Throne speech puts economy first

QUEBEC (CP)—Independence will take a back seat to the economy in the Quebec national assembly session which opened Tuesday, as the Parti Quebecois government grapples with record unemployment in Quebec.

Premier Rene Levesque told the opening session of the assembly he has "total confidence" in the future of Quebec but anxiety about the short-term economic outlook.

He mentioned that a law creating the framework for the promised referendum on independence will be passed "as soon as possible." However he added later it was not urgent.

The bulk of the premier's inaugural address to the assembly dealt with the economy, as he called on Quebecers to buy Quebec-made products and work harder. He also appealed to public-sector employees to moderate their wage demands.

Levesque acknowledged at a news conference that there was not much new in the legislative program he outlined for the new session, the third since his government came to power in November, 1976.

"But the problems aren't new," he said. Quebec has the necessary human and material resources for an efficient economy, but what was needed was "to mobilize those resources."

CREATED JOBS

His government had allotted $330 million last year "creating jobs," $250 million of it in a program that runs until March, 1979, and it would accelerate these efforts.

Aid would be extended to ailing industries such as textile manufacturing, shoe and furniture makers, and the government would take steps to modernize the pulp-and-paper industry.

Steps would be taken to assist copper and zinc producers from the ravages of the world marketplace where these minerals are selling below what it costs to produce them in Quebec.

The premier was also critical of some Quebec industries he said were "pampered" and uncompetitive, describing their attitude as "very dangerous."

"Collectively we tend to work less than others who are our competitors," Levesque said, adding that Quebecers are living above their means.

This year the government faces contract negotiations with provincial civil servants, nurses and teachers, and the premier warned them not to get out of line in their wage demands.

Appeals Court ruling

Keable probe shut down

MONTREAL (CP)—The Trudeau government emerged the victor Tuesday in its battle to shift the spotlight off the Keable commission's dogged efforts to expose RCMP wrongdoing.

The break came, after four successive court defeats for Ottawa, when the Quebec Court of Appeal shut down the provincial commission with an order that is unlikely to be lifted for many months—if at all.

The three-man appeals tribunal ordered Commissioner Jean Keable to halt all proceedings and to turn all documentation over to Quebec Superior Court within 15 days.

Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais, who inherited the court fight from Francis Fox earlier this month, said in Ottawa, "That's exactly what we wanted. I'm elated by that decision."

Quebec Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard, acting on Keable's recommendation, announced within hours of the ruling he would take the case before the Supreme Court of Canada.

"The solicitor-general of Canada," Bedard said in Quebec City, "has succeeded for the moment in paralyzing the work of an inquiry commission into certain criminal acts and into the actions and behavior of policemen which have imperilled, and probably still do, the individual rights and freedoms of Quebec citizens."

"I cannot accept this situation, nor the Canadian government's interpretation of the federal constitution."

Premier Rene Levesque described the ruling as "very unfortunate" and a blow to the commission's effort to protect individual liberties.

Keable, a 31-year-old labor lawyer from Quebec City, showed no visible signs of disappointment when the decision was relayed to the inquiry, but made a quick exit after announcing that "hearings are adjourned for an undetermined period."

Federal lawyers meanwhile shook hands and hugged each other.

A commission source said it is likely to take at least two months before the appeal is heard, but observers estimated the commission would be shut down until the fall—probably until after the impending federal election.

Ottawa ignored spies despite RCMP report

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has known for at least seven years that nearly half of the staff at the Soviet Union's embassy in Ottawa have been employed as intelligence agents but has chosen to ignore the situation, Progressive Conservative MP Tom Cossitt said Tuesday.

Cossitt condemned the government in the Commons for not acting on the information he says was compiled by the RCMP security service. He later released figures he said were taken from the top secret file. Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais attacked Cossitt for his statements but did not deny their validity. Blais said only that Cossitt was working against the interests of national security.

The figures show that as of January, 1976, there were 28 persons working for the KGB—Soviet secret police—out of a total embassy staff of 61.

Cossitt's figures go back to 1970 and show 30 intelligence agents then out of 60 embassy employees.

The Conservative MP says the report has been shown to all solicitors-general since then as well as the cabinet committee on security and intelligence headed by Prime Minister Trudeau.

He told reporters the government is interfering with counter-intelligence activities of the security service for political reasons.

He urged the government to expel 15 Soviet officials still employed at the embassy who were not included in the 13 employees put out of the country for espionage earlier this month.

Such agreements would enable English-Canadian children moving to Quebec to attend English-language schools if their home province guarantees the right of French-Canadian to attend French-language schools.

A provision for reciprocity agreements was built into Quebec's language legislation, which currently forbids new English-Canadian residents from attending English-language schools.

Recent statements by the premiers show them favoring more Trudeau's suggestion for a constitutional amendment guaranteeing minority language education rights wherever numbers warrant.

Levesque, who has rejected that proposal, will be faced with it again when Trudeau convenes the premiers this autumn for a constitutional conference.

PQ WON'T RELEASE POPULARITY POLL

MONTREAL (CP)—A recent opinion poll conducted by the Parti Quebecois is said to show the government leading the opposition Liberals by only two percentage points—43 per cent to 41 per cent.

The Union Nationale polled 11 per cent. The results were leaked to newspapers here last weekend, but PQ officials refused to comment, saying only that the poll and others conducted every three or four months are for internal use.

A similar poll last October showed the Liberals with 32 per cent. The PQ has consistently obtained between 40 and 45 per cent since its election.

Published reports say the PQ and the Liberals are puzzled at the sudden surge in the popularity of the Liberals.

No word has been released on the methodology used in the poll.

PCS PREPARING BOMBHELL TO SINK TRUDEAU, LIBERALS

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Today says Progressive Conservative MP Elmer MacKay is to drop a bombshell in the Commons question period today.

The newspaper says sources in Opposition Leader Joe Clark's office say the disclosures will be bigger than Sky Shops and will involve Prime Minister Trudeau and at least two cabinet ministers. Sky Shops involved influence peddling in the awarding of airport duty-free shops.

MacKay declined calls from reporters Tuesday but met Bill Neville, Clark's chief of staff, to discuss the disclosures.

Neville said "it's important that we don't move on it prematurely."

"It's not a personal scandal situation; it's a more substantive matter than that."

MacKay, member for Central Nova, is known to have been working on his latest investigation for six to eight weeks, the paper says. Only Clark and one or two people in the Conservative ranks had been briefed.

Canada borrows to stabilize sagging dollar

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is going to borrow money abroad to try to slow down the sliding value of the dollar. Finance Minister Jean Chretien announced Tuesday night.

The announcement came after a slump in the dollar's value to its lowest point since the Great Depression of the 1930s, but offered no details about the amount or the timing of proposed foreign borrowings.

It is the first time in 10 years the government has sought foreign money to support the economy.

Political opponents claimed the new measures represented an admission during an election year that the economy is not being managed wisely.

Details of the planned foreign borrowing are not yet decided, a finance department official said. The government announcement is intended partly to discourage further market speculation by currency traders against Canadian economic recovery.

The dollar touched a 40-year low in foreign exchange markets this week, dipping briefly below 89 cents U.S. Monday before closing Tuesday at 89.49 cents U.S.

In a prolonged slide that has accelerated in recent days, Canada's currency has slipped from a peak of $1.03 U.S. in November, 1976.

The government's official reason for the borrowing is "to assist in financing the current account deficit of the balance of payments." In the meantime, the government will draw from a special $1.2-billion standby credit arranged last October with chartered banks.

The credit arranged through the banks four months ago was also designed to show government determination to withstand speculation against the Canadian currency.

Combing the ruins

Fire inspectors began combing the ruins of the Galt St. Technical School this morning, looking for clues to the cause of a fire which gutted the establishment Monday night. The fire broke out shortly after 5 p.m. and burned throughout the night, resulting in more than $500,000 damage. The school, formerly the Orient Hosiery Company, is a total loss.

Inspector Leopold Boudreau and city building inspector Pierre Lorrain will comb the school today. Yesterday Mr. Boudreau spoke with the six people who were in the building when the fire began in an attempt to determine where the blaze broke out.

business and finance

Solar heating's become a viable business

MONTREAL (CP) — It was a typical winter day in Quebec, sunny and minus 20. But inside Jacques and Chantal Sicotte's sun-heated home, it was a cozy plus 20. It was still warm when the sun set and would be until noon the next day, even if the sun didn't come out. A backup electric furnace would take over until the sun appeared again. Solar heating is no longer the dream of wild-eyed fanatics working out of garages. It has become a viable business for some enterprising Canadian builders.

LG 4 construction

At the La Grande Complex, in the James Bay region, preliminary work started recently at the construction site of the future LG 4 power station, some 460 kilometres east of James Bay. With the aid of powerful cranes, work proceeds on installation of a modular unit (above) at the LG 4 construction site. Dormitories to accommodate from 12 to 24 workers are built by adding several units of this kind. The first families will move into the village in August and before the year end about 100 families will be living there. The grocery store will be set up in July. In December the "municipal" services for the 180 houses and the village's community services will be established. When it is completed in April 1981, the village will be able to accommodate 280 families.

Although the federal and some provincial governments have provided research funds, the Quebec government has not directly aided any solar-heating project. Most of the impetus seems to come from entrepreneurs and inventors like Sicotte, who has so far built five solar-heated homes in Lorraine, near Montreal. Another builder at Ayer's Cliff in the Eastern Townships has designed and put up 10 solar-heated homes, the largest batch built by anyone in Canada.

"We're into the solar age—it's not theoretical any more," says Nick Nicholson, who built the homes around Ayer's Cliff, 150 kilometres east of Montreal. DISCOVERED SOLAR Sicotte is, ironically, a nuclear engineer who came across some solar experiments in France while he was doing postgraduate studies there. He began experimenting on his own and came up with a special coating, black oxide of nickel, which when baked onto copper plates causes the plates to get extremely hot when placed in the sun. He returned to Montreal just as the energy crisis struck in the early 1970s. With the aid of some friends, using materials donated by companies, he put up the first home and he and his wife moved into it. Now in its third winter, the house cost about $180 in electric bills to heat last winter.

CLC urges alternate energy probe

OTTAWA (CP) — Solar power could enable North America to escape from the triple threat of high unemployment, energy shortages and pollution, Barry Commoner, a professor from Washington University in St. Louis, said Monday.

If North America continues to rely on non-renewable energy sources such as fossil fuels and uranium, foreign companies could become the main suppliers of alternate energy technology, a further blow to the economy, Commoner said.

He was speaking to a conference on jobs and the environment sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress. Management's dependence on non-renewable energy has "precipitated the energy crisis and the decisions are being made by government executives and legislators. But again labor is on the sidelines."

The way to "to reduce unemployment and inflation and to reverse the present economic decline is to adopt a policy that would at the same time make sense out of the energy crisis and reduce pollution."

Solar energy "will stabilize the price of energy, slow inflation and improve investment planning, it will create rather than destroy jobs, it can turn the country's faltering economy around."

Solar energy includes the direct conversion of sunlight, wind power and biomass conversion of green matter into energy and costs involve mainly the equipment. It was feasible for most parts of North America.

Labor can no longer accept arguments that opposition to new power developments is opposition to development—and jobs, Commoner said. Labor must look to the alternatives which would produce jobs and solve other problems as well.

yourself. We need oil for things like plastics.

"And the government can't tax the sun."

Sicotte's home also harnesses the sun to provide about a third of his hot water in winter and 80 per cent in summer. His swimming pool is solar-heated.

