Cancellations tell you about trains

Stamp corner

By Peter McCarthy

That portion of a cancellation above the date that indicates the time is known as the indicia. In the case of RPO cancellations, the time, which is simply a.m. or p.m., is replaced by a train number or direction letter. In the early years of RPOs, the letters D for day and N for night sometimes accompanied the direction letters.

Once train numbers appeared in the indicia instead of the direction, the indication of day or night was no longer required. A simple comparison of number to timetable was enough to indicate when a train ran, day or night.

The direction a train runs is indicated by the train number. Odd numbers are used for trains travelling north or west. Even numbers are used for trains in the east and south directions.

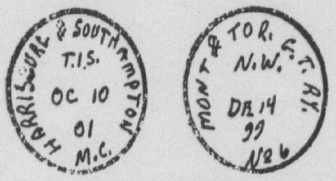

Fig. 1 (T.I.S. indicates train #1 south).

The balance of the removable slugs; ie. day, month and year, are important in determining the earliest and latest dates certain hammers were in use.

Using figure two as an example, it is known that this train travelled east by the train number. It is also known by checking a time table that train number 18 was a night train. On the return trip, the train number would most likely be changed to number 5 or 17. That same cancellation at one time used letters to indicate direction and time. The combinations were DE day east, NE night east and NW night west.

This particular cancellation was used between 1905 and 1940. The question is, what is the earliest and latest dates known in those two years. That's when the fun begins.

The changes in the indicia does not add to the rarity factor of the cancellation. It does however add to the dimension of RPO's for those interested in certain runs. There are 53 different cancellations of the Montreal & Toronto RPO including those on the CPR. Of these 53, only nine read Toronto & Montreal. Not included in this total are the sub cancellations with postal clerks names and the different hammers of each cancellation.

The last known dates of a hammer must not be confused with a last trip of an RPO. A last trip is the complete removal of RPO service from a train or route. As time went on, the post office eliminated or combined service on certain runs until such service was completely abandoned in 1971. The last known date of a cancellation might simply means the replacement due to wear.

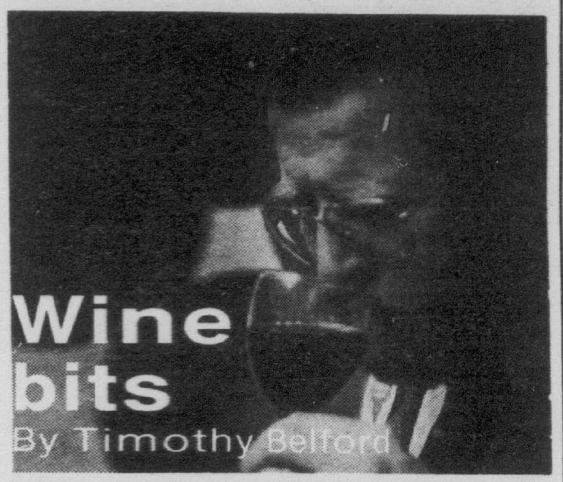
Should you be interested in RPOs and want more information, then by all means drop me a line. I'll be more than happy to answer your questions.

CAPEX 87 is but two months away. It is the most important stamp exhibition to take place this year. It is highly recommended that you try and attend at least one day. You certainly won't regret it. The event takes place at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre from June 13 to the 21. See you all there.

New Italian wine is unusual



Not in vain have I been singing the praise of Spanish wines! For some time now — ever since the price of Italian wine started to follow that of French — I have been pointing out that the various regions of Spain produce many inexpensive alternatives to Chianti, Muscadet et al.

Now, not only are the traditional areas associated with Spanish wine — Rioja, La Mancha and Penedes experiencing a dramatic growth in sales in North America, but we are seeing an increasing number of wines from such areas as Navarre, Catalonia and The Levante.

Recent statistics released by the Spanish government indicate that in 1986 Canadians purchased a total of nearly $10 million worth of Spanish wine. Of this total, approximately $6 million was in the form of still table wine while the remaining $4 million was sparkling wine or, as the Spanish call it 'cava'.

You can also add another $2.5 million worth of Sherry, dessert wines and brandy.

This dramatic increase in sales abroad is all the more fascinating when you consider that the Spaniards themselves are rather prodigious drinkers of wine and traditionally consume a large part of their own production. For example, the company that produces the sparkling Codorniu, one of the most popular non-Champagne bubblies sold in Canada, turned out some 50 million bottles of their product last year of which the Spanish drank all but 10 million.

Having said all of this about Spanish wine, I want to mention a new Italian wine that might interest some of you — Alto Adige Chardonnay.

This white wine, made from the chardonnay grape and produced by the Folonari company, is unusual for a number of reasons. First, the chardonnay is essentially a French grape although many excellent wines are produced from it in both the United States and Canada. Thus, its introduction into Italy as an 'accepted' grape is a relatively recent phenomena.

The second reason I use the term unusual is because of the wine's taste which is unlike any Italian white wine I have tried including others from the Alto Adige region.

Almost white in color and with just a hint of the telltale chardonnay green, the Alto Adige Chardonnay has a flowery if not 'grassy' bouquet with a long lasting taste that has hints of the grape and soil combined. (Looking back at what I just wrote I must confess it doesn't sound as appetizing as the wine is itself).

At $7.85 the 1985 vintage presently available isn't exactly cheap, but then again, it's an above average wine suitable as an apperitif but probably much better combined with a meal.

Will it keep beating?

The metal bars across the sanctuary of the St. Luke's Anglican church in Waterloo may not be aesthetically pleasing, says Rev. Wilmur Davidson, but they keep the walls from buckling any further.

$168,000 repair job nears completion

By Laurel Sherrer

WATERLOO — It may not look much different, but come summer, the historic St. Luke's Anglican church in Waterloo will have undergone $168,000 worth of repairs and improvements since last fall.

The imposing buttressed red brick building, constructed in 1870, was a sturdy-looking structure even before the work began. But with a bit of brickwork, a new roof and some metal reinforcements the church is better equipped than ever to face the wear and tear of the years to come.

As Rev. Wilmur Davidson explained, the repairs the church needed weren't all that evident.

"It was nothing critical; it was just a question of having to have it done sooner or later," he said. It didn't become evident until architects began looking at the church that one of the walls was begining to bulge, and that metal reinforcing rods would have to be placed across the church. With a new, insulated roof there would be more weight on the walls, making the reinforcement even more necessary.

