Yes, Make Your Will
—NOW—
It Doesn't Make Any Difference
How Little You May Have

One of the greatest mistakes of the century is the neglect of the middle classes and poorer people to make a will. The fact showing law suits over small estates and the lifelong enmities
caused by the division of small property would astound you.

Certainly you have some definite wishes as to who shall receive your effects after death. Why not make sure that these desires are carried out? Why not prevent quarrels and ill-feeling in your family?

You can do so in your own home for the small sum of 35c. No lawyer is necessary, for this Bax Legal Will Form has stood and will stand the strictest tests in any court in the land.

MANUFACTURE OF MAPLE PRODUCTS

Question was Discussed at Meeting of Provincial Maple Producers

STRESS WAS LAID ON POINT TO BRING ABOUT THE PURE AR-TICLE AND PRICE WOULD FOLLOW.

Waterloo, Jan. 11.—(Special)—At the meeting of the newly elected directors of the Provincial Maple Tree Producers' Association, M. F. Goddard, of Waterloo, was elected President.

The evening meeting of the Association was held in the Town Hall at eight o'clock, Mr. M. F. Goddard, President of the Association, in the chair.

Mr. Goddard gave an address on the Manufacture of Maple Products. He said in part:

"I have been requested to make a short address on the manufacture of pure maple sugar and syrup." At this the first meeting of our "Pure Maple Sugar and Syrup Association" for the Province of Quebec, and it affords me much pleasure to do so,
knowing full well that at least half of the sugar makers before me will not agree, nor go nearly as far in the matter as I have, as many people believe me to be a crank when I speak of pure maple sugar and syrup.
But it is along the very best lines of the very best goods that can be produced that I wish to talk to you, a few minutes, and how to produce them, and whether it is profitable to make them or not. I will divide the process of making maple syrup into four grades or classes, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, and each of these classes represent a certain percentage of makers.

"After a long experience as a maker myself, and also as a buyer, I contend today that not more than 20 per cent. belong to No. 1 class, 30 per cent. to No. 2, 30 per cent. to
No. 3, and 20 per cent. to No. 4. And, gentlemen, if I have erred in these figures I have classed too many in No. 1 and 2 grades. But it is easy to change from No. 4 grade to No. 2,
as I have seen it done many times
when a buyer I have paid 40c more
a gallon to one man than another,
and these men were neighbors, and the next week, and ever afterwards
the No. 4 man had No. 2 syrup.

"And right here I want to make a statement, and to toast, perhaps,
that taking Waterloo as a centre and for a radius of about 15 miles around more of the No. 1 grade of maple syrup is made than in any other place of the same size in Canada and I doubt if better is made on the continent.

"But to get back to my subject as I see I have wandered from it. As I said before there are four separate classes and each makes that belongs to them has a different way of producing his maple sugar and syrup.
I will take up No. 4 grade, or class
first. The ones that make this grade
do not look upon their sugar bush as of much consequence. Therefore they do not spend much time on it.
Any old boiling apparatus will do them. Wooden buckets put away without washing, a West India molasses barrel for a gathering or storage tank, sap never strained and allowed to stand in their buckets perhaps a couple of days at a time, and the result is hardly any of his products
bring more than 6 cents per pound
for sugar.

"Next is No. 3. His way is much better than No. 4. He has a modern evaporator, tin buckets, and other utensils up to date, but he is not particular, not clean enough, and while he may be one of the best farmers in his neighborhood, as far as his land is killed, and care of his stock is considered, he does not use the same methods in his sugar orchard and the result is an inferior grade of sugar, a strong syrup, and he, too, takes a lower price for his products.

"And now for No. 2. His sugar orchard is equipped in the most modern manner, his buckets are all tin, his sap spouts are all modern, he uses the latest storage and gathering tanks. But he has made a mistake to start with which makes it almost impossible to make much of No. 1
grade, unless the sap runs very slow.
It is this. He is trying to make his evaporator do more than it was made to do. He has a 3x12 evaporator, when he should have a 4x14 or a 4x16
In all of his other methods he is the equal of No. 1, but he works more hours, burns more wood, and this adds to the cost of his product.

"I will now try to explain thoroughly the methods of the No. 1 class of sugar and syrup makers. To start with, he taps no maples but what are rock maples. If there are any soft maples in his orchard he cuts them down for fuel. When tapping his trees he does not bore them deeper than one inch into the wood of the tree, being very careful not to strike a decayed or colored part of the tree. He uses the most modern spout and prefers a small second growth tree to the large first growth. His buckets are thoroughly washed when they are put away in the spring and when taken out again he washes them before hanging to the tree. When the sap commences to flow this class of maker does not wait until the buckets are full, or even half full, to gather his sap but is after it when there is barely a quart in the bucket and it is carefully strained into the drawing tank and then taken to the sap house, where it is again strained, as it runs into the storage tank, which is kept tied all through the season. It then passes into the evaporator, which, if he taps 1,000 trees is at least a 4x14 machine. Up to this time everything has been done correctly and now it is up to the operator of the evaporator to do his part. He must not and does not allow his corrugations to be covered with more than 1 or 1 1/2 inch of sap, and thus his syrup compartment is the same depth. In one hour from starting his machine he has syrup,
and he commences to draw off at intervals of five minutes each. He only gets a couple of quarts at a time and right here I will observe the operator can get at least 10 or 15 colors

of syrup in one day from the same sap, simply by running his evaporator at different depths and slowing up his fire. The fuel he uses should be dry and part soft wood to get a quick blaze. He also will have an extra pan
for his arch, so he can get the nitr
of the bottom and thus guard against burning his pan and syrup.
His syrup is put into a settling can,
with a faucet 3 inches from the bottom, so as to allow the settlings, if any, after being again strained, to go to the bottom.

"Now gentlemen, this method,
while may seem to be very exacting, is absolutely necessary to produce the sugar and syrup you see in this exhibit. These products bring from 5 to ten cents more per pound
than the other grade, which is more than sufficient for the extra time and care taken to get this quality. There are many other little things necessary for this class of sugar maker to do, but time forbids me to mention them. According to our own last census, the quantity of maple sugar and syrup has decreased and with a growing population the makers, which number 55,000, should reap a more profitable harvest if they are given a fair show and this industry receives the protection it deserves.

"Before closing this paper, I wish to add one remark, and it is one that 30 per cent. of the sugar makers differ from me. It is this. Wherever the rock maple grows in Canada, no matter whether the land be rocky, sand or clay, or black mud, the same person using the same machine,
and same utensils, and giving the same care, will produce the same grade of syrup or sugar.

"Thank you gentlemen for your kind and attentive hearing and that what exceptions are taken to my remarks, believe me, gentlemen, they are not intended to be personal in any way or manner. Again thanking you I resume my seat."

PRESIDENT OF VERMONT ASSO-CIATION.

