Bellemare named to replace Loubier as UN party head

QUEBEC (CP)—Maurice Bellemare was elected interim leader of the Union Nationale party Saturday, coming out of retirement to help get the party back on its feet.

The 61-year-old Mr. Bellemare, a former minister in several UN cabinets, said he and the newly-elected party executive will concentrate on intensive local reorganization to build up the once-powerful party of Maurice Duplessis which was swept out of the legislature in the Oct. 29, 1973, provincial election.

They would also lay the groundwork for an eventual convention to choose a new party leader, a post Mr. Bellemare says he has no designs on.

The leadership of the party was left vacant by the retirement of Gabriel Loubier, 41, who became leader in 1971. He was a minister in the cabinet of former premier Daniel Johnson.

Mr. Loubier ended his 12-year political career Saturday, walking out of the national council's meeting after a brief opening address and leaving the choice of an interim leader and future orientation of the party in the hands of the delegates.

DELAYED LEAVING

Mr. Loubier delayed his retirement until the weekend meeting saying he wanted to prevent "certain persons" from taking over the party and its still considerable war chest for their own ends.

Fernand Grenier of Quebec City, former national assembly member for Frontenac, was elected president of the party's executive along with Colette Larue of Chicoutimi and Gilles Hamon of Rouyn as vice-presidents.

Mr. Bellemare, who was first elected in 1944, held a series of portfolios including industry and commerce, labor and responsibility for Expo 67 and when he retired from politics in 1970, he had lost only one election.

STILL ALIVE

Mr. Bellemare told a news conference following the Saturday meeting that the Union Nationale is far from dead, has no interest in allying itself with the federal Progressive Conservative party and will build itself up to be a third force between the Liberals and Parti Quebecois in Quebec politics.

While Mr. Bellemare undertakes a riding-by-riding tour and works on reorganization, Jean-Paul Cloutier, former health minister in the governments of Daniel Johnson and Jean-Jacques Bertrand, will act as party spokesman.

No date for a leadership convention has been set and Mr. Bellemare said his mandate would be reviewed every six months by the national council.

Mr. Loubier told a news conference last month that about $1.5 million remained of the $4.5 million the party received for the sale of Montreal-Matin in 1972.

Mr. Loubier, who succeeded Mr. Bertrand as party leader in 1971, told the meeting earlier that the Union Nationale must be "re-invented" as a vital third force.

Despite plane search

Conservatives fail to find fishing vessels

GANDER, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland's four Conservative MPs and party leader Robert Stanfield when out to sea for foreign fishing vessels Sunday, but it was all a wild goose chase.

The Conservatives chartered a pre-Second World War DC-3 and spent five hours searching the North Atlantic for foreign fishing boats, which they say are raping East Coast fish stocks.

They scoured hundreds of square miles of iceberg-dotted ocean, but spotted only one Canadian naval vessel and a sealing ship.

But John Lundrigan, member for Gander-Twillingate who had suggested the search, said that just because they spotted no ships doesn't mean they're not there.

Fishing fleets from other countries, particularly the Soviet Union, are working the Labrador and Newfoundland coasts scooping up tons of fishing without giving them a chance to spawn, he said.

Mr. Stanfield, on a three-day tour of Newfoundland, spent almost two hours crossing the island by helicopter before starting the Atlantic adventure. He left the west coast city of Corner Brook early Sunday morning and had logged about seven hours air time when the day was over.

He made some good-humored cracks about Mr. Lundrigan after no foreign boats were sighted during a trip from Gander up the Labrador coast and then south to St. John's near the southeastern tip of Newfoundland.

The presence of foreign fishing fleets off the East Coast is of growing concern, especially in Newfoundland where so many depend on the fishing industry.

The Conservatives have been pressing for extension of Canada's territorial limits to 200 miles offshore instead of the current 12.

The objective, says James McGrath, member for St. John's East, is not to prohibit other countries from fishing near the eastern coastline but to give Canada the right to say how fisheries resources will be managed.

The Conservatives were searching Sunday for foreign vessels fishing near the Hamilton Banks, north of Newfoundland and off the Labrador coast.

About four weeks ago, a group of Journalists flying in an armed forces surveillance aircraft counted roughly 150 vessels, mostly foreign, fishing near the banks, a preliminary spring spawning area for cod.

ICE FOILS CANADIANS

Mr. Lundrigan said in an interview that the Russians have developed the technology to enter the rough spring ice near the banks and are reaping a harvest of spawning fish. He estimates that foreign fishers will take $100 million in unprocessed fish off the coast during a three-month spring period.

Shipping settlement near

MONTREAL (CP)—Labor Minister John Munro and negotiators for the Lake Carriers Association and Seafarers' International Union (SIU) continued talks into the early hours today in an attempt to remove a final stumbling block to a new contract agreement.

A labor department spokesman said the negotiators appeared ready to work without stopping on the wording of one paragraph in the agreement until it was acceptable to both sides.

Mr. Munro told a news conference Sunday night "last-minute difficulties" arose regarding the "interpretation of a particular paragraph." It was not revealed what the troublesome item was.

The 3,750 SIU members, who work as cooks, wheelmen, deckhands and machinists, went on strike March 15 against 16 member companies of the association.

The strike came 11 days before the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway last Tuesday. The affected companies normally carry about 90 per cent of Canadian shipping and two-thirds of cargo handled between the Lakehead and Gulf of St. Lawrence. American and other foreign vessels were not affected.

Under terms of the old contract, workers made between $490 and $600 monthly for 240 hours. A major union demand was that the work week be reduced to 40 hours from 56.

The association said its final offer included overtime and fringe benefits and would have meant a 31-per-cent wage increase over two years.

The union was seeking a 15-per-cent wage increase in each year of a two-year contract. It said the final offer received in mediation talks early last month meant an eight-per-cent increase in the first year and another six per cent in the second.

When Mr. Munro entered the discussions last Thursday, industry sources said his main problem would be getting agreement on hours worked.

The SIU is the first marine union to seek a 40-hour week, and sources said the Canadian shipping industry is believed to have put pressure on the carriers to hold the line.

The Canadian Marine Officers Union and Canadian Merchant Service ordered their members not to cross SIU picket lines in Eastern Canada.

OTTAWA (CP)—CBC radio and television networks operate today under a new five-year mandate given the state-owned corporation by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) on the condition that it reduce or eliminate commercials.

The commission renewed the CBC licences a few hours before they were due to expire Sunday midnight, praising the corporation for what it has done but admonishing it to do better in future.

The CRTC ordered the CBC to:

—Cut out commercials on AM and FM radio, effective Jan. 1, 1975, except where programs—such as the Saturday afternoon Metropolitan Opera broadcasts—are only available to the CBC with commercials.

—Cut down the present ratio of about 10 minutes of commercials an hour on CBC-TV networks. Starting Oct. 1, 1975, the limit is to be eight minutes, and it is to be cut by one minute per hour until it reaches five minutes in October, 1978. The licences come up for renewal again in March, 1979.

—Use Canadian programs for at least half the TV broadcast time between 8 p.m. and 9 p.m., on a four-week average, starting Oct. 1, 1976, and require privately-owned CBC affiliate stations to air them as well. Currently the CBC uses U.S. programs heavily in this time slot.

—Eliminate television commercials aimed at children under the age of 13, starting next Jan. 1.

The CBC has already adopted many of these conditions as policy, but the CRTC ruling makes them binding as part of CBC licences to operate. The CBC has cut off advertising aimed at children, and does not carry commercials on its FM stations. It announced last week it intends to cut advertising out of its AM programming.

CORPORATION PRAISED

The CRTC, which held a public hearing Feb. 18-22 on the licence renewal application, generally praised the corporation for what it has done. But it said the CBC should be more vigorous in providing the national broadcast service required by the Broadcasting Act.

The commission, headed by Pierre Juneau, issued a 91-page report in which it both admonished and encouraged the CBC. Generally, the report said the CBC should be neither elitist nor try to appeal only to a mass audience.

While renewing the network licences for five years, the CRTC renewed some CBC transmitter licences for only two, three or four years. This will enable the commission to delve into local CBC facilities more deeply than it could this year when all the licences expired at the same time.

Specifically, the CRTC said the CBC must bring its full television service to New Brunswick, where it now has no TV station of its own. The commission said the CBC should buy out CHSJ-TV in Saint John.

It said the CBC must extend its services elsewhere as rapidly as finances permit, and hike its service in Northern Canada, feeding some northern programs produced with the help of Indians and Eskimos back to the rest of the country.

To further inter-regional broadcasting, the CRTC said the CBC board of directors should set up a special fund to finance programs interpreting English-speaking Canada to French-speaking areas, and vice-versa.

And it said the CBC must play a bigger role in promoting the feature film industry, helping to sell films abroad and giving at least 12 premieres to Canadian films on the CBC-TV network each year.

The fact the commission renewed the CBC's licence came as no surprise. At the February hearing, Mr. Juneau made it plain at the outset that the CBC is "vital to the health of Canadian broadcasting."

NO ABOLITIONISTS

None of the public bodies or private individuals who appeared at the hearing advocated terminating the licences.

The CRTC was expected, as it did, to admonish and urge the corporation to adopt new policies. The fact it set conditions on the licence renewals asserted the commission's power over the corporation.

Both are, in fact, federal agencies. The CRTC regulates both public and private broadcasting and acts as a watchdog over their activities. The CBC is a federal Crown corporation financed largely by the public treasury.

CBC commercial revenue from TV amounts to about $50 million a year, but Laurent Picard, CBC president, has said it would cost $80 million a year to give them up.

Train debate to continue

OTTAWA (CP)—The great train debate is expected to highball to completion this week, finally enabling the government to square accounts with Canadian National Railways.

It has been a long haul for the annual CNR financing bill, originally introduced more than a year ago and reintroduced in the current session of Parliament after the House ran out of time in the last session.

Opposition critics have side-tracked the bill continually, saying the Crown corporation is shoddily and inefficiently run. But the opposition seems to have run out of steam on the bill and there is nothing delaying it now except second reading of the government competition bill.

"After all," Conservative transport critic Don Mazankowski says with a laugh, "we've got to clear this one away before we get another one."

He says "there's pretty well an agreement it's going to pass," and "it should be cleaned up in a day or two."

APPROVES SPENDING

The bill authorizes CN capital expenditures totalling $225.5 million in 1973 and $75 million in the first six months of 1974.

Last year's spending included $139 million for road property, $13 million for branch lines, $31.8 million for equipment, $25.9 million for telecommunications, $8.8 million for CN Tower Ltd., $5.7 million for hotels and $1.2 million for investment in affiliates.

It also enables CN to contract for up to $167.5 million in new equipment, to be paid for after 1973.

Another provision facilitates borrowing an additional $21 million for branch-line construction between Jan. 1, 1973, and July 1, 1974.

For its sister corporation, Air Canada, loans totalling $140 million would be authorized. This is to be used to discharge obligations that have come due since the start of 1973. It also would approve issuance of $32.1 million in debentures from July 1, 1972 to Dec. 31, 1976.

DIDN'T TOPPLE TOWER

Although a minor part of the total package, the $8.8 million destined for CN Tower, the subsidiary erecting the world's tallest free-standing structure in Toronto, has been a favorite target of critics.

Accidents claim 65

Four men who died when fire destroyed a Hydro-Quebec dormitory in the northern community of Matagami were among at least 65 persons who died accidentally in Canada during the weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Sunday night indicated 53 had died in traffic, six in fires, two by drowning, two in a plane crash, another in a parachute mishap and one in an accidental shooting.

The 53 traffic fatalities, combined with 38 during the week, bring the unofficial count of road deaths so far this year in Canada to 654. There also have been 86 deaths related to snowmobile mishaps so far this winter.

Quebec reported 26 deaths—20 in traffic, a fifth fire victim and the parachute mishap.

Road accidents accounted for 14 deaths in Ontario and 11 in British Columbia. Ontario also had the accidental shooting death.

Alberta also reported 11 fatalities—seven in traffic, two by drowning and the two plane crash victims.

Prince Edward Island recorded one death in a fire and Nova Scotia's only fatality was a traffic victim.

New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Manitoba and Saskatchewan were fatality free.

1929 CHEVROLET — Six cars from the Craven Foundation's 67-car collection will be on display at Carrefour de l'Estrie April 4-13. Like all the cars in the collection, this 1929 Chevrolet is in full running condition and licensed.

