'Around the World in 80 Plates'

a global gastronomic contest on Food Network

By Lois Abraham
THE CANADIAN PRESS

A 40-day gastronomic race with 12 globe-trotting chefs competing against one another is the theme of the new TV series 'Around the World in 80 Plates.'

The culinary reality show, which begins airing at 10 p.m. Monday on Food Network Canada, provides plenty of challenges for the chefs, said co-host Cat Cora, the first and only female Iron Chef.

"It's a pretty incredible race to the finish with lots of tasks involved," she said in a telephone interview from Santa Barbara, Calif. "In a lot of ways it's like 'Amazing Race' in that sense and 'Top Chef' in terms of some of the 'quickfire' challenges."

In the 10 countries visited — Argentina, China, England, France, Italy, Morocco, Spain, Thailand, Uruguay and the United States — the chefs must learn the local customs, cultures and cuisines as they battle it out in cooking challenges that test their skills and determination.

"Literally in 24 hours they had to learn where they were, they had to learn about the cuisine, they had to learn about what their challenges were, meet the challenges and then take over a restaurant, so it was a very, very intense competition," Cora said.

Each episode has two challenges. "The Course" is a high-pressure scavenger hunt that has the chefs racing around each city seeking the "exceptional ingredient" chosen by the show's producers, which Cora said may give them a leg up on their competitors in "The Takeover," the next part of the contest.

The Course "can be anything from planting rice in rice paddies in Thailand to rolling a wheel of Parmesan through Bologna to get to the next place to do their task, making tortellinis with ladies in a small little trattoria," Cora said.

Then they take over a local restaurant and reinvent its menu. "They have to prepare a menu of local foods for local diners who have pretty much been living there their whole lives," Cora said.

The team that loses this part of the match has to eliminate one of its members, who then is sent home.

Co-hosting with Cora is Australian celebrity chef and cookbook author Curtis Stone, who most recently hosted "Top Chef Masters."

Helping the contestants in each episode as local ambassadors are food personalities Wolfgang Puck, Jose Andres, Nigella Lawson, Narda Lepes and Toronto-raised Alvin Leung who now makes Hong Kong his home and has proclaimed himself the "Demon Chef." The ambassadors give the chefs insight into the local food culture at each destination and help local diners judge which restaurant best upheld the integrity of regional flavours.

The chefs knew they were going around the world, but they didn't know the destinations ahead of time. A lack of language skills was a problem in some locales, Cora noted. "They had to manoeuvre through the cities and manoeuvre through the challenges, trying to speak the universal language of food, and get what they need to get to the next destination."

The 12 chefs, who are divided into two teams, are all U.S.-based. "They're chefs from all walks of life. Some have formal culinary education and some have worked their way through. Some have been cooking for two years, some for 20," Cora said.

By the finale, set in Los Angeles, two chefs remain.

"They have a task and then have to cook for us. The ambassador in L.A. was Wolfgang Puck, so they had to cook for Curtis, myself and Wolfgang."

The winner gets $150,000, a new luxury car, plus "bragging rights and lots of opportunities that will come out of it," she said.

Cora, who heads up Chefs for Humanity which was founded following the devastating 2004 tsunami in Asia, highlighted Thailand and Bologna as favourites during her travels for the show. She'd never been to Argentina and found she loved the food there.

"It was a really great experience across the board going to all the different countries, especially the ones I hadn't been to or wasn't as familiar with and really getting a taste of those countries and really talking to the locals and working with the locals and seeing it from their point of view," she said during a quick break from shopping at Whole Foods, "multitasking as usual."

Cora has a busy lifestyle with four sons, promoting her line of cookware and her work with Chefs for Humanity. Modelled after Doctors Without Borders, the not-for-profit gathers the culinary community to raise funds and provide resources for important emergency, educational and hunger-related causes.

She has worked with Michelle Obama, wife of the U.S. president whose Chefs Move to Schools program helps educate about the need for better nutrition in public schools. Cora also was in Ethiopia and Haiti earlier this year in an effort to raise awareness for school feeding programs and other issues surrounding nutrition.

