By Timothy Belford

Senator Paul Desruisseaux... dead at 76

Senator Paul Desruisseaux who represented the Eastern Townships riding of Wellington is dead at the age of 76. Desruisseaux, who was well known throughout the Eastern Townships and particularly in the Sherbrooke area as a lawyer and financier, was appointed to the senate by the late Prime Minister Lester Pearson in 1966.

Born in Sherbrooke May 1, 1905, Desruisseaux was the son of Geoffrey Desruisseaux, owner of the American Hotel, formerly on Wellington Street and Sarah Gautier of Warwick, Quebec.

He attended the Sacred Heart School, Seminaire St. Charles Borromeo and the Seminaire de Montreal before graduating from the law faculty of the University of Montreal. Senator Desruisseaux also attended the Babson Institute and Harvard University where he

No assault on Bush limo — FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — Riot squads assembled, helicopters hovered, streets were blocked and offices searched. But in the end, authorities said it was just a chunk of cement which nicked the armored limousine of U.S. Vice President George Bush as he rode towards the White House early yesterday.

Though the initial response centred on speculation that Bush may have been fired upon, the police, the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) and the Secret Service jointly concluded late in the day that "there was no assault."

Instead, said special agent James Boyle of the Secret Service, FBI laboratory tests had demonstrated that the object which struck the car and startled the vice president and his bodyguards was "a substance consistent with the building materials being used in the area."

A Bush aide, Peter Teeley, said the tests disclosed no metal fragments, showing instead that "the object contained clay and cement."

"We heard a loud bang and drove on to work and that was it," Bush said later. "There really wasn't heightened tension even. There wasn't anything scary about it at all. ...Really."

Hundreds of police swarmed into the area. Special operations officers wearing flak jackets and carrying rifles with scopes conducted room-to-room searches of office buildings and checked rooftops.

Minister wants Quebec 'planetary model'

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Immigration Minister Gerald Godin said Tuesday he wants the province to become "a planetary model, a homeland where we can achieve brotherhood between different peoples."

"If we can succeed at that, we will have made a valuable contribution to mankind," he said.

Speaking to a meeting of the Montreal Citizenship Council, Godin said that all but the English-speaking, Russian and Chinese cultures are in a minority situation and, "Quebec is in the vanguard of threatened cultures."

Asked about the negative aspects of Quebec's language law, Godin replied that the government is still willing to negotiate a reciprocal agreement with other provinces on language of education first proposed at an inter-provincial conference in St. Andrews, N.B., in 1977.

"The offer is still on the table," he said. "We are waiting for action and not just words from the other provinces."

Godin said the language law protects the culture of Quebec's French-language majority.

But other provincial government programs such as those encouraging the teaching of ethnic languages, maintenance and development of ethnic cultures and creation of ethnic community centres also help new Quebecers to keep their culture, he said.

There is no question of an American-style melting pot in Quebec, he said. Instead there will be a mosaic founded on co-existence and mutual respect between cultures.

The language law, he said, "is the ultimate survival tool of people whose mother tongue is French, born out of 15 years of studies and two aborted attempts" at legislation under earlier Union Nationale and Liberal governments.

It constitutes a sort of revolution, he said, but a revolution so quiet that it is practically unique in the world.

S.A. blacks too primitive to rule says MP

OTTAWA (CP) — The only MP to accept a South African government offer for a free tour last fall says blacks in that country are too primitive to govern themselves.

Progressive Conservative Dan McKenzie, MP for Winnipeg-Assiniboine, said in an interview Tuesday his eyes were opened by the month-long August trip paid for by the apartheid government.

"Many of them (blacks) practise witchcraft and go to witch doctors," McKenzie said. "Many of them prefer to live in a primitive manner out in the wide open spaces."

McKenzie was ridiculed in the Commons Tuesday by New Democrat Terry Sargeant for comments McKenzie made in an interview with the Toronto-based newspaper Contrast.

"Blacks in South Africa are still too primitive for self-rule," he told the paper.

Sargeant, MP for Selkirk-Interlake in Manitoba, failed to get required unanimous consent for a motion asking the Commons to establish a scholarship fund for "remedial courses in race relations, humanity, morals, Christianity and native studies" for McKenzie.

WAS DISGUSTED

Sargeant said later he is disgusted by the Tory's remarks, adding: "It goes against everything I believe in."

McKenzie confirmed he had made the comments reported by Contrast, but said the South African government showed him it is doing everything it can for blacks.

Among other things, he said, they "have the most advanced universities in the world."

But "none of this is coming out in the American press and the Canadian press."

"We met with whites and blacks and coloreds — they don't even appreciate this controversy around the world."

McKenzie, who said Canada has no right to criticize South Africa as long as natives here are living well below the standard of living for whites, said he was offended by Sargeant's comments in the House.

El Salvador battle for town kills 100

Record News Services

SAN SALVADOR — About 100 people were killed and many injured yesterday when guerrillas stormed the town of Nueva Trinidad, near El Salvador's border with Honduras, military sources said.

The local military chief and 11 soldiers were reported to be among the dead.

About 500 guerrillas attacked the town, 121 kilometres northeast of San Salvador, the sources said.

The fighting followed an upsurge in the guerrillas' struggle to overthrow the ruling junta.

Earlier the guerrillas' radio urged peasants and workers to take up arms against the junta "to hasten the struggle for freedom."

The radio's warnings of bigger battles were an apparent reference to guerrilla plans to disrupt constituent assembly elections planned for March 28.

The U.S.-backed junta sees elections as the only way toward establishing peace in the country.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Marck MacGuigan criticized a U.S. decision to send more military aid to El Salvador and said he would discuss the matter with Secretary of State Alexander Haig next week.

MacGuigan told the Parliament he would meet Haig and "once again repeat our stand against supplying arms to any side."

MacGuigan was referring to a pledge by the U.S. administration on Monday to supply the junta with an additional $55 million in arms aid and to ask Congress for another $100 million this year.

MacGuigan said the reported killings of 20 people by the military in San Salvador last weekend "makes us seriously consider whether we should participate in their election campaign as observers or in any other fashion."

He conceded that Canada's proposal to act as an observer in the elections was a "dead" offer.

"Our offer still stands but what's the point? The rebels rejected our offer and, although the military junta agreed, they said the rebels would never accept it — so in a sense, they turned us down too."

MacGuigan said he had asked the government in El Salvador for details of the weekend slayings.

"They were terrible events — too horrible to contemplate," he said. "But there is no link between the massacre and the election next month."

In Washington, Haig vowed yesterday to do "whatever is necessary" to block a left-wing victory in El Salvador.

He told the Senate foreign relations committee: "We are considering a whole range of political, economic and security-related steps."

He said the clandestine infiltration of communist arms into El Salvador "is again approaching the high levels recorded just before last year so-called 'final offensive'."

Later, speaking to reporters outside the hearing room, Haig said he believed President Ronald Reagan "has made it very clear" that he would be reluctant to commit troops to El Salvador. But Haig declined to rule out the possibility.

Traitors ad within limits of fair political expression

MONTREAL (CP) — A poster by a Quebec nationalist group labelling the province's Liberal MPs traitors falls within the limits of legitimate political expression, a judge ruled Tuesday.

The judgment by Quebec Superior Court Chief Justice Deschenes gives the St. Jean Baptiste Society of Montreal the green light to distribute copies of the poster calling all Quebec Liberal MPs who supported the constitutional resolution "traitors."

The poster, a reprint of a controversial newspaper ad the society placed two days after Parliament passed its constitutional resolution in November, warns: "Remember each and every one of them. These are the traitors, to be remembered as such. Today they have the upper hand but tomorrow you will, and you will make them pay for their treason."

MPs Celine Hervieux-Payette (Montreal-Mercier), David Berger (Montreal-Laurier), Jean-Guy Dubois (Lotbiniere) and Gaston Gourd (Levis) tried to stop distribution of the poster by contending in a request for a court injunction that it was defamatory and an incitement to violence.

"NOT CONTRADICTED" "That the wording of the poster is defamatory could not be contradicted either objectively or subjectively," Deschenes wrote.

"But the defamation, although clear, can find its justification in the context of public interest. Because that clearly is the case here."

Citing the more than 100-year-old debate between Quebec nationalists and federalists, Deschenes accepted the society's argument that in a political and historical context it could legitimately claim the Liberal MPs had betrayed Quebec's interests. It was not up to the courts to decide which side was right, the judge added.

Deschenes also accepted the society's contention that the words "traitors," "treason" and "betrayal" have been common in Canadian politics, particularly in French Canada.

As for the poster urging Quebecers to make the MPs pay for their treason, Deschenes said this could be easily interpreted as a call to vote them out of office.

Ottawa still head to head against the provinces

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government, backed by the firm stance of Bank of Canada Governor Gerald Bouey, refused to cave in Tuesday to provincial premiers' demands to lower interest rates.

Bouey, in a four-hour afternoon session during the opening day of the first ministers' economic conference, however, appeared to win few converts to his belief that reducing interest rates below levels in the United States would invite economic disaster.

Bouey warned that lowering interest rates would cause a sharp drop in the dollar's value and in order to stop the plunge, interest rates would have to be driven up to even higher levels.

The provinces argued that lower interest rates would boost business and consumer confidence, stimulate spending and investment and improve sales of Canadian goods here and abroad.

The premiers entered the conference united in their demands for lower rates but New Brunswick Premier Richard Hatfield later agreed with the federal view that lower rates alone are not the answer.

"Giving a direction to the Bank of Canada to lower interest rates and go home is no longer the answer," Hatfield said at the end of Tuesday's session.

However, the other premiers remained adamant that rates should be lowered.

Some of the premiers said they were prepared to live with a 75-cent dollar if it meant lower interest rates but most refused to speculate on how low they would be prepared to let it go.

One outside economist said the general rule of thumb is the value of the dollar would drop by roughly one cent for each percentage point interest rates are forced down.

Each one-per-cent devaluation of the dollar would lead in turn to a half a percentage point increase in the rate of inflation although it might take more than two years to show up, the economist said.

The assessment of the first day of what now has been extended by a day to a three-day conference ran the spectrum from useful to useless.

Quebec Premier Rene Levesque condemned the federal defence of high interest rates as paternalistic and "almost injurious."

Emerging from the in-camera afternoon session of the first ministers' conference on the economy, the Quebec premier said the defence by Bank of Canada Governor Gerald Bouey was a dry, academic course in monetarist policy given "more or less on automatic pilot."

"But at least it allowed us to see the level of neo-conservatism we're dealing with in Ottawa," Levesque said, adding: "It doesn't leave us much hope for the short term."

Levesque, like his fellow premiers, has been calling for federal action on high interest rates, which he said particularly hurt small and medium-sized businesses in Quebec and contribute to the province's rising unemployment rate.

At a media briefing later, Quebec Economic Development Minister Bernard Landry said Quebec would rather see the Canadian dollar fall in relation to the U.S. dollar than have interest rates remain above those in the U.S.

Quebec is more interested in preserving jobs than exchange rates, Landry said.

Earlier, Levesque got into a $1 billion war of figures with the Ottawa about how proposed cuts in federal transfer payments to the provinces would work out in dollars.

Levesque said Quebec would lose $675 million in 1982-83 — "not peanuts" for a province that gets 25 per cent of its revenues from Ottawa and is facing a deficit of more than $3 billion.

The premier had hardly finished making his statement when Pierre Bussieres, federal minister of state for finance, called a news conference to say Quebec would really be gaining about $600 million next fiscal year over this one when income tax is considered.

Bussieres said Levesque had presented only a partial picture of reality, leaving out the fact Ottawa has allowed the province to increase its share of income tax collections.

And the Quebec-Ottawa squabbling was not limited to financial matters. The governments had two showdowns during the day, one about the time the conference was to start and the other involving new conferences.

Levesque was upset when the Prime Minister opened the meeting and began addressing the premiers before the Quebec delegation arrived.

Quebec officials said they thought the meeting was to start at 10 a.m. but federal officials maintained they had said 9:30 a.m.

And later, Landry's media briefing was delayed when he and federal Finance Minister Allan MacEachen quibbled about who would go first.

Federal officials said they had reserved the briefing room, the Quebecers replied it was first come, first served. Landry went ahead and MacEachen held his briefing in the hall.

Prince Edward Island Premier James Lee said the premiers agreed to extend the conference to Thursday to allow the finance ministers more time to discuss agreements on federal payments to the provinces.

Export plan 'nuclear electronic lunacy' — NDP critic

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government thinks construction of nuclear reactors to export electricity to the United States may be an "interesting option" to create jobs and help the industry, Energy Minister Marc Lalonde said Tuesday.

New Brunswick has discussed the possibility of building a second Candu reactor for export purposes, and more talks are likely, Lalonde told reporters. But he also stressed that Ottawa has no firm policy on the matter.

Earlier in the Commons, New Democrat Mark Rose said Ottawa has given the green light to a "massive bailout" of the industry through the proposed electricity exports and through plans to expand and subsidize Candu sales overseas.

Rose, NDP alternate energy critic, called the idea of building reactors for export of electricity

"nuclear electronic lunacy." That would mean Canadians would face the risks of nuclear energy production while the U.S. consumes the power.

According to a leaked cabinet document, suggestions have been made to build a second Candu reactor at Point Lepreau, N.B., which would be used primarily for exports to the power-hungry eastern U.S.

There have also been reports reactors could be built in Ontario and Quebec for the same purpose.

Rose said a bid for sale of Candu reactors to Mexico, tendered Monday by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., probably includes an offer of guaranteed or preferred loans with interest rates between 7.5 and eight per cent.

Lalonde refused to release details of the bid, saying they will be revealed only if the contract is won. "Until the bids are opened and the Mexicans say something about it, we're not saying 'boo,'" an AECL official added.

Estimates of the value of all associated sales and services for the Mexican deal have ranged from $5 billion to $6 billion.

Rose, MP for the British Columbia riding of Mission-Port Moody, criticized the government for the wall of secrecy it has constructed around such nuclear plans as the Mexican contract.

Teen, mother guilty of neglect in dumping baby

OTTAWA (CP) — A teenage mother and the grandmother of a one-day-old baby found in a cardboard box on the doorstep of a home last June were found guilty Tuesday of abandoning the child and placed on probation for one year.

County Court Judge Charles Doyle, saying he was unsure whether the baby's life was endangered when it was left hours after its birth, opted for probation for 56-year-old Juana Lima and her 17-year-old daughter, Angela.

Court heard neither woman knew Angela was pregnant until she gave birth last June 10. The women said the baby was abandoned because they feared what might happen if the birth became known to Angela's father, from whom Juana had been divorced.

Angela, a high school student, said she had been "a bit overweight" and was visiting a weight-loss clinic. "But I had no idea I was pregnant," she said.

In testimony during the one-day trial,

Juana said she came home June 10 and found Angela had given birth to a boy.

She said she tried to arrange to leave the baby with the Children's Aid Society, "but when we called, there was no answer."

The two women drove to the Ottawa Civic Hospital with the baby, but saw "lots of activity" when they arrived, Lima said.

"My daughter was scared of meeting somebody," Lima told the court. "So we decided to leave the baby in the nice neighborhood nearby."

They left the baby at a home where there were no cars in the driveway, thinking that the occupants would soon arrive home because it was late at night.

When Archie Ready came home, at about 2 a.m. on June 11, he found a cardboard box. Inside, wrapped in the blanket, was the baby. A hand-written note said: "Please find a good home for him to stay. God Bless You."

Man acquitted of rape after he walked the dog

MONTREAL (CP) — An all-woman jury acquitted a 34-year-old electrician of rape Tuesday.

Testimony at Pierre Arsenault's trial showed that was arrested at his Montreal apartment after he and the woman who accused him of rape "closed" a downtown beer hall several months ago.

The woman testified that because Arsenault did not have a car, he took her keys to drive her car to his apartment and forced her to have sex with him against her will.

Arsenault testified that the woman drove her own car to his apartment and that he did not force her into his apartment. Afterwards, he said, he left her alone in the apartment to go out and walk his dog.

Testimony showed that while he was gone, she used his telephone to call a girlfriend and ask her to call the police. When he returned with his dog, police arrested him.

Arsenault's lawyer Norbert Losier watched in frustration at the beginning of the trial as the prosecutor systematically removed men from the list of jurors. Of the 12 women chosen, only three were over the age of 40. They delivered their verdict after deliberating for a day and a half.

Arsenault's innocence, Losier argued, was demonstrated by the fact that he left the woman alone in his apartment while he went out for the walk.

Simone sings for supper as bill charges dropped

MONTREAL (CP) — American jazz great Nina Simone put the soul on ice this week as she sweated through the first of three obligatory appearances at an Old Montreal nightclub.

Owner George Durst of Le Bijou paid for her lodging at a midtown hotel last week after she was arrested when she told the credit manager there she was "without funds."

In return for paying the hotel bill, Durst was given custody of her passport and the internationally acclaimed singer grudgingly agreed to perform for three nights at Le Bijou.

Simone turned up for her first mandatory concert Monday night in a black leather outfit sprinkled with studs and sat down at the piano for a short potpourri of gut-wrenching songs and mildly venomous repartee which included references to Durst as "George Durt."

There was a friend sitting beside her with a stop-watch, poised to tell her exactly when her 45-minute set was over.

Simone had been expected to give two shows a night, but only performed one set the first evening. Her engagement lasted only two nights, until Tuesday, before she departed for Paris.

WANTED RIDE

Simone, who now is a Swiss resident, arrived in Montreal Jan. 26 from Paris on a personal visit and called Durst to request transportation to his club from the Mirabel International Airport north of the city.

Durst paid for the limousine and the singer agreed to consider an offer to sing at the Bijou. But unable to pay her $128 hotel bill, she was charged with "fraudulently obtaining lodging."

The charge was dropped when Durst agreed to pay the bill on condition she perform for three nights at Le Bijou for a total of $450.

