CADIZ, August 15.

His Excellency the Duke of Ciudad Rodrigo has sent by express the following dispatches to the Secretary at War.

No. 1.

MOST EXCELLENT SIR.—Having observed, on the 24th July last, that there were already two practicable breaches in the body of the place of St. Sebastian, it was ordered to be attacked on the morning of the 25th; and I am greatly concerned to have to inform your Excellency that this attempt failed.

By an Imperial decree of the 1st of July, Marshal Soult was appointed locum tenens of the emperor, Commander in Chief of the French armies in Spain, and the enemy's Commandant-General of the provinces in the South of France. He joined and assumed the command of the same on the 13th of the same month, being reinforced, almost at the same time, by the same army which had been under the orders of Gen. Clausel in Spain, as well as by other bodies of troops. He new-modelled these armies into one of nine Divisions of foot, and a reserve of the same arm, called the army of Spain, and conferred the command of the right on Gen. Count de Reille; that of the centre on Gen. Count d'Erlon; that of the left on Gen. Clausel; and that of the reserve on General Villart; to act as his Lieut.-Generals—and of the cavalry he formed three Divisions, two of dragons, under the orders of Generals Tilly and Treillard, and the other of light horse, under those of Gen. Peter Soult. A numerous artillery had been attached to this army, and great part of it had already joined.

The allied army, as I have informed your Excellency, was stationed in the gorges of the mountains. The brigade of British infantry under Gen. Bing, and General Morillo's Division of Spanish infantry were on the right, covering the Roncevalles pass; Lieut.-Gen. Sir Lowry Cole, with the 4th Division under his command, was in Viscaret, for the purpose of supporting the above-mentioned troops; and Lieut.-Gen. Sir Thomas Picton, with the 3d Division under his orders, was in Olague, forming the reserve. Lieut.-Gen. Sir R. Hill occupied the valley of Bastan with the remainder of the 2d British Division, and the Portuguese, under Count Anarante, from which had been detached to Aldeide, in the French territory the brigade under Gen. Campbell. The British light and 7th Divisions, occupied St. Barbara's heights, the town of Vera, and the Echalar pass, keeping up the communication with the valley of Bastan. The 6th Division formed the reserve of these troops in St. Estevan. Gen. Longa, with his Division of Spanish infantry, kept up the communication between the troops at Vera and those under the command of Lt. Gen. Sir Thomas Graham. Camp-Marshal Giron, with the Spanish infantry, under his orders, covered the high road from St. Sebastian to Bayonne; and Count de la Bisbal, with the troops under him, blockaded the fortress of Pamplona.

Marshal Soult brought together on the 24th July the right and left wings of his army, 2 divisions of the centre, and 2 of cavalry in St. Juan Pied de Port; and, on the 25th attacked Gen. Bing's Post in Roncevalles; with from 30 to 40,000 men. Lieut.-Gen. Lowry Cole marched to his assistance, with the 4th division, and these two generals united, succeeded in maintaining the post the whole day. But the enemy having outflanked it in the evening Sir L. Cole deemed it necessary to withdraw at night; and they did so, taking up a position in the environs of Zubiri. In the several attacks which took place on this day, the 30th (British) distinguished itself. In the evening of the same 2 divisions of the enemy's centre attacked Sir R. Hill's position in the Maya pass, at the further end of the valley of Bastan. The attack having been principally directed against the brigades of the 2d division, under Major Generals Pringle and Walker, commanded by Lieut. Gen. W. Stewart, they were obliged to fall back; but having been reinforced by the brigade of the 7th division, under the command of Maj. Gen. Barne, they re-possessed themselves of that part of their post which forms the key of it, and would have re-occupied the whole, if Lieut. Gen. Sir R. Hill, informed of the retrograde movement which Sir L. Cole had been under the necessity of making, had not thought it expedient to march his troops back to Iruia. The enemy, however, did not advance beyond the Maya pass on the following day.

Notwithstanding the enemy's great superiority, he obtained no great advantage over these gallant troops during the seven hours that the action lasted. All the regiments charged with the bayonet, but the conduct of the 82d which marched up with Gen. Barne's brigade, is entitled to particular praise.