March food prices dipped slightly

Food prices dipped slightly in March in several Canadian cities while the federal government debated policies to limit increases to consumers.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press of 13 cities showed declines in the total price of 17 standard items in seven urban centres.

Top cuts of beef and pork fell in price in some cities but rose in others. The price of chicken generally was down and tomatoes dipped sharply in price in several cities.

Potato prices showed the most rapid and general increase.

A reduction of about $4.50 a 100 pounds in the wholesale price of sugar resulted in slight decreases in retail prices.

Among government measures, a seven-cents-a-pound subsidy to beef producers was introduced in mid-month, but Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan warned that a dairy products subsidy cannot go higher.

MILK GOING UP

Agriculture officials indicated in March that dairy farmers would soon be granted a $2-increase on the price of 100 pounds of manufacturing milk, but refused to disclose what additional subsidies, if any, would be applied to offset retail price increases.

Bread prices remained steady in most cities after the Bakery Council of Canada agreed to limit price increases to those authorized by the food prices review board.

Meanwhile, the review board, in its third quarterly report, predicted a less-rapid rise in food costs this year if weather conditions permit a good harvest.

The CP survey is based on 17 items priced on the last Tuesday of each month. It is not intended to compare prices among cities.

Items are priced in the same supermarkets each month and show the lowest regular price for the same items or nearest comparable items. The survey began in April.

The shopping basket includes a pound of sirloin-tip roast of beef, all-beef wieners, centre-cut loin roast of pork, first-grade chicken, ground chuck, frozen cod fillets, first-grade butter, tomatoes, frozen green peas, McIntosh apples and drip coffee.

It also includes one dozen medium eggs, one quart of whole milk, a 24-ounce loaf sliced white bread, 10 pounds first-grade potatoes, a 24-ounce can of first-grade halved pears and five pounds of white granulated sugar.

Charlottetown—Meat prices continued to climb in March, offset by decreases in fish, egg, potato and sugar prices. Ground chuck rose to $1.58 from $1.38, chicken increased six cents to 99 cents, but pork dropped to $1.23 from $1.49. Frozen cod fillets dropped to 85 cents from $1.14 in February and $1.23 in January. Potatoes dropped 20 cents to $1.29, eggs declined two cents to 89 cents and sugar fell 10 cents to $1.89 for a five-pound bag. Milk increased three cents to 43 cents and coffee cost $1.35 a pound from $1.11 last month. Market basket total for March, $16.57; for February, $17.02.

Winnipeg—Potatoes increased 16 cents to $1.45, roast beef fell to $1.85 from $1.89, chicken to 69 cents from 74 cents and ground chuck to $1.34 from $1.38. Milk remained steady while eggs increased three cents to 79 cents a dozen. Tomatoes dropped 15 cents to 49 cents a pound and sugar fell five cents to $1.56 for a five-pound bag. Market basket total for March, $15.10; for February, $15.21.

Vancouver—The price of five pounds of sugar rose to $1.58 from $1.53 in February and $1.25 in January. Eggs were up to 91 cents for a dozen medium sized from 89 cents last month. Roast beef dropped to $2.19 a pound from $2.35, ground chuck to $1.29 from $1.39 and tomatoes to 39 cents from 49 cents. Pork was up to $1.48 a pound from $1.39. Market basket total for March was $16.66; for February, $17.06.

London—Beef roast prices declined to $1.78 a pound from $1.98, wieners to 98 cents from $1.08 and ground chuck unchanged at $1.28. Chicken was up to 88 cents a pound from 84. Sugar rose 10 cents to $1.63 for a five-pound bag and eggs were up two cents to 82. Bread was down to 36 cents from 46 cents and tomatoes dropped 20 cents to 49 cents a pound. Market basket total for March, $14.75; for February, $15.15.

Toronto—Roast beef rose to $1.54 a pound from $1.33, pork was down to $1.04 from $1.12, ground chuck dropped to $1.18 from $1.28 and chicken remained unchanged at 79 cents a pound. Frozen cod fillets increased to $1.26 from $1.18, eggs were up to 82 cents a dozen from 80 cents and milk dropped four cents a quart to 36 cents. Potatoes were up to $1.37 for a 10-pound bag from $1.23 and sugar remained steady at $1.63 for a five-pound bag. Market basket total for March was $14.76; for February, $14.59.

St. John's—Milk prices soared to 51 cents a quart from 46 cents. Sugar increased seven cents to $1.78 for a five-pound bag and top cuts of beef climbed to $1.88 a pound from $1.68. Offsetting the increases are decreases in pork to 75 cents from $1.08 a pound, chicken to 72 cents from 85 cents and tomatoes to 53 cents from 59. A 10-pound bag of potatoes jumped 30 cents to $1.89. Market basket total for March, $16.72; for February, $16.78.

Montreal—Only milk, apples and coffee remained steady in March with most other items showing a slight increase. Butter rose to 83 cents from 75 last month, eggs to 83 from 77, potatoes to $1.39 from $1.35 for a 10-pound bag and frozen cod fillets to $1.27 from $1.05. Roast beef fell slightly to $1.95 a pound from $2.03 but wieners increased to $1.03 from 99 cents. Tomatoes dropped 20 cents a pound to 29, bread fell six cents to 39 and sugar decreased 10 cents to $1.59 for a five-pound bag. Market basket total for March, $16.20; for February, $15.05.

Quebec—Tomatoes showed the biggest price drop with a 40-cent decrease to 29 cents a pound. Beef and chicken fell slightly but pork increased to $1.39 from $1.19 in February. Frozen cod fillets dropped 15 cents to $1.20 and sugar declined to $1.49 from $1.53. Coffee climbed to $1.33 from $1.09 a pound, potatoes to $1.49 from $1.39 and butter to 77 cents from 75. Canned pears increased to 59 cents from 36 cents in February. Market basket total for March, $15.86; for February, $15.98.

Ottawa—Sirloin tip fell to $1.49 a pound from $1.89 in February, ground chuck to $1.19 from $1.38, coffee to $1.09 from $1.13 and sugar to $1.59 from $1.61. Most other items showed price increases. Wieners rose to $1.15 from $1.05, chicken to 81 cents from 74 cents and cod fillets to $1.19 from $1.15. Eggs increased four cents a dozen to 80 cents, milk three cents a quart to 39 cents and potatoes jumped to $1.45 from $1.29 for a 10-pound bag. Market basket total for March, $15.41; for February, $15.21.

Saint John—Most prices remained unchanged through March with sharp increases reported only in potatoes, which rose to $1.73 from $1.59 for a 10-pound bag. Sharp decreases occurred only in pork which fell to $1.28 a pound from $1.49. Eggs were up three cents to 86 cents a dozen and butter rose eight cents to 77 cents a pound. Tomatoes fell four cents to 55 cents and sugar dropped two cents to $1.67 for a five-pound bag. Market basket total for March, $16.03; for February, $15.85.

Halifax—Sugar, tomatoes, chicken and roast beef showed price drops but most other items continued to climb. Sugar fell 14 cents to $1.55 for a five-pound bag, tomatoes to 39 cents a pound from 69, chicken to 62 cents a pound from 78 and beef to $1.73 from $1.85 a pound. Pork rose to $1.49 from $1.38, eggs to 86 from 82 cents a dozen, potatoes to $1.53 from $1.49 for a 10-pound bag and canned pears to 55 cents from 45. Market basket total for March, $15.90; for February, $16.77.

Edmonton—Potatoes climbed 69 cents for a 10-pound bag to $2.18 while tomatoes fell 30 cents a pound to 19 cents. Choice beef and pork cuts decreased slightly but the cheaper cuts increased and frozen cod fillets rose to $1.55 from $1.13 last month. Sugar fell five cents to $1.60 but canned pears increased to 61 cents from 33 cents. Coffee increased six cents to $1.09 and butter to 80 cents from 74 cents. Market basket total for March, $16.22; for February, $15.42.

Regina—Potato prices soared to $2.19 a pound from $1.39 in February but most other items declined. Pork dropped to $1.29 from $1.37, chicken to 75 cents from 85 cents, ground chuck to 99 cents from $1.29 and sugar to $1.70 from $1.79 for a five-pound bag. Frozen cod fillets were up to $1.18 from $1.08 last month and eggs were up to 87 cents a dozen from 83 cents. Market basket total for March, $16.12; for February, $15.51.

There's money in second-hand books

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ted Fraser, who parlayed $50 worth of books from the Salvation Army into one of Canada's largest book stores, has demonstrated there is money to be made in second-hand books.

Theodore Stuart Fraser was 50 years old with little business experience when he founded the Fraser Book Bin here in 1954.

"My friends said I'd never make it at my age," he recalled in an interview.

Today he carries a stock of about half a million new and used books in his two Vancouver stores and carries on a large mail order business in Africa, Britain, Australia, the United States and the Orient.

A native of Winnipeg, Mr. Fraser worked as a farm laborer, prospector, fur trader and musician on the Prairies before moving here in 1953.

He made what he describes as "an inauspicious beginning" in the book business in 1953, buying a small book store for $500 and selling it six weeks later for $150. He went to work for the Salvation Army and took his pay in 10 tons of old books valued at $5 a ton that provided the stock for his first Book Bin outlet.

He says reading tastes have changed drastically in the last 10 years.

"Newfoundlanders, for instance, used to order Western comic books by the thousands. Today they order more serious books on how to build things, self-help books and philosophy."

"That is a fairly general trend right across Canada. We used to carry a stock of 20,000 or more comic books. Now it is down to less than 3,000. How-to-it books are the ones in the biggest demand now."

"Americans send for a lot of Harlequin romance books that we sell as back issues for 50 cents."

"They're hopeless books—the plot involves nurses and doctors and when a guy kisses a girl they immediately get married."

They're also the biggest success story on the market," he said.

Mr. Fraser says his stores have lowered the price of books in Vancouver.

Books are purchased in bulk from publishers, closing-out sales, and other second-hand stores. He said he gambles that he can sell what he buys.

Mr. Fraser's own reading interest is largely limited to the science fiction field but he says his varied working background enables him to help customers.

While working as a fur trader near Lac Laronge in northern Saskatchewan in the mid-1930s, he read the Bible from cover to cover 13 times.

"I had to," he said. "There was practically nothing else to read and it's pretty close to science fiction."

Cleaning company complains

TORONTO (CP) — Bidding on government contracts is "a waste of time," says Richard Peter Hurley, president of Hurley Brothers Ltd., one of the top five office cleaning companies in Toronto.

"They go to the lowest bidder and you can't do a good job," he said in an interview. His company charges the highest prices in the $50-million a year business but also pays the highest wages.

"We're not interested in becoming the biggest," he said. "We're interested in giving quality service at a good price."

He says the minimum wage of $2 an hour should be raised to at least $3 an hour. In keeping with this philosophy, Hurley Brothers pay their 150 full-time and 100 part-time workers $3 and $3.75 an hour. Some employees have been with the company since its birth 19 years ago. The firm now grosses $1.5 million a year.

"If you can attract better labor you can deliver better cleaning to your customers."

STARTED AS LABORER
Peter Hurley came to Toronto from Balineen, County Cork, Ireland, 20 years ago on St. Patrick's Day. He helped dig the foundation of an office building on Bloor Street and later was hired as a part-time janitor of the completed structure.

Within a year, he formed a contract cleaning company. His brother Michael later joined him and now is company vice-president.

Bits of Irish sentimentality can be seen throughout the company. The firm still has its first customer, Cornell Engineers, and will continue to clean the offices for the original price of $12 a week as long as both companies are in business.

Last Christmas, the employees purchased and presented the brothers with the original electric polishing machine used for the Cornell job. It is mounted behind glass in the company's front office with an engraved silver plate marking the occasion.

The company's symbol is a red-bearded leprechaun, armed with mop and pail.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Howell of Gaspe and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Robertson of Lennoxville were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Howell.

$1 million investment Mount Orford grant only the beginning

GEORGES VAILLANCOURT

SHERBROOKE (CC) — The announcement by Georges Vaillancourt that the provincial government will invest more than $1,000,000 to develop and maintain provincial parks in the Eastern Townships is seen as only the beginning.

Mr. Vaillancourt made the announcement during a mini-congress at Mount Orford Friday and was quick to point out that the grants have nothing to do with the new federal-provincial pact signed in Quebec March 15.

