GREAT RECEPTION TO T. P. O'CONNOR

Great Leader Gave a Stirring Address in Tara Hall Last Evening.

Seldom if ever has such a scene of enthusiasm been witnessed in the Ancient Capital as that which attended the lecture delivered by that most popular Irishman, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, in Tara Hall last night. Everywhere there were evidences of the fact that the Irishmen were resolved to do all in their power to extend the heartiest of welcomes to the man who had spent thirty years of his life in working for the cause of Home Rule, and to show their appreciation of his mission. All around were to be seen patriotic emblems and devices and the dais presented a picturesque appearance, with its profusion of green, the symbolic harp in the centre being a conspicuous object, as also were two magnificent harps presented by the St. Patrick's Branch of the C.M.B.A. and the St. Patrick's Court of the Catholic Order of Foresters. Portraits of the Irish patriots, Daniel O'Connell and Robert Emmet, were also in prominent places.

Long before the hour scheduled the crowd began to assemble, and when the doors were opened there were hundreds eagerly awaiting and fearful lest they should have to forego the pleasure of hearing the great T.P. When all were settled down the proceedings began by the playing of "The Wearing of the Green." After this Mr. Gilbert Lamont, who was in his best form, sang an Irish song, "Norah Macnamara." Then followed a soprano solo, "Ireland, I Love You," by Miss N. MacManamy. Mr. J. Shields then gave an excellent rendering of "Believe Me, if All Those Endearing Young Charms," and Mrs. Edward Foley completed the well-selected programme by rendering "The Lament of the Irish Emigrant" in a manner that brought forth much applause.

Points Made by T. P. O'Connor.

The chief arguments advanced by Mr. O'Connor were that since the year 1885 a new Ireland had arisen and evolved from the dust and decay of the old and sad Ireland; that this resurrection or revival or rejuvenation had been the first and direct fruits of the growth of more distinctly democratic government at Westminster; that in proportion to the degree to which the franchise was distributed throughout the electoral districts of the United Kingdom the cause of Home Rule for Ireland had prospered; that the masses of the United Kingdom were solid for the establishment of a separate parliament in Ireland for legislation on Irish affairs; that the House of Lords was responsible for all the checks to legislation pointing in this direction, for all the heartburns of the Irish M.P.'s, and the chagrin and sorrow of the Irish people themselves; that for publicists to plout the rostrum and declare that racial differences and strife were the stumbling block to Irish Home Rule was utter nonsense; that racial antipathies between the Irish and British belonged to a dead and irrevocable past; that the present system of government in the United Kingdom was "an anarchic agglomeration"; that Ireland should be governed by Irish opinion, and that the best way to govern Ireland and all the members of the United Kingdom and the British Empire, for that matter, was by the principle in vogue in Canada—a Federal government for federal affairs and provincial governments for provincial matters.

The meeting was presided over by Hon. J. C. Kaine. Amongst the invited guests present in the body of the hall were Sir Lomer Gouin, Mayor Drouin, Rev. Father Hanley, Rector of St. Patrick's, and the priests and brothers of St. Patrick's Church, Mr. C. F. Delage, M.P.P., and Father Maguire, of Sillery. On the stage there were also the Hon. Chas. Devlin, who proposed the vote of thanks;

Mr. Richard Timmons, the seconder of the vote; Messrs. Jos. Ahern and Charles Power, Aldermen Collier, Mulrone, Madden, Campbell, Monaghan, and Messrs. M. Kenney, president of the Sarsfield A.A.A., and Mr. Dooley.

The Hon. J. C. Kaine, who introduced Mr. T. P. O'Connor, said that there was an old saying that good wine needed no bush, and their distinguished guest and brother Irishman needed no introduction, as he was known, honored, loved and admired in every quarter of the habitable globe, wherever the members of the Irish race were scattered. He was known as a brilliant and versatile journalist, and author and a man who had given the whole-souled devotion of thirty years of his life to the cause of Home Rule for Ireland. He was a man worthy to be ranked with such men as Isaac Butt, Charles Stuart Parnell, John Redmond, Joseph Biggar, Joseph Devlin, Edward Blake, Justin McCarthy and others of the same renown. They were men of an amazing perseverance, whose many sacrifices had proved the truth of the words,

"Freedom's battle once begun Though battled oft is always won."

Mr. T. P. O'Connor had come to them at a critical, one might say a supreme, moment to ask their help for the Irish party, which would soon pass through its final ordeal to the attainment of the hope that had long been cherished by every true son of Erin.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, who received a tremendous ovation on rising, said that there were two main features of the Irish question, the ownership of the land and its national government. Up till 1172 the land had been in the hands of the purely Celtic population and was based on a system of clan-ship. But after the invasion the big English lords and barons had obtained its overlordship, all the Gaelic chieftains having been defeated and banished. Two combined forces were working on the one hand to reduce the Irish tenantry to a state of serfdom and, on the other, to force them to abandon their religion.

One rebellion had failed, another had appeared likely to succeed, but at the end of the Eighteenth century the last barrier in the way of subjection had been removed and landlordism held full sway. It was a complete conquest. The landlords charged whatever rent they liked and evicted when they liked. The tillers of the soil sacrificed to the greed of the landlord everything save the potato. The potato was their sole means of living, and the landlords only left it to them because they wanted the tenants to live in order to make a living for the landlords.

Between eight and nine millions therefore depended on a single crop, the potato crop. This was the only partition between them and starvation. In 1846 it failed, and there was a famine—an artificial famine, because, though there was an abundance of other crops, they all went to the landlord. Then came emigration and perhaps there were some present among his audience who were descended from those who had fled from Ireland and had lost many of their numbers on the awful coffin ships. During all the period from 1846 to 1881 wholesale evictions were going on. For instance in the neighborhood of his own birthplace he knew where a Scotch landlord had taken 13,000 acres of land and had banished from it every one save a few herdsmen. A Catholic bishop of his acquaintance had told him how he had seen hundreds of people evicted to starve in the depths of winter. These were not the occurrences of a remote past, but were part and parcel of the minds of living men.

The year 1879 was almost a repetition of 1846. Two-thirds of the potato crop failed. The deeper the misery, suffering and helplessness was, the harder was the landlord, the more frequent the evictions. Gladstone had said that they were thick as snowflakes in Ireland.

It looked as if Ireland would be thrown further back than ever into the abyss of famine, evictions and wholesale emigration. But fortunately, there arose two Irishmen at this critical period. One of them, Michael Davitt, had left Ireland as a barefooted boy with his father and mother, and as he turned his last glance on the home that he was leaving his eyes almost blinded with tears, he saw it devoured by the flames. He entered upon a revolutionary movement. The Irish who were then representing the country in the British parliament were, he said, corrupt, dishonest and selfish. Davitt made an alliance with Charles Stuart Parnell, and the two asserted that the Irish should endeavor to send honest members to England, men pledged to refuse every office or emolument and to regain the liberty of Ireland by a constitutional movement.

It was a black year, in 1879, but from it dated the beginning of political emancipation. Parnell exhorted the Irish to keep their grip on their homesteads, to resist eviction, not to let their children die from lack of food, and to rise to the bravery of men. He came to America and appealed to all Irishmen, wherever they might be, to stand by their race. From that trip had resulted a war-chest of half a million dollars, and good work was done with it.

In 1880, when the new Irish M.P.'s assembled under the leadership of Parnell, he (the speaker) was with them. He remembered that the Queen's speech in the House covered almost the whole of the world. There were references to Bulgaria, Montenegro, Afghanistan and Zululand, but absolutely no mention was made of Ireland. The Irish party then numbered some twenty-five members, and when they met together they determined to raise the question of the Irish land struggle.

Parnell, said Mr. O'Connor, had asked him to speak and, though only a youngster, he and others had got up in the House to tell something about Irish conditions and to ask Mr. Gladstone to do something for Ireland. As a result the Queen's speech was torn up in twenty-four hours and Mr. Gladstone announced a land bill for Ireland. It passed, but it was vetoed by the House of Lords, that deadly enemy of legislation in any way favorable to Ireland, which was now in conflict with the English masses, and was likely to go down to defeat during the next few months. Other acts were passed and the tenants were enabled to bring the landlords to justice to test the fairness of their rent charges, and the landlords could only evict for cases of non-payment of rent. Now, so great were the facilities for peasant proprietorship, that no less than 300,000 tenants owned their own land. In fifteen years the other tenants would enjoy the magic of ownership, and the black nightmare of landlordism, with all its evils, would have vanished. The Irish land would belong to the Irish people.

For thirty years, said Mr. O'Connor, his party had worked honestly, devotedly, for Ireland. The English had taken the land long ago by battle and massacre, and they had, in their retention of it, been responsible for the hunger, eviction and emigration of the Irish. But the struggle, that had lasted seven centuries, was now over and the Irish people had conquered in the end.

"I am old enough," said Mr. O'Connor, to have heard tragic stories of Irish famines, I am old enough to have seen every Irish tenant not only a slave but an abject slave, and I am happy to have taken a small part in the work of doing away with that old Ireland and making way for the rise of the new."

The speaker characterized the talk of feud between the people of England and the people of Ireland as "a relic of the dead, wicked and irrevocable past." In the last British House of Commons had been the greatest Democratic assembly that had ever met together. "Home Rule for Ireland could have been passed with three hundred majority if it had not been for the veto of the House of Lords, which wrecked that as it did many another good piece of legislation."

In conclusion the lecturer asked them to apply Canadian principles to the Irish question. Quebec was one of the greatest examples of a local liberty that had produced racial and religious harmony. He hoped to live to see the day when all ancient religious and racial feuds between England and Ireland would disappear and out of their liberty would be borne unity and brotherhood.

The vote of thanks was proposed in an appropriate speech by the Hon. Chas. Devlin, and seconded by Mr. Richard Timmons, whose forensic eloquence and flowery rhetoric made a great impression on the audience. The singing of "God Save Ireland" then brought to a close a most memorable and interesting meeting.

PORTUGAL ONCE A GREAT NATION

Leader in Commerce and Discovery in 15th Century—Some of Its History.

Portugal affords an excellent example of a nation that was once great and has decayed. In the fifteenth century its sailors were among the most venturesome and its merchants among the most enterprising in Europe. Prince Henry the Navigator early in the century explored the African coast, while the arms of his countrymen wrested half of Morocco from the Moors. Vasco da Gama in 1497 rounded the Cape of Good Hope and opened the way for Portuguese activity in the east, an activity which resulted in the conquest of Malacca and the Sunda Islands, and the exploration in part of Abyssinia. The discovery and settlement of Brazil belongs to the same period.

About the middle of the sixteenth century the decline began. King Sebastian was drawn into conflicts with the Moors in 1578 and was finally defeated and slain. Bit by bit territory was ceded away, some to the Moors, some to Spain, some to England. About 1580 Philip II. of Spain claimed the throne and backed his pretensions by a powerful army. For sixty years the deadly blight of Spanish tyranny was upon the nation, and then in 1640 a successful conspiracy of the higher nobles freed the country and placed John Duke of Braganza upon the throne. To the house of Braganza King Manuel belongs the independence of Portugal was recognized by the treaty of Lisbon in 1668. The country's power had gone, however, and it has since played but a minor part in the game of European politics. It has had more than its share of internal troubles, however. During the eighteenth century the famous Minister Pombal, waged a relentless war against the nobles and the clergy, and in 1759 expelled the Jesuits from the country. In 1807 Prince John, the regent, unable to maintain himself against the attacks of Napoleon, transferred his Court and family to Brazil. While a French army occupied Lisbon John succeeded to the throne in 1816, and in 1821 returned to Lisbon. The next year Brazil asserted her independence, and Don Pedro, a son of King John, became her first Emperor. Pedro succeeded to the crown of Portugal in 1826, but resigned the right in favor of his daughter, Maria. Pedro's brother, Miguel, however, had designs upon the throne, and for several years civil war raged between the brothers. Finally, France and Spain helped Pedro and he prevailed.

RECORDER'S COURT.

On Saturday evening a man by the name of Albert Paris was arrested at the corner of Palace and St. John streets, by Constable Clarke, of the city police, charged with refusing to move on when told to do so. Paris appeared in Court on Monday morning and pleaded not guilty, his trial being fixed for yesterday. Both parties, with their witnesses and counsel, were on hand yesterday morning, when the trial took place. The defendant stated that he was standing on the street and not on the sidewalk when told to move on, and that he was waiting for a car. He was corroborated in this by his witnesses. The constable and his witnesses swore that when told to move on defendant was on the sidewalk, and informed the constable that he would not move on, and that he the constable was not man enough to arrest him. After hearing the evidence and the addresses of counsel on both sides the Recorder fined Paris $2 and costs.

A BETTER UNDERSTANDING.

Those who have had the pleasure of listening to Mr. T. P. O'Connor during his present trip on this side, cannot fail to have remarked the breadth of opinion, and the calm logic of his utterances as compared with the recriminations and fervid references to English tyranny and oppression, which were unfortunately in vogue a quarter of a century ago, and which have figured so largely in the addresses of William O'Brien and others, who visited this continent in former years.

There is no doubt that much harm has been wrought to the Irish cause by this style of oratory in the past for no cause, however just it may be, is likely to gain solid ground by an appeal to the passions. The Ottawa Citizen explains the situation very aptly in the following words:—

"The man, who is convinced of the righteousness of his arguments, will not detract from the effect of the simple truth by smothering the issue in either rhetorical flowers of fireworks."

"The new spirit," it continues, "of the part of home rule advocates is the result of mutual understanding. The Irishman and Englishman are beginning to understand each other and, naturally, to respect each other. The same may be said in regard to the other stocks in Britain, the Scots and the Welsh. The process has been slow and hampered by prejudices that often made it appear hopeless. But it has been accomplished at last. Today the Irish political orator would as soon think of abusing Britain as of refusing to say a good word for the land of his birth. Such a spirit is helpful to all parties. It has shown the English people the reasonableness of Ireland's request and has convinced Ireland of the fairness of England once the issue is stripped of its prejudices and the sense of injury usually attracted to its presentation."

This visit of the Irish orator to Canada will be memorable for the reason that his calm and logical explanation of Ireland's desires in the matter of domestic legislation have done more for the Irish cause in a few days than all the recriminations of the past have been able to effect.

TAFT AND PATRONAGE.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer thinks that President Taft's order placing some seven thousand or eight thousand assistant postmasters in money order offices on the civil service list is distinctly a step forward in the conduct of government business. The day of the spoils system in American politics recedes. There are still abuses in partisan control of the people's affairs, but they are gradually being eliminated.

It is now thirty-seven years since the war on patronage in the United States began, and, though it was not pushed for several years, public sentiment at last forced action by Congress and the President. What was once regarded as a desirable political plum and a reward for services rendered by some party worker is now placed on the firm basis of reward for efficient service, an act which should commend itself to every friend of honesty and fitness in public office. If the Laurier administration should follow Taft's example and determine that the government should be run like any other big business, where merit should take precedence of "pull," then we would be more likely to believe that it was attending strictly to the nation's business instead of playing politics.

ANOTHER BACKDOWN.

For months the Toronto Globe, the chief organ of the Liberal party, has talked of nothing but the advantages of "reciprocity" with America. It has even sent a special correspondent to study "reciprocity" conditions over the borders. But now it has suddenly gone off on another tack as can be seen from its declaration as follows:—

"Reciprocity between Canada and the United States in the sense in which the word has been used in Canadian politics is impossible so long as the British preference remains. The Liberal party is pledged to the teeth to maintain the preference, and the Globe stands with Sir Wilfrid Laurier on that issue. Therefore, it is untrue that the Globe is promoting a reciprocity movement with the United States. The word is being used merely as a political scarecrow."

