Kidnappers claim credit for reprisals

By JANET COTTON (Record Reporter)

SHERBROOKE — The kidnappers of Charles Marion have claimed responsibility for a series of violent acts in the Sherbrooke area they say are to force authorities to make the ransom payoff. In a five-page letter delivered to La Tribune last night, the kidnappers said they are responsible for Tuesday's bomb blast at Steinberg's - Carrefour de L'Estrie, a bomb scare at the Loto Canada drawing at the University of Sherbrooke on Sunday and the attempted shooting of two Caisse Populaire customers on Friday. Earlier last week, the abductors warned of reprisals if their request for new intermediaries was not met. They demanded that Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke Est manager, Claude Stebenne answer the request in a local television broadcast by noon last Friday, but the deadline passed without comment. In last night's letter, the kidnappers claim a 20-stick dynamite bomb was planted in the University's Salle Maurice O'Bready, where the Loto drawing was to take place.

They said the university security staff was alerted at 9:10 p.m., but chose to ignore the warning instead of evacuating the building as they were told. The hand-printed letter says the members of the kidnap group in the audience removed the bomb when they realized officials had no intention of evacuating the 1500 spectators.

The kidnappers said they exploded a two-stick dynamite bomb at Steinberg's on Tuesday because "certain of their employees and their customers do business with the dirt of Caisse Pop."

No one was injured in the blast, which occurred at 6 p.m., although more than 15 employees were in the store at the time.

The letter also claims the kidnappers fired shots into the homes of two Caisse Populaire clients on Friday, Oct. 7.

The letter warns of continued reprisals if the kidnappers' demands are not met. "It will happen to anyone at any time. We know the end of this story and they will pay until they feel destroyed, and it won't be long. We will not take the time to identify each reprisal, but know that each catastrophe incurred by bomb, arms or fire will be our work."

The kidnappers claim their 57-year-old victim, credit union employee is "nearly crazy," refuses to eat and has attempted suicide.

Mr. Marion, loans manager at the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke Est, was kidnapped from his cottage in Stoke on Aug. 6. Now into its 67th day, the Marion drama has become Canada's longest kidnap case.

Nobody was even hurt when a CN freight train sliced into the back of this Eastern Townships Regional School Board bus on a small level crossing near Kingsley yesterday. There were only two students on the bus at the time and the driver told police he stopped at the crossing, then slowly proceeded across the tracks when the train tore into the rear of the bus. Police said there were no signals on the crossing although it is heavily used by residents of the community about 30 miles northwest of here.

The driver had 39 years of accident-free busing, while it was the first major accident in the eight-year-old ETRSB pilot project aimed at proving a school board can operate its own buses more cheaply and safely than independent contractors. "Until today, we were way ahead in the project," an ETRSB official said last night. The bus is a total write-off.

Dollar tumbles lower as 50s record neared

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar continued its decline in value on New York money markets Wednesday, closing at 91.26 U.S. cents.

At one point during trading, the dollar dipped to 91.16 U.S. cents, its lowest point since the 90.9 recorded 27 years ago.

The dollar was pegged at 90.9 in September, 1950, after the pound sterling was devalued by 30 per cent and several other currencies re-adjusted their rates.

Rod Mersereau, executive director of the Canadian Textile Import Association, said the continuing fall amounts to a form of protectionism which makes the cost of imports 10 per cent higher and partially delays servicing foreign debts.

He noted that in a free-trade country, when a sharp depreciation of currency occurs, there is a kind of "trade-off" between competitive export goods and higher-priced imports.

Mersereau described domestic textiles as the most protected industry "in the history of Canada" and warned that the fall of the dollar, combined with high tariffs and a rigorous quota system, would raise the price of apparel by 100 per cent next year.

However, a Royal Bank official said that the drop could be beneficial to Canada in the short term, since consumers would spend less on imported goods.

In Ottawa, Finance Minister Jean Chretien reaffirmed that the government does not intend to intervene in markets to defend any particular rate for the Canadian currency.

Balloonists 'embarrassed'

TORONTO (CP) — Dewey Reinhard, one of two balloonists rescued Wednesday off the east coast of Canada after giving up an attempt to fly across the Atlantic says he is "very disappointed and somewhat embarrassed."

Reinhard, 47, and navigator Steve Stephenson, 44, both of Colorado, were fished from the sea by the Canadian Coast Guard ship Provo Wallis about 80 kilometres southeast of the Nova Scotia coast.

The balloon made a "controlled descent" shortly before 4 p.m. EDT after drifting north of the planned route. The 85-foot balloon took off from Bar Harbor, Me., on Monday on the first part of a 4,800-kilometre, five-day trip.

Arson ruled out in Frontenac fire

SHERBROOKE (JD) — Arson is no longer suspected as the cause of yesterday's early-morning fire at 169 Frontenac which killed two and left six others homeless.

Lucia Guerette, a 65-year-old seamstress and Celine Gervais, 20, both died when flames raced through the three-storey structure. Two others, 21-year-old Monique Boutin and 19-year-old Pierre Bois were treated for injuries after escaping the flames.

Miss Boutin leaped 40 feet from her second-storey apartment to the muddy bank of the Magog River behind the apartment building, while Bois escaped across the roof, where he met firemen.

Most of the damage was caused by the intense heat of the fire, which according to Sherbrooke Fire inspector Leopold Bourque broke out in the incinerator chute and travelled upwards.

More than 50 firefighters were eventually called to battle the blaze. At the height of the fire, men moved to the other side of the Dufferin Bridge to direct hoses at the back of the building and to get a stretcher down to Miss Boutin.

Youth, 16, arrested for triple slaying

ELVATON, Md. (AP) — Stuart Kreiner's little sister was a Brownie Scout with the three murdered neighbor girls. His mother helped cook for the grieving parents. Police, who had suspected the killer lived nearby, have charged the 16-year-old Kreiner with the stabbing deaths.

Kreiner was to be arraigned today in Harndale District Court on first-degree murder charges. Authorities said they proposed prosecution as an adult.

Kreiner, a junior at Martin Spaulding High School in nearby Severn, was arrested Wednesday for the murders of 10-year-old Deborah Anne Hogan, her sister Theresa, 8, and their playmate, Ann Marie Brzeszkiewicz, also 8.

The girls, who were to be buried together today, were found stabbed to death Monday morning in a shallow creek near their homes in this Baltimore suburb.

Authorities, who would not say whether they had a motive for the killings, said two of the girls had been stabbed through their parkas at least 40 times each.

Although police had said earlier that they suspected the killer was someone in the victims' Southgate neighborhood, news of young Kreiner's arrest shocked neighbors.

SURPRISED BY ARREST

"I knew they were looking for someone in the neighborhood, but I never dreamed it could be Stu," said C.G. Morningstar, who lives across the street from the Kreiner family.

"He's a good kid," said Morningstar. "He works hard and doesn't run around like some teen-agers. He used to cut our grass. I don't have a son, but if I had one, Stu's the kind I would pick out."

Robert Wilkes, a next-door neighbor of Ed and Leona Kreiner, said his family has known the Kreiners since 1965, when they lived near each other in Falls Church, Va. Until recently, the elder Kreiner was director of the Maryland Classified Employees Association, a state labor union.

"Our kids grew up together," said Wilkes. "Ed was always strict with his children. You'd never see them standing out on a corner after dark like other kids. Stuart just rode his bike up and down the street."

The Kreiners have two other children, a son in college and a nine-year-old daughter, Karen, who was in the same Brownie troop with the victims. Mrs. Kreiner had cooked meals for the stricken families on Monday.

Adults described Kreiner as quiet and polite. Some neighborhood children said Kreiner usually kept to himself and was sometimes taunted.

"He was different than other kids," said one of several boys who asked not to be identified. "There's always somebody on the street that kids like to pick on, and around here it was Stu. Kids used to yell at him when he rode past on his bike."

Bourassa spy agency helped police

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal police received an intelligence report on the left-wing Agence de Presse Libre du Quebec from a secret security agency organized by the former Liberal provincial government, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Police access to the document was revealed when it was presented as evidence by lawyers for a Quebec commission of inquiry into the illegal police break-in at the news agency in October, 1972.

A police witness confirmed that the report, delivered a month after the break-in, came from the Centre d'Analyse et de Documentation established by former Liberal premier Robert Bourassa shortly after the 1970 October Crisis.

The centre, which contained files on about 30,000 individuals and 6,000 groups, reported directly to the premier's office. Bourassa described it as a body designed to provide background information, make recommendations and analyze political developments.

The Parti Quebecois government, in a highly publicized move, destroyed the files on individuals last March but preserved files on groups and on 18,000 events, which were transferred to the Quebec justice department. The Bourassa government denied repeatedly in 1973 that the centre's 12 staff members were conducting political espionage but did not clearly specify its relationship with police intelligence operations.

NEWS CLIPPINGS? The information in the files was said to consist largely of newspaper clippings.

Inspector Jean Coutellier of Quebec provincial police—one of three officers who pleaded guilty this year to organizing the illegal news agency raid—denied published reports in 1973 that police surveillance reports were being funnelled to the centre.

Before destroying the files, the PQ government revealed that provincial police supplied information to the centre until April, 1975.

Police witnesses gave conflicting testimony Wednesday about former RCMP constable Robert Samson, who first revealed police responsibility connection with a bombing at the home of a Montreal businessman.

Marcotte said Samson offered to keep quiet about the break-in in return for special treatment, possibly a reduced sentence. But Marcotte could not identify the source of his information and his testimony was described as "hearsay."

Marcotte's testimony was directly challenged by another city policeman, Det. Sgt. Fernand Tanguay, who said "there was never any question" of a deal between Samson and police investigating the bombing.

Tanguay visited Samson with an RCMP officer, Raymond Langevin, at a hospital where Samson was being held by police while he recovered from wounds he sustained when the bomb exploded prematurely. But no deal was ever mentioned.

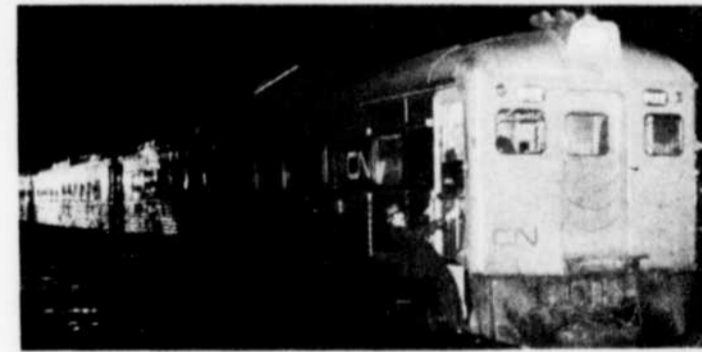

Later, Samson's lawyer, Claude Lanctot, rose to say he believed that Tanguay had committed perjury but declined to specify in public.

BUGGED BY POLICE

His remark came at the end of a hearing in which police witnesses and written evidence revealed that police had bugged Agence de Presse Libre offices before the raid and that they had suspicions the group was closely linked to cells of the Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Samson finally revealed his own and other police officers' participation in the break-in during a closed-door session of his trial on the bombing charge in March, 1976. He is now serving a seven-year prison term after being convicted of planting the bomb at the home of Melvyn Dobrin, president of Steinberg's Ltd.

Berube challenges pulp & paper company

Jean-Paul Carrier, vice-president of F.F. Soucy, told the provincial legislature Tuesday that his company intends to set up a factory in West Virginia as U.S. investors fear that the PQ government will attempt to nationalize the pulp and paper industry in Quebec.

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec newsprint costs $12 a ton less than newsprint made in Virginia, Lands and Forests Minister Yves Berube said Tuesday after a company spokesman told a legislature committee his firm may build a new mill in Virginia rather than Quebec.

Jean-Paul Carrier, vice-president of F. F. Soucy, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Bato Co. of New York, said Soucy is considering locating a factory in Virginia because U.S. investors fear nationalization of the Quebec pulp and paper industry.