In Situ: A dance happening

An outdoor event at the Centre des arts de la scène Jean-Besré in which the company's dancers become choreographers

June 9, 2012 3:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are now on sale! Reservations: 819 822-8912 | info@sursaut.ca

Sursaut Dance Company

Founded in 1985, the Sursaut Dance Company is devoted to the creation, production and dissemination of dance shows for young and family audiences. The company's productions are presented from coast to coast in Canada as well as outside the country. Sursaut's joyful and touching creations thrill spectators young and old alike, everywhere they are presented. Since 1987, Francine Châteauvert has assumed the roles of artistic director and choreographer. From the beginning, she has worked in close collaboration with Adam Dymburt, dancer and general manager, to develop the company and to ensure the dissemination of its works. They work with a team of devoted and committed dancers and collaborators.

During the last five seasons, over 40 000 spectators have attended the company's different productions presented at home and on tour. Created in 2005 and still touring, "At nightfall" is bold in its depth and its sobriety. This audacious and poetic production continues to thrill audiences everywhere it is presented. "Bool," the company's most recent creation, is composed of short choreographic works presented as a succession of ludic tableaux. The production begins touring in Quebec during the 2011-2012 season. This year, Sursaut will be creating and presenting a "Dance Happening In Situ," an outdoor event which will include works choreographed by the company's dancers. The company is also working on "The Grasshopper and the Ant," a new creation inspired by the Jean de La Fontaine fable of the same name.

Sursaut is a pioneering figure in contemporary dance aimed at young and family audiences, and contributes to the development of professional dance outside the major urban centres. The company is very involved in its milieu and believes in the importance of arts dedicated to youth, and continues to make dance accessible to a wide audience. Since December 2007, the company is a resident member at the Centre des arts de la scène Jean-Besré, a newly constructed facility specifically built as a centre for the creation and production of dance and theatre works.

The Sursaut Dance Company is funded by the Conseil des arts et des lettres du Québec, the Canada Council for the Arts and the City of Sherbrooke.

A busy season for the
Sursaut Dance Company
Two of the company's productions were offered on tour this season. On tour since 2006, "At nightfall" was presented in Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta, and "Bool," the company's most recent creation, in its first touring season, was presented in theatres across Quebec from December to March, 26 performances from coast to coast, that thrilled spectators young and old alike.

NEW CREATION The company is now working on "The Grasshopper and the Ant," a new production inspired by the Jean de La Fontaine fable of the same name.

Semaine Québec Danse part of Canada Dance Week (April 2012) To mark this occasion, the Sursaut Dance Company presented "Aventures impromptues," two improvisation workshops with the company's dancers. These moments of choreographic spontaneity treated the audience to many surprises, and at the same time, allowed a different view of the creative process in contemporary dance. A great opportunity to celebrate the vitality of dance in our region.

CBC president says broadcaster can't 'be all things to all people'

By Cassandra Szklarski
THE CANADIAN PRESS

The president of the beleaguered CBC says the public broadcaster cannot "be all things to all people."

Hubert Lacroix, president and CEO of CBC/Radio-Canada, says expected cuts to staff and services will have "a significant impact." He outlined upcoming austerity measures in a speech today to the Economic Club of Canada in Toronto.

They include plans to sell the specialty channel Bold, reduce news, sports and music programming, and shift shortwave broadcasts of its international radio service entirely to the web.

It was Lacroix's first public address since announcing severe cuts to cope with reduced federal funding.

Earlier this year, the federal government said it was slashing about 10 per cent of CBC's subsidies over the next three years, amounting to about $115 million.

The broadcaster then said it would have to add advertisements to CBC Radio 2 and shave 175 hours of original programming from its TV schedule, including "Battle of the Blades," "Redemption Inc." and "Being Erica."

Townships musicians convert church into recording studio

By Simon Andrew Sheeran

Staycation is a happy word. It is also the name of a three-piece psychedelic garage pop band, two members of which are native Lennoxvillers who have recently acquired property – an old church and a house – in the small village of Dixville, five kilometres south of Coaticook, for which they have big plans.

Will Boire and Tim Perkins make up two-thirds of the band Staycation, a group that was formed in Toronto in 2011. Ricardo Soares, originally from Brazil, is the third member of the group, and he is currently putting the final touches on their first full-length album, "Pay What You Can't," in Teresina, Brazil. While Soares is working away in Brazil, Perkins and Boire are working hard on converting the old church into a full-scale recording studio.

