BRIAND CONFIDENT OF RHINELAND AGREEMENT

Dedication Of Canadian Gateway Air Port At Derby, Vermont

Much Interest In Rhineland Negotiations

(Associated Press Despatch) PARIS, Sept. 15.—Full of confidence as to the outcome of negotiations with Germany over the evacuation of the Rhineland, Foreign Minister Briand will return to Geneva tonight. He is encouraged by the unanimous approval his colleagues in the cabinet gave him when he explained the situation, what had been done and what he proposed to do.

Excelsior this morning quoted M. Briand as saying: "The conversations so far have been much more cordial than people imagine. They will be resumed Sunday and I am firm in the conviction that they will develop in a favorable sense for all the world and for the cause of peace."

"There is no reason why necessary efforts for reciprocal understanding and good will may not be made by one side and the other. I will leave for Geneva Saturday night. I hope not to have to remain there more than five or six days."

L'Echo de Paris, however, said that M. Briand's optimism did not appear to be shared by the rest of the cabinet ministers. They were stated to be inclined to be sceptical as to the favorable outcome of forthcoming conversations, holding the Germans were asking for everything and offering practically nothing.

Beatty Talks Immigration At Banquet In Edmonton; Sees Active Policy Coming

C.P.R. Head on Way to Peace River District With Lord Lovat—Many Factors Enter into Canadian Development—More Population Needed—Old Country Taking More Interest—Optimistic With Regard to the Future.

(Canadian Press Despatch) EDMONTON, Sept. 15.—A special train from Calgary brought E. W. Beatty and a party of C. P. R. directors and representative business men here this afternoon. The distinguished company is on the way to the Peace River district which most of those present will see for the first time. On the way here the train was stopped at Red Deer in order that Mr. Beatty might have an opportunity of meeting Lord Lovat who has been in this part of Canada for some days investigating the opportunities for British settlement.

Banquet at Edmonton E. W. Beatty and the party were tendered a banquet here last night by the Board of Trade. The principle address of the evening was made by Mr. Beatty who devoted his attention to the Canadian situation generally and made particular reference to the matter of immigration. While pointing out that the great need of the country at this time was more population, Mr. Beatty expressed his confidence that the Canadian people had come to see the urgency of the need and that effective action was likely to be the result. He also stated that the interest of the Imperial Government in the matter had been aroused and that evidence of Britain's intention to send more people to this country was plainly to be seen in the presence of Lord Lovat.

"It is difficult to suggest that any country so progressive and prosperous as Canada is actually suffering," said Mr. Beatty. "But it is equally desirable that we still have the problem of increasing our population and that it has not been satisfactorily settled. For years leaders in business life have been advocating immigration and still more immigration as the greatest necessity of this country, but our progress has been disappointing, especially in comparison with that of other Dominions. People urged the unwisdom of bringing laborers to Canada when there was a surplus of labor and that land should not be put under cultivation when many of the western farmers were operating at a loss. This staid the hand of the Government and little or nothing was done. We forgot our faith in the future of Canada and became the worst advertisers of our own country."

Opportunity Not Lost. "But the fact that we have been slow in putting an aggressive policy into operation does not mean that the opportunity has been lost. We should not advise the immigration only of those of the farming class. It is as essential that the door should be thrown open to healthy, willing men of any class, because it is inconceivable that this country can reach its objective in the way of commercial prosperity unless there is a free market of desirable labor to supply our industries and add to the market for farm produce. "Canada's wealth is in great measure confined to its natural resources and no one can deny the pre-eminently important part that agriculture plays. The land is there and men are not on it. It is not being worked so as to produce wealth for the country. It is estimated that there are twenty-five million acres of vacant land within fifteen miles of existing railways in western Canada. Can it be contended that we are taking full advantage of the opportunities given us. Men and money are necessary. If we admit the presence of those latent resources and their non-use we must concede that our case is like that of the man who buried his own talent.

No Cause for Apprehension. "I do not think, however, the question of our immigration policies need give us great apprehension. As a result of all that has been said and written all the authorities are now devoting more attention to the subject. The Imperial Government has sent to this country some of its out-

Briand Expects Satisfactory Results—Some Others Are Not So Optimistic—Say Germans Are Asking for Everything and Offering Nothing—Briand Leaves for Geneva Tonight.

(Canadian Press Despatch) MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 15.—About forty-three swimmers, among them the world's greatest, will move forward at eight thirty tomorrow morning from Pie IX Boulevard wharf to plunge into the waters of the St. Lawrence in the greatest competitive swim Montreal has ever known, from Montreal to Sorel, a distance of about 39 miles.

One stock figure will be particularly in the public eye, that of Georges Michel, the French biker from Paris, record holder of the English channel swim and the last one to stay in the water and swim the farthest in the Toronto's recent grueling test.

Byron Summers, of Los Angeles, Calif., is considered probably Michel's chief opponent. Summers has beaten Young's time across the Catalina channel and is double winner of the Alameda swim. South Africa, has Von Pappenus as a representative. Dave Billington, registered from Manchester, is an Englishman, William Erickson, the "human cork," from New York, is considered among the best. England, France, Austria, Russia, South Africa, United States and Canada are the home countries of some of the other rowers.

And if it is at all possible for a woman champion to beat a male champion in swimming, it should be accomplished tomorrow. Miss Jane Thomas, a prize winner in Toronto, has a fair chance to "cop" if conditions are favorable.

ARE YOU RUN-DOWN?

All That is Needed is a Tonic to Build Up the Blood

There are many people who have been semi-invalids so long that they accept their condition as a life burden. They have endured nervousness, broken sleep and a generally run-down feeling so long that they have given up hope of again enjoying good health. In most of these cases a well chosen diet, fresh air and a tonic to build up the blood would do wonders. And as a blood-building tonic no other medicine can compare with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. There is scarcely a spot in Canada where you will not find some formerly ailing person who has found new health through the use of this medicine. The experience of Mrs. Thomas Ahern, St. Malo, Que., bears out these statements. She says:—

"I have the greatest reason to be thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. I was in a very weak and run-down condition. Frequently I would faint and my legs would swell badly. It was almost impossible to do any household work. It seemed as if my blood had turned to water. In this weak and dependent condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A few boxes proved that they were helping me, but I continued taking the pills until I had used a dozen boxes, by which time I found myself a completely restored woman, able to do my work without fatigue, a better appetite and a sense of cheerfulness, where before I had been despondent. For all this, thanks to the health-giving qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are feeling run-down, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and new health will be yours. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

UNCLE JIM'S LETTER

Dear Corner Children:

How is every one getting on with the lessons and school games? The first week of school is always rather trying, for there are new teachers, new pupils, and new ideas to interest—and sometimes puzzle the boys and girls. But school days are the happiest time of our lives, and I hope all the corner cousins are having the best of success in their work and play.

We must all play if we want to keep ourselves happy and content, so organized games at school are really a part of the day's routine. The one given in today's corner will prove attractive I am sure, and can be played at home, or around a table in the school room.

The school fairs will soon be over, and many boys and girls will have won prizes for their work on the farm and in the garden. It is fine to see what really good work they do, and I am sure the judges would like to award many more prizes than they do, for no one likes to see the sad faces of those

A JOLLY GAME FOR A RAINY EVENING

We all know how to play "Sammy Says Thumbs Up," and this game is much the same, only it calls for quick thinking.

To play this game the players sit around the table, and the leader begins by saying "Robins fly," at the same time raising and waving his hands, like the movement of wings. The other players copy their leader, who then continues, saying, "Eagles fly, moths fly, bees fly, ravens fly, feathers fly, and so on speaking very rapidly, and each time waving hands. At length the leader says something flies that does not, and keeps his hands quite still; but if this is done sufficiently quickly, the players will continue to wave their hands, not noticing that what the leader says is untrue. Those who do not stop as the leader has done must pay a forfeit. The leader tries to confuse the players by saying "Cowards fly, plovers fly, dogs fly, grasshoppers fly," and so on. You will find this a most amusing game.

SUNSHINE MAKING

How do you make a sunny hour? Just take some right good will, Some love, some trust, and faith as well.

Enough to fairly fill A good-sized heart, and you will find

There is still some room to spare For impulse which will prompt kind words

And actions here and there. Mix all together with a smile, That's spiced with willingness, And daily use of this, my friend, That whistles you may ask

You'll find no recipe Like this to make a sunny hour Wherever you may be.

We must all try to be sunny, especially these days when there is so little sunshine out-of-doors.

And here is a bit of good advice for the boys and girls when at play. When you get hurt, or are beaten in a game—how do YOU take it? Oh, a trouble's a ton, Or a trouble's an ounce, And it's the fact That you're hurt that counts, But only, how did you take it?

