BOY SCOUT BUYS FIRST BOND

Local Airman Is Promoted To Wing Commander

Word has been received here from overseas of the promotion of Wing-Commander R. A. McLernon, 24, to that rank, telling that he led the famous Alouette Squadron in a recent raid on Duesseldorf.

Wing-Commander McLernon, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. McLernon, 3003 Cedar Avenue, received his appointment to command the famous French-Canadian Squadron only 18 months after he arrived overseas. Leaving McGill where he was studying chemical engineering, he enlisted with the R.C.A.F. at the outbreak of the war. He trained at Halifax and Camp Borden and was stationed in Canada training flying instructors until a year and a half ago.

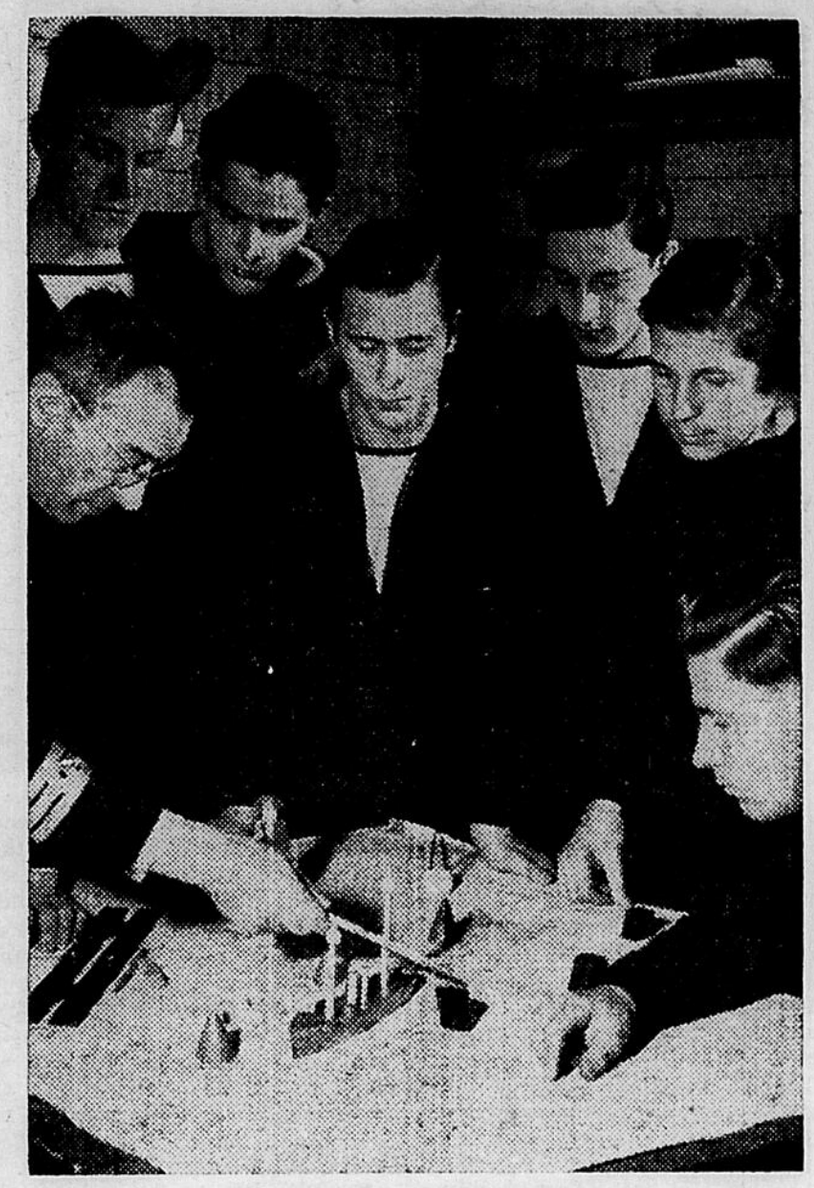
WING-CMDR. R. A. McLERNON

A native of Westmount, he was educated at Lower Canada College, Trinity College, Port Hope, Ont., and prior to enlisting was at McGill. He was chosen as a provisional officer at the outbreak of war and went overseas as a Flight-Lieutenant. His wife, the former Phyllis Morrisey, daughter of Lt.-Col. T. S. Morrisey, D.S.O., lives with their year-old daughter Diana, at 3275 Cedar Avenue.

Rotary Club Makes Plans For Carnival

A supper party was held on Wednesday evening at Victoria Hall, by members of the Westmount Rotary Club, after which a very interesting film on the Earyl Days of Rotary was shown.

A general assembly and discussion on Rotary took place and plans for the forthcoming Carnival under the leadership of Ewart Everson were arranged. Chester McBride was in the chair.



RECEIVING INSTRUCTION

Young men from every section of the Dominion are learning the arts of seafaring at St. Margaret's School for merchant seamen. There, they receive basic training for service in Canada's Merchant Marine. The lads, during their course of training at St. Margaret's learn knot-craft, signalling, climbing the ratlines. In the picture above, a class, using models and real charts, are shown methods of procedure around a harbour.

WINS COMMISSION

Word has been received that Pilot Officer Lionel J. Morris, R.C.A.F., 21, has been awarded his commission.

Formerly a pupil of Westmount High School and a graduate in commerce of Queen's University, he enlisted in October 1942, and trained at No. 6 I.T.S., Toronto, No. 10 E.F.T.S., Pendleton, and at Camp Borden, graduating from the latter on April 6th 1944.

Robin Badgley First Bond Buyer In Victory Loan

Twelve-year-old Robin Badgley, 367 Elm Avenue, Westmount, beat all citizens to the "First Man In" honor.

Robin Badgley has been running in second place as the First Bond Buyer for the past number of campaigns, but he was waiting this time, for the opening of the Unit Office with his application completely filled in. Robin had saved his money for his purchase from his spare-time work as a newspaper carrier.

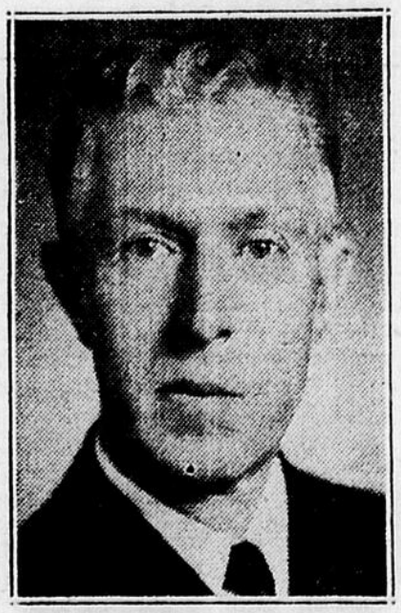
The forty-eight enthusiastic Victory Loan salesmen, the great majority who are veterans of the Great War, started out on Monday morning with great hopes of putting the Westmount Unit over the top. Again the Citizen's Committee and the Unit Organizers, appeals to the citizens to await the call of their Victory Loan salesmen.

Individual buyers are co-operating well with Victory Loan salesmen in helping to "Put Victory First," and it is reported that in many cases cheques have been made out in advance awaiting the call of the local representative.

The final meeting of the sales organization was held at Unit Headquarters, 4583 Sherbrooke Street West, Y.M.C.A. Building, on Thursday last. The chief speaker was F/O. H. W. Keane, D.F.C., D.F.M. His talk was most inspiring and his description of his many exploits was wildly acclaimed by the packed audience. F/O. Keane has done sixty-one sorties over Germany and Italy. He has bombed industrial centres and bombed Berlin seven times. He also participated in the daylight raid over Augsberg when Squadron Leader Nettleton won his V. C. He was a member of the last crew to bomb Augsberg at 250 feet low level attack. His aircraft was severely damaged by flak and set afire. He also helped to extinguish the fire as his pilot skimmed the roof tops. This officer was awarded the D.F.M. for this flight and also another daylight raid on Creusot, the big French armament works. He received the D.F.C. for continued leadership and devotion to duty. F/O. Keane expects to be back in active service very shortly.

During his speech he stated that his effort in connection with the Sixth Victory Loan would be his sixty-second flight over Germany, and he invited all citizens, as well as the salesmen, to join his crew.

Other speaker included Dinty Creighton, General Sales Executive for the Island of Montreal Region. Archibald Bentley, Joint Organizer, was in the chair. Speeches were also made by C. E. McKenna and Arthur Bracewell, also joint Organizers.



A. W. CALLARD, president of Callard and Co. Limited, who has been elected president of the Rotary Club of Westmount for 1944-45. Vice-president is A. A. Boire and new directors are C. T. Medlar, R. Dean, P. J. McAndrews and Charles Wright. D. McL. Brophy and E. A. Harrison were reelected honorary treasurer and honorary secretary respectively.

Dean H. F. Hall At R.H. and S. Annual Meeting

Dr. Henry F. Hall, Dean of Sir George Williams College, gave an interesting address on "Education For Our Time," on Monday evening at the annual meeting of the Roslyn Home and School Association.

Dean Hall said, that there were many conceptions of education, and in stating some of his own ideas, and for a lack of a better word, he termed "developmentism" or the development theory of education

CITY OF WESTMOUNT PUTS VICTORY FIRST

It has been reported from the Victory Loan Headquarters here that the City of Westmount has set the lead in the Sixth Victory Loan by the purchase of bonds to the amount of $344,000.

This fine gesture on the part of the City leads the way to the successful achievement of the objective placed upon Westmount by the National War Finance Committee.

Homoeopathic Hospital Enlists in War on Cancer

In co-operation with other Canadian hospitals a special cancer committee has been formed at the Homoeopathic Hospital which is compiling statistics and engaging in follow-up studies of all cases of malignant disease in an effort to make available for research all that is known about this great scourge. The Solar Club has provided funds to cover the clerical cost of this project.

This revelation is part of the report of Dr. Harold R. Griffith Medical Superintendent of the Homoeopathic Hospital to the Board of Governors of the institution. Dr. Griffith's report contains a review of developments during the half century that has elapsed since the hospital was founded.

