BRITISH CHEERFUL SPITE OF LOSSES AT NEUVE CHAPELLE

HEAVY TOLL OF LIFE IS MORE THAN COMPENSATED FOR BY THE GLORIOUS VICTORY—PLENTY OF GERMAN SOUVENIRS.

Frederick Palmer, who is at the front in France for The Associated Press, sends the following despatch: British Headquarters in France, March 27, via London, March 28—7.30 p.m.—While the world is eager for news, day after day may pass at the front with no news except a desultory artillery and rifle fire, which is the normal existence save when some supreme effort is made.

Next to having witnessed the battle of Neuve Chapelle the most interesting thing to a correspondent is a night spent in the new British line of works which defend that section of the shell-torn earth that the British won and hold against all German efforts at recovery.

Such a visit, made alone, without automobile or other accessories, proved to be no pastoral idyll of peaceful security. When a corps staff officer, who gave the correspondent permission to go, required him to sign a paper releasing the army authorities from any responsibility, one could only reply that he had used the crossing at Fifth Avenue and Forty-Second street at the rush hour without holding the Mayor of New York accountable, if run over.

The Germans were giving a shelling along the avenues of approach to the British line at the edge of the village; stray bullets cracked against the shattered village walls, and when the correspondent left their cover he was within 300 or 400 yards of the German breastworks.

British are Cheerful.

Yet the most cheerful spot where the British flag flies is here. It was worth enduring a sleepless night and plunging in mud in order to enter into the spirit of the soldiers, who had suffered such hard knocks and had at last seen the tide turn.

Though rumors come from London of complaint over the heavy cost of the victory, the officers or man at the front who takes that view is yet to be found. They know the situation and are prepared to pay the price which success requires. The point they make is that they have been able to make a gain without any heavier losses than the Germans, who yielded. "A lot of our fellows were killed," said a soldier, "but this time it was in pushing the Germans, instead of trying to hold them back. You can't realize, sir, unless you have been in it from Mons, how that bucks you up."

Wants Bath and Meal.

My host in the breastworks was a captain, who the previous day had received a shot through the arm, and, although officially reported wounded, remained in his mud-bespattered uniform on duty, with no bed except a rubber sheet laid on the ground. His relatives in England may worry about him but he does not worry about himself, although when the war is over he says he is certainly going to have one real bath and one good meal in London, no matter what the cost.

When it was noticed that he had no blankets in his dugout, the captain explained that the men's blankets were not up yet and he wanted to enjoy no luxury they lacked.

BATTLES FOR THE POSSESSION OF THE CARPATHIAN PASSES CONTINUE WITH VIOLENCE

The Only Fighting On A Large Scale Is Taking Place There—Russians Are Pushing Their Way Toward The Heads Of The Hungarian Railroads—Commanders In The West Are "Watchfully Waiting"—News From Dardanelles Is Scarce

London, March 28—The battles for the Carpathian passes continue with extreme violence, this being the only region where, for the moment, fighting on a large scale is taking place.

The Russians, who recently gained possession of Dukla Pass, are pushing their way toward Bartfeld on one side and Svidnik on the other, where, if they achieved their object, they would have in their possession the heads of the railroads running southward into Hungary.

The Russians are also carrying on offensive operations against Uzok Pass to the east, but at Tukholka Pass, still further to the east, they apparently are satisfied to withstand the Austro-German attacks against their very strong positions at Kozhouwka, which the Germans tried so often to capture.

Along the rest of the eastern front the battle is of a desultory character, which is doubtless due to the fact that the snow is melting under the warmth of the spring sun and the rivers are either open or are covered with such a thin coating of ice that they will not bear any weight.

In the west also the commanders are waiting for better conditions before making any effort on a large scale, although the French here and there are attempting to capture positions which would give them an advantage when the general offensive is decided upon. Their more recent efforts have been directed against the heights of the Meuse, to the east and south of Verdun, in which both they and the Germans claim to have made gains. The object of these operations is to compel the Germans to evacuate Mihiel, where their line reaches the river Meuse, causing a considerable bending of the French front.

To the general public more interesting are the operations in the Dardanelles, of which, however, nothing has been officially published for some days. It is presumed that the Allied fleet is waiting for the mine sweepers to complete their work before the attacks on the forts are renewed, and perhaps also for the arrival of reinforcements of ships, men and ammunition.

Upon the success of these operations depends not only the fate of Turkey, but probably the future policy of the Balkan States and Italy. In Italy big demonstrations were held today calling upon the government to take action to realize the ambitions of the country; while in the Balkan capitals the diplomats of the Allied nations are busily engaged in an endeavor to reorganize the Balkan League and insure the simultaneous intervention of all the Balkan powers on the side of the Allies. Before this can be done, Serbia must be induced to make concessions to Bulgaria in that part of Macedonia which fell to her after the last Balkan war.

The Germans are also active in Sofia and are trying to induce Bulgaria, by the cession of part of European Turkey, to remain neutral.

N. McDonald, March 14th. Next of kin, Dollina McDonald, No. 19 Graves Park, Storaway, Scotland.

Private William I. Willis, March 16th. Next of kin, Mrs. I. Willis, No. 25 Trevon Road, Portsmouth, Eng.

OFFICIAL WAR SUMMARY

FRENCH STATEMENT.

Paris, Mar. 28.—Via London, 3:40 p. m.—The French War Department today gave out the following statement:

"Belgian aviators have bombarded the German aviation camp at Ghisteltes (in west Flanders, 7 miles south-west of Bruges).

"To the east of the heights of the Meuse, near Marcheville, we captured 300 metres (100 yards) of the enemy's trenches and repulsed two counter attacks.

"At Les Epargnes we continued our progress of the previous day, winning 150 metres of trenches."

The following official statement was issued by the War Office last night:

"The day passed quietly all along the front, the enemy showing no activity. A German aeroplane, which had thrown a bomb in the region of Badonviller, was brought down by us. The pilot and observer were captured."

RUSSIAN STATEMENT.

Petrograd, Mar. 28.—via London.—The following supplementary official statement was issued tonight:

"The German press asserts that the garrison of Przemyśl did not exceed 25,000 men; that the supplies would have lasted a long time if the garrison had not been compelled to share its scanty rations with an enormous number of Russian prisoners captured during the course of sorties; that the fall of Przemyśl has no military importance and that the Russians have destroyed 300 towns and villages in Galicia, of which 250 were razed to the ground.

"All such assertions are malicious inventions. We captured at Przemyśl an army of about 125,000. Its detailed composition and the names of the leaders will be published immediately they are compiled. The Russians whom we liberated at Przemyśl numbered only 1,350, most of them wounded.

"The importance the enemy attached to Przemyśl may be judged by the innumerable sacrifices made in attempts to relieve the garrison, dating back to November. No town or village in Galicia was destroyed or razed."

GERMAN STATEMENT.

Berlin, Mar. 28.—(By wireless to Sayville).—The official statement given out today by the German army headquarters says:

"To the south-east of Verdun French attacks on the Meuse heights, near Combres, and in the Woivre plains, near Marcheville, were decided after stubborn fighting in favor of the Germans.

"On Hartmanns-Weilerkopf, in the Vosges mountains, only artillery duels took place yesterday.

"Russian charges in the Augustowo forest (near the East Prussian frontier) were repulsed.

"Between the Pissa and Omulew rivers (branches of the Narew river in northern Poland) several Russian attacks were made but they all broke down under the German fire.

time. While here he found time to run down to the Immigration Buildings and take a look at the troops there, besides attending to other military duties. He also went over the Military Hospital and the Ross Rifle Factory and the Arms and Ammunition inspection department where he was received by Lt.-Col. Greville Harston.

The forces of the Triple Entente powers are still arrayed at various places in heavy battles against the troops of the Teutonic allies. The latest official reports show that severe engagements are waging in northern France, northern Poland, in the Carpathian region and in the vicinity of the Black Sea in the Caucasus. Probably the hardest fighting is going on in the Carpathians and in west and central Poland, although an encounter of apparently no small proportions has taken place on the heights of the Meuse, in France, where the French War Office declares that about three hundred yards of trenches were taken from the Germans. Berlin, however, denies this allegation and asserts that the German arms were victorious here. Likewise Petrograd and Vienna are at variance with regard to who has had the upper hand in the Carpathians, both asserting that they have captured positions and large numbers of men. At one place Petrograd says the Russians destroyed three battalions of Austrians. In north and central Poland the fighting is characterized as stubborn, respectively west of the Niemen and in the vicinity of the rivers Skwa and Ormulew. A defeat of the Turks in the Black Sea region and a continuation of the forcing of the Ottoman troops back in the vicinity of the Tchouk is chronicled by Petrograd. There has been an attack by Allied aviators on the German aviation camp at Ghisteltes, Belgium, and a heavy bombardment has been heard coming from the Gulf of Saros. This latter operation probably was directed against the Turkish forts on the Gallipoli Peninsula. In the Dardanelles, except for a battleship throwing shells into batteries at Kild Bahr there has been nothing going on except the work of the mine sweepers. German submarines again are operating in the Irish Sea and it is believed that at least one more steamer has been sunk by them. Nothing startling has developed on the political side of the situation. Authoritative information in Rome is to the effect that Austria-Hungary has never opened direct negotiations with Italy concerning possible territorial cessations and that it is because of this that Italy continues her military preparations, not knowing what the future may bring her. The Italian Alpine troops of the 1883 category and the artillery and engineer reserve officers have been summoned to the colors. The Greek government in a statement declares that it is doing everything in its power to avoid possible dangers.

PRZEMYSKI! Quebec, March 27, 1915. To Editor of The Chronicle.

Dear Sir,—Some time ago in your paper you gave your readers the way to pronounce the word Przemysl.

As it was very hard to remember the same, I would be very much obliged if you would be kind enough to insert same again in your next edition.

Thanking you in anticipation, I remain, yours truly, L. GAUVREAU.

For at least a thousand years, the town just taken was Russian, and was called Peremyshl (pronounced Permishle). When taken by the Poles, it became Przemysl (pronounced pshemuh-sel). Now it goes back to the old form of Peremyshl, contracted in the current despatches to Przemysl.—Ed. Chronicle.

NAVAL ESTIMATES.

Hon Mr. Hazen Praises the Naval Graduates From Halifax.

