Next week's weather By ERIC NEAL

MAY 1 TO 8

True spring is here with blue skies and warm sunshine. In any month we can count upon pleasant conditions from three days before to three days after the Full Moon.

Clearing after weekend showers, blue skies and warm sunshine will prevail through the middle of the week.

Temperature range: South and Laurentians, 30-70 or 75°F.

Continuing fair along the St. Lawrence Valley, northern regions will have more freezing rains mixed with snow, as will Vermont and some border counties.

A heat wave during the weekend would be normal.

Local residents don't get a 'bang' out of firecrackers

Kids always get a bang out of firecrackers.

Usually it's a bang on the back of the head from an elder.

But, sometimes it's a bang in the face from the cracker.

Firecrackers are dangerous no matter what anyone says. Just think — what is a firecracker?

It's gun powder, paper and a fuse. In other words, it's a bomb, and in some cases it acts the same way a bullet does.

Letting your child play with firecrackers is like letting him play with a loaded gun. Does this statement seem 'extreme'? Well, doctors say the same word about the condition of some of the kids that arrive at the hospital victims of a firecracker. They say, "It's extremely alarming, how a little firecracker could do so much damage."

Firecrackers are against the law in Westmount, as they should be in any well-run community. Firecrackers are not against the law in Montreal.

When we say against the law, we mean stores are not allowed to sell them in Westmount, residents are not allowed to set them off in Westmount and there is a stiff fine for doing either.

But this won't stop your child from getting his hands on them.

Take St. Leo's School — the kids there have firecrackers, just ask the residents on Western avenue who have a lane running at the back of their homes. A lane well used by the school children. Just ask the kids themselves, as we did.

"Sure I got some, you want one, mister?"

"No sonny, I don't want one. But tell me, where do you buy them?"

"Oh, we get 'em on Atwater, you're not allowed to sell them in Westmount, you know."

"Look, tell me how you light the crackers?"

"That's easy, I use wooden matches."

"Aren't you a little young to be playing with firecrackers and matches?"

"Heck no, there's nothin' to it, you light the match, then the cracker and throw both of them."

There have been several complaints made to police by these Western avenue residents, but as yet, little seems to have been done.

How do you stop a child from setting off firecrackers?

Well, he has to buy them to get them, in most cases, so when you give your child some money to buy something, be sure you see the product, and if it's a little red thing with a piece of white fuse on the end of it, grab it from him. Oh, yes, before you grab it, make sure there is no smoke coming from it.

It's census time again; but it's only once

Westmounters will have only one census this year rather than the usual four.

This was announced by the city recently when city clerk, Ronald Seaman said, "In previous years, the city has taken a census, the Protestant and Catholic school boards each took one and the Civil Protection also took one. This year, the city will take 'one' and it will be for the general use of all four."

The census is scheduled to get underway in early May and will take some three weeks to complete.

PLEASE CHECK

The city has urged residents to make sure that when a census taker comes to your door, that he is in fact what he claims to be.

"Every census taker," said Seaman, "will have a badge and a card signed by Director Harper. These should be asked for by the resident before answering any questions."

If at all possible, it would be very helpful to the city, if there could be someone in the home during the day who could answer the questions. This would have the time and trouble it takes to return to a house, two or three times.

Bishop Maguire at St. Stephen's

Bishop Maguire will officiate at the confirmation services at St. Stephen's Church on May 8th, at 10 a.m.

Several of the boys to be confirmed are from Weredale House. There will be refreshments served afterwards and the general public is invited.

Centennial House dropped

WMA wants library extension as city's Centennial project

In January, the executive committee of the Westmount Municipal Association gave the city, for its consideration, a motion recommending alternate Centennial projects.

A citizen of Westmount, Mrs. J. D. Wright, was presented with a cheque for $100 from The Examiner for her selection for a Centennial project which was the first of two recommendations made by the WMA.

Since that time, both the city and the Centennial committee of the WMA have continued studying various possible Centennial projects.

At a meeting of the WMA executive committee in March, it was agreed that a second recommendation to the city was the most practical and deserved the most consideration.

This was that an extension to the library be built in which it would be possible to house exhibits relating to the history of the city and to provide space to show both permanent and temporary exhibits on science and the arts.

It is understood that the city is proceeding with studies as to how such an extension to the library could be built. Mrs. Wright's project idea of buying an old house and turning it into a local museum was turned down by the city because, "There are no houses available that would suit the purpose and the expense would be very high."