IVES HILL

On Thursday afternoon while playing in the hay, Arthur Farwell, seven year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Farwell, had a narrow escape from death when he fell through the hay chute, a distance of about forty feet, to the cement floor below, which was covered by only a very small amount of hay. He was picked up in a serious condition and did not regain consciousness for some time. The little fellow is now gaining rapidly but is still confined to his bed.

SOME EGG RECIPES

Eggs are easily digested if prepared in any manner without the use of grease. For this reason, fried eggs are not advisable since they can only be thoroughly digested by one who has a cast-iron stomach. Raw eggs are more difficult to digest than soft boiled eggs, especially when they are swallowed "en masse" like an oyster.

I have no doubt that many tuberculars have been killed by stuffing raw eggs and milk. The healthiest person living cannot digest twelve eggs per day, and certainly one with a weak digestion, such as a tubercular patient, would be poisoned by this excess of protein food. (I have prepared a special article on feeding tuberculars which I will be very glad to mail to you if you will send a large, self-addressed envelope).

Coddled eggs are prepared by placing the whole egg in a quart of boiling water, first removing from the fire, and allowing it to remain in the water for about eight minutes. This will give the amount of coagulation which makes the egg most easily digested. Hard boiled eggs are difficult to digest unless they are very finely chewed. The best way is to prepare them as in the coddled method, but allow them to remain in the water from twenty to thirty minutes.

Poached eggs may be deliciously prepared by placing the egg in about four ounces of milk and putting the pan on the broiler so that the heat will cook the egg and milk on top. This may then be poured over Melba toast, with the addition of butter and salt as desired.

Baked eggs: Place a small round of Melba toast in the bottom of a muffin tin, moisten slightly with milk, break the egg onto the toast and place in a slow oven until it is of the desired consistency.

Cup custard may be prepared by beating three whole eggs together, adding a cup and a half of sweet milk, a cup and a half of seedless raisins, and a teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Pour into custard cups, being careful to distribute the raisins evenly. Place the cups in a shallow pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven until the custard is slightly browned on top. Figs or other dried fruit may be substituted for the raisins, as you will find they make the custard sweet enough without adding sugar or honey. Eggs prepared in the form of custard would not be considered merely as a dessert, because they really should form the protein part of a meal.

French omelet: Another delicious way of preparing eggs is to beat together two ounces of milk for each egg and cook slowly while constantly stirring, in an ungreased pan. The heat should be turned low so that the egg will cook to a jelly-like consistency without sticking to the pan. This resembles a yellow cottage cheese when finished, and may be served either in egg cups or by pouring over Melba Toast.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: Mrs. A. L. writes: "My four year old son has flat feet. Will arch supporters cure this? Should he ride his tricycle, or is it better for him to walk a lot?"

Answer: Arch supporters cannot cure flat feet any more than crutches can make you strong. Riding a tricycle should be good exercise, but the best one of all is to take your son for a walk once or twice daily, having him walk "pigeon toed" part of the way. This is walking with the toes turned in like the Indians do. Just tell him to walk Indian fashion part of the time and let him think he is playing a game.

Question: Interested writes: "How do you prepare Melba toast as given in your 'Cleaning Dishes'?"

Answer: Cut all of the crust from an ordinary loaf of white bread, and slice the entire loaf in pieces one-quarter of an inch thick. Place these to dry at least overnight and preferably even longer. When thoroughly dry, they should then be put into a moderately hot oven and toasted so that the heat will entirely penetrate the dried bread and it will be browned all the way through.

Question: V. H. writes: "I have what the doctors call 'encephalitis lethargica', I am told that there is no cure for this. Is that so? I feel as if I want to sleep all the time and have pains in the pit of my stomach—pains more at night than during the day."

Answer: Most people who think they are suffering from sleeping sickness are really only toxic and bilious. The chances are, you can get rid of your sleepy feeling as soon as you de-toxicate yourself with a fruit fast followed by the right diet.

What Will you do

Fletcher's CASTORIA

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved or diarrhoea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

PROSPECTS FOR SUTTON SCHOOL ARE OPTIMISTIC

Increased Taxation for Village School Should Make Better Education Facilities Possible—Upkeep of Fairmount Cemetery Planned.

SUTTON, Que., Sept. 15.—School opened at the Sutton Academy on Monday with the following staff: Mr. C. S. Douglas, B.A., principal; Mrs. F. L. Jenne, grades VII and VIII; Miss M. J. Dyer, grades V and VI; Miss Mae Huxtable, grades III, IV; Miss Meda K. Brown, grades I and II; Miss Irene McGrail, French specialist. Mr. W. Smith will act as janitor for the scholastic year. The library, which is connected with the school, will be in charge of Miss Hazel Bates, a capable and systematic caretaker. It was felt that there was something to be desired in connection with the academy, and the commissioners have raised the rates of taxation from 12 to 14 mills in order to secure the necessary funds to raise the school to the desired standard.

There seems to be a fair number of scholars in attendance, and there is an optimistic feeling that next year the school will hold a better position among the academies of the province.

The school taxes for the Township of Sutton will be levied on the old rate, 9 mills. There are some rate payers who feel that a somewhat antiquated system in the mode of handling the Protestant schools of this township is being followed and that a more up-to-date system is necessary even if it requires a somewhat higher rate.

Cemetery Upkeep. A recent visitor at Sutton was Mrs. C. C. Wells, of Beebe. Mrs. Wells came to see that the graves of the late Mr. and Mrs. Willard Wells were properly cared for, and incidentally left in the hands of Mr. G. N. Thompson (who has charge of the cemetery property) ten dollars for that purpose.

Other contributions have been received from local people, all being received with thanks and appreciation, and faithfully applied. Fairmount Cemetery, and its somewhat extensive grounds, was purchased by the late R. A. Wilson, and turned over to the trustees board of the then Methodist Church. Mr. R. J. Parsons was chiefly instrumental in raising a fund for investment, the income of which would be applied to the upkeep of the cemetery.

While this fund is of considerable amount, it does not entirely take care of the necessary expense. People who have not subscribed to the fund, are occasionally handing in contributions to apply on the upkeep. The ground is seen to as a whole, and all lots receive equal care. If the contributions handed in, along with the income from the fund and property, exceed the overhead expenses, the balance is added to the fund, which in time will care for all.

Social Notes.

Mr. F. A. Cutter, of Sherbrooke, and Mr. William Godue, of Knowlton, were in Sutton this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hite, who have been staying at Mrs. Hurlburt's house during her absence, have returned to their home in the Darrah block.

Mrs. Fay Sturgeon and daughter, Muriel, of Montreal, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Longway.

Miss Bessie Thompson returned to Magog on Sunday evening. Miss Thompson is on the staff of the Magog Academy, and is the last of the young ladies of Sutton, who are engaged at teaching to leave for their several destinations.

Mr. Robert Boright has just started the foundation for his residence. If not the finest, he has certainly one of the finest sites that is unoccupied in this village, and it is safe to venture that Mr. Boright is the right man to erect a home that will be a credit to the place.

The remains of the late Mr. R. M. Cutter, who died at Sherbrooke, are being brought to Sutton for interment. Mr. Cutter was born in this village ninety-one years ago, the family to which he belonged being one of the oldest and most reputable families of the community.

The deceased had many relatives in Sutton, among them being one brother, Mr. George Cutter, and two sisters, Mrs. Eland, of this place, and Mrs. George Wood, of California, now visiting at Sutton.

Mr. Albert Ross, of Sherbrooke, is spending his holidays here as the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Ross.

CURIOUS CASE BEFORE COURT IN SHERBROOKE

Debtor, Imprisoned for Debt, Liberated on Petition—Said to Have Been First Imprisonment for Ordinary Debt in Many Years.

For the first time since at least fifty years, a debtor has been imprisoned for an ordinary debt. The facts are as follows: J. A. Viens, of Magog, took an action in the Magistrate's Court, against Edouard Gaudreau, of Sherbrooke, for the amount of a note.

The defendant although summoned to appear on the 17th of August at ten o'clock, neglected to do so. A motion was presented by the Attorney for Viens for a rule nisi against the defendant.

Upon this judgment the Clerk of the Court issued a warrant for the arrest of the defendant Gaudreau who was arrested and delivered at the common jail of this district.

Col. Emile Rioux was then consulted by the defendant and his family concerning the proceedings and the arrest. Mr. Rioux made a petition of the court to quash the warrant and the proceedings for the following reasons:

(A) Defendant was present on the 29th of August in the Court House, to the knowledge of the plaintiff, for whom he had spoken a few minutes before the rule was granted definitively.

(B) Defendant did not know and was not told that he had to appear in the Court room to answer his name.

(C) Defendant never heard his name called in the corridors where he was waiting.

(D) Defendant acted in good faith, through ignorance of the law.

(E) The subpoena ordering him to appear to be examined as a debtor was not served personally.

(F) The motion asking for a rule nisi had not been served on the defendant.