(Special to the Chronicle)

Ottawa, March 27 — Parliament worked all day Saturday. They kept at it till midnight. The Nova Scotia members had the floor at night with the estimates of the Hon. J. D. Hazen, and only the intervention of the Sabbath stopped them talking. The naval service estimates were largely under consideration and during the course of their discussion Mr. Hazen made some interesting announcements. He gave an illuminating outline of the work of the naval branch of the service since the outbreak of the war. The chief announcement was that he did not expect to see Stefanon, the Canadian explorer who led the expedition to the Arctic two years ago alive again. It was possible but very improbable. He stated that the Canadian Government was doing everything possible to locate the missing explorer and his two companions who had been lost from the Karluk. Three government ships had instructions to set out early in the spring in search of the three men.

Mr. Hazen, during the course of the discussion of the estimates, paid a high tribute to the graduates of the Naval College at Halifax for their work on the Niobe and British warships. There were 28 in all, including 8 on the Berwick. The Minister made a feeling reference to the death of four midshipmen from Nova Scotia who went down with the Good Hope in the naval engagement of the Chilean Coast. He also told of the rush of candidates to enter the Naval College this spring.

The bill regarding the special war taxes was given a third reading and Hon. Frank Cochrane gave notice of a measure in regard to the operating of the Lake Superior branch of the N. T. R.

ITALIANS WOULD CHANGE FRONTIERS

FAVOR THE TAKING OF TRENTE, TRIESTE, ISTRIA AND DALMATIA.

Rome, March 28, via Paris—A large meeting was held here today by Italians who favor the taking of Trent, Trieste and Dalmatia. Forces of troops were present to prevent disorders.

A resolution was unanimously passed requesting the government to obtain "by arms, the frontiers of Italy." After the meeting the crowd attempted to reach the Austrian Embassy, but were charged by the troops and dispersed. Several arrests were made.

Among those in attendance were senators, deputies and aldermen and the representatives of over six thousand clubs and associations, some of the latter coming from other states.

The hall in which the meeting was held was decorated with the flags of Trent, Trieste, Istria and Dalmatia. Several orators made addresses, among them Signor Bersellai, a native of Trieste, who has been deputy for Rome for twenty-five years. He was greeted enthusiastically when he said the moment had arrived to take Trent, the key to northern Italy and Trieste, the door to the Adriatic.

General Ricciotti, Garibaldi, his wife and their son Peppino were greeted with rounds of applause when they entered the hall. There were cries of "long live Garibaldi," "long live France," and "down with Austria."

FRENCH ARE GAINING IN CHAMPAGNE COUNTRY

with each of the thirty men to be decorated and pinned the Cross or Medal upon his breast.

One of the men, Mathieu Jouy, had been sentinal at the entrance of a cut leading to the main line of trenches. He fired upon Germans creeping up to a surprise attack and killed six of them, but was wounded in the arm by a bayonet thrust of the seventh German, whom he killed, and was slashed on the head by the sabre of a German officer, whom he also killed. Jouy then retreated and let his comrades, who had been aroused by the shots, repel the attack. He thus won the Military Medal.

Georges Bastard was twice wounded in a night charge, but sang the Marseillaise to encourage his comrades, his clear tenor voice rising above the shots and the clanking of arms.

General Kisses Private.

General Joffre, after attaching the Military Medal to the breast of a youth, a private soldier whose name was not ascertained, put his arms around him and kissed him on both cheeks and then passed on. The boy remained strictly at "attention," but tears were slowly falling from his eyes when the touching ceremony ended.

Later, The Associated Press correspondent was presented to General Joffre. "You see how these men look," said the General, "after months of hard fighting and in what fine condition they are, though just from the trenches. Well, it would be the same after three weeks or three months or three years, until there is a definite result."

Men Look Hardy.

The men did look hardy and unflinching. They were bright-eyed and in a pleasant humor. They passed in review at a swinging step. Their uniforms, stained and worn by service, seemed clean, even smart-looking, by the manner of the men who carried them. The men looked strong with purpose—so different under the sombre skies with the heavy guns sounding remotely, from the brilliant summer parades of Vincennes or Longchamps.

The review finished with two regiments of cavalry passing at full gallop before General Joffre, thirty trumpets sounding in salute. General Joffre himself seemed in perfect health. He was very tranquil in bearing and smiled pleasantly in conversation. The men in the army are beginning to look upon him as the most eminent soldier France has had since Napoleon. Qualities most frequently attributed to him along the front are his will and judgment. The General's favorite chauffeur was driving him today. He is the Marquis de Auberger, a grandson of Louis Gabriel Sachet, Duc d'Auberger, one of Napoleon's Marshals.

Trench Life Sanitary.

Trench life, less in the Champagne country perhaps than on some other parts of the line, is singularly attractive. Comfortable is scarcely the word for it, but it is sanitary and the trenches are equipped with every necessity. The miles of trenches in the Rheims region are from four to five feet wide with board floors. The earth is shored up with planking and earth is piled upon the roofs so that the galleries are proof against fragments of bursting shells. They are not, however, proof against the direct impact of heavy projectiles. One of these fell today in a trench fifty yards from where the correspondent stood, wounding three men.

Rifles in Loopholes. Every man's rifle in his loophole. The soldier's name is in plain lettering on white cardboard beside his gun. Loophole observers are relieved frequently, so that their alertness will not be dulled. They either look through the loopholes with glasses or through the periscope of the aid of the periscope. When darkness comes on sentinels creep out beyond the trench, so that they may give the alarm of a night attack in ample time to the observers in the trenches, who might not otherwise perceive the approach of the adversary.

The men on this dangerous duty are relieved frequently so that their attention may always be kept keen, at various angles in order that all approaches to the trenches may be swept by cross-fires.

Underground Retreats.

There are underground retreats with many useful touches in them. There are folding tables, German bayonets set on cross pieces at the entrance for scraping the mud from the soles of shoes, a horizontal bar for exercise, games, newspapers and illustrated periodicals. Wires are laid everywhere. There are numerous telephone instruments. The General commanding a division on one part of the line remarked that he had two hundred miles of wire and one hundred instruments in his twenty miles of trenches.

Hiding the Guns.

The defences appear to be impenetrable, but the same system probably exists on the other side of the narrow zone, in the German trenches. Such works as the French are now demonstrating in the Champagne segment are only to be destroyed by an intense and prolonged shell fire. One finds behind the lines French light artillery which is constantly shifted, on improvised roads of the corduroy variety where the ground is soft. The guns are massed and distributed and then re-combined, according to the artillery General's comprehensive and somewhat complicated plan, so that the adversary may not locate the batteries, or, if they do so, that they will fire into vacant spaces or where dummy guns are placed. The guns are covered with pine branches so that aviators cannot discover them. Far behind these are the heavy pieces.

A Battery in Action.

The correspondent saw a battery in action. An officer was posted somewhere toward the front, whence he could observe accurately how the shells were bursting. He gave his instructions by telephone. These were received by a sergeant who called out in a penetrating voice the modifications of the range.

"Number four, one hundred metres to the right."

"Number one, fifty metres ahead."

This chanting, as it were, of ranges was audible a quarter of a mile away in all parts of the pine woods. It was followed in two or three seconds by a crash of the gun, the roar of a shell tearing through the air and the dull detonation of the projectile bursting five or six miles distant.

"Occasionally there was a German response. One shell dropped 250 yards away from where the correspondent stood, cutting through a tree trunk and scattering the earth from a deep hole it dug.

While the countryside is in this turmoil the farmers tend their vines or go on with their spring planting and the children play war games.

of the shooting and said that about 7.30 o'clock on Thursday evening the four men had entered the Sahayanez home and asked for beer, to which demand Mrs. Sahayanez had replied that there was none. She said that the men had entered the house quietly and bid those present good evening. On being refused drink, however, Bastriano, she said, had started to talk loudly and Sahayanez ordered them out of the house. Bastriano and Cula, she said, seemed to be slightly intoxicated and noisily insisted on having beer. Finally as they were about to leave, Mrs. Sahayanez held the door open for them and as they passed out one of the men stabbed Mrs. Sahayanez in the cheek with a knife. The witness did not see the stabbing but she led Mrs. Sahayanez to an adjoining room. By this time the men were in the stairway leading to the street and did not attempt to re-enter the room. The witness said that the Indian had rushed to his bedroom for the rifle before his wife had been stabbed, and when he heard her scream he fired down the stairs at the departing Italians. She said that he wanted to shoot the man who had started the trouble, and not Cula. She explained that the other three had had time to escape but Cula was the highest on the stairway when the shot was fired. The witness said that after firing one shot down the stairway Sahayanez had discharged a second shot into the street from the window. While the shooting was going on she was attending to Mrs. Sahayanez. She said that the two young boys who were present when the Italians entered had fled when the trouble started.

Rosie Smith said that after the shooting she left the house by the back way and ran to No. 4 Police Station where she related what had occurred and was held as a witness.

Francois Grenier.

Francois Grenier, a lad of 18 years, the brother of Mrs. Sahayanez, was then examined and said that he was at the home of Sahayanez with Henri Lachance on Thursday evening about 7.30 o'clock when the four Italians entered. Rosie Smith, Sahayanez and his wife were also present. According to the witness the victim was in the habit of going to the Sahayanez house. On entering, one of the Italians, Bastriano, asked to speak to the girl, Rosie Smith. The girl was in another room and the Indian went to get her. The witness said that when they returned the Italian made some remarks which displeased the Indian whereupon he told them that if they came to his house for that purpose they had better get out. At that point the Italian took off his coat and reached to his hip pocket saying: "You can't put me out." The Indian replied: "I will put you out," and without further discussion he went to another room for his rifle. The witness stated that on seeing Sahayanez going for the gun he knew that trouble was coming so he and his friend fled to the street. The witness did not see what Bastriano had in his pocket.

Henri Lachance.

Henri Lachance, who was in company with the Grenier lad, recounted about the same story. He said that on entering the Sahayanez home young Grenier remarked that the Indian and his wife were drunk, and said: "Come on, let us get out, when he is drunk he is nasty." The Italians arrived shortly afterwards, and as they came in one after the other the Indian asked how many they were.

which there appeared to be blood stains,—but he said that it was not blood but tobacco that had stained the knife.

Gabriel Santangelo.

The next witness was Gabriel Santangelo, another companion of the victim, and, while corroborating a large portion of Bastriano's evidence, he contradicted him on several important points. He stated that Thursday was a holiday at the works where he was employed and with one of his companions he had come to Quebec to see some friends who lived at St. Malo. After having spent the day at St. Malo all four were returning about 6.30 o'clock and on reaching the Palais, Bastriano asked them to stop at the Sahayanez house as he wanted to say something to the girl who was there. The girl, Rosie Smith, was in another room and Bastriano asked the Indian if he might see her.