The report in part is as follows:

On October 2nd, 1894, the doors of the Homoeopathic Hospital of Montreal were opened for the reception of patients. The year just past has been as busy, as useful and as difficult as any in this half century of service. The principle problem has not been how to find patients to fill our beds but where to find nurses, maids and orderlies to look after the patients clamouring for admission. To overload our accommodation when we are short of staff means placing an intolerable burden on those who have faithfully stood at their posts; and so in spite of long waiting lists there have been times during the year when beds were kept vacant because of a lack of nurses. This has been reflected in the figures for occupancy which show a total of 42,575 patient days, a decrease of 1,711 from the record figure of 1942 and 116 fewer patient days than in 1941. The decrease has been entirely in the public and the maternity wards, as it is in these departments where restrictions on admission have been in force. Private patient days rose from 8,566 to 9,227, and semi-private accommodation continued to be filled to capacity with 13,302 days in 1943 as compared with 13,305 in 1942. There were fewer indigents, and on this account we received only about half the amount of money from Q.P.C.A. payments as that of the previous year, in spite of the fact of an increase by the Government of the daily rate from $2.00 to $3.00. I am glad to say that at the present time all our beds are filled and that we are adequately staffed, but we have no assurance that this will continue. Working conditions, hours of duty and rates of remuneration must be still further improved if the best type of professional and non-professional employees are to be retained in the hospitals during these years of unlimited opportunity for employment.

Nursing the sick must always by its very nature remain a sacrificial type of service, and yet, I don't see any logical reason why hospital staffs should be expected to work longer hours for less money than those in other branches of social service or industry. In 1943 the Provincial Government passed a "Minimum Wage Ordinance" for hospital employees. I am heartily in favour of the principle involved, and I'm glad to say that most of our staff were already above the legal minimum, and yet this Ordinance imposes on the hospitals serious new problems. It will cost us an additional several thousand dollars a year to meet all the provisions, and for some of the larger hospitals it means an increased annual expenditure of many thousand dollars. Where is the money to come from in view of our present annual deficits? I hope that some of it may come from increased Government subsidy, and for the rest we must turn as in the past to our ever generous friends, the public spirited citizens of Montreal. On increase of wages will not solve all our worries as regards the staff. Hospital hours are long for nurses and maids alike. If we could close our doors at night and on week-ends we would have no staff problems, but sometimes we are busier at night than in the daytime.

We hope to be able to put our Graduate Nursing Staff on a straight shift of 8-hour duty, but so far we have not been able to find the few extra nurses who will be needed to inaugurate this plan. Night duty is too unpopular, and there is no compulsory selective service which applies to nurses. The Armed Forces and industry are taking many of our best trained nurses, but in my opinion the most important reason for the acute shortage of nurses is the fact that our girls are altogether too attractive as wives for young doctors and airmen and soldiers and sailors. However, we are struggling along with the faithful few who will continue to carry the load.

The various Departments of the hospital have all had a busy year. The Department of Medicine has kept abreast of new developments in therapeutics, particularly with regard to the application of the sulphonamide drugs.

CHOOSING BOOKS FOR THE FAMILY

Throughout the Dominion, in communities large and small, there are many excellent, well-stocked libraries. Five years ago, the rental library in the coal mining town of Blairmore, Alberta, had a bank balance of four cents. Now, through the efforts of some of the town's citizens, local firms, and individual donations, the library is paying for itself financially, and paying more dividends in education and entertainment for the townfolk and their families. In this picture two youngsters are choosing books for their whole family to read.

The Magic Carpet

(Books For Juveniles At Westmount Library)

In the Gulf of the St. Lawrence, off the end of the Gaspé Peninsula, lies the Island of Bonaventure, famous for its great red rock cliffs on which thousands of sea birds nest.

On the other side of the island, the land slopes gently to the sea and there live farmers and fishermen. Nick Dufour is the eleven-year-old son of one of these families. To the island comes a boy from Montreal and many are the breathless adventures they have during that summer. ("Sea Bird Island," by Vera Andrus.)

In "Lis at home in Denmark" by Lis Andersen, she relates the adventures she has at home. "Lis has sailed the Atlantic, she has lived in Teneriffe and had many adventures abroad, but this is a story of the preparations for their first voyage, of the secret code she and her brothers invented and many other exciting happenings.

In "Wings for Nikias" by J. Blackstock, Nikias was a small boy in a little Greek village and we are introduced to him in the summer of 1940, when Greece was outwardly peaceful as of old, and Nikias could listen for long hours to the tales of the ancient Greek heroes. His enthusiasm for the old heroes rose to new heights when Pablos, his American cousin, came to visit Greece and proved he could pilot an aeroplane. Then war came to Greece and Nikias had a chance to test the bravery he doubted.

Twelve-year-old Jane Hope ("Jane Hope," by Gray) was just the middle one and was on her way with her brother and sister to live with their grandfather in an old white house on Chapel Hill before the Civil War. Jane Hope arrived much the worse for wear, but somehow everything always turned into adventure for Jane Hope and to those people around her who helped her grow up.

All these charming stories can be borrowed at the Westmount Library.

Dominion Gallery Shows Work Of Four Artists

There is an interesting exhibition being held this week at the Dominion Gallery, 1448 St. Catherine Street West, showing the work of four artists, Allan Harrison, Sybil Kennedy, Jori Smith and Jacques de Tonnancour. The show will continue until May 3rd.

Allan Harrison shows a good interior, "My Room, Bloomsbury"; "House, Dorchester St.," Old Allan House, "Yacht," Pointe Claire, and "Ships At Anchor," which reveals careful and finished treatment.

Sybil Kennedy exhibits interesting pieces in plaster and in bronze— 'Cellist', 'Two Monks', 'Prodigal Son', 'Grief', and 'Bones', showing a Negro about to roll dice.

De Tonnancour exhibits offerings in modern trend of style and has in the collection Laurentian landscapes, several drawings in the nude and a couple of large portraits.

Jori Smith shows a collection of small paintings of children,— "Premiere Communicante," "Jeanne d'Arc," "Tit-me," and "Cecile" are among the offerings.

First Company Boys' Brigade To Conduct Service Sunday

A number of the instrumentalists in the Brass band will conduct the musical portion of the service at Tyndale House, Sunday evening, being a special Boys' Brigade service, under the auspices of the 6th Montreal Company. Captain J. H. Richardson will take an active part in the service assisted by several of the boys.

At the swimming meet held Saturday last, Corp. Alan Keith came out on top with three first places with the closest runner-up being Corp. Bob Eastwood who took two seconds and one third. The annual challenge medal will be engraved and presented to Corp. Keith at the Company's closing Inspection, late in May. The meet was an outstanding success and those taking part, while possibly not coming out with honours, at least look forward to competing in the Battalion meet sometime in early May.

Squad Competition is keen this month with the 3rd squad topping the list, however there is close running up by the 2nd and 4th squads. The weekly competitions have been giving points to the various squads based on perfect papers, thus making it all the more interesting and competitive. L/Cpl. Ian Campbell, since taking over the 2nd squad has shown marked progress and the Company look for great things from this team.

The largest number of recruits in many months were interviewed Friday last and it has necessitated a special course to be run, that they may be put through the necessary training and enrolled so as to be able to attend camp. Thus far sixty percent of the boys have signified their intention of attending camp with another thirty percent to hear from. Lieut. Chas King will be present at camp to conduct the brass band and all brass bandsmen will certainly be well advanced during the two weeks of camp.

Born in Granby, Que., Mrs. Reynolds came to Montreal at the beginning of her married life and was a resident of Westmount for 40 years. She was predeceased 13 years ago by her husband who was Montreal manager of the Belding Corticelli Silk Company. An invalid for the past few years, Mrs. Reynolds was not active in community life.

Reverend H. M. Shore conducted the service and interment took place in Mount Royal Cemetery.

Speaking of Time

Voltaire asked himself the question: "What, of all things in the world, is the longest and shortest, the swiftest and slowest, the most divisible and the most extended, the most neglected and the most regretted, without which nothing can be done, which devours all that is little, and enlivens all that is great?"

And then through the hero of his Zadig, a Mystery of Fate, he answered:

"Time."

"Nothing is longer, since it is the measure of eternity."

"Nothing is shorter, since it is insufficient for the accomplishment of your projects."

"Nothing is more slow to him that expects: nothing more rapid to him who enjoys."

"In greatness it extends to infinity, in smallness it is infinitely divisible."

"All men neglect it. all regret the loss of it: nothing can be done without it."

"It consigns to oblivion whatever is unworthy of being transmitted to posterity, and it immortalizes such actions as are truly great."

Westmount Airman Bags Second Nazi Fighter

Scoring over Laon, France, for the second day in a row, is the record of Flt.-Lt. Hugh Russel, according to word received here.

Flight-Lieutenant Russel who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Russel, 607 Clark Avenue, bagged one of five Focke-Wulf 190's which fell victim to the R.C.A.F. Spitfire.

This was Flt.-Lt. Russel's second kill and the ninth to go to the credit of his family. His brother Wing-Cmdr. Dal Russel, D.F.C. and Bar, also a Spitfire pilot and just beginning his third tour of operations, has seven planes to his credit. Flt.-Lt. Russel got his first plane over Dieppe during the Canadian Commando raid.

According to news received here, the R.C.A.F. fighters were sweeping a path in front of American heavy bombers which raided German air fields in France yesterday.

Russel got his "kill" with a single burst.

The action was so swift that some of the flight didn't get a chance for a shot.

Flt.-Lt. Russel is a native of Montreal. He was educated at Selwyn House and Trinity College School, Port Hope, Ont. He left school to join the R.C.A.F. in August, 1940, on his 18th birthday. Training at Brandon, Saskatoon, and Eglington, Ont., and receiving his wings and commission at Uplands in June, 1941, he went overseas the following month. Finishing one tour of operations, he was sent home in January of last year, was stationed for a while at Bagotville and returned to England in November last year. He just began his second tour of operations recently.

His sister, Jane, is also in England. She is with the Red Cross.