The $168,000 needed for the repairs isn't the kind of money a church has at its disposal. That's where the Quebec government came in. Because the church was declared a historical monument by the Quebec Ministry of Cultural Affairs in 1978, the government paid 60 per cent of the cost. The rest is a loan from the Montreal Diocese of the Anglican church, which includes the Waterloo parish.

The members of the congregation (about 75 to 80 show up each Sunday) are happy to see the work being done, said Davidson. The metal bars across the sanctuary don't help the appearance, he said, and some people were upset about that, but they've adjusted.

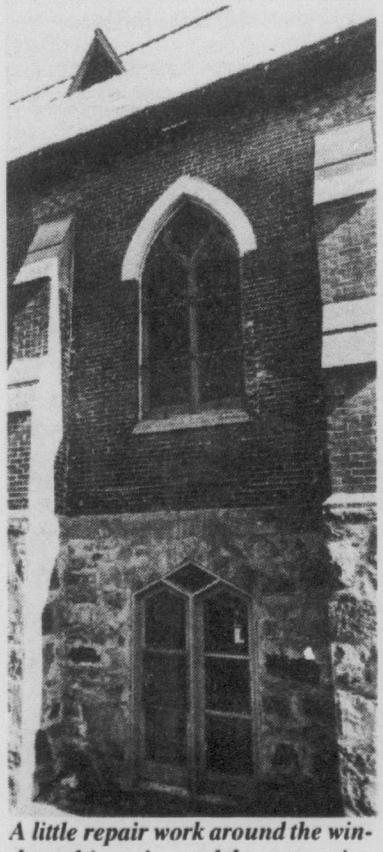
The effects of the insulation are already evident in lower heating bills and fewer icicles, he said.

The church hasn't done much yet to start paying back the loan to the diocese, said Davidson. "We'll probably be paying it back over the next 100 years," he laughs.

"We've sent letters out to everyone we know of that was previously connected with the church in the past and that's brought in a fair amount of money," he adds.

Davidson, who has been minister at St. Luke's since 1979, says the church should last for a "good many years" with the work that's been done.

"It's a pretty solid structure," he said. "Hopefully we won't need any repairs for awhile."



A little repair work around the windows this spring and the restoration job will be complete.

"★★★★ Spectacular. A spell-binding adventure that doesn't let you take your eyes off the screen."

No idea too unlikely for TV's theatre of the absurd

By Bill Anderson
The Canadian Press

Got an absurd idea? Take it to a TV network. They'll tell you to shoot a pilot.

Nothing is really too wacky for TV, and each year brings a fresh crop of outlandish concepts and harebrained story-lines. So with the current season winding down, let's look back at some of the most ridiculous offerings.

Without question, the CBS series The Wizard — revolving around a toy-making dwarf who becomes the centre of international intrigues — was in a class by itself. Nothing came close, week after week, for consistently absurd material.

Here's a summary of an episode, as described by CBS:

"Aegis, a robotic guide dog perfected by Simon McKay, and the lovely blind girl to whom he has given the 'dog,' are abducted by a ring of arms smugglers who are all too familiar with the military potential of Simon's creations.

"The villains plan to reprogram the electronic canine for combat and reap big bucks by peddling him to a terrorist organization after disposing of the blind girl. When the girl and Aegis vanish, Simon and his government agent-bodyguard Alex Jagger launch a search for them as Simon agonizes because he did not program Aegis with a protection mode."

ANOTHER DOG?

In another episode, a scientist is found murdered in his lab and a fantastic robot created by McKay is believed to be the killer.

"The robot — HENRI VIII (Hazardous Environmental Robotic Intelligence, Model Eight) — was the invaluable 'assistant' to Prof. Martin Gadberry," says the press release. "Simon, who knows the robot like a father knows his son, finds it impossible to believe that HENRI VIII is capable of murder.

"But Gadberry's outraged colleagues are determined to subject the robot to an 'execution,' technological style."

Several other series had absurd concepts. Alf was about a cantankerous alien who crash-lands into a suburban household; The Charmings concerned fairy-tale characters living in modern suburbia; and Outlaws was about five Wild West cowboys transported by an electrical storm to modern-day Houston.

LOW BALL

Lucille Ball's comeback comedy was also an absurd anachronism, and comedy shows in general were rich as ever in forgettable nonsense.

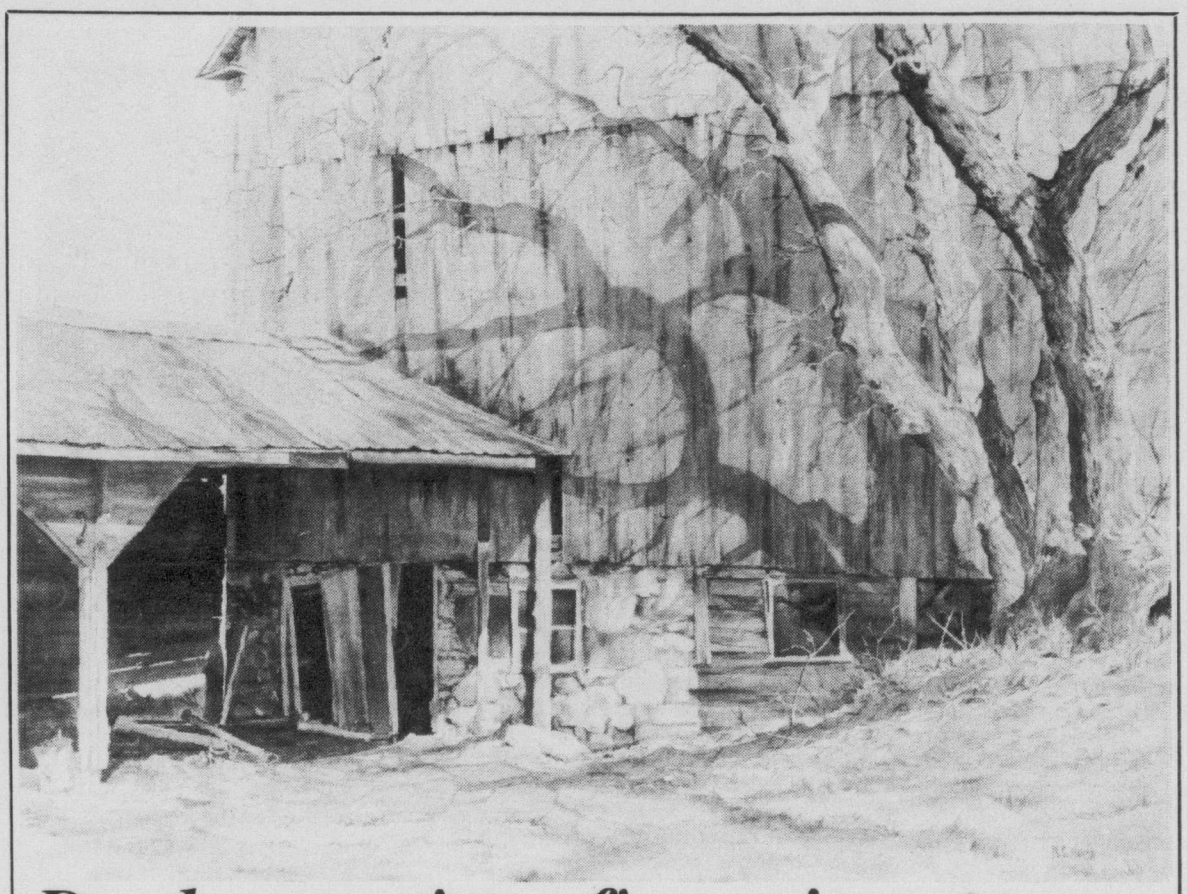
One episode of Together We Stand, seen early in the CBS season, was a classic of inconsequentiality:

