A prince is born

LONDON (CP) — Britain broke out her flags and fired 21- and 41-gun salutes today to celebrate the birth of a five-pound, seven - ounce son to Queen Elizabeth.

Both the 37-year-old Queen and the new prince—her fourth child and third son—were reported doing well. The baby was born Tuesday night at Buckingham Palace a week earlier than expected. But "it was an easy birth," said Sir John Weir, the royal physician.

"Everything went well; there were no problems," reported the anesthetist, Dr. Vernon Hall.

The baby's weight of nearly 5½ pounds made him the smallest of the Queen's four children at birth. Prince Charles, the eldest, weighed seven pounds, six ounces; Princess Anne six pounds and Prince Andrew seven pounds, three ounces.

PHILIP GOING TO GREECE

The Queen's husband, Prince Philip, went ahead with plans to represent the Queen at the funeral of King Paul of Greece Thursday.

The prince arranged to arrive in the Greek capital late this afternoon.

The child, whose name has not yet been announced, is third in line to the British throne behind his brothers Charles and Andrew.

A medical bulletin issued at Buckingham Palace said this morning that both the Queen and her new baby were well.

The bulletin said: "The Queen has had a comfortable night. Her Majesty and the baby are both well."

The names to be given the prince were the subject of much public speculation. The favorite was James, in tribute to Scottish Stuart ancestors of the Queen. Robert, Rupert and David also were mentioned.

It was the second British royal birth this year. Princess Alexandra, the Queen's first cousin, had a son Feb. 29. Princess Margaret, the Queen's sister, expects her second child next month. The Duchess of Kent, Alexandra's sister-in-law, expects her second child in May.

Young Nazis plan one-night cross country hate blitz

DAVID STANLEY

By FRANK JONES

TORONTO —(TNS)—Young Toronto Nazis are planning a huge, one-night blitz of anti-Semitic literature on Canada's three biggest cities.

The plan is being masterminded by David Stanley, the 19-year-old Toronto youth convicted last year of inciting a white mob in Birmingham, Ala.

Stanley is sending thousands of anti-Semitic leaflets to contacts in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver. He has told them he will tell them the date for the big blitz later.

He has told contacts he intends to use planes to drop batches of leaflets over cities, as well as scattering them in the streets and stuffing them in apartment mailboxes.

But the blitz may rebound against Stanley.

The Canadian Jewish Congress has just announced it is starting a campaign for laws to limit distribution of such literature.

"If Stanley goes through with his plan it will only emphasize the need for some sort of restriction," says Ben Kayfetz, national director of the congress' community relations commitee.

The slogan for Stanley's campagin of vilification is Communism is Jewish.

To give his movement the appearance of having wide national support he gets contacts to mail his material from points as far away as Victoria, B.C.

But he mainly operates from Box 431, Scarboro, and Box 11, Station R, Toronto.

Material from his box; numbers bears many names and titles.

Examples: Jack Ferguson, area commander, Scarboro command, Canada Youth Corps, or Col. J. P. Fry, national organizer (Canada), National White Americans Party.

He sometimes says he is the Canadian Action Party, sometimes the Federation of Christian Laymen.

According to a prospectus of the Canada Youth Corps, he is trying to revive the Hitler Youth. First aim of the corps is: "To attack Communism, Zionism, Internationalism, and the rest of the rotten subversion."

The first rule of the organization: The Leader is ALWAYS Right.

Until this week Stanley ran his little smut empire from the home of an elderly aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley at 195 Sammon ave.

Then his aunt had had enough. "The hate was just too much," she says. "He's a very nice boy otherwise. It's such a shame he got like this. We didn't interfere with him—it was up to him what he did in his room. But all those hate leaflets were just too much."

His father, R. A. Stanley, professed amazement when his son was arrested in Birmingham last year. But young Stanley had been well known for his Fascist activities when he attended Cedarbrae High School.

Stanley often makes his contacts with his supporters at meetings at the Social Credit Progaganda Headquarters on Yonge st.

Although the meetings there are not anti-Semitic Stanley supporters plan their activities at nearby restaurants after.

In a recent letter to a contact in Timmins Stanley wrote: "I am not anti-Semitic. I am just against the Jews." He had no objection to the Arabs, also a Semitic people, he said.

At present the police are helpless to stop the flood of literature which Stanley sends to newspapers, Members of Parliament, and even to rabbis.

As there is no proof that he has invited violence he cannot be prosecuted under present laws.

"Our only hope is getting him under the anti-litter bylaws if he scatters the stuff in the street," one disheartened officer said this week.

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Favreau said Tuesday the federal government will act against "hate literature" as soon as a formula is found which is compatible with such things as freedom of speech.

He told a delegation from the Quebec Liberal Federation's ethnic group commission that all MPs share the disgust of the delegation at current anti-Jewish and anti-Negro literature being distributed through the mails.

Greek-Cypriots order UK out

NICOSIA — Greek - Cypriot forces today gave British troops in the northern Cyprus village of Kazaphani an ultimatum to get out, a British military spokesman here said.

The ultimatum was for 3 p.m. (11 a.m. EST).

Turkish-Cypriots in the village asked Monday to be evacuated. They said they were fired at with bazookas Sunday night.

British military spokesman said the evacuation would be carried out.

Earlier today about 10,000 Greek-Cypriot students, staging an anti-American, anti-British, pro-Soviet demonstration here mobbed the British ambassador to Cyprus.

No fighting was reported in Cyprus during the morning today but there was sporadic shooting at the village of Temblos in northern Cyprus Tuesday night, a British spokesman said.

The British high commissioner, Sir Arthur Clark, was on his way to the airport to see Cypriot President Makarios off to Athens, Greece, when the crowds swarmed around his car.

The students carried banners with such slogans on them as "Americans, you cannot buy us," "British, go home," and "Long live the mighty U.S.S.R., great defender of peace and justice."

Clark was unhurt and later went on to the airport. Makarios left for Greece for the funeral of King Paul of the Hellenes.

Later, the students marched to a stadium here where they passed a resolution calling for self - determination and "Enosis" (union with Greece) as the only solutions to the Cyprus problem.

The resolution also expressed dissatisfaction over the "unfair stand" of the United States and Britain on the Cyprus issue, and called for the return to Cyprus of pre - independence guerrilla leader, Gen. George Grivas.

Makarios was expected to see Grivas, who now lives in Greece, during his stay in Athens.

A two - day battle in the Troodos mountain village of Mallia ended Tuesday with the surrender of Turkish-Cypriot fighters. British troops reported today that the Turks, disarmed, did not want to return to their homes in Mallia but asked to be taken to other Turkish-Cypriot villages.

The British military spokesman said the casualties in the Mallia fighting were three Turkish - Cypriots killed, three Turkish-Cypriots wounded, and at least three Greek - Cypriots wounded.

Unconfirmed reports said fighting earlier this week in the southwestern Cyprus city of Ktima killed 17 persons and wounded 48 others.

Lodge wins N.H. primary

CONCORD, N.H. (CP-AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge stayed put, said nothing and won New Hampshire's first-in-the - U.S. Republican presidential primary by a handy margin although his name wasn't on the ballot.

Thus, the U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam received the mandate to be the state's nominee as the Republican candidate for president at the nominating convention in San Francisco next July 13.

HENRY CABOT LODGE

And Lodge also had the entire slate of the state's 14 Republican delegates to the convention on his bandwagon.

New Hampshire's voters braved a snowstorm Tuesday to write in the name of the veteran politician - soldier - diplomat. They chose the most well known member of a famed New England family by a margin of almost 9,000 votes.

It was a grim defeat for Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, an ultra conservative, and Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York, a liberal Republican. Both had spent lots of time and money campaigning in the state for the presidential nomination.

NIXON, SMITH TRAIL

Goldwater ran second and Rockefeller third — both their names were on the ballot. Former vice-president Richard M. Nixon, another write-in candidate, finished fourth. Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and former governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota polled so few votes they weren't even in the race.

Nearly-complete unofficial results showed Lodge the winner with 28,071 write-in votes. Goldwater was second with 19,222, Rockefeller third with 17,605 and Nixon fourth with 14,426. Mrs. Smith polled 2,600 and Stassen 1,229.

There was a scattering of write-in votes for Governors William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and George Romney of Michigan.

Despite the snowstorm, the Republican turnout totalled some 90,000 votes. Advance forecasts had placed it at 90,000 to 100,000. The record is some 96,000.

New Hampshire Democrats staged a write-in drive of their own, in what Governor John W. King called "an expression and recommendation" that Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy become the party's nominee for vice-president.

LEADERS HAD QUALMS

Its leaders had some last-minute qualms, fearing a Kennedy write-in that topped that for President Johnson would embarrass the president.

The outcome quieted those fears. The figures read this way: Johnson 17,558, Kennedy 14,265.

At the same time, New Hampshire voters approved their state's big gamble: A sweepstakes designed to raise money for education.

The local option vote on the sale of sweepstakes tickets—conducted all over New Hampshire but effective only in the 42 communities with state liquor stores or race tracks, produced a lopsided yes—about 3½ to 1.

In all, 18 presidential preference primaries are scheduled in the United States this spring. They serve the dual purpose of allowing voters to check off or write in their choice for the party's nomination for president and also elect delegates to the national conventions of the Democratic and Republican parties.

The convention delegates, however, aren't always bound by the results of the preferential poll.

Beebe man charged after fatal accident

By IRWIN BLOCK
(Record staff reporter)

George Cruden of Beebe was charged in Sherbrooke yesterday with hit and run, dangerous driving and driving under the influence of alcohol.

The charges against 60-year-old Cruden arose out of a Feb. 5 accident on Route 5 near the Lennoxville limits, in which Eugene Fearon, 21 of Lennoxville was killed.

Yesterday, a five-man coroner's jury ruled that Fearon's death was accidental.

One man dissented from the majority decision.

After the inquest absolved Cruden of criminal responsibility, Crown Prosecutor Guy Blanchette laid the charges against him before a Justice of the Peace.

Tomorrow, Cruden will enter a plea of guilty or not guilty before a regular Sessions Court judge.

Meanwhile, Provincial Police are searching for a Rock Island waitress who failed to answer a subpoena to appear at yesterday's inquest.

The waitress, Miss Lise Boucher served Cruden at the Rockliffe Hotel prior to the accident, testimony at the inquest showed.

Crown Prosecutor Guy Blanchette described her as a "key witness."

The courtroom yesterday was tense, as a battery of five lawyers examined and cross-examined witnesses, interrupted by the intermittent sobbing of the dead man's wife.

Testimoney at the inquest showed that Mr. Fearon was driving a 1952 model car from Lennoxville to Waterville on Route 5, accompanied by Walter Hawes, 39, of Waterville.

Coming in the opposite direction was Mr. Cruden, driving a

Sorry, but gee whiz you guys, let's have the plane back—US

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States combined an apology with a protest in asking Russia to help speed the return of an American reconnaissance bomber—a twin-engined RB-66B—and its three-man crew shot down Tuesday over Communist East Germany.

The crew parachuted from the plane after the shooting, the defence department said, but their fate was not known. The plane was described as unarmed and on a training flight.

The air force identified the three airmen as Capt. David I. Holland, 35, the pilot; Capt. Melvin J. Kessler, 30, instructor navigator, and Lieut. Harold W. Welch, 24, navigator.

The request for Soviet help was made Tuesday night by William Tyler, U.S. assistant secretary, in a message to Georgi M. Kornienko, minister counsellor of the Soviet Embassy.

The state department announced that Tyler "delivered a strong oral protest" to the Soviet diplomat against "the precipitous action" by Soviet military forces in shooting down the RB-66B.

EXPRESS REGRETS

At the same time, Tyler "also expressed the U.S. government's regrets that the plane became lost and inadvertently crossed the demarcation line between the Federal Republic (West Germany) and East Germany."

This was the second incident of this kind in six weeks and the wording of the U.S. protest after the Soviet destruction of a U.S. T-39 jet trainer on Jan. 28 was much harsher. All three men in the trainer were killed.

At that time Tyler made no apology and denounced Russia's shooting down of the T-39 as "a callous and inexcusably brutal act of violence against an unarmed aircraft."

There was no explanation here of the much softer wording of Tuesday night's statement. There was some suggestion that U.S. officials were puzzled if not embarrassed by the fact that the RB-66B with a pilot and two navigators aboard had strayed across the dividing line in Germany and got over Communist territory.

There was no explanation of how this happened. The previous incident was also unexplained.

ON ROUTINE MISSION

The air force said the twin jet aircraft was on a routine training mission from Toul-Rosaires Air Force Base, France, and that the crew had been briefed to fly a practice mission over West Germany.

Plan for revolution in labor

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and provincial ministers of labor have set the stage for a new partnership in tackling the problems of the technological revolution in Canada.

This appeared to be the chief result of a two-day conference of provincial labor ministers with Allan J. MacEachen, the former economics professor who took over the federal labor portfolio last April.

Mr. MacEachen said the meeting—the first labor ministers' gathering in 18 years—was not called to produce decisions but to air some of the basic manpower problems facing the country and draft possible "lines of action" for dealing with them.

SUMS UP

Meeting reporters after the conference ended Tuesday, the minister summed up its achievements this way:

1. General agreement on the need for "progressive" labor standards for Canada as a whole, a step the federal government has promised to take at this session of Parliament in a labor code establishing a national minimum wage, a normal work week, paid vacations and statutory holidays for workers within federal jurisdiction.

2. Provincial support for a new federal - provincial cost-sharing agreement to develop skilled workers through a more flexible, national system of apprenticeship and youth training.

3. A joint federal - provincial campaign to encourage greater co-operation between labor and management in the economic interest of the nation.

Find towns tried to get kickbacks in winter works

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincial Auditor J. A. Vezina says he has uncovered attempts by numerous small municipalites to get kickbacks from men employed on winter works programs under a federal-provincial plan to ease unemployment.

