

Economists prepare for great changes in future

Three of every 10 married women will work by year 1970

The Deutsch Report, an 80,000-word forecast prepared by the Economic Council of Canada for the Federal Government, is expected to set the tone of general economic policy for years to come.

According to the report, three out of every 10 married women will be at fulltime work by 1970.

Questions bearing on the social implications come to mind.

What happens to the children if mothers go to work in such numbers?

"One trend will be to increase day-care for middle class families," said Prof. Benjamin Schlesinger, the School of Social Work, U of T. As more middle class women join the nine-to-five brigade, their children will join those of the working classes already in day nurseries.

There is no evidence that children brought up by trained nursery attendants are more prone to delinquency than others.

"Delinquency is not connected with working mothers," said A. M. Kirkpatrick, of the John Howard Society. "The texture of relationships within the home is more important."

The Russians provide boarding school care from infancy to secondary school. Will Canada come to this?

Not likely. Homemakers are a better bet. It could be honorable employment for our inflation squeezed retired. The Deutsch Report calls for more education. "The country's prosperity will depend on how skilled its people are."

Education until middle or late twenties will become the norm. Will the government subsidize young marrieds attending university?

"Not directly," said Prof.

Schlesinger. "But the universities will have to build more and more dormitories with apartment units for married couples. They will be subsidized with low rents."

Meanwhile, the traditional role of father is being abridged.

The head of the household feels inferior to the task of providing for his family.

News in brief

Churchill

LONDON (CP)—Doctors reported today Sir Winston Churchill is holding on in his grim war against the final enemy—death.

A medical bulletin from the London home of the 90-year-old warrior-statesman said he spent a peaceful night and there was no material change in his condition.

Another bulletin was expected at approximately 9:30 p.m. (4:30 p.m. EST.)

Britons—and millions of others around the world—had waited with foreboding for today's noon bulletin on the condition of the wartime prime minister who suffered a stroke Friday. He celebrated his 90th birthday Nov. 30.

To countless admirers, the bulletin represented almost a reprieve from death for the "greatest Englishman," the man who rallied the free world against the forces of Adolf Hitler in the Second World War.

Medical authorities described the outlook for Sir Winston as "extremely grave" after his physician, Lord Moran, reported Friday night he was slipping into a deeper sleep and was not conscious of discomfort or pain.

Sixty-Eighth Year

As free auto trade agreed

Canada-US economic union?

OTTAWA—(TNS)—Canada now appears to be rushing along an inevitable, predestined course towards economic union with the United States.

There is reluctance to use the label because no one is sure what it would mean in the Canada-U.S. context.

But if it means an economic pool, where neither country acts if it hurts the other, where there is free trade and joint exploitation of natural resources, then that is where Canada is going.

This kind of talk doesn't create the mild hysteria here that it did only a year ago when U.S. Under-Secretary of State George Ball mocked nationalism and urged economic union.

Few Canadian leaders, because of the political fire in the issue, parade with "I want economic union" posters.

But this must be the outcome of the demand for ever-closer economic ties when economic ties are already stifling and near a point of no return.

In the past few weeks, these demands have snowballed.

Yesterday Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson agreed to a free trade area in autos and auto parts.

Whatever the benefits, this is a resounding defeat for an independent Canadian economic policy. Ottawa created an auto parts exports incentive program with much fanfare last year. It has been buried by legal and political obstacles in the U.S.

Prime Minister Pearson in the U.S. magazine, Foreign Affairs, this month, calls on the two countries to promote development of their industries on a rational basis wherever practical.

He urges general co-operation between the two countries, but specifically in autos, energy resources and raw materials.

"Each of us," Mr. Pearson writes "can often do better by co-operation than either could do separately to advance its own interest.

"We should, I think, be more conscious of the great advantages of such co-operation."

See also p. 5

tion and make more of our opportunities to promote it."

And what do leaders of finance think about the prospect of economic union?

"Economic union is probably too big a word," said

George S. Moore, President of the U.S. First National City Bank, in Toronto.

"But certainly we should start out by capitalizing upon the enlarged markets a customs union would offer both our peoples."

Banker Moore said the time is overdue for a reappraisal of U.S.—Canadian economic relations.

But, as others see it the trading pattern for Canada is going to depend on the pattern within the western alliance.

One of the world's leading economists, David J. Steinberg, is calling for a complete free trade by the industrialized nations in 10 years.

Mr. Steinberg is chief economist for the Committee for a National Trade Policy in the U.S. and advised President Kennedy about the tariff policy on which the current Geneva talks are based.

With the Kennedy Round at Geneva now looking second-rate alongside the original dream, Mr. Steinberg has come up with the other idea.

How would this affect Canada?

Mr. Steinberg doesn't answer that question. But it requires only a modest knowledge of tariffs and the like to predict that a free trade area of the kind would probably push Canada immediately into economic union with the U.S.

TARIFFS HIGH

Canada, despite its pretences, is a fairly high tariff nation.

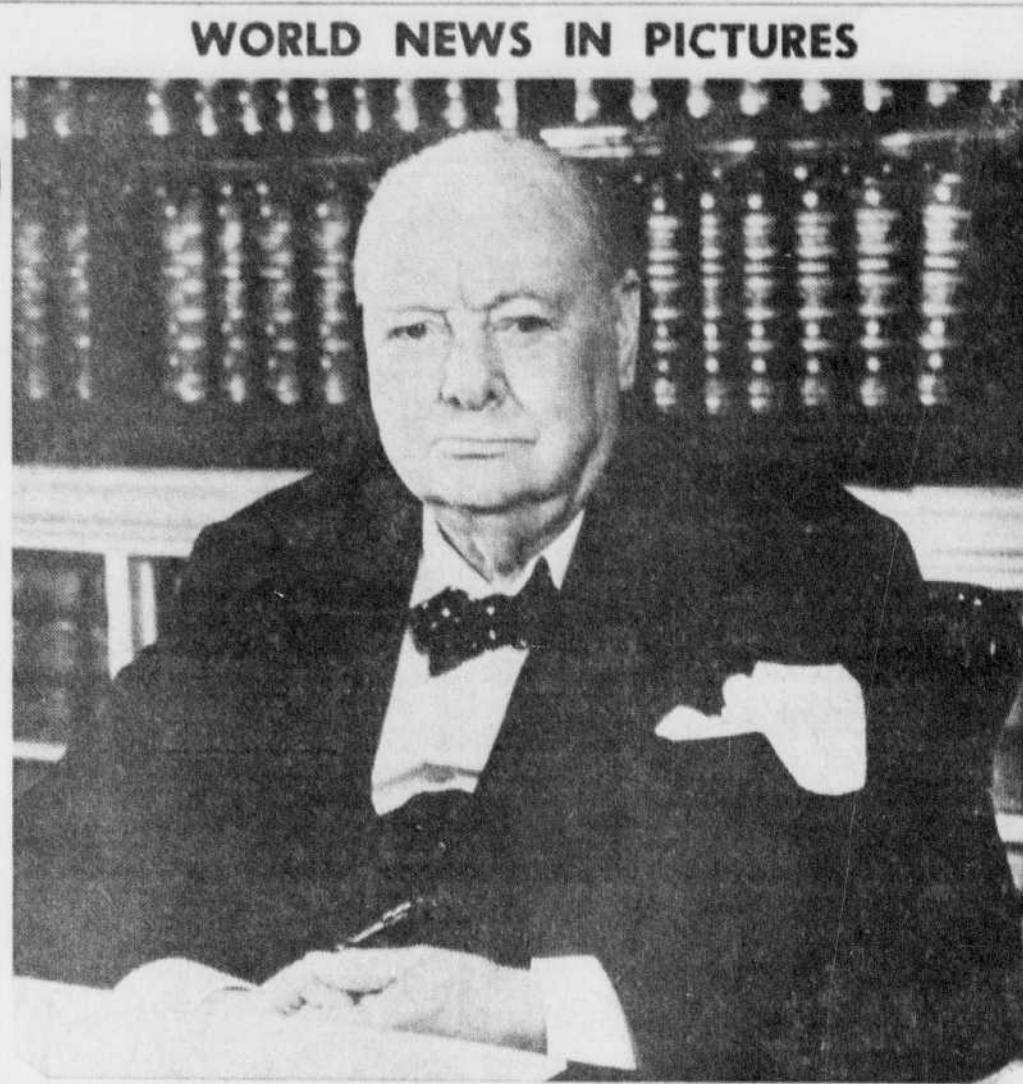

It needs these tariffs to maintain a show of economic independence.

In a free trade area, with tariffs gone, economic union could be the only way out.

An example of what we can expect along the way is the new free-trade-in autos deal.

A Canadian looking for an auto to buy might think the package is fairly labeled.

After all, he won't yet have 17 per cent lopped off the price of the auto (the tariff in the price).

SUFFERS STROKE — Sir Winston Churchill was reported this morning to have spent a peaceful night following a stroke yesterday. The British statesman and war-time prime minister celebrated his 90th birthday six weeks ago.