"She's flipped," Durst said Tuesday.

"She's already cost me $1,450 since she's been in town for limousines, flowers, liquor and the star treatment. It's great publicity for the club but it's just a little too expensive."

"The place was so crowded last night they couldn't move the drinks. Just too much hassle all around. The bottom line is we're here to make money."

News-in-brief

PQF sued for big bang

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec provincial police are being sued by an insurance company for $6,600 for setting off too loud an explosion at a quarry in suburban Carignan two years ago.

Allstate Insurance Co. of Canada says in its suit, filed Tuesday in Quebec Superior Court, that it had to pay that amount to three homeowners after police blew up a cache of stolen dynamite at the quarry. The insurance company alleges the blast was so strong that the windows and walls of the homes of its clients were cracked.

Lawyer gets obstruction charge

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal criminal lawyer has been charged with obstructing justice after allegedly advising a witness not to testify at a coroner's inquest into the shooting death of a bank teller in December.

During the inquest, lawyer Real Charbonneau, representing a witness who eventually was charged in the slaying, exchanged heated words with coroner Roch Heroux over procedure. At one point Heroux ordered the lawyer out of the courtroom. Charbonneau was charged Tuesday.

The teller, 28-year-old Rachel Pratte, was shot in the head during a bungled holdup at a downtown bank. Four men and a woman have been charged with murder and other crimes in connection with her death.

In Quebec, coroner's inquests are held to determine if criminal responsibility is involved in suspicious or violent deaths.

Quebec cuts language help

MONTREAL (CP) — Leaders of Montreal's Italian community complained Tuesday they may have to eliminate special language classes for their children because the Italian government is cutting financial assistance to the program in half.

About 5,000 pupils attend the Italian-language classes each Saturday. A 10-year tradition in the community, the classes are part of an international program subsidized by the Italian government to aid countrymen living abroad.

Program official Romano Venturelli accused Rome of "abandoning immigrants" and of being unfair to the Italian community of Montreal.

Students run drug trade

MONTREAL (CP) — The illegal drug trade has reached an all-time high in Montreal high schools and many students are turning to crime to support their habits or to establish their own drug-selling network, says the head of the Montreal police drug squad.

Robbery is the most common method used by teenagers to obtain money to purchase drugs, Det. Capt. Henri Marchessault said in an interview.

Police statistics indicate that about 46 per cent of armed robberies in Montreal are committed by teenagers.

"The authors of these crimes often use the money they obtain as capital to set up their own trafficking businesses," the detective says.

Because of the illicit nature of the trade, statistics are hard to formulate, but Marchessault estimates that the combined marijuana and hashish market in the city is worth hundreds of millions of dollars.

James Bay labor peaceful

MONTREAL (CP) — With the economy in a slide, Gilles Bacon says he is "reasonably optimistic" there won't be major strikes at the James Bay hydroelectric development this year.

Twenty-five contracts are being negotiated this year at the multi-billion-dollar project in northern Quebec and Bacon, vice-president for labor relations at the James Bay Energy Corp., knows some strikes can be particularly debilitating to an isolated work site like James Bay.

When 1,500 cafeteria workers and janitors employed by subcontractors struck in 1980, 7,000 construction workers were forced to leave because management couldn't feed them or clean up after them, a situation that could always repeat itself, to Bacon's chagrin.

Even though the work force has shrunk to about 4,400, support workers will continue to have a disproportionately large role in the negotiating picture, Bacon said in an interview.

Air Canada eases access

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada is moving ahead with plans to make its planes more accessible to people travelling in wheelchairs by changing the seating in its aircraft.

During an eight-day experiment that ended Tuesday, the airline tested several models of rotating seats which could help compensate for small aisles. Some aisle seats in the company's DC-9s have already been replaced with seats with moveable arms.

Air Canada is one of eight North American and European airline companies participating in a program launched last year by an organization called Access to the Skies. The goal of the program is greater access to aircraft for the elderly and handicapped.

Sinai settlers should stay

MONTREAL (CP) — Israelis should not be forced to move out of the Sinai, since Egypt and the United States have so far failed to observe the Camp David peace agreements, say representatives of settlers bent on remaining in the occupied territory.

Miriam Levinger charged Tuesday that Egypt has broken the treaty by building three tunnels under the Suez Canal and "vast military fortifications" in the desert.

No blame in needless death

MONTREAL (CP) — Coroner Maurice Laniel ruled Tuesday that Meloche Industries Ltd. was not criminally responsible for the death of an employee last September, even if his death "could easily have been prevented."

Emile Bourbonnet, 25, was working inside a manhole at a sanitary landfill site in suburban Kirkland when he fell and was asphyxiated by toxic gases.

The coroner noted that the company had ignored Quebec government regulations requiring it to check safety in working areas and to ensure employees working in manholes wore safety belts, but he ruled the company was not criminally responsible because "there was no intent to harm."

In Quebec, coroner's inquests are held to determine if criminal responsibility is involved in suspicious or violent deaths.

Poles jump ship at Levis

LEVIS, Que. (CP) — Five Polish sailors jumped ship here during the weekend, Canadian immigration officials reported Tuesday.

Three crew members of the Uniwersytet Slaski, who left that vessel Saturday, and two who left the Feliks Dzierzynski Sunday, are to appear before immigration officials in Quebec City today.

The two ships left this port across the St. Lawrence River from Quebec City on Monday.

Electric bellringer blamed

MONT-LAURIER, Que. (CP) — An overheated electric motor used to drive church bells caused a fire that razed 64-year-old Mont-Laurier Cathedral on Monday, says Msgr. Jean Gratton, bishop of Mont-Laurier diocese.

Damage is estimated at $1 million, the bishop said Tuesday, adding that the cathedral will be rebuilt.

There were no injuries in the fire, but priceless artifacts including an engraved red oak chair and three ornate stained glass windows from Toulouse, France, were destroyed.

The fire was described as "a catastrophe" by Msgr. Gratton.

Mont Laurier is located 125 kilometres northeast of Ottawa.

Fraud squad hits Caisse

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — The ailing Federation des caisses d'entraide économique received another blow Tuesday when Quebec provincial police staged six raids in connection with a suspected $1.7-million fraud.

Entraide, a network of 76 co-operative credit branches specializing in loans to rural Quebec businesses, has been in the throes of a liquidity crisis since last summer.

On Tuesday, police seized documents at Entraide headquarters in Alma, Que., at a branch in Rimouski, Que., and at four other companies in connection with allegations that falsified documents were used to obtain credit.

Town defies post office

OTTAWA (CP) — The Hydro Commission of nearby Nepean will defy the Canada Post Corp. and hand-deliver its bills for a two-month trial period beginning late February or early March.

Acting on the advice of the Nepean city solicitor, Hydro commissioners agreed Tuesday to hire extra employees to deliver about 28,000 residential and 5,000 commercial bills normally sent every two months by mail to customers.

The post office says only it can deliver mail. The law says customers must pay three times the postal rate for private couriers.

MacEachen backs tax claim

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Allan MacEachen reiterated Tuesday his much-ridiculed claim that 12 million Canadians will pay less tax this year as a result of his Nov. 12 budget.

MacEachen, under intense Progressive Conservative pressure for several days, said once again in a news release that the claim is based on retention of indexation — which protects taxpayers from being thrown into higher brackets when incomes rise to match inflation.

If indexation were dropped, taxes would rise, he argues. Therefore, when indexation is retained it amounts to a tax cut.

ECC wants deregulation

OTTAWA (CP) — The government-regulated air industry should be released into the world of competition — a move that would probably mean better prices and service for air travellers — the Economic Council of Canada said Tuesday.

Regulation of the airlines "is no longer justified," council chairman David Slater told the Commons transport committee as it began hearings into a government proposal to keep the industry under tight control.

Ottawa should move instead toward complete deregulation, he said, defending a position advanced by the council in a government-commissioned report last June.

The idea was rejected two months later when Transport Minister Jean-Luc Pepin released details of his regulation-intensive proposal.

There is no evidence deregulation would open the door for excessive competition and lead to price wars that would cripple the industry, as some critics fear, Slater said.

Nor is it likely airline prices would be exorbitant because of inadequate competition.

Instead, all indications are that competition would be healthy and "result in a wider range of prices, flight frequencies and service levels, with each carrier moving into that niche in the market which it can fill most efficiently."

Trade surplus down in 1981

OTTAWA (CP) — The country recorded a merchandise trade surplus of $6.51 billion in 1981, a drop from the record $7.81 billion for 1980, Statistics Canada said today.

Farm Credit increase closer

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation to increase the amount of money the Farm Credit Corp. has for loans to farmers received approval in principle Tuesday night in the Commons, but opposition MPs say the government has a lot of questions to answer before the bill passes.

The bill would allow Farm Credit, now totally dependent on the federal treasury for finances, to obtain money from private sources.

One of those sources could be retiring farmers if Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan can convince his colleagues to accept a change to tax laws.

The minister wants retiring farmers to be able to invest proceeds from sales of their farms in Farm Credit and only be taxed on the annual payments they receive from the corporation.

Freedom bill threatened

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is getting cold feet over its long-awaited freedom of information legislation and is trying to kill the bill, opposition MPs said Tuesday.

Their recurring fears were rekindled in the Commons Tuesday when Communications Minister Francis Fox refused to confirm or deny reports that the legislation is no longer a government priority.

In fact, he later admitted to reporters the bill has little chance of being approved during this session of Parliament.

"I think they got cold feet," New Democrat justice critic Svend Robinson said after a heated Commons exchange with Fox.

"I don't like the vibrations we're getting at all," said Progressive Conservative critic Ray Hnatyshyn.

"I'm concerned they're going to let this legislation go by the boards and try to point the finger at the provincial governments and say it's their fault."

LNGs would hurt Greenland

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada risks alienating Greenland if it approves a $2.1-billion proposal to transport natural gas through the High Arctic, a National Energy Board hearing into the project was told Tuesday.

Ian Blue, a lawyer representing Canada's Inuit, submitted written evidence saying Greenland opposes the project because noise and possible pollution from the massive ice-breaking tankers carrying the gas could endanger fishing and hunting on its west coast.

But the evidence may not be ruled admissible during this first stage of hearings into the so-called Arctic Pilot Project. Tuesday was the first day of the hearings, chaired by L. M. Thur.

Admiral bailout fails

TORONTO (CP) — Two banks with substantial loans to Canadian Admiral Corp. Ltd. of Mississauga, Ont., moved to assume the company's assets the day after its lenders rejected a controversial independent viability study that recommended continuing Admiral and reorganizing it.

The study, prepared by Thorne Riddell Inc. of Montreal, was dated Nov. 4.

The seizures by the Mercantile Bank of Canada and the National Bank of Canada of Admiral's inventories and receivables took place on Nov. 5 and sealed the fate of the appliance manufacturer.

A chain reaction followed that put about 2,400 employees out of work in Ontario and Quebec plants as other creditors moved to protect their positions. On Nov. 6, the Caisse de Depot et Placement du Quebec seized Admiral's fixed assets, including its machinery and real estate.

The seizures by the banks came after $40 million in loans was called sometime in October.

Wheat Board unilingual

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Wheat Board isn't giving customers the service in French that Official Languages Commissioner Max Yalden says a federal board should provide.

In an interview Tuesday from his Ottawa office, Yalden said the Winnipeg-based board was the subject of 20 complaints last year about French-language service. Most of the complaints came from Manitoba.

However, Yalden said Wheat Board plans to improve service in the French language, including the addition of a telephone line for French customers, would help matters.

"That will probably be a significant improvement," Yalden said.

He said the commission would press the Wheat Board to improve service to French-speaking customers.

The dispute between the board and the commission is an old one and culminated in a meeting in Winnipeg in October.

John Morriss, Wheat Board information officer, said in most cases information can be provided in French.

"But when we're dealing in mass production, we have to consider costs," he added.

Bomb threat empties embassy

MEXICO CITY (AFP) — The Canadian embassy in Mexico City was evacuated Tuesday after an anonymous telephone caller warned that a bomb had been planted in the building, police said.

Explosives experts later found a shoe box in an elevator cage, but it contained only newspaper clippings.

Hydro developments reassessed along Missisquoi

By Merritt Clifton

ENOSBURG FALLS, Vt. — The month-long cold snap has Vermont energy officials reassessing shelved low-head hydroelectric development plans for the Missisquoi River.

On the one hand, frozen waters aren't flowing through the turbines at Enosburg Falls and Swanton, just when consumers are demanding more electricity to heat their homes.

Rated at 750-kilowatt capacity, the Enosburg Falls plant is red-lining at 500 kilowatts right now. Rarely-used backup diesel generators are in continuous operation, while Enosburg Falls Water and Light Co. has also been forced to purchase outside electricity at rates exceeding what they can charge their customers.

On the other hand, the energy shortage could be prevented in future years by increasing hydro potential along the Missisquoi. Three years ago the state unveiled a $40-million plan to build a dam on the Missisquoi's southern fork at North Troy, replacing one destroyed in the flood of 1927. This would permit year-round regulation of both water levels and rate of flow. Increasing the rate of flow could decrease the danger of freezing, in turn increasing the generating capacity at Enosburg Falls, Swanton, and other low-head plants yet to be built.

This plan was shelved in favor of purchasing more power from Quebec when current governor Richard Snelling took office. Hydro-Quebec is already developing plans to move power south. Vermont, however, hasn't yet decided what to do with it. If that power is routed into the North Country, as backup to Enosburg Falls, Swanton, and other border communities, southern Vermont will still need energy. Southern Vermont utilities have already lost anticipated energy from two recently-cancelled nuclear projects. Since Vermont's population is greater in the south, the state would prefer to route Quebec power southward.

But Enosburg Falls and other northern utilities have recently lost contracts with the Power Authority of the State of New York (PASNY) to supply back-up electricity, meaning that the North Troy dam looks more and more like a desirable option. Since it would affect the Missisquoi's flow through Quebec, permission to construct would have to be negotiated with Environment Canada, the Quebec environment ministry and Hydro Quebec, which owns water rights on all Quebec rivers.

H. Gordon Green

Over in Finland some years ago a picturesque and impious old farmer died and left behind him one of the most unusual wills ever recorded. He directed that his farm - and a well appointed and prosperous one it was too - to the Devil.

And just in case the Devil chose to be difficult about keeping the taxes paid up, the old fellow revealed that he had given a sum of money to the care of a Trust company and that the interest from this sum should keep the taxes paid up perpetually.

The courts, after due deliberation, decided that ridiculous or not, the will was a legal one and that there was a solemn obligation to carry it out to the best of its ability. But assuming that there was indeed a Devil, how was one to go about handing over a farm to him?

Eventually a bishop was consulted, and this man of God gave an answer that was as logical as it was easy to carry out. Said he, "The best way to let this farm go to the Devil is to do absolutely nothing with it! Lock the gates! Let the buildings rot! Let the weeds grow!"

So that's the way the old infidel's farm was left for 20 years or more. But there proved to be one fatal flaw in the old fellow's will. Had the taxation rate remained the same as it was when the will was drawn up, the money given over to the trust company would indeed have kept the taxes paid forever. But in Finland, as everywhere else in the world, taxes began to climb dramatically. So much so in fact, that 22 years after the man died, the farm which he had left to his good friend the Devil, was seized by the municipality because of unpaid taxes.

It was thought at first that the officials might have some trouble selling the place. There were some of the more godly people who were afraid it might have a curse on it. The more practical citizens wondered who in the world would be interested in buying 50 hectares of jungle. And by now it did indeed look like a little forgotten jewel set in the midst of farms which were as modern and well groomed as any in the country.

And everyone was astounded when the farm was finally purchased by one of the shrewdest and most successful agriculturalist in the district, and that he paid considerably more for it per hectare than what would ordinarily have been paid for the very progressive farms which were its neighbors.

Nor was this man reluctant to give his reasons. "There is of course the matter of timber on this place," he said. "The woodlot on this farm has not been slaughtered as have the woodlots on so many of the other farms here. But the main reason I was willing to pay a premium price for this farm is because I know the land must be better. It has not been mined of its nutrients by making it grow the same crops year after year. And the soil hasn't been spoiled by lathering it with fertilizer. You know by the feel of it under your feet that it's still mellow, still unharmed by all the unnatural things that a man has to do now if he farms the modern way."

It must have given the bishop and his faithful followers quite a shock to learn that land handed over to the devil had proven more valuable than land which had been in the care of the good and faithful stewards who had done their scientific utmost to produce.

But quite apart from the theological puzzle that old Finlander's will must have given the bishop, it seems to me that it should have given the better minds in modern agriculture something to think about too.

What is the highly mechanized, highly fertilized farming of today doing to the fundamental nature of the land itself? What kind of soil are we bequeathing to the generations yet unborn? Do the experts really know?

Or could it be that they know and would sooner not talk about it?

A little snow, a few new friends and a crisp winter night

It was fun in the snow last night as Galt students and their visitors from Halifax made a game of trying to stay on the sleigh. The event, at the Warren Ross farm on Scotch Road, Brompton-ville, is one of many the students will participate in during their week-long exchange. Galt's North American Literature students visited Halifax for a week in November.

Townships talk

COWANSVILLE (JM) — Peter Riordon was acclaimed school commissioner for Cowansville Ward Four of the District of Bedford Protestant Regional School Board.

Riordon defeated John Chapman during a regular board election in June 1981. Chapman later contested the legality of the election due to the appointment of deputy returning officers.

Judge Guy Genest upheld Chapman's argument, forcing the by-election. Riordon, who had been the DBRSB's delegate to the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards, was automatically re-elected as he was not challenged when nominations closed at 2 p.m. Monday.

