First Group of Hungarian Refugees Arrived in Huntingdon on Monday

On Monday afternoon, the first group of Hungarian refugees arrived in Huntingdon by chartered bus from Montreal. There were twenty persons in the group and they were taken to the Canadian Legion Hall, on Fairview Road. Here they were served sandwiches and coffee by members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, Huntingdon Branch. These refreshments were supplied by the Ladies Auxiliary, while the Legion supplied the hall.

Mr. A. Warden of the Immigration Department had charge of the group and made arrangements for their transportation to Huntingdon and also for their placement in jobs and homes on arrival.

As far as could be learned, no one in this group had a knowledge of English and all were interviewed through the use of interpreters. Serving in the latter capacity were: Mrs. W. Rosenchein. Mrs. Alex Deme, Mrs. Primusz and Mrs. S. Rosenchein.

Those in the group were all quite young, there were four young married couples and a number of lads 18 to 20 years of age. Very few of them actually claimed Budapest as their home, mostly they were from towns and villages located from 75 to 100 miles from that city. However, the men at least had done some fighting in Budapest as well as around their own towns and villages.

The group arrived in this country at St. Johns, on the Arosa Star and then by train on to Montreal. All seemed pleased with what they had seen so far and the treatment they had received, but thought the weather was very cold. Unfortunately, these people arrived at a time when we are all thinking that the weather is very cold, for the temperatures were much lower than for a good number of years.

Interviewing a number of refugees who arrived here, Gleaner representatives were told that the uprising in Hungary started on October 23rd, 1956, by a large number of dissatisfied students. These students went to the Parliament buildings in Budapest with 17 demands for better conditions that they wanted from the Communist government. However, they were refused admittance and thus did not get a hearing. This increased the tension and it was not long before from shouts, more serious riots began. Among the demands made was one for J. Kadar, Ima Nagy and Z. Tildy to head the government and the Communists to be put out. At first the disorders were of the fist fight and struggle type with Russian soldiers, police and other officials. Later the fighting developed with guns, stones and any other missile near at hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Viktor Kapas, a young married couple with the group, were from Budapest and saw much of the uprising and finally for a short time Mr. Kapas was drawn into and fought with the Freedom Fighters. When the trouble became too much, they sought to escape capture by the Russians and to get out of the country. It happened that a brother of Kapas was driving a food truck which was under Communist orders and had official papers. This truck could get through to the Austrian border and in it the couple escaped and at the border met a family they knew who helped them to cross the border to safety in Austria. However, the day before, eighty people were caught at the border by the Russians, but it is understood they were later released and managed to cross the border. Mr. Kapas was a machinist in Hungary and worked on automobiles.

His wife left her three sisters and father in Hungary and Mr. Kapas' relatives are in Roumania. Both these people are now being employed at The Chateau, Huntingdon and were placed there within a very short time of their arrival.

Mr. and Mrs. Janos Greksa another young married couple, both 20 years of age, showed the strain of the troubled times they have been through in the past few months. The young man was learning auto mechanics, but did not have his papers. At the time of the revolt against the Communist rule, he was working in Leany Var. Leaving that place, he went to Budapest and fought for two and half weeks with the Freedom Fighters. He then returned to Leany Var and from there he and his wife travelled about 88 miles on foot and by train to the Austrian border. They spent five weeks in Austria before coming to Huntingdon via St. John and Montreal. Asked whether the Hungarian people would continue the battle for freedom, Mr. Greska said that there are many groups of young people hiding in the mountains and forest regions of their homeland, who plan to continue guerilla war fare against their hated Communistic enemies.

Laslo Palinkas, a young man of 19 and Marton Boete, aged 26, were two more of the many young people who fought in Budapest. Both said they started fighting in the evening of October 22nd and continued until November 13th, battling against their enemies day and night. Young Palinkas was wounded in the head and stomach and was hospitalized for three days. These wounds did not prevent him from helping to continue the fight for freedom. The two men said they had as companion patriots, little boys of eight and nine years, whose specialty was gas bombs, "molotov cocktails" which terrorized their enemies. Marton Boete said that the little boys were so fast that the Russians could not kill them. These bombs did a terrific amount of damage. Both of the young Hungarians fought in the streets, in cellars, and in houses, against their enemies. Near the end of their fighting days, three Russian soldiers captured the two young men along with a few others. But these young men were able to buy off the Russian soldiers with six wrist watches, some money and whiskey. For the next few days there was a great search by the Russians for the young men, but they eventually eluded them and were able to cross into freedom in Austria. Laslo Palinkas is a locksmith by trade, while Marton Boete was originally an office worker, but now is a farmer.

Konya Karoly, 18 years of age, lived in a village about 90 miles from Budapest and was employed as a hospital orderly. He left behind his mother and father and two brothers and they do not know where he is as he left his work to join the freedom fighters in November and was not able to get word to them. He fought for nine days with the freedom fighters in Budapest and in surrounding area, as the fighting spread over the entire country. There were 17 in his group and they were engaged in throwing bombs from windows of buildings onto Russian tanks. While engaged in this, he had a friend who was shot in the head and killed by the Russians. When some of the people returned to work, strikes took place and no one could work, so he decided to get away from the country. He was captured by the Russians when about 245 miles from the Austrian border, escaped and was caught again and escaped. He crossed the border on Nov. 26th, went into Germany and then to St. Johns and Montreal. This young man has gone to the Barrie Memorial Hospital at Ormstown as a hospital orderly. He likes what he has seen of this country so far, but says the weather here is very cold.

Josef Szigetvari, lived about 75 miles from Budapest with his parents, four brothers and two sisters. He was employed as a laborer in a preserving factory where pickles, jams and such like were manufactured. He was a freedom fighter and until he obtained a gun fought with his bare hands. The fighting spread all over country and many times the Russians fired into crowds who had no weapons whatever. When the fighting died down, the Russians started to look for all those who had taken part in the uprising and came looking for him twice. He decided it was time for him to get out of the country. There were two other lads with him who the Russians were looking for, they were Ferenc Varady and Sandor Kiss and these two are with him in Huntingdon. When they started out to leave the country there were seven in his group which soon swelled to 20. On arrival in Austria they were settled in a camp that once belonged to the Russians. They had decided to go to Switzerland. but later decided to come to Canada. He tried to get a message through to his people by way of radio, but does not know if they received it. Ferenc Varady was employed in the same factory, but Sandor Kiss was employed as a locksmith.

