79 MINERS ARE ENTOMBED IN ENGLAND

World News In Brief

Leeds, England, May 29.—(Reuters)—The Princess Royal, sister of the King, must sell some of her furniture to help pay death duties for her husband, her agents said here last night.
 Four years after the death of her husband, the sixth Earl of Harewood, the 54-year-old Princess will see some of her treasured possessions auctioned off next month.
 The Earl was estimated to have left almost £1,000,000. Already one of the family homes and 14,000 acres of land have been sold.
 Belfast, May 29.—(Reuters)—Spurred into action by a bomb incident last night, police today raided the city's anti-British quarter and detained 13 suspect terrorists as a security measure before the week-end visit of the King and Queen.
 The men, believed to belong to the outlawed Irish Republican Army, were rounded up under a special powers act which will enable them to be held until after the four-day Royal visit, beginning Friday.
 They can be held for seven days without being charged or brought into court.
 Pusan, Korea, May 29.—(Reuters)—Lieut. Joseph Levison, 21, Canadian public information officer from Sydney and Halifax, and Derek Pearcey, 25, war correspondent for Reuters News Agency and the Australian Associated Press, were buried today in the United Nations cemetery at Pusan.
 They were killed when their jeep struck a communist land mine northeast of Uijongbu, north of Seoul, Saturday—the day after Pearcey's 25th birthday.
 A party of British troops fired a salute and a bugler sounded "The Last Post" at the end of the simple services. Levison's funeral was conducted by an American chaplain and Pearcey's by a British chaplain.

Eight Bodies Recovered; One Injured Miner Saved; Men 900 Feet Underground

Correspondent Has Trouble With P.O.W.

By JIM BECKER
 With The U.S. Marines in East-Central Korea, May 29.—(AP)—I had a communist Chinese soldier on my hands today. I thought for a while I would have to take him home with me. Only by subterfuge was I able to rid myself of him.
 I found him this morning. You might even say I captured him.
 There he was cowering in the bushes as I walked by. He stood up with his hands raised and smiled.
 I took him to my jeep and put him in the front seat. He never made a move and he never stopped grinning.
 First I stopped some marine infantrymen coming down the road. "You want a prisoner?" I asked. "What would we do with him?" one asked.
 At the next cross roads I met a military policeman.
 "Here's a prisoner for you."
 "I don't want him," said the M.P. "Take him to the rear. And move on, you are blocking traffic."
 I found a mile, I passed a prisoner of war processing point for a battalion.
 I stopped, motioned to my captive to wait, and went inside.
 There was a corporal sitting on a box. In the back were a batch of forlorn-looking Chinese in assorted uniforms.
 "I've got a prisoner outside in the jeep," I told the corporal.
 "Who are you?" he asked.
 "I told him."
 "We only process prisoners captured by our own battalion. Take him back to the rear," he said. I tried one more M.P., without much hope, and he merely pointed and said:
 "Take him to the rear."
 A short distance down the road I passed a regimental command post. I drove right inside.
 There was a P.O.W. stockade but I knew they wouldn't want Junior.
 So I drove right up to the S-2 (intelligence) tent. I motioned to the laughing lad to follow me. He came along quietly.
 I circled around to the rear of the tent, looked carefully in all directions and then opened the flap and shoved my captive, still grinning, inside.
 I hope they have better luck getting rid of him than I did.

Rescue Workers Hold Slim Hopes That Other Trapped Men Will Be Saved.

Easington, Durham, England, May 29.—(AP)—A violent explosion entombed 79 miners early today deep in the Easington coal pit. Hours later rescuers recovered eight bodies and brought one injured man to the surface.
 Teams of rescuers toiled in non-stop shifts to move tons of rocks and debris shaken loose by the blast 900 feet underground in hopes of rescuing alive the 70 men still trapped.
 By early afternoon rescue parties had driven through more than 300 yards of debris. Mining officials said the coal face, where it is believed the majority of men are trapped, was another 700 yards away.
 Fresh air was being forced through neighboring seams in hopes it would filter through to the men.
 The violent blast blew two men clear of the tumbling debris. One said he was lifted and tossed 60 yards down the tunnel. Another said he was thrown 20 to 30 yards.
 "A great cloud of black gas" poured down the shaft, said George Williams, twin brother of 19-year-old Matthew Williams who was the first brought out alive.
 The explosion caught the miners just as the day shift was relieving the night workers about 1 1/2 miles from the bottom of the pit hoisting shaft.
 Cause of the disaster was not known.
 One of the rescue workers told reporters "it is unlikely that any of the miners still in there are alive. It was terribly hot and we got some idea of the force of the explosion."
 Crowds of relatives and friends waited anxiously at the pithead in a cold wind blowing off the North Sea.
 The Easington colliery, one of the largest in the Durham county coalfield, is 10 miles east of the city of Durham. Part of its workings runs under the North Sea.

F.E. Spain Is Rotary's President

Atlantic City, N. J., May 29.—Frank E. Spain, of Birmingham, Alabama, was elected President of Rotary International for 1951-52 at the 42nd annual convention of that world-wide service club organization, which winds up its five-day session here Thursday.

Bennett, of Utah, and other outstanding speakers, and in the informal discussion groups, emphasis was given to the many opportunities which Rotarians have in all parts of the world to work for the achievements of one of the principal Rotary goals—the advancement of international understanding, good will and peace.
 Rotary's 1952 Convention will be held in Mexico City, Mexico, the week of May 25th.

Vaccinations May Increase Polio Threat

Chicago, May 29.—(AP)—In the polio season, June to September, it seems wise to postpone vaccinations of children for whooping cough or diphtheria, unless there's an outbreak of these diseases.
 The vaccinations may increase the chances of a child's coming down with polio.
 New evidence for this bit of medical advice was described today to the Society of American Bacteriologists by Drs. Albert Milzer, Milly A. Weiss and Katherine Vanderboom of Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago.
 The advice stems from studies in Britain and Australia. Doctors found that more children under 5 years old developed polio within a month after vaccinations for whooping cough and diphtheria than non-vaccinated youngsters.
 The Chicago experiments were done on nearly 500 mice. The vaccinated mice developed polio much earlier than those not vaccinated. Dr. Milzer said. Why the vaccinations did this is not known, though there are a number of possible reasons.
 The Journal of the American Medical Association has suggested it may be advisable, when possible, to postpone such vaccinations in the polio months. An exception may be babies getting whooping cough vaccine at the age of three or four months. The babies are probably not exposed to polio virus anywhere near as much as older children.
 Evidence that cockroaches could be one carrier of polio virus, possibly transmitting it to humans, was reported by Dr. Robert G. Fletcher, University of North Dakota, and Dr. Jerome T. Sylvester, University of Minnesota.
 They fed roaches doses of virus, including one strain of virus that causes human polio. The roaches eliminated the virus in their droppings.
 The roaches eliminated the virus for as long as 15 days.

Centuries - Old Prerogative To Be Abolished By Ottawa

Ottawa, May 29.—(AP)—The Commons last night approved a government move to abolish a centuries-old royal prerogative based on the belief that the King can do no wrong.
 It gave second reading to a bill which will free individuals from the necessity of obtaining the crown's permission before they can take action against it in the courts.
 That permission—a fiat—goes back to the days of King Edward I of Britain. In actual practice, permission rarely has been refused in this country.
 Justice Minister Garson, introducing the legislation, said it represented a "clear recognition" of the realities of present-day life. It also would give assurance that the government would not hide behind a refusal to grant a fiat.
 John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), welcoming the change, urged the government to allow individuals to take action against the crown in courts other than the exchequer court. At present, the suits can be launched only in that court.
 The bill was one of several dealt with by the Chamber in a slow-moving sitting. It adopted two minor measures dealing with units of length and mass and prisons and reformatories.
 A fourth measure, amending the customs act, won final passage after George Drew, Progressive Hollywood, May 29.—(AP)—Fanny Brice, 59-year-old comedienne who suffered a cerebral haemorrhage last Thursday, has taken a turn for the worse and physicians indicated that death might be only a matter of hours.

 Miss Brice, the "Baby Snooks" of radio, has been in a coma since she was stricken.
 Singapore, May 29.—(Reuters)—Fierce Gurkha troops charging with blood-curdling yells, killed 12 communist guerrillas including four women in a grim fight in the Malayan jungle yesterday. Although heavily outnumbered, only two Gurkhas were killed in the encounter in the Segamat area of Johore.
 Tokyo, May 29.—(Reuters)—Ten of the 25 crew members of the Japanese fishing boat, Nabesaka Maru were drowned today after a collision with an American landing transport off Miura peninsula, south of Tokyo. The 23-ton fishing boat sank immediately.