Mrs. John Sahayanez.

The wife of Sahayanez, Marie Jeanne Grenier, was next called and told a story which differed from those of the other witnesses. She said that she was in her room when the Italians arrived. She said that the victim, Cula, came to her room and on her refusal of his propositions he struck her on the chest with his fist and then stabbed her twice. She called her husband who was on the fourth floor of the house and then fell unconscious only regaining her senses when she had reached the police station. She said that those who were in the kitchen must have seen the Italian entering her room. When she was struck she was in her bed. She affirmed that neither her husband nor herself had taken any liquor that day and she said that she had not gone out all day, but later admitted that she had gone out to get liquor for a Russian who had come to her home in the afternoon.

Genil Bastriano.

Genil Bastriano, who according to the evidence of the previous witnesses, had been the cause of the trouble was then called to testify. He is nineteen years of age and works at St. Malo. Last Thursday night, he said, he left in company with the victim who worked with him and they met two friends, all deciding to go to the Sahayanez house to have a drink. The witness said that they had gone there before and had secured liquor. When they asked for liquor, Bastriano said that the Indian replied: "You are Italians, get out," and then went for his gun. The witness said that both man and wife were intoxicated and could scarcely walk. On seeing the Indian go for his gun the witness and his companions fled, and it was then that he heard the rifle shot. The witness affirmed that he had not seen one of his companions enter the bedroom of the Indian's wife. They had not remained in the house more than five minutes, for the Indian ran for his gun almost as soon as they entered.

Bastriano said that he had seen Rosie Smith last year but did not know that she was at the Sahayanez house. The witness was then shown the things which were found on his person when he was arrested and he admitted that they belonged to him. Among the effects was a knife on which there appeared to be blood stains,—but he said that it was not blood but tobacco that had stained the knife.

Gabriel Santangelo.

The next witness was Gabriel Santangelo, another companion of the victim, and, while corroborating a large portion of Bastriano's evidence, he contradicted him on several important points. He stated that Thursday was a holiday at the works where he was employed and with one of his companions he had come to Quebec to see some friends who lived at St. Malo. After having spent the day at St. Malo all four were returning about 6.30 o'clock and on reaching the Palais, Bastriano asked them to stop at the Sahayanez house as he wanted to say something to the girl who was there. The girl, Rosie Smith, was in another room and Bastriano asked the Indian if he might see her.

The witness said that at this question the Indian got vexed, and told them to get out or he would kill them. The witness had turned to his companion who was near him and said: "We had better get out or we shall get into trouble." He saw Bastriano draw a knife and approach the Indian's wife. With his companion he ran down the stairs and then heard the first shot. He heard the second shot when he reached the street. The two other Italians had remained in the house when he and his companion had taken flight. They returned together to their camp at St. Romuald. The witness said that the Indian had gone for his rifle before Bastriano had drawn his knife. He did not see Bastriano strike the woman, but he heard her scream.

Giosl Dominico.

Giosl Dominico is the working companion of Gabriel Santangelo to whom the latter refers in his evidence. Dominico's testimony was about the same as that of his companion. On reaching the Sahayanez house the witness said they had asked for liquor but did not get any. Bastriano was speaking to the Smith girl when the witness saw the Indian appear with his rifle after having threatened that he would kill them if they did not get out. At most they had remained five minutes in the house. Seeing that the Indian was armed, the witness fled with Gabriel Santangelo and when going down the stairs, he heard the rifle shot. The witness had not seen a knife in the hands of Bastriano.

With the hearing of this testimony the inquiry was closed and after a few minutes deliberation the jury rendered the following verdict:

"Death from rupture of the heart as the result of the passage of a bullet, and that the said Sahayanez shall be held criminally responsible."

FRENCH ARE GAINING IN CHAMPAGNE COUNTRY

ELEVEN THOUSAND GERMAN DEAD ARE TAKEN FROM CAPTURED TRENCHES AFTER TWENTY DAYS OF SEVERE FIGHTING.

Chalons-sur-Marne, France, Mar. 28.—Eleven thousand German dead have been taken from the trenches won by the French during twenty days of fighting in the Champagne country.

It was in these counter assaults, supported by relatively inadequate artillery and what the French officers assert was inadequate morale, against the Allied troops that so many German soldiers have fallen.

For nearly a month now the French, their officers declare, by the superiority of their artillery of both large and small calibre and by a certain irresistible spirit, have, day by day, gained ground, sometimes a few hundred yards of trenches; on other days a mile of frontage and from three to five hundred yards deep.

The Germans are bringing up new contingents steadily. They have had in action on this seamount of the fighting lines during March five army corps, or about 200,000 men. Yet, on the evening of every day, the French officers assert that the French have held somewhat more of the field than they did the evening before.

The Associated Press correspondent has been over the ground and found that this is what has taken place: The French artillery, numerous and concentrated, at times subdues the German guns and tears up parts of the German trenches by sustained shell fire. Then, at a moment signalled by telephone, the guns cease and the men in the trenches, with reserves crowded into the approaches jump out and make a quick run for the trenches opposite. Then body to body fighting finishes the attack.

Meantime a barrier of hursting shells behind the German front line prevents reserves from coming up. This is continued until the captured trenches are put into condition to resist assaults. These assaults sometimes are unsuccessful, but the results from day to day apparently have been gains for the French.

The correspondent has been able to see for himself the ground gained by the French and to compare the positions occupied months ago with those held today. The French commanders, who find the courage and confidence of their troops mounting with each success, express the opinion that the Germans have been somewhat disheartened by feeling that French attacks are successful and that their counter attacks, delivered with admirable pluck, under the circumstances have been useless.

The French are employing such quantities of artillery, newly constructed and of heavy calibre, that they are able to combine and concentrate their fire in such a way as has not been seen before in this war. The French officers say their guns command the adversary's positions at any time or place.

During the twenty days advance in the Champagne region the French have used a million and one half projectiles against places occupied by the Germans. All along the front one heard narratives of deeds of individual soldiers and of officers. There was the incident of Vandal, a master gunner. He was badly wound-

Operation Decided On As Only Means of Relief

But the Writer of This Letter Resolved to Try Dr. Chase's Ointment First and Was Cured.

This is not an isolated case, for we frequently hear from people who have been cured of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment after physicians had told them nothing short of an operation could bring relief and cure.

Mr. Charles Beauvais, a respected citizen of St. John's, Que., writes: "For 14 years I suffered from chronic piles or hemorrhoids and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a well-known physician who could not help me, and my doctor decided on an operation as the only means of relief. However, I resolved to try Dr. Chase's Ointment first. The first box brought me great relief, and by the time I had used three boxes I was completely cured. This is why it gives me such great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to everybody suffering from hemorrhoids as a preparation of the greatest value."

SUBMARINE SINKS STEAMER VOSGES NEAR CORNWALL

Vessel Manoeuvred Cleverly and Escaped Torpedoes but Shells Got Her.

ENGINEER IS KILLED Raider Was of Latest Type and Used Her Guns With Disastrous Effect.

GALLIPOLI PENINSULA IS BEING HEAVILY BOMBARDED, SAYS TENEDOS DESPATCH.

London, March 28.—The steamer Vosges, which was sunk yesterday off the Cornish Coast, was sent to the bottom by the shell fire of a German submarine. When it became known last night that the vessel had been sunk there was no indication of the nature of the vessel that fired upon her.

It was learned today that the Vosges was under fire for over two hours. In addition to her chief engineer, who was killed, two officers and two members of the crew of the Vosges and a woman passenger were wounded.

Battle of Seamanship. Truro, England, March 29.—Two injured members of the crew of the steamer Vosges were brought to the hospital here last night. One is the senior officer, who had a bad wound in his side made by a fragment of a shrapnel shell. The other is the ship's boy, whose leg was torn by a piece of shell. The officer in relating the story of the attack on the steamer said:

"When some distance off Trevoze Head a submarine appeared on our starboard and signalled for us to halt. Our captain ignored this demand and ordered the engines of the Vosges pushed to their utmost. We soon found, however, that we were pitted against one of the latest types of German submarine with a speed superior to that of our vessel.

"It became a battle of seamanship. Our captain manoeuvred the Vosges cleverly and prevented the submarine from using her torpedoes, but we could not keep out of the range of the guns of the under-water boat. At times the submarine was within three hundred yards of us and she threw her shells with perfect aim and disastrous effect.

"One of her first shots hit us below the waterline and the Vosges began to take water badly. The crew, however, kept at their task, getting undreamed of speed from the engines. Then the chief engineer was killed in the engine room by a shell. The deck fittings of the steamer were torn to ribbons and two officers on the bridge were injured.

"Altogether twenty shells were fired at us. The last one tore a two-foot hole in our waterline, whereupon the captain decided to abandon the ship. We took to our boats as a patrol boat came to the rescue. Among the injured on board the Vosges was a Belgian woman passenger.

"The submarine was very large—almost the same length as the Vosges."

Raids Near Ireland. London, March 28, 11.30 p.m.—A German submarine has been active to the south of Ireland during the day. It is believed that the German sunk one steamer, the Falaba, a British vessel of 3,011 tons, as a distress signal was received from her saying that the crew was taking to the boats. The British steamer Dunedin, of 3,051 tons, which sailed from Newport News March 13 for Avonmouth, and the steamer Aquila also sent out distress signals to the effect that they were being chased by a submarine.

All the steamers were in the same neighborhood. A submarine was seen off Cape Clear shortly after noon today.

SIXTEEN THOUSAND SAW HOCKEY GAMES

PLAYERS RECEIVE SIXTY PER CENT. OF RECEIPTS, WINNERS GET BIG END.

Vancouver, B.C., March 28.—Although the official figures are not yet available for the world's championship hockey series receipts, it is semi-officially announced that over 16,000 spectators took in the three games. The players receive sixty per cent of the receipts, after $2,500 had been deducted for the Ottawa's travelling expenses, and the winners took the big end of this. Each member of the champion Vancouver team will get approximately $300 for his efforts in the big series, while the Ottawas will each draw down in the neighborhood of $200 for their work.

METHODIST PARSON WAS UNPATRIOTIC WHILE IN PULPIT

MINISTERIAL COURT IN MARITIME PROVINCES RECOMMENDS HIS REMOVAL.