Another of the young married couples who were among the group of 20 Hungarian refugees was Mr. and Mrs. Gyula Volhardt. Mr. Volhardt is a machinist by trade and his wife has worked in a textile factory. Their home was in Budapest and they were in that city all through the revolt. Asked about relatives, he said there were three sisters and a brother who will probably come to Canada if they get a chance. On account of age, his parents would remain in Hungary. He thought that his brother, who had worked in a bakery, is already on his way to this country. Mr. Volhardt flies airplanes for a hobby and has been flying for four years.

Marton Galambos, Zoltan Kertese and Istvan Szorts are three young men who took part in the fight for freedom in Hungary. They seized their chance and took advantage of the avenue of escape offered to them to get away from their oppressed homeland and finally arrived with this group which came to Huntingdon, on Monday.

The reader can see by the accounts by these people themselves, that their lot was not a happy one and they have also left behind relatives who may be hard to communicate with. These relatives in a number of cases do not know where these people are. It is a very hard decision to have to make.

Several people helped these refugees by taking them in overnight and some to find them suitable employment. Miss L. Rankin took three persons overnight on Monday. Mr. Ivan Heath took two and he also passed out cigarettes to each of the twenty persons who were in this group.

It is now trying to be arranged that a class be held at least once each week at the Huntingdon High School, when the refugees will be taught to speak English or French in order that they may soon be able to converse with the people they are with and others in the area. Details of this are still to be worked out. However, when this has been arranged, it is hoped that all those persons who have taken these people will co-operate in seeing that they are able to attend the classes.

The following is a list of those who arrived in Huntingdon, on Monday and the people who have sponsored them in this area:

THREE ACCIDENTS IN TOWN ON MONDAY

Three accidents in town on the one day was a record hung up Monday, January 14th. It might have been due to the cold weather, which caused the surface of the roads to become very slippery and to frosted windows on account of the intense cold.

At 1 p.m. a collision occured at the intersection of King Street and Dalhousie Street which caused from $1,000 to $1,500 damage to the car of Andre Riel. Alex Roy, Sr., Athelstan, was driving his truck on King Street west to east and Riel was driving his car on Dalhousie Street north to south, when the collision occurred at the intersection. No damage was done to the truck.

At 1:50 p.m. Mr. Regna Johnson was driving his car on Henderson Street for north to south and turned east onto Fairview Road at the inersection when he lost control and struck the power pole on the corner. The photograph above shows the car after it struck the pole, the rear tire is off the wheel and under the bumper. Damage to the car amounted to about $700.00.

At 5:05 p.m. another accident occured at Fairview and Lorne, when a collision occured betweet two cars travelling in opposite directions. Car belonging to Phillip Gold, Athelstan, was proceeding on Lorne Avenue north to south and another belonging to Clifford Greer, Hemmingford, was travelling on Fairview from west to east, when the collision occurred at the intersection. Damage to each car amouned to about $500. Chief L'Heureux investigated all three accidents.

Huntingdon Legion Installs Officers For New Year

The turnout of Legionnaires at the annual general meeting of Huntingdon Branch No. 81, Canadian Legion, held at Legion Hall, Thursday evening, January 10, was most disappointing indeed. All the more so since the Financial Statement and Auditor's Report (by Leo Cappiello, C.P.A.) for the year 1956 were presented; while the Officers for the ensuing year were installed and the members of the various Committees were also appointed.

However, there was a very good attendance of members of the Ladies Auxiliary, this being a joint meeting insofar as the Installation of the Officers was concerned.

The meeting was presided over by the retiring President, Reg. Daniel, with Mrs. Anne Cameron as Secretary, and Lorne Fennell as Sergeant-at-Arms.

The Financial Statement and Auditor's Report, submitted by Treasurer Gordon Ferry were unanimously approved. That statement indicated that during the year Branch No. 81 had been quite active in not only a social way but also in a welfare way insofar as Veterans in general were concerned.

The following were reappointed Trustees of the Branch properties: Harold Bickford, Chairman; John Telfer and Rev. Rural Dean W. S. Hatcher.

A Committee, comprised of Col. H. Rick of Branch No. 81, and Mrs. Florence McGill, President of Ladies Auxiliary, as joint chairmen; Mrs. Ruth Rennie; Mrs. J. J. A. Boisseau and Mrs. Frank Napier, was appointed to organize the Polio "March of Dimes" which will be made on Friday, January 18.

At the conclusion of the regular session the meeting devolved into a joint meeting of Huntingdon Branch No. 81 and the Ladies Auxiliary for the purpose of jointly installing the Officers and Executive Committees of both organizations for the year 1957.

The Honorary President Major John Molson had previously been invited to officiate as the installing officer, but he was unable to accept that invitation. As an alternative all former Presidents of the Branch residing in Huntingdon were invited to jointly make these installations. However, only one of that group, J. J. A. Boisseau, accepted that invitation. It therefore was that the installations were made, in a most efficient manner, by J. J. A. Boisseau and veteran member of the Legion, Harold Bickford.

A Past President's Medal and Badge was presented by Col. Howard Rick to Mrs. Napier on behalf of Mrs. George Hood, the retiring President of the Ladies' Auxiliary who was unable to attend because of illness.

Similarly a Past President's Medal and Badge was presented by Frank Napier to Reg. Daniel, retiring President of Branch No. 81. Incidentally both of the retiring Presidents had served two years as such.

The Officers and Members of the Executive Committees of the two organizations for 1957 are as follows:

Ladies Auxiliary — President: Mrs. Florence McGill. 1st. Vice-President: Mrs. Rosemary Cosgrove. 2nd. Vice-President: Mrs. Gordon Ferry. Secretary: Mrs. Ruth McIntyre. Treasurer: Mrs. Middlemiss. Sergt.-at-Arms: Mrs. John McCrowe. Executive Committee: The above named Officers, together with Mrs. J.J.A. Boisseau; Mrs. George Lennox; Mrs. Frank Napier; Mrs. F. Patterson; Mrs. A. Perkins.

Huntingdon Branch No. 81 — President: J. A. Elliott. 1st. Vice-President: Irvin Laberge. 2nd. Vice-President: Col. H. Rick. Secretary: Mrs. Anne Cameron. Treasurer: Gordon D. Ferry. Sergt.-at-Arms: Archie Keith. Executive Committee: The above Officers together with the Immediate Past President and Lorne Fennell; Frank Napier; Gerald Ouimet; Alton Warden and David Zabitsky. Chaplain: Rev. Rural Dean W. S. Hatcher. Honorary President: Major John Molson. Honorary Vice Presidents: Adam L. Sellar and Leo Cappiello. Honorary Members: S. J. Currie and A. A. Lunan.