"Amy is anxious to make a big impression on her friends at her girls-only pajama party, and she's mortified when (brothers) Sam and Jack, who promised to steer clear, break up the party with their hijinks.

"(Parents) Lori and David do their part by agreeing to stay upstairs during Amy's party, and pack the boys off to go to a carnival. But the lure of Amy's friends in pajamas proves irresistible, and the brothers come home early to get in on the fun."

There's no conclusion to all this, just an essential anecdote. In a book called The Sweeps, authors Mark Christensen and Cameron Stauth describe how Brandon Tartikoff — now head of NBC Entertainment — suggested to his senior tutor at Yale, Robert Penn Warren, that a short story by Leo Tolstoy "would have worked better had one of the characters been a car."

Warren advised his young student to consider another medium: television.



Dunham artist a first prize winner

This watercolor, 'Morning Shadows', has won Dunham artist Mary S. Martin first prize in the annual competition of the Canadian Watercolor Society in Montreal.

In this juried competition, one work by each of 93 artists was chosen for public display, forming the biggest and most prestigious annual exhibition of watercolors in the province.

Martin's view of John Butterworth's barn in Dunham was chosen first prize winner out of 476 submissions.

The paintings can be seen in the foyer of the Complexe Guy Favreau, 200 Dorchester Boul. W. in Montreal now through May 3. There is no admission charge, and catalogues are available at the information desk.

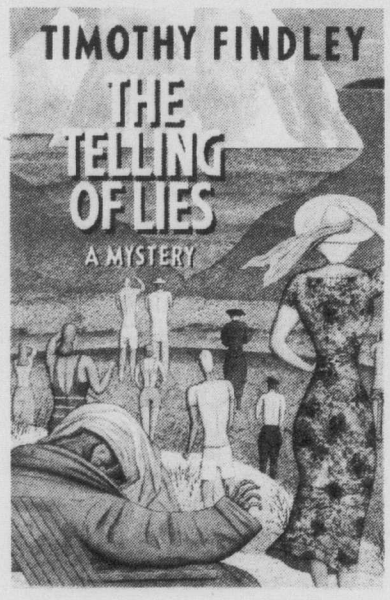
Findley novel fails to satisfy avid fans of the genre

Kaleidoscope

By RICHARD LONEY

The Telling Of Lies by Timothy Findley (VIKING-PENGUIN): $22.95, 359 pp.

Toronto writer Timothy Findley has a rather chameleonic approach to writing fiction. His books have ranged through such diverse subject matter as the First World War (The Wars), the Duke of Windsor and his lady Mrs. Simpson (Famous Last Words), and his bestselling story of Noah's Ark, (Not Wanted on the Voyage). His most recent work has been billed as a "mystery", and from a Canadian writer of Findley's stature it might be expected that a mystery in the same vein as the works of P.D. James might be the result. Unfortunately The Telling Of Lies does not make it into that exalted company, nor would readers familiar with Agatha Christie's techniques find enough in this book to sustain them for the 359 pages of its text.



Findley follows the Christie formula painstakingly, however. He takes a select group of late-middle-aged adults, gathers them together at a hotel on the seaside in Maine, presents a murder or erstwhile death in mysterious circumstances, peoples the plot with a multitude of possible killers, and even has a distinctive voice to aid him in the unravelling of the puzzle mystery that The Telling Of Lies becomes. Although there are any number of reasons why Findley's mystery does not satisfy avid fans of the genre, perhaps a look at his narrator. Nessa Van Horne, is a beginning.

Van Horne, approaching her 60th year, has been a long-time vacationer at the Aurora Sands Hotel in Maine, and her intimate knowledge of the many regulars at the hotel is invaluable to the readers trying to wade through the morass of petty detail about her life, her mother's salons at the hotel, and her chequered relationships with many of the ASH's (as the regulars call the hotel) inhabitants over the years.

Findley interlaces the too slow-moving plot about the death of Calder Maddox, an infamous pharmaceutical industrialist, with an alternate plot that might have fueled an entire novel of its own. Van Horne, it seems, was a captive in a Japanese prisoner-of-war camp in the South Asian theatre of war in the 1940's when the Rising Sun flew over much of that world. Her recollections of the camp conditions and the death of her father when he tried to visit her mother, and her experience in bartering her mother's wedding ring for some valuable medicine are interesting enough in detailing Nessa Van Horne's character. But when they serve to retard the already ponderously moving plot about Maddox's beach death, the reader finds The Telling Of Lies rather tedious going.

Findley errs on the side that a novelist would take no shame in finding himself on — on the side of fleshing out his many characters and attempting to give some of the ambience of the Aurora Sands Hotel. But with P. D. James and other masters of the genre, there is an inexorable feeling that the murder will be soon solved even as the scope of the novel widens. Findley's book is retarded by the too expansive plots, major and minor, and in the prim and proper observations of his narrator, who after a while becomes boringly predictable in her contrariness and her dated world-view.

The main gripe against Findley's novel, through, is that the actions, sub-plots, intrigues, and secrets brought out at the end, are hardly worth wrestling with because the reader is never engaged by the clarity of a crime event. By keeping the reader as distanced from the murder of Maddox as narrator Van Horne is, there is an immediacy lost and ultimately The Telling Of Lies just is not a grabber as a mystery. Findley scores high for technical skill in crafting the book's components, but as a book you would like to recommend to someone as a "great mystery read", this is not it.