There was a "general tendency" among many of the municipalities to hold back 10 per cent of an employee's salary to cover cost of materials or the municipality's own share of labor costs, he said.

The system worked between 1959 and 1962, he told the first meeting Tuesday of the legislative assembly's public accounts committee. The 29-member bipartisan committee is to meet once a week during the session.

It met last year for the first time in 25 years.

Kickbacks reached between $800,000 and $900,000 on total winter works of $200,000,000 Mr. Vezina told the committee.

And he said he may ask the Quebec government for an extension of the commission's powers to allow it to go into details of Wilbert Coffin's final hours in the "general interests of justice." He was hanged in 1956 for the 1953 slaying of one of three United States hunters found dead in Gaspe.

Electoral map plan blasted

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill to set up new machinery for revising Canada's electoral map drew fire from several directions Tuesday as a potentially explosive debate began in the Commons.

The bill proposes a four-member commission for each province to adjust constituency boundaries in line with population shifts reported by the census and the principle of representation by population.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, who introduced the measure, hailed it as an historic addition to the constitution.

Spokesmen for the four Opposition groups agreed that redistribution should be handled by experts outside party politics, not by a committee of MPs as has been done every 10 years since Confederation.

But they raised objections to several key sections of the measure, indicating their parties will seek amendments when the bill goes into clause-by-clause study.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said the "independent" commissions will not be independent enough to remove all connections with politicians.

BARRY GOLDWATER

Integration of defence force is foreseen

OTTAWA (CP) — Within the next two weeks, the government is expected to present to Parliament its long-awaited white paper on defence outlining its 1965-75 plans for the armed forces.

One of the most startling features of the policy may be full integration of the three services under a single chief of staff and eventually, with the same uniform.

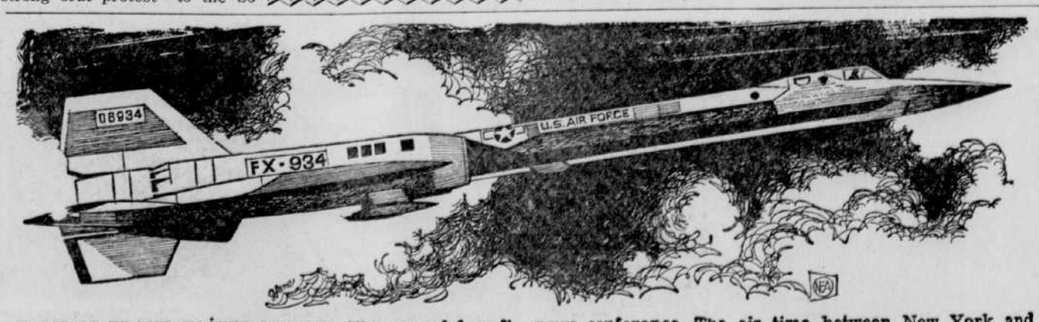

It is calculated that such a stroke, perhaps the first of its kind in the world, would save at least $100,000,000 annually and result in a reduction in armed forces manpower of some 10,000 personnel.

Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons last year, when still opposition leader:

"The three Canadian defence services should be fully integrated with maximum efficiency and economy both in operation and administration and the necessary changes to that end should be made at the department of national defence."

FASTEST PLANE IN THE WORLD—This graceful craft, the A-11, can knife through the skies at speeds exceeding 2,000 m.p.h.—better than three times the speed of sound. The jet interceptor, in the works for about five years, was announced by President Johnson at his first televised news conference. The air time between New York and Moscow—a distance of 4,665 miles—would be cut by this plane to about 2½ hours. The President says the A-11's performance "far exceeds that of any aircraft in the world."

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's Cinderella story concerns a Viennese architect - turned-actress of mature years and gentle manner. The only trouble is that Cinderella hasn't made it to the ball.

A fortnight ago the academy award nominations were announced, and one nominee was Lilia Skala for her role as the head nun in Lilies of the Field.

She received congratulations at New York's City Centre Theatre where she works—in the lost and found department. She's still there among the forgotten galoshes and umbrellas, toiling for $1.50 an hour. But this is a mere interlude in the amazing life of Lilia.

Her reaction to the nomination?

"Of course I am thrilled. I did not expect it. I did not even think about it. I have known too many disappointments in my life to count on anything."

Her life began in Austria, but don't ask her how long ago. "Of course I won't tell how old I am," she says.

WANTED TO ACT

Lilia longed to act as a girl, but her parents had other ideas. She studied architecture and engineering at Dresden University and graduated with honors. "I was the first woman engineer in Austria," she says.

After her marriage to a hat manufacturer, she was able to satisfy her passion for acting and appeared in Austrian films. She came to America after the Hitler takeover, and her acting roles were interspersed with jobs as waitress, saleswoman and babysitter.

She had featured roles in Call Me Madam and The Diary of Anne Frank on Broadway and important parts in television. But there also were long periods of idleness.

Miss Skala was enduring such a period 18 months ago when she read a newspaper item that Ralph Nelson was casting for a new film. She had worked for Nelson on the I Remember Mama television series, and she sent him a note that she would like to be in his movie.

Nelson came through with the plum role of the mother superior in Lilies of the Field.

Did her fortunes change?

"No," she says. "Last year I did one co-starring role in The Defenders and one soap opera. It was my worst year since I had come to America."

But things seem to be picking up. Stanley Kramer has said he wants her for Ship of Fools. And the Oscar night April 13 will bring her more attention.

EXPERT ADVISES PUSH BIDDING

In one of the articles in the new bridge magazine Modern Bridge, one of our leading experts advices: "Be consistent in overbidding or underbidding. Don't blow both hot and cold."

He continues: "I do have one strong feeling on the subject. That is, PUSH TO CLOSE GAMES AND SLAMS! I have found that it is generally much easier to play a close contract than to defend against one and that quite often you will be presented your contract on a silver platter even though it looked completely hopeless when dummy was first spread.

"Now take a look at the South hand only. You respond one diamond to your partner's opening club bid. He jumps to three diamonds and even though you don't play this bid as an absolute force your eight high-card points suddenly take on considerable lustre.

"Your partner surely holds four diamonds and at least five clubs. He should have a singleton and the odds are that it will be in hearts. My choice is an immediate Blackwood bid to check for aces. This gets to a slam if partner has two aces."

The whole hand is shown here and you will note that six diamonds is a very easy contract to bring home. Furthermore, you will note that it makes in spite of the fact that North holds what turns out to be a totally useless king of spades.

Name WI officers at Sawyerville annual meeting

SAWYERVILLE — The Womens Institute held its annual meeting in the town hall on March 4.

Conveners of the various committees presented reports, showing that a successful year had just ended. The treasurer reported $114.83 in the bank.

Mrs. Alfred Robinson read the new slate of officers as follows: President, Mrs. F. Robinson; first vice-president, Mrs. Herbert Loveland; second vice-president; Mrs. Douglas MacKay; secretary, Miss Velma Carson; treasurer, Mrs. Harry Ord.

It was decided to hold a food sale at Lowry's Store, March 13, Mrs. A. Nugent and Mrs. A. Robinson as the committee in charge.

It is hoped that a representative from a paint company will be at the next meeting on April 1, to speak on painting, and color combinations in the home. Anyone interested is welcome to attend.

Contribution of $550 received by Waterloo library

WATERLOO — A satisfactory library meeting was held on March 3, in the reading room. The secretary, Miss Sylvia Poirier, had received a letter with a cheque of $550 from Quebec, the money to be used for the administration of the library, at the discretion of the directors.

Letters are being sent to all the industries and business establishments in Waterloo, requesting their support and explaining, in detail, the work that has to be undertaken this year to bring the library up to the proper standard. The budget for 1964 calls for $2,900 expenditures, which will mean about $1,500 must be raised by local effort.

Plans were discussed to redecorate the interior of the library, which has not been done for some time. This is considered most essential as the library to prevent water seeping into the downstairs room will be attended to as soon as possible this spring.

The membership committee is in charge of J. H. Beaudry, who has a group of English and French ladies to assist him in soliciting new members and renewing the present membership. Cards are being sent out to all members, notifying that subscriptions are now due.

The directors are extremely anxious to stimulate interest in the public library. The new librarian, Miss Juliette Pinsonneault is most enthusiastic and with volunteer helpers, is ready to serve the public.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mitch Miller, the "sing along" man, says NBC is the string-along network.

"The network obviously knew months ago that it planned to drop my show next season," Miller grumbled. "But instead of telling us then, they waited until March 1 to give us the news. Why did they keep stringing us along? Probably to keep us from making a deal to move elsewhere. They were afraid they'd look foolish if we landed on another network and started hitting one of their new shows in the ratings."

Miller's show has been constantly moved around during four seasons in the NBC schedule. It has been on Thursday and Friday nights and this season had a late Monday night spot, following a rerun of an old movie and Hollywood and the Stars, which received consistently poor ratings.

Miller said NBC brass told him his show was out so the network could try something "new and fresh."

"New and fresh," he said. "I didn't say anything about old feature films for two hours at a clip. And the new and fresh things they are bumping us for is Alfred Hitchcock's series, which has been around longer than we have."

An NBC spokesman said that "Miller was notified as soon as possible about the future of his show after the final decision was made."

J. Christopher Osborne of Bishop's College School and Mark Steinman of Sherbrooke High School won the Sherbrooke Rotary Club public speaking contest held at the New Sherbrooke Hotel last night.

Their speech topics were, respectively the future of democracy and the value of a good education.

The seven students competing came from as far as Thetford Mines. The seven speeches included one that was entirely in French and one that was mostly in French with some remarks made in English.

Topics ranged from "sports that take us close to nature," to the "value of a good education."

And, of course, the ever-present subject of bilingualism was the theme of one speech.

The two winners are to compete in the provincial semi final contests, to be held in Montreal from April 20 and 22.

Contestant Osborne spoke on the future of democrary. The word democracy, he said, is usually taken to mean government by the people, but it meansmore specifically, equal rights for all citizens.

People tend to take such rights for granted, he said, and don't consider the duty they have as citizens to maintain them.

The American Civil War was fought for democracy, said Mr. Osborne, and president Lincoln's words in his Gettysburg address apply to any democratic nation.

Lincoln's words "by the people" are all-important for they specify that in a democracy the government is what has been chosen by citizens, the speaker said.

The right to go to vote is, therefore, a serious obligation, he said.

The other contest winner, Mark Steinman, spoke on the value of a good education.

He cited Aristotle as saying that the fate of empires depends on educating the youth By Aristotle, education meant the formation of one's way of life and thus, it could not be given a monetary value.

A high school diploma, he said, gives a young person a great advantage over those who lack it. It opens vast new horizons for opportunity in companies and in communities, he said.

Study beyond the high school level, he said, is not limited to the brilliant alone, for even a university with such high standards as Harvard takes in a limited number of students who have average marks.

Modern youth, he claimed, knows that a university degree is needed to open the door to a satisfying way of life.

The aim of education, concluded Mr. Steinman, is to increase human excellence, both public and private. Without education he claimed, all endeavor is valueless.

The five other speakers competing in the contest were Reiner Busse of Lennoxville High School, who spoke on the topic of sports that take us close to nature; Robert Corcoran of St. Patrick High School, Sherbrooke, who spoke on tolerance; Peter Noiseux of Stanstead College, whose speech was entitled "Be a good neighbor — be bilingual"; Jean Beaudet of Ecole Secondaire, Thetford Mines, who spoke on "la valeur de l'education"; and Steven Voissoneault of St. Patrick's High, Thetford Mines, who spoke on the topic "Does youth recognize its responsibilites."

PHONEY AMERICAN $10 EXPECTED IN E.T.

Sherbrooke district residents may expect an influx of counterfeit United States ten-dollar bills within the next few days, a spokesman for the local office of the RCMP stated this morning.

He said that a number of such bills had made their appearance in the Montreal area over the weekend and it was likely that they would spread to the Eastern Townships.

The bills initially found in the Montreal area carry the serial number B-849-404-30H with the check letter "J". They bear the plate number 450 on the face and 1749 on the back.

They have a fuzzy printing and are darker than good American ten's because of heavy inking, he said.

Laurendeau at city session of biculture probe

The Sherbrooke contingent to the March 18 meeting here of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism has been named.

Representing the Commission are Andre Laurendeau, Frank Scott, J. L. Gagnon, J. B. Rudnyckyj and Father Clement Cormier, together with co-secretary Neil Morrison.

The Sherbrooke meeting is being held simultaneously with a meeting in Three Rivers.

The meeting marks the first of a series of 20 regional meetings across Canada by the members of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism who will spend three months searching out the opinions of the Canadian public.

The Commission decided to hold these series of regional meetings after a number of organizations informed it that such meetings would be useful to them in preparation of their briefs.

It is hoped that this second stage in the Commission's contact with the public will lead to the presentation of serious and well documennted briefs.

Each of the regional meetings will last a full day and will bring together the representatives of interested organizations.

Evening sessions will be arranged for the public in order that questions may be asked and opinions given.

Meetings with local authorities, press, radio and television are also to be arranged during the evening preceding each meeting.

RED CROSS DIRECTOR — Claude Genest of Sherbrooke has been named a provincial director of the Canadian Red Cross Society, and to the provincial board of management.

Blasting experts waiting

Civil Protection experts are still standing by at Brompton ville today, but there are no new developments in the ice jam situation there.

A team of experts under the direction of the Civil Protection Committee Instructor Paul Charlebois are hoping the river level will rise within the next few days before deciding whether or not to blast. The water level was still low this morning, according to Police Chief Marcel Chaperon.

Paul Charlebois, dynamite expert for the C.P.C. had made plans to blast free the ice early yesterday, then just at the last moment it was decided that it would be best to wait.

Perhaps nature would take its course and free the ice pack, said the experts.