CHEAPER BY FIFTEEN — Yes, automation has come to the hospital. This interesting mass transit system

RUBY EVIDENCE IN AUSTIN — In custody of the highest appeal court in Texas, in Austin, was 600 pounds of court records from the Jack Ruby trial. Arguments in the appeal are expected in April. It may be a year before a decision is handed down. In the photo, Texas Supreme Court clerk Glenn Haynes holds the gun with which Ruby killed presidential assassin Lee Oswald. Adjourn inquiry

MONTREAL (CP)—The Dorion judicial inquiry is adjourned until Tuesday after a grueling week of questioning a murder suspect, a fraud suspect with a criminal record and the wife of a dope-smuggling suspect, who — the fraud suspect said — had spent a "sheltered life."

The three main witnesses were Robert Gignac, 35, charged with capital murder in the Sept. 17 shooting of a nightclub doorman here; Eddy Lechasseur, 33, who has a criminal record said by one lawyer at the inquiry to include nine or 10 convictions, including one for manslaughter; and Mrs. Lucien Rivard, 32-year-old red-haired wife of a 48-year-old Montrealer wanted by U.S. authorities on charges of smuggling heroin for the Mafia crime syndicate.

Barry on guard

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Only a few days after yielding to pressures to remove Dean Burch as national Republican chairman, Barry Goldwater says he intends to keep party control from slipping into the wrong hands.

The defeated Republican presidential candidate outlined his views Friday night to a Phoenix convention of the Arizona Federation of Republican Women.

Expect arrests

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP)—Arrests were expected today following the return of secret indictments by a federal grand jury which investigated the slaying of three civil rights workers in Mississippi last summer.

The grand jury, which met at Jackson, returned 84 indictments Friday and government sources revealed some were in connection with the slaying at Philadelphia, Miss., of Michael Schwerner and Andrew Goodman, white New Yorkers, and James Chaney, a Meridian Negro.

Ford on strike

TORONTO (CP)—A strike by 10,300 members of the United Auto Workers (UAW) halted Ford of Canada operations in four Ontario centres Friday.

Negotiations for a new contract were to resume today, with bargaining centred mainly on the non-economic issue of work speed.

Viet Cong try to defeat US plans at birth

Washington - (Nea) - In the bloody battles at Binh Gia, the Viet Cong were out to break the back of the new U.S.-South Viet Nam pacification program centered on the Greater Saigon area.

If the theories that Red Ho Chi Minh's top General Giap has been advocating are carried through, Binh Gia will be only one of a series of sharp punches in the next few months.

The U.S.-South Viet Nam program gambles that a strong local militia can be trained in each area to defeat small Viet Cong raiders and hold off large Red attacks until government regulars arrive.

Theoretically, the regulars are to get there quickly enough with sufficient men and weapons to knock out any number of Red troops.

This program (according to U.S. plans) is to be perfected in the Greater Saigon area, then be spread through South Viet Nam.

If the Viet Cong follow Giap's theories, then they must prove this U.S. plan unworkable before it really gets going so that we'll abandon it and try another plan. Then when we're started on the next plan, they'll try to get us to abandon that new plan before it gets operating.

The Giap aim is to get us to try and then abandon one strategy after another, never giving one a chance to succeed before we drop it and jump to something else.

So far Giap's plan has succeeded. We've already started and abandoned several major strategic programs in infancy.

At Binh Gia, the Reds won several victories.

The local militia did not hold. The Communists won with the showpiece tactics they have used for 20 years, the same they used against the French.

They captured Binh Gia, set up ambushes and waited. Government troops fell into the ambushes and Americans were killed. The Viet Cong used the American helicopter dead as bait for further ambushes. Government troops fell into these ambushes, too.

The Reds held Binh Gia just long enough to be able to kill off some of the democratic anti-Communist leadership of the community, set up and trip ambushes, inflict heavy casualties on government troops and capture sizeable numbers of U.S.-made weapons.

But the Red Viet Cong didn't win all the victories. The South Viet Nam government troops showed high bravery under sustained fire. They kept moving in regardless of casualties. That should erase American concern that the Vietnamese aren't willing to die for what they believe when properly trained and led.

This was all the more impressive since the government troops in this battle were obviously up against highly able Red soldiers, not ragged guerrillas. The Viet Cong were well-led, well-trained and well-armed. They had clearly mapped their strategy thoroughly and practiced their Binh Gia tactics for weeks. They obviously had a hefty core of professionals. 1-4-65

Darlings of the UN turn

Indonesia's withdrawal ironic

United Nations — You have to go back to the 30's and the death of the League of Nations to find a comparison to the bitter sweet irony of Indonesia's withdrawal from the U.N.

The League refused to act against Fascist aggression and in some instances it seemed as though it was more interested in placating the aggressors than in helping the victims. Yet even this comparison doesn't fully do justice to what has happened to the U.N. in the past two weeks.

For the last 15 years, Indonesia and President Sukarno have been the darlings of the U.N. It was the U.N. which helped Indonesia gain independence from the Dutch. Sukarno's economic and political theories have generally been applauded in U.N. circles, and Indonesia was regarded as an unusually progressive Afro-Asian state.

U.N. aid amounting to more than $70,000,000 poured into Indonesia. Everything possible was done to subsidize the Sukarno dictatorship with all forms of U.N. technical and financial assistance. (UNICEF proved an extraordinary godsend in providing over $16,000,000 for child welfare projects and for Sukarno's education system).

In 1961 when Sukarno decided he was willing to go to war to get hold of Dutch-held West New Guinea, the U.N. did everything possible to turn the territory over to him. Secretary General U Thant and the UN General Assembly forgot about self-determination for the 1,000,000 inhabitants of West New Guinea because Sukarno's favor was far more important than the territory's near-savage natives.

(In order to soothe U.N. consciences, Sukarno agreed to permit the natives to have an "act" of self-determination, but experienced diplomats know this vaguely worded agreement was not worth the paper it was written on.)

TEMPTING TO DISSIDENTS

With the U.S. effort evidently on the rocks in South Viet Nam, about the only thing that could result in any real neutralization of the area would be some sort of U.N. involvement. Peking naturally doesn't like this, and Sukarno seems to be playing the Peking game just as Cambodia has been doing.

Apparently in the cards is an attempt by Sukarno to form a rival organization composed only of non-white, anti-Western nations. So far no Afro-Asian country has followed Sukarno's lead, but it's still too early to predict what will happen. There is no doubt that a China-Cambodia-Indonesia axis will prove a temptation to many Afro-Asian countries who are dissatisfied with the U.N.'s commitment to international law (generally referred to by these Afro-Asians as "Colonialist" international law).

The December Security Council debate on the Congo split the U.N. on racial lines, and a few more fracas like Congo nations. So far no Afro-Asians down the Sukarno path. It is noteworthy that in spite of his withdrawal from the U.N., Sukarno still stands as one of the big wheels in the Afro-Asian world.

In a real pinch, the Afro-

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

WHY PSYCHICS LOST FAVOR

By OSWALD JACOBY

Thirty years ago, the psychic bid and the name Jacoby were almost synonymous. I didn't invent the bid, but I sure used it. Then I gave it up. There were several reasons for this step, such as the fact that I was getting older, but the one main and important reason was that it cost me points more often than it helped me.

There were a few psychics used in the World Bridge Olympiad last year and I don't think any bids ever achieved as great a record of futility.

Here is a conspicuous example. West's no-trump overall had all the elements of a psychic. He did not have no-trump distribution. He didn't have anything in South's suit and he didn't have any ace, king or queen.

...also didn't have any real intestinal fortitude because if he had stood by his guns and fought it out at one no-trump, he would have only been down six for a mere 1,100 point loss.

Instead, he started to escape with his redouble, whereupon North and South proceeded happily to six no-trump.

This was too much for East. He did hold an ace and queen and he felt that his partner probably had some sort of a trick somewhere among his bunch of nothing. After all, his partner had gone into action when no one was holding a gun to his head to make him bid.

East doubled. No one redoubled which was just as well because the slam was a lay down North and South scored 1,680 in-

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Douglas Fairbanks Jr. became an actor at the age of 14 and a motion picture star at 22. Although a variety of things, including business and diplomacy, seem to fascinate him more, he has never been far away from show business.

Fairbanks, whose television appearances occur at about 18-month intervals nowadays, will soon appear as host and narrator of a series of four ABC Preview specials. They will take a backstage look at assorted show business events.

The first, on Feb. 4, follows the creative activity involved in the new Anthony Newley musical being produced for Broadway.

Fairbanks' present series came about because the company sponsoring the series was "a sort of client" of one of his business interests. He was interested because at one time, he said, he had an idea for a series similar to the present one.

Now, 55, Fairbanks and his wife maintain a New York apartment and a home in England. They spend several months each year in England, where Fairbanks has business interests.

These include a string of European bowling alleys, a self-lighting cigarette now being test-marketed in Europe, hotels and motels, a ballpoint pen company.

His famous name, he said, helped him in his performing career, and has certainly been no drawback in business.

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—They said it could never happen but this week it did. Ralph Edwards came on Art Linkletter's show and announced: "This is your life."

The one-time arch-rivals in the audience-participation show business finally made their appearance together, much to Linkletter's consternation. It was part of the 20th birthday celebration for his House Party show. The Edwards-Linkletter summit meeting will appear on the daytime CBS series Jan. 22.

It was just 20 years ago today that Art and his partner John Guedel staged the first edition of the longest partnership in history.

They already had a night-time radio show, People Are Funny, and Art commuted weekly to San Francisco for the daytime What's Doing, Ladies?