The President then called upon Mr.
A. Carlton, President of the Vermont Maple Tree Producers Association to address the meeting. Mr. Carlton spoke on the advantages of the Association. "In Union there was Strength," and only in uniting could the producers of pure maple products
protect themselves and get the best results from their labor and investments. The maple sugar industry has assumed vast proportions. The demand for pure maple products had increased enormously. But the speaker pointed out that as the demand for the products had increased, so had the business of the mixers increased as well, and as a protection to the public and the producers, Mr.
Carlton insisted that labels with the word "Maple" should only be used on packages containing "Pure Maple Products." If this were not insisted upon then the maple syrup producers
would have to step down and out.
Mr. Carlton then went on to speak of the different pests that threatened the maple trees and the necessity of an active war of extermination of the pests. Speaking of the increasing demand for pure maple products, he asked: "Why has not the production of maple sugar increased with the demand?" He answered, "Because the mixers supply the increased demands."
He declared that prices had ruled so low that farmers could no longer make with profit and many were cutting down the bushes. He stated that the State of Vermont alone produced over $1,000,000 of maple products yearly. There were two classes of makers. "The old and the new." The one making along the old rut and the new taking advantage of every new method and adapting themselves to the new conditions and requirements of the present time. Many times he made under difficulties, and they must organize to control their products and place them directly in the hands of the consumers. It was a duty they owed to consumers to provide pure goods and place them in come from the makers. Mr. Carlton emphasized the need of cleanliness in the manufacture of sugar and syrup.
It was not what men put into their business but what they got out of it that makes the profit. Quality counts, said the speaker, and consumers alive to that fact, and if some method was adopted to place pure sugar and syrup in the hands of consumers they would not long prefer the blended compound "as the previous speaker declared" because it suited his palate. The wealth of the world was for those who can get it and farmers must see to it that they get their share. The speaker said that people are willing to pay the price if they can get the goods. It is the makers to provide the goods and get the price. Mr. Carlton said it was a good idea, but a better one to take care of the ones we had.
Said Mr. Carlton, "Honesty is the best policy," and turning to the display of sugar and syrup on the platform, he said, "You can send all the goods of this quality to us and we will provide the market. We don't want to shut out pure goods, we only want to shut out the adulterated. We can sell the pure maple syrup for $2 per gallon wine measure, and any sugar maker can get these prices,
but," said he, "How can we get them? By co-operation. Grade your sugar, and those who cannot buy the first grade can buy the second or third and yet be guaranteed by the Association that it is pure. A former speaker said the mixed goods were more profitable. But why? Because the public had not been educated to know the difference."

MR. DUPUIS, L'ISLET.

Mr. Dupuis of L'Islet then addressed the meeting in French along the same lines as previous speakers.

PROFESSOR SNELL.

Professor Snell of Macdonald College addressed the meeting in a very interesting manner, illustrating his address by making a number of chemical tests on "Maple sap and sugar from a chemical standpoint." He said maple sap consists of 95 per cent.
water, sugar, 1-10 per cent. with about 3 p.p.m. salts with albu-
min. Sap was very perishable, consisting of sugar, albumin and salts,
upon which micro-organisms live,
and unless strict cleanliness was observed they are likely to grow and increase and so sour the sap. What was called sour sap was sap which

A despatch was received Wednesday from Meredith, N.H., announcing the sudden death of the Hon. George Nichols, descendant of a distinguished Sherbrooke family. The Mr. Nichols referred to was the son of the late Levi Nichols and grandson of the late Dr. Nichols, one of the pioneers of the Townships and a physician of repute, who is well remembered by the older residents of the city. Dr. Nichols and his family lived in the old white house, with verandah, on the Lennoxville road, for those days a handsome mansion, and he made his trips through the country on horseback with his saddle bags containing his medicines for the relief of every ailment.

A wedding interesting to many Sherbrooke people was that of Miss Monica Curran Dorion Morrison to Mr. Robert R. Carr-Harris, which took place last Saturday in St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, inasmuch as the mother of the bride, Mrs. Morrison, was Miss Viva Smith, a Sherbrooke girl, born and brought up in this city, daughter of the late Stephen Smith and Mrs. Smith, now of Montreal, and the bride is the granddaughter of the late Hollis Smith, a pioneer of the Townships, in his lifetime member for Sherbrooke and an honored resident of the city.

The musical service will be appropriate to the occasion. In the evening Mr. A. Fraser will be the soloist.

SUB-DEANERY OF SHERBROOKE.

The first annual meeting of the Sub-Deanery of Sherbrooke was held yesterday afternoon at St. George's Church Hall, Lennoxville, with an excellent attendance of the Lennoxville and Sherbrooke branches of the W. A., though owing to illness and other causes outside auxiliaries of the sub-deanery were not represented. Mrs. R. W. E. Wright presided, and the hymn, "Fight the Good Fight," was sung. Hon. Mrs. Aylmer presiding at the piano.

The missionary litany of intercession followed. As it was also the regular meeting of the Lennoxville W. A., the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Wilkinson.

Miss Maud Pope, of Quebec, recording secretary of the Diocesan Branch of the W. A., then gave a brief address, and began by expressing her pleasure at being present at the first annual meeting of the Sub-Deanery of Sherbrooke. She went on to speak of the formation of the W. A., which at first had only seven members, and of its object, namely, the banding together of all the Women's Missionary Societies of the Anglican Church in Canada and to extend their work. That this hope has been abundantly justified is shown by the results. The speaker also referred to the "pledges" undertaken or renewed at the eighth triennial meeting of the Women's Auxiliary, held in Winnipeg in 1911, and dwelt upon the triennial thank-offering, the method adopted by the W. A. for putting their gratitude into tangible and practical form so far as gifts of money are concerned. The thank offering has steadily increased. In 1895 it amounted to $840.17 and was given to the hospital at Nagasaki.

and was again given to Nagasaki. In 1901 it was $2,090, and was presented to the Chinese Mission House at Vancouver, B.C. In 1905 the sum was $5,561.21, of which $1,000 was given to each of four Northwestern Dioceses and the balance to the Athabasca endowment fund. In 1908 the thank offering was $8,678.21 and was devoted to the training of candidates for missionary service. 1911, $12,313.59, training of candidates and support and pensioning of missionaries.

It is hoped that the thank offering of 1914 will reach the sum of $50,000, as by that period the W. A. will have 50,000 senior members.

The Woman's Auxiliary has received more offers of service for the Mission field during the past year than in any other year of its history. Already nine men and eight women candidates are receiving help from this fund, and the salaries of five workers in the field are provided.

At the close of Miss Pope's address, which was heard with great interest, a vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Wright and unanimously carried.

The resignation of Miss Gill as secretary of the sub-deanery was accepted with much regret, and Mrs. Albert Wiggett, of Sherbrooke, was nominated and consented to take the position.

After a discussion upon the best time of year to hold the annual W. A. meeting, adjournment was made and the Lennoxville members were hostesses at a very hospitable and delightful tea, which was enjoyed by all present.

RIOTOUS SCENES IN BRITISH HOUSEAMENDMENT TO WELCH CHURCH DISESTABLISHMENT WAS DEFEATED.

London, Jan. 11.—Amid scenes of violent disorder that bordered on rioting the Government won a victory in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon when the Opposition lost its amendment to the Cabinet Bill disestablishing the Church in Wales.

The amendment was defeated by a vote of 230 to 190. Tumult prevailed while the vote was being taken and the announcement of the result was greeted with cries of "Saved by the Irish."

The Irish Nationalists joined with the Liberals in voting down the amendment.

Disorder prevailed for some time and was quieted only when the Speaker threatened to adjourn the session unless the Opposition subsided.

OFFICIAL CHEESE WEIGHER WANTEDONTARIO DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION WANT REFEREE AT MONTREAL.

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 11.—At a session of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, the Hon. Senator Derbyshire, of Brockville, moved, seconded by Henry Glendenning, of Maxville, that the Association urge upon the Royal Cheese Commission the appointment of a competent referee at Montreal for weighing the cheese.

Although no vote was taken on the motion, it being referred to a committee on resolutions for the report to-day, the general feeling is in favor of the resolution.

The Directors of the Association had a private conference with members of the Royal Commission and asked the Commission to recommend legislation to prevent the shipment of cheese under ten days old, and that the Government provide inspection of factory scales at least once a year.

The Directors are opposed to the suggestion of placing the cheese buyers under a bond.

Los Angeles, Jan. 11.—Rain which followed the recent cold snap in the orange belt, is believed to have done a great amount of good and it is thought a much larger percentage of the citrus crop than at first estimated will be saved, but citrus experts declare it may be three weeks before the extent of the loss will be definitely determined.

Emergency bills will be introduced in the California Legislature to provide relief for the banks in the citrus fruit belt by lending them State funds.

MR. L. E. PANNETON SWORN IN AS JUDGE

Took the Oath as Judge of Supreme Court of Montreal District

WELCOME WAS EXTENDED FROM THE BAR BY MR. J. L. ARCHAMBAULT.

Montreal, Jan. 11.—Mr. L. E. Panneton was sworn in yesterday as Judge of the Superior Court for the district of Montreal. Taking the oath was, as usual, a display of ceremonial, all the judges and a great number of lawyers being present.