Is opposed to annexation

MAGOG — (Special) — The Township of Magog is opposed to the City of Magog's plans to annex the lakeside area off highway Route 1, at the west end of the community.

Magog will appeal to the provincial legislature to have its charter amended so the annexation can be implemented.

The city claims that the land involved is not being productively used, and is essentially needed by the city of Magog.

All proprietors of land in the area have signed in approval of the annexation.

Metropolitan Opera soprano's concert 'thoroughly enjoyable'

By SANDRA PICKFORD
(Record staff reporter)

Anyone who has even had the pleasure of listening to a concert by Mildred Miller before could call her performance here Tuesday night nothing short of thoroughly enjoyable.

The mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera drew her listeners into a sea of beautiful and varied emotions.

The gold-slippered soprano drew her listeners into delightful and light-hearted laughter in the rollicking music for a while and Man is For the Woman Made by Henry Purcell. She enclosed them in hushed silence for three beautifully moving French melodies by Gabriel Faure — Rencontre, Toujours and Adieu.

She embraced her audiences in the passion and vibrance of Tchaikowsky's aria Adieu Forets from Jeanne d'Arc and the Gypsy song from Carmen by Georges Bizet.

Probably the best performance of the whole evening was in Moulin. The distinguished artist depicted wonderfully the freedom, joy and wealth that Gabrile Pierne presents in this song of the windmill.

Miss Miller gave the best of herself in her last numbers and the three encores that were to follow.

The warmth and closeness to her audience that Miss Miller has shown repeatedly in performances with voice of Firestone and the Telephone Hour seemed to be lacking before the Granada Theatre group until the last three songs.

Miss Miller gave more of herself in the Gypsy Song, her last rendition on the program than she did in any other song Tuesday evening. It was by far the best.

She soared to new heights, however, in two of her encores, Mama Dites-Moi and the ever-popular Vienna Waltz.

Other songs on the program included My Heart Ever Faithful from Cantata No. 68 by Johann S. Bach; Aria from La Clemenza di Tito by Wolfgang A. Mozart; two French folk songs, Il est quelqu'un sur terre and Le Roi s'en va-t-en chasse arranged by Benjamin Britten; three gypsy songs by Johannes Brahms; Immer leiser wird mein Schlummer by Johannes Brahms Schlechtes Wetter by Richard Strauss Standchen (serenade) by Richard Strauss; l'Invitation au voyage by Henri Duparc; Plaisir d'amour by Johann P. Martini and Les Chemins de l'armour by Francis Poulenc.

Accompanist was Richard Tetley-Kardos.

The concert was one of a series presented this season by the Community Concert Association.

Magog to clean its monument

MAGOG — (Special) — The monument of Magog's dead of the First World War will finally get a cleaning, city council has decided.

The project was first undertaken last November, but interrupted when several veterans, not realizing what workmen were about to do complained that their memorial was being abused, and demanded a halt to the work.

The city council cancelled the scheduled cleaning but after hearing from the Canadian Legion, agreed to proceed.

Accept land price, but reject another

At Monday's council meeting Sherbrooke aldermen accepted the suggested price for one piece of land but rejected another in their project of widening University Street.

They turned down a suggested 60 cents per square foot from the Sacred Heart Brothers, offering 40 cents.

The lot and house of Roger Lacroix will be bought for $10,500 as he proposed to city council.

It was evaluated at $8,700 and he paid $12,000 for it he says.

City aldermen said it was a fair price.

Realistic defence role for Canada

Announcement of Defence Minister Hellyer's decision to close down seventeen military establishments in Canada and another seven (one of them in Europe) later on will no doubt cause howls of anguish in many military circles.

But there can be little doubt even more drastic cut-back measures can be expected in the weeks to come with the presentation of the government's "white paper" on defence policy.

In numerous public speeches, one of them in Sherbrooke recently, Mr. Hellyer has warned that manpower strength in the militia and other parts of the defence operation must be cut down.

His object is not purely one of economy.

Mr. Hellyer has been engaged in planning a long-range defence policy which will take into realistic account our capabilities, our responsibilities, and modern defence concepts.

An important part of this new policy will be more emphasis on equipment and less on manpower and maintenance.

In a sense, it may be said that automation is beginning to have its effects on our military role even as it is having effects on our industrial community.

It is difficult to see how Mr. Hellyer could follow any other course than the one he is following.

Our defence resources are limited.

They are also expensive, and as the Glassco reports have pointed out, can be a tremendous unnecessary drain on the taxpayer's pocket.

Yet, Canada has defence commitments which must be unheld.

The trick is to uphold them significantly by methods within our means.

This is what Mr. Hellyer is attempting to do. He deserves at least a fair hearing, because for too many years, our defence policy has been largely a matter of political expediency complicated by excessive inter-service rivalry and lobbying.

Some men are the only people on earth who are convinced they have more sense than women.

Filibuster thwarts true democracy

Generally the right of free speech, the privilege given a man or woman to air his views on almost any subject under the sun, is regarded as one of the bases of the democratic system. Without this right to air his opinions and to hear the opinions aired by others the individual can play little effective part in deciding the problems facing the nation or the community.

But the abuse of this right of free speech can lead to the complete frustration of the democratic processes.

This is especially true when a small group of opponents of a popular piece of legislation combine their forces to prevent its approval by literally talking it to death.

The filibuster now underway in the United States Senate against the civil rights bill is a case in point.

Greater rights and privileges for minority groups have been approved by a substantial majority in the House of Representatives, the only branch of Congress which is elected on anything resembling a population basis. Approval by the Representatives indicates they believe the bulk of the people of the United States favor more justice for the Negroes and other minority groups.

But indications are that the measure will be killed or seriously curtailed by sixteen Senators elected by eight of the smaller states. Taking advantage of each technicality in the complicated rules of procedure, these men can delay its progress for weeks or even months — perhaps for the entire life of the present Congress.

If the measure is not approved by the time Congress dissolves this fall, it will have to start the long legislative progress next year.

Thus the will of the majority will have been thwarted.

Filibusters were customs of the Canadian parliaments at one time but they have disappeared as a result of rule changes which limited debate without interfering with the traditional right of Members of Parliament to speak their minds.

Upset in New Hampshire primaries

The impressive victory registered by Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge in yesterday's New Hampshire Republican presidential primaries may be partially accounted for by the fact that Mr. Lodge is something of a favorite son candidate.

Admittedly he is a resident of Massachusetts but his family is one of the oldest in New England and several of the larger communities in the southern section of the state are in effect suburbs of Boston, Mr. Lodge's home town.

But the write-in victory of the Ambassador to Saigon, who technically was not a candidate and who conducted no campaign, coupled with the strong vote registered by former Vice President Richard Nixon, another non-candidate, is a warning to the two most active candidates — New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller and Arizona Senator Barry Goldwater — that they have a long fight ahead before the issue is decided at the Republican national convention.

The big question mark now is the future stand of Mr. Lodge. As personal representative of President Johnson in Viet Nam he cannot seek public office at home. But in justice to the voters and the party which he supports he cannot long appear content to float with the tide.

Either he must abandon his position at Saigon and return home to conduct an active campaign for the Republican nomination or he must repudiate any interest in the presidential race.

Ontario Premier and the pensions

Ottawa Journal

The Liberals in the Ontario Legislature continue to criticize Premier Robarts for his stand over the Canada pension plan which the Federal Government is introducing.

Mr. Farquar Oliver and Mr. Elmer Sopha would find the contortions of the Federal Liberals over their plan offer a much richer field for their critical talents. But politics is not an exact science and Mr. Robarts is a much more convenient — and less embarrassing target.

So the Premier of Ontario is being drawn as the great obstructionist hindering the coming of the day when financial security in old age is to be assured to everyone. Never mind Premier Lesage who has taken Quebec out of the Federal plan completely. It is Mr. Robarts who is painted as the villain, a friend of the insurance companies and dedicated to capitalism's last stand.

Mr. Robarts conducted his own defence the other day in the Ontario Legislature. His remarks do not sound like those of a man trying to block any reasonable plan for the general welfare.

"I am commenting upon a plan submitted by a senior level of government. It has a plan that would be in effect in this province for the rest of our natural lives, the lives of our children and the lives of our grandchildren. I am offering no alternative to it.

"Let us not lose sight of the fact that this entire scheme will be paid for by the citizens of Canada. It is a contributory scheme. There are no tax monies going into this. Our people in Ontario will bear their share of the load and, once started, the plan will continue forever. I will be satisfied only with the best for Ontario and this is what I seek.

"Full discussion is part of our democratic system, as we are continually reminded in this House. This applies to governments as well as to individuals. In putting these views forward I do not seek to, nor will I, scuttle the Canada pension plan. But I might say, Mr. Speaker, that I will be very disappointed if I do not improve it."

The sponsors of compulsory pensions in Ottawa should be thankful for Mr. Robarts' diligence. He might save them yet from more of their own rashness.

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed. (John 8:36.)

PRAYER: O Lord, set us free from all that would confine us to the narrow world of sin and selfishness. Liberate us from smallness of soul. Come more fully into our lives and open new ways to serve Thee; through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Irwin S. Cobb, one of America's best known humorists, has voiced his last quip, written his last story. In a coma during his last 24 hours, he was unable to keep a vow made last December to Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, that he would "keep friendly newspapers fully advised" when he got ready to depart.

The readers say:

They're not really all lushes

Dear Sir:

Your issue of the 3rd carried a column by a Mr. Gerald Waring which made certain comments about me and my activities.

While there is a certain flattering of the politician when he is singled out by a newspaperman such as Gerald Waring there are a couple of points of explanation I would like to make to those readers who may have read the Waring piece.

Firstly, Mr. Waring suggests that when I was caught short through the fact that a raido tape interview I had given for West Coast distribution was aired in Toronto or Ottawa, I tried to get out of the statements by saying they were not meant seriously. In fact, whether Mr. Waring believes it or not, they were not meant seriously. I was joking. Further, I feel badly and very sorry that descriptive nouns such as "lush", "boozer", and "incompetents" were applied as a general description of the parliamentary press gallery. The statement is so wild that I would assume any sensible person would know it was meant in jest, particularly a newspaperman. The fact that I believe Mr. Waring is an incompetent newspapermen is incidental; he is only one incompetent among many who are able.

Secondly, I would point out to any reader who revelled in the bitterness of Mr. Waring's column about me that Karl Marx pointed out long ago how important the economic motive was in determining man's actions. Largely through the initiative of the Toronto Telegram press gallery, despite Mr. Waring's first year university psychology course appraisal of my character, to damn the entire a column of mine on politics in Ottawa has grown and grown in newspapers and readership.

Mr. Waring is a free lance journalist, selling in papers wherever he can. While one may applaud his energy and the decency of the newspapers which use his stuff, it is worth noting that my column goes to some of his present and past publishers.

Thirdly, one might have thought that Mr. Waring would mention the practice, if not the ethics behind the practice, of one of his honourable colleagues taking minute parts of a long series of remarks and putting them together with a phony introduction. Certainly, it was some shock to me as a politician to find myself being interviewed by someone I had not seen. However, it is not my intention, despite this vicious use of a person's remarks, despite any previous opinions I have made known about the parliamentary press corps. In the main, the members of the parliamentary press gallery association (in my opinion) are decents, able, hard - working journalists.

Yours very truly,
DOUGLAS FISHER, MP.

In oil-rich Venezuela

Prefer spending to investing

By WARD CANNEL

CARACAS, Venezuela — (NEA) — "A Venezuelan," the fellow said across the breakfast table, "a Venezuelan is a creature who has in one generation dropped from the tree into the Cadillac."

The speaker was not a Venezuelan. He came from another Latin country represented at Venezuela's First International Meeting of Financial Institutions for Development.

And he hurried to explain that what he had said was only a joke. But amid the jokes and the cocktail parties surrounding the fiscal gibberish, a reporter begins to get a sharp picture of why Latin America has been lost to the western world—and to itself—for so many years.

"I didn't mean that Venezuelans are monkeys," the autocrat at the breakfast table said, "but does it seem fair that this country should have so much oil and iron ore when my country doesn't even have...?"

Said another banker, sipping a coffee at the poolside: "One simply cannot make the people of my nation put their money into savings accounts. They feel it is only an attempt to fool fate. They may be right. Who knows? But in the meantime we do not have the capital necessary for investment in new industry."

Says a middle-management man from south of the equator: "I will have to pay dearly for my time at this conference. Aside from the department heads, there is nobody on the staff who knows how to do the work."

An investment banker from the United States sighs longingly from deep within his vest: "Oh, you cannot make these people understand that we do not prefer to do business with dictators. Even our high school students at home know that in the long run the dictatorship is the most unstable form of government. But I have to keep answering that charge every time I go south of the border."

A representative of a Latin government agency charged with disbursing U.S. Alliance for Progress funds to spur industrial development says: "These bankers would like nothing more than to get a hand on that money. They could make it pay back 20 and 30 per cent interest and dividends."

But one of those bankers hears him. "And how much of the funds are you wasting in your agency every day on the exorbitant costs of bureaucracy?" he asks. "You have the people convinced that public funds are inexhaustible."

Overheard in the elevator, a fragment in German: "But of course the hardest part of getting started is the basic research in genealogy. All the principals are brothers and cousins and nephews — the ministers, the bankers, the senators..."

Says a U.S.-trained economist: "The whole trouble is that risk capital always goes into housing and mortgages. You have a devil of a time trying to show a millionaire that he should put some of his money into industrial enterprise."

"Not me," says an observer from Italy. "If I had money it certainly wouldn't go into industry in this hemisphere. Why, they have hardly enough skilled labor reserve to run a machine shop. I could show you farms a few hours from Caracas itself where they plant and harvest with methods left by the Spanish conquerors."

Dr. Luis Vallenilla smiles. He is the president of Venezuela's Government Development Corporation and the organizer of the international meeting.