Lieut. Gen. the hon. W. Stewart was slightly wounded. I was not apprized of these occurrences until late in the night of the 25th; but the moment I heard of them, I immediately made dispositions for concentrating the army on the right, taking, however, the necessary precautions for carrying on the siege of St. Sebastian and the blockade of Pamplona. I might easily have executed my plan on the 27th had not Lieut. Gen. Sir L. Cole and Sir Thomas Picton agreed in the opinion, that the post, which they occupied at Zubiri, could not be defended so long as it would be necessary to maintain it; they accordingly fell back early on the morning of the 27th, and took up a position to cover the blockade of Pamplona, posting their right, which consisted of, as far as the heights on the other side of Gonaiz; the left, composed of the 4th division, of Camp-Marshal Bing's brigade, and of the Portuguese, under Brigadier General Campbell, on the heights in front of Villaba, resting their left on a chapel in the rear of Sorauren, through which village runs the road leading from Ostiz to Pamplona, and their right upon another height which defended the high road from Zubiri to Roncevalles. General Morillo's Spanish division, and such part of Count de la Bisbal's troops as were not employed in the blockade, formed the reserve, the regiments of Lavia and of Principe being detached from the latter, to occupy part of the height on the right of the 4th division, which commanded and defended the Zubiri road.

The British cavalry, commanded by Lieut. Gen. Sir Stapleton Cotton, posted itself on the right near Ugarte, the only point where this arm could be employed.

The river Lanz runs through the Valley which was on the left of the allied army and on the right of the French, following the Ostiz road. On the other side of this river there is another range of mountains which is connected with Lizaaso and Murelain, through which villages it was necessary to keep up the communication with the remainder of the army. I joined the 3d and 4th divisions at the time of their going to occupy the ground on 27th; and shortly after the enemy formed his army upon a mountain, the front of which extends from the Ovez high road to that of Zubiri, and posted a division on the left of this road, and in a few villages in front of the 3d British division; he also had a strong body of cavalry in that quarter. As soon as they had occupied their ground they attacked the height on the right of the 4th division, which at that time was occupied by a battalion of the 4th Portuguese regiment and by the Spanish regiment of Pavia. These troops defended their post, and drove the enemy from it with the bayonet. Seeing how important this height was to our position I reinforced it with the 40th (British) which together with the Spanish regiments of el Principe, and Pavia, have maintained it ever since, notwithstanding the repeated efforts which the enemy made on the 27th and 28th to carry it. Almost at the time that they attacked the said height on the 27th they took possession of the village of Sorauren, which enabled them to establish their communication by the Ostiz road, keeping up a brisk fire of musketry all along the line until it grew dark. On the morning of 28th the 6th division incorporated itself with us, and I ordered it to occupy the heights on the left of the valley of Lanz, drawing up its principal force in the same valley, in the rear of the left of the 4th division; in consequence of which, the left of the said 6th division defended the said heights, and rested its right on the village of Origan.

Scarcely had this division taken the above-mentioned position, when it was attacked by a vastly superior force of the enemy, which had successively assembled in the village of Sorauren notwithstanding the great superiority of the assaults, as its front was also defended by its own light troops posted on the heights to the left, and on the other side, by the fires of the height, on its right, which were occupied by the troops of the left of the 4th division and Gen. Campbell's Portuguese brigade, they speedily and gallantly drove back the enemy who was under the necessity of retiring, with considerable loss, owing to the brisk fire which was directed against his front and both flanks. With a view to extricate his troops from the critical situation in which they were placed in the valley of Lanz, the enemy then attacked the height on the left of the 4th division, defended by the 7th regiment of Portuguese chasseur, and succeeded in making himself master of it for a very short time; but the same regiment attacking it anew, supported by the brigade of the 4th division under the orders of Maj. Gen. Ross who marched at its head, he was driven from it with considerable loss. At this time the battle became general along the whole extent of the heights occupied by the 4th division, and was favorable to us on every point except that where was posted a battalion of the 10th (Portuguese) of Gen. Campbell's brigade. This battalion unable to make head against the superior numbers by which it was attacked, was compelled to give way, which enabled the enemy to establish himself on a line close on the right of Gen. Ross's brigade, which was under the necessity of withdrawing from its post.