At the present time, the long-awaited sprinkler system at the library is being installed.

Official word from the city on the Centennial project is expected shortly.

Furthermore, a Fellow must have graduated from an approved medical school and limited his practice to obstetrics and gynecology for at least five years prior to applying for membership in the College.

Record entry scheduled for annual dog show

If you want to own a pure-bred dog, but don't know what kind then a large Dog Show is the place to look them over.

Emphasizing the benefit for the general public as well as breeders and pet owners, Mrs. Sylvia Dempster, President of the United Kennel Club said yesterday the club's coming show will be the largest it has ever staged.

The Golden Anniversary Championship show, only one of its kind held in Montreal each year, will take place on Saturday, April 30th and Sunday, May 1st at the Town of Mount Royal Arena 1050 Dumfries Avenue.

75 BREEDS

The public will get the chance to see more than 450 dogs each day and at least 75 different breeds will be presented. Entries have been received from Quebec, Ontario, the Maritimes, as well as all parts of the United States. Included are the well known crowd pleasers — German Shepherds, Poodles, Shetland Sheepdogs, Schnauzers, and the Labradors along with such rare breeds as Old English Sheepdogs, Borzoi, Rhodesian Ridgebacks, Salukis, Dandie Dinmonts and Kuvasz.

"For dog fanciers who have always wanted to own a fine pure — bred dog but rarely get the chance to compare the many different breeds available, this is a wonderful chance to go window shopping," Mrs. Dempster stated. She has been active as an exhibitor and breeder of poodles in the Montreal area for many years.

JUDGING

Judging of the show will start at 10.00 a.m. each day and continue until a Best In Show is selected at approx. 8.00 p.m. each night. A special feature this year will be the judging of all Groups on Saturday night instead of during the day as on Sunday.

This is a benched show which means that all dogs will be on display throughout the day. Breeders, handlers and owners will be on hand at all times so the public will be able to get a great deal of information on the various breeds officials of the Kennel club stated.

In addition to breed judging, there will be obedience trials, a puppy sweepstakes, and a parade of champions so spectators can see top specimens of each breed.

We Say

Mr. Wagner commits error of judgment

OUR dynamic provincial justice minister, Hon. Claude Wagner, deserves better.

Particularly when he and his colleagues are seeking re-election.

The snafu which he made, all by himself, of his relations with the Provincial Police likely will have little effect on polling. The Government have too much going in their favor for their safe return to office June 5.

Indeed, probably all Mr. Wagner has done is to prove that even he is capable of a whopping error of judgment.

There well may have been good reason, on disciplinary grounds, for firing Cst. Arthur Vachon.

But the method, the timing, and the unprecedented public endorsement of it by the justice minister himself has run contrary to all common sense.

It's as if Mr. Wagner had caught the same "goofitis" virus which infected CBC President Ouimet and caused him to fire Messrs. Watson and LaPierre — the latter popular public TV figures; Vachon a hero and now a martyr to the rank and file of the Provincial Police.

There is nothing subtle about a firing. Indeed, it is an admission of failure of and by management. Done out-of-hand, the technique itself is wrong.

A truly undesirable in an organization tends to create ideal conditions for his own firing. The trick is to isolate the bad apple from his influence and his following, then simply let him go.

There is evidence, even from his admirers and supporters that Mr. Wagner has been isolating himself from reality.

His constituents in Verdun complain they rarely if ever see him as their MPP. He's out of touch in his Quebec ivory tower, even probably as is Mr. Ouimet in Ottawa.

It's a tough way to learn — by your mistakes, especially whoppers.

You Say

Newspapers report more bad than good

Sir: — May I express my full support for Brian Powell's comments in last week's 'Examiner'.

I think his comments on today's youth should receive special attention, as much of what he said is very true, unfortunately.

The only justification one can find for those who "pour contempt on teenage standards and claim that our people are steadily going downhill," is that they are constantly reading in the newspapers of

Biography of Streets Chesterfield avenue

This street is marked in Good's Atlas, 1890. Its name appears in the minutes of the Westmount Council in 1892, at which time it was evidently a short, unpaved street, above and parallel to Sherbrooke street, running a short distance east of Prince Albert avenue, but not continuing on to Victoria avenue, as it does now.

