He's five-foot-nine and weighs about 200.

He has a lot of indigestion and keeps chewing pills for gas. He fries his eggs in a pan of oil. He can't drink coffee, tea or Sanka because they all bother him, and now he's on cocoa because so far this hasn't bothered him. I told him cocoa isn't good for him.

I am very patient with him. We've been married 28 years and have had a happy life, but I worry about what he's doing to himself. I keep asking him to change doctors and he won't. Shouldn't he be going to a specialist? I'm sure he might live longer than me, but I would like you to tell me if I'm wrong in worrying. He's been on pressure medication all these years.

DEAR READER — Obesity is harmful to patients with high blood pressure. Even if it is inherited it still needs to be treated. You don't neglect to treat diabetes just because you have inherited it. The same applies to high blood pressure.

The evidence strongly suggests that about half of the cases of moderately elevated blood pressure can be controlled adequately with proper weight control. That means getting rid of all the fat. Some doctors give up, knowing a patient will not follow a diet and will continue to fry eggs swimming in oil and ignore every bit of diet advice given. So, the doctor does what he can with a patient who won't cooperate, and uses medicine to help relieve the problem.

Personally, I think all moderate cases of high blood pressure should first be treated by eliminating any excess fat the patient has. If the high blood pressure persists then it is time to use medicines.

A lot of your husband's indigestion may be related to his bad dietary program. Overeating leads to "gas" and indigestion. And, it is true that cocoa contains caffeine which may not be good for the indigestion problem. It also contains plenty of calories.

It does sound like your husband needs help in the diet department. Can't you do it for him? One sure way to avoid those eggs swimming in oil would be for you to fix his breakfast for him. Give him a low-fat, low-cholesterol breakfast to start the day with. Then plan the rest of his meals so that they are satisfying but not loaded with calories. The wife often makes the difference in whether a husband is successful or not on a diet.

I can't cover all the points here, but you could plan a low-fat, low-cholesterol meal program for your husband by using the recipes and food tables in my book, "What You Need to Know About Food and Cooking for Health" (Viking Press, 625 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y.).

You didn't say what your husband's blood pressure is with his present treatment plan. If it is well controlled then his remaining problem is that diet which you could help with. He could ask his doctor to refer him to a heart specialist. After he has had the benefit of the specialist's advice he could return to his family doctor if he wished and all the recommendations of the specialist would be given to the referring family doctor.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Losing Weight" booklet.

By Ann Landers

Give him a wild, hideous necktie

Dear Ann Landers: I am 55 years old and have been married for 30 years. I have given my wife 33 birthday gifts, 30 anniversary presents, 21 Mother's Day gifts, and an uncounted number of "just because I love you" gifts. My wife has never given me a gift of any kind.

This woman is wonderful, devoted, kind and gentle. I love her dearly. She has told me every Christmas when she opens her gifts from me and the children, that men do not attach any importance to gifts, which is why she has never bought me anything and never will.

We have a joint checking account and she carries charge plates for at least seven stores. I don't need anything except the pleasure of receiving a gift from her. I would cherish the wildest, most hideous necktie ever made, and I'd wear it with pride if my wife bought it for me.

Call me childish if you like, but this is the way I feel. Can you find room in your column for my letter? It may help educate other wives who think as she does. I could never bring myself to tell her how I feel and I'm too embarrassed to sign my name. Just call me — Gift-Rapped

Dear Rapped: Any man who would harbor a secret complaint for 30 years must love his hair shirt.

I suggest that you hand your wife this column and tell her you wrote the letter. I hope she will then go out and buy you the wildest, most hideous necktie ever made.

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about a relative who comes over quite often? My husband likes him, but I can't stand his filthy mouth. He doesn't care who's around. What's the matter with him? — Appleton, Wis.

Dear Apple: The weaker the ideas, the stronger the language. A person whose thinking lacks substance often laces it with profanity in an effort to give it muscle. In a word - he's intellectually bankrupt.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "X-Hausted": Every college dorm has a few night people who feel they have the God-given right to keep everybody up 'til 3 or 4 a.m. in order to show them a good time. I've had many an eight o'clock class and could have used a night's sleep, but somebody was always playing his radio or record player, or a group was yelling obscenities and singing dirty songs as they tromped up and down the corridors after a beer bust in the lounge.

