CERTIFIED

TREE FARM

CANADIAN TREE FARM COMMITTEE

If you are out in the Franklin Centre area at anytime, it is possible you may see the sign pictured above posted at the farm of R. J. Blair, which is on a side road about one mile off Route 52. His farm has been designated a Tree Farm, No. 2-355 and is the first of its kind in this area of Quebec.

Mr. Blair has a 35 acre sugar bush—woodlot—in Hinchinbrook Township and four acres of this are covered by the certificate with which he has been issued by the Canadian Tree Farm Committee. Certain rules are set out on the certificate and he must comply with these rules to continue to hold the honor. The farm will continue with the merit as long as the owner, his heirs and assigns comply with the approved standards of Tree Farm Practice. This is a branch of the Canadian Forestry Association. The award was made on December 5th, 1959.

Mr. Blair has been interested in this type of farming for some years, but it was only recently that he applied for recognition which resulted in the above award. At the end of 1959, 730 Certified Tree Farms were listed in 7 provinces in cumulative records of the Canadian Forestry Association, the national sponsoring agency. The acreage, in excess of 490,000, has been developed since May, 1953. Mr. Blair's farm is the first so designated in this area and he is to be congratulated upon his effort.

Grant to advise him that His Excellency Maj.-Gen. Georges P. Yanier, D.S.O., M.C., C.D., Chief Scout of Canada, had been pleased to award Mr. Grant the Silver Acorn for unselfish and valued services to Scouting for many years.

Patrol Leader Kenny McClenaghan congratulates Mr. Grant on the award of the Silver Acorn.

Rotarians Shown Film Dealing With Contact Lens

Mr. Wm. U. Hughes delighted his fellow members of the Rotary Club with a film which was screened of the Oberg Laboratories Inc., of which he is vice-president.

Mr. Hughes came to Huntingdon, acquiring the farm of Gordon McLean. After acquiring the farm he started expanding its operation through renting another neighbour's land and then purchasing the late James Ruddock's farm. The farm investment has grown, as modern dairy barns and buildings were erected and a large herd of dairy cattle acquired.

Mr. Hughes interests have been varied, his first love in commerce being that of engineering. The organization of which he has been a part, have designed and supervised the construction of plants from the Atlantic to the Pacific in Canada and also in various parts of the United States.

Approximately twenty years ago Mr. Hughes participated in the engineering of work to be done for the Oberg Laboratories in New York. At that time he was named a director of the company and has remained on that board of directors ever since. At the present time he is vice-president and is in charge of the erection of new laboratories that have been built in Sarasota, Fla. The head office of the firm remains in New York. For many months Mr. Hughes has been travelling back and forth to Sarasota at three week intervals. The new laboratories are now in operation. The product of these laboratories is that of making contact lenses and artificial eyes for those who have had the misfortune to lose an eye.

The film screened on Monday presented a wonderful visual description of how contact lenses are manufactured out of plastic. Mr. Hughes wears contact lenses when doing work for a period of time. The lenses take a few weeks to become accustomed to and the patient wearing them is checked frequently by a doctor during this interval of time. Once this trial period is over, no more eye examinations other than the usual annual check-up, will be found necessary.

There are different types of contact lenses, those worn by the average person are about the size of the tip of your little finger. Those who are interested in athletics wear a different type, the lens being larger so that it cannot be washed away with either water or tears. Mr. Hughes stated that 18 professional hockey players wear this type of contact lens.

Mr. Hughes was asked what the cost would be for such lenses? The answer was that the average cost was $150 and this amount would cover the cost of the lenses, the doctor for his prescription and examinations essential when the customer is becoming accustomed to the wearing of the contact lenses.

Mr. Hughes said it was very important that a doctor do the prescribing and follow-up of the patient in wearing such lenses, as it is possible for some folks not being able to wear this type of lens without causing some trouble in some part of the anatomy.

Legion Curling Championship This Weekend

Highlighting the local scene this week-end, will be the Gooderham Worts and Canadian Legion Dominion Curling Championship play for the Provincial Championship. This will take place at the Huntingdon Curling Club rink on Friday and Saturday. Eight rinks will be participating, namely: Chateaugay, representing the local district of the Canadian Legion Branches: Quebec City; Seven Islands; Lacolle; St. Hubert; LaPute; Drummondville and Hudson.

These rinks are representative of some of the finest curlers in the Province, so competition will be very keen. The main prize is an all-expense paid trip to Summerside, P.E.I., to compete in the Dominion Finals. Play will commence at 4 p.m. on Friday, with the final and consolation games on Saturday morning at 10. The proceedings will be terminated with a dinner at the Legion Hall, on Fairview Road, where trophies will be presented to the winning contestants.

On this occasion, the Huntingdon Branch of the Canadian Legion will be honored by the presence of Provincial Commander, J. E. Struthers, Mayor of Stanstead, Que., District Commander, Bruce K. Haines and a representative of the sponsoring company of Gooderham Worts Ltd. It is hoped that a good number of the members of the local branch will be on hand to welcome their provincial comrades. This is an occasion rarely given to meet fellow members from outlying districts, to discuss problems, perhaps meet old friends, and find new ways of advancing Legion activities. It is also hoped that Huntingdon citizens generally will also be on hand to watch the games.

Bell Telephone Co. Reports Further Progress For 1959

The expansion of telephone facilities in Huntingdon during 1959 was typical of the situation across the territory served by The Bell Telephone Company of Canada. It was revealed in that company's 80th annual report issued this week. Last year's telephone construction program of $196 million was the largest in the company's history, the report states, and 190,529 telephones were added to those in service.

On the local scene, some 75 telephones were added, J. L. Rivest, Bell manager for this region, said, bringing the total to 2,450 as of December 31.

According to the report, net income totalled $50,283,578 for last year, $11,384,289 higher than in 1958. Earnings per share amounted to $2.43 or 33 cents higher than in the previous year. The quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share was increased to 55 cents for the final quarter and surplus was increased by $9,107,345.

"Greater customer use of our services was accompanied in 1959 by an improvement in our earnings," Thomas W. Eadie, president, emphasized in the report.

"Revenues increased by 14.5 per cent, due mainly to greater use of our services. With concerted efforts to improve productivity, we were able to limit the increase in operating costs to only seven per cent, a smaller rise than during any other year in the post-war period."

Colored telephones installed during the year totalled 130,343. The increase in demand for these telephones and economies in production, enabled the company to reduce the "one time" charge for color from $12 to $9.

New buildings, or extensions, were built to provide space for additional equipment in 97 communities, the report states.

"Among our new exchanges was one in the far North of Canada, at Prosher Bay on Baffin Island."

In the last ten years the number of shareholders has increased from 59,600 to 170,900. Some 97.5 per cent of the company's shareholders reside in Canada, and they hold 92 per cent of the stock. Shares held by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company now represent 3.6 per cent of the total stock.