Conservative leader, urged the government not to take action which would allow transport trucks to increase the size of loads from United States points.
 He opposed a section which would allow trucks to carry goods in bond from a warehouse in the United States to a warehouse in Canada. At present, the goods must be unloaded at border crossing points and appraised for customs purposes.
 He moved that the bill be referred to a committee for further study, but the motion was defeated 57 to 19.
 Revenue Minister McCain, sponsoring the legislation, said the time had come when trucks should be treated in the same way as rail ways and allowed to carry goods in bond.
 The legislation would have no immediate effect. Before using it, trucking firms would have to find out from the provincial government whether they could use the highways and would have to establish warehouses.
 John Lesage (L—Montmagny-L'Islet), Parliamentary assistant to External Affairs Minister Pearson, said Canada might lose her trucking rights in the United States if she does not grant some reciprocal arrangement. Canadian trucks now can carry goods in bond through two Canadian points between the U.S.

Mayor Grooms Recruiting Officer

Sherbrooke became involved actively in the plan to recruit men for the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group today with the establishment of two local recruiting offices. The recruiting party, composed of officers and men from Montreal, arrived in this city yesterday and were greeted by Mayor C. B. Howard in a ceremony at the City Hall. Representatives of two local units, Les Fusiliers de Sherbrooke and the Sherbrooke Regiment, were also on hand to greet the active force party. Above, left to right, are shown: Cpl. Communists Take Licking In Italy

By JAMES M. LONG
 Rome, May 29.—(AP)—Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi's "Atlantic Pact" government bloc appeared today to have given Italy's big communist party its worst election beating in five years.
 With votes more than half counted in city and provincial elections held Sunday and Monday in one-third of Italy, the Premier's Christian Democrat party and its allies were winning the four biggest cities at stake and had broken the Red hold on the Second World War Gothic line across northern Italy.
 The Christian Democrats forged steadily into the lead in industrial Milan, Italy's second largest city, which has had a moderate Socialist administration. The government bloc was out in front in the communist-run ports of Genoa and Venice, and had taken the lead in Bologna, the Red capital of the heretofore solid communist belt across the north.
 As ballots from 2,743 towns and 22 provinces came in, Interior Minister Mario Scelba said the government was taking two seats to the communists' one in the provincial councils. The Reds also appeared to be losing heavily in the 1,170 town councils they have controlled since 1946.
 Bologna, Ravenna and Rovigo were the only three of the communist Gothic-line citadels voting this week. In the other nine, stretching from the Ligurian Sea to the Adriatic, the vote test will come June 10, when another third of the country votes.
 The rest of Italy's provincial and municipal elections will be held in the fall.

Solo Flight Over North Pole Tried

Oslo, Norway, May 29.—(AP)—Charles Blair started a non-stop solo flight over the North Pole today in the converted P-51 Mustang fighter in which he set the non-stop New York-to-London record last January 31.
 Fairbanks, Alaska, is his destination.
 Carrying the first polar airmail—3,000 letters—Blair took off from Oslo's Gardermoen air base. He planned to land at Bardufoss, in northern Norway, for refueling this afternoon, then leave immediately on the non-stop hop of 3,300 miles across the top of the world.
 Blair, 41-year-old Pan American Airways veteran, again is flying the Excalibur III, the single-seater fighter in which four months ago he crossed the Atlantic in seven hours and 48 minutes. The hop smashed all records for the New York to London crossing.
 The letters he carried today will be auctioned in New York for the benefit of the Damon Runyon cancer fund.
 Complimenting the regiment, Brig. Rockingham said:
 "The determination, thoroughness and speed you've shown in your first operation over the last three years has been magnificent. I know that against heavier opposition you'll be equally effective."
 The brigade commander also had congratulations for the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec, part of the force, which celebrated its 37th anniversary Sunday.
 "I wish them many more successful anniversaries like yesterday's," he said. "Bonnie chance, always!"
 Delighted with the men's work, the Brigadier added that the action had "done worlds for morale. The men have never been happier or more cheerful, and now they see the point of our long months of training."
 The brigade first went into action last Friday. The diary would read this way for the first three days.
 Friday, May 25—cleared a 2,000-yard path through to Kachae where the first attack for hill 407 was launched. Tanks of the Lord Strathcona's led by Lieut. Lorne Gledhill of Vancouver fired the regiment's first rounds in Korea, supporting troops under command of Maj. Jack Peterson, former mayor of St. Thomas, Ont. One member of the Royal Canadian Regiment was killed.
 Saturday, May 26—three attacks captured three hills in a 4,000-yard gain. Chinese rearguards forced the Canadians to fight every inch of the way.
 Sunday, May 27—the regiment swung to the left clearing the enemy to the 38th parallel through Chuanjiodon. One man was wounded.

Tehran Tense As Displays Are Planned

By FRED ZUSY
 Tehran, Iran, May 29.—(AP)—Tanks and troop-laden trucks rumbled through this tense capital today as Iran's government braced itself for communist "anti-imperialist" demonstrations through the land.
 Hundreds of troops poured into the city to reinforce regular police already put on the alert for the demonstrations, expected to be the biggest the communists have staged since their outlawed Tudeh party was forced underground in 1949.
 Occasion for the latest Red agitation is the 18th anniversary of the signing of the rich oil concession to the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, which Parliament voted to end less than a month ago.
 The demonstrations are sponsored by the Society to Fight Imperialistic Oil Companies in Iran, which western observers have tagged as a communist front. The

Overseas Countries May Get More Newsprint From Here

Ottawa, May 29.—(AP)—Two negotiations concerning newsprint—one deal just completed and the other expected to come up with an announcement in a day or so—seem to spell some relief for newsprint-short overseas countries.
 Lord Layton, chairman of the British Newsprint Supply Company, announced yesterday in Montreal that an agreement has been reached with Canadian newsprint mills. Agreed on was "a program of supply to Great Britain during the next three years within the frame-work of Britain's long-term contracts which extend to 1958."
 Well-informed quarters here estimate Britain likely will get about four or five times the 20,000 tons of newsprint she got from Canada in the following two years, more in the 1950. She may get even dependent on world demand for Canadian newsprint.
 But other overseas countries—France, India, Italy, Turkey—also want newsprint from Canada.
 Their need may mean that emergency international allocation may be just around the corner for Canada's precious newsprint.
 Informed officials report this may develop out of a Washington conference of 10 countries, now studying means to help overseas countries face a crippling newsprint shortage.
 One of the recommendations of the International Materials Conference committee, informants believe, will be that a small amount of newsprint, taken from "North American supplies," be set aside to meet overseas shortages.
 The allocation is not expected to be more than a small part of the 171,000-ton increase expected in Canadian newsprint production this year—from 5,279,000 tons to 5,450,000.
 Informed quarters believe the supplies can be met without any direct government over what Canadian or American publishers get from Canadian mills.
 This move, however, is not likely to be the final solution to a steadily-increasing world shortage of newsprint and other controlled allocations may have to follow in later months.

Communists Slow Down United Nations Offensive

By OLEN CLEMENTS
 Tokyo, May 29.—(AP)—Communist troops fighting stubbornly from their own hills today slowed the United Nations advance into Red Korea.
 Two Chinese divisions were wiped out in a four-day battle on the central front, south of the 38th parallel. The U. S. Eighth Army said the Chinese lost 18,000 men—killed, wounded or captured—in the single battle.
 Smaller but equally stubborn fights raged across Korea north of 38. Allied troops were held to limited gains. Stiffest action was in the centre of the peninsula where U.N. troops tried to seal off the Hwachon reservoir.
 A delayed and heavily-censored dispatch from AP correspondent Tom Bradshaw said a powerful U. N. task force bogged down Monday northeast of Inje.
 Other armored units ran into the same trouble as they headed north-west toward Yangju, 10 miles away on the end of Hwachon reservoir. AP correspondent Jim Becker reported Americans hacked out one mile Tuesday against rugged opposition.
 South Koreans advanced to the southern banks of the 20-mile reservoir.
 At its western tip, U.S. Marines were engaged in sharp, fierce fights with Red Koreans east, west and north of the town of Hwachon. Hwachon is the central spearhead of the 125-mile U. N. battline.
 Communist troops threw up stiff defences against every other U.N. penetration to the west.
 Nasty hill fights developed all along the front.
 None, however, approached the scope of the four-day battle on the central front where two Chinese divisions were eliminated.
 The U. S. Eighth Army said 12,974 Reds were killed or wounded in the battle northwest of Chuncheon. Another 5,028 were captured.

