

NO CHANGE MADE.

OFFICE OF GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT OF METHODIST CHURCH AS IT WAS.

THE PASTORAL TERM QUESTION AROUSES A BIG DISCUSSION.

It is yet to be Concluded—The Report of the Mission Board.

[Special to the Herald.]

(Special to the Herald)

London, Ont., Sept. 14.—The members of the Conference have been all day at committee work and on every hand a disposition is manifested to get through the business as soon as possible. In regard, however, to matter of transfers from one conference to another, it looks as though in the multiplicity of opinions there will probably be no change.

The Itinerary Committee has this subject under debate all the morning and left it just exactly where they began. There was a proposal to make no change to which there were several amendments as to the source of procedure, till one member expressed it, "Everybody seemed to have a plan of his own and no two were alike."

The Book and Publication Committee made some important regulations for the conduct of the Christian Guardian; one being that a page of the paper shall hereafter be given up to correspondence from Winnipeg, and another two pages shall be devoted to an Epworth League Department. Another matter that looks like the recognition of Winnipeg as a Methodist centre was the recommendation that a Branch Book Department be opened there during the next quadrennium if deemed advisable. The sum of $1,000 was also recommended to be voted to the Eastern Branch of the Book Department.

The most important work accomplished by the Committee on superintendence was a recommendation that the name of head of the Conference remain as at present, "The General Superintendent" instead of "Bishop." The New Conference and Bible Committee element in the Committee vigorously opposed any change that would appear to favor of Episcopacy. It is not unlikely that the minority portion of the Committee will

The committee on missions rescinded the motion of Dr. Sutherland, which it had previously adopted, respecting the formation of a General Board of Missions. Instead, it adopted the following: "The General Board shall be composed of the General Superintendent and the officers of the Missionary Society (ex-officio) and twenty-four other members, twelve ministers and twelve laymen to be appointed as hereinafter provided for. For the purpose of representation on the General Board the connection shall be divided into four districts as follows: Eastern district, all that territory comprised in the three Maritime Conferences, East Central District, the territory west of the Maritime Conference and east of the line of Young Street, Toronto, and projected northerly to the northern limit of the work; West Central District, the territory west of the line of Young Street and east of the Manitoba Conference; Western District, all the territory comprised in the Manitoba and the Western Conferences. They shall elect representatives for a term of four years in the following proportion: From the Eastern District four members; from the West Central District, eight members; from the Western District, four members.

The Committee on Missions in the General Conference shall report on within each of the above districts and report to the Conference twice the number of names required and from the list so reported the General Conference shall elect by ballot without discussion the requisite number of persons from such district to constitute the General Board of Missions for the ensuing quadrennium.

London, Ont., Sept. 14.—A somewhat spirited debate took place in the Conference this afternoon on the proposal to amend the duties of the General Superintendent and to alter the power of the office. There had been referred to the Conference all the memorials on the subject, but the report was in effect that no change be made, this being based both on the ground of economy and because it was held that the work had been well performed by one man in the past and could be so performed in the future.

The whole question of the superintendence or three had been fully debated at the Committee meeting, and the proceedings at this afternoon's meeting were in effect practically a repetition of the work done in committee.

On a motion to adopt the report, Dr. Ogden moved an amendment to provide for three superintendents, and an amendment to the amendment was offered. It was on the same general line of proposing three superintendents with some slight variations in the details of their duties. Good speeches were made on all sides of the question, but the ten-minute rule was strictly enforced, and there were several calls for the vote to be taken before the debate was really ended. Finally, on the previous question being moved and carried, Dr. Ogden declined to take any further action on the memorial to close the debate though he had not finished his speech in opening, being choked off by the ten minute rule. He said the action was unjust and Mr. H. H. Moore, who sat next him, declared it "unlawful" as only one layman had been allowed to speak. Both amendments were voted down overwhelmingly and the report of the committee was adopted, leaving the matter as at present.

A clause in the report, which recommended no action on a proposal to change the term of the General Superintendent from eight years to four, was adopted by a large majority.

A clause disapproving of the proposal to change the title of the presiding officer from General Superintendent to Bishop, was also adopted, as was a clause recommending no action on the proposal to change the basis of representation in the Conference from one to twelve, as at present.

A good deal of interest was taken, not alone among the delegates, but also among the occupants of the galleries of the Quarterly Board in the Conference Hall, supplied by a three-fourths vote in the standing Committee, a minister may be placed for a fourth year at a station or mission.

A motion to adopt this Dr. Antille moved to extend the term five years and

SPARRING FOR WIND!

THE CITY COUNCIL NOT ANXIOUS FOR A POLICE INVESTIGATION.

A MOTION CALLING FOR A ROYAL COMMISSION DECLARED OUT OF ORDER.

Finally it was Decided to Call Another Meeting Next Wednesday to Consider the Matter.

[Special to the Herald.]

(Special to the Herald)

The City Council will meet on Wednesday next to consider what is to be done about the matter which has been the subject of the "Perennial Freshness" in a pro-ceedure under the three year system had much to do with bringing people from other churches to the Methodist, and he added that the Methodist singing also contributed to this end, whereupon Rev. Dr. Potts interjected: "Then why not change the choir every three years?" This caused roars of laughter, which was increased when a delegate added: "Some choirs change a row of dentures."

Rev. Dr. Sutherland gave a new turn to the question by moving that the time limit be altered so that the appointments be made from year to year, a minister to be eligible indefinitely so long as he received the three-fourths vote in the quarterly board and a like vote in the Stationing Committee.

Mr. Joseph Gibson made an eloquent plea for the retention of the time limit, and the question was put to a vote which would practically mean the permanent location of the clever or brilliant man at certain points to the detriment of equally deserving but less attractive stations.

Mr. J. M. Aikens took the contra to the stationing from the layman standpoint and argued for the extension of the term. So many motions to speak that the debate was adjourned.

Rev. Dr. Shaw, the secretary of the Conference took his place at the desk again this afternoon after several days' absence caused by indisposition. Tuesday afternoon next has been appointed as the time at which will be introduced the fraternal delegates from the Atlantic States and the Dominion Alliance and the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The report of the General Conference was summarized in the Herald when presented a few days ago, was adopted without discussion.

The evening session was devoted to the reception of fraternal delegates; no business being transacted.

THE HUNTINGDON FAIR.

Thos. Drysdale Takes a Large Share of the Prize Money.

(Special to the Herald)

Huntingdon, Quebec, Sept. 14.—The annual exhibition of the Huntingdon Agricultural Society came to an end to-day and was from beginning to end a success. The attendance was not so large as in past years, but the exhibits were greater, fully eight hundred more entries being received this year than last year. There is not a weak feature in the whole show, and in some respects the classes show some remarkably fine animals. It is only in the heavy draft horses that the show is not up to former strength. The first day was a record for weather, glorious and the crowd fairly large. Rain, however, set in last night and fell for the greater part of this morning. This undoubtedly kept a large number from attending. The judges were busy with their work until a late hour, when it was too late to get the full prize list. The cow that took the first prize in the class of the 3-year old class and owned by R. Robertson, was beaten out by Thos. Drysdale's White Lily. Drysdale also swept everything in Ayrshire herds, grades, etc. Of strangers visiting the show six hundred came from Montreal; on the first day, one hundred and fifty from Massena, and one hundred and thirty from Malone. A balloon ascension and parachute descent was the feature of to-day, amongst the visitors on the grounds were Julius Scriver, M.P., and G. W. Stephens, M.P.P. The horse trotting was postponed on account of the weather.

C.P.R. AND U.S.

The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Inspecting the Company's Transportation in Bond.

Two interesting Americans registered at the Windsor yesterday. They were: B. B. Small, President of the Ogdenburg and Lake Champlain Railway; and Chas. S. Hamlin, Assistant Secretary of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Railway. Both were in the city on business. Mr. Small is returning from a trip to St. Paul and casually mentioned that the C.P.R. was adding up the corn crop in America had fallen off this year over 40 per cent. This he thought was a very remarkable fact here and in the United States as it meant a decrease from a good crop of 2,300 million bushels to 1,600 million which was remarkable. Both Mr. Small and Mr. Hamlin went to Quebec last evening.

TWO LADIES DROWNED.

Sad Accident on Little Lake Near Peterboro.

Peterboro, Ont., Sept. 14.—Mr. H. O. Kerr took Miss Ada Alfred and Miss Maggie Kennedy out for a canoe sail on the Little Lake this evening. The swell of the lake was the cause of the accident. The two ladies were drowned before the assistance arrived. The crew of the steamer rescued Mr. Kerr.

The bodies have not yet been recovered. The sad accident has cast a gloom over the town. The ladies were well known, and were employed in the large dry goods store of Hall, Gilchrist and Co.

The Lepaillieur case was concluded last night. The jury returned a verdict of "suicide" while in a state of insensibility. Several witnesses were examined, who testified that Lepaillieur had expressed the intention to shoot himself. Alexander Favreau gave his reasons to the Coroner for not having appeared in the beginning of the inquest. He feared notoriety, and he had been advised not to appear. He explained his meeting with Lepaillieur, they had gone to see a friend and they had partaken of a couple of glasses of beer only. Lepaillieur several times stated that he was about to set out on a long journey; he often exhibited the revolver. In the hotel the deceased and the witness were seated at a table; deceased took the revolver from his pocket and turned it towards the witness, saying: "I will shoot you if you do not believe in me. If you were not married, I would take you with me." Favreau turned the revolver aside and the other laughed. Finally he went into another apartment and there shot himself. He explained his meeting with Lepaillieur, they had gone to see a friend and they had partaken of a couple of glasses of beer only. Lepaillieur several times stated that he was about to set out on a long journey; he often exhibited the revolver. In the hotel the deceased and the witness were seated at a table; deceased took the revolver from his pocket and turned it towards the witness, saying: "I will shoot you if you do not believe in me. If you were not married, I would take you with me." Favreau turned the revolver aside and the other laughed. Finally he went into another apartment and there shot himself. Favreau gave his reasons to the Coroner for not having appeared in the beginning of the inquest. He feared notoriety, and he had been advised not to appear. RIGHTED AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXIV. (CONTINUED.) "Hate away my dear," he said. This unexpected coolness enraged me...

Then we made peace, and I thought no more about it. A few days afterward her ladyship had a new dress sent down from town...

Shortly afterward Chesam went back to London. Before he left Estmere I had consented to join him, and live with him as his mistress...

I heard nothing from him for two months; at the end of this time Sir Lawrence and Lady Estmere went to spend a couple of weeks at the Dover House...

I detected that dull wretched place, where scarcely a soul came. I was delighted to hear that Chesam was expected there. I knew he came for me, and was determined that, unless he was ready to take me, I would make an end to everything between us...

They dined together. Lady Estmere that evening wore the dress I have spoken of. As I fastened it I did nothing but think how much better I looked in my copy of it than her ladyship did...

"By the bye," he said, "let me see you in the dress I gave you; Lady Estmere has worn hers to-night, so now I shall be able to judge between you."