Carrier also complained that the cost of wood and manpower in Quebec are too high, although he conceded that the cost of electricity in the United States would be twice that in Quebec.

Berube challenged the assertions, saying that Quebec's cheaper electricity offset higher material costs. The cheaper Canadian dollar, worth about seven per cent less than the U.S. dollar, offsets the higher wages Quebec workers earn, the minister added.

Berube also expressed surprise at Carrier's statement that U.S. publishers approached by Soucy to invest in a newsprint mill were afraid of nationalization. The ruling Parti Quebecois does not intend to nationalize the industry, he said.

Carrier admitted that the $12-a-ton premium on Quebec-made newsprint was "about right."

Previous company witnesses before the committee studying the pulp and paper industry have complained of higher costs in the Quebec industry, blaming wages and the cost of raw materials.

The Abitibi-Price group, the world's top producer of newsprint, said earlier Tuesday that a ton of U.S.-made newsprint cost $40 less than a ton of Quebec newsprint.

F. F. Soucy, which boasts the most modern production facilities in North America, is the only company on the continent which produces paper using 100 per cent thermo-mechanical pulp.

Its mill in Riviere du Loup, Que., has the capacity to make 185,000 tons of newsprint a year. Opened in 1976 at a cost of $60 million the mill emits no air pollutants and a reduced amount of water pollutants. Unlike older processes using chemicals to turn trees to pulp, the new technology uses more electricity. But because it is more efficient and less polluting, officials in the Quebec department of lands and forests see it as the wave of the future.

Requested assistance In its presentation to the committee, Abitibi-Price called on the Quebec government to assist the industry in making itself competitive.

T. J. Bell, chairman of Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. which holds a 54-per-cent interest in Price, said that the Canadian industry has had trouble competing since production of newsprint began in the southeastern United States 20 years ago.

Newsprint made in the southeastern states is cheaper, he said, and it was this technological breakthrough rather than the obsolescence of the Quebec industry that is the cause of industry woes.

Critics of the industry charge that newsprint makers failed to reinvest profits in Quebec and for this reason facilities are outmoded.

"We're not obsolete," Bell said.

"We're just not competitive. We want you to help us."

Gov't to seek trade surplus

TORONTO (CP) — Lukin Robinson of Toronto, an economist and consultant, has a hunch that big corporations play a more important role in Canada's balance of payments than is generally realized.

That is why he spent much of his own time and money preparing a brief on his theory for the Royal Commission on Corporate Concentration.

In the 26-page brief, he asks the commission to study the effect of corporate concentration on Canada's international trade.

"The significant and complex part which large corporations play in Canada's balance of payments is far too little known about it," he said.

"This part must be understood if appropriate measures are to be found which will correct Canada's present dangerously exposed international position."

Robinson, of Murray Jones and Associates Ltd., Toronto town planners, said he has not been advised if the commission has undertaken such a study although his first brief was submitted in August, 1976. A revised brief went out last March to the commission, which is expected to bring down a report early next year.

"I think there will have to be a change in government policy to compel multinationals to behave differently," Robinson said in an interview.

Robinson said he had no solid information to prove that multinationals have an adverse effect on the balance of payments.

"What I have is more or less a hunch."

His concern is that such a question has not been asked.

Robinson links both Canadian and foreign-owned companies operating in Canada as subjects for the review of their impact on balance of payments.

SURPLUS FADES

Canada requires a growing surplus on trade in order to avoid an over-all deficit on current international account. But Robinson notes in the brief that Canada's trade surplus has fallen since 1973.

The surplus became a trade deficit in 1975.

"Although fortunately a trade surplus was again achieved in 1976, the over-all deficit on current account was still over $4 billion."

LIABILITY OF ADVERTISING AGENCIES — To anyone who views advertising agencies as passive participants in the dissemination of marketplace information, it may seem unduly harsh to fix these agencies with responsibility for the accuracy of such information.

However, it is unrealistic to view advertising agencies as merely conveying information when an agency may have initiated the marketing concept or strategy, the implementation of which resulted in a contravention of the Combines Investigation Act, or where it is the creative resources of the agency which gave to a promotional effort its critical desirability.

It is the Department's opinion that an advertising agency does not "accept" a representation or advertisement, where the active involvement of the agency in initiating, conceiving, shaping or implementing a representation or advertisement is directly related to that portion of the representation or advertisement that is the subject-matter of an alleged offence. In this connection the conviction of an advertising agency under the misleading advertising provisions should be noted.

In this case the accused agency which had been retained by a client to create a television commercial, in turn hired a research firm to prepare a survey, the results of which became the basis of the representations made in the commercial.

The agency prepared the wording of the commercial and arranged for airing in Canada.

The Department is also of the opinion that even where an agency does no more than "accept" a representation or advertisement for printing, publishing etc., the agency must act in "good faith". When a representation appears suspect or contains a claim that requires substantiation the agency is responsible for ensuring that the information provided to it is accurate and can be substantiated.

The expertise of an agency in relation to the promotion of a particular product or industry of the "use of a promotional technique (e.g. contests) will be considered in determining whether, in the Department's opinion, an agency acted in "good faith".

For more information write or call the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada, 25 Wellington North, Room 500, Sherbrooke, Que. J1H 5B1. (565-4723).

Canada to cut back on raw material exportation

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian attempts to break out of the role of supplier of unprocessed raw materials in current international trade negotiations means long-protected industries such as textiles and clothing might soon face tougher foreign competition in the domestic market.

Any move away from the century-old protection afforded one of the country's oldest industries likely will be hard fought by the powerful industry lobbies that have looked out for their interests during that time.

But federal and provincial trade and finance ministers meeting last week agreed that freer trade is not only inevitable but in the country's best long-term interest.

The country's best hope in combatting the unemployment of 798,000 lies in creating jobs through further processing of primary products that now leave the country in their raw form.

And at the current round of negotiations of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) in Geneva, Canadian officials are arguing for lower foreign barriers to processed Canadian goods.

As a government tariffs committee report on the GATT negotiations commented: "Trade barriers maintained by the resource-importing countries are the major constraint to greater processing in Canada of Canadian resources."

But at the same time, negotiators trying to get better access for Canadian-processed goods would find it difficult to defend tariffs and quotas that now restrict foreign competition in the domestic textile and clothing market.

Both Darcy McKeough, Ontario's treasurer, and Jacques Parizeau, Quebec finance minister, whose provinces have the bulk of the textile and clothing industry, admitted last week that the days of protection for the industry are numbered.

But they both stressed the need for short-term protection to allow the industry time to adjust. This would give governments time to get involved heavily in the retraining and relocation of workers in the industry.

McKeough said that without extensive government assistance "organized political resistance to change will be overwhelming."

McKeough's proposal for a comprehensive "adjustment assistance program" for sectors of the economy less able to compete with foreign producers was part of a wide-ranging plan for a national industrial strategy to prepare for the move to freer trade presented at the meeting by the Ontario delegation.

FURNACE DEVICES. The Canadian Combustion Research Laboratory, an agency of the federal Department of Energy, Mines and Resources has tested the following furnace adjustment devices which have been found to produce fuel savings:

1. Chimney dampers
2. Retrofit retention heads
3. Down-sized nozzles

Since paragraph 36(1) (b) of the Combines Investigation Act provides that all advertising involving performance claims must be based on adequate and proper tests and that the onus is on the advertiser to prove that the tests are in fact adequate and proper, failure of a device to perform as advertised could give rise to an inquiry under the Act. Such a claim may also contravene a provincial statute as, for example, in Ontario where a device known as Thermojet was the subject of a cease and desist order issued by the Ontario Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations in March of this year. This device was advertised as saving up to 25 per cent on heating bills. An independent laboratory which tested the device, reported no measurable change in efficiency of a furnace or saving in fuel when the device was installed.

Monsanto cancer hazards

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — As many as six workers exposed to a chemical used in making synthetic rubber in the 1950s might have died from a rare form of cancer, it has been reported.

Another 150 of their colleagues have undergone twice-yearly tests since then.

The Charleston Gazette says that Barney Wander, a spokesman for the Monsanto chemical company, said about six employees heavily exposed to the substance at a plant near here died of bladder tumors. Use of the substance, para-amin biphenyl (PAB), was stopped immediately when the cancer threat surfaced in 1955, he said.

However, Wander later denied that he had specified six deaths. "I don't know the number of deaths myself; I have no way to judge that," Wander told The Associated Press in an interview.

Reporter attacks Big Macs

Mayor Jacques O'Bready serves up Big Macs

By JANET COTTON
(Record Reporter)

Two all-beef patties, special sauce... never again. For those hundred or so Big Macs Ronald McDonald let me serve yesterday, I thank him, my father thanks him... and most of all, my waistline thanks him.

As the representative of The Record, I worked alongside other members of the city's media, businessmen, and councillors at McDonald's Restaurant's McHappy Day. Proceeds from all Big Macs sold yesterday were donated to Canadian crippled children.

You had to be there. I hate to say it, but you really had to be there to appreciate the panic that ensued.

In the two short hours of my burger-slurping career, I managed to slide across the counter aisle (didn't knock anyone over), hand out cherry turnovers to all those customers who asked for apple (sorry about that) and smack three employees in the head with my elbow (what can I say?).

Sherbrooke mayor Jacques O'Bready, dressed in his normal three-piece attire, almost melted from the heat, but managed to hold the old tradition of "service with a smile".

His quick draw in the Mac packing department was admirable, and rumor has it he's been offered a permanent position.

Local businessman, Aime Gagnon's performance was a different tale. While I was busy pushing out the wrong turnovers, he was filling "Quarter Pounder with cheese" containers with no cheese at all.

Members of the Sherbrooke Beavers Hockey Club calmed their pace a little yesterday: the city's "madmen on ice" spent the afternoon wiping and clearing tables.

To the actual employees of McDonald's I reserve my highest admiration. I don't know how they do it. Every time I ran at top speed they ran faster. Some day I'll have to ask how they manage to pick up three Macs in one hand.

I went straight home to bed after my two-hour shift, while they stayed late into the night.

Not once, in all of yesterday's confusion and fumbling did they lose composure. Not even when I gave the wrong meal in the wrong bag to the wrong customer, did any employee complain.

To all those wonderful customers who so politely ate a meal they never asked for, I send my greatest thanks. I made a lot of mistakes without one reprisal. It must have been written all over my face: "Don't scream at me, because I just couldn't handle it."

To my editor, I express the humblest of apologies. Never again will I complain about getting up at 5 a.m., or working 12 hours a day. I didn't know just how good it was until I spent rush hour behind that marble counter.

Marchand paintings on display

The paintings of Sherbrooker Francois Marchand will be on display at the Auberge des Gouverneurs tomorrow through Sunday. Born in Sherbrooke some 25 years ago, he started his career coloring the inside of letters in the family's books. A self-made painter, he was amazed by paintings by Rembrandt, Da Vinci and started reproducing famed painters such as Adrien Van Ostage and Abraham Van Beyeren, both of the Dutch-Flemish school. He also made copies of Hubert Robert, Claude Monet and J.M.W. Turner. Mr. Marchand says his art schooling was spent reproducing the old masters, copying a certain quality of light on an orange, or the richness of a glass cup seen on a dark brown background. This work has led him to a very personal way of painting, with details that are hardly found at first glance.

Mr. Marchand mainly paints landscapes and still lifes, most in a romantic style.

MONTREAL (CP) — "When Heward Grafftey was born he spoke French at the age of three weeks— unfortunately he was in Westmount and nobody could understand him."

"The man is living proof that learning a second language is detrimental to one's mind."

So went the one-liners and affectionate gibes during a gala roast here Wednesday in honor of the diminutive English Quebecer who has delivered Brome-Missisquoi riding six times to the federal Progressive Conservatives over the last 20 years.

More than 200 of Grafftey's longtime friends and supporters turned up at the $50-a-plate dinner, billed as a roast for the Gnome from Brome. The roasters included national PC association president Michael Meighen, former president Egan Chambers, Montreal lawyer Philippe Gelin and several well-known journalists.