Fredericton, N. B., March 28.—A Ministerial court composed of clergymen of the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island conference of the Methodist Church has found a member of the conference uttering unpatriotic sentiments from the pulpit, it was learned today. Rev. J. K. King, the minister in charge of the Nashwak Circuit, was accused of having used unpatriotic language in reference to the part of Great Britain and Canada in the war. The charge was upheld, and the court ordered the president of conference to admonish Rev. Mr. King and recommended that he be removed to another field.

ITALY CALLS OUT FRONTIER FORCES

ALPINE TROOPS ARE SUMMONED TO DEFEND THE MOUNTAIN PASSES.

Rome, Italy, March 28, via Paris.—All the Alpine troops of the first category, born in 1883, have been called to the colors by the Italian War Department for 45 days.

The official military journal also calls to the colors all artillery and engineer reserve officers for 60 days from April 16.

The Alpine troops are frontier forces organized especially to defend the mountain passes leading into Italy. This force consists of eight regiments (28 battalions) of Alpine infantry and two regiments of thirty-six mountain artillery batteries. In addition to these there are two regiments of heavy artillery of ten batteries each, one regiment of horse artillery of eight batteries and ten regiments of fortress artillery.

The engineers, whose reserve officers are to be called out April 16, are organized as six regiments, two of them consisting of pioneers, one of pontoon troops, one of telegraph troops, one of railway troops and one of sappers and miners. In times of peace the engineering branch of the army numbers about 12,000 officers and men.

The artillery arm of Italy's land forces consists of 263 batteries, 110 companies and 51 depots.

RUSSIAN BLACK SEA FLEET IS ACTIVE.

Petrograd, via London, Mar. 29.—6:22 a. m.—An official statement issued last night by the General Staff says: "The Black Sea fleet on Sunday bombarded the outside forts and batteries on the Bosphorus on both sides of the Straits. (The Bosphorus, so called also the Strait of Constantinople, is a narrow passage which connects the Black Sea with the Sea of Marmora. Constantinople stands on its west side at its outlet and partly on the Sea of Marmora. The Strait is 18 miles long.)

"According to observations made from ships and hydro-aeroplanes our shells fell with exactitude. Russian aviators flying above the Bosphorus batteries carried out reconnaissances and dropped bombs with success. A heavy artillery fire was directed at the aviators without success.

"The enemy's torpedo boats which tried to come out were driven back into the Strait by the fire of our guns.

"A large hostile ship which was trying to get into the Bosphorus from seaward was bombarded by us. She finally heeled over and blew up."

GERMAN CAPTAIN IN AMERICAN PORT MUST CHOOSE SOON

Time Allowed by Washington to Make Repairs to Vessel Has Nearly Expired.

WARSHIPS AWAIT HIM. Commander Must Soon Make Dash for Sea or Submit to Internment of Ship.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Not many more hours remain for the German merchant raiding cruiser Eithel Friedrich to hold her status in American refuge at Newport News.

While government officials still maintain secrecy as to the time given the vessel to make repairs, that time is known to be almost expired and Commander Max Thierichsen either must dash soon for the open sea, or submit to internment of his ship by off the Virginia Capes, it is declared, of the European war.

Although the prevalent opinion in official quarters here has been that Commander Thierichsen would force the government to intern the Prinz Eithel, the despatch of the battleship Alabama to Hampton Roads on neutrality duty has served to indicate that Navy Department officials may have reason to believe that the German warship will put to sea, and reports are current that the German government has given notice of such an intention. In view of the fact that British and French warships have been and now are believed to be waiting outside the three mile limit off the Virginia Capes, it is declared, the Washington authorities deem it essential to have means of enforcing neutrality within the waters of American jurisdiction.

PREMIER'S MOTHER UNCONSCIOUS NOW

WILHELM VISITS FRANCIS JOSEPH

REPORT SAYS HE INDUCED AGED RULER TO CEDE TERRITORY TO ITALY.

New York, March 29.—A special cable to the Tribune from Bern, says:

"A Swiss just returned from Vienna brings the news that the Kaiser, in strictest incognito, has been visiting Emperor Francis Joseph at the Schon brun Palace, and has succeeded in inducing the aged ruler to cede territory to Italy in return for her continued neutrality. Absolute silence on the subject is enjoined on the Austro-Hungarian press."

JURY HOLDS SAYAHANEZ CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE

INDIAN WILL BE ARRAIGNED IN THE POLICE COURT ON MURDER CHARGE THIS WEEK — BASTRIANO HAS BEEN LIBERATED.

John Sahayanez, the Indian, who shot and killed the Italian, Dominico Cula, in the house at No. 46 Henderson street, on Thursday evening last, was held criminally responsible by the coroner's jury at Moisan's morgue on Saturday afternoon and will be arraigned in the Police Court this week on the charge of murder.

The Indian with characteristic egotism, did not betray any emotion during the inquest. He apparently failed to appreciate the seriousness of his position, and when taken to the cells at the Parliament Buildings, he seemed to take it as a matter of course.

All the witnesses were liberated after the inquest with the exception of Rosie Smith, who was held as she will be required as principal witness when the preliminary investigation begins in the Police Court. She was not sent to goal, however, as it is difficult to keep her in the cells. She objects to being left alone and creates such a tempest that she was given into the hands of Chief McCarthy, of the Provincial Police, who will have her kept under surveillance.

Even the Italian Bastriano, was liberated, although he is alleged to have stabbed Mrs. Sahayanez. He might be held on the charge of assault, but only on a complaint from the Indian's wife and as she has made no such complaint he was given his freedom with the others.

There were not many new points brought out at the inquest, although it was clearly established that the man who had caused the trouble was Genil Bastriano, and not Dominico Cula, the man who was shot. Rosie Smith went so far as to say that she shot which killed Cula, was intended for Bastriano, and while several witnesses had either seen her reach for a knife or had seen it in his hand, none had actually seen him stab Mrs. Sahayanez, and she herself affirmed under oath that she had been stabbed by the victim, Cula, who had entered her room, although no other witness confirmed this statement.

All witnesses agreed that she and her husband were drunk, while she swore that neither of them had taken any liquor on the day of the crime and further asserted that she had not left the house all day. Later, however, she admitted that she had gone out in the afternoon to get liquor for a Russian who had come to her house.

Genil Bastriano, upon whom the knife was found when he was arrested, admitted that the knife was his, but said that the stains on the blade were caused by tobacco, not by blood. In one part of his testimony he affirmed that he was not aware that the Smith girl was at the home of Sahayanez, but the very next witness, Gabriel Santangelo, swore that they had gone to the Henderson street house at the request of Bastriano, who said that he wanted to speak to the girl who was there. A number of the other witnesses confirmed this inasmuch as they declared that the first thing Bastriano said on entering the Sahayanez apartments was to ask the Indian if he might see the Smith girl, who was not in the room at the time.

With the exception of the Italians, all the witnesses declare that the row was begun over overtures made by Bastriano to the Smith girl, which enraged the Indian, who ordered them out. The Italians said that the Indian went for his gun without provocation of that kind.

Deputy Coroner Bedard conducted the inquest in an able manner and the testimony was followed with keen interest by those present who included Crown Prosecutor Wm. H. Davidson, K.C., Mr. Alleen Taschereau, who will defend the prisoner; Detectives Walsh and Defoy, Chief McCarthy, of the Provincial Police, and many others.

The Inquest. After a jury had been selected composed of Louis Pelletier, J. Fortin, Antonio Picard, Ovide Bilodeau, P. T. Chartre and Gaudois Alaire, Deputy Coroner Bedard proceeded with the examination of the witnesses.

Sergt. Couture, of the City Police, was the first witness examined and his testimony was merely a repetition of the first story of the shooting as published in the Chronicle. He was watching the house in question in the interests of the Morality Squad on Thursday evening when a shot rang out on the third floor and immediately afterwards, Sahayanez, the Indian, appeared at the window and shot into the street. Sergt. Couture then recounted how he had gone to the station for his uniform and revolver, returning with Constable Mignault to find the body of the victim, Dominico Cula, at the foot of the stairs. He told how he had notified the Coroner and the City detectives and how, on the arrival of the latter, they had gone up to the third floor to find John Sahayanez and his wife, Marie Jeanne Grenier, in their bedroom, where they were taken in charge. He also noted that both were intoxicated and the woman had a gash on her left cheek from which blood was flowing. He also narrated how he had later arrested Rosie Smith on the sidewalk outside the house and had taken her to No. 4 Police Station to be held as a witness.

Identifies Body of Victim. The body of the victim, Dominico Cula, was then identified by his brother-in-law, Antonio Rock, of St. Malo, who testified that he had last seen his relative alive on Thursday evening about 6 o'clock. His first knowledge of the shooting was when the police came to his place about 8 o'clock. He admitted that he knew of the house at No. 46 Henderson street but said that he had never been there.

The evidence given by Sergt. Couture was corroborated by Constable Mignault, of No. 4 Station and by Detective Defoy who, however, added a new aspect to the knife play which had preceded the shooting. He identified a dangerous looking blade which he said was found on the person of Genil Bastriano when he was arrested at St. Sauveur on the night of the crime.

Dr. A. Marois, who performed the autopsy on the body of the victim, testified that the exterior examination showed two holes, 3.4 of an inch in diameter, on either side of the chest. It was quite obvious that they had been caused by the passage of a bullet. Other small cuts and bruises about the chin and knees had probably been caused by falling. The internal examination proved that the bullet had entered the body on the right side smashing the eighth rib and coming out through the seventh rib on the left side. In its passage the bullet had touched the liver, the heart and the envelope of the heart. There was a large quantity of blood in the organs which were all healthy.

HOW MAJOR GAULT GOT HIS WOUNDS

PRIVATE TELLS OF HIS BRAVERY IN RESCUING WOUNDED MAN.

Toronto, March 28.—"Our Major Gault rescued a wounded man in broad daylight with the bullets splashing the mud up all around him. Three times he went down, and each time I called out: 'He's hit sir!' The first two times he got up again, but the third time he got hit in the arm. Stretcher bearers came to his assistance after this, and even then the Germans shot at them. Major Gault is without doubt the bravest man in the regiment. I was one of the few privileged to see all this."

This is the account of the bravery and wounding of Major Gault of the Princess Patricia's in a letter from Private William Bowie to his family at No. 3 Strathcona Avenue, Riverside. Private Bowie is himself wounded now and in the Australian Hospital at Boulogne with a bullet wound in the arm.

The evidence given by Sergt. Couture was corroborated by Constable Mignault, of No. 4 Station and by Detective Defoy who, however, added a new aspect to the knife play which had preceded the shooting. He identified a dangerous looking blade which he said was found on the person of Genil Bastriano when he was arrested at St. Sauveur on the night of the crime.