A more complete volte-face could hardly be imagined. If the word has been used as the Globe says, then the Liberal organ should have given us warning long ago that it was employing it in a different sense to that understood by other journals, even of its own stripe. It looks very much as if Messrs. Laurier, Fielding, etc., were afraid of arousing public opinion by their "reciprocity" campaign. If the word is offensive to the nice discrimination of the Globe, then let it provide us with a substitute. Will it be "Free Trade as it is in England?"

THE QUEBEC BRIDGE.

Those who are most in touch with such matters are of the opinion that the contract for the building of the Quebec Bridge will be awarded to the British Empire Bridge Company, of Montreal, and the Darlington, Manchester and Cleveland, England, Bridge Company, who combine in the one tender. It is to be hoped that in awarding this contract it will be stipulated that the plant shall be erected at Quebec, where it should naturally be, in the vicinity of the scene of operations. Our Federal members should consider the matter and take steps to see that Quebec be fairly treated.

PARTY ORGANIZATION

It is small use trying to disguise the fact that the Conservative party throughout Canada is badly in need of organization. There is too much of the laissez-faire policy in evidence. Nominations are left until the last minute. Little or nothing in the way of pamphlets is distributed amongst the electors to give them sufficient time to ponder over its merits, and the party needs to introduce more of the business spirit into its organization. As a Toronto paper says, when all is said, politics is business, and we know what would be the fortune of business men who reserved their advertising and energy for the two or three weeks before Christmas.

A political party, like a business man needs to advertise all the time. Sometimes a merchant thinks that he can stop advertising awhile and run on momentum. The result is usually a full stop.

The Toronto News is doing signal service to the party to-day by calling attention to this lack of organization amongst the Conservatives, when it says:

"It is to be regretted that Mr. Borden's advisers have cancelled the contemplated series of fall meetings in Ontario. The reasons may be adequate. But that there is need for some display of activity and energy by the Conservative leaders is undoubted. It would be profitable to study the course of Sir John Macdonald when he was in Opposition. There is something to be learned from the methods and activities of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his associates between 1891 and 1896. An Opposition succeeds by fighting in the country rather than by its labors in the House of Commons."

In Great Britain the party organizations are unceasingly active. Candidates are early in the field. Each becomes a centre of local activity and enthusiasm. During the two or three years before the last general election in England, many Unionist candidates addressed from one to three hundred meetings in their respective constituencies. Campaign vans are always on the road. A constant stream of literature goes out to the voters. One result at least is that electors are thoroughly well informed and that there is an active movement of voters from one party to the other.

There is another crying need, which The News has realized.

Neither party, in Canada, it says, drafts the young men into its service as they do in Great Britain. Too few of the young men appear as candidates; too few are on directing committees. Even the United States is learning the lesson that we neglect. There is too much localism and far too much dependence upon "the old guard." The "old guard" deserves honor and respect. The energy necessary for steady work and active direction of campaigns should be contributed by the younger spirits. The most effective work must be done, too, in "open meeting" rather than within the closed doors of party organizations.

"It has been said," continues the News, "even by friends of the Government, that no better Opposition than that which Mr. Borden leads has ever sat in the House of Commons. But how few of its members are known throughout the country? Take Ontario for example, and who, except Mr. Foster, is a Provincial or national figure? This is not the fault of the men but of the system. But will the electors rally to men they do not know, and how are they to be known, except they go to the people? The material is available; the opportunities are neglected. Not in this way is complete success to be achieved and not in this way does a party become powerful in the country. Strong as is the Federal Conservative party in Ontario, with proper activity and timely and complete organization it could be very much stronger."

"Is it not true also that the Conservative party should seek for new alliances? Many of the old questions have been settled or cease to interest the people. Sir John Macdonald always kept in touch with changing conditions. He was alert to every new situation. He never was afraid to receive recruits from the ranks of his opponents. He knew how to divide the enemy as well as to achieve victory. There lies the very genius of political leadership. In the United States Roosevelt is creating a new party, although he may destroy his old party in the process. In Canada it is easily open to the Conservative managers to destroy the old party to which they are opposed, to attract new elements, to raise up new leaders under Mr. Borden, and greatly to strengthen the Conservative party for national service."

The latest criticism of things Canadian by a visitor from Britain is that of one of the bishops who declares that the headings of Canadian newspapers are too loud. The worthy divine gives no consideration to the possible reply that the appearance many English "dudes" is far louder than any newspaper heading can possibly be.

Quite appropriately, a state investigation commission has discovered that there has been a great deal of grafting in the New York forest lands department.

WHAT BEAUTIFUL HAIR!

How often do we hear that exclamation of a certain woman's hair or a certain man's hair.

A prominent scientist and hair specialist emphatically states, and has proven, that any man or woman can have luxuriant, lustrous hair, by using a famous prescription called Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is now made and sold in Canada. Henry Willis, the druggist, is the agent in Quebec, and the readers of the Chronicle can buy from him for only 50 cents a large bottle.

Henry Willis knows that Parisian Sage will beautify the hair, cure dandruff and stop falling hair, and for that reason he sells it under a guarantee to cure or money back.

If you cannot obtain Parisian Sage where you live, you can get a bottle for 50 cents from Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., charges prepaid.

STORY OF LATE

KING AND THE DOG.

London, Oct. 7.—There is an old sailor, named George Tinker, living at Erith, who served on H.M.S. Hero, on which the late King made his trip to Canada and the United States fifty years ago. Tinker, who is eighty-five years of age, recalls that on his return journey His Royal Highness celebrated his nineteenth birthday in mid-Atlantic, and the crew of the vessel were regaled to several extra tots of rum at his expense.

Upon the arrival of the vessel in Plymouth Sound a large Newfoundland dog, which had been presented to the Prince in Canada, was being rowed ashore in charge of the Duke of Newcastle. It espied on board the Hero a boy who had tended it during the voyage, and at once leaped overboard, dragging the duke with it, and swam to the vessel, refusing to leave its friend.

Queen Victoria heard of the incident, and commanded the boy to be the animal's keeper at Buckingham Palace, where he ultimately rose to a high position in the Royal household.

STOMACH DISTRESS IS ENDED FOREVER

Indigestion, Stomach Gas, Heartburn or Dyspepsia Will Be Relieved in Five Minutes.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapiesin.

CLAIM THAT COBB LEADS BY SEVEN POINTS.

A story from Detroit is to the effect that Ty Cobb leads Larry Lajoie for the auto by seven points, claiming that Larry's total of hits and Cobb's times at bat, as printed unofficially, have been wrong right along. According to the new dope the standing is as follows:

A. B. Hits. P.C.
Cobb	492 187 .301
Lajoie	569 212 .375

Cobb gained two hits in Philadelphia on August 29 and 30 that did not appear in the unofficial figures, while Lajoie has one less time at bat than charged unofficially, in Washington, on Aug. 20.

The unofficial averages gave Lajoie the call, 214 hits in 570 times at bat, a mark of .3754, and Cobb 185 hits in 494 times at bat, an average of .374.

Both Cobb and Lajoie had three hits apiece yesterday in six times up. The official result of the auto chase won't be known until the end of the season.

MINTO CUP

FINANCES ALL RIGHT.

New Westminster, Oct. 7.—The total receipts for the two Minto up games played between Nationals and New Westminster amounts to $9,756.60, from which has to be deducted $569.25 for expenses, leaving $9,187.35 to be divided between the R.A. and I. Society and the Westminster Lacrosse Club. Nationals were guaranteed $7,000 for agreeing to play six games, the exhibition association taking over the liability. On the Minto Cup games the association has received $4,593.57 which means that the year $2,406.43 beyond the guarantee, with four more games to play. By this it would appear that they will record figures on the credit.

FOUR UMPIRES FOR EACH BASEBALL GAME

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Only 6,000 seats at the Chicago National League Baseball Park will be reserved for the world's series games, and no reservations will be made by mail. This decision has been reached by Robert McBey, who is in charge of the seat sale.

President Murphy announces that all four umpires assigned to the world's series will officiate at each game. One rule behind the bat, one will make base decisions, and two will officiate in the outfield.

The Grand Exhibition of Farm Products
 Will Be Formally Opened on Tuesday

THE formal Opening of our Grand Exhibition of Farm Products will take place on Tuesday, October 11th, instead of Monday, as formerly announced. The reason for this is that many Exhibitors have requested permission to send in their Exhibits on Monday instead of Saturday. We have decided that it would be best for all concerned to allow the Exhibitors to send in their Exhibits at the last moment on Monday. All Exhibits must be in not later than Monday night. No entries will be received after that date.

The interest in this Exhibition has been very keen, and we have received many letters of enquiry from the farmers of this district. There is no doubt about the success of the undertaking, and we feel sure you will be more than pleased with what you will see. Every resident of Quebec should make it a point to visit this Exhibition and see what magnificent specimens of Agricultural Products are produced on Canadian soil.

SAVED FROM THE KNIFE.

Appendicitis Cured by "Fruit-a-tives"

Newburgh, Ont., Feb. 12th, 1910.
"Just about a year ago, our daughter Ella, (fourteen years), was taken with terrible pains in the right side. The pain was so severe that we had to carry her to bed. We at once put her under the care of a first-class doctor, who pronounced it a case of Appendicitis and advised an operation."

We took her to a hospital in Kingston where she was again examined by an eminent specialist. He said she had Appendicitis and must be operated on at once if we wanted to save her life. As we had taken her to Kingston to have this done, we were ready, but our daughter was afraid and begged pitifully, that we postpone it for that day. Luckily for us and for her an uncle came in with some "Fruit-a-tives" and insisted on Ella taking them. Good results were apparent, almost from the first dose, and the continuous treatment cured her.

"Fruit-a-tives" saved our daughter from the surgeon's knife and to-day she is enjoying the best of health."

J. W. FOX, (Father).
LILLIAN FOX, (Mother).

Words cannot express the gratitude of Mr. and Mrs. Fox. And Miss Ella will always remember "Fruit-a-tives"—the discovery of an eminent physician, and the only medicine in the world made of fruit. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c. ARNOLD CLIENTS 450 PER CENT

Connecticut Broker, Facing Bankruptcy, a Great Benefit, Say Townsmen.

Putnam, Conn., Oct. 7.—From a poor school teacher to a position as influential broker, in which he was able to pay many clients profits of from fifty to four hundred and fifty per cent and set a whole town to flourishing. Such is the history of Ernest M. Arnold, who faces involuntary bankruptcy proceedings here.

The sudden collapse of his phenomenal nine-year business rise has affected persons all over New England and in a part of Canada. Every creditor would have been paid in two years if he had been left alone, Mr. Arnold says.

There are hundreds of creditors on Mr. Arnold's books, it is said, with whom he has done business on the participating account principle, while others have been let in on special deals. At no time, says Mr. Arnold, has he promised a customer more than six per cent, but if profits allowed he paid more. It is said some got four hundred and fifty per cent, while others to content themselves with anywhere from six to fifty per cent.

Some of those who got in early and who stood high socially got out handsomely. Several citizens put in small amounts and received enough profits, it is said, to purchase first class automobiles, while one customer was able to send his wife to Europe for an extended stay.

Mr. Arnold was a school teacher in Thompson before coming here to open up a brokerage office, and since that time and up to within three months did a land office business. He had dealings with people in all walks of life and says he made a lot of money for some of them. He is about fifty years old, is a bachelor and lives in the most fashionable thoroughfare in the city with his mother and sister.

Has Aided Town.

He is a prominent fraternity man and a leading worker in the local Methodist church, and has a class of young men in Sunday school that he teaches every Sunday. He has done much to build up certain parts of the city and has erected one of the finest greenhouses in the country. He has spent money like water since coming here and the city is greatly benefited for it, in the way of improvements.

Mr. Arnold says if he is forced into bankruptcy many people will suffer misery throughout New England, and that he will not be able to pay even two per cent to his creditors.

The petition ordering Mr. Arnold into court at Hartford next Monday is signed by these prominent Windham county citizens, who loaned money to Mr. Arnold on notes which are unpaid; they are comparatively few when all those in New England and Canada are considered:—Samuel A. Cooper, Woodstock, $150; Samuel Reynolds, $236.54; George Vaughn, Putnam, $1,150; Dr. Omer La Rue, Putnam, $762.28; Thomas Rawley, Putnam, $2,300, and Percy Waterman, Putnam, $500.

claims are more than half a million and the assets a slight equity in real estate and stock, value unknown. The petitioners are all well known business men. They allege that last June Mr. Arnold committed an unlawful act by transferring, when he was insolvent, seventeen tracts of land in this city to C. S. Andem, the agent of the large cotton mills in Thomson; to prefer Mr. Andem over other creditors. Mr. Arnold asserts he gave four mortgages to Mr. Andem last June for $22,300 for loans of money advanced being in the way of outright loans and not for investments made in the business.

Revelations of a sensational and far reaching character are promised by Samuel Harvey, of Williamantic, counsel for the creditors.

Mr. Arnold, whom nobody has yet accused of deliberate or malicious fraud or sly methods, says that Mr. Andem, who holds his mortgage is responsible for the present mess.

WAS UP AGAINST A HARD COMBINATION

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Vanquished Them All.

Sundridge man suffering from Gravel, Diabetes and Dropsy finds an easy and complete cure.

Sundridge, Ont., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Gravel, Diabetes and Dropsy are a terrible combination for one man to have. It means that his life is in the gravest danger, unless, like George Vanhooser, a well-known resident of this place, he finds the simple and natural cure. Here is the story Mr. Vanhooser tells, and all his neighbors know every word of it is true:

"I had pains in my back and across the loins. My stomach would swell, I was constipated and I had sharp cutting pains in my bladder, which made me sure that I was suffering from the terrible Gravel. The doctor attended me, but I kept getting worse every day."

"Others had told me of the great good Dodd's Kidney Pills had done them and I determined to try them. Six boxes made a new man of me."

Gravel, Dropsy and Diabetes are all either Kidney Diseases or are caused by diseased Kidneys. The easy and natural way to cure them is to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They never fail to cure any form of Kidney Disease.

FAGIN FATHER SEES GIRLS STEAL

Children Caught When Picking Pockets at Liverpool.

London, October 7.—An Amazing story of two small girl pickpockets and a Faginlike father was told at Liverpool Police Court.

Isabella Eyre, ten, and Dorothy Eyre, eleven, were charged with picking pockets and their father, William Eyre, was charged with receiving the stolen property.

The evidence of detectives was that on Saturday night, Sept. 3, at a busy tram station opposite the market, one of the girls was picking pockets and the other one shielding her from observation. When they secured anything they went across the road to their father, spoke to him, and then went back and resumed their operations.

The children were motherless, and it was stated by the woman with whom they lodged that the girls went out at five minutes to eight in the morning of school-days and at mid-day on other days, and did not return until nine or ten o'clock at night. Their father always returned a few minutes after them.

One of the children admitted stealing a purse containing a sovereign out of a lady's pocket, throwing the purse away, and giving the money to her father. The other girl recounted how she was first taught to pick pockets. She was out with a woman, who pointed out to her a purse hanging from a lady's pocket, and told her to get it. She refused at first, but when she was told by the woman that she would not invite her to the party the little one succumbed and stole the purse. Since then she had often gone over to New Brighton stealing.

For four or five months, it was stated, the two girls had been keeping their father by picking pockets in the busy streets.

The father was sent to prison for six months, and the children were ordered to an industrial school until they reached the age of sixteen years.

MISS MARIE NARELLE,

The Irish-Australian Soprano.