"X-Hausted" will somehow live through the horrors, as I did, and then he'll discover that except for habits of strip joints and people who work the graveyard shift, most of the world goes to bed early. The job I now have requires that I be there at 7:30 a.m. For me, sleeping until eight o'clock is out of the question. If "X-Hausted" can land a job that will allow him to sleep until he "comes alive," let me be the first to congratulate him. — Crack Of Dawn

Dear Dawn: There are many jobs for night crawlers. The 4 p.m. to midnight shift suits many people just fine.

It's a great big world and how lucky for mankind that we all don't have the same metabolism. Speaking strictly for myself (a nocturnal), I'd rather stay up until 5:00 a.m. than get up at that ungodly hour.

Are drugs O.K. if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope, (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Graduates

Joan Hodsman graduated from the Diploma Course at Macdonald College with First Class Honours and was awarded the Minister of Agriculture and Colonization Gold Medal for top standing in her class. Miss Hodsman was raised in Danville, Quebec, where her family still resides. Currently employed in the entomology department at Macdonald College, in September Joan will look closely at other parts of Canada before deciding on the best location for her special interest, an organic vegetable farm.

Deborah Gurd is a recent graduate from the Diploma Course at Macdonald College, finishing her course with honours. She claims as home base her family's country home in Austin, Quebec. After she returns from a trip through the Canadian West, Miss Gurd will begin work as Assistant Herdsman on Macdonald College Farm.

Friday, August 2
The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Sign up for fall session of self-improvement or other course at night school. Make new friends.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Something new and exciting denoted in the romance department in many Taurus charts now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be more realistic. Neither under- nor over-estimate the competition. Financial outlook rather bleak.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): You can handle family problem if you are patient and understanding, although this isn't as easy as it sounds.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Leo natives tend to be somewhat temperamental and could rub people the wrong way under current rays.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Close friendships are formed under benefic influences. You meet new people in most unusual places.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Do what is expected of you so that no one has cause for complaint — including self-regrets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): There is a concentration of stellar power in Scorpio charts that includes great things. Lucky you!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): If you are dissatisfied with the speed of others, set your own pace. After all, what's the rush?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You are upset because you can't have your way all of the time — unrealistic if you stop to think about it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Some retrenching appears inevitable. Reappraise conditions in light of recent developments. Do some checking.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): A quiet day. Just what you need after a long, hectic work project that is finally completed.

PROTESTANT REGIONAL SCHOOL BOARD
St. Cecile de Milton

For the following municipalities:
Shefford Township (Granby)
St. Cecile de Milton

Public notice is hereby given to all proprietors of real estate of these municipalities, that the collection rolls of school taxes, as established by the school commissioners of these municipalities, have been made and completed, and that they now are and will remain in my possession for inspection by parties interested, during fifteen days from this notice. During this time they may be amended; any ratepayer may, during the said delay, complain of such roll, which will be taken into consideration and homologated, with or without amendment, at the meeting of the commissioners to take place on the 27th day of August 1974 at the place where meetings are usually held, at the hour of eight o'clock in the evening. From such day, the collection rolls will be in force and every ratepayer shall pay the amount of his taxes to the undersigned, without further notice, within the twenty days following the homologation of the collection rolls.
Given at Cowansville, this 29th day of July, 1974.

SHOWBEAT

Polanski's 'Chinatown' is sweet 'n' sour dish

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — There was a fabulous turnout of stars for the screening of Roman Polanski's latest film, "Chinatown," costarring Jack Nicholson and Faye Dunaway. It's an interesting movie, although slow at the beginning, but it should do well.

Among those present for the screening and party: Raquel Welch, Kirk Douglas, Goldie Hawn, David Janssen, Cher, Mike Nichols, Diana Ross, Jill St. John, Cass Elliott, Bruce Dern and the movie's stars, Miss St. John stole the show in something tight, black and lacy.