The two men had an idea for another program about the younger generation, called Under 21. They went to New York to sell it.

No sale, was the reply, but General Electric was looking for a five-week show. Art and John quickly concocted House Party. It has been on radio ever since, television for 13 years. It's the only program broadcast in both mediums. KIDS' INTERVIEW POPULAR

"The only feature we saved from Under 21 was interviewing young kids," said Art in his Beverly Boulevard office this week. "And we're still doing it." He also got a best-selling book out of children's sayings.

Over the years Linkletter has changed—from friendly, optimistic emcee to friendly, optimistic millionaire. The show has changed, too.

I asked Art to list the superlatives of the two decades. He came up with these:

Most outstanding interview: Cecil B. DeMille, a couple of years before his death. "He really opened up—and this was his first appearance on the air in eight years, since he had been put off radio for refusing a union political assessment."

Most poignant interview: With a Negro handyman who had put five children through college, then graduated from high school and college himself.

Biggest laugh: When a five-year-old was asked how his parents met. "I don't know," said the tyke, "but I do know they were roommates in college."

KOREAN ADOPTED — High Times correspondent Eleanor Archer reports that the Cowansville High School Junior Red Cross has adopted a Korean refugee. The foster child will be supported by all the students. In sports, Eleanor reports that on January 8, the Cowansville High School senior and intermediate hockey and girls' basketball teams went to Waterloo where they won all the four games they played. Coming up in sports, the senior and intermediate girls basketball teams of Cowansville High School will be participating in a Hi Y tournament in Granby, Eleanor reports.

SKATING PARTY — The Students Council of Sutton High School is sponsoring a skating party tonight from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the town rink, reports Mary Dyer of Sutton High. The skating party will be followed by a dance at the High School until midnight. The price will be 50 cents stag and 75 cents drag. Everyone is welcome.

DANCES — The Trinity Boys Club of Sherbrooke will be sponsoring a dance tonight at the Trinity United Church hall on Court Street from eight till 11 p.m. reports Stewart Buckman.

FUTURE DATE — The Students' Council of Cowansville High School will be sponsoring a dance January 29 reports Eleanor Archer. The prices are 45 cents for stag and 75 cents for drag. The prices are lower for students with a Council Card and all students are welcome.

SLAVE AUCTION — The Cookshire students council is sponsoring a slave auction this week, reports High Times correspondent, Debby Todd. Those who weren't slaves the first half of the week became the "ordered" on the last three days. A winter carnival will be held in February and definite plans are beginning to materialize. This, too, is sponsored by the students' council. Plans are being made for the annual class trip. Grades 10 and 11 hope to visit Ottawa in the spring and much work is going into the raising of funds. Last year a trip was taken to New York City. Eleven of the senior class students returned to school last Monday after completing a scholastic aptitude test on Saturday.

BOWLING LEAGUE — This week a six-team bowling league was organized at Richmond's St. Francis High School, reports correspondent Mike Chabot. The teams play against each other on Saturday mornings at 10:15 in the local bowling alley. The league is managed by Mr. Douglas Carroll, a member of the teaching staff. Shortly before the Christmas holidays the public speaking finals were held in the gymnasium. Winners were as follows: girls, grade 8 and 9, Judy Sunborg; boys, grade 8 and 9, Ronald Beattie; girls, grade 10 and 11, Donna Davies; boys, grade 10 and 11, Leigh Tipping.

SHS JAMBOREE — The first H-Y basketball jamboree for girls, senior and junior is being held today. Games are played at Sherbrooke High and Mitchell School, reports Daphne Nelson, SHS correspondent. So all you basketball fans turn out and support your favourite team.

LATE REPORTS — Hate to end the column with a complaint, but a lot of High Times news isn't reaching me until Friday these days. That's really too late. Deadline is Thursday afternoon. Too much Friday material causes all kinds of technical headaches at this end. So how about it, High Times correspondents? Mail those reports in time to reach me Thursday afternoon.

Daughter of pioneer family
To celebrate her centennial
892 days before Canada does

HILLHURST — (Staff) — On Monday, 892 days before Canada celebrates its 100th birthday Mrs. William Birch of Hillhurst will celebrate her centennial.

But to this senior citizen it is just going to be another day, sitting in her favorite rocking chair and doing what she has done for 96 years now — knit.

"Grandma" Birch learned to knit on goosequills when she was four years old and she has been knitting ever since, Nellie, one of her two daughters said.

This is what is so remarkable about this centenarian as she still knits flawless scarves, sweaters and socks.

But this is her secret of long life.

"Hard work and not getting something for free," she says.

"I still remember," her daughter Nellie said, "when I was a child that she used to work and sew half way through the night."

Mrs. Birch has stayed out of hospitals for 85 years now, ever since she twisted her ankle when she slipped on some ice in 1880.

Eating is no problem either, said her daughter. "Grandma is a moderate eater and eats three meals regularly. Her favorite cake is still Scotch short cake, which she used to make better than any of us," she said.

And Grandma's eyesight is also very good, her daughter said. She loves reading, especially the Geographic National Magazine and she can still remember some of the first issues of the Record, her daughter Nellie said.

In 1945, William Birch at the age of 85, died, having worked the 250 acre farm in Hillhurst which his son Henry Malcolm has now taken over.

Besides Mrs. Birch and her son, Malcolm, four others live at the Hillhurst farm, Nellie, one of the two daughters of Mrs. William Birch, and Malcolm's wife Marjorie Dryden of Cowansville.

There also are two granddaughters, Jeannie Marjorie who teaches mathematics in St. John's High School and

Freed on bail

Month in jail

A Coaticook man appeared yesterday before the Sherbrooke Court of Criminal Assizes and was sentenced to one month in jail for theft. Claude Jubinville was accused of stealing two chests of tools and nine car tires with an accomplice, Jean Gosselin. Jubinville broke into the Marcel Poulin Garage in Barnston sometime in early May, police said.

Scouting and Cubbing

By KEN BARTLETT

The National Council of the Boy Scouts of Canada have listed the new Cub Badges which became effective the first of January this year. One badge—homework has been abolished and ten new ones have been added to the remaining thirteen. The new ones are: carpenter, handyman, interpreter, musician, personal fitness, reader, skier, troubador and woodsman. The qualifications for these new badges will shortly be listed and published in the new Wolf Cub handbook. It may be interesting to know the Eskimo and Indian Cub were issued a new series last May. A recent check revealed that neither the new handbook or the new Cub uniform has as yet reached the local Boy Scout store.

PINATA PARTY

The Waterville Pack, staged their traditional Pinata party to usher in the year's activities. This year's gathering included a number of Cubs invited from other packs, and also a group of Brownies. The boys and girls, each in turn, were blindfolded and given a stick. The idea was to hit the swinging pinata, and if successfully done, a package of goodies would fall out, and the participant would grab them. Akela Fred Pessig states that as authentically done in Mexico, the pinata is made of pottery. Authentic or not, everyone at Waterville including a few parents had a delightful time.

FIRST SHERBROOKE

The First Sherbrooke Pack held their first meeting of the new year in a busy manner. The most important business was the investment of a new Cub. David Thomson proudly stepped before the totem pole and made his vows to Akela Jean Humphries. One Cub, Buddy Nel-

Amateur can help out scientist

The amateur photographer can contribute a great deal to the advancement of science, much more than the professional.

The reason is that usually he makes a photographic study of his particular work. He is best suited for this as time is immaterial. Also, perhaps, certain phases of operation happen at unusual times and only once in a month.

The quality of his work improves as he goes on. However, their part of the photographic operation is merely experience with the medium. Some of the greatest pictures would never have been possible if it wasn't for the hobbyist.

The majority of these pictures would hardly interest people in general.

But to engineers and science they are priceless. They are used for further study and teaching new men in certain problems and improving old products or the study in medical fields.

There is a local dentist who specializes in orthodontics. He takes pictures as a hobby, but also takes photographs of certain cases for future study.

Quite often doctors such as this could well come up with an unusual answer to a problem that has been around for years.

This once again would be a breakthrough for science via photography and the amateur. I'm quite sure there are numerous cases where the amateur photographer has

ENGINEERING ACHIEVEMENT — Photo shows another type of subject that can be taken by an amateur photographer who is an engineer by profession. saved his company months of study on paper by making photos of fast-moving parts.

Industry was quick to recognize this as many large plants have their own photography departments, but there are more public relations and sales pictures.

The type of pictures we are discussing today are those where a man spends much time on all particular problem, using all his ingenuity in taking the picture, such as complicated light traps to set off the shutter and lights, knowing the subject and its actions.

One such example is a tire being tested at tremendous speeds and capturing a series of pictures just before and then the breaking point of the tire comes. In this way a step is taken in road safety, or in aircraft, which land at 90 miles an hour or more and weigh over 70 tons.

The advanced amateur certainly has a place in the field of photography.

There is, of course, the hobby photographer who has

Moves to speed up criminal justice

In his efforts to improve the administration of justice and the reduction of crime in this province, recently-appointed Attorney-General Claude Wagner has instituted many sweeping reforms in the judicial processes.

Probably one of the most important reforms in criminal cases is his intention announced this week of increasing the frequency of Criminal Assizes sessions in judicial districts outside Montreal.