RECORD REVIEWS

Carly Simon COMING AROUND AGAIN (RCA-ARISTA)

Her first album for a new label sees Carly Simon bringing together a variety of songs, some new, some quite old, and some from her recent venture into motion picture soundtrack work. The latter venture leads to the title track of the record, the tune from "Heartburn", starring Jack Nicholson and Meryl Streep, which mirrors the strained marital relations in that flick. Another song from the film is the novelty treatment of the kids' favorite, "Itsy Bitsy Spider". "I knew we'd end the film with that, and playing with the chord changes a bit. I came up with a second musical theme which became 'Coming Around Again'", explains Simon.

Matching that pair of songs from contemporary film is a soulful rendition of the classic "As Time Goes By", sung with Carly's flair for interpreting lyrics so memorably, and with a harmonica solo by Stevie Wonder which is remarkable for the ability of the talented performer to get the harp into the correct chromatic scale. It takes a key change or so, but Wonder's solo is indeed a wonder, topping off this most recorded of songs.

Just to show that she's as with it as Tina Turner, Carly manages to cop a vocal duet with Canada's wunderkind of rock, Bryan Adams, on one of his songs co-authored with Jim Vallance — "It Should Have Been Me". While Adams produces this track, many of the songs on Carly's album are handled by Paul Samwell-Smith, the bassist and producer who did such extensive and solid work with Cat Stevens in the early seventies. But all of the disparate production hands here only manage to keep Carly on the optimistic bent that this record follows, with many of the themes speaking of "coming to terms with things, evaluating what you have and making the most of it", as she says in the press bio. With a new label, a new album and what gossipy "Rolling Stone" reports as a new boyfriend in the New York Mets' Keith Hernandez, Carly Simon seems to have her musical and personal lives fully in order for the late 80s.

VIDEO SCREENINGS

WISE GUYS (CBS/FOX), RUNNING SCARED (MGM/UA)

A couple of recent video releases point out just how deceptive picking movies by checking out the stars can be these days. Take WISE GUYS, for example, which features red-hot little guy Danny DeVito and Saturday Night Live's Joe Piscopo — a line-up that sounds promising, right? Add in that this little flick is directed by the respected Brian DePalma, and viewers could be expected to be drooling, awaiting a laugh riot. Throw in the World Wrestling Federation's Captain Lou Albano as the gigantic Frankie the Fixer Acavano and the roster for WISE GUYS is as complete as you would want it.

What results, unfortunately, is a predictable, boring, dull, often stupid film that makes you wonder what DePalma could be doing — stiffing some studio with a clunker to play out the end of a contract perhaps? Even DeVito can't save this hopeless film about a couple of neighbours who have a tough time getting a major mafioso off their tails.

So, how do you figure a hoofer like Gregory Hines hooking up with stand-up comic Billy Crystal (another SNL alumnus) in a cop-buddies flick about the drug trade in Chicago? Another disaster, right? Wrong! RUNNING SCARED turns out to be a delightfully original, wacky cop duo movie, written by newcomers Gary Devore and Jimmy Huston, who work perfectly with director Peter Hyams to create a sleeper in the BEVERLY HILLS COP mode.

Crystal and Hines have some great one-liners and quick quips to sustain the dialogue, when the screen isn't providing visual thrills — such as an unbelievable, but outrageous chase sequence that ends up on the Chicago "el", or elevated train tracks. This pair works so well together, and have got such high profile exposure from both this film and a pop video that RUNNING SCARED has sequel written all over it. (VIDEOS AVAILABLE AT LE CLUB VIDEO, QUEEN STREET, LENNOXVILLE; AND AT TREIZIEME AVENUE, SHERBROOKE).

Fitch family linked to the early settlement of Stanstead

Bubbles

By JACQUES BOISVERT

of the Société d'Histoire du Lac Memphrémagog Inc.

This is the second part of a two-part look at the origins of Stanstead Township. The first part was featured April 10.

Fitch, having served under King George III of England against the French, could not make up his mind to join the revolutionaries and kept out of the quarrels. Once the revolution was won, his neutrality was never forgiven and he was arrested and prosecuted.

In September 1783, with his wife and his son, George, he sailed from New York, as one of the great host of United Empire Loyalists seeking new homes in Canada. He settled in St. John (Québec) and he is said to have been for a time Collector of Customs for His Majesty.

He died in 1796 without being granted the Stanstead Township. His son George Fitch had the title of Colonel. We cannot explain why he held this title since we know very little about him. However, he wrote to the Lieutenant Governor to advise him that along with his mother they jointly claimed his deceased father's share. On January 22, 1798 Isaac Ogden in behalf of himself, Mrs. Fitch, widow, and George Fitch send a lengthy memorial where we can read: "That the great object which it appeared His Majesty had in view when he was graciously pleased to give his Royal Instruction to his Governor to grant his vacant lands in this Province was the increase of population and the speedy settlement of a tract of country capable of subsisting several hundred thousand families." They had vision...

We concede that George Fitch explored the township. He was a jovial, pleasant man who liked to play tricks. It seems that Fitch Bay was name after him but we believe that the bay could have been named in his father's honor, in appreciation of his numerous achievements.

George Fitch was not a lucky man. He died on July 12, 1798 and his name did not appear on the list of the associates to whom Stanstead Township was granted.

But while they were trying to have a township some "dealings" were done and a document dated March 19, 1796 was found lately (courtesy of Mr. John Boynton and Dr. Jacques Valiquette) showing that Philo Halbart promised "to pay to Philip Peasley the sum of 500 pounds lawful money of this province of Lower Canada, for his share of land in the township of Stanstead". We know by Forests and Clearings that Peasley "was among the men that surveyed the township (page 208.)"

This represented a sum of around $2,000 which was a lot of money in those days.

We must admit that life was not easy for the first settlers. It took more than eight years to obtain the concession of the Stanstead Township and in all that time the government had never advanced any money. I am tempted to conclude this article with a extract from the works of Mgr. Gravel: "We must preserve the name of the true settlers. Our distinction, as we are aware, does not bear on the English, Scottish, Irish of French consonance, but on merit acknowledged by history. Honor and merit have the same value in all languages and with all nationalities as selfishness and personal interest are shamed by all countries as you go back in time". (Book 17: La Concession et la curée des terres dans les Townships de l'est. Mgr. Gravel page 15, 1966.)