At the conclusion of these proceedings the Ladies Auxiliary served a splendid Luncheon.

Official Low at Huntingdon Tuesday — 46° F.

"Baby, it's cold outside!", and that's more than just a song on the current hit parade. Some said 20, 30, 40 and even 50 degrees below zero on Monday night. The last figure seems preposterous, but the truth is it was closest to being accurate. The mercury dropped to —46° at 5:45 a.m. Tuesday. This reading was recorded on an Official Government Thermometer at the Filter Plant by Mr. Chas. H. Brown, who regularly checked the instrument from 12 midnight Monday to 8 a.m. Tuesday. The Gleaner deems the weather an important subject during the prevalent cold snap and is grateful to Mr. Brown for his thoughtfulness in dropping off the following figures at the Gleaner Office.

12:00	a.m.	—35
1:45	a.m.	—35
3:45	a.m.	—39
5:45	a.m.	—46
7:45	a.m.	—42
8:00	a.m.	—41

This undoubtedly was a new low in Huntingdon for many years. The Gleaner welcomes "Letters To The Editor" and this is an appropriate time for oldsters to check their memories and advise The Gleaner when Huntingdon was subjected to colder weather and at the same time mention any unusual incidents of the era or unusual happenings or hardships encountered.

Town Council Accepts Blame Damage Case

The Town Council met for a short time on Monday night for an adjourned meeting to pass a resolution in connection with the case of Alcide Valade for damages against the town. All members were present except Alderman Legault. A resolution admitting responsibility for the accident was drawn up, read and passed. This is to be filed with the court and will avoid further costs. A verdict in the case will no doubt be given at a later date.

This is the last meeting of the present council and nominations will be called for later this month. It is not known if any or all of the members will seek re-election.

Dr. R. Nadeau Promoted to Chief Inspector, Health of Animals

Dr. R. NADEAU D.V.M.
Promoted to Position of Chief Inspector, Montreal's Sea and Air Ports, Stockyards, etc.

Paraphrasing the expression "What's one man's gain is another man's loss" we might say "What's Huntingdon's loss is Montreal's gain". We are of course referring to the impending departure of Dr. Roland Nadeau D.V.M. from Huntingdon to Montreal; to assume a well merited, considerably more important position insofar as the Animal Husbandry Division of Production Service, Canada Department of Agriculture is concerned.

On March 1, Dr. Nadeau will assume the position of Chief Inspector, Health of Animals Division, for the Montreal Stockyards, the Port of Montreal and the Montreal Airport at Dorval. A sizeable job in itself, but one for which Dr. Nadeau is eminently qualified.

A native of St. Frederic, Beauce County, Que., and the son of a farmer, Roland Nadeau graduated from Montreal University in 1935 with the degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine.

Following his graduation he joined the staff of the Health of Animals Division in Montreal, which office is, of course, in charge of all the work of its Division in the Province of Quebec. Also during the course of his service in that Branch, he was assigned to a course of study with the Veterinary Research Department of the Bureau of Animal Industry, Washington, D.C. That course included studies and laboratory tests in connection with Exotic or Contagious diseases, including Brucellosis and Foot-and-Mouth disease.

On June 1, 1952, Dr. Nadeau was promoted to the position of Inspector in charge of the so-called Huntingdon Area of his Division, which, of course, includes the Counties of Huntingdon, Beauharnois and Chateauguay. In that capacity he has had under his supervision some 150 T. B. Accredited Herds; the supervision of some 200 herds which are entered under the Brucellosis Plan of the Canada Department of Agriculture, in addition to the supervision of the large number of herds which come under the Area Plan for T. B.

His duties have, of course, included the inspection of and the issuance of the necessary health, etc., certificates for all animals exported from his area. Likewise the inspection of all animals, and their credentials, imported into that area, from other areas, provinces and other countries.

During the course of his present assignment in this area Dr. Nadeau has established an enviable reputation, partly because of his engaging personality and his consistent obliging services. Of him it might be said, "he does not throw the book" (rules and regulations) at the herd or other owners of livestock, and that, instead, he has tactfully carried out his duties, and at the same time has given generously of his advice and assistance.

Discussion Arouses Deep Interest

On Wednesday evening, January 9, a rather excited and slightly frightened group of six pupils from Grade Six at Huntingdon High School, clustered together in the hall as their parents and other members assembled for the regular meeting of the Home and School Association. This was to be a new departure in the way of constructive entertainment for those present—an informal discussion of pre-teen problems. The three girls took their places, followed by the three boys. All looked very composed and well groomed. They were politely attentive while the regular business began.

It was decided to continue the Library Fund Campaign again this year after Dr. Willis expressed the deep appreciation that the school —both teachers and pupils—felt in this regard. It is a great advantage for our children to have the facilities of a well run library to augment their regular class work.

A committee was formed to prepare hot lunches for the hockey team and visiting team when league games are to be played at the school. This work has been carried on for several years now and is greatly appreciated by cold and hungry players and coaches.

Finally the moment had come for six young panelists to tell about some of their problems! Mr. Stan Liversidge, as chairman, ably guided the group and suggested that other members of the audience, in addition to the appointed adult panelists, might wish to take part. Children and adults alike were enthusiastically exchanging ideas. Some parents hardly had a chance to express any opinions!

The youngsters' problems at first glance may have seemed simple but they required a bit of thought in answering. How would you answer if your daughter felt she had too many dishes to do? Or wanted a room of her own? Or wished to attend all the school dances at 11 years of age? Or your 12 year old son thought he should be allowed to go with the "Gang" to a restaurant after the dances? Or felt he should be allowed to stay up for the TV Wrestling Matches on Saturday night? The eleven and twelve-year-olds present last Wednesday night had very definite ideas on these and other subjects and they were very serious about their views.

The audience was quite surprised and very favourably impressed by the way the boys and girls handled the questions from the adults. Everyone felt that here was a worthwhile type of meeting—good for young and old—one that stimulated thought. And so it was decided to hold a similar meeting in February in place of the Amateur Show originally scheduled. It is hoped to have a panel of adults present who are keenly interested in young people's problems. They will try to arrive at some satisfactory conclusions about the problems presented above and others of interest to the older teenagers and their parents.

Former Huntingdon Boy Writes Research Article

The following article is a bit out of the usual as to character and we feel it will be of unusual interest to many Huntingdonians because it was written by a former Huntingdon boy, Lloyd McWilliams. Years ago, the McWilliams family was very well known in Huntingdon as Mr. McWilliams was one of the key workers in the Condensery. Son, Lloyd, upon leaving Huntingdon Academy also entered employ of the Condensery and was well on the way to becoming an employee who would ultimately be a member of that firm's group of men with an inventive turn of mind.