(G) The defendant was condemned to jail, for contempt of court and was ordered to be kept in jail as long as the costs incurred by his default to appear were not paid.

(H) The defendant could not legally be detained in jail for the payment of the amount of judgement and costs.

(I) Contrary to the law and to the judgement rendered by the court the defendant was detained in jail for life or so long as the amount of the judgement $36.46, the interest $2.45, the costs of judgement $10.70, the subsequent costs $30.10 and the costs of his default to appear $1.25 making a total of $87.66 on which amount $14.21 is credited, leaving therefore a balance of $73.45 received paid.

The judgement was not followed by the Clerk of the Court when the warrant for defendant's imprisonment was prepared and signed by the clerk etc.

FUNERAL OF RENE OLIVIER THIS MORNING

Fellow Students of Young Lad Who Met Tragic Death on Thursday Paid Final Respects This Morning, While Business and Professional Men from Practically All Walks Also Formed Part of Large Cortège.

Final respects were paid this morning to the memory of fifteen year old Rene Olivier, son of Dr. and Mrs. Valmore Olivier, Prospect street, who was accidentally shot while in the woods at Rock Forest with three of his young companions on Thursday afternoon last.

In the large funeral cortège, which formed at nine-thirty o'clock this morning at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Olivier, were mourning the loss of a promising lad and one who was dearly beloved within the family circle, class mates and fellow students of St. Charles Seminary.

Promptly at nine-thirty the funeral procession quietly began making its way to the Monastery. The large cortège was headed by two autos containing the many beautiful floral tributes which had been sent to the home of the deceased.

At the Monastery the little chapel was crowded to overflowing during the service. The remains were received at the church by Rev. Father Dumont, of the Redemptorist Monastery, who was also celebrant at the requiem mass, assisted by Rev. Father Camrand, a cousin of the deceased, and Rev. Father Gauthier, of St. Charles Seminary.

The pall-bearers were all members of the class which the deceased attended at the Seminary. Following the service the student body of the Seminary were waiting outside the church and accompanied the remains to the cemetery.

No accident or death in Sherbrooke for a long time past has caused more general sorrow to the community at large than the death on Thursday afternoon last of young Rene Olivier.

The HOOVER. It BEATS as it Sweeps as it Cleans more d.p.m. less cleaning time and effort. THERE'S a new measure of electric cleaner efficiency—an accurate measure. It is the amount of dirt removed for every minute of cleaning. By this d.p.m. (dirt per minute) test, The Hoover ranks first. It removes more dirt per minute than any other cleaner. And because it removes more dirt, it shortens cleaning time and lessens cleaning effort. Not only that, but it saves your rugs, protects them from the cutting, destructive action of embedded grit. For The Hoover's exclusive cleaning principle, "Positive Agitation," not only removes more dirt, but it removes dirt that other cleaning methods fail to get—the heavy, sharp-edged grit that sinks to the bottom of the rug. "Positive Agitation" vibrates it to the surface to be suctioned away. You will be amazed to see the difference that this more-thorough Hoover cleaning makes in the beauty of your floor coverings, restoring the brightness of coloring and lifting and straightening the rug nap. We will gladly give you a demonstration in your home of the dirt-removing ability of The Hoover. We will also show you the newest Hoover convenience—a motor-driven Floor Polishing Attachment, which slips into the place of the Agitator. Call us and tell us when to come. Taxation A Factor. "There is, however, another corrective element to be considered. Taxation is heavy and the man who is heavily taxed becomes in time disgruntled and even a poor citizen.

"We in Canada," said Mr. Beatty, "have found that we are not different from other humans. The after war period showed us at our worst. Because we were worried and disheartened we indulged in the luxury of growling and snarling at each other. We exaggerated our disabilities and differences but while we were doing it we were not lacking in the spirit of work and thrift and so ten years after we find ourselves living in a country which has responded more quickly and satisfactorily to new conditions than any country in the world, excepting the United States.

"Our material prosperity" concluded Mr. Beatty "has improved our spiritual side, and because we are better off we are better citizens with

Club business was then considered and an initiation committee was appointed as well as a membership committee, and it was agreed that two ladies' groups would be responsible for the suppers. BOY SCOUT NEWS

4TH TROOP MET. On Friday evening, Sept. 14, the Fourth Troop held a short meeting, only for a few announcements, then went in a body to St. Peter's Church Hall to hear Mr. P. M. Dennis on his talk of Sioux Indians, which was enjoyed by all the members of the 4th Troop.

After the address the Scouts and Cubs went back to their headquarters, and had a corn cob feed, which was a surprise to all.

They were given their Patrol standing which is thus: Badger Patrol, P. L. Wm. Duncan, 101 pts; Otter Patrol, P. L., E. Taylor, 99 points; Beaver Patrol, P. L., E. Bradford, 98 points; Fox Patrol, P. L., C. Gardner, 97 1/2 points.

A short session was held by the court of honor, and various business matters were settled, and a few new rules drawn up. It was decided that the regular meeting be changed from 7:30 to 7:15 p.m., also that a shield put up for inter Patrol competition, the patrol doing the best in badge work, and winning it three weeks in succession would be final holders. There was a fine turn out of Scouts and the leaders are looking forward to a fine year in scouting, as the fall work has not begun.

Rev. P. M. Dennis on Sioux Indians. Around 150 Boy Scouts, Wolf Cubs, Girl Guides and adults gathered in St. Peter's Church Hall last evening and listened to a splendidly delivered and most entertaining address by Rev. P. M. Dennis, former district scoutmaster of Sherbrooke, now of Decatur, Alabama. Assistant District Commissioner W. Giovetti acted as chairman, and in introducing the speaker, narrated a story involving Mr. Dennis and his work, and paid a high tribute to the sterling services of the former district scoutmaster, who, he said, had been responsible to a large extent in the establishing and continuance of the movement in Sherbrooke.

When Rev. Mr. Dennis rose to speak he received a tumultuous and enthusiastic reception from his audience, many of whom recalled past happy days spent together. "The Sioux Indians" was the subject chosen by Mr. Dennis for his address, and it proved to be an extremely interesting one. The history of this famous tribe, the renowned battle of the "Little Big Horn" or as it is sometimes known, "the Cusmassare," and the peculiar Indian customs were treated in a very able manner, and a number of personal experiences were related. The address was notable for the wit and humor it contained, many amusing incidents associated with Rev. Mr. Dennis' work among the Indians being mentioned.

At the conclusion of the talk a roar of applause went up from the boys assembled and three hearty "buzzes" were given.

The chairman thanked Rev. Mr. Dennis very heartily for his most entertaining address and remarked that it was a splendid tribute to the personality and speaking ability of Mr. Dennis that he was able for over an hour to retain the unflinching interest of the large crowd of lively boys which comprised the audience. The chairman assured Mr. Dennis that the hearts and interest of the leaders and boys would be with him in his important and responsible work in the far south, a statement which was fittingly accentuated by three hearty cheers.

During the course of his talk the speaker referred to his mother, the late Mrs. Wm. Dennis, who was known as the "mother" of all the scouts. At one time some years ago the late Mrs. Dennis opened her home to the scouts for their weekly meetings for an entire winter in order that the boys should have a place in which to meet and that the scout movement should be kept active.

THE MILK SUPPLY QUESTION

The public is likely to be somewhat mystified by the proceedings in connection with the milk inquiry. As the matter stands, the health inspector declares statements in his report of a few days ago, after further investigation, to be unfounded.

It is unfortunate that the public, as represented by the press, was excluded from the City Hall meeting, for after all in any question affecting the milk supply the consumers are the parties most concerned. Admission to the conference would have enabled the papers to give a full statement showing the case of the dairymen and the answer of the city. All they have now is a bold declaration flatly contradicting a previous statement and some general speculation as to the rest.

It appears that the dairymen succeeded pretty effectively in establishing that the severe criticisms embodied in the published report of the inspector were unjustified.

The situation presented in the whole affair is to say the least curious.

The milk supply of the city is, as everybody knows, of vital importance. Every progressive city now demands that its milk supply shall come from healthy herds and clean dairies. There is something wrong somewhere in a department which writes a report one day and contradicts it the next. Here according to declaration the error was with the first report and to that extent there is ground for public satisfaction.

The time, however, is opportune for something further, in this connection. In justice to the public, the dairymen and itself, the City Health Department should have an independent inspection of all the dairies made at once and a report issued to the public in this connection. For the work, at least two men should be employed, who are outside the present departmental staff, and in whom the public will have confidence.

The public has a right to assurance on this important feature of their food supply beyond the mere statement that one report is wrong and another is right.

RENE OLIVIER

The sympathy of the community is with Dr. Olivier and his family in the tragic bereavement that has come to them. Rene was a bright boy, just on the threshold of manhood, and of a genial, straight-forward type which made him popular with all his companions. The taking of such a promising lad is a loss, not only to his family and immediate friends, but to the whole community.