UNDERLINED STYLE But the fact that several prominent would-be headtable guests from both the PC and Liberal parties cancelled at the last minute only served to underline Grafftey's go-it-alone political style.

One of three Conservative MPs in Quebec, the fluently-bilingual Grafftey has traditionally shied away from establishment politics and has managed to win successive re-election in an 85-per-cent French-speaking riding on shoestring budgets.

"He's the phenomenon of electoral politics in Canada today," said national newspaper columnist and head table roaster Doug Fisher. "He's pulled off something that I can't really understand as yet."

However, when Grafftey, 49, had a chance to speak, he made it clear he felt he owed his electoral success to his constituency organizers, most of whom are French Quebecers.

"I'm proud of my team, they're heavy hitters," commented Grafftey as he introduced his organizers to the gathering of mainly well-to-do English-speaking Montrealers.

One of the organizers, Louis Cournoyer, from Cowansville, said in an interview that Grafftey was repeatedly elected because he was "likeable and never refused anybody who needed help."

But he said Grafftey first won acceptance in the riding by speaking French.

"As far as we were concerned he was a stranger," said Cournoyer, thinking back to 1957. "He was English, came from a rich family, and was a PC—not exactly a gift in Quebec."

Asked to describe Grafftey's French, Cournoyer, replied: "If Bob Stanfield could have spoken French like Heward, I tell you, he would have been elected prime minister."

Liberals launch campaign

The Sherbrooke County Liberal Association set a 1,000-member and $10,000 objective for their 1977 Membership and Fundraising Campaign, at the campaign launching here yesterday.

Association president Ulric V. Chaine and treasurer Marc Donahue said most of the campaign will be staged through door-to-door and telephone solicitation. They added that all members will be encouraged to work within the party and participate in activities and decision making.

Dr. Victor Goldbloom, President of the provincial campaign said the Quebec Liberal Party has already sold 45,000 memberships in this year's campaign. He added that 25,000 of these are renewal, and 20,000 are new memberships.

CTC-E.T. rail passenger service to stay

SHERBROOKE — The Canadian Transport Commission should maintain existing rail passenger service to fulfill economic energy and ecological needs.

These recommendations made by a number of speakers at the transport hearings yesterday, were adopted unanimously after CTC president Guy Roberge presented to the committee CN's request to abandon rail service on the Coaticook-Sherbrooke-Montreal line. CP also asked permission to cancel service on the Lac-Mégantic-Montreal line.

The most important document submitted to the committee was the report prepared by the Regional Committee on Rail Transport in the Eastern Townships, headed by J. Clement Fortin.

In its report, the regional committee traces the socio-economic development of the region - recalling how the railroad influenced the settlement patterns of the E.T. population - indicates the deficiencies in passenger rail service. The document explains the essential needs of the region in terms of transportation.

The rail transportation committee heard yesterday CN's request concerning passenger service on the Montreal-Richmond-Coaticook-Sherbrooke line. CN has asked that the CTC subsidize 80 per cent of debts incurred operating that line. The rail company will have to submit a separate request to receive funds.

If the rail transport committee decides that it is in the public's interest to continue operating the service, it will pay CN available subsidies for maintaining the service.

The conclusion reached by most of the speakers at the hearing yesterday was that the passenger service should be maintained after certain alterations, including a scheduling revamp.

Dr. Roy is right

Dr. Augustin Roy, head of the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons, says Quebec is suffering from a dire shortage of general practitioners. He revealed yesterday that, of the 12,000 physicians practicing in the province, only 3,700 are general practitioners.

Furthermore, he added, the trend toward increasing specialization means fewer doctors are working toward prevention of disease rather than finding its cure. Net result, he said, is that hospital waiting rooms are crowded with people who could have been screened by their own GPs.

We can agree with Dr. Roy -- with reservations. It's an off-repeated old saw that a GP makes an average 20 per cent less during his lifetime than does the specialist and no doubt this has had its effect on medical students.

But the truth is the horse-and-buggy days of medicine are over; house calls are a thing of the past except in less-sophisticated, easy-going parts of the world. Most of us have become accustomed to driving to a clinic when our loved ones break bones, gash themselves or seem too sick for home care. Often there's no other choice, the cost of ambulance transport being what it is these days.

Granted, things are different in the Townships. General practicing is a much-respected cornerstone of the medical world here and may it be ever so. But it's not the role of the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons to appeal to medical students or general practitioners to do something. Dr. Roy himself should be pounding the desk in Denis Lazure's office if he's seeking change.

The wit and wisdom of Rene Levesque

That was a great little moneymaking idea of old-time separatist Marcel Chaput and journalist Jean Cote, putting out a 'little red book' of Rene Levesque's 150 best excerpts.

Available for a paltry $1.95, this little volume contains gems like "We are not a little people. We are perhaps something like a great people," plus scads of other bons mots, witticisms, put-downs and one-liners from Premier Rene's years in the opposition desert.

We're not knocking the free-enterprise system that says a man's got to make a buck where and when he can, but can't we just imagine the possibilities stemming from this publishing venture? Tidbits from Trudeau, the Joe Clark Jokebook, Broadbent's Broad-sides ... they're endless.

Perhaps this is what Canadians need, easily-carried books of their leaders' thoughts for handy reference. We'd all become experts at what our man promised or on what the other guy fouled up. Rather than spelling bees, schoolkids could line up to compete in trivia contests -- what was the name of the Toronto club where Maggie Trudeau was first seen with the Stones? Or in what Oshawa high school did Ed Broadbent teach French? Or what bridge scandal did Rene Levesque keep the lid on when he was a Liberal minister of public works?

There's no reason why Canadian politicians can't be just as much fun as any other nation's.

Saskatchewan NDP legacy nothing to regret

WINNIPEG (CP) - While Manitoba's NDP supporters have little to cheer following their defeat in Tuesday's provincial election, they can take consolation in the legacy the party leaves behind.

The NDP's two terms in power under Premier Ed Schreyer brought many changes to the province the party inherited in the 1969 general election.

Many of its programs will continue under the spartan Progressive Conservative administration of Sterling Lyon.

Equally important from the party's point of view is the likelihood that the NDP will remain a force in provincial politics for years to come.

Schreyer, only a boyish 33 at the time, formed the first NDP government in Manitoba history after an upset victory eight years ago. The NDP jumped from its traditional role as a third party in the legislature to the pinnacle of power. With Tuesday's defeat, New Democrats take a role they never played before - that of the official Opposition.

Schreyer himself is considered unlikely to serve a full term as Opposition leader, and the rebuilding that would follow his departure from the scene could see a different kind of party evolve.

The former teacher and member of Parliament was seen as a major factor in the NDP's success in its 1969 and 1973 victories. A leadership change could bring greater emphasis on the party as a whole and less on the personal appeal of its leader.

Polarization of the vote between the NDP and the Conservatives was the obvious reason for Schreyer's failure to obtain a third mandate.

But the loss is probably explained as well by the continuing financial squeeze on the province's resources and the apparent lack of imagination that characterized many pieces of NDP legislation in recent years.

The party came to power with one seat less than a majority, but refused to back down from its major election promises.

Legislation to institute a compulsory public automobile insurance program, popularly known as Autopac, advanced through the house in 1970 with the sometimes doubtful support of an independent MLA and then-Liberal MLA Larry Desjardins.

Also approved early in the administration was the first of a series of tax shifts aimed at placing more of the tax burden on wealthier Manitobans, a new direction for northern power development plans and the start on a public housing program that eventually produced more than 11,000 units.

Eight years of NDP rule meant major changes in the province's labor laws to assist unions in organizing and to provide greater on-the-job protection against accidents. The minimum wage and workers' compensation benefits were raised frequently.

There was a greater public presence in the economy, best seen in the often-controversial loans and investments of the Manitoba Development Corp. and the government's mining policies.

There was premium-free medicare, a start on a dental care program for school children and a "pharmacare" program to offset major outlays for prescription drugs.

As the NDP's second term of office began, there were signs that the government was slowing down.

The provincial economy began to stagnate as part of a national slump, and there was less money in the treasury for ambitious social or economic programs.

In 1977, when red ink began to flow over the government's general account books, the best the Schreyer team could do was to bring down a budget without a single tax or premium increase.

Remembering fallen comrades

Editor: As we approach November 11 perhaps it might be wise to remember not only our dead and crippled comrades here and abroad, but also what caused the two great wars and just where we are heading at the present time.

Little narrow men who call themselves leaders are leading us head long into another human catastrophe. Little narrow-minded men who consider theirs is the super race. Little narrow men and their imaginary gods, rabble rousers, placed here to save their own super race.

So, when we observe our two minute silence on Remembrance Day let us remember that man is responsible for his own destiny on this tiny polluted planet that no race is better than another, that Canada is for Canadians be they Eskimo, Indian, Italian, Greek, French, English, German, Chinese, Japanese or any other ethnic background. Our parents might have come from Russia or Arabia or South America, but Canada like the United States of America is a cosmopolitan nation, a mixture of everything learning to speak one language.

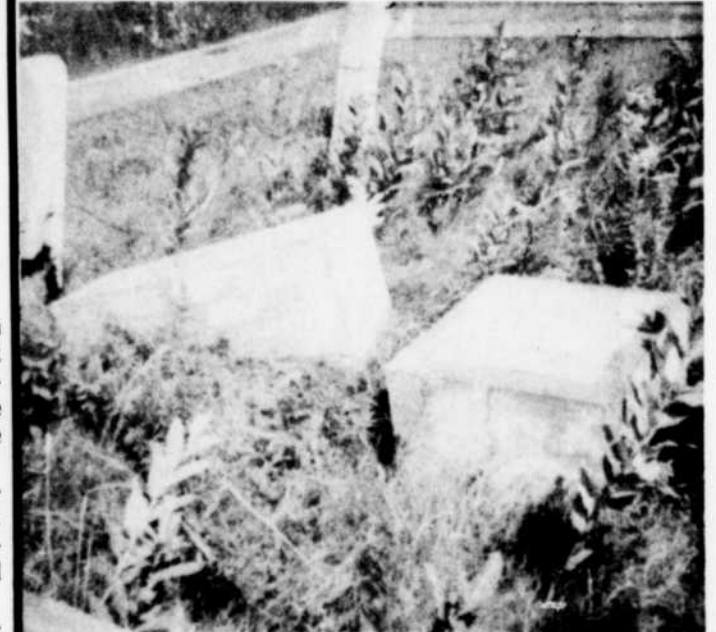

Whenever our provincial leader travels to the USA he speaks English. He speaks English at meetings with other Canadian leaders, he speaks English on TV or radio so wouldn't anyone finding English so necessary be pleased to know that others in Quebec are equally well-endowed! Besides, it's common knowledge that a person knowing only English has a far better chance of getting a job in Canada, the USA and South America than if that person knew only French. So the honourable Rene Levesque is being selfish and narrow in his views as well as not knowing how to keep all Quebecers happy and pleased to stay here instead of doing all they can to get out.

Having served in the Canadian Army overseas during both bloody world wars where my best friends were French Canadians. Having lived in the Quebec Province where French and English have always got along so well together, I cannot see the necessity of Bill 101 unless it's to breed hatred and ferment civil war. If the Catholic Church and Quebec's government was interested in French Canadians and others here properly preparing themselves for the future, learning English would be the first priority, while a second language if one is necessary, should be decided by the parent or guardian and not by a clique whose chances of re-election if a vote were taken tomorrow would be absolutely nil. If instead of bill 101 you had abolished the 8 per cent sales tax, if you had given a thought to what you were elected for, a body-guard wouldn't be necessary because every person living in this province would be your body-guard while anyone daring to hiss or boo would do so at his peril.

Another monument desecrated

The remains of Dr. Jenks' monument

Editor: I see the argument is over about the Bishop monument in Dudswell.