Dr. A. Marois, who performed the autopsy on the body of the victim, testified that the exterior examination showed two holes, 3.4 of an inch in diameter, on either side of the chest. It was quite obvious that they had been caused by the passage of a bullet. Other small cuts and bruises about the chin and knees had probably been caused by falling. The internal examination proved that the bullet had entered the body on the right side smashing the eighth rib and coming out through the seventh rib on the left side. In its passage the bullet had touched the liver, the heart and the envelope of the heart. There was a large quantity of blood in the organs which were all healthy.

Mr. Hubert Moisan. Mr. Hubert Moisan, the undertaker, who took charge of the body after the crime was next called and produced a new 38 calibre revolver which had been taken from the body of the victim. All the chambers were loaded. He also produced the clothes and other effects including money and letters.

The examination of the clothes proved that they had been perforated by the bullet and a strange thing was that the bullet had also passed through both sleeves without, however, touching the victim's arms for they bore no wounds.

Rosie Smith Examined. The next witnesses heard was Rosie Smith, the woman who gave the police such material assistance in the apprehension of the three Italians who had entered the Sahayanez dwelling with the victim.

She stated that she had come here from Montreal and for two weeks past had been living in a room at No. 50 Henderson street but that she had taken her meals at the Sahayanez house. When she went there on Thursday about 5.30 p. m. for her evening meal she noticed that Mrs. Sahayanez was under the influence of liquor. She said that she had never spoken to Sahayanez until her recent return from Montreal, although she had known him by sight, previous to that time. She identified the three Italians, Genil Bastriano, Giosi Dominico and Gabriel Santangelo, who were with the victim at the time

QUEBEC, MARCH 29, 1915.

ENLARGING SENATE.

According to the British North America Act, commonly called the Act of Confederation, the Senate was to consist of 72 members—24 for the Province of Ontario, 24 for Quebec and 24 for the Maritime Provinces. The first increase in the membership of the Senate took place in 1871, when Manitoba and British Columbia, upon entering Confederation were awarded two and three seats respectively. In 1873 Prince Edward Island, upon entering Confederation, was given four members, the representations of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick being reduced to two Senators each. In 1882 Manitoba was given an additional member, and in 1892 another. In 1888 the Northwest Territories were given two Senators. In 1904 the representation of the Northwest Territories was increased to four. Upon the creation of the Province of Alberta and Saskatchewan in 1905, each was allotted four seats in the Senate. So the Senate at present consists of 87 members, as follows: Ontario, 24; Quebec, 24; Nova Scotia, 10; New Brunswick, 10; Prince Edward Island, 4; Manitoba, 6; Saskatchewan, 6; Alberta, 6; British Columbia, 6. It will be seen that the older parts of Canada remain as before, Ontario and Quebec having 24 Senators each, and the Maritime Provinces 24 between them. The increase in the West, where the four sixes make another 24.

Politically, the Senate now stands: Liberals, 49; Conservatives, 29; vacancies, 9. If the Senate were not enlarged, the filling of the vacancies would make the standing: Liberals, 49; Conservatives, 38, leaving a Liberal majority of 41. If there are to be 9 new Senators in the West, and these are appointed by the present Government, the standing will be Liberals, 49; Conservatives, 47—a Liberal majority of 2.

There is a way provided in the Constitution wherein the Government of the day, when the adverse majority is so slight, can acquire a majority in the Senate without waiting for the death of antagonistic members. According to the British North America Act, the Government, whenever it deems the occasion suitable, may increase the number of Senators by either three or six—that is to say, either one or two for each of the three divisions of older Canada. If Canada is to consist, in respect to the Senate, of four divisions, because of the addition of the West, it naturally follows that the balance could only be maintained by increasing the number to the extent of either one or two for each of all four. Hence, it is now proposed that the clause of the British North America Act providing for an emergency addition of either three or six members be altered so as to make the addition either four or eight.

The object of the founders of Constitution in providing for this arbitrary increase on sufficient occasion was doubtless to give to the Government of the day, to a very limited extent, the power possessed by the British Ministry of flooding the House of Lords to procure a favorable majority on some crucial question, thus avoiding a deadlock. If there had been only a Liberal majority of two in the Senate when the Borden naval bill was blocked, it would have been quite possible and proper for the Government to appoint three or six new Senators, thus turning the scale.

ONE BLESSING, AT LAST.

The supreme test of high velocity firearms, now being made on the other side, discloses some interesting facts. Most important of these is the obvious conclusion that, while the new rifles have greater killing power, they have rather less maiming power than the arms used in warfare for the last half century.

Proof of this is found in the statistical records of the hospital bureau of the allied armies. Only 4 1/2 per cent. of serious wounds in the limbs result in amputation, and this is inclusive of wounds from shell fire. The explanation is made that the slender, long-nosed bullet bores rather than shatters, and the patient frequently convalesces and is back on the firing line in a fortnight.

This unusual record is due in part to the wonderful advance in the science of field surgery and proper care of the wounded. In the French Academy of Medicine, Tuesday, Dr. Guepin offered unusual testimony concerning this phase of field work.

A soldier wounded by shell splinters in the left side of the head, developed abscesses. One-third of the left hemisphere of the brain was removed, yet none of the senses was affected nor was the reasoning power of the patient impaired. The patient is now convalescing.

Such remarkable efficiency in field surgery robs warfare of much of its horror.

ADVERTISING.

"Patriotism and Production," the watchword Hon. Martin Burrell set for Canada, is now being driven home to the Canadian people by newspaper advertising, the greatest force for publicity at the command of the world. Government advertising, apart from mere formal notices, is something comparatively new in Canada, but the government has already been satisfied of the efficacy of the daily newspaper medium.

It is noteworthy that the British government has spent vast sums of money in newspaper advertising in the past few months. Kitchener's new army of two million men was recruited largely as the result of advertising. When the need of the immense new forces was apparent, conscription was generally discussed and advocated, for no one, believed that volunteers in sufficient numbers could be enrolled by any other method. An experienced advertising man was given a free hand on the matter, however, and in a short time the newspapers were carrying full pages, announcing simply that "Your King and Country Need You." The campaign was an extended one and it was not long before recruits were being enrolled faster than the military authorities could take care of them.

Advertising was the force that created Kitchener's army, and advertising will be the force that will create a surplus of foodstuffs in Canada sufficient to feed that army and the countries of war-torn Europe.

A Chinaman writing an explanation of the cause of the war states Belgium's position admirably. Germany asked for the right to march her armies to France and Belgium replied: "I am a country; I am not a road."

Trenches have eyes just as well as submarines, and, although less elaborate, they are just as effective for the work required. Both owe their origin to a toy invented by Giovanni Battista della Porta, a Neapolitan savant living in the sixteenth century, which has come to be known as the 'camera obscura.' The principle of the camera obscura is that a ray of light travels in a straight line and bears with it the color of the object from which it is reflected. In noon-day at Naples, Battista had noticed that when the shades of his windows were drawn almost to the bottom objects passing in the street below were clearly depicted with all their colors upon the ceiling of his chamber, but in an inverted position. That gave him the idea. Later, by the means of lenses and mirrors, the rays of light bearing the images were magnified, transposed to their natural position, and diverted at will. This evolution of the camera obscura forms the periscope used in modern warfare—the eyes of the submarine and the eyes of the trenches.

PRESS COMMENT.

A story comes from England that Lord Desborough recently asked Lord Kitchener what uniform he thought the Citizens' Organization should wear if the Germans came. Kitchener replied that they had better wear whatever uniform they would best like to be buried in.—New York Post.

Modern, free Italy, the creation of Cavour, grew up in the sun of Great Britain and France. Great Britain early threw the arm of her world forces around the young Italian nation; Napoleon III, supplied important military aid at a time of crisis. That Italy is a nation is due in large measure of the diplomats of Great Britain and the soldiers of France.—Montreal Evening News.

When a man at Brinsley, England, was fined $1 the other day for kissing his wife in the street it recalled to mind the more severe punishment that would have been meted to him had he lived in the New England of the seventeenth century. Mrs. Earle, in her book on "Puritan New England," recalls the case of Capt. Kemble of Boston, who in 1656 was "set for two hours in the public stocks for his 'lewd and seemly behavior,' which consisted in 'kissing his wife publicly on the Sabbath Day, upon the doorstep of his house,' when he had just returned from an absence of three years." Attempts have been made in various parts of the world to prevent kissing. In Iceland the old-time laws were very severe in this respect. Banishment was the penalty for kissing another man's wife, with or without her consent, and the same punishment followed on kissing an unmarried woman against her will. Even when kissing had the recipient's sanction the penalty was a fine for each offence.—Chicago Herald.

Major General Hughes, when the necessity arose for Canadian contingents to participate in the Empire war, had under his charge the mobilization, training and equipment of those forces. When the first contingent arrived at Salisbury their equipment was so thorough that they gained for themselves the title of "the complete army." Despatches from the war zone indicate that contingent, in the fighting it has had to do, has met the fondest hopes of Canadians. It has borne itself well in the Empire's battle line and to Canada comes the credit. It now develops that in the equipment of the contingent Major General Hughes was responsible for saving hundreds of thousands of dollars to Canada by arranging that necessary articles should be quietly purchased through expert agencies, before unpatriotic dealers had an opportunity of jumping prices. In this way Canada secured many necessary articles at cheaper prices than Great Britain. In the equipment and organization of bodies of men, such as those Canada has sent or will send to the war zone and especially when such organization and equipment has to be effected hurriedly, there may exist minor causes for complaint but all will agree that Major General Hughes has satisfactorily accomplished a task well calculated to test any man. He has been confronted with a serious and an urgent duty and he has made good.—St. John Standard.

Pigeons are used by the warring nations of Europe in much the same fashion as the aeroplane for spying out positions of defense and the location of fortifications. They have long been used to deliver messages from one fort to another by means of microscopic films upon which the writing is so small that each message occupied a space about 1 inch square. The films are light in weight and so thin that several hundred can be rolled and placed within a quill which is fastened to the bird's wing. The pigeon has been used to photograph a "bird's-eye view" of the country while in flight by means of a camera strapped to its body. There are two types of cameras used for this work, single and double lens. The double or two-lens type is constructed with the focal axis of each lens about 90 degrees apart to insure a picture being taken by one of the lenses, should the bird be soaring in circles with its wings placed at an angle to the horizontal. The camera weighs only a few ounces, and, of course, the pictures are small, but when enlarged upon a screen disclose in excellent detail the country below. The automatic operating mechanism is so arranged that pictures can be taken at almost definitely known positions. When releasing the pigeon the aviator, knowing the speed of the bird's flight and his approximate positions, sets the mechanism to begin making exposures after a certain number of seconds have elapsed; the operation then continues at regular intervals until the twenty-five films in the camera have been exposed. With a flock of ten birds, several hundred photographs can be obtained in a few hours.—Chicago Herald.