In Quebec City he plans four sessions of the Criminal Assizes each year, with special sessions being held in other districts as circumstances warrant to supplement the present annual sessions.

Main reason for the speeding-up of criminal trials, says Mr. Wagner, is to prevent abuse of the bail system by criminals.

Under existing conditions a man charged with armed holdup for instance may be free on bail for eight or nine months while awaiting trial. During this time he might, and often does, continue his criminal activities. Speedier trial processes would cut down the period during which he can carry on his nefarious work. In more serious cases, earlier trials might justify the refusal to grant bail to the accused.

More frequent sittings will also serve the interests of the accused, especially those who believe they have a reasonable chance of acquittal.

Instead of spending months in prison because they are unable to provide the bail required for their freedom or because they face charges on which no bail is allowed, they will have their guilt or innocence established within a few weeks.

And the tense waiting period for those given bail will also be reduced.

Hayden S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR

January plays elemental music

Days begin to lengthen as the cold begins to strengthen and the rough voice of the winter wind is heard on the land. Wind is moving air and gigantic currents are born in distant places that follow anciently ordained tracks around our planet. Thus it was in prehistoric eras. The older generation passeth; the new generation cometh, but the earth endureth forever.

The background music we hear in winter in the northern climate sets the tempo for one movement of Earth's symphony. It is not the clang of machinery in factories; nor the roar of man-made machines that flash through the air above earth; nor the monotone hum of millions of engines that speed man and his products along hard arteries of macadam and cement.

The music one hears in January is the primeval, elemental notes. The wind may be of tempest power; it may be bitter cold; it brings blizzards; it swirls the snow in ballet patterns and sculptures drifts in which the sun reflects jewels. But always there is music that is in harmony with Nature's laws.

There are bright days when the chickadees' alto chants bring gladness to the heart. Bluejays' steely screams sound from the woodland. And on a calm, cold night the soft, eerie hoots of the barred owls blend with the mystery of winter darkness.

The music of the cold season is background counterpoint to the year-long symphony. Each segment of the calendar is a separate movement that with the others makes a complete whole. A year is a lifetime of living, and pity that man who does not feel the elemental power and harmony of winter's sounds as Earth waits for the resurrection that never fails.

Flag pushers forget remembrance

Dear Sir:
Your paper of December 15th carried the picture of a flag which the Government is trying their best to make the people of the Dominion of Canada accept as their National Flag. Mr. Pearson promised this flag would be flying over the Peace Tower, Parliament Buildings, Ottawa on Christmas Day. Does the Government not know there is a BOOK OF REMEMBRANCE RESTING IN THE PEACE TOWER, and the men whose names are engraved in that book did not go to war saluting a flag such as the government wants the Dominion of Canada to accept.

Our Queen was insulted when she landed in Quebec, by invitation. They want to sever all ties with the Commonwealth, they want to take the English language out of the Province of Quebec and now they are going to bury the flag.

I have a clipping taken from an English paper sent me a number of years ago. There must be a number of people in Canada who will remember what their HOME LAND suffered during the war in order that we in Canada might be free.

It has taken over eight years' work to complete the Roll of Honor which is to be placed in the Liverpool Cathedral and which contains the names of FORTY THOUSAND MEN WHO LOST THEIR LIVES IN THE WAR. The volume said to be the largest of its kind in the world consists of over FOUR HUNDRED PAGES. The frontispiece was autographed by the late King George. The book is to be bound in white vellum and when complete will be placed in the Cenotaph of the Cathedral.

Adventures with God

Human race still feels effects of transfusion of Jesus' blood

Chain reactions are newsworthy. A motorist who absentmindedly drives through a red light may involve many cars and lives in a chain reaction that makes headlines, pictures and misery for scores of people.

But few are aware that such reactions are commonplace and affect every one of us. Though they may not make headlines they make headlines.

Conversely some chain reactions bring pleasant eternal benefits.

I write of such today.

I am indebted to author Earl L. Douglass whose latest book, The Douglas Devotional, has just been released by McClelland & Stewart and retails for $3.50.

A chain reaction was set in motion as I read his comments for Jan. 5. I commend his book because it is stimulating and relates to life as we know it.

Recently 2,300 people responded to an emergency appeal and gave as many pints of blood at the Toronto mayor's blood donor clinic.

It was a newsworthy event because it represented humanity at its best.

Every pint of blood was a personal gift of life to some unknown and perhaps unborn person.

The donors may never know in time the chain reaction of their impulse of love but there will be a chain reaction.

Fifteen years ago I was very ill and blood was needed to pull me through long surgery. In the emergency blood was used from the bank which had to be replaced. Among my friends was a man who was just recovering from dope and drink addiction. He was in his first year of sobriety.

With others I had done what I could to help him, and though concerned that his friend and told me the story. On New Year's Eve some years ago a group of tipsy men were whooping it up when a radio appeal came through. The Sick Children's Hospital needed immediate blood donors.

The inebriated got into a car drove to the clinic and gave their blood. I knew one of them. He later needed transfusions and someone else gave them.

It was an impulse of love that caused Jesus to leave His heavenly home and come down to earth to shed His blood to save dying men. But He did not do it impulsively.

It was a deliberate act, planned before the human race became aware that they would one day need the rare blood that only Jesus could provide.

I feared that my friend's blood might be contaminated because of his profligate life. God, knowing the chain reaction of sin, chose His only begotten Son, a lamb without spot or blemish.

His blood gave a new life to dying, sinful men, the effects of which produced a new race of holy men and women who reproduce the righteousness of God.

Believe it or not the effects of the transfusion of Christ's blood into the human race have not yet worn off.

Literally thousands of redeemed men and women are behaving after the manner of their Saviour. A chain reaction can be either good or bad. So watch it.

Monarchy serving a useful purpose

(Toronto Telegram)

The usefulness of the monarchy—the institution of the Crown in our nation—has come under question by youthful Liberals from six Ontario universities.

We should not have to worry too much about this. It is good that the youth of our country is examining our central institutions; it is good that they are gnawing on controversial subjects and nourishing their intellects on the meat and marrow of them.

It is their right. It would have been sad to deprive the youth who burned and bled in the Battle of Britain from having had the pleasure of endorsing pacifism in the years before the Second Great War.

These young Liberals have discussed the Crown and its place in the Canadian way of life in a sophomoric way—and in a negative way. When one wants to do away with something of value, there must be presented an alternative of apparently greater value. This the university Liberals do not seem to have proffered.

It is easy to argue that the Crown, as it is represented in the Commonwealth today, is an anachronism. It can be argued, in a sophomoric way, that the monarchy is little more than a symbol and a cipher. This argument can be put forward with force.

But it is wrong. We have to distinguish between multiple symbols. Members of the Royal Family, as people, dedicate themselves to the duty of exemplifying what we like to think of as Christian family life. Not all of them have had the fortitude or stamina to live up to the exacting standards which we impose upon them; but others within the Royal Family have come forward to take over the burdens which some were unable to carry.

The role of each member of the House of Windsor in the conduct of the affairs of the Commonwealth is undeniable. Privacy is denied them. Duties are arduous. Family life is a luxury which they may enjoy only occasionally. They live constantly in the eye of the public and the camera.

It is true that the Sovereign no longer rules; and so one could say that the head of state in Canada and her sister Dominions is vestigial and unnecessary.

But what would we do if we removed the symbol of the Crown from our way of government? Though the OTTAWA — According to an old definition, a diplomat is a person sent abroad to lie for his country. But among western nations that have outgrown Machiavellian plotting, and where cabinet secrets are likely to be headlines next day, the definition is passe.

It is truer to say nowadays that the diplomat's main job is to make friends for his country — because friendship connotes good faith and begets trust, the essentials for effective cooperation in defence, trade, science, finance and all the other areas of interdependence in our interdependent world.

At the LBJ Ranch during the last 24 hours both Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson have been working on the task of becoming friends. They are not meeting to make deals. What each wants for his country is the friendliest relations with the other, encompassing understanding, sympathy, accommodation and support. This kind of relationship can't be achieved by diplomatic lies.

So far as I can ascertain, the initiative for the meeting came from Mr. Pearson on the basis of knowledge that the White House's latch-string would be out for him should he care to pop in. He would be in Florida for a vacation, and what more natural than that on the way home he should stop in Washington for talks with Ambassador Charles Ritchie and to see old friends from the days when Mike Pearson was Canada's ambassador in Washington. And since he'd be in Washington anyway, what more natural than that he should call at the White House to pay his respects.

However, the casual happenstance of it all was blown sky-high by Mr. Johnson's yen to spend the weekend back at the ranch, away from the pressures and demands of Washington. And being just as desirous as Mr. Pearson to further the cause of Canadian-American friendship and cooperation, he invited Mr. and Mrs. Pearson to the ranch.

As his press aide, George Reedy, rather ingeniously put it, the change of venue was easily arranged because the president and the prime minister are "old friends". That might be considered stretching it a bit, since this is only the fourth time in their lives that they've met. But it does show a desire in the White House that they become old friends.

This is, after all, a professional friendship, being developed for practical purposes. Behind their frank eyes and warm smiles are calculating political minds committed to pursuing the national interests of their respective countries.

Undoubtedly their talks have centered mainly on developments, dangers, policies and prospects in the world's trouble spots like southeast Asia and Africa. This is the field in which Mr. Pearson is a specialist of world renown, and his views carry weight with the president.