I think a note of thanks should be sent to the Bishopton Council for offering to move it into town, because that got everybody talking about it. I wager that thousands of people didn't know it was there or whose names were on it, before that.

They are lucky the monument was left and not destroyed like the Jenks Monument just out of Barnston on the road to Coaticook.

This was erected about 100 years ago to honor Dr. Nathaniel Jenks who had the "Valley Road" built from Barnston to Coaticook. He was born in Vermont in 1818 and came to Barnston about 1846. The next year he married Lucy Thornton. Their son Lester became a dentist in Coaticook. Two of the doctor's grandsons were the well known Archie and Abbott Jenks.

A few years ago I noticed that the granite blocks had been toppled off the base, as the enclosed picture shows. I tried to get some interest aroused to restore them but left it too long. Now there is absolutely nothing there - no blocks, no base, no fence. It is all seeded down as part of the field.

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Schlesinger's rise to power

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

James Schlesinger

WASHINGTON - James Schlesinger's rise from political obscurity to political power has been smooth and subtle. He has the air more of a college professor than an energy czar. But behind the pipe smoke and contemplative manner, he has the heart of an industrial tycoon.

He has been an unabashed advocate of nuclear power, for example, ever since he came out of the Atomic Energy Commission in the early 1970s. The big utility companies desperately want to develop energy, of course, that will utilize their existing grid systems and permit them to go on selling electricity to the populace. A more revolutionary form of energy, such as solar power, might put the utility industry out of business.

There is disquieting evidence that Schlesinger may be quietly stacking the new Energy Dept. with subordinates who share his enthusiasm for nuclear power. Top policymaking positions will go, for example, to John O'Leary and Dale Myers, who are regarded as nuclear proponents.

Dr. James Liverman, a nuclear apologist, has been mentioned as Schlesinger's choice to be his new environmental chief. This possibility has so outraged environmentalists that a coalition has dashed off a private letter to Schlesinger, warning that they "would oppose" Liverman's nomination.

Schlesinger's most controversial choice, however, may turn out to be Robert Thorne, who heads the San Francisco office of the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA). Schlesinger has Thorne in mind as his assistant secretary in charge of technology, an office that will control the Energy Dept.'s nuclear operations.

Thorne not only was in charge of nuclear affairs in San Francisco but allegedly funded an apparently "improper" lobbying effort to influence Congress to look kindly upon nuclear power.

He used $113,250 of the taxpayers' money to establish the Energy Awareness Project - an idea advanced by a registered nuclear lobbying group known as the California Council for Environmental and Economic Balance (CCEEB).

There is a suspicion that the Energy Awareness Project was really supposed to make the public and Congress more aware of nuclear energy, although a CCEEB spokesman told us the project was intended to inform the public on all energy alternatives.

The CCEEB stated in its original proposal, without mentioning nuclear power, that "we would want participants to write their congressmen to ask them to support specific legislation, pass resolutions, write letters to the editor."

Thorne's office adopted this idea to the tune of $113,250 over the objections of at least one subordinate who warned in an internal memo: "I believe such an effort to be both ill-conceived and misdirected." He added with emphasis: "The logic of the proposal not only escapes me; but, its outline would appear to be an excellent plan for one of the greatest political boondoggles of modern times."

The suspicions of Rep. James Jeffords, R-Vt., have also been aroused. He has asked the General Accounting Office to investigate the project. The taxpayers' money was used, he charges, for what appears to be "improper purposes, including possibly the use of appropriated funds to lobby the Congress on legislative matters."

Footnote: Thorne told our associate Marc Smolonsky that the $113,250 grant did not finance a pro-nuclear lobbying effort. A spokesman for Schlesinger said John O'Leary "won't be directly involved" with nuclear power and that Dale Myers is a "professional manager" with no strong nuclear convictions. A White House source said that Dr. James Liverman is "serving in a housekeeping capacity" and "definitely is not a candidate" for a permanent energy post.

Pot Policy: The men around President Carter have been quarreling behind the scenes over what words to put in his mouth on the marijuana question.

One faction favored a more sympathetic attitude toward pot smoking. They managed to get their ideas into an early draft of the drug policy message that Carter asked his aides to write for him. This was approved by the president's health adviser Dr. Peter Bourne.

It included such sentences as "marijuana has become an established fact throughout our society and the sky has not fallen" and "research studies indicate it may have beneficial uses in the treatment of certain types of illness."

The proposed message also contained a suggestion that the states should repeal their criminal prohibitions, "thus bringing to a close an unhappy and misguided chapter in our history." But these sentences were too strong for scholarly Stuart Eizenstat, the President's top domestic policy adviser. He dashed off a confidential memo to Carter, declaring: "I am very concerned about the marijuana section of this message."

Eizenstat protested that "the section on marijuana is written in an almost laudatory tone, which I believe is unfortunate." Some of the sentences, he objected, "almost seem to be a positive recommendation of the drug."

The president struck out the sentences that Eizenstat didn't like. Nevertheless, the final message endorsed decriminalization of small amounts of pot.

More on Moore: West Virginia's ex-Gov. Arch Moore is a most sophisticated hillbilly, with a clean-cut, all-American look. Yet we have been obliged to write from time to time about his shenanigans. This finally led to an investigation of Moore by the state's ethics committee, which keeps a watchdog's eye on West Virginia lawyers.

The ethics committee, however, never got a chance to inspect the exhaustive files that the Justice Dept. and Internal Revenue Service have compiled on him. In the name of privacy, the federal agencies refused to divulge the information to the ethics committee.

The committee can't produce enough documentation, therefore, to take action against Moore. Of course, he could dissolve the cloud over his head simply by authorizing the federal government to release its files on him to the ethics committee.

Quebec wants immigration powers

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Immigration Minister Jacques Couture says the provincial government will demand special powers from Ottawa to decide whether or not to admit political refugees from various countries.

Speaking Wednesday to a group of editors of ethnic publications, Couture said Quebec will ask the federal government for permission to set up its own political refugee program, in addition to demanding an equal say in the recruiting and admission of ordinary immigrants.

The program would be "a way of demonstrating Quebec's increasing world role," he said, adding that the arrangement would "have to take the Quebec reality into account."

"With unemployment as bad as it is these days it would be irresponsible for everyone, the refugees included, to just open the doors wide open and let anyone in who applied."

The minister told reporters his proposals will be contained in legislation to be presented to the Quebec national assembly in the next session. The proposals may be modified in negotiations now under way with the federal government.

"Only sovereignty can give us complete control over immigration," he said. "But we intend to assume our responsibilities and demonstrate the openness and humanity that must characterize the Quebec society of tomorrow."

Collingwood cop shot

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP) — Sgt. Donald McQueen of the Collingwood police department was shot and killed Wednesday, police said.

Sgt. McQueen was one of two constables cleared earlier this year, by an inquest jury, of responsibility in the death of a seven-week-old Collingwood baby.

Inuit-two-thirds majority needed

MONTREAL (CP) — The Northern Quebec Inuit Association has recommended that a two-thirds majority vote in favor of independence be required before the province can separate from Canada.

In a brief submitted Wednesday to the Quebec legislature committee which will study the organization of the independence referendum, the association said the province should be divided into several districts for the vote, with one district encompassing communities north of the 55th parallel.

According to this format, independence would not be approved unless two-thirds of the districts, as well as two-thirds of the total population voted in favor.

Association spokesman Mike McGoldrick said that if the referendum is organized along different lines, "it would be up to the (Inuit) people" to decide whether to accept the results.

He added that association president Charlie Watt was "misinterpreted" in a broadcast report Wednesday which said the Eskimos of northern Quebec would hold their own referendum.

During protests against the province's French language charter in August, Watt was quoted as saying if Quebec secedes from Canada the Inuit will secede from Quebec. He later denied the report, saying the Inuit want to work out a system of greater autonomy within Quebec.

The Parti Quebecois government has said it is open to suggestions on the organization of the referendum, but a referendum white paper issued earlier this year made no mention of special geographic or numerical majorities.

Mackasey seeks single question

CALGARY (CP) — One question would be all that was necessary on Quebec's proposed referendum on Confederation, says Bryce Mackasey, former federal cabinet minister.

Quebecers should only be asked whether they want to remain in Confederation or not, he told a Calgary business audience Wednesday.

Mackasey, now a Liberal member of the Quebec National Assembly, said Premier Rene Levesque "won't put it clearly."

"He doesn't want to find out what he suspects; that the people of Quebec want to stay in."

He said Levesque will confuse Quebecers with a third option, an independent Quebec which retains economic ties with the rest of Canada. Mackasey called that "separation in disguise."

"The enemy is fanned out across Quebec to sell separation," he said in an interview later.

"But they (the Parti Quebecois) don't call it that, they call it 'independence.'"

Mackasey said the Parti Quebecois could trap Quebecers by convincing them the rest of Canada is indifferent.

Allende's daughter kills self

HAVANA (CP) — Beatriz Allende, daughter of the late Chilean President Salvador Allende, committed suicide at her home here Tuesday, the Cuban foreign ministry announced Wednesday.

The announcement said she shot herself because of her depressed state and "the tragedy of her people," adding that she was "a new victim of fascism."

Her neighbors told a French news agency reporter Miss Allende did not die immediately after shooting herself. They said she had been taken to a hospital for an emergency operation which failed to save her.

Miss Allende was married to a Cuban diplomat whom she met in Chile while her father was president. She was pregnant when she took up residence in Cuba shortly after the death of her father Sept. 11, 1973, in a coup d'etat which ousted his Marxist government.

The Cuban foreign ministry gave no further details of her death and said funeral arrangements would await the arrival of her relatives.

Miss Allende was one of the founders of the Committee of Solidarity with Anti-Fascist Resistance in Cuba, an organization created in Havana in October, 1973, and still very active.

Miss Allende, reported to be in her 30s, often made public speeches in Havana, spoke at rallies, and on television and was generally active in public affairs concerning Chile since the military junta overthrew her father's government.

Gas pipeline explodes

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — A section of the Trans-Canada Pipeline exploded Wednesday, shooting flames at least 100 feet into the air. Police said no one was injured.

The natural gas explosion occurred in a bush area in the city's south-east section, about 1,000 yards east of Highway 17.

Janice Witte said she was about four kilometres away on a hill driving toward the city when she saw a tip of flame.

"Then it exploded like a nuclear bomb," she said, adding that the flames looked to be about 1,000 feet high.

A fire department spokesman said the flow of gas in the pipeline was shut off and the fire burned itself out in about an hour.

Manitoba premier takes office

WINNIPEG (CP) — Sterling Lyon, whose Progressive Conservative forces swept to power in Tuesday's Manitoba general election, said Wednesday he will formally take office Monday, Oct. 24.

Lyon announced the date for the changeover after a meeting with Premier Ed Schreyer, whose NDP government was defeated after eight years in office.

The changeover date, subject to the approval of Lt. Gov. F. L. Jobin, will also be the day for naming new cabinet ministers from what Lyon described as an "embarrassment of riches".

The Conservatives won 33 seats in the 57-seat legislature, while the NDP slipped to 23 and the Liberals dropped to 1. At dissolution, standing was NDP 31, Conservative 23 and Liberal 3.

Lyon, whose party polled 49 per cent of the popular vote, said his new cabinet likely won't have as many ministers as the 17-member cabinet of the outgoing NDP government.

Another question is a date for the next legislature session. A special session may be needed to confirm the province's participation in the anti-inflation program after a recent ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada on the inclusion of Manitoba's public sector employees under federal anti-inflation laws.

Sher-Lenn Fifty Plus Club

An afternoon of Bingo opened the September activities of the Sher-Lenn on the seventh.

The following Monday the members enjoyed a shopping trip to Woolco Department Stores. Judging by the packages crowding the bus on the return to the club, it was a most successful shopping day.

The Second Winds resumed their Wednesday morning choir practices; and, with Mrs. Hunting at the piano and Mrs. Blanche directing, they are once more enjoying thoroughly the choral group. New songs are being added to their repertoire especially with concerts coming up at Hallowe'en, St. Andrew's Day and Christmas.