"The church is perfect," says Perkins. "The ambience, the acoustics, the environment – everything is just as I would have wanted it. I've always dreamed of buying a church and turning it into a recording studio, but I never thought it would happen so soon."

Boire and Perkins have been working on the church since 2011, but recently, by a lucky chance, the house next door to the church went up for sale, so Perkins was quick to take advantage of this opportunity to expand Staycation's enterprises.

"The church's acoustics are excellent," says Perkins. "There's a little echo, just enough to add depth to the recordings. I don't like recordings that are too clear, as we often hear these days. I prefer the recordings of the 1970s, and the recordings made in the church sound more like that."

Staycation plans on renovating the church and turning it into an intimate concert venue capable of holding 100 people. And since their house has several rooms, they want to turn it into a little hotel where musicians and other guests can stay for a while – a Staycation, indeed.

"There's a beautiful atmosphere here, with the scenery, the quiet of the village, and the soft noise of the waterfall behind the church. Artists who want to record can stay for a while and enjoy the village's charms."

Dixville, a nearly unknown village five kilometres from the US border, exemplifies all that is great about the Eastern Townships. Just to the south of the village begins the forest which south of the border is known as the "Kingdom State Forest," a veritable wilderness that stretches from Dixville and continues mostly uninterrupted all the way to the east coast and covers much of New England. To the north of the village stretches the idyllic farmland of the Eastern Townships. The village is surrounded by tall hills, and a river stretches through the village and pours violently over an old broken dam in the middle of town, a striking sight. Coaticook is a short drive away. It is here, on the edge of the Appalachian wilderness, that Perkins and Boire and their productive band Staycation hope to attract musicians, tourists, people in search of a retreat. It will take a lot of work, says Perkins, but he is confident in the village's potential. Boire says that the villagers have so far greeted Staycation's presence with enthusiasm and support.

Staycation thinks they should have the place running by July, and they hope to have a grand opening in September. They have already released a demo, "They Came for the Sun," which is available for free on their website, thestaycation.ca. They plan on releasing their first full-length CD in July. Their music is relaxing, as befits their name, and is influenced by artists as diverse as Prince, David Bowie, and the Beastie Boys.

To learn more about Staycation, visit their website at www.thestaycation.ca or find them on Facebook at www.facebook.com/TheStaycation.

MOVIE REVIEW

Madagascar 3 goes under the big top: Animated film of surreal and inspired silliness

By Jay Stone
Postmedia News

Madagascar 3: Europe's Most Wanted
Starring: The voices of Ben Stiller, Chris Rock, David Schwimmer, Jada Pinkett Smith

Directed by: Eric Darnell, Tom McGrath and Conrad Vernon

Parental advisory: No problems

Running time: 93 minutes

Rating: Four stars out of five

Vertiginous, explosive, ridiculous, frantic, Canuckaphobic: pick as many adjectives as you like, because Madagascar 3: Europe's Most Wanted is wildly inventive enough to contain multitudes. "Frantic" is obvious from the first scenes of this over-cafeinated animated movie - the third in a series about four New York City zoo animals wandering the world, trying to get home - but "Canuckaphobic" kind of sneaks up on you.

It first surfaces in France, where our heroes - Alex the neurotic lion (voiced by Ben the neurotic Stiller), sassy zebra Marty (sassy Chris Rock), fearful giraffe Melman (the whatever-happened-to David Schwimmer) and dancing hippo Gloria (Jada Pinkett Smith, basically doing The Girl) - run into some complications. In France, they're told, people have to work only two weeks a year. "Somebody else has the Canadian work ethic," says one of the madcap penguins that form a surreal chorus, sort of the Marx Brothers in evening clothes, of the orchestrated insanity.

Whatever it means, it drew quiet expressions of disappointment from a Saturday morning preview audience recently. They were much more enthused later, when the animals decide to copy a certain new-age circus put on by "French-Canadians," an association that evokes the mention of maple syrup and cut-rate pharmaceuticals.

That's us, folks, and we're glad to help.