SPECIAL WAR TAX ON MAIL MATTER

ONE CENT WAR STAMP WILL GO INTO EFFECT APRIL 15.

The new one cent war tax recently decided on by the Federal Government will go into effect on April 15th. On each letter and postcard mailed in Canada for delivery in Canada, the United States or Mexico and on each letter mailed in Canada destined for the United Kingdom and British Possessions the special war tax will be exacted.

This War Tax is to be prepaid by the senders by means of a War Stamp for sale by Postmasters and other postage stamp vendors.

Wherever possible, stamps on which the word "War Tax" have been printed should be used for prepayment of the War Tax, but should ordinary postage stamps be used for this purpose, they will be accepted.

This War Stamp or additional Stamp for war purposes should be affixed to the upper right hand portion of the address side of the envelope or post card, close to the regular postage so that it may be readily cancelled at the same time as the postage.

In the event of failure on the part of the sender through oversight or negligence to prepay the war tax on each letter or postcard above specified, such a letter or postcard will be sent immediately to the nearest Branch Dead Letter Office.

It is essential that postage on all classes of mail matter should be prepaid by means of ordinary postage stamps. The War Tax stamp will not be accepted in any case for the prepayment of postage.

SUDDEN DEATH IN LEGISLATIVE BUILDING.

A very sudden death occurred in the Provincial Legislative building on Saturday morning, the victim being Mr. Achille Bourget, Deputy Postmaster of the Legislative Assembly. Deceased, who was seventy years of age and resided at Levis, reached his office in apparently good health. Having occasion to go to the Speaker's Department he entered the elevator. Just as he reached the floor on which the Speaker's Department is situated, he suddenly collapsed and died. Mr. Bourget, who was an ex-Papal Zouave and a Chevalier, had been known to suffer considerably with bronchitis for some time past, and his untimely death is thought to be due in a measure to that malady.

MEMBER OF 23RD BATTALION WRITES

INTERESTING LETTER FROM QUEBEC BOY WITH COL. FISHER'S REGIMENT.

The following are extracts from a letter received from one of our Quebec Boys with the 23rd Battalion, now stationed in Shoreliffe, England:—
Dearest Mother:—

We arrived here having landed at Avonmouth Eng. at 12 (noon) Sunday March 7th, and left there for Shoreliffe at 5 P. M. arriving at 12 (midnight) and after getting a supper at 1 P. M. marched about 3 miles in the dark, and we certainly felt tired and hungry. We had for supper, tea, one roasted potato and some stew, so we did not do too badly. This is a most beautiful spot situated on the sea in South East England, and what I have seen of England I am delighted with, it is so fine, the green fields with the cattle grazing looks great, and the number of stations and the funny little trains which travel so fast are very interesting; the roadbed is so good that it makes travelling very enjoyable. We came over the Great Western Railway and, of course, only came third class, they say first class travel on these English roads is luxurious.

This is a great place near quite a few watering places, Folkestone being one of them and it is also quite near London.

I am sure you will be delighted to hear we are so pleasantly situated and feeling fine and I am sure we will be quite a few months training here before we go to France.

I trust you got the letters and cable I sent you and I am looking forward to getting mail from you very soon.

When we first arrived we lay for two and a half days in Queenstown Harbor, so had a glimpse of Ireland. When we got to Avonmouth, after crossing the Irish Sea, (a very dangerous zone), safely, we saw a ship loaded with troops for Egypt, they were the Royal Avonmouth Engineers, (Regulars). There are some of Kitchener's army training here but it is such a large place we may not come across them at all.

We went from the West coast of England to the East coast in six or seven hours and it takes the C. P. R. 7 days to go from Coast to Coast in Canada, but there is certainly quite a difference in the distances. The trains here travel at a great rate of speed, we went a mile a minute for quite a few miles on this trip through tunnels, etc., which were quite long. I am certainly having a great experience.

We had some snow this morning on parade, so Canada is not the only country where snow falls. On a route march we had this afternoon we went through a number of pretty little villages.

The weather is very changeable; today it is very raw but I am sure that later on we will get some fine weather and this certainly is an ideal place for training purposes. Our Camp too is quite comfortable and we are lucky in coming here instead of going to Salisbury Plains.

MAKE SURE YOUR NAME GETS THERE

AS ELECTORAL LISTS WILL CLOSE WEDNESDAY — THE TIME IS SHORT.

Is your name on the electoral list? If it is not, it is your duty to your country and yourself that it be inscribed without delay. Do it now. See to it today that you are among the list of voters. The revision of the Federal and Provincial electoral lists which has been going on for some time will close on Wednesday, the 31st instant, so you may see that the time is limited.

The recent changes in the Electoral Act accord practically universal adult suffrage; almost every man with an average revenue of at least ten dollars a month can vote.

Everybody should make sure that his name is on the list so that he may exercise his franchise and give his opinion on the important questions which are submitted to the country.

SPRING OPENING.

Messrs. Simons & Minguy are showing today their new Spring and Summer selection of Dry Goods. See their advertisement in another column.

ENTERTAINMENT.

The St. Matthew's Branch of the Ministering Children's League will give an entertainment on Wednesday evening and Thursday afternoon, April 13th and 14th. A very attractive program has been arranged.

HORSE KILLED IN STREET CAR COLLISION.

A valuable horse belonging to Ernest Dery, a farmer from Charlesbourg had a hipbone fractured by a street car in Limoilou on Saturday, and had to be destroyed. The animal was being driven along the car tracks on 4th Street, Limoilou, when the collision occurred. Dr. O. E. Moffet, veterinary surgeon, on examining the horse found that a hipbone had been fractured and immediately shot the animal.

DEATH OF J. A. LAROCHELLE.

After an illness of only eight days' duration, Mr. J. A. Arthur Larochelle expired quite unexpectedly at his home, No. 7 Church street, yesterday, from inflammation of the lungs. The late Mr. Larochelle, who had been employed at the dry goods house of F. Simard & Company, was a son-in-law of Mr. Germaine Lepine. His late wife, nee Miss Anna Marie Lepine, died some months ago. The late Mr. Larochelle is survived by one sister, Mother St. Matthew, of the Good Shepherd Convent, one brother, Mr. Arsene Larochelle, and an uncle, Mr. Nap. Brisson.

CONFIRMATION SERVICE AT TRINITY CHURCH.

Trinity Church was crowded last evening, when the Right Rev. Lennox Williams, Lord Bishop of Quebec, held one of his first confirmation services. His Lordship, in the course of his address to the candidates, said he had a deep interest in holding a service in Trinity, as his father held one of his first confirmation services as well as preaching one of his last sermons there. The candidates, eighteen in number, twelve boys and six girls, were presented to the Bishop by the Rector, Rev. A. R. Beverley. During the offertory Mrs. Oliver sang most sweetly the hymn "Hold Thou My Hand."

DEATH OF MR. L. LOTTIER.

The death occurred yesterday after a short illness of Mr. Lawrence Lottier, Superintendent of the Rock City Tobacco Co. Mr. Lottier, who was 63 years of age, took sick a few days ago but had apparently taken a turn for the better and seemed to be restored to health again. Unfortunately he suffered another attack yesterday and passed away despite all that medical science could do for him. Deceased leaves a widow, two boys and one girl to mourn their loss. The bereaved widow and children will receive much sympathy from their many friends in their sad affliction.

COURT OF SESSIONS.

In the Court of Sessions, before Judge Langelier, on Saturday, Albert Dube and Emile Chabot, charged with stealing an overcoat from one of the soldiers quartered in the Immigration Buildings, appeared for sentences. Dube pleaded guilty, and Chabot was found guilty of complicity in the theft. Both, owing to representations made to the Judge regarding the previous good conduct of the prisoners, were allowed out on suspended sentences.

Charles Caron alias Gagnon, a member of the 41st French-Canadian Battalion, accused of a serious criminal offence, was also before the Court. He pleaded not guilty, and was remanded to jail to await investigation.

BARTENDERS PLAY WONDERFUL HOCKEY

JIMMIE VAN DOLSON ELECTRIFIES THE CROWD WITH MARVELLOUS EXHIBITION.

The Uptown Bartenders and their Brothers-in-Bars from the Lower section of the city, played a hockey match at the Arena that will live long in the annals of hockey in Quebec.

Jimmie Van Dolson was the star performer and as a goal-tend hockey player, skater and comedian there is none to beat him in this wide world.

For the benefit of those fans to whom the fame of the hero of this piece has not been communicated and in order that they may appreciate his position thoroughly it will be well to give a little of his biography. He comes from a country which is doing its best to remain neutral, the U. S. A. and as his ancestors came from a land whose people are also striving to keep peace, Holland, it will be readily seen that Van is most peaceful and neutral. He is famous as a baseball pitcher, football star, and other games dear to the hearts of Americans but up till this famous game he had never donned a pair of skates. However, the keen eye of Geo. Belanger, the manager of the Uptown barkeepers, discerned hidden ability in the hockey line in Van and assigned him the role of goalkeeper.

Therefore, Van was duly sworn in and invested with the usual heavy armour worn by all first-class goalers, and to tell the truth, you'd really think he was a goalkeeper to look at him. Six husky bartenders from the uptown hoisted him over the side and lowered him onto the ice, finally placing him in the position between the posts so ably filled by "Paddy" Moran. Originality is one of Van's characteristics, and he was no sooner installed than he, finding the ice rather slippery, immediately dug out a couple of niches in the surface for standing room (Patent applied for). The Lower Town bunch were very bad shots and never shot where Van was, the result being that they scored twice by thus taking a mean advantage.

Manager Belanger took his place in the poles much to the disgust of the crowd, Belanger being continually in the road of the puck.

The game was played under the rules of the Pacific Coast League with a little Lacrosse, Association Football and Baseball thrown in. The off-side area was increased to the full distance between the two nets. The game started with six aside, but in the last period all the substitutes decided to take a hand in the proceedings, and the game finished twelve a side.