A very popular and versatile Irish vocalist, Miss Marie Narelle, will visit the leading cities of the Dominion during October and November, and, as we will likely have the pleasure of hearing this charming artist, perhaps it will be interesting to our readers to know how she has been appreciated elsewhere. We quote the few following lines from the Plattsburg paper, where Miss Narelle has appeared several times and created a very deep impression. The writer gives the artist the following appreciation:

"To one of the most enthusiastic audiences ever assembled in the Auditorium at Cliff Haven, Miss Marie Narelle concluded her series of recitals last evening. Rev. Father MacMillan showed rare judgment in securing this great artist for the closing week of the session. The attendance at this time was greater than it ever has been in the history of Cliff Haven, due very largely to Miss Narelle's delightful singing and a most charming personality. The programme last evening gave Miss Narelle an opportunity to display her wonderful range of voice and versatility. Songs by German, American and English composers made up the list, and the encores were all request numbers, consisting chiefly of the old Irish songs. The concluding song, "The West's Awake" brought the audience to its feet, and the applause lasted until Miss Narelle consented to sing another number. It is to be hoped that Miss Narelle will arrange to be with us again next summer."

This train will carry a through Pullman for New York, leaving Levis at 3.30 p.m. There will be a dining car on this train, so that those taking in the cheap trip to New York next Thursday will have every comfort.

The 8 a.m. train will run through to Portland, but the parlor and dining cars will be discontinued.

ST. SAUVEUR BAZAAR.

There should be a large attendance at the annual bazaar, which opens in the Orphelinat du Sacre Coeur Hall, St. Sauveur, on Monday next. The bazaar, which is under the direction of the priests connected with St. Sauveur Church, is in aid of the orphans of the parish. The ladies have certainly spared neither time nor trouble to make the undertaking a complete success, and it now rests with the charitably disposed to crown their efforts with large financial returns. Bear in mind that every cent expended at the sale is to assist the helpless orphans, and to aid them in becoming useful citizens of the future. With such a deserving aim in view, a special effort should be made to help the devoted ladies to carry on their work. So don't fail to visit the St. Sauveur bazaar, no matter whether your purchases be small or great.

PE-RU-NA RECEIVES PRAISE.

For Relieving Such Symptoms as Debility, Backache and Headache.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 609 N. 5th Ave., Nashville, Tenn., writes: "As Peruna has done me a world of good I feel in duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eye of some who has suffered as I did. "For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going.

"A good friend advised me to use Peruna and I was glad to try anything, and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life looks bright again."

There are a great many phases of woman's ailments that require the assistance of the surgeon.

But by far the greatest number of such cases are amenable to correct medicinal treatment.

A vast multitude of women have been relieved from the ailments peculiar to their sex through the use of Peruna.

Our Medical Department receives many letters from all parts of the country relating to subjects of vital interest to womankind.

Of the vast multitude of women who take Peruna only a very small percentage consider it necessary to write us on the subject.

While it is not affirmed that Peruna will relieve every case of this kind, it is certainly the part of wisdom for every woman so afflicted to give Peruna a fair trial.

Mrs. Joseph Lacle, 124 Bronson St., Ottawa, East, Ontario, Canada, writes:

"I suffered with backache and headache for over nine months and nothing relieved me until I took Peruna. This medicine is by far better than any other medicine for these troubles. A few bottles relieved me of my miserable, half-dead, half-alive condition. "I am now in good health, have neither ache nor pain, nor have I had any for the past year. If every suffering woman would take Peruna, they would soon know its value and never be without it."

Mrs. Ella Miskell, R.F.D. 2, Box 80, Scottsburg, Indiana, writes:

"I suffered for two years with catarrh in the head, having such pains in the head and face that I feared I would lose my reason. I tried every known remedy, but gradually grew worse. Nights of restlessness would succeed days of agony. After taking twelve bottles of Peruna I am entirely well."

WIFE'S DUEL WITH HUSBAND

Murderous Fight by Gaslight in a Street of Berne.

London, Oct. 7.—A terrible duel with pistols was fought in one of the principal streets of Berne between a woman and her divorced husband.

Gregorio Remonda, a Swiss plasterer, aged forty-one, had been sent to prison for ill-treating his wife, Marie, and their only son, a boy aged twelve. Mme. Remonda, a hard-working and respectable woman, who keeps a kiosk, has gone in fear of her husband since she divorced him, and as his threats became more violent she armed herself with a revolver.

At night, as she was returning from home from her shop, she was shot in the back at twenty yards distance by Gregorio, and fell on her knees. While in this position she whipped out a revolver and shot at her former husband. Each of the combatants fired five shots, the woman, though wounded three, killing her assailant with the last shot, which passed through his head.

The street and the bridge over the Aar were crowded with people at the time of the duel, and it is a wonder that no one else was shot by the flying bullets.

The woman, who was seriously, though not mortally wounded, was taken to a hospital, where a bullet was successfully extracted. The other wounds are slight, and Mme. Remonda will recover.

As she acted in self-defence, she is not likely to be arrested.

MOIR SAID TO BE PLANNING ANOTHER ESCAPE

London, Ont., Oct. 6.—Chief of Police McWilliams states that Sergeant Moir, the insane murderer, who escaped recently from Hamilton asylum and was captured near Niagara Falls, is planning another escape, and says the authorities will do well to watch him closely. The chief will not state what information he has, but Moir will get away again unless guarded closely, he declares.

VIOLATED THE GOLD PLATE MARKING ACT.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—Sydney H. Lee, of the firm of T. H. Lee & Co., Ltd., was committed for trial on $200 bail by Magistrate Denison this morning for an alleged violation of the gold and silver plate marking act. Mr. Lee admitted having sold five American gold filled watches, each accompanied by a guarantee that they would wear for 25 years. The guarantee is the part to which Mr. John Jennings, of the Dominion Government, objected, as being a breach of the act.

NEW YORK HIGHLANDERS AND GIANTS TO PLAY.

New York, Oct. 6.—President F. J. Farrell, of the New York American League team, to-night made an official announcement of the games to be played in the city by the Highlanders and the Giants for the championship of Manhattan. This series is to be played daily until one team has won four contests. The schedule arranged and approved by the National Commission follows:—Thursday, October 13, at Polo Grounds; Friday, October 14, at American League Park; Saturday, October 15, at 2.15 p.m., at Polo Grounds; Monday, Oct. 17, at American League Park; Tuesday, Oct. 18, at Polo Grounds; Wednesday, Oct. 19, at American League Park. Should a seventh game be necessary the place and date will be decided by the toss of a coin.

CONVICTION UNDER THE MILLER GAMBLING BILL.

Toronto, Oct. 6.—"This is not news, it is just trash of interest to nobody who reads the papers, except those who bet on horse races," said Police Magistrate Col. Denison to-day as he entered a conviction under the Miller gambling bill against Mr. Geo. Hogarth, local manager of the G. N. W. Telegraph Co., for sending out betting information. The conviction is to be appealed. Col. Denison consented to grant a stated case for the higher courts. The telegrams sent out were from Dufferin Park track to two Toronto evening papers and to the Buffalo Evening News and gave the results of the races, the names of the jockeys, and the starting price odds of the first, second and third horses.

CURLERS ARE NOW GETTING BUSY.

The curling season is now coming within easy distance, and the followers of the "roarin' game" are beginning to brace themselves for a most interesting series of games during the coming winter. The Quebec Curling Club, which is the pioneer of the game in the Ancient Capital, is the first of the local clubs to hold their annual meeting, and full attendance of the members will no doubt be in attendance on Tuesday evening next, the 11th instant, when the annual general meeting will be held at the Chateau Frontenac.

BATTING STAR WORLD'S SERIES

Chicago Thinks Zimmerman Will Shine in Place of Johnny Evers.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Heine Zimmerman, utility man of the champion Cubs, will have a chance to carve his name in the hall of baseball fame along with such elegant pastimers as George Rohe, Babe Adams, et al. Every world's series has produced its pitching, fielding or batting terror, and the appearance of Zim, caused by the deplorable accident to Johnny Evers, will give thousands of fans fresh food for reflection. The Bronx boy may or may not be the lion of 'em all when the decks are cleared, but such a wise judge of playing talent as the peerless Evers is free to tour his protegee the coming twinkler of the Cubs-Athletics clash.

When hitting of the free, straight-away and clean-up style is considered the big German belongs at the top of the heap. That Zim can hammer thoe ball is a matter of history. His all-round ability on third base also has stamped him a possible guardian of the far corner next season or the year after. He has exhibited intermittent flashes of brilliancy while substituting for Joe Tinker in the short field, and his play at second, considering the few games he has played in Evers' place, brands him a capable understudy.

But how will our friend Heine behave when put to the test before thousands of wild-eyed rooters, especially on foreign fields? That's the all-consuming riddle to be answered only by the flight of time.

Including the game of yesterday Zimmie has participated in 79 battles since the curtain ascended at Cincinnati April 14, inaugurating the 1910 pennant race. He has gone to bat 294 times for a record of 85 hits and a total of 116 bases, scored 32 runs and otherwise filled the bill to the highest stage of perfection.

All pitchers look alike to Zim, but he fairly dotes on the opposing flingers who featured fast ball while toiling on the knoll. It's his ability that makes Heine of the greatest value to the West Side machine, according to veterans of the club. In fact, Evers, speaking from his cot in the West Side Hospital, yesterday, predicted Heine would be of greater value to the team against the style of pitching served by Mack's fingers than John himself.

According to statistics the big German has played 23 games at second base, accepting 100 chances, with 8 errors to mar his record. He has covered third base, vice the veteran Steinfield, in 13 games, accepting 86 chances, with but one miscue. At shortstop, however, Zimmerman has a record marked by several mistakes, most of which beat the Cubs out of important contests. One hundred and thirty-four chances have travelled his way while filling in for Joe Tinker and of this lot Zim has a few.

Kidney Poisons in the Blood

The Cause of Widespread Ill-Health. How To Tell Whether Your Blood is Impregnated.

Of all the ills humanity is heir to, nothing is more to be feared than those caused by kidney poisoning, because such ailments invariably come on so stealthily that you are seldom aware of their presence until they have actually spread dangerous disease throughout the body.

There are, however, certain signs by which you can tell whether your kidneys are properly filtering your blood, or whether, through some hereditary weakness, chill or strain they are falling in their duty and allowing these irritant poisons to pass unrestricted into the system.

Unmistakable Symptoms

"If you rise in the morning with dull, aching pains at the bottom of your back and feeling as though your night's rest has not refreshed you; if you are weak, depressed, nervous or irritable; if your headaches, spots appear before your eyes or noises ring in your ears; if your appetite is poor, your thirst excessive, your urine scanty and your complexion sallow, if you have indigestion, bilious bouts, rheumatic pains, and have lost flesh rapidly—if you have one or any of these symptoms you may be sure kidney poisons exist in your blood, and you cannot possibly get well until they are removed.

The Essential Remedy

Nothing else can do you so much good, nothing can cure you half so quick as Warner's Safe Cure. It has a steady yet perceptible relief almost immediately.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

The World's Best Remedy for the Kidneys, Liver, Bladder and Blood not only removes the early symptoms of kidney poisoning, but it is a wonderful remedy for advanced stages of Kidney disease, Dropsy, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Stone, Urinary Disorders, Bright's Disease, etc., as the hundreds of testimonials we have received conclusively prove. It is put up in 50c. and $1.00 sizes and sold by all druggists.

Constipation and Biliousness

WARNER'S SAFE PILLS for Constipation and Biliousness, purely vegetable, sugar-coated, absolutely free from injurious substances, are a perfect laxative. They do not gripe or leave any bad after effects. 25 cents a box.

Sample Bottle and To convince every sufferer from diseases of the kidneys and liver, that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will absolutely cure, a sample bottle and also a sample box of the pills will be sent FREE OF CHARGE, postpaid to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Toronto, Ont., and mention having seen this liberal offer in The Quebec Chronicle. The genuineness of this offer is fully guaranteed by the publisher.

They are a positive cure for all the little ills of childhood and can be given to the new born baby with perfect safety. Windver, Rockcroft, Ont., writes: "I would not be without Baby's Own Tablets. My baby was small and delicate and never grew till I began giving her the Tablets. She is nine months old now and thanks to the Tablets, is well, fat and rosy. I will certainly recommend them whenever I get the opportunity."

The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ENGAGED TO FORTY WOMEN

Sham Marquis Sends a Circular Announcing His Death—Fortune by Forgery.

London, Oct. 7.—A man named Marullo, employed in the Rome Post Office, has been arrested for swindling many women and shopkeepers out of large quantities of jewellery, motor-cars, and other objects of value.

One of his tricks was to buy money orders for an insignificant sum and alter the humble four or ten francs which they bore into four thousand or ten thousand, as the case required. The forgeries were so clever that the orders were always cashed at the post offices without hesitation.

When an Italian adopts swindling as a profession he does it with an artistic finish, and we may add, a sense of humor that is lacking in the nations of the North (says the Standard Rome correspondent). This Marullo, who is the son of a humble but honest man who had fought under Garibaldi in the War of Independence, had presented himself with the title of marquis, and frequently traveled in great style, spending money freely.

It now appears that one of his ingenious achievements in order to obtain money was to answer the matrimonial advertisements which appear in most Italian newspapers, entering into correspondence with forty or fifty ladies of various nationalities, to whom he represented himself as answering all the requirements which they desired in a husband.

When he had thus become numerous engaged he borrowed a little money and started on a tour of Italy, Germany, and France, in order to visit his various fiancées and arrange the details of their marriage.

Needless to say that from each fiancée he carried away something, either in valuable presents, or money to invest, or for the furnishing of their future home.

He then returned to his native Sicily, leaving the brides-elect to prepare their trousseaux; but shortly afterwards they were one and all plunged into the depths of woe by receiving a printed notice, supposed to be from the father of their fiancée, announcing the sad news of the sudden death of his son, who was thus unfortunately prevented from fulfilling his matrimonial engagement.

The accumulation of cases of fraud against this ingenious swindler seems to be so great that he will doubtless be prevented for many years to come from exercising his undoubted talents upon a too-confiding public.

FROM SOLDIER TO ARCHBISHOP

Death of Dr. Maclagan of York, Who Made History by Resigning.

London, Oct. 7.—Dr. Maclagan, who resigned the Archbishopric of York in 1905, and who died some days ago, of pneumonia, was aged eighty-four. His wife, son and daughter were present at the end.

The life of the dead divine had in it a considerable element of romance, since he was a soldier before he joined the Church. He leaves behind him the reputation of having been one of the most capable organizers of the English Church. It was, indeed, due to his singular gift of organization that high preferment came to him, for he was neither distinguished as a scholar nor pre-eminent as a preacher.

He was born in Edinburgh on June 18, 1826. The day of his birth was not only the anniversary of Waterloo, but it also happened to be a Sunday. The soldier servant of his father (an Army surgeon) declared that as he was born on such a great day a soldier he ought to be; but his Scottish nurse contended that as it was the Lord's Sabbath, it was a "meenster" that he should become.

The infant eventually became both. He entered the Army at the age of twenty-one and served in the Presidency of Madras for two years, when a serious illness drove him home and ultimately led him to resign his lieutenant's commission and study for the Church. In 1856 he became curate of St. Saviour's, Paddington. He was appointed rector of Newington in 1859, vicar of Kensington in 1875, and Bishop of Lichfield in 1878.

In 1891 Lord Salisbury made Dr. Maclagan Archbishop of York. He was then sixty-six years old. But the new archbishop, with the energy and thoroughness which always characterized him, visited every parish in the York diocese, a task which occupied the greater part of his time for three years. It was said that he went to parishes where no archbishop had ever been before.

Dr. Maclagan is said to be the only archbishop who ever resigned. He took that course in preference to retaining a position the duties of which he felt no longer able to discharge on account of his age.

At the last Coronation he exercised the privilege of the Archbishop of York to crown the King's consort.

Dr. Maclagan was fond of telling a story of an adventure he once met with. "Travelling one day in a third-class compartment I found myself in company with two drunken men. One of them complained that he had been robbed of a £5 note and was determined to search the pockets of his fellow-passengers. I began to feel very uncomfortable, as I had a £5 note in my pocket. However, I determined to sit quietly and feign sleep.