The art group have been enjoying starting new paintings, as well as putting the finishing touches on several of their paintings, to be exhibited at the Art Show and Tea being held at the club headquarters on October 29th.

On September 14th, Dr. Gordon B. Loomis was the guest speaker. Accompanied by Mrs. Loomis, Dr. Loomis visited with the members prior to his address. "Medicine - Old and New"

was the topic of the speech and was of great interest to the members. "Let us compare the basic concept of disease as interpreted by the ancients as compared with the new, often startling concepts of today," began Dr. Loomis. Going back to the father of medicine - Hippocrates (460-350 B.C.), the Greeks "conceived of disease as a vapour, an aura, plethora, a spirit within the body that must be expurgated through phisic or blood letting."

The fascinating tale of the history of medical advances down through the centuries; the scientists and physicians who played so great a part in the slow growth of medicine as we know it today, was related with humor as well as the factual incidents of this part of our growth to twentieth century civilization.

The importance of diet and exercise upon our health was stressed. The tragedy of modern diet is the too many chemicals, preservatives, additives, the carcinogenetics that help cause cancer and arthritis, found in the foods we eat every day. But the cycle is changing in our diet, we are going back to the natural foods of our forefathers' time. The wheel is turning in the cycle of medicine as well. The ancients believe that disease was caused by a vapour, an aura, a plethora. Now science has proved that all bodies, seeds, plants, and living objects are enveloped in an electro-dynamic field that can be detected and measured. These fields are called "L" fields. According to its polarity this ambient field can predict heart symptoms. Special cameras are able to photograph the aura, such refined energies. Kirlian photography, radionic photograph, fluorescent screens, and can be measured with modern voltmeters. Much work and research is continuing at Yale, England and in Russia towards a fuller understanding of this "L" field. The mind is the source of our vital power, as these L fields are influenced by the power of the human mind.

Dr. Loomis concluded his address with the thought that we must take time to live, to enjoy good books, music, worship, "in all ways let us make our moments glow with life." Complimenting the members on their active lifestyle and expressing his admiration and hopes for the continuing success of the Sher-Lenn Fifty Plus Club, he quoted Robert Moore - "The only person even more beautiful that you are today is the person you will be tomorrow."

Mr. Neil Tracy introduced Dr. Loomis and Mr. Howard Barter expressed the pleasure of the members for a most enjoyable and inspiring talk.

The Thrift Shop has reopened in the lower hall on the first Wednesday of every month. This Thrift Shop is open to the public, and the ladies of St. Peter's A.C.W. do a wonderful job displaying and running this most attractive and economical sale. There are real bargains to be had!

On September 20th members who had attained their 80th birthday met for lunch. It was the first meeting, and registrations were taken. Many of our most active members are within this age group, and it is with a great deal of love and admiration for them we form this 80 Plus group.

Whist was played on Wednesday the 21st. The winning table was captained by Mrs. W. Edgecombe, and the players were Mrs. E. Strew, Mrs. F. Lord and Mrs. M. Mouldy. The travelling prize was again captured by Mrs. A. Wilson. Should Mrs. Wilson capture this prize next month it would appear that new ruling must be made as three times in a row is most rare, and four would be just too lucky!

September 27th the club took a fall foliage tour in Vermont's northeast area. While the sun only appeared very briefly a few times, the scenic beauty of the autumn colors was magnificent. The overcast skies could not hide the vivid colors of the breathtaking splendor of the changing season.

Arriving at Cabot, Vt., the club was welcomed by Mr. John Spasyk who was our guide for the afternoon. A visit to the Willey Memorial Hall and the most admirable handicraft display and sale being held there; and a tour of the Cabot Creamery, where the famous Cabot cheese is made, whetted the appetites for a delicious turkey dinner served at the United Church by the Cabot Village Home Dem. ladies. It proved to be a happy tour, and one that was a bit off the usual routes we have taken in the past years.

Following the dessert luncheon on the 28th, the members welcomed Mr. R. Dawson, editor of the Township's Sun, and Professor T. Martin, Professor of History, Champlain College. Accompanying Professor Martin were students of history at Champlain, the Misses Louise McKay, Lee Murphy, Valerie Smith and Mr. Keith Crawford. Mrs. Dawson and their young son were guests as well, and made for a happy and smiling contrast of ages present that afternoon.

Professor Martin and Mr. Dawson spoke briefly of the oral interview project and then our guests met and talked with the members. Members of the Sher-Lenn Fifty Plus Club are interested in starting a file on memories of the Eastern Townships in the days of their youth up to the present time. It is most unfortunate that little if any, documented personal accounts of life as it was, can be found for the present and future residents and families of this part of Quebec. So the membership, working with Mr. Dawson and Professor Martin hope to correct this lack of personal data. Needing a definite date in which to record events, the years 1929-1939 were decided upon, although any and all reminiscences will be needed. The purpose of this project is to record and store personal accounts of the Eastern Townships during the Great Depression (1929-1939). Oral interviews will be conducted by Townships Sun staff and by students in Prof. Martin's Regional History Class (Champlain College). Members of the Sher-Lenn Fifty Plus Club will constitute the core of the interviewees. The tapes of these interviews will be catalogued and stored in Bishop's University Library for use by future historians and the interested public. Hopefully, some of these interviews will be published in the Townships Sun and possibly in the Touchstone, the Champlain campus newspaper. A long-range objective of this project could be the publication of a book of reminiscences.

The craft group are meeting every Monday for lunch and preparing for the Christmas bazaar to be held the last of November. There are always new items being designed as well as the usual attractive holiday gift handicrafts.

LENOXVILLE — The regular meeting of the UCW was held in the Douglas Hall Lounge with Mrs. D. Moyan Robinson presiding.

The minutes and financial report were read by the secretary, Mrs. C.P. Mallalieu.

Mrs. W.S. Aird reported several get-well and sympathy cards sent during the summer.

Mrs. George Rothney, Welfare and Supply convener reported that the long awaited acknowledgment of the parcels sent to Phoebe Hospital had been received with grateful thanks, the staff being most appreciative of the bandages and other supplies sent. It was decided to continue making the rolled bandages.

The report of the flower committee was given by Mrs. William Van Horn who thanked those who had assisted with flowers during the summer months.

A letter from the bazaar conveners, Mrs. Donald McElrea and Mrs. K.J. McLeod, was read by Mrs. McElrea, who also outlined plans for same. The bazaar will be held on Wednesday, November 23rd when a casserole supper will be served.

The Christian Education report prepared by Mrs. D.

Foerstel noted several activities: New bookshelves are being built in the board room; the junior choir will attend the choir festival in Quebec City; the Lindsay Choir of Lindsay, Ont., will visit this area on November 5.

Various activities were noted in the Unit reports. Unit 3 held a most successful rummage sale; Unit 5 catered to a wedding during the summer and will cater to a banquet in October; Unit 6 will serve a luncheon at the music workshop in November.

Several planned to attend the Fall Rally in Sisco Memorial Church, the theme being, Ministers All.

The members noted the pleasant appearance of a chesterfield and two chairs which had been reupholstered during the summer. Mrs. Donald McElrea and Mrs. C.P. Mallalieu were the committee in charge.

A nominating committee was formed consisting of the past president and the unit leaders. Annual unit reports should be ready for the December meetings.

COOKSHIRE — The U.C.W. of Trinity United Church held their October meeting at the home of Mrs.

Pauline Thorneloe, with Mrs. Leslie Connor as joint hostess. There were 11 in attendance.

Mrs. Gladys Parsons chaired the meeting. Mrs. Jean Stevenson was in charge of the worship period, and Mrs. Pauline Thorneloe read the scripture lesson.

The theme of Thanksgiving was used by Mrs. Stevenson for her program. Her meditation was entitled "Showing Gratitude". She urged all to remember to give thanks to God for our many blessings, especially those which we take for granted, remembering that God is the Giver of all our gifts. She then gave an appropriate prayer for the season.

Mrs. C. Cruickshank read the minutes, which were approved as read, also some thank you notes for favors received. One letter from the Rev. Jean Barclay dealt with the request for a youth representative for this district. The ladies were also reminded of the tea to be held in Bury on Dec. 4, for the benefit of St. Paul's Rest Home.

Mrs. Nellie Parker gave the treasurer's report, and money was voted to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund and the Committee of Stewards.

Mrs. Parker stated that she still had three calendars on hand for sale, and that the tea and sale in Sawyerville, for the benefit of the Senior Citizen's Rest Home, had been very successful, over $500.00 was cleared for its benefit.

Mrs. Cruickshank gave a report of the U.C.W. Rally which had been held at Sawyerville recently.

The ladies were asked to go to the church on Sat., Oct. 29 at 1 p.m. to help clean it and the hall.

A Christmas Tea and sale was planned for Sat., Nov. 19 from 2-5 p.m. in the church hall. A discussion re workers for this event was held, and committees appointed.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Pauline McVetty with Miss Esther Farnsworth as joint hostess, on Wed., Nov. 9, at 7:30 p.m.

The president for November will be Mrs. Gladys Parsons.

Following adjournment the hostesses served refreshments.

Miss Eileen Reid of Champlain College, was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cruickshank. The name of Mrs. C. Skral of Island Brook, gymnastic teacher, was inadvertently omitted from the list of teachers at the Cookshire Elementary School.

Montgomery of Melbourne, Mrs. J. Barrie of Richmond and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Healy. After the wedding rehearsal, Mr. and Mrs. Healy entertained some twenty-five guests.

Ulcer relief discovered

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto doctor said Wednesday there is a new drug that gives relief from pain of peptic ulcers and speeds healing.

Dr. Edward Prokipchuk said in an interview the drug, a pill called cimetidine, usually prevents recurrence of an ulcer if taken once or twice a day.

Dr. Prokipchuk, chief of the gastroenterology division of St. Michael's Hospital and associate professor of medicine at the University of Toronto, was one of three doctors who spoke at a news conference about the drug, which has been available in Canada since last spring under the brand name Tagamet.

He said the drug relieves peptic-ulcer pain in 48 to 72 hours and heals ulcers in two to four weeks.

The doctors said savings from use of the drug, including hospital and medical costs and time lost from work, could be between $25 million and $50 million a year in Canada.

Many suffer
An estimated 400,000 Canadians suffer from peptic ulcers.

Dr. Prokipchuk said cost of treatment with cimetidine is about $30 over a typical four-week period. There are no known side effects and the drug has been cleared by the federal health department.

Dr. Prokipchuk said cimetidine combines with body chemicals to block release of histamine in the stomach.

Histamine stimulates secretion of gastric acids, which can produce ulcers when too abundant.

MD seeks legal definition of death

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Life support machines attached to a young man whose heart is beating but whose brain is dead are prolonging his death, not his life, a surgeon told a judge struggling with the question of what constitutes death.

Dr. Manucher Javid, chief neurosurgeon at University of Wisconsin Hospitals, testified at the unusual hearing.

Dane County Judge Robert Pekowsky called the hearing to obtain medical opinions on the definition of death because state law provides no such legal definition. Pekowsky is trying to decide whether to grant a family's request to turn off the life support machines of a man at the hospital, allowing some of his organs to be removed for transplantation.

The 18-year-old man, whose identity has not been disclosed, suffered an apparent heart attack at a state mental institution where he was a ward of the state. His parents agreed with hospital officials that the life supports should be removed, but then contacted a lawyer to make sure the proper legal steps were taken.

The lawyer contacted Pekowsky, who issued a temporary order Sept. 22 preventing removal of life supports and scheduled the hearing for this week.

He also named a lawyer, James Connors, to represent the man. Connors says the man is alive and the machines should remain connected.

Javid, the first witness, said the medical definition of death has changed dramatically in the last few decades, to one focusing on brain activity from one focusing on heart function and breathing.

The brain of the man in question is totally dead, and the equipment is doing little more than maintaining the semblance of life in a corpse, Javid said. He called that "a tragedy."