Prize-Winning Poem Appears This Week

The editor of The Examiner this week takes pleasure in printing a poem of genuine merit, the prize-winning effort of Mrs. John C. Molony who was awarded first prize in the competition held recently by the local sub-division of the Catholic Women's League. The title of the poem is "Exaltation", a lament for a loved one lost in the war and a hymn of praise for the spirit of sacrifice and devotion that inspired the youth's service for his country, civilization and mankind. Mrs. Molony also won second prize in the essay division of the competition for her contribution entitled "The Monastery of Monte Cassino."

The poem "Exaltation" will be found on the editorial page of this edition.

Next week we shall publish the second prize-winning poem, "Beethoven's Pastoral Symphony" written by Mrs. W. H. Barry upon hearing the interpretation of the Master's work by the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

KNOW YOUR WESTMOUNT

Q.-Is the Heather Curling Club an old organization in Westmount?

A.-The Club dates back to the time of the Village of Cote St. Antoine. It had its origin in the early 'eighties' on a pond at the corner of St. Catherine Street and Metcalfe Avenue. It may be said to be older than Sherbrooke Street, for, when the first Club House was established in 1887, there was no passageway across the Nuns' Farm between Clarke Avenue and Kensington although what is now Sherbrooke Street was open between Kensington and Metcalfe. The Club House with its two sheets of ice enclosed by a long, low building faced on Kensington Avenue at about what is now the rear of the Shaar Hashomayim Congregation.

The founder and first president of the Club was A. C. Hutchison. His son, W. B. Hutchison, was also a member and has been a very active curling member ever since.

In 1905 a new and larger rink was opened at 239 Kensington Avenue, on property purchased from the Logan Estate. The new rink had four sheets of ice. In 1915 it was decided to reduce the 14 foot circle to 12 feet. This reduction made it possible to re-arrange the rink and increase the number of sheets of ice to five. Heather is the only rink in the Montreal area with five sheets of ice.

In 1928 an ice plant was installed and three sheets were piped (equipped for artificial ice). The following year the remaining two sheets were piped, making Heather one of the first clubs in Montreal to have artificial ice for curling.

Heather has been very successful in winning many of the outstanding curling trophies, including the Governor General's Trophy for the last three years. This year the winning skips were Jack McKee and J. P. Watson.

Granites are played at the beginning and at the end of the season, but most of the curling is done with irons. The use of irons is practically confined to the Province of Quebec.

A luncheon is held every Saturday during the curling season together with an address and musical entertainment.

The club house is open all summer and members enjoy themselves playing bridge and billiards.

This year, in the ice of the centre rink, has been carved and coloured the flags of the

Mt. Saint Michel Rises In Bay Of Western World

The island of Mont Saint Michel rises sharp and bold in a bay of the Western Ocean, citadel of the Archangel, miltant patron saint of Norman France. A causeway leads out to the Mount. The noon that I reached there, for several hundred yards from the entry port, the side of the road was stacked with bicycles. Single bikes, tandem bikes, bikes with little trailers to carry duffle, baskets in front to carry duffle, all sorts of contraptions full of gear. I went inside and got a ticket to see the citadel.

Perhaps because near-by Brittany redounds in fisherfolk stories of castles swallowed by the sea, the Rock reminded me of a coral, to which, century after century, successive generations of the Western World have added their increments of architecture. Here are the stout round Norman columns that were finished just before William the Conqueror set forth for England; here are the slender, graceful arches through which the Gothic world passed into the world of the Renaissance; here are the metallic edges of the nineteenth century — the archangel Michael armored by the industrial era.

The centuries are overlaid one upon the other; a vertical section of the Rock—fortress, church, center of government—shows the kingdom and the power and the glory of a thousand years of France. It is in just such a vertical section that visiting parties see it, winding up through dark and cavernous passages, past the prisons, past the great wheel where supplies for this vast establishment were winched to upper levels by the tread of human feet, through the Hall of the Knights where the order of St. Michael was founded when Villon was singing his verses in Paris, through the great cathedral up to the flying buttresses that serve as lookouts over the gray and changing Western Ocean.

This was what I had come to see: but I paid more attention, in the end, to those who saw it with me. . . . The crowd was as French as the children who tumble out of the school buses at the gate of Mount Vernon at Easter-time are American. This was August, 1938, the third year of paid vacations for the workers of France.

I walked close in the midst of the crowd, to catch the salty comments as we went from monument to monument. It was a poignantly moving thing, this entry of a people into its heritage.—From "Yours for Tomorrow," by Helen Hill Miller. (New York: Farrar and Rinehart.)

as one which he hopes will come to use in the present generation. He thought it was the best way to bring about proficiency.

Next, the Dean spoke about the gap that must be breached between the practical and the cultural to bring out character qualities. Interest was important, for without something to keep the attention and interest in life, education stops. The principle of aptitudes was discussed as well as vocational guidance which had been proven in the Westmount Schools as a great step ahead. Lastly emphasis was placed on mental hygiene and Dean Hall stressed the importance of the science of education along these lines, becoming as important as the science of chemistry, psychology, arts and other things.

Mrs. M. L. Tucker was in the chair, and the speaker was thanked by Mrs. F. G. Ferrabee.

Officers elected at the annual meeting were as follows:- President, J. R. Fenwick; Vice-Presidents, B. H. Steeves, Miss E. G. Dewey, and Gordon Hutchison. Treasurer, Lawrence Burpee; Recording-Secretary, Mrs. Hugh Graham Ross; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Henry Johnson.

Rover Sea Scouts Complete Session

The Royal St. Lawrence Rover Sea Scouts have once again completed another successful session of winter training. Under the competent supervision of skipper T. D. Archibald, with mate J. D. Scythes and instructor Alex Shearwood, the Ship's Company has received a wealth of knowledge in such subjects as seamanship, navigation, piloting, signals, drill and sea scouting in particular.

One of the highlights of these meetings was Parent's Night. This was attended by many local yachtsmen as well as the parents of the crew. On this annual event, which is held primarily to show the parents what little Johnny does on Thursday nights, bos'n Scythes received his mate's certificate. The parents' and guests' warm applause showed their deep appreciation and admiration for his fine work.

Chocolates and best wishes were sent overseas at Christmas to all ex-members of this ship's company now serving in the armed forces, who number over sixty. News is received from time to time of old shipmates serving in the R.C.N.V.R., and all give thanks for their practical training and experience received in the Royal St. Lawrence. All hands were extremely glad to hear that Lt. Alex Gneadinger, R.C.N.V.R., former skipper of the outfit, was in town on a short leave and looked up his old mates of the "Jellicoe." Ratings and officers are eagerly looking forward to the summer cruising aboard their whaler James Caird. Also skipper Archibald will have his ketch "Ebbtide" available for practical training.

Crew musters are held Thursday evenings at 8 bells in the Roslyn School gymnasium, the last being scheduled for April 27.

At Belmont Park

The Arleys, daredevils of the air who perform death-defying feats on swaying poles towering 120 feet skywards, will be the Free Outdoor Attraction at Belmont Park which opens officially for the summer season on Saturday, May 13th. As per custom however the Park will hold a special preview on Saturday and Sunday (May 6th and 7th) when the public will be given a close-up and first-hand idea of what to expect in the way of fun, thrills and entertainment during the coming season. The Arleys are the forerunners of a number of acts to be presented at the Park . . . these acts being the most sensational and most expensive in the world.

In addition to the new rides mentioned in previous articles, a new feature to greet the eyes of patrons will be a modernistic "Hot Dog" Stand . . . completely fire-proof and finished in tiles . . . the finest on the North American Continent. This is but one of the many added conveniences which, coupled with extra shelters and picnic facilities, will make an outing at Belmont Park a most enjoyable one. Recreation in the open after a hard day's work is a wonderful stimulant and this fact has been realized by Industrial Concerns which head the list of picnic reservations, the biggest the history of the park.

Out Into the Light

There is bright hope that Canada is soon to see real progress in the fight against venereal disease . . . So long as this subject was taboo, progress was limited... With the tendency now to consider it as a public health problem, the shadows have been cleared away and the fight is on.

Homoeopathic Seeking Rooms For Dietitians

Accommodation for two dietitians of Homoeopathic Hospital is urgently required and W. Hatch, manager of the institution is renewing his appeal to residents in reasonable proximity to the hospital to consider providing this as a form of war service. What is needed is a double room with twin beds and a sitting room. There are not many opportunities of performing a real service to the nation and at the same time add a little to the household exchequer, but this is one of the exceptions. Mr. Hatch may be reached by telephoning DE. 3571.

Under Trees In Rain

Speak to this thing of wood, this pencil, make it write
Words, words with music, that on some bitter night
There may be poetry and, saying it, I'll see
Birch leaves a-quiver and a shagbark tree,
And dark little twiglets each running to a leaf;
An intricate network made plainer by this brief
Sweet autumn rain all redolent with sassafras
And apples buried in the grass.
You were a tree once, pencil—write a story,
Or put into poetry this moment's glory.

EDITH BENEDICT HAWES

THIS ABOVE ALL

calls for your greatest effort

All of us at home are looking forward to Victory. We are looking forward to a safe return of our boys.

But remember, the nearer the Victory, the grimmer the cost. We have many sacrifices to make, many stern times to go through, before the enemy collapses in unconditional surrender.

That is why Canada's Sixth Victory Loan is the most urgent necessity facing us today. This Loan, above all, calls for our greatest effort. Only by the determination of every one of us to buy Victory Bonds to the limit . . . to buy them with our savings . . . to buy still more and pay for them regularly out of earnings . . . can we help shorten the war and bring back our boys at the earliest possible moment.

We in Canada first bought Bonds to stave off defeat.

Next we bought for attack.

NOW LET US BUY FOR VICTORY.

WESTMOUNT, FRIDAY, APRIL 28, 1944

AN ILL BIRD FOULS SOVIET NEST

"IT'S AN ill bird that fouls its own nest" and when the fouling consists of supposed revelations as to discreditable actions by one's family, one's party or one's own nation, it is almost always safe to discount them liberally, if not to reject them altogether. Victor Kravchenko, supposed official of the Soviet Purchasing Commission in Washington, chose his time shrewdly to rake his own country's foreign policy with a broadside of accusations if the object in view was to lend aid and comfort to the enemy by stirring up distrust and suspicion of Russia in the United Nations—and it is hard to see what other object he can have possibly had unless he has been eaten with blind passion under the spur of personal grievance over some real or fancied injury.