Geo. Belanger and Van Dolson both figured on the forward line in the last period, but Van was too fast for the rest of the bunch, and was generally coming back while the others were going. Just to show what a big mistake his manager made by taking him out of the net, Jimmy treated the crowd to an exhibition of goalkeeping during the intermission the like of which has never been perpetrated in this city before.

It was an extraordinary exhibition of hockey, and the Quebec Club management deserves condemnation for their evident shortsightedness by signing up players from outside the city when such a galaxy of stars is in our midst.

Oh! We almost forgot to say what the score was. The Lower town boys won by 6 to 3, according to official count, but who wants to know the score, anyway. We think the game was a frame-up because it looked pretty raw when Belanger took Van out of the nets at a critical time. T. Malone and Gaudiose Demers brought off some fine rushes and Bernier and Tremblay for the winners played great hockey, but scored far too often.

Dave Beland and Jimmy Walsh looked handsome as referees.

FEDERAL LEAGUE SCHEDULE COMPLETE

New York, March 28.—When the Federal League magnates finally adjourned their meeting late last Saturday it was announced that the schedule had been definitely completed. It probably will not be made public in its entirety, however, until the latter part of this week. The only additional date given out was that of the opening of the new park at Newark at which the first game, it was said, will be played April 16, between Newark and Baltimore.

Sporting Notes

That was some hockey match between the rival Barkeepers. Geo. Belanger is a wizard on the forward line with goalies' pads and a big stick.

Dave Beland stated after the game that it was the finest exhibition of hockey he ever saw. "I didn't have to bench a man" said Dave, "they all obeyed the rules implicitly." Of course nobody knows exactly what rules they were following out but they stuck to them whatever they were.

Jimmie Walsh remarked that he couldn't have seen a better snow at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Joe Malone says Quebec would have won the series easily from Wanderers if the accident to ruddy Moran had not occurred. "Line wanderers did not play great hockey by any means safe Joe, with ruddy in my best condition or even now that we could have beaten them. Frongers played a great game however."

Charlie Bisset of the Quebec Bowling Club rolled a nice game against the K. O. C. His total for the three strings was 600, the singles being 187, 200, 213.

Nationals won the championship of the Quebec Bowling Association.

Freddy Welsh seems to be in a class by himself in the boxing game. Ludwig was easy for him. Every time the Englishmen fights in the States, however, the newspapers give the Yankee boxer the shade. Welsh doesn't mind that but takes them all as they come and when it comes to a championship bout he will have to be a mighty clever boxer who expects to outdo him.

The Sons of Ireland and Laurentides will meet at the Arena tonight.

There seems to be a late revival of hockey and curling due to the cold weather.

manager Quinn "and they fired questions at us about Hall and the others."

"Where's Hall, Malone?" shouted one fellow to the Quebec captain, but Joe skated peacefully on.

Jack McDonald was particularly struck with the interest the public in New York manifests in the war. At 3 o'clock in the morning (S'sh!) the bulletin boards would be the center of a crowd, mostly German-Americans, excitedly discussing the situation.

"Nick Bawlf was the object of attention in one group" said Mac and was extolling the praises of King George to a bunch of Germans in such a vehement manner that we thought some one was going to start something." At every little group an outsider would be seen listening attentively and when the proper moment arrived he'd burst in with "you're away off etc." They're war mad down there," said McDonald.

above the line of the German breastworks rose from their camp fires, which were the counterpart of the British braziers, made by punching holes in any sort of bucket to be found. Around these, the men off duty gather to keep warm and fry their bacon and make their tea. Time sped rapidly as one moved from group to group to chat, every one keeping his head below the parapet to avoid German bullets.

Trenches Now Graves.

"We are standing on dead Germans," said one soldier. "We turned their trenches into graves—good trenches they were, too."

When the fusillade broke out in a distant part of our lines at the sign of some movement, the Germans in front of us burst into yells or derision, like the outcries from baseball fans when a mis-throw to first lets in a run. Later in the night these same Germans saw the same phantom in the darkness and began firing feverishly, when it became our turn to laugh.

"At a point where the trenches are only sixty yards apart, an English-speaking German asked when Kitchen's army was coming. "I want this war over," he declared loudly, "so I can go home."

"Don't get downhearted, my dear," Tommy Atkins called back. "You're already started and you'll know when the new army comes because you will be going faster than you want to."

At this point one could distinctly hear the Germans taking the commands of their officers and the driving of stakes, as they strengthened their works. German rifles, helmets, caps and bayonets were plentiful in the British breastwork; a souvenir hunter could have a helmet by going out in front for it.

In the moonlight, dark patches with points like bloodless human faces were visible on the field between the two forces whenever you went along the front. Under the light of the German flares they took the form of masses of prostrated bodies, and by daylight one could see the attitude of each as he fell, including that of a German soldier grasping an unexploded hand grenade.

Germans Courageous.

Across this field the Germans made their main charge to recover Neuve Chapelle. Not for want of courage they failed. The German official bulletin stated that the German losses at Neuve Chapelle were 6,000, but this could hardly include the known killed and 2,000 prisoners taken, without counting the wounded.

Though the Germans shout banding-age in their trenches, they have asked for no armistice to bury their dead, and on previous occasions when the British asked the privilege to bury the British dead it was refused. There fore the bodies remain. This shows how grim is the actuality, despite occasional sallies of wit. A breastwork jester takes care not to show his head when he makes his quip, lest a bullet make it his last.

It is shrewd, calculating war every moment from the parapet, and camp fire comradeship under the protection of the wall of sand bags which bullets cannot penetrate. There is plenty of admiration for the skill of the Germans as soldiers heard from both officers and men, but there is confidence also that the Germans have shot their bolt.

Coming to an Irish Regiment, an Irishman said:—"I have three brothers in the States, and I am going myself after the war. The Germans need a licking and when anybody needs a licking that's the place for Irish."

These Irishmen insisted that the correspondent have a cup of tea, and would not he try a slice of bacon which was sizzling in the pan while an occasional bullet zizzled over the parapet.

The wounded captain, my host, going beyond his own bailiwick, chatted with fellow officers about breast-work-making and other business details. They referred to this and that friend that had been killed since they last met, as if death were a familiar thing to all. Not one lauded war or found any glory in it, but all had no thought except to continue until victory had been won.

If I got a few yards ahead of my guide, I found how rare was the privilege to a civilian to be alone in that exclusive world. Some soldier instantly demanded to know who I was, and if there had been no one to identify me I should have been promptly apprehended and sent to headquarters under suspicion of being a spy.

It was after three o'clock in the morning when my host and myself lay down in his dugout but not to sleep; for there were many things to talk about. Twice, when the desultory firing became heavier on both sides, he went out to see what was the cause. "We have not settled down on this front yet" he said. "The Germans are pretty grouchy yet over their beating. Both sides began firing on the slightest alarm; they don't want to risk any night attack getting started."

Awake Every Night.

At dawn, as I said good-bye, I expressed regret to my host for having kept him awake all night. "Oh, no," he replied, "I stay awake always at night. My time for sleep is from eight until one. By day we can see the Germans if they try on any 'tricks'."

In leaving the lines by daylight care must be taken against the open spaces visible to the German sharpshooters, who may not make a miss the second time, if they do the first.

Power of Artillery.

To see Neuve Chapelle by daylight is to see the most fearful example of the power of modern artillery fire yet witnessed. No village is left—only hashed bricks and mortar, with the exception of half a dozen houses which were hit several times. After knocking the buildings to pieces the British shells kneaded and pulverized the remains.

Yet two objects stood practically unharmed amidst that low sky line of ruins—effigies of Christ on the Cross, of the type familiar to travelers in France. Eight shells had excavated enormous holes in either side of the base of one. While other trees in the town had been cut in two and splintered and gashed, four small evergreen shrubs around the other effigy had been undisturbed. Many soldiers remarked the curious phenomenon; indeed, the soldiers talked much of it.

In going over the ground one readily visualized how this battle, which has stiffened English confidence, had been fought. There was the remains of the old frontal and reserve trenches the Germans had occupied when the battle began with a burst of fire from a multitude of guns fired on signal.

One could realize how in the crash of explosions and the rending of earth there could be only insane confusion in the German trench which the British Infantry rushed; how that terrific blast of gunnery was carried on to the next defence and the infantry charged again to get possession of another few hundred yards of ground; how in the streets of the village parties of Germans surrendered and others desperately in the pandemonium tried to return and fire back.

Germans Surprised.

The Germans were taken utterly by surprise. Neuve Chapelle was slaughtered for them. The British, advancing into the town with little loss, suffered most of their casualties later when the mist did not let their guns support them and they tried to carry their advance beyond the present line of trenches.

Nothing in the war has been more satisfactory to the British army at the front than Neuve Chapelle. "It had given us confidence in our strength," say the officers, "tested our organization for the offensive tactics required in this kind of war, and demonstrated the power and precision of our artillery."

Fighting Aircraft.

As I was leaving Neuve Chapelle an aircraft gun began shelling a British aeroplane, which appeared over the German lines at a height of 6,000 feet. Firing wildly at first, it at length forced the plane to turn, and pursued by a string of shrapnel puffs against the blue sky, it disappeared above a fleecy cloud, only to turn around and re-appear once more over the German lines. Then one shell burst so near that the plane seemed to careen, but it managed to retreat successfully.

When bullets from one of the shells sent in its wake, fell about us, a Tommy Atkins who was present remarked with characteristic imperturbability. "You don't want to look up when those things fall, or you might get it in the eye." Proceeding along the road to bri-

THE LIGHTER SIDE.

A Russian private in Princess Pat's reported killed was called Mike Buck. Wonder what his real name was.

A March hare has every right to be mad.

So far as we are concerned, the substitution of Permyl for Przemysl is quite permissible.

Mike and Pat were two Irish friends—and Democrats. One day Mike learned that Pat had turned Socialist. This grieved and troubled Mike, who said:

"Pat, I don't understand this Socialism. What is it, now?"

"Well, it means dividing up your property equally," said Pat. "It's this way: If I had two million dollars I'd give you a million and keep a million for myself, see?"

"And if you had two farms, Pat, what would you do?"

"I'd divide up, Mike. I'd give you one and keep one."

"And if you had two pigs, Pat, would you share those, too?"

"Now Mike, you just go to the devil. You know I've got two pigs!"

Wife—Henry, I wish you would tell me why a barber's pole is red, white and blue. Is it patriotism?

Hub—Oh, not at all! you see, the red represents the blood he draws, the white the lather he uses, and the blue how he feels when he doesn't get a tip.