The grants to enlarge the Mount Orford provincial park, to develop other provincial parks at Lac St. Francois and at Mount Adstock near Thetford Mines and to finance the operation of the Mount Orford park will come from the Minister of Tourism, Fish and Game.

Mr. Vaillancourt added that when the grants are awarded in connection with the "Canada-Quebec General Development Agreement" the tourist projects granted funds already could benefit from even more money.

The Eastern Townships is considered as one of the areas where the federal and provincial governments will inject funds. All that remains is for the two governments to decide how much funds and for what projects.

Gerard D. Levesque, Quebec Minister of Inter-governmental Affairs and minister responsible for the Quebec Planning and Development Bureau told a news conference after the signing of the agreement that Quebec had already "submitted certain projects for the signing of other subsidiary agreements that appear significant to us."

One of the three projects submitted is "a subsidiary agreement in the Sherbrooke zone regarding the Sherbrooke industrial park, the basic infrastructures, the road linkages and an initiative in two important tourist projects."

The agreement is to be administered by the federal department of regional economic expansion and the Quebec Planning and Development Bureau. The president of that bureau, in Sherbrooke last week, said the agreement could inject more than $12,000,000 into the industrial park and a large amount into local tourism.

Sherbrooke's director-general, Serge Racine, estimated the new agreement could mean $35,000,000 for Sherbrooke and area during the next decade.

Mr. Racine said earlier this week he thought the provincial government should make the announcement soon. However, after meeting with government officials later in the week, Mr. Racine changed his position. The announcement will come after the different projects which the city wants are submitted for analysis.

As Sherbrooke Mayor Marc

Bureau said last week: "It is up to us to go get the grants. We know what we want but we have to make concrete proposals."

"We have everything ready," he said. "We are prepared."

St. Francis County MNA Gerard Deziel said last week that everyone has to forward complete proposals to the government.

"If we don't want to get left out, we have to put as much pressure as possible on the government," he said. "There is only so much money available and if we want to get our share then we have to ask for it."

"That doesn't mean groups just arrive there and say they want the money," he added. "They have to present a well documented case why their project should be awarded a grant."

Sherbrooke county Member of Parliament Irene Pelletier, who worked on getting Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships the subsidiary agreement in the general pact, was even more blunt. "Everyone has to get their skates on," he said, "because if they don't, then they are going to lose the game."

The general agreement replaced the special zone agreement which had previously been signed between Quebec and Ottawa. Many groups within the city had battled for more than a year to get Sherbrooke declared a special zone for favored treatment from DREE.

However, as all parties who worked to get the city included in the new pact add, the end is not yet here.

More grants will be forthcoming but everyone will have to work to get them.

Industrial park

'You can't expect miracles,' says promotion man Baptist

SHERBROOKE (CC) — A year ago when Raymond Garneau gave his budget speech, a grant of $3,000,000 was included for Sherbrooke to develop its industrial park.

City officials were elated and looked forward to an industrial boom in Sherbrooke. What has happened to the industrial park in the last year? Where are the industries?

"You can't expect to see a miracle in a year," the city's industrial commissioner, Alex Baptist, was saying early last week. "It takes at least two years between the time the company shows interest in building and the time the company actually starts to build."

"They have to convince the board of directors, have to do studies and have the architects draw up the plans, have to call for tenders," he added. "It doesn't happen overnight."

But Mr. Baptist is quick to point out that the development of the industrial park is progressing well.

In addition to the industries which have already built in the park, Mr. Baptist has six other industries which intend coming to Sherbrooke and another six which he considers top prospects.

Among the industries to operate out of the industrial park are Santana Shoes, Sherbrooke Pipe and Drainage, Bell Telephone, Veracore, Hankin Inc., Roger's Transport and Labatt Breweries.

The six industries which Mr. Baptist is confident will build here would create 1,100 jobs within one year of operation and include investments of more than $10,000,000 for land, buildings and equipment.

But industrial promotion is a cut-throat business and Mr. Baptist isn't telling the names of the industries. "The only time to make an announcement is when construction work has already begun, and even then it is sometimes too early," he said.

"If I mentioned the names some other person would try to take them away," Mr. Baptist claims when he talks about the business.

But the money the government granted wasn't to attract industry — it was to develop the park located in the city's north ward. During the past year contractors have been developing a roads network and installing water and sewage services.

"There is just no way I can sell an unserved lot," Mr. Baptist said. "Now, I when I know there are going to be the necessary infrastructures, I have a chance."

When Mayor Marc Bureau reviews the accomplishments of his term in office, he notes as a major one the development of the industrial park. He talks of it in terms of "metropolitan Sherbrooke" assuming the role of leader in the Eastern Townships.

"We are now able to compete with such markets as Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver and other large American centres," the mayor told a large gathering of regional businessmen last year.

The city, however, doesn't desire wanton development of the park. "We have to control its development," the mayor said last week. "If we don't then it will just become an industrial jungle."

The city council recently passed a detailed zoning bylaw to govern the development of the park. The bylaw is designed to preserve land values.

It is also designed to keep the "park" image in the sector. Mr. Baptist contends that most industrial parks in Quebec are based on a simple formula.

The municipalities just order bulldozers onto land designated for industrial use, level all trees and straighten the topography.

In Sherbrooke things are different. The master plan for the park includes spaces for wooded lots, green space between industries, baseball diamonds, picnic areas and even a golf course.

When the present program is completed, the city will have approximately 300 acres serviced for industrial use.

More is to come. The president and director general of the Office de Planification de Quebec, Yvon Tremblay, told a news conference in Sherbrooke last week that the city could receive "between $10-12,000,000" for its industrial park.

Mr. Tremblay noted that at least that amount could be obtained by the city under the new Department of Regional Economic Expansion program signed between Ottawa and Quebec.

It all depended on how well the presentations for grants were made by the city, he added.

City hall is optimistic that the industrial park will begin to bear fruits soon. Officials are quick to point out that it takes time to secure industry, but the industry is here to stay once it is established.

CSRE NAMES ADMINISTRATORS

The executive committee of the Commission Scolaire Regionale de l'Estrie has appointed the following individuals to administrative posts at CSRE schools: Pierre Benoit and Jean de Francesco, assistant directors of Coaticook Polyvalent; Sirice Huard, director of Mitchell School; and Uric Chaine, director of St. Jean Baptiste School.

U OF S SPORTS AWARDS NIGHT

The University of Sherbrooke will hold its 12th annual sports awards night in the university gymnasium at 5:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 4.

Some 62 athletes have been nominated for the various awards of honor; 37 males and 9 females have been proposed for the two athlete-of-the-year titles; and several teams have been recommended for recognition as the best of the university.

U OF S GUARDS RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Thirteen members of the security department of the University of Sherbrooke have received diplomas for successful completion of an 80-hour program in police techniques.

The guards followed the course at the Nicolet Police Academy. It included study in the areas of psychology, criminology, human relations and personnel management.

Gitans arraigned on murder charges

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Four members of the Gitan motorcycle gang will have their preliminary hearing in April after being arraigned in Sessions court here Friday.

The four — Claude Berger, 24, Roger Berger, 22, Michel Lebrun, 26, and Michel Lamoureux, 24 — appeared before Judge Roland Dugre and were officially jailed on charges of murder and attempted murder.

They were charged in connection with the shooting deaths of Atome members Marc Distefano, 23, of Sherbrooke and Michel Lamoureux, 18, of Coaticook.

They were also charged with the attempted murder of Atomes Ronald Sigouin, 17, Pierre Morin, 23, Gilles Dallaire, 21, and Philippe Demers, 21, all of Sherbrooke.

All charges are part of the continuing episode in the violent rivalry between the two local motorcycle gangs which erupted into a four-hour running battle March 9 which left two dead and at least seven injured, five of them seriously.

Three other members of the motorcycle gangs have already appeared in court in connection with the incidents. Gitan Charles Filteau has been remanded behind bars until the September assizes on a charge of attempted murder on the person of Atome president Pierre Gauvin.

Two Atome members, Rejean Gilbert, 21, of Sherbrooke and Jean Noel Roy, 20, of Coaticook, are being held on a charge of attempted murder and will face preliminary hearing on April 3. Both are being held without bail.

In court Friday no incidents were reported. Although the courtroom was filled to near capacity, no members of either motorcycle gang were present. Police, however, were evident everywhere.

Evidence clears Viens of $5,600 fraud charge

SWEETSBURG WARD (JD) — Mrs. Rejeanne Forand Delorme, Bromont, pleaded not guilty to possession of stolen garments valued at $1800, and opted for trial by judge and jury through her attorney, Regent Choiniere. Preliminary hearing was fixed for April 1.

Jean Claude Viens, formerly of Ste. Brigid, had a charge of fraud dismissed. Judge Legare, after hearing the evidence which alleged Viens had defrauded the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Farnham, of $5,600 based his judgment on mens rea.

In effect this means Viens had no intention of defrauding the bank, and the bank received its monies from the Quebec Farm Improvement Service. Judge Legare said Viens may have acted stupidly, however he had been given full clearance by the Bankruptcy Court, and he felt he shouldn't be charged a second time.

The bank had a chattel mortgage on farm equipment purchased by Mr. Viens, however he traded and upgraded some of it while there was still a lien pending. The dealer alleged he would wait one year for payment, and would not take the equipment under the lien in trade until it was free of all encumbrances. Viens indicated he returned it to the dealer, and some of the utensils he returned had subsequently been sold by the dealer.

Mr. Viens was represented by Jean-Paul Couture of Farnham.

Councillor Patrick says police story inaccurate

LENNOXVILLE (AR) — Councillor Doug Patrick, chairman of the police committee of Lennoxville council, pointed out recently that a story appearing on page one of last Tuesday's Record contained a few factual errors.

Mr. Patrick noted that Constable Larry Wilcox was not replaced by Constable Richard Martin but by Constable Richard Roy. He also clarified that Constable Wilcox is the third member of the Lennoxville police force to attend the Nicolet Police Academy, the last being Constable Beland.

The third is Constable Richard Martin who underwent training while a member of the Sherbrooke Police Department.

Mr. Patrick contended that the Lennoxville council favored the idea of sending all policemen to the Academy and that Chief Kasimir Kryszak did not need to exert any pressure in order to see that council did so.

The councillor said the municipality sought a replacement for months before finding one, thus enabling Constable Wilcox's leave of absence.

Abercorn

Martha Wighton

Supper guests of Mrs. Mary Domingue and Mr. Max Domingue on March 24th were Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Charles Bissonette, Mrs. Josie Domingue, Miss Annette Bazinet of Sutton and Martha Wighton. Evening callers were Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Arpin. Mr. Rene Marchand, Sr. of Sutton was accompanied to Dorval Airport March 27th by his three sons, Rene, Donald and Beat Marchand. Mr. Marchand will be attending a "Chef's" class reunion in Switzerland and visiting relatives, this being the first visit to his homeland.

Raymond Goyette, Sutton, who was earlier found guilty of impaired driving between Abercorn and Sutton, during January 1972, was fined $200 and costs, in default 60 days. Judge Bernard Legare issued a driving prohibition of one year, with the exception of use of his car to travel to and from his employment in St. Johns, and ordered Goyette not to drink while he was travelling. The drinking ban is the sole component of a probation order.

Judge Legare told the young man he was fortunate he had not been charged with manslaughter.

Goyette was granted 30 days to acquit the fine and costs.

Judge Legare handed Andre Roy, Granby, a suspended sentence and placed him on one year's probation. Roy was found guilty of theft of a car by fraudulent means in Granby.

Defence counsel Gilles Poussard, Legal Aid Bureau, indicated his client was undergoing a traumatic series of events at the time of the crime. He cited the car was recovered so the dealer suffered no material loss, and Mr. Roy had just finished school and was to begin employment March 26.

"He has no record and I feel a suspended sentence would serve the ends of justice," Mr. Poussard said.

Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux said he had nothing to add to the suggestions of the defence.

Bernard Champagne, Waterloo, pleaded guilty to a charge of simple assault on the person of Mrs. Eugene Rondeau, in Waterloo, March 22.

Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux called for a six month sentence citing Champagne's record: 1968, one count of theft and one of theft and assault; 1970, seven months for breaking and entering, three months for burglary, two charges of theft and one of assault; 1971, one count of theft, and one month for simple theft; 1972, two years for one count of theft with violence; February, 1973, 18 months for assault with intent to commit a theft. Mr. Noisieux indicated the charge would have been of a more serious nature if a visitor hadn't intervened.