Many of Kravchenko's charges of "double-faced political manoeuvres" by his country directly contradict Soviet Government statements, such as his assertion that the Comintern has dissolved in form but not in reality. Some purport to give explanations—for what they may be worth—of confusing moves like the Russian about-face in Italian relations. Other charges are scarcely logical. It is difficult to contemplate the superb fighting machine that is the Russian army and the magnificent spirit of the civilian population, and then to credit Mr. Kravchenko's assertion that the Russian people "are subjected ... to unspeakable oppression and cruelties ... have lived in constant dread and want."

It would be idle to pretend otherwise than that the two sides—the United Nations and Soviet Russia—are co-operating with each other only as far as they feel able or as appears to them in their own basic interests to do so. We are sure, however, that the United Nations are not deliberately "double-crossing" their ally and we refuse to believe on the tainted testimony of a Kravchenko that Russia is deliberately "double-crossing" the United Nations. Even admitting that much of Russia's diplomacy is mysterious to a point that invites suspicion, so that some people will be only too glad to swallow these charges whole, it is still true that the United Nations owe a great debt to Russian arms and that the present war situation would not bear thinking of if the Red Army were defeated, instead of victorious as it actually is.

The Soviet Embassy at Washington has lost no time in answering Kravchenko, nor does it "pull its punches" in so doing. Far from being head of the Metals Division of the Russian Purchasing Commission as he pretends, it is said, he has only been on temporary leave to assist that body as one of the inspectors of pipes. Called on to return home to continue his military service, it is further explained, this man refused to do so and made slanderous statements against his Government in order to cover up his desertion and, presumably, to gain sympathy in the United States in anticipation of deportation proceedings. Of the two this story rings most true but in any event it will be wisest to suspend judgment regarding doubtful points until the truth can be ascertained, one way or the other.

There is far too much at stake to permit international relations to suffer at this critical stage in the war through the sensational accusations of a minor official that may perhaps prove in the end to have been completely groundless—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

EXALTATION

They wonder that I do not weep when you
Whom I loved more than life lie dead. They think
That I have lost you, but I have you still.
That which I have lost is but the lesser part
Of you, the touch of lips, of hands, the feel
Of your rough coat, the sight of your dear face,
The sound of your deep-throated, sudden laugh.
But you I have not lost; I have but shared
You, love, with God—all His and mine you are.

Oh, often when you held me in your arms,
A shadow used to fall across my heart,
Born of the thought that some day we must hear
The whirring of the wings of Death above
Our heads and either you or I must go.
Now you are gone; death found you as you winged
Your gallant way through clouds and stars to strike
The deadly foe and crush him where he spawned.
Strange, but there is no shadow on my heart!

I know that there are times ahead when I
Shall cry aloud for sight and touch of you.
Oh, then, dear heart, your love must wrap me round
And bear me up that I may singing go
To meet the day when I, please God, shall see
You once again, and joyful, fling myself
Into your eager, open arms once more.

THE PACIFIC COLOSSUS GETS A HOTFOOT

THE FORUM

Conducted by HOWARD S. ROSS, K.C., D.C.L.

In Which Subjects of General Interest Are Discussed

The opinions expressed in this Forum are not necessarily those of this newspaper, and it does not accept responsibility for them.

Hon. James MacKinnon's announcement that Canada is to be breadbasket to the overrun countries of Europe is a reminder of the importance of Canadian agriculture, not only to this country, but to the cause of the United Nations, and even, when peace comes, to the world at large.

For years the Canadian economic picture has been bedevilled by burdensome wheat surpluses. That condition is not likely to last much longer. According to Mr. MacKinnon 1943-44 exports of wheat and flour promise to exceed those of the last five years. Already the occupied lands are buying Canadian grain for delivery as soon as their lands are liberated. Almost 8,000,000 bushels have already gone to Greece to avert serious famine. Even a great wheat-producing land like Russia has bought almost six and a half million bushels of Canadian wheat. The United States, which usually exports wheat, has taken 43,000,000 bushels from use in the last two years and according to Hon. James Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, wants another 150,000,000 bushels before next July 31. Of course, our biggest customer is the United Kingdom, which has absorbed nearly 300,000,000 bushels in the last two years.

Before the war and even during the first few years of the conflict there was an argument for cutting down wheat production and concentrating on more immediately valuable types of foodstuffs. Now it would seem that there is no immediate danger of recurring wheat surpluses, though in the years after the war the millions who are now hungrily seeking our wheat may again arrange to grow their own. Meanwhile it is clear that food production in Canada is producing a valuable weapon for winning both the war and the peace, and that the farmer should rank high in priority for manpower and equipment. — From Post-Record of Sydney, N.S.

Montgomery Ward & Co. had to return 55 million dollars to customers in the first six months of 1943 — because the merchandise they ordered was no longer available in the mail order company's stocks. This is an indication of the volume of postwar business.

My philosopher friend says a realist is a person who wears both a belt and suspenders and carries an extra shoe lace in his vest pocket.

Automotive engineers have the plans and designs ready for a streamlined inexpensive car efficient in the use of gas. Technical considerations and the profit motive hinder the mass production of such cars in the immediate post-war future. Likewise social engineers, political economists, statesmen with vision have plans ready for a society of abundance and one that will not produce World War III. But the realities of power politics threaten to hinder the realization of any such plans — perhaps, too, wreck them beyond repair. Such is the road ahead — unless the people wake up! — The New Leader, New York.

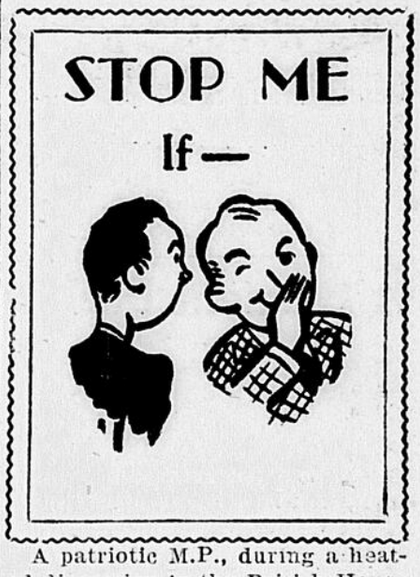
"Man must buy moral freedom at a great price, but in that freedom to choose lies his essential dignity, for, as Pascal has said, he is neither angel nor beast."

—Lee Cannon.

Sailor, deck worker, horse-cab and taxi driver — that's the record of Ben Smith, 62, British Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Aircraft Production. Now he has been appointed British Minister of Supply in the U.S.A. He entered Parliament as a Socialist member for Rotherhithe in 1923 and has gained an important place in government.

A national peace organization in sending out invitations for a meeting in Washington, announced that "in addition to promulgating the plan to save the world, we will also serve cocktails."

Add to the list of things whose prices have not gone up: the mail rate for Christmas cards in unsealed envelopes. They can still be sent "anywhere in the world" for one cent.



A patriotic M.P., during a heated discussion in the British House of Commons, became very excited and shouted: "The British lion, whether it is roaming the deserts of India or climbing the forests of Canada, will not draw in its horns or retire into its shell."—Children's Newspaper.

The rural editor came home to supper tired, with an unusual smile lighting his face. "Have you had some luck at last?" inquired his wife. "Luck! I'll say so," said the editor. "Old Squire Skinner, who hasn't paid anything on his subscription for ten years, came in today and stopped his paper." — Neal O'Hara, in Houston Chronicle.

Going home during the evening rush hour I struggled into a tube train at Oxford Circus. Finally the doors closed, and everybody was wedged tight, unable to move.

In the thickest was a short, fat Cockney woman, who remarked to the passengers in general: "I comes in 'ere like Stanley Baldwin and goes aht like Anthony Eden!"—London Evening News.

"George," said Mrs. Lovewell, "Mother has turned down our invitation to visit us. She says in her letter that we do not appear to want her. I asked you to invite her to come at her own convenience. You did that, didn't you?"

"Yes," said George, "but—er I couldn't spell that word 'convenience,' so I just made it 'risk'."—Selected.

This young Scot has already earned for himself an enviable reputation as a speaker and preacher of the Gospel. Dr. Johnston will preside at this service.

In the evening the sermon will be "Renewing the Covenant — Back to the Old Tenting-place." This address will be one rich in spiritual vitamins and challenging in its impact. At both of these services Westmount choir, under the leadership of Hibbert Troop, will sing.

The Fireside Fellowship which will have an attractive program for young people, follows the evening service.

The Montreal City Baptist Young People's Union will hold their spring rally in Temple Baptist Church with a song service beginning at 8 o'clock. The speaker of the occasion will be Dr. J. B. McLaurin whose reputation as a speaker on vital themes is Dominion-wide. All young people are urged to avail themselves of the privilege of hearing this address.

Westmount mid-week service for fellowship, discussion and prayer, is held each Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. These gatherings are of deepest interest to all who attend and are open to all who desire the inspiration and enrichment which accrues from such a service.

St. Andrew's Church

Both services next Sunday in St. Andrew's Church will be conducted by Rev. J. A. Breckenridge of Callander, Ontario.

Mr. Breckenridge has had a very interesting academic and pastoral career. He is still a young man and has selected for himself a special type of ministry in which the personal needs and problems of the individual are his special concern. He has already taken courses in psychology of pastoral relations in Union College, New York, and plans to take further courses in the coming summer.

This type of ministry has become very popular due to the leadership of Dr. J. S. Bonnell and Dr. Norman Vincent Peale of New York City, both of whom have written books on the subject.

At the morning service in St. Luke's United Church, next Sunday, the minister will speak on "The New Life." a topic which seems particularly appropriate at this season. In the evening we are to have as guest preacher the Rev. D. H. MacVicar, of Chalmers United Church, Verdun. We anticipate a large turn-out of members and friends to make him welcome.