Not that Madagascar needs it. This is the fastest of a fast-moving trilogy, a compendium of hilarious characters, psychedelic special effects and in-your-face 3-D: when Marty's long neck stretches into the audience, you think he's going to eat your popcorn. The circus, with its neon lights and spiralling acts, is the ideal venue to show off this explosion of one-liners, offbeat capers and - especially when the penguins are

New albums

Ten years after death, Waylon adds to a priceless collection

COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

There are always new projects cooking in Nashville and new albums in the making. Most of them are exciting but the most thrilling one for Country Connection is definitely the new album by the late Waylon Jennings, although the others are quite interesting as well.

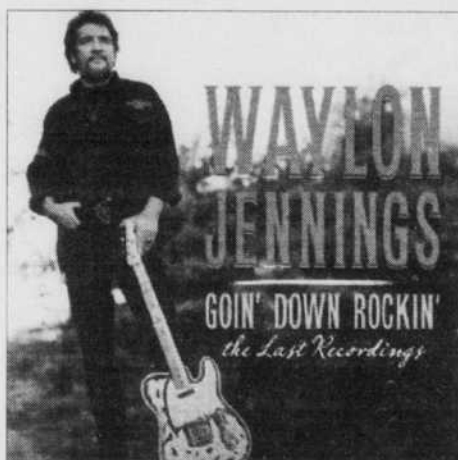

New details have been disclosed lately; here they are so you don't miss any releases.

Recorded shortly before Jennings' death in 2002, Goin' Down Rockin' will finally be available on September 11, 2012 on Saguaro Road Records.

Certainly one of Nashville's most anticipated albums, these last recordings of Waylon Jennings come into a priceless collection. It is incredible to think that we can hear new material from Jennings a decade after he passed away.

This comes as a wonderful and exciting gift for the fans of the outlaw country legend. It might be bittersweet excitement considering that Jennings is not around to share the fun but it was warmly embraced by those who knew him best — his family and peers.

Rosanne Cash, totally in awe, said, "There was never an artist like Waylon Jennings. It's such a joy to hear his honest voice, his integrity and his quintessential badassness on this new record. What a great thing for posterity that these recordings exist and were finished by Robby Turner with such care and honor."

Kris Kristofferson, who toured alongside Jennings in the Highwaymen, added, "The pure beauty of Waylon's voice — unlike any other I ever heard — has the powerful honesty and heart of the man himself. Like his outlaw companions Willie Nelson and Johnny Cash, they broke the mold when they made him. I do believe 'I Do Believe' is the only one of these new songs I've heard before, and I could listen to it forever."

It is during the 1970s that Jennings joined the now history defining Outlaw movement. He released critically acclaimed albums Lonesome, On'ry and Mean, and Honky Tonk Heroes, followed by hit albums Dreaming My Dreams and Are You Ready for the Country.

In 1976 he released the album (Wanted! The Outlaws) with Willie Nelson, Tompall Glaser and Jessie Colter, which was the first platinum country music album. The success of the album was followed by Ol' Waylon, and the hit song "Luckenbach, Texas (Back to the Basics of Love)."

By the early 1980s, Jennings was fighting a cocaine addiction, which he quit in 1984. Later he joined the country The Highwaymen along with Willie Nelson, Kris Kristofferson and Johnny Cash.

During that period, Jennings released the successful album, Will the Wolf Survive. He toured less after 1997, to spend more time with his family. Between 1999 and 2001, his appearances were limited by health problems. On February 13, 2002, Jennings died from complications of diabetes. But his music lives on!

Many will remember that Jennings also appeared in movies and television series. He was the narrator for The Dukes of Hazzard and sang the theme song "Good Ole Boys." In 2001 he was inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame. In 2007 he was posthumously awarded the Cliffie Stone Pioneer Award by the Academy of Country Music.

New release for Bocephus!

Blaster Records, in association with Warner Music Nashville, announced the details of the upcoming Hank Williams Jr. album titled Old School, New Rules, set for release on July 10. The twelve-song package will include a duet with Brad Paisley on "I'm Gonna Get Drunk And Play Hank Williams" as well as a new duet with the legendary Merle Haggard on his classic "I Think I'll Just Sit Here and Drink."