It may help if the fans are tipsy

Who's who

By TADEUSZ LETARTE

It's interesting to see that the Expo's front office has decided to stop selling beer in the stands. From now on if you want your suds you'll have to journey to one of the sales booths in the bowels of the concrete oyster. The theory is that this will cut down on the number of drunks in the stands and make the environment more conducive to 'family' enjoyment. In reality, with service the way it is, all it will likely mean is that anyone who wants a beer will probably miss three innings of the game. Besides, the way the Expos are playing, by mid-season management will probably be happy if fans are slightly tipsy — it may be the only way to get through a game.

What a country! Canada, the Balkans of the Americas, is split in so many ways that if Toronto wasn't there to hate we'd have nothing in common. When we finally come up with a constitution of our own 105 years after our birth one province refuses to sign because its leader, Le P'tit Puffer, pulled a 'senator' and slept through the key meeting, our native people (the Indians and Inuit not the bankers) weren't even considered, and two of the biggest regions got nothing but colonial status and a promise that if the temperature got above — 40 in Inuvik we might make them provinces. Now we have a new proposal to include Quebec that sounds like it was designed by either an inmate of one of the country's asylums or a Tory.

Let me elucidate. Under the new proposal, any ammendment to the constitution must be carried by at least seven provinces with at least 80 per cent of the population which simply means that nothing Ontario or Quebec dislikes is ever going to appear as holy writ. In other words, Newfoundland, Canada's answer to Albania, can't get anything changed even if it talks the entire east coast into joining it while at the other end of the country Lotus Land and Bill Vanderzoom need only the support of Texas North and its premier, Don Gritty to hold up the entire nation. Lovely, just . . . . . lovely.

Speaking of colonization by the way, I see that those lovely islands, the Turks and Cacos are still after us to adopt them. And why not I ask you? Think of it. Sun, sand, a dollar that is worth a dollar! Even if the island's entire population goes on welfare the day after we take over — a totally unlikely scenario given the prospects for development — it would be worth it. The only problem I can see is if Rocket Ronnie decides that Canadian socialism is a threat to his southern flank and starts supporting a Contra movement to overthrow the government.

From my North Hatley spy: Apparently local resident, David Sarrasin had a minor crisis on his hands when his Harley Davidson motorcycle caught fire outside LeBaron's grocery store. An alert Claire Berlinden, however, saved the day by putting out the blaze with two bottles of Miller Lite.

One last item. In support of the government's clean air campaign, Record Editor, Charlie Bury has declared the editorial office a smoke-free zone with the exception of areas where he is standing at any given moment.

'Open vista' law divides unity of Alberta peace park

By Tad Bartimus

WATERTON-GLACIER PARK (AP) — Some of the most scenic wilderness in North America has been dedicated to peace and international co-operation, but man's encroachment is threatening its future.

Waterton-Glacier International Peace Park spans the border between Alberta and Montana. Comprised of Waterton Lakes National Park and Glacier National Park, it was given the "peace park" designation in 1932 by Parliament and the U.S. Congress. The title crowned a drive by Rotarians to commemorate the warm relations between the two countries.

The peace designation doesn't manifest itself in many tangible ways. Park administrators on both sides of the border say it's more a state of mind.

Waterton-Glacier encompasses 566,580 hectares, 93 per cent of that still wilderness. It contains 124 kilometres of paved road, 1,125 kilometres of foot and horseback trails.

DRAWS TOURISTS

The park is home to grizzly bears, bighorn sheep and even a rare pack of gray wolves. Its spectacular mountains and glaciers bring tourists from around the world.

But the beauty and the wild creatures that attract visitors also attract developers, who build houses and businesses just outside the park to lure even more people.

Also coveted are such valuable natural resources as coal, timber and natural gas in the surrounding area on both sides of the border.

Conflict is increasing between commercial interests and environmentalists and park officials over how much development is detrimental to Waterton-Glacier International Peace Park.

CLEAR BORDER

Even within the park, there is argument about man's rearrangement of nature.

Canadian and U.S. laws based on old treaties stipulate that the border be kept an open "vista." Its entire length is cleared every few years. No matter that it passes across bogs, through forests, under rivers, or over the tops of mountains. Either the border is marked with stone cairns or concrete pillars, or a path is cut through the timber.

This summer, contrary to the wishes of Glacier and Waterton Lakes officials, a six-metre-wide demarcation line will again be mowed through the peace park. The U.S. National Park Service was awarded the $168,000 clearing contract in hopes it would minimize the impact on wildlife and the landscape.

Official concern stems, in part, from past abuses. Crews used herbicides in 1955 and again in 1967, when Tordon 101 sprayed from a helicopter killed trees up to 15 metres away from the boundary and caused a public uproar.

NOTE PHILOSOPHY

But park managers also oppose the open vista on philosophical grounds.

The creation of the peace park "emphasizes the environmental unity of this ecosystem and stresses the idealism inherent in creating a system of international peace and goodwill," Glacier superintendent Gil Lusk wrote last spring in a formal appeal to suspend clearcutting within Waterton-Glacier.

"Boundary clearing ... is the major hurdle to our achievement of the designation's intent and represents a symbol of division rather than unity."

The request was denied by the International Boundary Commission, which oversees maintenance of the border.

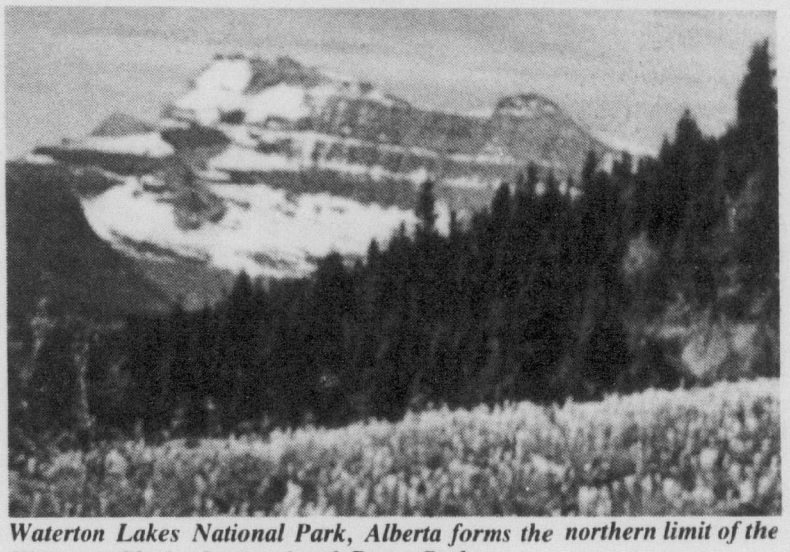
The open vista "was an international obligation long before the parks were created," said Dr. Alec McEwen, Canada's IBC commissioner.