I accordingly ordered the 48th and 27th to charge with the bayonet, first the enemy's body which had just taken possession of the height, and next that of the left. Both attacks or charges were made in so able and so gallant a manner, that the enemy was driven from both points, with an immense loss. At this time the 6th division advanced and took up a position in the same valley, nearer the left of the 4th. This put an end to the attack on this part of our front, and it was but feebly carried on upon other points of our line.

During this severe contest, the gallant 4th division, which has so frequently distinguished itself in this army surpassed its own former brilliant conduct. All the regiments charged the enemy with the bayonet; and the 10th, 7th, 20th and 23d did so in four different instances. Their officers set them the example, and Major Gen. Ross had 2 horses killed under him, which he mounted one after the other.

The Portuguese troops behaved admirably well and I had every reason to be pleased with the conduct of the Spanish regiments of Pavia and el Principe.

I directed Sir R. Hill to march by Lantz to Lizaaso the moment I knew that Lt. Generals Sir Th. Picton and Sir L. Cole had withdrawn from Lurive and desired Lord Dalhousie to proceed from St. Esteban to the same point; they both reached it on the 28th and the 7th division afterwards marched to Marcellan.

The force opposed to Sir R. Hill followed this General, and arrived at Ostez on the 29th. The enemy, who occupied, on the mountains a position which it was not easy to attack, having been reinforced and seeing he could make no impression upon our front resolved to try whether he could turn our left by attacking Sir R. Hill's Corps; to which end he reinforced with another division the troops which he had once opposed to him, maintaining, at the same time the points which he occupied on the mountain, on which was drawn up his principal force; but withdrawing those of his left which lined the heights in front of the 3d division, during the night of the 29th he occupied with a strong body of men the summit of the mountain on our left on the side of Lanz, in front of the 6th and 7th divisions, thereby connecting the right of his position with the detached divisions for the purpose of attacking Lt. Gen. Sir Hill.

Notwithstanding all I have stated I determined to attack his position, to which end I directed Lt. Gen. Lord Dalhousie to make himself master of the summit of the mountain in front of him by which operation the right of the enemy's line would be turned; and I desired Lt. General Sir Th. Picton to proceed across the heights which the enemy's left had occupied and to turn the latter by the Roncevalles road. The dispositions for attacking the front of his position were made, and the troops ready to effect it, the moment we should observe the impression made upon his flanks by the above-mentioned movements. Major Gen. Pakenham, to whom I confided the command of the 6th division as soon as Maj. Gen. Pack was wounded, turned the village of Sorauren when he saw that Lord Dalhousie had driven the enemy from the mountain which protected that flank; and the 6th division and Gen. Bing's Brigade which had been relieved by the 4th which was on the left of our position in the direction of the Ostiz road, immediately attacked the village of Sorauren, and likewise drove the enemy from it. Lt. Gen. Sir L. Cole also attacked the front of the enemy's principal position, with the 7th Chasseurs, supported by the 11th, both Portuguese, the 40th (British) and the bat. alion under the command of Lt. Col. Brigham, composed of the 53d and of the Queen's Regt. (British). All these operations compelled the enemy to abandon his position, which was one of the strongest and most difficult of access that I have ever seen occupied by troops.

Upon withdrawing from these mountains, the enemy lost a great many prisoners.

I cannot sufficiently praise the conduct of all the generals, officers and men during these operations. The attack made by Lord Dalhousie, was admirably conducted by him, and carried into effect by Maj. General Wright and the troops of his brigade. That which was made by Maj. Gen. the Honorable Edward Pakenham, Maj. Gen. Bing, and Lt. Gen. Sir T. Picton, deserve my utmost commendation. The latter Genl. assisted in the attack on the mountain, by detaching troops from his left: the hon. Lieut. Col. Trench was wounded in this attack, but I hope, not dangerously.

As these operations were carrying on and I saw the advantages which we were obtaining, I successively detached troops to the assistance of Sir R. Hill.