"What makes you think the baby is going to be a great politician?" asked the young mother in Quebec South.

"I'll tell you," answered the young father, confidently; "he can say more things that sound well and mean nothing at all than any kid I ever saw."

Why should the fact that a New York banker shot his wife while she was playing on the piano be called a mystery?

American papers say the coyote lops the coming successor of the fox trot. For our part, we think the Belgian hare leap would be more appropriate.

"I dreamt I had a dreadful fall last night," said the man from Belvedere as he sat down in the street car.

"Tell me of it," said his friend.

"My wife was talking; I hung on every word, and then, and then—"

"Yes, yes, and then?"

"Her voice broke!"

gade headquarters one was possessed by the thought that he had been near the heart of life at the British front. Nor among the impressions could one leave out the remark of a Frenchman about the wreckage of Neuve-Chapelle. "It was good," said he. "Because it means that we have recovered some of the soil of France from the enemy."

GOOD ENTRIES FOR RACES AT DETROIT

BLUE RIBBON RACING MEETING WILL SEE PLENTY OF COMPETITION.

Detroit, March 28.—An average of nearly 24 horses to the race, the largest the Detroit Driving Club has ever had, features the list of entries to the classics in the Blue Ribbon racing meeting here, July 26 to 31. Despite the fact that the Merchants and Manufacturers $10,000 stake has been lowered to the 208 class, there are already 28 horses entered in the event. The Chamber of Commerce $5,000 stake has been reduced from the 213 to the 207 and 26 horses are entered.

To Remove First Signs of Old Age

"The infallible first sign of age is the sagging cheek muscles," says Mme. Cavalieri, whose fame as a beauty culturist is scarcely less than that of a singer. "These are more difficult and serious to treat than wrinkles," she continues. "The sagging muscles indicate they have grown too weak to remain in place; they must be assisted, strengthened." The best way to strengthen them is by using a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This creates a freer circulation to the parts besides causing muscles and skin to contract. Saxolite, procurable at every drug store, has long been known by complexion specialists to possess remarkable tonic and astringent properties, valuable in treating flabby tissue and wrinkles.

Mrs. Newlywed says:

"I've heard of Eddy's indurated fibreware. What's the difference between fibre and woodenware?"

"Fibreware is made from compressed fibre, baked at extreme heat. All in one solid piece it cannot warp or fall apart. No chance of splinters—wears much longer—looks better—and is light to carry. The latter point you should always take into consideration," concludes Mrs. Wiseneighbour.

"A ROYAL IMPOSTER"

AT THE AUDITORIUM. "A Royal Imposter," the film in five parts that will be presented at the Auditorium during the three first days of the week is a drama of Royal life in a small principality. It is colored by the Electric Natural Color Process and was pronounced one of the most sensational films produced by that company.

The story is that of Prince Ludwig of Grania who is very wild and often away on sprees that would reflect no credit on the good name of the reigning family. He has a servant, Enrico, who so strongly resembles him that when he leaves the palace he dresses the servant as himself so that his absence will not be noticed. The servant is in love with a pretty peasant girl. On one of their walks, the servant makes a gash in his arm and with the blood writes on her scarf, "I love you till death." On one of his rides the Prince sees the girl, and at once desires to have her for his paramour. His advances are, however, repulsed. Being not used to having any of his wishes frustrated, he gives order to his grooms to kidnap the girl and bring her to his room in the palace. The deed is carried out, and the girl put in the Prince's room to wait his return. While she is there, Enrico enters. She tells him of her plight and he helps at once to escape. On the Prince's return Enrico upbraids him for his treatment of Valerie. A struggle takes place in which the Prince is killed. Just then news comes that the King is dead and the people are clamoring for a slight of their Prince. Enrico is in a quandary till he remembers the resemblance between himself and the Prince. He dresses himself in the Prince's uniform and, after having thrown the Prince's body in the river, he goes out and passes himself off as the Prince. The body of the Prince is washed up and found. Valerie identifies it as Enrico and tells the chief of police that she believes her lover has been killed for having helped her to escape. The chief of police tells the cabinet ministers of Valerie's suspicions and they decide that they cannot have a king or such a character ruling them.

At the end Valerie has to help her lover to escape in her turn, and in this she succeeds.

COMMERCIAL NEWS

NEW YORK MARKET.

New York, March 27.—One of the so-called "war specialties," Bethlehem Steel, furnished the sensation of today's active and broad market.

The rise was accelerated to a degree by hasty covering of the short interest, which had made that stock the object of its recent operations because of the reiterated statements from semi-official quarters that dividends were a matter of distant consideration.

General Motors also made another spectacular advance to the new high price of 120, a gain of eight points, but yielded part of its gain in the later dealings.

Chicago, March 27.—Grain quotations today were as follows:

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The Riel Rebellion.

Thirty years ago at this time, the Riel Rebellion was the leading topic of all newspaper comment. There was great excitement in Quebec last night, consequent upon the orders received at the Citadel for a detachment of "A" Battery to proceed immediately to the scene of the Northwest troubles. For more than 24 hours previously, men of the Battery had, in accordance with instructions from headquarters, remained in readiness to proceed to the frontier. During the night, Colonel Cotton received orders to despatch a detachment of 100 men, and another order for the mounted division to be forwarded with two guns and the necessary horses. Notwithstanding the late hour at which the orders were received, the Battery turned out at once, and all necessary preparations by midnight. The detachment marched down from the Citadel to the North-Shore Railway, fifteen minutes past midnight, headed by the Battery Band and accompanied by a large crowd of citizens, who loudly cheered them on the way. In fact the news had spread so quickly, even at the hour when most people have retired for the night, that the streets were lined with spectators. A large number of the officers and men of the 8th Royal Rifles, who had just been dismissed from drill, were on the ground in uniform. There were also present several officers of the Cavalry School Corps, Field Battery and the Ninth Battalion, all who lent willing hands to their comrades in arms. Quebec has witnessed nothing like this for a long time. Wives and sweethearts of the men accompanied to the station to bid them farewell. The officers in command are Captain Pe-

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO TODAY

Provincial Parliament.

At the opening of the Provincial Parliament at Quebec 100 years ago, Sir George Prevost, Governor-in-Chief, made the following address: Gentlemen, you will have learned with satisfaction of the renewal of amity between His Majesty's Government and that of the United States and which it may be permitted to us to hope, by its permanence, compensate for the evils of war. I have to inform you that I have received the commands of His Majesty to return to England for the purpose of repelling an attack or accusations, affecting my military character, which have been preferred against me by the late Naval Commander-in-Chief on the Lakes of Canada, and while I take my leave of you, with regret, I embrace with eagerness, the opportunity afforded me of justifying my reputation. However intent on the subject which so unexpectedly summons my attention, be assured, I shall bear with me a lively recollection of the firm support I have derived from you and I shall be gratified at an early period, in representing to His Majesty the zeal and loyalty, evinced by every class of his subjects in North America. The spirit and devotion manifested by the people of the Canadas, both the Upper and the Lower, in the late contest with the United States of America. I go to face the accusation against my military action before Plattsburg with the greatest confidence, knowing that I did right.

SIMPLY WONDERFUL FOR CHEST COLDS MAKES 'EM WELL OVER NIGHT

Nothing Half So Quick To Relieve and Cure as Good Old "Nerviline."

It sure is a bully fine thing to knock out a cold or bad cough. After once using Nerviline you'll swear by it for all time to come. You'll say it's more like a miracle than anything else to feel its warm soothing action upon your tight chest. You'll be amazed at the quick way it cured your cough and broke up your bad cold.

It's safe for even a child to rub on Nerviline. Although five times more powerful than most other liniments, yet Nerviline has never yet burned or blistered the tender skin of even a child. It's worth while to remember that wherever there is an ache or pain Nerviline will cure it. Try it on your sore muscles, on a stiff joint, on the worst possible case of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, or lumbago. These are ailments Nerviline is guaranteed to cure mighty quick. The mother of a large family can save heaps of work and worry, can cure little ills before they grow big, can keep the whole family well by always having Nerviline handy on the shelf. FOSTER BUSINESS WITHIN THE EMPIRE

PROPAGANDA IN FAVOR OF BRITISH TRADE WITH THE OVERSEAS DOMINIONS.

For some years past the Department of the British Government known as the Board of Trade, have made an active propaganda in favor of British trade with the Overseas Dominions, through a special Department known as the Commercial Intelligence Department. Trade commissioners have been appointed in all the principal Overseas Dominions, who are in constant communication with the London office, which office in turn is in close touch with the entire British manufacturing and export trade. In addition to Trade Commissioners located at the principal centre at each of the Overseas Dominions, the Commercial Intelligence Department have local correspondents in all of the larger cities and towns who are in constant communication with the Commissioner or with the Board of Trade, supplying accurate information on local conditions. Just at present this Department is very actively engaged in securing for British manufacturers as much as possible of the orders formerly placed with the nations with which the Empire is at present at war. With this object in view a number of exchange meetings of manufacturers and buyers have been held in London, and a large number of samples placed on exhibition. So far these meetings have dealt with the manufacturers of the following classes: Toys, fancy goods, cutlery and clocks, jewellery and haberdashers, Electrical apparatus and appliances, cotton piece goods, plain, printed and dyed, and other textiles, hardware, earthenware and glassware, electro-plate, household utensils of metal and wood, including brushes. As a result of these meetings a very valuable amount of information has been compiled, and several thousand samples have been placed on exhibition. Further a British Industries Fair has been organized by the Commercial Intelligence Branch, which is to be held in London from the 10th to 21st May. The information as well as the samples and Fair are open to bona fide buyers only, who can obtain information either from the Local Trade Commissioner or direct from the office of the Commercial Intelligence Branch, 32 Cheapside, London, E. C.

The organization of the Commercial Intelligence Branch is so complete and the information they have secured so valuable that importers should not fail to avail themselves freely of the facilities for obtaining full and accurate information in reference to any trade in which they are interested. This information will be given freely and promptly, and so save waste of time and energy on the part of the importers. In accordance with the practice that has been established, for H. M. Trade Commissioners in the British self-governing Dominions, to visit the United Kingdom from time to time, Mr. C. Hamilton Wicks, the Commissioner for Canada, is now in London interviewing and consulting manufacturers and merchants at the London office of the Board of Trade, and has been met by a large number of British manufacturers interested in Canadian trade, who are anxious to do all they possibly can to meet the wishes of the Canadian buyers and increase their shipments to Canada.