The petition then, 1892, presented to the Council for its extension, was turned down and not to be granted, in spite of various appeals, until 1898, and only then when Messrs. Thomas Fraser and Narcisse Nolin had offered to pay between them $500 of the $2,500 asked by Ludger Hamelin (the proprietor) for the land necessary for this extension.

A plan dated 1897, shows the land the city had to purchase in order to extend this street through to Victoria avenue.

IMPROVEMENTS

As year followed year, improvements were made. Drains were added, water mains constructed and street lights installed. Wooden sidewalks were replaced by asphalt ones and this street too became an up-to-date modern one.

Why the name Chesterfield was given it we do not know. Was there, perhaps, in the council at the time of name giving, an Englishman from Sheffield or its neighborhood? If so, he might readily suggested for a street in the new world, the name of a town of historic interest in the old world, for Chesterfield, as its name implies, goes back in origin to Roman days, chester being the anglicized form of the Latin castra, a camp — and the market town of Chesterfield, a few miles south of Sheffield, was originally a Roman camp — or the exploits of a small, hooligan minority, who erase any good standards the others set.

Let us hope that the new media will, in the future, emphasize the good rather than the bad done by today's teens, and that none of them will fall into the pitfalls of mediocrity so common to our life today.

station — between Derby and York.

SMALL BUT OLD

Through small, this town has had, all through the centuries, a touch with the events noted in British history. While retaining some of its antique buildings, such as its large and elegant 13th century 'Church of All Saints,' and the grammar school founded by Queen Elizabeth on one of her 'Royal Progresses' through England, the town has developed along modern lines — has engaged in manufactures of various sorts; has worked the nearby mines and has even made Wittington Common somewhat of a Midland racing centre.

EARL OF CHESTERFIELD

Or, perhaps, the street was named in honor of Philip Dormer Stanhope (1694-1775) son of the third Earl of Chesterfield (and later to be the fourth Earl himself), for this Philip Stanhope was not only a prominent statesman in the reigns of George I and George II, but an eminent speaker and writer and, because of his wit and courtly manners (superficial though these were) a distinguished figure in the social life of his time.

His mother having died while he was still but a child, he was brought up by his grandmother, the Marchioness of Halifax, a cultured woman whose home was a centre for the outstanding leaders in the political life of the times, — at least for those who were of the Whig persuasion.

Brought up amidst such surroundings, it is not surprising that the lad should early have planned for himself a public career or that — being especially interested in oratory — he should have made a serious study of the speeches of the great Greek orators.

PRIVATE EDUCATION

His education, for the most part, he received at home by private tuition, but later he spent two years at Cambridge and the college days were followed by that 'Continental Tour' considered so essential at the time for a young man of his class.

But he went alone rather than under the supervision and guidance of a tutor, as was the usual procedure. This perhaps accounted in some measure for the rather too free life he lead on the continent.

After the ascension to the throne of George I, in 1715, young Lord Stanhope returned to England and the next year became a member of Parliament. Promptly, and with great assurance he made his 'maiden' speech. A good one it was but, alas, no sooner had he sat down amidst plaudits than a member arose to announce that as a minor he had no right to address the House and that he was now amenable to a heavy fine for having done so. Stanhope rose, made a courtly bow and speedily left the House — and England too, and fled to the continent. On reaching his majority, he immediately returned to England and the House, there taking frequent part in the debate.

On the death of his father in 1726, he became the 4th Earl of Chesterfield, and so entered the House of Lords, where he was later on to play a very important part.

When George II came to the throne in 1739, Chesterfield was sent to the Hague as British ambassador. It was during this period abroad that he formed an intimacy with a French lady who became the mother of his son — the son of whom the famous 'Letters' were written. The connection with the child's mother did not long continue and shortly after it ended, he married a daughter of the Duchess of Kendal — but had no children by her.

ELEVEN DAYS

His next post was that of Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. In that difficult position it is universally agreed, he did fine work. Indeed, his admiration of Ireland, is considered the highwater mark of his career and it was unfortunate for him — and for Ireland — that he was recalled to become Secretary of State — a post in which he was neither happy nor successful; hence, after two years of service, he handed over the Seals of Office and retired from political life. He continued for a while to speak on occasions in the House of Lords or elsewhere on matters of public interest.

A burning question was that of

A Westmouter in Great Britain

The English country side unavailable to builders

SURREY, ENG.: An old friend of Westmount High tells me "this is a lovely part of his favorite county, every nook of which he explored during the war."