This is a private-eye story whose title is its first mystery. It is somewhat misleading (Chinatown plays only a small part in "Chinatown"). Despite this discrepancy, Paramount still elected to have an Oriental motif for the post-screening party. Bartenders and waiters were in Chinese costumes and the menu featured such goodies as Thien-Suan-Ku-Lao-Jou and Feng-Wei-Lsia — that's sweet and sour pork and deep fried shrimp, in case you've forgotten your Chinese.

Bruce Dern said he found the film too violent. Since he's abandoned his career as a heavy, he's turned full circle and is now anti-violence.

We talked about "The Great Gatsby." He said he felt the reviewers reviewed the film's publicity campaign and not the picture itself. He says that it's doing fabulously well in London and well enough all around the world so that it will eventually return a profit.

"We'll get our deferred salaries," he said, "but just barely."

Frank Sinatra continues his comeback, or whatever you want to call it. He's going to tour Japan for the first time. His recent tour of eastern states raised some $200,000 for Variety Clubs International. They returned $55,000 to Frank for his own favorite charity. (If you're interested, that's a medical education center in Palm Desert, which he established and named for his father.)

Director Billy Wilder says the new freedom in movie-making is "helpful — if you use it with discretion. The problem is that too many directors exaggerate it."

One area where women have not yet crashed through the sex barrier is in record producing. And Bobbie Gentry wonders why not.

She says she often produces her own — beginning with "Ode to Billie Jo" — but has never taken or received credit for that aspect of her work. She does her own arranging, too. But, she says, as far as she knows there isn't a single girl (or even a married one) working as a record producer.

Mrs. George U. Jewett 292-5245

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Martin and son of New Britain, Conn., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cote and family while here to attend the Cote-Marcoux wedding on July 13.

Miss Amy Nagano of Farnham spent a few days with Miss Carol Jewett. Amy leaves in a couple of weeks for Germany where she has a teaching position at the Armed Forces Base of Badden. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jewett motored to Blind River, Ont., to visit their son John and Mrs. Jewett and two children. Little Jay Lee whom they had not seen is now four months old.

Miss Judy Reid of Danville and Carol Jewett left for a two week camping trip via Maine through the Maritimes, the Cabot Trail and back by the Gaspé.

The brother of Mrs. Elphege Messier, and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Poirier and son Roger of Manchester, N.H., visited with Mrs. Messier and her husband. Her sister from the same place, Mrs. Marcel Yergeau and her daughter Edna also spent some time with the Messiers. The Messiers' daughter Suzanne, Montreal, spent her week's vacation at home here. Their son Jule, is passing his vacation travelling by car throughout the Province of Quebec. Jean-Noel Gagne and his wife from town, accompanied Jule.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sullivan and Mrs. Mary Guilfoyle from Lawrence, Mass., picked up Mrs. Inez McGovern, their cousin, and brought her to their home for a week's holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Tilson of Brampton were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hibbert Sargent (Pres. of local Legion Branch). Mrs. Sargent's cousin Mr. Harry Hall and his wife of Newport, Vt., attended the Mansonville St. Paul's Anglican Guild supper with the Sargents and remarked what a delicious meal it was. Saturday evening visitors of Hibbert and Lucy were Mrs. George Patton, Sutton, Mr. Ronald Bouvin, Montreal and a guest from the Philippines. Mr. Sargent said Vale Perkins Wharf is now clear as a whistle done by the Carol McDuff Project Yesterday. Today and Tomorrow, with the help of Pottion Township young people, (Mr. Sargent also lent a helping hand).

was reported an excellent success. The old four piece wing arm chairs, rocker and love seat of black tufted leather went for a good price, but the person getting it said he was able to sell it for three times as much. This same person got quite a bit of the furniture including a few old wash stands. A very large copper kettle for outdoor planter sold for $101.

The Mansonville United Church Hi-C Group held their meeting at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Merton Bailey in Leadville, after having supper with the Baileys. Before supper some of the young people went for boat rides with Mr. Bailey or went swimming.

Mr. and Mrs. H.C. McLean, Highwater, motored to Brigham, Que., where they attended the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Powers. Mr. Powers is 87 years old. His twin brother Clarence and his wife were present for this joyful occasion. This year Clarence and his wife were married 52 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Boyce have been vacationing with Mr. Boyce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Boyce of Dunkin and their daughter Carol, for the month of July.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Dubuc of Newport, Vt., picked up Mrs. Dubuc's mother Mrs. Bernice Hamelin, and went by car to Huntingville to visit Mrs. Hamelin's youngest daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. C.M. Bryan.