The number of employees declined by 2,163 to 37,158. Wages and salaries totalled $155,155,297. Taxes totalled $59,062,000, or $17,062,000 more than in 1958.

A new Canadian record of $4,309.20 per pound was obtained by Auctioneer H. P. Higgins, of Huntingdon, at the 8th National Salon of Agriculture in Montreal on Wednesday evening. A 1,026 pound Aberdeen Angus steer, raised by Arthur Larente, 20 year-old settler from Lac St. Paul, Labelle County, was bought by A. Dionne & Co. for a record price of $4,309.20. The last Canadian record was made by Auctioneer Higgins in 1957, when $4.00 per pound was obtained. Fifty head were sold, weighing 42,864 pounds, for a total of $23,708.08. The average price was 55 cents per pound. Famous hockey player, Butch Bouchard, paid 41 cents per pound for a 276 pound steer. The champion lamb sold for $5.20 per pound. The Show Mart was packed to capacity for the sale and there were a number of people from the Huntingdon area. The top photograph shows the top priced animal and from left to right: Hon. J. D. Begin, Minister of Colonization; Mr. A. Dionne, the Organic Soils And Minor Elements Ottawa. - Most organic soils need supplementing from time to time with minor elements, according to J. J. Jaminin of the Canada Department of Agriculture.

Tests at the Organic Soil Substation, Ste. Clothilde de Chateauguay, Quebec have shown cases of deficiency of boron, copper, zinc, magnesium and sulphur on newly reclaimed peat bogs.

Minor elements are needed only in very small quantities but the absence of any one, causes plants to cease growth or show distinctive symptoms of deficiency.

Without boron, celery petioles crack and rutabaga roots develop a brown center. Lack of copper causes a pale coloration of onions and carrots. Without zinc, onions leaves curl like goats' horns and corn grows short with pale streaks on the leaves. Without manganese, the foliage of plants become mottled, with light-yellow areas between dark green veins; symptoms of magnesium deficiency are similar.

Molybdenum shortage causes cauliflowers to develop "whiptail", i.e. very narrow leaves that are at least partly discolored.

Mr. Jaminin advises growers on organic soils to have a few test plots where plants sensitive to deficiencies of the minor elements can be grown as indicators. This, he says, is especially important a year or so before a new crop is grown as it could be the means of avoiding a crop failure.

Princess Margaret's Engagement Meets With Popular Approval

Princess Margaret is wearing an engagement ring, a ruby surrounded by diamonds, and she appeared very happy as she admired it at the royal lodge at Windsor last weekend with the dashing young man she will marry — society photographer Anthony Armstrong-Jones.

Heads close together, the couple — both are 29 — strolled in the gardens at Windsor where the groom-to-be was a guest of Queen Mother Elizabeth, who happily announced the betrothal of her youngest daughter on February 28.

The secret had been carefully kept by the royal family. Gossip columnists who have been linking Margaret's name with various eligible bachelors, recalled they should have suspected something when Armstrong-Jones appeared in unaccustomed white tie and tails last May to join the princess in a box at the American musical comedy, "West Side Story", in the first of their rare public appearances together.

Armstrong-Jones favors a black suede jacket and denim trousers in his work as a photographer. His one-man shows have leaned more heavily on slum district figures than on high society portraiture.

Date Not Set
The date of the wedding has not yet been announced. It is considered likely that the Queen will confer a title on her future brother-in-law before the wedding, as she did with the Duke of Edinburgh, who was Lieut. Philip Mountbatten when they became engaged.

Marriage to a commoner does not affect Princess Margaret's ranking in the succession to the throne. She follows the Queen, Prince Charles, the newly-born prince and Princess Anne. Margaret's descendants take precedence over those of the Queen's uncle, the Duke of Gloucester.

Princess Margaret also continues as second behind Prince Philip, in the event of regency for the Queen's children.

coastal Gaza strip, where the United Nations Emergency Force, including Canadian troops, maintains the peace.

Pipelines Future
Transportation is the key to getting Canadian resources to world markets at competitive prices, and pipelines have a major role to play in this, particularly in the Canadian north.

This was the declaration of Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton in an address to the annual convention of the Pipeline Contractors Association of Canada at Victoria last Saturday.

He raised visions of long-haul Canadian pipelines carrying pulp, wheat, oil, coal and other minerals. Many solids now are being successfully moved over short distances by pipeline, he said, including coal, ore concentrates, wood pulp, sand and limestone.

Canada's oil pipelines totalled 7,500 miles last year compared with 1,400 in 1956, he noted.

Dutch Settlers Are Big Asset In P.E.I. Life

CHARLOTTETOWN, (CP) — Officials here are considering settling some both happy and successful.

Most of the settlers are farmers, but whatever their occupation they have shown imagination to encourage a further inflow of immigrants from Holland, the Dutch who are already distinguished by industry and ability.

A typical settler is Cornelius Boelhouwer, who works in a factory during the day and looks after his own farm early and late. "It's a long day for me," he said, "but I don't mind hard work as long as I can get ahead."

Cornelius Pater, a native of Venendaal, arrived here in 1952 with his family of eight and $100 in his pocket. After two years he too bought his own farm.

"Ideal Place"
I guess Prince Edward Island is the best place for farmers in Canada," he says. "The soil here is lovely, much better than in Holland, and I think this is the ideal place for young farmers."

Another Netherlander planning to buy his own farm is Tony Indewey, from Eist, who says: "I planned to come to Canada for many years and I see there is plenty of opportunity for farmers here. A lot of young Hollanders are now working in Upper Canada and saving their money so they can buy farms here."

The industrious attitude of Dutch people here was spotlighted by Tony Enserink, who says that none of his compatriots ever have to draw unemployment insurance. Mr. Enserink is working in a supermarket and hopes eventually to own his own store in the country.

Another young Dutchman, Tieleman Erkelens, is a chef in the Prince Edward Island Hospital and partner in a snack bar in the city. He is aiming at establishing his own restaurant in Charlottetown.

LOST ON BEACH
UCLUELET, B.C. (CP) — A late-model car was lost to the sands of Long Beach here recently, the 12th such loss in six years. When driven too close to the water's edge they stalled and could not be towed out.

RARE COMPANIONS
BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Pete, a 10-pound jack rabbit, and Red, a hunting dog, have long slept in the same place at a home here but the rabbit has got tired of being pushed around. He now will lash out with his paws at the dog.

Covering the Sports

Nineteen years ago little Anne Heggtveit of Ottawa strapped on a pair of skis. She was two then, and it was the beginning of one of the most brilliant careers in the sport.

Anne has scored an unprecedented triple slam in women's Olympic and world alpine skiing for Canada, its greatest honors ever in the international sports specialty.

She capped her great international record at the Winter Olympics in Squaw Valley, Calif., by winning the Olympic slalom championship. The victory gave her enough points to clinch the world slalom titles. In all, she got three gold medals — the Olympic and two from the International Ski Federation.

No Canadian had ever done that although another skiing star, Lucile Wheeler of St. Jovite, Que., won the world downhill in 1958 and finished second in the world combined.