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Michel Lemieux, of St. Jean, pleaded guilty to two counts of breaking and entering commercial establishments and one of simple theft in Vanise en Quebec during July 1981. The Crown told the court the accused had been sentenced to three years for similar infractions in St. Jean and suggested six months on each term. Judge Guy Genest handed Lemieux six months, concurrent among themselves and concurrent to all terms he is presently serving.

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — George Corey, alias Robert Bockus, entered no plea at his arraignment on counts of uttering a forged cheque, attempted fraud on the Frelighsburg branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, and conspiracy with one or more persons to commit a fraud in the amount of $475 in Frelighsburg on October 1, 1981. Claude Hamann chose jury trial and the preliminary hearings were continued to February 9. Corey, who was earlier remanded in custody, saw other hearings on fraud charges in Bedford and Cowansville continued to the same date.

Desruisseaux worked to boost the Townships

did graduate work.

Called to the bar in 1934, he was a founder of the law firm, Desruisseaux, Fortin and Rouillard and its senior partner from 1934 to 1961. Shortly after entering the legal profession Desruisseaux decided to enter the world of business, as well as starting several successful firms including one that manufactured chewing gum. His interest and administrative ability led him to a career in finance and journalism which culminated in 1955 with his ownership of La Tribune, the radio stations CHLT and CKTS, and the CHLT television station.

Desruisseaux's exceptional business sense and his ability in administration were recognized throughout Quebec and led to his appointment to the board of directors of numerous firms including Premier Theatres, General Electric and the Royal Bank. He was also President of Lucky One Beverages and Melcher's Distilleries.

Always an active participant in his many businesses Desruisseaux eventually sold his communications empire in 1966 after a series of strikes and labor disruptions which included serious acts of vandalism forced him to give in to union demands he could not agree to nor accept.

In 1966, at the request of the then Prime Minister Lester Pearson, Desruisseaux accepted a seat in the Canadian Senate. A long-time ardent Federalist and supporter of the Liberal Party, Desruisseaux distinguished himself during his term in the Senate by his participation in several important committees including the Senate Research Committee, the Transportation and Communication Regulations Reform Committee and the Commercial Banks Committee. He was both known and respected for his unflinching interest and his knowledge of public financing.

Desruisseaux, for all his many and diverse business interests, and despite his time consuming work in the Senate, was also known as an active participant in the social and cultural life of Sherbrooke and the province in general. He was a member of a variety of organizations including the Canadian Council for Christians and Jews and the Association for Mentally Retarded Children. Desruisseaux was also one of the prime movers behind the establishment of the University of Sherbrooke which he served as its first Vice-dean of the Faculty of Commerce.

As well as owning and operating many businesses of his own, Desruisseaux was an active booster of the Eastern Townships and the city of his birth. He continually worked for the economic development of the region and was responsible for the establishment of several firms in the area including the Lowney chocolate company.

Tributes to Senator Desruisseaux poured in from across the province today including one from Jean Marchand, president of the Senate who said of Desruisseaux, "By his tenacity and his vision he carved for himself an enviable place in our society passing through difficult periods with dignity and courage."

Mayor Jacques O'Bready added his praise, calling Desruisseaux a man who "has been for a quarter of a century a dominant figure in the world of politics and business."

Federal Liberal MP Irene Pelletier described Desruisseaux's death as a "heavy loss" adding that the late Senator had been a full participant "in all aspects of the life of Canada, Quebec and Sherbrooke."

Senator Desruisseaux, who had been in ill-health for a long period prior to his death, is survived by his wife Celine Duchesne and four children.

Trekkie minister

Quebec Minister of Cultural Communities and Immigration Gerald Godin says he wants the province to become a 'planetary model' of brotherhood between different peoples. And, he says, government policy in Quebec is making this dream a reality.

The Minister would do well to catch up on his homework if he's going to make statements like that.

'Planetary models' don't go around ordering businesses to tear down their signs because they have a forbidden language on them. They leave them alone to say what they want in the language they want, whether publicly or privately. That is freedom of expression.

'Planetary models' don't prevent the children of some families from going to classes which are specially set up to welcome them to the community (classes d'accueil) just because they happen to come from this country and not another. They welcome everyone to the welcoming classes. They don't discriminate based on place of birth.

'Planetary models' don't show their brotherhood between different peoples by sending armor-clad police bully squads in to beat up on Indians because the white man says they are over-fishing in the river they have been harvesting successfully for hundreds of years. The least they can do is treat them like white poachers, if they can't just leave them alone. That is racial equality.

'Planetary models' allow freedom of expression, even on billboards. They give everyone the same chance at school. They beat up white men as much — or as little — as they do red ones or brown ones or black ones or yellow ones. At least on this planet.

And the Ministers in 'planetary models' do their homework, rather than spending all day watching Star Trek, as some of ours seem to do.

Romania facing price problems too

By Larry Gerber

BUCHAREST (AP) — Romania is another East European Communist government in economic straits and up to its ears in debt to the West. It is preparing for price increases.

But diplomats, businessmen and economic experts say there is little or no possibility in this tightly controlled society of a major protest like the strike wave in Poland after price increases were announced there in 1980.

President Nicolae Ceausescu, the Communist party chief for almost 17 years, has built one of the world's most pervasive personality cults and one of the most effective internal security systems.

Any attempt to organize an independent union like Poland's Solidarity would be "nipped in the bud," said one Western diplomat.

The government-controlled news media have been hinting at price increases for about two weeks. Nicoara Ionescu, an editor of the weekly Economic Review, says they are expected this month. The 1982 economic plan calls for a five-per-cent rise in the general price index, the biggest in years, but increases of up to 100 per cent are widely rumored for sugar, cooking oil, rice, some dairy products and other goods.

One planning official, quoted by the Communist party newspaper Scinteia, said increases are unavoidable because some foodstuffs have been held at the same price for 25 years while production costs rose.

But controlled prices for staple foods are as high as they are in the United States, and the average wage in Romania is about $205 a month. Rice sells for 32 cents for each 45 grams, butter $1.65 for each 45 grams, sugar 37 cents and flour 33 cents.

ADMIT 'MISTAKES'

The economic woes result in large part from mismanagement, poor harvests, high oil prices and a shortage of convertible currency, say local and Western experts. Romanian officials admit "mistakes" and "shortcomings" in farm administration and other sectors.

Farming, the traditional backbone of the economy, was neglected as Ceausescu and his predecessor, Gheorghiu Dej, concentrated on building huge petrochemical facilities and other heavy industries.

The oil price boom of the 1970s hit hard at the industrialization plans at a time when Romania's own oil reserves were running low.

Now, with food supplies dwindling, the government is emphasizing new incentives to farmers as well as increased coal production and energy conservation.

Television programming has been cut two hours, to about seven hours a day as an energy-saving measure. Streetlights have been dimmed in Bucharest, and pedestrians dodge each other on the dark streets.

Unannounced power cuts strand people in elevators. Some workers have been told the public may be in for regular shutoffs of electricity, water and heat and cuts in public transportation, an informed source said.

One Western expert said it would take a major change in the economic system to correct most of the troubles. But this is highly unlikely, either from within or from outside the leadership, he said.

Help from the West also appears unlikely. Romania, the only Soviet Bloc member of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, owes Western banks and governments an estimated $10 billion, the biggest in the bloc after Poland.

Giant neighbor limits Canadian economic option

By Carl Mollins

WASHINGTON (CP) — When Canadian provincial premiers complain to Ottawa about economic recession and its encouragement by depressingly high borrowing rates, they are told in effect to take their troubles to Washington, whose high-interest policy constrains Canada's freedom to differ.

When the 10 Canadian provinces protest against Ottawa's plans to restrict federal contributions to their social programs, they might well be cautioned to thank their lucky stars they aren't one of the 50 American state governments facing an even tougher transfer of responsibilities and costs — a move likewise inspired by anti-inflation economics.

Canadian leaders conferring in Ottawa this week about the depressed economy and federal-provincial finances thus face the frustration of Canada's dependency on made-in-Washington policies.

The Canadian government says it is constrained in its choice of economic options by the influence of a neighbor 10 times Canada's size through investment, trade and political example.

"There is no way by which it is possible to insulate Canada against interest rate changes in the United States without paying a very heavy price," Finance Minister Allan MacEachen reiterated in Ottawa last week. The price of trying to reduce Canadian borrowing costs, he said, would be an outflow of investment money attracted by higher U.S. rates.

SEES DECLINE

This outflow of funds, the MacEachen argument goes, would further depress the exchange value of the Canadian dollar, adding to the cost of imported goods and thus to inflation in Canada.

The MacEachen alternative is to follow the U.S. lead in maintaining the high cost of borrowing as a weapon against inflation, discouraging spending and investment on credit.

At the same time, avowed policy in both countries is to reduce federal government borrowing to help reduce the upward pressure on interest rates and fight inflation. This would be done by cutting down gradually on the annual budget deficit, the amount by which federal outlays exceed income.

A central feature of the deficit-trimming proposals in both federal governments — Canada in the MacEachen budget last Nov. 12, the United States in President Reagan's state-of-the-union speech last Tuesday — is to shift to the regional governments some financial obligations for social programs, such as welfare and education.

The terms and scale of the programs differ, but the aims are similar — to curb federal outlays and deficits.

CITE SAVINGS

"We have had to seek some savings in order to achieve our target of fiscal restraint," said MacEachen last November when introducing his new federal-provincial spending shift, which he pledged would nevertheless leave the national social programs intact.

"This will make welfare less costly," said Reagan last week when announcing his "new federalism" program, which he vowed would not harm the nation's social-safeguard system.

While Canadian provincial leaders are being asked to acknowledge the constraints imposed by U.S. policy and the example of revised federal-state cost-sharing adopted by Washington, they may also find criticism of the U.S. approach instructive.

Critics of the U.S. policies attack them on the grounds that they are directed against the wrong target and will be ineffectual anyway.

Recession and unemployment are more urgent problems than inflation, they say.

Even Reagan has assailed the high interest rates maintained by the central banking authorities as contributing to recession. While reduced rates might devalue the dollar in either country, this would also make exported goods cheaper on world markets, increasing sales, demand and jobs, the critics say.

As for transferring responsibility for social programs to regional governments, if the programs are truly not to be diminished the over-all costs to the country would be the same, simply shifting part of the federal deficit to the regional governments.

In the United States, the critics are turning increasingly to other causes of deficit spending — notably the rising expenditure on the military by a government pledged simultaneously to reduce deficits.

Reagan steadfastly rejected advice to curb the growth of military spending or to raise taxes in order to pare the deficit, opting instead for "new federalism."

In Canada, military spending is nowhere near the 28 cents out of every federal budget dollar it is in the United States: The $7 billion earmarked in Canada for defence in the coming financial year constitutes just over nine cents of every federal budget dollar.

But it is rising at a faster rate than any other major component of the Canadian budget — by more than 18 per cent in the coming year compared with 17 per cent this fiscal year, while total federal outlays go up by less than 12 per cent.

Nixon still tops but PM on the short list

TORONTO (CP) — David Frost, who next week adds Prime Minister Trudeau to the long list of world figures he has interviewed, still counts his conversations with Richard Nixon as the hallmark of his career.

The British broadcaster, in Canada to tape six shows, entitled Frost Over Canada, says he is in this country on a "journey of discovery — I want to find out what makes Canadians different from other people."

In addition to a Feb. 9 interview with Trudeau, Frost will produce shows on Canadian lifestyle in the 1980s, using experts from the fields of business, health, science and sports.

"I don't really have an image of what Canada is like," Frost said in a brief news conference Monday. "But I'd like to learn whether the social patterns are different; how people here think about marriage, for instance."

He also said that Trudeau is on a short list of world figures he wants to interview — one that includes Pope John Paul, Zimbabwe's Robert Mugabe, Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq and Queen Elizabeth "because I don't think anyone has ever interviewed her, not even Prince Phillip."

Trudeau has long interested him, he said, "because he always seems to swim against the current."

HOPES FOR DIALOGUE

During his interview with Trudeau, he says, the challenge "as with all politicians" will be to avoid stale policy statements and to move toward a revealing dialogue — one that will "provide a portrait of the prime minister."

The six shows have been purchased by Global TV in Ontario, ATV in the Maritimes and independent stations in Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg and Yorkton, Sask. The series is produced by Bruce Raymond Production, in association with Frost's company.

Frost, who first gained attention in the early 1960s on the BBC's That Was the Week That Was, has interviewed such leaders as Golda Meir, Ian Smith, Joshua Kiykomo, Henry Kissinger, Menachem Begin and Ronald Reagan.

The most charismatic political figure he ever met, he says, was Robert Kennedy; the coldest, least human was Indira Gandhi, and the shah of Iran was the most dignified. The person he most regrets not interviewing was Charles de Gaulle.

But nobody was nearly as fascinating as Nixon, the former U.S. president whom he interviewed over a 12-day period in 1976 after the Watergate fiasco.

"Nixon had absolutely no ability for small talk. But when I first went to his office to meet him about the interviews, he had this sense of protocol that told him he had to spend five minutes chatting before we got down to business."

Editor:

A 25,000 SEAT CENTRE IN SHERBROOKE

It is most certainly not dreaming in technicolor to see Sherbrooke, the Queen of the Eastern Townships, acquire a 25,000 seat centre, somewhat like the Olympic stadium in Montreal, but with the difference that it would have a permanent roof and it would be paid for. I am not dreaming in technicolor when I see Sherbrooke involved in the AA baseball league. We were in it twice before, why not a third time? There is always a third time but, this time with a real stadium and a good organization. In this same stadium, we could have soccer, football, shows, group gatherings — in one word, the same as in Montreal Stadium but with numerous advantages like a roof, heating in winter, air conditioning summer and, most important, an indoor racing track. Countless are the many other activities that could take place inside this stadium.

To prove that it is erroneous to say one is dreaming in technicolor because he wants to see Sherbrooke on the map of Quebec as a leader in the tourist industry, here are some good examples and proofs:

Was Msgr. Cabana dreaming in technicolor when he talked about one nickel at Mass on Sunday for the construction of the Cathedral and then, in 1958, with his "Fair Share" for the University of Sherbrooke?

Was Mayor Nadeau dreaming in technicolor when he suggested his voluntary tax in 1969 and Mayor Drapeau's similar tax in Montreal, both of which have become our Quebec lottery in 1970?

Was Mayor Drapeau dreaming in technicolor with his plans for Expo '67 in the Islands which today is still in existence and very active?

Was Mayor Drapeau dreaming in technicolor with his projects for the Metro, the Expos, the 1976 Olympics and how many other great things that were accomplished by this man? But he did not accomplish all this by himself. All of Montreal believed in him and, today, Montreal has its place on the world map.

One could also talk about the "Caisnes", wholesale businesses, huge shopping centres, etc.

Quebec is going ahead, why not Sherbrooke?

Plateau Park could become, in very little time, the most attractive tourist center in Quebec.

Sherbrooke has been worthy of such a title for a long time. The ETAA group has worked hard all these years to promote this site and now is getting ready to celebrate a 100th anniversary in 1985.

Let us put aside all our trivialities and misunderstandings. Let us roll up our sleeves and bring down those old existing buildings to replace them with modern facilities for our farmers.

Let us rebuild the Eugene Lalonde arena for the Eastern Townships Agricultural Association. The ETAA will continue to work and will be in a position to present good exhibitions which will be all in Sherbrooke's honor. They have done it before when they had more and better facilities and more freedom of action.

It is very difficult to promote something in one's hometown. It is like an artist who cannot be a star in his own country. As my friend Christian tells us, after playing some good music, "Thank you for the warm welcome and applaud coming from outsiders."

I am confident that someone will make a move and will come forward to hear more and talk about it, because I have a lot to show. One does not come up with a $10 million project without being ready. As far as I am concerned, I will not give up.

Now let us talk about this very important facet which, in order to be able to accomplish such a huge project, tends to make the non-believers say "Dreaming in technicolor" — and I am talking about finance. I cannot reveal this plan for the time being but I can say that is relatively simple and could be carried into effect under short notice and, in no time, could become a reality. The population of the Eastern Townships is impatient to see Sherbrooke earn back her title of "Queen City."

The confidence and encouragement provided me by my assistant, Miss Louise Bergeron, is a precious help toward my goal of setting up, for the fine youth of the Townships, this centre, and these young people will be proud to lend a hand, and they will be privileged to witness in the future all that we have known in the past. They certainly deserve it. I repeat what I have already said "The City of Sherbrooke has nothing to lose but really everything to gain" in putting its trust in such a project. If we were a little bit more curious and confident, we would quickly realize that it would be possible to get down to business.

It is not too late to see, in 1982, work getting underway at Plateau Park. We could rebuild the Eugene Lalonde arena and renovate all the buildings for our farmers and, thus, the ETAA would be in a position to present their 97th exhibition with more adequate facilities.

Then could come, in 1983, the construction of the large centre and, in 1984, the complete program. We must be on time to celebrate the Centennial of the Sherbrooke Exhibition in 1985. And with all these preparations, we would be able to amply commemorate Sherbrooke's 150th anniversary in 1987.

At the beginning of the year, I heard them wish "Bonne Annee, Roger." I have well understood the instructions behind the word. I am ready.

ROGER PERREAULT, Sherbrooke

Transport tech should change but demand will

By Joel Ruimy

MONTREAL (CP) — Twenty-five years ago, popular science magazines were promising commuter helicopters in every garage and high-speed undersea trains to Europe.

Forget all that, the experts say now. In the next five years, as the Ottawa-Alberta energy agreement works its way into the economy, transportation in Canada will look much as it does now.

But it will cost more — probably a lot more — and it will force you to rethink how you get to work, how you ship goods and where you go on your vacation.

The energy deal, signed Sept. 1, means the price of gasoline will almost double to a minimum 70 cents a litre (more than $3 a gallon) by 1986. Prices of other fuels will rise accordingly.

Experts have a variety of opinions on what the new prices will do to transportation, but they all agree on one thing — mass transit is on the verge of a massive boom.