Americans and South Koreans surrounded and hacked to pieces two full Chinese divisions in this battle. A briefly officer said only a few scattered Red units survived.
 But the costly Chinese stand may have allowed the bulk of retreating Red forces to slip back across the 38th parallel and escape pursuing U.N. forces.
 The allied counter-attack had pushed the Reds back 20 to 40 miles. It virtually wiped out gains the communists made in two costly spring offensives. The Reds, by Eighth Army estimates, paid nearly 150,000 casualties for those temporary gains.
 The U.N. comeback drive had carried the allies north across 38 at almost every major road crossing. The deepest penetration was on the east coast. There South Koreans were dug in Tuesday morning at Sokcho, 14 miles north of the parallel, under the supporting guns of U. S. warships standing offshore.
 The navy announced that farther north blockading warships have killed or wounded more than 9,200 Reds in their siege of Wonsan, now in its fourth month.
 Bright sunshine Tuesday brought allied planes out in force.
 Some smashed at communists putting up a stiffening fight across the east-central front.
 The allied northeastward drive was reported bogged down. Reds stopped U. N. patrols driving northwest toward Yangju at the eastern end of Hwachon reservoir.
 Along the extreme western front, South Korean troops ran into stiff opposition after fording the Injin river. The action was west of Munsan and northwest of Seoul. For a time heavy haze cut off the South Koreans from artillery support.

CATCH YOUR FOE FLATFOOTED

In our last column we discussed a hand held by a correspondent. With both sides needing 50 points for the initial meld, he put down three queens and three tens at his first turn. This left him with 9-8-5-4, a worthless assortment if I ever saw one.

I pointed out that the meld was unwise, but did not cover all the interesting points raised by this hand. It isn't necessarily unwise to meld six or more cards from your hand when you need only 50 points. It's possible to have a reasonably good meld of this kind.

For example, suppose you make your first draw from the stockpile and then hold:

Q-Q-Q, 6-6-6, J-9-4, 2-2.

You may consider a meld of Q-Q-Q-2, which will leave you with seven cards (after your discard). However, your hand will not then be particularly good for taking the discard pile. You will have only seven cards against two eleven-card hands. Moreover you will have only one pair in your hand, a serious handicap in view of the fact that the opponents will probably freeze the pack. A better course is to meld all four queens and the three sixes. This takes seven cards out of your hand, but leaves you with two wild cards and two odd cards.

You advertise, accurately enough, an excellent play for out. If your partner can add one queen or two sixes, you will add one of your deuces to bring the meld up to six cards. This virtually commands your partner to complete the canasta if he can—even at the expense of his only wild card.

You will be left, then, with a wild card and two odd cards. You will be able to meld out at soon as you can match one of your odd cards. The whole process of melding should take only two or three rounds of play, perhaps less, and the prospect is excellent that you will catch your opponents flat-footed.

You won't make a fortune on such a hand, but should score about 500 points or so while the opponents lose about 200 points. Your net gain on the hand should be about 700 points. This is nothing to sneeze at, considering that through your veins, but it's a lot better than a long drawn-out struggle in which the opponents finally win a thousand points.

The point to remember is that the hand is rather poor material for capturing the discard pile but it is practically a setup for melding out. Let the nature of the hand dictate your course of action.

ment tonight—I'll bring a notebook. We'll have to list the gifts and see about returning them. And there's the furniture to share and everything."

And when she walked into the apartment, she looked cool and untruffled. He could have sworn she was wearing a new suit—a blue one with a splashy white collar. The hat, too; he didn't think he had seen that flowery number before.

As she began quickly to list the gifts and their donors, he told himself he was glad of the break-up. Betty certainly didn't love him.

No girl who loved a man could act as coolly as this.

She was putting a dish back into its box when she gave a sudden start and dropped it, backing away with a shudder.

"Oh—oh Jack, don't let it come near me. Jack—please!" With a scream, she flung herself at him. "It's a spider! I can't bear them. Jack, do something—"

But she clung to him so tightly there was nothing he could do. "It won't hurt you," he said. "There now—it's gone."

"It—it's silly of me," she stammered. "But I—I!" She made no attempt to move; she just clung there, feeling small and sweet in his arms.

He sat down with her then, holding her close. Then he kissed her, experimentally. And she returned the kiss, her lips trembling and warm and eager.

There was a long minute before he laughed. Softly, amusedly, holding her away from him.

"You think you're smart, don't you?" he asked. "But haven't you forgotten something?"

"—Forgotten something?" Betty swallowed. Slow color started in her cheeks. "What—what do you mean, darling?"

"Haven't you forgotten that week-end we spent at the Wilson's camp last summer? Seems to me you and Jean found plenty of spiders on that sleeping porch. And wasn't it Jean who was scared of them—and you who laughed at her? Didn't you point out how cute they were, and pick up one in your hand?"

Betty's face flamed. She hid her head against his shoulder for a minute. Then she looked up, her eyes pleading.

"It's you who are the smart one," she said humbly. "I hoped you wouldn't remember. I—I just had to get into your arms, somehow. You were so terribly cold and distant. I thought maybe my new outfit would make you look at me, but—"

Suddenly the tears rose in her eyes. "I didn't realize I was being so bossy and hateful, Jack. I—I've cried all night. It took hours to fix my face this morning. It was so blotchy. Honest I didn't know I was making you hate me. I guess I'm just stupid."

To himself, Jack smiled. It wouldn't hurt her to think so, for a little while. Actually, though, she had done the smartest thing in her life, breaking down like this. For he believed, at last, that she loved him—and that was all that mattered.

More Witnesses From Boundary Are Questioned At Holland Will Hearing

Sidney Young, of Stanstead, who completed his testimony yesterday in the Holland case, was cross-questioned at some length by John T. Hackett, K.C., attorney for the plaintiff, who repeatedly asked him if he had not, at Butterfield's, where he worked, expressed any opinion as to Mr. Holland's capacity to make a will.

The witness kept insisting that he did not remember. At one point, when Mr. Hackett repeated the question, he said: "Why should I talk about anything that's not my business? I have my work to do in the shop without talking to the employees."

"I put it to you," Mr. Hackett said, "that you said it was a worthless will, one which did not contain Mr. Holland's wishes, because of his mental condition at the time he made it."

"I have no memory whatsoever of saying anything," witness answered. "It was immaterial to me, he was just a friend of mine."

Question: "We had some talk about giving oneself to Christ?" (Earlier in his testimony there had been mention of his affiliation with Grace Chapel).

Answer: "You're trying to prove I'm a liar, Mr. Hackett."

Question: "Under your oath do you swear that you did not talk of John Holland's will at Butterfield's shop, that you did not say the will was invalid because he was not in a condition to make it at the time he did, or words to that effect?"

Answer: "I don't remember."

Question: "Do you remember making any utterance to that effect?"

Answer: "It's nothing I should remember."

Finally Mr. Hackett said: "I put it to you, you have said you can't

CASE ADJOURNED

The Holland case was adjourned until next Tuesday, June 5, upon announcement of the death early this morning, of Mr. Hackett's brother, Felix Winfield Hackett, of Montreal and Stanstead.

Mr. Justice William Mitchell expressed the sympathy of the Bench while W. H. Lynch, K.C., represented the Batonnier, Harry Grundy, K.C., and tendered to Mr. Hackett the condolences of the Members of the Bar, in his bereavement.

remember to questions you were permitted to answer (these were a number of objections on the part of the defense to this line of questioning) because you didn't want to tell the truth."

Witness still maintained he did not remember.

Lawrence F. Tilton, lumber merchant and Mayor of Rock Island, produced certified copies of minutes of meetings held by the Three Villages Building Association, of which he is secretary-treasurer and the late Mr. Holland was at one time president.

He later returned to the stand and said that he had visited Mr. Holland at the hospital, but could get no satisfaction from him, as far as business was concerned, as he could not carry on a conversation.

Gordon Petrie, manager of the Royal Bank at Rock Island, where Mr. Holland did business, said that he visited the publisher at Broadview Hospital and concluded that he was incapable of handling his business so he called a family council for the purpose of appointing a curator.

He testified that Mr. Holland had two accounts with the bank, a savings account and one in the name of the Journal. He had had these some forty years, Mr. Petrie said.

At one time the bank made a loan to Mr. Holland in an amount of from eight to ten thousand dollars, for payment of income tax assessments.

The witness testified that Mr. Holland often fell asleep in the bank, in his private office, and that at one time he fell asleep in the public waiting room. He added that he was in the habit of visiting the bank at irregular hours.

He said that Mr. Holland had asked him to make the necessary arrangements with the Foreign Exchange Board with regard to American funds, as he wished to make a trip to Mexico. This was some time before he was stricken.

Mr. Petrie stated that he thought it was just a "brain wave" on the part of Mr. Holland but that he nevertheless made the necessary arrangements and nothing more was said about it.