Since the Americans got agreement on the Columbia, got us to accept nuclear warheads, and got us to ease our official attitude against US equity capital, at the moment there's little of a specific nature that they particularly want from Canada. We, however, want a new civil air agreement and free trade in autos and parts. No harm in bringing then up in this informal talk between old friends.

"Oh, by the way, Lyndon, there's a couple of matters that would benefit both our countries, that we'd like your support on..."

Agreement abolishes manufacturers' duty on U.S. cars, parts

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian-American government agreement to abolish all duties paid by manufacturers on new cars and trucks and original vehicle parts was announced Friday night by Industry Minister Drury.

The agreement will mean a $50,000,000 annual saving to auto manufacturers in Canada. Motorists may benefit slightly but the car-makers are likely to plow most of the savings into enlarged capacity to meet a commitment to increase Canadian auto production by one-third before the end of their 1968 model year.

Individuals will not get a direct break on tariff abolition. That is, Canadians purchasing a new car in the United States will still have to pay 17½ per cent duty plus taxes when they bring it across the border.

The agreement will be signed today by President Johnson and Prime Minister Pearson at the LBJ Ranch in Texas, also signing will be U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin.

In his announcement here, Mr. Drury said the agreement will be "mutually beneficial."

"This program is designed to achieve a substantial expansion in production and employment, and promote improved competitive efficiency in this important sector of Canadian manufacturing," he said.

Canadian tariffs will be abolished effective Monday by cabinet order-in-council.

However, the parallel U.S. action cannot be taken alone by President Johnson and under U.S. law must be approved by Congress. That step would be retroactive.

Mr. Drury said he is confident Congress will pass the plan without serious amendments. Canadian car buyers may not benefit immediately — at least, not by much, Mr. Drury's statement indicated. It said in part: "Of significance for the Canadian consumer is the fact over several years the plan should progressively make possible increased efficiency and reduced costs."

MAIN OBJECTIVE

"Indeed, this is one of the main objectives of the entire program."

"In line with the attainment of lower costs of production, it is to be anticipated, as the program develops, that the forces of competition will gradually result in savings for Canadian consumers in the form of a narrowing differential between Canadian and United States prices for motor vehicles and components."

However, this does not imply necessarily lower prices in Canada. Total prices may rise with labor and material production costs. The main possibility is that the present gap of several hundred dollars between new car prices in Canada and the U.S. would be reduced.

Even at that, there might still be considerable retail-price difference between Canada and some states of the U.S. due to varying rates of excise and sales taxes on new cars.

SCOUTING

ning (last Friday) was rounded out by games and instruction—with Mrs. Barbara Landry giving much assistance to Akela Humphries.

The December issue of "The Scout Leader" has a charming piece on the definition of a Cub. "A Cub is nature's answer to that false belief that there is no such thing as perpetual motion. A Cub can swim like a fish, run like a deer, climb like a squirrel, bark like a mule, bellow like a bull, eat like a pig, or act like a jackass, according to climatic conditions."

He is a piece of skin stretched over an appetite, a noise covered with smudges. He is mother's little helper, dad's boy, sister's hair puller, and Akela's necessary headache."

Appropriately the article closes by saying a Cub is—"A joy forever, a periodic nuisance, the problem of our times, the hopes of the nation."

The hockey Galters, with a comparable record so far, play their first league games of the new year against Ottawa and Carleton in the capital this weekend.

Recent guests of Mr. Frank Aiken were Mrs. Evelyn Macey and family, Sutton; Mrs. Percy Button and daughter, Patricia, Abercorn; and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Galtier, Homestead, Fla.

The Dunkin Farm Forum met on Jan. 4 at the McKellar home. Attendance was small due to the icy condition of the roads.

BISHOP'S

Canada (WUSC) conducted a book drive this week among students, collecting texts, periodicals, and reference works in usable condition to be shipped to needy students in developing lands.

Previously, a similar drive conducted among faculty members at Bishop's realized close to 500 volumes.

WUSC representatives were campaigning vigorously all week among the students, many of whom, it is rumored, possess collections of university texts in excellent condition—in fact, unopened.

PLAQUE

The Students' Executive has recommended that a plaque be placed in the Chapel in memory of the late Dr. A. L. Kuehner, former Head of the Department of Chemistry, Dean of the Faculty of Science, and Vice-Principal.

Divinity Dean Jellicoe has said that the placing of a plaque there would be acceptable to Chapel authorities.

Dr. Kuehner, respected by Bishop's students as a teacher since 1925, died in December, shortly after retiring from his university posts.

Plans and consultations toward the erecting of the memorial plaque are reported to be underway now.

Nominations are currently being received for the senior posts on the SEC: those of President, Comptroller, and President of the Women's Society. (Some unofficial campaigning has already begun, of a rather subtle sort.)

The present SEC, it has been announced, has been asked to submit a nomination for the provincial Superior Council of Education. No decision yet.

Also in the area of student government, a committee has been formed to draft a new constitution for the organized student body, The Students' Association, which consists of all students enrolled and must under the present system approve all student legislation, may be replaced by a representative body, less unwieldy (so more widely?) in size.

The SEC, and perhaps other student groups as well, will also be affected by the new constitution, it is expected. Nothing too radical in the way of change of course, since the decidedly non-radical Corporation must approve the constitution before it can be official.

SPORTS

The improving basketball Galters won their second game of the season last weekend, 70 to 63 over University of Ottawa. They compensated for this on the same weekend by suffering a more typical defeat, the season's fourth, 64 to 56 at the hands of Carleton.

Garth Smith's eagles do not resume action until January 22, at Bishop's against St. Patrick's College (Ottawa).

courts

Fined for hunting with light

Two men from Stoke, Robert and Alfred Breton, appeared in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions yesterday on a charge of hunting deer with a light.

Robert Breton was sentenced to a fine of $100 and costs on this charge and was also sentenced to a fine of $10 for hunting at night with a loaded weapon.

Alfred Breton pleaded not guilty to the same charges and his trial was set for January 29. Four persons were sentenced to fines on minor traffic offences and a fifth had his case dismissed for lack of sufficient proof.

Roger Roy, of Sherbrooke, was sentenced to a fine of $10 and costs when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving his car without a permit.

Larry H. Curr, of Ascot Township, was sentenced to a fine of $20 and costs when he pleaded guilty to two charges involving minor traffic infractions.

The first charge was that of driving with only one licence plate on his car and the second that of driving with only one rear stop light.

Fernand Houle of Sherbrooke, was sentenced to a fine of $20 and costs when he pleaded guilty to two minor traffic violations, that of driving with only one headlight and one rear stop light.

Arthur Peebles, 47, of Ayer's Cliff, was sentenced to $20, and costs when Judge Benoit Turmel found him guilty in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions to a charge of driving too slowly in a 60-mile zone, thus hindering traffic circulation.

It was proven that Peebles, who was driving on Route No. 5 between North Hatley and Massawippi, had caused traffic to pile up behind him. Police followed him for a distance of two miles.

Michel Miloevitch, of Schererville, who appeared on a charge of driving with defective brakes and thereby causing an accident had his case thrown out of court for lack of sufficient proof.

Another newcomer to the players is Janet Allan, who plays the family's pickpocket daughter, to whom her trade has become such a habit she cannot even resist practising it on the local vicar when he comes to call.

BLACKBERRY CLOVE CAKE

1/2 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon pure vanilla extract

2 large egg yolks
1 cup blackberry jam
3 tablespoons cold water
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon soda
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
1/8 teaspoon salt

2 large egg whites, stiffly beaten
Whipped cream

Cream butter and sugar and vanilla until light and fluffy. Beat egg yolks, jam and water until well mixed. Sift together flour, soda, cinnamon, cloves and salt and add to butter mixture alternately with jam mixture. Fold in the beaten egg whites. Turn into a lightly greased and floured 9x5x3-inch loaf pan and bake in a preheated moderate oven (350° F.) for 1 hour 20 minutes or until toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean. Allow to cool in the pan 10 minutes, then turn onto a wire rack to cool. Serve warm or cool with whipped cream.

Carry-on-Club

Executive elected at annual meeting

The annual meeting of the Carry-on-Club was held recently in the Board Room of the Sherbrooke Hospital, with the president, Mrs. J. Allen in the chair. Thankyou notes were read from Miss C. Aitkenhead, Mrs. G. Brault and Mrs. G. Burt.

Annual reports were read by members of the executive, and Mrs. Allen expressed thanks to the members for their cooperation during the past most successful year.

A substantial sum of money was raised at the spring and fall teas, which enabled the group to provide for the Children's Ward of the Sherbrooke Hospital the following: A new television set; four humidifiers; two bed-side tables; one oxygen regulator; one baby tender; the recovering of two leather chairs, and other miscellaneous items. The club also donated money to the Retarded Children's Association and to the Sherbrooke Hospital campaign, the total sum of over $900 having been spent.

The new slate of officers for 1965 was presented and accepted as follows: Hon. president, Mrs. R. Badger; president, Mrs. E. Fuller; first vice-president, Mrs. G. Delisle; secretary, Mrs. B. Mitchell; treasurer, Mrs. D. Coates; corresponding secretary, Mrs. T. J. Quintin.