"I was nothing but to oblige him; but told him I could not do so until my ladyship had gone to bed. Even then I scarcely knew how to manage it; I did not care for any of the servants to accuse me of wearing her clothes, and I did not choose to let Chesam come into my room, nor would I go to his."

"Never mind," he said. "Put your mistress to bed and then change your gown. When you are ready I will look at you in her dressing-room. The door of it is next to my room. No one will come there, and we need not talk and disturb Lady Estmere. I only want to admire you in silence."

His plan seemed a curious one, but I had no idea to what it was tending. The dressing room after Lady Estmere had left it, would be as safe and secret a place of meeting as anywhere in the house. No one would dare enter it. So I agreed to do as he suggested.

Lady Estmere went to bed at an early hour, being, I suppose, anxious to get rid of the hours which separated her from her husband by the aid of sleep. I put her dresses away, then leaving the lamp burning went to my room, changed my dress, and, mightily proud of my appearance, crept back to the dressing-room. Your ladyship will remember that the Dover House is a low building, all the bed-rooms being on one floor, so that in crossing from one room to the other I ran little risk of being observed...

spread the report about that he had been standing that night with Lady Estmere in his arms. (To be continued.)

Milton was not only the greatest epic poet who has lived since Homer, but he was a schoolmaster, and devised for his pupils a plan of education in which the fatigues of study were wisely interspersed with intervals of music.

That old piano on which your children are acquiring false methods and a faulty touch that it may take years of practice afterwards to overcome, should be exchanged for an up to date instrument before this season's work is far advanced.

Last year the objection of the ladies to exhibiting fancy work at the Central Canada Fair was owing to the fact, they said, that glass cases were not provided in the Ladies' Department.

MONTREAL, SEPTEMBER 15.

THE COMMERCIAL SITUATION.

The past week has developed a little more activity in business circles, but caution prevails, and there is no doubt that the banks are exerting a conservative influence upon customers who are disposed to place too high a value upon the advantages of the United States tariff and other indications of improvement. The grain question at present absorbs a good deal of attention. Reports from the Northwest are most favorable. A crop from three to five million bushels in excess of that of last year is anticipated, which means from 15,000,000 to 17,000,000 bushels. The eastern grain standards were to have been settled yesterday at the meeting of government examiners at the Toronto Board of Trade, and will cover all grain transactions east of Port Arthur. The western standards will be decided in Winnipeg on Tuesday next. Wheat dealers would do well to keep in mind Bradstreet's remarks on the situation. "A grand total of 88,358,000 bushels of wheat in the United States and Canada on 1st instant means a gain of about 18,000,000 bushels compared with September 1st last year, when the increase as compared with September 1st, 1892, was about 24,000,000 bushels. On September 1st in the years 1889-90-91 the average grand total of Canadian and American wheat stocks available was not far from 28,000,000 bushels, less than one-third what they are to-day, when they are 25 per cent. larger than one year ago. Available supplies of wheat in the United States, and Canada increased 14,835,000 bushels last month, the heaviest increase recorded for any month of August, the next heaviest being that in August, 1892, 14,374,000 bushels. Stocks of wheat afloat for and in Europe during August, decreased 4,260,000 bushels; but in August, 1893, wheat afloat for and in Europe showed an increase of a little more than 1,000,000 bushels, while in 1892 August supplies in sight in Europe and on the high seas bound therefor increased 104,000 bushels. The grand total of stocks of wheat in and afloat for Europe September 1 amounted to 63,264,000 bushels, 15,700,000 bushels less than were so reported one year ago and 1,300,000 bushels less than were so reported two years ago, with which exceptions the total for September 1, 1894, is the heaviest reported for any like date."

It is not many years since United States iron began to compete in Canadian markets with that of Great Britain, and for some time it was thought a useless fight. Recently, however, there has been every indication that Canada is looking more and more across the line for her supplies, and while the Scotch and English pig worthily hold a high place in the estimation of the world, the wonderfully rich ores of our neighbor—which we can rival, but to our shame do not—makes the battle a serious one. In this connection the following from the Commercial Bulletin, of New York, will be interesting to Canadian iron merchants. "Comparing prices of 1894 with those of 1890, we find that Cleveland and Lake Superior, specular, No. 1, non-Bessemer, has fallen one-half, from $6 to $3; Gogebic, Marquette and Menominee No. 1 Bessemer hematite, has fallen more than one-half, from $6 to $2.75, and Minnesota No. 1 Bessemer has fallen nearly one-half, from $6.50 to $3.35. As it takes nearly two tons of ore for a ton of pig iron, this decline in ore would account for a fall of nearly $6 a ton in pig. The decline in No. 1 anthracite foundry pig in Philadelphia was $5.62, and the decline of Bessemer pig at Pittsburgh was $7.30. The decline in pig iron, then, is only slightly at the expense of the furnaceman; nearly all of it is accounted for in the reduction in ore. Nor has the railmaker suffered by the decline. The difference between rails and billets was $1.43 in 1890, and $7.25 in 1894. The difference between rails and Bessemer pig was $12.00 in 1890, and $12.45 in 1894. The railmaker's margin has not been reduced materially on the basis of pig, and it has increased on the basis of billets. The furnaceman's margin has been reduced very slightly, and the great reduction in ore is accounted for by a reduced cost production; this is due partly to the development of very rich deposits, and partly to the rise of machinery for digging and loading the ore."

The decline being of nature's own making and not at the expense of man, the United States is likely to increase its activity in this branch of trade, and to export more abundantly than ever. Canada affords ample facilities for iron and smelting. Her ores equal those of the United States in richness, and although situated in many cases far from coal, they are adjacent to forests, and we could produce charcoal iron, the purest of all, at a cost that no other country could rival. The production of this class of pig is limited, and there is no reason why a profitable industry could not be developed in it.

The quietude of the past summer in Canada is pretty well indicated by the last statement of the Harbor Commissioners, which shows a decrease of $22,500 in imports, and $8,500 in exports, for the season up to 1st September. The number of vessels arriving also shows a decline, being 433 vessels against 486, and the tonnage was 635,312 against 741,550. The American tariff, however, promises to improve matters. Ottawa has experienced quite a boom in the shipment of lumber, most of which is understood to have been bought some time ago, but shipment of which was delayed until the settlement of the tariff. In groceries, sugars and teas continue in good demand, while coffee has advanced 1c per pound on grades of choice mocha. New crop raisins are just arriving. Canned goods are in fairly active demand, at unchanged prices. The dry goods trade has been good during the past week. All lines of fall goods are now in demand. In connection with this branch of trade, a recent attempt on the part of print manufacturers to inaugurate a uniform scale of prices for retailing has just fallen through, the offer of a discount of from 10 to 12 1/2 per cent. failing to get the retail men to fall into line. Chemicals are fairly active, and an improvement is to be noted in paints, oils, and glass. Activity still rules in the hide market. The local receipts of flour have doubled, and prices are well maintained. The bakers are contemplating an increase in the price of bread. The receipts of wheat were 125,224 bushels, against 208,377 a week ago. The quotations here are 66 to 67 cents for hard No. 1, nominal. New Ontario red winter would probably not exceed 60 cents here. No. 1 hard Manitoba is being offered afloat at Fort William at 57 cents. Cheese is quieter at last, as was to be expected. England seems to have about all it wants at present. The shipments were 45,383 boxes, against 43,138 last year, and the total to Sept. 7th was 981,692, against 897,144.

The local money market remains unchanged at 4 per cent. for call and 6 to 7 for mercantile loans. The local stock exchange has been active, especially in Gas stock, which jumped up half a dozen points on a renewed rumor of amalgamation. The activity on the exchange was reflected in the clearing house returns, which are larger than for the corresponding period last year.

A NOTABLE CONVERT.

It is easy to agree with Mr. Henry Miles, who has sent the press a letter on the recent custom seizures, that the system is an unjust one. Ever since the elaborate provisions for the enforcement of the customs act, which is the especial pride of the existing Government were first brought into effect, the Liberal press has protested that those provisions constitute an outrageous infringement upon the liberty of commerce, and are apt to exercise a demoralizing influence upon customs officials and others who may seek to enrich themselves in the sharing of the proceeds of customs seizures. It is plainly an injustice—so plainly, indeed, that it is strange that in an enlightened community it should have been permitted to exist so long—it is plainly an injustice that upon the statement of a mere suspicion the operations of reputable commercial concerns may be interrupted, the credit of the concerns impaired and the character of the proprietors assailed. Upon such a statement the customs officers may enter any premises, seize any books of the concern which may be under suspicion, and interrupt indefinitely the workings of the business. Whether the proprietors are guilty or not guilty of fraudulent entries, whether the difference between the importer and the customs authorities be the fault of the latter or of the former, however the affair may result, the fact remains that the customs officer is encouraged to commit legalized trespass. Under the protective system, no man's house is his castle. Freedom is beaten down by a system of espionage and seizure which is rather bettered by the system in operation under any absolutism in the world.

All this has been freely stated by the Liberal press when occasion has offered, while the Conservative press has defended the system or, at best, remained silent. But in the case of the recent seizures of jute, it happened to be such friends of the Government as Senator Drummond, John F. Stairs and A. W. Morris who were put to inconvenience, whose business was interrupted, whose credit was hurt, so far as it might be hurt by trouble with the customs, and whose characters were assailed, so far as they might be assailed in such case. The Gazette, accordingly, which would have remained silent forever had not its masters been touched, has come out with an article in which it begins in the finest strain of that plausibility which it keeps on tap, and ends by working itself up into an adjectival fuge. It can find nothing too hard to say of the system, even though it seeks to imply that the latest victims, by virtue of their respectability, should have been exempt from its operations. The Gazette is welcome to the ranks of the opponents of the tyrannies of the customs act, however much it may have been impelled to its present conviction by the woes of its own friends.

SENTENCES GIVEN.

TWO YEAR TERMS FOR HIGGINS AND ARCHAMBAULT.

TEN YEARS FOR GAUTHIER, CONVICT OF RAPE.

Gauthier Fined That he Would be Sent to the Scaffold.

The Court of Queen's Bench resumed yesterday at 10.30, Judge Wurtelle presiding. The business opened with the rendering of sentences on the prisoners already found guilty.

Edward Higgins, found guilty of stealing a lady's watch, pleaded for mercy on account of his aged father and mother as he was their only support. He promised to be a good boy when he came out of jail.

The judge—"I have no doubt whatever that you are guilty of the charge. You aggravated that charge by stating what was not true in the witness box. You aggravated it still further by putting your sister and relations into the box to swear falsely to a concocted story made up by you. I could give you fourteen years in the penitentiary, but taking into consideration your youth I will give you one more chance. I sentence you to two years in the penitentiary."

Alexander Dupont, found guilty of an aggravated assault upon Raphael Marks at St. Lazare, was given two years in the penitentiary.

The now notorious J. Bpte. Archambault found guilty of an indecent assault upon a 14 year old girl was then brought forward. The utmost sentence prevailed while the judge gazed at him for a few seconds. "You have been found guilty," said the judge "of a most outrageous and abominable crime. You have shown that you have no moral sense whatever. Had it not been for the jury bringing in a recommendation for mercy, you would have received the maximum sentence, but I am disposed to accept that recommendation in consideration of your youth. I also will spare you the infliction of the lash. I sentence you to two years and hope you will lead a better life when your term expires."