"Presently came the challenge, 'I say, neighbour!' but I made no answer. Then the man grabbed me by the arm and shook me violently, but I did not wake up. He kept on shaking me, but still I remained impassive. Then his friend interposed with, 'I say, Bill, leave him alone, can't yer! He's drunker'n you are!'"

WOMAN'S HEALTH WHEN FORTY-FIVE

A Critical Period When Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are a Real Blessing.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are absolutely the finest medicine that ever a woman took. At special periods a woman needs a medicine to regulate her blood supply or her life will be a round of pain and suffering. It is at such times that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are worth their weight in gold, for they make new, rich blood, that banishes the secret symptoms of distress that only women and growing girls know. They strengthen every vital organ for its special task, and bring rosy cheeks and shapely forms that tell of womanly health and happiness.

Mrs. Richard Lohb, Red Deer, Alta., says: "At that critical period in my life known as the change I suffered so much that I hardly hoped to pull through. I doctored for months, but did not get any relief, and I grew so weak that I could hardly walk about, and it was impossible for me to do my housework. Only women who have suffered similarly can tell how much I endured—the constant misery, the dragged-out feeling and the terrible backaches that beset me. No woman could have been in a more wretched condition than I was at this time, and it was then that my attention was directed to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got a half dozen boxes and before they were all gone there was a good improvement in my condition. Then I got six more boxes and before I had used them all I felt like a new woman and was enjoying better health than I had done for years. Not only have Dr. Williams' Pink Pills proved a blessing to me, but they also worked a great change in the case of my daughter, who was in a very miserable condition after childbirth. I know also of two young girls whom I believe would have been in their graves now but for the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Considering what they have done for me and what I have seen them do for others, I am justified in my enthusiasm for this medicine and I never lose an opportunity to recommend it."

DR. FRED. COOK TURNS UP AGAIN

New York World Claims to Have Discovered the North Pole Man in London.

The New York World correspondent asserts that he has found Dr. Fred Cook, the alleged "monumental faker," in a dingy office room in the West End of London. According to the World the doctor made some amazing revelations as regards his flight from civilization and his subsequent life.

In brief, says the World, he left New York November 25, 1909, for Toronto, thence to Halifax, thence to Liverpool, thence to Gibraltar, thence to Tangier, Morocco, thence to Portugal, and from Lisbon to Buenos Ayres; then around the Horn to Valparaiso, Chili; then across the South American continent by horseback and stage over the lordly Andes Mountains and back to Buenos Ayres, and from there to Liverpool and London. He has made his headquarters in the English capital since last May, taking occasional jaunts to the Continent. Most of the time he had his wife for companion. His children are in European schools.

In all this time of flight and concealment he used but three methods of personal disguise. When he went away he shaved off his moustache. When he stood before the World correspondent he wore a moustache and a beard—the beard cut Van Dyke and grizzled at the sides; the moustache, instead of being closely cropped, as all photographs of him show he used to wear it, has been allowed to grow long, with flowing ends drooping on either side of the sharply pointed beard.

He has changed also the fashion of weazing his hair. Formerly it was parted on the side and combed with a broad sweep over his forehead. Now it is more closely clipped and brushed forward, forming a sort of bang over his forehead, making his forehead appear low and narrow, instead of high and broad.

One of Dr. Cook's most surprising assertions is that for the most part he travelled openly under his own name, the only effort at concealment being that he would register with his initials, "F. A. Cook," instead of "Frederick A. Cook," as in the heyday of his fame.

But more surprising is the fact—which the World correspondent had opportunity to observe for himself—that Dr. Cook has been living openly in London with an apartment in a Westminster hotel, where there are many other Americans; riding in open carriages through crowded streets where thousands of other Americans daily walk and drive. This, he asserts, he has been doing since he arrived in London last May.

But more surprising even than that, Dr. Cook declares that when Peary was in London last spring, the hunted, hiding and denounced Cook, occupied a seat in Albert Hall when Peary, his rival and excoriator, lectured before the Royal Geographical Society.

"I stood twenty yards from Peary at the time," chuckled Dr. Cook, "and none recognized me."

Moreover, he says he occupied a seat among hundreds of other Americans on one of the grandstands watching the pageant of King Edward's funeral, and none knew him. And time and again he sat in trains, on ships, in dining rooms, in theatres and heard himself discussed—ridiculed, admired for nerve and craft, denounced and defended.

"When I say I told nobody of my departure from America," said the North Pole claimant to the World man, "I have omitted my wife. She knew. Within a few days of my departure from New York my wife sailed for Naples. From there she made her way to Gibraltar, and it was there, in the shadow of the big rock, that we met just before Christmas, 1909."

"We travelled five days in Spain," he continued, "and then visited Tangier, in Morocco, enjoying ourselves immensely. From Morocco we took ship to Lisbon, and from Portugal we sailed for the River Platte, visiting Montevideo and Buenos Ayres. From that city we sailed around Cape Horn to Valparaiso, Chili."

Dr. Cook still says that he will "come back" to refute his critics. Evidently he is going to put his travels into book form. Will they rank with the history of the martyr Dreyfus or the immortal biography of that gorgeous liar, Benvenuto Cellini, or Rougemont.

"My friends, however," he said, "must trust me a few weeks longer. I will not betray their confidence. The North Pole was discovered exactly when I said it was—April 23, 1908."

"I see that in Peary's story—among other things which I will deal with at the proper time—he says he returned to his ship only four days after Bartlett's return from the point fifteen miles south of the 88th degree latitude—that is about 135 miles from the Pole.

"Can it be believed," demanded Cook, "that Peary, with his negro associate, Henson, could have travelled north 135 miles over an unbroken trail and south 135 miles, making 270 miles in four days, less the time spent in observations? Why, he could not have done it without an aeroplane.

"That is a very striking point: for Peary, you know, has only one toe on each foot—the little toe. He hobbles on the march. Bartlett, on the other hand, is much younger and has

PEAT RESOURCES OF DOMINION

Settlement of Indian Land Titles in British Columbia Advocated to Avoid Rebellion.

Ottawa, Oct. 6.—The results of the further examination into the peat resources of Canada, and particularly Ontario, made during the season of 1909-10, are contained in a report just issued by the mines branch of the Department of Mines. The bogs examined, their situation and extent, are as follows:—Bruncer Bog, 8 miles west of Stratford, Ont., in Perth County, 2,288 acres total area; Kamaka Bog, 12 miles from London, Ont., Middlesex County, 900 acres; Brockville Bog, 3 miles from Brockville, Ont., in Elizabeth township, 1,400 acres; Rondeau Bog, on the shore of Lake Erie, 6 miles from Bleinheim, Ont., 1,571 acres. A report is also made on the work done at the Government peat bog at Alfred, Ont., while the Dorchester, Ont., and Farnham, Que., peat plants are referred to.

Title to Indian Lands.

The Moral and Social Reform Association to-day interviewed the Government asking that the dispute as to the title of Indian lands in British Columbia be settled at once to guard against open rebellion. The Indians claim their rights are being invaded by white people and that the British Columbia Government denies their titles. Consideration was promised. The deputation also asked for a more definite marriage law for the Indians.

Jewellers Ask Protection.

A deputation consisting of W. K. McNaught, Walter Barrand, E. T. Trower, of Toronto, and Colonel Stewart, Montreal, representing the jewellery manufacturers, asked the Government to-day for amendments to the gold and silver marks act to prevent importation of falsely marked goods. Consideration will be given the matter.

Premier A. L. Sifton, of Alberta, arrived in Ottawa this morning and saw Sir Wilfrid Laurier in regard to purchase of some Federal buildings the Province is taking over. It is believed that the matter of Premier Sifton's ultimate succession to Hon. Frank Oliver as Minister of the Interior will also be discussed.

SURGEON FINDS WAY TO MAKE JOINTS.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 6.—Dr. J. B. Murphy, President of the American Medical Association, is on the eve of an announcement of what physicians say is one of the most important discoveries in the history of surgery. The discovery is twofold in character and is to the effect that ankylosis or stiffening of the joints, from any cause except tuberculosis is preventable and that where joints have become stiffened through inflammation, they may be cut open and new pliable joints made.

The new method of treatment of acute joint inflammations is destined, it is stated, to relieve mankind from a most acute and dreaded form of suffering and from permanently crippled conditions that usually result from acute inflammation of the joints.

For more than two hours to-day Dr. Murphy held the close attention of a gathering of Erie Railroad surgeons while he gave them the details of his eight years of study and research into the subject. His talk was illustrated with photographs of the result of the new method of treating inflamed joints and also illustrative of the remarkable cures that Dr. Murphy has accomplished where joints have been stiffened for periods as long as eighteen years. In one case a man who had been suffering from a stiff hip joint for many years permitted Dr. Murphy to sew out a new joint for him and he has recently been spending from ten to twelve hours in the saddle on a Western ranch.

Two of the most common causes of ankylosis are said to be rheumatism and grip. In many such cases Dr. Murphy has been successful in relieving the sufferers and giving them new joints after the old style treatment had failed to effect a cure.

Another discovery of perhaps a secondary nature, but still important from the point of suffering humanity, was given to the Erie surgeons in the statement that the "Collis fracture" of the wrist should never result in ankylosis or crookedness, as now frequently happens. By the aid of another physician Dr. Murphy illustrated the proper method of setting the "Collis fracture," a matter totally different from that now in vogue. The surgeon made the remarkable announcement that, after having such a fracture set, his patients were told to go home and use their knives and forks on the very day of the injury.

LADY GROSVENOR AS A GIPSY

Exhibits Caravan to Visitors to a Church Bazaar—Demonstrates Simple Life.

London, Oct. 7.—Lady Arthur Grosvenor, with her travelling caravan, was the great attraction at an open-air church bazaar at Flookersbrook, Chester.

The bazaar took the form of a gipsy encampment on the greensward. With the sun shining brightly, the primitive camp tents, and the dark-grey Roman women, with their gaudy kerchiefs and shining earrings, made a picturesque spectacle.

But the hundreds of spectators had eyes for little except the caravan of "Sycira Lee," licensed hawker, Broxton, Chester. In front of her caravan—a vehicle of conventional design, its exterior painted in green with touches of red; and a white roof with chimney funnel—stood "Sycira Lee" herself, otherwise Lady Arthur Grosvenor. She dressed in a neat myrtle green blouse with sailor collar, a tight-fitting dark red skirt, brown velvet slouch hat, and white silk neckerchief.

Lady Arthur is a great traveller on the road in her caravan. Accompanied by another van containing a real woman and his wife, the former a stalwart in shirtsleeves and the lady in plaid blouse, black hat and skirt, and white apron, she has spent some delightful holidays. This year, when accompanied part of the time by Lord Arthur and their children, she had a thirteen weeks' tour, covering nine hundred miles, and embracing some of the finest south country scenery, including the Berkshire and Hampshire downs.

On tour Lady Arthur lives up to her assumed character. She does a regular trade in wickerwork baskets and pegs, and greatly enjoys the frequent humorous situations caused by her concealed identity.

For the modest sum of twopence a head Lady Arthur graciously allowed an inspection of her travelling abode, she herself acting as guide. The van is divided into two compartments—a sleeping chamber and living room. It is delightfully cosy and perfectly equipped.

Lady Arthur showed how she led the simple life, doing all her own cooking, washing her own utensils, and even polishing her own bright and burnished brass fireplace. All the afternoon the caravan was besieged by eager crowds of women, and Lady Arthur reaped a fine harvest of twopences.

With "Sycira Lee" were her two little daughters in red—Barbara and Izel Grosvenor. At a table in front of their mother's caravan they did a roaring business selling wickerwork baskets.

CORELLI DEPICTS END OF THE WORLD.

London, Oct. 6.—Marie Corelli has written another book, and the matter is as sulphurous as the title, which is "The Devil's Motor." It was issued yesterday and will certainly create a sensation.

Primarily the book describes the adventures of the devil at the wheel of what appears to be a combination aeroplane and automobile, and through it all runs the apocalyptic vision of the end of the world, according to Corelli.

As described by the author of "Wormwood" and "The Romance of Two Worlds," the devil's motor rushes forth, while in its train go all the forces that are destined to ruin mankind. When the time of this diabolic ride occurs the world is one vast network of cities and factories. All the solitudes of the earth have gone.

"There will be no virtue," says Miss Corelli in a prose which just escapes being blank verse. "Honor shall be as a rag on a fool's back. Gold will be the pulse of life."

"The people of the world," exclaims the exulting devil, "will fight for gold, steal it, pile it up, count it, hug it, sleep with it, die with it, sell their souls and bodies for it. God has sworn to give unto me all those who reject Him, and the hour for gathering up this gift has come."

Corelli then pictures the morphia fiends, the maniac anarchists, the courtesans and plotters against peace to whom the world shall shortly be surrendered. When the full agony has been piled up the novelist pictures the devil's motor as plunging over a precipice into a bottomless abyss of the Unseen and the Unknown. Then the sun rises slowly, setting the seal of God on the closed history of the world.

VICAR DECLINES TO PUBLISH BANNS

Says That Unbaptized Persons Should Be Without Benefit of Clergy.

London, Oct. 7.—An East Dulwich vicar has refused to publish the banns for a young woman of his parish. She has no Christian name, he says. The clergy are forbidden to bury persons without Christian names, so why, he asks, should he be expected to marry one. "You see, I am a Christian priest first of all," he points out, "and after that a state official only incidentally."

The vicar, the Rev. H. E. Jennings, is the incumbent of St. Clement's, and is taking a stand in his firm persuasion that a clergyman of the Established Church is not bound to publish the banns of marriage when desired so to do by one of his parishioners. The young woman who proposes to marry is Miss Ethel Kingham, of Hindmans road, and the bridegroom-elect lives at Margate.

Miss Kingham is a churchwoman and a regular attendant at a church in Denmark Hill, but when she communicated with the vicar of her own parish, Mr. Jennings, he inquired if she had been baptized. She had not, and the vicar then declined to publish the banns unless she were first baptized.

It would seem that Miss Kingham was astonished at this decision, and called at the house of the Bishop of Southwark, where she was informed by the bishop's chaplain that the vicar was bound to give the required notices. But Mr. Jennings would not. Instead, he and the district visitor suggested to the would-be bride that she had a personal responsibility as a churchgoer and tried to induce her to accept baptism.

Mrs. Kingham says the vicar at one of these interviews told her daughter that she had "no Christian name" by which he could announce her banns, but he offered to read out that the daughter of So-and-So, of that address, desired to be married. The discussion ended in the following letter, which was received by Miss Kingham:

"After your last word to me I could not publish your banns to-night, but, as I told you, I should be very grieved to interfere with the date of your wedding. If you will reconsider your answer to my appeal that you should be baptized before your marriage, I shall be glad to provide you with the arch-bishop's license—i.e., pay the cost of it. Believe me, yours very faithfully,
H. E. JENNINGS."

Mr. Jennings is well known at East Dulwich. He holds the post of lecturer at St. Mary Aldermary, in the City, and is a member of the Camberwell, Borough Council and chaplain at the Forest Hill Cemetery.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

Offers For Sale Lots in First Subdivision to the Original Townsite of

Watrous

The geographical centre of the great and growing Canadian West—The centre of the finest farming section in all Saskatchewan—The most attractive town of this new Golden Empire—The Central and Principal Divisional Point on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway—The natural point from which the Hudson's Bay Railway will be built to Port Nelson or Fort Churchill—In direct line between Regina and Prince Albert, and will be on line of railway when built between these two cities—The terminus of the branch line of the Grand Trunk Pacific to Prince Albert.