On the occasions when he visited Mr. Holland in the hospital he said he was quite sure he did not know him.

"Did you ever have any quarrel with him?" asked Mr. Hackett.

"Never."

"There was no reason for him not to want to converse with you?"

"No."

Final witness heard yesterday was Byron Brown Jenkins, customs officer at Rock Island, and a second cousin of the defendant Charles Jenkins.

Mr. Jenkins said he was on the School Board and the Municipal Council with Mr. Holland and saw him quite frequently at the Customs and at the Post Office.

After his accident in 1939, he noticed that he was lame and didn't get around as he did before but saw no difference in him mentally. He said he acted somewhat in the capacity of legal adviser to the School Board.

HATLEY HEIFER SOLD

Oakville, Ont., May 29.—A Holstein bull, was purchased yesterday from Premier J. Walter Jones of Prince Edward Island for $7,000.

The Hamilton district cattle breeding association, an organization of 1,900 farmers, made the purchase at the national Holstein sale here. The association also bought Houckholme Inspiration, another bull, from J. E. Houck of Brampton, Ont., for $4,100.

Top price for an open heifer was the $1,800 Mrs. Ann Meagher of Oakville got from Hugh Hallward of Hatley, Que.

Sixty-nine cattle brought a total of $72,075, an average of $1,044. Five bulls averaged $3,540.

The above photo shows some of the festivities yesterday when the local branch of the Bell Telephone Company celebrated the first anniversary of the dial system here. Even one year after dial phones were installed in Sherbrooke, it was brought out at the ceremonies, a surprising number of people still dial wrong numbers, causing annoyance to all concerned. "The best way to receive the good telephone service, which the dial system is to bring," said Bell manager Harry Walker, "is to check the number in the telephone book (the new one), and don't dial too fast."

Many E. T. Students Received Awards At McGill Convocation Yesterday

Montreal, May 29.—A one-time geology student and now one of the richest diamond mine owners in the world returned to his alma mater yesterday to participate along with 3,574 students in McGill University's annual convocation.

Doctor John Thorburn Williamson, of Tanganyika, South Africa, received an honorary doctor of science degree from Chancellor Mr. Justice O. S. Tyndale in a ceremony in the Montreal Forum before an estimated 10,000 persons.

The traditional campus convocation was moved indoors because of rain Sunday night that made the ground wet and soft.

Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador to the United States, gave the convocation address. He told the graduates of the significant role Canada is playing to help defend free nations of the world against communist aggression.

Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, and his wife were among the distinguished guests.

Brooke Claxton, minister of national defence, who was presented for an honorary degree of doctor of laws; and Dr. William Boyd.

Following the "capping" of the graduates, the Governor-General turned the first sod for the $1,500,000 extension to the University's Redpath library.

Lions' Liars Contest Won By F. Shelley

Fred Shelley was crowned king of the Sherbrooke Lions Club's "Liars" last night as the weekly contest, that began last fall, was brought to a conclusion.

In the final round Mr. Shelley's tall story was judged the best over three other tales that were told. The other finalists were J. A. Bourgeois, Paul Emile Genest and Bernie McGowan.

There was no guest speaker at the meeting but club members who attended the district convention in Montreal last week reported on the activities there.

Those who reported were President Ossie Goyette, Joseph Begin, Alberic Julien, Eddie Caron and Charles Parkin.

It was announced that Mr. Goyette, Mr. Julien and D. G. Amaroni will be the club's delegates to the international convention at Atlantic City next month.

Recruiting Offices For New Brigade Are Open In Sherbrooke As Of Today

A recruiting party of officers and men from Montreal arrived in this city yesterday and Sherbrooke's part in the drive to raise troops for the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group got underway in earnest this morning with the establishment of two local recruiting offices.

Headquarters for the local recruiting drive, and a recruiting office, is located in the Belvidere Street Armory with another recruiting centre in the William Street Armory.

Hours for enlistment will be nine in the morning until nine o'clock each night, during the week days.

Previously, local men wishing to join the new Brigade Group, which was launched May 7th in order to provide troops primarily for Europe, were obliged to report to Montreal for enlistment.

Major T. P. St. Germain, R.C.A., Headquarters, Quebec Command, Montreal, will be in charge of recruiting here. He and his party were welcomed to Sherbrooke yesterday afternoon by Senator C. B. Howard, the mayor, in a simple ceremony at City Hall.

Though not included in the 42 Canadian reserve force units that the Federal Government has asked to shoulder the major responsibility for recruiting the 5,500 to 6,500 men needed for the brigade group, two local officers were on hand to extend a greeting to the recruiting party. Lieut.-Col. Gaetan Cote, commanding officer, Les Fusiliers de Sherbrooke and Major Joseph Gilbert was there in his capacity as 2nd-in-command of the Sherbrooke Regiment.

How many men Major St. Germain hopes to enlist in Sherbrooke or whether or not a quota has been set for this district remains a military secret but the recruiting commander says "there will be room for everybody."

"We will be ready to enlist men tomorrow morning," said Major St. Germain yesterday, "and we should be in Sherbrooke until June 10th."

He added that he hopes to open recruiting stations in other parts of the Eastern Townships with, perhaps, recruiting visits to more remote centres.

Although only four units were represented in the recruiting party yesterday, Major St. Germain pointed out that men wishing to volunteer for the brigade group may join any unit of their choice. Though predominantly infantry, the units to be recruited include also armour, artillery, engineers, signals, service corps, medical corps, ordnance, R.C.E.M.E., provost and intelligence corps.

Accompanying Major St. Germain were: Major L. Gauthier, headquarters, Quebec Command; Major M. W. Mowle, No. four personnel depot, Montreal; Capt. G. Denault, Les Fusiliers Mont Royal; Capt. W. R. Stevenson, Victoria Rifles of Canada; R.S.M. Marcel Gingras, Les Fusiliers Mont Royal; Sergeants Benoit Lavoie, Fred Leclerc and Henri Roray, of Les Fusiliers Mont Royal; Cpl. J. T. Purves, Victoria Rifles of Canada; Cpl. Gerald Allan, Black Watch Fusiliers de Sherbrooke and Major Joseph Gilbert was there in his

IRAN SITUATION EASES

World tension over the Iranian oil situation eased somewhat during the week-end.

The crisis is by no means over but the prospect that it might be brought to a head immediately by the use of force on either side seems more remote.

Iran said she wouldn't even bother to be represented before the world court on a British appeal against abrogation of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's contract. A spokesman said she wouldn't even admit any United Nations right to act. It all sounded very unrelenting.

But a certain background of practicality was beginning to show behind the intransigence. Iran's threat to flop over to Russia if Anglo-American pressure continued had been replaced by some recognition of the fact that Russia has no oil technicians except those to work for her own benefit. Not Iran's; that the United States apparently would not permit herself to be used to fill the vacuum created by throwing the British out; that Iran would only be spitting herself by going through with her threat to let the wells die rather than see them continue under the British.

Iran said she hoped arrangements could be made for foreign technicians to continue operations under government ownership. Britain said she was willing to negotiate about that. The point showed at least some signs of becoming the focus of compromise which hitherto had been lacking.

Britain's pulse was slowing down, too. There was an implied if not a stated willingness to wait for a world court decision.

The stated willingness of some Iranian spokesmen to touch off a third world war rather than back down may be cooled by contemplation of what happens to a small country caught in the middle of such an event.

NEGOTIATION VS. APEASEMENT

Apeasement is a policy in thorough and deserved disrepute among all people who understand the nature of totalitarianism. Communists, like their Nazi and Fascist brethren, regard appeasement as a gesture of weakness. Hence they are never really appeased, but always press for more.

Yet in the desire to avoid any sort of appeasement, some people are tending to define that approach too broadly. They hint, for example, that in Korea anything short of utter destruction of the Chinese Reds will amount to appeasement.

In general, those who feel this way are the same ones who say "there's no substitute for victory," by which they mean a crushing triumph that virtually wipes out the enemy.

To such people, appeasement and "negotiation" are apparently synonymous. In other words, merely talking to the enemy about peace is seen as a yielding of ground.

This notion is pretty far afield from reality, as a look at past wars and their peace-making aftermath will show. Peace is seldom achieved by the enemy's unconditional surrender, as in the Nazis' case in World War II. More often it is negotiated, before the enemy is thoroughly annihilated.

The Allies allowed Germany to negotiate peace in World War I while German soldiers were still on French soil. Even in World War II we did not insist on destroying Japan's army by fire and shell. The Japs' main force was still largely intact when they sued for peace. The soldiers still occupied much of the Asahi land they had conquered. They surrendered because the A-bomb, devastating incendiary raids, and the cutting or overseas supply lines made ultimate defeat unmistakably clear.