The last one called up was Louis Gauthier found guilty of rape on a young girl in a boat of Longueuil. The offence had been proved by the evidence to be a most heinous one brutally carried out, and those in Court expected a heavy sentence.

This crime is in the discretion of the Judge, one which carries a capital sentence and when Judge Wurtelle put on his hat everyone expected a sentence of death.

The judge said: "The crime you have committed, and for which you have been found guilty, is one that empowers me to send you to the scaffold. (Sensation.) But (after an ominous pause) I will not send you to it. I have pity on you and will give you one more chance to retrieve your fallen ways. Therefore, I take off my hat."

A gasp came from the prisoner's mouth and he shook as if seized with ague.

Continuing the Judge said: "You have taken away the purity of a young girl. You have blasted her whole life, you a father of a family who should be the first one to protect the innocence of a young girl. You are sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary."

The Judge then had the young girl Blanche Lemire, the victim of Archambault, and her little brother brought into Court, and ordered High Constable Bissonnette to take the girl to the Bon Pasteur Convent to be kept until such time as the Court required and the boy taken to the Reformatory.

The following prisoners against whom the Grand Jury brought in true bills yesterday were then arraigned.

Arsene Pharo, theft, pleaded not guilty, and trial not fixed.

Edward Bolduc, nuisance in keeping roosters to the annoyance of his neighbors, also pleaded not guilty. The Judge said the case had better come up after the old cases had been disposed of, as it was likely to be a long one.

Achille Levesque and Joseph Levesque, the two brothers engaged in the St. Lazare assault case, who are fugitives from justice, were next called, but failed to respond, and bench warrants were ordered to be issued.

John Chitty, for theft of a lady's gold watch pleaded not guilty, and his trial was fixed for Monday, the 17th.

James Fenton, pocket picking, pleaded not guilty. Trial Monday.

Clara Williamson, accused of unlawfully concealing a young girl for immoral purposes, pleaded not guilty.

Mr. St. Pierre, Q.C., informed the Judge that before the plea of not guilty was put in he wished to inform him that the accused had—about two weeks since—been tried on a similar charge, evidence not being sufficient to convict. Unfortunately he had discovered that the Recorder's Clerk had not made the entry to the effect that she was actually discharged on the proper papers. It was merely a clerical error, but he was in doubt whether it would not be proper for him to put in two pleas, one of autofs acquit and another of not guilty. He asked that the plea be allowed to stand for a few days to permit him to look up authorities.

The Judge gave him until Monday next. Alexis Huton was called forward to answer to the charge of Procreation. She pleaded not guilty, and Mr. B. Lemieux, her counsel, said he was ready to proceed at any time.

Louis Larive was found guilty on five indictments for forgery and one for theft, made default, and a Bench warrant was ordered.

This concluded the list of arrangements, and the trial of Louis Mainville and Zavier Charest, was continued.

The jury after fifteen minutes deliberation in the Mainville and Charest case brought in a verdict of guilty.

The Judge at once called them to the bar and after saying that he thoroughly coincided with the verdict, sentenced both of the prisoners to five years in the penitentiary.

The trial of William Moore, the long haired sharp shooter and pal of William Young, alias the "Kite," charged with flim-flamming, began. At 6.30 the evidence was all in and the Court adjourned until to-day.

THE FIJI REBELLION.

Found Guilty of Murder and Executed
Victoria, B. C., Sept. 14.—News from Fiji that the trial of the ring-leaders and principal actors in the recent devil-worship rebel tribes of Fiji was concluded at Nava. Six prisoners captured by the king's troops were arraigned for murder and after a most sensational trial sentenced to death. One of the condemned was a boy of about 16, who was said to be responsible for the entire tragedy, he having proclaimed himself devil-priest and urged his fellow tribesmen to return to an ancient custom of He and superstitious worship. In consideration of his youth the executive council subsequently commuted his sentence to ten years imprisonment, at the same time retaining the capital penalty in the cases of two others who will serve in chains for 20 years. The two oldest and merest of the rebels were executed on the 10th of August. There is said a certain amount of disgust throughout the islands.

A $500 FIRE.

A Stable Burned at 135 Young Street.

Two alarms in quick succession from the crowded tenement district between Colborne and Young Streets, brought out the western section of the brigade shortly after one o'clock yesterday afternoon. Smoke poured in torrents from the yards immediately adjoining St. Ann's Christian Brothers School, and the wildest rumors spread that the school, in which were several hundred children, was on fire. When the firemen arrived it was found that the fire had broken out in Lawrence Rosseter's stable, at the rear of 135 Young Street. Fortunately there were no horses in it at the time but the quantity of hay, straw, and feed in the loft was totally destroyed. The sheds on either side were badly scorched. The sheds belonging to John Donnelly, grocer, 138 Colborne Street, and James Farrell, as well as Patrick Hines' stable are all built up against Rosseter's stable, and the flames soon communicated to them. It was only by the exertions of the firemen that they were saved. Donnelly had a lot of furniture, wood and coal in his shed, and his loss will be heavy. The total damage was about $500, with a small amount of insurance. Chief Benoit directed the brigade. Speaking to a Herald reporter afterwards he remarked that this made one hundred fires more this year than up to the same date last year.

A GAMBLER FINED.

He Pleaded Guilty and Paid $25.

The second and last of the Butcher's Picnic gamblers gave himself up yesterday in the person of Zephraim Laroque, saloon keeper. He, like his confrere Henri Dubois, pleaded guilty before Judge Desnoyers, who fined him $25 and locked him over in $200 on his promising never to gamble again.

ODDFELLOWS IN COURT.

A Legal Case Growing Out of Excelsior Lodge's Secession.

Many prominent Oddfellows were in Court yesterday. A case in which they are interested, was heard by Mr. Justice De Lorimier. The Excelsior Lodge No. 12 I.O.O.F. sued the Loyal Excelsior Lodge No. 6237 I.O.O.F. for a certain sum of money, to which they claimed that they were entitled after secession from the defendant Lodge.

The latter, without going into the merits of the case, pleaded an exception to the form, denying that service was rightly made upon their secretary, according to law, and denying the incorporation of the plaintiffs.

Mr. Morris, upon whom the bailiff's service was made, swore that he was secretary at the time of service of the writ, and he even admitted to the bailiff that he was secretary; but in cross-examination he denied that he was secretary of the lodge which is now being sued. He and other witnesses—Messrs. Gentles and Upton—testified that the defendant lodge no longer exists.

At the time of the secession of plaintiffs from Lodge No. 6237, several members of the latter formed a lodge under the same name, but they rejected the No. 6237. Mr. Norris was made secretary of the new lodge, which is now awaiting a charter from the Manchester Unity lodge, but he was not secretary of the Lodge (defendant). Mr. Madenan appeared for the defendant and Mr. Desmarais for plaintiff.

Judge De Lorimier took the matter en delibere.

SHE HAD NOT BEEN ACQUITTED.

In connection with the remark of Mr. St. Pierre, Q.C., yesterday, in the case of Clara Williamson, alias Smith, whom he said had been acquitted by Deputy Recorder Bourgeois on a similar charge for which she is now to be tried, a Herald reporter called upon Mr. Forget the Recorder's clerk and asked him if it was correct. "Discharged, no," he said. "The case was fixed for yesterday and it was put off to-day on account of the lawyer for the defence asking delay to procure his witness. None of the parties turned up to-day, and, under the circumstances, I have fixed the case for Tuesday next."

Mr. Forget, in fact, returned in the midst of his holidays on purpose to prosecute the case.

The Pilot Protests.
Celestin Brunet, the pilot of the steamship Amaranthia, who was suspended by the Harbor Commissioners on account of the stranding of the steamer, has caused the issue of a writ of certiorari to restrain the Commissioners from adjudicating upon his conduct. He alleges that the Commissioners exceeded their jurisdiction in trying his case, that the majority of them did not agree, and that they acted illegally and unlawfully.

For Perfect Fitting Shirts and Collars, Fine Neckwear, go to Kelly Bros., 1691-1697 Notre Dame.

A Case Arising Out of Labor Day.
Labor Day this year caused a little hitch in the machinery of the Court House. Several writs were to be returned to court on that day, but as a recent statute made the day a holiday, several defendants are seeking to withdraw from the actions taken against them, on the ground that no proceedings could have been taken on that day.

Messrs. Brodeur, M.P., and J. Bernard, had an argument before Judge De Lorimier yesterday on the point. The case was taken en delibere, and the judgment will be awaited with anxiety by a great many.

BREVITIES.

Walter Martin, a saloon keeper at the corner of St. Urbain and Lagacheriere Streets, was arrested yesterday morning by Deputy Mayor Lambert on a warrant charging him with assault, sworn out by one George Pelletier.

The investigation into the grounding of the steamship Meredith opened yesterday at the Harbor Commissioners' Office, but nothing was done, as the boat is not now in port. It was decided to adjourn until next Wednesday, when the Meredith will be back here again.

Mr. Cerat, the Fire Commissioner's constable and secretary, was up before the Mayor yesterday to answer any charges that were made against him. Mr. Alfred Perry, on the other hand, was in the same place to ask that another man be appointed to replace Mr. Cerat. Mayor Villeneuve said that he would refer the matter to the City Council.

Judge Pagnuelo yesterday quashed the capias in the case of Oswald Mosley vs. Owen Kelly. The latter was indebted to the former, and sold his saloon before paying his indebtedness. His Honor held that there was no fraudulent intention on the part of Kelly. The capias was quashed, but as Mosley had grounds for acting as he did, the defendant was condemned to pay costs.

QUEBEC'S FAIR.

THE EXHIBITION COMING TO AN END IN RAIN.

INTERESTING EXHIBITS BY MR. JOLY AND MR. WARD.

Dairymen Awarded Their Premiums.

(Special to The Herald)

Quebec, Sept. 14.—The attendance today at the Exhibition is very small. This may be accounted for by the fact that excursions are over and rain is coming down. The programme was not followed this morning. The Hungarian band is the only one on the grounds. "Commended" cards and diplomas were handed to the majority of the exhibitors. In almost every instance where objection was made these were specified for medals. The exhibitors both local and outside are indignant because practically no distinction has been made in making awards.

The prizes given by Hon. Mr. Laurier and Hon. Mr. Sheyn for the best display of boots and shoes and for the best prepared leather were awarded to Messrs. G. Bresse & Co., and Cantin & Bresse. Lieut.-Gov. Chapleau and the Hon. Mr. Beaubien had to pay admission to the Fair Grounds yesterday. Both were exceedingly annoyed.

The balloonist had some hard work to get his balloon this morning. It fell in the river yesterday and was picked up by a tug. The owners of the boat claimed salvage which the balloon man refused to pay but he finally got it.

Hon. H. G. Joly de Lotbiniere has a very interesting exhibit in the skating rink. It consists of specimens of grafted woods. The proper and wrong ways of grafting are shown in detail.