"I couldn't begin to say what achievements have come out of this conference.

"But one thing is sure. In our part of the world with a common language, geography and problem, this is the first time in our history that we have ever met face-to-face on this level."

Plouffe family outdated — author

Quebec's 'folksy era' is over

QUEBEC (CP)—The "folksy era" in Quebec has come to an end, says Roger Lemelin, the man who earned fame writing about it in the early years of Canadian television.

Mr. Lemelin offers this comment on contemporary Quebec in an exchange of letters with Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Times.

The author of the once-popular TV serial The Plouffe Family says the characters he invented could no longer be shown in English Canada "because the new French - Canadian is ashamed of them."

The tone of Quebec society today, he says, is set by the disciples of Very Rev. Georges-Henri Levesque, the celebrated reformer who built up Laval University's faculty of social sciences.

The Lemelin - Keate letters were published in French in the Quebec City daily newspaper L'Action and in English in the February issue of Saturday Night magazine.

Mr. Keate, who used to work in Montreal, provokes the exchange with a letter asking "what the hell is going on in Quebec?"

NEW LIBERALISM

In his reply Mr. Lemelin says there are three main factors explaining contemporary Quebec, of which the first is the liberal social and economic philosophy of Father Levesque and his disciples—"the key men today in French Canada."

The others, he says, are the CBC's French television network, which "has become a vast popular culture medium fed exclusively by our people," and the arrival of immigrants from countries that have won their independence through violence.

Among Father Levesque's disciples—men who either studied under him or have come around to his way of thinking —Mr. Lemelin finds such people as Jean Marchand, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne, Arthur Tremblay, Quebec's deputy youth minister, newspaper editors Gerard Pelletier and Andre Laurendeau, Abbes Gerard Dion and Louis O'Neill, political scientist Leon Dion and Rene Levesque, Quebec's natural resources minister.

He calls this "socialistically inclined" group "the victorious elite."

Within this group, he says, the supporters of Confederation are in the ascendant but this very success "has contributed to the ripening of the separatist idea among several of its members."

APPALLED BY VIOLENCE

Mr. Keate, who left Montreal in 1950, recalls the "joie de vivre of Quebec—the lilting French songs on the radio; the haute couture of a French theatre opening, where even the old ladies were stylish and stunning; the gaiety of French laughter and of rippling French accents."

But then he says things seem to be changing.

"The acts of terrorism and of violence, the bombings and the killings, have appalled us—as I am sure they have you. What is even more appalling is to hear a leading spokesman of your province say in Vancouver that, in a quarter century, monuments will be erected to these young patriots."

Mr. Lemelin replies that French Canada's social revolution is taking place "amid great confusion."

"A certain amount of anarchy is part and parcel of a growing social maturity; it is only in societies in transition that anarchistic movements appear. That's the explanation of the bombings."

The terrorists of Le Front de Liberation Quebecois were juvenile delinquents, "leather-jackets of a special type," who would never have monuments erected to them. "Here, one may say, it is almost forgotten."

The FLQ was broken up by police after a reign of terror in the spring of 1963 but since the Keate - Lemelin letters were written a series of weapons thefts at Quebec armories has been attributed to a similar group of young militant separatists.

Mr. Keate says many westerners "are not terribly optimistic" about the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism. "They feel that the commission, far from attempting an objective, dispassionate examination of the facts, is out to sell biculturalism to the entire country."

Mr. Lemelin says the commission is pretty well the creation of the Quebec elite and its members in fact hope to become "latter - day Fathers of Confederation" by using it as a springboard to amend the constitution. For that reason, "one could have wished the English provinces to have been better represented on the commission."

In 1961 in Canada, 64 accidental deaths were caused by barbiturates.

Dealing with annexation move

18-point resolution for 'Sweetsburg Ward' is presented at Cowansville Town Council

By TED BEAUDOIN
(Record staff reporter)

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — If the rest of Sweetsburg is annexed to Cowansville, the area will be known as the Sweetsburg Ward, according to a resolution presented to the Cowansville Town Council last week.

Moved by Ald. Conrad Bellefeuille, the motion consists of 18 points dealing with the (now underway) entire Sweetsburg annexation move.

The points are:

(1) The name and identity of Sweetsburg will be reserved and will be known as the Sweetsburg Ward.

(2) The Sweetsburg Ward will be represented on Council by one alderman.

(3) Since municipalities have no jurisdiction over post office addresses, Cowansville will not oppose the retention of the present post office in Sweetsburg.

(4) The Sweetsburg Ward will enjoy similar zoning benefits as the town of Cowansville does.

(5) The residential character of the new ward will be protected by zoning by-laws.

(6) Sweetsburg's debt structure will be taken over by Cowansville.

(7) Properties in the new ward will be re-evaluated employing the scale now in use for Cowansville.

(8) Cowansville will effect no changes in the distribution of provisionment of water that both towns now practice.

(9) No water meters will be installed in ward homes.

(10) No parking meters will be installed in the new ward.

(11) Garbage will be removed once a week and taken to the Cowansville dump.

(12) Police and fire protection will be re-organized to service the annexed portion.

(13) The lighting system on Main street will be made uniform, and will consist of mercury vapor lamps.

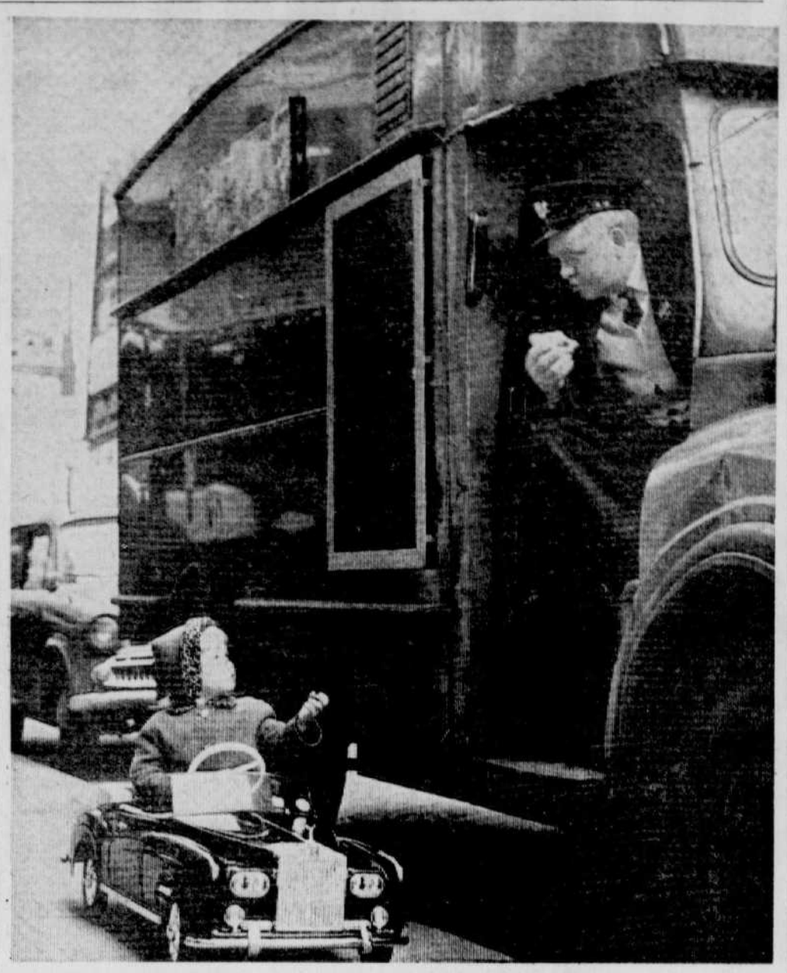

(14) Cowansville will absorb all costs of a new water main on Main Street.

(15) Sidewalks will be built on both sides of Main Street.

(16) Boulevards Pine, Yamaska and Barre wil be modernized with curbs, grass and trees and shrubbery.

(17) Ward improvement public works will be undertaken by Cowansville.

(18) All necessary work scheduled to be done soon will be completed during the year following annexation.

Complaint lodged

Town will protect photographers

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) —The Town Council of Cowansville will undertake to produce legislation to protect local photographers from out-of-town photographers who go from door to door selling pictures.

A complaint was lodged by Claude Pagerie, photographer (Studio Eclair) to the town fathers. "After going from place to place, they get their orders and take a couple of hundred dollars with them," said Mr. Pagerie.

"This is not so good for local photographers who have to pay a $25 permit each year to practice their trade."

An alderman will propose, at the next council meeting, that a $300 permit be imposed on out-of-town photographers enabling them to go from door to door for pictures. This attempt is expected to discourage portrait - takers from returning to Cowansville.

For photographers from out of town who come here on legitimate business, or in carrying out their duties, a permit of $37.50 will be imposed.

Prospectors, stock exchanges form a truce

TORONTO (CP)—Prospectors and stock exchanges faced up to one another Tuesday night and parted in a surprising amity, with at least a truce in their long-drawn battle.

The occasion was a panel discussion at the annual convention of the Prospectors and Developers Association, a gathering of nearly 2,000 of the people who hunt for mines from the Yukon to Newfoundland, and of those associated with them.

Ranged on the platform facing the prospectors were officials of Toronto and Montreal exchanges, of the Ontario and Quebec securities commissions and of investment houses; and for 2½ hours they answered questions focussed on the general query:

"Is security and stock exchange red tape delaying financing of new prospects?"

The answers probably did not wholly mollify the prospectors but they appeared satisfied that exchanges and commissions now are aware of their problems and will try to move towards satisfying them.

Mrs. Viola MacMillan, association president whose 100 pounds of restless energy had been talking all week about the need for a junior stock exchange, apparently put the idea out of her mind for the present.

"I feel that we are starting to get somewhere," she stated. "We may be able to cure what is wrong if we continue to get together like this. I don't think it will be necessary to set up a junior exchange."

She warned, however, that if things don't become better than they have been she will return to the junior exchange idea.

Rivalries between Toronto and Montreal were barely apparent in the polite comments of their representatives, despite some needling from the audience.

Toronto, in the opinion of many prospectors, has forgotten its mining past and is overemphasizing top-hatted respectability. Montreal's Canadian exchange, meantime, has been driving for a place in the mining sun and has been taking listings unacceptable to Toronto.

Youth sentenced to one day in prison

SWEETSBURG — (Staff) — An Iberville youth, Robert Danneau, charged with auto theft, was fined court costs and one day in prison by Judge Patrick E. Delaney this week.

Danneau pleaded guilty to the charge and was given a light sentence by Judge Delaney, because of the youth's "good conduct."

Hector Piette posted a $500 peace bond to keep the peace for at least one year after he appeared in court.

His wife lodged a complaint against him under the Criminal Code Article 717, as he is prone to "voluntarily" damaging furniture around the house.

The next time he tries it, it'll cost him $500.

'They're taking our fish' is cry of New Zealand. Japan 'So sorry'

WELLINGTON (CP) — For years New Zealanders have watched a bountiful harvest being won from the seas around their coasts and then disappearing over the horizon.

The fishing is done by Japanese craft, which come 6,000 miles for it from their home ports. So good is the fish supply in New Zealand waters that no fewer than 17 Japanese companies have sought permits from their local authorities to send fleets to these fihsing grounds.

Until now New Zealand has offered little competition. New Zealand fishing boats are small and they do not work at long distances from their home bases. They supply only the local market and a small export trade.

The New Zealand fishing industry claims that its high wage structure makes it impossible to compete on the world markets with fishing vessels from low wage countries like Japan. It has bitterly complained of "poaching" by Japanese vessels, but as long as these craft remain outside the three-mile limit there is no legal barrier to their presence.

N.Z. CASE WEAK

And as long as New Zealand was so inadequately exploiting the fishing waters, it had a weak case for demanding that the government take action to keep the Japanese away.

In spite of many charges of Japanese fishing inside the three-mile mark, few authenticated cases have been found.

Photographic proof of violations was obtained recently by New Zealand Air Force planes, resulting in official protests to Japan. This brought apologies and assurances of disciplinary action. But it has done nothing to reduce the busy fleets of Japanese craft working just outside the limits.

New Zealand now is planning activity on several fronts.

The government placed a vigorous fisheries development policy high among the policy points at the election when it won a new term of office last November.

A fishing industry board to foster the industry will begin operations in April. It will have power to make loans for larger vessels and more modern equipment.

DISCUSS PROBLEMS

The new minister of marine, W. J. Scott, has been visiting commercial fishermen in all parts of the country to discuss their problems personally.

Fishermen have been calling for the adoption and enforcement of a 12-mile limit for fishing off the coast, instead of the present three-mile mark. They point to limits of 12 miles or more reserved today by many countries.

The government has hopes that the committee of the 87 maritime nations seeking agreement on territorial limits and other matters at Geneva may resolve the problem within the next few months.

Reports from Geneva indicate that thinking in the committee has swung in favor of reserving fishing to the limit of the continental shelf from each country's shoreline—a distance of perhaps 25 miles in the case of New Zealand.

Hotel is home of university

VANCOUVER (CP)—A group of Canadian students will start first-year university studies this fall in a rented hotel on a sunny Mediterranean island.

The one-year college course is the project of two teachers who met while instructing at St. George's School here, Robert Price of Victoria and David Kingsmill-Abott of Dublin.

They have rented a small hotel in Santa Eulalis del Rio, a village on the island of Ibiza in the Balearic Islands south of Barcelona.

The Little College of Ibiza will have an initial enrolment of 40 with plans of expanding to 50 in future years, Mr. Price says.

Liberal arts courses emphasizing the Spanish language, literature, art, music and history will be offered and at the end of the six-month courses the students will write examinations that will be recognized in Canadian and U.S. universities.

Mr. Price, a graduate of the University of British Columbia who has taught at the University of Madrid, says the school will combine the best in climate and teaching conditions in an old world setting.