Each of the homes he built has a distinct style, with the same heating system—16 hollow, flat solar panels mounted on a 60-degree pitched roof to get the maximum heat intake even when the sun is at its lowest point.

The sun shines on the glass-topped panels to heat the air inside the cavity, which is collected in ducts and fan-blown through the house or into a rock-filled 384-cubic-foot bin in the basement for storage.

Sicotte says the simplicity of the system is its strong point. "We use air, rock and glass."

The collectors, ducting and thermostats cost $5,000, about $3,500 more than a conventional hot air system. "It'll pay itself off in about eight years, at today's cost of energy."

His latest three-bedroom home in a wooded suburb costs $45,000, solar heating installed.

Sicotte, his brother and an architect friend have formed Thermo Solar Inc. to produce and sell the solar panels which he has patented. Although there is not enough demand for continuous production, panels have been sold in the United States and Ontario. He hopes eventually to sell franchises across the country.

The three are building a solar-heated, six-unit townhouse in nearby Laval. The National Research Council put $60,000 into the project, which is to be ready in June. The homes will sell for $33,500 each.

Nicholson, 48, a former landscape architect who came to Canada from Long Island, N.Y., nine years ago, says his 10 solar homes, created on the same principle as those of Sicotte, cost around $100 a year to heat.

The homes were also built commercially without government aid, Nicholson said. "You tend to be more careful with your own money."

The latest, called Solar 10, a 1,200-square-foot house, with two bedrooms, on two acres of land, sold for $45,000.

More Ford recalls...

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. is recalling about 47,000 U.S.-built vans and trucks to check for possible automatic transmission defects, the automaker said Monday.

Involved are 1978-model Econoline vans, Club wagons, Broncos and F-Series pickup trucks equipped with optional tilt steering wheels and automatic transmissions. Another 2,600 Canadian-built models also will be checked.

A Ford spokesman said in some of the units a transmission selector-lever reaction spring may have been assembled wrong.

Airlines may fold

FREDERICTON (CP) — J. Robert McGee, market research manager for CP Air, says three of Canada's seven major airlines might disappear by 1985 because of the current economics of the airline industry.

"We have more airlines than Canada's financial position can merit," McGee told delegates Monday to the semi-annual meeting of the Travel Research Association of Canada.

McGee did not specify what airlines he thought might go out of business or be absorbed into the remaining four airlines.

Anti-dumping measures taken

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Joe Guay has announced a series of moves to prevent foreign steel suppliers from dumping their product in Canada because they cannot sell it in the United States.

The announcement is the first action the government has taken to answer concerns expressed by opposition about the policy of the U.S. and the European Economic Community to protect their domestic steel industries.

Nordair plans criticized

OTTAWA (CP) — The director of investigation and research for the federal department of consumer affairs and corporations has objected to the proposed acquisition of Nordair Ltd. by Air Canada.

Robert J. Bertrand said in a letter to the Canadian Transport Commission made public Monday he is concerned that the acquisition might affect competition and lead to excessive concentration in the air carrier industry.

Asbestos Corp. opposes takeover

MONTREAL (CP) — Asbestos Corp. Ltd. said Monday in a letter which told shareholders of increased earnings and capital equipment expenditures that it still opposes the Quebec government's plan to acquire control of the company.

It said takeover negotiations had not yet started because studies by the government and the company have not been completed.

But Asbestos Corp. reiterated that the plan to gain control of the province's second-largest asbestos producer was not "the best, or even a good way" to achieve the government's goal of increasing the manufacture of asbestos in the province.

The government plans to set up a public corporation to purchase control of Asbestos Corp. and ensure a "Quebec presence" in the asbestos industry with the aim of creating more jobs.

The company said in its letter that net income for 1977 was $21 million, or $7.40 a share, compared with $20.4 million, or $7.19 a share, in 1976.

Insulation grants available

QUEBEC (CP) — Owners of single family dwellings built before 1946 in Quebec will be eligible for grants of up to $500 under a provincial insulation program, Quebec Energy Minister Guy Joron announced Monday.

The program, separate from a federal plan already in effect, will provide 25 per cent of the cost of materials and manpower worth a maximum of $2,000. The minimum value of work eligible for a grant will be $750.

The program covers extra doors, double windows, sealants, thermostats and other temperature control material as well as insulation. It also covers manpower costs.

Robbery suspect enters no plea

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Gaetan Roy, 19, of East Angus, entered no plea at his arraignment on charges of complicity to commit an armed robbery in Cowansville, Feb. 6, and attempted armed robbery at the Cowansville branch of the Royal Bank, Feb. 7. Defence lawyer Peter Turner chose trial before a judge alone which was fixed to Feb. 21.

Judge Gerard Normandin ordered Roy remanded in custody pending final disposition of his case following a bail hearing when he learned Roy was on ticket of leave (parole) when the crimes were committed.

Andre W. Barsalou, of Cowansville, who had been cited to the spring term of the local assizes following a preliminary hearing on five counts of fraud, four of theft by a person in charge, and one of simple theft for an approximate amount of $84,000 from Bruck Mills Ltd., changed his option and chose trial before a judge alone. His case will be heard June 13.

Marielle H. Wilson, Cowansville, changed her option and pleaded guilty to a charge of willful property damage in the Town of Brome Lake. Crown attorney Noisieux told the bench he had no proof to offer on a charge of breaking and entering and the charge was quashed.

Defence lawyer Peter Turner said it was the result of a family argument and suggested a suspended sentence would amply serve the interests of justice.

Mr. Noisieux said he had no objection to the suggestion of the defence if it was accompanied by a one-year probation order with the condition the accused be prohibited from communicating with her father. Judge Normandin handed down the sentence suggested by the crown.

YM Circus featured tumbling clowns

This is really an old-time remembrance — the Y.M.C.A. Circus! There is nothing now left at the site on Dufferin Avenue to indicate that the Y existed there and was, at one time, the centre for all the growing boys in Sherbrooke.

It was a not-too-large brick building that stood just opposite an imposing edifice that housed, on its ground floor, an insurance company and had apartments on the two floors above.

The Y was set well back from the sidewalk. There was a low iron railing around the lawn and a walk that led to its front entrance. The YMCA sign hung above the door and there was a glass-enclosed notice board against an outside wall.

This place was the Mecca of Sherbrooke's young manhood when I was a girl. Unlike the present fashion, there never seemed to be a crowd hanging around outside. I can't even remember seeing many bicycles. Occasionally, two or three boys might lounge to girl-watch, on the wooden bench that ran along the narrow porch, but the action was definitely on the inside. No female, of course, was ever to discover much about that! I know, from report, that there was a sort of clubroom-cum-library at the front of the building, to the right as one entered. Here the boys gathered to talk, exchange ideas, trade rides, and make plans. Here they could read, "The corners. Downstairs was the swimming pool. This was the first time that I had ever heard of such a miracle. It staggered my imagination to entrance as I remember. It seemed like an enormous room to us. Dumbbells hung around on the walls, ropes were suspended from the ceiling, and there were mattresses and other equipment piled up in the think of swimming inside a building or to actually put on one's bathing suit in the wintertime!

How we girls envied those favored young princes! I don't suppose that at anytime, we ever dreamed that the Y.W.C.A. would take shape in the form of the MacKinnon Memorial — and in our own young days!

The one and only chance that we had to enter the Y and probe the mystery of its masculinity was when we attended the annual Y Circus. This was primarily an exhibition to demonstrate the gymnastic prowess of the local budding athletes, and was combined with a show by enthusiastic tumbling clowns, all under the direction of that most impressive Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Glen Sampson. He was unforgettable! There surely has never been a more perfect M.C. for that type of thing. How elegant he looked! How superbly he strutted about the circle of the floor! He was short in stature, grey-haired and very handsome. He wore white breeches and high, shiny boots, a black frock coat, a ruffled shirt and a splendidly high top hat. He was, to us, a spectacular and totally magnificent figure. The applause that greeted his every appearance remained undiminished through all the years that I attended the performances.

To see this exciting production, we sat in an upstairs balcony that had downward slant in order that a good view of the gym floor could be commanded from every seat.

The Y Circus was a major highlight in our rather meager social life. We were very young girls, but toujours girls! We had not yet achieved the make-up stage, but we did try desperately to make our straight hair look curly, to make the most of our unimpressive figures, and we bit our lips vigorously and often to make them an eye-catching crimson. At this event, the familiar, everyday school boy was transformed into a combined Atlas and Apollo. Before our wondering eyes he would perform extraordinary feats of strength and skill. Red faced, perspiring profusely but undaunted, he would run, leap, swing, and lift weights, all this to the thin tinkle of piano music!

After perhaps two hours of the various exercises, the demonstration would come to a most spectacular finale. All the lights would go out. We would hear a subdued shuffling down in the gym below us and then, suddenly, miraculously, there would be small golden globes of light dancing about in glorious patterns through the velvet dark, up and down, over and around, all with beautiful and disciplined precision. The boys would have entered the gym softly, after the lights had been extinguished, each one bearing two flashlights, so that when the drill began, the illusion it created was one of brilliant and unexpected beauty — every single year!

Of course, our tastes were unsophisticated and unduly by television, Olympic Games and world championships of every description. This gymnastic demonstration held a bewitchment for us that has lasted through the years and has never been surpassed.

As I recall, the Circus took place in the spring. We would look forward to it for weeks. Every day, on my way home from the convent, I would see small groups of boys running into the Y, presumably to practice for the great event. It was held on a weekend and was performed on both Friday and Saturday nights.

We would dally over the buying of our tickets enjoying a too brief and heady period of tenuous popularity among the young men in our lives, as they vied for our patronage. The tickets sold for twenty-five cents if one were adult, but only fifteen cents for us. This left us, from our weekly dole, a whole dime with which we could buy two separate lots of the luscious fudge that mothers made and wrapped in paper napkins to be sold.

The Y has vanished now and lives only as a memory, but there must be many "grown-up" boys in Sherbrooke who will remember those wonderful spring nights when they enthusiastically carried out Shakespeare's words, "He capers, he dances, he has the eyes of youth!"

Thin ice causes tragedy

ROCK FOREST (JC) — The body of seven-year-old Danielle Loiselle was recovered from the Magog River only 15 minutes after she and her older sister fell through thin ice yesterday afternoon.

Line Loiselle, 9, was rescued from the icy water by Mario Desloges who was helping the Loiselle family move into their newly-bought bungalow on the river. Mr. Desloges said it was impossible to save the younger girl.

"I wanted to pull her out, but she sank so quickly. I broke my heart, but I could not go out any further on the ice," he said.

The two girls were walking on the frozen river when the fatal accident occurred at 2 p.m., the day after the family bought the house on the river.

Mr. Desloges said he heard the girls scream, saw them sink into the river waters, and went to their rescue.

"I grabbed an old door, and laid it on the ice, to give myself a longer reach. Line grabbed ahold, but Danielle disappeared," he said.

Line, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Leonette Loiselle, was taken to Saint-Vincent de Paul Hospital and treated for exposure. Mrs. Loiselle was treated for shock, and the pair were released later yesterday afternoon.

Danielle's body was recovered by members of the Rock Forest municipal police force and fire department.

Penfield accused free on bail

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Crown attorney, Claude Noisieux, produced but one witness in the preliminary hearing of Paul Joel Bocq here yesterday.

Bocq is accused of breaking and entering and theft of goods valued at $75,000 from the estate of the late Dr. Wilder Penfield in Brome County between Sept. 19 and Sept. 23, 1977 and possession of goods valued at $36,000 which he knew had been obtained through the commission of a crime in Brome County between Sept. 19 and Sept. 23 in Montreal Sept. 29.