GOOD WATER

The City Council has just voted to largely increase the water supply. Indications are that from two to five hundred houses will be built between now and the first of June, 1911, and the progress is everywhere apparent. For manufacturing purposes, a plentiful supply of water can be brought in at small expense from a spring-fed lake of pure water five miles to the east. Excellent drinking water is obtained from wells at a depth of thirty feet. Watrous has plenty of good water.

A Hundred Dollars

A hundred houses have been built in Watrous this year. The Tourist Hotel has bought the lot adjoining its present site, and will add thirty rooms to its accommodations as soon as a wing can be built. This house is packed constantly now. Manitou Hotel is situated in the same way, and has also reserved another lot to build on. Every train brings people to Watrous—some to look over the ground and make their plans, others to settle and stay—to establish in business and grow with the city. Houses and store buildings are under construction on every hand. No one who lives in Watrous has any doubt as to its future. The buildings erected would be a credit to any city; the Hotels are well appointed and commodious and plentiful stocks of merchandise are carried in the stores.

An Empire in the Building

An Empire is being built in the West greater than the most enthusiastic ever dreamed of. Unequalled railroad facilities are being supplied. Towns and cities are showing magic growth. Population is increasing. Agricultural resources are being wonderfully developed. Hon. Sydney Fisher says that this Great West will in a decade be producing a billion bushels of wheat annually. This Great Western Empire will have a population of thirty millions in a few years.

A Hundred Millions Were Made Last Year

By those who own property in the Live and Growing Cities of Western Canada.

WHAT PORTION OF THIS DID YOU MAKE?

From the most accurate figures obtainable, it is found that the assessed valuation of real estate in the live and growing cities of Western Canada last year increased more than $100,000,000. This does not include improvements, but the actual increase in value of real estate in these cities. The Winnipeg Free Press, securing its figures from "records which have been gathered directly from original sources," finds that in eight Western Canadian cities the increase in real estate values of land alone, and not improvements, for the past five years, has averaged 562 per cent, or an average annual increase of 112 per cent, for each of these cities during the past five years.

WHAT DO THESE FIGURES INDICATE? They indicate that an investment in the live and growing cities of Western Canada is as safe and sure as anything can be, and that your investment is almost certain to make you 100 per cent profit each year.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO YOU? It means nothing unless you participate in the profits, and you can do this only by buying real estate in these young and vigorous Western Canadian cities. The time to buy is when a new city has passed through the "seasoning" stage—when it is in the formative period—when its natural resources and strategic position assure the building of a big city along broad lines.

You cannot secure these profits in the older towns—the cities which have sprung up along the older railways. It takes capital to handle real estate in these older cities. But along the line of the new Grand Trunk passenger service has only recently started; values have not had time to boom. A comparatively few dollars will do the work here, and every dollar invested in Watrous to-day should multiply itself many times before 1915—even before 1912. Some of the lots of Watrous are already selling at ten to twenty times their cost only two years ago.

If you failed to get in on the money that was made in other Grand Trunk Pacific cities—such as Port Arthur, Fort William, Saskatoon, Prince Albert, Edmonton, Prince Rupert, or in others which might be named—there is your chance now to get in right on Watrous. The same spirit of co-operation which has been extended by the Grand Trunk Pacific to these other cities which have made good will be extended to Watrous. Watrous is destined to become the inland Prince Rupert of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Suppose you had purchased a few years ago lots close in at $100 in any of the Western Divisional Points in the C. P. R., your investment would have been safe and certain right from the start, and it would have been constantly and rapidly increasing in value.

Note the Divisional Points on the main line of the C.P.R. running west from Winnipeg—Brandon, Moose Jaw, Swift Current, Calgary, Medicine Hat, Revelstoke. If you had purchased lots in any one or all of those Divisional Points, when conditions were similar to those in Watrous to-day—when these young cities were about two years old, had a population of 1,500, and choice inside lots could be purchased at $100 each—there could be no doubt about the wisdom of your investment, which would likely be worth to-day not less than $70 for each dollar invested. This opportunity, however, was presented a few years ago, but is now a thing of the past.

You now have the same opportunity in Watrous that was presented in these Divisional Point cities on the C.P.R. The Grand Trunk Pacific is the latest and destined to become the greatest of all the Transcontinental lines. Traversing as it does a great and rich territory, there can be no doubt that the Divisional Points on the Grand Trunk Pacific will in a few years be cities of equal size and importance with those on the C.P.R.

An investment in real estate in Watrous offers a splendid opportunity for large and certain profits. And no line of investment during the last few years has been so safe and shown greater returns than an investment in lots in the rapidly-growing cities of Western Canada.

History DOES repeat itself, and it is usually safe to judge the future by the past. Being a Divisional Point on a great line of railway is usually alone sufficient to make a city of considerable importance, but Watrous, on account of its natural advantages and strategic position, would be an important inland city even if it were not a Divisional Point.

Electric Light and Trolley Line

Two different companies have applied to the City Council of Watrous to secure a franchise to build an electric light and power plant, and also to build an electric street railway line from the G. T. P. station at Watrous to Little Manitou Lake. Both of these companies express a willingness to begin construction work immediately on receiving the franchise for this purpose.

Watrous is booming. The growth is a natural, healthy one. Everything indicates that Watrous in the near future is to become an important city. The residents of Watrous are thoroughly alive to the situation, and are buying all the property they can carry. Our representative in Watrous is selling more lots in our G.T.P. subdivision than any of our other agents. This point is significant, and shows that those who are on the ground and know our property are the best buyers.

Our Addition

ADJOINS THE TOWNSITE AND IS ALREADY PART OF THE CITY.

Watrous is rapidly building toward Little Manitou Lake. The subdivision which we are now selling lies immediately to the north of the original townsite of Watrous and is but seven blocks from the Grand Trunk Pacific station and but four blocks from the present heart of the city. It should be remembered also that there are and will be no building operations south of the station for some years to come, as all of this property is owned and reserved by the G.T.P. Even if this were not the case, however, it would be entirely logical to suppose that the town would build toward Little Manitou Lake. In three years from now the lots which we are offering to-day will be right in the heart of the city.

As a matter of fact, this addition which we are selling is legitimately a part of the original townsite, which would naturally run from the railway track to the townsite line. In registering the plan of Watrous, however, the tract was divided, because if the whole of it had been registered two years ago, it would have been immediately subject to taxation as lot property. The Grand Trunk Pacific has waited until the town actually needed this room in which to expand, and a large number of lots have been snapped up by Watrous people who are waiting for the land to be put on the market.

Buy at the Bottom

In Watrous, now, prices are at the bottom—the town is just fairly getting started. But prices will soon be as high in Watrous as they are in Moose Jaw, Regina and other Western Cities. Buy now at the bottom and get the benefit of all these advances.

Lots in Watrous Selling Rapidly

Orders have been pouring into our office at a rapid rate, both by mail and by telegraph. We have a number of splendid locations still open at $100 per lot, and some excellent corners at $125. All of these lots are in the first addition to the original Townsite of Watrous.

It should be remembered that the magnet toward which the town is building—Little Manitou Lake—lies but two and a half miles north of Watrous, so that our G.T.P. subdivision is right in line of growth of the city.

The land is all open, clear and smooth, so you cannot get a bad location. The lots are very sightly and splendidly located.

Buy Lots in Watrous and Make Money

The more lots you buy in Watrous, the more money you make. It is impossible to purchase lots in a live and growing young city of Western Canada and not make splendid and certain profits.

Lots in Moose Jaw that sold a few years ago at $100 each are to-day worth from $1,000 to $3,000.

Lethbridge a few years ago was a small frontier town. Lots in Lethbridge now command fancy prices; $10,000 to $12,000 is sometimes paid for a single lot.

Lots which sold in Saskatoon ten years ago for $100 are to-day worth ten to fifty times that amount.

You could have purchased lots in Edmonton ten years ago for $100 each, which are to-day worth $1,000 to $10,000.

Those who purchase lots in Edmonton ten years ago are now possessors of property worth 1,000 per cent. more than the price at which it was originally purchased—an average increase in value of 100 per cent. each year.

In Fort William the same rapid advance in values has taken place. Lots which sold at $100 to $200 each, even five years ago, have since sold for $1,000 to $2,000.

It is almost impossible to chronicle the rapid advance in property in Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, Vancouver and other cities of Western Canada.

Buy lots in Watrous now while they are selling at the ground floor prices, and hold them, and you are certain to make money. Buy a-half dozen or more lots, and ride with the waves of advancing values; $10 for every dollar you invest is common in live towns of Western Canada.

Think what it means for the population of Canada to increase from six millions to thirty millions, and 80 per cent. of this growth will be in the West. There is no use living in a day of land and opportunity unless you are part of it. You doubtless have among your friends and acquaintances those who have shown their faith in Canada and the Canadian cities, and have become rich because they invested when these cities were young.

Buy lots and prosper with Canada. Buy in Watrous, and as Watrous grows the money you put into it will grow just as surely and certainly. Invest your money where the greatest activity is taking place, in the centre of rapid growth, where the greatest advances are realized. This centre is undoubtedly in Western Canada, and Watrous is the pivotal point. You are taking no chances when you buy lots in Watrous at present prices. The future of Watrous is assured.

Telegraph Your Order at Our Expense.

On account of the rapidity with which lots are selling, we advise that you let us make the selection for you, and we propose that we will give you the best available remaining lots at the time your order is received. That we may make the best selection for you, we advise that you telegraph at our expense the number of lots you wish, and the prices you desire to pay, and let your remittance follow by return mail.

Prices of lots, six corners last, are $100, and corner lots $125. You can buy a $100 lot by paying $10 down and $10 a month; $125 cash and $12.50 a month for nine months buys a corner lot at $125. If you want to pay all cash you may deduct five per cent. discount.

Make remittance payable to the order of and send direct to the Land Commissioner of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, Somerset Building, Winnipeg. Receipts for payments made will be issued direct by the Land Commissioner of the Railway Company, and when you have completed your payments, Torrens Title will be issued to you direct from the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

If the selection of lots made for you by our representative is not satisfactory, all you need do is to notify us to that effect, and the money which you have paid to the Grand Trunk Pacific will be refunded to you.

Remember, there is no interest charged on deferred payments in case you desire to purchase on the installment plan, and you do not have any taxes to pay until 1912.

The more lots you buy in Watrous the more money you will make. How many lots do you wish? Fill out the blank in the lower right-hand corner of this advertisement to-day for the number of lots you wish to purchase. Let your remittance follow by first mail, but wire us at once your reservation for the number of lots desired.

Declares That a Measure as in Canada Would Be Beneficial to All.

"The fact that England trusted Canada and granted her autonomous government has converted the restlessness and ill-feeling of former days to a deep and abiding loyalty among all Canadians to the Motherland. Let England trust the Irish people as she has trusted Canadians; let her appeal to the hearts of the Irish and there will be a like glorious response. All Ireland asks is full and equal justice; the right to manage her own affairs just as we in Canada manage our affairs. It is to me the only dark spot in British Government to-day that Ireland is not given the right of local self-government. Let that be granted, as it has been done in Canada and in South Africa, and I am sure there will follow among the Irish people an abiding loyalty to the British Crown, content with British rule and adherence to imperial unity just as that result has followed the granting of autonomy to the people of Canada. Liberty spells loyalty."—Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Russell Theatre, Ottawa.

Hon. Mr. Taschereau's Declaration that the Tessier Banquet in Three Rivers.

If ministerial utterances amount to anything, and no doubt they do, the relic of a bygone age, the tollgate, will soon disappear from the province of Quebec. One of the important features of the dinner tendered to Mr. J. A. Tessier, M.L.A. for Three Rivers, was the unqualified announcement of the Minister of Public Works that the toll gate question both on road and bridge, would be settled at an early date, and as a settlement means abolition, it may be taken for granted that the official who levies tolls at so many crossings, in and around this city, will soon have to look for another kind of occupation. Of course the Hon. Mr. Taschereau did not tell his friends in Three Rivers how the toll gate question was to be settled, but as he announced that the Government had purchased a bridge in the district of Quebec for $100,000, it may be taken for granted that the Government will possess themselves in some way of these private rights, and the province will assume the amount of capital tied up in these interests.

 Before Leaving for West Investigated Manufacturing Conditions in Quebec.

After a very busy time in the Ancient Capital, His Excellency Earl Grey and party left Quebec on their return to Ottawa. Yesterday His Excellency paid a visit to Bishop's College, Lennoxville, where the degree of D.C.L. was conferred upon him. Today he will take part in a fox hunt with the Montreal Hunt Club in the metropolis. Prior to leaving Quebec Earl Grey paid a visit to the large factory of Mr. G. E. Amyot, in whose auto, after lunch, he travelled down to St. Roch. His Excellency made a minute inspection of the factory, and expressed himself as surprised with its capacity and the immense trade which it was doing, shipping its goods as far as Australia. His Excellency spoke highly of the cleanliness and comfort which Mr. Amyot has provided for the large number of young women in his employ, and stated that his visit to the factory was only a confirmation of the great manufacturing possibilities which Quebec possessed.

AUDITORIUM NEXT WEEK.
 Another big ten cent show will be presented at the Auditorium next week consisting of four of the latest reels of animated views and three first-class vaudeville numbers. Prof. Dodd and his talking dog will be one of the attractions that should appeal to all. A clever pair of comedy acrobats and a comedian of reputation complete a programme of the usual standard at the Auditorium. Get the Auditorium habit; it's contagious.

THE NICKEL THEATRE.
 My Dear Patrons,—This evening there is going to be one of the best amateur programmes we have ever given, judging by the number of contestants, and in consequence I would like like you to come early and miss no part of the programme. We have a big feature Biograph entitled "The Oath of the Man," then "A Kentucky Pioneer" which is a story of the revolution, will give you a pleasant surprise. "The Wrong Hat" is one good, long comedy scream. "Rio de Janeiro" is a most interesting scenic. I hope that you will visit us to-day and I assure you a real good, pleasant time. I'm going to Montreal to-night and on Monday I want you to come and see the results of my visit as I'm getting some more pictures for you.
 Yours very sincerely,

INSPECTION OF THE CHANNEL
 Hon. Mr. Brodeur, Minister of Marine, Makes His Annual Trip.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur made his annual inspection of the St. Lawrence, between Montreal and the Traverse, yesterday and Thursday. Leaving the latter city on board the Lady Grey on Thursday last, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries was accompanied by Mr. Alex Johnston, Deputy Minister of the Department, and Messrs. V. W. Forent, superintendent; Jas. Thorn, of the White Star Line; J. B. Brinrig, Manchester Line; W. A. Wainwright, Allan Line; M. A. McKenzie, Dominion Coal Co.; R. Ford, of the Thompson-Donaldson Line; D. V. Campbell, Elder-Dempster Line; M. Wright, representing the Montreal Board of Trade; A. F. Revy, president of the French Board of Trade; O. S. Perreault, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Montreal; M. Duff, C.P.R.; Thos. Robb, representing the Shipping Federation, and Mr. Cowie, engineer of the Montreal Harbor Commission.

The Lady Grey, owing to rain and fog, was detained overnight at Three Rivers, but arrived at the King's Wharf early yesterday morning and proceeded down the river about 9.30, when the following Quebecers joined the party: Mayor Drouin, Messrs. Ernest Roy, Geo. Parent and Jos. Turcotte, M.P.'s; W. M. Macpherson, Geo. Tanguay, G. A. Vandry, president of the Quebec Board of Trade; Guy Tombs, Raymond Lamontagne, T. Beland, H. S. McGreevy, L. C. Webster, J. B. Laliberte and representatives of the local press.

When the Lady Grey arrived opposite St. Thomas, Montmagny, the party boarded the government steamer Frontenac and were transferred to the government dredge Beaujeu No. 8, which is at present dredging the river opposite that town. The visitors appeared quite interested in the work done by the dredge and spent some time viewing the work.