Traffic jams are pricey in Paris

PARIS (Reuters) — Traffic jams in Paris cost about $200,000,000 a day in terms of lost working time, a study shows.

The Credit Information and Study Centre reports that Parisians spend nearly 3,000,000 man-hours daily in travel, the equivalent of a full working day for about 400,000 people.

The centre estimates that traffic jams increase travelling time in Paris by one-third, equivalent to the daily loss of 100,000 working days, or $200,000,000.

Major reason for the big traffic jams which reduce Paris traffic to a crawl three or four times a day is the scarcity of parking places. The number of cars in Paris increases by 150,000 a year, and is expected to reach 2,500,000 by 1970, compared with 353,000 in 1950.

Maximum parking space on Parisian streets is sufficient for only 210,000 cars. Parking restrictions reduce this figure to 175,000 places.

Too cold to pose with no clothes from head to toes

ROME (Reuters)—Some 30 art students at Rome's State Academy of Fine Arts will be getting lower marks this term because of a dispute involving nude models.

Many of the models refused to pose in the nude because they claimed the room was not warm enough.

Enrico Monaldini, director of the Art Lyceum, then announced to the students, all about 18 years of age: "The management feels that for health reasons it is better for all the models to pose with their clothes on."

The students objected and walked out. They said there was little point in painting or sculpturing the girls with their clothes on.

Monaldini said the school at first planned to suspend the students for 10 days but eventually decided to give them lower marks—just high enough for passing—in examinations at the end of the second quarter.

The students accepted the ruling. The school decided to install new heating equipment. The models wear clothes until the new equipment is in or the weather warms up.

Nova Scotia's bay-to-ocean canal, slow since 1826, may become busy

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP)—Shubenacadie canal may yet come into its own.

It's a 54-mile stretch of lakes, watercourses, a river and man-made ditches from Dartmouth across central Nova Scotia to the Bay of Fundy.

It was started in 1826, intended to provide cheap water transport to the Bay of Fundy by saving the trip around the south end of Nova Scotia. It was completed 35 years later—but railways had appeared by then.

For a few years the canal was used by small paddle-wheel steamers towing cargo scows, but the railway competition prved too much. The canal gradually fell into disuse.

Now its recreational and tourist potential has been gaining increasing attention.

HISTORIC ROUTE

For centuries before the canal was built the native Micmac Indians used the string of lakes and waterways as a means of cutting across Nova Scotia between ocean and bay.

The man-made sections of the canal are ditches joining lakes and watercourses. At one point a marine railway carries water craft over a half-mile of land.

A year ago the Dartmouth Chamber of Commerce formed a canal committee with Ralph Morton, publisher of the weekly Free Press, as chairman. The committee's object was to have the canal restored for use by small craft.

This committee was enlarged into the Shubenacadie committee, and Murray Ritcey of Cole Harbor was elected chairman. The new committee aimed to bring the project within the scope of the federal Agricultural Redevelopment Act, designed to improve marginal rural areas — 0ncluding recreation, parks and reforestration.

NEED FUNDS

Nova Scotia Lands and Forests Minister E. D. Haliburton, speaking as a private citizen, outlined the provisions of the federal act to the committee and remarked: "You raise $350,000, and the provincial and federal government each would match it."

But, he added, no money would be made available until the committee was able to contribute its share—one-third of the cost.

R. V. Knight, deputy minister of trade and commerce, said the waterway could be "a wonderful thing for tourism." He pledged his department's co-operation in the project.

The canal begins at Lake Banook in Dartmouth, going through lakes Micmac, Charles, Williams, Thomas, Fletcher and Grand Lake to the Shubenacadie which flows into the Bay of Fundy.

Some of the old locks, built of Nova Scotia granite, are still there. Others have crumbled and been overgrown.

Sailors' churches follow the ports around the world

OSLO (AP.) — The seaman's home away from home — the Norwegian seamen's church — is 100 years old this year. The centenary will be celebrated in Norway and in the 32 ports all over the globe where the churches are located.

High point of the anniversary year will be the opening of the King Olav Chapel in the new European oil port 25 miles from Rotterdam, The Netherlands, Sept. 11. Dutch shipowners and industrial leaders provided 65 per cent of the cost.

"We have to move with the ships, build new stations where the traffic has moved on," said a spokesman for the private organization running the churches.

Since the Second World War, 17 new churches have been built, in ports which did not have one before.

The Lutheran churches serve the 64,000 men operating Norway's huge merchant fleet of about 2,300 ships. But seamen of all nationalities are welcome. The churches provide recreational facilities and organize sightseeing tours, sports events and parties. Newspapers from home are flown in, and every ship arriving in port is visited by a pastor.

About 40 pastors man the stations, together with lay assistants and house mothers.

The work is financed by 3,100 groups in Norway and by the seamen themselves, but this year Parliament has contributed 1,000,000 kroner ($151,400) as a centenary gift. The 1962 budget was 6,500,000 kroner ($984,100). Local authorities and organizations around the world also help out with the expenses.

Ports now under consideration for new churches include Vancouver, B.C. Contruction of a new church in Trinidad will begin this year.

Sewage collector

GRANBY — Mayor Paul O. Trepanier has announced that the construction of the sewage collector on Denison Avenue, has been started. The work to cost about $200,000 as was announced some time ago, will consist of a system of pipes of different diameters over a length of 5,200 feet.

The work is being done by J.A.R. Construction General contractors.

Vancouver airport not for birds; noisemakers, guns clear the skies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver International Airport is definitely not for the birds.

Mechanical noise-makers on 24-hour duty, together with a few employees armed with guns are making war on seagulls, ducks and pheasants.

The idea is to prevent anything like the 1960 crash at Boston when starlings jammed the air intakes of a turbo-prop jet and it crashed, killing 62 persons.

The program is a joint effort of the airport and a national research group known as the Committee on Bird Strikes on Aircraft.

The noise-makers sound like shotguns. They're battery-operated and use acetylene to make the bang. Six were installed when the operation began last fall but complaints (from people) about the noise prompted a reduction to two.

"We found seagulls were dangerous during the day but the duck threat continued for 24 hours a day," says airport manager W. L. Inglis. "Since October, we haven't had a hit (on a plane), which proves the guns and the odd shooting have been successful."

There's a long-range plan to make the whole airport as unattractive as possible to the birds.

"We know the noise - makers aren't the complete answer, so we are cutting down all the bush areas so they won't have any feeding or nesting areas.

"We are not allowing grain to be planted on our lands and are going to put in grass everywhere possible and keep it short."

The guns can be heard four miles away at night but, says Mr. Inglis, "people will become immune to the noise faster than the birds, who after all think their lives are at stake."

Review standards for universities

VICTORIA (CP) — Entrance requirements of Canadian universities are under review with the idea of setting national standards, says Ronald R. Jeffels, registrar of the University of Victoria.

A nation-wide system of university entrance examinations could be one of the next steps in the development of higher education in Canada, he says.

Such a system, discussed at the recent Conference of Canadian Registrars in Toronto, would be of great assistance in determining the student's academic potential as well as aiding his transition from high school to college, he adds.

Mr. Jeffels suggests such a system might be similar to one in operation in the United States which involves 504 colleges and universities, 165 secondary schools and 41 educational associations.

The Doctor Says

INFLAMED THYROID CAN INDICATE HASIMOTO DISEASE

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT M. D.

Hasimoto's disease is a chronic inflammation of the thyroid. Although inflammation may cause some changes in thyroid function, this is quite different from the myxedema and the goiters which I have already described.

It may be due to an infection. But often the cause is unknown. It is most common in middle-aged women and is characterized by a painful swelling of the thyroid. Your doctor may have to take a small piece of the gland (needle biopsy) for microscopic examination in order to make the diagnosis.

In the more acute form, cortisone may be given. X-ray treatments also help most victims. In the chronic form, thyroid substance or one of its derivatives is often given if the thyroid function is found to be decreased. Complete cure is the rule. There is no relationship between this disease and cancer of the thyroid which is relatively rare.

Q—You recently said that cancer was not hereditary, but my father, my uncle and three of my brothers all died of cancer. How could this happen if cancer is not hereditary?

A—There is a growing belief that most cancers are caused by as yet unidentified viruses. While cancer does not appear to be contagious in the ordinary sense, there is no reason why several members of a family could not become infected with one or more varieties of these viruses.

Tuberculosis, another infectious disease, also may afflict several members of a single family. It was also once considered to be inherited but this is no longer true.

Q—In a breech delivery, are the baby's feet or its buttocks born first? Why is this more dangerous than a head first delivery? Could a doctor turn the baby and make him come head first?

A—The buttocks are usually born first, although sometimes it is a foot or a knee. This type of birth has dangers for both the mother and the child. When the head comes first, there is a gradual dilation of the birth canal to allow the passage of the head, which is the largest part. There is no stimulation of the baby's respiration until the head is born.

The rest of the baby follows promptly. When the breech comes first the delivery of the head is difficult because the birth canal has not fully dilated. If the head is not delivered quickly the baby, whose breathing has been stimulated, may suffocate. On the other hand, too rapid a delivery of the aftercoming head may injure the mother. For these reasons a doctor will make every effort to turn the baby so that it will be born head first.

Q—I take Amytal every day for nervousness. My doctor says it is habit-forming. Does it also have any bad side effects?

A—Amobarbital (Amytal), like all barbiturates, is habit-forming. Side effects may include extreme excitement, dizziness, headache, nausea and a skin rash.

Granby students and teachers join in activities of Education Week

GRANBY — Opening Education Week activities here, Rev. C. W. Foggo, stressed the importance of education at the morning service on March 1, in the United Church. Music was led by the junior choir under the direction of W. G. Porter.

A reception for mothers of Grade 1, pupils was held March 3. They were met by Mrs. Elaine Brouillet and Mrs. Doris Coupland, who conducted them through the class to inspect the students' work. Others who might be enrolling children next fall were also present.

Tea was served by the girls of Grade 10, in the household science rooms, under the direction of Mrs. Enid Thomson, household science teacher.

On March 4, at 1.30 p.m., the senior debating team, Kathy Smith and Peter Heelis, who had been coached by Miss A. A. Howse, went to Cowansville to take part in the semi-finals of the inter-school debates, sponsored by the Regional Council of the Home and School Association.

Also on Tuesday, Open House was held at the school, when parents visited the classrooms to see the displays of work and have informal talks with the teachers. The Girld Guides held their annual food sale to raise funds for their work and a silver collection was taken in aid of the Key Club's School for Guatemala Fund.

That evening the High School Drama Guild presented a 40-minute play, The Royal Suspect, in the gymnasium. The play was directed by James F. King.

Grade 7 students were accompanied by their teachers, Miss Elsie Boyes and Mrs. Hannah Vivian, on March 5, on a visit to the Co-operative Agricole de Granby, where they were conducted through the large dairy and cheese plant by David Shufelt and Albert Coupland.

Activities ended with the Education Week Assembly on Friday morning, conducted by members of the G.H.S. Cercle Francais, under Mrs. Irene Porter's guidance. The program of hymns, prayers and announcements, entirely in French, included a short play, Le Petit Chaperon Rouge, by Grade 4 pupils, directed by Miss Carol Jones.

Weekly meeting held by Guild at Ditchfield

DITCHFIELD — Members of the Guild of St. John's Church held the weekly meeting at the home of Mrs. George Veary with one visitor present.

It was decided to authorize the making of tapestry-covered foam cushions for the church pews, according to an estimate submitted by one of the town's merchants.

A very satisfactory report was turned in on a recent sale of materials, the result of a generous donation by another local merchant.

A birthday gift was presented to an over-70 member, as is the custom, and the refreshments, which brought a pleasant evening to a close, included a birthday cake, made and decorated by the hostess.

Next meeting to be at the home of Miss Violet Slater.

Senior Citizens party date set by Magog UCW

MAGOG — Unit one of Magog U.C.W. held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. G. W. McLauchlan, with Mrs. R. Moffatt assisting hostess. Mrs. W. D. Kirk led the devotional exercises. Mention was made of the loss sustained by one of the members, Miss Lillian Pike in the death of her mother Mrs. Flora Stevens. It was voted to contribute a sum of money to the Memorial Fund in her memory, also a card sent to Miss Pike.

Following a report of the committee in charge of making plans for a party in April for Senior Citizens of the community, it was decided, due to conflicting events, to change the date to April 29.

The treasurer reported satisfactory financial returns from the Valentine sale and tea. The Easter Thankoffering meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Smiley on April 1.

Miss Ada Sandell read a note of thanks from Miss Beulah Bourne, Severance Hospital, Korea, to the chairman of supply, thanking the group for parcel received. A report of work last year is being circulated among the members.

Mrs. J. R. Burton reported several visits made to sick and shut-ins since the last meeting.

Mrs. B. Shonyo read excerpts from the study on South-East Asia which told of the impact of the Church in India.

Refreshments were served and a social period enjoyed.

SERVES DRINKS

OAMANRU, N.Z. (CP) — At an aero club pageant here, a woman with two small children wandered by mistake into the airport VIP lounge and asked the man in attendance for two bottles of soft drink. Civil Aviation Minister J. K. McAlpine wasn't the least disconcerted. He found a case of soft drinks, handed over two bottles, requested a shilling and sent the party on its way.

Canada, US cooperate

Limit international radio chatter

OTTAWA (CP) — Quiet but firm diplomacy keeps the peace between Canada and the United States over use of the air waves for broadcasting.

"Nowhere is the expression 'undefended border' more appropriate than in broadcasting," says a senior official of the federal transport department, which controls television, radio and wireless channels.

Unrestricted use of these channels without limits on transmitting power on either side of the border could result in chaos.

"We must have some order and control," says the official. "We do this in continuing consultation with U.S. communications officials, each side giving and taking a little."

Elaborate agreements guarantee for each country a fair share of the broadcasting spectrum. These are reinforced by stringent rules designed largely to protect the basic coverage area of existing broadcasting stations.