The newly elected president, Mrs. Fuller, then took the chair and a short business period followed. Conveners appointed for the coming year are: Knitting, Mrs. S. Cross, sewing, Mrs. R. Cotterell, social, Mrs. W. Mutchler, Jr., publicity, Mrs. M. Scovell, flower fund, Mrs. L. Morgan.

A combined business and social meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. D. Armitage, Portland Avenue, on Thursday, January 21.

A special vote of thanks goes to Miss Menzies for the many trips to Sherbrooke from Montreal, which she made to give help and advice in the forming of the Lennoxville Club.

Miss M. Bowles, Provincial President for Quebec, performed the installation ceremony and welcomed as president, Mrs. A. Plowright; vice-president, Dr. K. Harper; secretary, Mrs. A. Dickson; treasurer, Mrs. M. Gibson.

Mrs. P. Hardy, who is the membership chairman for the Province of Quebec, also vice-president of the Montreal Club, gave a talk on the importance of increasing the membership.

New members are the lifeblood of any organization. Stress was laid on attracting the interest of the younger woman who, once realizing the amount of administrative power she wields in this modern age, will devote both intelligence and energy to improve working and social conditions for the women less fortunate, than today's emancipated women.

The club has not yet received its Charter, but it is hoped that it will arrive before the next meeting scheduled to take place in February.

Refreshments, provided by Mrs. L. Turnbull and Miss R. Corbett, were served after the meeting adjourned.

Russian dolls in Bardot hairdos
MOSCOW (CP)—Russian dolls in Brigitte Bardot hairdos?

The idea may sound slightly absurd, but evidently some Russian toy manufacturers don't think so.

They were taken to task in the newspaper Pravda for showing poor taste and for poor-quality production.

"In shops we see a lot of dolls—small and big, in nylon dresses and cotton dresses; they differ from one another but they have something in common: roughly-painted faces and terrible hair styles."

For some reason, complained Vera Tkachenko, writer of the article, many Russian producers find it "impossible" these days to turn out dolls with side pigtails, the traditional Russian style.

Instead, dolls with such names as Svetlana, Alena and Nushenka inconspicuously sport "fashionable Babetta"—a reference to the ponytail hairdo worn by Miss Bardot in a movie which ran here several years ago, making the style suddenly popular in the Soviet Union.

The Pravda article complained about poor quality and lack of imagination in the production of toys generally. Twenty per cent of all production in one economic region, which accounts for 72 per cent of the Soviet Union's output, was rejected on the grounds of quality, it said.

"There are few toys with mechanisms and electric engines, few construction sets."

The low artistic and technical level of toys is explained by inadequately staffed design bureaus, it said, explaining that some enterprises have no painters or designers at all.

The Pravda article came out at the height of the New Year's shopping season here—the Russians exchange gifts at New Year's the way people in Western lands do at Christmas.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — We converted two occasional chairs into television seats for the children by unscrewing the seat and back from the legs and placing them right on the floor near the set. The legs were then attached to a plain flush door to make a handsome bench for our record player, radio and records.—FRANCES

DEAR POLLY—Did you ever try to find a blown-out fuse when the fuse box was in the basement and you were all alone? It can mean endless trips up and down stairs to see if you have found the culprit. I solved this problem by plugging my vacuum cleaner, turned on, to the dead outlet. Then when the dead fuse is replaced with a good one I can hear the noise from the sweeper.—MRS. C. J. H.

WHOLESALE DEL

MUSIC ON RECORDS

By JOSEPH and SUSAN WEARING

GERVASE DE PEYER — Recital; Gervase de Peyer, clarinet; Cyril Freedy, piano; (L'OISEAU-LYRE mono OL 50197) — Gervase de Peyer is certainly one of the great clarinetists of the day. His tone is clean and round; his phrasing always impeccable, and above everything he is a fine musician. He has chosen a very ambitious and varied program, beginning with the brilliant "Grand Duo Concertant" by Weber. The impossible piano part is very well handled by Cyril Freedy, who proves to be a very sensitive accompanist. Next is the "Andantino" by Florent Schmitt. A delightful "Petit Piece" originally written by Debussy as a sight-reading exercise for students at the Paris Conservatoire is followed by two short Majorcan pieces, "Paguera" and "Valdemosa" by the British composer Joseph Horowitz. A set of "Valse caprices" entitled "Le Tombeau de Ravel" by Arthur Benjamin is modelled on Ravel's "Valse Nobles et Sentimentales". A "Sonatine" by the Czech composer Bohuslav Martinu brings the program to a close.

MOZART — Sinfonia Concertante; Rafael Drulian, violin; Abraham Skernick, viola; Exsultate, Jubilate; Judith Raskin, soprano; Members of the Cleveland Orchestra, George Szell, cond. (COLUMBIA Stereo MS 6623) — Judith Raskin's voice has a dramatic ring which gives a nice brightness to her interpretation of the Jubilate. She sings the difficult runs without any trouble and her superb musical taste is evident throughout. I do feel that in the Alleluia, she lacks the sweet joyousness of Lois Marshall. As far as I know, Marshall has not made a recording of the work, although her concert performances have been highly praised. The catalogue would be the richer if there were recordings of the work by both of these fine artists. Last year's record of the Sinfonia Concertante by the Oistrakhs is still to be preferred to this new recording. Drulian and Skernick (concertmaster and principal violinist respectively of the Cleveland Orchestra) are not so serious and earnest as the Oistrakhs and this is all to the good; but their tone just cannot compare with the richness of the Oistrakhs.

BACH — Two and Three Part Inventions; Glenn Gould, pianist. (COLUMBIA Stereo MS 6622) — Unconventional interpretations which are sometimes musical and sometimes just strange. The piano, an old Steinway, has "undergone major surgery" under Gould's direction in an attempt to make it sound baroque. The result is, among other things "a hiccup in the middle register," which Gould rather likes. If you like the sound of old pianos, you will too.

The coin

During the month of January various coin shows and conventions are being held in Florida at Sarasota, Miami Beach, Orlando and Tampa. Many of the leading coin collectors and dealers of Canada and the United States are attending these numismatic gatherings and finding that it is an excellent way to combine business and pleasure. The largest of the coin shows is that of the Florida United Numismatists held at the Deauville Hotel at Miami Beach, one of the newest and most luxurious hotels in the state.

In addition to the huge quantity of rare coins, bills and other numismatic material being offered by the dealers, there were a number of outstanding exhibits by collectors. I found that the display attracting the most attention was treasure recovered from a Spanish ship, La Holandesa, wrecked off Fort Pierce, approximately 120 miles up the Florida coast from Miami Beach. The remains of this ship and the treasure was discovered May 1, 1964, by skin divers and since then coins with an estimated value exceeding $1,000,000 have been recovered.

Among the gold and silver coins many are so rare that they were unknown to modern collectors and one, a Mexico "Royal" 8 Escudo, sold recently for $3,600 and was considered a great bargain at that price by the new owner who now values it at $5,000.00.

The ship that yielded the treasure set sail from Havana July 27, 1715, as part of a fleet bound for Spain with goods and treasure valued at approximately $14,000,000. Sailing up the coast of Florida, the fleet ran into a storm and 10 of the 11 ships in the fleet crashed onto the rocks lying off the beach near Fort Pierce. Using native divers, Spain managed to recover about $4,000,000 in treasure but pirates and poachers also salvaged an unknown quantity with the result that no one knows for sure how much is left in the water.

Although the approximate location of the wrecked Spanish ship was known to historians and map makers, no one seems to have made a serious attempt to salvage what was left of the treasure until recently.

The big book on Clarke, Irwin's Canadian list this fall was to have been MEGAMURDER by Mayor-General E. L. M. Burns, Canada's chief negotiator at the Geneva disarmament conference. However, events out-paced the book's production. China's bomb, Khrushchev's overthrow and Wilson's Labor victory led General Burns to withdraw the book for partial rewriting. It's now scheduled for the spring and, controversial, hard-hitting and newsworthy as it seems bound to be, it appears worth waiting for.

Lorne C. Calbeck, research officer at the Charlottetown Experimental Farm has been awarded a certificate of commendation from the American Association for State and Local History for his book THE CRADLE OF CONFEDERATION, a volume which records many interesting episodes of Prince Edward Island's colorful past. Since, according to the book, the Island's history is "principally based on the intermingling of two cultures, the Anglo-Saxon and the French", there is now talk of having the book translated into French.

The aged revolt in this satire

NOT A CLOUD IN THE SKY by Josephine Lawrence; Longmans Canada Ltd.; 250 pp.; $4.50.

The year is 1975, the setting, a model city for the aged, the theme, compulsory retirement for everyone at 65. Josephine Lawrence makes the whole idea credible, plausible, amusing, yet there is an undercurrent of frightening possibility about it all.

The main characters are Harper and Drusilla Brownell who find themselves smothered by tender loving care, deprived of the usual privileges of sane and responsible adults and resorting to the subterfuges of children or irresponsible senility to live some sort of normal life.

The first portion of the story deals with their settling in the regimented community where there are no stairs, side loading vehicles, exterior and interior decorating and uniforms done in red and white color scheme because red is the color of youth and vitality to comfort Our Aged. The library provides only cheerful reading material, the dining room serves only creamed chicken and pureed vegetables, and always there is the constant surveillance of dedicated social workers.