A number of people may be changing their place of residence about the first of May and it is the earnest wish of the minister, officers, and congregation of St. Luke's that these people will visit our church before deciding on a new church home. They are assured of a warm and friendly welcome and a place for every member of their families. A telephone call to Rev. R. E. Spencer, at DE. 8019, will find a prompt response to any pastoral need. Will present members who may be changing their homes, please see that we have their new addresses as soon as possible.

Former Service Women Continue To Give Aid

The Imperial Ex-Service Women's Club of Montreal, formed in 1941 with a view to doing a share in the present war effort, has made considerable progress towards this end. The members of this club, ably assisted by several honorary members, have been instrumental in shipping 75 Emergency Kits for Air Raid Victims. These kits consisted of necessary articles and were valued at $2.50 each. Numberous parcels of clothing and sums of money have been sent to distributing centres for the relief of bomb victims and in addition cigarettes and comforts are regularly forwarded to British and Canadian Prisoners of War and Allied Merchant sailors. Donations of money and clothing have been made to V-Bundles of Montreal, Allied Post, Red Cross, Buckshee Fund, Queen's Canadian Fund and Russian and Greek War Relief. The ladies of this club have also knitted warm articles for the Allied Post. Funds for these efforts are raised by means of entertainments, donations, and membership fees.

Total receipts from July 1941 to March 31-44, $257.09. Disbursements for wool, postage, etc., $235.71. Balance on hand, $21.38.

A total of 246 woollen garments were knitted and donated to above organization. Any Ex-Service Woman of the last or this war, who would like to join this Club, will get further details by phoning Mrs. Hill, President, or Mrs. Prevost, Secretary.

APPEAL IS LAUNCHED FOR EQUIPMENT

Mrs. Harold Mills, president of the Westmount Women's Club, Inc., has received an urgent request through the War Services for tennis, badminton and golf equipment for the use of the armed forces.

Readers who may have such equipment stored away in attics and basements and who would be glad to hand it over to gladden the hearts of the Service personnel (many of whom cannot afford the luxury of games equipment of their own) should send such pieces as can be spared to Mrs. Mills, 344 Lansdowne Avenue, or telephone DE 3290 when it will be called for.

Mrs. Mills undertakes to see that any donated clubs, racquets, etc., will be handed over promptly to the proper authorities.

Stand-ins Often Stars' Good Friends

The position of a stand-in is not necessarily a lowly and unglamorous one, despite the fact that these movie folk merely stand before cameras while lights are being adjusted.

The stand-ins for Franchot Tone and Veronica Lake on "The Hour Before the Dawn" happen to be close personal friends of the stars. The friendships began only after the two met on film sets.

The comradeship of Tone with his stand-in Bob "Alabam" Davis is one of the oldest and most famous in Hollywood. They met eight years ago when Davis was assigned to stand in for one of Tone's first films. They have worked together ever since and "pal" together between pictures.

Veronica did not know Pamela Drake until the latter was employed as her stand-in on "The Hour Before the Dawn." They became friendly on location at Mesa, Arizona, now continually eat all their meals together and spend most of their evenings together.

Crunchy Type Salad Is Favored By Star

"Menus are often likely to be too bland," says Veronica Lake, Paramount star currently working in "Bring on the Girls," but Veronica has a remedy, that is to serve an appetizing crispy salad. Most of the ingredients are pleasantly crunchy, while the ripe olives offer a pleasant contrast and make the salad taste exceptionally good. Here is Veronica's recipe for "Crispy Salad."

2/3 cup sliced celery, 1/3 cup chopped ripe olives, 1 cup chopped green sweet pepper or raw carrot, 1 cup diced apple, 1/4 cup diced cucumber pickle, 1/2 teaspoonful salt, 1/4 cup chopped pimento, Mayonnaise and one head lettuce.

Combine celery, ripe olives, pepper or carrot, apple, pickle, salt and pimento. Toss together with sufficient mayonnaise to blend. Serve on lettuce-garnished salad plates.

NO MORE TINY KITCHENS

The tiny kitchen is on the way out. Tried out before the war in modern houses, the so-called compact kitchen has become too compact. Housewives have discovered that elbow room is better than cramped quarters, even though compactness means they can reach everything in the room without taking a step.

Pictures are to your walls what buttons are to a dress or grace notes to music—the light, bright, rhythmic spots, captivating in design, which lead the mind beyond opaque boundaries.

It Is No Joke Now To Buy The Baby New Shoes In Britain

A donation of reconditioned and new clothing is sent practically every week to V-Bundles of Montreal and District by the members of the Westmount Women's Club, according to Mrs. W. A. Patton, president of V-Bundles. "We never have to do a thing to that bundle," said Mrs. Patton recently, "save just pack it up in the crates for shipping. We do appreciate it. Everything is in apple-pie order, beautifully cleaned or laundered as the case may be, mended, or neatly remade. And you can understand how much these baby clothes, boots and blankets mean to the hard-up-for-clothes British families."

In Britain now, it may take all of six weeks before one can get a pair of shoes repaired, a visiting naval officer told Mrs. Patton this week. The problem of keeping British children in shoes has become an acute one for various reasons. Not only is the leather of inferior quality to that of pre-war standards, but the shoes actually get much harder wear than they did in pre-war days, on account of the fact that all play spaces, parks and playgrounds have been turned into victory gardens and the children now have to play on the streets or among the rubble from wrecked buildings. Neither clothes nor footwear is standing up to this punishment and the need for clothing and shoes is desperate. Here in Montreal V-Bundles can get old boots and shoes quickly and efficiently repaired for fifty cents and these repaired articles will be received as gifts of great value by distressed mother overseas. "The need is urgent," says Mrs. Patton, "so send all you can spare."

In this fifth year of the war, even well-to-do families who had well-stocked wardrobes, are finding the clothes rationing a severe trial, as the sixty coupons allowed don't go very far towards providing personal clothing, let alone household linens.

Parcels of donated clothing and shoes which are too heavy to be taken by hand to the V-Bundles depot on Queen Mary Road, will be picked up by V-Bundles on Tuesday mornings between 9 and 12 noon.

Since it started to function this organization has shipped 1,451 cases of reconditioned clothing, weighing 131 tons, to help relieve the shortage of baby supplies, quilts, and wearing apparel, in orphanages, bombed out homes, hospitals, etc.

A ceiling is good if it puts the lid on your room at a comfortable height. A very white ceiling in a richly colored room may appear to fly off. It is performing its physical function, but its appearance has not dramatized or made articulate its function of completing and enclosing the room space at the top.

Float Greens In Water To Get Rid Of Sand

Here are some helpful hints for those who do not like little grains of sand in such good spring vegetables as spinach and asparagus. To grit the teeth at the dinner table when eating greens or asparagus is an unpleasant experience which may cause a permanent dislike for these foods.

The secret of washing spinach is to use several waters and to lift the greens out instead of letting the water run off. If the greens are gently patted down in a large tub or deep dishpan full of water and then lifted out into a second water, the sand will sink to the bottom instead of clinging to the leaves. Before washing spinach, cut off the roots and discard wilted and damaged leaves.

Grit on asparagus is usually hidden under the little scales on the sides of stems. Cut off these scales before washing.

Before you blame your telephone...

CHECK THIS DISTANCE

Engineers designed the mouthpiece of your telephone to give best results at one-quarter of an inch from the lips. When your lips are farther away than this, your voice is transmitted less strongly . . . less clearly.

Failure to remember these simple facts accounts for the great majority of "trouble" reports.

Help avoid needless service check-ups, and at the same time let those you talk to hear you without strain. Just remember: Talk clearly, normally, directly into the telephone, with your lips just one-quarter of an inch from the mouthpiece.

Our Million Services — Giving Wings to Words

Smoking while you talk may cause distorted reception. It also prevents your holding the mouthpiece directly in front of the lips.

If you need to reach across your desk as you talk, continue to hold the telephone in correct position, close to the lips.

A wall set can't come to you; stand or sit so that your lips are directly in front of and close to the mouthpiece. Don't "talk across" it.

For clear, noise-free transmission, always keep your desk telephone upright — not at or near the horizontal position.

Cotton Print Lining Transforms Old Hat

Catherine Craig, who just finished working in Paramount's "And Now Tomorrow," was wearing a beautiful straw hat with a flowered print facing, while having lunch in the commissary recently. Somebody remarked about the stunning hat and Catherine told how she made it.

Take your big straw picture hat (from last year) and line the brim with a print. It's a specially wonderful idea for those flower percales in pastel colors, because they lend plenty of flattery to the face, shadowing the eyes in the lining of the brim. Catherine says not to be discouraged if you have no picture hat to start with . . . you can do quite a professional job by quilting the flowered material and making a brim and crown with very little work.

Sharing Family Tasks

Longfellow had a poem for it—that special time
Between the dark and the daylight
When the night is beginning to lower
Comes a pause in the day's occupations,
That is known as the Children's Hour.

In the other days, in more leisurely times, it was possible to play for an hour with the children and then sit down to a delicious dinner cooked by someone else in the kitchen. But today, the kitchen is the theater of action on the home front. That "someone in the kitchen" is none other than the mother of the family or the husband of a war-working wife or an older child.

My husband and I felt that "the time between the dark and the daylight" should be so organized for our son and daughter that they stayed indoors and were occupied. We found that music practice is better in the before-breakfast period when they are fresh. Home work is more effective after a good dinner. However, the children's choice for the twilight winter hour were radio serials and news commentators. But we hoped to combine a share of the housework with their radio entertainment. So this idea has been worked out for school days to everyone's satisfaction with the result that I am relieved of dishwashing and table setting while the children earn extra money for their war bonds.

Jack is now a tall fourteen, and Peggy, a shorter ten.

I leave written instructions on the table to eliminate that overworked phrase, "I forgot!" I write down the menu so the table setter will know what flatware to use. Paper napkins are our custom except for special guests. The children also take over the task of starting simple vegetables, such as peeling potatoes and scraping carrots, and I write down the exact time to start the cooking of each. It works out best, we find, if they alternate the tasks weekly. A kitchen can be a lonely place for one child but a room in which to learn co-operation when two are busy. And if the children prefer different radio programs, the vegetable cook listens to his radio in the kitchen and the table setter takes his hero into the dining room.