Frequencies available for broadcasting are initially allocated on a world-wide basis by the International Telecommunications Union, an international body based in Geneva. Within this framework Canada and the U.S. have worked out regional radio and television agreements which define technical standards for operating stations.

CROWDED ATMOSPHERE

Thousands of different communications systems around the world compete for use of frequencies which range from 10 to 40,000,000 kilocycles. They include short-wave radio, ship-to-shore phones, two-way mobile police radio, microwave networks for phone and telecommunications and air traffic control.

Prescribed bands of frequencies are set aside for commercial broadcasting. The major categories are AM and FM radio and television.

AM is standard broadcasting and means amplitude modulation—a rising and falling in the intensity of the broadcast signal. Depending largely on power, AM stations can be heard relatively long distance from the transmitter but are affected by interference.

FM stands for frequency modulation, in which the frequency itself wavers back and forth. FM signals carry only a limited distance in direct line of sight of the transmitter tower, but the sound quality is superior to AM.

LIMIT RANGE

The number of available frequencies is limited but arrangements are worked out so that stations in different parts of the country can use the same frequency. Order is maintained by imposing limits on power and on the broadcasting range of these stations so that the resulting interference with each other is not significant.

Among the most complex negotiations between Ottawa and Washington have been those over allocations of channels on the standard AM radio broadcast band. For all practical purposes, there is no room for new stations.

In 1939, only 900 North American stations occupied the 107 available frequencies which range between 535 and 1,605 kilocycles. Today, there are some 4,000.

The North American Regional Broadcasting Agreement gives Canada seven (Class Ia) clear channels affording complete protection across Canada from interference caused by any U.S. station on the same frequency. It also provides five (class Ib) clear channels, which may not be used by stations on the same channels closer than 2,800 miles. All but one of these channels are used by the CBC.

SETS STANDARDS

The agreement also sets out technical standards for regional and local stations, which receive different degrees of protection. The basic requirement for any new station is that it must not interfere with other stations already using its frequency beyond a specified limit.

It usually takes a good deal of technical ingenuity to find a spot for a new station to squeeze into the standard band. It requires research by a professional consulting electrical engineer and approval of the transport department, prior to submitting an application to the Board of Broadcast Governors.

The BBG studies the bid in the light of programming, market conditions, competitive effect on other stations, financial status and capability of the proposed operators. After a public hearing, it recommends to the transport minister whether a licence should be issued.

FM LESS CROWDED

Agreements covering allotment of channels for FM radio and television take into account population distribution and regional conditions. Protection agreement provides for stations within 250 miles of the border.

The FM spectrum with 200 channels is less crowded than AM. Since FM stations generally have a more limited range and there is a trend towards localized radio service, increased use of FM frequencies has been predicted.

The TV spectrum consists of 12 Very High Frequency (VHF) and 70 Ultra High Frequency (UHF) channels. Maximum use of the standard VHF channels is being approached in many U.S. centres and UHF is gaining wider acceptance. Although Canada has no fully - fledged UHF station, agreement has been reached with the U.S. over allotment of UHF channels.

Prospective developments in space communications have not been overlooked. Last November, Canada was signatory to a world-wide agreement involving some 2,000 channels available for public communication in space.

Arithmetic topic of speakers at H and S meeting

COOKSHIRE — Inspector George Rothney and Mrs. Roy Harrison were the guest speakers at the A.B.C. Home and School Assocation meeting, held at the High School on March 5.

Mr. Rothney spoke on modern approaches of teaching arithmetic. He stated that the spirit which should pervade the classroom is inquiry and discovery; its content and how it is presented may be given a new twist. New patterns will be discovered, which could be divided into comulative associative and distributive principles, which will lead eventually to shorter forms.

Mrs. Roy Harrison demonstrated the Cuisenaire method of teaching arithmetic, and had on display the colored sticks and cubes, work books and sample copies of questions, which were used in the classroom for testing the pupils' knowledge.

The school principal, E. Chiarelli introduced the guest speakers. The president of the association, Darrell Bellam, thanked Mrs. Harrison, and Raymond Stevenson thanked Mr. Rothney.

Prior to the demonstrations a short business meeting was held, and tentative plans made for a chicken pie supper on April 9. Debates by some of the pupils will be given at the April meeting, and a panel discussion will be featured for the May meeting.

At the close of the evening the Cookshire ladies served refreshments.

Leads series 2-0

Granby takes easy win as Bedard of Vics tallies 5

Twenty-two hundred and sixty spectators at the Sherbrooke Arena, last night, in the second tilt of the Sherbrooke Beavers and Granby Vics, were treated to a one man show as young Gilles 'Bizou' Bedard rapped home five goals in the Vics 8-3 win. It gives them a 2-0 lead in games in the Provincial Hockey finals.

Bedard's goals were all well earned as he was always a scoring threat when on the ice. Brian Elwell, linemate of Bedard, collected six assists and the other man on the line, Jacques Gagne, assisted on three goals.

The teams started out each on the hunt for goals and Payette in the Granby net was the first to be tested on a shot by Rene Pepin. Robidoux of Granby was banished for charging in the second minute of play and although the Beavers had the man advantage they were kept off the score sheet. Penalty killers on the Granby squad were doing a good job back checking until Robidoux returned.

Play was mostly around the Beaver net and after seven minutes the Vics took the lead, Pete Lambe coming up with the goal, with Mentis and Roberts doing the spade work. The eager Vics forwards kept up the attack and Bedard came up with the first of his five goals after ten minutes had gone. Elwell and Gagne drew assists on the play. Rousseau of Beavers and Lambe were given majors for fighting and it was while the team were playing each a man short that Beavers clicked for their first goal, Gilles Dube netting after Bedard and Cardin had forced the play into the Vics zone.

Robidoux shortly after this was issued a major and again the Beavers struck, Claude Cardin clicking on passes from Bedard and Rene Pepin.

The Vics got this right back as Bedard, breaking away with Elwell, drove him his second goal to put the Vics ahead again by a 3-2 count. In the last minutes of play in the period Leblanc of Beavers was given the nod for tripping.

Vics, with one odd man at the start of the second period, were all around the Beavers net and Groulx was kept busy until the teams were at full strength. Play sea-sawed back and forth in the middle part of the period. The Vics were always dangerous and the Beavers were having a tough time getting their plays started. It went to 4-2 for the Vics as Bedard again found the target. Elwell and Bouchard were in on the play, this goal was at the fifteen minute mark. Keeping up the pressure, Ron Roberts, two minutes later put his team further ahead as he tallied on a pass from Lirette. Cardin and Roberts went off soon after this but there was no more scoring and the period ended with the Vics out in front 5-2.

The third period was only five minutes old when Bedard again dented the twine behind Groulx. This was a two man effort as Bedard and Elwell broke away in the clear with Bedard doing the finishing work. The Beavers in their eagerness to cut down the Vics lead were having trouble combining and passes were being missed through this eagerness. The Beaver line that seemed the most dangerous was the line of Dube, Bedard and Drouin and this line were unlucky on a couple of occasions. It went to 7-2 for Vics as Gagne as Bedard, with Elwell assisting tallied.

It seemed at this point just how many goals the visitors were going to get as they swarmed time and time again around the Beavers net and it was no surprise when Bedard got his fifth goal of the game.

Gilles Dube came up with his second goal of the game two minutes before the finish. Picard, Cardin, Robidoux and Lirette all drew penalties in the final period.

The Vics were well worth their win and were much the faster team on the ice, with their two game lead they now have a stranglehold on the championship. Beavers can play better and always somehow show up better on foreign ice perhaps they will keep their hopes alive on Thursday at Granby.

Maroons tie game with Czech team

PRAGUE (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons tied Czechoslovakia's national hockey team for the second time in as many nights Tuesday night as the two clubs played to a 1-1 saw-off at Opava in northern Moravia before a crowd of 6,000.

Murray Couch's goal for the touring Canadian club was matched by Brada of Czechoslovakia in the first period.

The Czechs, who defeated Canada's Olympic team 3-1 at Innsbruck, Austria, last month, downed the Maroons by the same score Sunday. They will meet for the fourth time Thursday.

Apart from the two ties, the Maroons have won four games and lost two thus far on their 12-game European tour. A local Czech club defeated them 4-3 after they had won their first game in Czechoslovakia.

Cournoyer gets 4 as Jr. Habs win

Yvan Cournoyer, the league's top goal-getter, fired four goals as Montreal Junior Canadiens defeated Peterborough Petes 8-1 in the first of a best-of-seven quarter-final series in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs Tuesday night.

In the other game, St. Catharines Black Hawks took a 1-0 lead in their series of dumping Oshawa Generals 4-1.

The winners of this series meet in the semi-finals with the victors gaining a berth in the finals against the winner of the Toronto Marlboros and the Niagara Falls Flyers semi-final.

Jacques Lemaire, Rene Drolet, Mike Hyndman and Christian Bordeleau were the other Montreal marksmen as the Canadiens took advantage of a weak Peterborough defensive unit to score consistently.

Jim Sprott was the only Peterborough goal-getter.

Fred Stanfield, Art Graham, Ken Laidlaw and Ken Hodge fired one goal each as Black Hawks walloped the Oshawa crew.

Ron Buchanan was the only Oshawa marksman.

Goyette highest scorer on NY Rangers

Phil Goyette has been underpaid this season and he'll likely miss out on the bonus money offered by the National Hockey League playoffs.

But the 30-year-old New York Rangers centreman has no complaints.

"This has been a gratifying season," says friendly Phil, who has 22 goals and 59 points to date. "I've proven to myself and everyone else that, with enough ice-time, I can get my share of points and help any team.

"If the Rangers think my play has been surprising, maybe they'll make up some of the bonus money I would have had from the playoffs."

The blueshirts aren't eliminated yet, but it'll take a miracle to save them. They are 11 points behind fourth-place Detroit and must win all their remaining six games while the Wings lose all five they have left to play.

Missing the Stanley Cup playoffs will be a new experience for Goyette, who was "extra baggage" with the Montreal Canadiens for seven seasons before being sent to New York last summer in the Plante-Worsley exchange.

PRODUCTION DROPPED OFF

He toiled in the shadows of the Beliveaus, Richards and Geoffrions during the Habs' powerhouse years. One season he scored 21 goals, but in his last three years with the club he collected a total of 19.

"They told me I was going to be traded, so I knew what to expect."

But Goyette says he would have quit if he had been sent to the minors.

"I've always been at the top and want to finish my career at the top."

What was surplus luggage on the jet - propelled Canadiens turned out to be a prize package for the single-engine Rangers. He ranked second to only Andy Bathgate in production and now that the latter is in Toronto, Goyette has moved into the room at the top.

The New York brass didn't expect that much when they signed Goyette for $12,000—probably making him one of the lowest-paid 20-goal scorers in the league today. Furthermore, it's a two-year deal and he's headed for the same salary next season.

HOPES FOR NEW PACT

Almost needless to say, Goyette hopes the Rangers will tear up the contract and start again.

The Rangers go into action tonight against Boston in New York and Toronto hosts slumping Montreal in the only two NHL games scheduled.

New York has called up defenceman-left wing Rod Seiling from Toronto of the OHA Junior A, a highly-rated prospect they picked up in the five-for-Bathgate-and - McKenney trade with the Maple Leafs. Seiling played one game with New York last week, picking up an assist and impressing coach Red Sullivan.

The Montreal-Toronto clash is an important contest for both clubs and the Leafs will be without captain George Armstrong, still out with a shoulder injury. Frank Mahovlich, ill Tuesday and listed as a doubtful starter, said later he would be able to play.

The Canadiens, winless in four straight games, are two points behind first place Chicago and will use up one of their two games in hand. If they lose, Saturday's meeting in Montreal with the Hawks could be the most important game this season.

The Leafs, shut out by Charlie Hodge in their last three meetings with Montreal, need a win to escape the pressing Wings. Toronto is only two points ahead of Detroit, but has played one game less.

More talk from Louisville Lip

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Cassius Clay may start talking again, but only in self-defence.

He's not afraid of losing his heavyweight crown.

There's nobody around who can take that away. But they're all after my title of "The Louisville Lip."

Clay, told a luncheon Tuesday: "I'm getting quiet and everybody else in the fight business is getting bold. Even Floyd Patterson is getting bold."

Patterson recently challenged the 22-year-old champ to a bout and was turned down. "He's gonna have to wait his turn," Clay said.

"All my plans have to be tentative till I find out what the army's going to do with me."

The defence department, in Washington, which will re-examine Clay Friday said results of the champion's first tests "were inconclusive and he has been ordered to take another."

Chilliwack team wins in curling

REGINA (CP)—Ed Gee of Chilliwack, B.C., won the Canadian policemen's curling championship Tuesday.

Gee, making his fifth appearance in the championship, scored three on the 10th end to topple favored Wally Strauss of Yorkton, Sask., RCMP 5-4 in the final game.

Bob Nicholson of Toronto RCMP won the runnerup event by defeating Al Schier of Edmonton City Police 11-5.

Ken Arndt of Saskatoon, representing Quebec RCMP, defeated Murray Henderson of Swan River, Man., 5-3 to win the third event.

Richelieu Club to sponsor team

The Sherbrooke Richelieu Club at their meeting on Monday evening decided to sponsor a team in the Sher-Lenn Little League this season. This will bring the Gerry Daniels Circuit up to eight teams and the league has now all teams sponsored by City Service Clubs.

The executive of the Sher-Lenn Little League are gratified at the Richelieu Club's sponsorship and the knowledge that they will be a part of their endeavour to supply healthy summer pastime for the youth of Sherbrooke. Mr. Fred Wilson was the contact Director for the league and responsible for the entry of the Richelieu Club.