Chief Justice Davidson presided, the new judge occupying the extreme left of the row of judges, while deputy-prothonotary Lozeau read the commission. As the parchment was read over and given to Mr. Panneton, the latter took the Bible from the hands of the Chief Justice and kissed it after repeating the usual formula.

Mr. J. L. Archambault, batonnier of Montreal, then rose, and expressed to the new judge the welcome of the local bar and Judge Panneton, in reply, stated that he expected the well-known members of the Bar of Montreal to be of great help in the discharge of his duties.

The new dignity was presented with a bunch of roses in the name of the Bar and the Bench rose.

EVERYTHING UP BUT POTATOES

Price of Food Stuffs is Soaring in the United States

STATISTICS SHOW A GREAT ADVANCE SINCE TWELVE MONTHS AGO.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Soaring prices of foodstuffs are pictured in a new set of figures compiled by the United States Department of Labor from its investigation of the cost of living in thirty-nine American cities. Between August, 1911, and August, 1912, only two things decreased in price—potatoes and sugar. Everything else advanced.

In Boston sirloin steak had advanced 24 per cent; in Buffalo, 19 per cent; in Atlanta, 8 per cent; in Chicago, 19 per cent, and in Birmingham, 15 per cent.

The figures showing the advance prices during the last ten years are: the following increases: Sugar, 6 per cent; butter, 34; milk, 35; flour, 35; potatoes, 46; eggs, 47; lard, 57; beans, 58; sirloin steak, 62; ham, 63; rib roast, 63; corn meal, 64; round steak, 86; smoked bacon, 100, and pork chops, 105.

Within the thirty-nine cities the department investigated live one-fifth of the total population of the United States, two-fifths of the urban population and approximately one-third of all the people engaged in gainful occupations, not including farmers.

FRANCE MAY UPSET PRECEDENT

Chances are that Premier Poincare Will be Chosen President

HIS ELECTION MAY BRING ABOUT IN THE GOVERNMENT OF FRANCE.

Paris, Jan. 11. —(Special)—On Friday of next week the National Assembly, composed of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, will meet to elect a new President of the French Republic for a term of six years and, unless all indications fail their choice will fall upon Mr. Raymond Poincare, the present Premier. There is only one other candidate of prominence in the field, Senator Ruffin, but it is conceded that his chances against the brilliant premier are exceedingly slim. In view of the fact that for the past twenty years, that is, since President Grevy was in office, it has been the custom to elect to the Presidency men of rather small calibre, not always weak, but in any case, and willing to become figureheads, mere creatures of the chambers, limiting themselves to presiding at public functions and promulgating the decrees of the legislative body, the election of Mr. Poincare would mean a radical departure from precedent, perhaps the beginning of a new era in the evolution of the Government of France.

SWEAR ALLEGIANCE TO UNIONIST LEADER

Full Strength of Party Sign Memorial to Save Party From Disruption

232 OF THE 279 UNIONIST MEMBERS AGREE TO CALL CONFERENCE OF COLONIES.

London, Jan. 11.—(Special)—The memorial to Mr. Bonar Law, asking that the question of food taxes be dropped to prevent disruption of the party, declaring allegiance to the leader, and asking for a conference of the colonies if the Unionists should be returned to power, was signed by 232 out of 279 Unionist members of Parliament.

It is expected that Mr. Law will give his reply shortly.

Of the 47 non-signers of the memorial, 27 are on the front benches, and they are debarred by parliamentary etiquette from signing any document of this kind. Fifteen other members are either abroad or on sick leave.

during the year, and the one near the overhead bridge on the Lennoxville Road was replaced by one longer in the post, this being necessary owing to the change in grade on that road so as to be accessible at all seasons of the year. The report mentions that the continued use of the fire hydrants for other purposes than fire service has been the cause of extensive repairs and is a source of danger; however, all the hydrants are at present in good order, as is the whole of the Fire Alarm system.

To meet the growing needs of the city two carriages have been built, namely, a summer and winter ladder truck with ladders and tools complete, and this equipment is in service at No. 2 Station, which has been overhauled and repaired. This addition gives an opportunity to divide the city into three fire districts—the Central, Western and Eastern divisions. The cost of the Department for the year is $12,175.30.

THE THEFT OF CROWN JEWELS

BELIEVED THAT LIGHT WILL BE THROWN ON ROBBERY AT DUBLIN CASTLE.

Southampton, Jan. 11. — Francis Richard Shackleton, who was arrested in Portuguese East Africa in connection with the management of the estate of Lord Ronald Sutherland Gower, arrived yesterday in custody of a detective.

While the charges against Shackleton relate to the misappropriation of funds from Lord Ronald's estate, hints have come from Scotland Yard that through his case light may be thrown upon the mysterious disappearance of the Irish Crown jewels from Dublin Castle in 1907.

The basis of this belief seems to be

ITCHY BURNING ECZEMA ON FACE

Very Bad Case. Little Blisters Broke and Formed Scabs. Thought Would Be Disfigured for Life. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment a Month. Completely Cured.

Cold Brook, St. John, N. B.—"Cuticura Soap and Ointment certainly cured my little girl of a very bad case of eczema. She had eczema on her face for almost two years. First little white blisters covered her face, then these would break and form scabs, and they were very itchy and burning. I used to have great trouble in getting her to sleep at night. She scratched so I had to do all I could to prevent her, for sometimes she would scratch the scabs off and then it would be very sore and burning. She was certainly a great case. I treated her for it and also used different kinds of blood medicine, and ointment but got no cure. I thought she would be disfigured for life.

"It had lasted about two years when one day I saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper so I decided to give them a trial. I had not used them for more than a month when she was completely cured. I cannot praise Cuticura Soap and Ointment enough. Of course I continue to use Cuticura Soap as I find it the best soap on the market for children." (Signed) Mrs. John Newman, Dec. 30, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 30D, Boston, U. S. A.

Why Zam-Buk is Best Cure for Skin Sores

An illustration of the way in which Zam-Buk cures even the most serious and chronic cases of ulcers, eruptions and sores is provided by Mr. R. H. Barker, of Glenora, Ont. He says: "I would not have believed that any remedy could cure so quickly, and at the same time so effectively, as Zam-Buk cured me. My face became covered with a kind of rash, which itched and irritated. I scratched then turned to sores, which discharged freely and began to spread. I first tried one thing and then another, but nothing seemed to do me any good, and the eruption got worse and worse, until my face was just covered with running sores.

"Apart from the pain (which was very bad), my face was such a terrible sight that I was not fit to go out. This was my state when some one advised me to try Zam-Buk. I got a supply, and, marvellous as it may sound, within little under a month every sore on my face was healed. I was so amazed that I have told the facts to several persons, and I have no objection to your stating my experience for the benefit of other sufferers."

Zam-Buk is purely herbal in composition, and is the ideal balm for babies and young children, for whose tender skin ointments are so dangerous. Zam-Buk is a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, sculp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped faces, cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 30¢ a box, post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

STRANGE USES TO WHICH SHIPS STRANDED HAVE BEEN PUT TO

(New York Evening Post.)

Suppose you lived in a blistering bit of a Central America village, with the jungle steaming on one side of you and the sea blazing endlessly on the other, with smelly kerosene lamps for illumination, and the luxuries of life fewer than you'd expect to find in an Arizona abode. And then suppose a tidal wave came along and smashed things pretty generally, but ended by picking up a fine big steamer and washing her over the bar into shoal water near the beach, leaving her there, high and dry.

And then suppose an enterprising citizen of the village, seeing that the vessel was intact and all her machinery undamaged, sent to the nearest source of supply—which in this case was Tehuantepec, just 180 miles distant—and obtained a goodish length of electric cable and quantities of lamps, assorted sizes, and rigged up the cable between the ship and the shore, and pumped current from the wreck's dynamo, which he retailed as strictly commercial rates to all ambitious natives who fancied the glow of the incandescent bulb in their palm thatched, corrugated iron homes. Wouldn't that be interesting—if it were true, that is? Of course, you don't believe it could be true. It's too much like a chapter from a story about a South American revolution, with a dictator, a beautiful daughter, and an athletic young American engineer thrown in.