The neurosurgeon said: "This is not lengthening life. We are really prolonging death. This man has been dead for several days."

He added: "On one point there is absolute agreement by all neurosurgeons—that when a patient's brain dies, that patient is dead. It's the brain that is important."

He said hearts can be transplanted, and someone can remain alive while a machine does the heart's work. "That muscle has absolutely no significance" in deciding if a patient is dead, Javid said.

He said a complete neurological examination of the man at the hospital Sept. 20 found no brain activity whatsoever.

The man failed to blink when a cotton swab touched his eyeball, he did not gag when something was inserted in his throat, and he exhibited no reflexes except a neck twitch that is caused by the spinal cord, not the brain, Javid said.

Javid said the man's condition differs from Karen Anne Quinlan's. She is in what is described as an irreversible coma in a New Jersey nursing home, still alive after life support machines were removed.

An irreversible coma represents cessation of activity by two parts of the brain, the cerebrum and midbrain, but not the brain stem, Javid said.

Arnott -- Bec October wedding

WATERLOO — The marriage of Miss Jo-Ann Arnott, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Arnott of Waterloo to Mr. Frank Bec, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Bec of Waterloo, took place at St. Paul's United Church, October 1 at 12 p.m.

Rev. Murray Macfarlane officiated at the double-ring ceremony and Mrs. Joan Norris played the wedding music.

The church was decorated with baskets of fall flowers and the guest pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white polyester with a high ruffled neckline, long sleeves, and train. She wore a white picture hat with a pink band and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

Miss Dianna Butcher, maid of honor, wore a floor-length gown of yellow polyester. Miss Carol Brousseau, cousin of the bride, and Miss Evelyn Taylor were bridesmaids and were dressed identically to the maid of honor. Miss Brousseau's gown was periwinkle blue and Miss Taylor's, deep pink. They wore flowers in their hair and carried colonial bouquets of white shasta daisies.

John Hendrykowski acted as best man and Ben Bec and Brian Brousseau were ushers. The men of the bridal party wore light blue brocade jackets with darker blue trim and navy trousers.

The mother of the bride chose a floor-length gown of apricot polyester and wore a yellow carnation corsage. The mother of the groom wore a floor-length gown of spruce green polyester with a white carnation corsage.

The reception was held at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall in Waterloo. On the head table was a four-tier wedding cake, made and decorated by a former school teacher of the groom, Mrs. Alcide Arnold of Granby. A delicious hot turkey dinner was served to 115 guests by the U.C.W. of St. Paul's United Church.

A toast to the bride was proposed by the best man and responded to by the groom.

Music for dancing was provided by Gary Darling and the Hobo Junction Band.

The couple left for a short honeymoon in Vermont. The bride travelled in a beige striped dress with tan accessories and a white shasta daisy corsage.

Guests attended from Boston, Mass., Woodstock, Ont., Hawkesbury, Ont., Montreal, Sawyerville, Bedford, Richmond, Mansville, St. Paul d'Abbotsford, Granby, Knowlton and surrounding districts.

The couple have taken up residence on Allen St. in Waterloo, Quebec.

No, these are not part of John Warden's fall collection of designs for children - just two tots enjoying a pre-Halloween warm-up in full costume.

Designs for tots

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian designer John Warden introduced a new line of children's clothing this week with a collection of spring and summer coordinates to take the sand-box set from school to parties.

With the collection, which will be available in stores across the country this spring, Warden joins a small handful of Canadian name designers now working in the children's clothing field.

Marlene Ramsey, a buyer for Holt Renfrew's children's wear department, welcomed Warden's entry in the field, saying there are not enough good children's wear designers in Canada or elsewhere.

Made for boys and girls between two and six years old, the collection is a scaled-down version of the designer's look for men and women and emphasizes sporty interchangeable separates in co-ordinated color tones.

Warden has steered away from impractical fabrics and turned out an entire wardrobe in such washable and durable fabrics as muslin, terry, gabardine and cotton-polyester blends.

His workable wardrobe, which included everything from sundresses to raincoats, favored greens and beiges.

Gabardine was fashioned into bibbed skirts and overalls with lots of pockets and teamed with striped T-shirts. Baseball caps and camping boots and rolled socks completed the look.

On a party note, little girls were treated to long white cotton-eyelid summer dresses topped with streamered straw hats, especially designed by Montreal's Anita Pineault.

And natural straw bowlers were the favorite toppers for natural muslin sundresses smocked and edged in brown.

The collection also featured a jogging suit and a prize-fighter bathrobe in beige terry velour.

Beautyrest... because day follows night

You're not just buying a good night's sleep. You're buying great days.

Starting the day after a so-so night is like trying to start your car with a flat battery... you don't give yourself a fair chance. Get a good night's sleep and you'll wake up refreshed and ready to go. The Beautyrest mattress by Simmons gives you that good night's sleep.

The hidden difference in every Beautyrest mattress

In a Beautyrest, each coil is in its own individual pocket, not wired to its neighbour, so it can "give" or apply pressure individually, according to your anatomy. W.I. meeting

DUNHAM — The October meeting of the Dunham W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Tom Webb, Wednesday, Oct. 5. Mrs. E. Sherrer thanked her for the use of her home, and the co-hostesses, Lou Stator and Betty Wilkinson. All joined in repeating the Collect, and the Salute to the Flag.

The motto was, "Two things are bad for the heart — running upstairs, and running down people."

Members (who remembered) brought jams and jellies for the Nesbitt Residence, as the roll call. There were fourteen present.

Mrs. Paul, in the absence of Mrs. Bidner read the treasurer's report, and also reported that $81.50 was realized from the Dessert Card Party.

Correspondence included brochures passed around to the members of Christmas cards which can be purchased to assist the District of Bedford Association for the Mentally Retarded. The highlights of the Annual Convention held at Macdonald College were also read.

Convenors: Mrs. Dorothy Clark, Home Economics, read an article entitled, "Canadian, Heat Thyself," about people turning their thermostats down and dressing more warmly, to cut the cost of fuel. She also read a piece of poetry, "The Woes of the Consumer." Welfare and Health, Mrs. Martin, read, "Diet Change Urged" and how important a proper nutritional diet was, to cut heart disease.

Motions were made to send the sum of $1.00 per member to the Q.W.I. Service Fund, and to reimburse the County Funds $21.00 which was the divided sum of the four branches each to pay, to cover extra expenses occurring from the Anniversary banquet (eg. ribbons, cake, etc.) This month's tea money will be sent to aid the Northern branches of the Quebec Extension Fund.

Mrs. Comeau, Citizenship Convener, suggested as we have so few young people in our families to solicit for UNICEF, and as the Brownsies and Guides do so, that we hold a Silent Auction at our next meeting, to raise funds for it. All were in favour of this idea.

Mrs. Clark, Home Economics convener, solicited from those present, towards the lunch for the County Card Party, planned for Friday, Nov. 4 at 8 p.m. in the Anglican Church Hall, Dunham. Admission to remain $1.00.

Mrs. Sherrer mentioned an invitation extended from the Stanbridge East Branch, to anyone who might like to join them at their meeting this month (which was Oct. 5) as they were having a guest speaker, Mr. Randy Yates from the Dixville Home, who would also be showing slides of the Home.

Next month's place for the W.I. meeting, has been changed from the program's format and members are to note it will be held at Christine McLaughlin's, Nov. 2nd.

The delegate, Barbara Harvey, gave a report to the Semi-Annual County Convention, which was held in Stanbridge East, Sept. 20.

This being the meeting for the Citizenship Convoers' program, she had one of our younger members, Susan Doherty, model a costume from Lapland, while she read the customs of its country, taken from "School Bulletin". The costume was very beautiful of what seemed to be blue wool flannel and the trim of contrasting felt. It had been preserved very well over the years. Mrs. Comeau had commented she herself had worn it, some years back. She also passed, for the members to see, a brooch which had been given her mother from the same country.

Being no further business, the meeting closed with the W.I. Grace.

Legion L.A. meets

SAWYERVILLE — The Ladies' Auxilliary of the Royal Canadian Legion met on Oct. 3rd in the Legion Hall with the President Com. Marjorie Pinchin in her chair. The meeting opened in regular form with Flag presentation. Several thank you notes were read from members who had received baskets of fruit or gifts. The Legion is to have a card party on Oct. 8th and the ladies are furnishing the sweet cooking and some of the prizes. Together with the men who were meeting downstairs a supper was planned for Nov. 10th, which will be beans, scallops, home-made rolls and pies. Several will do the soliciting. The next meeting will be on Nov. 2nd to make final plans for the supper.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostesses, Comrades Ardath Blair and Hazel Balir.

ASTRO-GRAPH
Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Oct. 14, 1977

This coming year you could meet a very interesting entrepreneur type. Although you might not become involved in business with this person, you may get some ideas how you can branch out for yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Pursue your ambitions with vigor today, particularly if you're involved in something that could add to your resources. You get what you go after. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a strong possibility your ideas will be challenged today. If you believe you're right, stand by your guns but keep an open mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Avoid negative thoughts regarding a changing condition yet to be tested. It could work out much to your liking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) New projects today have an excellent chance of success, particularly if you're involved with an active, ambitious ally. Don't deal with weaklings.

ticularly if you're involved with an active, ambitious ally. Don't deal with weaklings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Take special pride in your work. Put your full talents into your tasks. Someone important will be watching.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're a charming catalyst today. Your very presence churns dull things up into something more exciting and fun. Go spread your sunshine.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be protective today if you care for who is not as bold as yourself. Step into situations where you see this person being taken advantage of.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Much can be accomplished in team efforts today if you assume the assertive role. Your example will be all that's needed!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your financial picture looks promising today, but this doesn't mean money will be dumped into your lap. Big returns are likely if you're enterprising.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll not go unnoticed today. Take extra pains to look especially nice on the chance you'll meet someone you really want to impress.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be concerned today if you're not first out of the starting gate. When others run out of gas, you'll still be going strong.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's important today to strike while the iron is hot. Your initiative lessens the longer you dwell on things.

Church events in Knowlton

KNOWLTON (KT) —

Following the sermon and offertory hymn at the 11 a.m. service at St. Paul's Church on September 25, Mrs. Maureen Johnston-Main gave the introduction to a brief but impressive section - In Memoriam: Olive, Lady Baden-Powell, who died June 25, 1977. Lady Baden-Powell's last letter was read, followed by the hymn, "Let Saints on Earth" and a Prayer for the Departed. The Prayer for Scout and Guide Movements and, as Recessional Hymn, "From Ocean to Ocean" brought the service to a close. The reader of the Lessons at the service was Mr. Frank Johnston-Main. Similar services were held in many parts in honour of this great lady.

The Church of St. Michael and All Angels, Bolton Glen, held their special Harvest Home Hymn Sing on September 25. These Hymn Singings always bring many people to the end-of-the-month services, during the summer months.

The great-nephew of Lorne Carr-Harris, the Reverend Phillip Carr-Harris, was ordained a deacon at the Cathedral on Sunday afternoon, September 25. He will be an assistant at the Church of St. James the Apostle.

A clergy conference was called by the Bishop to take place in St. Jerome on Sunday, October 2nd to Tuesday, October 4. The rector of St. Paul's Church was away from the parish these days, but the office was open as usual each morning.