When the youngsters took over clearing the table and washing dishes, they realized for the first time how much china is used at a meal. They began substracting dish after dish until I feared we might soon eat in a primitive way from one communal bowl with our fingers! So we compromised on a minimum number of dishes for dinner.

A few evenings of help and instruction were required to teach them the best way to wash dishes. They might as well learn correctly at first, we decided. We arranged the working space in the kitchen to fit our scrape, rinse, and stack technique in assembly-line fashion as they carried out the dishes. I often hear them murmur the words—scrape, rinse, and stack—like a refrain, as they get up from the table. They heartily agree that the crumpled paper napkins are fine to wipe off silver and pans before washing. Peggy measures the soap flakes into the dishpan. Fortunately, she prefers washing and Jack likes drying so there is no need to shift those tasks about. And they are both supposed to put everything away and set the breakfast table.

There are evenings when Jack must rush away to Scout meeting or when Peggy wants to play a game before bedtime. Then it is arranged between them for one child to do all the washing, drying and putting away. They keep a running account of the extra work and swap the jobs occasionally. They have learned to work well together and to consider their housework not something menial but a contribution to the war effort for the purchase of war bonds. So the children's hour in our home means, simply, that all's well in the kitchen!

NEWS OF THE THEATRE WORLD

AT WESTMOUNT THEATRE

Red Skelton clowns himself into the heart of Eleanor Powell once again in M-G-M's laugh-musical, "I Dood It," now showing at the Westmount United Theatre.

Red plays a pants' presser who borrows his customers' clothes to dance attendance on the popular stage star, Connie Shaw, played by Eleanor Powell. Connie is in love with her co-star, Richard Ainley, and when he becomes interested in Patricia Dane she marries Red in spite. Red's troubles have only just begun. Before he knows it he has been exposed as a fraud and Connie has left him. But the situation soon changes when he captures a band of saboteurs single-handed and not only wins Connie's heart but a substantial reward with which to produce her next show.

Music by Jimmy Dorsey

Jimmy Dorsey and his band furnish the musical background and Lena Horne and Hazel Scott appear together for the first time on the screen in a sensational production number, "Jericho." Miss Powell performs one of the most difficult dance routines ever seen on the screen. In the "So Long, Sarah Jane" number she not only dances the rhythm but twirls a lariat with a skilful hand while tapping out the intricate steps.

Red was never funnier than he is as the worshipping tailor, and Miss Powell, wearing special Irene-designed creations, is stunning. Sam Levene as the fast-talking tailor turns in an amusing performance. Others in the cast are Thurston Hall, Morris Ankrum and John Hodiak.

Vincente Minnelli directed with a sure-fire touch, extracting all the juice from the musical comedy plum. Jack Cummings accorded a lavish production and Georgie Stoll and Ray June contributed the effective musical scoring and photography. The song numbers were especially written by Don Raye, Gene DePaul, Lew Brown and Sammy Fain.

Possibilities For Hand-work

Building Industry Opens Prospects for Skilled Artisans

'Why is pre-fabrication always considered something new and strange?' asked Gordon Russell of Home listeners. 'I could take you round a part of England I know pretty well, the Vale of Evesham, and show you many examples of half-timbered cottages which I feel sure were pre-fabricated in the seventeenth century. One of the great problems of that time on the farm was how to employ farm labourers during deep snow or heavy rain in the winter. And far more people worked on the land then. So they hit on the idea of sawing up the locally-grown elms in winter and then setting out the whole side of a cottage on the barn floor. The tenons and mortises weren't difficult to cut, and when all joints were marked the whole side could be taken apart and stored in very little space against a wall. In the spring a cottage could be erected in a few days, thatched to keep out the rain, floors laid and panels plastered. Every joint had been marked to make erection simple; it was really exactly the same technique as erecting a steel skyscraper in New York. Pre-fabrication is just the common-sense way of doing the job. If things have to be made singly, make them by hand. If in thousands, mass-produce them by machine. To do this efficiently standardize the pattern and also pre-fabricate certain parts—that is, build them up separately and then assemble them. One can, for instance, pre-fabricate the whole of one side of a kitchen with its sink, draining-board, plateracks, cupboards, etc. Mass production has given us the stainless steel sink with two compartments and draining-board all in one. There's no reason why the price shouldn't be low if the demand is high, and pre-fabrication would probably leave quite a lot of brick or stone walling to be done on the site. This would help to link up with older buildings.

'Does all this mean that everything will be made by machine? Of course not. There will be buildings like churches, town halls, and some houses, which are only wanted in small numbers and could well be built by hand. And don't you think that all hospitals and schools would be improved by lively coloured paintings on the walls? Sculpture, too, has been badly neglected. There are endless possibilities for using hand-work; it is, in fact, the perfect complement to the machine.'

Draft by-law

A draft by-law, to amend the city's by-laws in order to establish the types of buildings to be permitted on Rolland, Stephens, Monteith and Beurling avenues, and Champlain boulevard, has been approved by the City Council.

A Montreal magistrate sent a man to jail for wearing a military uniform two weeks after he was discharged. We suspect there are some Montreal magistrates who would have liked to send him to jail for wearing it before he was discharged.

Raise Standard Of Native Labor

Over a year ago a training school for the fellahin was started in Cairo, Egypt. The school was to train mechanics for the repair of motorized rolling stock used by the Allies.

The fellahin earn usually about thirty cents a day, and they live mainly on black bread and beans. Yet now there are eight hundred of them doing work, said to be equal to what European mechanics would produce.

The "boss" treats them like "white men," and pays them accordingly, and they respond. They get one day off each week, and nobody pushes or kicks them. The experiment has been a success. The fellahin are really "men."

It was with regret that we read of the passing of Cecile Chaminade, the celebrated composer and pianiste, at Monte Carlo. Considered one of the most oustanding of French composers in the world of music, she had lived to a ripe old age, eighty-six, and although we do not hear many of her works in the concert halls of America, her salon pieces are very familiar. One short number in particular will remain a lasting favorite, the ever popular "Scarf Dance". Her works are heavy but very melodious. Madame Chaminade was born in Paris, France, August 8, 1861, made her debut as a concert pianiste at the age of eighteen and after gaining considerable fame in this field she discovered her talent for composition and consequently devoted the rest of her life to this art. Among her works are a "Symphonie Lyrique" for chorus and orchestra and many songs.

Charles Kramer, who was well known to Montrealers as a good band leader, left his home some time ago to seek his fortune in the musical mecca, New York City. So many leave their native town and are seldom heard of but the name Charles Kramer is becoming known throughout the country since he wrote that catchy hit number, "It's Love, Love, Love." This song is being played by practically every major jazz orchestra and featured by blues singers in the United States and Canada. It was played on last week's Hall of Fame program and when it is presented there—well, the composer has arrived!

The Montreal composer, James C. Steel, has set to music "Two Lullabies For Infant Prodigies" an amusing poem by Mr. H. P. Bell, musical editor of the Montreal Daily Star. Mr. Steel has divided the song into six verses: No. 1 is a Dream Song; No. 2 is of a lively nature; Nos. 3 and 4 describe the practising of the little "artists"; No. 5 is a Reverie and No. 6 is a Lullaby.

SANE CORRECTIVE

(From The Halifax Herald)

In a recent speech, referring particularly to the Italian campaign, Anthony Eden quoted the following lines from Francis Quarles, a poet-philosopher, who died 300 years ago:

My soul, sit thou a silent looker on:—
Judge not the play until the play is done;
Her plot has many changes; every day speaks a
New scene; the last act crowns the play.

These lines apply not only to the campaign in Italy, but to the whole war. They are an antidote to impatience and to querulous criticism. Arm-chair strategists and, indeed, each of us when tempted to voice distrust or unfounded criticism of Allied leadership, can find a sane corrective in those lines.

Mr. Jolliffe has joined in condemning the practice of stamping "Illegitimate" across birth certificates. He wants to save that rubber stamp for private business licences.

AT THE MONKLAND FRIDAY!

First John Wayne throws Jean Arthur out of a second storey window into a load of hay, then he jumps after her, in one of the funniest scenes of RKO Radio's comedy romance, "A Lady Takes a Chance." But next thing you know, the mood turns into one of the tenderest love scenes the screen has seen in a long time. The film opens at the Monkland United Theatre on Friday playing until Monday night.

The Fort Erie Times-Review observes that we have learned a great deal of geography in the last four years. Yes, but most of it won't be any use again until the next war, and perhaps not even then.

Four of the costumes which Veronica Lake wears in "Bring on the Girls," the Paramount Technicolor musical, are baremidriff. These include pajamas, sunsuit, sports outfit and a cigarette girl costume.

At York Theatre

You'll have no time for a serious thought when you see Paramount's hilarious comedy romance, "No Time for Love" which opened last night at the York United Theatre, to the great amusement of the audience, and your reviewer. It is one of the funniest pictures seen in a long time, thanks to Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray, its co-stars, and Mitchell Leisen, its topflight director.

Miss Colbert has the role of a very arty magazine photographer who gets the down-to-earth assignment of snapping pictures of sandhogs at work. "Sandhogs" is the technical name for tunnel-diggers. The lovely Claudette wrinkles her aristocratic nose but takes her camera to the floor of the tunnel nevertheless. There she runs into MacMurray, a fine figure of a sandhog, and the conflict between them begins.

MacMurray refuses to pose for a picture; Claudette takes one of him anyway, just as he swings at a guy who said something he didn't like. When the picture appears in the magazine, MacMurray is suspended for four months; sandhogs aren't supposed to fight when on duty. The irate he-man tells the lady what he thinks of her. By way of apology, she hires him herself for his suspension period, thinking if she has him around, she'll get over her yen for him.

Needless to say, it doesn't work out quite the way Miss Colbert planned. Very much on the contrary, the sand-hog and the lady wind-up in each other's arms but not before some pretty merry and exciting things happen, including some good, old-fashioned caveman tactics in the best MacMurray manner and a thrilling tunnel cave-in.