JUST THE SAME IT'S TRUE.

The funny thing about this particular story, however, is that it is true. It actually happened. It was along about four years ago that the steamer "Osiris," of the Kosmos Line, of San Francisco, was lying off Ocos, Guatemala, when an earthquake shook that part of the world, and was followed by a tidal wave big enough to pick up the steamship as if she had been a fishing smack, and carry her over the intervening sand-banks to a point near the beach, where it dropped her neatly, between two reefs just sufficiently far apart to provide her with a comfortable cradle.

When her crew left her, judging her to be of no further use a citizen of Ocos, who had some experience of civilized life, rowed over to the uninjured wreck and cast a speculative eye over her contents. Later he sent to Mexico for the necessary materials, and proceeded to form the Ocos Electric Light and Power Company. Ocos took the hook all the way down its gulch—and then struggled for more. To think of having a real electric lighting plant! It was hardly to be believed. And every citizen of Ocos lauded over the citizens of the other village seaports along the Guatemalan coast, which could not boast such munificent luxury.

To be anywhere in Ocos society it was necessary to be able to point to at least one eight-candlepower incandescent pendant from the roof of the living-room. The Mayor and Council even proceeded to have the principal streets lighted. Business hummed. The padre had the church wired. People came from far and near to admire Ocos by way of becoming one of the principal points of interest in all Guatemala, and it was rumored that the President contemplated paying a visit to such an enterprising community.

JOY TURNED TO GRIEF.

Then, behold, as joy and pride were at their height, what should happen, but a brief communication to the Ocos Electric Light and Power Company from the Kosmos Line of San Francisco, stating that salvage operations would shortly be begun with an idea of betting the undamaged hull the "Osiris" into deep water, so that she might resume her peregrinations along the Pacific Coast.

Can you imagine the grief in Ocos? Can you conceive the misery of the Mayor, who saw his streets deprived of their growing decorations and emblems of progress. Can you conceive the misery of the padre, who beheld his church bereft of one of its most striking ornaments? Can you even fancy the agony of soul of the citizens who anticipated their return to independence on kerosene, with all the Arabian smeltness which it entailed? It has been almost to great a burden of disappointment for Ocos to bear. They have seen their source of illumination cut off, the salvage

FOOT BADLY FROZEN

After Escaping From Burning Home. Doctor Advised Amputation.

Mrs. John Marks, of Cameron, Ont., narrowly escaped losing her foot. She tells the story this way: "I had my foot so badly frozen after escaping from a fire which destroyed our home that the doctor in attendance advised immediate amputation. Before consenting to the operation I was induced to try Douglas' Egyptian Liniment, and it produced a most remarkable result.

"After four or five applications the frozen flesh dropped off, and the foot began to show signs of improvement. It advanced wonderfully under the treatment, and was soon completely healed. Egyptian Liniment certainly saved me from being horribly crippled."

Probably none of your family will ever get frozen so badly, but a nipped ear or nose or toe is a common and painful enough experience. Egyptian Liniment takes out every bit of the pain, soreness and swelling, and quickly restores the injured part.

crew at work on the lighting plant's regeneration; presently, they will even be obliged to witness its actual departure. In tow of the wrecking tug, it will grow smaller and smaller on the face of the waters, until at last it will disappear over the horizon in the direction of the Estados Unidos del Norte, where every one has electric light, and the "Osiris" will cease to occupy the sublime position of a forerunner of civilization and become an humble ocean tramp.

Again, it should be iterated, this is a true story. And let any contracting company that doubts the assertion send one of its cleverest young men to Ocos, Guatemala—which is about 180 miles from the terminus of the Tehuantepec Railway—with instructions to see the Mayor and the Padre and every citizen in the place. There is nothing like promoting a habit to induce a belief in the necessity of luxuries. The incandescent bulbs of Ocos gleam lifeless; the streets are dark. And Ocos mourns its descent from the proud position of a municipality boasting an electric light and power company to a mere huddle of huts behind a ramshackle wharf.

NOT THE ONLY EXAMPLE.

Although the story of the "Osiris" stands alone for tragic interest, there are other instances on record of ships carried ashore and used for purposes foreign to the builders' intentions. Perhaps the most noted case is that of the United States steam sloop-of-war "Waterlee," which was washed ashore by a tidal wave at Arica, Chili, under circumstances almost identical to those attending the wrecking of the "Osiris." It was in August 1863, that the "Waterlee" and another American man-of-war were lying off Arica. A tremendous earthquake was succeeded by a tidal wave bigger than any other recorded in history, save perhaps, that which inundated Lisbon, and the "Waterlee," carried on the crest of the great wave bigger than any other recorded and two miles to the north of the town, and deposited between two sand hills, while she was left by the receding waters practically unharmed. The other American vessel was smashed to splinters.

It was soon seen that it was impossible to get the "Waterlee" off; it would have cost far more than the vessel was worth. So she was abandoned by the crew, and sold for old junk. But instead of breaking her up, the Chilean who bought her had imagination enough to see what a splendid chance he had to make real money out of her as a curiosity. So he fitted the "Waterlee" up as a hotel, cafe and restaurant, leaving her hull just as it was, however, and his quaint establishment soon became a recognized pilgrimage in the vicinity.

Passengers on vessels sailing close along the Florida east coast have also noticed a tall four-masted schooner lying ashore among the sand hills, apparently as cheerily as if blue water gripped her keel, and have wondered what she could be doing there. Her fate was similar to the "Waterlee." Driven over the reefs and high up on to the beach in a furious storm, she finally came to rest, with all spars standing, and the thrifty beachcombers of the locality put her to good use as a boarding-house for summer visitors who like a touch of the unusual.

There are many such craft, large and small, scattered along the world's coasts. Scarcely a fishing village along the Atlantic coast is without one of two old vessels, whose sea-faring days are over, hauled high and ashore and put to use as homes of future generations of sailors. They give a touch to local scenery much like that inspired by the old railroad cars that you will find utilized for similar purposes in out-of-the-way communities.

Indeed, so fascinating is the idea of a wrecked ship that several years ago an ingenious showman of Coney Island, looking for a new way to charm the dollars of the curious, had an old tub hauled ashore on the beach one dark night, and in the morning spread wide the announcement that this victim of a "horrible disaster" had been purchased by him, and henceforth would be used as a restaurant and museum, admission 25 cents, etc. And for years people, most people, anyhow, thought the ship had been wrecked.

FREE FOOD AND FREE TRADE.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

The economic problem which is exciting the United Kingdom visibly today is whether it is possible to evolve a tariff in which food-stuffs shall continue to be admitted free, whilst a duty shall be placed upon manufactured articles. It is necessary to say visibly because there are other depressions agitating the social system actually more violently, whose symptoms have not yet become so well defined. The future of a historic party supplies that element of personality which fills the House of Commons as rapidly as a debate on Indian finance empties it, and so the struggle between "Free Food" and "Whole Hogism" dictates an attention never bestowed on those street-corner speeches in which "things are to be heard that are not known to the readers of Liberal and Conservative papers."

The free trader insists enthusiastically that it is possible to frame a tariff under which food shall remain untouched, whilst all manufactured articles shall be subject to a duty. The free trader equally emphatically shakes his head, and on this point the free trader finds an unexpected ally in no less an authority than Prince Bismarck. The Iron Chancellor

HOW TO TELL HORSES' AGES

DEALERS AND EXPERTS ARE DIVIDED OVER THE TEETH TEST.

(New York Herald)

Not since the Herald, several years ago, proposed the query "Who ever saw a white foal?" have local horse-men been more interested in a question of practical horsemanship than they are just now over the ruling of the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association in the Anna Ax-Me case. In this case the winner of a future race for three-year-old pacers were protested as being older than the conditions allowed, and when two veterinary surgeons were called in they examined the filly's mouth and pronouncing her a four-year-old. Notwithstanding this expert opinion, the Board of Review decided that she was three years old and no more, and ordered her winnings of $7,000 distributed accordingly.