Judge Legare handed him one week, however Champagne will have ticket of leave revoked as a result of his plea.

Andre Dussault, of no fixed address, and Leon Pothier, Saxby Corners, were ordered to the next term of the local assizes, following preliminary hearing on counts of breaking and entering and theft, at Saxby Corners, October 18, 1973.

Pothier was ordered to the assizes on the original count while Dussault was judged an accomplice after the fact by Judge Legare.

Defence counsel Gilles Poussard then opted for trial before a magistrate after. Their cases will be heard April 4.

Alain Maheu, South Roxton, pleaded guilty to counts of dangerous driving and driving when a breath analysis showed he had 100 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood.

Crown prosecutor Noisieux read the police report which indicated Maheu had travelled the streets of Granby, February 3, 1974, at speeds in excess of 90 m.p.h., and asked for a six month prohibition with a fine on each count.

Judge Legare upheld the demand of the crown, however permitted Maheu to use his car to travel to and from work. He was placed on six months probation concerning consuming alcohol while driving.

Maheu was fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days, on the dangerous driving charge, and $50 and costs, in default 15 days, on the impaired count. He was granted a 30 day delay to pay the fines and costs.

Don Miller, Fullford, pleaded guilty to a count of public mischief at Glen Mountain, February 3, when he drove his vehicle over ski trails. He was fined $25 and costs, in default eight days.

Judge Legare placed a one year prohibition on Guy Turner, of Cowansville, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving in Cowansville while he was driving a school bus.

Defence counsel Andre Bachand pointed out the vehicle had only travelled one or two miles when Turner realized he was in no shape to continue, and called his employer. He was fined $75 and costs, in default 30 days. The prohibition only applies to school buses as Turner is employed as a driver by a cartage company.

Paul Carrier, Mansonville, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving in Vale Perkins, January 20, 1974. He was fined $75 and costs, in default 30 days.

George Hudson, Waterloo, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving in Waterloo, February 17, 1974. He was fined the minimum $50 and costs, in default 15 days, as his blood-alcohol count was 100.

Ray Coulombe, Waterloo, was fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days, for his part in an incident in Waterloo in 1973 when projectiles were fired at a Waterloo squad car from the Canada Hotel. He was ordered to make restitution for the damages as the sole clause of a probation order.

His accomplice, Alex Martin, will be sentenced April 22.

Library exhibits

SHERBROOKE (M1) — Sherbrooke's municipal library is undertaking to present an exposition of Swiss books between May 20-25.

Exhibited under the theme "four cultures — four languages", the books will be primarily in French, though there will be others in Switzerland's other languages: German, Italian and Romansh.

The demonstration's sub-themes will include: imagination and creativity, communication of ideas, research, religion and theology, education, nature, Swiss life and problems, and children's literature.

The exposition is organized by the Commission for Coordinating Foreign Promotion of Swiss Literature, in concert with the Quebec ministry of cultural affairs.

The vultures gather

Marshal Tito, who will be 82 in May, is reported to be gravely ill, and the vultures are already gathering over his unhappy land. The serious national divergencies within the federal Yugoslav state have been exacerbated by the re-emergence of the old Stalinists who are using racial Serb-Croat hatreds to foster their ideological cause.

The Yugoslav economy is ailing; and with the recession induced by the energy crises that stalk Western Europe, outlets for Yugoslav surplus labor—a source of valuable foreign currency—are drying up. Added to which, Yugoslavia's geographical location, between NATO in Italy and Greece and the Warsaw Pact countries surrounding her to the east, her proximity to the Middle East, and her quarrels with Greece and Bulgaria over Macedonia render her an important strategic pawn.

At present the West is in no position to counter the Soviet plans that are gradually unfolding in their grim outlines. Last month the Austrian periodical Profil and the government-run Austrian television carried startling revelations of Soviet contingency plans leaked by General Sejna, a former Czechoslovak liaison officer with the Warsaw pact. According to Gen. Sejna, who defected to the West in 1968, the plans envisaged a Communist invasion upon Marshal Tito's death of southern and eastern Austria to be carried out by Czechoslovak, rather than Soviet, troops—which would prevent any immediate NATO response. Austria would then be used as a base for operations to be mounted through the ancient seaward invasion route, the Klaffenfurt-Ljubljana Gap.

The Soviet Union would pause long enough to make sure NATO would not intervene—a fairly safe assumption considering the state of affairs in Brussels—and would then move in to occupy eastern and southern Austria Graz, which until the Soviet evacuation of divided Austria in 1955 served as the Soviet headquarters, would be reoccupied and the Russians would then decide which of the three options open to them to adopt: (1) a complete occupation of Austria, turning it into a satellite "people's democracy"; (2) a Finland-style regime with Austrian Communists occupying all the important posts in the Vienna government; (3) a neutral Austria, evacuated in exchange for NATO's acquiescence to the inclusion of Yugoslavia in the Warsaw pact.

The Yugoslavs are aware of these dangers and, to appease Moscow, Marshal Tito has already eliminated most of the liberal features of his own brand of communism. He hopes that Yugoslavia will thereby become a replica of Romania and thus acceptable to the Soviet Union. By suppressing all liberal opposition and doing away with the workers' self-management of industrial plants, the Yugoslavs would no longer present a challenge to the Soviet model of communism.

Furthermore, to preclude an "invitation" by local Stalinists summoning the Soviet forces to their aid—as happened in Prague in 1968—the new draft constitution contains special provisions making such acts treasonable and illegal. The constitution also strengthens the position of the Yugoslav armed forces, which, upon Marshal Tito's death, might well assume power to hold the country together.

However, the armed forces are weak and, should the Soviets make a deal with NATO over Austria, Yugoslavia would never receive the sophisticated weaponry she requires to put up a prolonged resistance to a Soviet-sponsored invasion. Such an invasion would undoubtedly be as ruthless as was that of Czechoslovakia and Hungary, and the Russians, anxious to return to this key country from which they were expelled in 1948, would pay little heed to constitutional niceties or a few thousand Yugoslav casualties.

They require Yugoslav space for their Mediterranean expansion—during the October war Soviet planes carrying war supplies to the Arabs used Yugoslav airports for refuelling. Also, the Russians will want to isolate and eventually take over Albania, still China's lonely outpost in Europe. And they are watching developments in Italy, now in the throes of a dangerous constitutional crisis.

After the May 12 referendum on divorce, the Communists might find themselves in a particularly favorable position to assume power either through a left-wing electoral victory or through a coup in which a local Communist militia would require support from Soviet bases. With such bases safely installed on the Yugoslav shore across the Adriatic, forces opposing a Communist take-over in Italy would have no chance at all.

All this may explain the steady increase in the Soviet armed might on the central front. The Soviet divisions stand there to deter any move by NATO, should the crunch come, to succor Austria and Yugoslavia.

Attempts to improve
U.S.-Common Market
relations affect us

BRUSSELS (CP)—Pronouncements by President Nixon and State Secretary Henry Kissinger about the strains between the United States and the European Common Market have been followed by a cooling-off period, setting the scene for renewed discussion on restoring co-operation.

The debate prompts concern that establishing solid channels of consultation between the Common Market and Washington at the same time might isolate Canada from the mainstream of Western decision-making.

Efforts to produce a formal set of principles about relations between Canada and the European Community—along the lines of a possible Brussels-Washington declaration—remain at an exploratory stage, diplomatic sources say.

The initiative came from the European side—notably the French—and Canada responded by discussing the idea with individual Community members.

BARGAINING STOPS

But now a pause has set in while the Americans, annoyed over separate European approaches to Arab oil states, review their own attempts to clarify U.S.-European goals.

There is a recognition in Canadian circles that a successful conclusion of an Ottawa-Common Market declaration depends on progress by Western Europe and the U.S. towards redefining their relations in the light of drastically changed world conditions.

Meanwhile, following the Nixon-Kissinger criticism, Americans and Europeans are exchanging feelers on closer consultations.

One of the major issues is whether the consultations should be held within NATO or whether some new arrangement should be devised.

This is the stage at which Canadians are beginning to worry about possible exclusion.

Joseph Luns, NATO secretary-general, favors keeping American-European consultations within the alliance.

COUNTRIES IGNORED

He argues this way because he fears that a number of alliance members including Canada might ultimately find themselves left out of key policy designing.

The Canadians are particularly apprehensive since they place importance on NATO as an outlet for their foreign policy views.

One Canadian theory is that Canada, for various reasons, is able to make its influence felt more through multilateral relationships, such as NATO, than through bilateral dealings.

Ottawa therefore feels an over-riding need to preserve NATO as a major means of Western policy-making.

Thus, fearing that NATO's importance may be jeopardized by Washington-European disagreements, the Canadians consider it in their interest that harmony be restored between the Common Market countries and the U.S.

The faster that comes about, the sooner a Common Market-Canadian declaration may materialize, they believe.

Kickback investigation
in N.B. right on schedule

FREDERICTON (CP)—An RCMP investigation into allegations that New Brunswick's only woman cabinet minister interfered with a tavern licence application to pay off political debts or win kickbacks for the Progressive Conservatives probably will be completed on schedule.

Chief Supt. J. B. Giroux, the RCMP's commanding officer in the province, says the investigation should be finished about the end of April as predicted earlier by Justice Minister John Baxter.

Social Services and Youth Minister Brenda Robertson, a 44-year-old home economist who has been a member of Premier Richard Hatfield's cabinet since the Conservatives won office in late 1970, has denied the allegations.

He says she simply made "responsible representation" on behalf of constituents concerned about the location of the proposed tavern.

Premier Hatfield defended Mrs. Robertson in the legislature but ordered the investigation when the problem was not resolved in the legislature and the legislature's privileges committee.

The allegations have emerged at a time when New Brunswick voters are waiting for word on the next provincial election, expected by many this year or early in 1975.

OFFERED EVIDENCE

Opposition financial critics W. W. Meldrum sparked the controversy last month when he said outside the house he had evidence which suggested Mrs. Robertson interfered with the licence.

The allegations revolve around Mel Baker, a 33-year-old communications technician from Riverview, a suburb near Moncton.

Mrs. Robertson's home is in that town, the largest community in her constituency of Albert.

Mr. Baker said his application to operate a tavern in the town was turned down last fall by the provincial Liquor Licensing Board about six months after he refused to go along with a kickback he says was suggested by Peter Crossman, a Conservative supporter.

Mr. Baker said Mr. Crossman claimed to have "political connections" with Mrs. Robertson and warned him the application would not be approved unless he received 50 per cent of the business without any financial contribution and they each paid two per cent of the business to two unnamed persons.

Mr. Baker said he and Mr. Crossman visited Mrs. Robertson at her home and were told she would do all she could to help them in a tavern application.

He said he returned the following day and asked her if she would block an application he made alone.

"She replied that she would," he said. "She told me that she had to follow the instructions of those who had worked for her and were responsible for her being elected. She said she had to do as she was told."

BOTH REJECTED

Both Mr. Baker and Mr. Crossman made applications to operate taverns in the community and both were turned down by the licensing board.

But a company known as Greenland Holdings Ltd. later received a licence to operate a beverage room in a new shopping centre where Mr. Crossman had intended to operate his tavern. He is a principal officer of Greenland Holdings.

Mrs. Robertson had admitted the two Riverview men had stopped at her home one weekend and asked for advice on making application to operate a tavern.

But she said she was never party to any discussions involving the two men in regard to funds for the party and had no knowledge of such discussions.

Commons pays tribute to Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons paid tribute last week to John Diefenbaker, marking the 34th anniversary of the former prime minister's first election to Parliament.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Mr. Diefenbaker's career in Parliament represented a "tremendous service to this country."

All-party applause followed and often interrupted tributes from spokesmen for each of the four parties. The Prince Albert MP was prime minister from 1957 to 1963.

Mr. Stanfield said Mr. Diefenbaker continues to be "a vigorous, eloquent and effective champion of the rights of Canadians and of the rights of the underdog."

As the longest-serving member in Parliament, Mr. Diefenbaker, 78, was dean of the House and an example to all other members.

Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader and second-longest sitting member, recalled the day Mr. Diefenbaker was first elected to the Commons—March 26, 1940.