ERNIE RICHARDSON'S

CURLING CAPSULES

Although most of the instruction in previous articles has been for curlers generally and skips in particular, I feel it is necessary to review the other three positions on the team. That is, not only the duties of the lead, second and third, but the qualities a skip should look for in the men he wants for these positions.

Qualifications of a lead are chiefly that he should be good at making draw shots and fair at hitting, but most important of all, he should have the ability to draw to either side of the house.

Another essential is that the lead should be the strongest sweeper on the team and also capable of judging the weight of a rock with reasonable accuracy.

If your lead man can get his draw weight down before the opposing lead does, you can usually get the opposition to play your type of game. This generally gives you a good jump early and improves your chance to win. The lead plays an important part in winning.

The lead man has to be good-natured and patient, because this position, I would say is not the most interesting of the four. He should always keep in mind, though, that his shots are just as important as those of his teammates.

A HITTER

Regarding the second man, he should be a very good hitter, able to throw heavy weight as well as being a better than average draw man. The second is generally considered a clean-up man, called upon at times to make a double takeout for which he needs that extra weight.

If the opposing second misses a shot, it is then up to your second man to draw his stone into the house. If he can hit well and also make the important draw you are a fortunate skip to have such a man.

The second should also be a good sweeper and good judge of weight when sweeping rocks played by the third and skip. If your lead and second sweep well together it makes shotmaking much easier for the third and skip.

MORALE BOOSTER

It is tremendously important that one of your front end players be a strong morale builder for the team. In the case of our rink, it is my brother Garnet who plays that role.

No matter what the outlook, how badly we are playing, or how far we are behind, Garnet never gives up and is always building up encouragement. His enthusiasm seems to rub off on the rest of us and we have come on to win some games that seemed lost.

In selecting a top lead I would have to choose either Wes Richardson or Mel Perry, then Fred Storey with Jimmy Shields, Mat Baldwin's lead Bill Price, and both Lloyd and Glen Campbell of the famed Campbell team of Avonlea, Sask.

As outstanding second man I'll take brother Garnet as one of the best, together with Bob Pickering of Jack Keys' team, Rae Warner with Hec Gervais and Russ Lindburg who was on Bayne Secord's rink.

The general trouble today is that when leads and seconds develop their positions to a high degree they feel they should move up to third or perhaps skip. I'm sure this is the reason there aren't more outstanding teams in the country.

late model small imported car.

The two cars collided on a bridge.

Cruden and Hawes were both thrown out onto the pavement after the impact.

A third car, a new sports model, driven by Andre Gareau of Palo, Alto, California then ran over the injured men on the ground, testimony showed.

A young Ayer's Cliff student, Michel Prevost was in the sports car at the time.

He testified having seen Cruden in the Rockliffe Hotel prior to the accident and said he appeared to be under the influence of alcohol.

He said that after they had left the hotel to return to Magog they were followed by Cruden's car.

He told the jury that one point Cruden passed the car grazing the side.

The two then chased Cruden and tried to stop him.

Provost said that Cruden was weaving on the road and that they decided to stay behind them until Lennoxville, when they would call police.

Then the accident occurred on the bridge.

Provost said that they did not see the accident and travelled slowly over the bridge.

When they saw the debris of the smashed cars, they braked and tried to avoid hitting one of them.

When they got out of the car, he said, they noticed two people pinned beneath the wheels of their own car.

Written testimony by the driver of the car, Gareau, corroborated Provost's testimony.

He said he never saw the people until he got out of his car.

Mr. Cruden then assumed the witness stand.

He told the court that he had three drinks of liquor during the evening and that he was sober.

When asked about restrictions on his driving permit, Cruden said he was obliged to wear his glasses while driving at night.

Cruden claimed he was wearing his glasses at the time and that they had been brought to him the next day in the hospital by his family.

Education Week history display is put on by students of ADS

DANVILLE — (Special) — Students of the Asbestos-Danville-Shipton High School celebrated Education Week by having a look into the past to see how their ancestors liv d and worked to meet the needs of the times 100 years ago.

A display of antiques was shown in the school gym during the week. The theme of the program was the centenary of the Quebec Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers.

Among the exhibits were old text books, story books, group photos of classes among which were pictures of grand-parents of the present ADS students, furniture, household effects, clothing, the first maps of the Richmond county district, and guns which were used to hunt wild animals.

There were candle-making forms, a butter churn and the measures, the first radio set used in Danville and many other items of interest, a total of some 600 in all.

In preparing the exhibit, the pupils were asked to bring in any item which was of interest. Mrs. V. Snaden, grade 5 teacher, who was in charge of the program planning, said "We all had fun looking up pieces for the exhibit.

"The students spent quite some time going through old trunks and boxes in their attics and the search for antiques took on the aspect of a treasure hunt."

"I was well pleased with the results of the display and the enthusiasm which the children displayed."

Parents and friends who visited the school spent as much as two hours in examining the articles. Some were seen sitting back, text book in hand, looking over passages of past memories, of the red brick school house.

Several students were on hand to describe the various pieces and were well versed in their explanations. Carol Findlay was in charge of the maps and old manuscripts, Bonnie Demers in charge of antique furniture; Joan Cleveland, text books; Leona MacDonald, photos and albums; Sharron Taylor, Donald Lindsay, general and Trevor Batstone was at the butter making display table. Jim Snaden, of "the old school", was in charge of the antique arms.

In classes during the week, students who intend following the teaching profession were given the opportunity to instruct various lessons.

News flashes from around the world

MONTREAL (CP) — Roland Durand, vice - president of the Quebec Junior Bar Association, said today he feels press reports that a large number of delegates remained seated during a toast to the Queen at the junior bar's annual convention were "greatly exaggerated."

"There were about 300 members at the dinner. From the head table I could not see more than a dozen or so remaining seated.

"As an officer of the bar I was concerned about the press reports so I asked other members what they had noticed. Their estimates were about the same as mine. Certainly the number did not seem to be great enough to cause any stir at the dinner."

MONTREAL (CP)—Asbestos Corp. Ltd., of Thetford Mines, Que., reported Tuesday it has acquired the assets of Murray Mining Corp. Ltd., and of its wholly-owned subsidiary Keewa Quebec Mines Ltd.

The purchase price was met by the delivery to Murray Mining Corporation of 375,000 shares of Asbestos Corporation common stock at a previously agreed price, the company said in a statement.

Since Asbestos Corporation is already the owner of some 2,000,000 Murray Mining shares, the transaction will result in a net increase of only about 250,000 outstanding Asbestos Corporation shares, the company said.

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—A retired lighthouse keeper and auto worker who lived alone in a cluttered small house left about $100,000 when he died, authorities estimated Tuesday.

Genesee County Sheriff Tom Bell said bank books for seven savings accounts in Flint and one in Traverse City, Mich., showed about $70,000 in the name of Martin J. Nelson, who died of a heart attack March 1 at age 70. The remainder was in bonds, which were found in his house, and interest.

His body was found in his old-model car in a church parking lot near his home. There was just 96 cents in his pocket.

CAPE TOWN (Reuters)—Justice Minister Balthazar Vorster told the Senate Tuesday "probably between 900 and 5,000" persons had left South Africa to train as saboteurs against their country.

Many of these have already returned and "more than 150 of these trained saboteurs" have been caught, said Vorster, whose white government practises race-separation.

Vorster said anti-South African terrorists were establishing sabotage training camps in such countries as Tanganyika, Ghana, Algeria and Cuba.

OTTAWA (CP)—A total of 1,333 job openings for older workers have been approved under the federal older worker employment and training incentive program, but only 936 workers have been hired, Labor Minister MacEachen said Tuesday.

Under the experimental program, the federal government pays an incentive of up to $75 a month for 12 months to employers who hire and train workers 45 years of age and older.

Mr. MacEachen said since the program began Nov. 1, 1963, employers have filed applications for incentives covering 1,986 jobs for older workers.

Sherbrooke short on slugs?

Clear-out of parking meters tell whether people are honest or not

HOW MANY SLUGS ARE IN THERE? — Meter caretaker Maurice Jutras won't know until he gets back to city hall and starts sorting the coins, whether any slugs or bus tokens have been put into the meter. The type of meter shown in the photo is emptied by attaching the metal hose to the meter, so that the coins are not handled.

By DAVID WEBSTER
(Record staff reporter)

How honest are the people you meet every day?

One way of finding out is by checking what they put into parking, phone, and bus meters. If no slugs or other foreign pieces are found it means that your fellow citizens are scrupulously honest, even with a meter.

Or else it means that they haven't any slugs to put in, in the first place.

Sherbrooke city parking meters don't receive many slugs. Maurice Jutras, who is responsible for the emptying and accounting of meter money, reported that out of 336 meters on a recent day he found only six slugs.

The slugs were the width of dimes but thinner and lighter. All six looked the same and were perhaps all inserted by the same person.

There are 938 city parking meters which are emptied every three to fifteen days depending on their location, said Mr. Jutras.

The meters are emptied by a small hand cart which contains a coin box. A tube, which is connected to the box is inserted into the meter and any coins fall drop through the tube into the box.

When he has finished his rounds Mr. Jutras returns to his city hall office where he uses a machine to sort the nickels, dimes, quarters, and any foreign pieces in the collection.

Over a period of time there has been a large number of foreign pieces collected. Mr. Jutras explained that a meter will accept all sorts of deformed coins but would not give any parking time for them.

He showed a box containing many kinds of mutilated coins. There were some with holes drilled or jagged edges cut in them. Others had been squashed, probably by being run over by trains, also in the box were two halves of a quarter which had likely been taped together before being put into the meter.

The Sherbrooke bus service, similiarly, is not much troubled with slugs in meter slots. Yvon Laramee of Sherbrooke Transit Incorporated said that on one typical day about 8,000 tokens and two or three slugs were collected. Here the driver is right beside the meter and can see what's going on, he said, so it is not easy to escape paying the fare.

SORTING COINS — Mr. Jutras is here seen at his city hall office sorting the revenue from the parking meters. Quarters, dimes, and nickels go into separate compartments in the front of the machine while any slugs, bus tokens, or mutilated coins go out a slot in the back.

Slugs in public pay phones mean loss of money for Bell

The Bell Telephone loses a lot of money every year from slugs being put into public pay phones.

J.P.E. Seguin, staff security supervisor, reported that in 1963 Bell lost $120,000 in Quebec and Ontario, in this way.

Total public telephone loss in Quebec and Ontario, which also includes losses and damage done by thieves, came to $339,000 last year he said. However, this is lower than the 1962 loss of over $400,000.

Mr. Seguin reported that the Sherbrooke region, which includes much of the Eastern Townships, has 703 pay phones. There was a $1,500 loss in 1963 from using slugs instead of coins, he said.

This means that an average of $2.12 in slugs was fed into every Sherbrooke region pay phone. Apparently our neighbours are not as honest as they look.

Besides the $1,500 lost from slugs, $1,400 is lost in theft, and $3,200 is done in damage in the process of breaking in, said Mr. Seguin. The damage done in getting the money is, therefore, more than twice the amount that the thieves steal.

The total loss in Sherbrooke region came to $6,100 last year.

In Sherbrooke region, reported Mr. Seguin, 5.5 per cent of all public phones were broken into last year. The Quebec City region had a 4.4 per cent break-in rate, while evil old Montreal had a rate of around 6 per cent. The provincial average was 4.4 per cent, while the average for Quebec and Ontario was 3.8 per cent.

Mr. Seguin said that the loss from slugs in pay phones is increasing in all parts of Canada. Losses are four times what they were in 1956, he said, and four times what they are in United States. He suggested that American phones collect fewer slugs because of stricter laws which make it illegal to manufacture or possess slugs.

Bell Telephone does a multi-million dollar business in pay phones, he said, and till recently such losses were ignored. But in the last few years, he continued, losses have increased so much that all possible steps are now being taken to cut them down.

Company engineers are developing an alarm system that will sound as soon as anyone begins to tamper with a phone, he said. Some such alarms will be installed in the next few months.

"We intend to prosecute any offenders caught, to the full limits of the law," said Mr. Seguin. He said that a Montreal salesman had been caught putting slugs into a pay phone and had been severely prosecuted, so that his reputation and salesman's career had been seriously hurt.

"We have men on full time security work," he said. "They have been trained to spot such offences and have made various arrests. People are usually very surprised that we catch them at something like this."

Mr. Seguin said that Bell Telephone security men plan to see all municipal police chiefs to make them aware of the situation.

Bell Telephone manager for Sherbrooke region, G. R. Perrault said that many people think it ns permissible to steal from a machine, whereas they wouldn't steal from another person. What they don't realize, he said, is that Bell Telephone is a public utility. It is there to provide service to the public and is supported by the public. If slugs are put into pay phones the losses will have to be made up somewhere, and that somewhere is usually the taxpayer's pocket.

A pay phone is often vital in case of emergency, said Mr Perrault, for only by phone can one reach a doctor, or the police and fire departments. If a phone is tampered with people may have much difficulty getting such help.

PRAISES YOUTH

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Canadians should be proud of the increasing number of college students who think more of what they can give than what they can get, says Dr. Harold Rea, president of the National Council of YMCAs of Canada. But, he told a meeting here, the nation should be ashamed that twice as much money is spent on liquor as on education.

VALLEY WEAVERS

The Valley Weavers heard an interesting article entitled, The use of idleness by Mrs. Helen Hyatt, taken from the writings of Dr. Penfield, in which the stress was laid on the need to think and be interested in others and their work. Keeping notes of interest, to have an open mind to be happier, kinder and more resourceful is one way of doing away with selfish solitude.

Mrs. Hyatt entertained the members at her home in Huntingville and welcomed two guests, Mrs. Jack Tarte and Mrs. Van Horn, of Bedford. Mrs. Van Horn added to the program by describing the summer craft school, held on the old Fletcher Farms, near Ludlow, Vermont, which she attends each year. She also discussed handicrafts in general.