Bocq, a 41-year old French citizen, then renounced his rights to a preliminary hearing and was cited to the next term of the local assizes by virtue of Article 476 of the Criminal Code.

Mr. Noisieux then told the court he had no objection to granting the freedom of the accused on the conditions he post $5,000 cash bail, report any changes of address to the court, and remain within Quebec pending final disposition of his case, as he lacked his two principal witnesses.

"It would be an abuse of his liberty for him to be detained under those circumstances," Mr. Noisieux said.

Judge Bernard Legare told the accused he could obtain his freedom under the conditions suggested by the crown. He then upheld a motion by defense lawyer Pierre Gibeau that the accused be cited to the fall term of the assizes with the concurrence of the crown.

The 1978 fall term of the District of Bedford Assizes opens in Granby on Sept. 5, 1978 at 10 a.m.

A strange view

Premier Levesque believes in the survival of Canada. Or so he told a group of student newspaper representatives from the Three Rivers area in a recent interview.

The premier told the students nothing particularly new or exciting, but he put several ideas together in a manner he's never used before. He went on to say Canada as he envisioned it would be comparable to Benelux, the European financial community.

In his idea of Canada, there would be no federal taxation and Quebec would have a "complete" government. The relation between Quebec and the rest of Canada would resemble a common market, in that "there would be two governments, two societies."

It is at this point that the premier made his first big admission: A sovereign Quebec cannot claim to be 100 per cent self-sufficient, but the province's degree of self-sufficiency can be increased.

It's just possible that Premier Levesque has wittingly or unwittingly given away the wording of the referendum on independence. Most observers agree that a two-nations trade concept is the most popular among the party caucus; it is generally known that Quebec is hoping to spark Canada-wide interest in defusing the increasing power of the federal government.

The rest of the interview was devoted to the premier's explanation of what the Parti Quebecois government's social democratic orientation is all about.

Mr. Levesque said his party's concept was closer to that of the New Democratic Party than to European socialism in that it concentrates the decision-making power on the people, who must be "educated, informed and free."

There's no doubt the current government has vested more apparent decision-making power on the people than has been done in the past, but the key word here is apparent. The many ministerial tours throughout the province for consultation on various green papers SEEM to vest more of the decision-making powers with the people, riding committees seem to have more say in party decisions and the channels of communication appear to have opened since the heyday of Robert Bourassa's sojourn in the bombproof bunker under the legislature buildings.

But we challenge the Parti Quebecois concept of social democracy on the grounds that it seems to entertain only those concepts for which it has room for in some pre-ordained scheme of things.

In this respect, the referendum is only the fulfillment of a concept which will be reflected in the wording of the question; as people used to say, it'll be a Hobson's Choice.

There's no point guessing what the wording will be, and we'll bet it'll be structured in such a way that in his right mind would vote against few would vote against it.

Only Claude Ryan has proposed an alternative to Mr. Levesque's two-nations concept; Mr. Ryan sees a united Canada divided into five regions which would do much to bridge the big-province small-province gap.

What all this means is we've got to watch every word our Quebec politicians are saying these days. There's not a fool in the bunch where brains are concerned, and sooner than we think, this million-piece jigsaw puzzle is going to come together.

The big picture is there. Let's look for it.

JAMES DUFF

Woe is us

Oh, woe is us. Brazil has just announced that 10 per cent of the coffee crop has been destroyed by another drought.

This may be no big deal to you non-coffee drinkers, but to caffeine addicts like ourselves, it's panic in Needle Park. The last time the Brazilians lost their crop, the price of a restaurant cup rocketed from 15 cents to 35, where it has hovered for the last year or so. Your average bag of middling-quality beans run around $3.50, better blends upwards of $5.

How long must we groan under this oppressive yoke? How much longer can our beleaguered caffeine-dependent bodies labor to pay for this increasingly onerous drug habit? When will it start to take the food from our mouths and the mouths of our children?

Oh, how we groan at the sight of a flashy, slick Ricardo Montalban strolling through the coffee plantations of South America, nodding to wealthy peons, their fingers dripping with diamonds bought with proceeds from the foul trafficking in this drug, as he extols the virtues of some brand of coffee or other... it makes no difference, as long as the caffeine is there.

Oh, we swear off. We vow we'll never again support this craven market, we promise on a warehouse of Bibles that the next cup will be the last.

Or maybe the one after that....

Terrorism covers gamut of possibilities

"The only part of MP Tom Cossitt's accusations about secret arms shipments and funding to terrorists in Eastern Canada we can't figure out," editorialized James Duff in the February 16 Record, "is who would be in the terrorism business right now. In Quebec, we have a populist government which includes amongst its backers many of the 600 or so Front de Liberation du Quebec members and sympathizers who were arrested in midnight raids and dragged off to police cells on October 17, 1970" during the last epoch of terror here. "Does Mr. Cossitt honestly believe these are the new terrorists?" Examining the political opposition, Duff states, "The chances of organized Anglophone insurgency are slim." And he concludes, correctly in light of his evidence, that Cossitt's charges and rumors of terrorism in general are "Dusty hogwash".

However, the functions of terrorism are not to be confused with those of conventional mass uprisings. Terrorist attacks are not riots, stemming from widespread unrest, nor are they necessarily to be equated with organized guerrilla warfare. Terrorism is in fact but a prelude to riots and guerrilla warfare: a fuse toward explosion, not the explosion itself. Moreover, terror campaigns by design do not aim at the ideological target, so that correlating victims and objectives is at best misleading, often downright impossible. Frequently an unstable government will even launch a terror campaign against itself, through agents provocateur.

Simply put, terror seeks to increase governmental power, not reduce it. A revolutionary terrorist wages terror to goad government into cracking down, as happened on October 17, 1970, with the War Measures Act. Such a crack-down serves revolution three ways. First, it demonstrates governmental inability to maintain order through any but dictatorial means. A government cracking down on dissidents is by definition an insecure, unstable government, desperate to remain in power, unlikely to succeed except through force. Second, as previously peaceful dissidents and other innocent individuals are arrested, imprisoned, beaten, tortured, and perhaps killed, dissidents in general are increasingly pushed together, molded by government itself into a desperate, fighting guerrilla army. Through direct means, few revolutionary terrorists could get up an army of any kind; but when government cracks down indiscriminately, terrorist leaders need only assume command of the victims, supplying their hurt and anger with arms and targets. Third, when a government cracks down, it necessarily consolidates power, more than ever concentrating authority in itself. A decentralized, truly populist government cannot be overthrown by coup d'etat, simply because all significant authority can never be rounded up at once and quickly disposed of. A centrist, authoritarian government is by contrast overthrown readily by just a few committed rebels and a tank or two - as happens with monotonous regularity throughout Africa, South America, and Central America, where decentralized, populist governments have yet to take hold. Thus, every action government takes toward strengthening itself ironically increases chances it will

by Merritt Clifton

topple.

A terrorist acting on behalf of government, such as the FBI agents who infiltrated U.S. dissident groups during the sixties, has much the same purpose in mind as the revolutionary terrorist: he hopes to cause a crack-down. Where the revolutionary hopes terrorism will bring a crack-down directly, however, the agent provocateur hopes terrorism will raise public outcry for the crack-down, thereby forestalling any outcry against it afterward. Typically the revolutionary will bomb a government office, attempting to directly offend government, while the agent provocateur will bomb a crowded bus terminal, attempting to offend the public against the "revolutionaries" presumed guilty.

Understanding the psychology and politics of terror, one need only look at the news to recognize it could explode here at any time, from any direction. The embattled Mounties have sought to divert attention from their own terrorist activities in recent years by 'uncovering' an alleged Soviet spy ring. Mountie officials have discussed the spy ring openly, while stonewalling on their barn burnings, dynamite thefts, and illegal mail-openings; and, naturally, the spy ring has taken over public attention. But remembering how the Mounties fooled us before with planted and invented tales, we must not ignore the possibility that Mountie terrorism continues today. The Mounties could provoke a string of bombings and assassinations to prove their asserted need to open letters and raid newspaper offices without warrants, to eliminate critics and witnesses, or even to manipulate public opinion against separatists again to where armed occupation of Quebec would appear to be generally desired. Such an occupation would of course depose the peacefully elected Parti Quebecois, as well as rounding up other dissidents.

The St. Jean Baptiste Society and other radical separatist factions could themselves contemplate terror, terror that could be blamed on either the Mounties or Quebec Anglophones. Either way, terrorist bombings and shootings of Francophones could trigger the kind of outcry against Anglophones and English Canada that the Parti Quebecois needs to win the separation referendum. As the FLQ illustrated in killing Pierre Laporte, some members will not hesitate to kill innocent individuals under any circumstances, if they feel it will help bring about an independent Francophone state.

The Anglophone population here, being comparatively elderly and traditionally politically apathetic, is actually the least likely source of Quebec terrorism. Yet any lone nut can carry out terrorist actions. Again, terrorist groups are seldom large, or terribly representative of any special segment of the population. The most publicized terrorist group in recent years, the Symbionese Liberation Army, consisted of two ex-convicts born in utter poverty, five upper-middle-class refugees from 'straight' life, and one kidnapped millionaire - not even a representative cross-section of Berkeley, where the group originated.

We should also not overlook the chance that terrorists operating within Quebec could actually come from elsewhere, with other than conventional terrorist motives. The Weather underground, for instance, has largely drifted into Canada from the United States, partly following draft resisters, partly escaping prosecution more recently. Significant but uncounted numbers of Weathermen live in and around Montreal as both legal and illegal aliens, forming a community not unlike the exiled Russian Bolsheviks in Berlin, following their unsuccessful 1905 uprising. The Weathermen, like the Bolsheviks, seek revolution toward establishing their particular political philosophy, not toward achieving any special cultural objectives. What political entity they seize command of matters less than the fact of command itself. Just as the Bolsheviks endangered the German monarchy until Kaiser Bill returned Lenin to Russia with the arms and equipment to overthrow the Czar in 1917, so the Montreal Weather faction could try to gain a piece of Quebec. The Townships, with a relatively high English-speaking population and relatively great resistance to the Parti Quebecois, could well be the piece Weathermen would seek. Their method would involve terrorism against both French and English, designed to create chaos from which a Weather army would emerge as strongest, most stable political faction.

Nor are the prospects of terrorism here merely speculation. While no major wave of bombings and shootings has erupted since the War Measures Act, signs that individuals here and there prepare for terror are unmistakable. Seemingly unrelated but otherwise inexplicable incidents amount to a sort of underground arms race when placed in juxtaposition. For instance, last summer in Montreal police apprehended an automobile containing a trunkload of stolen guns and licence plates, after a high-speed chase in which the occupants and two other people were killed. Only one news broadcast and no other reports mentioned the guns, however, as if police sought to hush up that part of the story. Not long before, a man was killed while building a bomb in a Montreal suburb. The same week, one hundred explosives detonators vanished from a warehouse in Plattsburgh, New York, but a short drive south of the Quebec border.