"I was defeated that day," Mr. Knowles said.

Mr. Diefenbaker had been a great defender of civil liberties and fundamental human rights.

Rene Matte (SC—Champlain) spoke of the integrity of Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker had not been well understood in Quebec and had not understood Quebec well, but Quebecers recognize the former prime minister as one of the greatest politicians in Canada.

Allan MacEachen, government House leader and the Liberal member with the longest service in the Commons, spoke of the "esteem with which he (Mr. Diefenbaker) is held on this side of the House."

Mr. MacEachen said the applause from the Liberal benches showed the respect government members have for Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker, whose wife watched the proceedings, thanked the Commons for the "all-too-generous words."

He said he has constantly been learning more about the greatness of Parliament in his 34 years.

The older I become, the more I have an affection for this institution and its members."

While Mrs. Diefenbaker passed out cake, her husband greeted visitors, and talked about his early days in Parliament.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been a member for 47 years and Sir John A. Macdonald, counting his service in pre-Confederation legislatures, for 48 years.

"There, I see an objective," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Later, Mr. Diefenbaker's staff arranged a coffee-and-cake party in his office where, as they do for all his anniversaries and birthdays, friends dropped in to shake hands with "The Chief."

"I had no idea this was happening," Mr. Diefenbaker said, repeating what he has said at many previous events. "I told them, 'never again'."

While Mrs. Diefenbaker passed out cake, her husband greeted visitors, and talked about his early days in Parliament.

Secret FCC report raps children's TV

WASHINGTON—An explosive Federal Communications Commission study which would reform the inane world of children's television, has been stuffed in a government safe. Meanwhile, its supporters on the commission have been replaced by bosom pals of big broadcasters.

The report demands an end to hard-sell ads to kids, cutbacks in witless cartoons and more decent children's shows scheduled at appropriate hours. Violators, no matter how powerful, would risk loss of their licenses.

Had the study been accepted by the FCC, it would have cost the broadcast industry tens of millions of dollars a year. The broadcasters would have been compelled to produce more programs for children and to slice their 32 commercials per hour to no more than 18. This is the generous allotment currently allowed to adult shows.

These and other dramatic changes were envisioned by former FCC Chairman Dean Burch.

Outraged at what he had personally seen of children's programming, he set up a special Children's Television Unit in September 1971. At its head was tough-minded Dr. Elizabeth Roberts, an ex-coordinator of the White House Conference on Children and Youth. For months, the Roberts team studied the puerile world of children's TV.

Four months ago, she delivered the sizzling document to Burch, who forthwith locked it up in his office. Since then, Burch has moved to the White House and his two staunchest allies in the matter, Commissioners Nick Johnson and Rex Lee, have left the FCC.

We have now obtained a bootleg copy of the suppressed document from under the nose of the new chairman, Richard Wiley. As general counsel and commissioner, Wiley, according to FCC sources, was kinder to network treasuries than to children's welfare. The report's recommendations, therefore, are now in jeopardy.

The 45-page document condemns out of hand the "noise, violence, or frantic activity" that broadcasters use to keep children mesmerized before TV sets.

Years ago, says the report, the networks aired imaginative, decent children's programs on weekdays. But now, cheap cartoons and other movies keep the broadcast coffers full while good shows have dwindled to extinction "with the notable exception of Captain Kangaroo."

The FCC study is even tougher on advertising. Children are "inundated with numerous commercial messages that may be misleading or false to the literal and immature mind of a child." The broadcasters "manipulate his needs" in a manner "destructive to the child's development..." Observes the report acidly:

"Common sense tells us that commercials presented to sell products to three-, four- and five-year-olds are improper under any civilized public interest standard."

The Roberts report asks for an end to all advertising on shows for pre-school children, saying it is "inherently deceptive." The study would also ban mention of advertised products by "hosts" on children's programs. Kids tend to build a "special relationship" with their hosts, some of whom seem only intent on gulling them.

Finally, the study would drastically cut back advertising on kid's shows from the present 16 minutes per hour to a still generous nine minutes and thirty seconds, the current voluntary maximum for adult shows.

At the FCC, Chairman Wiley gave us a ringing declaration of independence from the past. He insisted that children's programming was "on the front burner" with him and pointed out that he had only been chairman with power to change things for 10 days. At the White House, a spokesman for Dean Burch said the ex-FCC chairman planned to keep an eye on progress. He insisted there was no intentional stalling on the report, saying it took time to consolidate several studies on the subject.

Forgotten Memorial: Eisenhower College was founded with high hopes and ambitions eight years ago in honor of the 33rd President and World War II leader. Its students and faculty were well above the national average and growing rapidly when disaster struck in 1972.

Suddenly, federal aid began dwindling, tighter money made private grants more difficult and the school that was supposed to be a living memorial to "Ike" had to face the possibility that it would die.

Now, despite a game struggle, the college is in the hole for more than $350,000. A Herculean effort to obtain longterm aid of $10 million has been bottled up by the same Congress that grants billions to the Pentagon which "Ike" once served. Later, upon his retirement, he warned the American people about the "military-industrial complex."

Even a modest request to share in the proceeds from the sale of memorial Eisenhower silver dollars was turned down. President John Rosenkrans, from his college office in Seneca Falls, N.Y., told us, his voice literally choking at times, of the heart-breaking efforts administrators and students alike have been making to keep Eisenhower College going. But without help by April 8th, the living memorial to the "man of peace" may soon be sharing his grave.

Footnote: Some of the leftover millions, collected for President Nixon's 1972 campaign and still in the bank, could be used for the college named after Nixon's former boss in the White House. Certainly, this would be better than giving it to the likes of John Mitchell and Maurice Stans, as has been proposed, to pay their legal expenses.

Bridal shower

BEEBE — On arriving at the home of a friend, Linda Warner on the pretense of a dress fitting, Susan Wallace, a bride-to-be was taken by complete surprise to find she was being showered in honor of her approaching marriage.

Miss Warner presented the bride-elect with a corsage of kitchen gadgets and escorted her to a chair, under an arch of green and white streamers and colored balloons, seated by a table nicely arranged with wrapped and ribboned packages.

Assisted by the mother of the prospective groom, Mrs. S. Mooney, who was also presented with a floral corsage, the honored guest opened the packages which revealed electrical appliances, linens, glassware and many other useful articles for her new home.

Miss Warner made a hat with the bows and ribbons which was worn by Susan, who in a few well chosen words expressed her thanks for the lovely gifts and pleasant afternoon.

A decorated cake in heart shape, iced in white with red roses as trimmings, topped with inscription, "Best Wishes, Susan", centered the luncheon table. The cake was made by Mrs. Gaston Mongeau.

Refreshments were served by Miss Linda Warner assisted by her mother, Miss Lyndon Warner who planned and prepared the luncheon menu.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Problem with heart flutters

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — For approximately five years my wife has had periods where her heart pounds hard or flutters, she feels faint and her fingers tingle. I cannot feel any pulse at her wrist during these periods. These actions used to be spaced months apart, but lately they are a lot closer together, and the periods last longer (10 minutes). She has seen a doctor of internal medicine who gave her an electrocardiogram test twice. Each time he has said "there is nothing wrong, you are a woman and lots of people have these spells all the time." This alibi does not help you at all.

As I understand it, an electrocardiogram test shows heart damage or change. We would like to remedy this problem before the damage is done.

She is 40, not overweight, does not drink or smoke. Would you have any comments on this situation?

DEAR READER — From your story, I presume your wife started having this problem when she was about 35. The story suggests two possible causes. Your wife may be having an irregularity of the heart. These may occur in attacks as you describe. In this case often the only evidence of the irregularity that you can see on an electrocardiogram occurs during the attack. The heart tracing really has two purposes, first it shows the rate and rhythm of the heartbeat, and second it provides evidence of heart muscle damage, as in the case of a heart attack.

Doctors and patients are both frustrated with recurrent attacks of irregularity. It seems that the episodes have a way of happening outside the doctor's office and never when he wants to take a record to see what it is.

There is a solution to this too, but it is sometimes difficult to accomplish and expensive. The new portable tape recorders can record your heart rate continuously for hours and even days, and when the attack occurs you then have a record of what it really was.

I would like to reassure you that most of the irregularities of the heart, in a young person who has no evidence of heart disease, are not really dangerous. They are very annoying. Your wife is probably in this category because her medical examination didn't show anything.

Incidentally, irregularities of this sort can be treated if that is what the problem is. There are medicines that can be taken to calm down the heart muscle and prevent the irregular beats from taking over the heart.

The other possibility is that your wife may be over breathing, a condition called hyperventilation. I think of this because of your comment about her hands tingling. Overbreathing can cause irregularities of the heart and the tingling sensation. The next time your wife has one of these ask her to breathe very slowly and in a shallow manner. That may help her. Do not ask her to hold her breath. Breath holding in these circumstances can cause her to pass out.

Church Events

HATLEY — The March meeting of the Anglican Church Women was held in the Church Hall on Wednesday afternoon, March 20 at 2 o'clock, with Mrs. Beaven Bowen presiding over the meeting for the co-president, Mrs. Bray who is still confined to her home.

The Devotional service from the Living Message was taken by the Rector, Rev. Ron Smith.

A newsletter from the Douglas Hospital was read and several members were to send birthday cards to the forgotten patient for his birthday on March 28.

It was decided to have the annual spring rummage sale in the hall on Saturday, April 20 and a card party on Friday evening, April 26.

Mrs. Gerald Johann was appointed from the A.C.W. as representative on the Church Committee and also to act with the Rector and Wardens on the Hall Committee to draw up certain rules and regulations.

Several other items were discussed and left over to the next meeting when more members might be present.

+++++ The Hatley United Church Women held their annual St. Patrick's Fish dinner in the Vestry on Wednesday, March 20, with a fair attendance.

Following the dinner a business meeting was held with Mrs. Dorine Morse in charge.

The Purpose was repeated in unison and Mrs. Elsie Drew read the worship service.

The minutes and financial report were given by Mrs. H. Ayer.

Social & Personal

Mrs. Leo Williams has returned to her home in Willowdale, Ont., after a two week visit at the home of Mrs. Annie Williams, Queen Street, Lennoxville and with other relatives and friends.

+++++ Mr. and Mrs. David Watson of Garden Hill, Ont., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Herring, Queen Street, Lennoxville, and called on other friends while here.

WI meeting

BEEBE — The March meeting of the Beebe Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Agnes Myers, with co-hostesses Mrs. Frances Finlayson and Mrs. Charles Aulis.

Co-president, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller opened the meeting with the singing of the opening Ode and repeating of the Mary Stewart Collect.

Roll call was answered by payment of membership dues.

Routine reports and correspondence were read and attended to where needed.

Cast for the county competitive play was named. Practices to start as soon as possible.

Several packages of stamps were handed in.

Annual reports of each convener was given which showed a very active year for the branch.

This concluded all old business.

New business included the naming of new officers: Co-presidents, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller and Mrs. Ezra Woodard.

1st Vice-president - Mrs. Margaret Mosher.

2nd vice-president - Mrs. Elizabeth Cass.

Secretary - Mrs. Clarence

Nutbrown: Treasurer - Mrs. Austin Young.

Conveners: Agriculture - Mrs. C. Bullock.

Home Economic - Miss V. Moranville.

Welfare and Health - Mrs. O. Palmer.

Citizenship - Mrs. Frances Finlayson.

Education - Mrs. Enid Cooke.

Sunshine - Mrs. J. Finlayson.

Publicity - Mrs. C. Aulis.

Delegate to County Annual meeting, Mrs. Aulis.

August county meeting, Mrs. E. Woodard and October, Mrs. Oscar Reeves, alternate Mrs. G. Boisvert.

Mrs. Cooke, education convener, was delegated to attend convention at Macdonald College. Mrs. Cooke's name was also suggested as county education convener.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. G. Boisvert, when Mother's Day flowers will be made.

Miss Moranville read a very interesting article on skin allergies.

Following adjournment of the business session, refreshments were served by the hostesses and a social time enjoyed.

Blood type problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read your advice to the young woman who was concerned about marrying a man with whom she was very much in love because her blood type was Rh negative and his was Rh positive. An aunt who was a registered nurse told her that such blood types often produce children with blood disease, and many do not survive.

Your answer to that frightened girl's question was a far cry from the standard of excellence I have grown to expect from you.