When asked whether in their opinion the decision of the turf tribunal was right, several expert horsemen, seen yesterday were inclined to differ with the Members of the Board of Review.

"I think that I could tell the age of any horse up to eight years or older by looking at the mouth," said F. J. Costello, manager of Best & Co's veterinary service and starter of the trotters at the Speedway matinees. "I believe any experienced veterinary surgeon or horseman can do the same. As for myself, I am so sure that I would not hesitate to buy a horse to be a three-year-old without any other evidence of age than I could find in his mouth."

W. C. Bain, who "aged" horses for the British army in South Africa during the Boer War, declared that he would feel perfectly confident of his ability to distinguish a three-year-old from a four-year-old except in very rare cases.

"If a young horse has run on the range for any length of time he might fool you," Mr. Bain said, "because his teeth wear down faster under such conditions, and a three-year-old might possibly look like a four-year-old."

J. Campbell Thompson, who has owned hundreds of harness horses, and who is a lawyer as well as a horse man, declared that the Board of Review made a proper decision in the Anna Ax-Me case.

"It was expert opinion against direct evidence," he said, "and the latter was the better evidence. No man's opinion is infallible as to the age of a horse. I have a ten-year-old registered hackney now in my stable that shows a perfect six-year-old mouth. The horse has never been tampered with, and I have owned him since he was four years old."

Emil Seelig, of the Knickerbocker stables, and one of the largest dealers in New York, corroborated Mr. Thompson.

"I do not look at the mouth of one horse in ten when buying them," he said. "What I want to see are their heads, legs, backs and general appearance. I don't believe anybody could tell for sure whether a horse was three or four by examining the teeth. Why, I have a four-year-old now with a three-year-old mouth."

Dr. Ruch S. Huidekoper, who was an acknowledged authority on dentition of the horse, and who wrote a book on the subject twenty years ago, intimates that horses raised in a warm, dry climate may develop full mouths earlier than animals bred in low, damp regions. He says also that grain feed hastens development and that high breeding has the same tendency.

was not only a great statesman, he was a great framer of tariffs, and he has left it as the deliberate verdict of his experience that the accomplishment of the ideal of the free food party in the United Kingdom is beyond human ingenuity. It may, of course, be objected that Germany is Germany, and that the United Kingdom is the United Kingdom. That is obvious, but there is something equally obvious, namely that the balance of difficulties is entirely on the side of London as against Berlin. Germany is to a very large extent self-sufficient. The United Kingdom only grows a fraction over half its total food-stuffs, and, what is equally important, only a quarter of its own wheat.

It must be perfectly obvious that a duty on imported articles will send up the price of all articles of that nature. Those who maintain that it will simply broaden the area of home-production are hugging a fallacy which can find no support in economic experience. The corn laws did not increase the wheat area, required by a smaller population, but they did increase the price of bread. The agriculturist of the corn-laws period stood, however, on an equality with the manufacturer. The agriculturist of a free-food era would find the cost of everything he had to buy rising whilst the price of everything he had to sell remained stationary. If the agriculturist maintains his position under free trade with some difficulty it is obvious what his position would be under such a scheme of tariff reform. BIG WHALE WAS CRUSHED

WAS GROUND TO DEATH BETWEEN TWO GREAT ICEBERGS.

(London Standard)

By the end of this week over 50 whaling ships will have anchored in Scottish ports after a strenuous six months' fight with whales and walrus. The whalers have come in contact with icebergs at a lower latitude than has been experienced for some years.

"This has been a rough season," stated the mate of a whaler who returned to the Scottish port a few days ago. We went up the coast of Greenland to Baffin's Bay, and passed Cumberland Gulf, where they say the Dundee ketch Sedulante went down. It was towards the end of June that we sighted our first whale, but this was lost to us, being crushed between two icebergs. We had chased him for several miles in the small boat, and were wondering where he had got to, when we saw him spouting a few hundred yards off. As we pulled towards him he disappeared, but came into view again as the waves rose and fell, showing his black back like a rock in the sea. We reckoned that he was about 80 ft. or 90 ft. long. The harpooner got ready as we slid near him, and he was fixed with a good stroke. After that there was work to do.

"For nearly an hour that boatload of men were fighting for their lives, and they had lost them at the last had it not been for the harpooner, who cut the rope attached to the harpoon in time. Not far from where the whale had been sighted were two icebergs, and for days the ship had been threading its way among these white ghosts of the Arctic. When the whale had somewhat exhausted itself and ceased to lash the water into foam the cord attached to the harpoon was pulled in little by little and rolled up. In a few moments the enormous animal appeared on the surface again, not far from the boat, and the whalers were preparing for the last act in the drama when suddenly the whale glided off again, making straight for the narrow passage between the two icebergs. The boat was being dragged behind, and to the horror of the whalers, they saw that the swell on the ocean was bringing the two icebergs close together. Already the whale had entered the narrow opening between the two masses of ice.

"With a sweep of the axe one of the crew severed the rope, and immediately every crew was in the water to stop the speed of the boat. They managed it in time. The two icebergs crashed together with a tremendous noise, smashing the whale to a pulp, and sending showers of spray and small particles of ice over the sea. One of the whalers was cut in the hand by a fragment. And the whale was lost."

"It's not an uncommon accident," said the mate. "I have heard it said that as many as 20 whales have gone down in Baffin Sea in that way in a single summer. I once saw a ketch flattened by two icebergs."

Many of the whalers employ Eskimos to hunt with them, and many of these dwellers of the North speak English fairly well. They get certain parts of the catch as their share of the chase, and they wait impatiently every summer for the ships coming from the South, for the sailors bring them presents of tobacco and other trinkets every year. All along the coasts from Greenland to Alaska, the natives wait for the summer months, which bring the whaling walrus hunters. Each man has a gun, and they crawl stealthily over the ice till they are near enough to shoot the drowsy walrus. Occasionally slipped off the ice in amongst a fighting, struggling herd of walrus. It was deep water and he was soon lost, his companions being unable to save him."

KAISER HAS HELPED NATION

ASSERTION MADE THAT GERMAN EMPEROR WOULD HAVE MADE GOOD BUSINESS MAN.

Those who have come under the spell of the German Emperor's personality declare him to be the most delightful of companions, says a writer in Scribner's. What Germany has grown to be under his reign of twenty-five years all the world knows, all the world envies, some of the world fears; what his own people think of him can best be expressed by the statement that his supremacy was never more assured than to-day.

I agree that no one man can be credited with the astonishing expansion of Germany in all directions in the last thirty years; but so interwoven are the advice and influence, the ambition and plans of the German Emperor with the progress of the German people that this one personality shares his country's successes as no single individual in any other country can be said to do.

Whether he likes Americans or not one can hardly know. No doubt he has made many of them think so; and, alas, we suffered from a national hallucination that we are liked abroad, when as a matter of fact we are no more liked than others, and in cultured centres we are in addition laughed at by the careless and sneered at by the sour.

That the Kaiser is liked by Americans both by those who have met him and by those who have not, is, I think, indisputable. He is of the stuff that would have made a first rate American. He would have been a sovereign there as he is a sovereign here. He would have enjoyed the fine, free field of endeavor, and he would have jousted with the best of us in our tournament of life, which has trained as many knights sans peur et sans reproche as any country in the world.

I believe in a man who takes what he thinks belongs to him, and holds it against the world; in the man who so loves life that he keeps a hearty appetite for it and takes long draughts of it; who is ever ready to come back smiling for another round with the world, no matter how hard he has been punished. I believe that God believes in the man who believes in Him, and therefore in himself.

Valuable Horse Saved By "Nerviline"

Was Too Sore and Lame to Work. Quickly Cured by Nerviline.

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. J. E. McNeilson, from his home, Crofton Hill, P.O. "I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right foreleg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore, and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years, and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

Five thousand letters recommend Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. Try it yourself.