A brief business period was conducted by the president, Mrs. Ernest Johnson. Greetings were received from Mrs. Lawrence Galvin, Stanstead, provincial representative of the Guild of Canadian Weavers.

Work of the month on display were, waffle baby bibs and a woolen blanket by Mrs. Ernest Johnson and a woolen stole, by Mrs. John York, while Mrs. Hyatt had bag lengths and other weaving, including a beautiful hand made patch work quilt in a bouquet design, making a very interesting showing.

To conclude, Mrs. Hyatt who was in charge of the program, presented each member with a slotted card and various colors of wools, from which they chose color combinations and make up design. The results were very pleasing. Mrs. Edward Perry will be in charge of the April program.

At the close of the meeting a lunch was enjoyed.

Lennoxville lady loans home for Red Cross work

For the past four years a Lennoxville lady, Mrs. George Giroux, Queen Street, has loaned here home for the work of the Red Cross.

Ever since the Red Cross work rooms were disbanded on Queen Street, about eight women have gathered every Monday to roll bandages for the Red Cross.

Each year a quota of about 5,000 bandages are rolled by this small group of volunteer workers. Usually they try to complete about 500 bandages in an afternoon, this depends on how many ladies turn up. Sometimes only four or six are present so this cuts the number down to about 350-400 in an afternoon.

The group commences in the fall and works through the year until the quota has been filled and dispatched.

Miss Beatrice Everett, who is chairman of the work committee is responsible for the ordering and packaging of the bandages, which she forwards to the Red Cross, in Montreal.

Polly's pointers

by Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — My hint is for brightening up a back hall, laundry room or any dingy-looking spot in the house. Recently I wallpapered our back hall with magazine covers. The children just love it and have great fun identifying famous people and places. I got the idea from a friend in Chicago who covered her laundry room walls with the covers of women's magazines. Another friend has covered the walls of her music room with old sheet music. Regular wallpaper paste was used, but some walls have to be sized before covering. A light coat of colorless shellac applied after the covers are dry will protect this gay paper. I always overlap the covers a little for a more artistic effect. —MARJORIE

DEAR POLLY — I always keep an old toothbrush at my sewing machine to brush away threads, lint and dust that accumulate while I am sewing. Turning the brush around, the long handle comes in very handy for turning belts, bows and straps.—MRS. I. D.

DEAR POLLY — In these days of hurry, scurry, noise and confusion we all need a few moments alone for quiet meditation and prayer each day. The children cannot always have a bedroom that is completely their own but need some moments away from the noise of television to prepare Sunday School and regular school work. When a member of our family wants to be alone, we tie a white handdkerchief on the door knob. This tells everyone that the occupant of the room does not want to be disturbed.

● Another tip for thrift is to use a pencil to squeeze that last drop of glue or toothpaste from an almost empty tube. Just place the tube on a flat surface and firmly run the pencil from the bottom to the top of the tube.—MRS. G. C.

Chase those 'expectant' blues with well grooming

Pregnant and in the middle of the waiting game? The tendency at this juncture is to let down a bit in your daily grooming routine. When you do, your spirits will follow.

A bath, a facial and an extra foot soak are effective morale builders. Also a weekly shampoo, or visit to your favorite beauty salon, prove special treats — not just necessities — because you want to feel and look attractive.

Since showers rather than tub baths are recommended during the last months of pregnancy, make them luxurious with bath props. For additional safety, assemble soap, bath sponge, body brush and washcloth in a caddy suspended conveniently from the neck of the shower head.

Added security comes from a nonslip rubber mat in the bottom of the tub.

And with the additional pounds carried during pregnancy leg and foot fatigue are inevitable. Give them special care and you will find relaxing them makes you more comfortable.

A long-handled back brush doubles for a foot-sudser and massager so you won't have to bend. Sit on a stoll of comfortable height with your feet on a bath mat and thoroughly scrub your toes, soles, heels and ankles. Step into the shower to rinse.

While the myth that a woman must lose a tooth for every child she bears was exploded long ago, don't be casual about tooth care. Your dentist and your diet are special guardians in this area. And, for ease and efficiency, treat yourself to an electric toothbrush. The automatic action stimulates gums as it cleans.

So, instead of giving in to your indolent feeling, step up daily grooming to look your glowing best.

Ruth Millett

Too much mama for him

Judging from the letters I receive, many modern wives believe they have a "perfect right" to go off alone for a month or so to visit their parents. But what's the other side of the story?

Writes a fed-up husband: "Every year it's the same. My wife announces that she is going back to visit her parents and she always stays at least a month. She's away right now, and I'm getting mighty tired of coming home night after night to an empty house, eating all my meals at restaurants, trying to fill up lonesome evenings by going to movies alone, etc.

"Am I being selfish in thinking that if I can't get away, my wife ought to stay at home, too?"

No, you're not being selfish. You're just being human. If the tables were turned and you went off for a month at a time, leaving your wife behind, don't think you wouldn't have an indignant woman on your hands.

So why don't you ask your wife to limit her family visits to a week or ten days? That will give her a chance to see her parents, and yet not leave you alone long enough so that you get to feeling the whole setup isn't fair to you.

If you have trouble making her see your point, then next time use strategy. Instead of writing her how lonesome you are and how much you miss her, let your letters give the impression that you are having a fine time and getting along very well, indeed.

If I know women, and I think I do, that will fetch her home quicker than a daily letter saying how much you miss her.

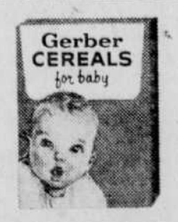

For every woman has a secret fear that her husband may really enjoy "batching it."

A writer's notes

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Nine million U.S. mothers, including one out of every three who have children under 18, now hold jobs outside the home. . . . The number of working mothers has doubled in the last 15 years.

Everything's up-to-date in Tokyo these days. . . . All doctors are putting two-way radios in their cars so they can speed to emergency calls. . . . And a new bar has opened that is decorated so as to resemble a jet liner. . . . Patrons wear flight belts to keep them from falling off the bar stools.

Quotable notables: "A beautiful young lady is an accident of nature. A beautiful old lady is a work of art."—Louis Nizer.

Folklore tip on how to get rid of owls: If you walk around and around him, he'll keep turning his head until he wrings his own neck.

Prosperity note: Tony Curtis says nowadays the reason they call it "cold cash" is because you can't keep it long enough to warm it up.

BECOME THIEVES

Most drug addicts become thieves. . . . It's estimated that the 25,000 to 40,000 addicts in New York City alone steal about $750,000,000 a year in money and merchandise to keep their habit going.

Odd hobby: Lester B. Dill, operator of Meramec Caverns in Missouri, believes in going on a caveman's holiday. . . . He claims to have visited 24,000 caves throughout the world.

Worth remembering: "If at first you don't succeed, don't succumb." — Arnold H. Glasow.

A dog's life: If your pet pooch is planning a career in the movies, we have some bad news for him—he has only one chance in 6,000,000 of becoming a film star.

Russia is forging ahead as a sea power. . . . During 1961 and 1962 the Soviet merchant fleet increased by nearly 1,000,000 tons.

It was Kin Hubbard who observed, "Money never made a fool of anybody; it only shows 'em up."

In Mexican buses

Man-beast intimacy disappearing

QUERETARO, Mexico (CP) The growing sophistication of Mexican society is shattering the traditional intimacy of man and beast on the second-class bus.

The days when live fowl and pig shared a seat with their owner are disappearing as education and rising living standards make their mark in rural areas of this Latin American country of 40,000,000.

Increasing awareness of the concepts of cleanliness and health protection and appreciation of the niceties of life are developing a new code for travel by public transportation.

Livestock is no longer allowed inside most new buses. Peasants are being gradually schooled to tie their animals in a sack to be placed in the luggage compartment beneath the bus. Those who try to evade the new practice rarely slip by the sharp eye of the driver who carefully watches all oncoming sacks and baskets for a tell-tale wiggle or cluck.

LESS CONTRAST

Another change is that the boundary between travel on first- and second-class buses on main routes is becoming blurred.

In the past the second-class bus was almost solely the poor man's mode of travel, the next step up from the burro. These buses, invariably battered machines of ancient vintage, were distinctive by their unmuffled motors, mountains of baggage piled on the roof, uncomfortable wooden seats, farmyard smells and their frequent starts and stops.

The first-class bus was—and still is—mainly patronized by the upper classes, the urban middle class and tourists. These buses traditionally have been faster, make fewer stops, have soft seats and charge about 25 per cent more than the second class.

However, in the last few years many second-class bus companies have bought new Mexican-made buses, comparable to those used on long-distance runs in Canada. Introduction of reserved, reclining seats, picture windows, music, faster schedules and no change in fares—less than one cent a mile—now enables them to compete in many instances with first-class services.

NEW STATIONS

Nowadays, as a result of these improvements, former users of first-class buses often ride the cheaper, second-class buses, especially when the schedules better suit their convenience. The obsolete second-class buses are being relegated to shorter, local routes where man and beast still may travel together to and from market.

In cities such as Queretaro, a state capial of 85,000 about 135 miles northwest of Mexico City, central bus stations have been built. Instead of operating from individual offices scattered over the city, the buses of some dozen companies now share the facilities of a modernistic terminal of glass and reinforced concrete.

The upgrading of bus travel also coincides with an expansive nation-wide road-building program. Besides construction of impressive superhighways, each year hundreds of miles of new road are being built to replace burro trails and give access to hitherto isolated communities.

Driest continent tries to convert seawater to everyday household use

MELBOURNE (CP)—As one of the world's driest and thirstiest continents, Australia is trying to convert sea water to household use.

Scientists working with the Australian Water Research Foundation have already cut the cost of removing salt from sea water by 50 per cent in the last five years.

They still want a major breakthrough, but are confident that within another five to 10 years desalinated sea water could be a paying proposition for ranchers in open pasture country where the ground water is brackish.

In this case the ranchers, running sheep and cattle, would use desalinated water from artesian bores. Scientists forecast that in the big coastal cities desalinated water would go into domestic taps with the help of perhaps nuclear power.

COMING SOON

This has already been predicted by the foundation's honorary director of research, Prof. C. H. Munro, professor of civil engineering at the University of New South Wales.

"Some authorities believe that nuclear - powered electricity generating stations with desalination as a by-product on a large scale are just around the corner," Prof. Munroe said.

But at present, he said during a foundation meeting in Adelaide, the capital of South Australia, the only application he could see for desalination was in "luxury conditions."

"I regard a breakthrough in desalination infinitely more important than putting a rocket on the moon," he said.

The foundation picked South Australia for its first board of trustees meeting for 1964 as Australia's driest state in a country where the average annual rainfall is only 16.5 inches, compared with a world average of 26 inches.

Australia's run-off to store is even less—an average of 1 1-3 inches, compared with a world run-off average of 9¾ inches.

DEMAND RISING

Foundation scientists say that with the present rate of world population increase, the use of water is doubling every 25 years.

To meet the increasing urgency to find more water, the foundation is stepping up its research, backed by bigger fund-raising drives.

The foundation wants at least another $1,000,000 for 75 new research topics, such as improving the design of small earth dams, controlling the growth of slime in big closed water conduits and the effects of planting softwood forests on water yields.

Busy session is held by U.C.W. at Abbotsford

ABBOTSFORD — On March 3, Mrs. H. Marshall held the regular U.C.W. meeting, which was in charge of first vice-president, Mrs. A. Thomson, with Mrs. H. Marshall at the piano for the devotionals.

Two notes of thanks were read from ladies who had been rememberd by the group.

Miss Marshall reported that the making of the quilt is progressing and that used clothing is again in great need.

Mrs. H. Marshall gave an interesting account of the Presbyterial which she attended in February.

More library books are to purchased.

Mrs. W. Watson gave a satisfactory financial report and it was decided to send in a good donation to the Presbyterial treasurer.

A study on NEPAL was made with several ladies taking part.

Several remnants were on display and some sales made. Tea was served later by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Bowley.

The World Day of Prayer which was held in the United Church was well attended with the ladies of both Anglican and United Churches taking part.

WORKERS' CLASSES

The Norwegian Workers' Educational Association enrolled 52,800 students in 1963, about double the number of seven years earlier.

Volcano crater drive-in spot

CASTRIES, St. Lucia (Reuters)—The local hotel brochures call it "the drive-in volcano."

The visitor can in fact drive his car within 50 yards of the bubbling sulphur of St. Lucia's volcanic crater.

Sunk in a large dimple beneath rounded hills of this island in the windward group near Barbados, the crater is not as dramatic as those of Vesuvius or Etna.

But in case visitors need reminding of the volcano's earlier achievements, only a mile away there are two dramatic fangs of rock called the Gros Piton and the Petit Piton.

The inner fires which once flung up these sights now are banked down.

Village children fearlessly run barefoot over the crater's crusty surface, hot from a heat not of the sun's making.

BAKED FREE

They stick eggs and yams in the fissures to have them baked "for free."

The lowest "springs" seethe quietly, with slow movements of the grey slime.

Higher up, the action is more drastic.

In 30-foot-wide pits, a jet-black liquid boils and spits as though in some witch's cauldron.

St. Lucia's lush vegetation has scarcely been beaten back by the fumes and the heat. Banana trees and tropical shrubs crowd right down to the crater.

A few families have their homes almost within a stone's throw of the hissing jets of steam. A little boy from one of these houses was asked if he was not afraid of a real eruption.

"Sometimes she spits rocks," he said. "But we don't care. The smoke is good for colds."

And then he cadged 10 cents for an egg to grill in the crater.

Girl Scouts have four divisions namely, Brownies, juniors, cadettes and seniors. The seniors, who are in the grade 10-12 age range, meet once a month. They learn services which help them in their career and to become junior leaders.

Mrs. Aldrich also spoke briefly on happiness, saying that it is something we create by effort and practice, the true secret of which is thinking and doing for others.