Top Woman Athlete
Anne, a tousle-haired blonde, had carried Canada's Olympic hopes on the basis of her record in European competition last year that won her the award of Canada's top woman athlete of 1959 in a Canadian Press poll. But she topped out of the top 10 in the downhill and slalom earlier in the games, ending up 12th each time.

She won the slalom with two amazing runs. The event consisted of two runs down two different courses. Both had 53 tightly-placed gates over the equal distances of 1,575 feet, dropping 610 feet in altitude.

Anne brought down the first course in 54 seconds; the second in 55.6 seconds.

Miss Heggtveit, who stands five-foot-five and weighs 115 pounds, said she thought defeats she took in Europe helped her in the Olympic slalom.

"You can't train away from the tops in the world and expect to beat them," she said. "You've got to work and work, and be beaten and beaten again, to get the experience necessary to compete with skiers of other nations."

"Beatings are tough to take. I guess you've got to get hardened to them. I did and today makes up for all those losses."

Anne's father, Halvor Heggtveit, an official of the Bank of Canada in Ottawa, says it's too soon to tell how his daughter feels about the future. But he hopes she will not make skiing a career.

"I'd love her to quit," he says. "Both for my nervous energy and the expense."

Mink Bride
Female thoroughbreds, like human females, love mink. Better Venture is the filly in question. She raced for Toronto broadcaster Byng Whittaker. He ordered a mink-lined bride for the racehorse, and Better Venture promptly went off on a winning streak.

She was soon claimed. Trainer Frank Merrill kept the mink outfit and intends to try it on other fillies.

"It's probably the dearest bride anywhere," says the trainer. "I think it may give some of my fillies a feeling of superiority. Psychology — especially with female horses — is important. You have to let them know you're doing everything you can for them."

New Polio Vaccine May Provide Long-Distance Immunity
The Reader's Digest reports that a new polio vaccine, developed by Mr. Herald Cox of Lederle Laboratories, uses a weakened live polio virus instead of the killed virus presently utilized by Salk vaccine.

The new vaccine is taken by mouth, in a single cherry-flavored dose. It costs less than killed-virus treatment and is effective against all three types of polio. It has been subjected to far more extensive tests than any other vaccine yet made available for general use.

To test the safety aspects, the first dose was taken by Dr. Cox himself in 1950.

One advantage of the Cox vaccine is that immediately after it is taken, it apparently starts immunity in the alimentary canal where, it is believed, polio begins after entering the mouth. Thus it blocks subsequent invading virus from getting into the blood and the nervous system. And, since virulent polio goes from one human being to another only by way of intestinal excretion, the intestinal immunity given by the Cox vaccine prevents its transmission.

Authorities urge that the Salk immunization programme be vigorously continued until the Cox vaccine is in widespread use. American experts say it should be available this year.

STARTING FIRMLY
KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Ald. Anna Hughes, presiding at her first session of Waterloo's finance committee, set down rules for committee members including attendance 15 minutes before meetings are scheduled to start. She also asked to be addressed as "Mr. Chairman."

REDUCE CATTLE
KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Bad weather last fall prevented harvesting of thousands of tons of hay in this area and heavy sales of cattle have resulted. Some herds have been reduced to the minimum.

FARM YIELD
EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's 1959 field crops production was valued at $349,000,000 in a preliminary estimate. The corresponding estimate for 1958 was $380,000,000 lower.

Post Office Department Tightens Regulations On "Householder" Mail

New regulations designed to control the acceptance of unaddressed "householder" advertising mail were announced by the Honourable William Hamilton, Postmaster General. Under the regulations, which go into effect June 1st, 1960, householder matter must be folded to a size of 4 1/2 x 12 inches. The inclusion of samples and advertising novelties will be prohibited in this class of mail. The regulations will also extend the delivery period for such advertising matter and increase the postage rates on larger items.

Under the changes announced today, large bulky "flyers" and broadsheets will not be accepted unless folded to the required size. The system will be restricted to printed matter; that is, to matter on paper, parchment or cardboard. Merchandise, including samples and other advertising novelties which are bulky and hard to handle, will be excluded. The four-day period previously allowed for delivery of householder mail will be extended to seven days. In other words the Postmaster General said, householder matter will be accepted only on the understanding that delivery may not be completed in less than seven days.

created by improved educational facilities and technological changes, labour-saving houses, full employment, the demand for a higher standard of living in the home which can be met by the wife going to work, and the changing attitude to women's place in a highly industrialized society.

The following approximate figures give some indication of women's contribution in different fields:

- 1 in every 3 of the workers in the manufacturing industries is a woman;
- 1 in every 9 agricultural workers is a woman;
- 1 in every 7 of the workers in transport and communication is a woman;
- 1 in every 4 persons employed in the Civil Service and local government services is a woman.

A woman is paid the same salary as a man for doing the same work in medicine, dentistry, physiotherapy, radiotherapy, university teaching, journalism and broadcasting, and as a Minister of the Crown, a member of Parliament, a salaried magistrate, solicitor or architect, a pharmacist working in a hospital, or a member of the administrative, professional or technical classes in local government service. Men and women engaged in fee-earning professions make the same charges.

By 1961 equal pay will also be the rule in the Civil Service, the teaching profession (in schools) and the general, clerical and shorthand-typist classes in local government service, since, in that year, the schemes (announced in 1955) for the progressive increases in the salary scales of women in these occupations to bring them into parity with those of men will have become fully effective. Similar schemes have also been initiated for certain other salaried workers, including the staffs of the National Health Service, of the electricity and gas authorities, and of the British Transport Commission, and outside the public service women's salaries are being adjusted in the same way.

The Trades Union Congress has long supported the principle of equal pay for equal work in the industrial field, but believes that it should be achieved through the ordinary process of negotiation and not by Government fiat. The principle is supported by most trade unions and is written into wage agreements in various industries. In practice, however, women in industry are

Women At Work In Britain

Britain's social scene has changed in many ways during the past 20 years, and not least in the way women have come to form an increasing proportion of the labour force. Out of a total of about 23 million — 48 per cent of the total population — in civil employment, one-third or 7 1/2 million are women.

Most marked is the increasing tendency for married women to take a job. Between mid-1948 and mid-1958 the total number of employees increased by 1 1/2 million; of this number, 800,000 were women, representing an increase of 12 per cent in the employment of women compared with one of 5 per cent for men. This increase in the number of women at work is accounted for almost entirely by married women. There are a number of reasons for this trend: e.g. new opportunities for women workers to a large extent employed in different occupations from men and, even where they are similarly employed, it is sometimes difficult to establish to the satisfaction of employers that they have exactly the same responsibilities. Complete parity of remuneration is still therefore relatively rare.