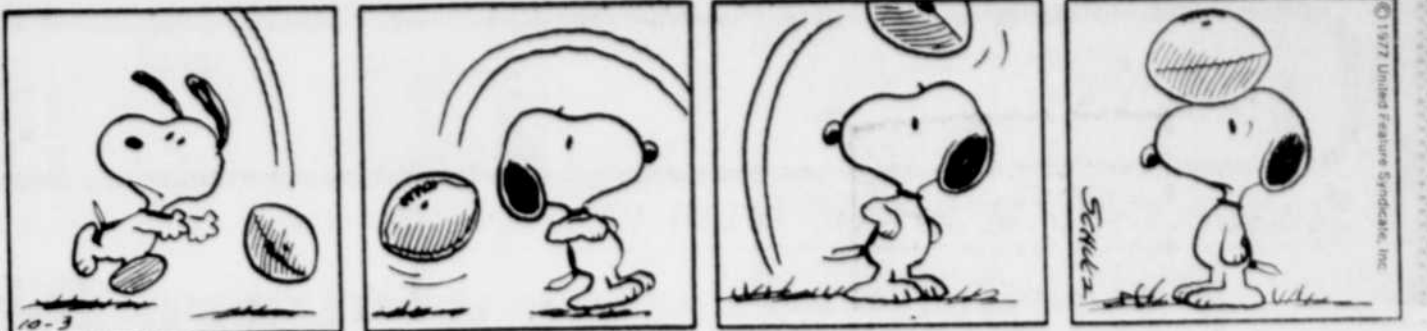

Prayer for Scouts and Guides - Grant, O Lord, that your blessims may rest on all boys and girls who are now in the movements begun by Lord and Lady Baden-Powell. Help all Scouts, Cubs, Guides and Brownies to honour the Queen, serve their country, and faithfully follow their Promise and Law. Make them humble and friendly, eager for adventure, and prepared for service.

Give us all the courage to right wrongs, and the steadfastness to endure, so that our lives may be filled with the joy that spreads happiness everywhere. Grant this, we pray you. For the sake of Your Son, Jesus Christ, our Lord - Amen.

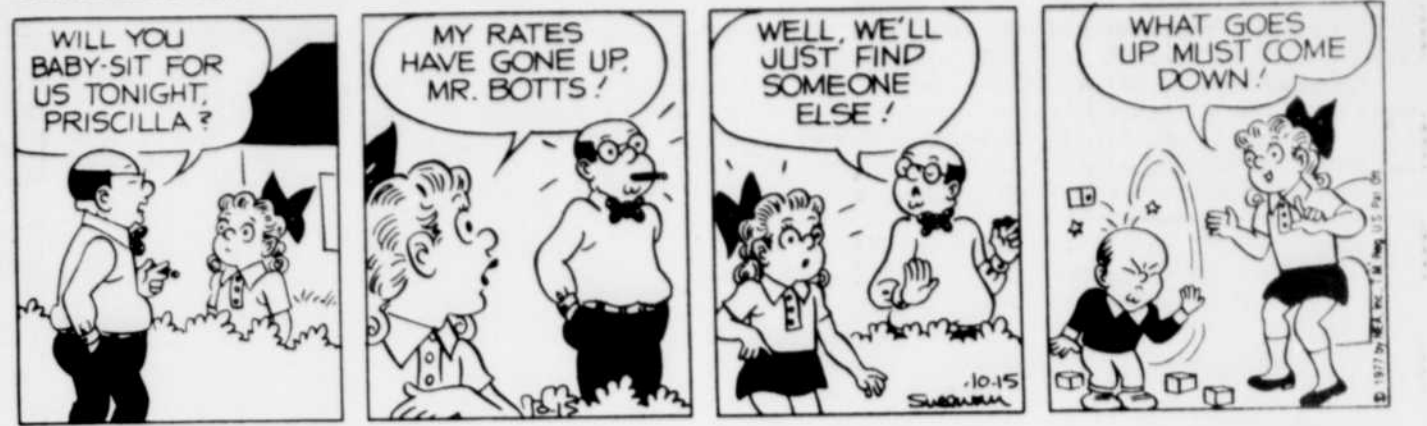

With Harvest Thanksgiving Services held at St. Paul's on Sunday, October 9, gifts of fruits, jellies, jams, flowers, etc., were gratefully received the previous day to decorate the church and for distribution after the service.

Also a reminder of the A.C.W. Harvest Supper on Saturday, October 15, in St. Paul's Church Hall from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m. There will be barbecue beef, baked potatoes, salads and pies.

Thought for the week (from the church bulletin) - The New Yorker reports a listing in the Denver Yellow Pages: Christ the Answer Church, 279-3663; If no answer call 270-2898!

diamonds. East takes his ace and knocks out South's ace of hearts. Now South counts to only eight tricks and needs a club finesse for his ninth. The finesse loses and so does South. He is down one, since West cashes two hearts. If South counts his tricks early, he sees the need for two club tricks and should take an immediate finesse in that suit. It loses, but since East holds the ace of diamonds, West can't get in to cash two hearts and South collects his nine tricks. What would happen if West held both the king of clubs and ace of diamonds? No play would work and South would have to pay off.

Ask the Jacobys

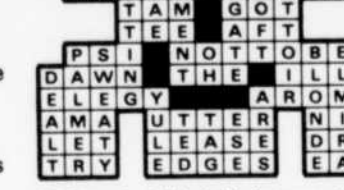

By Oswald & James Jacoby

A Canadian reader asks what card you play from dummy. The deuce of spades has been opened against your three trump contract. Dummy holds Q 5. You hold A 10 7. The correct play is the five spot. This insures two spade tricks for you. If you rise with dummy's queen you may only score one trick in the suit.

Scandals leave Soviet team weakened

Russian soccer players eye 1982 cup

MOSCOW (Reuter) — As Soviet soccer moves towards the end of one of its unhappiest seasons in years, alarm bells are being rung over illegal rewards to players, a goal famine in the Premier League and a drift by spectators away from the sport.

With the national squad already out of the 1978 World Cup finals in Argentina following an ignominious defeat in Greece, football writers are focussing on the ills of the game in the hope of sparking changes in time for the next cup in 1982.

Over the last few weeks, Moscow newspapers have reported the sacking of the chief trainer at Odessa Chernomorets, the dismissal of three top players from Yerevan Ararat and the reasons for the disappearance of one of the country's most promising young internationals.

All three minor scandals were to some degree connected with material rewards, in the form of cars or apartments, offered to players as an inducement to stay with one club or transfer to another.

INCENTIVES BANNED

Such incentives, although known to be widespread among the clubs of the top three leagues, are officially banned in a country where all players are nominally amateurs.

At the centre of the affair at Chernomorets was trainer-manager Ahmed Aleskerov who, according to the Young Communist League newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda, "handed out all sorts of presents and bonuses."

The three offending players of Ararat, the Armenian side which four years ago won the league and cup double, were goalkeeper Alexei Abramyan, halfback Arkady Andreyanov and defender Suren Martirosyan.

Reporting their downfall, the weekly magazine Soccer-Hockey said the three stars "thought only about their own personal well-being."

They "insulted younger players," the weekly quoted Ararat manager Sergei Bodarenko as saying. "They were incapable of passing anything on to the youngsters on the human level so they could hardly teach them anything about the game itself."

The magazine gave no other details, but Soviet soccer sources said the three, who were popular with influential backers of the club, had been virtual dictators in the team, contriving the dismissal of players and trainers who crossed them.

Komsomolskaya Pravda belatedly revealed, in response to a query from a reader, what had become of Moscow Dynamo's star international striker Anatoly Shepel, missing from the club lineup for more than a year.

The 27-year-old Shepel, it said, had been suspended at the request of his teammates for "money-grubbing, extortion and lack of respect for the interests of the club" after he went absent without leave towards the end of last season.

The newspaper traced the star's career from his first club in a minor league to Chernomorets, Kiev Dynamo and Moscow Dynamo. As he moved, he got better apartments and new cars. Ordinary Russians have to wait months or years for both.

When he joined Moscow Dynamo, he was given two Volga sedans in less than a year and sold them both, Komsomolskaya Pravda said. In the Soviet Union, second-hand cars can fetch more than the already high official price for a new one.

"The flats and the cars were given to him in violation of our laws," Komsomolskaya Pravda said. "Yet, apart from Shepel himself, everyone in this story remains unpunished."

This season's record low crop of goals in the 16-club Premier League is perhaps even more alarming to the soccer writers and administrators.

With six weeks of the season left, just five sides averaged more than a goal a game and the number of draws, many of them goalless, is also a record.

Particularly under fire are Kiev Dynamo, until last year the golden boys of Soviet soccer.

In the first half of the two-part season Kiev, currently heading the league, drew every road game.

A soccer goalie scrambles towards the ball as it rolls into the net. The Russian soccer team's problems this year are not strictly technical ones — the squad's morale is low as scandals over illegal rewards offered to members surface and three top players have been dismissed from the team for accepting "bonuses."

NHL coach shuffle

The National Hockey League has a new rule this season requiring players to wear their names on the backs of their sweaters. Now, if only they would do the same for the coaches.

About half of the 18 NHL teams and the eight World Hockey Association teams have made coaching changes since last season.

Billy Reay was the dean among NHL coaches when he started his 14th season behind the Chicago Black Hawks bench last year, but he was replaced mid-way through the schedule by Bill White who now has been replaced by Bob Pulford.

That leaves Scotty Bowman of Montreal Canadiens and Fred Shero of Philadelphia Flyers sharing honors as the longest in office. Both men were appointed in June, 1971. Pulford joins Chicago after five seasons behind the bench with Los Angeles Kings who have hired former New York Rangers coach Ron Stewart as a replacement.

Also in the NHL, Johnny Wilson has moved from Colorado Rockies to replace Ken Schinkel with Pittsburgh Penguins.

Stepping into Wilson's place in Denver is Pat Kelly who coached the WHA Birmingham Bulls last season.

Yarborough leads stockcar racing

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough has virtually clinched his second consecutive Grand National stockcar racing championship as adversity has struck Richard Petty twice in a row.

Yarborough's second-place finish in the National 500 at Charlotte, N.C., in his Chevrolet on Sunday, coupled with an unusual mechanical breakdown of Petty's Dodge, gave Yarborough a 378-point lead in the 1977 chase.

Petty, a six-times national champion, dropped to third place in the standings after a broken shock-absorber bracket sidelined him early in the Charlotte race. A week earlier he wrecked.

Benny Parsons's victory at Charlotte moved him into second place and also put him in the exclusive ranks of $1-million career winners on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing circuit.

With winnings of $1,015,498, he joins Petty, Yarborough, David Pearson, Bobby Allison and Buddy Baker in the elite group.

Point leaders after 27 races are Yarborough 4,505; Parsons 4,127; Petty 4,109; Darrell Waltrip 4,067; Baker 3,579; Richard Brooks 3,380; James Hylton 3,124; Richard Childress 3,120; Cecil Gordon 3,030, and Bobby Allison 3,028.

Yarborough also leads in money won this season with $370,091. Petty has $286,240; Parsons $247,795; Waltrip $225,643; Baker $168,551; Pearson $161,101; Brooks $113,130; Donnie Allison $91,475; Neil Bonnett $84,830, and Hylton $80,060.

short notes...

Canada beats Surinam 2-1

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Canada's national soccer team kept alive its hopes of advancing to the World Cup by winning a must game, defeating Surinam 2-1 Wednesday on goals by Buzz Parsons and Mike Bakic. The score was 1-1 at the half.

Three suspended from NHL

MONTREAL (CP) — Three more players have received suspensions as a result of violent incidents in a pre-season National Hockey League game between Boston Bruins and Philadelphia Flyers last Thursday night, NHL executive vicepresident Brian O'Neill announced Wednesday.

Wayne Cashman of Boston and Paul Holmgren of Philadelphia have been suspended for their respective clubs' first three games of the regular season and Jim Watson of Philadelphia was given a two-game suspension.

The suspensions followed a league headquarters hearing Tuesday with the principals in the battling which saw 18 players ejected from the game, won 6-2 by Philadelphia. A total of 311 minutes in penalties was handed out by referee Wally Harris.

Dodger victory ties Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Cey, Steve Yeager and Reggie Smith rocked a rusty Catfish Hunter for huge home runs, and the explosion of Los Angeles power backed Burt Hooton's five-hit pitching for a 6-1 victory over New York Yankees in Wednesday night's second game of the 1977 World Series.