Negotiating peace rather than enforcing it by arms does not inevitably lead to appeasement. Negotiations are a perfectly honorable and sensible way of ending a war. If the other fellow has had enough, what's wrong with letting him say so?

The important thing is not to avoid dealing with the enemy. It is winning peace terms which secure for you the objectives for which you undertook the war. When you fail to gain those goals, when you let the enemy have something at the council table which you have denied him on the battlefield, then negotiation does not indeed move toward appeasement.

But to suggest that we dare not negotiate with an enemy for fear of appeasing him indicates a total lack of confidence in ourselves as skilled negotiators.

If the Chinese Reds want peace in Korea on our terms, there is no sound reason why we should not negotiate. Those terms, naturally, cannot reward the Communists in the faintest degree for the aggression they have undertaken.

As a matter of fact, talk of a negotiated peace may in the end prove academic. Though they be licked, or at least effectively stalemated, the Reds may never want to concede defeat by suing for peace. As General Bradley and others have hinted, they may choose simply to let the war die out by slow degrees, with no formal cease-fire and no negotiations. That would be one way of minimizing their failure both to themselves and to those they are trying to win over in the rest of the world.

Whether it be this or a formal peace bid, we don't have to shy away from it in fear that we have thus appeased the Communists.

EXPERTS ARE HARD AT WORK TAKING BUGS OUT OF FARM LIFE

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent
Washington (NEA)—If civilization is eventually wiped out by the atom bomb, it will be the insects that take over. Some people think the insects may win anyway. But agricultural scientists have made real advances in the battle against the bugs by working tirelessly in their laboratories and in the field.

DDT—perhaps the most important of the modern bug killers—was first discovered in Europe 25 years ago. But its use as an insect destroyer was first promoted by U. S. Department of Agriculture entomologists only a little over ten years ago.

Today its use as a saver of human life is even greater than its use in protecting crops and livestock. It helped win the war by protecting troops against flies, mosquitoes and lice. DDT stopped cold a 1944 epidemic of typhus that broke out in Naples. For a while it was thought that DDT would completely destroy the common insect pest. But now it has been found that insects are so adaptable to new conditions that some varieties develop immunity to DDT. So the battle today is to find new and better insecticides, new plant varieties and new farming techniques that will outwit the bugs.

Bug experts have estimated that there are over a million different species of insects on earth—not counting the human varieties. And the total bug population would be a number so large it wouldn't mean anything.

One of the most successful tricks the scientists have employed is to develop "built-in" resistance to insect pests. For example, new varieties of corn are naturally resistant to the corn borer, earworm and cich bug. A variety of barley has been found which greenbugs don't like. Sugarbeets resistant to leafhoppers and alfalfa resistant to aphids are other examples.

HESSIAN FLY FOILED
By simply delaying winter wheat planting until after the fall egg-laying period of the Hessian fly had passed, farmers were saved an estimated $100 million annual loss from this pest.

An entirely new approach to insect control is now being developed with relation to cotton. The idea is to spray the plant, but to cut some of the new insecticides into the ground. Roots will absorb these chemicals and feed them into the plant. When the poisons reach the punctured squares of the plant, they are expected to kill the boll weevil larvae developing in the cotton.

Big advantage of this technique, if it proves to be fully successful, is that it will permit application of the insecticide right along with the fertilizer. This will eliminate the costs of two or more chemical treatments.

There are hundreds of new insecticides being tested in laboratories and at experiment stations all the time. Sometimes it's a combination of two or more insecticides that give the best results. This has been particularly true in dosing fruits, vegetables and cotton, which are all attacked by a number of pests.

Up to now, combination insecticides that kill all of the major cotton pests in one application have been the greatest single advance in treating this much-afflicted and delicate plant.

Not all insects are pests. Some insects, like bees, are most useful to farmers in pollinating blossoms and fertilizing plants. And so, while DDT has worked wonders in destroying the apple codling moth, the corn earworm and many of the livestock pests that reduce milk and meat production, it has also taken a heavy toll on bumblebees that pollinate field crops.

WAR OF ATTRITION GOES ON
To meet this situation, the bug specialists have had to look around for some new pollinizer that can substitute. Most promising candidate thus far is a Brazilian bee that lives in trees. It is smaller than the American honeybee. But it's a vast improvement on the American bumblebee because the Brazilian import is stingless.

This is not the first instance of importing a foreign insect for a special job. This practice has been common among entomologists ever since the first U. S. expedition to Australia, about 1890. It found an insect that would control cottony-cushion scale, then threatening California's citrus fruit industry.

A far greater effort is spent, however, in keeping out of America a fifth column of foreign insect pests. The thin first line of defense against these invaders is a small force of plant quarantine inspectors stationed at principal U. S. ports and international airports. Few people know that these defenders of their country exist. Yet they keep an around-the-clock watch every day of the year.

FATHER IS BLAMED

Peterborough Examiner

One of the most potent causes of these outrages (sex crimes) is the decline of parental influence, particularly that of the father. That in itself would not be enough reason; there are countless instances of men reared under the worst possible conditions who have triumphantly overcome their handicaps. Nevertheless the weakening of family bonds under the conditions of modern urban industrial civilization is a serious factor in juvenile crime. It is easy under modern conditions for a youngster to get a job and live more or less independently of his parents.

SIGHT OF A GUN

St. Catharines Standard

Don't pick up a hitch-hiker, and particularly if he is a Dutchman, who has read lurid tales about America. Three Toronto fishermen were jailed at Belleville, when their riding guest was scared stiff as he saw a revolver fall out of the glove department of the car. And he jumped, got the police and spoiled the whole trip. The story savors of the one about the man biting the dog; it is generally the hitchhiker who pulls a gun on the motorist.

Potential Trouble Spot

"Nothing Doing" Communiqué Is Contradicted By Troops

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With The Canadians in Korea, May 29.—(C)—It all depends on the angle from which you see it.

Take for instance, that expression used by whoever phrases the communiqués: "troops in such-and-such a sector improve their positions."

At a distance of 10,000 miles the possible interpretation at home is: "nothing doing in Korea today."

What the staff wallah means to say is: "our troops have gone as far as is intended for the moment, and have strengthened their positions for defence against counter-attack. As they may be staying where they are for another night (or longer) they've also made themselves more comfortable."

The man on the spot, however, has his own understanding of the phrase.

He established the position, in the first place. He improved it, in the third. And it goes on without let-up, in the fourth.

Seemingly, positions can be improved indefinitely.

There is always something more to do. The divisional commander, the brigadier or the commanding officer will dream up some new gimmick, some added warmth for the enemy's welcome. And so the job goes on.

What actually do they do? Well, the first things troops do when they move into new ground is to organize their own defence. Platoon commanders site the weapons so that the platoon locality is protected and approaches covered. Company commanders co-ordinate platoon defences, the battalion commander integrates the companies, the brigadier the battalions, and so on.

The weapons sited, the men dig their slit trenches, both to man them and as protection against shrapnel.

The procedure becomes a drill, a habit almost automatically followed once the target set for the day has been accomplished. What's needed is a position strong enough to repel any counter-attack the enemy can likely mount that night.

When for one reason or another the front must halt a while—perhaps to allow the flanks to catch up, or to enable a reorganization—positions must be "improved."

Any halt gives the enemy time for initiative, and the same time has to be used by the United Nations troops to strengthen their own positions against the possibility.

A two-night stand involves deepening trenches, checking the locations of weapons and perhaps changing some. Trip flares are strung out to give warning of enemy movement.

Work really begins when it is decided to build a position to be held against anything the enemy can hurl.

There are the usual weapons of an infantry battalion—rifles, steno guns, Bren machine-guns, vickers machine-guns, mortars and rocket-launchers. There are the slit trenches and the trip flares.

Those are the basis. Add a network of mines along the whole front. Mine the areas between company and platoon positions, too.

Get barbed wire and iron stakes and set up barbed-wire barricades along the whole front, between the areas and around them.

Be tricky, also, about the way you string your wire. Instructs Pte. Tom Powell of Windsor, Ont., British-born veteran of the Royal Engineers and now in the Patriotic Pioneer platoon:

"Not too tight—otherwise they will be able to use the strands as rungs. Not too slack—or they'll make the fence sag and collapse. Just loose enough to hold yet not give too much; enough to make 'em pause and trip in. It gives lots of killing time."

Meanwhile the armament is thickened up. United States army tanks and mortars move in for support.

All the while, care is given to concealment, so that as much as possible the enemy will not be able to detect the positions in his approach.

Things are really getting organized when the C. O. gets going

Questions and Answers

Q—What is meant by home economics?