Then a plot shapes up when rebellion begins to foment and Drusilla, who is only 60, puts her freedom to use to become involved in politics. There is satire throughout, but it is sharpest when the Brownells discover that there is an Underground at work to smuggle 65 year old Americans into Canada, passing them from house to house, the movement supported by sympathetic citizens.

There is a rousing good climax when Our Aged have the opportunity to prove their worth and all ends well. It is good light reading but contains a warning for all its humor, of the dangers of our trend toward socialism, and as Harper says, "Where was I when all this legislation was being passed . . . ?"

And thank you Miss Lawrence for depriving this reader of an avalanche of smut and a clinical report on the sex life of Our Aged.

Childhood delightful

RAYMOND AND ME THAT SUMMER by Dick Perry; Longmans Canada Ltd.; 182 pp.; $4.50.

This is a novel about children written from the point of view of a 10 year old boy, George, who with his friend, Raymond, who is 11, spend a summer together in Cincinnati during the depression. They do all the things that boys of that age are supposed to do. They visit empty warehouses, they climb mountains and camp out over night; they ride all day on a streetcar, and, generally, they are interested in everything and everybody.

The author set himself a difficult task when he decided to document the escapades of Raymond and George, but he has done his job well, and the result is a delightful little book, suitable for almost anyone.

GILLES MARCOTTE

meeting our first book authors — 10 Sherbrooke author deep

TENTH — and last — of a series on first-book authors:

GILLES MARCOTTE

Gilles Marcotte's first novel is THE BURDEN OF GOD. The author was born in Sherbrooke in 1925. He received his Master's degree in literature at the University of Montreal. He has been a literary critic for Canadian newspapers and radio, a television director, a contributor to several Canadian periodicals and has published a number of studies of the French-Canadian novel and poetry. At present he is book reviewer and literary editor of Montreal's La Presse.

Mr. Marcotte's strength as a writer lies in his introspective passages; in his thought channels which borrow and bore, paragraph after paragraph, as he searches for answers or reasons. His weakness lies in his characterization and his plot motivations, which is to say one can accept the thoughts of his characters but their actions are contrived, wooden and as literary devices hoary.

The indications are however that Gilles Marcotte will be a many-faceted author.

It's platitudinous, but it may give heart

NEVER LOSE HEART by Max Merritt Morrison; Doubleday Publishers; price $4.75; pps. 143.

I find very little that is unusual about this book, although that is how it is described on the dust-jacket. The author is the minister of Westminster Presbyterian Church in Pasadena, California. The theme of the book is centered around the conquering power of an active and dynamic faith over fear, loneliness, personal weakness and other human problems.

Some of life's situations considered by Dr. Morrison are making the best of a bad situation; having the courage to endure; and a quiet mind in an unquiet world. This subject matter has been treated exhaustively by Bonnell, Peale, Weatherhead, Bishop Sheen, and others, and unless one has some new approach or fresh interpretation to make, his meditation is bound to be mediocre. After reading NEVER LOSE HEART, I have to admit that I found it to be just another one of these soothing, simple and usual little books on the personal problems which develop in the human situation.

The weakness is that it has very little social content. The writer sometimes comes close, when he says for instance, that we must have a concern for others. However, most of the time he is giving sedatives and not solutions, soothing syrup and not challenging goals. He speaks of the humor of Jesus, but nothing about the cross; he emphasizes the necessity of relaxing, but omits to mention Paul's injunction to "stand fast having your loins girded with truth".

On the positive side I must say I found the book very easy to read. It is written in a clear and interesting style. There are some down-to-earth examples of actual people whom the author has counseled. Many people today are in danger of losing heart in this unsteady world. I am sure this book has a message which will enable them to stand up to life.

This love-for-a-horse story hasn't a single maudlin phrase

THE HOMECOMING by Marlena Frick; Hodder and Stoughton, London, Eng.

If you are one who turns away automatically from animal stories, do make an exception in the case of this slim volume. It contains the story of an old man's love for his horse, Pompidou, from start to finish there is not one maudlin phrase.

Marlena Frick writes with a rich economy of words. Her story-telling is a delight and is happily matched by the deft strokes with which the illustrator, Rita Parsons, complements the author's work.

The peasant, Valentin, and Pompidou have lived and worked together among the fields of Provence. Now, over the aging stallion hangs a threat so terrible that his master is crushed at the thought of it. He tries praying. He knows the Lord will probably rub His eyes and look again.

"Oh, no," He will say, "not that oldascal acknowledging me at last."

His prayer finished, Valen-

THE BURDEN OF GOD, By Gilles Marcotte; Copp Clark; 185 pages; $5.50.

THE BURDEN OF GOD is the first novel of Sherbrooke born author Gilles Marcotte. It is the story of a young man, Claude Savoie, serving the first appointment of his priesthood as second curate in a small French Canadian factory town. It is written with insight and a certain skill, but it left me wondering if Mr. Marcotte deliberately presented this picture of an immature and confused priest as his own conception of the clergy or if he were truly attempting to mirror the anguish and mental torment that was, obviously, the lot of his curate. Whatever the intention, Abbe Savoie, with "his pointed chin, weak mouth and pale eyes", with his agonized introspections and endless fears, does little to endear himself to a reader.

The characters of the book are possibly drawn from people known to the author. He has an intimate insight into the workings of a small town parish. The Cure of Sainte-Eulalie is a domineering and tough guardian of morality. He tells his stunned new curate, "I'm both their father and their watchdog. And I can bite when it's necessary." He is a force in the factory unions, and again one wonders about the tongue-in-cheek attitude of the writer.

The younger man, awkward, uncertain and full of doubt does not approve of the Cure, but lacks the strength to speak out or to attempt to introduce any innovations. He fails to measure up to the most trivial situations and, on the only occasion where he does act on his own convictions, he loses courage at the crucial moment and flees the parish to seek sanctuary in a neighboring monastery.

The book presents almost as great a dilemma to the reader as the priesthood does to Claude Savoie.

Does author Marcotte intend us to feel great sympathy for his indecisive and tormented hero and to understand his attempts to convey the meaning of Christ on earth to his people? Or, does he mean primarily to deplore the tragedy of young French Canadians, carefully, tenderly, pushed towards the priesthood from childhood, who find themselves suddenly, unexpectedly, thrust from the fine philosophy of the Seminary and face to face with a sinful and indifferent world?

In this respect, it is a provocative novel but, nevertheless, I feel that its appeal will be limited to a rather small minority.

Collecting

in the

Townships

There will be an omnibus of stamps for British Colonies to be issued May 17 to commemorate the International Telecommunication Union Centenary. Present plans call for a total of 32 colonies with two stamps for each. The stamps will include a cameo portrait of Her Majesty and the Brunel set will have a portrait of the Sultan. The complete set will not be very high priced, but will have two-shilling values included for some colonies.

Omnibus issues for the British Colonies are not new, and many of these have been good sellers and some sets in various groups are very scarce. Should a collector be interested in these issues it is wise to purchase them complete as issued rather than colony by colony.

The Royal Philatelic Society of Canada will hold its convention at Halifax this year and a good show is planned. Those interested should make plans now and avoid disappointment later on when accommodation will be scarce.

The Society now issues a most interesting bi-monthly magazine under the capable editor, Louis Lamoureux of Toronto. There are, of course, many changes we would like to see come about, but a wonderful job is being accomplished with the limited funds available. There would appear to be shortage of writers of Canadian articles. Surely there are many who could send along essays on their favourite Canadian stamps, postal markings, and postal history. It is in the postal history department where the lack of information seems most acute. We find collectors who have completed their Canadian collections with the exception of the rarities but who do not know too much about the history behind the issues.

The present article in the magazine on early postal service in Canada and the provinces is interesting and a valuable reference work but this could be expanded to include other areas of Canada.

The following article on communications of the Commonwealth is from the January edition of the Crown Agents Stamp Bulletin.

"It is a pity that the United Kingdom, which has one of the oldest and most diversified communications systems of the Commonwealth, has made scant reference to it through the medium of postage stamps. A glance at a postal circulation map of Britain in 1890, for example, would show that at that time letters were carried by postmen on foot, on bicycle, on horseback; mail was transmitted by coach, by tram car, by railway and even by canal barge; steamboats connected England with Ireland and the continent and sailing ships plied between the mainland of Scotland and its offshore islands.

Though officially illegal since 1850 dogs were still in use to draw small mail carts in Surrey and Hampshire as late as 1900 while a peep into mechanization of the future was provided by the experimental pneumatic post installed at the Penny Post Jubilee Exhibition at South Kensington. Yet only the mounted post-boy of 1660 has been depicted on a British stamp, the 3d of the 1960 series commemorating the tercentenary of the General Letter Office.

Other countries of the Commonwealth, however, have issued a number of stamps featuring the wide range of methods used to maintain communications. The simplest and oldest means of transmitting mail was by foot post, dating from the imperial messengers of King Darius and the Roman "muntii". Even today, in spite of automation and mechanization, every letter at some stage or another is carried by a foot postman.