"A lot of people who now think nothing of driving 1 1/4 hours from the suburbs to downtown and 1 1/4 hours back will start to think twice because of the cost," says Lawrence Hanigan, chairman of the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission.

"As they move back closer to the city, they'll have access to mass transit and they'll find it advantageous to use."

ADD TO SYSTEMS

Hanigan sees little development in bus or subway system technology in the next few years. Instead, cities will meet increased demand by adding more buses and extending subway routes.

And watch for integration — the merger of suburban trains and metropolitan transit lines — as cities reach out to a growing commuter pool.

A resident of Pincourt, a suburb west of Montreal, now must pay $92 a month for a rail pass that gets him to and from the city and another $19 a month for a transit pass. But when Montreal starts integration next year, both services will be offered to that Pincourt resident with one pass at about half the present cost.

Raymond Royer, president of the mass transit manufacturing division at Bombardier Inc., estimates the North American market for buses, subway cars and streetcars will be worth $1 billion annually for the next 10 years.

"Right now, 47 per cent of Canada's oil consumption goes to transportation," Royer says as he lays out the case for mass transit.

"Of that, 74 per cent is used in cars, 9.5 per cent in trucks, and only one per cent on passenger rail and buses.

"If we can reduce our car and truck habits by 10 percentage points, we save 17 million barrels a year."

Canada now consumes 1.8 million barrels of oil a day.

But the federal Transport Department, which Royer says now is preoccupied with air travel, "doesn't have a policy on mass transit yet and it will have to develop one."

SIMULATE IMPACT

Economist Bill Sims of Concordia University says the institution is working on a computer simulation that, when completed about a year from now, will give some idea of the impact the new fuel pricing structures will have.

But he doesn't need the computer to make this prediction: "There will be a fair-sized boom in mass transit and more municipal governments will have to think about it."

Government efforts here and in the United States to balance budgets by cutting expenditures won't, in the long run, affect the deficit-ridden mass transit services because "they'll simply take the money from somewhere else — they'll have to."

However, the consensus of the experts on the future of transportation ends with mass transit. Ask them about vacations and answers vary.

Sims predicts that "we'll go to the Laurentians (a resort area just north of Montreal) rather than Florida."

But Frank Roberts, chairman and president of Via Rail Canada, says "a few things will always stay."

"People will always be looking for sunshine and warm weather in winter. That market's not going to dry up by any stretch of the imagination."

Vacations, Roberts says, will become more "destination-orientated."

"Things like touring around by automobile — forget it." People will travel only from their homes to their destination, and back, without wandering.

MORE DOMESTIC FLIGHTS

Pierre Jeannot, Air Canada's chief of airline operations and executive vice-president, says transatlantic markets will probably continue to stagnate or decline but long-haul domestic flights will pick up.

"That may not be so good for the tourism industry, though, because when people travel within the country, they tend to spend less money and they stay with friends or relatives rather than at hotels."

Roberts and Jeannot disagree on the role their respective industries will play five years hence.

Roberts says Via Rail's new Light-Rapid-Comfortable trains will, with some modifications to existing track, make the Montreal-Toronto run in about three hours and 45 minutes.

That's comparable, he says, to the time it takes to make the same trip by airplane, if you count the time spent getting to and from airports.

But Jeannot says trains "will never be a serious competitor until they can do that route in 2 1/2 hours like the trains they have today in France and Japan."

Increase production not fertilizer use

MONTREAL (CP) — A McGill University researcher is trying to increase agricultural productivity while decreasing dependence on expensive man-made fertilizers.

Biologist Dr. Desh Pal S. Verma is looking for a way of giving grain crops, such as wheat, barley and corn, the ability to use — or "fix" — nitrogen out on the air and make it into proteins.

Only members of the family of plants known as legumes — alfalfa, peas, beans, soybeans — have this capability. Other agricultural plants must rely on applied fertilizers as a source of nitrogen.

Using the latest methods of biotechnology, Verma is trying to transfer the genes which make this activity possible in legumes into plants which do not have them.

Legumes do not actually fix nitrogen themselves. Instead, they depend on rhizobium, a type of bacteria, to take nitrogen which has filtered down into the soil, and combine it with hydrogen to form ammonia which the plant can then use to make proteins.

SWELL VISIBLY

In return for fixing nitrogen, the plant provides a home for the bacteria and supplies it with energy. Rhizobium lives in the plant's root cells, which swell visibly as round bumps, or nodules, as it multiplies.

Although other plants come in contact with the same bacteria, they do not develop this type of symbiotic relationship.

"A specific set of plant genes make this association possible," said Verma during an interview in his McGill lab.

He and his students have managed to identify these genes after about six years of intensive work.

The next step is to manipulate the genes and insert them into plants which do not have them, so that wheat, for example, will be able to establish a symbiotic relationship with nitrogen-fixing bacteria.

Verma said his is a unique approach to the problem. Other researchers are trying to insert the genes controlling nitrogen fixation from the bacteria directly into the plant.

Even if scientists are successful in physically transferring the genes, Verma believes the bacteria's genes won't function in a foreign environment.

"You can't take a fish and hope it will swim in an oil tank, and that is the strategy most researchers are taking."

Verma doesn't expect farmers to be cultivating nitrogen-fixing wheat or corn for at least 20 years, but when they are, billions of dollars to produce fertilizer could be saved. The energy to transform nitrogen into fertilizer, alone with the other main ingredients — phosphorus and potassium — comes from increasingly expensive fossil fuels.

"We can't continue to apply more fertilizer and hope the yield will increase proportionately," the Indian-born scientist added. "There is a saturation point."

He predicted that a short-term spin-off of his research will be the development of better varieties of legumes which fix nitrogen more efficiently and yield more food.

Aluminum in our diets may contribute to senility

TORONTO (CP) — Aluminum in the food we eat and the utensils we cook with may contribute to senility, a Toronto pharmacologist says.

Dr. Armand Lione says as little as two or three milligrams of aluminum filtering into the brain can disrupt normal functioning and contribute to a form of senility known as Alzheimer's disease.

While the average North American takes in about 22 mg daily, Lione says, most is excreted. However, he warns that the efficiency of the kidneys begins to decline after age 30, allowing some aluminum to remain in the body.

Common sources, he says are commercial cake mixes, pancake batters, self-rising flours and frozen doughs, which usually contain sodium aluminum phosphate as a leavening agent. The final concentration in each serving would range from five to 15 milligrams.

Similarly, a home-made cake with one to three teaspoons of aluminum-containing baking powder would produce five to 15 mg of aluminum per serving. Dr. Lione suggests tartaric acid, a more expensive leavening agent but one that is aluminum-free.

Processed cheeses, can legally contain up to 3.5 per cent sodium aluminum phosphate by weight, according to Canadian food regulations. The additive provides soft texture and enhances melting. Lione says individually wrapped cheese slices have been shown to be particularly rich in the additive.

In the form of sulfate salts of aluminum, known as "alums," aluminum is also present in many pickled foods, such as maraschino cherries and pickled cucumbers. A medium-sized cucumber pickled in alum-containing solution would provide five to 10 mg of aluminum.

Farms, furrows and feathers

BY CLAUDIA BOWERS

A weasel zigzagged across the snow covered highway in front of me a few days ago, the black tip on his tail a dead giveaway in a snow-white world. Winter must be tough for this wily animal to be hunting in the middle of a busy road between Lennoxville and Sherbrooke. I stopped to watch, and wondered at the miles he must travel wigwagging between the yellow line and across to the snowbank.

Last weekend was one of my busiest, and my tracks were much like the weasel's. The girls at home 'must' go to the Huntingville Carnival Dance, but this reporter 'must' attend the Lennoxville 4H re-union at Ascot Corner. So, off we went, first to deposit the budding dancers in Huntingville, then across country to Ascot Corner where music and old friends made an enjoyable evening for all.

Don MacMillan, agronomist from Cookshire, spoke of the successes the Lennoxville Club had won during the past 25 years. "We were often part of the judging teams that represented the province at Toronto, and some competitors even went on to Washington to compete on an international basis."

Don MacMillan, Cookshire agronomist, Gordon Garfat, senior leader of the Lennoxville Young Farmers Club and David Nichols, one of the evening's organizers talk over old memories and new projects at the Lennoxville 4-H reunion last Friday night.

Politics of saving face needed

The politics involved in saving face is all that is delaying needed changes in last year's federal budget, says John Bulloch, head of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business.

But he adds that it's time Finance Minister Allan MacEachen admits he made some mistakes and gets around to repairing the damage.

The head of the 63,000-member federation — "we'll be down to 2,000 members by next year if that budget isn't changed" — says it's tough for a politician to admit publicly that he erred.

"But MacEachen and his technicians didn't realize the implications of what they were doing. "We're going to be feeling the effects of that budget for years."

Fighting against budgets is old hat for Bulloch. He founded the federation 10 years ago to protest one brought in by then Liberal finance minister Edgar Benson. The howls of protest that budget aroused from both business and labor resulted in 175 changes being made promptly, Bulloch says.

MANY CORRECTIONS

"But what people don't realize is that the government had to make 491 further corrections during the next four years.

"Tax legislation is an incredibly complex matter. It's all interwoven and when you tinker with one part of it you get widespread ramifications."

Bulloch says the latest budget which proposed many tax changes in what MacEachen said was in the interests of equity, is like throwing an old, rusty gear into a piece of delicate machinery and expecting it to work.

"But it won't. It was a meat-cleaver approach to the economy to try to get as much money as possible."

Because of the budget, he says, businessmen are facing many more economic uncertainties — at a time when they need to be planning with more foresight than in any period of recent history.

"The real significance of the budget to small businesses is that they are very aware of taxes, much more so than large corporations.

"So when MacEachen says the budget was designed to soak the rich he's got to be kidding. It's the small businessman who will really get hurt."

NEW PROBLEMS

Economic developments in the United States have created a new set of problems for Canada, Bulloch says.

"We're going in opposite directions. U.S. inflation is under nine per cent while we're over 12 per cent. Wage settlement in both countries are in the same range.

"So Canada is facing a threat of being left non-competitive because of labor costs and interest rates.

Canada, he says, needs policies which will improve the economic outlook, and especially narrow the differences between interest rates.

Crepes and fish dishes for supper are easy and light

Crepes stuffed with leftovers make a simple light supper.

There are times when most of us become a little lazy. And then there are the times when, after a business lunch or a super Sunday brunch, when a big meal really isn't appropriate for supper. With a little imagination and the help of the leftovers in the fridge, a light meal can be interesting and just satisfying enough. Crepes, although a little difficult at first, are a perfect solution. Stuff with leftover meat, a little grated cheese or some frozen vegetables such as broccoli or cauliflower. Homemade pizza with just about any topping is also worth a try.

CREPES
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. sugar

3 eggs
1 1/4 cups of milk
1 tsp. brandy
1 tbsp. melted butter
Sift together the flour, salt and sugar. Place in a bowl. Make a well in the middle and break the eggs into it. Stir with a wooden spoon folding in the flour little by little - continue until flour mixture and eggs are well blended. Add the milk gradually and beat with handbeater until batter is smooth. Add the brandy and let stand for an hour.

To cook the crepes, heat the frying pan, brush with butter and pour about 1 1/2 tablespoons to cover the bottom. Tilt the pan back and forth to spread crepe evenly. When the bottom has browned slightly, turn the crepe by lifting one corner with a knife and holding it with fingers. Let it brown on the other side. When cooked, slip it onto a warm flat plate and keep in a warm place until all crepes are cooked.

SALMON SALAD CREPES

to fill 12 crepes
1 cup raw elbow macaroni or vegeroni
1 can (7-3/4 oz.) salmon
2 tablespoons chopped green onions
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped stuffed olives
1 cup mayonnaise
1/2 teaspoon basil
1/4 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
Ground fresh pepper, to taste
1 tablespoon fresh snipped parsley

Cook macaroni according to package direction. Drain and set aside. Drain salmon, reserving juices, and flake. Combine salmon, green onions, celery, and olives. Add to macaroni and toss to mix. Combine mayonnaise with basil, garlic salt, sugar, and pepper. Add one-half cup of seasoned mayonnaise to salmon-macaroni mixture. Toss to coat. Fill each crepe with salmon mixture and roll. Chill thoroughly. Just before serving, thin remaining one-half cup of seasoned mayonnaise with reserved salmon juices. Add chopped parsley. Pour over crepes or serve separately.

SALMON SCANDI

...serves 8
2 cans (7-3/4 oz. each) salmon
OR 1 can (15-1/2 oz.)

1 Spanish onion, thinly sliced
3/4 cup salad oil
1/4 cup lemon juice, fresh if possible
1 tablespoon capers
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dill weed
Drain salmon, reserving juice, and flake coarsely into a glass bowl. Layer onion slices over. Combine reserved salmon juice and remaining ingredients: Pour over salmon and onions. Cover and chill overnight before serving.

BUCCANEERS' SALAD

...serves 6
2 cans (7-3/4 oz. each) salmon
OR 1 can (15-1/2 oz.)
1/4 cup diced celery
1 can (10 oz.) Mandarin orange segments
2 medium apples, cored and diced
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup chopped walnuts
Salt and pepper to taste
Shredded lettuce OR alfalfa sprouts
Chunk salmon and combine with remaining ingredients, except lettuce or sprouts, seasoning to taste. Toss gently before spooning mixture onto individual salad plates which have been lined with lettuce or sprouts. Serve immediately.

SALMON DIVAN

1 can (3-3/4 oz.) salmon
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 teaspoon chicken bouillon base
1/2 cup milk
Dash salt and pepper
1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese
2 teaspoons sherry
Asparagus spears, cooked
Toast points

Drain salmon, reserving juices, and break into chunks. Melt butter and blend in flour and chicken bouillon base. Add salmon juices, milk, salt and pepper. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and smooth. Blend in cheese and sherry. Arrange asparagus in small shallow oven-to-table dish. Top with salmon chunks and then with sauce. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 15 minutes.

LUNCHEON GRILL

1 can (3-3/4 oz.) salmon
1 tomato, quartered or halved
1/2 cup thickly sliced zucchini
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon melted butter
1/4 teaspoon basil
Place round of salmon, surrounded by tomato pieces and zucchini slices, on oven-proof plate. Spread Worcestershire sauce over top of salmon. Brush vegetables with butter and sprinkle basil over. Place under broiler and grill about 3 minutes or until tomato is tender. Accompany by whole grain rolls.

OPEN-FACED SUPPER SANDWICHES

8-10 small broccoli spears
1 can (7-3/4 oz.) salmon
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard, Dijon preferred
2 slices toast or rusks
1/2 cup grated Cheddar cheese

Steam broccoli until just tender-crisp. Meanwhile, flake salmon and mix with lemon juice. Blend sour cream with mustard. Place toast or rusks in a baking dish and top with flaked salmon. Layer broccoli spears over salmon. Drizzle sour cream over and top with grated cheese. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 10 minutes or until cheese is melted. Do not overcook.

CASAITALIANO PIZZA

1 1/2 pounds Italian sausage, sliced
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 small zucchini or 2 small eggplants, sliced
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
Pepper, to taste
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons pimientos
1 round loaf of Italian bread (10 inches in diameter), split and toasted

1 jar (14 ounces) quick pizza sauce, traditional variety
1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese
Preheat oven to 425 degrees. In a large skillet, saute sausage in oil until thoroughly browned. Add zucchini, garlic powder and pepper; saute until zucchini is almost tender. Drain thoroughly.

Add Parmesan cheese and pimientos; toss. Evenly cover bread round with 1/2 jar of pizza sauce and meat mixture. Top with shredded cheese. Place on baking sheet and bake 13 to 15 minutes or until cheese is melted. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.
(NOTE: Remaining bread may be saved or used to double recipe.)

Salmon Divan uses canned salmon for an inexpensive light meal.

Cherry bread teams up with cream cheese

Correction: I GOOFED! Inadvertently the rice was omitted in that marvelous Rice Pudding last week (January 27). To readers who clipped it - please add 1/4 cup of rice to the ingredients. The omission would be noted I think, but I do apologize for any inconvenience. - Kay.

For the homemaker able to stay in on wintry days, this may have been just the time for a few coffee breaks with a close neighbor. Maybe you would like to surprise them with this golden, crusty coffee bread which is made with cornmeal and is full of bright red cherries. It teams well with butter or cream cheese or any other mild spread, but please not anything that will mask its own delightful flavour.

Kay's kitchen korner

BY KAY TAYLOR

2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup milk

1 cup cornmeal
2 cups sifted bread flour
OR
(2 1/4 cups sifted pastry flour)
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons melted shortening
One-third cup chopped maraschino cherries, drained

Line a loaf pan with wax paper and grease the paper. Heat oven to 350 degrees F.

Beat eggs till light. Add sugar and milk. Beat until well blended. Add sifted dry ingredients and beat mixture about 1 minute. Lightly stir in the melted shortening and the cherries.

Bake in prepared pan for about one hour. Cool for five minutes before removing from pan. Serve warm or cold, lightly buttered.

Turn in well greased and floured loaf pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 70 minutes.

This cake keeps well. Makes 1 loaf.

Make a will before it's too late

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to John for 26 years. We have had more than our share of trouble, but we've weathered the storms despite the fact that he was never much of a communicator. Our children haven't given us much pleasure. The boy quit college to take a sales job. He is trying to recover from a drug problem and a failed marriage. Our daughter is living in a commune in California. She has contacted us only twice in the last two years. Both times she needed money. John had a stroke two weeks ago. He may not recover. His lawyer tells me he never made a will. I phoned my daughter to tell her about her father. She said, "If he dies, send my third out here." Is the girl entitled to one-third of her father's estate? For obvious reasons, I do not want to repeat our conversation to my lawyer at this time. Will you please find out for me? - Uninformed In Illinois

Dear Uninformed: Laws vary according to state. According to Jean Feehan, a Chicago attorney, when there is no will in Illinois, the wife gets half and the children get half. (This law went into effect in 1980. It used to be one-third for the wife and two-thirds for the children.) If there are no children, all the money goes to the spouse. If there is no spouse, the estate is divided between the parents, brothers and sisters. I hope those who are reading this and have been putting off writing a will will read it again. Too often people are superstitious about wills, fearful they will die the next week if they write one. Nonsense. It is plain foolish to work all your life and not make sure your financial assets and personal belongings will go to the people you want to have them. Wake up out there, I am talking to YOU!