Standing Of A Farmer

In his book "The Status Seekers", Vance Packard reports some interesting facts about man's opinions of his fellows. On page 109 of this book, he reports that the National Opinion Research Centre took a nation-wide sample of opinions which involved some 2,920-people, each asked to grade ninety accepted occupations as to their general standing in

to a large extent employed in different occupations from men and, even where they are similarly employed, it is sometimes difficult to establish to the satisfaction of employers that they have exactly the same responsibilities. Complete parity of remuneration is still therefore relatively rare.

Standing Of A Farmer

In his book "The Status Seekers", Vance Packard reports some interesting facts about man's opinions of his fellows. On page 109 of this book, he reports that the National Opinion Research Centre took a nation-wide sample of opinions which involved some 2,920-people, each asked to grade ninety accepted occupations as to their general standing in

Pay

By 1961 equal pay will also be the rule in the Civil Service, the teaching profession (in schools) and the general, clerical and shorthand-typist classes in local government service, since, in that year, the schemes (announced in 1955) for the progressive increases in the salary scales of women in these occupations to bring them into parity with those of men will have become fully effective. Similar schemes have also been initiated for certain other salaried workers, including the staffs of the National Health Service, of the electricity and gas authorities, and of the British Transport Commission, and outside the public service women's salaries are being adjusted in the same way.

Take Time When You Buy A Used Car
 It is perfectly possible for you to find a good used car at a fair price. It just takes time, patience and common sense.
 The Reader's Digest advises that when you are in the market for a used car you should shop only with reputable dealers. The first step is to decide what you want to spend in all and pay a little less than what you can afford. A dealer will not put his price for a cash sale because on a time payment deal he gets the cheque in full from the finance company plus a small commission as well. Most finance plans require down payments of at least one fourth the purchase price. Watch out for those that take much less; their charges are usually steep.
 Don't buy a car or sign anything on your first visit to a used-car lot. Because automobiles sell for whatever dealers can get for them, your best bet is to shop three or four dealers. By haggling with each, you can gain an idea of the fair price for the car you want. Any price below market means something is wrong, usually that the dealer knows the car is not worth fixing up.
 Nothing tells less about a car's condition than its speedometer reading. Many dealers and owners set speedometers back. Mileage is less important than people think. What really counts is the way the car was treated, and this is shown by its condition regardless of mileage.
 The ideal buy is a "cream puff". This is a car that has had such care that it looks, runs and feels like new. The price

Summary Of Hospitalization Speech By Glen Brown

The Liberals' point of view as expressed by Glen Brown, Liberal member for Brome on the hospital bill was that they were against the delays envisioned by another commission who would officially report next December.
 That, there has been a commission appointed which, since 1954 has drawn salaries and expenses for four years with no apparent results. That more over hospital plans have been in successful operation in British Columbia and Saskatchewan for over ten years whose every detail is presently available in the parliament buildings at Quebec.
 He went on to say that a six months delay meant hardships to many of the citizens of the province of Quebec individually, from a family basis, in the case of older people, who can't qualify for the Blue Cross will be $100 or more above market, but it is worth it. Drive the car. If it is a "cream puff" it will feel tight and right. It will drive smoothly and be almost rattle-free. If the car meets with your own approval, have a reliable independent mechanic inspect it. There is one way to get a good car without searching: Find someone you know who has a car you like and who takes really exceptional care of it. Then go with him when he trades it, so that you can buy it from the dealer before someone else does.

 The benefits derived are many. No time limit of coverage — the municipal tax load currently being carried in Quebec for public charity could disappear — standardization of charges — hospitals operating on a considered budget — coverage in other provinces and foreign countries limited to three months.
 For instance:
 Public charity $ 47,237,528.95
 Grants 6,754,314.13

Cost of Health Department
 Department the Total sum of $ 53,991,833.07
 In Ontario estimates: Total cost $210,000,000 for hospitalization Premiums $ 75,000,000 by the people
 Federal grant $ 67,000,000
 Ontario paid by province $ 68,000,000

Education Week

In this day much stress is given to all our school children to obtain a good education, to progress beyond the elementary and high school stages to the more advanced learning centres of university.

The age in which we find ourselves today is that of electronics. Almost everything wherever we look has an electronic background and right from the damming of rivers to make electrical power to the numerous uses to which this power is put, requires brain power which can only come from education.

One may say, that if machines can do all this, why the need for more education. The reason is that unless people are educated they cannot understand the machines and are unable to operate them successfully.

A Second Career

In a magnificent address before the Canadian Club of Toronto on the subject "Time for a Second Career", Dr. Wilder Penfield coined a new phrase of great significance — "pseudosenility".

And so at the age of 65, as a rule the trusted employee is dined and wined and presented with a gold watch because he has reached the age of senescence and 'ipso facto' is no longer useful.

But are we to follow one part of the Bible in our decision as to whether man becomes old or to wonder whether there might be,

A Case In Point

The lady works as a cleaner in a hospital where her husband is undergoing treatment. At night they study together at his bedside to learn the language of their new country where they hope to establish a home for themselves and their four-year-old daughter.

By Canadian standards, Mrs. Maria Filipovich, 31, hasn't much.

Yet, here is what she says: "I wake up every morning feeling as if I had the winning ticket in the Irish sweepstakes. . . I still can't believe my luck."

"In the short time here, we've shed filth and futility. Now we have a nice furnished apartment, I'm working, and my husband will be released from the sanatorium within two months. . . cured."

The comely Yugoslav housewife and her husband Ivan, 31, arrived in Canada in December and were sent to a Hamilton sanatorium.

They were one of the 100 families rescued and better machines. Even the weapons of war are gradually becoming involved in the electronic age and a greater amount of knowledge, skill and mechanical know-how are required of the personnel of the armed forces.

Why all this stress on education? Next week from March 6th to 12th, has been designated "Education Week". Its purpose is to call attention to the importance of education to everyone. It is called "Everybody's Business".

Education Week is to call attention to the importance of education to every one. It cannot be ignored. It must be encouraged in all its stages. It is vital to our well being and future success.

after all, something in the story of Methuselah, who is described as having lived to an age of something like nine hundreds years.

In the early days of the century, Alexis Carrel kept a chicken's heart alive in sterile solution for twenty five years; perhaps indeed had Carrel not gone off to fight the Spanish war, the heart might have been living still.

Dr. Penfield's address deserves careful reading. It carries lessons which contradict most of the current popular demand that man should prepare for retirement when he's young.

Rather prepare to avoid retirement. Rather develop all of our faculties when we are young, so that 65 or 75 or 85 years of age may mean a prolonged career or a new career.

From Health Magazine.

The Week At Ottawa

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA

OTTAWA, (CP) — Parliament's debate on capital punishment continues. Adjourned temporarily, it will be resumed shortly.

The Commons during last week wound up two days of inconclusive, soul-searching debate on the question of abolishing the death penalty for murder.

Members agreed to a third day's debate — at a time to be chosen by the party leaders — for further consideration of a private member's abolition bill sponsored by Frank McGee (PC-York-Scarborough).

Although the pattern could change later in the third day of discussion later it appeared the majority of MPs are not prepared to vote in favor of the bill.