Lloyd had two younger brothers, Richard, who became a printer and presently with the S.W. & P. Co. and the late Ted McWilliams who was a teacher and closely associated with the late Dr. C. N. Crutchfield. All four McWilliams were members of the Huntingdon Band when the late J. R. Oney was the bandmaster.

HOW OLD IS IT?

By Lloyd McWilliams

When the archaeologist digs into the ruins of some ancient city that has been long buried by the sand of time, picks up an old jug, a sandal, some implement, or charcoal, the bones of some animal, his first thought is, "How old is it?"

As well as the archaeologist, the geologist, the anatomist, chemist, anthropologist and the astronomer all play important parts in determining the age of materials that have been unearthed among the ruins of man's past. These men combine their knowledge and pool the tools at their command in attempting to ascertain at what period in history some find was fabricated or came into being.

It was an astronomer who gave the archaeologist the remarkable means of dating trees. This astronomer wondered about the growth rings which show up clearly when a tree is cut down. It occurred to him that the wider rings might be associated with sun-spots which cause years of good growth and poor growth. He found by checking the records of sun-spot activity that the growth rings tied in as he had anticipated. He also found that the similarity of the ring pattern in different trees was quite striking. He then matched the rings of a very old tree with the beams in old buildings,and so proceeded until he had a tree-ring calendar that went back nearly two thousand years. He was able to report that the beams in an old Indian house in Mexico came from a tree that was hewn down around the year 900 A.D.

Another method of dating the handiwork of man is the stratigraphical method, by which articles found in different levels of soil or rock can have their ages told, to a certain degree of accuracy. This method was developed by the geologists, and depends on assuming that it took so many hundreds or thousands of years to form the different layers of strata, or levels of soil. This means of dating is somewhat uncertain, for men were for ever burying their treasures.

Associated with the above method is one the geologists term "counting the varves." After the glacial period, and as the ice melted away each summer, layer after layer of silt and debris was left each succeeding year. Counting these layers gives the geologist and the archaeologist a geo-calendar of the years that have passed. This method of dating has a very serious drawback: no one knows when the first layer of silt was laid down; at least, it is mere conjecture on the part of the scientist.

Perhaps the most remarkable method of dating came about from research work on the atomic bomb. This is called radiocarbon dating, and is surprisingly accurate in dating certain classes of finds which go back some thirty thousand years.

It works in this manner. Our earth is being constantly bombarded, with immense velocity, by cosmic rays from outer space. It is not known for a certainty where these rays originate. Some come from the sun, and it is probable that others may come from the stars in the Milky Way and even the great nebulae beyond our galaxy. No one really knows. It is known, however, that when these cosmic rays strike the earth's atmosphere all the carbon dioxide surrounding us becomes slightly radioactive.

Since all living things need carbon dioxide to live, all plant life, and eventually all animal life becomes radioactive. When a plant or animal dies, it no longer maintains its share of radioactive activity but starts to lose it by radiation. The rate at which this acquired activity is dispersed can be measured, and it is known that it takes thirty thousand years for the activity to become too small to be measured. Inside this range, it can be ascertained that certain materials have an age of within sixty to seventy years of the date at which they last absorbed any cosmic rays.

It is at once evident that this marvellous means of dating will serve the scientist, especially the geologist, the anatomist and the archaeologist. In one instance, the hemp sandals found in an old cave were by this method dated back nine thousand years. Recently, an old city in India was unearthed. This city shows evidence of having had quite an advanced culture. By radiocarbon dating some of the implements found, it is judged that this city flourished some three thousand years B.C., just about the time the Egyptians were building their famous pyramids.

By radiocarbon dating, other methods of dating can be supported or proven incorrect. A typical case is the famous Folsom points, arrowheads and other materials found in a cave in New Mexico in 1926. Some scientists thought that these might date back fifteen to twenty-five thousand years; others thought seven to ten thousand years a better guess. With radiocarbon dating, a date of twelve thousand years B.C. is accepted.

Since radiocarbon dating is comparatively recent, we can expect to hear of many great scientific findings in the near future.

Another Worthwhile Cause Demands Attention

POLIO is something of which we have heard much about and we have also heard of the great strides that science has made to combat this scourge. Salk Vaccine has done much to curtail the outbreaks and to control in some measure the crippling effects of the disease, but no real preventative has been found that will stamp out the disease as in the case of some others.

To this end, the Canadian Legion has done much work to see that funds are raised and the money spent in research and other work which has an effect upon polio. Annually the March of Dimes is organized as a means of raising funds to carry on the work. In most cases where this is held, the canvassers are Legion Members who voluntarily call at homes to solicit donations to the cause. Tremendous strides have been made in research to find the cause and a remedy, or preventative vaccine to cope and finally conquer polio. The Canadian Legion has done much in providing the funds to carry on this work as well as helping the victims of the disease to possible recovery.

On Friday evening, between 7 and 8 o'clock, the March of Dimes will be held in Huntingdon and it will be a regular blitz to cover the entire town during that time. The canvassers, who will be members of the Huntingdon Branch of the Canadian Legion, hope that townspeople will welcome them with donations to this very worthwhile cause. To facilitate the canvass, people are asked to put on their outside lights as a welcome sign. Mrs. W. McGill and Mr. Howard Rick are the co-chairmen for the drive. If you should be missed, you could call either one as to the donation you wish to make.

As no one knows where polio will strike and in view of the nearness of the several attacks that have already taken place, everyone should be willing to make a contribution to this cause. Only by continued research can this scourge be held in check and the hope upheld that sometime it will be conquered. Let us all get behind this campaign and make it a real success insofar as Huntingdon is concerned.

Our Thanks to Country Correspondents

AS we enter a period of comparative relaxation following the busiest season of the year, there is less rushing and more time for reflection, appreciation, and planning for the future.

Under the heading of appreciation, we at The Huntingdon Gleaner once more must register our amazement with and our gratitude to our army of over 30 volunteer country correspondents spread far and wide over the Chateauguay Valley. These fine folks, some of them members of our rural staff for many years, have made a great contribution week after week not just to the publishers of this newspaper, but to our readers and to their respective communities. We certainly appreciate their efforts and know our subscribers and their fellow citizens also would not mind if we expressed appreciation on their behalf as well.