Dear Ann Landers: I am employed in a pleasant office with nice people. My immediate superior is an able executive in his late 50s. He has always been cordial but somewhat distant, which suits us all fine. Several weeks ago a co-worker (I'll call her Alice) misplaced a report, and we both spent half an hour looking for it. I finally decided to check the boss's wastebaskets because he has been known to throw away things we need.

To our amazement, we discovered discarded drafts of a filthy novel he is writing. The language and descriptions of sado-masochism were shocking - completely out of character for this church-going pillar of the community.

I have been checking his basket regularly, and the story is getting dirtier and dirtier. The other secretaries think it is hilarious, but I am very uncomfortable. First, I feel guilty rummaging through the garbage to find his filth and, second, I don't think he is being fair to the company - writing this novel during business hours. I am tempted to report him to his boss. Would I be justified? - Faithful Employee Devoted To Her Company

Dear Faithful: Maybe someone should report you for wasting company time scrounging in the trash looking for pornography - from which you are obviously getting lots of jollies. (Why else would you continue to do it?)

MYOB, dearie. Your letter tells me as much about you as it does about your boss.

And here is a year-round favourite. Both are real old-time recipes I acquired in the late '20s.

APPLESAUCE FRUIT-LOAF

1 cup fine day-old bread crumbs
1/2 cup (each) currants, chopped walnuts and raisins
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons pastry flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
One-third teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves
One-third teaspoon mace
6 tablespoons butter
1 cup fine granulated sugar
1 cup cold thick smooth applesauce

Prepare crumbs and mix with currants, walnuts and raisins. Measure flour and sift with salt and spices.

Cream butter (or a mixture of butter and shortening) and gradually blend in sugar.

Add applesauce, then mix in dry ingredients. Add crumbs, fruit and nuts and combine very thoroughly.

LOUIS E. ROBERGE of Rock Island

Louis Edouard Roberge, a Rock Island resident of 67 years entered into peaceful rest at the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Sherbrooke, on Thursday, January 7, 1982.

The funeral was held from the Cass Funeral Home, Stanstead, to Our Lady of Mercy Church in Rock Island on January 9 for the Requiem Mass celebrated by Father R. Lefebvre at 1 p.m. Mrs. Lise Flanders presided at the organ, and she and Jack St. Sauveur sang during the mass. The Epistle was read by Jean-Louis Dupont, mayor of Rock Island. The eulogy given by Father Lefebvre made reference to the full and colorful life of Mr. Roberge.

The bearers were a grandson, Michael Morin, a nephew, Roger Vigneault, and Jean-Louis Dupont, Joseph Gosselin, Claude Beliveau and George Hatch. Spring interment will take place in Mount St. Mary cemetery, Stanstead.

Mr. Roberge was born on September 11, 1896 in St. Sophie, Megantic, a son of Camille and Adelia Frances (Douvillie) Roberge. He resided at his home until 1904 when the family moved to St. Ferdinand d'Halifax, Megantic. He attended the elementary school in St. Sophie and the St. Joseph elementary in St. Ferdinand and continued his high school education at the Seminaire de Quebec until 1911, when his father died suddenly on March 1, 1911. He returned to his parental home and school at St. Joseph's college, graduating in June, 1913, with his diploma in Commerce.

In the spring of 1914 Louis went to Quebec City where he was employed with the insurance firm of Lachance Ltd. This was the beginning of World War I and in the autumn of 1915 Mr. Roberge enlisted in the Canadian army active forces of the 9th regiment (Voltigeurs de Quebec).

Mr. Roberge received his honorable discharge in the spring of 1919. He rejoined his family at Trois Rivieres, then he came to Rock Island and was for a while employed at Butterfields. In the spring of 1924 he applied for Civil service as a customs officer at the Rock Island Port, and passed his exams at the Sherbrooke Seminary.

On October 27, 1927 he was united in marriage to Marie Anne Girardin and they resided afterward in the village.

Mrs. Roberge predeceased him on November 7, 1972.

After having obtained the rank of Captain in 1942, Major in 1944, he returned to his regiment and then resigned from the army in 1946 with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel and six service medals.

Always interested in business, in January 1946 he opened a hardware store in Rock Island. This continued under his management until 1955 when he sold to Jean-Louis Dupont.

In June, 1949 he was elected to the Liberal Party, when he defeated the Honourable John T. Hackett, E. Simard of Magog and Mr. Begin. Mr. Roberge was re-elected in 1953 and 1957 with Louis St. Laurent.

He concentrated his efforts as an MP in Ottawa for the County of Stanstead numerous services as well as public buildings. This included office and laboratory at the Experimental Farm in Lennoxville, Customs and Excise at Stanhope; unemployment insurance in Magog; operating room equipment for the Coaticook hospital; all the granite required for the federal buildings from Beebe, several contracts for different industries in Magog, Coaticook, Rock Island and Beebe. Mr. Roberge was defeated in 1958 and later sold stocks and bonds for a Montreal firm.

Mr. Roberge had also served on the Rock Island Council as a Councillor. In the 1970s he was an active worker with the Border branch of the Canadian Red Cross. He led a colorful and active life and after retirement wrote his biography.

Mr. Roberge is survived by his family, daughters, Mrs. Georgette Morin of Winooski, Vt., and her family of Jean-Paul Bouthilliette (Louise Morin) and their baby, Nicholas; Joanne and Michael; Roland and Jeannine (Roberge) Martin and their children, Paul and Patricia of Rock Island; a sister, Mrs. Bertha Lenton of Montreal and more distant relatives.

Among those to attend the funeral with the immediate family were Claude Tessier, MP, Georges Vaillancourt, MNA, both Liberal party members, and many others from the Boundary, Vermont and Townships.

JOHN KEELER of Orleans, Vt. (formerly of Barnston, Que.)

The death of John Keeler occurred at the Newport Hospital, Newport, Vt., on January 14, 1982, following a short illness. He was born in Barnston, Que., on June 23, 1888, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hezekiah Keeler. He received his education at Stanstead and graduated from Bugbee Commercial College.

In 1908 he married his childhood sweetheart, Pearl White and settled on a hay farm in Coventry, Vt. They lived all their married life in Orleans, Vt.

The funeral service was held at the Orleans Federated Church of which he was an active member, and was conducted by the Rev. John Gilmartin. Mr. Keeler requested the congregation to sing his favorite hymn, "Rock of Ages."

The Eulogy was read by a Brother Mason from the Central Lodge No. 62 of Irasburg, Vt., of which he was a member for 64 years.

He was a close friend of Governor George Aikens for many years.

Other activities in which he served were State Senator of Vermont, Chairman of County Republican Committee, member of the State Conventions Board, member of the Draft Board and District Chairman of the Rationing Board during World War II.

The couple had one daughter Waver Cook who died in 1961. He leaves to mourn his loss, his son-in-law, Howard Cook, two granddaughters a grandson and eight great-grandchildren, all of Boston, Mass., a sister Mable Cooper of Ayer's Cliff, Que., and Bernice Curtis of Burlington, Vt., also several nephews and nieces in U.S.A. and Canada.

He chose six of his close friends for bearers.

Lunch was served following the service in the Church Parlor by the church ladies.

Interment will take place in the spring in the family plot at the Pleasant View Cemetery, Orleans, Vt.

ARTHUR E. SMITH of Richmond

This community was saddened to hear of the death of a long time resident Arthur Ernest Smith who passed away on January 4, 1982, at the home of his son.

He was employed at the C.N.R. Express where he decided to move back to Richmond in 1924 where he farmed. He ran and owned a small butcher shop on the farm for several years before retiring. He remained in the neighbourhood until the time of his death.

He leaves to mourn, his two sons, Ernest of Richmond and Albert of Verdun and their wives, three granddaughters, Judy (Mrs. Donald Johnston), Betty (Mrs.

Betty Belknap), Alma (Mrs. Steve Marsh), a grandson Terry Smith and six great-grandchildren. He is also survived by a sister Lena Mitchell of Otterburn Heights, two brothers-in-law, also many nieces and nephews.

His wife predeceased him on November 7, 1942. Four sisters, Eva, Stella, Lottie and Ada, a brother Frank, a half-sister Helen and a half-brother William also predeceased him.

His remains rested at the J.H. Fleury Funeral Home where many friends, and relatives called to pay their final respects. Rev. Peter Hartgerink conducted the service held in the funeral home. The organist was Audrey Millar.

The bearers were Terry Smith, Galen and Scott Johnston, Gary Anderson, Alfred and Delbert Mills.

Relatives and friends were present from Brockville, Lyn and Trenton, Ont., Morgan and Newport, Vt., Verdun, Montreal, Stanstead, Lennoxville, Kingsbury, Danville, Melbourne, Windsor Mills and vicinity.

The remains were placed in the vault in Melbourne. He will be laid to rest beside his wife in St. Anne's Cemetery in the spring.

MRS. E. SZABO of Frelighsburg, Que.

Longtime residents of Frelighsburg were saddened to learn of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Szabo on December 5, 1981, at the Sutton Foyer following an illness of about two months.

Mrs. Szabo was born Elizabeth Major and a native of Hungary, where she grew up. In 1929 she was married to Bernat Szabo. Mr. and Mrs. Szabo came to Canada in 1930 and went to Saskatchewan. Mrs. Szabo returned to Hungary in 1931 to await the birth of their child, she came back to Canada in 1937 and the family settled in Frelighsburg.

Quiet and unassuming, always a sympathetic and helpful neighbour, Elizabeth

Szabo will be affectionately remembered by all who knew her. She shared her husband's love and ability in working the land and their garden was always a wonderful achievement and a joy to behold. After Mr. Szabo lost his sight, a goodly number of years before his death, Mrs. Szabo always kept up the tradition of a garden in spite of her own health problems. She also carried on as caretaker at the Missisquoi and Rouville Insurance Company for several years.

Following her husband's death in January, 1979, she gave up her home in Frelighsburg and moved to the Foyer in Sutton.

Remains rested at J. Dion Funeral Home in Bedford with funeral service at the Church of St-Francois d'Assisi in Frelighsburg, on December 8, conducted by Father Frigon. Interment in the parish cemetery.

The bearers, all close family friends and neighbours over the years, were Ross Tait, Sherman Young, of East Pinnacle; Donald McGrath, Abercorn; Lucien Mailloux, Duncan Tait, James Lamey, Frelighsburg.

Left to mourn her loss is her daughter Iboya and son-in-law, Milton Hancock; grandchildren Sharon and Timothy Hancock; one nephew, James Szabo, Cartaret, N.J., and several relatives in Hungary. Following the committal service, a luncheon was served by Mrs. Myrtle Tait and Mrs. Edith Grassette at the Rectory, home of Mrs. Grassette.

HATLEY

Mrs. Wm. Cutler
The sympathy of old friends here in Hatley is extended to Allie Wheeler who now resides in the Wales Home, Richmond, in the death this past week of his sister, Mrs. Ila Parker.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Hartwell spent an evening recently with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Mayhew on the Stanstead highway and found Mr. Mayhew recuperating well from his recent illness.

Mrs. Arthur Smith returned to her home here on Saturday after being hospitalized for the past two weeks.

Michael Hartwell returned home from the CHU Hospital on Wednesday evening, Jan. 27.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hartwell of Ottawa spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Hartwell and in Sherbrooke with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Waite. On Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Hartwell was guest of honour at a pink and blue shower at the Hut in Lennoxville, given by her sister-in-law, Wendy Drew.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cutler have received word that his brother, Homer Cutler of Coaticook who is spending the winter with his daughter, Marilyn Gadsby in Squamish, British Columbia, has suffered a stroke and is now a patient in the North Vancouver Hospital undergoing treatments.

Death

LAZENBY, Edward — In Cowansville on Tuesday, Feb. 2, 1982, Edward Lazenby in his 82nd year, dear brother of Henry Lazenby, Waterloo, dear brother-in-law of Mrs. Edna Lassembe, Waterloo, and Mrs. Hazel Lassembe, Granby, also survived by many nieces, nephews, great-nieces and nephews. Resting at the Leo-Paul Ledoux Funeral Home Inc., assistant director Claude Bessette, 5034 Foster St., Waterloo. Funeral service at St. Paul's United Church, Waterloo, on Friday, Feb. 5 at 2 p.m. Interment in Waterloo Cemetery in the spring.

Card of Thanks

BISHOP — I wish to express my sincere thanks to all relatives and friends for their donations of flowers, plants, food, cards and letters while I was in Sherbrooke Hospital. Special thanks to doctors, nurses and orderlies for their good care. Your kindness will always be remembered.
WILLIAM BISHOP

PARKER — We wish to express our deepest appreciation to all who have done so much for us during the illness and death of our dear sister and our aunt Ila Parker. To all doctors and nurses at the Wales Home and Sherbrooke Hospital. To all who sent flowers, food, cards and donations to Maple Leaf Cemetery, all who called at funeral home, to the A.C.W., for preparing and serving a lovely lunch. To Rev. Jervis Read for his kind words, to organist and bearers. Your kindness will always be remembered. Thank you one and all.
THE FAMILY OF ILA PARKER

In Memoriam

WRIGHT — In loving memory of our dear parents, Charles G. Wright and Thelma E. Moore, dad who left us on December 3, 1969, and mother, so suddenly, February 2, 1981. No longer in our lives to share, But in our hearts you are always there. Always remembered by CALVIN, MILDRED and FAMILY ROBERT and FAMILY

YOUNG, Raymond — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who left us one year ago today. God let you live in our life for awhile. And now He's taken you home. You will always live in our hearts. Sadly missed and memories of you we'll cherish in our hearts forever.
ROSILE (wife) RAYMOND JR., JOHN (sons) CAROLYN, ROSEMARY, LAURA, SYLVIA (daughters)

Community Aid meeting held at Ayer's Cliff

AYER'S CLIFF — A meeting of the Community Aid for this area was held at the Canadian Legion Hall on January 21. Bob Mitchell, new President of the Lennoxville Branch and Mrs. Paula Gaudet, director, were present and Mr. Mitchell chaired the meeting. They explained very well the objectives and services of Community Aid.

Mrs. Gaudet explained that one person may phone for another needing this service or may phone offering to perform this service for another as long as she had the names of the drivers and those receiving the service. Someone hiring a taxi may need an attendant or would like someone to accompany them while driving their own car. The driver collects 25 cents a mile from each user. She also explained that those requesting this service that the money is considered to be a donation. If anyone is not able to pay this fee, Community Aid has a special fund to help. Some suggested that 25 cents was not enough.

This will be discussed at the next meeting in Lennoxville on February 8.

Mrs. Gaudet explained that she would have to have time to find the drivers and that one couldn't expect to be able to find one within the hour. In an emergency people must use the ambulance service which is free to the senior citizens if ordered by the doctor.

Community Aid is funded partially by a government grant and 25 per cent of all that was collected by Centre.

"Meals on Wheels" was explained also and is working in Lennoxville.

Joyce Ounsworth and Joan Dumoulin were elected to act as a committee to see what could be done in Ayer's Cliff.

Mr. Mitchell read a copy of the new set of by laws. A note of thanks was to be written to the Canadian Legion for the use of their lovely hall. The meeting was then adjourned.

Mrs. Lorraine Harrison is the director for this area.

Day of Enrichment held

LENNOXVILLE — The January Day of Enrichment sponsored by Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterian United Church Women, held at Lennoxville on January 20, was well attended and proved to be a very inspiring and helpful day. After registration and a welcoming cup of coffee with muffins provided by Lennoxville U.C.W., a "Mixer" gave everyone a chance to move around and get acquainted. Table groups were then formed and the program got under way at 10 a.m.

A welcome was extended by Ann Clark,

Chairperson for Leadership Development, who organized the program around the theme "Forward Church Gear", Edna Davidson welcomed everyone on behalf of Lennoxville U.C.W., and Zen Judson on behalf of the Presbyterian.

Rev. Marion Hartgerink led the opening Worship. Margaret Smith, with Sara Surjadinata at the piano, led the group singing throughout the day, and Ann Clark led the singing of the theme song Forward Gear with her autoharp. Some lively accompaniment with castanets added to the spirited singing of several songs.

Rev. Burn Purdon, theme speaker for the morning session, suggested that in our discussion groups we first take a backward look at where we have been and where we are now, and then he led us forward. He told us to think of ourselves as inside a large circle with the Holy Spirit as the source of love at the centre. As we draw nearer to the centre we also draw nearer to each other, so that we can support and sustain each other and are thus able to go forward.

At lunch time Lennoxville U.C.W. served hot soup and tea or coffee to accompany our bag lunches. A beautiful birthday cake to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the founding of the United Church Women was also enjoyed. After lunch there was time to browse and make purchases at the book table presided over by May Cunningham and Judy Drew.

A feature of the afternoon session was a skit called "Mary and Martha", written by Rhoda Northrup and ably performed by Phyllis Wilson and Mildred Miller.

The theme speaker for the afternoon, Rev. Dennis Dwyer, spoke on some of the difficulties which trouble us and prevent us from getting into forward gear. Among these worries are decline in church membership, worship, social justice, being an Anglophone minority church, and church finances. He gave us some concrete advice as to ways we can act to help overcome these difficulties.