Miss Colbert and MacMurray aren't the only ones who give outstanding performances. Ilka Chase, who is a famous author as well as an ingratiating comedienne, appears as Claudette's practical sister; Richard Haydn, who achieved radio renown with his froglike voice, is seen as a food-loving pianist; the shapely June Havoc plays a showgirl and Miss Colbert's rival for the affections of sandhog MacMurray.

All in all "No Time for Love" is great fun; don't miss it!

At The Monkland

Leading a dog's life in Hollywood is scarcely what the words imply.

Nothing is too good for the canine movie star, and small wonder for two decades, dogs of every size and breed have been occupying more than their share of space in the pages of motion picture history. First there were the days of Jiggs, the cute Boston bulldog; Teddy, the big mongrel that was part Great Dane; and Petey, the bullpup with the black eye. Later there came the era of Rin-Tin-Tin, Strongheart and Flash. And now, the present trend is toward Lassie.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer searched through the United States for a dog to play the title role in "Lassie Come Home," now playing at Monkland Theatre. Roddy McDowall and Donald Crisp already had been selected for the leading human characterizations when Lassie finaliy was discovered, right in Hollywood. She was the only dog of thousands "auditioned" that had both the beauty and the training to meet the role's demands.

The Future Promising

As to the future of dogs in films, William Steuer, owner of Flash and Friday, is convinced that there will be a return to the "dog days" of 1927-30. When "Eyes in the Night" opened in the East, he and Friday toured with the picture, which also was produced by M-G-M.

"The response to the dog was truly surprising," he says. "It seemed to me that the people were ready for just this type of escapist entertainment, and hungering for it. If, as has been proposed, a series is made with Friday, I look for those old days to be even surpassed. There never was a series starring a dog, you know, not even with Rin-Tin-Tin."

The success of Friday's tour has led M-G-M to plan a similar personal appearance jaunt around the country with Lassie, when "Lassie Come Home" is shown. Then theer also has been talk of another film.

As stocks are moving normally, the controlled distribution of potatoes has been suspended.

LEAVE THE RULES ALONE

During the recent world's championship hockey finals at Chicago between Canadiens and Black Hawks, Judge K. M. Landis, the baseball Czar, asked Dick Irvin how he accounted for the fact that hockey drew such consistently large crowds. Dick replied that it was because of the changes made in the game the past few years which had speeded up the play to such an extent that to maintain the pace each team used thirteen men—the maximum allowed under the rules. Every player gets into action in every game. "I believe baseball could take a leaf out of our book," Irvin continued. "Big league teams carry some twenty-five men all season, yet often only nine men play for days at a time. Why not use the other fellows sitting around? If an infielder or an outfielder isn't hitting good, or fielding well, on a particular afternoon, why not yank him and put somebody else in?"

Irvin also told the Judge that pinch hitters ought to be allowed to hit for pitchers without the pitcher having to retire from the game, and that fast fielders who were in a hitting slump ought to be excused from batting in favour of good hitters who can't field so hot, and so on.

After analyzing Irvin's suggestions and giving some thought to their ramifications, we can only make the observation that hockey is Dick's specialty, not baseball. Furthermore we're not so sure that the field days the hockey rules makers have been having every year have improved the game at all. As Leo Burns observed some weeks ago, "it's not hockey any more; it's lacrosse on ice." The wild scrambles around the goals make it impossible on most occasions for spectators to see how a goal is scored, or who scored it. The red light flashes, and nobody knows exactly what happened until the loud speakers blare the name of the scorer and the names of the umpteen players who took a swipe at the disc at it went past and who are each credited with an assist.

However, we won't belabour that argument. What we are concerned about here is that the stabilized excellence of baseball might be disturbed by tinkering with the rules by the crack-pots among the sporting fraternity. Hockey is a game of speed and intuition; baseball is at the other end of the scale—a game of calculated strategy. Taking players out of the game one inning and shoving them back in again the following inning; allowing pitchers to miss their turns at bat; taking a left-handed pitcher out of the box when a right-handed batter comes to the plate and putting him back into the box again when a left-handed hitter comes up, and so forth, might appeal to the type of fan who likes to look at the bearded lady at a circus, but won't make much of a hit with serious students of the game.

Besides, has Mr. Irvin or Ray Dumont (who wants batters to be given the opportunity of running either to first or third when they hit the ball; would like to see men trying to steal second from first and third at the same time; and wants the plate dusted off periodically by a robot)—have these men given any consideration to the official scorers? Some years ago, your chronicler was the official scorer of the old Quebec-Ontario-Vermont League and knows something of the problems a scorer has to face even under the rules as they are today. It was bad enough trying to decide if big Paddy Grenier was within the law in taking off the upper part of his uniform one hot afternoon and pitching in his sweat-soaked undershirt, without trying to compile a record of players entering and leaving the game half a dozen times.

Besides, what comparison can there be between the achievements of the old masters and modern players once the rule-makers begin putting into effect some of the suggestions that have come to light in this year of grace one thousand nine hundred and forty-four? We know today just how great by comparison were the feats of Ty Cobb, Walter Johnson, and Rube Waddell, because the game then was little different than today. But tomorrow, if the ideas of Mr. Dumont represent the shape of things to come, it will be as impossible to determine relative values as it is to make a comparison between the feats of Bill Cowley and Newsy Lalonde.

ST. LEO'S SPORTS By BILLY HAROLD

(By Billy Harold)

The plans for the school's annual All Star Boxing Show are shaping up fine and from all indications it looks like plenty of action on the local fistic front on the night of Friday May 5th, in the school hall. Entries have been received from the following schools: Westmount Senior High School, Westmount Intermediate High School, West Hill High, Catholic High and Gault Institute, Valleyfield. The ticket committee are already predicting a full house with the net proceeds going towards defraying expenses for the school's 1944 athletic awards.

In the feature bout of the evening the spotlight will again be on the Academy's prize athlete Milton Orr the blonde bombshell of St. Leo's fistic warriors and who in last year's Boxing Show thrilled the fans with his boxing skill and as for speed well if you have an idea what greased lightning is then you have a good idea of Milton in action. In the opposite corner facing Milton in this year's feature bout will be the sturdy Johnnie Kerr who hails from Westmount Senior High School. Johnnie has been going great guns in training with his smart shifty style of fighting and is sure to extend Milton to the limit.

Odds and Ends:

It is expected the Annual Sports Social will take place around the end of May and as usual the location will be the Oak Room of Victoria Hall.

There is a rumor that certain interested parties in the Parish will put on a dinner at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in honor of our Championship Hockey Teams. We certainly hope this becomes a reality as such a successful season as we have enjoyed should not go by unrecognized.

After the close of the boxing season a few short Spring Football sessions will occupy the sports schedule along with a few soft ball games.

A new innovation to high school sports organizing is the coaches' plan to have next season's football and hockey captains elected before the end of this term. This sounds like a good idea for a school of St. Leo's size as the respective captains will have a good knowledge of their teams' weaknesses and have plenty of time to scout within the classes to plug up any apparent weaknesses. In most big time colleges the election of a captain a year ahead is a time honored custom.

Mr. Burke will succeed Dr. Henri Bussiere as Chairman of the Sports Committee of the Parents' Association. We are deeply grateful for the great work Dr. Bussiere has done on our behalf and his resignation is keenly felt even though necessary on account of pressure of business but we are extremely fortunate in securing such an able successor as Mr. Burke.

The Honor Roll of the Academy Athletes from 1937 to 1944, is now ready and will be dedicated shortly. It is an impressive piece of work well done and those in charge can well feel assured their motto of nothing too good for the old gang on active service; has been well carried out.

Johnnie (Potsie) Rogers one of the school's gamest little athletes was given a warm tribute when he was appointed captain of St. Leo's 1944 Boxing Team. Johnnie modest and unassuming has at last in his final year at St. Leo's come into his own to gain long overdue recognition for his school loyalty and athletic ability so it's nice going Potsie it couldn't have happened to a better sport.

Record Number Anticipated In Bantam and Pee Wee Section

A record number of teams is anticipated in the bantam and pee wee sections of the Westmount Municipal Softball League this year, as no less than 13 clubs have already signified their intentions of operating. Seven of these teams will be in the pee wee group while six are in the bantams.

Ted Tilden's Red Wings are the sixth club to enter the bantam section and they will battle it out for the championship along with Richard Lord's Tornados, Mike Tucker's Dodgers, Dave Binmore's Eagles; Brian Tiffin's Royals and Bob Lunny's Bombers.

The bantam section is for boys 15 years of age and under, weighing not more than 115 pounds. The deadline for entering teams has been set for Wednesday May 3rd and it is likely that the schedule will commence next week-end. Any other teams wishing to enter the section should get in touch with recreation supervisor Jim McCormick at the office in the greenhouse.

The entries in the pee wee section have been mounting rapidly this week. The clubs so far are Richard Lord's Beavers, Ross Gillingham's Panthers, Gerry Pecknold's Vampires, Phil Martin's Giants and unnamed clubs managed by Bob Sherlock, Mike McCulloch and Andy Cote.

All except the first named club entered the loop this past week and there is still room for any more clubs that wish to enter this group which is for boys 13 years of age and under, weighing not more than 90 pounds. As in the bantam section, the deadline for entering teams has been set for Wednesday May 3rd.

Phil Martin has signed up such good players as Bert Kelly, Ted Budzen, Hugh McDonald, Roland Lockett, Martin Kay and Ken Black as a nucleus for his Giants.

Inter-City Hardball League Will Open Tomorrow

(By Bob Lunny)

The Inter-City Hardball League will open tomorrow instead of May 6th, on account of the fine weather. The first game will be played between Bob Lunny's Bombers and Brian Shea's Argos.

On Friday last the Bombers played 4th High in an exhibition game. It was a fine inning game and the Bombers lost to a more powerful club by a score of 9 to 4. Bob Bourassa, Jack O'Brien and Doug McGillis starred for the winners. Jackie Martin, John Dozois, Pat Palmer and Buddy Guilforde played at their best for the losers. Jimmy McCarthy of the Bombers was the only casualty of the game, injuring his nose and hands.