For those who have never been country correspondents or, indeed, reporters of any kind, it should be explained that the material published every issue under the heading of one of the district villages, hamlets or road concessions of varying sizes, is usually gathered by one person in only a day or two. Most of them are women, with a sincere interest in their community. Frequently, they are active in practically every worthwhile organization in their area as well as being good housekeepers with families. A few are men who like to voice their opinions as well as publicizing their community activities.

Because the news must be mailed to arrive at our office by Wednesday morning —at the latest — these energetic people neglect their Monday morning washing, let their children shift for themselves and forget the many farm chores in order to either answer the phone calls bringing news, or tie up the phone in contacting their neighbours for the bits of homey news that fills their columns. Each takes great pride in his or her work and, like other newspaper people, must suffer a considerable amount of criticism or good natured chiding whenever a mistake occurs or the correspondence is left out due to late mailing or lack of space.

So, as we face yet another year of bringing current history to the good people of this area, we say a very humble thanks to our long-suffering, hard-working rural correspondents. Without them The Gleaner would be merely another ordinary newspaper. With their help, it continues to reach more homes each year and, we are pleased to write, appears to be welcomed each week as an integral part of the family life of this area.

The Middle East Is Still The Focal Spot

THE Suez is no doubt the start of the big disturbance that centred on the world. There is no doubt that Russia had plans with regard to the Middle East. It seems certain that Great Britain and France upset the Russian time table and brought to light the plan that was taking shape. Unfortunately, the United States did not pay enough attention to what was going on, although we believe they knew about it. They allowed the domestic affairs of the time to take precedence over the important international affairs. Now, however, they have awakened to what has been going on.

President Eisenhower has now shown that he believes that the Middle East is in need of watching and may call for action at any time. He is in the process of getting permission to use U.S. money and military aid if ever the emergency arises. This announcement has brought response from Soviet Russia in the manner of a veiled threat of the consequences if the U.S. does interfere in any way in the Middle East. The threat contains a hint that trouble may occur in Europe. Mr. Dulles has said that U.S. help must be made available immediately if Russia is to be stopped in the Middle East, or it may mean the bloodless conquering of Europe and Great Britain.

When one takes stock of what is going on, it cannot help but be seen that Great Britain and France were not so far wrong in the action they took. Perhaps, but for that, the Middle East might already have been lost. Present events still point out that Russia is seeking other fields in the area to forward her plans. Yemen is one point and Russia has issued a warning to Great Britain not to try to interfere here. We must take all these factors into consideration and understand that the Middle East is still a first class trouble spot and could be the start of the third world uprising. We are presently experiencing the upheaval of the economy of some countries which loss of this terrain could have if it fell into unfriendly hands.

Looking Back Along the Trail

"The Building of The Beauharnois Canal"

The masters would not entertain the demand and on the evening of the 31st. May the men gave up their tools and went out on strike. Their conduct for the first ten days gave no ground for serious complaint. That among a large body of idle men there should be a few restless spirits was inevitable, and there were petty disturbances, incited by whisky, which was sold at every other shanty for 15 cents a quart. Appearances growing more threatening, the masters asked the authorities for protection, when a detachment of 60 men of the 74th regt. was forwarded from Montreal and was stationed at St Timothy, under command of Major Campbell. On the same day they arrived (10th June) the strikers called on the several contractors to renew their demand for the 60 cents pay for ten hours work. They got equivocal answers from all except D. A. McDonald (afterwards lieut.-governor of Ontario). He came out on the gallery of Grant's hotel, and with Major Campbell and Laviolette beside him, told them decisively that he would not yield, when some one in the crowd cried if he did not by Monday he would be killed, and his body thrown into the rapids. At Brown & Finlay's headquarters stones were thrown and a few panes of glass broken.

Sunday passed quietly. The contractors were filled with apprehension as to what would happen next day and held a consulation with Major Campbell and Laviolette, which ended in sending a messenger at day light to Beauharnois for Jones' troop of cavalry. Thus reinforced, the masters felt secure, and renewed their agreement among themselves that they would not give in to the demands of the men.

Before entering on a description of subsequent events I give the personal narrative of John Symons:

My store being full of goods and having besides 1300 bushels of oats, I knew that if it was wrecked I would be ruined, and I resolved to stand my ground. I had 7 employes, whom I armed as I best could. Sabbath night was beautiful, fine moonlight, and everything was very still, but I was full of apprehension. In the morning, about 5, I went down the road to see if there was any sign of movement and passed several of the Irishmen, returning from a meeting they had held. One whom I knew to be friendly to me, without stopping, whispered as he passed me, "Get away; your store is to be attacked at half-past 9," and soon after another passed, who dropped a like hint. I would not fly. Larocque had gone at the first sign of trouble, but I was determined I would face it out. Coming back to my store, I saw that my people got something to eat, when I lay down to get a little rest. Before I had slept long I was awakened to be told that Andrew Elliot of Ormstown, who held a contract, had been felled by a blow and was not expected to live. The mob had gone to where he lodged, called him out, and as he stepped to the door, he was knocked down, and it was supposed his skull was fractured. Getting pen and paper, I wrote a line to the stipendiary magistrate at St Timothy, telling my danger, and asking for protection. Before long a lieutenant with 30 regulars arrived. The lieutenant was a gentlemanly fellow, without experience. "Now," I said to him, "you had better order your men to come into the house and have them load their guns with ball cartridge." He smiled at me as he replied, "You are afraid?" "Yes, I am afraid, and have good reason, for I know these men better than you seem to do." He made light of the situation and told my servant girl to get something to eat for the soldiers; tables being made outside the door with barrels and planks. While they were eating, the Irishmen came in sight, 2000 at least. The lieutenant still remained incredulous that they would attack regular soldiers, and made no attempt at preparation to receive them. In a minute the Irishmen surged up and surrounded the soldiers on every side, who could do nothing, as their guns were unloaded. They tweaked the soldiers' noses and made fun of them, but did not offer violence. I had gone into the house with my employes, and barricaded the door. I ascended the stair to the garret-room, and taking up two pistols, cocked them, and resolved that I should not use them until attacked for I wanted to shed no man's blood. How the Irishmen got into my store I never could find out, but in a few minutes I heard them roaming over the building, searching for me. Two opened the door of the room. I stood ready to sell my life dearly. The way the door opened hid me to the men, and without entering, one said "He is not here," and they went down the stair. I was like iron the minute before, but now my heart went thumping against my ribs and I was powerless as a child. In a little while, I heard a sound which I knew was that of wrenching off the shutters of my store. I recovered my composure and went down and stepped out on the gallery. They stared in astonishment at me, and gave a shout. I had made up my mind what to do in order to save my property. I asked them to stop their work of destruction and hear me. I reminded them that I had never wronged them in anyway, and said if I had unwittingly done any one an injury I was prepared to right it, and concluded by saying I would grant them the rise of sixpence (10 cents) a-day in their wages which they wanted. They shouted in triumph, but fell to discussing how they could bind me to my promise. Some wanted it in writing; others wished to swear me. I refused to swear and would give no pledge how long I should pay the additional sixpence. They went away to another store and I took the opportunity to order out my horse to get away before they came back to get security from me. I had not gone far until I met Captain Jones with his troop and Crawford, galloping towards my place. They halted and I related what had passed. While we were speaking, the mob again came in sight, when we went on to the gallery of Grant's hotel. As the mob surged up, the magistrate, who was very nervous, tried to read the riot act, but all we could catch was "God save the Queen." Jones was cool and determined. He drew up his men, a mere handful, across the road, and as the mob rushed down to surround them as they had done the footsoldiers at my place, he shouted the word "fire!" There was a flash of carbines; 3 of the Irishmen fell, and then the mob fled, the troopers pursuing, and had they wished they could have killed hundreds.