The morning being already pretty far advanced, the enemy made his appearance in front of him, and commenced to manoeuvre with a view to extend himself on his left flank; which laid him under the necessity of retiring from the height which he occupied in the right of Lizaaso, and of taking up a position on the contiguous range of mountains. Notwithstanding the numbers by which he was attacked, he maintained it.

I continued to pursue the enemy from the mountain which he at first occupied, as far as Olague, where I immediately placed myself in the rear of the left of those who I attacked Lieut. Gen. Sir R. Hill. During the night they abandoned the ground in front of this general, and, yesterday, took up, with two divisions, a strong position in Dona Maria's pass.

Lieut. Gen. Sir R. Hill and Lord Dalhousie attacked and drove them from the said pass, notwithstanding the vigorous resistance they made, and the formidable strength of their position. I am concerned to add, that Lieut. Gen. the hon. W. Stewart was again wounded upon this occasion.

While the said Generals were attacking the enemy, I advanced with Gen. Bing's brigade, and the 4th Division, under the command of Lt. Gen. the hon. Sir Lowry Cole, by the Belate pass, to Iruia, with a design to turn the enemy's position in Dona Maria.

Camp-Marshal Bing captured in Elizondo, a large convoy on its way to the enemy, and took a great many prisoners.

We have this day carried on the pursuit through the valley of the Bidason, and captured a great quantity of baggage and many men.

The above-mentioned Gen. Bing has taken possession of the valley of Bastan, and occupied the position of the Maya pass; and to-night the army will be in nearly the same positions as on the 25th July.

I hope government will be satisfied, upon this occasion, with the conduct of the troops of the allied army under my immediate command.

The enemy's army, having received considerable reinforcements, and been equipped anew, since its last defeat, made a formidable effort to raise the blockade of Pamplona, with the whole of its forces; the reserve, under Gen. Villart, expected which remained in front of such of our troops as cover the Iron high road. This attempt being frustrated by the operations of part only of the allied army; and the French army has sustained a fresh defeat, and lost a great many officers and men.

The enemy's hopes of obtaining greater advantages than the first which he had in contemplation—the raising of the blockade of Pamplona—were certainly very sanguine; and, accordingly, brought to Spain a numerous body of cavalry, and a great many pieces of cannon, although neither arm could, generally speaking, be advantageously used by either army in the battle which we have fought. In the evening of the 28th they sent off the artillery to San Juan de Pied de Port: owing to which precaution it has reached the French Territory.

From the detailed account of the operations Y. E. will perceive how much reason I have to be pleased with the conduct of all the Generals, Officers and Men. It is impossible for me to express the enthusiasm and gallantry of the 4th division and I am greatly indebted to Lt. Gen. Sir L. Cole, for the able manner in which he conducted the operations of this division. I am equally so to M. Gen. Ross, Anson and Bing, and to Brigadier Gen. Campbell in the Portuguese service. The Commandants and Officers of Regts. distinguished themselves by their gallantry; but I took particular notice of that of Lt. Col. O'Toole of the 7th chasseur, in the charge with the bayonet, upon our left on the 28th, and of that of Capt. Talles Jordan, of the 11th both Portuguese, in the attack of the 30th on the mountains.

I ought not to pass over in silence the particular services rendered during these operations by Lt. Gl. Sir Rowland Hill, Lord Dalhousie and Sir T. Picton; nor can I avoid mentioning that Lt. Gen. Count de la Bisbal has given me as much assistance as lay in his power, and was consistent with the attention which he was to pay, above all things to the blockade of Pamplona. I have already told Y. E. what was the conduct of the Regts. of Pravia el Principe, belonging to the army of Andalusia, which were placed in a most critical situation; and all the corps which occupied the same positions, proved themselves animated by the same zeal and spirit.

Marshal Sir W. Beresford has accompanied me throughout these operations, and gave me great assistance for which he is perfectly qualified by his brilliant talents.

The conduct of the Portuguese Officers and men in all the operations of this campaign and the spirit which they display upon every occasion, do no less credit to the military character of the nation to which they belong, than to the officer, who by his judicious measures, has restored discipline in their army, and revived its military spirit.