My blood type is Rh negative and my husband's is Rh positive. We have four beautiful, healthy children thanks to a procedure discovered about six years ago. Did you check with a physician before you wrote that reply?

Taken Aback

DEAR TAKEN: No, I did not, and I'm ashamed of myself. I always advise pregnant women to see an obstetrician as soon as possible, and I hope she did. Ten lashes with a wet noodle won't do this time. I deserve twenty. With my stellar array of medical consultants, I certainly should have talked to somebody.

The correct advice that follows was checked out with Dr. Friedrich Deinhardt, Chairman of the Department of Microbiology at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago.

When a pregnant woman is Rh negative and her husband is Rh positive, there is always the possibility that her baby will be Rh positive.

The first child is never affected. But the second child and those that follow may be. The mother can now receive an injection after the birth of an Rh positive baby. By so doing, the chances that her next child will have a blood disease are reduced considerably.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll bet you are catching hell from all sorts of physicians and geneticists around the country. Today, I happened to see a colleague, Dr. Emmanuel Hackel, a very good human geneticist.

He informed me that he was surprised that you had not done a better job of responding to the woman with the Rh blood problem and said, "I wrote at once to Miss Landers to straighten her out." I told Dr. Hackel that I had written to you also and had already received a reply.

Again you have provided me with another excellent question for finals. As you know, I use material from your column as questions for my exams. So thanks once more for helping me out.

— Donald J. Weinschenk, Associate Professor, Michigan State University

DEAR D.J.W.: Glad to be of service. Sorry I didn't telephone you before I hatched that bumper. I'll know better next time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Many women have written to bemoan the fact that they are flat-chested and they ask if exercise will help. Or they want to know about silicone shots or implants.

I am just fine up front, it's what's behind that bothers me. I have absolutely no fanny. Can you suggest something? — Flat Felicia

DEAR F.: Many lingerie shops have girdles with padding. The shaping is most realistic and creates a foolproof optical illusion. So go out and buy one (or have one made) and you, too, can look well-reared.

CONFIDENTIAL TO EASIER SAID THAN DONE: True, but I suspect he'd get a lot more done if less was said. Try it.

+++++ What's proudest? What's O.K.? If you aren't sure, you need some help. It's available in the booklet, "Necking and Petting — What Are the Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Feted on birthday

STANBRIDGE EAST — Mr. Bernard Enright was taken by surprise when, on his return from his night chores, on entering the house, his six brothers, and their wives, had gathered to wish him a "happy birthday."

Later in the evening, his sister Agnes and her husband arrived from Thetford Mines. Another sister, Ethylene, who resides in New Carlisle, was unable to be present.

A pleasant evening was spent, as it had been a considerable time since the family had had an opportunity to all be together.

At midnight, a dainty lunch was served, including the traditional birthday cake, made and trimmed by Mrs. B. Enright.

Mrs. Wilfrid Bonneville and Mr. Robert Enright assisted Mrs. Enright in serving lunch. Before leaving in the late hours, everyone wished Mr. Enright many more years of good health.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Quinlin, Mr. and Mrs. Clair Enright, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Enright, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Enright, Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Enright, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Enright, all of Bromont (West Shefford), Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Keenan of Thetford Mines, Mrs. Irene Enright of Cowansville and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Bonneville of Bedford.

Oscar preview

A long neglect will be remedied

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Motion Picture Academy will give Groucho Marx an honorary Oscar next Tuesday, salving its conscience for a long neglect of comedy.

During most of its 46-year history, the academy has rewarded the dramatic accomplishments of Hollywood while ignoring the artists who make audiences laugh. As a result, the classic funnymen have failed to win Oscars for their performances—Charlie Chaplin, Harold Lloyd, W. C. Fields, Laurel and Hardy, Buster Keaton and the Marx Brothers.

Nor has the academy given awards for the work of such latter-day comics as Bob Hope, Red Skelton, Jerry Lewis, Danny Kaye, Woody Allen. Even the acknowledged master of light comedy, Cary Grant, was overlooked.

The academy's board of governors has remedied the oversight with the device of this honorary award, usually with such a phrase as "for distinguished service to the art of screen comedy."

Special Oscars were presented to Edgar Bergen in 1937; Lloyd and Hope, 1952; Kaye, 1954; Eddie Cantor, 1956; Keaton, 1959; Stan Laurel, 1960; Grant, 1969; Chaplin, 1971.

This year, Groucho. When the 83-year-old comedian learned of the honor, he responded in character: "My brothers and I should have gotten it long ago."

Marx deplored the academy's traditional neglect of comedians and predicted that some day an Oscar will be given to Woody Allen. It will not happen this year, even though Allen's new comedy, Sleeper, has been hailed as his best. The film received no nominations. An anonymous full-page ad appeared in Daily Variety:

"Congratulations to the academy for turning its back on talent and artistry once again by ignoring Woody Allen and his superb film Sleeper in the Academy Award nominations. Charlie Chaplin and the Marx Brothers never got any Oscars for their performances either. Doesn't anyone out there like to laugh?"

One way for a comedian to receive award recognition is to undertake a serious role. Thus Cary Grant received his only two academy nominations for dramas—Penny Serenade in 1941 and None But the Lonely Heart in 1944.

This year Jack Lemmon, who inherited Grant's position as the screen's No. 1 light comedian, has been nominated for best actor in his most dramatic performance, in Save the Tiger. Lemmon, who in 1955 won a rare Oscar for a comedy role—supporting actor, Mister Roberts—faces strong competition.

There is Marlon Brando, who might ordinarily be considered the favorite for his stunning portrait of a burned-out life in Last Tango in Paris. But Brando offended the academy voters by turning down his Oscar last year in a bizarre manner.

Also in the running for best actor of 1973 are three relative newcomers: Jack Nicholson of The Last Detail; Al Pacino, Serpico; and Robert Redford, The Sting.

All are engaging and popular performers, but their roles lacked the depth of Lemmon's and Brando's. Because the academy shows no tendency to masochism, it is doubtful that it will risk another Brandoian rejection. Lemmon is the likely winner.

MAJOR PREDICTIONS

Here are how the other major races look to a longtime Oscar watcher:

Best actress—No single galvanic performance overshadows all. Glenda Jackson did surprisingly comedic work in A Touch of Class, but as noted above, comedy rarely wins.

Best picture—Academy voters can overlook a film's deficiencies if it is a big money-maker, and hence the flawed The Exorcist appears the winner.

Also running: American Graffiti, Cries and Whispers, The Sting, A Touch of Class.

Best supporting actor—John Houseman, a distinguished producer who had never acted in a film before, performed marvelously as the frosty professor of law in Paper Chase. He's the favorite.

Again, The Exorcist might sweep the Oscar to Jason Miller. And there is popular sentiment for all three of the other candidates: Vincent Gardenia, Bang the Drum Slowly; Jack Gilford, Save the Tiger; Randy Quaid, The Last Detail.

Best supporting actress—This is the most difficult race to predict. Will Linda Blair win as the demonized girl of The Exorcist or will the voters feel her performance was based on trick makeup and photography? Will Tatum O'Neal be rewarded as the worldly con girl in Paper Moon or will voters conclude that she was merely playing Tatum O'Neal?

Two other young performers are nominated: Candy Clark for American Graffiti and Madeline Kahn for Paper Moon. Also a figure of Hollywood's past, Sylvia Sidney of Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams. Best guess: the academy will go for sentiment and Miss Sidney.

Best director—For previously stated reasons, William Friedkin should be chosen for The Exorcist. Others nominated are George Lucas, American Graffiti; Ingmar Bergman, Cries and Whispers; Bernardo Bertolucci, Last Tango in Paris; George Roy Hill, The Sting.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Dorothy Sims, wife of Hal Sims and one of the great players, divided experts into two classes. The top ones were sharks. The lesser ones were fresh-water sharks, who were never dangerous to the real tough ones like her husband.

Here we see Hal at work in a match-point game. His opening bid was a Sims three bid which asked for aces. North's response showed the missing ace.

Hal was now able to count 12 top tricks and he felt certain that the Lord would provide the 13th so he went right to the maximum seven notrump contract.

Dummy was disappointing. The only way to get the 13th trick unless the king of hearts would be singleton was to locate the queen of spades, but this was duck soup to Hal who was playing against mere fresh-water sharks. Hal knew that they would try to misdirect him. He won the club lead, cashed the second club and ace of hearts and then ran off diamonds. This made it easy for both opponents to see that they had to protect spades to the best of their ability.

The shark sitting West saw that he would have to come down to the king of hearts and just two spades so he threw two spades very early in his discarding. Thus, he tried to look like a man who did not have a high spade. Hal promptly played him for her ladyship and made the grand slam.

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1♣	1♥	Pass	1♠
Pass	5♣	Pass	7

You, South, hold:
♠ A K 7 6 ♣ A K 7 6 ♦ 3 2 ♣ K 10 3

What do you do now?
A — Bid five spades. You are going to a slam in any event. Maybe your partner will want to bid seven.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding one heart your partner has passed over the diamond overcall. East passes also. What do you do?

Tuesday, April 2
The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Even those who remain at home are apt to experience something unexpected so be alert for surprises today.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Something that has been puzzling you may be clarified when and where you least expect it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): First things first. Do what is necessary around the house, then enjoy the merrier around you.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Day may be quieter than usual, but you tend to be a bit rather than a minus. Transits are harmonious.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): The desire to please everybody is strong, but unreasonable. Just do the best you can, then relax.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Safety warnings are up. Be careful about fire, electrical wiring, etc., as well as cautious driving.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Things should be shaping up better along lines of heart interests, making this a really super day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You're on the right track so don't be conned into changing your mind at this late date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You may be up so early in the morning that you'll be ready for a nap before going out for dinner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Be sure you're right, then plunge ahead. Don't be swayed by detractors who have their own ax to grind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A move in the right direction now could pave the way for a brighter tomorrow, so don't hesitate to act.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): A time for sociability and good fellowship. Don't sit around reminiscing about the good old days!

UCW meetings

BRIGHAM — The United Church Women held their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Clare Goodhue and Misses Helen and Doris Dougall on Wed. March 13, with a good attendance.

The Pres., Miss Grace Hawthorne, chaired the meeting and Mrs. Owen Patterson led the Devotional Period, the theme being "Haste Makes Waste", and consisted of readings, prayer, and two hymns were sung accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Clark Powers.

During the business period, after some discussion, it was decided to have the hall redecorated as soon as possible and also to enquire about having some necessary repairs done to some of the furnishings in the hall.

Plans were made for the April meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. Denis Wilkinson on Wed. April 10, when Mrs. Douglas Warren of Knowlton, Regional Vice-pres., will be a guest.

After the business was attended to, Mrs. George Patterson held a contest in keeping with St. Patrick's Day which provided a great deal of enjoyment for all. This was followed by refreshments being served by the hostesses.

CLEVELAND — The New London Unit of the U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Gladys Perkins with nine members and two visitors present.

The devotional period conducted by Mrs. O. Taylor had the theme, "Common Personal Problems."

Roll call was answered by reporting 29 Wales Home and five local calls had been made. It was decided this unit would have two flower stands put in the church as a memorial to the late Mrs. Chas. Tozer.

Despite uncertain future Northmen sign Miami trio

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Northmen have three outstanding National Football Leaguers under contract for the 1975 season but their future in Canada remains a question mark.

The Northmen supplied the fledgling World Football League with credibility Sunday by signing running backs Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick and wide receiver Paul Warfield of the Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins.

While Toronto owner John F. Bassett and general manager Leo Cahill were optimistic, Joe Robbie, Miami's managing general partner, was bitter about the negotiations. And the federal government continued work on legislation that would ban the WFL from Canada.

Bassett told a news conference he is looking forward to having Csonka, Kiick and Warfield join the Northmen next fall "and hopefully we'll play in Toronto."

"We want to put a football team on the field that will be competitive with anyone in the world and we're just starting the right way" by signing the three players to three-year contracts for a figure reported in excess of $3 million.

'SABOTAGED TALKS'

Robbie said Ed Keating of Cleveland, who represented the three in negotiations, had sabotaged talks with the Dolphins.

He said he spoke with Keating by phone earlier Sunday and was told the Toronto offer "might not exist if they did not accept it today."