"It is very necessary to have the open space, otherwise all sorts of jurisdictional problems could arise. How would our Royal Canadian Mounted Police, or your U.S. police, or customs agents for both countries, know where their territory begins or ends?"

CONSULT FULLY

The ties that bind the two parks in the minds of their custodians are reflected in joint management efforts.

Although Parks Canada oversees Waterton Lakes National Park and the U.S. Park Service supervises Glacier National Park, administrators on both sides believe the entire ecosystem must be treated as a seamless whole. Neither country makes decisions concerning wildlife or environmental management without consulting the other.



Waterton Lakes National Park, Alberta forms the northern limit of the Waterton-Glacier International Peace Park.

"You can prove here that two countries can manage one ecosystem," said Alan O'Neill, Glacier's assistant superintendent. "There is no boundary for bears or elk or rabbits or wolves. Only humans take note of the border.

"We have joint agreement on search and rescue, fires and bears.... Park managers all over the world are watching us to see how we do it together."

O'Neill and Waterton Lakes superintendent Dr. Bernie Lief say international co-operation involving major ecosystems is rare. Politics, economics, even warfare can hamper cross-border management efforts.

Anthology roves from souk to nuts

By Portia Priegert
The Canadian Press

If warmer weather and longer days are stirring your wanderlust, A Book of Travellers' Tales could be just the tonic to steel you until summer vacation.

Then again, this entertaining anthology put together by veteran travel writer Eric Newby could spur you to pack your bags and make a quick departure for new vistas.

Newby has culled more than 300 selections from a varied lot of world roamers — some famous, some obscure — who provide fascinating glimpses of odd places, strange customs and unusual people.

The selections from travel books, autobiographies, diaries and letters are arranged geographically and span more than two millennia.

They range from ancient history — Alexander the Great urging on his troops in India in 326 BC, Hannibal crossing the Alps in 218 BC — to literary accounts by Jack Kerouac, John Steinbeck and Lawrence Durrell.

STILL THIRSTY?

The book begins with advice on such eclectic matters as sleeping in English ditches, breaking wind to show appreciation of fine Chinese cuisine, and getting turbid, green water from the stomach of a dead camel if you're dying of thirst in the desert.

In the chapter on Africa, Scottish missionary and explorer David Livingstone tells of being attacked by a lion which "shook me as a terrier does a rat," and journalist Henry Morton Stanley gives an account of his famous meeting with Livingston.

A few pages later, English photographer Sir Cecil Beaton describes an evening with the Rolling Stones in Marrakesh.

Some hardy women travellers provide amusing accounts, among them bicyclist Dervla Murphy, who fired a single gunshot into the ceiling to quickly dispatch a randy, scantily clad Kurd who paid an unexpected nocturnal visit to her room.

"I felt afterwards that my suitor had shown up rather badly," the intrepid Irish traveller wrote. "A more ardent admirer, of his physique, could probably have disarmed me without much difficulty."

TALE OF BAR

A Canadian contribution comes from novelist Norman Levine who recounts how a Montreal bartender tried to cheer him up by cracking hazelnuts in a nutcracker with wooden handles shaped like a pair of woman's legs.

Newby — author of six books including Slowly Down the Ganges, A Traveller's Life and On the Shores of the Mediterranean — likens this anthology to a Chinese banquet filled with exotic tidbits, some more appetizing than others, yet capable of providing a satisfying meal.

Many readers will be left hungry for more — and some may even take the advice of English traveller John Hatt.

"So pack your bags and go on your travels before it is too late," he urges. "There are still vast tracts of the world which beg to be visited ..."

A Book Of Travellers' Tales, edited by Eric Newby. Published by Picador; $9.95.

WHAT'S ON

Music

By Laurel Sherrer

One of Canada's foremost guitarists, Norbert Kraft appears this weekend at the Centennial Theatre in Lennoxville, along with his wife, Bonnie Silver (nice name eh?) playing harpsichord. Kraft is the grand prize winner of the 1979 CBC Talent Festival and first prize winner in the 1985 Andrés Segovia International Guitar Competition. And that's not all; the Kraft/Silver duo was also recently invited to give a special command performance for the GG herself, Jeanne Sauvé, the prime minister and other luminaries of the Canadian scene at Rideau Hall. The concert's at 8:30 Saturday night and the program includes works by Vivaldi, Villa-Lobos, Rodrigo, de Falla, Boccherini and Bolling among others. Tickets, at $12 for normal people, $6 for students and seniors, can be reserved by calling the box office at (819) 563-4966.

People at the other end of the Townships might find the concert of the Petits Chanteurs de Granby more accessible for that evening's entertainment. This group of youngsters (along with a few men to provide the bass) perform a lively mix of popular and folk classics accompanied by the Stage Band Plus. Thes annual concert will be held at the Le Castel in Granby, and this year they're innovating by encouraging ballroom dancing during the event. It starts at 8:15 p.m. and you can get your tickets (for $8) by calling one of the following places: Le Castel (514) 378-9071, the Granby tourist bureau 372-7273, or Le Rouet Fleury 372-0670.

More dancing and nostalgia is in store for those who turn out for the 50s and 60s Sock Hop happening Saturday night at the North Hatley Elementary School. A jukebox, popcorn machine and various other props are being brought in to create memories of that era, while a D.J. and a band created especially for the occasion will provide appropriate tunes to bop to. It's open to everyone, and naturally you're expected to dress for the occasion — everything from poodle skirts and saddle shoes to tie-dye and love beads, one would assume. There will be contests to see who can do the best limbo, twist and other wild dances of the day, and when you've worn off enough calories, you can stop by the sandwich bar and make yourself a Dagwood. The event starts at 8:30 p.m. and you can get your tickets for $9.50 at LeBaron's store, the Little Blue House stationery shop, or by calling Rosanne Toohey at (819) 842-2314 or Manon Jones at 842-2166.