In the forestry exhibit are displayed three white pine deals, 25 inches wide, planned on one side and exceeding fine specimens. They are shown by the Hon. J. K. Ward.

The following prizes have been awarded in the dairy department:

CHEESE BUTTER.
Made by any butter factory or creamery—1st prize, Felix Leclerc, Cap Sante; 2, Oneime Mercier, St. Charles; 3, A. A. Fraser, Graville; 4, St. Panchal, creamery, St. Panchal.

DAIRY BUTTER.
1, J. G. Mair, Howick; 2, N. P. Emerson, Sutton Junction; 3, H. P. Hebert, Normand; 4, Jean Maranda, St. Laurent, Island of Orleans.

Special prize given by Hon. P. Landry for best sample export butter at least 60 lbs, was awarded to Prefontaine and Frere, Isle Verte.

PRINT BUTTER.
1, Jean Maranda, St. Laurent, Island of Orleans; 2, A. McCallum and Son, Danville; 3, Wm. Foyer, Quebec.

CHEESE—WHITE FACTORY.
1, Ernest Beauchemin, Castle Bar; 2, John Morris, Upton; 3, Gardner Bros., St. Louis Station; 4, Jos. Roy, St. Malo.

COLORS CHEESE.
1, Henry Cote, St. Anne, Co. Chicoutimi; 2, Achille Belisle, Montreal; 3, E. H. Spur, Abbott's Corners; 4, Gardner Bros., St. Louis Station.

Special prize given by Jules Tessier, M.P.P., for the best tub of butter weighing at least 30 lbs., and made in the county of Portneuf was awarded to J. M. Bernard, Cap Sante.

Collection of 10 small cheeses for local consumption. 1, A. MacCallum, Malbaie; 2, P. E. Hudon, Hebertville.

Half-dozen cream cheese not exceeding 10 lbs. each—1, F. D. Parsons, Guelph, Ont. Special prize given by Jules Tessier, M.P.P., best cheese, month of August, 30 lbs and made in the district, was awarded to Felix Leclerc, Cap Sante.

Special prize given by Mr. C. Fitzpatrick, M.P.P., for the best tub of butter weighing at least 50 lbs, made in the County of Quebec—1, Edmund Mason, Stonelam; 2, Besport Creamery, Cap Sante.

The protest of Mr. Allen Phillips, of Montreal, in connection with the medal having been awarded to the horse of the Haras National which had previously won the second prize, while his horse had been given the first, one was decided yesterday, the judges being Messrs. Grogan, Deschane, of Montreal; Cummings and Hough, of Quebec. The previous decision was maintained.

THE NEW TILING.
The Hochelaga Tile Works, of which O. A. Julien is proprietor, have an exhibit here which is attracting the attention of builders and householders generally. These tiles are in all sizes and colors and are made of a combination of cement and stone. Although the company has only been in existence since last summer their tiles are already placed in many fine buildings in Montreal and an order has been received by Mr. Julien while here to tile the floors of J. B. Laliberte's premises, of Quebec. No finer or inexpensive floor can be used than these tiles for streets, business places, residences, church porches, etc., or for alley ways or sidewalks. An inland floor of these tiles is not only durable but handsome. Mr. Julien's business place is at 47 Robillart Street, Montreal.

THE FAMOUS MILWAUKEE LAGER BEER.
A medal was awarded the exhibit of the Milwaukee Lager Beer Company, of Sherbrooke, P.Q., for the best exhibit of beer. The same distinction was conferred on this company at the Sherbrooke fair. This is an excellent show, especially when it is considered that the Milwaukee Lager Beer Co. has only been in existence for two weeks. But then they are exhibiting and selling the products of the famous Pabst Brewing Company, of Milwaukee, which accounts for this instantaneous success. They are the sole agents in the Province of Quebec for the Pabst beer, and can sell them here as cheaply as they are sold in the United States, by reason of the fact that they do their own bottling. These beers are so popular that they can scarcely fill the orders so far received.

THE BEST BUTTER REFRIGERATOR.
The famous butter refrigerators which are now in almost general use amongst dealers in this product are exhibited in the Skating Rink building by M. Aubin, of 123 Duke Street, Montreal. They are made in all sizes, and the most modern and useful butter refrigerators made. Their ventilation is perfect, and this is a most important point. Their use is almost indispensable to grocers for the proper preservation of butter at all seasons of the year, and the advantage of their use lies, especially for this instantaneous success. They are the sole agents in the Province of Quebec for the Pabst beer, and can sell them here as cheaply as they are sold in the United States, by reason of the fact that they do their own bottling. These beers are so popular that they can scarcely fill the orders so far received.

THE ENGINEERS ENTERTAIN.
A Mery Party at Coteau Last Night.

Coteau Landing, Que., Sept. 14.—A very enjoyable party was given last evening in the Court House by the engineers of the Soulange Canal to their friends of the village and county. The social event was arranged by Mr. Coutlee, assisted by Mr. Wise, Mr. Bailey and others of the engineers' staff. Through the kindness of Mr. F. Stevens, Registrar of the County the audience room of the Court House was secured for the occasion. Mrs. Aylmer acted as host and received the guests who numbered seventy-five. Among them were Mrs. and Miss Penny, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Ayle, Miss Pringle, Miss Frazer, Misses Malloch, Miss McGuire, Miss Harwood, Miss Beattie, Miss Flann, Miss MacDonald, Mr. A. C. Harwood, Mr. M. de Beaulieu, Mr. Perry and others.

Property controlled by the Kensington Land Company is worth inspecting. Call at their office in Temple Building and get particulars of their daily bus service. It will pay you.

THE COTTOLINE EXHIBIT.
In the main building where "Cottoline," the now famous substitute for lard, is exhibited. The booth is prettily arranged and is presided over by Miss Davis, who is assisted by three young ladies. There is always a crowd around this exhibit, who are loud in their praise of the merits of Cottoline after tasting of the cakes, Saratoga chips, etc., made on the spot and baked or fried in Cottoline.

Near the centre of the Skating Rink building is an exhibit which shows that in the manufacture of springs and axles Canada can turn out work which is unequalled in the world. The exhibit in question is that of the Montreal Spring and Axle Works, of which Mr. B. J. J. Leclerc is proprietor. Here are displayed carriage springs and axles, patent equalizing bar springs—springs for railway passenger and freight cars, the latter having been inspected and admired by all railway men in town, and also Mr. Coghlin's patent Unicorn Axle. The exhibit is a centre of attraction for those who appreciate the advantages of the goods shown. Mr. Coghlin is the inventor and patentee of many of these articles. The steel from which they are made is imported by him directly, and there is probably no man in the Dominion who has a more thorough knowledge of the various properties of steel, a fact which his customers are not slow to appreciate. There are freight car springs on exhibition, four of which are guaranteed to sustain a weight of 156,000 pounds, and they are so graded as to give elasticity whether the cars are loaded or not. Mr. Coghlin has also a complete set of American and previous to the advent of the so called national policy when he was able to import raw material free of duty, he was supplying American railways with his springs. The Patent Unicorn Axle shows, which is made of a solid steel, is the best and most complete and quiet running axle manufactured. It is designed to fill all the requirements of the trade, will run 1000 miles with one oiling, and is absolutely dust proof. It has all the advantages of the Collingie and Mail Patent Axles, without the disadvantages which they possess, and is superior to any other axle in the market. It is a heavy weight and the other is a lady's hunter. Both were greatly admired by Lord and Lady Aberdeen on the official opening day. Needless to say each came off with first prize and medal.

Warden King & Son.
One of the great centres of attraction at this show is the immense display of "Daisy" hot water heaters. The firm of Warden King & Son, Craig Street, Montreal, have on exhibition samples of their celebrated "Daisy" furnace, from the smallest size used for residences, up to those suitable for hotels, banks, colleges, churches and schools. These heaters claim to use less fuel, have more rapid circulation and diffuse more heat than any other heater in the market. In evidence of these facts, they have recently received large orders from the Canadian Pacific Railway for some of their largest size boilers, and they also have fitted up some of the residences of our prominent citizens with the "Daisy Heaters." Several orders have been received from the exhibit in Quebec, and it is safe to say, if any prize is awarded to heaters at this exhibition, the "Daisy" will stand a good show of getting it.

Lucania Adds Another to Her Many Records.
London, Sept. 14.—The remarkable performance of the Queen Line steamer Lucania, which arrived at Quebec from New York at 3.47 this morning, as already cabled, has created considerable excitement in shipping circles, and is a matter of public comment. The Lucania's day's run was: 47, 512, 494, 514, 506, and 397, making a total of 2,310 knots, her average speed being 21.84 knots. A singular feature of the trip is the fact that the Lucania's records for both the eastward and westward voyages are identically the same, namely: 5 days 8 hours 38 minutes, but on the present voyage the trip covered a distance of twenty-three miles more than she did on her record-breaking trip last month. The Lucania, by her present performance, now firmly establishes her position as "Queen of the sea," having crossed the ocean in both directions in less time than any other steamer. She holds the highest average hourly speed record—21.89 knots, made in June last, and her 590 knots covered in the day, in October, 1893, is still the record for the longest day's run.

A CROOK CAPTURED.
Well Known in Montreal But Toronto Has Him Now. (Special to The Herald.)
Toronto, Sept. 14.—Detective Mackie yesterday made an important arrest in the person of Joseph Huddle, of Montreal, who also travels under the name of Collins, Cullen and Barland. He is a notorious crook and pickpocket, who evaded a year in the Central Prison for an offence at Dartmouth of twelve years ago who was arrested here two days ago on a charge of picking pockets proved to be "Jack" Huddle, his half brother. Others of the gang are in the city and are being looked for.

Patrons Will Vote Together.
Toronto, Sept. 14.—The Patron members-elect of the Legislature met to-night and decided on their course at the meeting of the Court House by the M.P.P., for Frontenac was elected leader of the party, and John Flynn, senior, member for Haldimand, secretary. It was decided that the Patrons should vote unitedly in the House on all questions, which the majority should decide to be Patrons' questions.

BLENHHEIM PALACE.

THE HOME OF THE HOUSE OF MARLBOROUGH.

Built by a Grateful Nation in Honor of the First Duke.

The Duke of Marlborough makes his debut as a writer in the new number of the Fall Mail Magazine with an article on the youthful Duke, which will be remembered, on Blenheim and its Memorials. The not very long ago succeeded to the palatial residence and pleasant domain in Oxfordshire which a grateful nation in the reign of Queen Anne gifted to the victor of Blenheim. How costly the building was is apparent from the fact that the sum of £500,000 voted for the purpose did not suffice for the completion of the work. It was designed by Sir John Vanbrugh, and is regarded as a grand though heavy monument of his powers as an architect. The length of the principal front from wing to wing, shown in the illustration, is 348 feet. The interior is proportionately magnificent. Blenheim is built upon a near the site of the ancient Manor House of Woodstock rich in associations of mediæval royalty.