It is so. The huntsman trills his horn right here and deer grace the woods only 45 miles from Piccadilly Circus; and the reason for this is a law which probably does not exist in Quebec.

If an Englishman owns, say, 200 or 300 acres, as some do, and is a millionaire to boot, as some are, he cannot build a house on his own property.

Buy a barn

He can buy land containing a house, demolish the house and build another on the same site. Or he can buy an acre containing only a barn, as many do, and pull down the barn and erect a house on the exact area — no more — previously occupied by the barn.

Two of my friends have thus made charming homes, using the original oak beams of the barn as crossbeams in the living-room. One has also embedded the arches of the barn flush with the inside of the house walls, enhancing their appearance.

The point is that more houses

By Stephen Schofield

are not allowed in the Green Belt 40-50 miles from London. Hence it is that at least three times while shaving in the morning I have seen wild — not tame — deer emerge from the woods behind our bungalow.

Animal life

Across the road is a 400-acre stud farm of about 25 race horses which are a delight to watch cantering freely in big double-fenced fields. Sheep and cows graze nearby. Duck and pheasant haunt the air and rabbits run and foxes flit through the bush.

Suddenly during lunch, one day last week, the high note of a horn sounded shrilly in the stillness. Through our dining-room window I saw a huntsman appear from the woods, resplendent in red coat and velvet cap, whip in hand, and shouting, possibly "tally-ho." I could not hear the words. I could see his pink cheeks, a healthy glow, almost matching his jacket.

Others followed, some in silk topers and all in meticulous habit, gleaming boots and spurs and riding with effortless grace. The last man swooped from the saddle and carefully shut the gate — my gate — and hurried on.

All winter these people hunt two to four times a week. What sort of work they do the rest of the time, I have no idea. That they really adore their spirited steeds and thrill to the chase like children after a ball, is readily manifest.

Minutes away

The main point is that this is only 55 minutes by train from the very heart of London; and that this pretty rolling countryside, the velvety village greens, the old Norman churches and inns, The Crown at Chiddingfold and The White Hart at Witley, where hundreds of Canadian soldiers camped during the war, remain unchanged and unspoiled throughout the years.

To my Westmount friend I am sure it would feel, as it does to me, returning, like pulling on an old sock, as easy as ever.

Health Queen, Judy Woods, gives a concrete reminder from Westmount Square that the Combined Health Appeal and Red Cross needs your help in attaining its objective of $2,087,111.

Judy takes a hand in pouring the first of more than a million cubic feet of concrete at the site of the $25,000,000 residential and commercial complex, scheduled for completion in 1967.

Zoning

For the protection of the citizens, By-Law No. 655 with its amendments defines various zones and districts in the City and states the restrictions with respect to buildings and their use and occupancy that apply in each zone or district. Any proprietor contemplating changes in any building or erection of a new building is advised to consult the appropriate officials at the City Hall prior to applying for a permit.

This time it is the Awards Dance. Trophies will be presented to outstanding athletes in various sports. Music will be plentiful and pleasant, as usual. Recorded sound will be presented by our ever-faithful Eaton's Bandstand, Duncan Wray at the helm. The band, proudly presented in living sound, will remain a surprise. During the evening there will also be folk-singing, so warm up your warbling vocal cords. As for admission fees: for St. Paul's and St. Leo's, boys will pay $1 and girls are free. Outside the school, the prices are $1 stag and $1.25 drag. Refreshments will also be provided. Food and one drink are included in your ticket. Dress is semi-formal. It starts at 8 p.m. and goes till 12:30, at St. Leo's new hall. Don't miss it; it should be fantastic!

Last Wednesday, April 20, there was a lecture at St. Leo's hall for the 3rd and 4th high of St. Paul's and St. Leo's. It lasted from 2:30 to 5 p.m. This was the first in a series of three such lectures on social advancement. Our speaker was Mr. Murray Ballantine, historian and author, who is greatly interested in today's young people. He was introduced by Dr. Power, a representative and member of the School Commission, which is sponsoring these talks. Chairwoman was Miss Lemay. After Mr. Ballantine had spoken, workshops were organized to discuss prepared questions. Reports were then made. After a question period, the meeting was ended.