Williams' first single in several years, "That Ain't Good," has just been shipped to radio and will have a video being produced in coming weeks.

"I'm excited about this new album," Williams said. "I'm definitely 'Old School,' and I am making music with 'New Rules.' People know I'm gonna say exactly what I think and this album is exactly that."

Old School, New Rules is the first album on Hank Williams Jr.'s new label imprint, Bocephus Records, with a licensing deal with Blaster Records under a Warner Music Nashville distribution deal.

WIKIMEDIA

Elizabeth Cook

Elizabeth Cook, new album-new genre

Elizabeth Cook was asked to participate in Strawberry Music Festival's Sunday morning gospel show, which was not really her style. She reluctantly agreed, but by the time she was halfway through her set, she was surprised by how much she was moved by this music.

Perhaps she shouldn't have been; it reconnected her with music that was central to her Florida upbringing. She was moved enough to record a seven-song EP of some of her favourite Southern Gospel songs (six Gospel songs and a cover of Velvet Underground's "Jesus"). The EP, titled Gospel Plow, will be released on June 12.

Those are the projects that are different but extremely interesting — don't miss the releases! Have a nice weekend everyone!

around - inspired mishigas.

It starts where the last film left off. The zoo animals have been stranded in Africa by the penguins, who have gone to Monte Carlo with their helpers - a gaggle of banana-mad chimpanzees - and together they have formed a walking dummy of "the King of Versailles" made up of a painted monkey face with curly-haired wig, sitting on a frame wherein the penguins use high-tech controls to win at roulette.

After a sort of RifiFi break-in, the animals take off to seek their way home, pursued by French police captain DuBois (Frances McDormand), an indefatigable hunter of trophy heads who has her eye on Alex the lion. The monkeys can't even stop her with their banana-guns: she dodges the ammunition in a deranged Gallic version of The Matrix. Later, when DuBois has to inspire her troops, she sings a version of Non, je ne regrette rien - Piaf being a surefire motivation for Frenchmen - that is a mini-masterpiece of cultural stereotyping, or perhaps a commentary on it.

To escape, the animals join up with a failing circus by posing as acrobats and trapeze artists, and a whole new crew of creatures - most memorably an Italian sea lion named Stefano (Martin Short) who says things like "we were a great-a circus" - is brought on board. Together they make a new kind of circus that should finally get everyone back to New York City.

Madagascar 3 shares with its predecessors a throw-away sense of the ridiculous that hides a meticulous craftsmanship. It's evident in several high-wire chases along twisting roads or hanging from airplanes, but especially in the pyrotechnics of a multi-ring circus that hangs in the sky, a symphony of rainbow rings, explosive rocketry and bizarre animal groupings (a hippo and a giraffe on a high-wire), while various hecklers crack wise from the wings.

All of this required three directors - Monsters vs. Aliens filmmaker Conrad Vernon joins Madagascar veterans Tom McGrath and Eric Darnell (who co-wrote the screenplay with Noah Baumbach, whose credits also include Fantastic Mr. Fox.) Among them, they managed to make an insane film that's the most fun at the movies so far this summer.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH...

Where the good memories begin

Remember the summer when you were a child, and your family left for vacation?

Remember how you dreamed about what you wanted to do to make your vacation perfect? That vacation still exists at Old Orchard Beach and is waiting for your children and the child still inside of you. The beach, the arcades and amusement rides, nightly entertainment, auto races and harness racing are favorite activities in the Old Orchard Beach area. Old Orchard's Pier is the center of the recreational activities. Extending nearly 500 feet over the Atlantic Ocean, the Pier features shops, fast food, and games of skill. During the summer many special events are planned to entertain and mesmerize everyone in the family festivals, fairs, free concerts, streetdances, and fireworks most Thursday nights. Besides the Pier, the beachfront businesses offer gift and souvenir shops, restaurants, nightclubs, and arcades. You'll also find that Old Orchard Beach is ideally situated if your interests go beyond the lazy beach days and that perfect tan. The Route 1 corridor just west of town is a beehive of activity with two water parks, an amusement park, restaurants and shops. It also leads to the Maine Mall where over 140 stores await you.