When the party returned to the Lady Grey for the return trip luncheon was served on board, and after full justice had been rendered to the menu speeches were in order. "The King's Health" was proposed by Hon. Mr. Brodeur and duly acknowledged. Several toasts were then proposed and among the speakers were: Mayor Drouin, Messrs. Thom, Brinrig, Duff, Tombs, Vandry, Perreault, Wright, Revy, Tanguay and Cowie. The Lady Grey returned to port at 5 o'clock last evening.

WANTED TO KNOW MASONIC SECRETS
 So Says Harry Mather, Who Is Fighting His Wife's Suit for a Separation.
 New York, Oct. 9.—When Justice Maddox in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday ordered Harry B. Mather to pay his wife $60 counsel fee in a separation suit she has brought against him, it developed that the dulcet tone of his wife's voice while she was a "hello" girl was that which had first fascinated him. But, Mather says, shortly after marriage the sweet tune changed to one of discontent. He also denies her charge of cruelty.
 Mather met his wife in October, 1899, when he was secretary of the Columbia Theatre, Brooklyn. She was then at a local telephone exchange. They were married in 1906 and spent their honeymoon in Washington. While at the Capitol Mather avers his wife said to him: "Now, Harry, you know there shouldn't be any secrets between husband and wife; I want you to tell me all you know about the Masons and the terrible things they do. I really can't be happy unless you do."
 Mather declined to disclose the secrets and she asserts his wife tossed her head petulantly and said: "I know a Mason who will tell me." Mather says he boxed his wife's ears and left the room.
 Later they went to live with his parents and one week, instead of giving his wife his pay envelope immediately, Mather says he first paid their board and handed over the balance. He asserts his wife flew into a rage and said: "If I can't handle our money I know what I can do. I can go back to the New York Telephone Company any time I want to. That office is full of grass widows and women who have left their husbands."

HARRY LAUDER'S ANNOYANCE
 Favorite Singer Has to Reject Record Offer of Engagement.
 London, Oct. 7.—Mr. Harry Lauder, the ex-miner who is so frequently quoted as earning the salary of a Cabinet Minister by singing at the music halls, has a grievance.
 He has openly stated that he is not receiving a salary commensurate with his abilities, and yet, he says, he has just been obliged to decline an "unrivalled offer" made to him by a wealthy American and Australian music hall syndicate to tour the whole of the English-speaking world.
 To an interviewer in the week the comedian explained the circumstances as follows:—
 "I tried all I could to cancel my present contract," he said, "but the London management refuse to let me go unless I pay them all the money I am making. They want to leave me with about enough to buy a pipe of 'bacca, and a small one at that. So I'm afraid my friends on the other side of the Atlantic will have to wait until my present contract expires—which will be in 1913.
 "Then they will certainly have me if I am spared. The tour will be all round the world, wherever the English language is spoken, and will last about twelve or eighteen months. It is a record proposition so far as the music hall profession is concerned.
 "I am not at all satisfied with the way my syndicate in London have treated me. When I fixed up my present contract, several years ago, neither the management nor I myself had any idea that I should prove the success that I have. Notwithstanding my 'drawing' powers, I am no better off than the way of salary than I was years ago.
 "Look at it like this. If a clerk is engaged in a City office and agrees to work for £3 a week, he is satisfied for the time. But supposing he makes an invention which is likely to benefit the firm, he is not silly enough to give them that benefit unless he gets better terms from them.
 "My complaint is that the salary I have been receiving has not increased according to the larger audiences I draw. I gave up Scotch tours to come to London, and for all the money I have earned for my management I have not received as much as a single 'Thank you'—not a word of gratitude.
 "They are getting all they possibly can out of me—all my young life and best energy—without giving anything in return.
 "In the future, after this contract expires, I shall do business in a totally different manner. I shall insist on being treated according to my 'drawing' abilities—which were unknown when I signed the contract I am now fulfilling. Mind, I shall be square in doing my best for the syndicate, although I am dissatisfied with them.
 "During my two tours abroad—both in America—the salary I received was not better than in England. But all this time I have been steadily laying a foundation for what is to come in the future, and I realized at the first that I should have to do so at a sacrifice. The 1913 tour will be much more profitable than all the previous ones, in England and across the water. That will be the start of my own method.
 "My friends over the other side give me quite as warm a welcome, possibly a warmer one, than here, and, although there's no place like home, and in some respects I would rather stay here, I feel it is my duty to expound my abilities abroad.
 "I am sure my fellow-countrymen out there will fully appreciate a visit from Harry Lauder, not the 'Scotch'—that savours too much of whiskey—but Scottish comedian."

AMERICAN JOCKEY RETIRES WITH MILLION
 Hartford, Conn., Oct. 7.—According to a letter received in this his native city, "Danny" Maher, the American jockey, who has acquired fame and money on English race tracks, is not likely to be seen in America in the future. He wants to quit racing at the end of the present season and retire to Tipperary, Ireland, and enjoy the $1,000,000 which he has made riding in England. Moreover, he is taking on flesh at a rate which will soon make his retirement imperative, as he writes that he cannot get under 126 pounds, which is much too heavy for a leading English jockey. He has taken up riding to hounds, and figures that this will give him knowledge and experience as a steeplechase trainer. Maher has rented a private house in the vicinity of Nottingham, England, so as to be near the hunting districts.

BODY OF MISSING CAPTAIN FOUND.
 London, Ont., Oct. 6.—Yesterday afternoon men patrolling the beach at Long Point, on Lake Erie, discovered a body that had been washed ashore. It is badly decomposed, but the word "McLeod," tattooed on the arm, leads to the belief that the remains are those of the captain of the Bessemer, which sank last December with all on board. A despatch was immediately sent to the widow of Capt. McLeod, in Cleveland, informing her of the finding of the body. A peculiar feature is that a body supposed to have been that of Capt. McLeod was found at Niagara Falls some time after the disaster. The remains were turned over to Mrs. McLeod, who completed the funeral arrangements. Several hundred dollars were found in the pockets of the clothing on the first corpse.

FELL WITH PASSENGERS FLYING FOR BIG PRIZES
 Paris, Oct. 7.—Leon Morane, who was to have been a star performer at the Belmont Park meet in America, fell with his monoplane near Paris this morning and sustained injuries which at first was believed to be fatal, but reports late to-night are somewhat reassuring.
 Morane's left leg was broken in two places, and at best he will be confined to the hospital for many weeks.
 With Morane in the aeroplane was his brother, Robert, whom he was taking as passengers in an effort to win the Michelin $20,000 prize for the first aviator to fly from Paris to the summit of Puy de Dome.
 The aeroplane fell soon after leaving Paris. Three farmers saw it tumble suddenly to earth, and when they reached the spot the machine was a complete wreck and the two men lay beside it unconscious. They were taken to a nearby hospital. Leon was first to regain consciousness.
 "Well, I'm out of it for four weeks," were his first words.
 Robert's skull was fractured and it is feared that he cannot survive.
 The cause of the accident has not yet been determined.

ANGRY SKIN HEALED
 No Doubt About Poslam's Power to Kill Germ Life.
 In any bacterial infection of the skin poslam, the new skin remedy, shows its power to annihilate germ life by stopping the itching at once and causing the trouble to quickly disappear. Poslam acts in this manner in any surface skin disease, including all eczemas, salt rheum, skin scale, seven-year itch, psoriasis, barber's itch and similar troubles. Every day brings records of remarkable cures exceeding all claims made for it. "For sixteen months I suffered with eczema," writes Mr. W. Noeman, Elmira, Ont.: "spent two months in a hospital, tried everything known, with little or no effect. On December 29 I procured poslam, and am happy to say that on January 7th (9 days later) I am perfectly healed; my skin is as clear as a baby's."
 In minor skin affections, such as pimples, red noses, complexion blemishes, rash, scalp scales, itching feet, etc., a small quantity of poslam will do the work, results being seen overnight.
 Poslam is sold in two sizes (trial, 50 cents; regular jars, $2) by all druggists, particularly Henry Willis, 4 St. John street. For a free sample write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City.

NEW FRESCOES GRACE HALLS OF PARLIAMENT

Six Beautiful Paintings Added to Corridor Outside House of Commons.

HISTORIC SCENES, GIFTS OF LORDS

Mr. J. Byam Shaw, Mr. Frank O. Salisbury, Mr. E. Board and Mr. Denis Eden Among Artists.

(Special Dispatch.)
London, Saturday.

WHEN Parliament reassembles in November those radicals who are keen on the destruction of the House of Lords will find that the lower house, or entrance to it, has been greatly beautified and rendered more interesting by a set of those noble lords whom they would gladly see unseated. The Peers' Corridor, and the corridor leading to the Commons Lobby form one of the main "sights" of the House of Parliament, as there are to be seen there sixteen magnificent frescoes illustrative of historic scenes in the age of the Stuarts. During the Parliamentary vacation there have been placed in the corridor immediately opposite St. Stephen's Hall more beautiful frescoes by eminent artists, the gifts of Lord Beauchamp, the Earl of Carlisle, Lord Alreald of Gledport, Lord Stanmore, Lord Wandsworth and Lord Winterstoks of Bladon. Illustrative of another period in English history.

Mr. J. Byam Shaw, R. L., is the painter of a picture illustrating the entry of Queen Mary with Princess Elizabeth into London. The scene portrayed is set at the gate of the Lions Tower of the Tower of London. Mr. Frank O. Salisbury, R. B. A., has told the story of Henry VIII. and Catherine of Arragon. In the scene where Catherine is seen in court pleading with the King, who stands embarrassed, pained, struggling with himself. Mr. E. Board has for his subject Cranmer, the supplicant, when Henry made an Archbishop; and Mr. Denis Eden's panel illustrates Cabot receiving the charter from Henry VII. Erasmus and Thomas More visiting the children of Henry VIII. at Greenwich is the subject painted by Mr. Frank Cadogan, A. R. A. Here you see Prince Henry meeting for the first time the man whom for years he delighted to honor and whose head he cut off at last; and Mr. H. Payne is the painter of the picture illustrating the historic plucking of the red and white roses in the Temple Gardens by representatives of the York and Lancaster houses as their distinctive badges.

MONOCLES FOR WOMEN.

Rumor has it that the monocle is to be the real smart thing this winter for the woman of fashion. This single glass is to be mounted on a long handle, much after the fashion of lorgnettes. The effect, it is held, will be to emphasize the fact that any human target which comes within range is under a stare of maximum impertinence. There are a number of prominent London women, including Lady Doreen Long and the Hon. Mrs. Brassey, who have worn monocles for years, but these have been of the kind that caught under the lid of the eye. The projected type will be as readily as a range-finder to a sailing gun.

The system of radio-telephony which has been adopted for use in submarines has, it is reported, proved the incalculable value of this form of communication between one submarine and another or with the parent ship. In a series of experiments carried on off Torbay the cruiser Bonaventure established wireless communication with the boats running submerged, and the submarine was able to return answers from below to the surface, the apparatus being submerged as far as the periscope, which reached about half way up the mast. The possibility thus proved of directing the operations of submarines while under water is therefore considered to largely increase their tactical value.

SOME LONDON FARMS.

Some surprise has been occasioned by the discovery that London has farmers of its own who beat their rivals in the rural districts by the produce they gain from their acres. According to the latest official calculation, London has 5,611 acres devoted to "agriculture," as compared with 18,500 in 1900. Each year, however, marks the slow absorption of this acreage into building land.

By this same calculation the metropolis has 80 acres under corn. Ten years ago 600 acres had been so planted. The acres under clover and grass in rotation are placed at forty-seven, as against 120 in 1900. The big city retains more than six thousand acres of permanent pasture or grass, a decrease of 2,000 in the ten year period, while small fruit farms account for 37 acres more, and there are 1,000 acres devoted to what are described as "other crops." Also London can claim 600 horses used solely for agricultural purposes, 2,741 head of cattle, 3,000 sheep and 2,000 swine. The metropolitan farmer gets the blue ribbon when it comes to understanding his business. He gets an average yield of 25 bushels of wheat to the acre, whereas the best of the up-countryman can do is 21 1/2 bushels. The latter, too, gets but 22 bushels of barley to the acre, while the Londoner runs his average up to 30. Honors now are easy in the oats line, though there was a time when the countryman held the smaller end. When it comes to potatoes, however, any yield is only 6 1/2 tons

King George and Queen Mary Leave Balmoral, Returning to Windsor with the Court for the Winter

Duke and Duchess of Connaught About to Depart for South Africa.

PRINCE OF WALES GROUSE SHOOTING

(Special Dispatch.)
London, Saturday.

KING GEORGE and Queen Mary's holiday at Balmoral has come to a close. They have returned to London for a few days, before going on to Windsor with their Court for the winter. During their Majesties' absence workmen have been very busy at the castle carrying out some needed alterations, and they have had all they could do to get them finished in time. The work has not been by any means so extended a scale as that undertaken at Buckingham Palace, where a deal of reconstruction is needed in order to provide for the royal children; but at Windsor King George has been having prepared much more spacious accommodation for his automobiles, a work in which he has taken much interest and about which he has been very particular. Both the King and Queen are very fond of Windsor, the Queen especially, because of the river. Her early life was passed near the Thames, of course, and she has never failed to appreciate its beauties.

While in London their Majesties will take leave of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught on their departure to South Africa on the Union liner Balmoral Castle, which is now in the hands of the Admiralty. No great internal structural alterations have been made on the vessel, but it has been very elaborately fitted up for the voyage to the Cape and back, and has been painted the well known naval gray, while it will be manned by 450 boats.

to the acre, while the London farmer runs his score up to 3 1/2 tons. Some of the London boroughs carry on a farming business. Lambeth, for instance, makes hay at the borough cemetery, usually raising a crop that adds £50 to the borough exchequer. A most novel instance of strike "picketing" has been reported from Burnley, in Lancashire. Two brewery firms there raised the price of beer and spirits as a sequel to Mr. Lloyd-George's budget, which for weeks has evoked a particular storm of protest from the liquor interests. The retailers, after a struggle, decided to recoup themselves by raising the price of beverages to the consumer.

A general price list was issued, with the result that the poorer class customers, who formed the clientele of three or four beer houses, promptly went on strike against the inflated prices. So vigorous was their opposition to the price of pints of beer being raised a half-penny or an equivalent of one cent, that they posted picket lines and recommended to each thirsty comer that he, as they had done, patronise another beerhouse in the neighborhood where the prices had not been boosted.

A PECULIAR WILL.

One of the most peculiar wills ever admitted to probate in London was proved a few days ago. It was the last testament of Mrs. Isabelle M. E. Thiss, a Spanish woman who resided in Paris, but whose property in the United Kingdom was valued at £1,738. The document, which was dated in Paris on June 2, 1902, provided for various peculiar bequests, and then dealt with the decedent's relatives in most forcible language. "This day, Wednesday, at eight o'clock in the morning," began the unusual document. "I am alone, as usual, so there is no one who could influence me, and although I am in bed with a swollen leg, my head is sound of judgment, so that what I write here is done with my full knowledge."

After setting forth that she was about to inherit between 120,000 and 150,000 from her mother's estate, the testatrix, among her bequests, directed the following:—"Ten thousand francs to the Society for the Protection of Animals, in particular dogs, on condition that there is placed in the meeting hall a picture with my name and title of 'Protecting Friend of Dogs,' and that all the three dogs—that is to say, Mirza and her two little ones—the cat and her little kittens shall be received and well cared for by the society until they die of old age. George, my husband, must watch over and requite the Society of Animals to cause fulfillment to be given to what I here ask for."

"Five thousand francs to the Little Sisters of the Poor, on condition that six of them shall accompany me and pray so long as my body remain exposed in my apartment, and shall accompany me to the cemetery."