When the nation decided to show its gratitude to its great general, the building of the palace was at once begun on the existing site, but difficulties were not long in arising when the Duchess began to long, by her abuse of it, the power which she had always possessed over the Queen; when, too, it was seen that the architect's estimate bore no sort of relation to the actual cost. Vanbrugh was often in the greatest straits for money, and wrote piteously to the Duchess and the Lord Treasurer Godolphin without the slightest effect. Things naturally grew worse when both the Duke and the Duchess were dismissed from all their posts in 1711; and at last in 1721, the disputes culminated in a

GEMS IN VERSE.

Lonely Greatness.
Unto the sea, said God, "I thee create
Naked of all the kind air nourisheth,
From underneath, terrible as death
And bitter and man's life insatiate;
The melancholy wind be thy sole mate;
The blue moon veer thee as she wandereth,
Yet shall thou elude not for these things,
God saith."
"Seeing that for greatness I have made
The great."
O man, if thou, too, from sweet helpful art
Be driven and all the harvest of thine hand,
Fair hopes and fruitful promise, fair from
Remember to be great, accept thy part.
Betrink thee of the waste time sifted sand
And sovereign desolation of the sea.
—James Rhoades.

Tired Mothers.
A little elbow leans upon your knee—
Your tired knee that has so much to bear;
A child's dear eyes are looking lovingly
From underneath a tangle of tangled hair.
Perhaps you do not heed the violet touch
Of warm, moist fingers hanging soft to sight;
You do not prize the blessings overmuch,
You almost are too tired to pray tonight.

But it is blessedness! A year ago
I did not see it as I do today.
We are so dull and that is too slow
To catch the sunshine and the slanting ray—
And now it seems surprising strange to me
That while I wear the badge of motherhood
I did not kiss more oft and tenderly
The little child that brought me only good.

And if some night, when you sit down to rest,
You miss the elbow upon your tired knee—
This restless head from off your breast,
This clinging tongue that chatters constantly;
If from your own the dimpled hands had slipped,
And ne'er would nestle in your palm again;
If the white feet to the grave had tripped,
I could not blame you for your heart's touch.

I wonder that some mothers ever fret
At precious darlings clinging to their gown.
Or that the footprints, when the days are wet
Are ever black enough to make them frown.
If I could find a little muddy boot,
Or cap or jacket on my chamber door,
I could kiss a rosy, restless foot,
And hear it patter in my house once more.

Appropos of the Crown Jewels, to be erected in Westminster, it is worth recalling that a proposal to erect a statue of him in Edinburgh was made in his own lifetime, when a piece of stone for the purpose was hewn and brought to Leith. But before the stone was fashioned into Cromwell's likeness the Protector died, and in consequence of that and of other events which followed, the statue was never finished. Part of it, it is said, was subsequently used in connection with the equestrian statue of Charles II., which stands in Parliament Square, Edinburgh.

Mrs. Green has also received several other handsome presents, from members of the Royal family, including a diamond and sapphire brooch containing a lock of the young Prince's hair from the Duke of York, and a silver cream jug and sugar basin from the Duke and Duchess of Teck.

London is to have a Roman Catholic Cathedral. Mr. J. F. Bentley, the architect, is going to Italy in order to study the ancient Basilican style of architecture. Constantine's Church of St. Peter in Rome is a rough model after which the Cathedral is to be built. According to a Chronicle correspondent, the foundation stone will be laid on the next least of St. Peter and St. Paul, June 27, 1895. The site, which is quite near Westminster Abbey, was bought by Cardinal Manning for £35,000, and now, after six years, the present value of which is £360,000. Exclusive of the site, the Cathedral is estimated to cost a quarter of a million, and in splendor and size is to be the most important church built since St. Paul's Cathedral. It will, moreover, be a church in England since the Reformation, in which the full Roman Catholic Cathedral service will be daily celebrated in all its splendor. The accommodation of the Cathedral will be for 10,000 people, and a lecture hall attached to it will be built to accommodate 2,000. In addition a monastery, refectory, and cloister, for 30 Benedictine monks and 45 lay brothers, who will conduct the choral part of the daily service. It is evident that the Roman Church means to make a great effort in the Metropolis.

Mr. Hall Caine is not one of those men who are afraid of their reputations, and the fact that many critics have dubbed "The Manxman" his masterpiece, has not dissuaded him from the contemplation of a new work, which, of course, he hopes will outlive his last book. The new work, which will have in it something of the military element. The hero, will bear some resemblance to the late General Gordon, a man whose character made a great impression upon Mr. Hall Caine's mind.

The story has been going the rounds that Mr. J. M. Barrie has given up smoking, entirely because of his charming wife's objection to the Lady Nicotine whom the author, as a bachelor, adored so fondly. This has been considered the more noteworthy as Mr. Barrie, before he fell in love with pretty Miss Ansell, had scottfully remarked that he would like to grow a beard, and that he would like to clean his pipes. But Mrs. Barrie has had nothing to do to do with her husband's conversion. He, as is well known, was a smoker of the most inveterate sort, and when he recently became ill all his relatives, as well as his doctors, pointed out to him that he had been smoking too much, and that he should stop when he recovered he resolved not to return to the thralldom of tobacco.

On the Isle of Man a hoard of silver Saxon scabbards has been discovered, the coin whence we get the expression "to pay one's scabbard or tax." They belong to the half century 925-975 A.D., including penates of Athelstan, Edred, Edey, and Edgar, the "Arch-King" of all England. A coin of the first-mentioned King reads: "Edelstan Rex to Bri." The last dates are later than it was thought possible for these coins to have been minted.

Mr. Henry Broadhurst's return to Parliamentary life as member for Leicester will be welcomed by many of his old friends in the House of Commons. In the previous Liberal Administration Mr. Broadhurst occupied the position of Under-Secretary to the Home Department, and Mr. Gladstone is known to have entertained a very high opinion of his capacity. To Henry Broadhurst, as he is familiarly known, belongs the distinction of being the first bona fide workman to be a member of a British Government. Up to ten years ago Mr. Broadhurst was one of the most potent personalities in the Labor movement. But he was swept aside by the rushing tide of democratic opinion, which overwhelmed all the old landmarks, and which swallowed up so many of the old "gang." For a time Mr. Broadhurst was in eclipse, and his defeat at West Nottingham in 1886 showed the decline of his influence. Following his defeat at West Nottingham, Mr. Broadhurst encountered a reverse at Grimsby, where he came forward as successor to the late M. Henri Tousse, the high-minded gentleman who

THE DYNAMITE GUN.

One is a 15-inch gun, 50 feet long, and the other an 8-inch 45 feet long. The 15-inch gun throws shells containing from 50 pounds to 500 pounds of nitro-gelatin. They are mounted on carriages arranged to be turned and elevated by electric power, so that the gunner standing on the platform on the left of the gun has entire control simply by moving levers. He traverses, stops, elevates or depresses without ever once taking his eyes from the sight.

The breach is interlocking. The slightest movement of the breech will make it impossible to fire. Under ground on each side are big chambers and the firing reservoirs. Large wrought iron tubes are connected underground with the gun by two 13-inch cast iron pipes, which connect with a cylinder air pipe in the centre of the gun. The air flows through these pipes into a swing joint which allows for the horizontal plane of the gun, and is then carried through pipes by the side of the carriage to the trunnions of the gun, each of which has a trunnion swing joint that carries the air from the pipes on the side of the carriage to the gun itself, which allows for motion in a vertical direction.

The main barrel of the gun itself is encased in an outer barrel from the trunnions to the breech. The air is conducted from the trunnions to the two barrels in the annular space between the two barrels to the firing valve, which is located in the breech. When this valve is opened the air flows in behind the projectile and starts it forward. When the predetermined amount of air has passed the valve it closes automatically by means of the Rapelle valve. This amount of air can be controlled absolutely, and can be fired at will by the gunner. This alters the range without changing the elevation of the gun.

SATISFACTORY RESULTS.
When the tests were made five rounds, with two interruptions necessitating traversing and elevating because of shells getting in the way, were fired in seven minutes, 53 seconds. Behind the battery is erected a great electric plant necessary to work the guns. The shells are filled in a wooden house still further north. The fuse tests were quite up to the expectations. The range was 2,000, 2,500 and 3,000 yards. The torpedoes all struck in the same small rectangle. When they exploded under the water the sight was a grand one. A mountain of water lashed in foam arose more than 100 feet high in the air, forming a most magnificent series of brilliant cascades—at least an acre of water, sufficient to overwhelm a ship even of the size of the City of Rome. This was one of the most interesting sights of the tests on the grounds.

A very curious thing about the firing of the gun was the absence of the loud report that one might expect. In the powder explosions the roar was almost deafening. When the dynamite gun went off you might stand with your ear to the muzzle and feel no ill effect. It was, comparatively speaking, a pop instead of report. And then the sight of the projectile hurtling through the air. As it was eleven feet long, you could trace its flight from the time it left the muzzle of the gun to its striking the water. Sometimes it wobbled just as a kite

THE MAPLE LEAF FOREVER.

Sketch of the Writer of This National Song.

Alexander Muir, the author of "The Maple Leaf Forever," is a Toronto school master. He was born in Lanarkshire, Scotland, in 1834. He is the son of the late John Muir, who, previous to coming to Canada, taught school in the parish of Lesmahagow, Scotland, and afterwards for many years in the township of Scarborough. Alexander Muir came to Canada an infant in his mother's arms. His early education he received at his father's school at Scarborough, from which he matriculated at Queen's University, Kingston. He graduated and received his degree of B.A. in 1851. Some time after graduation Mr. Muir had an experience which he will never forget. While attempting to save the property of a neighbor from fire, he fell from the roof of a building and narrowly escaped death. After a weary illness of some months he began teaching school at Scarborough, and continued there until 1857. He afterwards taught at Leslieville, Newmarket, Beaverton, and in 1860 he came to this city as principal of one of the public schools. He is at present principal of the Gladstone Avenue public school, one of the largest educational institutions of the city.

THE MAPLE LEAF COMPOSED IN '66.
It was during his labors as teacher at Leslieville in 1866 that he composed "The Maple Leaf," the song which was destined to become the national anthem of his adopted country. One day Mr. Muir was walking home from school and passing through Leslie's nursery, a maple leaf fell from a tree and lodged on the arm of his coat. Young George Leslie, who was with him, suggested that he should write a poem upon the maple leaf. Mr. Muir went to his home and composed the now famous verses, which he handed two hours later to Mr. Leslie at the post-office.

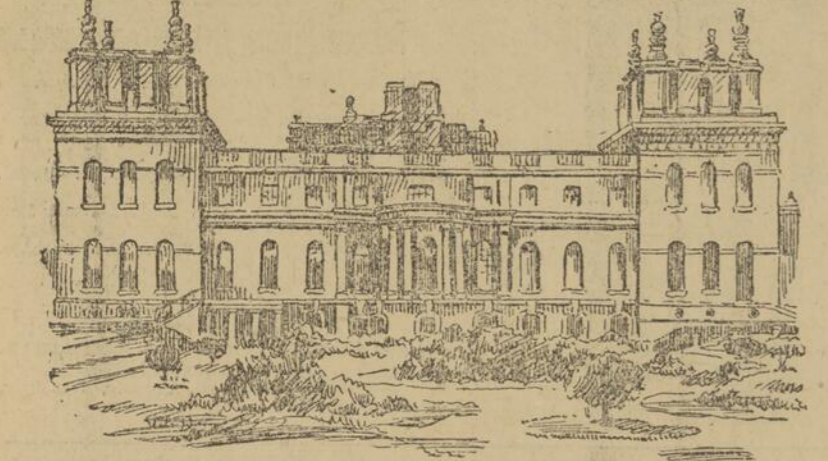

The day following, Mr. Muir, while amusing his children, repeated the verses. Mrs. Muir, who was present, suggested that her husband should set the words to music, and within an hour the strains of "The Maple Leaf" were evolved. Six months later the words and music were published from the office of the Christian Guardian.