VACATIONS

(By Dr. Frank Crane)

All over the world people are coming back from their vacations.

Some of them have exerted themselves so strenuously that the main thing they need after a vacation is a rest.

A strange idea is that you can rest a tired brain by over-exercising an untrained body.

Some people play round after round of golf, others swim too often or to long, others take far too strenuous exercise in walking or bicycling.

Extensive automobile trips are very trying to the nerves and often leave one exhausted.

The idea in a vacation is to change the kind of exercise of our bodies and brains.

If we have been working strenuously with our brain, it is an excellent vacation to loaf and do nothing. It does not always rest us to over-exercise with our body.

Contrariwise those who have been engaged in too strenuous bodily work should pay more attention to their brain work in a vacation.

The truest recreation is to stop the tension, whatever it is, and give one's organisms time to even themselves up, and use those faculties that have been neglected.

Too much sightseeing results often in mental fatigue, and we soon tire of it.

Vacationing, as well as work, needs planning. It should send us back to our task refreshed and full of happy memories of the vacation time.

If we come back to our work tired and fagged out, our recreation has done us little good.

It is a wise man who knows how to divert himself without exhaustion.

Probably the best vacation is carefully doing nothing and giving body and brain a chance to rest up.

When we are doing nothing all our faculties are recuperating, and afterwards we are ready to tackle our work with new vigor.—Cpt. 1928.

PRESS COMMENT

RAIN CAN BE MADE.

(The Montreal Star)

It is only in recent years that science has taken up the problem of rain-making seriously. Now we learn, on the authority of an eminent American chemist, that rain actually can be made artificially, although the process is only in the experimental stage today. He holds out hopes, however, that the work, at present confined to the laboratory, may ultimately be done in the open. He also explains that just as one of the main factors in rain production, and to prove his point made rain by blowing smoke into air saturated with moisture to the correct point.

A HIGH OFFICIAL.

(Government Bulletin)

The highest official in British Columbia, in point of altitude, is the fire ranger occupying a look-out station on Mount Carlier in the Revelstoke district, 9,000 feet above the sea level. Even in summer weather he obtains water supply from snow. Telephone communication with district headquarters enables him to turn in an alarm which can bring an army of firefighters to the scene in short order.

From his exalted station this ranger guards an area containing 130,000,000,000 feet of British Columbia timber.

SUCH MONEY ISN'T "EASY."

(Kansas City Star)

We often use the term, "easy money." We say desire for "easy money" was the downfall of the boys who have been arrested for taking part in a bank robbery near St. Louis.

Was it "easy money" for the two men who are under sentence of death in Kansas City for the Home Trust Company hold-up? Was it "easy money" for the boys who were taken from their homes to jail to await trial for the St. Louis robbery?

It is the duty of society to help deter other weak-willed young men from crime by proving that the spoils of law breaking are not easy money.

GLORIFYING CRIMINALS.

(Toronto Globe)

One of the worst symptoms of the crime epidemic that has a large part of the United States in its grip is the tendency to glorify the criminal and to make of the gangster, the bootlegger and the run-runner a sort of popular hero around whose misdeeds a glamour of cheap romance is to be thrown. In a particular type of fiction and a certain type of moving picture the racketeer and the hijacker are depicted as admirable characters and men of high courage and daring. In a recent editorial on the subject The Grand Rapids Press hits the nail on the head when it states:

Rot! The gangster is a criminal, a murderer, a thief and a cad—not a hero. Police who know him say it often takes a good deal of dope to "hop him up" to the point where he has courage enough to shoot a business competitor in the back, or turn a machine gun from a speeding car to a helpless group at a curb.

The nicest thing that can happen to the gunman is to be made an idol by the public, on whom, in the last analysis, he preys. That means sobbing, sympathetic juries and a handicapped police.

In England the "racketeer" would be a plain thief, blackguard and low paragon, soon caught and set at the pleasant job of picking oakum in a most unpleasant jail. In America he is coming to be the hero of novels, short stories and movies. This difference in public attitude has a direct connection with the difference in ratio of crime to the population.

It is the plain truth that this American newspaper speaks. The criminal is never a hero in real life. He is a cowardly, vacillating creature, in nine cases out of ten a drug addict, whose only strength lies in the lethal weapon he carries. It is a travesty of valor when such a being is glorified.

A HOUSEHOLDER AMONG THE NATIONS.

(Christian Science Monitor)

Gene, happily, are the days when the United States Government showed a bland indifference toward the way in which its representatives abroad were domiciled. The project of providing suitable housing for American embassies, legations and consulates is being rapidly put into practice.

The most widely known example of this new policy is the acquisition of an excellent site in the Place de la Concorde, in Paris, for a building to house all the offices of the American Department of State. This is, however, only the most notable accomplishment of the congressional commission which has the matter in hand. That commission has just announced that it has arranged for the acquisition or improvement of properties in all parts of the world where the interests of the United States are officially represented.

The reluctance of the United States Government for many years to acquire permanent quarters abroad for its officials is now seen to have been part and parcel of the policy of isolation which so long characterized the foreign relations of the United States. For the first century and a quarter of its history, the United States deliberately turned its back on Europe and devoted itself to the development of a virgin continent. This enormous task being in some measure accomplished, American eyes were turned toward the Caribbean and the Far East, and it was in these areas that the "hermit republic" first made itself really felt as a world power. Even then, aloofness did not disappear, for many of the accepted methods of procedure in matters of diplomacy and imperialism were distasteful to the political sense of the nation. Gradually, the conflicting elements in the contact with foreign states have been reconciled or eliminated; the United States has seen the justice of certain European methods, and Europeans have found some merit in American procedure. The United States has now chosen to signify its abandonment of isolation by becoming a householder among the nations.

FARM BURNED NEAR BISHOP'S CROSSING, QUE.

Gravel Farm House Completely Destroyed, But Barns Saved—Municipal Council Met at Bishop's Crossing—Social Notes of Interest.

BISHOP'S CROSSING, Sept. 15.—The home of Mr. Gravel, formerly the Wm. Jenkinson home, was totally destroyed by fire at about 12.30 Sunday morning. Practically nothing was saved out of the house and the garage and car were also burned. It was with great difficulty that the barns were saved, although help was plentiful, including the Marlboro fire-fighting apparatus. An insurance of $2,000 is reported.

A regular meeting of the municipal council of the village of Bishop's Crossing was held in the council chamber on September 4th, with present Councillors Rolfe, Andrews, Bishop, Gilbert and McKenzie, and with Mayor Gilbert presiding. Bills amounting to $160.69 were allowed and ordered paid. The report of B. A. THE STAGE AND SCREEN

HIS MAJESTY'S

In "The Siren," which will be shown at His Majesty's Theatre on Monday and Tuesday next, Tom Moore and Dorothy Revier, with a well-selected cast, attempt to show in an interesting love story how the other half of the world live. The plot revolves around a pretty girl, whose beauty and personal charm have made her popular with the social set in which she moves, and until she meets the hero love is unknown to her.

The girl innocently acts as decoy for a card sharp; but when she finds out what she has been tricked into there is plenty of sense action, interspersed with thrills and a red-hot fight against the background of a burning building. If an unknown woman guest in a hunting lodge during a storm, a violent flirtation, a sensational card table exposure, a fight and conflagration, a faithful lover, a murder trial and a last minute stay of execution appeal to you then you will like "The Siren."

Lillian Rich and Robert Fraser head the large cast in "Wanted, A Coward," which will be the feature screen attraction at His Majesty's Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

Rupert Garland, globe-trotter and soldier-of-fortune, wagers that he is a coward, despite his record for heroism, and answers an advertisement for a coward. He meets Isabelle, a mysterious girl who is quite good to look at, and with whom he falls in love. At her home, presumably he meets with a vicious crowd of gun-runners who are planted to intimidate him, but who also are serious in their business. Mindful of his bet, Garland does not fight or talk back, but obeys orders—until amidst all their seemingly crazy doings he finds the real danger. Then he breaks loose—and in his wild struggles is instrumental in bringing to justice the entire gang, including a South American rebel who is seeking fame.

"The Flying Cowboy," starring Hoot Gibson, with Olive Eastbrook in the leading feminine role, will be the feature attraction at His Majesty's Theatre on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

THE PREMIER

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week Colleen Moore with Edmund Lowe will be seen in "Happiness Ahead," a story said to be well blended with pathetic, tragic emotion and happy comedy. The story of "Happiness Ahead" centers about an unsophisticated girl from a small town, who becomes the wife of a city card-sharp. Her disillusionment, and the subsequent regeneration of her husband, provide the framework for a plot that is as unique as it is interesting.

The programme for Thursday, Friday and Saturday next will include, along with the usual five acts of vaudeville, the "Garden of Eden," which is heralded as an outstanding screen production. Charles Ray and Corinne Griffith head the cast in this picture.