Robbie said he tried to get the players to return to Miami for further discussions, but Keating responded with a "take-it-or-leave-it demand." The Miami owner refused to negotiate further by telephone.

His contracts with Csonka, Kiick and Warfield ran out at the end of the 1973 season but they are obligated to play out their option year, 1974, with Miami before joining the Northmen.

Csonka told reporters the trio would be paid the full amount by the Northmen even if the WFL never gets off the ground.

No one would discuss how the $3 million package would be doled out, but obviously Csonka, 27, who has gained more than 1,000 yards along the ground in each of the last three seasons, would be expected to get the largest share.

KIICK IS VERSATILE

Kiick, 27, is a versatile halfback, excelling as a blocker as well as runner and pass catcher.

Warfield, 32, in the twilight of a spectacular career, showed no signs of slowing down in 1973 as the Dolphins won their second successive Super Bowl.

Bassett said the other teams in the WFL would help the Northmen meet the contract obligations, similar to the obligations assumed two years ago when Bobby Hull left the National Hockey League to join the new World Hockey Association's Winnipeg Jets.

Bassett, who also controls the WHA Toronto Toros and the Toronto franchise of World Team Tennis, said the signings ensure the WFL instant recognition.

Keating, who spoke to Miami shortly before the signings, said:

"We asked Miami to match the contracts but they would not negotiate on the phone. First they asked for two days and then for two hours. They have had since the Super Bowl to settle this."

HOPES FOR CHANGE

Cahill said that by signing the Miami threesome it was hoped the federal government might reconsider its move to expel the WFL.

"Our objective is to play in Canada, play in Toronto, and I think there will be a lot of public opinion favoring us when they know that we're serious about signing quality players like this," Cahill said.

In Ottawa, however, a spokesman for Health Minister Marc Lalonde called the signings "stupid." Federal legislation to protect the Canadian Football League by banning the WFL in Canada is expected before Parliament by Easter.

Csonka said signing with the Northmen would not alter his performance with the Dolphins this year.

The 6-foot-4 240 pounder said he expected Miami would exercise its option clause, "so I will in fact play for the Miami Dolphins this year."

CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur, who admits to the threat the WFL would pose to his league were they allowed to settle in Toronto, said he wasn't surprised about the signings.

"This merely emphasizes the basis of our concern that we have mentioned before—that we (the CFL) would plainly be overwhelmed by affluence," he said.

Lyttle's homer, McAnally's pitching pace Expos' 6-5 win over Baltimore

Most of the pitchers aren't ahead of the hitters any longer.

California strikeout king Nolan Ryan fanned eight Los Angeles batters in seven innings but also walked six and gave up six runs on seven hits—including Joe Ferguson's homer—as the Dodgers whipped the Angels 8-4 Sunday in an exhibition baseball game.

Mike Anderson, Willie Montanez and Mike Schmidt homered off Pittsburgh's Dock Ellis as Philadelphia Phillies trimmed the Pirates 9-5. The Phillies tagged Ellis for 11 hits and all nine runs in six innings.

Oakland's Catfish Hunter was raked for 11 hits and nine runs in four innings as San Francisco Giants whacked the As 13-4. Dave Kingman, Dave Rader, Gary Matthews and Jim Willoughby all contributed triples to the Giants' 18-hit attack while Tito Fuentes had three singles.

Kansas City Royals tagged Luis Tiant, Boston's 20-game winner, for eight hits and seven runs while the Red Sox tattooed Paul Splittorff, KC's 20-game winner, for six runs on nine hits. The Royals won 9-6.

Fran Healy, who doubled and tripled off Tiant, walloped a two-run homer off Rogelio Moret and finished with four runs batted in. Danny Cater and Cecil Cooper paced the Boston attack with three hits each.

TIGERS TRIUMPH

Detroit Tigers whacked Don Gullett and Tom Hall for four runs each—Willie Horton drove in four—and downed Cincinnati Reds 8-3. Horton had a two-run homer off Gullett and a two-run double off Hall.

Milwaukee's Clyde Wright surrendered home runs to Cleveland's Charlie Spikes and Dave Duncan on consecutive pitches in the Brewers' 6-2 loss to the Indians.

Pat Dobson pitched seven innings of one-hit ball and Graig Nettles drilled a two-run single to lead New York Yankees to a 2-1 victory over New York Mets.

Bob Gibson of St. Louis tuned up for his 10th straight opening day assignment by yielding seven hits in as many innings as the Cardinals downed Chicago White Sox 5-2.

Montreal's Ernie McAnally hurled seven strong innings—he limited Baltimore to three singles and retired 10 straight batters at one stretch—and the Expos held on to edge the Orioles 6-5. Jim Lyttle homered for the winners and Jim Fuller hit a three-run shot for the Birds.

Willie McCovey's homer in the 10th inning gave San Diego Padres a 4-3 triumph over Chicago Cubs.

Mike Easler's tie-breaking bases-loaded single in the ninth inning enabled Houston Astros to nip Texas Rangers 5-4.

Minnesota first baseman Jim Holt booted Dusty Baker's dribbler in the ninth inning, allowing two Atlanta runs to score and lifting the Braves to a 6-5 victory over the Twins.

Clippers end on winning note

Rochester Americans and Baltimore clippers capped pennant-winning seasons Sunday night by closing out the 1973-74 American Hockey League schedules on a winning note.

The Americans, runaway leaders in the AHL North, crushed Richmond Robins 5-1 while the Clippers, who edged Hershey Bears in the South, beat Virginia Red Wings 7-1.

Elsewhere in season-ending contests, Nova Scotia Voyageurs beat Boston Braves 5-3. Hershey beat the defending champion Cincinnati Swords 5-1 and Jacksonville Barons defeated Providence Reds 5-2.

Baltimore, in effect, clinched the South Division standings Saturday night by stopping New Haven Nighthawks 8-4. It was the Clippers' 41st victory and would have given them the edge in the win column in the event of a tie in the final standings.

In other Saturday games, Nova Scotia beat Springfield Kings 4-1. Cincinnati tripped Baltimore 5-1 and Hershey took Virginia 6-3.

Rochester 5 Richmond 1

Murray Kuntz' 51st goal of the year, an AHL record, paced the Americans' home-ice attack while team-mate Art Stratton set a club season record while assisting on three scores, bringing his year's total to 71.

Ron Dussumme, Bob Ellett, Ross Butler and Dick Mattiussi also hit for Rochester.

Baltimore 7 Virginia 1

Yvon Rolando's three goals lifted Baltimore to its easy win at Norfolk, Va. Howie Menard, Marc Dufour, Barry Salovaara and Dave Gilmour completed the rout.

Nova Scotia 5 Boston 3

Larry Fullan and Greg Hubick, with two goals each, and Jean Shanahan were the Voyageur marksmen at Halifax. Steve Stirling, Ron Boem and Dave Hynes replied for Boston.

Hershey 5 Cincinnati 1

The Bears claimed second place in the South with the Swords with their final-game win at Cincinnati. Dwayne Rupp and Robin Burns scored two minutes apart in the first period and Hugh Harvey and Jim Hryciuk tallied 24 seconds apart to lead Hershey.

Randy Wyrozub opened the scoring for Cincinnati, but the Swords wound up on the losing end for the seventh time in eight meetings this year between the two clubs.

Jacksonville 5 Providence 2

Kevin Ahearn's three goals topped the hometown Barons' scoring burst. Lou Nistico and Al Rycroft added to the Jacksonville score while Don Borgeson and Jeff Hunt connected for Providence.

English soccer has new performer

Beavers top Montreal

Sherbrooke Beavers picked an opportune time to win their first game in the Montreal Forum this season.

A goal by Fernand Leblanc at 16:20 of the third period broke a 3-3 tie and the Beavers edged Montreal Juniors 4-3 Sunday night to even their best-of-seven Quebec Major Junior Hockey League playoff series at a game apiece.

In other quarter-final play, Sorel Black Hawks took a 3-0 lead over Trois-Rivieres in their series by defeating the Draveurs 5-2 while Quebec Remparts downed Shawinigan Dynamos 4-2 and Laval Nationals outscored Cornwall Royals 11-6. Both Quebec and Laval now hold 2-0 leads in their respective quarter-final sets.

Michel Brisebois with two and Sid Veysey completed the Sherbrooke scoring while Blair Mackasey, Normand Dupont and Denis Daigle replied for Montreal.

Robert Ritchie scored two goals and Lucien deBlois, Michel Bergeron and Michel Fréchette added one each for Sorel against Trois-Rivieres.

Alain Daigle and Mario Rouillard scored for the Draveurs.

BATEMAN BREAKS TIE

Jamie Bateman's goal at 10:50 of the third period snapped a 2-2 tie and Quebec went on to defeat the Dynamos. Richard Nantais, Jacques Locas and Guy Chouinard got the other Quebec goals.

Gaby Jourdain and Yves Bernier replied for Shawinigan. Gaetan Potvin, Mario Piacente, Michel Bossy, Claude Dupuis and Yvon Vautour each scored twice as Laval outlasted the Royals. Jean-Pierre Vezina added Laval's other goal with Gary MacGregor, Pierre Brassard, Doug Chase, Kevin Tracy, Yvon Disotell and John Markell scoring for Cornwall.

Tuesday night, Sorel visits Trois-Rivieres. Shawinigan goes to Quebec. Laval is in Cornwall and Sherbrooke plays host to Montreal.

LONDON (Reuter) — English soccer now has its own Muhammad Ali, with a loud mouth and a killer punch—Malcolm (Supermac) MacDonald.

The Newcastle United striker warned his Burnley opponents before Saturday's F.A. Cup semi-final that there was no way they could stop him.

"I'm already smouldering," he said, pointing out that he is the country's greatest centre forward. "No one can hold me when I'm in the mood."

Supermac battled through a foul tackle and rammed in Newcastle's first goal in the 65th minute. Eleven minutes later, he did it again for a 2-0 victory.

The final May 4—against Liverpool or Leicester, who drew 0-0 Saturday and replay Wednesday—will be Newcastle's 11th, a record for English soccer.

MacDonald now looks likely to fill the centre-forward spot for England's game against Portugal in Lisbon Wednesday.

LOSES FOUR PLAYERS

But Sir Alf Ramsey will have to come up with another goalkeeper for the Lisbon match, as Leicester's Peter Shilton and Liverpool's Ray Clemence will be involved in the Cup replay at Birmingham, as will their respective teammates Frank Worthington and Emyln Hughes.

Meanwhile, in the league, West Ham United beat leaders Leeds United 3-1. It was the Yorkshiremen's third defeat in a row.

Liverpool, the reigning champions, have three extra matches in which to close the four-point gap.

Allan Clarke, who now starts a two-game suspension, put Leeds ahead in the 32nd minute, but United swept back after the interval with goals by Clyde Best, Bobby Robson and Trevor Brooking.

While Manchester United—despite a surprise 3-1 win at Chelsea—and Norwich look doomed to relegation, Birmingham kept alive its hopes with a 1-0 home triumph over Sheffield United.

Middlesbrough, already certain of promotion, clinched the Second Division title with a 1-0 win over its nearest rivals, Luton.

In Scotland, the Rangers claimed a world record of 10,000 goals in their history after thrashing Clyde 4-0 to take second place behind Celtic, which was held 3-3 at home by Dumbarton.

Eddie Shore is always eager to impart hockey wisdom to those who want help

NEW YORK (CP) — Eddie Shore was rocking gently on the balls of his feet, shifting his weight and showing the young hockey player the importance of body position.

A couple of shoves by Shore sent the player quickly off balance.

The scene was the Lester Patrick Awards dinner last week and Shore, still trim and rock hard at 71, was eager to impart his wisdom to the young players who came up to talk to him.

His shiny pate and face show only a trace of the scars of hockey wars of the 1920s and 1930s, when he was one of the most ruthless defencemen in the National Hockey League.

His aggressiveness made opponents reel when he played for Boston Bruins from 1926 to 1939. It helped put him in the NHL's Hall of Fame.

"I loved to hit," Shore said in an interview. "But sometimes it depends on where your elbows are, where your hands are, and if your body position is right you can hit hard, the same as football, baseball, golf or anything else. Body position is the key for most athletes."

Shore came out of Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., and was brought to Boston by Charles F. Adams, founder of the Bruins, in 1924.

The stories about Shore are legend. He is said to have tramped the streets of Boston one winter night looking for a doctor who would sew up an ear that had been nearly severed during a game.