The Bombers line-up will be Catcher Buddy Guilfoyle, Johnny Dozois, one of the pitchers of last year's team will resume his old position. Jimmy McCarthy newcomer to the team will also be a pitcher; Pat Palmer, 1st baseman, Jackie Martin, 2nd baseman, Bob Harwood, short stop, Mickey Bourassa, of last year's team will still handle the hot corner at third base. Ian McGillis, left fielder, will still rob the opposing team of home runs, Ramon Orr, newcomer to the team will show his ability at centre-field. Billy Meehan, right fielder and Bob Lunny, captain, of last years and this year's team will again attempt to lead his team to the championship.

Hero of Ortona

The story of the heroism displayed by 35-year-old Paul Triquet of Cabano, Quebec, and the tattered remnants of his tiny band who by sheer grit fought their way through a hail of the German lead to finally gain their objective on the outskirts of Casa Berardi in Italy, is one that should make every Canadian proud of being a citizen for whom such heroes are fighting.

Softball Senior Section To Hold Gala Opening Monday

The deadline for entering teams in the senior section of the Westmount Municipal Softball League is set for this Monday, May 1st, and from all appearances it looks like an 11 club set-up. No further word has been received from the RCAF No. 9 Repair Depot at St. Johns, so that they can probably be counted out while the Doug Alexander-Ed Baylis civilian entry is also pretty doubtful.

The Alexander-Baylis entry is finding the financial obligations too tough an obstacle while the trip in from St. Johns is the drawback to the Air Force entry.

This leaves the loop with the ten teams from last year plus the RCAF No. 11 A.I.D. club. There is a chance of course that another club will enter the loop before Monday, and they would be welcomed as a 12 team set-up would be a lot better than the odd number of 11.

The Dodgers' stock went up this week when Art Mann learned that Allen Dyke had been turned down by the Armed Forces again, this time the Army. Dyke attempted to get into the Air Force some time ago, but as on this occasion, was rejected due to his eyesight.

Regardless of how many teams enter the league, the schedule will get underway on Monday night May 15th with a gala opening planned. One of the largest crowds of the season attended last year's opener when the Navy faced the No. 3 Training Command squad. This year the Navy will be back again in the first game of the season but this time their opponents will be an Army team, Longue Pointe Ordnance Depot.

Inter-Troop Softball Meet On Wednesday

The weather-man ended all hopes the Inter-troop section of the Westmount Municipal Softball League had of getting their schedule underway on Wednesday evening but with any kind of a break the loop should get started this evening when four games are slated to be played, two at Westmount Park and two at King George Park.

St. Leo's are scheduled to meet the Trinity troop on diamond No. 2 at Westmount Park while the Sea Scouts hook up against the 1st Westmount aggregation on diamond No. 3.

Up at King George Park the 2nd Westmount troop play the St. Matthias team on the east diamond while the St. Andrew's troop meets Calvary on the west diamond.

If these four games are played it will mean that all eight teams in the section will see action on the same night.

Other games slated for this week include a doubleheader at Westmount Park on Tuesday night May 2nd when St. Leo's plays 2nd Westmount on diamond No. 2 and the Trinity troop meets the Sea Scouts on diamond No. 3. On Wednesday night May 3rd, two games are scheduled for King George Park. The 1st Westmount team plays the Calvary outfit on the east diamond while the St. Matthias team meets the St. Andrew's club on the west diamond.

THE COOK
Providence Journal

The one person in the world, it seems, who can't escape the relentless eye of Duty is the cook. All nature conspires against cooks. They are hopelessly pitted against ravenous, elementary forces as insistent as gravity, as perfidious as fortune, as unfeeling as destiny. From New Zealand comes a dramatic instance. A small force was besieged by the Japanese. All the officers were wounded, and the cook took command. He held the Japs off all night, killed a number, and did a good job all round. But when dawn came and the fighting ended, the cook began to look troubled. "What's the matter?" his buddy asked. "I've got to get out of here. I should be getting breakfast ready now." This is beautiful in its simplicity. From time immemorial the cook has had to drop everything else and at the appointed time rush off to his pots and pans.

HIGH AND DRY

"A good rider looks after the comfort of his steed," is the horseman's credo, but Pvt. T. Bell of the Allied 5th Army in Italy, believes it applies to the Army mules as well. He keeps his steed dry with a poncho, as, sheltered under an umbrella, he rides through driving spring rain.

Science and Peace

Science stands on the very threshold of the secrets of atoms and electrons. To know them and to use them for the advancement of civilization, for the solving of some of the world's pressing economic problems, is one thing. To dedicate them to the engines of war is another. There is more to winning the peace than meets the eye.

Irritating Interference

Radio interference has become so irritating, that many wonder what can be done about it. Quite near noon and between six and seven o'clock p.m., it is often so annoying that it requires patience to put up with it.

Ladies' Softball To Meet Tuesday

The ladies section of the Westmount Municipal Softball League will hold a meeting this Tuesday night May 2nd when the plans for the season will be gone over. At the present time five teams are expected to play in the loop, three CWAC teams, an Air Force outfit and the civilian team from Westmount.

The CWAC teams are the No. 33 Company, No. 11 Company and the Longue Pointe Ordnance Depot. The Air Force outfit of course comes from the No. 1 Wireless School.

With this large number of teams, it is highly probable that at least one game a week will be played away from Westmount Park as there are only two diamonds available for this section of the league each week. The games will again be played on Tuesday nights this year and the schedule will probably open the last week in May.

The Canadian cost of living index has risen only 2.3 points since price control became effective late in 1941.

HOME EDUCATION

THE HABIT OF GOOD MANNERS

FLORENCE MILNER

Mrs. Faulkner was a charming woman and used to good society. Circumstances had brought her to a town where she had been unknown, but all who had met her pronounced her delightful and had felt that she would be a most welcome addition to their social group. The only doubt had come through her eleven-year-old boy.

One afternoon she took Walter with her to call on one of her new acquaintances. In the main he was a nice boy but at the cub age. He entirely ignored the greeting of their hostess, until prompted by his mother, because a book on the table had attracted his attention. He seized it and quickly took possession of the most comfortable chair in the room. Instead of sitting in it properly, he slouched down on his spinal column, threw one leg over the arm of the chair, slumped his head down into his coat collar, and buried himself in the book. An admonitory "Walter!" brought him to a partially proper position, but he soon dropped back into slovenly lounging.

At the entrance of another caller, an elderly woman, both the hostess and Mrs. Faulkner rose.

"Walter!" again admonished his mother.

Walter untangled himself without taking his eyes off the book, and instead of standing erect and looking at the new-comer, he lolled against the back of the chair without interrupting his reading. When the guest was seated, he dropped back into his lounging position.

The boy knew the proper way to behave, for, after a fashion, he had responded to each reminder. His mother doubtless had told him what was the conventional thing to do, but, by him, these observances had been classed as "tiresome company manners." The trouble was, his mother had not begun exchanging courtesies with him when he was young enough to have really delighted in them. If parents would take advantage of those early years, adding new observances from time to time, always in the spirit of play and good comradeship, good manners would become a habit. Only practice makes perfect.—What dramatic company would expect to put on a successful performance without rehearsals?—And only those personal acts that are performed with satisfaction can be counted on.

Another incident is to the point. A young teacher who had married a very attractive girl from a small town, went to a position in an exclusive private school for boys. Their train was late and when they reached their new home, the school was already seated for dinner. The young couple, escorted by the principal, were shown to their places in the dining-room where there were eight or ten tables.

"Imagine my surprise and embarrassment," wrote the bride to a friend, "when the boys at our table immediately rose as though someone had signaled them by pulling a string, and remained standing until Dick and I were seated. I had no idea then what it was all about, but I know now that it was just good manners. A string had been pulled but it was the string of habitual good form to which the boys were attached through daily practice." Later she added, "It made me wonder if those of us who live in small towns or out of the social swim in cities, are not all wrong in paying so little attention, as usually we do, to the sort of manners current in the best society. I can't help admiring the things these boys do so naturally—even the youngest of them—such as rising when a lady appears, or giving age the precedence. These and many other things boys, if not properly trained, are apt to consider sissy."

Every child should be in practice to give proper courteous greetings. He should be taught when to lift his hat, if he wears one, and when to rise if seated. If the meeting of social conventions has not become a habit, through daily practice, then the child will fail as Walter failed. To some it may seem silly to use so much formality at home, and young people may dread ridicule from their companions but that should not deter parents from giving sufficient time and effort to make correct manners a habit with each child. It must be more than line upon line, precept upon precept. There must be enough practice to make proper procedure automatic.

ADDRESSES ON THE MOVE...

This Mail has PRIORITY

WHEN a man is wounded in action or seriously ill, he is rushed through field and base hospitals with all possible speed, to the place where most effective treatment can be given. Because of this rapid movement, his mail may not "catch up" for some time, yet, if ever he longed for a letter from home, it is at such a time.

To offset possible delays, a new "Short-Cut" mail service has been put into effect. A Priority Casualty Card is filled in and rushed by Air Mail to his friends or relatives with instructions to add the words "In Hospital" to the unit address they usually use.

Letters mailed from Canada bearing the words "In Hospital" are routed direct to the records office in the United Kingdom or the Central Mediterranean Force, as the case may be. They are given preference in transport, whether sent by Air Mail or regular mail. Thus they will reach the addressee faster than ever before.

It is inevitable that in tracing men who have been moved, or wounded, some delays occur. But you can rest assured everything that can mean speedier deliveries of letters to your men is being well and thoroughly done—and will be done.

When you get a Priority Casualty Card be sure the words "In Hospital" are added to the regular unit address when writing overseas.

THREE POWER CONFERENCE
on the Home Front

"We'll all Put Victory First!"

THIS FAMILY is "going into a huddle" to plan ways of buying extra Victory Bonds. Budgets have been checked and re-checked. It's clear that luxuries will have to "go overboard", pleasures must be curtailed and new purchases be postponed. Even some "necessities" must take second place when they Put Victory First.

For we at home must match the spirit of unselfishness shown by our fighting forces! And remember—the little hardships we're caused by buying extra Victory Bonds are only temporary. Our money is returned with interest!