The correct version of the song is as follows:

THE MAPLE LEAF FOREVER.
In days of yore, the hero Wolfe,
Britain's glory did maintain,
And planted firm Britannia's flag
On Canada's fair domain,
Here may it wave, our boast our pride,
And, joined in love together,
The Thistle, Shamrock, Rose entwine,
The Maple Leaf forever!

CHORUS.
The Maple Leaf, our emblem dear,
The Maple Leaf forever!
God save our Queen, and heaven bless
The Maple Leaf forever!

On many hard-fought battle-fields,
Our brave fathers, side by side,
For freedom, homes and loved ones
Well fought and nobly died;
And those dear rights, which they maintained,
We swear to yield them, never!
We'll rally round the Union Jack,
The Maple Leaf forever!
In autumn time, our emblem dear,

BLENHHEIM PALACE.

law-suit successfully brought against the Duke by the workmen for arrears of pay, the defendant's contention being that the Treasury was liable for the whole expense. The Duchess vented her displeasure at the unfortunate architect when she never credited with doing anything right. She carefully kept his letters, and made sly endorsements on them for the benefit of her counsel at the trial.

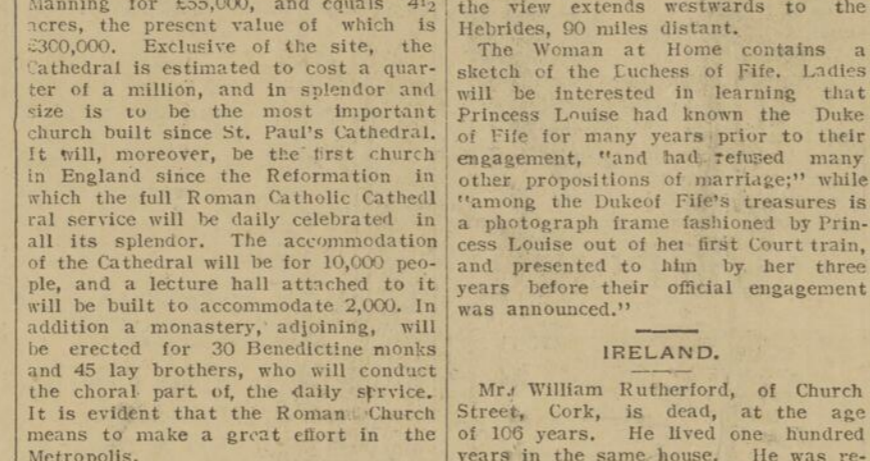

While the Duchess was perpetually involving herself in quarrels with her architect, the Duke was fighting abroad. He was much interested in the house and always looked forward to the time when he should live there in peace. As a matter of fact the main interest of his later life centered at Blenheim. The Duchess had done the lion's share of superintendence; it remained for him to arrange the many works of art he had bought and which had been given to him during the war. He could have wished, he said in a letter while the building was in progress, "that the house had been less so that it might have been sooner finished but, as it will be a monument of the Queen's favor and approbation of my services to posterity, I can't disapprove of the model." That was what Blenheim Palace implied to the Duke; it was to be a splendid memorial of his services to all time.

Of the present condition of the treasures at Blenheim the Duke says in his article, which is altogether historical. He may mention, however, that the gems, paintings, and library were largely dispersed by auction by the late Duke between 1875 and 1886. Eleven of the pictures were offered to the nation for £250,000; and amongst these were the picture of the Virgin and Child, the Annetta Madonna by Raphael, at a cost of £70,000. Among the objects of interest in the grounds of Blenheim are a triumphal arch and a column 130 feet high, surmounted by a statue of Marlborough. An inscription on the pedestal written by Holingsbroke, recites the public services of the hero.

Did Norsemen Discover America?
The Norseman's claims to the discovery of America have found a supporter in Paul Du Chailu, who has spent six years in Denmark, in the course of which, assisted by three secretaries, he studied 1,200 sagas and found descriptions of five distinct voyages of the Vikings from Iceland to America. In a lecture which he recently delivered at the meeting of the Society for the Advancement of Science, in Brooklyn, N. Y., he said that the narratives of these voyages were long and detailed, telling of many experiences. On one trip they sailed so far south that the grass was green all the winter. On another voyage it is told that several barrels of grapes were carried home. Not only the names of the ships but a full list of all the men who took part in these voyages is recorded in the Sagas. The first voyage is said to have taken place in A. D. 985. Mr. Du Chailu told his audience that he is engaged in a history of the Viking voyages from A. D. 800 to the time of William the Conqueror, A. D. 1066.

The Anarchist Brotherhood.
A young anarchist poet, who was among the thirty men recently tried for belonging to an association of manufacturers, was astonished on returning to his lodgings after his acquittal to perceive that almost all his clothes had disappeared. Presently he recognized a pair of his trousers being worn by one of his anarchist companions, and then he saw his frock coat on the back of another, and his jacket worn by a third. The fact was that his anarchist friends, anticipating his conviction, had shared his clothes among them.—Paris Despatch to London Times.

FIRING THE GREAT GUN.

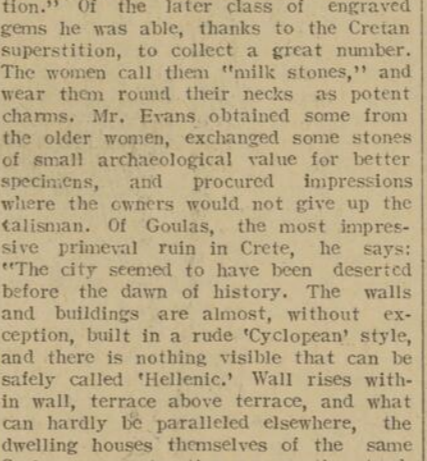

WORLD-OVER.
The Turkish Ministry of Public Works has determined upon the reconstruction of the ancient water conduits of Jerusalem, dating from the time of King Solomon. By this means it would be possible to convey 2,500 cubic metres of water daily to the Holy City. It is proposed to excavate 1,000 metres away free of charge to the poor of Jerusalem, the distribution to take place at the Mosque of Omar, the Holy Sepulchre, and other places frequented by pilgrims. The new conduits are to be joined to the ancient aqueducts of Aroq, and are to be carried through a tunnel 3,570 metres in length. The total outlay in connection with these works is estimated at 2,000,000 francs.

As part of the equipment of the Japanese soldiers ordered to Corea, the Japanese Government has ordered for distribution several thousand copies of the history of a former Japanese invasion of Corea (1592-1593). This is a work entitled "Corean Affairs in the Eras of Bonroku and Kei-choo." The work is said to possess considerable literary merit, and is being distributed among the troops, partly to kindle their patriotism, and partly to relieve the tedium of camp life, and prevent suffering from homesickness.

As set from an exceptional source, says the London correspondent of the New York Times, a hint that the young Khedive may not go back to Egypt at all. He is still in Switzerland, and it is understood at Brindisi, where his yacht is, that when he sails it will be for Constantinople again. The young man is a standing obstacle to the way of the English when he is in Cairo. These present slav-buying prosecutions there, for instance, had to be instituted solely on his account. Since his accession he has had bought for him and conveyed inside the walls of his palace some 300 Nubian and Abyssinian girls, and the knowledge of this has thrown all Cairo back into the morals of Bonnet's time. I am told that fifty other Pashas might have been selected for examples as readily as those who are now on trial, but these particular ones are very close to the Khedive, and the traders with whom they have dealt also have extensive business relations with the palace.

A Bride in Breaches.
The Sketch gives a picture of a curious wedding ceremony which has been celebrated at Christ Church, under the auspices of the New Zealand Dress Reform Association. The bride, Miss Kate Walker, and the bridegroom, Mr. J. R. Wilkinson, had already joined hands by publishing a pamphlet on "Dress Reform and What It Implies." The enterprising bride, like Strephon, in "Patience," was divided in two parts, as it were, the upper part of her dress consisting of the conventional bride's veil, and the lower sinking into a modified pair of breeches. Her costume was of stone-blue Bengaline, with vest and revers of white silk, embroidered with gold. She wore a beautiful wreath of jessamine instead of the time-honored orange blossom, and, although gloves were discarded, a veil was worn—not, however, over the face, but thrown back, and falling in long, graceful folds over her shoulders. The specially lighted with a view to show up the brilliancy of the imitation jewels decking the dresses.

It is reported from St. Petersburg that the new law making duelling obligatory upon the officers of the Russian army, not only whenever they themselves fancy they have been insulted but likewise whenever anybody else thinks they have not been meeting with very general approval.

A Good Appetite.
Always accompanies good health, and an absence of appetite is an indication of something wrong. The universal testimony given by those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla, as to its merits in restoring the appetite, and as a purifier of the blood, constitutes the strongest recommendation that can be urged for any medicine.

THE DYNAMITE GUN.

One is a 15-inch gun, 50 feet long, and the other an 8-inch 45 feet long. The 15-inch gun throws shells containing from 50 pounds to 500 pounds of nitro-gelatin. They are mounted on carriages arranged to be turned and elevated by electric power, so that the gunner standing on the platform on the left of the gun has entire control simply by moving levers. He traverses, stops, elevates or depresses without ever once taking his eyes from the sight.

The breach is interlocking. The slightest movement of the breech will make it impossible to fire. Under ground on each side are big chambers and the firing reservoirs. Large wrought iron tubes are connected underground with the gun by two 13-inch cast iron pipes, which connect with a cylinder air pipe in the centre of the gun. The air flows through these pipes into a swing joint which allows for the horizontal plane of the gun, and is then carried through pipes by the side of the carriage to the trunnions of the gun, each of which has a trunnion swing joint that carries the air from the pipes on the side of the carriage to the gun itself, which allows for motion in a vertical direction.

The main barrel of the gun itself is encased in an outer barrel from the trunnions to the breech. The air is conducted from the trunnions to the two barrels in the annular space between the two barrels to the firing valve, which is located in the breech. When this valve is opened the air flows in behind the projectile and starts it forward. When the predetermined amount of air has passed the valve it closes automatically by means of the Rapelle valve. This amount of air can be controlled absolutely, and can be fired at will by the gunner. This alters the range without changing the elevation of the gun.