The Mogul emperors had a system of runners spanning their empire at the beginning of the sixteenth century and today the "dak" runner is still an important feature of the Indian postal organization, being depicted appropriately on the 2 annas stamp of 1937. One of the three stamps issued by New Zealand in 1955 to celebrate the centenary of the first postage stamps, showed a Maori carrier in colourful native dress. The Maoris were hired to carry the mail in the 1840s but were found at the time to be unreliable and their employment was discontinued.

The Golden pace may be too brisk, but it's fun

SO WHAT ELSE IS NEW? by Harry Golden; Longmans; $5.50; 312 pp.

This is Harry Golden's eighth book in a relatively brief period, which means that he is churning them out at quite a rate. This may be a heretical observation, in view of his enormous loyal following, but it occurs to me that perhaps if he slowed down a bit, he might produce a work of more enduring value.

This is not to say that this is not an entertaining book. Harry Golden could never be dull. However, a great deal of it seems ephemeral and fragmentary, like a conversation, or newspaper paragraph.

His subject matter continues to be reminiscence (at which he is superb) relations between Jew and Christian, Negro and White, politics, the South, wry comments on the passing scene, all brief, sometimes only two sentences long. If you are a Harry Golden fan, you will already have purchased and chuckled through So What Else Is New? Otherwise, I would have to recommend instead his first book, Only in America, a minor classic for its descriptions of life on New York City's lower East Side in the early 1900s.

St. Pat's cagers divide honors in doubleheader as seniors win, Ste. Famille to forfeit Jr. tilts

St. Patrick High School seniors moved into sole possession of second place in the Sherbrooke Basketball League standings with a 49-18 win over Ste. Famille. Their juniors, St. Pat's White, lost 26-7 in an earlier contest in the same gymnasium.

It may be noted that the junior club of Ste. Famille will forfeit all future games in the SBL, due to lack of players in maintaining the club. As a result, all future games that involve the Ste. Famille juniors will be automatically awarded to the opposing team.

In one other junior tilt played last night, Sherbrooke High advanced in leaps and bounds and continued domination of the junior standings with a 37-22 win over L.P.S. Sherbrooke

High is now maintaining a seven-game streak that will be hard to break.

St. Pat's seniors had all men on the floor as evidenced by the scoring. Don Charlebois led with 16, followed by John Vear with ten. Greg Tribble, Rich Butterfield and Louis Simard each contributed four, while Dunmore, King and Lynch added three apiece. Bill Lamarche wound up the spree with two.

Top scorer for the hosts was R. Gauthier with eight, leading in their 18 point total.

In the junior match, Norman Bridges, Chris Steele and Andy Olney added two each with Mike Hall totalling seven in their showing. Ste. Famille's M. Dube and C. Lambert led with eight and six respectively.

Marymount High splits twinbill with L.P.S., seniors win 16-14 while juniors suffer 8-5 loss Marymount High School divided the honors in a basketball twinbill last night with Loisirs Perpetuel-Secours as the seniors edged their visitors 16-14 in overtime play and juniors surrendered an 8-5 verdict.

The senior win puts Marymount at the top of their standings with Montcalm and Magog, each enjoying the taste of victory. L.P.S. meanwhile has yet to come out on top.

In the junior match, a four-three lead at the half in the visitors' favor was increased to the final result, as Marymount seemed lost in the shuffle. Perpetuel-Secours was paced by forwards Bureau with four, and Laberge and Beaulieu each netting two.

Marymount's better players came in the duo of Terri McKenna and Susan Frechette, with Louise Greenland adding the final foul shot.

WFC clubs to get better share of gate receipts

EDMONTON (CP)—Western football clubs will get a "more equitable" share of receipts from interlocking games in the East, Hugh McColl, president of Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference, said Friday.

McColl, reporting on the special Canadian Football League meeting in Chicago, said an interlocking schedule between Eastern and Western clubs will be played in 1965 with "new financial arrangements to be ratified at the CFL annual meetings in Ottawa next month."

Make-or-break fight for both of us, says Floyd Patterson, would retire if badly beaten by Chuvalo

MARLBORO, N.Y. (CP)—The chicken stew was simmering in an upstairs kitchen of the almost monastic training camp where Floyd Patterson is preparing for his 12-round bout with Toronto's George Chuvalo.

It smelled good downstairs in the big room that serves as Patterson's boxing quarters, with the ring taking up most of the space. Leaning against the ropes, Floyd said he would "retire" if he was badly beaten by Chuvalo.

The two heavyweights meet in New York's Madison Square Garden, Monday, Feb. 1.

"I know this is a make-or-break fight for both of us, but I don't think in terms of losing," said Patterson. "Chuvalo is no 'washerwoman' and I'll be satisfied with a decision."

Heavyweight Champion Cas-sius Clay had called Chuvalo a "washerwoman" because of his former windmill style of throwing punches all over the lot.

Although he said he hadn't seen Chuvalo in the ring, Patterson doesn't believe the new style the Canadian bruiser used to knock out his last four opponents will make much difference.

"I fought lots of fighters I had never seen before and beat them," he mentioned Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., whom he outpointed in eight rounds in 1954 when he was only 19.

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (AP)—Canadian heavyweight George Chuvalo, preparing for his 12-round fight against former world champion Floyd Patterson Feb. 1, had one of his briskest workouts Friday although he lacked heavyweight opposition.

Cody Jones, the only heavyweight among Chuvalo's sparring partners, was kept idle by an infected finger, as the Toronto mauler resumed ring work after a day's rest. Chuvalo sparred against Greatest Crawford, Jim Christopher and Lucky Little.

Richmond to hold Minor Hockey day tomorrow with CJMS of Montreal tangling with local Pee Wee club

RICHMOND—Sunday will be a special day here for the young people as those interested in hockey will take an active part in the day's activities. It will be the first presentation of a Minor Hockey program this season and games will be played in four classes, Mosquito, Pee Wee, Bantam and Midget.

The spotlight will be on the Pee Wee Aces, our local representatives to the Quebec International Pee Wee Tournament this coming February. The Aces will meet a Pee Wee club from Montreal, sponsored by CJMS.

This same team played Sherbrooke recently and trounced the home club 10-1. Aces will no doubt be on their guard when they meet CJMS here in the Coliseum on Sunday and Coach Oscar Thibault has hopes of a victory.

Other games listed have the Waterloo representatives in the Mosquito, Bantam and Midget classes meeting with the Richmond youngsters. This should be a real good program with all of the games proving to be interesting, especially for those taking part in the games.

The local minor hockey group hopes the boys' parents will be in attendance as they are also a big factor in any of the games played. The youngsters will feel more confident in seeing their parents as they make their turns on the ice.

Minor Hockey Week is not far away and the Richmond group is putting on this program in advance because of the visit of the CJMS Pee Wee club who will battle it out with the local Aces prior to their sojourn to Quebec next month.

Aces have played several exhibition games with other clubs and have shown very well to date. They hope to please the fans on Sunday and also hope to see more adults watching.

The slope from which he is descending meets the road and then continues down the trail.

Leafs gaining, Canadiens call up help

Toronto Maple Leafs, riding a seven-game unbeaten crest and stung by their exclusion from the National Hockey League's mid-season all-star team, are determined to close the slender gap to the top of the league in weekend action.

A full schedule of six games tonight and Sunday could cause some shuffling in the top positions, where a three-point spread covers the first three clubs.

Chicago Black Hawks, on top with 45 points are at home to fifth-spot New York Rangers and the sliding Montreal Canadiens.

Montreal, in second slot with 45 points despite three straight losses on home ice, play host to bottom-place Boston Bruins before going to Chicago.

LEAFS MEET WINGS

Leafs, their streak of five wins and two ties, including a 5-3 defeat over Canadiens Thursday and a goalless draw with Black Hawks the night before, meet Detroit Red Wings in Toronto and then go to Boston Sunday.

Flyers meet Magog Sunday in junior loop

RICHMOND—In Junior B hockey, Flyers moved into third place in the Connie Dion circuit by a victory over first-place Waterloo Tuesday night.

They took the game 3-1 on two goals by Ronald Dubreuil and one by Michel Raymond. F. Gaudreau scored for Maroons.

The win moved Richmond Flyers ahead of Lake Megantic in the standings. This evening one game is on tap with Waterloo at Lake Megantic and on Sunday all clubs see action.

Richmond Flyers are away and travel to Magog, meeting the last-place club, Drummondville moves to the mining town and clash with Asbestos Metros while Waterloo has another meeting with the Megantic club.

All of these games can easily show a change in the standings and the top-running teams will be hanging onto their leads. Only one game is left to play and that comes on January 21 with Waterloo at Drummondville. Then it's playoff time again.

Remember when...

The U.S. Supreme Court six years ago today—in 1959—upheld a federal district judge's decree ordering the International Boxing Club to break up its wide-ranging boxing empire. Mr. Justice Tom Clark held that the IBC had gained a stranglehold on the fight business. Two years earlier, a federal judge in New York had found the IBC and its principal officers—James D. Norris and Arthur Wirtz—had monopolized championship bouts.

Joey Giardello to fight for retarded kids

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—World middleweight boxing champion Joey Giardello announced Friday that his next fight will be a non-title bout for the benefit of mentally-retarded children.

One of Giardello's three sons is retarded.

Giardello said he will not accept any compensation and will pay all his training expenses for the bout in late February or early March, to be held at the 7,200-seat arena in the champ's hometown of Cherry Hill, N.J., a suburb of Philadelphia.
