OTTAWA, C. W.—One of the chief Cities of Central Canada, situated on the Ottawa River, 57 miles from its confluence with the St. Lawrence, and at the mouth of the Rideau River. The City obtained its original name from its founder, Colonel By, an officer of the Royal Engineers, whom the Imperial Government commissioned in 1827 to superintend the construction of the Rideau Canal. In 1854, Bytown, by an Act of the Provincial Parliament, was created a city, and its name changed to that which it now bears. The Canal divides the City into Upper and Lower Town, and enters the Ottawa through eight magnificent stone locks. A massive cut-stone Bridge, erected by the Royal Sappers and Miners, crosses the canal, which has already, from the extension and rapidly increasing traffic of the City, become utterly inadequate to the due accommodation of the public. The City is well laid out; its streets are wide, regular and uniform, and for the most part they intersect each other at right angles. The principal quarters are supplied with gas; and an early construction of water works is in contemplation. At the western extremity of the City are the celebrated Chaudière Falls, a scene of imposing grandeur and beauty, and unsurpassed in America, except by the Niagara Falls, which it rivals in many respects. A Suspension Bridge, erected by the Provincial Government, at a cost of $65,448, spans this foaming chasm, and unites Upper with Lower Canada. At the north-east end of the City are two other Falls, over which the waters of the Rideau River pour themselves with wild impetuosity into the bosom of the Ottawa; and although inferior to the Chaudière in point of sublimity and grandeur, they are not without many attractions to the admirer of nature's works. Altogether, the scenery around the City is of unsurpassed beauty,—wild, romantic, and picturesque,—presenting a variety rarely to be met with in any other part of the Province. The commerce of Ottawa is constituted almost wholly of lumber, both square and sawn, which passes through the City from the forests in the rear. More of this truly Canadian staple is manufactured in the district of which Ottawa is the emporium than in any other part of Canada, and the supply furnished here is the main dependence of the spring and fall fleets of shipping which arrive in this country for return cargoes to Europe; as also to a large extent (of sawn lumber) of the markets in the United States, in which the demand is constantly increasing. The Hull Iron Mines, distant from the City about seven miles, are being worked successfully, and they promise to be, before many years, a source of considerable wealth. The future of Ottawa it is not difficult to foresee: situated in the centre of a fertile and rapidly-developing country; holding, as it were, the key of the lumber trade; possessing inexhaustible water power, which men of enterprise and capital are yearly turning to account, as also every facility of communication with the principal cities and towns in Canada and with the neighbouring Republic,—it is destined at no distant period to become a place of important manufacturing operations; and in the event of the Ottawa and Georgian Bay Ship Canal being carried into effect, it will stand on the great water highway to the West. Its natural capabilities of defence are great and important. Ottawa returns one Member to the Legislative Assembly. Value of assessed property in 1856, $3,300,000. There is a daily line of steamers between Ottawa, Montreal, and Kingston; and the Ottawa and Prescott Railway trains run twice a day to Prescott, where they connect with the Grand Trunk and Ogdensburgh Railways. Ottawa is distant from Montreal 126 miles, from Quebec 296 miles, from Kingston 35 miles, from Toronto 253 miles, from New York 450 miles, and from Boston 485 miles. Population about 10,000.