I am likewise bound to mention the important services rendered during these operations by M. Genl. Pakenham, Adj. Genl. as well as by the Officers of their respective Departments; and likewise by Lord Fitzroy Somerset, Lieut. Col. Campbell and the Officers of my personal staff.

I send this dispatch to Your Excellency by Colonel Guychochea, Adjutant of the Staff, and recommend this officer to your Excellency's protection.—May God, &c.

(Signed) WELLINGTON.
Duke of Ciudad Rodrigo.

St. Estevan, August 1, 1813.

P. S.—I omitted to state to Your Excellency, in the body of this account, that the troops of the Maya pass lost four Portuguese guns on the 25th July. General Pringle, who commanded, when the attack commenced, ordered them to be withdrawn towards Maya; and when Lt. Ol. Stewart came up, he directed them to be brought back, and withdrawn by the road over the mountain of Elizondo. While this was executing, the enemy took possession of the pass; the communication which that road was intercepted, and, therefore, the pieces could not be brought off.

I inclose to your Excellency returns of the losses which we sustained in the siege of San Sebastian, from the 7th to the 27th of July; and of those killed, wounded, taken, and dispersed, we have had in the operations from the 25th of last month to the 1st instant.

To His Excellency Don Juan O'Donoghue.

No. 2.

MOST EXCELLENT SIR.—Colonel Guychochea having been detained to this day, to give time to collect the returns relative to the accompanying account of the operations to the 1st inst. I have to add, for your Excellency's information, that the enemy still maintained himself, on the morning of the 2d with two divisions, in the Echalar pass, with the best part of his army behind the same pass, where it was found by the 4th, 7th and light divisions of this army, when they advanced through the valley of the Bidason, towards the frontier; and that I had determined to dislodge him by means of a combined movement of the said Divisions. But the 7th division having marched over the mountains from Subilla, it necessarily arrived before the others; and, Gl. Barne's brigade being drawn up for the attack, it proceeded to execute it without the 4th and light divisions being able to co-operate with it. Seldom or never have I seen troops march to the attack in such high order and with so much gallantry, nor drive the enemy, with greater facility, from the formidable heights which he occupied, notwithstanding his obstinate resistance.

It is impossible for me adequately to praise the conduct of Maj. Gen. Barne and of his gallant troops who were the object of the admiration of all who witnessed their cool intrepidity. The brigade of the light division, under the command of Maj. Genl. Kempf, likewise drove a considerable force from the rock which forms the left of the Echalar pass—At present there is no enemy in this part of the frontier of Spain. While the troops were employed in the environs of Pamplona, as stated in my dispatch of the 1st inst. Brig. Genl. Longa occupied, with his Division, this part of the Bidason, the town of Vera included. That part of the enemy's army which was left behind to watch the allied troops on the Iron high road, attacked him on the 28th and he drove it back with considerable loss. It affords me great satisfaction to state to your Excellency that these troops have behaved very well upon every occasion. In this instance I have likewise to praise the conduct of a battalion of Spanish Chasseurs of Gen. Barceña's division, belonging to the Army of Galicia, which, on the 1st inst. was sent to the Yuncy brigade, and held out during great part of that day against vastly superior numbers of the enemy on his retreat.

Camp-Marshal Espana's division of the 4th Army having joined us, I have entrusted him with the blockade of Pamplona, reinforcing him with a detachment of the Army of reserve of Andalusia, Count de la Bisbal with the remainder of this army, has incorporated himself with the allied one, under my immediate command.

Nothing particular has occurred in Arragon since I wrote to your Excellency, on the 18th of July.—May God preserve, &c.

(Signed) WELLINGTON,
Duke of Ciudad Rodrigo.

P. S. I inclose the return of killed, wounded, taken and dispersed, we had in Gen. Barne's action on the 2d instant.

To His Ex'y. Don Juan O'Donoghue.

GIBRALTAR, August 18.

In consequence of the receipt of the above gratifying intelligence, every public demonstration of joy was last night exhibited throughout the Garrison. A Royal Salute was fired from the Saluting Battery and by the shipping in the Bay, and a feux de joie by the troops; which, together with the splendor of a general illumination, produced a most happy effect.