Lech's Hotel on Highway 39 between this area and South Bolton have changed hands and name. The Owl's Nest Inn is now under the ownership of three men, Peter, Andrew and Barry Lech's Hotel property was owned by John Lech and his wife (Polish people) for over 24 years. They bought the land and house from George Brock and his wife Elizabeth (now married to Rob Kirby and living in Knowlton), who had it for about 10 years, having purchased it from Fred Knowlton (he never lived there). Original homesteaders, living there all their life, were Sam Stowes and his wife who was a Witcher. Mr. Lech started with weekenders, then he expanded and built cabins increasing his business each year. Later he built the hotel onto the original house which can be seen on the north side of the hotel with an enclosed porch. Another story with a happy ending for an immigrant to Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre Marcoux and son Roger, along with his friend, Richard Brouillette, have been camping at Barton Beach in Vermont. Others in this area have chosen the same camp site.

Win doubleheader Expos give Cubs going away gift

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs and manager Jim Marshall have gladly hit the road with the team firmly anchored in their season's longest losing streak, six games.

After a National League double header loss Wednesday to Montreal Expos, 7-4 and 4-0, Marshall found himself burdened with a 1-7 record since he replaced Whitey Lockman last week.

The Cubs face the Mets tonight in a twin bill at New York, starting a nine-game eastern road trip.

"I'm not concerned about myself," Marshall said. "I just don't want these kids to get discouraged."

"We can't do a thing about those errors, and right now we're standing still and waiting for the other teams to beat us. But we'll get a winning streak going."

The Cubs handed the Expos six unearned runs all stemming from three errors by Bill Madlock.

Five of the unearned runs came in the opener on two Madlock errors, and all were driven across by Mike Jorgensen on a pair of doubles.

After Madlock's third error for another Montreal run, the crowd of 19,329 cheered when the rookie third baseman made an errorless play.

It took a four-strikeout second inning in the opener by Cub loser Bill Bonham to get the side retired. That matched a major league record shared by 12 pitchers.

Bonham started the innings by striking out Mike Torrez, only to have the Expo starting pitcher race to first safely on rookie catcher Dick Steimaszek's passed ball.

Bonham then struck out Ron Hunt, Tim Foli and Willie Davis.

Montreal rookie pitcher Dennis Blair handcuffed the Cubs with a two-hitter in the Expos 4-0 nightcap victory but needed help from John Montague after issuing his third walk starting the Cub ninth.

After Don Kessinger's opening single, Blair held the Cubs hitless until pinch-hitter George Mitterwald's two-out single in the eighth when the Cubs managed to fill the bases.

SECOND SHUTOUT

It was the 20-year-old Blair's second successive two-hit shutout against the Cubs, the first coming in a 15-0 victory the last time he faced them June 28.

Jorgensen, Montreal's first baseman converted to left field, boosted his average to a career high of .312 with his two doubles and a single in six trips. Over the three game series, Jorgensen produced seven RBIs on five hits in 10 ABs.

"I used to be just a free swinger at the plate," said Jorgensen. "But the difference now is a little more discipline and a little more concentration. I'm beginning to feel comfortable in left field."

CFL West active

Two Western Football Conference games Wednesday night produced plenty of excitement but little consolation for hometown fans who watched their teams succumb to devastating aerial attacks.

In Winnipeg, last-minute heroes by Winnipeg Blue Bombers' quarterback Don Jonas fell short of success as the Bombers dropped a 29-22 decision to British Columbia Lions, and in Calgary, Ron Lancaster directed Saskatchewan Roughriders to a 24-18 win over the Stampede.

Both games exhibited the excitement of an all-out passing game with Lions' quarterback Don Moorhead striking early with a touchdown pass to Jim Young at the 18-second mark and going on to amass 401 yards through the air. Lancaster got off to a slower start but came back to pick the Calgary defence apart with 308 yards passing and overcame a 10-0 first-quarter deficit to record the Riders first win in two starts this season.