Twenty-five thousand francs upon trust for her husband, under this direction:—"He cannot touch this 25,000 francs or do anything whatsoever. He must live on the interest which he will have from this sum, and if he remarries, from that day the income and the capital shall no longer be his. He may dispose of them only if he becomes a monk in an order, otherwise it is only income, and I repeat that if my husband remarries, from that day neither capital nor interest shall be for him any more; and on the day, say, of his death, if he remains a widower, those 25,000 francs, with the rest of what remains of my estate, shall go to found a house of refuge for couples without children who cannot find means of housing. The work which I desire shall be founded for couples without children and who suffer, as we have suffered, from want of money to pay the Jackets drawn from the various naval stations. Meanwhile King George has been having some excellent deer stalking, and it is said his Majesty is particularly delighted at the excellent promise which the Prince of Wales has shown at his recent initiation into the mysteries of grouse shooting and deer stalking. Indeed, it is said that there is every promise of the young Prince being in a few years as wonderful a shot as his father, who is one of the finest shots in England. The question as to title, investiture and career of the Prince of Wales having now been satisfactorily settled, it is expected that an announcement will shortly be made as to the formal raising to the peerage of Prince Albert, the second son of the King. Prince Albert is eighteen months younger than the Prince of Wales, and will not, therefore, attain his majority for another two years. He is, however, already well started on his naval career, and is to accompany his brother on his tour around the world; so it is thought probable that the title of Duke of York will be bestowed on his Royal Highness at an early date.

King George is contemplating the discontinuance of a practice which, if carried out, will be an immense relief to the leader of the House of Commons. That is the historic custom of receiving from the Prime Minister a nightly report of the proceedings in Parliament. This parliamentary letter used to be a thorn in the flesh of Mr. Gladstone. Nor did Disraeli care for it either, but, as a great smoker, he used to alleviate the task as much as possible with, at least on one occasion, an amusing sequel. He had despatched his letter overnight. Next afternoon he received a note from Queen Victoria's secretary expressing Her Majesty's thanks and there was added the sentence:—"Her Majesty was much amused by the contents." But there was nothing amusing in the letter and the puzzled leader of the House could not make it out until he read a private P. S. from the secretary, explaining that the letter contained a most disagreeable quantity of cigar ash. The only time that the old custom was suspended, so far as known, was when King Edward did so out of kindly consideration for Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman during that statesman's illness. King George will, in future, be content to receive the official report which is issued to members, as he regards the leader's private summary as superfluous.

rent, and who are, as we have been, alone, without family or friends. It is for these couples, downcast, timid and abandoned, to themselves, alone that George must concern himself to found a refuge for."

Then Mrs. Thiss dealt with her relatives in this wise:—"As to my sisters, nieces, nephews, brother-in-law and cousin, nothing shall come to them from me but a bag of sand to rub themselves with. None deserve even a goodby. I do not recognise a single one of them. It is useless even to communicate my death to them, they have too much abused and lied against me. This is my will."

Womanlike, however, the testatrix added a postscript relative to her domestic affairs, asserting, "My husband must pay before everything Mr. Caninacci, the grocer, the milkman, the butcher, de Scaux, and eight francs to the washerwoman de Scaux."

Vindictive expressions in wills are rather uncommon, but instances have cropped up in English wills within recent years. One of the extreme cases on record was that of a man who left to his wife the sum of one farthing, with the direction that it should be sent to her by post in an unstamped envelope, so that she would have to pay the postage, and mentioning that she had called him "an old pig" and many other names. Some time ago a testator living near Birmingham left his property to his daughter, on condition that she paid to a person named the sum of 1/4d. for the purchase of a hempen cord or halter for the use of his "dear wife," "which, I trust, she may make use of without delay." Two years ago, also, one of the senior members of the uniformed staff of one of the Southern railways, who was well known among the travelling public, left this statement in his will:—"My estate would have been considerably larger if it had not been for my unfortunate marriage with the cleverest known legal daylight robber. My associations with this pernicious human vinegar crust I consider to have cost me considerably over £100."

One of the largest fortunes ever left by a single woman in England will go chiefly to American relatives. This is the estate of Miss Emily Knowles, formerly of No. 7 Sussex place, London, and of Worples Lodge, Broom, which has been valued for probate at £485,750. The bequests included £5,000 each to eleven London hospitals and £1,000 each to Dr. Marnard's Homes and the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The bulk of Miss Knowles' fortune is divided, however, between Gertrude Disney, Helen Binney, Louise Phillips and eight children of her husband Mr. George Knowles, of No. 48 Cass street, Millwall, W. Other large estates which have been left recently by single women include those of Miss Ellen Morrison, £275,000; Miss Lucy Cohen, £200,100; Miss A. L. Phipps, of Manchester, £27,861; Miss H. Perry, of Tettonhall, £21,333, and Miss H. H. Sawyer, of Dundee, £20,300.

MAN EATERS OF PAPUA.

We have been hearing strange stories of the "Man Eaters of Papua" from Mr. J. H. Murray, who has returned to England for a holiday, after having served six years as Lieutenant Governor of New Guinea. London. He has given an account of his experiences, and his knowledge is general as to the etiquette of cannibalism, the procedure of the "witch doctor" in selecting those who practise the black art, and other customs in which these playful people indulge.

"It may be that centuries will pass before the hidden mysteries of New Guinea are fully revealed," said Mr. Murray. "Much of it remains unexplored, and there still is much to be explained regarding the innumerable tribes who have been brought in touch with civilization. The British portion of the island is inhabited by two main groups, the Melanesians, who are copper colored, and the Papuans, who are of a darker hue, and, generally speaking, a more virile race. Each section is composed of tribes, who apparently preserve the primitive instincts, but have divided themselves into families, with customs and language peculiar to each. They are the most picturesque and picturesque folk in the world."

Already, in view of the coronation next year, armine and red velvet have gone up in price, coats of the former being now only within the reach of those women of the musical comedy choruses who also own automobiles; so, at any rate, report hath it. Very busy, too, are those useful custodians around Bond street into whose safe keeping bangles such as coronets, strawberry leaves, antique family jewels, and the like are given over in times of peace. It was the wife of the then Russian Ambassador to England, who, writing about the accession of Queen Victoria, declared the English crown to have no diamonds—such a lot disappeared during the Georgian era, and most of those that remained were the property of Queen Adelaide, and came to her from her mother, who had bequeathed them to the Crown of Hanover.

It is to a very different state of affairs that Queen Mary now succeeds. Her Majesty herself has a magnificent collection of jewels. As the bride of the son of the heir apparent most of her thousands of wedding presents consisted of jewels, and, thanks to the passion of Queen Victoria for the acquisition of precious stones, the British crown jewels rank now among the finest in the world. There is no becoming generally known now that Queen Alexandra does not greatly care for the title of Queen-Mother, which was chosen and officially announced after the death of King Edward. She feels that so many institutions are associated with her own name that it is desirable that she should still be known by it, although officially her position is that of Queen-Mother. There is no gainingaying the people prefer the retention of the name by which she was known during the late King's reign. In the Court Circular during the last week or two it has been noted that she has been referred to as Queen Alexandra, and private intimation has been received in certain quarters that Her Majesty wishes to be addressed by that title.

Annexation of Corea Awakens China to Realization of Fate That Menaces Her

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)
PEKIN, Sept. 5, 1910.

After Corea-Manchuria. After Manchuria-Pekin! The first step in Japan's career of continental conquest has now been written across the map of Asia for all the world to read. The second is as sure as fate itself. That it has been concretely provided for in secret agreement between Japan and Russia, no Chinese who understands the trend of international events for a moment doubts.

That Japan did not destroy Corea's nationality without first coming to satisfactory understanding with Russia, whose whole Siberian possession would otherwise be menaced by this extension of Japan's sovereignty to the continent of Asia, is certain. The quid pro quo will be revealed in due time. The partition of Manchuria, peacefully if possible, by force if necessary, Russia being permitted to have her own way in Mongolia while Japan turns further south—these are high points of the Motono-Iswelky agreement which, for reasons that require no explanation, have so far been concealed from the world.

Provides for Further Advance.

If temporary removal of the menace of immediate Japanese absorption of her Asiatic possessions means any gain to Russia, the gain to Japan is infinitely greater, since not only is the one possible obstacle to her continental advance removed, but the next step in that advance is specifically provided for. As to succeeding steps, Russia may be satisfied with the pledges of friendship and co-operation given by Japan—though the value of Japanese promises and pledges would seem, in the light of Corea's experience, considerably below par.

Absorption of Corea was in no sense necessary to Japan's interests in Corea. The government of that country and of its people was as completely in Japan's hands before annexation as it is now, or as it ever could be. Annexation, then, can mean but one thing—that this expansion of Japan to the continent of Asia is but the first step in that greater continental expansion which has long been the dream of Japan—an expansion that can only come at the expense of the Empire of China.

Realization of Japan's plans and purposes has come, belatedly but none the less certainly, to the Chinese people.

In no other country has Japan's absorption of Corea made so deep an impression as here. Europe and America have, apparently, given hardly passing thought to an event that changes mightily the map of Asia and must inevitably exert vast influence upon the future of half the human race.

Was Shock to Chinese. Even among China's officials those who have realized the inevitability of Japan's wiping out Korean nationality in response to the demands of her expansion programme have been few. In the councils of the government their words of prophetic warning have carried little weight in the face of confident expressions of conviction by the pro-Japanese party that Japan would never break her solemn pledges to respect and uphold the independence of the Hermit Kingdom.

The awakening has come with a shock.

For the first time Chinese public thought is beginning to realize what it means for China to have this aggressive, essentially military nation as her neighbor upon the mainland of Asia. The Chinese press is speaking its mind with a virility not often manifested in its discussions of foreign affairs. While there is some lamentation over the fate of Corea and much criticism of Japan, the most hopeful phase of this press comment is its frank recognition that Corea's experience is the handwriting on the wall to China unless China puts her own house in order.

Where China's Peril Lies?

In its failure to grasp the needs of the situation, to bring about reforms of government and development of resources which alone can make China strong, a blind and reactionary officialdom is helplessly assisted by the intriguing diplomacy of the two nations whose plans for China's absorption would be frustrated by China's strength.

In discussing Japan's official attitude toward China, surcharged as it is with pretensions of friendship, the Chinese press reviews at length the attitude of Japan toward Corea. To the minds of these Chinese critics it is highly significant that the excuses Japan has given the world for each step of her aggression in Corea and for the consummation of that policy of

CREWLESS WARSHIP ENEMY TOWARD AMERICA TAUGHT BY THE JAPANESE

Vessel Can Be Directed, Bells Rung and Guns Fired by Wireless Apparatus.

(Special Dispatch.)
London, Saturday.

Great Britain, eager to catch up every story as to Germany's naval programme, again has its eyes turned across the North Sea. For the latest report has it that two Germans—Herr Christopher Wirth, an electrical engineer, and Herr Christopher Beck, a manufacturer—have invented a "crewless" war ship whose engines can be started or stopped and whose helm can be controlled by electrical waves communicated without wires to a receiving apparatus aboard the mysterious vessel by a sending apparatus from shore similar to that utilized in wireless telegraphy. Further, so the report has it, by means of these electrical waves guns on the crewless vessel can be controlled and fired, while signals can be transmitted either by bells or flashlight, and all these wonders are possible within a radius of eighteen miles from the wireless station which transmits the controlling force.

An eye witness who has observed exhaustive experiments conducted with a motor boat model on the Duzendteich, a large expanse of water near Nuremberg, has affirmed the stories of this wonderful method of control.

"I have seen the interesting trial trips of a large unmanned motor boat," said this observer in a statement which has been published in London, "which was controlled and steered from the bank of the lake by means of wireless telegraphy. I also saw guns being fired on board the unmanned vessel, and a bell being rung on the deck, and also flashlight signals being given in the same way with the help of electrical waves. When I first arrived the motor boat Prinz Ludwig was lying motionless in the middle of the lake. No one was on board. Suddenly a gun was fired on the deck, and I saw the crew begin to revolve and drive the boat forward."

"Then I saw the boat follow a zigzag course, steered by some unseen power. There were ordinary rowing boats on the lake, and when the unmanned vessel approached them she gave the signal by means of a bell to indicate whether she intended to go to port or starboard, and the indicated course was carried out with absolute accuracy. I watched the manoeuvres of the unmanned boat for a whole hour during the daytime and again in the evening, when the signals were not given by means of bells, but by flashlights. At the end of these tests the unmanned vessel was brought to her anchorage by the same unseen forces. These forces were emitted from a sending station on shore to a receiving apparatus on the boat. These Hertzian waves sent from the shore started and stopped the engine and controlled the helm of the vessel. The will of the man who controls the electrical waves on shore thus exercises absolute command over the unmanned vessel."

Rivals of the Japanese.

"We cannot but regard the Americans as our first and foremost rival. Let us have done playing with those soft sounding lies with the semblance of truth which hypocrites love to give utterance to. America herself wishes to make the Pacific a sort of pond in her back garden, and believes that Japan stands in the way of her realizing this scheme. When she builds more battle ships she plainly talks about a Japanese-American war."

It occurs to us that the American arguments in favor of a larger navy are somewhat vaunting and vainglorious.

Although America possesses a population of a hundred million souls it is composed of multitudinous races of European stock, with a yearly influx of a million immigrants from the Old World. These variegated nationalities, if left unassimilated, are a bad thing for uniform national government, and so in the opinion of some Americans the best results can be achieved by picking out some foreign country as an enemy and then sounding the tocsin loudly on the score of national peril. In this matter America might be able to utilize Japan-American war talk for the solidification of her own internal elements.

In America the wealthy classes rule and enslave the political organs, newspapers, &c., and the rich shipbuilders are said to have caused politicians and journalists to scatter broadcast talk of a war with Japan in order to fatten their own purses by building more battle ships. Of course we do not think that naval arguments based upon such flimsy foundations can amount to much, and yet we must give thought to the fact that a lamentable state of affairs will be created when America sends ships built under such pretenses to the Pacific and tries to run amuck.

Flouts America's Wars.

"Since the coronations of the State was laid, America has never gone into a war that could be called a real war; she has always obtained much at the cost of little exertion. When she fought with Mexico she took a big strip of land in the South as well as on the Pacific coast. When she beat Spain she was fortunate enough to get Cuba and the Philippines as a prize. This she has come to think that she will win wherever she goes, and in this mood of self-glorification she estimates that with the biggest navy in the Pacific she can smite a little island empire like Japan."

"For us there can be no more dangerous news than this under the sun. The blood which now flows through America's veins is not the blood of Washington and Lincoln. She has rejected the Monroe doctrine and has stretched out her hands to the other side of the Pacific. Her business of mind may be clearly known by the butchery of negroes simply because a negro pugilist got the better of a white man. To make such people as these fear something is to make them uneasy about opening hostilities, and will, therefore, be the best guarantee of peace. It is now our duty, as indicated by the divine will, to rebuild our navy to a point not inferior to that of America, and float in the Pacific. Is not this the best way of preserving peace?"

Hostility Aroused by Inspired Methods on Plan Followed Before War with Russia.

UNITED STATES NAVAL POWER IS FLOATED

Misrepresentation of the Policy of America Exemplified by Writer in an Important Review.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

TOKIO, September 5, 1910.—To the great crusade of America—baiting in which Japanese publicists and publications seem just now to be endeavoring to entice one another, the editor of the Chuo Koron, or Central Review, contributes a series of articles whose particular interest lies in their revelation of the view of things American held by a very large section, perhaps the majority, of the Mikado's subjects. The argument of this particular writer contains some important points, the significance of which cannot be overlooked. One of these is the pessimistic picture drawn of the capabilities of the navy of the United States.

United States Misrepresented.

Through the whole of this campaign misrepresentation of the American policy is the high note. While this may at first glance seem nothing but the effusion of ignorance, those who have knowledge of the methods adopted to shape public sentiment in Japan believe they see in it studied, and perhaps inspired, effort to instill into the minds of the people that the United States entertains sinister designs against Japan.