"The Garden of Eden" takes its name from the gardens of the Eden Hotel, just outside Monte Carlo, to which place the little Toni Leburn, an unspoiled girl with an ambition for grand opera and only a sordid cabaret experience to recommend her, is taken by the costume mistress of the Palais de Paris. She meets Richard Spanyi, son of a long line of wealthy and snobbish society folk, but naturally a sprightly young man. And through various vicissitudes Toni welcomes the man of her heart, only to turn him down when he finally proposes, because she is not what he thinks her. But that is fixed up a wedding date is set.

SCOTSTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Baker, who live about three miles from this town in what is known as the Ballallen district, are planning to celebrate their golden wedding on the 24th of this month. Mr. and Mrs. Baker have for many years been respected citizens of the town of Hampden, of which Mr. Baker has for a number of years been the efficient secretary-treasurer. It is expected that many of Mr. and Mrs. Baker's relatives and friends will bring their congratulations at this time.

A new school house is being built by the school commission of the town of Hampden. This house is being built in the Ballallen district. The former school house, which was built many years ago at what was called those days the "French Corner," is now too far removed from where the pupils are living to make it a practical location, particularly in the winter time, when the roads are bad and the weather stormy. The school commission has decided to sell the old building to the Catholic commission, and is already erecting a new building on the C. H. Baker lot. This is in a location where all the English-speaking children live, and will be very handy for them to attend school.

Mrs. Neil Macdonald, of the Ballallen district, who has been in a Montreal hospital, is not getting along as fast as was expected, and will not be home for at least two weeks yet. The family are getting along nicely under the direction of their grandmother, Mrs. Philip Boy.

The services of the Anglican Mission on Sunday next will be: Christ Church, Canterbury, Litany and Holy Eucharist at 11 a.m.; St. Alban's, Scotstown, 7 p.m.

On Sunday next the services of the United congregations will be held in St. Andrew's Church.

On Thursday evening a lecture will be given in St. Andrew's Church under the auspices of the Men's Bible Class, the lecturer being Rev. Mr. Matheson, of Glouville, who took for his subject David Livingstone.

A Colonizing Padre

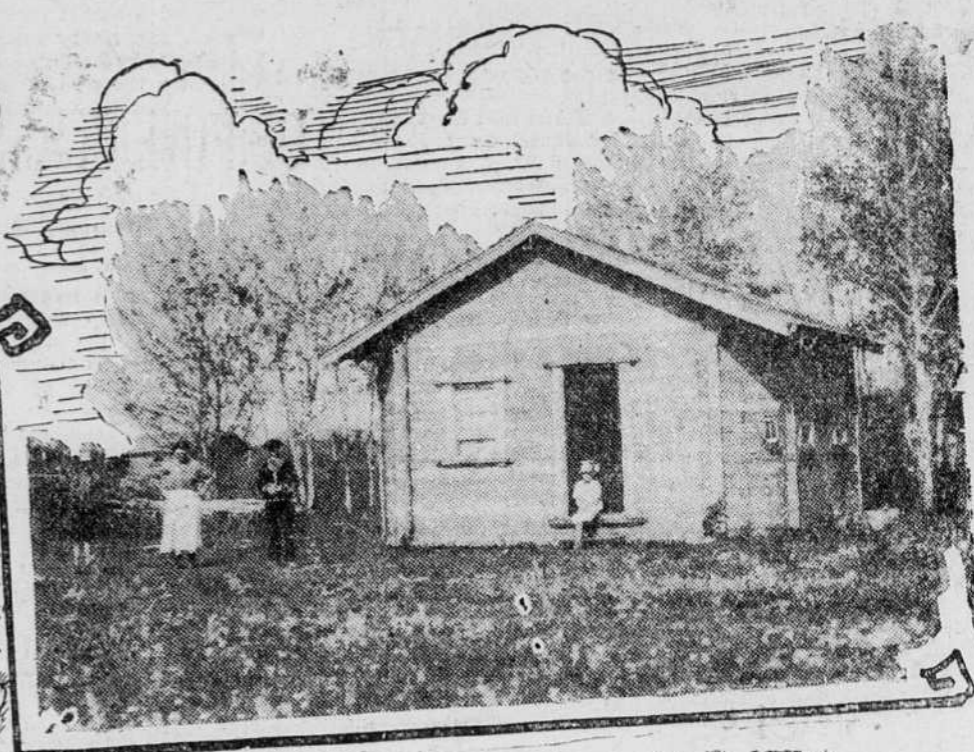

By E.L. CHICAGO

MR. WHITTON ON HIS FARM AT CREMONA, ALTA

HEBRIDEANS EN ROUTE TO CANADA

THE TYPE OF HOUSE IN CLAN DONALD COLONY

A CHANCE encounter with the Rev. Father R. A. MacDonell, managing director of the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society on board a steamship special bound for the Old Country on one of his periodical recruiting missions suddenly drove home an appreciation of what a tremendous force one individual can be in a particular line of endeavor if he has a definite objective and the vision, energy and enthusiasm to carry him on to its attainment.

If asked how much a single person could accomplish in the vast and difficult field of western Canadian colonization one would be inclined to say not much, so that reviewing what Father MacDonell has been directly responsible for and what he has further instigated along this line in the post-war period it looms up a very impressive aggregate and this Scottish priest stands out a great national benefactor.

Father MacDonell can claim to have directly added to Canadian population and satisfactorily assimilated through the agricultural industry beyond possibility of seepage some three thousand persons of the finest and most desirable type, while he has been indirectly responsible for the movement of countless others.

He can point to three hundred and fifty husky families transferred from Scotland and Ireland and actually planted in western Canadian farms, where in contentment and satisfaction they are treading the paths to prosperity and independence.

Surveying the short, thick-set figure in shabby clerical garb hunched up in the corner of the seat, and then studying the broad, complacent, kindly face, one is not particularly impressed. He is the simplest and most unassuming of men, and passing down the train one would be inclined to categorize him as some country cure placidly content with his little parish routine. One would never suspect him of being the human dynamo of energy he is, the tireless worker in a cause he has made peculiarly his own, until colonization is mentioned, and then his face lights up and he is irresistible enthusiasm.

Father MacDonell's colonization work belongs to the post-war years. During the period of hostilities he became familiarly known and endeared to many young Canadians as chaplain to a Canadian artillery brigade and received the Military Cross for gallantry in the field. After the armistice he settled in the diocese of London, but found the work too limited for his energy. A new outlet came unexpectedly. He heard of the distress among the crofters in his native islands of the Hebrides and was moved to seek about for a remedy. He received permission to go to Scotland to make an investigation.

He came back to Canada with a plan formulated. His enthusiasm was convincing and he was successful in persuading his bishop to secure a farm to which young men from the Hebrides might be moved and from which they could be distributed to agricultural employment throughout Ontario. This was done and a stream of sturdy young Highlanders came over and many hundreds were absorbed in the farming industry.

Father MacDonell's dream by that time went far beyond this. He had come to have a keen appreciation of the lack of organization for British settlement and the disabilities under which the settler from the old land labored in certain respects. He realized the advantages possessed by the foreign-born in their colony settlements by which they assured themselves of neighbors of the same homeland, congenial and sympathetic. Colony settlement, he became convinced, was the most practical means of establishing the simple, clanish crofters of these northern islands, so steeped in native lore and tradition, and he believed there was great opportunity for such settlement in Alberta. So he moved there.

Father MacDonell had no difficulty in securing the co-operation of public bodies in the work. He went ahead and moved out the first group of Hebridean families, and the newcomers settled in two groups near Calgary and Edmonton, sufficiently close to one another to be in constant touch and enjoy many of the advantages of colony existence.

All this time Father MacDonell was managing to do his own recruiting overseas and himself escort the families he secured out to their new homes. From the Hebrides he went further abroad and canvassed other parts of Scotland and Ireland. Certainly even the most critical could find no fault with the quality of these new additions to Canadian population.

The scope of the work undertaken and that which was further planned became too great for one individual, even securing such wide co-operation, and Father MacDonell accordingly set about forming an organization which would be able to carry out his schemes more effectively. A number of men of means and philanthropic disposition in western Canada were brought together, each making a substantial subscription, and the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society formed, with Father MacDonell as its managing director.

The first step the society took under his direction was to secure land near Red Deer and erect cottages for a new plan which he had devised still looking to the establishment of his colony.

To organize the new colony Father MacDonell took the advanced step of applying to take advantage of the terms of the overseas settlement act, the society being the first private organization in Canada, and probably in the empire, to make this move. A tract of 30,000 acres was purchased at low price and on easy terms near Vermillion in Alberta. The sum of $100,000 was secured from the overseas settlement committee to stock and equip, while the society provided $75,000 for the erection of cottages and barns, the digging of wells, fencing, etc., of the hundred farms into which the tract was to be divided.