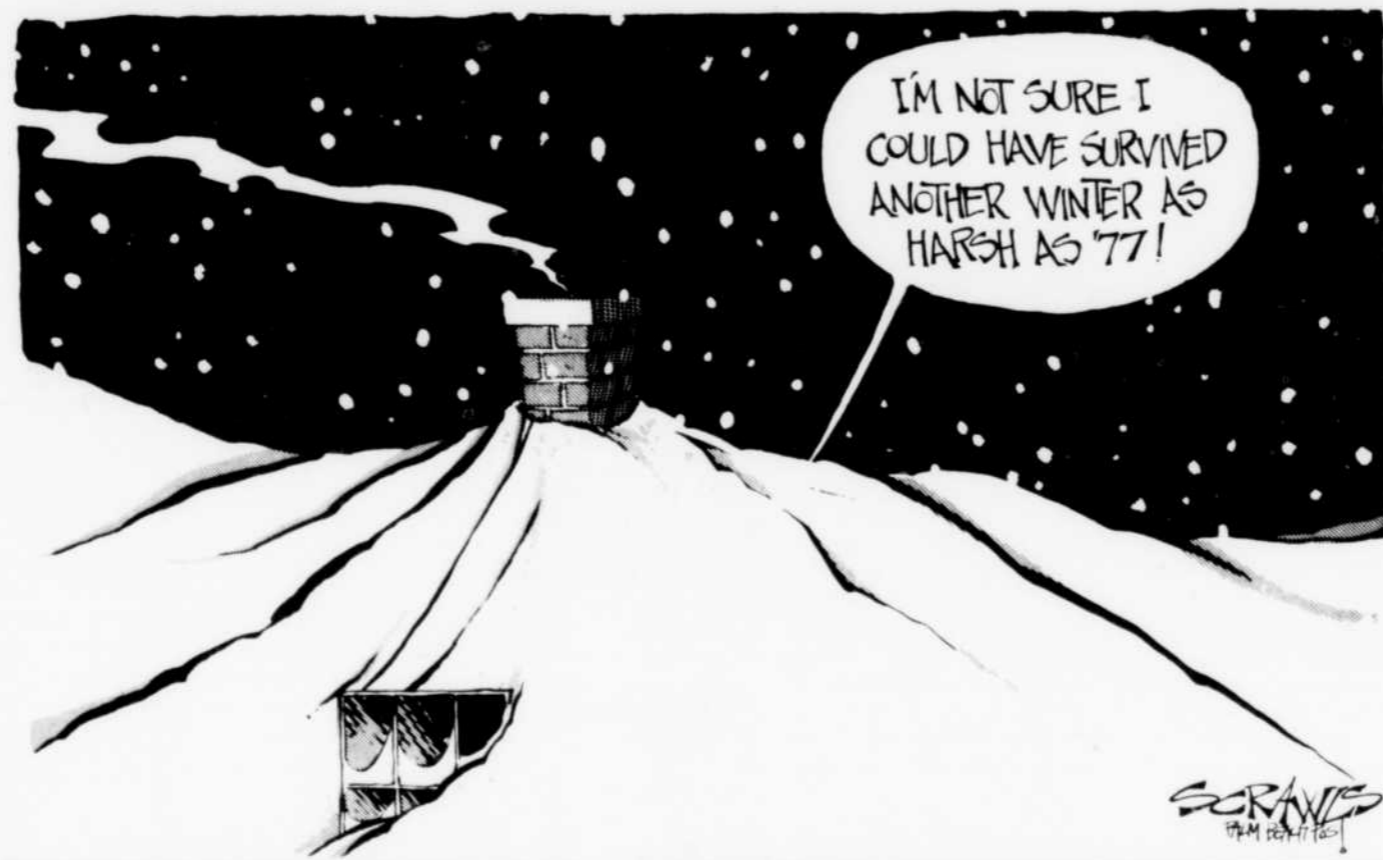

Tom Cossitt is no doubt grandstanding in the tradition of the late Senator Joe McCarthy when he fingers this group and that group as a Communist arms conduit into Quebec. But Montreal has been one of the world's major clearing houses for illegal and underground weaponry throughout this century. Since the U.S. pulled out of Vietnam, leaving behind thousands of automatic rifles, unused hand grenades, mines, and other armaments, the Communist regime there has sold those arms to Cuba; Cuba has distributed them throughout Africa and South America; and deals for U.S.-made ammunition have been negotiated in Montreal, handy to the U.S. manufacturers, open to Cubans as U.S. cities are not. Mafia weapons have been exchanged and 'cleaned' in Montreal since prohibition. Montreal rates second only to New York City as a clearing-house for guns and ammo enroute to Northern Ireland. Confirmation may not come in official police statistics, but will come from any insider within the international arms trade. If a market for such armaments develops within Quebec itself, the international dealers will not hesitate to sell locally as well as elsewhere.

The unregistered anti-aircraft gun used to rob a Montreal bank several years ago did not come here by accident. And a major but unspoken reason for Canada's new gun-control law may well be to cut back on the arms marketing, as well as on domestic possession of handguns.

Terrorism can be defeated. It cannot be defeated, however, with repetitions of the War Measures Act, which only solidified Francophone opposition to federalism, and indirectly aided the Parti Quebecois. When government adopts terrorist methods, such as arrests tantamount to kidnappings and agent provocateur terrorism itself, terrorism holds sway, and just who the terrorists are doesn't really matter any more: we all of us have lost our freedom, our right of dissent. A dictatorship from the status quo is as bad as one established by successful revolutionaries; both must be resisted.

Terror can in fact be beaten only by refusing to become terrified, only when each and every one of us prizes our lasting freedom more than our momentary security, walking the streets unafraid. If we have the courage to carry on life as usual, despite bombs perhaps exploding around us, the terrorists gain no leverage against us, and will eventually be apprehended. Such passive resistance is difficult, yet no other method has ever succeeded. Passive resistance, for example, gradually ended terrorism in Northern Ireland, after a decade of governmental crack-downs only placed the country in an enduring state of siege. I myself was present when passive resistance - a mass march between armed National Guardsmen and diehard insurrectionists - ended the People's Park uprising in Berkeley, 1969, after a dozen people were shot and hundreds injured. Revolutionary terrorists and government agents provocateur had very nearly succeeded in dividing the city into opposing camps, ready for organized warfare, but 50,000 cool heads fortunately prevailed.

Ultimately James Duff is probably right: the more we consider the threat of terrorism to be "dusty hogwash", the less threatening it becomes. Ignoring it will not make it go away, but we do thereby deprive terrorists of any power beyond the ability to kill a few people; place them in perspective as contemptible common punks, utterly unrelated to the many peaceful dissidents whom they'd draw into suicidal violence.

Jack Anderson's Washington Merry-Go-Round

Intelligence reports belie claim

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat will now get the U.S. war planes he bought during his recent Washington visit. There are rumblings, in fact, that the United States might replace the Soviet Union as Egypt's principal arms merchant.

Sadat explained during his whirlwind stay that the Soviets had cut off arms sales to Egypt after the Yom Kippur War ended in 1973. "The Soviet Union put an embargo on and refused to replace any arms," he stated flatly. Because of the Soviet cutoff, he kept pressing for greater military aid from the United States.

Sadat's claim is contradicted, however, by intelligence reports, which show he received enough Soviet military equipment to wage another war. Sources with access to the secret reports tell us that the Soviets replaced most of the arms lost by Sadat's forces during the ill-fated war. They also continued to provide sophisticated new weapons.

As late as 1975, Egypt received about $1.5 billion worth of Soviet arms aid, our sources report. Russian spare parts and ammunition arrived on a regular basis. Tanks, anti-aircraft missiles and other modern weapons also reached Egypt from Soviet factories.

Some of the arms came by indirect shipment. For example, sophisticated Soviet weaponry was delivered to Latakia in Syria and then was transhipped to Egypt, our sources say. Other military gear was transhipped through Eastern European countries such as Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia.

From secret intelligence reports, we have pieced together the following details:

— In early 1975, Russia sent six supersonic MIG "Flogger" fighters to Egypt aboard a Soviet freighter. The sophisticated jet fighters are designed to strike deep into enemy territory and to intercept attacking planes.

— In late 1974, the Soviets sent several shipments of spare parts and ammunition to Egypt. Competent sources say these shipments were made on a regular basis.

— The Kremlin has also sent the following arms to the Egyptians since 1973: 50 rebuilt MIG engines; approximately 30 MIG-23 combat aircraft; 25 Sukhoi-20 combat planes; 30 batteries of SAM-2, SAM-3 and SAM-6 anti-aircraft missiles; 15 SCUD ground-to-ground missile launchers; six FROG ground-to-ground missile launchers; hundreds of tanks; two landing craft for tanks; and hundreds of armored personnel carriers, artillery pieces and anti-aircraft cannon.

— Pipeline Politics — Putting politics ahead of the need for cheaper coal, the Transportation Department has quietly slowed down the efforts to construct coal slurry pipelines.

Several pipelines are scheduled to carry granulated coal, mixed with water, from western mines to industrial users. This not only would reduce the nation's dependence upon oil but would make the coal available at lower cost.

But the railroads, many of them already in financial trouble, don't want to lose the coal-hauling revenue. They have brought quiet pressure on Transportation Secretary Brock Adams to block the pipelines.

Adams argued against the pipelines at the Cabinet meeting on Jan. 30. According to the confidential minutes, President Carter asked about "the status of the coal slurry pipelines."

Adams said that, in his opinion, "it would not be advisable to build slurry pipelines in the mid-West in the light of the bankruptcy of several railroads." He described the situation as "delicate."

Questionable Judge — The nomination of Jack Turner, an attorney from the state of Washington, to a federal judgeship has the backing of two of the Senate's most powerful figures, Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Warren Magnuson, D-Wash.

But questions have been raised over Tanner's long friendship with a Puyallup Indian multimillionaire, named Bob Satiacum, who is involved in gambling, liquor and cigarette vending enterprises. When Satiacum was accused of violating state tax laws, Tanner turned up as his attorney.

But Tanner's role allegedly became more than just legal when warrants were issued for more than $1 million against his client. The signature of the Tacoma lawyer was found on the registrations for two of Satiacum's luxury cars. This prevented state authorities from seizing them as tax forfeitures.

Tanner claims the cars were registered in his name without his knowledge and that the signatures were forgeries. He denies operating as a front to protect his client's property from state seizure.

But our reporter, Jeann Linsley (CQ) has learned that in April, 1973, Tanner paid off the balance owing on Satiacum's flashy Pontiac sports car with a $5,458 cashier's check. The check was drawn on the account of a Tacoma bank which lists Tanner as a director, and the transaction took place in his office.

Previous installments had been mysteriously paid in cash, according to a spokesman for the dealership which sold the auto. Tanner told us he paid for the Pontiac because the dealer refused to allow Satiacum to do so personally. The judicial nominee said he merely had acted as his client's attorney in the matter and insisted it was not improper.

The FBI, meanwhile, has inquired into the Tanner-Satiacum relationship.

Goodwill tournament

Waterloo hockey meet's a hit

By TERRY SCOTT
Of the Record

It was billed as a meeting of goodwill in Waterloo over the weekend and when it was over eight hockey teams proved that you can be friends and rivals at the same time.

The pleasantries began early Saturday afternoon when the Bedford Bruins — one of four teams here from Massachusetts on a hockey exchange — prepared to face off against their Bantam counterparts from Waterloo.

There were the usual shy grins and affectionate backslapping but it soon yielded to the thump of solid bodychecks and the occasional flare of tempers, proving again that in hockey hospitality does not always begin at home.

But the first game in this total point tournament provided long moments of entertainment and stunned rooters from both sides of the border as Bedford overpowered the Bantam Maroons 6-3.

"This must be a terrible blow to the Waterloo people," noted an observer whose own son was suiting up to play for the Waterloo Bantam "B" squad later in the afternoon. "This team is their pride and joy," he stated.

Rocked by three first period goals within two minutes, the Maroons never recovered, as John Isnor of the Americans singlehandedly fashioned the upset by scoring four goals.

The weekend competition, which involved two Bantam teams, one Atom and a Pee-Wee squad from each town, will resume in Bedford in late March and the winner will take home the Goodwill Hockey Meet Trophy.