OUR GRANDMOTHERS USED GARDEN SAGE

To darken the hair and restore gray hair to natural color

A FEW APPLICATIONS OF THIS REMEDY WILL DOUBLE THE BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. As a scalp tonic and color restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers.

The growth and beauty of the hair depends on a healthy condition of the scalp. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy quickly kills the dandruff germs which rob the hair of its life, color and lustre, makes the scalp clean and healthy, gives the hair strength, color and beauty, and makes it grow.

COWAN'S PERFECTION COCOA

A MUSCLE-BUILDING FOOD

Growing youngsters work hard. They need food that is nourishing—food that satisfies the hunger and digests easily. Nothing is better for them than Cowan's Perfection Cocoa. Ground from the fresh Cocoa Beans, it has all the food value of pure Cocoa. It builds up the muscles and makes children healthy and strong. A cup of Cowan's made with half or one-third milk is a properly balanced food—one that the most delicate stomach can digest. And it is so delicious that it tempts the appetite when all other foods fail.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE TRUNK ROAD TO THE BOUNDARY.

Editor of Record.

Sir:—There seems to be no "final word" re Trunk Road question. It is often said that "a woman will always have the last word," and perhaps may come true now, as being the heaviest ratepayer in this municipality, I beg to express myself on a few points concerning the question (as quite a number of gentlemen have already done, in print) not to review or add thereto.

First, let me say that the plain, straightforward, unvarnished letter by our mayor, Mr. B. Little, to your paper, and also the "additional facts" as set forth by Mr. W. A. Reaburn, in issue of date Jan. 6th, are commendable, and I, for one, accord them a vote of thanks for coming forward in their own defence and also in the defence of our ratepayers, who since the awakening have "got busy."

If the Government establishes direct routes with "diversions" in one section, a precedent will have been set up, and other sections will ask for the same. The name "Trunk" will have to be abolished and some other substituted.

The writer was told by one of our councillors, before the other members of the Council, that the president of the E. T. Automobile Club, Mr. LeBaron (I believe), went to Quebec with the delegation to fight against the road, saying it was a Conservative scheme. As to the truth of this, I know not. It may only have been a "vision" when he was asleep.

If "any part" of this is a "political scheme," our present member can now slide out gracefully and have no votes to lose.

A prominent resident of Ayer's Cliff told the writer two months ago that if Mr. Bissonette did not help them to get the road he would lose a lot of votes in Ayer's Cliff.

Personally I have no serious objection to either route north from "the parting of the ways." Both routes have their special features, one over the other, each being "another way" to Sherbrooke—one a shorter and easier way, the other more travelled, no doubt.

Many of those against a "diverted route" for good reasons are married to the Government, pledged to "love, honor and obey" their party, and not independent. Anyone in that position is "hand-tied," as it were.

There comes a time when "we outside taxpayers," not privileged to vote, can stand up and thank our stars we are not tied to any party.

To conclude: When the "scare cloud" arose, "if the contention continued the road might not be built." I did not "fraid a bit, but about came to the conclusion that the money spent on all of our roads, to improve and make them good for our automobiles and teams, would be the wisest and best in the end. In that way all classes would be considered, the taxes equally distributed and all "parties" served. Whichever or whatever, in the words of the old song—

So let the wide world jog as it will.

I'll be gay and happy still.

GRACE.

POWER QUESTION AT AYER'S CLIFF.

Editor of Record.

Will you kindly allow us in your column to correct a report of public meeting at Ayer's Cliff as published in Saturday's Record. From the wording of this report the real facts would not be understood by the average reader and an impression was given that would be damaging to the reputation and credit of the Burroughs Falls power property from ed.

In the heading you state "the present company has not been able to develop sufficient power."

You say Mr. C. A. Kennedy "gave an idea of what the company might do in further developing Burroughs Falls," and "The Burroughs Falls Co. so far has not been able to develop sufficient power to supply continuous current for the village."

The wording of these three sentences would give the average reader the idea that our company had put in some sort of development, a dam and water wheel, etc., at Burroughs Falls, and failed to make it a success, but I think the average reader will be surprised when I state that Burroughs Power Falls property from which the present company derives its present name, has never been touched by man, but remains as it has always remained for thousands of years, so that instead of Burroughs Falls not having been able to develop "sufficient power" or when "further" development of Burroughs Falls is mentioned, the facts are that no power at all has ever been developed there, nor any attempt made.

The company owns the old Colby mill and water power about half a mile above Burroughs Falls, also the last and best power on the Tomifobia River at Boynton, either of which powers properly developed would give sufficient power for Ayer's Cliff's present requirements.

The company does not wish nor intend to develop the Falls of other powers at present, having entered into a five year contract with the Sherbrooke R. & P. Co., while they have a large surplus and while the Burroughs Falls Power Company's revenue is so small to justify the cost of development, but later when the Sherbrooke Company has more of its surplus power sold and our company more business worked up, we will put in our own development, probably at the Falls.

The meeting in question was one to discuss the value of the Falls as being valid security for a loan of $1,000 to assist the company in financing extension to its lines.

I might mention that Burroughs Falls has a natural head of 100 ft. or about 2-3 that of Niagara. I know of no water power in the Eastern Townships with so high a head. The scenic beauty of the Falls and grounds around the Falls is much admired by Americans who visit Ayer's Cliff and North Hatley every summer, and frequent excursions are made to this point of interest, which is bound in the future to be quite an advertisement for Ayer's Cliff and in fact for Stanstead County.

Thanking you for space to explain our position, we are,

Yours respectfully,

The Burroughs Falls Power Co.,

Limited, Chas. A. Kennedy, President and General Manager.

FREE TRADE.

(Christian Science Monitor.)

Every jar which shivers the Liberal cart jolting forward toward a general election, raises in the breasts of the opposition hopes of the immediate amendment of the fiscal system. It was really Mr. Balfour's unwillingness, perhaps it would be fairer to say his mental inability, to appreciate the arguments of that wing of the Unionist party known as the "whole hoggers," which caused the rift between him and them, that ended in his retirement from the leadership. The free trade wing of the Unionist party has shrunk to very modest dimensions, but it includes in its ranks some of the most thoughtful members of the opposition, such as the Cecils, the House, and St. Lo. Strachey, in the press. To these men, the attitude of the "whole hoggers" is the one thing which stands between the party and victory. It may, therefore, be imagined with what feeling they have heard the recent utterances of Bonar Law.

The leader of the opposition has always been one of the tariff reform stalwarts. To him, Balfour's undertaking not to put tariff reform into practice without an appeal to the nation, even if the Unionists gained a victory at the polls, was bowing in the house of Rimmon. He has allowed it to be inferred that if he became ruler of the Unionist hosts, the Balfourian formula would be set aside. Now that, in the retreat of the prime minister before the organized violence of his opponents, he sees what he takes for daybreak in the clouds of opposition, he nails the protectionist flag to the mast, and announces that if the Unionists are successful at the polls, tariff reform will follow, post hoc, ergo propter hoc.

It must be admitted that the position is a somewhat difficult one, tested on the touchstone of mere politics. To the free trade wing, a policy of tariff reform is bound to end, no matter how it may begin, in illustrating the famous saying of Disraeli, that protection was not only dead but damned. In their eyes the government has committed as many mistakes that, had it not been for the country's fear of tariff reform, a Unionist victory might have been achieved long ago.

Now, at the moment when they believe the country has been irritated by the insurance act, and frightened by the possibilities of the home rule bill, they see their leaders cutting away the referendum, and the party ship staggering out to sea, with every protectionist sail set. The tariff reformers, on the other hand, ask what is to occur if they drop by the wayside the ark of the covenant they have been carrying so laboriously through the desert of opposition, ever since the general election of 1906. How, they demand, are they to go to the country with no constructive policy whatever? It must be admitted that not the least of the ministerial assets is the difficulties of the opposition.

WHENCE THE INDIAN.