In the spring of 1926 seventy families from Scotland and Ireland many of whom had been inhabiting various parts of Alberta where they had been working, and still others brought out directly from the old land, were placed upon the first seventy farms prepared in the Clan Donald colony. It was an entirely novel and extremely progressive step in British land settlement. The new settlers found everything in readiness for occupancy and an immediate start upon farm operation.

The society had erected upon each farm a cottage and barn of simple construction at a cost of $700 and financial assistance to the extent of $1,000 per farm from the grant of the overseas settlement committee had gone into the purchase of livestock and equipment. Settlers starting out thus at a stage ordinarily reached only after years of labor were given fifteen years to pay back the money spent on stock and equipment, while thirty years were allowed for repayment of the cost of the land.

The colony has thrived and prospered in the manner in which its founder hoped and his labors justified him in expecting. These hard-working agricultural families got down to work without any delay, newcomers familiarizing themselves with Canadian farm implements with remarkable rapidity; and shared in the benefits of the fine crops of 1926 and 1927. A substantial little township with all modern facilities for the transaction of business has come into existence on the railway which runs through the colony.

From the outset the colonists have enjoyed all the advantages which come to other western settlers only after years of pioneer struggle and hardship. Each settler is surrounded by compatriots and co-religionists, making for content and satisfaction such as is not always the lot of the British colonist who sets out alone to carve a home for his family in the wilderness.

Even before the first colony was completely settled Father MacDonell had preparations under way for his second. A tract of 8,000 acres was secured from the government at Saddle Lake, near St. Paul des Metes, not very far from the Clan Donald. Families were secured for this in Scotland and Ireland in the same manner and moved out under the government 3,000-family scheme which had come into force. In the course of the summer of 1927 the colony was completed, the fifty farms being occupied by selected Old Country agricultural families. It is a smaller duplicate of the Clan Donald, with the same colony life, the same educational and religious facilities and featuring the same satisfactory content. In all respects the success of the pioneer colony promises to be repeated there.

Altogether the movement initiated a few years ago by Father MacDonell when he was moved by the distress among his compatriots in the Hebrides has been extraordinarily successful, as a supreme desideratum. British colony settlement has been successfully undertaken and carried through, in a period which has featured such a general clearing for British immigration with so little official action it is gratifying to learn of the volume of national work performed quietly by this unassuming priest.

When last seen Father MacDonell was again on his way overseas to secure the remaining thirty families to occupy the remaining thirty farms in the Clan Donald. When the suggestion was made that he might then, with the two colonies successfully under way, rest on his laurels a while, he smiled and said that he had planned three or four more similar colonies in Alberta and that he would be planning other British colonies as long as he could find suitable blocks of land for them. He would be aided in this he said by the fact that he could continue to move three hundred to four hundred of his cultural families from Scotland and Ireland every year.

CANADA HOUSE PARIS An Unique Experiment

By FRANCIS DICKIE

Providing A Home for Canadian Students

CANADA HOUSE, Paris, France, that splendid experiment in international relationships, is one year old. Canada House has started upon its second year of life with a fine record in assisting Canadian students in Paris. And now with another year well begun it seems at this time particularly well worth while to review, not only the story of the first year of Canada House's existence, but the long history of educational institutions in Paris since the 12th century, of which history the building of the university city is an outcome. In brief, Canada House, standing upon the site of the ancient fortifications, stands as a token in wood and stone that history does repeat itself.

At the close of the great war matters in the educational world in France were in a chaotic condition. The cost of living was very high; living quarters were at a premium, and the streams of students who were beginning to flow back to Paris were too great for the accommodation. Yet still they kept pouring in, not only from all over France, but from every part of the world, for Paris still remained the international centre of learning, just as it was in the 12th century. As far back as that date Paris had called to its scholars and students from all lands. And to one portion of the city men had given the name, "Latin quarter," because in that section Latin, then only the language of the learned, alone was spoken. Gradually universities were erected. Most of these were built upon a hill around the church of St. Genevieve, a section called the "Mount of Learning." In the Latin quarter near where now the Pantheon stands. And to-day in this same section some ancient educational institutions still stand. In the olden times each branch of learning had at first separate schools devoted to theology, law, art and medicine.

Then in 1245 the four were united under one leading teacher, who was called the rector. In the next three centuries no less than thirteen universities sprang up. And here studied such men as Dante, Ignatius, Loyola, Calvin, Brunetti, Lattini and Abiardi, to mention only a few of the most famous. At first most of the classes were held in the open. As long as the weather permitted the masters spoke from open windows or in the streets. Memories of these days between the 14th and 16th centuries are recalled by a street still named Rue du Fouarre, which word in old French means straw. This street in those days was used as a classroom. The students sat upon sheaves of grass in the summer and straw in the winter. The street was, and still is, very narrow and tortuous.

In Aid of Students

IN ancient times during the hours when the classes sat in it the street was closed at both ends by an iron grating so as not to let any interrupting person pass through. A large number of the students were very poor. Some of them had not even a fixed domicile; some subsisted by the aid of alms; some even resorted to theft. They slept on church porches and in cellars. In the fourteenth century some enterprising person started a hostelry where for a few sous students could get board and lodging. The first of these hostels were built by foreigners for their compatriots. So there arose the "House of the Englishmen," the "House of the Scotchmen," the "House of the Lombards," etc. The name of one of these ancient institutions still remains upon the same building in the Rue du Cardinal Lemoine. It is called Ecole des Ecoissais (or School of the Scotchmen). Though the name is still used, the building is now a girls' school.

Following the establishing of hostels a further step was then made in providing living conditions and education combined under one roof in the 15th century. Colleges were founded where the students lived. One of these was Fortet college, parts of which still stand to-day. In 1661 Cardinal Mazarin founded the College of the "Four Nations," which is now the Institute of France, in the vast dome of which the academicians to-day are crowned. Just what all this ancient history of the gradual evolution of educational institutions in Paris during seven hundred years has to do with the present magnificent building called Canada House, with its steam heat, all modern comforts, its own radio station, its happy, well-lit students from various parts of the great dominion, will for the moment not seem apparent. Yet Canada House is a direct result of all these years of accumulated history.

At the end of the war educational matters were in a chaotic condition. The chief trouble was the lack of accommodation.

A wealthy French manufacturer, Monsieur Deutch de la Meurthe, was anxious to do something to remedy conditions. He consulted with Senator Honorat, then minister of education. They decided to revive the old idea of grouping around the Paris university the Colleges of Nations, which had known in the past great prestige. At first it was thought to buy some of the old buildings in the ancient Latin quarter. But here everything was crowded. There was no suitable location for the idea as the great French manufacturer wished to have it carried out. At this time, fortunately, the city of Paris had embarked upon the demolishing of the fortifications which had once defended the city, but with the use of modern artillery were no longer of any use.

Canada the Leader

AT the gates of the fortifications, near Porte d'Arcueil, just beyond the beautiful Park Montsouris, a large expanse had been cleared at the time Monsieur Deutch de la Meurthe decided to do something to assist French educational methods. Aided by Senator Honorat, the French manufacturer obtained from the city of Paris 28 hectares of land on the site of the ancient fortifications beyond the park. This location, while still near to the Sorbonne and other seats of learning, was a wide, open space looking over a level plain and to the low hills circling Paris. And here M. de la Meurthe decided to found not only a university for French students, but to offer ground to all the nations of the world who cared to come and erect a house of learning.

And, strange to say, it was Canada, youngest of the nations, who first reared upon the ground of the university city a building where her students might be housed. This was largely due to the initiative of the Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian high commissioner for the past twenty years in Paris. Immediately he learned of the plan of M. de la Meurthe he bestowed himself to interest Canadians in the project, and so successfully that Senator Wilson of Montreal donated 2,600,000 francs toward the building of the present Canada House. Fifty other prominent Canadians from all parts of the dominion donated sums varying from $100 to $1,000 to furnish the different rooms in the building.

And so Canada House came into being on the 30th of October, 1926. It was opened by the Prince of Wales. It has accommodation for forty-two students. And now that the first year of existence has come to a close it is interesting to note how quickly Canadians took advantage of this national home in Paris. Of the 42 available rooms thirty-nine were occupied almost at once. The students were as follows: 28 doctors, 8 workers in science and chemistry, 6 literary students, 4 students of art, and 3 of law. Standing on the edge of the beautiful Park Montsouris, upon the very ground where for so many hundreds of years loomed the gray walls defending Paris, Canada House rears itself a commanding and impressive building, the more striking perhaps because of the plainness, the almost austerity of its outline. A huge, rectangular building, somewhat after the style of an old colonial mansion, its windows look upon the park and away across the level plain around which in future years houses will arise of the educational institutions of other nations. It pertains with their great arching doorways, with something vastly hospitable about them. All give upon a huge living room and a spacious hall-

"Dangerously Comfortable"

UPON the upper floors upon which face the rooms of the students, and these corridors are always hushed and still. There is an air of repose about the place conducive to study. At either side of the upper floors two large pergolas have been built for use in summer.