Delegate to Winnipeg Meetings

It is interesting to note that the "Gore" district of Huntingdon County and the Province of Quebec will be worthily represented at the Semi-Annual Meeting of the National Farm Radio Forum and the Annual Meeting of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

According to "Greenleaf", Bulletin of Quebec Farm Radio Forum, Mrs. Carl Anderson, The Gore, Huntingdon, Que., will represent Quebec Farm Forums at the above annual meetings which will be held at Winnipeg, Man., January 19-25. It is also announced that Mrs. Anderson will fly to and from Winnipeg via Trans-Canada Airlines.

Mrs. Anderson is Secretary of the Gore Farm Forum and Vice President of Quebec Farm Forums, and it is in that latter capacity that she will represent Quebec at the two above mentioned National Conventions.

National Salon of Agriculture

We are also in receipt of another interesting Bulletin. In this instance in connection with the Annual National Salon of Agriculture which will be opened at the Show-Mart, Montreal, on Friday, February 8, and which will be continued through the following week.

Beef Cattle Sale

The said Bulletin does not deal with the Purebred Dairy Cattle exhibits which will be staged at that show, and which, we understand, will be on an even more extensive scale than heretofore.

However, it is interesting to read that this year's Salon will include a Show and Sale of Beef Cattle. In the latter connection the report reads:

"Aberdeen-Angus and Shorthorn steers coming from various parts of the province will be offered to cattle buyers of Montreal, and will be top quality animals chosen from some of the leading herds in the Province of Quebec.

"This event should be of great interest to Montreal housewives as it will demonstrate the methods by which top quality beef is handled for sale, in our shops. After the sale all the animals will be on display during the remainder of the Salon, with the Champion and Reserve Champion occupying special stalls."

Brae Manor Represented

In the Aberdeen-Angus Section eight of the best herds of that breed will be represented, including the Brae Manor herd of Bruce and Mrs. McKellar, Island Road, Dewittville. It is also noted that the herds of L. T. Porter, St. Andrews East, and Dr. R. G. McCall, both of them regular Ormstown Exhibitors, will be represented.

Exhibits from six leading herds will comprise the Shorthorn section. Three of these herds are in the Compton district, one in Lennoxville, while the other two herds are those of Mrs. W. C. Pitfield of Saraguay, and Mrs. T. C. Stewart of Arundel.

"Jake" Higgins Selling!

Commencing at 8.30 p.m. Friday, February 8, the Aberdeen-Angus and Shorthorn steers will be judged by Prof. L. H. Hamilton of Macdonald College, after which they will be offered at public auction.

The auctioneer will be Harold P. ("Jake") Higgins of Huntingdon, Que.

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians have had their first glimpse at what the experts think the nation's economy will look like 25 years from now. For the worker on farm and in city, it may mean higher pay for less work.

The predictions of the Gordon commission on Canada's economic prospects were made in a preliminary, 60,000-word report tabled in the Commons. Its findings may affect the lives of all Canadians.

If its recommendations are adopted completely by all levels of government, property owners would wind up paying higher municipal taxes, and motorists and truckers would be paying higher licence and other fees.

But the report's dozens of proposals will not necessarily be implemented soon. Some may take years to put into effect. Others may be rejected by the federal, provincial and municipal governments to whom they are directed.

Broad Measures

The report contained recommendations for broad federal measures to increase Canadian control over the export of vital resources and means of coping with a chronic wheat surplus.

It proposed establishment of a national energy authority to regulate exports of oil, gas and hydro power, and suggested a federal system of export permits for the shipment of mineral ores and semi-processed metals.

Coupled with these were suggestions for reducing foreign ownership of Canadian industry and urgings that steps be taken to prevent Canada's chartered banks and insurance companies from falling into foreign hands.

The document is the product of 18 months' investigation by the five-man commission headed by Walter L. Gordon, 50-year-old Toronto accountant. Its activities included public hearings from coast to coast.

While painting an optimistic picture of Canada's future, the commission expressed concern over the depressed Maritimes economy and suggested broad federal aid for that area.

Living Standards

If there is no Global nuclear war, it predicted that national production will triple and living standards rise by about 75 per cent in the next 25 years. The population would climb from 15,575,000 to 26,500,000 in 1980, with urban areas containing about 80 per cent compared to 62 per cent in 1955.

The average business work week was estimated to drop in 25 years to 34.3 hours from 41.3; in agriculture, to 43.75 from 55.3.

Its main plan the depressed Maritime region was to provide federal aid for capital projects; to help resettle sub-marginal farmers in other jobs; to help move a portion of the Maritime population to other regions, and to set up a special inquiry into the Maritime freight rate structure.

The wheat-surplus control if implemented, would mean farmers would be told by the wheat board, at the beginning of each season, just how much wheat the board would be willing to take that year at guaranteed prices.

Production in excess of that quota would have to be kept at the farm with no price guarantee. But if farmers agreed to the quota system, the board would pay them advances for farm-held wheat within the quota. The board now maintains restrictions on deliveries of wheat from farms, and makes no payments until deliveries are made.

On foreign ownership of stocks in Canadian banks and life insurance companies, the commission said that while such ownership is not large, "it is desirable that Canadian control of these institutions be maintained". To prevent foreign control, the commission proposed legislation to bar future foreign holders of stock in these institutions from voting privileges.