Many of the American youngsters are no strangers to Waterloo since the Can-Am hockey exchange began several years ago but was temporarily discontinued in 1974. Performances such as the Bantam victory indicate the Bedford boys have bided their time constructively.

"You have to remember that ours is a small hockey program," Dan Collins, president of the Minor Hockey Association in Bedford and coach of the Bantam "B's", said before the start of the tournament. "We have only 60 boys enrolled and we may play about 40 or 45 games per year."

Collins added that a program beyond the Bantam category doesn't exist since high school hockey is a huge attraction and boys are prevented from playing in both leagues at the same time.

The Bedford organization also has a different approach toward competition since their schedule does not call for any travelling outside the home rink. The Waterloo minor hockey setup, for example, of ten requires youngsters to compete, in other towns.

"I would still call Bedford, like a lot of areas in Massachusetts, a hockey hotbed," stated Collins. "It's not quite as hot as the area around Boston, though. There you've got something like 80 or 90 rinks within a 25 mile radius."

Collins, who's been coaching at the Bantam level for six years in the community of 12,000, conceded that the diverse nature of activities available for Bedford youngsters often hampers their pursuit of a hockey career.

"There's so many things to do," he explained. "A lot of them are into soccer now and other sports which divide their attention."

"I wish I could tell you that we have some big league prospects coming out of Bedford but we don't have anything like this young guy Desautels here in Waterloo."

Sandy Martin, one of the organizers of the Goodwill Meet, said that expenses for the series are defrayed mostly by private donations and a contribution which the Waterloo Youth Hockey Association received as a result of the recent National Pee-Wee tournament held there recently.

"We had eight people, for instance, who contributed $100 each and this will pay most of the cost of bussing four teams down to Massachusetts in March."

Visiting players are billeted in the homes of the boys they are playing against thus enabling the international fraternity to develop. But once the puck is dropped, as Saturday's opener indicated, diplomatic relations are quite often temporarily suspended.

The Bantam Maroons atoned for their opening loss on Sunday afternoon, however, as they blanked the American visitors 2-0.

The win completed a near-perfect weekend for Waterloo entries, since the Atoms dropped Bedford 5-2 and 7-0, while the Pee-Wees produced a 4-2 victory on Saturday, and in what was perhaps the weekend's most outstanding game settled for a 2-2 tie on Sunday.

Two other games involving the Bantam B's which are not included in the tournament standing saw the Bedford squad down Waterloo by identical 4-2 scores.

Molstar winners

On Sunday the second Molstar of the year was run at Mt. Orford, with 234 participants. It was the second largest race of its kind here in eight years. Lucille Forget, seen here, was the woman with best time and Greg Lowe (right) of the Orford Ski Patrol had the men's best time.

Richard Dupuis, Orford Ski School instructor, organized the event and, on the far right is Richard Sawyer, of Molson's Brewery, Molstar sponsors. The next Molstar is scheduled for March 12, when it's hoped over 300 will enter.

Scouting in action

by Rick Tracy

The Sherbrooke Elementary School Gym was recently the sight of Sherbrooke District's first annual "Kubkar Carnival" where just under fifty Cubs raced their handmade Kubkars under the watchful eye of nearly 100 parents, organizers and friends.

After many "close calls", the sleek wooden racer belonging to Jean-Pierre Bolduc of 1st Bury Cub Pack flashed across the finish line and was proclaimed the fastest in the district for 1978.

The Bury Pack also took second and third places in the Carnival, those going to John Buckland (2nd) and Cris Claire (3rd). It seems that Bury "had what it takes" as they also claimed the top prize for team score. Second in that area went to 2nd Lennoxville's team of S. Passmore, C. Masse and H. Rahn, while third went to 3rd Sherbrooke's A. Carson, S. Chisolm and T. Vaughan. First Lennoxville's lone entrant, Steve Wesbroom, wasn't able to get in on the team competition.

The race itself took place on a 500 inch sloped ramp with four lanes, which was

These three Sherbrooke District Cubs have a good reason to smile. They've just been told they have the fastest "kubkars" in the district. Jean-Pierre Bolduc (centre), top constructed by Fred Hicks and John Hewitt, both area scouters. Each of the boy's cars took part in three heats and after a tie in total points resulted, there was one final run to find the fastest. The 1st Bury Pack was presented the "Kubkar Trophy" by Fred Pessig, Sherbrooke's District Commissioner, and has promised to return next winter in full force to defend its title. John Hewitt, one of the main organizers of the event, said that everyone went home happy after the fun-filled evening, and he expects more than 100 participants to take part next year — all with "improvements" in their Kubkars.

Gymnastics stepped up

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Consider these two names: Nadia Comaneci and Shun Fujimoto.

The first is a household word. The 14-year-old Romanian gymnast won three perfect marks in the 1976 Olympics and captured the admiration of the world.

The second name has you baffled? Competing in the same Olympics while his leg was broken, Fujimoto won gold for a brilliant performance on the rings and helped Japan to the team championship in men's gymnastics.

No paltry accomplishment. But if there's one area in which women surpass men, it's gymnastic fame.

Tell anyone your three children are taking gymnastics and it is assumed that you have three girls. Unless they're enrolled in the Cambridge Gymnastics Club, better known as the CGs.

With only a few exceptions, the 47 members of the CGs are boys, between six and 18 years old.

That's a fair enrolment, considering the club was formed last May and began practising in September.

OTHER CLUBS IN AREA But did Cambridge really need another gymnastics club?

There are the Kips—350 boys and girls—the YMCA club and programs in most Cambridge public and secondary schools.

And 10 miles away there's the Kitchener-Waterloo Gymnastics Club which has 297 members, 30 of them boys.

But none of these clubs offers a program concentrating on the male gymnast, says CGs executive member Maureen Ep-precht, whose husband Hans is head coach of both the CGs and the boys' division of the K-W group.

"The CGs started as an offshoot of the Y program, when parents decided they wanted a more competitive program for their sons," she said.

Girls and boys shouldn't train together, partly for the obvious reason—they distract each other. But the main reason to separate the sexes, she said, is that entirely different training methods are necessary.

MATURE LATER "It takes much longer to train a male gymnast than a female." The woman gymnast can be a world competitor at 14 or 15, whereas the male gymnast's potential isn't developed until he's about 20 and doesn't reach its peak until the mid-20s and later.

"It's only when a boy has taken gymnastics for 10 years that you can really judge how well suited he is to continue in high-level competition."

Boys learn the basics at the recreational levels of the club, Hans Epprecht said. "They learn the primary tumbling, rolling and jumping and participate in the trampoline program, which includes a few girls."

The boys then go on to more advanced levels. When they're about nine years old, they begin competition.

Male gymnasts must learn a minimum of 125 moves (women learn at least 60) in six events: rings, high bar, pommel horse, floor, vault and pommel bars.

It is important that they do well in all six—especially if they compete as a team.

Epprecht started gymnastics in childhood in Switzerland and competed in his country's national competitions in 1948.

The Epprechts were a skiing family until their son Marc discovered at school that he had an affinity for gymnastics. That sparked Epprecht's involvement again.

He coached the Kips, then went on to the K-W club in 1973 and the Y, where he remained until the CGs began last spring.

Epprecht is the men's technical chairman for the province and a national judge.

"We're trying to show here that we can achieve the same levels of competition for men as the Kips have for the women," he said.

The club is already well on its way towards the goal. Several boys have placed high in regional and provincial contests, and Don Bruce, 14, was the Ontario champion in pommel horse and floor routines last year.

Like many gymnasts, Bruce began the sport because he didn't care for more popular athletic endeavors such as hockey.

Jay Niebel, 16, agreed, Bruce and Niebel are aware that their female counterparts command most of the attention, but this doesn't faze them.

A "Tiger" on the slopes...

Trailed by her two children, the 34-year-old mother skis down the hill, different from the other mothers on the slopes only in being a little better on her skis.

The mother is Nancy Greene, who 10 years ago tamed the giant slalom course at Grenoble, France, and won an Olympic gold medal.

The girl from Rossland, B.C., won her second women's World Cup title the next year and then retired from competitive skiing, ending a spectacular downhill and slalom career with a style that earned her the nickname Tiger.

Today, looking not much older than she did 17 her halcyon years, Nancy has carved out a successful career in advertising and public relations.

At the zenith of her popularity, Nancy was sought after by commercial concerns who wanted to cash in on her name, but she refused to endorse products she did not approve of or use.

When General Motors asked Nancy to endorse its Pontiac Firebird, she agreed, with a catch—GM would have to sink some money into Canadian skiing. It created the Pontiac Cup, an Eastern and Western divisional alpine skiing contest leading to a national final.

WAS CRITICIZED Nancy said she has been criticized for her promotion of Mars candy bars by people in the health field.

"There's no way I'm going to come out on the anti-candy campaign," she said. "I believe in good nutrition, but I'm not a health fanatic or a health-food nut."

Nancy now is ski director for Pacific Western Airlines, a member of the federal sport and recreation board of directors and continues to teach skiing to young racers at Whistler Mountain in southwestern British Columbia during the summers.

She makes personal appearances across the country on behalf of amateur skiing and works as a freelancer for television sports programs.

When the Canadian championships open in Lake Louise, Alta., on Feb. 24, Nancy Greene will be there to comment for the CBC.

Married to Al Raine, ski-coordinator for British Columbia and a former coach of Canada's alpine ski team, Nancy is the mother of eight-year-old twin boys.

BACK FROM EUROPE Nancy and her husband, both members of the World Cup committee, recently returned from a three-week working holiday in Europe, where they attended the world ski championships in Germany and visited France, Switzerland, Austria and Italy.

Those associated with Nancy during her competitive skiing days often remarked on her generosity.

Patricia Ramage, a former team manager, said that after one European competition, in which Nancy noticed that a Yugoslavian girl was competing in outdated skis, she gave away her old skis.

"She's a winner in more than one department," the manager said.

One of the fifty "kubkars" entered in the first annual Carnival heads for the finish line as dozens of boys watch, hoping their kubkar can equal this one's time.

Can't spot-reduce fat

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — While I was working out for bulk this past winter I added some weight to my face and neck area, and I have acquired a slight double chin. I would like to know if there is anything I could do or any exercises I could do to reduce my lower chin and firm it up.

I would like to add I am only 19 years of age and weigh 165 pounds. Your advice will be greatly appreciated.

DEAR READER — It seems that people just do not understand that you can't spot reduce fat. You can't just reduce the abdomen, the hips, fat arms or a double chin. Loss of unwanted fat has to be from a total loss of fat from all of the body.

A person who has a double chin or excess fat in that area usually has both too much total fat on the body and a familial characteristic to develop fat in that area.

The other point about your letter is that certain weight training programs to put on bulk are fattening programs. That is not what you want for health. Regardless of how much or in what way you are exercising you are eating too much for the amount of work you do. I would suggest that you cut back on the calories. If someone has sold you on taking protein powders or drinking half milk-half cream mixtures as a body developing measure, just stop that nonsense at once.

You can help firm up the area under the chin but the firming exercise will not eliminate the excess fat. The exercise is difficult to describe but it consists of thrusting your lower jaw forward and tightening the muscles under the skin over the neck. You can do this by making the motion of gritting your teeth while moving the partially open lower jaw up and down.

If you are doing it properly you should see the muscles strands attached to the skin stand out like cords. This is the platysma muscle and it is not always well developed. Strengthening it adds tone to this area. You can also move the muscles that make up the floor of the mouth under your chin by leaving your mouth open and sticking your tongue in and out. Put your finger under your chin and feel the muscles move as you move the tongue.