Sunday at 7:30 p.m. the Sherbrooke Wind Ensemble performs at the Cultural Centre at the University of Sherbrooke. Directed by René Béchard, these 45 musicians will play works by David Gillingham, Alfred Reed and Tchaikovsky, among others. They'll be doing both classical and lighter dance and jazz music. The accomplishments of this group include first prize in the open category of the Festival des harmonies du Québec in Shawinigan last year. You can call the box office at (819) 821-7744 to reserve your tickets.

At the same location next Wednesday there's a concert by students from several of the local private schools: l'Ecole secondaire de Bromptonville, le Pensionnat Notre-Dame-de-la-Présentation in Coaticook, le College Mont Notre-Dame and le Séminaire de Sherbrooke among others. These students will perform about 30 works by such composers as Robert Fleming, Serge Lancen, Cyril Scott and Gabriel Fauré, as well as Mendelssohn, Bach and Haydn. The concert starts at 7:30 p.m. and you can call the box office (same number as above) to reserve tickets.

Some special dances are going on around the Townships this weekend as well. One, a benefit for the Sawyerville Primary School, takes place from 9:30 to 1:30 Saturday night at the Domaine RSVP in Sawyerville, and features the music of Rod Bray and the Countrymen. The Countrymen will also appear tonight at the North Hatley Curling Club for the club's closing dance.

The Sutton Legion has a dance planned for Saturday night featuring the music of Wayne Durrell. Admission here is $3 and the music will go on from 9 to closing, whenever that is.

Mac'n'Tosh are in the spotlight again this weekend at the Old Mill in Stanbridge East. You can hear this combo tonight and Saturday night.

Music at the Bar Salon Chez Ralph in Mansonville this Saturday is by The Bootleg Band. You'll find this country-western group at Ralph's throughout the month of May as well.

The hot times continue at the F.L. Hideaway this weekend. While testing your capacity at the Hideaway's beat-the-clock event tonight, you can listen to the music of Jeff Coates and the Jackets.

A five-piece band that's been making the rounds of Montreal lately will spend another weekend at La Maltonniere in Sherbrooke. City Limits, which is 4/5 made up of Sherbrooke natives, prefers music with a British sound, and thus plays stuff by performers such as Tears for Fears and Robert Palmer.

At the Maples in Stanstead, the music tonight and Saturday night is by Moonshine. The Con-cords are scheduled to take over there for the month of May.

Les Petits Chanteurs de Granby are preparing for their annual concert this weekend at Le Castel in Granby. See Music column.

Bronze sculptures by Jean-Marie Laberge are on display at the Denise Gallant Gallery in Orford until Sunday. See Exhibitions/Events column.

In nearby Rock Island, a Montreal band by the name of Lazer takes the stage tonight and Saturday night.

Across the border at Jimmy's in Derby Line, the very popular rock band 8084 performs tonight and Saturday night.

In Bury, The Troubadours play for a dance Saturday night at the Salle Jean-Paul, while Scott Lowd's Orchestra plays for a dance at the Bury Town Hall. The latter event is a benefit for the Compton County Historical Society and tickets are $3 a person (lunch included).

Ayer's Cliff's Shady Crest has music by the Con-cords tonight and Saturday night, and Sunday from 3 to 9 p.m.

The Good Ole Boys put in their last weekend until November at the Bretagne Bar Salon in Waterville this week. You can hear them play tonight and Saturday night, as well as Sunday afternoon.

Exhibitions/Events

Today and Monday are your last chances to see work by 10 Montreal artists and four Toronto artists in an exhibition called Rencontres Montreal-Toronto at the Bishop's-Champlain Art Gallery in Lennoxville. The idea behind the show is to explore the cultural clichés that differentiate the work of the two cities' artists. The gallery is open weekdays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Solstice d'été is an exhibition of greeting cards going on until Sunday at the Beaulne Museum in Coaticook. The show includes greeting cards from different eras as well as historical tidbits on the origin and evolution of the practice of sending greeting cards.

The new Arts Sutton Gallery has the work of Jean-Pierre Latour on display once again this weekend. The gallery, in case you haven't checked it out yet, is located in the old Ave Maria School (behind the Texaco station). Latour's medium is watercolor, and his work is "based on a theme of the still life in which he explores intimate spaces where the object is the unique actor," according to the gallery's press release.

The small but inviting Galerie Canard de Bois on Alexandre Street has works by Lotbiniere native Fernand Auger on display until Tuesday.

North Hatley's wildlife art gallery, Tayaut, is presenting a show of fly-tying and watercolors of fishing scenes by Paul and Maureen Bean until May 17. Through their work these two outdoors enthusiasts demonstrate affection for the sport, and the art, of fishing.

The Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-Est, the bank that thinks it's an art gallery (and we're glad it does) is exhibiting the abstract and semi-figurative work of Verdun artist Denis Martel till May 1. You can linger in the pleasant gallery any time during banking hours.

While students buckle down for their exams at the University of Sherbrooke, the Cultural Centre continues to exhibit a collection of acrylic paintings by Françoise Sullivan in the main hall. The show is called Cycles Crétois - II and it's made up of work inspired by a sojourn amid the Cretans.

The Denise Gallant Art Gallery in Orford (Cherry River) continues to boast bronze sculptures by Jean-Marie Laberge and etchings by Janine Leroux-Guillaume until Sunday. You'll find the gallery at 269 Bice Rd., and it's open 1 to 6 p.m. Thursday through Saturday.

As long as you're in the neighborhood, why not drop in at the Memphremagog Library on Merry Street N. in Magog to see an exhibition of paintings by Joyce Schweitzer Cochrane? Cochrane's Beloved Shores features scenes from just about all over the place — in Canada from Vancouver to Percé, as well as France and Greece.

Students in the Certificat d'expression artistique program at the University of Sherbrooke are showing their work today through Sunday at the Cultural Animation Centre on Kitchener Street. It's called Instant d'art, and is designed to let the students show off what they've learned in their studies of drawing, painting, three-dimensional work, art history and other aspects of creative endeavor.

The Sherbrooke Museum of Fine Arts raided the private collections of local art enthusiasts once again this year to produce Le musée de nos maisons, an exhibition opening tomorrow and continuing until June 8. Among the artists whose work is included are John Lyman, Adrien Hébert, Guy Bailey, Léon Bellefleur and Marcel Barbeau. The museum is located upstairs at 86 Wellington North.