In a paper before the American Anthropological Association Professor Alexander F. Chamberlain discusses the origin of the Indian, and reaches the conclusion that the original American race probably came to this continent from northeastern Asia across Bering Strait. He would not derive the race, however, from any existing people from northeastern Asia, but thinks them descended from a proto-Mongolian stock, the migration of which took place at a very remote period. It is held that the ancestors of the Indian became considerably modified through residence in America, and that after a long period there was a counter-migration from America to Asia. This reluctant wave of migration is believed to have had an important influence in "Americanizing" a large section of northeastern Asia.

In this view the American Indian and the Mongolian races of Eastern Asia, including the Chinese and the Japanese, would appear to be closely related. The casual inspector will probably feel that the relationship finds expression in a similarity of facial contour of eyes and hair, and of complexion. It would appear, also, that there is a closer similarity in the mental traits of the Indian and the Mongolian than between either race and the white man.

This view of the origin of the Indian has high authority in its favor, but there are students who would derive the native American from quite another source. Professor Ameghino, the Argentinian paleontologist, for instance, believes that the Indian is descended from simian ancestors in southern South America. Professor G. Sregi, the Italian anthropologist, is also somewhat disposed to favor this view.—Hearst's Magazine.

CONJURER MAKES WOMAN NERVOUS.

Every conjurer knows that, in one sense, a trick may be too good, says a writer in the Strand. I mean a trick in which the problem is so puzzling that those in the audience are left without the slightest clue to its solution. A trick of this kind never wins the loudest applause immediately it is ended, because folk in the audience are too puzzled to express their appreciation of what they have seen until they have had a moment or two in which to think it over. I do not say that they always arrive at the right solution even then, but possibly they may think they do. It is rather unusual, however, to have a trick which is far too good for one individual member of the audience. I recall such a trick. It was an average good trick with a slate and some numbered cards, and after I had performed it one night I was quite unconscious of the fact that the trick had been much too good for a woman in the audience. I discovered that fact two days afterward. A man called on me in the morning and asked if I gave lessons in conjuring. At that time I did, but now, when I am asked that, I direct the question to an old pupil of mine who understands my methods and is very patient.

The man seemed pleased that I taught conjuring. He asked for particulars about my fee, the time it would take to learn, and so on, and then finally stuttered out that he had been making all those enquiries on behalf of his wife. Then he took me into his confidence. He told me that his wife was delicate, and that she had been so puzzled by my slat trick which she had seen three evenings before, that she had not been able to sleep. She was suffering from "nerves," and her husband felt sure that her health would be seriously injured if she did not know the secret of that trick; she could think of nothing else. I satisfied the woman's curiosity and in so doing earned the husband's gratitude.

HOW THEY WOO IN NEW GUINEA.

The courtship customs of the Mekeo tribe of New Guinea, who have recently been receiving the attention of students of anthropology are amusing. Among the Mekeo a girls wooing provides employment for certain worthy men of the medicine craft for love charms and philtres are extensively used, and both boys and girls appeal to the rising sun for help. The negotiations for the marriage involve substantial gifts by the boy's family to that of the girl, including ornaments. These are paid in advance but they are only a sort of refresher to the members of the girl's parents and friends. Her value is not continued in jewelry, but in "pigs." A beautiful girl is worth many pigs, but it is not etiquette to say so. The girl's family, therefore, after the negotiations have been completed, makes a mock hostile raid on the boy's clan and secures the exact number of pigs required. The pigs being duly stolen, ceremonial dances follow.

Sometimes you wake up at night, heart throbbing like a steam engine. Your breathing is short and irregular; pains shoot through the chest and abdomen, and cause horrible anxiety.

A Woman Lost Her Hair and Got It Back With Herpicide

While there are no thrills in the narration of Mrs. P. T. Nichols, 625 Broad St., Beloit, Wis., her story is nevertheless one of amazing interest. "Stricken with neuritis and erysipelas, I lost all my hair. My doctor recommended Newbro's Herpicide. I used six or eight bottles and now have a fine head of slightly curly light brown hair. Not a gray hair in my head. This is the more remarkable as I am middle-aged."

While the results which follow the use of Newbro's Herpicide are always more or less astonishing, they are always natural. Herpicide destroys the dandruff germ, stimulates the flow of blood to the hair follicles and keeps the scalp perfectly healthy. It makes possible

THE ONLOOKER COMMENTS

The E.T. Monument

The Hon. Justice McCorkill has written a letter to the press on the interesting subject of a monument to the pioneers of the Eastern Townships. This is a fresh reference to a project which had its beginning many years ago. A large number have felt that public commemoration of the brave hewing out of "homes in the wilderness" would be but seemly appreciation of the sturdy pioneer type. Yet the initiative has not been taken. And the much discussed monument still awaits realization.

Its desirability is unquestioned. The lack of necessary funds alone has prevented the raising of a permanent memorial to the builders of the Eastern Townships. Hon. Justice McCorkill thinks optimistically that generous contributions would be forthcoming, and as no effort toward raising money for this very laudable purpose has been made in recent years, Judge McCorkill may be right. A certain interest would assuredly be taken. And should the desired end be realized, much pleasure would be felt by all appreciative citizens of the Townships.

An effort of this kind, however, requires organization and individual interest. No indefinite appeal could be successful. A Monument Committee, formed of men of prominence in the several counties, with accurate lists of old boys, descendants of old families, and interested citizens, would probably quickly raise the desired amount. Systematic effort, with enthusiasm in the project underlying the work of the committee, should at least make a formidable beginning.

The project is highly worthy, and feasible; the Townships sufficiently progressive to regard it favorably. A working centre, joined to individual interest, should make its realization possible. For this centre, however, and for the individual interest to force the idea to actuality, the pioneer monument movement has been waiting ever since it originated.

A Dramatic Death

Can a more tragic and compelling picture of present day warfare be drawn than that which the real adventure of a Bulgarian air scout has depicted for the world's admiration?

Within the walls of the holy city of Adrianople were the besieged Turks, drawn up ready for march, to make a sortie on the besieging Bulgarians without.

Suddenly above them appears that spying machine of the air, the aeroplane. Probably before they realize the presence of the air scout he has sent the message for which his Bulgarian comrades are waiting, and the well-laid plans of the Moslems within are frustrated.

But before the scout can return in safety to his army the angry Turks, of which infantry and cavalry were ready for action, turn their guns on the intruder. There is no chance for him. The machine and the man are doomed.

And here marks time the twentieth century hero of the air. He turns his machine full on the Turkish cavalry, directs its course until nearly at its destination, then calmly blows out his brains and leaves the rest to fate.

Fate shows him a grim justice. With the last spasmodic leap of his machine, the air scout reaps down several of the Turkish cavalry. He has defeated their plans, defied their vengeance, and destroyed part of their force.

We read of the "brave days of old," but such men as that Bulgarian air scout need not blush in the presence of ancient heroes.

Change in Theatre Management

The sale of the Sherbrooke theatre to a Montreal syndicate will bring about another change in the management of the local playhouse. The patrons of His Majesty's will be sorry to see the period of Mr. Duncan's management closed.

During the time Mr. J. R. Duncan has had the oversight of the theatre, a more than ordinary satisfaction has been experienced by those attending performances. Being a local man, possibly Mr. Duncan understood what was most appreciated by local people, for he brought plays to Sherbrooke which, with few exceptions, deserved and received praise and financial support. A high average of excellence has been maintained, and the public has gained confidence in the theatre management, as actually desiring to put on a good show, in return for good receipts at the box office.

Mr. Duncan, however, has not felt the "lure of the footlights" sufficiently to assume the local management of the theatre as the summum bonum of business and professional enterprise. Again the patrons must look to a new management, and they hope that the sensible and popular policy adopted by Mr. Duncan will be continued. The confidence of the public, once won, is a notable asset in the theatre business. This "good will" Mr. Duncan established and maintained, to the public's, and his own, advantage.

The Human Fly

The United States boasts a population of more than ninety-six millions of souls. Ninety-six millions! And yet the principal subject for many a public reproach and regret is "race suicide," as applied to the United States!