The Dodger victory, constructed around the home runs and Hooton's baffling knucklecurve, tied the best-of-seven series at 1-1 with the next three games scheduled for Los Angeles beginning Friday night.

Nordiques sign Jim Corsi

QUEBEC (CP) — Goaltender Jim Corsi has signed a two-year contract with Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association and will serve as the team's third-string netminder, the club has announced.

Corsi, formerly with Maine Nordiques of the defunct North American Hockey League, will back up Richard Brodeur and Don McLeod.

Richard Sevigny, who played last season with Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, was released by the Nordiques and probably will join Kalamazoo of the International Hockey League.

Arnold Palmer in Paris

PARIS (AP) — "I'm scared to death," Arnold Palmer said half-jokingly Wednesday as he prepared to drive a golf ball off an open platform atop the Eiffel Tower.

It was a publicity stunt to open a $45,000 golf tournament today. "I really don't know what it's all about," Palmer said. "And there's no way I can set any kind of personal record."

Last year, after five years of consideration and debate, Paris police agreed to let Palmer bash a drive off the tower, 345 feet above the French soil. They closed off an open area—the area into which he was to drive—for five minutes.

Draveurs edge Remparts

QUEBEC (CP) — Normand Lefebvre scored four goals Wednesday night to lead Trois-Rivieres Draveurs to a 5-3 victory over Quebec Remparts in the only game on the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League schedule.

Maurice Cayouette had the other Trois-Rivieres goal as Pierre Lacroix, Yvon Beauchamp and Chris Brinster hit the mark for Quebec before a crowd of 1,440.

Trois-Rivieres outshot Quebec 32-20 on the game. In QMJHL play tonight, Sherbrooke Beavers visit Cornwall Royals.

Beavers' Mark Green aspires to Flyers

By LEN O'DONNELL
SHERBROOKE — "My ambition is to be drafted by the Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League when my junior term is finished," says Beavers Captain Mark Green.

Green, who is the first American to be named captain of the Beavers, has been with the team for the past three seasons and this year he ends his junior career.

Mark is the son of Martin Green and Doherty Green and has two brothers, Mike and Bill, and an older sister, Lora. His home is in Cherryhill, N.J., where his father owns a chain of five restaurants.

Mark Green commenced playing hockey at the age of nine and performed in the Little Flyers League. He attended Andre Lacroix's hockey school for five years. There he was taught the fundamentals of the game.

When Lacroix decided that Mark was ready to make the jump and begin his junior career, he called the Quebec Remparts who suggested he contact Sherbrooke as Green wanted to finish his education and there were no English schools in Quebec City.

Mark graduated from high school and now attends Champlain College. He wants to make a career in professional hockey but if he can't, he does have the required marks to enter university.

"When I first came here I didn't like it very much as Coach Delage didn't give me much time. However now I realize that the Coach was right and the time I spent on the bench has paid off," says Green.

"On my arrival with the team, after a time I realized that I didn't know as much about the game as I figured. Coach Delage explained his method, as he does with all the new players, and since then things have been running along in fine style."

"The Hut is a wonderful thing and it certainly helps team spirit living all together under the same roof. As captain, it also makes my job a lot easier.

I work with Coach Delage and our main aim is to win the championship once again. We discuss all aspects and then I explain them to the players at the Hut.

"I have spoken to several players, around the circuit, and they figure we have something which they don't have, that is living in the Hut. The boys on the other clubs live in separate homes which makes the team spirit a little harder to form as they see each other only at workouts and games."

Habs blast Stars

MONTREAL (CP) — Guy Lafleur's second goal of the game at 1:41 of the third period proved to be the winner Wednesday night as Montreal Canadiens opened the 1977-78 National Hockey League season with a 7-3 victory over Minnesota North Stars.

Doug Risebrough, rookie Pierre Mondou, Doug Jarvis, defenceman Guy Lapointe and team captain Yvan Cournoyer got the other goals for the Canadiens with Nick Beverly, Pierre Jarry and Roland Eriksson replying for the North Stars.

Lafleur's two goals helped him to extend his consecutive game points scoring record to 29 in regular season play. He broke the record of 22 set by Bronco Horvath of Boston Bruins last March 24 against St. Louis Blues.

The Canadiens fired 34 shots at Minnesota goaltender Peter Lopresti while Montreal's Ken Dryden, apparently recovered from muscle spasms in his back, blocked 16 Minnesota shots before 15,252 fans.

STARS SCORED FIRST

The Canadiens enjoyed a couple of good scoring chances with LoPresti stopping Murray Wilson and Rick Chartraw before Beverly's shot from just inside the blueline eluded a screened Dryden at 4:50 of the opening period.

But Risebrough blasted a shot by LoPresti just 40 seconds later, connecting from the top of the left wing circle after taking Larry Robinson's pass.

LoPresti had no chance on Lafleur's bullet-like drive at 14:12 which put Montreal ahead for the first time and came while Minnesota's Tom Reid was serving a holding penalty.

W.I. Meetings

COWANSVILLE — The October meeting of the Cowansville W.I. took place on Tuesday, October 4, at the home of Mrs. Norman Tibbitts with fifteen members in attendance. The President, Mrs. Louise Fulford occupied the chair and the meeting opened with the Mary Stewart Collect repeated in unison followed by Salute to the Flag.

The motto for the meeting was, "There are people who will believe anything if you whisper it." In response to the roll call, members gave a recent item of interesting news.

The minutes of the September meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. Ella Brown, and approved. The Treasurer, Miss Cecile Darbe reported a bank balance of $122.97. A letter was read notifying the Cowansville Branch of the County "500 and Bridge" which will take place at Dunham Anglican Church, on Nov. 8, at 8 p.m. The Home Economics Convenor, Mrs. Phelps, solicited food from the members for this event.

The Convenor reports then followed:

Agriculture: Mrs. Tibbitts gave instructions on keeping tomato seeds from good tomatoes, drying them, and using them for planting next spring. She then excused herself and left the meeting for a short time, returning later, dressed in the garb of a farmer, with a wire basket filled with lovely brown eggs which had been gathered that day. The members responded with loud clapping of hands.

Education: Mrs. McCutcheon read from an article in The Gazette quoting Mr. Rene Levesque, on Bill 101. She concluded that school age children were being adversely affected because of the stressful climate on the education scene today.

Home Economics: Mrs. Phelps read excerpts from an article in "1001 Decorating Ideas" which stated that according to a recent study it was concluded that a warm decor makes people feel warmer. The study suggests that homes and other buildings in the north should be furnished differently from those in the south, and summer places should be treated differently from all year homes. The findings apply in summer and winter, and in all latitudes.

Health and Welfare: Mrs. Roy Jenne read from a clipping which stated that most cases of poisoning occur at home. Any non-food substance, including medicine, is a potential poison, especially for children. Keep all drugs, including vitamin pills and headache tablets, in child-resistant containers, preferably under lock and key. Another clipping read as follows: "Keep sharp, pointed objects away from your eyes. Be careful when using aerosol sprays for caustic substances. Do not rub your eye if you get something in it."

Publicity: The Convenor, Mrs. Ball called on the President, Mrs. Louise Fulford to give us an account of her eight-day trip to Switzerland early in June of this year. This was greatly enjoyed by the members.

(Space does not permit for publishing the account of the trip.)

The members of the Cowansville W.I. are most grateful to our President, Mrs. Fulford, for sharing with us this wonderful experience. Colored pictures of many of the places visited were passed around among the members and were much enjoyed by all. Mrs. McCutcheon, on behalf of the Institute, presented Mrs. Fulford with a small gift in token of our appreciation.

The drawing on the Esmond blanket took place, the winner being Miss Marion Atwell. Mrs. Tibbitts, who was in charge of this project, reported that $20.00 had been raised from this source. A motion was passed that the Cowansville W.I. add $5.00 to this amount and forward $25.00 to the District of Bedford Association of the Mentally Retarded for Camp Garagona.

A food sale was held and the sum of $16.00 was realized.

A social hour followed, during which delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Roy Jenne, Mrs. G. Phelps and Mrs. N. Tibbitts.

The next meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. Gibson on Tuesday afternoon, November 1st.

CANTERBURY — The October meeting of the Canterbury W.I. was held on the evening of Oct. 3 at the home of Mrs. Reggie Thompson with Mrs. Alice Coates as joint hostess.

The President, Mrs. Gloria Belanger was in the choir and the meeting opened in the usual manner with the singing of the Opening Ode and the repetition of the Club Women's Creed in unison.

The roll call was answered by nine members - name your household convenience for which you are most thankful.

The minutes were read and approved.

A report was given on the Compton County card party which was held in the Bury Town Hall. An enjoyable and profitable evening was spent when cards were played at 18 tables. The proceeds are to go towards the Macdonald College Building Fund.

The Semi-Annual to be held in East Clifton on the 17th was discussed. Because so many members were absent, it will be necessary for the President to find out how many could go and how. Mabel Thompson was appointed as delegate.

This group wished to make it known that they strongly object to the excessive cost of books at college level when they are used for such a short time and suddenly replaced by another expensive book. This makes it extremely difficult for those of moderate means.

The Treasurer reported a satisfactory balance on hand.

Correspondence included a thank-you from W.G. MacLeod for fruit and juices when he was ill and an invitation from the East Angus W.I. for a social afternoon with them on Oct. 22.

At this time the meeting was given over to Mrs. Rosemary Lowe who gave an excellent demonstration on "Cake Decorating". She brought the cake ready to decorate, and then gave it to the W.I. drawing. It was won by Mrs. Eileen Bilodeau, who, in turn, served it to the guests at lunch time.

Muriel Mayhew, as one of the Welfare and Health Convenors, read an article on a "New Cure for Larynx Cancer Victims".

The meeting was adjourned and a delicious lunch served by the hostesses.

AUSTIN — The Austin W.I. met in the Town Hall for the October meeting on Thursday, Oct. 6.

The motto: "Life itself can't give you joy, unless you really live it. Life just gives you time and space. It's up to you to fill it."

The Collect was repeated in unison.

Roll call was answered by 16 members and one visitor, by bringing articles for a silent auction.

Mrs. J. Lee, president, presided, Mrs. D. Dufresne, Sec., read the minutes.

Correspondence consisted of Thank-yous and literature concerning the 1978 handicraft competitions.

Agriculture convenor, Mrs. J. Robinson, read an article on Poinsettia Care. Welfare and Health convenor, Mrs. Sylvia Hopps, read an article on Vitamins.

Publicity and Pennies for Friendship convenor stated their usual contacts.

Mrs. J. Lee gave a report of the County semi-annual held in South Bolton.

Mrs. D. Dufresne gave a report on the Library and Mrs. D. Patterson read an article on "50 Years with the Austin W.I."

It was moved and seconded that $1000.00 be donated to the Memphremagog Library. After some discussion it was decided to cancel our Foliage trip for this fall and make plans for a real outing next June.

With Mrs. S. Hopps acting as dispenser, and Miss L. Pike as cashier, the silent auction table was cleared, netting $26.35.

The surprise package, donated by Miss L. Pike was won by Mrs. M. Douglas.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. Smith and Mrs. J. Robinson.

To my father-in-law: Joseph Teitelbaum.

This morning I sat down to write a poem for you ... for the first time. It was difficult to think of you without you being around, hard to write about you in the warm Sunday sun while you are underground. It would have been easier this past July and the 30 other Julys I knew you and I miss you miss you.

The first July you stood erect on a Chesapeake Bay beach resplendent in a white terry cloth robe, jaw pointing to the oncoming sea. That vision never left me and later you stood firm against oceans of political hysteria and I need you need you

The other Julys we gave you grandchildren for your special pleasure and Jessica and Josh and Jack for you to "hug and kiss" and there was no thought no thought of anything but love and the pleasure of your company.

Your visit to us was last July. You stood somewhat upright in the warm Canadian sun and you said you felt chilly and we knew you knew we all knew. We offered you a turtleneck sweater to wear and you accepted as you were accepting of the whole of life and of the hint of death. But we miss you miss you.