WASHINGTON CITY, September 25.

Copy of a letter from Commodore Perry to the Secretary of the Navy.

U. S. Schooner Ariel, Put-in-Bay,
13th September, 1813.

SIR.—In my last I informed you that we had captured the enemy's fleet on this lake. I have now the honor to give you the most important particulars of the action. On the morning of the 10th inst. at sun-rise, they were discovered from Put-in-Bay, where I lay at anchor with the squadron under my command. We got under weigh, the wind light at S.W. and stood for them. At 10 A.M. the wind hauled to S.E. and brought us to windward: formed the line and bore up. At 15 minutes before 12, the enemy commenced firing; at 15 minutes before 12 the action commenced on our part. Finding their fire very destructive, owing to their long guns, and its being mostly directed at the Lawrence, I made sail and directed the other vessels to follow, for the purpose of closing with the enemy. Every brace and jowline being soon shot away, she became unmanageable, notwithstanding the great exertions of the sailing-master; in this situation she sustained the action upwards of two hours within cannon-distance, until every gun was rendered useless, and the greater part of the crew either killed or wounded. Finding she could no longer annoy the enemy, I left her in charge of Lieut. Yarnall, who, I was convinced from the bravery already displayed by him, would do what would comport with the honor of the flag.

At half-past two, the wind springing up, Capt. Elliott was enabled to bring his vessel, the Niagara, gallantly into close action; I immediately went on board of her, when he anticipated my wish, by volunteering to bring the schooners which had been kept astern by the lightness of the wind, into close action. It was with unspeakable pain that I saw, soon after I had got on board the Niagara, the flag of the Lawrence come down, although I was perfectly sensible that she had been defended to the last, and that to have continued to make a show of resistance would have been a wanton sacrifice of the remains of her brave crew. But the enemy was not able to take possession of her, and circumstances soon permitted her flag again to be hoisted. At 45 minutes past two, the signal was made for 'close action.' The Niagara being very little injured, I determined to pass through the enemy's line, bore up, and passed ahead of their two ships and a brig, giving a raking fire to them from the starboard guns, and to a large schooner and a sloop, from the larboard side at half-pistol shot distance. The smaller vessels at this time having got within grape and cannoner distance, under the direction of Capt. Elliott, and keeping up a well directed fire, the two ships, a brig, and a schooner surrendered, a schooner and a sloop making a vain attempt to escape. Those officers and men who were immediately under my observation, evinced the greatest gallantry, and I have no doubt that all others conducted themselves as became American officers and seamen. Lieut. Yarnall, first of the Lawrence, although several times wounded, refused to quit the deck. Midshipman Forrest, doing duty as lieutenant, and sailing-master Taylor, were of great assistance to me. I have great pain in stating to you the death of Lieut. Brook of the marines, and midshipman Lamb, both of the Lawrence, and midshipman John Clarke, of the Scorpion; they were valuable and promising officers. Mr. Hambleton, purser, who volunteered his services on deck, was severely wounded in the action. Midshipmen Claxton and Swartout, of the Lawrence, were severely wounded. On board of the Niagara, Lieut. Smith and Edwards, and midshipman Webster, behaved in a very handsome manner.—Capt. Brevoort, of the army, who acted as a volunteer in the capacity of a marine officer on board that vessel, is an excellent and brave officer, and with his musketry did great execution. Lt. Turner, commanding the Lacedonia, brought that vessel into action in the most able manner, and is an officer that in all situations may be relied upon. The Ariel, Lt. Parker, and Scorpion, sailing-master Champlain, were enabled to get early into action, and were of great service. Of Capt. Elliott, so well known, it would be almost superfluous to speak. He has given me the most able and essential service.

I have the honor to enclose you a return of the killed and wounded, together with a statement of the relative force of the squadrons. The Captain and First Lieutenant of the Queen Charlotte, and First Lieutenant of the Detroit, were killed. Capt. Barclay, the senior officer, and the Commander of the Lady Prevost, severely wounded. The Commander of the Hunter and Chippawa slightly wounded. Their loss in killed and wounded I have not been able to ascertain, it must, however, have been very great.