A—It is an organized knowledge which treats of food, clothing, shelter and household management in their physical, economic and social aspects as related to the life and welfare of the individual, the family and the community.

Q—Do owls and hawks have gizzards like quails and chickens?

A—Yes, birds have two stomachs, the second one being called the gizzard.

Q—What is "balanced pruning" of grape vines?

A—Balanced pruning of grape vines means a fixed relationship between the number of fruiting buds left on the vine and the weight of wood removed.

It was probably the way she was watching him that made him all thumbs. And he began to simmer when she warned him "It's confusing till you catch on." But he got the bracket up somehow and said "Now pass me the rod; it's nice to be the one to give orders for a change."

The rod was about nine foot long. Quite hard enough to handle without Betty's sudden "Oh, you'd better let me. Look, I'll show you!" He was ready to explode when she leaped up on a chair, seized one end of the rod and flipped it deftly into position.

"There—like that!"

"I get it," he said shortly. And at that moment, he did get it. The rod, his own end, not firmly enough in the socket sprang out and hit him on the head, knocking on a dug-out for his command-post. The remainder of the time before either the enemy attacks, or a U.N. offensive is ordered, is spent in thickening up the mine-fields, putting out additional fences of barbed wire, and in digging alternative weapons positions.

Troops spend all their daylight hours at it—and there are between 13 and 14 hours of daylight nowadays. The temperature is 80 degrees and more. There is no shade.

But you don't mind it. The stronger the area gets the more you hope "the hated ones" will come.

But one thing's for sure: "our troops improved their positions" does not mean "nothing doing in Korea today."

Jacoby On Bridge

By OSWALD JACOBY

JUDICIOUS SHIFT SETS A CONTRACT

When the annual Greater New York Tournament begins tomorrow in New York City it will adopt a new feature that has proved popular in bridge tournaments throughout the country. There will be one pair event for those with 50 or more national master points and another pair event for those with less. This type of tournament pleases everybody by keeping the crocodiles away from the gazelles.

In last year's Greater New York the pair championship was won by Jules Tilles and Robert Abeles, well known Bronx experts. One of the hands that helped them win is shown today.

South's opening bid of one no-trump was slightly unorthodox. Most experts avoid such a bid with two suits unstoppped. Nevertheless, the bid was a reasonable description of the South hand, and the final contract of three no-trump was certainly normal enough.

Abeles, holding the West cards, opened the six of spades. Declarer naturally played low from the dummy, and Tilles won with the queen. When South dropped the eight of spades it was fairly clear that there was little nourishment in the spade suit.

Having decided to abandon the spades, Tilles still had to choose the most judicious shift. After some thought he decided to lead the seven of hearts.

This was a dangerous play in a match-point game. South might have a weird no-trump, based on a long minor suit. In that case declarer might already have nine tricks, and the king of hearts would give him an extra trick.

The risk seemed a good one to Tilles, especially since he knew that the actual South player was usually conservative. As it turned out, the shift to a low heart defeated the contract.

Declarer could take one heart and his seven tricks in the minor

The Record Short Story

YOU THINK YOU'RE SMART

By NORAH SMARIDGE

The uneasy feeling churned inside him as Jack Whiting neared the apartment he and Betty were preparing to be their home after they were married. If Betty were laying linoleum blocks in the kitchen—if she were so much as studying the instruction sheet—he'd blow his top. And if he blew his top at this juncture it would mean only one thing—that he couldn't face marrying Betty.

It wasn't that he didn't love her. Oh, he loved her all right. Her bright eyes, her slimmish, her crisp, pretty voice, her sense of humor. But Betty was altogether too efficient. So efficient, damn it, that he couldn't believe she really loved him. Could a woman love a half-wit, did everything for herself?

From the beginning, Betty had had a marked tendency to run things. She not only planned their dates; she even reserved the supper table, booked the tickets. "Think nothing of it, honey," she would tell him airily. "I do everything for J. P., you know. I even buy his shirts and ties." J. P. was Betty's boss. Boss in name only, Jack thought. From the sound of things, it was Betty who ran the office.

It was Betty who had found this apartment; it was in an old house, but spacious and sunny. She had shopped around for the furniture, too. And she'd even taken a course in restoring stuff. They'd spent many an evening in the basement at Betty's house, refining bits and pieces for their apartment.

Betty loved it all. In fact, he suspected now that she loved these preparations more than she loved him. He'd begun to feel she was in love with the idea of being the most efficient wife in the neighborhood, of having the best-run apartment, the best-kept husband.

She left then. And after a few minutes, to get back his composure, Jack left too. It was finished now. No more efficiency. No more bossing.

He took Connie to the movies that night; Connie would date anyone, any time. Her prattle was even sillier than he remembered—her hand was warm in his, her head lay confidently on his shoulder. If only Betty had been more like this. More clinging, softer—

But Betty, as he might have expected, was efficient even about their breakup. She telephoned him the next day at his office and said, "We'd better meet at the apartment."

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Important new facts regarding the stratosphere were discovered by Dr. August Piccard, physics professor at the University of Brussels and his aide, Charles Kipfer, following a balloon flight which ended on an Alpine Glacier. The flight established a world's record for altitude of 9,336 miles or more than 50,000 feet. Dr. Piccard proved that the stratosphere is navigable and that men with modern technical methods will be able to master its low pressure and extreme cold.

TEN YEARS AGO

Trained to a high peak of efficiency, the Sherbrooke Fusilier Regiment are all set to leave the city and take up the battle against the Nazis. The Eastern Townships active service regiment concludes its stay in the city today. The unit is commanded by Lieut.-Col. M. W. McNulty, Major Aime Biron is second in command.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said in London today that "our political and military terms of peace will be designed to prevent a repetition of Germany's misdeeds. We must never forget," he said, "that Germany is the worst master Europe has yet known. Five times in the last century she has violated the peace. She must never be in a position to do that again."

Max Schmeling, former world heavy-eight boxing champion, was reported killed while trying to escape British forces which had captured him when the Germans invaded Crete.

FIVE YEARS AGO

At Montreal, defense counsel, fighting fiercely for Fred Rose, charged with conspiracy to communicate information to Russia, sought today in court to have the evidence of the key crown witness, Igor Gouzenko, declared subject to diplomatic immunity.

Two war veterans, Ernie Warren and Hugh Brown who have already taken possession of their home under the Veterans' Land Act, have been informed by Government officials that the original price agreed upon for the houses, on the back road to Lennoxville, is no longer applicable and in order to retain possession of the dwellings the two men had to agree to pay whatever increased cost might be set by Federal authorities.

Four young citizens of Sherbrooke have made a tangible contribution to the current Red Cross drive. Sandra and David Neilson, Carol Loveland and Ardyth Flanders who held a lemonade sale on the premises of the Neilson home, 221 Argyle Street, realized $6.95 which they turned over to the Red Cross.

DOROTHY DIX

Jealous Father

Man Subconsciously Resents His Daughters' Boy Friends

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married twenty-three years and have two girls, one 19, and the other 16 years old. As long as the children were young, all was harmony in our home. But now that the girls have grown up there come the boy friends and late hours. Two or three times, sometimes four times a week, they are out and do not come home until 12 or 1 o'clock or even 2 o'clock, and when I told them how indecent this was and forbade them to do it my wife took their part and told me I was old fashioned. This brought about such discussion that I have left my family to live alone. Did I do the right thing? Don't you think my daughters are selfish?

ANSWER: I think you are perhaps one of the fathers who, without realizing it, are a little jealous of their daughters' boy friends. Many men are like that. It comes with a shock to some fathers, that their little girls have grown up and are interested in other men besides them and that Father isn't the center of their universe any more.

REMEMBER YOUR YOUTH Also, I think you have forgotten your youth. No doubt you tell your children that when you were young you never desired any amusement beyond staying at home with your dear parents or stayed reading an improving book. You never went to parties or stayed out later than 10 o'clock. What the young people of today are coming to, you shudder to think. All of which is parental propaganda, as you well know. For you know that when you were young you were just as fun-loving and restless and craved excitement just as much as the youngsters do today.

Perhaps if you would remember your own youth you would be more sympathetic toward your daughters who are only following the course of nature in wanting to have boy friends and go places and do things while they are young. It is just what you did when you were young and, although your father prophesied that you would come to no good end with your gadding, you turned out pretty well after all, didn't you?