Recommendations to ease municipal financial problems included higher property taxes,

CARS ARE MY Line

by Noel A. Foisy

Of all the recent auto improvements I like the automatic transmissions best of all.

For city driving, stop-and-go driving, nothing has given more comfort and ease. And the bugs have long since been worked out of these systems.

There's an important hint for driving with an automatic transmission that shouldn't be overlooked. If you have an automatic drive, you can put it into practice right away; if you haven't, we can show you many fine used cars with automatic drive and you can remember it with them.

Any engine should be warmed up before driving (we all know this, but how many of us remember to do it). One of the main reasons for warming up is that oil circulation isn't at normal until operating temperature is reached.

The importance of warming up is more apparent with automatic transmission. The car shouldn't be moved until the oil in the automatic transmission has had a chance to heat up.

Without heating up first, you can, so to speak, kill two expensive birds with one stone.

Automatic transmissions have now been firmly established long enough that a used car buyer can find plenty of cars — at bargain prices — that come equipped with the luxury of no-shift driving.

Perhaps luxury isn't quite the right word, although luxury is the word for the cushioning effect and smoother ride you get in a car with automatic drive. It's also a strain-saver, and that's an important safety factor.

Family Allowance Cheques Can "Roost" for Future Use at the Bank of Montreal

While your Family Allowance Cheques are intended, first and foremost, to help you pay for your youngsters' day-to-day expenses, they can also be used to give them a good start in agricultural or other college courses, later in life.

If you deposit every Family Allowance cheque for one child in a B of M savings account, there will be over $1,300, including interest, in it by the time the age of 16 is reached, points out G. W. Thompson, Huntingdon's Bank of Montreal, manager. And, through the years, this nest egg will always be immediately available, should emergency or opportunity arise.

By this means you can do much to make sure that your youngsters will have every chance to earn a good living when they start their own career or when your farm is passed on to them. If you can't manage to set aside the whole cheque, try to bank at least a part of it regularly. You'll find the practice will pay off in the future.

So, next time you receive your Family Allowance cheque, why not drop into the B of M and open a savings account in your youngster's name When you do that, you'll be building security and opportunity into his or her future — and that gives any parent a wonderful feeling!

Buick Century 2-Door Riviera

What's it Got that Everyone's After?

We figured folks would go for the '57 Buick—and big.

But we sure didn't figure this—the most rousing reception we've ever seen in all our years of selling new Buicks.

We're getting more enthusiastic talk—along with the signed orders—than ever before. And, neighbor, if you want to know why—listen:

This '57 Buick has that sleek low-sweep styling that today's moderns want—and it's here in extra-long measure, in the lowest Buick yet. It has the room they want—for Buick's new wide-frame chassis permits a sports-car silhouette with more interior roominess than even last year's spacious Buicks. It has newness everywhere, and newness that's wanted . . .

A smart new panoramic windshield of vaster dimensions and greater visibility. The sweet, solid surety of a new "nested" ride. A brilliant new handling and cornering and levelized braking that come of an ingenious new ball-joint suspension. It even has the modern answer for today's driving—a new Safety-Minder* that watches your miles-per-hour for you.

But even more important, this rakish sweep of automobile has a new kind of instant response—and that's the biggest reason for the soaring popularity of the newest Buick yet.

For here is performance—smooth as spun silk—unleashed by a totally new V8 engine 364 cubic inches big, and with the highest compression, torque and horsepower in Buick annals.

And here, to deliver that might, is the power-pitch action of an advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflow.* A Dynaflow of such instantaneous obedience, such smooth and versatile control in "Drive"—the need for "Low" is virtually ended.

In all truth, you've never bossed a car so keenly alive, so smooth in motion, so solid in feel. It's ahead of its time, ahead of the industry—even ahead of your great expectations.

Come check up on all this for yourself. Come drive this shoulder-high sweetheart with the strong he-and-she appeal. Come be our guest—today.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special. Safety-Minder standard on Roadmaster only.

Women's Institute

Huntingdon Women's Institute held their first meeting of the year at the home of Miss Mildred Scott on Jan. 8, 1957. There was a good attendance of members and visitors, with the president, Mrs. Gordon Ferry in the chair. Roll call was a quotation from Robbie Burns' poems. A two-minute silence was observed as a tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Wallace Merson who had been one of our most valued members and W.I. workers.

In the matter of school fairs it was agreed that we again sponsor the school fair and the children's department of the Huntingdon Fair, the secretary to arrange for seeds from the Department of Agriculture. Miss F. Turner read an article on the Hungarian students, and Mrs. Bernhardt one from the Canadian Association of Consumers on Group Membership in the C.A.C.

Mrs. E. Woods read from Scottish book explanations of some of Robbie Burns' well-known songs and poems. Some of these were: "Acton Water", "Highland Mary", "Comin thro the Rye", "Ye Banks and Braes", "Scots Wha Hae", "John Anderson My Jo", and many others. Following this, some of the songs were played on the record player and were much enjoyed. Helpful household hints were given by Miss Marjorie Goodfellow and Miss M. Temperatures Nose Dive

For the past ten days or so the temperatures had been considerably on the down grade with very little let-up and the weather man last week was promising 40 below zero and most people thought he was joking. However, on Sunday, the thermometer took a slide down and 12 to 18 below was reported from a number of points in the locality. Monday came and the mercury was still dropping. Cars were being towed around for hours during the morning as first this one and that one wanted to get his car running. Monday came and the mercury was ing really showed what could be done in degrees of frost. As noted elsewhere in this issue the official temperature recorded in Huntingdon was as low as 46 below at 5:45 a.m. Tuesday. More cars were frozen up on Tuesday than we have seen in many a winter. Those who would not bother to have their cars started, will be waiting many days after the temperature rises 60 degrees or so, for them to thaw out. There is no doubt that this cold spell has broken records for many years back—so the weatherman was right, it can happen here.

Power off on Saturday

Power was off in the central part of town for several hours early Saturday morning and many a person was inconvenienced as a result. The workmen were installing a new line in this area and this apparently was the reason for the shut down. It was thought by many that notice should have been given when the shutdown was to be of such long duration, or a different time should have been chosen to have the work done. We rely upon electricity for so many things today, that a long shutdown can be very hard all around, especially when it is so cold.

longer-term municipal borrowing, and a municipal tax on motor vehicles. There was "no good reason" why property owners should not pay the full costs of municipal water and sewage services. Municipalities might also be relieved of responsibility for hospitals and some social services.