Doctors thought the ear couldn't be saved, but Eddie finally found a doctor who agreed to try. Shore shunned an anesthetic, and told the doctor: "Just give me a mirror. I want to be sure you sew it on right."

Shore still owns the Springfield franchise in the American Hockey League, which is operated by Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the NHL's Los Angeles Kings. Cooke provides the players and management. Shore also has the concessions in the Springfield arena.

Shore weighs 181, just one pound more than his weight when he started out a hockey season. He said that he would be down to anywhere from 173 to 164 as the season progressed.

He feels the player of today drawing a high salary, with lawyers and agents to guide him, may not be thinking for himself.

He is critical of over-protection. "I don't buy that because of this—the player, when he gets through playing, is not qualified to do a job for himself. If everybody does his (the player's) job, what's happening is that he's not using that brain of his that God gave him."

"God gave him an amount of brains that he should use. And if he doesn't use them, what's going to happen? When he gets through playing hockey ... he's just another yo-yo."

"If he uses his brain and does the job as a player, as an executive, or trying to get salaries or anything else, then he is doing a job for himself."

Shore agreed with Bobby Hull's assertion that some high-salaried players are not putting out the way they should.

"Some get a little careless physically and sometimes mentally. And to me if they feel within themselves they are not doing the job they're paid for, then I would say only that they should ask themselves, are they doing the job for themselves, because if they're not doing a job for themselves, it's not going to be long because they're not going to get that kind of money."

NBA roundup

"We know we can beat the Knicks now," said the Capital's Elvin Hayes. "This is just what we needed to win it all."

Hayes and the rest of the Bullets were brimming with confidence Sunday after dumping New York 99-87 to even their best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semi-final at one game each.

Hayes collected 74 points in the first two games, 34 of them Sunday to go with Phil Chenier's 35-point outburst.

In Milwaukee, the Bucks took a 2-0 lead over Los Angeles in their Western Conference semifinal by whipping the Lakers 109-90.

NHL playoff jockeying all but over

Only one major item involving playoff positions remained unresolved following weekend action in the National Hockey League.

Third place in the West Division, currently held by Los Angeles Kings, is in contention in this final week of the regular season.

The Kings lead fourth-place Atlanta Flames by four points and each club has three games remaining, including a clash between the two Wednesday in Los Angeles.

The second-year Flames clinched at least fourth spot Sunday night, despite losing 4-2 to Pittsburgh Penguins, because Minnesota North Stars, the only team with a chance of catching them, were beaten 6-1 by Buffalo Sabres.

Chicago Black Hawks and St. Louis Blues played to a 2-2 tie Sunday. Boston Bruins defeated Detroit Red Wings 6-1, Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers tied 3-3 and Vancouver Canucks bombed California Golden Seals 7-0.

Toronto clinched the final playoff spot in the East Saturday with a 7-3 win over New York Rangers while Montreal grabbed second spot with a 5-2 victory over the Kings.

Philadelphia Flyers locked up top spot in the West with a 5-3 win over the Bruins—their first triumph over Boston since March, 1969.

In other Saturday games, St. Louis nipped Pittsburgh 4-3, Vancouver defeated New York Islanders 4-2, Chicago edged Detroit 2-1, and Atlanta downed Minnesota 4-1.

Penguins 4 Flames 2

Ab DeMarco's two goals highlighted a four-goal rally in the third period for the Penguins, eliminated from the playoff by the Blues Saturday. Chuck Arason and Ron Schock got the other goals for the Penguins. Larry Romanchuk scored both Atlanta goals.

Sabres 6 North Stars 1

Don Luce had a goal and an assist and Rick Martin scored his 48th goal of the year as the Sabres eliminated the North Stars from any playoff chance.

Jerry Korab, Gilbert Perreault, Brian Spencer and Craig Ramsay got the other Buffalo goals. Jude Drouin spoiled Dave Dryden's shutout bid at 4:59 of the final period.

Blues 2 Black Hawks 2

Pierre Plante's power-play goal at 13:21 of the third period gave the Blues the tie. Dave Gardner was the other St. Louis marksman. Pit Martin and Stan Mikita scored for the Black Hawks.

Bruins 6 Red Wings 1

Goals by Don Marcotte and Ken Hodge 15 seconds apart keyed a five-goal Boston rally in the third period. Phil Esposito scored his 67th goal of the year and added an assist to run his league-leading point total to 140.

Maple Leafs 3 Rangers 3

Ted Irvine's 26th goal of the season with 3½ minutes left in the second period gave the Rangers the tie. Walt Tkaczuk and Bobby Rousseau got the other New York goals. Darryl Sittler, Ron Ellis and Dave Keon replied for the Leafs.

Canucks 7 Golden Seals 0

Don Lever scored three Vancouver goals to bring his total to 23 for the season. Goalie Gary Smith blocked 19 shots to record the shutout.

Play resumes Tuesday night with the Islanders at home to Pittsburgh, Philadelphia at Minnesota and California in St. Louis.

Trevino ends long drought

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lee Trevino, poker-faced and brooding in concentration, broke a 13-month victory drought with a seven-under-par 65 that climaxed one of his finest performances and gave him the title in the Greater New Orleans open golf tournament Sunday.

Trevino didn't make a bogey in four days of competition that produced a 267 total, 21 strokes under par on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

It was, by four strokes, the longest 72-hole score on the pro golf tour this year and came on a course that always had been one of the most difficult for Trevino. He stalked off the cypress-studded layout in the middle of a round three years ago and vowed he'd never return.

He changed his mind, however—he's skipping the Masters instead—and won by eight strokes, the biggest victory margin of the season.

Trevino, who started the day in a tie for the top spot with youthful South African Bobby Cole, took the lead with birdies on four of the first six holes he played and wasn't really threatened again.

He collected $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000 with his first victory since the Doral Eastern Open in February, 1973. It represented the end of one of the longest victory famines in the rags to riches saga that began with his triumph in the 1968 U.S. Open and since has produced 18 titles and more than $1 million in prize winnings.

Rookie Ben Crenshaw came on with a 70 and tied Cole for second at 275. Cole stumbled to a 73 in the occasionally gusty wind.

Rod Curl and Larry Hinson were next at 276, Curl with a 69 and Hinson 72.

Jack Nicklaus, the 1973 New Orleans champion, never really got going. He had a last-round 70 and was tied at 277 with Jerry McGee, 69, and Australian David Graham 73.

Theoni wins skiing

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Gustavo Thoeni of Italy raced to his fourth victory in the Natons' World Series of Skiing Sunday, winning the giant slalom just before bad weather at Mt. Rose forced cancellation of the women's giant slalom.

Thoeni's impressive victory, worth 16 points, helped move the Italian team into second place in the final standings of the International Ski Federation (FIS) series which ended Sunday.

Austria was the team champion with 425 points to Italy's 270. The Austrians clinched the team title Saturday at Heavenly Valley in South Lake Tahoe, Calif., where Thoeni and Annemarie Proell-Moser of Austria won parallel slaloms.

Thoeni won four of seven World Series for men, and Miss Proell won four of the six women's events to easily win their individual titles.

West Germany was third in the final standings with 249 points, followed by the United States with 234, Canada and Switzerland tied at 179, a combined team of small nations 125 and France (which entered women) only 97.

SNOW MOVES IN

After the men's race Sunday, blowing snow made visibility poor over most of the course the women were to race. Last week, strong winds forced two scheduled days of racing at Mt. Rose to be postponed.

Thoeni made his second run in the men's event early in the starting order before the wind gained strength.

The former World Cup champion had the best times on both runs down the steep giant slalom course, going through 57 gates in 1 minute, 19.40 seconds and then through 59 gates in 1:18.33.

His accumulated time of 2:37.73 was more than 1½ seconds better than that of runnerup Willi Frommelt of Lichtenstein. Frommelt's total was 2:39.31.

Cary Adgate of Boyne City, Mich., led the American finishers in the final men's event of the World Series with a third at 2:41.30.

Toros clinch WHA playoff berth

Toronto Toros clinched a playoff berth in the East Division of the World Hockey Association Sunday night, thanks to a rookie.

"We've been getting a super effort from the kids all year," said coach Billy Harris after Toros brushed past Los Angeles Sharks 5-4 on a third-period goal by freshman Pat Hickey.

The victory moved the Toros into second place. Two teams—Chicago Cougars and Quebec Nordiques—remain in contention for the final playoff position.

New England Whalers have clinched first place in the East Division and Cleveland Crusaders are assured of finishing no lower than fourth.

In other games Sunday, Winnipeg Jets edged Vancouver Blazers 4-3, Minnesota Fighting Saints topped Houston Aeros 5-2, New England shaded Quebec 3-2, Cleveland defeated New Jersey Knights 4-2, and Edmonton Oilers crushed Chicago 4-1.

Cleveland edged Los Angeles 5-4 Saturday and Toronto beat Quebec 3-1.

In the only game tonight, the division leaders meet as Houston plays at New England in a game that can't affect the standings in either section.

Quebec 2 at New England 3

Tom Webster's goal with 2:40 left in overtime almost ended the Nordiques' hopes for postseason action. The Nordiques have completed their schedule and, although they still are in fourth place, Chicago Cougars have two games remaining. One victory by the Cougars will eliminate Quebec and if they can earn a tie it will necessitate a playoff game for final playoff spot.

Cleveland 4 at New Jersey 2

The Crusaders won on Skip Krake's 19th and 20th goals of the year and locked up an East Division playoff berth.

Chicago 1 at Edmonton 4

The victory gave the Oilers third place in the West and temporarily blocked the Cougars drive to overtake Cleveland and Quebec in the East. The Oilers will oppose the Fighting Saints in the first round of the playoffs, while the Aeros will take on the Jets. Ron Climie, Oilers' leading scorer, collected his 38th goal of the season and set up the winner by Steve Carlyle.

Vancouver 3 at Winnipeg 4

Overtime was required at Winnipeg and Fran Huck's 26th goal two minutes into the extra period settled the issue. Bobby Hull got his 52nd of the season and assisted on another by Bryan Campbell that tied the game 3-3 at 15:23 of the third period.

Houston 2 at Minnesota 5

The Saints were paced by Mike Walton and Murray Heatley, each with a goal and an assist. Walton's marker was his 55th of the campaign.

Chadwick: Nothing like playoff hockey

NEW YORK (AP) — It's been almost 20 years since Bill Chadwick laced on a pair of skates and went out to referee a Stanley Cup hockey game.

But Chadwick has a long memory and he knows the pressure that will surround the eight teams which start out after Lord Stanley's old mug when the National Hockey League playoffs get under way next month.

"There's nothing like playoff hockey," he said. "The pressure is tremendous. You know, any mistake could be a disaster."

The difference is that Chadwick wasn't looking at a player's standpoint, but rather from a referee's.

He handled an all-time record 105 Cup games, a mark that isn't going to be challenged for some time. A non-current referee, the playoff leader is Art Skov, who's done 59 going into the 1974 showdowns.

Chadwick, who carries the nickname The Big Whistle for obvious reasons, broke into the NHL as a linesman in 1939 and two years later was promoted to referee. The following spring he was assigned to the seventh game of the championship series—a pressure cooker situation for a young official.

WINGS UPSET

"That was the year Detroit won the first three games of the finals and then Toronto took the next four," he said.

"When the Red Wings won those first three, everybody figured the series would end in the next game. Then when the Leafs won the fifth game, everybody said Detroit would take it in the next game. It just kept going that way and the Red Wings never won that fourth game for the Cup."

The Cup is scrupulously protected by the NHL today but regulations were less stringent in those days. From the time

Detroit moved to within one game of the title, Chadwick and his travelling companions, referee King Clancy and NHL President Red Dutton, lugged the hardware around with them, anticipating a presentation ceremony that didn't come until the seventh game.

"We'd go from Detroit to Toronto, back to Detroit, back to Toronto with this big crate holding the Cup," laughed Chadwick.

Three years later, in 1945, Detroit almost turned the tables on the Leafs.

"That year Toronto won the first three games and then the Red Wings came storming back to take the next three, just the way the Leafs had in 1942. But Toronto won the seventh game and finally had his celebration."

Nowadays, Chadwick takes his hockey from the relative serenity of the press box, working as a television color commentator for New York Rangers.

"I love it up there," he said. "Nobody throws anything at me."