SATISFACTORY RESULTS.
When the tests were made five rounds, with two interruptions necessitating traversing and elevating because of shells getting in the way, were fired in seven minutes, 53 seconds. Behind the battery is erected a great electric plant necessary to work the guns. The shells are filled in a wooden house still further north. The fuse tests were quite up to the expectations. The range was 2,000, 2,500 and 3,000 yards. The torpedoes all struck in the same small rectangle. When they exploded under the water the sight was a grand one. A mountain of water lashed in foam arose more than 100 feet high in the air, forming a most magnificent series of brilliant cascades—at least an acre of water, sufficient to overwhelm a ship even of the size of the City of Rome. This was one of the most interesting sights of the tests on the grounds.

A very curious thing about the firing of the gun was the absence of the loud report that one might expect. In the powder explosions the roar was almost deafening. When the dynamite gun went off you might stand with your ear to the muzzle and feel no ill effect. It was, comparatively speaking, a pop instead of report. And then the sight of the projectile hurtling through the air. As it was eleven feet long, you could trace its flight from the time it left the muzzle of the gun to its striking the water. Sometimes it wobbled just as a kite

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

THEY RUN A BANK.

St. Louis is the Home of the Three Youngest Financiers in the World.

The three boys in this accompanying picture are the youngest bank officials in the world. The eldest of them has been going to school only two years and probably washes only in addition from his slats with very salty tears, and the youngest has not yet been promoted to knee breeches. But, oh, my, what a stir they are making in the financial world! All boys have to bank take from Fourth of July till Christmas to fill and five minutes to empty. Wouldn't they open their eyes, though, if they had a real bank, with grownup people just falling over each other to put $5 bills in it? That's the sort of thing that is happening to these boys in the picture, and this is how it all came about.

They have a papa, W. C. Lindsay, Sr., who is a bookkeeper in a jobbing house in St. Louis. He is only 33 years old; so, of course, he is not forgotten how to play marbles and fly kites and blow up balloons, like some papas have. When this St. Louis papa comes home, he is ready to play leapfrog or perform surgical operations on toys, because he very properly thinks that he is a better playmate for his own boys than any they can find on the street. And the boys think so too. He intends to have his boys grow up men and not toughs or dudes. Young as they are, he has taught them to be brave and generous and truthful and good tempered.

Last winter he thought it about time to teach them to save money. So one evening he called a meeting in the big armchair and asked the boys how they would like to start a bank. So then and there they elected officers. Papa was to be president; Louis H., aged 6 1/2 years, vice president; Robert T., aged 5 years, cashier, and Richard W., aged 5 years, and W. C. Lindsay, Jr., aged 1 year, directors. When the meeting adjourned, the youngest director was fast asleep in the president's arms. It was decided to capitalize the bank at $100 and issue 100 shares at $1 each and to pay something each week on the shares, my amount from a cent up being received and the proper credit given. As fast as these shares are paid up certificates are issued, signed by the president and cashier.

The very next day a burglar proof safe, a set of books and printed stock certificates were bought at a cost of $3.50, which was charged to the expense account. Fifty-one shares were taken by the Lindsay family and 49 sold. Then there was a call for more. The capital stock has been increased to $500 and all the shares taken in blocks of five. At present the bank is making loans in small amounts at the rate of 5 per cent a month and now holds $85 of paper at this rate. They have set their mark at $100 per share and confidently expect to make each share worth that amount by the time the cashier attains his majority. Among the stockholders are residents of Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi. The stock was nearly all sold to children, the youngest stockholder being Miss Mabel Meeks of St. Louis, who is only eight months old. As soon as $500 is paid in it will be invested in real estate.

A Curious Plate Trick.

Here is a little puzzle, an attempt to solve which will give considerable amusement at little expense. Cut out of thin cardboard a disk the size of it a quarter and make in the middle of it a circular hole the size of a penny. Stick this disk in the center of a plate, when your toy is ready for use. Now obtain a small marble and endeavor to get it into the circular hole of the disk. A certain amount of momentum must be given to the marble to get it in, but unless you are very careful the same momentum will carry it out again. The trick can be easily performed by bringing the marble along the disk and then lowering the plate quickly, as if dropping it. This brings the ball over the hole, and as it will not drop quite so quickly as the plate it falls into the hole, and the trick is done.—New York Commercial.

Mysteria and Woman's Rights.

One notices in too many things which women do, the touch of hysteria. Take the more or less neurotic novels which certain ladies have recently issued from English presses. In every one of them one finds a suggestion of the hysterical inclination which is an inevitable accompaniment of certain forms of anaemia. I know nothing of their authors, but I should be disposed to wager, from the evidences which peep out from between the lines, that the large majority of them are childless women. Go where you please among the women who are shrieking out for this or for that, and you will find that 75 per cent of them are, in some way or other, the victims of their sex. From the point of view of modern femininity, it is woman's right to be a man. If they would only be frank, it is nature they quarrel with—they envy man!—All the Year Round.

Mary Proctor Takes Them a Pleasant Ramble on the Moon.

Now we will go for an imaginary ramble on the moon. The moon is about 238,840 miles away from our earth, so that were it possible to construct a railroad reaching from the earth to the moon a train going at the rate of a mile a minute would take no less than 156 days in reaching its destination. However, we cannot spare the time for such a long journey, but with the rapidity of thought our imagination lands us on the moon at a moment's notice.

What a surprise awaits us! How like and yet unlike our own earth is the moon. We could not live on the moon a moment, for there is neither air to breathe nor water to drink. A deadly stillness is around us, since there is no air to carry sound. We find ourselves in a dreary desert-like place, without a sign of life or vegetation. Not a tree or flower is to be seen, and the beautiful colors with which Mother Nature clothes the earth are lacking. Overhead the stars shine brightly against a sky of inky blackness during the long lunar day, as well as during the lunar night. A day on the moon lasts fourteen of our days, and a night on the moon is of the same length. A lunar day and night therefore equal about four weeks on our earth. How we would miss the beautiful blue sky overhead, and the dowers and trees if we lived on the moon! The song of the birds, the whispering of the leaves of the trees and the murmuring of the ocean waves would be unknown to us. As we made our way over the rough, uneven surface of the moon we would be at one moment in the dazzling glare of sunlight and perhaps the next in total darkness. "By stepping around the corner of a rock there one might pass suddenly from dazzling noonday into the blackness of midnight" (Astronomy with an Opera-Glass, page 121; Garrett P. Serviss).

We would also find it bitterly cold on the moon, especially during the long lunar night. If the atmosphere which surrounds our earth were suddenly withdrawn we would find it almost as bleak and desolate here as it is on the surface of the moon.

I have now prepared you for our ramble on the moon, and although you will find that it has mountains, craters, plains and regions which the old astronomers called oceans and seas, yet it is a dead planet, for not a sign of life exists on its surface.

When Galileo looked at the moon through his telescope, he mistook the dark patches on its surface for seas, so that on a map of the moon you will find the names of many seas, although there is not in reality the sign of a sea to be found. Some of the names of the lunar seas are very romantic. There is the "Sea of Serenity," the "Sea of Tranquility," the "Ocean of Storms" and the "Sea of Showers." When we visit the moon shall we not enjoy a trip to the "Lake of Dreams," the "Bay of Dew," the "Marsh of Sleep" or the "Bay of Rainbows"? How carefully we shall avoid the "Sea of Cold," the "Gulf of Heats," the "Sea of Showers," the "Ocean of Storms" or the "Lake of Death"! What will be our surprise at finding ranges of high mountains, resembling the mountains on our earth, and even named after them.

We are now ready for our ramble on the moon, and I have made a little map to help my readers to find their way.

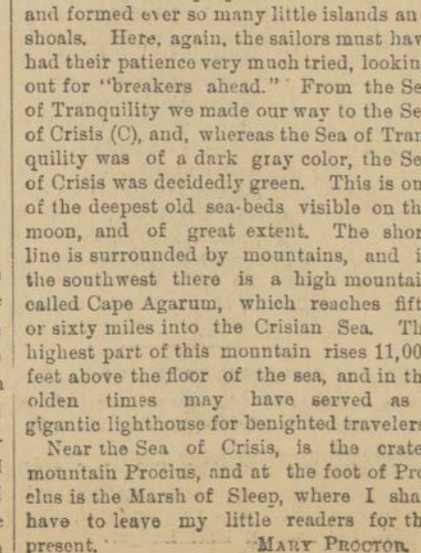

In rambling over the moon we must be careful as we cross mountains and craters, for there are holes so deep that the sunlight never reaches their depths. Let us begin our ramble by a visit to the Sea of Fertility (A). Around the shore line we shall find narrow, crooked bays. If ever this was a sea in the olden times, the sailors on the moon must have dreaded this perilous coast. It was surely a dangerous and difficult task to get boats safely out to sea. But supposing there was a sea here in the olden times, where have all the waters disappeared? We do not know. Some say that the oceans and the air have been drawn into the holes within the moon's substance. Others say that the air and oceans may have passed away to the other side of the moon—the side we never see. Yes; that is a fact, my little friends, there is one side of the moon which never shows its face, and about which we know nothing.

We must now cross through a narrow passage, leading to the Sea of Tranquility (B). Here we are almost lost, for it covers so much ground, and here and there are huge rocks, narrow ridges and small hills. In the olden times, when the basin of this sea was filled with water, the tops of these rocks must have peeped above the waves and formed ever so many little islands and shoals. Here, again, the sailors must have had their patience very much tried, looking out for "breakers ahead." From the Sea of Tranquility we made our way to the Sea of Crisis (C), and, whereas the Sea of Tranquility was of a dark gray color, the Sea of Crisis was decidedly green. This is one of the deepest old sea-beds visible on the moon, and of great extent. The shore line is surrounded by mountains, and in the southwest there is a high mountain called Cape Agarum, which reaches fifty or sixty miles into the Crisian Sea. The highest part of this mountain rises 11,000 feet above the floor of the sea, and in the olden times may have served as a gigantic lighthouse for benighted travelers.

Near the Sea of Crisis, is the crater mountain Proclus, and at the foot of Proclus is the Marsh of Sleep, where I shall have to leave my little readers for the present.

MARY PROCTOR.

MAP OF THE MOON

A LITTLE CYCLIST.

In the Boston newspapers a great deal has been written lately about a 9-year-old boy who rides with the Rosindale club. We have such an aged "scorcher" in this district, Master Harry Remer of Union Hill, N. J., only 9 years old, too, and capable of riding 80 miles any day. His father had made for him a miniature racing wheel weighing 14 pounds. The machine is as cute as anything in the cycle line could be. It is fitted with racing saddle, wood rims and pneumatic tires, quite up to date. The little fellow is in love with the wheel and is seldom off it when he is awake. While being a source of pleasure it also has been of great benefit physically, as riding has straightened his limbs, that before were knocked.

A Curious Ball.

There lives a queer little animal called the hedgehog, not at all prepossessing in appearance, but so wonderfully constructed that he is an object of interest.

He has a long muzzle, short neck and legs, and he bears on his back what may be called a coat of armor. This is a thick covering of strong bristles or spines, and beneath the skin is a powerful muscle to which the animal can contract or expand at pleasure.