More to their liking, apparently, is another private bill to eliminate capital punishment for crimes of passion, but to retain it for such crimes as the murder of a policeman or prison guard.

Unemployment Debate — Opposition members coupled uranium and unemployment in the week's activity to throw another roadblock in front of approval of the government's supplementary estimates.

The item under debate was a $15,000,000 spending estimate for the winter works program for the 1959-60 fiscal year. But Opposition members took full advantage of an earlier government offer to consider all phases of unemployment, and ran out the clock on the fourth day of debate on winter works without a decision.

The CCF's Arnold Peters of Timiskaming brought in the situation of Elliot Lake — the northern Ontario mining centre facing serious problems with termination of U.S. uranium purchases.

Developments there were undertaken only to satisfy U.S. demands for the mineral, he said, and the U.S. had a responsibility to help out.

U.S.-Canada uranium agreements were set to run out in 1962. After a joint meeting, the U.S. announced it could not purchase any more uranium than that agreed to in the contract. However, it was agreed to stretch out purchase until 1966.

Mr. Peters said the Canadian government should also help, by inducing secondary industry to set up in Elliot Lake and by taking the problem out of the political arena.

It should be considered as an unemployment question, he said. There had been suggestions that since Elliot Lake was in the Algonia East riding of Opposition leader Pearson the government was not too anxious to help out.

Labor Minister Starr countered charges that the Progressive Conservative government was ignoring unemployment by listing the steps taken — deficit budgeting, stepped-up, more and public works programs, more extensive unemployment and benefits and a cutback in immigration. The government, he contended, had recognized the seriousness of the situation.

Pork and Eggs — The federal government's new method of controlling Canadian production of pork and eggs gained majority Parliamentary approval — but not without some loud dissenting voices. The Liberals said the government should never have given up its system of buying up hogs, eggs and poultry meat whenever prices fell below the stated floor.

The CCF, going further, said the government was "flouting" the 1958 Agricultural Prices Stabilization Act.

Agriculture Minister Harkness entered the debate with a defence of the government's move to end direct purchases and begin the system of deficiency payments.

Mr. Harkness said the "basic benefit" of the new system has emerged — the big factory-type operators were cutting back their production because of the limited support they could get and production was being brought back in line with what the market could absorb.

Fruits, Vegetables — A government move was announced to protect Canadian fruit and vegetable growers against an influx of low-priced United States produce at the start of the Canadian growing season.

Under the law, Canada has power to put a customs valuation on imported fruits and vegetables equal to the average import price of the preceding three years.

This would apply when prices of U.S. produce fall to below normal levels late in the American growing season — usually just at the time the Canadian crop is coming to market.

Revenue Minister Nowlan said in answer to a question that the action merely brought the law into effect. Whether it is applied, and to what products, would depend on the circumstances.

Heated Debate

As the week ended, the winter works estimate went through its fifth day of debate without committal vote while the plight of Elliot Lake again received an extensive and at times strongly partisan airing.

At one stage Joseph Sloan (PC-Springfield) called on Opposition leader Pearson to apologize for suggesting that the proposed nuclear research centre be located at Elliot Lake rather than in Manitoba.

Mr. Sloan said relocation of the project could not in any way relieve the unemployment situation at Elliot Lake. It would be 1965 before it came into operation, he said, and at that time only 200 would be employed on its staff — all of them technicians.

The Manitoba PC member said provincial Liberals in Manitoba were embarrassed by the attitude taken by their party. "To ensure they are not wiped out provincially," he urged Mr. Pearson to change his attitude and also "apologize to the people of Manitoba." Mr. Pearson was not in the Commons at the time.

Murdo Martin (CCF-Timmins) suggested Elliot Lake be made the site of a Northern Ontario university. He lashed at both the Liberals and Conservatives.

He read a letter he said he had received from an Elliot Lake businessman expressing disgust with the federal government for letting the uranium centre become a ghost town. As for Mr. Pearson, the Timmins member said he had befogged the problem more than he (Mr. Martin) thought was possible.

Letter to the Editor

Letter to the Editor . . . . .

Huntingdon, Quebec February 27, 1960 Huntingdon Gleaner Huntingdon, Que. The Editor

Dear Sir: After so much comment recently regarding Huntingdon's bridge problem any resemblance the following writing may have to places, peoples or situations past, present or future, here or there, should probably be regarded as fictitious, however, there might be a glimmer of truth among the lines, time will surely tell.

The Bridge — In a valley rich and fertile, Lay the little town of "Turtle". People there, were much on edge, All because of the New Bridge.

The Council brilliant, argued loudly, A thoughtful few saw future cloudy With taxes up and incomes down, The Ghosts might walk in this fair town.

The Press did print o' many a letter, Some were silly some were better, Upon the matter they cast some light, But they did not settle the new bridge site.

Surveyors came and surveyors went, And each did have a new lament, The river's too wide or the bottom's too soft, If the ice should jam the road, will wash off.

For a great many days and weeks on end The argument followed a number of trends, Finally opinion settled on two, In either location, a new bridge would do.

Government men as always the case, Had the last word in deciding the place.

So people take warning from the furor in "Turtle" Before any jump look well at the hurdle.

The bridge is now built and sturdy it lays, And traffic goes over at night and in days, It's not in the west end or not in the east, But just where the citizens wanted it least.

M. M. Hooker, a native.

Letter to The Editor . . . . . Room 715 Canada Cement Building, Montreal, P.Q. February 26, 1960

Editor, Huntingdon Gleaner, Huntingdon, P.Q. Dear Sir: The Gleaner's issue of Feb. 24th reporting Mr. Somerville's speech to the Rotary Club, about the activities of a private mortgage company in Hemmingford, no doubt will arouse considerable interest.

Shortly after World War II the Federal government set up a housing agency called Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation which to-day administers a mortgage loan policy truly national in scope. It serves all areas of Canada—both urban and rural.

One of the functions of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is to guarantee the mortgage loan to the lending company so that the company may make a higher percentage loan than would be possible due to restrictions in the company's charter. A property valued by

THE GLEANER

The Story Of

The Coming Of Electric Light And Power To Huntingdon

EXCERPTS TAKEN FROM HUNTINGDON GLEANER FILES

The dynamo has a nominal capacity for 1,000 lights, but is practically capable of supplying a system of 1,500. It is of the latest design, embodying many improvements lacking in dynamos in common use. It is of circular form, the magnets being ranged around the armature, which forms its hub.

It is run at a speed of 1500 revolutions a minute, without tremor or noise. The adjunct dynamo, used in exciting the current, goes 2200 revolutions. The accompanying parts, the accumulator, switch board, commutators and so on, embody the latest design and discoveries in a branch of research that may be said to change monthly. The dynamo and its appurtenances come from General Electric Company of Peterborough, Ont. The wiring of the streets and installation of the system is in the hands of Collyer & Brock of Montreal, and they, so far as we can judge, are doing their work in a thorough and conscientious manner. Mr. Tache of the Stadacona company examined the plant at full work on Saturday and expressed his satisfaction with the way in which everything had been done. To complete the plant, it is intended to add another boiler to the two now in use, which will form a reserve in case of accident.