ELECTED: Mr. John E. Birks, Director of Cockfield Brown and Co. Ltd. and a resident at 60 St. Sulpice Road; and Mr. C. M. Russell of Westmount Ave., were two of the three new members elected to the Board of Management of Douglas Hospital by the Governors at the Annual Meeting held recently. Third member to be elected was Mr. Robert B. Douglas, great grandson of Dr. James Douglas, a pioneer in psychiatry in the Province. His family contributed generously to the Hospital through the Years. Mr. S. H. Dobell was re-elected as President, and Chairman of the Board of Management.

changing the calendar to bring it into line with the one used in Scotland and the greater part of Western Europe. England had always stubbornly refused to make the change, although business was being hampered by the lack of uniformity between countries. Whenever the subject was mooted, crowds would immediately gather, shouting, "We won't give up our eleven days." (The number of days to cut from the calendar.) It was largely owing to Chesterfield's persuasive eloquence in debate that opposition was at last overcome and that in 1751, the 'Calendar (New Style) Act' was passed.

DEAF-BLIND

But Chesterfield was growing very deaf (and soon to be blind too) and his disappointments were many. In 1754 came Johnson's famous letter that was to make Chesterfield appear infamous in the eyes of many. During all the years of poverty and struggle, Johnson had been ignored by Chesterfield, "the man of letters," who might so easily have aided him. So, when, single and unaided, Johnson had brought out his great Dictionary and had thereby immediately sprung into fame, he naturally bitterly resented the noble Lord's kind permission to dedicate the book to him. He wrote:

"My Lord, the notice which you have been pleased to take of my labours, had it been early, had been kind; but it has been delayed until I am indifferent and cannot enjoy it; till I am solitary and cannot import it; till I am known and do not want it."

This stinging rebuke is apt to be the first thing to come to mind when Chesterfield's name come up. Then, too, his natural son — and he had no other — was a great disappointment — not at all the fine gentleman his father had so wished him to be but quite commonplace and unable (even had he so desired) to profit by all the letters written to teach him the art of social success. This child of so many hopes died in 1768, and Chesterfield himself five years later.

Lacol Baha'i community at inter-faith conference

Representatives of the Westmount Baha'i Community who attended the Canadian Inter-Faith Conference in Ottawa, April 26-27, will have special cause for satisfaction in the centennial plans made by the year-old organization formed last year by twenty-one Canadian religious bodies.

In Canada, as everywhere else around the world, Baha'is have enthusiastically preached their belief that all religions are one in origin and purpose. Their own century-old faith is unique in that it accepts the truth of the missions of all the founders of the major faiths, Abraham, Jesus, Buddha, Mohammed, Zoroaster and the original teachers of ancient Hinduism. Despite intermittent persecution in totalitarian and Muslim countries, they have now established their elective administrative institutions in over 260 countries and territories of the globe.

During most of the fifty years that the Baha'i Faith has been established in Canada, Baha'is have promoted their universal teachings through a variety of "ecumenical" activities. These have usually featured inter-faith services (with Muslims, Hindus and Buddhists as well as the usual Catholics, Protestants and Jews); comparative religion study courses; library exhibits of the world's scriptures; and "fireside" discussions in private homes. Now, they see all of these activities receiving the blessing of an organization formed by twenty-nine Canadian faiths at the invitation of the Federal Government.

GRADUAL EVOLUTION

"It's a question of a gradual evolution in man's religious consciousness" said Douglas Martin, executive secretary of the board of directors of the Canadian Baha'i Community. "We're very happy at this development, but there's no question of any 'I told you so' attitude on the part of Baha'is. People from all faiths have been moving consciously or otherwise in this direction for several decades". Mr. Martin feels that the work of Pope John XXIII, particularly, gave the process considerable impetus.

Baha'is do however, see the Ottawa conference of all faiths as an opportunity to promote a second facet of their program to encourage greater "world-thinking" by Canadians. Their representatives will emphasize the opportunities for spiritual leadership which the centennial provides for Canada's religious groups. "Instead of concentrating on a narrow nationalist type of celebration, the Centennial is a chance to inform Canadians about Canada's outstanding record in international co-operation" said Mr. Martin. Baha'is see it as an opportunity to arouse genuine public support for such undertakings as an international police force, aid to emerging nations and service projects like the Company of Young Canadians.

It is particularly heinous that the taxpayer to all intents and purposes is unrepresented in the series of federal-provincial conferences being held to cut up the tax pie. — Stanstead (Que.) Journal.

Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not." Related passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include: "What we most need is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love, and good deeds. . . . To hold yourself superior to sin, because God made you superior to it and governs man, is true wisdom."