For the Lions, it was the second straight win in as many games and it put them in sole possession of first place in the WFC. Riders had lost their opener to Edmonton Eskimos. Calgary now is winless in two starts, having lost to B.C. earlier. Edmonton is in second place in the standings, having won their only start and Winnipeg is fourth after losing their league-opener.

Young was a standout for the Lions, making four receptions, three of them for touchdowns, for a total production of 204 yards.

Talent, spirit lead Larks to top

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes are in first place in the Eastern Football Conference today thanks to talent and team spirit, says coach Marv Levy.

The Alouettes' 20-17 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders Wednesday night before a rainsoaked crowd of 15,732 at the Autostade was a combination of playing a "60-minute game" and having the talented players to do the job, Levy said.

"We played with more character than at any time since I've been here. We had just fantastic pass protection" despite the absence of all-star guard Ed George and an injury midway through the game to centre Wayne Conrad.

Conrad, who suffered strained ligaments in his left knee, was replaced by import lineman John Kennedy and Pat Bonnet, 22-year-old Canadian who filled in at one guard position but moved to centre to snap the ball on third down several times. George was suspended by Levy last week for conduct detrimental to the team.

Montreal trailed Ottawa until the 4:47 mark of the third quarter when quarterback Jimmy Jones threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to slotback Johnny Rodgers, one of five passes he caught for 132 yards. He also carried the ball six times for 29 yards.

The Alouettes trailed 3-0 after the first quarter, 10-7 at halftime and 13-11 going into the final 15 minutes but the players never lost their composure, Levy said.

It was a hard-fought contest, he said, and despite the loss Ottawa played well.

"There was nothing wrong with their defence and the most underrated part of the Ottawa team is their offensive line. They were hurt by a few dropped balls as Rick Cassatta throws a hard ball which is tough to hang on to on a wet night."

PROUD OF DEFENCE

Ottawa coach George Brancato said his defence played well although they gave up 265 yards passing and 138 yards rushing.

The offence, he said, was unable to generate a potent attack which is why he replaced quarterback Jerry Keeling with Cassatta at the start of the second half.

"We thought Rick might get it going. Receivers were dropping the ball on Gerry. But when we had to, we just couldn't move the ball."

Aside from a nine-yard touchdown pass from Keeling to Hugh Oldham in the second quarter, Ottawa's points came from the toe of Gerry Organ, who booted field goals in the first, third and fourth quarters. He converted Oldham's touchdown and accounted for a point on a wide field goal try in the fourth quarter. Ron Perowne conceded it.

LAE and Dauphines win in LWSL

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — In Lennoxville Women's Softball League play last night, Clark's Pharmacy suffered a 17-2 hammering from Brasserie Dauphin, while Lemay Auto Electric edged out Begun Sports in the night-cap by a 12-10 margin. A nine run fourth inning plugged up any chances that Clark's might have had to come back to win the contest. The score was tied after the first inning 1-1, with the second producing no points. The Dauphins team scored three times in the third, with their big rally in the fourth and four runs in the fifth to take the win. The other Clark's run came in the third inning.

Lyne Lescault was the winning pitcher, but was relieved by Johanne Grenier late in the game. They gave up 12 hits to Clark's. Losing pitcher Wenda Clark allowed 21 hits, including a home run to Monique Lapointe of the Dauphins. Changing pitchers three times by Begun proved very costly as the lack of control allowed several runs to score on walks. It was just a large enough factor needed for the LAE Gitanes to grasp hold of the victory.

Danielle Carrier started the game, but was changed in the first inning when the first four batters either hit or walked off in the first inning, but then her. Lucie Cotte followed for the first two innings and pitched in the fourth inning. Lemay Auto some of the third, but she also Electric scored two runs in the run into trouble and was pulled first inning, two in the second, for Ginette Jacques, who went three in the third, two in the rest of the game on the sixth and three in the seventh to mound. Mireille Thibault was pulled off the mound.

The winning pitcher for the Up-coming games include one Fleurimont club. Each team game each on Sunday and managed one strike out, while Monday. The Rand goes to the Begun out-hit their winning Sawyerville Sunday at 6:30 p.m., opponents 22-21, while Begun plays Clark's in Lennoxville Monday at 6:45 p.m.