I have the honor to be, Sir, very respectfully,
Your obedient Servant,
O. H. PERRY.

The Hon. W. Jones, Secretary of the Navy.

Extract of a letter from Commodore Perry.

U. S. Schooner Ariel, Put-in-Bay, 18th Sept. 1813.
Sir—I have caused the prisoners taken on the 10th instant, to be landed at Sandusky, and have requested Gen. Harrison to have them marched to Chillicothe, and there wait until your pleasure be known respecting them.

The Lawrence has been so entirely cut up, it is absolutely necessary she should go into a safe harbor. I have therefore directed Lieut. Yarnall to proceed to Erie in her, with the wounded of the fleet, and dismantle and get her over the bar as soon as possible.

The two ships in a heavy sea this day at anchor, lost their masts, being much injured in the action. I shall haul them in the inner bay at this place, and moor them for the present. The Detroit is a remarkable fine ship, sails well, and is very strongly built. The Queen Charlotte is a much superior vessel to what has been represented. The Lady Prevost is a large fine schooner.

I also beg your instructions respecting the wounded. I am satisfied, Sir, that whatever steps I might take, governed by humanity, would meet your approbation. Under this impression, I have taken upon myself to promise Captain Barclay, who is very dangerously wounded, that he shall be landed as near Lake Ontario as possible, and I had no doubt you would allow me to parole him. He is under the impression, that nothing but leaving this part of the country will save his life. There is also a number of Canadians among the prisoners, many who have families.

I have the honor to be, Sir, very respectfully, your obedient Servant,
O. H. PERRY.

The Hon. W. Jones, Secretary of the Navy.

The exact number of the enemy's force has not been ascertained, but I have good reason to believe that it exceeded ours by nearly one hundred men.

Number of killed and wounded on board the squadron under my command—Lawrence 22 killed and 61 wounded—Niagara 2 killed and 25 wounded—Caledonia 9 wounded—Somers 2 do.—Ariel 1 killed and 3 wounded—Trippie 2 wounded—Scorpion 2 killed.—Total 27 killed and 96 wounded. Whole No. 123.

AVIS public est par le présent donné que le Soussigné s'adressera par Pétition à la Législature, à sa prochaine Session, pour avoir le Privilège exclusif d'exécuter le Pont pour passer sur le Pont érigé sur la Rivière St. Charles, communément appelé le Pont de St. Louis, aux conditions d'attacher ledit Pont en état de réparations.

Québec, le 7 Septembre, 1813. P. E. DESBARATS.

Le Soussigné se proposant de construire un Pont Public sur la Rivière Ouelle, à environ une lieue au dessus du Passage actuel, d'ici au premier Juillet prochain, et de l'autre ensuite en construire un de PEAGE sur la même Rivière, dans l'endroit où est le Bac actuel; fait savoir au Public qu'il recevra les Propositions de tous les gens experts en ce genre, pour l'Erection de ces deux Ponts. Et comme il est porté dans la Gazette de Québec un Avertissement de Jacques Morin, qui parait avoir acquis beaucoup d'expérience et d'habileté dans l'art de construire des Ponts, il lui serait particulièrement obligé s'il vouloit lui faire part de ses conceptions, son genre, et sur tout de ses ressources et moyens pour s'assurer à l'ère, on de-dit des Ponts. Il recevra toutes communications à cet égard avec reconnaissance.

Québec 25 Août 1813. PIERRE CASGRAIN.

Le Soussigné prie PIERRE CASGRAIN de la Rivière Ouelle, de n'employer dorénavant la plume de qui que ce soit, pour publier ses petites nouvelles; car à ce compte il se pose à jouer le rôle du sot et de la canne. — Quant aux ressources et moyens pour parvenir à l'érection de ces deux ponts peuvent être calculés en raison de la maize, de la pointure ou du blanc, Casgrain n'a que faire des conseils de quiconque. Car son genre et ses conceptions dans le mécanisme, tôt ou tard, lui mériteront une Patente.