Marion Laberee reported for the registration committee that there were 60 persons in attendance, and extended thanks to all who had organized and taken part in the program. Marion Hartgerink led the closing worship and pronounced the benediction.

50 Plus Unity Club

AYER'S CLIFF — Fifty-two members, five new members and one guest enjoyed a delicious meal prepared by the kitchen committee with Flora Astbury overseeing all. President Amphiom Pelley welcomed everyone to the meeting. In the temporary absence of the Secretary and Treasurer, Amphiom Pelley led their reports. Letters of thanks were read. Bill Wyman took notes for this meeting.

George Gleed outlined the report of the Nominating Committee: President: Russ Quinn who will return in May. (Until he returns the February meeting will be planned by George Gleed, March meeting by Bertha and Joe Shulver). Vice President: George Gleed; Treasurer: Lysle Thompson; Secretary: Joyce Ounsworth; Publicity: Flora Astbury; Telephone Committee co-ordinator: Amphiom Pelley will continue, until Yvonne Quinn returns as Telephone Committee co-ordinator and will make new lists for 1982.

The Telephone Committee was asked to stand to receive thank for a job well done. New Phone Committee: Thelma Piercy, Opol Smith, Polly Jones, Beulah Keeler, Jess Cass, Bea Schoolcraft, Mabel Riches and Gergette Seward.

Food Committee: Fern Dezan, Opol Smith, and Bea Schoolcraft; Kitchen Committee: Flora Astbury, Jessie Cass, Edna Curtis, Yvonne Quinn, Mae Rediker and Mabel Riches. Dining Room: Opol Smith, Ruth Piercy, Joyce Ounsworth, Wesley Jones. Project Co-ordinator: Lysle Thompson.

Cards were circulated to be signed to send to Lillian Tyler and Echo Theule.

Since there have been many new members within the last year, it was decided to ask Austin de St. Croix to make his attractive wood name tags for them.

President Amphiom thanked everyone for their co-operation during her three year tenure.

Opal Smith, for the members, expressed thanks to Mrs. Pelley for doing so well in all her planning for the 50 Plus Club.

The afternoon was spent in visiting with friends and - or playing cards - Bridge or 500.

OES Chapter No. 46

COOKSHIRE — Cookshire Chapter No. 46, O.E.S. held their January meeting in the Sawyerville I.O.O.F. Hall, with Sister Sheila Bellam, Worthy Matron, presiding. The meeting was opened in regular form, with flag presentation.

Sisters Alta Fowler and Margaret Willard, Past Grand Matrons, were escorted to the altar, welcomed, introduced, and escorted to the East, also Brother Fred Burns, Past Grand Patron, where they were given the Grand Honors.

Sister Dorothy Imbault, Grand Instructor for District No. 1, was escorted to the altar, welcomed, introduced, and escorted to the East.

Following the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Sister Mary Lou Burns, and their approval, some of the work of the Order was exemplified for the Grand Instructor, who afterwards gave some good advice on the method of performance.

Various accounts were presented and ordered to be paid. Correspondence was read, which included information from Grand Chapter, invitations to various social events of other Chapters, and thanks for favors received. Sister Pauline McVetty was officially installed as treasurer.

On behalf of the Chapter members, Sister Sheila Bellam presented a gift to Sister Beverly Powell, with regrets that the would be missed as she is leaving for Ottawa, where she, her husband and family would be residing in the very near future.

A number of members contributed to the birthday box.

The meeting closed in regular form and refreshments were served in the ante-room by the refreshment committee for the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. D.J. Macmillan accompanied by Mrs. Gloria Bellam visited the Wales Home recently, and also Mrs. Page and Mrs. Bown.

YOUR GIFT PROVIDES SAFER WATER

Sympathy is also expressed to Russell Call and his family at the passing of their wife, mother and grandmother, Mrs. Evelyn Call, who passed away at the CHU on January 19, following an illness of several years.

Also to Mrs. Mable Cooper in the loss of her brother John Keeler at the age of 93 years, after an illness of only a few days. It is a time of sadness for these people.

Today's hand illustrates what is now known as the "scissors coup." When first described by Ely Culbertson in "Bridge World" almost 50 years ago Ely called it, "the coup without a name." The modern name gives the purpose of the play which is to cut communication between the defenders' hands so that one particular opponent can be kept out of the lead. South is not proud of his overcall, but when he sees dummy it looks as if everything will come up roses. Then the defense starts to annoy him. East takes his ace of clubs and leads back the three of diamonds. Obviously, he has led a singleton and plans to take his ace of trumps and put his partner in with the king of clubs to give him a diamond ruff and the fourth defensive trick. The "scissors coup" can come to South's rescue. He wins the diamond and promptly plays dummy's ace-king and 10 of hearts. East wins but South chucks his jack of clubs and there is no way for East to get his ruff. Note that the coup would not succeed if West could win the third heart, but then no play would succeed. KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Jeff Follard scored 23 points and the Queen's Golden Gaels overcame a 41-39 disadvantage at halftime to defeat Carleton Ravens 84-78 in an Ontario Universities Athletic Association game Tuesday night.

Greg Yelden led Carleton with 20 points, while Keith Kelso added 19 in a losing cause.

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Nordiques have sent forward Jere Gillis to the National Hockey League club's minor league affiliate in Fredericton, N.B., Nordiques coach Michel Bergeron said Tuesday.

Gillis, obtained along with Dean Talafous, who has since retired, from New York Rangers for centre Robbie Ftorek earlier this year, did not play in Quebec's 8-7 victory over Colorado Rockies Tuesday night.

Bergeron said he had not given up on Gillis, and that he would recall the forward if he is effective with the Fredericton Express of the American Hockey League.

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Chicoutimi Saguenens played the spoiler Tuesday night when they earned a 5-4 victory over Trois-Rivieres Draveurs, one of five teams jostling for first place in the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League.

Third-period goals by Denis Dore and Sylvain Simard enabled the Saguenens to overcome a 4-3 deficit. Trois-Rivieres would have moved into a three-way tie for second place with Montreal Juniors and Hull Olympiques, one point behind Sherbrooke Beavers, with a victory.

For two periods, it appeared the Draveurs would do just that. Goals by Claude Verret, Sylvain Landry and Claude Drouin erased a 2-0 Chicoutimi in the first period and Claude Gosselin's second-period score gave the Draveurs a 4-3 lead after two periods.

Alain Heroux, with two goals, and Richard Vermette had kept the Saguenens within one goal. The Saguenens moved into sixth place, one point ahead of Laval Voisins with the victory.

Tonight, Quebec visits Granby, Sherbrooke is at Hull and Montreal is at Laval.

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Wayne Gretzky of Edmonton Oilers, who is threatening to shatter several National Hockey League scoring records in this his third season, Tuesday was named the league's player-of-the-month for January.

For Gretzky, 21, it was his fourth straight monthly award and came on the strength of scoring 17 goals and adding 21 assists for 38 points.

He outdistanced centres Dennis Maruk of Washington Capitals and Denis Savard of Chicago Black Hawks along with right winger Blaine Stoughton of Hartford Whalers and rookie goaltender Roland Melanson of New York Islanders for the honor.

Gretzky already has surpassed several NHL records this season, including 50 goals in 39 games and 61 goals in 50 games. With 67 goals so far, Gretzky is nine shy of the NHL record of 76 in a season, set in 1970-71 by Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins.

Gretzky also leads the league with 79 assists, which puts him within reach of his own record of 109 set last season, and his 146 points are only 18 shy of the league record he established last year.

MONTREAL (CP) — Right winger Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens is content to watch this year's National Hockey League all-star game from the restful confines of his living room.

Which is just as well because Lafleur, named to the league's first all-star team six times, was not invited to this year's game.

New York Islanders coach Al Arbour, who will guide the stars from the Prince of Wales Conference against those of the Clarence Campbell Conference Feb. 9 at Landover, Md., chose centre Keith Acton and defenceman Rod Langway from Montreal.

Texas Rangers' general manager Eddie Robinson says the club has hired Dick Allen, who compiled a lifetime .292 average with five major league clubs, to serve as the team's hitting instructor in spring training. Allen, who will be 40 next month, spent 15 years in the majors with Philadelphia, St. Louis, Los Angeles, the Chicago White Sox and Oakland.

A Los Angeles federal judge has denied a request by the NFL to move the retrial of the Oakland Raiders' antitrust suit to another city. Raiders' owner Al Davis tried to move his team to Los Angeles for the 1981 season, but the league blocked the move. Davis and the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission then filed an antitrust suit against the NFL. The first trial ended Aug. 13 after four months with the jury deadlocked 8-2.

BOSTON (AP) — Catcher Rick Gedman ended his brief contract dispute with the Boston Red Sox, signing a two-year agreement with the American League baseball team.

Gedman, 22, was reported to be seeking a one-year contract for more than $150,000. Details of the agreement were not disclosed by the team.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paul Mulvey, who refused to leave the team bench to participate in a fight on the ice, cleared waivers yesterday and was sent by the Los Angeles Kings to their new Haven farm club in the American Hockey League.

Mulvey refused to leave the bench during a game Jan. 24 against the Vancouver Canucks to join in a fight. The 23-year-old forward had been acquired last year by Los Angeles on waivers from the Pittsburgh Penguins.

"I'm not going to be a designated assassin and come off the bench and fight," Mulvey had been quoted as saying. "Don (Kings' coach Perry) came to me and said, 'When I tell you to go out and fight, I want you to.' He told me to go out and fight and I didn't."

When is a woman not a woman athlete?

EDMONTON (CP) — Is she or isn't she? Only her femininity tester knows for sure.

In the arena of international athletic competition, anything is possible, including women who aren't women.

Testing female athletes competing in the 1983 World

University Games in Edmonton will be part of the duties of Bob Day, medical operations manager.

"Every female athlete who is competing in the Games must have proof in the form of a valid certificate that they have been tested and have been proven to be a female," he said.

A cell sample from a female athlete is examined under a microscope to identify the sex of the competitor, Day explained. A medical certificate confirming the results is given to each competitor.

Dr. Keith Walker, who will be responsible for the drug testing centre during the Games, said sex tests will be a minor concern because most female athletes will already possess certificates confirming their sex from previous competitions.

Testing for drugs used by athletes to improve a performance will be more time consuming.

The need for costly drug testing was created by the emphasis on winning, despite long-term health hazards associated with drug use, Walker said.

"Often feel if one was to say, if we ban an athlete we also ban the coach, it would solve an awful lot of problems." Cheating the testers now is almost impossible. But in the past, athletes have resorted to imaginative methods to beat the system.

Day said at one time things such as artificial bladders were used to contain unaffected urine.

Each time a drug analysis is performed, it costs $80.

"In most events, the top three finishers would be asked to provide a sample and perhaps two other athletes selected at random," said Day.

Neck injuries on increase in minor hockey

TORONTO (CP) — In the last 18 months, six Ontario hockey players between the ages of 17 and 21 have suffered broken necks and have been paralysed from the shoulders down.

This represents more serious neck injuries than occurred in the province's hockey leagues in the preceding 30 years, says Patrick Bishop, associate professor of kinesiology at University of Waterloo and head of a committee formed by Hockey Ontario to look into the problem.

Hockey Ontario is an umbrella organization representing all of the province's hockey associations.

It has been suggested, Bishop said, that the decision to start wearing helmets and face masks may be at the root of the problem.

Helmets became mandatory throughout the Ontario hockey system at the start of the 1979-80 season and at the same time face masks became mandatory for younger players, said Robert Firth, technical director of Hockey Ontario.

INJURIES FOLLOW

This change was followed by a sharp increase in the number of serious neck injuries, particularly broken necks, which were unheard of before, said Firth.

The work of the committee formed by Hockey Ontario to look into the problem will be divided into three phases: examine the effect of helmet and mask on the biomechanics of the head and neck; using a crash dummy, with and without various kinds of head and neck gear, simulate hockey collisions and analyse effects on the head and neck; and scale the results to fit various body sizes and weights.

If it can be shown that the headgear significantly changes the centre of gravity of the head and causes it to be held forward more, with the neck straightened out, it is likely helmets are contributing to neck injury.

When the head is inclined downward, with the chin toward the chest, the natural curve of the top of the spine is straightened out, making the neck more vulnerable, he said.

Both Bishop and Firth said the headgear may be contributing in a less direct way to the injuries.

"I think that what we are looking at is the possibility that with a face mask and helmet the player feels he has more total protection and may take more chances, not put on the brakes when he should, and go flying into situations where there is a chance of injury," said Firth. "It's not the equipment that is doing it. Rather, it's the psychological feeling of invulnerability on the player's part."

The main reason why younger players have so far escaped broken necks is that their lighter bodies put relatively less strain on necks when a collision occurs, but given the increasing roughness of play there is no guarantee this protection will continue, said Bishop, who has two hockey-playing sons.

On the basis of the project, Firth said, Hockey Ontario will draw up a report explaining which players are most vulnerable to serious neck injury and suggesting self-protective measures.

Firth said he doubted any recommendations will be made for changes in players' protective equipment, but said rule changes might be recommended.

Frycer hat trick gives Nordiques win over Rockies

QUEBEC (CP) — Miroslav Frycer always knew he could play in the National Hockey League but a three-goal performance was still a morale booster.

Frycer, in his fourth game back with Quebec Nordiques after a stint with the team's minor league affiliate in Fredericton, N.B., scored three times in the Nordiques 8-7 victory over Colorado Rockies Tuesday night.

"My three goals tonight will surely give me confidence," said Frycer, who was sent down by Quebec coach Michel Bergeron to improve his defensive play. "I know I can play in the NHL. When I returned to Quebec it didn't go so well and we lost our first game 8-3 to Montreal, but last weekend I played better on the road in Toronto and Hartford. Tonight it went well and I just hope things continue that way."

SNAP WINLESS STREAK

Frycer scored once in the second period and twice in the third as the Nordiques overcame a 5-2 deficit after 40 minutes and snapped a seven-game winless streak.

Peter Stastny had two goals and one assist for Quebec, while Jacques Richard, Michel Goulet and Real Cloutier, with the winner at 18:08 of the third period, also scored for the Nordiques.

Merlin Malinowski, Veli-Pekka Ketola, Dwight Foster, Aaron Broten, Mike Kitchen, Joel Quenneville, and Steve Tambellini scored for Colorado.

Frycer had nine goals in nine games with Fredericton and he has continued that goal-a-game pace since rejoining Quebec.

"He was certainly ready tonight," said Bergeron of Frycer. "He demonstrated once again that he has a lot of talent."

"He can still improve his defensive game but if he continues to work hard I will continue to play him."

If Bergeron was satisfied with the play of Frycer, he was anything but pleased with his team's performance as a whole.

"I'm very disappointed," said Bergeron after the Nordiques had eked out an 8-7 victory over the NHL's cellar-dwelling Colorado Rockies Tuesday night. There will be some changes in our lines and in our power play."

Sparked by Miroslav Frycer's three goals the Nordiques fashioned an astonishing comeback but that was small consolation for Bergeron.

"We were not the same team in the third period, but we were not good in the first two periods. We didn't give a second effort and we didn't play with intensity."

Two points is two points, but Bergeron couldn't help thinking how well, or poorly, his team would have fared against tougher competition.

"This would have been a terrible game had it been against one of the teams in our division and not the Rockies, who came in here loose and ready for anything," said Bergeron, whose Nordiques are chasing Buffalo Sabres, Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins in the Adams Division.

Bergeron even had harsh words after the game for forward Real Cloutier, whose goal at 18:08 of the final period gave Quebec the victory. The Quebec coach blasted Cloutier for icing the puck in the last minute, forcing a crucial faceoff in the Nordiques zone. Cloutier had been trying to slide the puck into an empty Rockies net.

In other NHL games last night New York Islanders defeated Washington 7-6. St. Louis beat Winnipeg 10-6, Montreal edged Calgary 5-3, Hartford downed L.A. 5-3 and New York Rangers got by Vancouver 4-3. Play resumes tonight with Montreal visiting Edmonton, Boston at Buffalo, Minnesota travelling to Pittsburgh, Toronto on the coast against Vancouver and St. Louis at Chicago.

Lady Gaiter Wendy Verrechia (15) is recovering from an injury and playing better each game.

Stenmark being protected after death threats

SCHLADMING, Austria (CP) — Skiing superstar Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden, target of a death threat received last Saturday, spoke nervously about his chances of success at the world Alpine ski championships when he arrived yesterday amid tight security.

Stenmark, 25, speaking at his secluded hotel high in the Ramsau Hills, seemed tense and subdued and refused to talk about the threat to his life which has led to extra security measures.

Road race Saturday

SHERBROOKE — The next monthly meeting of CAPS (Coureurs a Pied de Sherbrooke) will be held on Friday, February 5th at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will take place at Salle Leon Marcotte (Sherbrooke Seminary) on Frontenac Street. The guest speaker will be Real Cloutier m.d. who will speak on the topic: THE PSYCHOLOGY OF RUNNING. A medical clinic is also available to all runners who need medical attention. The clinic is open prior to each meeting - from 6:30 to 7:30. All runners are welcome and you don't have to be a CAPS member to attend.

Also, there will be an 8 kilometer race Saturday, February 6. The race is sponsored by CAPS. The start will be at 1:00 in front of the Arts Faculty gymnasium at l'Universite de Sherbrooke. Registration will be held at the same place from 12:00 to 12:45. Registration fee is $3.00. All runners are invited to attend. For those of you who do not run or do not wish to participate in the race itself, your help would be greatly appreciated in helping with its organization just prior to its start. So please plan to attend either to run or to support the runners.

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Cashen, general manager of New York Mets, said yesterday the National League baseball team has reached an agreement in principle with star reliever Neil Allen for the 1982 season.

Allen, who posted a 7-6 record with 18 saves and a 2.96 earned-run-average in 1981, had filed for salary arbitration and the case was due to be heard next week. The 24-year-old right-hander made about $150,000 last season and was seeking $450,000 through arbitration, a club source said.