In form and substance this anti-American crusade follows the same lines as the crusade against "the northern enemy," Russia, during the long period of preparation for the conflict that followed. The only difference is one of detail; Russia was pictured as fired by determination to dominate the continent of Asia to Japan's detriment, the United States is pictured as fired by determination to dominate the Pacific—also to Japan's detriment.

After discussing at length the effect of the Russo-Japanese convention, dwelling especially on the assumption that this leaves Japan's hands free for other things than watching Russia, the Chuo Koron contends that Japan must take advantage of this free hand to build up a navy far stronger than ever hitherto contemplated.

"What makes us feel the need of a larger navy," the writer presents, "is nothing but Japan's present great navy of a southern march. The picture here in which Japan has a right to stand is the vast Pacific Ocean."

"We cannot but regard the Americans as our first and foremost rival. Let us have done playing with those soft sounding lies with the semblance of truth which hypocrites love to give utterance to. America herself wishes to make the Pacific a sort of pond in her back garden, and believes that Japan stands in the way of her realizing this scheme. Her business of mind may be clearly known by the butchery of negroes simply because a negro pugilist got the better of a white man. To make such people as these fear something is to make them uneasy about opening hostilities, and will, therefore, be the best guarantee of peace. It is now our duty, as indicated by the divine will, to rebuild our navy to a point not inferior to that of America, and float in the Pacific. Is not this the best way of preserving peace?"

STANDARD CHRISTMAS NUMBER

Only Seamless Hosiery Fits Right!

You should wear Pen-Angle Hosiery, and no other kind. For this is the only Canadian-made hosiery that is seamless AND priced moderately AND guaranteed.

All three merits ought to be in your hosiery. Because no hosiery that is not SEAMLESS can be comfortable --- and Pen-Angle machines are the only ones in Canada able to knit such hosiery, formed to the leg and foot, instead of merely water-shrunk into shape. Thus, though priced reasonably, Pen-Angle Hosiery holds its shape indefinitely. And it is reinforced wherever wear falls.

To these merits add the GUARANTEE you read here---two pairs for one if Pen-Angle Hosiery disappoints. Note next the modest price you need pay to get all this---and then remember name and trademark when next you need hosiery.

READ THIS REMARKABLE GUARANTEE

We guarantee the following lines of Pen-Angle Hosiery to fit you perfectly, not to shrink or stretch and the dyes to be absolutely fast. We guarantee them to wear longer than any other cashmere or cotton hosiery sold at the same prices. If, after wearing Pen-Angle Guaranteed Hosiery any length of time, you should ever find a pair that fails to fulfill this guarantee in any particular, return the same to us and we will replace them with TWO new pairs free of charge.

ORDER THIS WAY

Ask at the store first. If they cannot supply you, state number, size of shoe or stocking and color of hosiery desired and enclose price, and we will fill your order postpaid. Remember we will fill no order for less than one box and only one size in a box. BE SURE TO MENTION SIZE.

TO WIN WIFE AND A WAGER

Man from Montana Walking Round the World Without a Penny.

London, Oct. 7--There has just arrived in London Frank Reiley, a man from Montana, who on June 4, 1908, started out on a trip round the world.

The great task is the result of a wager to test his assertion that an energetic man can travel without money. It prescribed that he should set out from St. Louis in a newspaper suit, and with a solitary cent in his pocket. He was forbidden to beg, to borrow, or to steal. He could solicit water and autographs---nothing more. He was to provide himself with a wife, but it was stipulated that the lady should propose to him, not he to the lady. Finally, he was to return to St. Louis with his wife and a sum of $500 in his pocket. He may return before, but he is allowed a three weeks' margin for illness and five days for gao.

The wager was with the Moltentile Sporting Club of St. Louis---of which, by the way, Mr. Reiley is qualifying for membership. Lastly, if successful in this strongest and maddest of exploits, Mr. Reiley will be the richer by about $9,000.

His adventures began with the start. On the steps of the club he was met by an enterprising tailor. The tailor gave him another suit---jacket, vest and trousers, all complete---with an additional $50 for necessary repairs. The conditions of the gift were that the suit should be returned at the end of the journey, and the advertisement would be the enterprising tailor's. Reiley changed clothes in the open street, while two blankets were held round him. Then he exchanged the cent for a pencil.

Since then Mr. Reiley, who is a tall, well set-up man of twenty-eight, has starved in some places and fattened in others. He has slept beneath the open sky, or lodged luxuriously in hotels. Twice he was in danger of his life, and once had to shoot an infuriated Chinaman who went for him with a knife. It was in China, by the way, that he suffered his worst experiences. He lived on berries, when they were obtainable. When they were not he ate grass. Sometimes he found it difficult to get water. He carried with him a glass marble which he would suck when the craving for drink became too dreadful.

In South Africa he lived for a week and more on ostrich eggs. In Egypt he was laid up with malarial fever. In Hamburg he was arrested as a suspect. He has been a fireman, a valet, and a cook. He can also play an organ, and before now he has given lectures. But he cannot ask for a job.

Within a few weeks he will have to be back in St. Louis. But, so far, he has failed to find a wife. He has had numerous proposals---one, too, from a lady of considerable wealth---but he is not going to marry a woman he doesn't care for.

"You are not bound then, to accept the first woman who proposes to you?" he was asked by a correspondent of the Daily Graphic who interviewed him. "Not much," said the man from Montana.

Temporary Heat Quickly

Did you ever stop to think of the many ways in which a perfect oil heater is of value? If you want to sleep with your window open in winter, you can get sufficient heat from an oil heater while you undress at night, and then turn it off. Apply a match in the morning, when you get out of bed, and you have heat while you dress.

Those who have to eat an early breakfast before the stove is radiating heat can get immediate warmth from an oil heater, and then turn it off.

The girl who practices on the piano in a cold room in the morning can have warmth from an oil heater while she plays, and then turn it off.

The member of the family who has to walk the floor on a cold winter's night with a restless baby can get temporary heat with an oil heater, and then turn it off. The

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless is invaluable in its capacity of quickly giving heat. Apply a match and it is immediately at work. It will burn for nine hours without refilling. It is safe, smokeless and odorless. It has a damper top and a cool handle. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the tank.

It has an automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be cleaned in an instant.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be quickly unscrewed for reworking. Finished in Japan or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

Dealers Everywhere. If not at yours, write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

By private wire to McDonald, Lesperance & Co., Hochelaga Bank Building:—
New York, Oct. 7.—The speculation lapsed into apathy to-day and prices vibrated within a narrowing range. There was an appearance of strength at times, and the effort to advance the speculative stocks met with the same kind of obstacles in the form of free selling as earlier in the week. Some of the specialties held up, but without much beneficial effect on the general tone. Outside the specialties, the price changes at the end of the day were trivial. The strength of the copper industrial was based evidently on advance knowledge of the character of the monthly report of the copper Producers Association. As soon as that was published the advance in the copper stocks also came to a halt but the whole market fell into stagnation. The effect of the report was to arouse doubt of the efficacy of the supposed arrangement to cut down the production. The prominence given to the copper report directed fresh attention to the unfavorable report of unfilled tonnage on Oct. 1, which is to be published next week. Weakness of some of the minor steel stocks and of the railroad equipment stocks gave an unfavorable impression of steel trade conditions. Preliminary estimates of the week's currency movement indicated an overflow of nearly $4,000,000 cash from New York. The loss to the sub-Treasury for the week was reduced to less than a million dollars but shipments to the interior by express rose considerably over those of last week. The requirements of the crop movement thus are shown to be unsatisfied. This showing is held to explain the cautious attitude maintained by the banks in putting out fresh credits during the week, in spite of the relaxation of the immediate strain of the October money settlements. The settlement of the Manchester labor difficulty was a strengthening factor for London. Stocks and the situation in Portugal lost in power of depression on foreign markets. Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value, $1,969,000. U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

NEW YORK CLOSING LETTER

By private wire to McDougall & Cowans, 81 St. Peter Street:—
New York, Oct. 7.—The opening was moderately active and higher with almost everything showing fair sized advances over last night's close. The Copper issues were the strongest issues with Amalgamative Copper active. The speculative interest has shifted largely to the cotton market, which was active and extremely strong, rising rapidly on news of damage in the Mississippi Valley through heavy rains. This, of course, may have excited some favorable influence on the stock market. Local sales, 275,400 shares.

CLOSING LETTER

By private wire, Neuville Belleau & Co., 93 St. Peter Street, Quebec.
New York, Oct. 7.—Higher London market gave a strong tone to the trading at the opening. Advances of 1/2 to 3/4 of a point were the rule. Canadian Pacific, however, dropped one-half point in the initial trading. Business was light, total transactions footing up only 275,000 shares. The closing was dull, but steady at slight net changes for the day. We still believe in buying on all recessions.

Topics of the Day

POVERTY, IGNORANCE, PORTUGAL'S TROUBLES.

In Portugal the revolutionary spirit that has been smouldering for many years burst forth at last suddenly and terribly. Two years and a half ago it raised for a moment its bloody hand, and King Carlos was hurried into eternity. Perhaps if his son, Manuel, who succeeded to the throne, had dealt more mercifully with the conspirators, his sceptre would not now be swept from his nerveless hands. His failure to hang everybody connected with the assassination of his father, while perhaps creditable to his kindness of heart, was a sign of weakness that the revolutionists were swift to note. Ever since then their agitation has gone forward, but while everybody knew that there was unrest in Portugal, as in Spain, it was not generally suspected that the germs of republicanism had so rapidly developed, that an ancient monarchy could be toppled in the dust within an hour's warning.

The trouble with Portugal's monarchy, is that, as a political organization, it is so badly decayed that the time has come to throw it overboard and make shift with a new system. The revolutionists thought when they removed Carlos, that Falstaff among the crowned heads, that the trouble was with their King, not their system. In the past couple of years they have found that under a new king things have not greatly mended. So they have abolished the monarchy. It is probable that things have been better under Manuel than under Carlos, but the improvement was not enough to satisfy a people that had been wronged and plundered for generations, and that had at last caught a glimpse of what they were striving for.

Naturally a fertile country, Portugal supports the poorest people in Europe. They are sunk in ignorance and superstition. Three-quarters of them can neither read nor write. There is no system of education, as we understand the word. Scattered here and there are a few clerical schools. In fact, the situation is very much the same as that in Spain, which brought a Ferrer to his death and raised a Canalejas to avenge him. The Ferrer of Portugal was Dr. Bombarda, a brilliant Republican and anti-Clerical, who was recently killed by an army officer. Who the Canalejas will be remains to be seen. The crop of able men in Portugal has been small for many years.

The last good statesman they had there was Franco. He was a dictator, and so his name will be anathema to a people thirsting for liberty, equality and fraternity. Franco was the Prime Minister when Carlos was assassinated, and no doubt was a worse hated man than the King. It was he who induced the King to suspend the constitution, and thus brought on the crisis that ended in the regicide. Franco's motives, however, were good, and had he been permitted to remain in power another six months there is little doubt that his policy would have won over the people. It was a policy of reform and retrenchment, a benevolent despotism at the time. The benevolence they did not appreciate till afterwards. The assassination put an end to Franco's Ministry. Where he is now we do not know. When last heard of he was a fugitive from the people he had sought to benefit.

There is in Portugal a system of representative government. Only one-quarter of the people vote, and only one-half of the voters can read or write. The main objective of the voters has been to shift the burden of taxation to the non-voters, and no matter which political faction has been in power, the main purpose of the voters was not lost sight of. Curiously enough, it was always the poor man who was elected to pay the taxes. In Portugal, if you are wealthy enough, you pay no taxes. Raising money there is a process of grinding the faces of the poor. It has been said that the expense of collecting taxes eats up 70 per cent of the gross receipts. Grafting has been carried to a length undreamed of in Anglo-Saxon communities. There, as elsewhere, graft was non-partisan. Whatever faction won, graft was always at the head of the poll, until Franco broke away from the machine and tried to give an honest administration.

Brief as was his regime, he yet accomplished some practical reforms, and it was the glimpse the people were permitted to have of decent, economical government that encouraged the Republican party to fight Liberals and Conservatives indiscriminately until it had won an assured place for itself. To-day it is the only party that appears to have survived.—Toronto Mail.

BUTTON AS A MURDER CLUE

Arrested on Suspicion of Having Strangled a Showman—Caravan Funeral.

London, Oct. 7.—Whilst showmen were gathering in numbers round a caravan at Horley for the funeral of Christopher Odam, the police, scouring the country for his murderer, whom they hoped to trace by a button, were making an arrest.

Odam was found on the roadside strangling with his own handkerchief. Life was hurt by blows on the head. Near his body lay a blood-stained pocket-knife, and in the socket of the blade a button was seen jammed. The funeral of Odum took place in Horley Churchyard. Hundreds of people flocked to the ground where the body had been laying in a caravan since the inquest. All were permitted to view the remains, and it was only at the last moment that the coffin lid was screwed down.

Meanwhile Sergt. Boshier, of the Surrey Constabulary, was making inquiries in Portsmouth, and in Commercial road met a young man named Dwayne. He answered the description of a man seen in the showman's company on the fatal night. He was arrested and taken before the magistrates.

Sergeant Boshier told the Bench that Dwayne said:—"I was at Horley Club Fete on Wednesday night, and was in the public-house with a man named Bill—I don't know his other name. I left when they turned out, and walked on the Portsmouth-road. I laid down on the roadside for an hour and a half, and then walked on, and was many miles away in the morning. I saw the old man in the public-house and he left when I did."

"I don't know anything about the job. This is the first I've heard of it. What do you think I know about it?" When searching at the Portsmouth Police Station Dwayne had in his possession the noon edition of a local paper which contained an account of the murder. The knife found by the side of Odam's body was blood-stained. In the blade socket was a button, and he (witness) noticed that a button was missing from the prisoner's waistcoat. The button found in the blade socket was, in his opinion similar to the button on the waistcoat.

On being charged with the murder of Odam, the prisoner exclaimed, "Good God! No such thing." The Clerk (to prisoner): Have you any questions to ask? Dwayne: Only to say that the knife— The Clerk: Don't make a statement now.

SALE OF DR. CRIPPEN'S EFFECTS

Woman Creates Sensation by Announcing Discovery of Belle Elmore's Hair.

London, Oct. 7.—Dr. Crippen's furniture was sold by auction, and realized £135. The effects, as the catalogue had it, in "ninety-two lots, removed from 39, Hilldrop-crescent," came under the hammer at Messrs. Tooth and Tooth's rooms, in Oxford street, and the auction-room was crowded. The furniture was chiefly Old English mahogany, with plenty of easy chairs, and there was quite an imposing collection of small pictures in oils and water-colors. There were, too, a goodly number of knick-knacks of the kind one would expect an actress to gather about her. All the lots went cheaply. Sixty-nine small pictures fetched only a sovereign. A violin and a mandoline went for £1 6s. A brass 300-day clock under a glass shade was knocked down for £2 15s. The highest sum bid was £14 14s., the price of an ebouise cottage piano.

A curious incident happened when a number of miscellaneous articles were deposited on the table. Opening a small box, a woman pulled out a tuft of dark brown hair. "This must be Mrs. Crippen's hair!" she exclaimed. Immediately several hands were thrust forward to secure a few strands. There was something approaching a scrimmage, but the auctioneer's man managed to recover the greater part of the hair. Thirty-five popular novels and books, one of which was called "The Fever of Life," together with a quantity of magazines, were sold for £1 4s. The bidding was especially brisk when the gramophone with which Dr. Crippen was wont to entertain his guests was put up. It was sold for £2 12s. 6d. The room-full of buyers was twice startled and amused by the taking of flashlight photographs.