January 22nd, 1897 — The village council has accepted the electric light plant as coming up to the terms of the contract, and the bargain is now completed. A sufficient sum was placed in the hands of the council to pay for the additional boiler, which is nearly ready. The electric light promises to be generally adopted before the fall. Most of the stores and a number of private houses are already lit by it.

News Note — Another lapse of time appears at this point, when it must be considered that the plant was giving service, but that there was a move to sell out or something of the kind, for the next few facts tend that way.

January 10th, 1900 — A gentleman who spent a week here looking it over, holds out hopes of a company buying the Henderson property, in which event they would operate the electric light.

January 18th, 1900 — The financial statement of the village includes no improvement over that of last year. The revenue of the electric light still falls far below its expenditure, and added $1,100 to the debt. It is easy to say if every household who could afford to take the light, would do so, there would be no deficit. A large number will not install the light, and the probability is the revenue for the current year will not exceed that of 1899 by over $200. The great outlay is for coal, and the only apparent remedy is to have the dynamo run by water, instead of steam. Apart from the electric light, the financial standing of the village is encouraging.

February 1st, 1900 — Thursday evening, there was no electric light. The service during the past few weeks has not been what customers have a right to expect. The trouble Thursday evening could not have been foreseen, as it was a slight break in the valve gear of the engine.

February 8th, 1900 — There was no electric light until late last evening, the flood having reached the belts of the engine. Tuesday night the water reached a higher point than at any time this winter, and broke up the ice in the rapids.

March 15th, 1900 — The village council had a conference with Mr. Stone on Saturday and reached an understanding as to what power could be secured to operate the electric and water works in the event of his company acquiring the Henderson property.

March 29th, 1900 — Monday night the river rose rapidly owing to an ice jam and deprived the village of the electric light.

May 10th, 1900 — An offer of $1,600 per annum for 10 years to Mr. Stone on condition of his furnishing 1,000 16-candle lamps and power for pumping water, provided same is ready by 1st October next.

August 9th, 1900 — A proposition was received from Boyd & Co. to operate the electric light and water works. It was referred to the electric light and water committees, with instructions to report at next session.

At an adjourned meeting of the council on Monday evening, a formal tender was received from Boyd & Co. to work the water and electric systems for $2,400 a year, provided the contract was for 25 years. They promise an all night service for light and a direct pressure of water during the summer.

August 23rd, 1900 — Council considered the offer of Boyd & Co. and feel it is a good one. Meantime word is passed along of another offer from F. H. Henderson and L. C. McArthur to operate electric light. Council decided to see this offer before making decision and adjourned the meeting.

August 30th, 1900 — Council favors giving contract to Boyd & Co. providing they can satisfy the council as to financial responsibility.

September 27th, 1900 — Possibilities of a new offer from Henderson and McArthur delay making any contract. There is talk of shutting down the electric plant.

November 15th, 1900 — Word appears at this point of a lawsuit over the purchase of the water works and electric light plant. A person named Charles J. Chisholm, evidently claimed a sum of $2,350 and a lawsuit was placed for that amount by a U.S. creditor of Chisholm.

January 10th, 1901 — Gleaner criticizes council for debt and suggests electric plant should be closed down. Hints further lawsuit pending in the courts.

January 17, 1901 — Trial at the power house showed that it took 1,000 pounds of coal per day to operate pumps and 2,700 pounds to run the electric light. This proved the electric light was operating at a loss.

February 10th, 1901 — Coun. Philips reported he had seen Mr. Henderson several times about running the electric light with water power, but effected nothing. It was arranged the light and water committee would wait on him at a later date.

April 14th, 1901 — It is not improbable that our difficulty about the electric light may be solved by the company that owns the Massena power canal. It is going to apply to Ottawa for a charter to enable it to transmit power by wire to places in Canada.

April 18, 1901 — At a meeting of the council, the committee reported meeting with Henderson and McArthur, but after hearing the offer, the council declined to accept and adjourned to await another offer that Coun. Ferguson wished to make.

May 23rd, 1901 — Offer of Henderson and McArthur still being considered, but no satisfactory arrangement can be arrived at.

July 1901 — Offer made by a Mr. Languedoc to run electric light and water systems for $2,400 a year.

July 25th, 1901 — Offer of Languedoc and McKenzie accepted by the council unanimously. Meantime, village without light due to a break in the dynamo. A mix-up in sending the dynamo to Peterborough, to be repaired, caused delay in the work being done and there was a heated discussion in council on the matter.

August 8th, 1901 — Council still waiting for settlement of the terms under which Languedoc and McKenzie would take over and operate. The settlement centres on placing a certified cheque for $1,000 with the council.

August 8th, 1901 — A news note in the issue of the Gleaner, states that the deal with Languedoc and McKenzie has been completed. New industries were also promised by this company and they were to take over the Henderson property with full possession by the 15th of next month. The cheque for $1,000 was deposited with the council as an evidence the plant would be in operation by January 1st. It was said by Mr. Stone he hoped to redeem the cheque in 60 days. In this same issue it is reported the armature arrived on Monday morning and light was restored to the village after a period of 6 1/2 weeks — Notation — Huntingdon has no notion of going back to coal-ol.

September 26th, 1901 — Work on the powerhouse at the dam being rigorously pushed by Mr. Woods. It will have to be almost rebuilt.

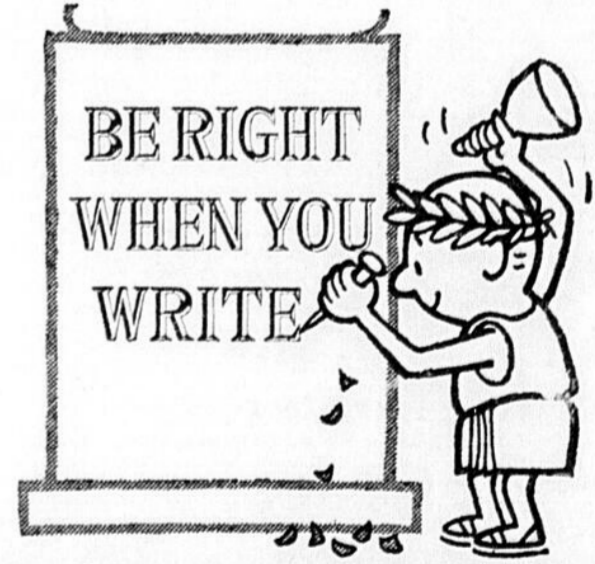

January 9th, 1902 — Mayor Walsh reported he had endorsed the cheque for $1,000 given by Languedoc and McKenzie as security, and had got the money. A letter had been received from the firm stating they were going to complete the deal on the 1st inst. They asked for an extension of time to February 1st. The council extended the time as required. In reading the financial statement it was shown there was a deficit in operating the electric light of $1,800.