Meanwhile I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control, to give you some information on how to increase your bulk without fattening yourself. Others who want to find out why muscle strength and development help prevent ugly fat deposits and how to do it can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for this issue to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 13 years old and in good health. I got my first period six months ago and haven't gotten it again. My mother said it's normal. Is it?

Mothers are pretty smart and she is right. Girls often have irregular periods when they first start. Starting and stopping is more common than not. Don't worry about it, just relax and enjoy life while nature takes care of the rest.

Women lose ground as unemployment rises

TORONTO (CP) — Women are being blamed for unemployment among men, and what is worse, they believe it, says Mary Eady, assistant director of the Canadian Labor Congress' newly-created women's bureau.

"It may be a hangup for women," said Mrs. Eady, one of several women's leaders interviewed recently. "They feel slightly guilty about it, and they are more easily put off (asserting their rights) because that is how they have been raised."

The women's bureau estimates that nearly 40 per cent of Ontario's female workers are single, divorced or widowed. Across Canada, 40 per cent of female-headed families fall into the low-income category.

Many women's leaders believe that as unemployment increases, women's chances of finding or keeping jobs will decrease proportionately, despite government policies and private business' professed intentions to help women become men's equals in the work force.

"I'm concerned that women are going to be pressured into stepping out of the job market to make way for men," says Grace Hartman, president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees. She cited the post Second World War era, when women gave up their jobs so the returning servicemen could work again.

UNDO PROGRESS

Mrs. Hartman warned that one danger of the economic situation is that women will be more entrenched than ever in low-paying jobs, a situation that could mean the undoing of the progress women have made in the past decade.

The reasons for the difference between men's and women's unemployment has never been analysed, but Canada Manpower has identified five trends which may have an influence: —A slowdown in manufacturing and in personal services (such as the hotel and retail industries) has meant cuts in lowlevel jobs, all jobs that have traditionally been held by women;

—The increased participation of women in the job market, combined with a slowdown in private sector job creation, has meant that more people are competing for fewer jobs;

—Women are considered secondary workers who have traditionally been hired when the market expands, and fired when it diminishes: —Since women were often the last ones to be hired, they are the first to be fired;

—Large-scale government cuts in education and social services have affected the traditional women's professions of nursing, social work and teaching.

GAP INCREASED

Inflation last year boosted the cost of living eight per cent over 1976, when a study showed that the gap between men's and women's wages increased to 43 per cent from 26 per cent between 1975 and 1976.

Bud Cullen, federal minister of employment and immigration, issued the federal government's first women's employment policy last November. It aims to help women gain job skills, choose careers, gain employment, help employers to identify and eliminate barriers to women, and help open more jobs to women.

However, the policy includes no means of ensuring that they will be carried out, other than the assumed cooperation of individual Manpower centres.

Easter cake adds spring touch

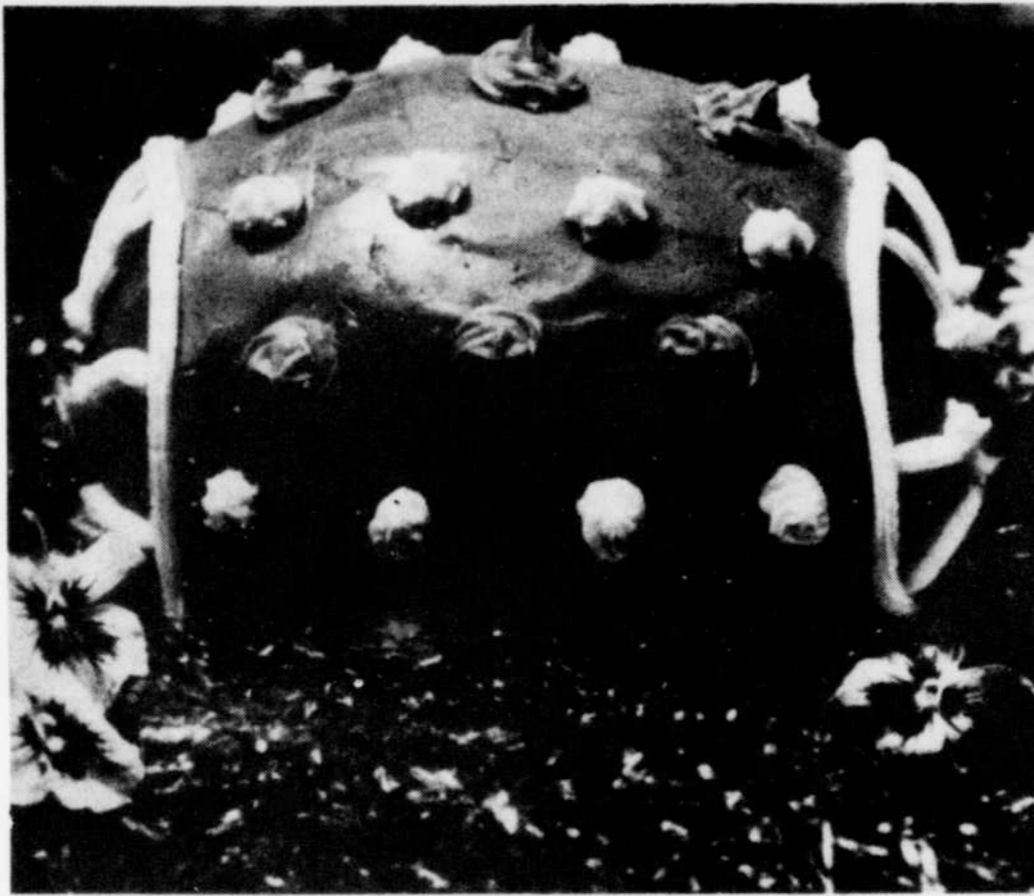

With Easter comes the promise of spring - a hint of greenery and a freshness in the air. This year, add a touch of spring to your Easter menu with this lovely Easter creation. Whether your holiday meal is an informal buffet or an elegant sit-down dinner, this Easter Egg Cake will be a perfect centrepiece.

The cake is baked in two ovenproof glass bowls and covered in a smooth chocolate frosting. To add further charm to the cake, decorate the Easter Egg with delicate swirls and flower buds.

EASTER EGG CAKE

425 mL sifted all-purpose flour
12 mL baking powder
2 mL salt
125 mL Mazola corn oil
250 mL sugar
5 mL vanilla
2 eggs
175 mL milk

Prepare two cakes. For each cake sift flour with baking powder and salt; set aside. Blend corn oil with sugar and vanilla. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until very light and fluffy. Mix in sifted dry ingredients one third at a time, alternately with milk, beginning and ending with flour mixture. Pour into well greased, medium-size oven-proof bowl. Bake in 150 degrees C oven for 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 hours or until cakes are done. Cool. Prepare frostings.

To assemble and decorate Easter egg, place each cake on top of each other. (Trim top crust, if necessary). Cut small slice from underside of one cake to flatten bottom slightly. To hold 2 cakes together, cover bottom cake with Chocolate Frosting. Place second cake on top. Cover both cakes with Chocolate Frosting.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

100 mL margarine or butter
100 mL corn syrup
2 mL vanilla
1 mL salt
15 mL milk
45 g icing sugar, sifted
30 g unsweetened chocolate
Cream butter until smooth. Blend in corn syrup, vanilla and salt. Add milk, then icing sugar, mixing until smooth and creamy. Melt chocolate in double boiler top over boiling water. Add frosting mixture; heat, stirring occasionally, until slightly softened. Cover cake with frosting, spreading with warm knife, if needed. (Dip knife into boiling water.) Let frosting harden 1 to 1 1/2 hours. Mix enough icing sugar and water together to form icing of piping consistency. Tint as desired. Pipe on cake in selected design.

Ann Landers says
Speak to the teacher

Dear Ann: I am concerned about a ten-year-old nephew who has all the tendencies of becoming a homosexual. His father pushed him into basketball, soccer, Cub Scouts and other boy-type activities but he dropped out.

He plays mostly with his older sister and her friends - just loves to hang strings from his head and pretend it's long hair. The boy is very moody, often sits in the corner by himself and hides when company comes. His parents don't see any of this.

Is the child heading toward homosexuality? If he received the right help now could he be straight as an adult? I couldn't possibly broach the subject with his parents. They would be insulted and tell me to mind my own business.

Please print this in the paper for the benefit of all parents who think it can't happen in their family.

An Aunt Who Cares In Paterson, N.J.

Dear Ann:

According to the experts, the pattern of true homosexuality is established long before ten years of age. However, just because a ten-year-old prefers playing with his sister and her friends and hangs strings from his head is not conclusive evidence that he isn't going to grow up straight. He may be going through a stage - or "waffling".

If I were you I'd talk to the boy's teacher. If she senses, as you do, that the child is moody, introverted and maladjusted, SHE should suggest to his mother that he be evaluated by a professional and perhaps get some help soon.

Dear Ann Landers: When a person writes to you in care of a local newspaper, can that person be sure no one who works on the paper will read the letter?

I have a personal problem and am well known in this city. I also have a few acquaintances and one relative who works at the paper. It would be very embarrassing if my situation became known.

Please don't give me a lecture about the ethics of the press. Doctors and ministers aren't supposed to talk but they do. I await your reply.

Oregon Faithful Dear Faithful: All newspapers that print my column have strict instructions to forward the Ann Landers mail unopened. I wouldn't swear to anything, but I'd be very surprised if any newspaper employee had enough spare time to go snooping in my mail.

Dear Ann Landers: The suggestion from "Four Eyes In Lubbock" for kissing someone who wears glasses was refreshing. May I add a word of my own?

We all know kissing is best done without glasses but it is better if both are wearing glasses than just one. You know what I'm talking about if you have had an eyebrow plucked by a frame joint or felt the agonizing pain of a sharp metal rim pressing on your eyelid while being kissed by your beloved. Take my word for it, if you are the only one wearing glasses, remove them when the occasion arises. Your companion will appreciate it more than you know.

Westmont, Quebec

Dear Westy: Since I have had no experience in this area I will take your word for it. Thanks for what sounds like some very practical advice.

Dear Ann: I work with a lovely, attractive woman who is 30 years of age. She is planning to marry a man who is a few years younger. Although I'm old enough to be her mother, she treats me like a sister, which is, of course, flattering.

In the last two months she has come to work with black eyes, a twisted neck, a sprained arm and several broken ribs. I suspect her boyfriend has been beating her up. She always has excuses (fell down the stairs, bumped into the cupboard, etc.). Should I ask her to tell me the truth and then try to talk her out of marrying him? — Concerned

Dear C.: Say nothing. When (and if) she feels like talking, she will. If she doesn't - you shouldn't. CONFIDENTIAL to Did I Win Or Lose - You Decide: I can't because I don't know how important it is to you to come out Numero Uno. To some people winning is everything. A tie is like kissing your sister. To others it's like attacking your niece. YOU decide.

Parents, what should you do if your teenager is having sexual relations? Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It - A Guide for Teens and Their Parents," gives no-nonsense advice on how to handle this delicate situation. For each booklet, send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Oven door dilemma

By Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — The house we recently bought has a double oven range. The stove part was in good shape but the ovens were terribly dirty. I removed the racks and screens and cleaned them but the doors have me stumped. The manufacturer's booklet says not to use regular oven cleaner. Have you any suggestions? — EVELYN

DEAR EVELYN — Perhaps the following letter from a reader will help you. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To remove the brown grease stains from a glass oven door make a paste of baking soda and a bit of water, spread this over the surface and let it stand for a few minutes. Rinse and polish. — IRENE

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with people who claim they do not have time to write letters. We all make time for the things we really want to do so I think that is a poor excuse.