On truck licensing, it said that heavier classes of trucks are determining the construction of highways and bridges to accommodate them. It suggested that motor vehicle owners — both passenger and commercial — should bear a higher share of mounting road costs through appropriate taxes and licence fees.

The commission called for federal-provincial action on a comprehensive program for better land use, and argued against adoption of rigid, high-level price supports for farm products generally as being an encouragement to over-production.

It forecast that during the next 25 years farm output will take a lesser place in relation to national productivity, falling from about 13 per cent of the total in 1955 to about six per cent in 1980.

Leaves Commons

Hon. George Drew last week severed his last link with Parliament by resigning his Commons seat, four months after ill health had forced him to drop the Progressive Conservative leadership. The 62-year-old Mr. Drew has represented Carleton (Ont.) constituency since he entered the Commons in a December, 1949, by-election.

Prime Minister St. Laurent reiterated his wish for restoration of Mr. Drew's health and "the continuance of his important contributions in the public service of our country."

Mr. Drew attended a noon ceremony at Parliament Hill at the unveiling of a statue of former Conservative prime minister Sir Robert Borden, and shook hands there with Mr. St. Laurent and John Diefenbaker, chosen a few days earlier as Mr. Drew's successor in the party leadership.

As his resignation was announced by the Speaker in Commons, leaders of all parties paid tribute to Mr. Drew and welcomed Mr. Diefenbaker, member for Prince Albert, Sask., as the new Opposition leader.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Public notice is hereby given that at a regular session of the Protestant School Commissioners of Huntingdon, held at the High School on Thursday the 6th day of December, nineteen hundred and fifty-six, with all the members present and with the Chairman Mr. Lyell J. Graham presiding, the following resolution was passed:—

It was moved by Commissioner Watson and seconded by Commissioner Gaw and unanimously carried as follows:—

Whereas there has been an increase in the number of children attending the Huntingdon High School during the past few years;

Whereas the High School has not the facilities for teaching the larger number of pupils, nor sufficient classroom space;

Whereas by Order-in-Council No. 1184, dated November 21st., 1956, the Protestant School Municipality of Hinchinbrooke will be annexed to the Protestant School Municipality of Huntingdon, as of July 1st., 1957, and that arrangements must be made to look after the school children of that municipality.

Wherefore the Protestant School Commissioners of Huntingdon have decided, in principle, that an extension should be made to the present brick building, and that they proceed with the building of the said extension without delay; that the said extension be built between the two schools on Lots 166 and 167 of the Village of Huntingdon, owned by the Board, and consist of two classrooms, five other rooms, and toilet facilities; that the approximate cost of the addition to the school, furniture and equipment, architects' fees, discount on the sale of bonds, and the printing of the said bonds will be $200,000.00; and that the architects engaged to prepare the plans and specifications will be Messrs Wood, Blachford and Ship, 4444 Sherbrooke St., W., Westmount, Que.

I, the undersigned, E. C. Martin, Secretary-Treasurer, hereby certify under my oath of office that the above is a true copy of a project of a resolution passed by the Protestant School Commissioners of Huntingdon at a meeting held December 6th., 1956.

Given at Huntingdon, Que., this 4th of December, 1956.

(Signed) E. C. MARTIN,

FRANKLIN CENTRE — The C.G.I.T. group held their meeting at the school on Tuesday afternoon. The usual opening exercises were observed. The devotional period was in charge of Mary Dunn. The group completed their first Report Form and final plans for their Mother and Daughter Party were made. Delegates were chosen to attend the Provincial C.G.I.T. Convention, in Montreal on January 25th.

The funeral service of the late Ernest Dumas of Ormstown, (formerly of Dumas Range) was held on Wednesday. Burial took place at St. Antoine Abbe. Sympathy is extended the family and friends.

A Mother and Daughter Party was held Friday evening, at the home of Mrs. James Manning, 13 mothers and 14 daughters were present.

After the dinner, which was prepared and served by the girls, they adjourned to the Living Room for a social period of games.

During the evening Lois Moneypenny on behalf of the group presented Margaret Barr with a fountain pen, a gift from the girls on her completion of 5 years in the C.G.I.T. After this the girls repeated their "Purpose" and their Leader presented Lois Moneypenny with a Senior Lanyard. Mrs. Stewart Moneypenny, on behalf of the Mothers, thanked the girls and their Leader for their hospitality at the close of a very enjoyable evening.

Miss Mary Anna Smith of Montreal, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Bruce.

Sale of Game Illegal At All Times

In spite of the Department of Game and Fish wardens supervision, in spite of the numerous recommendations made by conservation-minded groups, in spite of the collaboration of thousands of sportsmen, many poachers succeed during Christmas and the New Year shopping spree, in introducing on the market deer, moose or caribou meat, birch or spruce partridge, as well as migratory birds such as ducks, geese, Wilson's snipe or woodcock, the sale of all these being prohibited. Although the law does not permit the sale of most game meat, housewives may buyand serve hare to their families and guests. Hare hunting is permitted until the 31st of January and its sale, until the 15th of February.

The Minister of Game and Fisheries, Honorable Camille-E. Pouliot, M.D., asks everyone, specially at this time of the year, to be most careful as not to encourage poaching by buying game meat. The Honorable Minister reminds all that it is unlawful to buy or sell deer, moose or caribou meat, partridge and migratory birds and that anyone selling or buying such meat, risks a penalty.

The abundance of our wildlife, source of so much delight to the sportsmen, will be kept up if everyone will cooperate with the officers in charge of conservation and observe the law.

Two Projects South of Border Well Supported

It is noted that the campaign to raise a total of $494,000. for the Alice Hyde Memorial Hospital Building Fund is now over the $350,000 mark. Of this amount $100,000.00 was raised in the short space of 2 weeks.

The Ford Foundation is donating $41,000 over and above the regular subscription goal. Federal aid will supply $800,000. under the Hill Burton Act. With over $1,000,000.00 to work with the Hospital facilities at Malone will no doubt be greatly enlarged and modernized.

Work is progressing at a faster rate now on the erection of the new Salmon Central School in Fort Covington. Steelwork has been going up for the past month and it is possible to get some idea of the magnitude of the various buildings now taking shape.

Original plans called for the school to be open for the Fall term of 1957. But at the present time it is stated that such may not be case due to hold ups for steel which held back construction for more than a month this Fall.

New Erin

NEW ERIN — Mrs. Margaret Cameron visited for a few days with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Capsey, in Bedford, Que.

Mr. Grant Cameron spent the week-end with his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Planche, in Westbury, Long Island, prior to leaving on a two weeks course at the Carnation Milk Company in Belleville, Ohio.