The rooms of the students are large, some twelve feet by sixteen feet. All the latest features of built-in closets, of divan beds and electric lighting fixtures best suited to reading and writing are here to be found. Each room has a private cabinet toilet. In fact, all the comforts of Canada have been transferred, comforts to which the average Frenchman and certainly all students are strangers. Just how comfortable Canada House really is cannot be better illustrated than by relating a story, here told for the first time about the Prince of Wales.

The prince is genuinely interested in Canada House. This was strikingly evidenced recently. On his return from Spain last summer he paid a surprise visit to Canada House, dropping in unexpectedly accompanied by M. Briand, French minister of foreign affairs. A number of the students were in the big living room when the prince arrived, and with them he chatted some time. The prince then took M. Briand to view the living quarters.

As the two were returning accompanied by their tour of inspection accompanied by M. Firmin Roz, director of Canada House, M. Briand said enthusiastically:

"It is wonderful! So comfortable, so amazingly comfortable!"

"Yes," replied the prince. "It is dangerously comfortable. If I were a student I think I would want to keep on studying here all the rest of my life."

In charge of Canada House is M. Firmin Roz, a distinguished figure in the world of letters. The author of fourteen volumes on various subjects, chiefly pertaining to literature, he is well known in France. But he has not confined himself to writing in French, but is the translator of Thomas Hardy's "The Grange" and Emerson's "Representative Men," Rippling's "The Light of Asia," Sir Sidney Colvin's "The Darker Side," and also written a book on "Tennyson and his time." In translated some of the poet's chief works. Since the opening of Canada House he has given regular weekly lectures on literature and art.

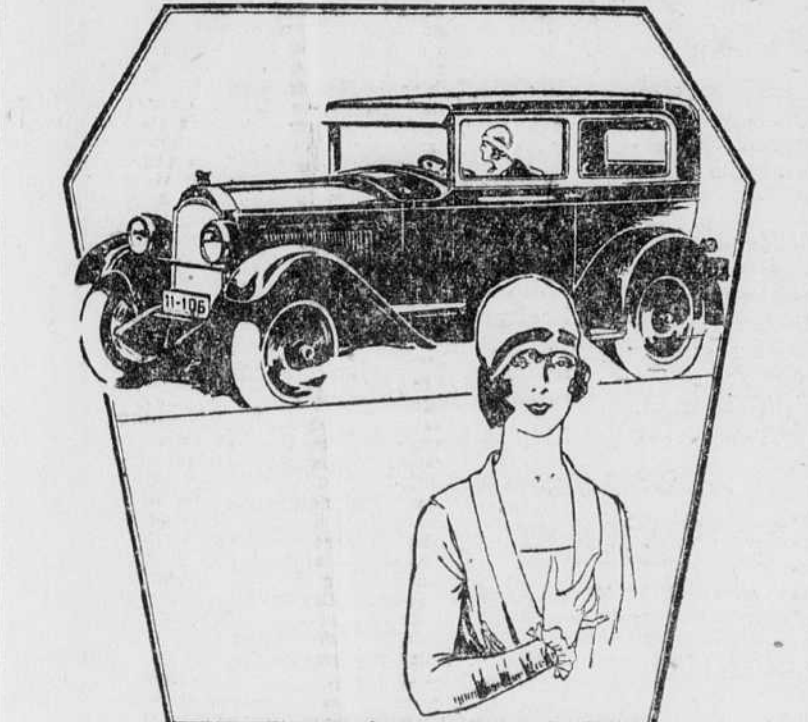

This, in brief, is the story of Canada House, first educational institution among the nations of the world to rise upon the site offered by the city of Paris for the founding of a universal city of learning. Through such institutions comes a better understanding between men of different lands, tongues and manners. Perhaps no better way, with something vastly hospitable about them. All give upon a huge living room and a spacious hall-

Some Of Our Eastern Townships Birds

(By T. Lee Quimby)
ARTICLE XX.—THRUSHES

The true Thrushes, although limited in the numbers of their representatives in this region, constitute in one respect at least, a notable group for included in this group are Hermit and Wood Thrush, two most gifted songsters, also another fair vocalist, Wilson's Thrush or Veery, and fortunately all three are quite common summer residents as one will learn if he visits their chosen haunts, which, for the most part, are the more retired woodland spaces.

By many bird lovers, Hermit Thrush is regarded as the finest songster among our North American birds, and indeed, some who have listened to the song birds in other parts of the world esteem him the equal of any, not excepting the famous Sky Lark and Nightingale of Europe. John Burroughs has said of him: "The song of the Hermit Thrush is the finest sound in nature" and doubtless many who have been enchanted by the spell of Hermit's magical voice will be inclined to agree with this distinguished, and charming writer on nature topics. Words utterly fail to convey to the lay mind the haunting beauty that lingers in their calm, serene and flute like notes that float out on the evening air from the silences of the deeper woods, falling, like a benediction from heaven, upon the ear of the listener. To be appreciated their song must be heard and once heard is not likely soon to be forgotten; it has a mystical as well as melodious quality about it that lingers in the memory and leads one to wonder if this dainty creature perceives a world of beauty and loveliness denied to the vision of us humans.

Older naturalists thought the Hermit Thrush to be, invariably, a retired and solitary bird haunting only the deeper, coniferous woods, near water or low, moist grounds. In a general way this may be said to be true, but like many other things in nature the general rule has exceptions. They have been known to nest near homes, even within the confines of a city, but these instances are exceedingly rare; in their migrations they may be seen together in numbers. It was doubtless owing to their supposed solitary habits that they were given the name Hermit to distinguish them from others of their kindred.

There is about the voice of the Hermit a remarkable ventriloquial quality that often renders it difficult to locate the bird even when he is nearby. One may start to search in the direction whence the sound of his voice seems to come, then as he approaches the place where the bird was supposed to be, he may catch the sound from another direction and in the meantime Hermit may not have moved from his perch. In describing the Hermit in his Guide to the Land Birds, Mr. Reed says:

"I watched one that was perched on a dead stump, about twenty feet from me, for several minutes with a pair of glasses before I could make sure that he was the author of the song I heard, for it sounded as though coming from across the next field". And I am sure that nearly everyone who has listened to them has had a similar experience.

When seen at a little distance all the Thrushes bear quite a striking resemblance to each other and it is often difficult for the amateur to identify the bird. All have more or less brownish coloring over the back, head and neck, with more or less speckled or spotted breasts. However Hermit is the smallest of the Thrushes, with a noticeable reddish tinge to his tail feathers, and he has a habit, while perching, of frequently raising and lowering his tail, similar to the warblers.

Hermit's nest is built on, or close to the ground, in tufts of tall grass or in briar bush thickets. The nest is usually made of grass strands, leaves and moss and in this, three to five greenish blue eggs are laid. Ordinarily the nest is built and the brood brought off in the month of May, but I once discovered one built on a mound in the woods and under the shelter of a fir bush, as late as August 11th. It contained three eggs and probably was a second, perhaps a third hatching.

Wood Thrush, the largest and with the most heavily spotted breast of all the Thrushes, is scarcely inferior to Hermit as a songster and not a few bird lovers consider him quite the equal of his more famous kindred. His song is to the impracticable ear quite similar to that of Hermit, but it is more powerful, yet less varied and perhaps not quite so refined in quality of tone. If you have the good luck to live near a grove where dwell these sylvan sprites you may often catch the refrain of their beautiful song made up of liquid, flute like notes, some parts of it resembling the sound of Oleo-Oleco-Oleco. And sometimes one may hear several of them chanting at the same time which lends added charm to the scene and makes you feel that this is, after all, a pretty good old world to live in.

The habits of Wood Thrush are somewhat similar to those of Hermit although it frequents more open woodland, and sometimes comes near to habitations to nest. The nest is built in forks or on horizontal boughs of bushes and is composed of grass, weeds, leaves and mud. The eggs are bluish green in color and number from three to four.

The other three of our Thrushes, Wilson's Thrush, or Veery, Gray-Cheeked and Olive Backed do not merit much attention as vocalists. All three have pleasing notes but bear no comparison with the other two in melody of song.

Although they are woodland birds all the Thrushes are useful for they consume great numbers of insects and beetles.

It will be gratifying news to bird

MOTH SEAPLANE IN MAGOG OVER LAST WEEK-END

Pilot Lawson and Lyle Williams Landed at Entrance to Magog River and Visited Relatives for Day--Col. E. Rioux, K.C., Buys Magog Property for Country Estate.