Team Canada—controversy already

TORONTO (CP) — The announcement Wednesday by the World Hockey Association of its selection of players for Team Canada '74 had barely been made before controversy arose.

Wayne Carleton of Toronto Toros, leading scorer in the WHA from Dec. 9 to Feb. 25 last season, said at his home near Collingwood, Ont., Wednesday night he wasn't invited to join the team.

"I think they picked a lot of old guys," he said. "MacGregor, Mahovich, Hull, Howe, Backstrom — they're all 34-35 or over."

"No one invited me. No one mentioned it to me. I think it's politics. But it's their business what they do."

Billy Harris, coach of the Toros and Team Canada, refuted Carleton's statement.

"I'm sure he was asked," said Harris. "He led the selection committee to believe he wasn't interested — the only player to do so."

Joining coach-Pat Stapleton on the 25-man squad will be Al Hamilton, Edmonton Oilers; Paul Shmyr, Cleveland Crusaders; Brad Selwood and Rick Ley, New England Whalers; J.C. Tremblay, Quebec Nordiques; Marty Howe, Houston Oilers, and Rick Smith, Minnesota Fighting Saints.

The goaltenders will be Houston's Don McLeod, first team all-star in the WHA last year, and Cleveland veteran Gerry Cheevers.

The forward alignments will come from Andre Lacroix of San Diego Mariners; Mike Walton, Minnesota Fighting Saints; Edmonton's Jim Harrison; Frank Mahovich and Paul Henderson, Toronto; Bruce MacGregor, Edmonton; Tom Webster, New England; Rejean Houle and Serge Bernier, Quebec; Marc Tardif, Michigan Stags; John McKenzie, Vancouver Blazers; Ralph Backstrom, Chicago; Gordie and Mark Howe, Houston, and Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets.

Hull will serve as an assistant along with Stapleton to head coach Harris.

MISS CONFERENCE
 Tardif and Bernier were unable to attend Wednesday's news conference for personal reasons while the Howes—father Gordie and sons Mark and Marty—were previously committed to a film session.

Stapleton said mental preparedness will be the key to beating the world champion Soviet team in the series starting Sept. 17 at Quebec City where game time will be 8 p.m. EDT.

The remainder of the Canadian schedule with local times (EDT in Brackets):
 Sept. 19, Toronto, 8 p.m. (8 p.m.)
 Sept. 21, Winnipeg, 1 p.m. (2 p.m.)
 Sept. 23, Vancouver, 5 p.m. (8 p.m.)

The Russian portion of the schedule will be played in Moscow on Oct. 1 12:30 p.m. EDT, Oct. 3 12:30 p.m. EDT, Oct. 5 11 a.m. EDT and Oct. 6 11 a.m. EDT.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and CTV will alternate television coverage of the series' games.

CTV will do the odd-number games, beginning at Quebec City where Johnny Esaw will do the play-by-play and CBC's Don Chevrier will be the host.

Jacoby's bridge

Today's hand was played in a match-point game back in 1938. South was a bridge genius - or at least he thought he was. West was the late Jimmy Maier, a real bridge genius. He might well have turned out to be one of the greatest players of all time, if he hadn't died at the age of 31.

Our self-styled genius might have bid just seven clubs which would make without depending on any luck in hearts or diamonds, but he wanted a top score and bid seven notrump.

Looking at all the cards it is hard to see how he could get himself set at that contract but he worked it out with a little help from Jimmy.

He started by cashing three rounds of clubs and Jimmy discarded his deuce of diamonds.

Our genius stopped, thought, thought some more; cashed his queen of diamonds; entered dummy with the fourth club; thought some more; led a low diamond; took some more time and finessed his 10.

He explained later and with considerable bitterness that he could not see how anyone could be stupid enough to discard a diamond from three or four to the jack.

Jimmy said nothing at the time, but explained later on that he needed to develop some sort of swindle to beat the lay down grand slam and that South was just the sort of idiot that might fall for it.

A-A further bid should be made. We think you should just bid six hearts, but we would have no criticism of a four-notrump or five-heart bid.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three clubs your partner has bid three spades in response to your two-spade cue bid. What do you do now?