February 6th, 1902 — The milling company have been notified by the council that unless they can connect the electric light by Saturday with their new powerhouse, they must operate the old powerhouse until such time as they have the water power available. On Monday, the dynamo was hauled from the station to the new powerhouse.

February 27th, 1902 — Coun. Crawford said the electric light is dim since operating by water power.

March 20th, 1902 — Committee reported meeting with McKenzie and laid down conditions for taking over plant when contract would come in to force. Council disagreed and some members felt original contract was not lived up to. Were dissatisfied with the light and felt should not pay for same, decided to leave decision for an adjourned meeting.

The Week In Quebec

THIS WEEK IN QUEBEC

QUEBEC (CP) - The Provincial Mines Department has opened a pilot plant to test ore sent in by prospectors and mining companies and to do research in ore treatment.

Mines Minister William Cottingham said the plant will serve in two ways:

"It will become a study and research centre second to none for those who, in ever increasing numbers, enter a scientific career in one or the other of the many allied branches of the industry.

"It will be in a position to assist the industry itself to a degree impossible to now."

He said the "rapid and almost incredible expansion in the exploitation of the mineral resources of our province... made imperative the renovation and centralization of a research and treatment centre in keeping with the needs of the mineral industry of the province."

Cost of the project was estimated at close to $1,000,000. Any company or individual operating in Quebec can send ore samples to the plant for testing.

Premier Antonio Barrette was to attend the opening of the plant but was detained in the financing of universities and affiliated classical colleges was being discussed by the legislative assembly.

An education bill before the Legislature proposes an additional $8,500,000 this coming year to the province's six universities and to the 34 classic colleges giving courses equivalent to university education. This sum would bring grants to the institutions to a total of $20,000,000 for the coming year, nearly twice the amount voted for this year. Not included in that figure were long-term borrowings by the institutions for capital expansion to be guaranteed by the government.

In introducing the bill Premier Barrette said it was part of an aid-to-education program which was "progressive."

Another bill unanimously approved by the legislative assembly established a grant scale for education at the high school level.

Premier Barrette met a delegation of the Quebec section of the National Federation of Canadian University students and asked them to wait till the new aid-to-education legislation is tried out before taking more action.

He said that he was happy to see the students and that they should come back anytime they had a problem.

The students asked that means be taken so that anybody with the necessary talent and desire could have an education, even a university education; that a royal commission of inquiry be set up to study the whole situation of education in the province; and that a clause requiring that students who receive government bursaries pay back 40 per cent of them be removed.

Mr. Barrette said if education was completely free other groups would ask for the same thing.

Fifty per cent of the population of the province and the other 50 per cent would be paying for them, he said.

He said a royal commission of inquiry would serve no purpose because the present legislation was the fruit of studies by specialists which included school officials.

As for the 40-per-cent clause in the bursaries act, the Premier said everything can not be done at once and it was best to wait for the results of the present legislation.

Macdonald College Named Master Holstein Breeder

Prof. Alex R. Ness, who retired two years ago after many years of outstanding leadership in the Animal Husbandry Department of Macdonald College at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Quebec, was presented with a Master Breeder shield at the annual meeting of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada held February 17th in Toronto. Professor Ness received this shield on behalf of Macdonald College where an exceptionally fine herd of Holsteins has been developed, largely under his guidance. The actual presentation was made by Leon A. Piquet, East Aurora, N.Y., president of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

The herd played a prominent part in the College teaching program over the years. It also provided a number of foundation sires for herds in the Province of Quebec. In addition, a number of outstanding bulls have been sold elsewhere, 4 of them to artificial breeding units in Ontario, and 2 to Great Britain, both of which received Record of Merit recognition in their adopted country.

The Holstein herd at Macdonald College was started in 1910 when foundation animals were purchased from the pioneer Quebec leader, Neil Sangster of Pleasant Valley Farm, Ormstown. Several of these animals were closely related to the famous Rhoda's Queen who was the first cow to finish a Record of Performance test in Canada, this in 1908, and in 1912 won the silver cup at Ottawa Exhibition for combined production and type. Eaton Hall Farm, of King, Ontario, provided a herd sire of Posch breeding who made one of the early notable contributions to the herd. However, the greatness of the herd was established when a succession of Rag Apple bulls from Mount Victoria and Raymondale Farms were used on the foundation group. These included Montvic Chieftain 10th, Montvic Rag Apple Trojan and Montvic Rag Apple Ajax, the latter being used artificially.

Montvic Rag Apple Trojan had 16 "Very Good" daughters in the herd. One of his sons, Montvic Rag Apple Casablanca, was sold to Great Britain. He also had quite a number of 100,000 lb. daughters, the top being Macdonald Oleana Posy, with 19,096 lbs. fat testing 4.05% in ten lactations.

Montvic Chieftain had ten mature daughters with an average production of 15,069 lbs. milk, 552 lbs. fat, average test 3.67%. After leaving the Macdonald College herd, he made a great name for himself in New York State.

Probably the most notable female developed in the herd was Macdonald Oleana Supreme, who in 1939 made a Canadian Championship senior three-year-old record for fat in 305 days on three times-a-day milking of 848 lbs. fat from 19,566 lbs. milk. She then went on to make a thirteen lactation lifetime record

Letters To The Editor

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation $12,000 can have a mortgage of $10,800 which is 90% of the appraised value.

About 1949 the housing situation in Canada was still very acute. To help this situation the Ontario government established a second mortgage agency to aid the purchaser with the downpayment. The Quebec government later established a "Housing Division" within the Quebec Farm Credit Bureau. The Quebec Farm Credit Bureau does not provide housing loans, as reported in the Gleaner; it provides a subsidy on the interest charges.

Mr. Somerville's speech implied that it would be beneficial to have a local mortgage company and other lenders (which includes the chartered banks) do not apparently care to loan to rural borrowers. The grounds for this suggestion as reported bring to mind the following questions:

1—Are Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation loans not available in the rural counties of Huntingdon, Chateaugay and Laprairie, as implied in the speech?

2—Does the Quebec act (on interest rebate) state that the interest rebate is not available on mortgages arranged through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation?

3—Why has the rebate been refused to the home-owner who arranged for his mortgage-loan through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation between 1955-60? During that same period, we are told, the rebate was paid by the Quebec government on housing loans which were arranged directly from certain mortgage companies.

Mr. Somerville has brought up a very important issue which should have been placed before his constituents long before the start of a political campaign. Indeed this is such an important issue that I trust a reply will be forthcoming so that other aspects may be examined and discussed.

Yours truly,
Lyman A. Roberts.