MAGOG, Sept. 15.—The buzz of a plane coming from over Mount Orford at a dizzy height aroused the Magog populace to a high pitch of curiosity on Sunday last, when the hydroplane, after a series of spiral turns, landed in a calm offing to the lee of Bowen's Island, across from Merry's Point, only five minutes' walk from the main street. After landing, the flyers, Messrs. Lawson and Lyle Williams, climbed from the cockpit of their moth hydroplane and proceeded to anchor it, while a fleet of curious water-craft in the inlet and crowds of people gathered on the fringing ground at Merry's Point. Rowboats, canoes and motor boats on their usual spin around the end of the lake were chartered at a premium all Sunday afternoon in order that the people of the mainland might satisfy their natural curiosity by giving the moth plane an inspection. During the absence of the flyers, the over-anxious crowd caused damage to the frail covering on one of the wings. This was, indeed, regrettable, as the results of further tampering might have endangered the lives of the crew. The plane was a de Havilland Moth hydroplane, with markings of big letters G—C. A.R.W. on the fuselage. The plane had two cockpits and dual controls, with indicator board in the rear cockpit.

The pilots spent the day visiting relatives, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Peard, Mrs. J. B. Hall and Miss Maud Hall, and also friends at the Hermitage Country Club. On Monday morning after the heavy fog had lifted the pilots taxied the plane from its moorings to the mouth of the river. On reaching the open lake the plane rose gracefully, circled over the watercraft that gathered to witness the departure, later circled over the Hermitage Club about three and one-half miles down the lake and then took a northwest course for Montreal.

In view of this visitation it seems quite evident that Memphremagog Lake at the entrance to Magog river affords excellent anchorage for hydroplanes and the snug cove in the lee of Bowen's Island is a safe spot from gale or strong wind. Another advantage is that it is right in town and convenient to the source of supplies and fuel. So with the advent of commercial flying, this spot might well be considered a stopping place for craft of this type.

Col. Rioux Buys Land.

A very interesting real estate deal took place recently when Colonel Emilio Rioux, K.C., of Sherbrooke, purchased the farm of Mr. Harry Styan, which is situated next to the Hermitage Country Club and consists of about 180 acres. Col. Rioux has plans for the building of a fine country residence on this farm, which is situated on one of the wooded bays of Lake Memphremagog. Col. Rioux will, as time goes on, take a very interesting part in the development of the town and district. His many friends welcome him as a resident of town and lake, hoping he will enjoy the varied pleasures it affords.

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS OF CANADA, LIMITED

What they mean by "Sales Service Results"

There's an expression that's very common among owners of Speed Wagons—Sales Service Results. By this is meant the new business that comes from effective deliveries and favorable customer contacts.

Because Speed Wagons can start and stop more quickly with their 6-cylinder acceleration and 4-wheel two shoe hydraulic brakes, they save time in traffic and insure unfailing promptness. Because they are sturdy in every part, they seldom see a repair shop.

Because they are unusually handsome, they create the best possible impression wherever they go. And because there are thirteen Speed Wagon wheelbases, you can have exactly the right models to fit your needs—throughout an entire fleet! Consider what this means to you—and to your customers. Then try out a Speed Wagon—start it, step on it, stop it, park it. A demonstration is yours for the asking.

NEW YORK IS JUST BEHIND LEADING TEAM

Good Pitching by Fitzsimmons and Scott Gave Giants Both Ends of Final Twin Bill Yesterday—Cardinals Kept Danger from Growing into Actual Disaster by Turning Back Phillies 13 to 6.

(Associated Press Despatch) NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—If John McGraw and his New York Giants could spend the rest of the season in Boston there would be nothing to this National League pennant struggle. Eight times in four playing days did John's hirelings smash the hapless Braves into defeat and boosted themselves thereby into a position only one game distant from the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals.

So John returns to Coogan's Muff today to face the Brooklyn Dodgers in a single game and then to take on the four powerful western clubs in succession. It is scarcely likely he will find them as docile as the Braves.

Before the Giants invaded Boston these four successive double-headers with the Braves gave McGraw a headache every time he thought of them. By sweeping the series, the Giants established a new major league record for victories in consecutive double-headers and turned what looked like an obstacle to their pennant hopes into a rung by which they might climb to a threatening position in the standing.

Good pitching by Freddy Fitzsimmons and Jack Scott gave the Giants both ends of the final twin bill yesterday 6 to 2, 5 to 1. The second game was called in the eighth because of darkness. The Braves got only six hits in each game while the Giants collected 22 during the day. Scott and Fitzsimmons both had won previous games in this series.

The Cardinals kept danger from growing into actual disaster by turning back the Phillies 13 to 6. The Cardinals put the game on ice in the fifth inning when Jimmy Ring and Bob McGraw walked six men in succession. This generosity coupled with a sacrifice and Harper's double gave the leaders six runs.

Back of Burrell Grimes' deadly effectiveness in the pinches, the Pittsburgh Pirates trounced the Cincinnati Reds 4 to 1, and tightened their hold on fourth place.

ST. ROCH PLAY TODAY AND TOMORROW

The Sherbrooke St. Roch boys have two important games on their schedule for the week-end. Their opponents will be the strong St. Laurent team from Montreal, who have had a successful season and have won from teams ranking high in this province.

The first game will be played this afternoon at the local ball park, and will commence at 3:30 o'clock, while tomorrow's contest will be at the same place and at the same time. For the first time all week, the weather today looked like something real, and promised during the morning to be good enough to allow a couple of good ball games for the fans without sending them a down-pour.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

How and when should the jigger be played?

By LARRY NABHOLTZ El Paso Open Champion, 1928; Nationally Known Professional.

The jigger is an iron club designed to be used for a shot of distance between the midiron and mashie. For the average player it is a 160 yard shot. It is played about the same as the midiron. Take a three-quarter swing. It is well to use the jigger when the ball is in a cuppy lie.

OLYMPIC SPRINT CHAMPION AT VANCOUVER

Canadian Runner Receives Great Welcome on Arrival Home in Western City.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 15.—Percy Williams, Olympic sprint champion, who returned from Amsterdam to his home here Friday to receive one of the greatest welcomes ever accorded by his fellow citizens to any one, paid graceful tribute to Bob Granger, his trainer, and Harry Warren, Vancouver sprinter at the Olympic games, at a civic banquet in his honor last night. Members of the provincial government, the mayor and aldermen of the city, leading business and professional men and amateur sportsmen to the number of two hundred, gave the Olympic victor a wildly enthusiastic reception.

Percy's reply to the toast in his honor, when the tumultuous uproar that greeted him had subsided sufficiently for him to be heard, was not of himself and his achievements, but of Granger and Warren. His speech was brief. After expressing his thanks for the reception tendered him on his arrival home, he paid honor to the men who had coached and prepared him for his double victory, and to Harry Warren, who had made such a valiant effort at the Olympics and who had later showed his real worth in Ireland. "I think this is a fitting opportunity to remember him," he said.

One of the happiest features of the affair was the presentation to the champion of the victor's medal as winner of the 100 metre event which brought him fame. A warm glow of pride flushed his features as he received the trophy from the hands of Bert Tennant, British Columbia representative of the Canadian Olympic Committee.

Mr. Tennant read a telegram, which he had received from Dr. Charles Lamb, president of the amateur athletic union of Canada, saying: "The amateur athletic union of

FOREST HILLS TENNIS CONTEST NEAR ITS CLOSE

(Associated Press Despatch) FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 15.—Three Americans and one Frenchman shared the semi-final bracket in the national tennis championship tournament today but this was not taken by any means as meaning that France has only one chance in four of gathering in Uncle Sam's proudest court title for the third successive year. The solitary son of France still in the running is Henri Cochet and he is the favorite today as he was when the tournament got under way on Monday. Despite the fact that Frank Hunter, George Lott and Frank Shields remain to block his path to the title which his countryman, Rene Lacoste, won for the last two years and now has let go by default.

Canada desires to add its tribute to Percy, a wonderful athlete, a thorough sportsman.

Proposing the toast to the guest of honor Mayor Taylor presented him with a personal gift, a signet ring with a sprinter embossed and set with diamonds.

BOBBY JONES HAS RIVAL AT NEWTON, MASS.

Phil Perkins Alone Stands Between Bobby and Championship for Fourth Time.

(Associated Press Despatch) NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 15.—The recipe for winning the national open golf championship held true today for the national amateur.

All a golfer has to do to win either is to do as Bobby Jones. The champion came to the finals to be played today, with all his fellow Americans out of the picture and only a slim Briton, who can match Bobby's deadly artistry of approach shots, standing between him and his relation as champion. He had only to beat Phil Perkins to be crowned amateur king for the fourth time.

Perkins has sized up the holes from behind his spectacles and sent his ball closer to the pin more consistently than any other player in the competition. The class of champions leading to the championship found Jones the choice of most of the experts but he was not a top heavy favorite. The unmistakable class of Perkins in his last two matches stamped him as dangerous.