I save money by making my own pillowcases. I can get five standard size pillowcases from a full size sheet, six if I put contrasting hems on two of them. One such sheet will also make four king or queen size cases. I buy a sheet that contrasts in color with the printed ones I use on the bed. — MRS. W.D.

DEAR POLLY — I am sure Ruth will love me forever when she reads my answer to her problem of mildew-like stains on her rubber mat. I have wonderful luck using a strong solution of chlorine bleach and water. Let the mat stand in it for two or three hours. Lift the mat up and down while it is soaking so the solution gets under it. Even though it is often not absolutely necessary I use a stiff brush to go over it. Do hope this works as well for Ruth as it has for me. — MRS. W.H.M.

DEAR POLLY — We lived in Miami where fleas get indoors frequently. I want to tell Sharon M. and Mildred they can rid their carpets of fleas by sprinkling moth flakes all over the carpets and leaving them there until they evaporate. — PEARL

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Ruby that the condition of my fingernails was greatly improved after I took a package of unflavored gelatin once a day. I am 91. — MARGARET

DEAR POLLY — I wanted an attractive table setting for the recent holidays. Having noticed that old-fashioned napkin rings are back in style again I made my own. I saved a number of cardboard rolls from toilet paper and with a sharp knife cut each into equal parts of about two-and-a-quarter inches. Then I took plain, colored wrapping paper and cut it one inch longer than the empty roll. I put ordinary glue on the cardboard roll, smoothed the paper when turning the edges in to give it a finished look. This looked terrific when a napkin was run through it. — E.R.P.

News Briefs

Housewives protest raw deal

OTTAWA (CP) — Several local women are sending 2,500 messages to others across the province urging them to express disapproval with a proposed provincial family law reform bill.

Spokesman Trudy Wiltshire said Monday the message campaign is a last-ditch effort to stall passage of the bill, expected to get first reading within two weeks.

"As the bill is written now, all the security for the wife seems to come from a paid job. Unless the woman can prove she made purchases with money she earned, she is only entitled to 50 per cent of the family assets as defined in the bill," she said. "It may become very dangerous for a spouse to choose to remain at home to take care of small children and elderly persons."

UIC begins anti-abuse scheme

OTTAWA (CP) — The government intends to introduce a mandatory new system of employee registration beginning Jan. 1, 1979, in an effort to thwart abuse of the unemployment insurance plan, a senior employment department official said Tuesday.

Larry St. Laurent, director-general of unemployment insurance policy, said the system will be tried out through six pilot projects in various parts of the country beginning in May.

St. Laurent, appearing before the Commons public accounts committee, which has been looking at deficiencies in the government's computer system in recent meetings, said the new program is designed to stop unemployment insurance abuses before they happen.

MP winning child-snatch fight

OTTAWA (CP) — Benno Friesen (PC-Surrey-White Rock) made some headway Tuesday in his lengthy battle against child abductions.

MPs gave rare approval to have a Commons committee examine Friesen's private member's bill that would impose a severe penalty on a parent who abducts a child legally in the custody of the other parent or a guardian.

Usually private member's bills are debated for one hour and dropped for months, if not forever. But Friesen won wide public support for his proposal after introducing the bill in October, 1977.

Seal protester has black past

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Raymond Elliott, a Newfoundland who has joined protester Brian Davies to oppose the annual seal hunt, sold seal meat for the last 10 years, his brother Pearce Elliott said today.

In a telephone interview from Twillingate, Pearce Elliott said Raymond used to buy seal meat from ships as they returned from the ice and sold it in St. John's from the back of a truck.

Raymond Elliott accompanied Davies, executive director of the International Fund for Animal Welfare (IFAW), to a news conference held in Lond on Monday by Newfoundland Premier Frank Moores.

Post office 'breaking law'

OTTAWA (CP) — Government is breaking the law by raising postal rates without first amending the Post Office Act, Walter Dinsdale (PC-Brandon-Souris) said Tuesday night.

"Do it legally," said Dinsdale, a former postmaster-general, as Ed Lumley (L-Stornont-Dundas) defended forthcoming increases.

First-class mail will be raised April 1 to 14 cents from 12. Ten years ago, it was four cents.

Lumley didn't reply to Dinsdale's argument that the Post Office Act must be amended by Parliament before rates can be raised legally.

Prisoners charged with trafficking

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec provincial police said today that five prisoners at nearby Bordeaux Prison will be charged this week with smuggling drugs into the medium-security institution.

Police said the five supplied other prisoners with drugs they brought in after weekend leaves. Authorities said the drugs escaped the notice of guards because the prisoners carried them in plastic bags inserted in their rectums.

Police said the practice had been going on for some time, and happens in other prisons as well.

Domglas moves head office

MONTREAL (CP) — Domglas Ltd., plans to move 30 to 35 head office positions to Toronto from Montreal in July and August, company president Joseph Souccar said Tuesday.

The company's head office will legally remain in Montreal, he said, but when the transfer has been completed, there will be 150 head office personnel in Toronto and three—the president, corporate secretary and personal secretary—in Montreal.

PM 'like Phil Esposito'

OTTAWA (CP) — The way Opposition Leader Joe Clark tells it, Prime Minister Trudeau is a bit like hockey star Phil Esposito.

He can still summon up "all the great expertise and energy. But there's nobody to pass to."

Clark made the comments during an anniversary interview as he completed his second year as Progressive Conservative leader.

Trudeau's Liberal government, he said, is falling apart, decomposing with old age and worrying more about the next election than governing.

Auto scheme means $260 million

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's new auto insurance plan will funnel $260 million into the coffers of the Quebec Deposit and Investment Fund during its first year, Robert De Coster, head of the insurance operation, said Tuesday.

De Coster, whose Regie de l'Assurance automobile du Quebec begins insuring all Quebecers against injuries from automobile accidents March 1, said the plan will take in $345 million in premiums in its first year.

Most of the premiums will be turned over to the provincial investment fund to create reserves to pay future claims, he said. Many of the 60,000 accident victims expected to claim from the plan this year will receive disability payments that could last for years.

SSJB hosts song competition

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec nationalist St. Jean Baptiste Society has organized a competition to find 10 "national songs" with the hope that the most popular will become Quebec's anthem.

When the group unveiled details of the competition Monday, one of its members suggested a variation of the French-language version of O Canada, substituting O Quebec for O Canada.

Jean-Claude Champagne, president of the group's Montreal chapter, replied with a smile that he did not see any reason why that could not be submitted.

Although Stanley Weir's English lyrics to O Canada are clearly pan-Canadian, the earlier French lyrics by Sir Adolphe Routhier do not contain phrases such as "from sea to shining sea," and are overwhelmingly religious in tone.

For example, the last refrain of the fourth verse ends the anthem with a ringing call to repeat "like our fathers, the vanquishing cry, 'For Christ and the king'."

Opposition blasts Levesque speech

QUEBEC (CP) — Opposition representatives criticized Premier Rene Levesque's speech opening a new session of the national assembly Tuesday as being without ideas to deal with the problems of unemployment and economic slowdown.

"Words, words, words, that's what we have here," said Liberal leader Gerard Levesque.

"It could have been written yesterday, last week, or last month. In fact, much of it was written last year."

"There is absolutely nothing concrete, especially as it affects our No. 1 priority in Quebec, the economy."

Union Nationale Leader Rodrigue Biron said he was "very disappointed at the economic content of this inaugural speech."

The PQ government has recognized its incompetence as far as dealing with major economic difficulties, Biron said.

Snowbound UK digs out

TAUNTON, England (AP) — Blizzards that left snow drifts up to 17 metres in parts of southwest England were claimed at least seven lives, police reported Tuesday.

Police said more persons may have died trying to dig out of snowed-in homes or escape from trapped cars in the rural area's worst winter in decades.

Rescue operations and helicopter searches have been hampered by blocked roads and fog, police said.

Rain and the start of a thaw due to slightly rising temperatures has brought the additional hazard of flooding. Kingsbridge in the south of Devon County suffered floods Tuesday and a county water authority spokesman said: "We are already preparing for serious flooding if the thaw is fast."

Most roads in Devonshire and the counties of Somerset, Dorset and northeast Cornwall remained blocked by snow, which first started falling late last week.

Denis Howell, the government minister responsible for co-ordinating emergency operations, announced in this Somerset County town that army units were being moved in to help with road clearing.

Science role ignored — Suzuki

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament has almost ignored the important role of science and a widespread lack of interest about it among Canadians is a result, a scientist and broadcaster, Dr. David Suzuki, said Tuesday.

In a presentation to the parliamentary science committee, the University of British Columbia zoologist said Canada "blew it" when it did not place a moratorium on controversial genetic experiments.

Instead, he said, Canada showed "an unseemly haste to get in on the action."

The committee, made up of members of the Commons, Senate and scientists, spent Tuesday discussing the possible benefits and hazards arising from experiments using DNA, the genetic chemical that controls heredity.

Taking DNA molecules from two different life forms, scientists now can recombine them into new life forms.

13 held in Belfast bombing

BELFAST (Reuter) — Security forces detained 13 persons Tuesday for questioning about the roadhouse restaurant firebomb blast last Friday in which 12 were killed and 23 injured.

Police said the 13 were picked up in a series of early morning raids following information given by men and women detained immediately after the explosion at the La Mon hotel-restaurant south of Belfast.

The outlawed Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army has claimed responsibility for the bombing, which has been condemned by Pope Paul as well as by political leaders on both sides of the Irish border.

Eight of the 20 persons detained during the weekend still were being interrogated by police. They included several suspected leaders of the IRA Provisionals.

Inmate mutilations continue

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — One of several prisoners who sliced off their fingertips to dramatize efforts to gain freedom now has cut off an entire finger, a state corrections department spokesman said today.

David Cattano, 28, a prisoner at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility, used the pull tab from a beverage can to cut off the little finger on his left hand sometime during the night, George Lehner said.

Another prisoner who took part in the original mutilations, Richard Armstrong, 37, tried to cut off a portion of the little finger on his right hand today but a guard stopped him, the spokesman said.

Cattano and Armstrong are among about 14 prisoners trying to gain freedom by renouncing their U.S. citizenship, the prison spokesman said. They and several other members of the group had earlier mailed portions of their little fingers to officials in Washington, Lehner said.

Boston-Buffalo rivalry makes for good hockey

Boston Bruins have won the Adams Division championship in the National Hockey League the last two seasons, and they'd like to keep it for a third. Peter McNab scored two goals and assisted on another as the Bruins defeated Colorado Rockies 3-2 Tuesday night, pulling into a first-place tie with Buffalo Sabres. Boston, with two games in hand, has 79 points, the same as Buffalo.

Association game, J. C. Tremblay's goal in overtime gave Quebec Nordiques a 6-5 victory over New England Whalers.

McNab 13 seconds later after winning a faceoff in the Colorado end.

McNab made it 2-1 at 11:19 of the period as he barged between two Colorado defencemen, fired once and potted the rebound.

He later played an important role in Boston's third goal, getting the puck from behind the Colorado net and drilling a pass to Rick Middleton, who scored against goalie Michel Plasse.

The Rockies tried to force play in the third period of the penalty-free game as they outshot Boston 11-3 but got only one goal, by Andy Spruce.

Rookie Peter Lee scored on a breakaway midway through the third period to break a 4-4 tie and lift the Penguins to their triumph over the Blues at St. Louis.

STREAK EXTENDED
Other goals by Jean Pronovski, John Flesch, Rick Kehoe and Wayne Bianchin helped push the Penguins' unbeaten streak to six games, their longest of the season.