The question preponderantly before a nation such as this is not "race suicide," but of food and clothing for those already born. Is each one of those ninety-six millions fed, and housed, and clothed? Is every wage-earner justly paid? Is every man's life precious in the eyes of the law? Does the state guard the founding, protect the cripple, pension the aged, and provide work for the unemployed?

In the face of such numbers, "race suicide" as a calamity is a burlesque on common sense. Ninety-six millions of people is a large family, even for a Republic so rich as Uncle Sam. Let him feed the children he has, before he laments, with bombastic eloquence, the prevalence of "race suicide."

There may be race suicide, but it does not noticeably affect the census figures at Washington. The peopling of waste places, and the overcrowding of city slums goes steadily, mounting, numerically on.

The Duchess of Connaught

The recurrence of the malady from which the Duchess of Connaught suffered some months ago, and on this occasion of a slightly severe type, has caused anxiety and concern. The unseasonable changes of the weather immediately before and following Christmas have occasioned much ill health and possibly contributed to the regretted illness of the Duchess.

Her Royal Highness has been unfortunate in these attacks, and if of a nature new to her might cause her to conclude that the climate was not agreeable to her health. Canadians would be sorry if a climate at nearly all times so healthful should prove not satisfactory for so tried and hardy a traveller as the wife of the Governor-General. Hopes for a speedy and full recovery will be held universally by the people of Canada, who have learned to admire and esteem the family now representing and of so near a relationship to the Sovereign of England, in this country.

Easy Elementary

The list of studies for elementary schools, supplied by Inspector Rothney, is assuredly, not formidable, and proved interesting reading. There is but one other bit of enlightenment we should like to receive from Mr. Rothney, and that is relative to the extraordinarily unsatisfactory results obtained from following even that simple educational programme.

Mr. Rothney will not presume that the ordinary elementary school student has an exceedingly good grounding in English spelling, writing and reading, and arithmetic. What is wrong? Children, even of fifteen and sixteen years, attend these schools, and can they, save as exceptions, write letters with business neatness, speak correctly in their own language or read with appreciation of subject and text?

Where lies the fault?

Raffaello's Punishment

Unless a pardon comes to stay next week's execution, the Italian, Raffaello, will be hanged for the murder of his fellow-countryman, and another name be added to the short list of prisoners who have suffered the death penalty in this district.

Popular sentiment is not greatly in favor of capital punishment, and life imprisonment as an alternative would be welcome in this case. If he suffers the extreme punishment, however, Raffaello will have the not inconsiderable satisfaction of having made full atonement for his hasty act of murder. He will start the new year in eternity with a clean sheet, which is more than the majority of his fellows could do.

BOGUS PRIEST GETS CONFESION

Vienna, Jan. 10.—A story is printed here about a practical joke played by a convalescent actor at the hospital at Grosswarde on a fellow-patient with possibly serious results. The actor impersonated a priest, and heard the confession of the patient. The latter admitted he had been guilty of murder and arson, and his prosecution is impending.

PRESIDENT SUSPENDER
NONE SO EASY

FROM SCOTLAND TO ONTARIO

ASCENDANCY OF THE SCOT SHOWN IN MONOPOLIZATION OF POLITICS.

A curious sidelight afforded by the Cartwright memoirs is the description of Scotch ascendancy in Ontario politics in the old days.

When Cartwright entered Parliament in 1863, the nominal Premier was Mr. Stanfield Macdonald, a Roman Catholic, a Scotchman, and a Liberal. The Ministry, according to the custom of that day, was called Macdonald-Dorion—Dorion being the leader of the French-Canadian section of the party.

George Brown is piquantly described as a very apt imitation of an old Roman institution, a tribune of the people, with power to veto any measure of which he did not happen to approve. The combination, therefore, consisted, of "a Scotch Catholic Premier allied with a French Liberal of a rather free-thinking turn of mind, and both supported by a stubborn Presbyterian element, with whom they had probably very little sympathy except on one or two political questions, and to whom the very names of Catholic and free-thinking were an abomination." Ontario says Sir Richard, was a regular Scotch settler; its political leaders were Sir John A. Macdonald, Stanfield Macdonald, George Brown, Alexander Campbell, J. H. Cameron, W. Macdougall, and representatives of every clan you could name. The Scotch settlers hardly read anything but Brown's paper, the Globe, and the Bible, and their whole political creed was practically derived from the former source.

Cartwright also describes Macdonald as a Highlander with a strong tincture of Highland superstition. He hated Sir Alexander Campbell, and seemed to have a grudge against the very name of Campbell. "I have heard him speak more than once of the massacre of Glencoe as bitterly as if it had occurred within a generation, instead of two centuries ago, and quote the old Highland proverb, that the Campbells were always fair and false with great unctiousness."

EDINBURGH AND GLASGOW.

Also he says that Sir John Macdonald had a superstition that the North West had always brought him ill-luck. His first serious check after Confederation arose from the Red River rebellion and the murder of Scott. These events lost him Ontario, which gave a big majority against him in the election of 1872. Goldwin Smith, whose views on many questions were very like those of Cartwright, described the Presbyterians in Canada as "a thrifty, wise and powerful clan." Those who listened to some of the debates in the Presbyterian General Assembly were much struck by the political ability displayed by such leaders as the late Principal Caven.

For many years the political battle in Upper Canada was a sort of duel between the Edinburgh Scotchman, Geo. Brown, and the Glasgow Scotchman, John A. Macdonald. In the old Parliament of Canada, just before the union, there was a government led by John A. Macdonald one day and a government led by John Sandfield Macdonald the next. After Confederation John A. Macdonald and Alexander Mackenzie were Prime Ministers of Canada, and another Scotchman, Sir Oliver Mowat, held sway in Ontario for twenty-five years.

Principal Grant of Queen's, though he never sat in Parliament, was a keen politician, and a brilliant exponent of Imperial ideas in times when Imperialism was not the popular creed that it is to-day. Principal Caven of Knox was also interested in politics, and was a powerful friend and wise counsellor of Oliver Mowat. The Scotchman has certainly left his ear mark on the history of Canada. Even to day the defenders of privilege and the friends of liberty are fighting over the career of that doughty champion of freedom, William Lyon Mackenzie.

ROCKS IN MID-ATLANTIC.

Is it possible that there are partially submerged rocks in the Atlantic Ocean, and so close to the steamship routes as to constitute a danger? The "Nautical Gazette" answers the question in the affirmative, and adds that some of these rocks are so close to the place where the Titanic was lost as to suggest that the fatal iceberg was aground upon one of them. The Atlantic Ocean, he it remembered, covers a large area. A rock that may be only a foot or so above the water, or perhaps a foot or so below the water, is not easy to see. Such rocks were occasionally reported in the old leisurely days of the sailing ship, and they made a sort of apologetic appearance on the charts. Then they were removed from the charts because no one else saw them, which was natural enough, considering the size of the Atlantic Ocean, and the inconspicuousness of a rock perhaps no larger above the water than a dining-room table. For example, the Nile Rocks were reported in 1879 by Captain Marvin, of the sailing ship Nile, in latitude 44.04, longitude 49.09. Captain Marvin said that he saw "two rocks about 33 yards apart, three to five feet above the water," but no one else ever saw them. The Hervagault's Breakers, in latitude 41.20, longitude 40.18, have been seen twice, first in 1713 by Captain Hervagault, and again in 1827 by Captain Maxwell, who says that the breakers were caused by three sunken rocks. Many other rocks have been reported from time to time by careful navigators, but the modern chart ignores all these reports, for no better reason than that they have never been confirmed.

QUICK WIT AND GOOD HUMOR.

A travelling salesman sent in his card by the office boy to the manager of a large concern, whose inner office was separated from the waiting room by a ground glass partition. When the boy handed his card to the manager the salesman saw him impatiently tear it in half and throw it in the waste basket; the boy came out and told the caller that he could not see the chief. The salesman told the boy to go back and get him his card; the boy brought out 5 cents, with the message that his card was torn up. Then the salesman took out another card and sent the boy back, saying: "Tell your boss I sold two cards for 5 cents."

He got his interview and sold a large bill of goods.—Everybody's.