OAKLAND (AP) — Centre fielder Dwayne Murphy has signed a one-year, $350,000 contract with the Oakland A's, leaving Rickey Henderson as the only team member seeking arbitration over a playing contract.

Henderson is seeking a $530,000 annual salary while management will seek $350,000 with the arbitrator.

Gaiters in must game against McGill Redmen

By Anthony Ross

LENNOXVILLE — The Bishop's Gaiters have dug themselves into a hole in QUAA basketball and Thursday night they will get a chance to begin digging out when they host the McGill Redmen.

The Gaiters are now 2-4 in league play and need a win against McGill badly if they are to have any hopes of finishing first at the end of the regular season. It is even getting to the point where not making the playoffs may be in jeopardy.

At the start of the season few would have expected this year's edition of the Bishop's men's basketball squad to be in this situation but in a league where any team can beat another on a given night anything is possible. Bishop's problem so far is that they haven't had too many given nights.

Coach Garth Smith believes Thursday's game will be the point where his team turns things around. "We have been working very hard in practice all week and will be ready," said Smith. "It is a very big game and we must win the next two to get ourselves back on track."

McGill, now 2-2, lost a squeaker to Trois-Rivieres in their last outing and Smith says they are a steady team who, if they get hot, can pose a lot of problems. "We played well enough to win against them last time we met but we went flat in the second half."

Bishop's have had that problem a lot this year. While they are able to play well for 20 or 30 minutes a game, in many cases lapses of 10 or 12 minutes have been the difference between winning and losing. It happened against Concordia Sunday, the first time against McGill and in the club's first game with Trois-Rivieres.

McGill doesn't have any superstars according to Smith but a number of good experienced players who if they get hot can cause an opposing team lots of problems. The Gaiters will be using more zone defences in their last few games. "We will be going to the zone to give some of our guys like Trevor Bennett a bit of a rest and also because more and more teams will be using it against us," added Smith.

The team is healthy and Andy Mullins and Kevin Nealis, both coming off injuries are improving with each practice. "Andy had a great practice yesterday. His shooting isn't quite where it should be but he is getting much better as is Nealis."

The Lady Gaiters are doing just what has been expected of them... winning all their league games handily and maintaining their number one ranking in the country.

They will be playing McGill Martlets at 6:30. The Lady Gaiters are concentrating on playing consistent basketball for 40 minutes. The girls realistically shouldn't have much difficulty defeating McGill but coach Wayne Hussey will be pressing his charges to play at the top of their abilities all game.

The men's game is scheduled for 8:30 after the women's tilt.

In high school action this afternoon Alexander Galt basketball team plays Stanstead College at Galt at 4 p.m. The Piper hockey squad faces off against BCS at 3 p.m. at Bishop's University.

Kevin Nealis will be counted on for some tough defence against McGill Thursday.

Pulford back behind bench

CHICAGO (CP) — Bob Pulford is going back behind the Chicago Black Hawks' bench, and a man who was later identified as a security man.

Pulford, the general manager, said yesterday he was replacing coach Keith Magnuson on an interim basis in an effort to end the Hawks' current 10-game winless streak.

Also given temporary leave was assistant coach Cliff Koroll. Both Magnuson and Koroll were assigned scouting duties.

Pulford, who had both roles when he first joined the Black Hawks from the Los Angeles Kings for the 1977-78 season, will be behind the bench tonight against the St. Louis Blues, a Norris Division rival the Hawks have yet to defeat this season.

Magnuson, who enjoyed immense popularity as a player for 10 years before being forced into retirement by a chronic knee injury early in the 1979-80 season, was in only his second season as Chicago coach.

"We are going to follow the same format Minnesota used to break their slump," said Pulford. "It worked for the North Stars and the Black Hawks have as much talent as they have..."

There were unconfirmed reports Pulford and Chicago owner Bill Wirtz met for an hour following a 5-2 loss Sunday to the Toronto Maple Leafs. Pulford was noticeably upset when he emerged from the meeting.

The Toronto victory moved the Leafs into fourth place in the Norris Division, one point ahead of the Hawks.

Magnuson was not overly talented but was eager and aggressive enough during his 10 seasons here as a player to attract a fan following that rivalled his superstar teammate, Bobby Hull.

He was named assistant to head coach Eddie Johnston but lost that job because — said reports at the time — the two men were incompatible.

When Johnston — a popular man with the players — quit at the end of the season 1979-80 season after a contract dispute, Magnuson was named his successor on June 13, 1980.

Under Magnuson, The Black Hawks finished second last year behind the Blues in the weak Sharon Tolan (6) and the rest of the Bishop's squad are well on their way to another undefeated QUAA season.

St. George's Church annual vestry meeting

AYER'S CLIFF — The annual Vestry meeting of St. George's Church was held in the Parish Hall on Monday January 25, at 7 p.m., following a delicious hot dinner provided by the ACW. The meeting was opened with prayer led by the Reverend Ronald Smith, Rector.

Slides and taped commentary of the Anglican in Mission proposal which had been presented to the General Synod in 1980 were shown. "The Anglicans must move forward with needed new answers, energies and programs. This was approved in May 1981. This churchwide Diocesan Mission is a challenge to answer the question "What does God want me to do?" For this we must pray, study and have self examination." Reverend Smith said that the Quebec Diocese is on schedule with his program. He asked for ideas.

The minutes of the January 20, 1981 meeting were read by the vestry clerk.

Connie Ashworth, Treasurer, presented the financial statement. People's Warden, Tom Hilliard thanked Connie and complimented her on a job well done. It was interesting to note that most of the cost of the new organ and much of the cost of insulation and fans were donated.

Barbara Wintle read the Treasurer's report of the Anglican Church Women showing activities of the thirteen members included pledges to St. George's, Diocesan ACW, support of an adopted child in Mexico, Christmas Cheer, wedding gifts, help in youth training, bought an Armistice Cross, and purchased a coffee maker for the parish hall. To pay for these projects the ACW served Hot Dish Dinners, catered two luncheons, had a Coffee party, St. Pat's tea, Christmas tea and sale, food sale, and two Rummage sales. In the absence of an Altar Guild, the ACW members take care of the altar and church linens.

Mercia Church's report as organist and choir leader was read by Barbara Wintle. The choir sang services for ten months as well as taking part in many interesting events in Ayer's Cliff, Magog,

The Wales Home, The Connaught Home, Quebec Lodge, and Sherbrooke. Mrs. Church invites everyone to the Hymn Sing Marathon, to support the Primate's Relief Fund, to be held the Sunday after Easter.

Reverend Ronald Smith thanked the wardens for their patience and understanding, their work in the building and moral fabric of the church. He congratulated Connie Ashworth, Mercia Church and the choir, Alice Vance, the ACW and the Reverend Canon Church for help in the congregations of the parish. He is hopeful of more help from the Laity.

Elections: Rector's Warden, Ernie Wintle, People's Warden, Thomas Hilliard, Delegate to Synod, Ernie Wintle, alternate, Royce Martin, Treasurer, Connie Ashworth, Vestry Clerk, Joyce Ounsworth, Auditor, Russell Quinn. The proposed budget was circulated and discussed. New doors and painting of the church are on the agenda. There was a discussion of Anglican membership. "Who is an Anglican?" Ernie Wintle asked for permission to use the hall by the Parents Association of Girl Guides for Tuesday, February 2. Reverend Canon Harold Church concluded the meeting by thanking Reverend Ronald Smith for guiding the Ayer's Cliff Anglicans.

Baptist Mission Circle meets

SUTTON — The Olivet Baptist Mission Circle did not meet on their regular day because of cold weather, the members surprised Mrs. Harriet Surtees by having their meeting at her house on January 26, which was her birthday.

The President welcomed the eight members and three visitors, and Mrs. Charles Lawrence read the hymn "Standing at the Portal of the Opening Year."

Mrs. Ellen Rumsby conducted the devotional exercises, the Scripture lesson was from Chapter 30 of Deuteronomy. For meditation theme was, "Life is a Landscaping job." First we should plan, start with what we have, do the best that we can, and leave the rest to God.

The Study by Mrs. Orton Baker: "They have not heard", are the people who have not been reached with Christianity. Pictures of the Canadian Baptist Missionaries were viewed who are serving in Bolivia. An article was read about what each one is doing in Bolivia.

For the Newscast Miss Lees Bennett read about Ideas that work, one was a Hunger Awareness dinner held at Calgary Baptist Church in Toronto. People who attended sat at different tables and represented different countries. The basic purpose of the exercise was to make people aware of the disparities in the world and that a large section of the world's population goes to bed hungry every night.

Prayer requests were prepared and read by Mrs. Fred Knights who also read the annual Secretary and Treasurer's reports for 1981. By the generous offerings, members are interested in missionary work.

Thank-you letters were read from Mrs. Emily O'Brien, Mrs. Ola Gibson and Mrs. Jessie Robinson for their Christmas cheer boxes. A thank-you letter and money was received from Miss Mary Routh of Toronto. Mrs. Orton Baker had prepared lunch, and was assisted in serving by Mrs. Iva Duboyce and Mrs. Kay Woodard. The latter had made the birthday cake which was beautifully decorated by Miss Lees Bennett. Four men joined the ladies for refreshments. A gift was presented to Mrs. Surtees from Olivet Baptist Church and there were several other gifts to help celebrate her 91st birthday. Mrs. Surtees thanked everyone for such a surprise and a pleasant afternoon.

Vestry meeting held

SOUTH STUKELY — Annual vestry meeting was held on January 21, at the home of Clifford Wright. Rev. W. Davidson conducted the meeting.

In the absence of Russell Savage, minutes were taken by Mrs. Gordon Honey. Treasurer, Clifford Wright gave his annual report, showed a successful year, bills all paid, commitments met and a good balance on hand. This was accepted as read.

Rev. Davidson elected officers for the coming year: Minister's Warden, Gordon Honey; People's Warden and vestry clerk, Russell Savage; Treasurer, Clifford Wright; Organist, Mildred Bowering.

Rev. Davidson thanked them for their support.

North Hatley: Small town, big developer

Gabr has grand plans for picturesque village

By Charles Bury

NORTH HATLEY — As multi-millionaire Saad Gabr's plans for the development of this village come closer and closer to execution, the municipal council has some big problems to solve, but so far lacks the experience and know-how to deal with them.

Gabr, who continually surprises observers with new additions to his long list of Eastern Townships investments, last week unveiled publicly, for the first time, a detailed plan including drawings, maps and descriptions of his proposed development for the North Hatley village core.

Included in the plans are a convention centre, shopping mall, improvements to present buildings Gabr owns in the village 'downtown', and a 60,000 square foot (about 1½ acre) technology centre which will include laboratories, classroom space and offices and which will use a revolutionary solar- and earth-heated design, with most of the building underground and a telescope observatory disguised as a grain silo.

Also in line for North Hatley and surrounding areas if Gabr's plans materialize will be the need for extensive additional housing. Already Gabr employs approximately 110 people in North Hatley, making him by far the area's largest employer, and his activities are apparently just beginning. The 110 employees share a monthly payroll he estimates now at about $500,000, meaning the average salary is in the $45,000 per year range. This figure includes all his staff, from dishwashers to designers, from chambermaids to chauffeurs to computer programmers, but they all have one thing in common: they need a place to live, to play, to park their cars and do their shopping.

As Gabr puts it, he has a very good relationship with the municipality — "I pay them money all the time, and they give us no services; what could be a better relationship than that?" — but it is a relationship that has to go much further. He needs things only the municipality can give him: zoning changes, environmental approval for his buildings, municipal services he cannot duplicate. He can in turn provide North Hatley — which many residents and observers see as a dying village — with many of the things it needs to survive: jobs to keep villagers from moving out, a growing tax base to keep fiscal deficits from moving in.

Gabr's combine, The North Hatley Group of Companies, presently owns some 17 per cent of North Hatley's land mass, according to the village council's estimate. He owns old houses and commercial buildings, the former post office, a warehouse, the marina, the gas station. If he chooses to build them up, the village will prosper. If he chooses to go elsewhere, they will crumble into the dust that will also be the ashes of North Hatley.

But North Hatley municipal council meetings do not normally deal with such earth-shaking matters as the future of the village. The regular February meeting Monday night was no exception:

Mayor Ruth Taylor announced a Hydro-Quebec information meeting concerning the transmission lines that will soon carry James Bay power to the New England states. One councillor remarked cynically that the utility would do as it usually does: "listen to everyone and then build the lines right through the village."

Council decided not to join a regional transportation program for the handicapped. There is only one person in town who could benefit, the reasoning was, and the assessment of over $500 was too steep.

There was a long discussion about how much dog licences should cost. Two dollars is too little, but would $10 be too much? And what about the new tags. They might cost as much as $60 a hundred, and 100 is a minimum order. The Society for the Protection of Animals would look after the disposal of strays, but what about catching them and transporting them to Sherbrooke? Only one dog in town is currently causing problems. "That boxer," said Taylor, "it got another cat. It wasn't killed but it will never show again." It was finally decided that the price of the tags should be high enough so it doesn't cause the town a deficit, and negotiations will begin with a local man about catching and transporting strays.

Taylor announced that the new regional council municipality (MRC) which includes all the towns around Lake Memphremagog was officially formed at its first meeting in January. Formed according to Law 125, which gives the MRCs many of the present town responsibilities along with those of the former county councils, the MRCs will take up a lot of the mayor's time and has meant the learning of a whole new set of government regulations which didn't even exist a year ago. Mayor Roger Nicolet of Austin is the MRC prefect, says Mayor Taylor, and he is "a very clever fellow." The MRC has hired a lawyer to act as secretary-treasurer for the first few months to help make the transition orderly, Taylor reported.

Council agreed to look into forming a common sports and recreation department with the neighboring municipality of Hatley Township. Everyone agreed it would be a good idea.

Council decided to back the request of the local land-registry office that the real-estate records not be moved to a temporary location while a new permanent building is still only in the planning stages.

There was a letter from the federal government asking if the new lights for the government dock could be stored until spring. Council agreed but it was mentioned that last year the same department had sent a letter asking council to approve a resolution asking for the lights, but when the resolution got to Ottawa, a reply came back thanking council but pointing out that there was no budget for the project.

It was decided to buy 50,000 sheets of photocopy paper in order to get a bulk discount: 40,000 sheets of 8½ by 11 paper and 10,000 of 8½ by 14. It was agreed that in the future any photocopy done for outsiders would be on a "spot cash" basis.

Rent charged to Hatley Township, which shares the town office, will be raised to $115 a month from the present $80. The rate hadn't changed in six years.

It was decided to reserve parking space in front of the town office for employees who have had a hard time finding a place to park in the morning.

It was decided not to send 3½ x 5 black and white photos of council to La Tribune, which had asked for them. It was decided as well not to mail council meeting minutes to La Tribune and radio station CJRS, which has asked for them. "There are some things that are just for North Hatley and we don't want them to get out to Sherbrooke," said

Mayor Taylor. "If they want them they can come and get them."

It was decided to buy a new secretary's chair for a village office worker, who has been having a sore back. It was pointed out that her present chair was bought more than 10 years ago, and was second-hand then. Mayor Taylor was asked to make the purchase. "We'll go buy one," she said, "and we'll get a good bargain."

It was mentioned that someone has been plugging his car into the receptacle outside the town office overnight. "Quite a few mornings lately we've come down in the morning and there's been a car plugged in," said Mayor Taylor. "But the joke's on him. We have a switch on the inside and it's been turned off."

"If we don't have a plug for every citizen," she said, "we can't very well give one to him."

Taylor: The small village mentality is different

NORTH HATLEY — Municipal council hasn't taken a firm position on the developments planned by wealthy promoter Saad Gabr. But the village fathers know a controversy is storming around them as villagers line up on one side of the issue or the other.

Some residents are in favor of the development, the growth, the jobs that will be created, the rubbing off of some of the enigmatic Mr. Gabr's wealth. Some are almost violently opposed. They don't want the idyllic resort atmosphere to change. They want the village to stay the same as it is now, with little traffic, little commerce and no industry. They don't want or need jobs, they live in North Hatley because they don't need them or already have them.

In the middle is the North Hatley municipal council, and they don't even know yet what Gabr and his North Hatley Group of Companies want to do.

Gabr himself knows about the problem, but he has so far failed to say anything about it. "The people in Sherbrooke love me," he says, but in North Hatley I get cursed on the street."

Mayor Ruth Taylor of North Hatley says the problem is that Sherbrooke is a big place but North Hatley is a small one. "The small village mentality is so different," she says. "You can't spring anything too quickly, or everyone gets their backs up. When he (Gabr) started, it was a panic. Nobody knew what he was doing."

Taylor also feels that some villagers are at fault for what has come about. "Gabr wasn't working in a vacuum," she says, "and he never bought anything that wasn't for sale."

Taylor saw Gabr's plans for North Hatley for the first time last Saturday, and none of the other councillors has seen them yet. But she is not displeased with his developments so far. "All the buildings he's worked on have been redone nicely," she says. "The Mill (a restaurant he owns) is a lovely spot." Mayor Taylor is not opposed to development as such, she says. "I would love to see the village come to life again," she says, "but in a controlled way. And as long as the people here have an understanding."

And understanding seems to be the centre of the controversy. "He's talking on a level partly above us," Taylor says. "He doesn't seem to have the patience to explain things; he can't wait." She adds that it is difficult to measure opposition to the North Hatley Group's plans. "Resistance seems to come and go," she says. "It's in cycles."

Taylor thinks Saad Gabr seems to have become more communicative himself in an effort to calm people's fears. "I think I sense a more open spirit."

And she thinks townspeople are beginning to see some advantage to his activities. "After all," she says, "At least some of that half a million monthly payroll is rubbing off here."