My advice to you is to go back home and make peace with your wife and girls to be more lenient with them. All of you must be miserable with this break-up of the family and with each side cherishing a feeling of resentment. So kiss and make up. You need your family and the girls need you for protection, and they will be a lot more willing to take your advice if you don't make it so drastic and arbitrary.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am in my early teens and have liked a boy eight years my senior for some time. He is in the Army and is going overseas. He wants to become engaged, secretly, so that he will be sure I am waiting when he comes home. He says I could go out with other boys if I wished to. My parents wouldn't allow me to become engaged so young, I know. I wouldn't want to become engaged publicly, anyway, because then people would talk if I went out with other boys and I certainly don't want to sit home. Do you think the secret engagement is a good idea?

ANSWER: I think it is a very foolish idea, indeed. You're too young to think of engagements at all, and the fact that you want to keep on going with other boys while your would-be fiance is overseas should be indication enough that he's not of first importance in your young life. You can keep up a friendly correspondence with this boy, sending him all the news of the gang and home town happenings, but keep it on a friendship basis—nothing more serious.

It is a deplorable thing when young boys and girls rush into engagements and marriages because the lad is going into foreign (or even domestic) military service. There are many complex emotional reasons for this situation, but on the other hand such involvements are often spontaneous gestures—just a lark, as it were, in either event, they are more often regretted than not, and the sensible parting, especially among youthful teen-agers, is the friendly one.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young girl who has been going out regularly with a boy about eight months, but my mother will never let me go anywhere without my little brother being along. That makes it embarrassing for me, and I am afraid it will make me lose the boy. What shall I do?

ANSWER: Your mother is making a mistake in making little brother tag you. No boy will stand for that long. Tell her that your conscience and sense of right and wrong is a lot better chaperon than any little boy. And that she will have to trust you to live up to the principles she has taught you.

Science Takes A Look At Breakfasts And Discovers A Bun Can Be Crucial

New York. — (NEA) — A cinnamon bun with raisins has reared its doughy head in scientific circles. The result may change breakfast habits from toast to toast.

The Journal of the American Dietetic Association has published a calorie little piece called "Effects of Breakfasts of Different Size and Content on Physiological Responses of Men" or the adventures of Willie, a cinnamon bun with raisins.

The article is the result of a research project at the State University of Iowa, where they take their breakfasts cereally. The scientists decided to see if a big breakfast was more healthful and more productive than an average breakfast.

Before you lose your mind waiting for the decision, the answer is no, it isn't. In fact, there was some evidence that a normal breakfast gave you more energy than a big, sloppy breakfast.

The bill of fare for the Iowa students who guinea-pigged the experiment was pretty standard stuff. The average-breakfast battalion ate fruit, cereal, toast, and

ing. The baby received the names Joanne Margaret, and wore the christening robe worn by her mother and sent from Brasted, England, by her grandmother, Mrs. Basil Firmager. The godparents were Mrs. Sydney Ball, of Lennoxville, and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Couzens, of Toronto, Ont., for whom Mr. and Mrs. Roy Trussler stood proxy. The christening party was entertained at the home of the baby's parents, 11th Avenue, following the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rugg and sons, Andrew and John David, who spent the week-end with Mr. Rugg's mother, Mrs. F. S. Rugg, Quebec Street, left yesterday for Ottawa, en route to their home in Georgetown, Ont.

Miss Shirley Bell, on the staff of the Rosemere Consolidated School, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bell, Brooks Street. Mr. Richard Hamilton, also of Rosemere, spent Sunday at the same home.

Miss Irene Theberge, of the Ste. Anne's Military Hospital, left this morning, after having been a guest for a few days of Miss Gloria Wiggert, at her home on Chartier Street.

Mrs. Charles Drummond, Drummond Road, left on Sunday for Ste. Anne de Bellevue, where she will take a weaving course at Macdonald College.

AFTER BREAKFAST like this, he might as well stay home.

milk. Some had the equivalent amount of bacon and eggs instead of cereal, with a blob of grape jelly to make the two breakfasts equal in calories.

But the heavy breakfast boys had the cinnamon bun with raisins, plus a little more cereal (or bacon and eggs and grape jelly). Calorically speaking, the basic breakfast was 750 calories and the large economy-size breakfast was 1200 calories.

All the guinea pigs went through four tests, to see which outfit did the best and, consequently, which breakfast was best. They were tested for neuro-muscular tremor, choice reaction time, blood sugar level and maximum work output.

Neuro-muscular tremor is a measurement of how much your muscles tremble after exercise. The scientists apparently feel there's nothing like a good tremble to tell if you've had a decent breakfast.

Choice reaction time means the time it takes you to make decisions and act on them. Somehow, the amount of toast and jam you've had at 7:30 in the morning affects your mental alertness at 11.

Blood sugar level is the level of sugar in the blood, or did you know? That, too, is affected by your breakfast egg intake. So is the amount of work you do during the day.

Statistically, the results are rather involved. But they soft-boiled down to this: there was no significant difference in the first been president on many occasions. She was vice-president of the Women's Auxiliary at the time of her death. Her unfailing assistance and advice in a quiet unassuming way will be a great source of loss to this community.

The funeral service was very largely attended at the Bishop Carmichael Memorial Church, on Wednesday, May 9, with Rev. Harry Andrews, M.B.E., Rector of St. Luke's Church, Waterloo, officiating, assisted by Rev. E. F. Macklin, of Mansonville. A full choir with Mrs. M. G. Rhicard at the organ rendered two favorite hymns of the deceased, and chosen by her for this occasion, "O, Love That Will Not Let Me Go" and "There Is No Night in Heaven."

About thirty members of Beaver Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, Waterloo, attended in a body, and Sister Clara McKergow and Worthy Patron Harry Davis.

West African Living Costs Rise Rapidly

By STANLEY CLARK
Dakar, French West Africa. — Dakar, great port of French West Africa, is in the grip of a great inflation.

Its citizens are paying for the development of the port which is designed to more than double its capacity. They are paying in lack of accommodation and a continual increase in prices which outpaces all wage increases.

Nor is the inflation limited to Dakar itself. All the larger towns in the vast hinterland which it serves are playing, to a greater or lesser extent, the price of boom conditions in the territory.

The French worker in the larger towns earns between 30,000 francs and 50,000 francs a month. As the local franc is valued at more than double that of the metropolitan French franc, that means that his wages range from $150 to $308 a month.

But with rents of apartments running from about 10,000 francs a month to as much as 90,000 francs, many French skilled manual workers told me that they had great difficulty in maintaining an adequate standard of living.

The native worker is earning four times the wages he earned in 1946 and can now demand from 20-60 francs and hour to 98 francs an hour—or from $5.60 to $28 a week.

The $28 a week man is the French-educated clerk or manager in every case, however, and the majority of the natives are on the lowest wage scale.

In the towns, the price of bread is 10 cents a loaf, butter costs 92 cents a pound, beef 68 cents a pound, tomatoes, 12 cents a pound, bananas, 20 cents a pound. There is no fresh milk for either Europeans or natives and sweetened condensed milk costs 24 cents for a four-ounce tin.

The natives, whose staple diet is couscous, a sort of wheat pudding, eat very little of these commodities. Couscous costs roughly three cents a pound. In Dakar, too, they have a good supply of fish at prices which work out at about two cents a pound. Fruit prices, to native workers, are also below those paid by the French worker but bread is the same price in all parts of the town. Clothes are also expensive.

Yet the life in Dakar and Bamako is surprisingly like that of any French town or comparable size and make-up. Dakar, the town of mechanical workers and Bamako, the agricultural market, are almost replicas of a score of towns in France—if you can forget the scantily dressed natives who throng the streets.

There is, however, one great difference. All the town of French West Africa are coming increasingly under the influence of the Syrian trader whose skill in buying and selling to the natives is winning him financial control of large blocks of property in most towns.

There is considerable animosity about this in both Dakar and Bamako where the Syrian rather than the development program is most generally blamed for the inflation.

Norway's Navy Is Neglected, Admirals Say

Oslo, May—(Reuters)—Norway is to spend nearly 700,000,000 kroner (about $100,000,000) on defence this year. But her admirals complain the navy is being neglected.

As chief of staff in the admiralty, Commodore G. Hovienak has officially protested that the navy's share of the defence budget is too small. In a survey of Norway's defence problems, he argued that the main weight of any invasion attempt would come by sea.

But the defence ministry has decided the main emphasis will be on building up the land and air forces.

Gen. Ole Berg, chief of the defence staff, has explained that under the Atlantic Pact plans, Britain and the United States will bear the main burdens of naval defence because it is considered too expensive for a small country such as Norway to build, equip and man big naval units.

Norway, with only 3,000,000 inhabitants, has a large territory to defend. From the North Cape to the southern-most point of Norway is nearly 1,100 miles and in the far north, Norway overlaps neutral Sweden and has a common frontier with Russia.