For those who came to hear evangelist Marney Patterson during the recent Invitation to Live mission, and those who wish they had, there's an Invitation to Live Celebration Rally going on this Sunday at the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Frontenac Street in Sherbrooke that promises to capture at least some of the enthusiasm generated by Patterson's visit. This event will feature Rev. Peter MacAskill of Northlea Church in Chomedy as speaker and will have the same choir and French translator as the mission did. The service starts at 7:30 p.m., but before that (around 5 p.m.) young people in their teens and 20s are invited to a lasagna supper, followed by music led by drummer-turned-priest Nick Brotherwood and guitarist Dan Goddard.

In the coming up department, there's an exhibition of photographs by Dr. Robert Paulette planned for the Homestead Gallery in Lennoxville starting next Friday. The World Around You starts with a vernissage next Friday night from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. which is open to everyone.

Theatre

Denys Caron directs a student production of Normand Chaurette's Rêve, d'une nuit d'hôpital tonight and tomorrow night at the Salle Alfred Des Rochers at the College de Sherbrooke. This is a play based on the life of poet Emile Nelligan. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. and tickets are $2.50 for students and the unemployed, $5 for others.

The Montreal West Operatic Society is presenting the Gilbert and Sullivan classic, Iolanthe, at the Haskell Opera House in Rock Island May 2. You may remember the society from their production of The Mikado last year. There'll be two presentations, but it still might be wise to reserve a place. Just call (819) 876-2080 or 876-5553.

Artists from Montreal and Toronto are brought together in a show currently on at the Bishop's-Champlain Art Gallery. See Exhibitions/Events column.

RECORD/PERRY BEATON

Now here's one of those hard to classify items: a body-building contest. M. Province de Québec de l'Est will feature men and women flexing their muscles for the judges and spectators gathered at the U de S Cultural Centre this Saturday. Judging starts at 10 a.m. and goes on all day. The final round is at 7:30 p.m. Call the box office at (819) 821-7744 if you think this is your type of entertainment.

Movies

Some bad luck with the Merrill's Showplace Cinemas in Newport Vt. this week; I couldn't reach the offices, so you'll have to do my work for me, and call the tape machine for the movies playing there. The number is (802) 334-6830.

As for the Sherbrooke theatres, the Capitol is sticking with the supernatural thriller Angel Heart this week. Mickey Rourke is a private investigator hired by a mysterious client (Robert De Niro) to find a missing person. Along the way he gets tangled up with some Satanists deep in Louisiana and is leaves a strange trail of brutal murders wherever he goes. Does this mean he's being framed? I'm not telling, 'cause that'll spoil it all for you. I was impressed with the movie's riveting action and complex imagery, although the squalor and violence was a little hard to take in spots. Angel Heart is showing at 6:45 and 9 nightly, with a matinee Sunday at 1 p.m.

Across town at the Cinémas du Carrefour there are two English films this week. Project X starts teen idol Matthew Broderick as an air force recruit assigned to a special project involving chimps. This movie plays at 7:30 and 9:30 nightly, and on the weekend you can catch it at 12:45, 2:50, 5:10, 7:30 or 9:30. The other option, My Demon Lover, is new to me but fellow reporter Derek Conlon, (who obviously should be writing this column instead of me) informs me that it's a romantic comedy wherein Scott Valentine, who plays Mallory's boyfriend on TV's Family Ties, upon occasion turns into a demon, complete with claws, horns, tail and other "assorted devil-like features". When his girlfriend is kidnapped by a mad scientist, he uses his under-world powers to rescue her. Right. Anyways, the movie is showing at 7:10 and 9 nightly and Saturday and Sunday at 12:30, 2:10, 5:30, 7:10 and 9. Have a good time.

Now there's also the Cinema Princess in Cowansville, where the movies this week are the same as last: Burglar at 7:15 and Police Academy 4 at 9 p.m. Whoopi Goldberg plays a thief who is implicated in a murder when she tries to steal back jewellery belonging to a celebrity dentist in the early show, while the later one, if I really must tell you, is yet another in the endless sequence of nonsensical, and frankly, not very funny movies about a bunch of misfit law enforcement hopefuls.

Entertainment shorts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roy Orbison, whose hit songs include Only the Lonely and Pretty Woman, is re-recording his 24-year-old In Dreams, which was revived last year in the movie Blue Velvet.

Actor Dean Stockwell lip-synched the song during a nightmarish party scene in the critically acclaimed David Lynch film.

Orbison, 51 on Thursday, completed tracks for the record Monday at Ocean Way studios. Orbison publicist Sarah McMullin said Lynch is directing an In Dreams video.

NEW YORK (AP) — Talk show host Oprah Winfrey, blind pianist Valerie Capers, actress Marla Gibbs and three others have been honored by Essence magazine as black women who have made contributions to their profession and community.

Winfrey's direct approach on The Oprah Winfrey Show has helped the show become a runaway success, the magazine said in its May issue.

Capers has written classical and jazz compositions, conducted at Carnegie Hall and is a music professor at Bronx Community College.

Gibbs, who played the maid Florence on The Jeffersons and is now seen as Mary on 227, started an arts centre in Los Angeles for inner-city residents.

MOSCOW (AP) — Vladimir Feltsman, once a leading concert pianist, gave his first public concert in Moscow on Tuesday since he applied to emigrate eight years ago.

Asked after the performance in Tchaikovsky Hall how the concert came about, he said: "The manager of the hall just called me 10 days ago." About two-thirds of the 1,500 seats were filled.

Feltsman, 35, whose attempt to leave the country made him an outcast in the official music world, played to an appreciative audience that included many westerners and fellow Jews denied permission to leave the Soviet Union.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said Thursday that Feltsman's name was on a list of cases, all favorably resolved, that was given to U.S. State Secretary George Shultz during his visit earlier in the week.

NEW YORK (AP) — Hugh Brannum, who for 30 years played Mr. Green Jeans, the friendly farmer, handyman and unsucessful inventor on the Captain Kangaroo television show, has died at age 77.

Brannum died Sunday of cancer in East Stroudsburg, Pa., said Bob Keeshan, who played Captain Kangaroo on the children's show.

Brannum, a lanky six-footer who was nicknamed Lumpy, started in show business in 1929, playing bass fiddle at a small California radio station.

FIRST AID TIP

WOUNDS AND BLEEDING

- Direct Pressure to stop blood flow
- Elevation to reduce blood flow
- Rest to slow the circulation. Apply direct pressure with the hand over a dressing if available. If the dressing becomes blood-soaked, do not remove it; add another and continue pressure. When bleeding is controlled, maintain pressure and secure dressings with bandages. Maintain elevation and immobilze the injured limb.