Council's only objection in principle to Gabr's plans, she says, would be if he proposed a factory. "We have always been against any industry for North Hatley," she says, "and that hasn't changed." She says she also wants to keep the special feeling that so many people think makes North Hatley special. Gabr included. "I don't want anything done that will change the village atmosphere," she says.

Councillor Johann van Lier agrees with Taylor that most of the problem in North Hatley is a matter of communication. "He should have shown us more about what he wants to do," van Lier says.

The councillor gives his own neighborhood as an example of what happens. "I live next to The Grove apartments," van Lier says. He bought that not long ago, and everybody received a notice that their leases were terminated June 1. But nobody knows why. That seems to be his procedure. He leaves us in the dark, and that scares the people off a bit. They wonder what's going to happen next to their properties, their homes. They're mainly scared because they don't know."

"For someone who grew up here," van Lier says, "it's going to be even harder. They may not want anything to change. And it's hard for the summer people too. Some of them have been coming here for two or three generations. They come here because it's a little village, and all of a sudden, the big city seems to have been brought here."

North Hatley town council will be sending a formal invitation to Gabr to attend a special council meeting to discuss his plans. At Saturday's press conference, Mayor Taylor made an informal invitation, and got an informal acceptance. But the enigmatic Gabr left observers still wondering what he has in mind:

Gabr: "Thank you very much for coming, Miss Taylor."

Taylor: "Thank you for inviting me, Mr. Gabr. I hope you will come and see us now at council."

Gabr: "Ah, but yes. One visit to my house by you will be repaid by 10 visits by me to your council."

NORTH HATLEY MASTER PLAN

North Hatley developer Saad Gabr last week made public his plans for the village "downtown" core.

North Hatley council has some tough decisions to make in the near future. Left to right: Mayor Ruth Taylor; councillors Johann van Lier, Stewart Reed, Dr. Harry Gattiker, secretary-treasurer Elsie Woodward, councillor Camille Ladouceur. Absent from the photo are councillors Joey Lebaron and Wes Sharman.

North Hatley councillor Johann van Lier: "They are mainly scared because they don't know."

IODE Unity Lodge No. 8 holds meeting

By Thornton Cleveland

Sherbrooke — The regular meeting of Unity Lodge No. 8 was held Monday, January 25, with Noble Grand Gordon Garfat presiding. The meeting was called to order at 8:10 p.m. with all the officers present.

The Noble Grand welcomed Brother Robert McKeage who returned from out West, underwent surgery and is about again. Brother Jack Cowan was reported a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital, Brother Melville McHarg reported still in the hospital.

Under communications letters regarding Camp NEOFA (North East Odd Fellows Association) and the North East Conclave were read and to be dealt with under new business.

The letters held over from the last meeting pertaining to the Sherbrooke Hospital, also from the United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth, acted on. A committee of N.G. Gordon Garfat, V.G. Carl Speck, Harry O. Burt, Thornton Cleveland and Douglas Grapes are to contact the Sherbrooke Hospital and report at next meeting.

The members decided to jointly sponsor a student with Union Incampment No. 3, Princess Rebekah Lodge No. 4 and Myrtle Rebekah Lodge No. 28 to the United Nations.

New business: The letter from the Quebec Planning Board discussed in length, then voted to make a donation ear-tagged $100.00 for the Edith Kathan Home, also sufficient to send eleven children to Camp NEOFA for one week each. A committee to be appointed at a later date. Arrangements are being made jointly by Unity Lodge No. 8 and Ascot Lodge No. 30 to hold a barbecue at the Research Station (Experimental Farm) at Lennoxville, Sunday afternoon, September 11 by advance tickets only.

The committees reported a very successful sleighride and social evening held on January 16. Shortly after 7 p.m., some 40 young people congregated at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Coates, where two lovely teams of horses, one belonging to the Coates, the other team, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Garfat. The weather being fairly mild, made for a pleasant ride down through the valley, then up through the woods for a ride of approximately one hour. On their arrival back at the farm, there awaited more anxious teenagers for the second tour. Donald made three trips with his rig, Gordon took his team home after his second trip, in all about 80 rides were enjoyed. A few liked their rides enough to venture out the second time. After the ride most motored to the Lodge Hall at 510 Prospect Street, Sherbrooke, where hot chocolate was waiting them. Many enjoyed carpet bowling while others danced in the lower hall. When all had returned from the rides, beans, wieners, rolls and doughnuts, with more hot chocolate was enjoyed by all. A large part of the group were junior farmers 4-H Clubs of Sawyerville, Hatley, Lennoxville, along with the newly formed Sherbrooke Horse Club. Happy to state that all four Clubs were represented by both their Pres. and Secretaries. Also honored with the presence of Leo Burns, President of the Junior Farmers of Quebec.

The members of Unity Lodge No. 8 I.O.O.F. wish to thank Donald and Caroline Coates, also our Noble Grand Gordon Garfat and wife Donna for providing the teams of horses. It's a rarity in these times to see two rigs loaded with jolly folks, riding over the snow-covered countryside. The best we can say, Donald and Gordon, is "Thanks".

P.S.—I wish to state that I felt it a privilege to be present with such a group of well behaved teenagers, and only hope that I may have the privilege to participate in other evenings much the same.

Noble Grand Gordon Garfat thanked all who participated in any way to make the sleighride and social evening a success.

Lodge closed in form, after which the Brothers gathered in the lower hall and enjoyed leftovers from the social evening.

A reminder the Oyster and Scallop Supper on February 20. Tickets are available from most of our members.

UCW meeting

DUNHAM — The first meeting of the new year was held at the home of the newly elected President, Mrs. Connie Paul on Jan. 12. Mrs. Lou Staton was in charge of devotionals and read an article No Time for Wishing, based on 3rd John and 2nd Timothy. Eleven members answered the roll call and we were pleased to add a new member to our list.

The minutes of the December meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report for the year showed all our commitments met and a substantial balance to start 1982.

Correspondence included thank-yous for get-well wishes and a card of sympathy, also Christmas wishes from Mrs. Irene Oliver.

The President appointed her committees for the new year. Suppers, Luncheon and Teas, Mrs. Myrtle Selby, Card Parties, Mrs. Barbara Harvey, Publicity, Mrs. Edileen Drennan, Rummage Sales, Mrs. H. Macdonald, Food sales, Mrs. Elda Martin, Sunshine, Mrs. Barbara Harvey, Phone, Mrs. Bernice Jenne. Mrs. Barbara Harvey was given a vote of thanks for her work as Sunshine convenor.

There was some discussion regarding our annual Bazaar and luncheon. It was suggested we hold several small teas with a food table and handicraft table, instead of our Fall Luncheon.

Mrs. Edileen Drennan is to look after the necessary supplies for the church hall. A sum of money was voted for this purpose.

Mrs. Myrtle Selby offered to have the February meeting and Mrs. Lou Staton will be in charge of devotionals.

As there was no further business, the President adjourned the meeting and a social hour was enjoyed.

Guild meets

SOUTH STUKELY — St. Matthew's Ladies Guild held their annual meeting January 21 at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Clifford Wright. Rev. W. Davidson opened the meeting by all repeating the Lord's Prayer. President Margaret Wright conducted the meeting.

Secretary Myrtle McLellan read the minutes of annual meeting, which were accepted. Treasurer Celia Gamache gave her annual report, showing a very successful year, bills all paid, commitments met, and a good balance on hand, this was accepted.

Lucy Wright moved and Myrtle McLellan seconded, that officer's remain the same for the coming year, all were in favour and carried.

Rev. Davidson thanked them for their support, also Mr. and Mrs. Wright for having the annual meetings.

There being no other business, the meeting was adjourned, and refreshments served by the hostess, assisted by Celia Gamache. An enjoyable hour was spent.

NATURAL HISTORY NOTEBOOK

ICE AGE ANIMALS ON VANCOUVER ISLAND

Herd of Imperial and possibly Columbian mammoths, American mastodons, helmeted muskoxen, horses and bison once lived on southeastern Vancouver Island. Most of approximately 20 fossils representing these species are from gravel pits in the Saanich Peninsula. Others are from Shawmigan Lake & Courtenay areas.

Probably most of these land mammals reached the island some 20,000 to 30,000 years ago across large flood plains that filled Georgia Strait in front of southerly advancing glacial ice. However, the Vancouver Island marmot (Marmota vanouvereensis), which is adapted to alpine meadows, may be a living representative of an earlier crossing. Presumably it (the only species of mammal unique to the island) arose from hoary marmots of the mainland that reached what is now Vancouver Island during the second last glaciation.

Good Reasons to GIVE AN HOUR

Your contribution to last year's "The GIVEN HOUR" Campaign helped us:

- inform 308 new parents through the Pilot Parents Program about the abilities of their child.
- integrate 428 young mentally handicapped adults between 15 and 25 years of age in Young Friends Programs.
- provide personal assistance to 654 mentally handicapped persons to become integrated into the community through the Citizen Advocacy Program.
- offer support to 47 local associations for the mentally handicapped.
- assist 7000 to 8000 parents and volunteers.
- encourage mutual aid among 330 mentally handicapped persons to promote their needs and protect their rights.

53% of all handicapped persons, that is, 186,000 mentally handicapped persons, count on you!

GIVE AN HOUR!

This year, half of the money collected by students of a participating school will go towards the school's activities. You may also give the monetary equivalent of one hour's work to your nearest Caisse populaire.

Legion Ladies Auxiliary Branch 77 hold meeting

WATERLOO — January 12, 17 members of the Ladies Auxiliary braved the zero temperature to attend the first meeting of the year. Past-Pres. Lucille Aitken declared the meeting open in the usual manner, followed by acting Sec. R. Cochrane reading the minutes of the December meeting and the current remembrances. A special thank-you to the Auxiliary was received from the staff of St. Anne's Hospital on behalf of the patients who were recipients of personal gifts at Christmas. It was noted that the monthly donation of cigarettes will be discontinued on request of St. Anne's, however, the candy and cookies will be sent as usual.

Treasurer L. Bouchard gave the financial report and it appears the funds are adequate for the starting of a new year. The balance of the December report was aided considerably by the Willey wedding and the Golden Age dinner at which over 100 were served at each. The conveners for these dinners wish to thank all those who helped in any way. Special thanks to Ben Rainville and his crew who once again gave of their time. Not only are these fellows a great help but they are a joy to work with and it is much appreciated.

The committees were asked to hand in their annual reports and most showed an active 1981. This completing the old business, the Past Pres. L. Aitken retired her post and welcomed the new Pres. Shirley Fuller Bockus. P.P. Aitken thanked all who supported her and wished Pres. Bockus much success in the coming year.

Pres. S. Bockus continued the meeting by listing the officers and her committees for '82: Pres. Shirley Fuller Bockus; 1st Vice: Audrey Blampin; 2nd Vice: Marion Moffatt; Sec.: Christine Tryhorn; Treas.: Lillian Bouchard; Sgt.-at-Arms: Isobel Tryhorn.

Committees: Membership, Audrey Blampin; Welfare and Sick, Grace Rainville; Ways and Means, Joice Durrell and Vivian Emmerson; Social, Deborah Edwards; St. Anne's Hospital, Lillian Bouchard; Publicity and Tickets, Joice Durrell; House, Lucille Aitken; Darts, Isobel Tryhorn; Telephone, Robina Cochrane; Dist. Rep., Isobel Tryhorn. Mew business was then brought forward and it was passed that due to the high cost of postage, cards etc. birthday cards to regular members will not be sent. Other means of congratulations will be extended to those celebrating at the regular meetings. However Life members and such will continue to receive our best wishes. The House Comm. was informed that the place-settings will be brought up to 180 from 150. I. Tryhorn volunteered to look into this as soon as weather permits. The month of February will see the Auxiliary hosting their annual St. Valentine's card party on the 10th at 8 p.m. All members present at the January meeting will donate prizes and those not attending will be solicited for refreshments.

This completing the business of the first meeting of the new year, Lois Campbell moved adjournment. Sgt-at-Arms retired the colours and lunch was served by the "Snow-Bunnies", Grace and Audrey. The February 9th meeting will be hosted by those sweethearts, Lois and Roxie.

THE PEREGRINE FALCON. He can dive at 250 km per hour. He hunts across open country. Attacks like lightning from the sun. Takes his prey with a direct blow from his closed fist.

Yet this superb bird—the Peregrine Falcon—has been fast disappearing from Canada, and elsewhere in the world. Since the early sixties, he's never been known to breed east of the Rockies.

WILL YOU SEND $20 TO HELP SAVE HIM?

Even his far northern subspecies is threatened. Man has been killing the Peregrine Falcon. Not with guns. With poison. Some of the pesticides used on crops have contaminated his prey.

Can we save the Peregrine Falcon? Maybe.

You probably know something of the work the World Wildlife Fund has done internationally. It is the world's leading independent organization for conservation. Its symbol, the Giant Panda, has become a world symbol for survival.

Through its Survival Projects the World Wildlife Fund has already helped save more than a hundred birds and mammals, thirty-three of which were on the brink of extinction. It has given more than $35 million to conservation projects around the world. It has created or supported 260 National Parks.

In Canada, the World Wildlife Fund is involved in the conservation of Canadian species and their natural habitats.

You might feel that any contribution you could make would be too small for the vastness of the task.

But if only you and other readers of this ad would each send us $20, it would be a very real help. And it might possibly save the Peregrine Falcon from extinction. There's a lot that can be done, but only with your help. If you'd like to send more, or less, fine. But $20 would be fine, too.

RENEW BY MAIL...
IN 3 MINUTES!

This takes only 3 minutes of your time... and you can pick up your orange sticker from your mail box! Mail your application before February 28, 1982!

This year, you can avoid long waiting lines by mailing your application for registration renewal instead.
Do it today!
Read the leaflet accompanying your renewal application carefully, and fill out the form. Be careful not to tear or detach the registration certificate (yellow portion) that is attached to your renewal application; this would invalidate your application.
Then return the whole thing - your complete form - by mail... postage is paid by the Régie.

THE LETTER

Floating over cloud ten only deepened the fall.
Reruns of last year's fair on a special August night, our hearts exploding with song like a forever-wound music box while seated atop a ferris wheel are spinning through my mind.
They were days of cones dripping with strawberry ice cream, popcorn and cotton candy.
How sweet it was!
I relapse to reality as I crumble your Dear Joan letter.

STARTER'S FLUID

Soiled, spoiled pants rounded at the knees from sleeping in some littered alley covered by layers of musty newspapers to keep out the cold.
He used to write them.
Now he lays beneath.
Awakened by unwanted light, he reaches out to his best friend, an almost empty bottle of fetid wine that rinses off his chin as he guzzles from a brown paper bag till the last drop is gulped.
Like a dehydrated refugee at a mirage's mercy in some God-forsaken desert, he imbibes fuel like a sponge that soaks up spills from a kicked over pail.
With foul, feeble body, he struggles himself to his feet and put his worst foot forward, and zig zags toward the street.
A pint of blood in exchange for a bottle of feel good.
He would sell his soul for a single swallow of starter's fluid.
HELL!

THE OLD FARMHOUSE

I never can forget the old farmhouse where I was born.
Treasured memories of my early years spent there, linger with me still.

It brought much sadness to my heart when the old farmhouse was destroyed by fire in 1932.
True, some treasured possessions were lost in the fire, which could never be replaced.

As I think of the old farmhouse, I am caused to feel that the material things that we possess in lifetime, we cannot depend upon.
The old farmhouse was dear to me, but what matters most is the inner peace that comes from living for the things that are immaterial.

HAPPY CHILDHOOD DAYS

I often think of my childhood days when my younger brother and I would wander through the fields to pluck the daisies, the buttercups and the paintbrush.
Those were the happy days.

I often think of my childhood days when my brother and I would make the mud pies and cakes and decorate them with the beautiful wild flowers.
Those were the happy days.

I often think of my childhood days when my brother and I would play school one the teacher, the other the pupil.
Those were the happy days.

I often think of my childhood days when my brother and I would play church one the preacher, the other the sinner.
Those were the happy days.

I often think of my childhood days, My brother and I, we had no cares, or worries, we lived one day at a time.
Those were the happy days.

TREASURED SCRAPBOOKS

Some forty years or over, have I been making scrapbooks.
Ask me about royalty and I can tell you.
It's mostly all there in the old scrapbooks.
Kings, Queens, Princes and Princesses, Lords and Dukes, Emperors and Presidents, the Prime Ministers, world events, the religious and political side of life, as well as local events.

My 1967 Centennial Scrapbook contains several Royal families visiting the Worlds Fair in Montreal.
My latest scrapbook contains much about Prince Charles and Princess Diana. What comes after them will be added too.
Aside from the Bible, my old scrapbooks are the most treasured books in my library.
When I peruse some of them, it brings back to my memory things that happened in the past and how.

The residents at 50 Western Ave., would like to express their thanks to the ladies of Calvary United Church who braved the cold weather on Tuesday afternoon, January 26, to bring entertainment to the residents of the home and for the lovely tea they served afterwards, it was greatly appreciated.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Howard

French of Sutton Jct. and Noble French of Vermont, in their bereavement in the death of their sister Mrs. Rhoda Sullivan.

Mrs. Everett Raymond, with her two daughters and three great-grandchildren were calling on Mrs. Raymond's mother Mrs. Annie Crawford at the Foyer on January 26.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Roy and daughter Karen were in Fairfield, Vermont on January 24, to attend a family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred St. Pierre, brother of Mrs. Roy.

(Illustrations greatly magnified)

GREEN ALGAE 1 — These bright-green algae are found in abundance throughout Canada in marshes, lakes and ponds. (A) CLADOPHORA has filaments that grow in branching clusters and form extensive mats which are often free floating. It can also grow on submerged logs or piles. (B) SPIROGYRA is a filamentous type in which a spiral, photosynthetic structure (chloroplast) grows in each cell. They occur in dense mats.