Norway's defence tasks, as discussed with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower on his recent visit, are concentrated on two main "fronts":

1. The 150-mile frontier with Russia in the north which stretches from the Arctic ocean near Petsamo down the wider part of the Pasvik river.
2. The southern flank, the outpost of which is regarded as being in Germany.

Norway has declared she will not permit the establishment of foreign military bases on her territory in peace time. The main task of her forces in the event of an attack will therefore be to hold up the invaders until help can reach her from her Atlantic pact allies.

Mentally-Ill Veterans Get New Treatment

Cincinnati, May—(AP)—Mentally-ill war veterans are being talked out of their "terror dreams" by a loudspeaker and the power of suggestion.

The American Psychiatric Association today heard a veterans administration doctor describe the use of a recorded "suggestion" treatment while patients sleep.

"I can rid myself of any symptoms, completely and in less than a minute," is the type of recitation that is repeated through the night.

"I'm not overly dependent on medicines or doctors" is another—and, once in a while: "Mind a blank, relaxing more."

Dr. Ernest Schindhoefler, of Memphis, reported these results: "Most patients have reported gratifying results within two to four weeks. Some have stated that they are able to take daytime naps for the first time in their lives. Others say sleep becomes less fitful and more refreshing.

"Terror dreams are reported as being replaced by more pleasant ones, and the frequency of dreams of all sorts is allegedly reduced."

There were indications of a general decrease in the amount of awakening during the night—"there is less arising to smoke, to pace about restlessly..."

Dr. Schindhoefler said his patients object at first, and nurses and aids are indignant and incredulous, and sometimes tell the patients the whole thing is ridiculous.

But the doctor reported average hospital stays are shortened and fewer medicines are requested and prescribed as a result of the "self-help" program.

A'S DROP 5-1 VERDICT TO QUEBEC; FARNHAM HERE TOMORROW

Locals Unable To Solve Offerings Of Bill Conroy, Who Held Them To Three Hits; Farnham Here Tomorrow

The Sherbrooke Athletics, by virtue of their 5-1 defeat suffered last night at the hands of the Quebec Braves, now share the honors for top position in the Provincial League with the Farnham Pirates.

This evening they meet their co-leaders, the Pirates, in a double-header at Farnham and tomorrow night they will be hosts to them at the Park Avenue Stadium. These three games will play an important part in deciding the leadership of the circuit.

In the only game played between the two teams so far the Athletics hold the upper hand with a 3-2 victory in Farnham. Following their series with the Pirates the locals will then tangle with the Cubs of Drummondville, playing Thursday evening away and Saturday engaging them on their home grounds.

Last night Ray Brown, who took part in his eighth game for the A's suffered his third defeat. He tossed a good game but his mates, who were having an off night, failed to give him their usual good support.

Bill Conroy, who hurled for the Braves, held the local team to three hits but lost his shutout when his mates committed a miscue in the eighth.

Joe Andrews was the big gun for the visitors with a double and a single. His double drove in the first three runs for Quebec. Mike Fandozzi and Roger McCardell each connected for two singles.

Fandozzi opened the game with a single then Frank Neri drew a walk. Manager McQuinn struck out but Brown loaded the bases with another free pass. Andrews then stepped up and cleaned the bases with his double to right field.

In the sixth, McCardell, Andrews and Sinram singled to tally another run and in the eighth McCardell connected for his second hit of the game. Williams sacrificed him along and when Gary Rutkay threw wild to first another Quebec tally crossed the plate.

Manuel Mantaras tallied the locals only run when he drove out a single in the eighth. Moved to second on Brown's infield out and when second baseman Williams let Gonzalez's roller go through his legs he came home.

Five double plays were completed in the game with the visitors coming through with three as they turned in a solid defensive game.

Chicago White Sox Are Looking Down On Rest Of American League For First Time In Thirty Years

For the first time in 30 years, Chicago's White Sox are able to look down upon the entire American League — and that includes the World Champion New York Yankees.

A momentous 4-2 homecoming victory over the St. Louis Browns in the top; it climaxed a spectacular 12-game winning streak, all but one on the road.

Naturally, the Sox needed outside assistance. And they got it when the Red Sox nosed out the Yankees, 3-2 in Boston.

Not since 1920 have the White Sox enjoyed — all by their lonesome — such a lofty perch as late as Decoration Day. Victorious in 18 of their last 20 games, the Sox held a 24-percentage point edge over the Yankees — .727 to .703. The two teams actually are even in games won and lost. The Yankees, however, have participated in four more games and have played only .500 ball in those contests.

For the fifth straight day Manager Paul Richards watched another castoff come through for him with a dazzling pitching performance. Last night it was Saul Rogovin, who came from the Detroit Tigers a little more than a week ago.

Rogovin threw a two-hitter at the Browns as his mates clubbed loser Duane Pillette for eight of their nine hits and all their runs in five innings. It was Rogovin's second start and his first victory for the White Sox.

Mel Parnell, Red Sox ace southpaw, surrendered nine Yankee hits but was tough in the pinches to register his fifth victory, two of them over the Yankees.

Bobby Doerr's sixth home run of the season, with a mate aboard in the second inning, was the payoff ball as the Sox made use of their six hits off loser Alie Reynolds. The win extended the Red Sox string to eight in a row.

Two double plays snuffed out as many Yankee threats. The last was in the eighth inning when Parnell got Hank Bauer to rap into a twin killing with runners on first and third.

Reasonably Rapid Robert Feller spun himself another shutout, his second in succession, as Cleveland whipped the Tigers in Detroit, 9-0. The 32-year-old righthander, who shut out Washington with two hits in his last appearance, yielded six hits and struck out three. It was his sixth victory.

President Albert Molini Fines Several Players For Misconduct Acts; Umpires To Tighten Up

Montreal, May 29.—President Albert Molini of the Provincial Baseball League yesterday announced fines against seven players and managers of teams in the league.

Five were fined $10 each for recent misconduct offences, directed against umpires. Manager Stan Breaud of Drummondville club had three fines imposed on him — $10, $15 and $25 — for successive misconduct offences.

Samuel Bankhead, manager of the Farnham club, was fined $25 for refusing to provide protection for an umpire during a rhabarb at the end of a game.

Those fined $10 are Martin Ballester, shortstop, Sherbrooke; Fred Paditto, centre fielder, Three Rivers; Wally Jakowczyk, centre fielder, Granby; Joe Cleary, pitcher, St. Hyacinthe; Bill Iiamons, manager of St. Hyacinthe.

Molini said the troupe that brought about Bankhead's fine came at the end of a game in Farnham, won by Sherbrooke 3-2. Umpire Scotty Morrison's decision ruling a ball fair marked the end of the game.

Machinery, Railroaders And Rubin Chalk Up Wins In Softball League

Three games were played last night in the Sherbrooke Industrial Softball League. At the Parade Grounds the Machinery men defeated Bruck Mills by a close 16-15 score, and in the opener at Dufresne Park Railroaders defeated Rubin 13-5, while in the nightcap Rubin took the measure of Textile, coming out on the long end of a 11-6 score.

At the Parade Grounds, Machinery took a commanding 9-0 lead in the early innings. In the top half of the fourth and fifth innings, Bruck got back 10 runs to put themselves back in the game. These runs were got on some lusty hitting by the Mill men and a couple of miscues by the Machinery outfielders. In their half of the sixth inning Bill Cochran's men pushed across four more runs. These were enough to give them a close victory.

Bruck played hard all through the game, and played without one or two of their regulars. Phillipson and Cote were the big hitters for Machinery, both getting circuit clouts.

The opening game at Dufresne Park, Railroaders got off to an early start, pushing across eight runs on three doubles and three errors by the Rand team. After this disastrous start Rand

Odds Shrinking On Charles As He Prepares For Eighth Heavyweight Title Defense Tomorrow With Maxim

Chicago, May 29.—(AP)—Ezzard Charles and Joe Maxim, both declaring they have reached the best condition of their fighting careers, met in physical armor tomorrow night in a scheduled 15-round heavyweight title showdown at Chicago Stadium.

The scrap will mark Charles' eighth defense of his heavyweight championship in 23 months. It will be Maxim's first bout since he displayed a surprising hard right to kayo England's Freddie Mills for the light-heavy crown 16 months ago.

Not since Georges Carpentier and Jack Dempsey met more than 25 years ago have kings of the light-heavy and heavyweight ranks tangled for the big title.

The barometer of odds is inching downward from 5-2 favoring Charles to 8-5. The 29-year-old Cincinnati champion, 183 pounds, who has won 79 fights, 45 by knockouts, is expected to be favored over 28-year-old Maxim 3-1 by ringtime. These will be the shortest odds for a heavyweight title go since Ez defeated Joe Louis last September as a 2-1 choice.