When contracted, the little creature is rolled up in the shape of a prickly ball. This is the method he uses to protect himself on the approach of an enemy, and he will even run toward a high hedge, from which he drops a distance of many feet. Instantly he rolls himself in a ball, from which the spikes stand out thickly on all sides. These are so elastic that he is not harmed by the fall, and after a moment or two he resumes his former shape and runs off as briskly as possible.

The summer is his time for activity, and he then subsists on reptiles of various kinds; also birds and beetles.

At the approach of winter he seeks a snug home for himself beneath the root of a tree, where he builds a soft nest of leaves and moss. In the he goes to sleep, and a long nap he takes, for through all the cold, frosty, winter weather he is in a state of torpidity, requiring no food, for beneath his skin a layer of fat is formed during the summer, and this serves for warmth and nourishment, as it is gradually absorbed through the long winter.

His prickly coat he uses for defense, as he has the power of bristling the quills out in every direction and holding them in this position, thus rendering himself so fierce looking a foe that he is not a pleasant subject to attack.

There are also hedgehogs of the sea, or sea urchins, as they are often called. These, too, are prickly coated balls, but they never change their shape, as they are always round.

When the shell, washed by the sea and freed from its bristles, is cast upon the beach, it is a beautiful thing to examine, for it is the daintiest of white balls, slightly flattened at each end, and has the appearance of being most exquisitely carved.

Both truly are curious balls, the hedgehog of the land and that of the sea, and their homes and habits so different, yet each one has his own work of usefulness which it faithfully performs.—Detroit Free Press.

A Bowl of Honey.

Dorothy Dole, with a hand painted bowl, "What the buzzing bees is singing, 'The honey sweet lies at your feet In clover tops a-swinging.' So fill your bowl, my Dorothy Dole, With all that summer's bringing."

—Annie Isabel Willis in St. Nicholas.

The Butterfly.

If you can catch a butterfly this summer and can look at it through a magnifying glass, you will see that its wings are covered with tiny plumes or feathers. Indeed a butterfly is a very wonderful pet to have, and if you can find a caterpillar and put it in a box with plenty of leaves of the plant on which you found it feeding you can have the pleasure of seeing it spin its cocoon and watch it when it first comes out—a poor, dumpy, weak little pet, to be sure, but one which will in a few hours be a most beautiful one.—Child Garden.

It is a suggestion of one of the army of bright young women that a band of mauve velvet ribbon around neck and wrists is an admirable set off against the red or brown, as the case may be, of the adjoining skin after too faithful boating, tennis or golf in the sun and wind.

A sister of the late Mr. Spurgeon preached twice recently to crowded congregations at the handsome church in Hampstead Road in connection with the service. Her manner is impressive, and she bears a personal resemblance to her eminent brother.

Pain from indigestion, dyspepsia, and too hearty eating is relieved at once by taking one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this.

PROBLEM NO. 9.—BY RUDOLPH LITHEMER, Madgeburg. (First prize two-mover in the International Tourney of the Staats Zeitung.) BLACK—14 PIECES.

White to play and mate in two moves.

PROBLEM NO. 10.—BY A. WATERHOUSE, (From the London Times.) BLACK—14 PIECES.

White to play and mate in two moves.

The Game. We publish this week the key to the following end game, which appeared last issue.

Position after black's 46th move. White, Winaver—King K R sq, Rook Q B sq, Queen Q 2, Bishop Q 3, and pawns K 4, Q 5, and Q K 5. Black, Blackburne—King, K sq, Bishop K B sq, Rook Q R 5, Knight K K 5, Queen K K 6, and pawns K R 5, K 4, Q 3, and Q K 3. Blackburne is playing for a stalemate.

It is pretty clear that in the above position White has lost a game, but there is just one chance left. The game proceeded, 47, R—B sq, R—Q R 6 [R—Q R 8 was better, as is pointed out]; 48, Q—Q B 2, R—B 6; 49, Q—Q 2, R x B (a blunder, R—B 8 was the correct move); 50, R x B ch and White in any case draws by perpetual ch. In the actual game Black played K x R and B 1, Q ch forces the draw. It was a very neat bit of chess.

The Scotsman says that Tarrasch has now a fair claim to the title of champion of Europe.

The following is a list of the champions during the past 114 years: 1833—Anderssen, unbeaten. 1839—Deschapelles, unbeaten. 1840—Deschapelles, unbeaten. 1843—La Bourdonnais, unbeaten. 1843—Staunton, lost to Anderssen. 1851—Anderssen, lost to Steinitz in 1860. 1853—Morphy, unbeaten. 1856—Steinitz, lost to Lasker in 1894. 1894—Lasker, present champion.

Attention has been called to the fact that whereas during his recent visit to Montreal Pillsbury played blindfold for 4.45 p.m. till 3.20 next morning, Zukertort at San Francisco, also playing 12 simultaneously blindfold games, with a short interval, from 8 p.m. till 4.15 a.m., on one occasion, scoring nine wins, one draw, and two losses.

Speaking of Lasker and the championship chess column of the London Times has the following: Our own view of the whole matter is that Herr Lasker has well earned his title, that he deserves his honors, and is entitled to hold them unquestioned for a reasonable period, say a year.

Equal to the Best of Them. 1st prize, for "most brilliant game," J. E. Narraway, of Ottawa, in Narraway vs. Stebbins, 2nd prize, for "longest announced mate," G. H. Vaux, of Philadelphia, in Vaux vs. Hale, 22 moves. 3rd prize, for "most brilliant announced mate," J. E. Narraway, in Narraway vs. W. A. Brown, 4th prize, for first player winning best "stunton," Narraway in Narraway vs. Ferris, 5th prize, for player winning second best "stunton," Perry in Ryall vs. Perry, 6th prize, for non prize-winner making best score in his last ten games, J. S. Hale of Ottawa, 7th prize, for winning in fewest moves, J. E. Andrews, of Ottawa, 8th prize, for best "stunton" in seven moves, B. H. Hendricks in seven moves, 9th prize, for the player first winning his games, G. A. L'homme, of Chicago, 10th prize, for smallest score, Count de Bury, St. John, N. B.

Solutions. Problem No. 5. In two moves (selected)—Key move, Kt—K 5. Problem No. 6. In two moves, by Bernard Fison—Key move, R—Q B 3. Correct solutions to both problems have been received from F. E. M., "Blue Bells" and "Wandstein," of Montreal, and from Wm. Stewart, Lancaster.

AN OPEN LETTER FROM A PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

A Remarkable Cure of Consumption in Its Last Stages—Is This Once Dread Disease Conquered?—Important Facts for All Suffering from Dis-eased or Weak Lungs.

Elmwood, Ont., Aug. 21, 1894. Dear Sirs—I wish to call your attention to a remarkable cure of consumption in its last stages, which I had the honor to witness in my professional capacity as Miss Christina Koester, of North Brant, who was then suffering from an attack of inflammation of the left lung. The attack was a severe one, the result of the lung being entirely gone from the effects of the disease. I treated her for two weeks when recovery seemed assured. I afterwards heard from her at intervals that the progress of recovery was satisfactory. The case then passed from my notice until June, when I was again called to see her, her friends thinking she had gone into consumption. On visiting her I found her suspicions too well founded. From robust health she had wasted to a mere skeleton, scarcely able to walk across the room. There was a burning hectic fever with chills daily. A careful examination of the chest, and a neighboring to the right, showed a cavity lined with fungus, and the patient was entirely gone, and that in all probability it was entirely destroyed. Still having hopes that the trouble was due to a collection of water around the lung, I asked for a consultation, and the following day a prominent physician and a neighboring to the right, showed a cavity lined with fungus, and the patient was entirely gone, and that in all probability it was entirely destroyed. Still having hopes that the trouble was due to a collection of water around the lung, I asked for a consultation, and the following day a prominent physician and a neighboring to the right, showed a cavity lined with fungus, and the patient was entirely gone, and that in all probability it was entirely destroyed.

At the expiration of that time he must, to command the respect of the chess world, be prepared to give Steinitz and his supporters, or in fact any worthy opponent the opportunity of testing the question of who is champion. That Lasker will do what is right, and that he is not afraid of the result, we think, goes without saying. No more need be said.

If you must draw the line at Lard and have, like thousands of other people, to avoid all food prepared with it, this is to remind you that there is a clean, delicate and healthful vegetable shortening, which can be used in its place. If you will USE COTTOLENE instead of lard, you can eat pie, pastry and the other "good things" which other folks enjoy, without fear of dyspeptic consequences. Delectable from lard has come. Buy a pail, try it in your own kitchen, and be convinced. Cottolene is sold in 3 and 5 pound pails, by all grocers.

that the link on the programs should be allowed to dry before they are distributed. Printed by one of the greatest things in the world; use all you can of it; but it doesn't look well on the daintily gloved hands of the ladies who form the greater portion of our audiences.

The coming of "Wang" on the 8th of next month will be a jolly event. One of the most interesting features of its engagement here will be the appearance of a Montrealer in the role so well filled by Hopper and Stevens. The Regent of Siam will be played by Mr. A. L. Hart, and from all I hear no one will be disappointed. I met him last year when he was summing here, and even then he was joyously looking forward to the playing of the part. He is a man about the same height and build as Hopper, a really good actor and fine singer. Pretty Virginia Earl will again be seen as Mataya, the Crown Prince.

If the cables are to be believed, Lillian Russell was badly handicapped on her first appearance at the London Lyceum on Saturday night. They say that Jakobowski's opera, "The Queen of Brilliants," was a disappointment, and the excessive magnificence of the miscellany actually smothered the performers. Dullness seems to be the unpardonable sin of both composer and author. As the cables usually describe every American production in London as a triumph, it is not surprising that Miss Russell's reception are not reassuring.

Mullen and Dunn, who made such a hit at the Royal last year, are now with the Night Owls, and will be here next week. With the opening of the season comes the usual remarkable advance notices handed in by the agent and published by the papers. It seems almost incredible that men can believe that the public takes any stock in the ridiculous assertions that this is the best company so and so has ever had when, as a matter of fact, it is often the worst if the man has been coming for years. There is no need for this indiscriminate puffing. Ten lines of truth will be read quicker than half a column of twaddle which wouldn't be believed, even if it was read. But somehow or other theatre managers have come to judge the value of a notice, whether advance or criticism by its length and seldom by what it says. The opposition has a few lines more, why somebody has to kick even if he got the best of it the day before.

Signor Perugini has returned to New York. He went abroad about two months ago, soon after the close of his season here with Miss Russell in "Girle de Grief." It had been reported after the announcement of his separation from his wife was made, that he intended to reside abroad permanently. He denied this rumor emphatically, and before he sailed accepted an engagement to support Miss Louise Beaudet in "Cluquet" this season. Miss Beaudet's company is now being organized by Manager F. C. Whitney, and Signor Perugini has returned to begin rehearsals. He will appear in the leading role of the opera.

The recent fight in this city between Kellar and Hermann, the magicians, was unworthy the name for judgment and common sense which before had been theirs. It is difficult to tell just who was to blame in the matter, because both sides tell different stories, but certain it is that the trouble could have been avoided. If they had come here at different dates each would have taken away more money and less would have been required for advertising and other purposes.