TWO MINUTES

WITH THE BIBLE

BY CORNELIUS R. STAM, PRES.
BEREAN BIBLE SOCIETY
CHICAGO 35, ILLINOIS

Have you ever thought how much God has done for us in Christ? In Rom. 8:32 we read that to save us from sin, God "spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all." In Titus 2:14 we are told that Christ "gave Himself for us, that He might redeem us from all iniquity . . ." In Rom. 5:8 the apostle declares that "while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." Gal. 3:13 says that Christ was "made a curse for us."

Heb. 9:12 states that "He entered . . . into the holy place (the presence of the Father) having obtained eternal redemption for us." And if we trust Him for this "eternal redemption" we may read further in Heb. 9:24 that "Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands . . . but into heaven itself, not to appear in the presence of God for us." Rom. 8:34 asks who can condemn the believer in Christ, since He is now "at the right hand of God" and "maketh intercession for us."

Heb. 6:20 declares that our Lord entered the Father's presence "for us" as our Forerunner." Heb. 10:19, 20 therefore encourages believers to come to God in prayer: "Having therefore brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus . . . a new and living way, which He hath consecrated for us . . ."

Just think how much God has done for us in Christ! He delivered His beloved Son to death for us, Christ gave Himself for us, died for us, became a curse for us, intercedes for us, entered heaven for us as our Forerunner, and consecrated "a new and living way" into God's presence for us, so that we may "come boldly unto the throne of grace" to "obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need" (Heb. 4:16). "If God be for us, who can be against us?" (Rom. 8:31).

Religious radio

"Why Blame God?" is the title of a discussion of the sorrows and tragedies of human life which will be heard on the next Christian Science radio program in the regular weekly series entitled "The Bible Speaks to You" which is heard on Station CKVL (dial 850) every Sunday morning at 9:45.

Mr. John H. Dinsmore, Eng., 646 Belmont, has been elected President of the Corporation of Engineers of Quebec. A 1952 graduate of McGill University, Mr. Dinsmore is President of E. W. Playford Company Limited.

Brontfman to be honoured on 75th birthday

The 1966 "Man of the Year" Israel Bond Dinner in honor of His Worship, Mayor Samuel Moskovitch, Q.C., Mayor of the City of Cote Saint-Luc, will take place in the Grand Salon of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel on May 1st.

A presentation will be made to Samuel Brontfman, President of the Israel Bond Organization of Canada, in honor of his 75th birthday.

Rabbi Jay Kaufman, Executive Vice-President of the World Order of B'nai B'rith, will be the guest speaker.

Obituary

Edgar Bury

A funeral service was held on Thursday morning, April 21, 1966, at St. Leon Church, Westmount, for Edgar Bury, 94, who passed away on Monday at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital after a short illness.

An employee for many years of the C.P.R., he retired in 1939.

Mr. Bury was a familiar figure to the many frequenters of Westmount Park, his favourite haunt during the latter stage of his life. He was also a long time member of the Westmount Bowling Green.

He was the fourth son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Bury, an old established Montreal family. After the death of his wife, the former Elizabeth Sermon, in 1952 he took up residence at the home of his surviving sister, Miss Evelyn Bury — of Metcalfe Avenue, Westmount, where he lived up till the time of his death.

Burial took place at the Cote des Neiges Cemetery.

Red Feather seeks $2,590,000

$2,590,000 will be sought in this year's Red Feather campaign, T.R. Meighen, Q.C., 16 Braeside Place, president and chairman of the board of directors, announced following a meeting of the board. This is $137,000 more than was raised last year and is the largest objective ever set for a Red Feather campaign.

"We have studied the situation carefully and I can assure you that $2,590,000 is the rock bottom amount necessary to cover the minimal needs of our agencies," Meighen said. "Our agencies' services are our first concern. Tragically, we are faced with a situation where some of these agencies are having to turn people away from their doors. In other cases it is just a question of time before essential services are cut."

Meighen said that "last year, and unfortunately again this year, we had to reduce service to the community because of campaign shortfalls as well as inadequate support from the province. Despite valiant volunteer efforts we were not able to raise the money needed to carry on. At the same time the phenomenal expansion of the city has created demands for help in new areas — demands which we have not been able to meet.