THIS HOBBY OF MINE

HOW IT BEGAN WHERE IT HAS LED

by ARNOLD McNAUGHTON

Have you ever taken up a hobby? If you haven't you could be missing a great deal of fun. A hobby is something we can busy away any leisure time on our hands and should be of a type which the individual feels relaxed at. It should not have any relationship to our regular daily work. For men there are many hobbies in woodcraft or perhaps gardening — perhaps collecting rare books covering some period in history, etcetera. Women may while away many happy hours by sewing, knitting or even dress designing; collecting unusual pieces of china or crystal; making acquaintances with people by letter in various parts of the world. Young people may start a stamp collection. It may begin with a few pathetic looking stamps but after ten, twenty, even thirty years they may have a collection they will be proud of. There is just one big snag involved in this latter hobby. It can be, and is, an expensive hobby. One stamp can cost hundreds, even thousands, of dollars. The rarer the stamp the more priceless your collection becomes. But when one takes up a hobby, regardless of was especially interesting. Representatives of all Europe's Royal Houses were present and the fact that it was the first complete reunion of these families since the outbreak of World War II was interesting. Many of them were directly descended from Queen Victoria. Somehow Prince Philip appeared out of nowhere, as far as I was concerned. How was he a descendant? Where did he come from? Who were his parents? Did he have brothers and sisters? But where was I going to find my answers? I had no reference books at my finger tips and even if such books did exist I hadn't the slightest idea what they were or where I might be able to find them. The task looked hopeless.

For nearly 2 years I had a mere handful of names, practically no data at all and what appeared to be a gigantic task impossible to do anything with. It was this latter problem which concerned me most. If only I could get sources of information! It came to me that perhaps if I were to attempt corresponding direct with some member of royalty they might be interested enough in what I was working on to be of help. But who ought I write to? Perhaps if someone were living in Canada contact would be far easier. I remember seeing an article about a year before (this was now 1949) telling of the arrival in Canada of the Grand Duchess Olga, sister of the late Tsar Nicholas II of Russia. She and her family had settled somewhere in Ontario but I hadn't kept the newspaper article with the result whenever she was living was completely unknown to me. After a lengthy search the newspaper article was found. I cut it out, noticed the Grand Duchess was living on a farm a Campbellville, Ontario and set down to write her a long letter about the hobby. Queen Victoria's descendants and the problems I was having. I waited, wondering if I would ever hear from her. I didn't have long to wait for a week later her reply came. Here are some of the contents of that letter in part.

"Cymru Am Byth" (Wales For Ever)

March 1st: St. David's Day is celebrated by Welshmen all over the world in honour of a saint about whom little is known.

The usual celebrations in the Welsh communities take place on this day. Not only in Montreal, but in every part of the world, the sons and daughters of the mountainous little principality, however remote their dwelling, pay homage to the memory of their native land, inseparably associated with that of the good St. David.

Very little is known or written of St. David himself, beyond as some people believe that he lived in the fifth century, and that he was a true Christian character, who on account of his exemplary life and devotion to his native land, in time came to be regarded as its special benefactor and guardian.

Others maintain that he was the first Bishop of Minevia, and that he was canonized by Pope Callixtus II, in 1120. (It is understood that the Pope does not canonize people outside of the Roman Catholic Church.)

Another historian wrote that St. David was a Roman Catholic Bishop in full communion with the See of Rome, and that he was a monk and received his early religious education at Ty-gwyn-taf in Carmarthenshire, in the school of St. Paulinus, who had been sent to Britain by Pope St. Celestine in order to combat the heresy of Pelagius (Abbot Morgan of Bangor).

St. David founded monasteries at Glastonbury, Rhosnant, Leominster, Raglan, Llangyfelach (near Swansea), Glyn Roscin (Minevia), and six others, all of whom were in full communion with the See of Rome. St. David received the Pallium.

However, St. David's life undoubtedly played a great part in the moulding of the character of the Welsh nation.

The Reverend William (Billy) Sunday paid a striking tribute to Wales when he proclaimed: "When I think of Wales, I think of a nation of industrious, hardworking, home-loving, God-fearing people, a land to which God seems always to turn when he wants someone to blaze the way to the Cross, man's only hope of salvation. Whenever I think of God at His Kingdom, I take off my hat to little Wales."

With the advent of the Oxford Group, much had been written and discussed. That kind of religion (if one is allowed to call it such) was not new, as such practices followed by the Oxford Group were common occurrences in Wales during the Revival of 1904-1905, and are being kept up to the present time in many places.

Clinging to their ancient language, it is remarkable to find that in every Province in Canada, and for that matter in almost every land the world over, Welsh folk still worship in the vernacular. Many of their emotional hymn tunes, such as Aberystwyth, Cwm Rhonda, Crugbar, Calfaria, Babel, Huddersfield, Ton-y-Botel, etc., are familiar, but only a group of Welsh singers can do them complete justice! The same is true with regard to their martial airs, which include the well known "March of the Mer of Harlech".

To the citizenship of Canada such a people cannot but bring a rich contribution of those qualities which, as centuries have proved, make for national greatness and endurance.

(Written by the late David Thomas Williams)

Editor's Note.—The above was written by the late David Thomas Williams, husband of Mrs. Kay Williams of Huntingdon, for the Montreal Daily Star and The Gazette, in 1933. The late Mr. Williams was a "true Welshman". Mrs. Williams came across this while looking over some old papers and considered it interesting in view of Tuesday of this week being "Welsh Day".

March 8, 1950

In answer to your letter I can send you both these two pictures, as I have other copies. I can answer questions if you want another time but can tell you that if you are near to Quebec or Montreal there should be a Public Library and in such a long letter about the hobby 'Almanach de Gotha'. In this book you can find out all the names and relationships of the Royal Families of Europe if it really interests you. Alas! I have but few pictures of my family and you understand yourself that I wouldn't like to part with these. We live out in the country on our farm 45 miles west of Toronto but if you ever come this way we shall welcome you most heartily. Our two sons work in Toronto.

With Best Wishes,
Olga Koulikovskiy"

Armed with this letter and the name of the reference book I visited one of the city libraries in Montreal at the next opportunity and inquired for a copy of the 'Almanach de Gotha'. Horrors! It was published in German and French only. Well it was all I had to go on so it was a case of taking it or leaving it. Fortunately I was able to translate sufficiently from the French edition and could make enough sense out of the German one to know what I wanted to find out. They weren't very recent copies. One was 1930; the other 1938. The library had no others on hand. The Second World War had interrupted publication. Reference to the majority of dead descendants of Queen Victoria was not given. Minor families were not even mentioned. Some simply stated they were to be found in another edition in another year and — unavailable to me in the library. All the same I came away with a quantity of information and data. It sure looked like a jumble of names. Now I had to sort the whole sorry mess out some way. But I still hadn't solved the question, 'How many descendants did Queen Victoria have and who all are they?'

I must try contacting members of Europe's royalty across the Atlantic! Who would I write to first and how should I compose such a letter? After all they didn't even know me and probably wouldn't waste their time answering unless, of course, I was able to present the whole story to them in such a way that their interest would be aroused. It was something to think about. Little could I then realize the results of where this correspondence would one day lead.