"All the social indices point to increasing needs in the future. Red Feather should be expanding to meet these needs. We should be gearing ourselves to cope with new and varied problems. We should be preparing to handle the greater number of people who come to us for help. But there is simply not enough money to go around.

CAN NOT PAY

"I know and sympathize with the frustrations of our agency people who carry the burden of these demands every day without the necessary means to do something about them. They cannot hire the professional staff needed to cope with these problems. They lose the qualified staff they have because they cannot pay them the salaries they should be getting. They cannot expand into new areas of need. They face the unhappy prospect of saying "sorry, we can't help you" to people who come to them. All this — because sufficient funds aren't available.

"Red Feather marks 44 years of service to the community this year. The record of our agencies' services in family welfare, child care, health and recreation is second to none in Canada. It would be a pity for the community as Montreal moves into high gear for Expo '67 and the greatest physical expansion in its history, if we should see a decline in support for its social welfare agencies. There are 36 of these agencies looking to the community for support in this year's Red Feather campaign, so that they may carry on their work with the needy in our community next year — the year of Expo."

Volunteer Bureau list 600 requests

As well as facing staff shortages which resulted in retarded recruitment of volunteers during 1965, the Montreal Volunteer Bureau, a Red Feather agency, received an increase of more than 600 requests for service over the previous year it was reported recently at the annual meeting.

"The work of this agency continues to grow and the trend would appear to be towards the welfare of a greater number of older persons, on the one hand and youth, on the other," said Mrs. A. K. Crowther, executive-director.

The year, she explained, was one of "ups and downs." Long periods of staff shortages due to illness decreased recruitment and affected placement.

"It often happens that we lose some of our best helpers because they are absorbed into paid staff."

The 819 volunteers recruited during the year, 502 fewer than in 1964, provided service totalling 66,481 hours. This marked a decrease over the previous year of 1,519 hours.

Volunteer service was, however, extended to welfare organizations who had not formerly depended on the MVB.

89 Agencies

Eighty-nine welfare agencies and hospitals were assisted, she said, and a total number of requests covering all areas during the year numbered 1,716, an increase of 602 over 1964.

Although statistically recruitment and placement showed a decline last year, Mrs. Crowther said that they pointed to a steady increase from 1958 when referrals provided 23,000 hours of service.

Mrs. H. S. Morton of Claremont Ave., Westmount was elected president for the coming year.

Whole city involved in urban renewal scheme

The main topic of conversation in Westmount these days, believe it or not, is not Expo '67, but . . . urban renewal.

The city is presently knee-deep in its $45,000 urban renewal study, being handled by planning expert Goldyn Sunderland. The study is due to be completed sometime this summer.

The area involved in the immediate plan is the 90.6 acres in the southern section of the city. The area is bounded on the north by St. Catherine street, on the west by the Glen, on the east by Atwater avenue and on the south by St. Antoine and Hollowell streets and the CPR right-of-way.

It is through this sector, south of the CPR tracks, that the projected east-west leg of the Trans-Canada Highway, will slice on its way across the island. Construction on the highway is today we are awaiting the outcome of this study. Following is a date by date account of every important step taken on behalf of urban renewal dating Sketch shows the southern sector of Westmount now under study by city authorities. In the area south of the CPR tracks between Hollowell and Atwater Aves., the proposed Trans-Canada Highway will cut through, forcing the eviction of hundreds of tenants. Providing alternate accomodation for persons in this sector is one of the priorities in the current urban renewal scheme.

expected to get underway from August 3, 1965 up to late next year or early 1968. April 6th, 1966.

The study is the result of the provincial government, last October, announcing its intentions to expropriate a large section of Selby street. Residents in the area held several meetings with the city and an extension to the previously announced expropriation date of next of the plan, and Mayor M. L. Tucker stress the fact that the study cannot be made of just that one area.

"You cannot possibly consider urban renewal for one section of a city without giving consideration to what the effect will be on the rest of the community".

Sunderland, the man seeking the answers to many involved questions concerning the city and the plan, said "We must not for one moment overlook the human side of this situation. We are not merely dealing with physical properties, but we are concerned with people, about families, about their futures."

Al Fisher, president of the newly chartered Westmount Tenants' Association said that a majority of the residents who will be forced to vacate their homes want to stay in Westmount.

"Some of these people have lived in the same houses for 55 years", he said, "but these people are proud and they want to pay for what they get, providing there is no hike in rents."

What is the fate of these people?

This can only be answered by the City of Westmount's urban renewal study.