Tony Currie, called up earlier in the day from Salt Lake City Golden Eagles of the Central Hockey League, scored the first St. Louis goal, and others came from Barry Gibbs, Bill Fairbairn and Brian Sutter.

Butch Goring scored two goals on passes from Randy Manery to break open a close game and lead the Kings to their victory against the Capitals at Landover, Md.

Glen Goldup and Pete Sienkowski scored earlier goals for Los Angeles, while Mike Marson had Washington's only goal. At Quebec City, Tremblay's goal at 3:38 of sudden-death overtime propelled the Nordiques past New England. Real Cloutier scored two goals for Quebec, while Normand Dube, Warren Miller and Andre Boudrias had one each. Alan Hangsleben, Johnny McKenzie, Larry Pleau, Gordie Howe and Dave Keon scored for the Whalers.

The Nordiques have a 26-29-2 record for 54 points, fifth in the standings, while New England is 33-20-4 for 70 points in second place, eight points behind the leading Winnipeg Jets.

short notes...

Pipers clip BCS

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Alexander Galt Regional High hockey Pipers broke a 2-2 draw late in the third period to clip Bishop's College School 3-2 in Eastern Townships Interscholastic Athletic Conference action yesterday.

Doug Coulter scored for Galt in the opening period but BCS replied later in the frame. Martin Leblanc's tally in the second put Galt up one with a period left.

BCS tied the count at 8:54 but Coulter hit for his second goal at 15:57 to give the Pipers the victory.

In what is expected to be another exciting match, Galt hosts Stanstead College this afternoon at 3:15 p.m. at the W.B. Scott Arena to close off their ETIAC regular season play.

Nordiques trade Inkpen

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianapolis Racers have acquired defencemen Dave Inkpen from Quebec Nordiques and Glen Irwin from Houston Aeros, Racers coach Bill Goldsworthy announced Tuesday.

Inkpen, who played 32 games for the World Hockey Association Racers last year, was traded to Edmonton Oilers in a deal that brought Rusty Patenaude, Claude St. Sauveur, Barry Wilkins and Kevin Devine to the Racers. He was traded by the Oilers to Quebec after 19 games this season.

Irwin has spent the last three WHA seasons with the Aeros and part of this year with Binghamton Dusters of the American Hockey League.

Both players were acquired for future considerations.

QMJHL roundup

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Dan Geoffrion and Bob Crawford scored two goals each to pace Cornwall Royals to a 6-3 victory over Trois-Riviers Draveurs in the only Quebec Major Junior Hockey League game Tuesday night.

Rick Paterson and Cam MacGregor scored single goals for the Royals, while Richard David had all three Trois-Rivieres scores.

In games tonight, Montreal Juniors visit Quebec Remparts, Verdun Black Hawks play host to Sherbrooke Beavers and Cornwall meets Hull Olympiques at Gatineau, Que.

Shawinigan coach charged

MONTREAL (CP) — Joseph Canale, 28-year-old former coach of the Shawinigan Dynamos of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, was charged with conspiracy and drug trafficking Tuesday.

Vittorio Coccosio and Jean-Henri Bevilard appeared with Canale on the same charges, which centre on 5.2 ounces of phenylcyclidine police say were sold to an RCMP undercover agent last year.

Canale was fired from his coaching job within minutes of his arrest by the RCMP Monday. The Dynamos have lost all but five of the 61 games they have played this season.

Middleweight dies

MADRID (AP) — Middleweight boxer Rubio Melero died today, five days after he was knocked unconscious in a professional bout in Madrid.

Doctors said the 23-year-old Spanish fighter, in a coma since being knocked out by national middleweight champion Francisco Rodriguez last Friday, died of heart failure.

Melero, making his ninth professional appearance, suffered brain and lung damage in the fight, doctors said. Melero was knocked to the canvas three times before he fell unconscious and was carried from the ring on a stretcher.

Reporters called the fight a mismatch and blamed Melero's manager and the Spanish referee for not stopping the fight.

Leclair scores unanimous decision

MONTREAL (CP) — Middleweight Jean-Claude Leclair of Montreal scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Ali Perez of New York in the main event of a five-fight card at the Forum on Tuesday night.

All bouts on the card were scheduled for 10 rounds.

The Leclair victory was unpopular with many of the 2,187 fans, and Perez was loudly cheered as he circled the ring with his hands raised after the decision was announced.

The surprise of the fight came in the fourth round when, after Perez, 163 pounds, had floored Leclair, also 163, with a right cross, the Montrealer came right back to deck Perez for an eight-count with a left hook.

Villeneuve smashes up

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Gilles Villeneuve set the pace during the pre-South African Grand Prix tire testing Tuesday, circling the Kyalami track in his Ferrari 312T2 in one minute, 15.35 seconds using type S-7 Michelin radial tires.

But a few minutes later, testing came to an end for the 26-year-old grand prix rookie from Berthierville, Que., when he went off the road and damaged his car after changing to a different set of test tires.

LENNOXVILLE — What started out as a see-saw hockey battle ended up with Concordia Stingers scoring six unanswered goals to defeat Bishop's University 8-5 in the opening QUAA playoff semi-final tilt last night.

The Gaiters led 3-2 and 5-4 after the first two periods but seemed to run out of gas in the third late in the third, when Concordia put away two insurance markers in the final 2:15.

Dave Dousnard and Terry Perras alternated Bishop's goals with Concordia's Steve Gibson and Kim Elliott in the opening stanza before Gaiter captain Ken Knowles gave the locals the advantage for the first time.

Dousnard and Knowles enlarged Bishop's lead in the second before Elliott tallied on a powerplay at 15:10. Twenty-six seconds later, Bishop's goal edge had shrunk to one as Albert Difazio beat netminder Andre Paradis.

Daniel Vinet got the equalizer at 2:30 in the final period and the Stingers went ahead at 10:15 on Difazio's second goal. Concordia captain Dwayne Byers gave the BU fans even more to dislike him by scoring back-to-back markers at 17:45 and 18:35 to put the game out of Bishop's grasp.

A combination of injuries and unfinished plays killed the Gaiters. Four players sat out the game and their replacements — while they played well — lacked something, probably due to their absence from the regular lineup. John Mills, back with the team after sitting out several games with an injury, was as exhausted as the rest of his teammates at the end of the game.

Bishop's again couldn't capitalize on glorious scoring chances, especially in the second period when they could have increased their three-goal lead. The teams traded turns bombarding the other's goalie, with Concordia having the overall shots-on-goal 53-36.

The teams will clash again in Montreal on Friday for the second encounter in the best-of-three series. A third game, if necessary, is slated in Montreal on Saturday. In other semi-final action, UQTR downed McGill 4-2 in the opening game in that series.

NHL - Ruck resigns

ATLANTA (CP) — Don V. Ruck is out as president of the National Hockey League Services and vice-president in charge of the league's public relations.

Ruck, with the league for 12 years, submitted his resignation Tuesday during a meeting of the NHL board of governors.

In another development, the board decided to accept the idea of playing an unbalanced schedule, effective with the 1978-79 season.

The resignation of Ruck came as no great shock. He had been under fire from several governors recently for his direction of NHL's and was accused of mismanaging the organization in a newspaper report last month.

NHL president John Ziegler defended Ruck after the report appeared, but it was evident some governors did not want Ruck around. Speculation surfaced during the all-star break that Ruck would be through with the league June 1.

Ruck said in a prepared statement his resignation was caused "by a difference of judgment between myself and the members of the board as to the future direction of NHL's."

Jets future's up in the air

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Hockey Association's board of trustees meets today to decide the future of its Winnipeg Jets franchise.

"It will be known by tomorrow if we're going to finish the season or not," Jets board chairman Bob Graham said by telephone from his Winnipeg office Tuesday. "We'll be finding out what the future of the Jets will be for this season and for the long term."

management that hockey could survive on a major league economic level.

That level, they explained, would not be reached without admission to the NHL.

The sources admitted, however, that there has been no official communication with the NHL as to whether that league would be interested in accepting a Winnipeg application.

NO REPRESENTATION

NHL officials, meeting Tuesday in Atlanta, could not be reached for comment. It was learned, however, that no Winnipeg nor WHA representative had made any presentation to the NHL board of governors.

Jets management said at a news conference in Winnipeg last Thursday that the team would survive as a publicly-owned entity only if it was permitted to pursue an NHL franchise and if previous ownership agreed to forget a $1.2-million debt.

A $30-million arena to be constructed in Winnipeg appeared to be at the heart of the matter, since the team would not be able to refinance without it. Jets sources, who preferred anonymity, said the arena would not be built if the team could not ensure city

Curlers get set

A rink of Sherbrooke curlers begins play today in the provincial junior men's championship at the Greystone Curling Club in Montreal. Sixteen teams will be competing for the right to represent Quebec in the nationals on March 12-17 in Charlottetown. The foursome, skipped by Peter Roffey, won the district 45 round-robin playdowns in January to advance to this competition which ends on Saturday. Shown above are Sherbrooke Curling Club president Harry Fowles, skip Roffey, third Pierre Fortin, and Ben Brochu, local representative of Pepsi Cola Canada Ltd., sponsors of the provincials. In the front are second Patrice Deslongchamps with his brother, lead Ghislain. This is the first time that Sherbrooke juniors have played in the Quebec championships.

Saskatchewan rink downs NS

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — Ari Knutson, who says "we don't panic," added a little substance to that statement Tuesday at the Canadian senior men's curling championship.

Knutson, skip of the Saskatchewan rink from Elbow, coolly drew to the eight-foot circle with his last rock to set up a 6-3 win over the Hugh Little's Nova Scotia rink from Halifax in sixth-round play.

It was the first meeting of top contenders and Saskatchewan held a shaky 4-3 lead over Nova Scotia after nine ends. But Knutson drew to the side of the eight foot, opposite an earlier shot, to leave two in the house.

Little had the hammer, but it blew through to give Saskatchewan the win, leaving the Prairie rink in a first-place tie at 5-1 with Ontario's Bill Wagner from Ottawa and the British Columbia rink of Kelly Carin from Kamloops.

The loss dropped Nova Scotia into a fourth-place deadlock with Prince Edward Island and Manitoba at 4-2.

Cracking the Toronto market

Oliver Klaus: Ready for the 'big time'

It is more than an hour before show-time at the Abercorn House and apart from the idle chatter of early arrivals and the rhythmic thumping of Bryan Singfield's drums, a reflective mood seems to pervade the place.

At a table in a corner, Maurice Singfield Jr. - Bryan's brother, the leader and main songwriter of the rock and roll foursome known as Oliver Klaus - is contemplating the future rather than the one night stand which is about to unfold in Abercorn.

Playing a weekend engagement in a Townships' bar has been a lucrative pastime for Maurice and his brother since they formed the group in Waterloo 12 years ago, but tonight the lure of Toronto has captured his imagination.

"You can only get to a certain level around here," Maurice says. "Because of the money you make you have to cut expenses. For instance, we don't have a light show, and because all of us don't have extra jobs or extra money, we have to go to better clubs in order to upgrade the act."

"The scene in Ontario basically works on one week engagements. The money is a little better, plus there's the exposure. We feel we've got it together as far as music is concerned - it's just a matter of getting to the right places so we can start to sell ourselves."

Cracking the Toronto market has been known to be as difficult as crushing a walnut with a pair of tweezers and Singfield hasn't been lulled into believing the band will become an instant attraction with a popularity as widespread as the massage parlors which line Yonge Street.

Though there are nearly as many clubs as there are transplanted Quebecers in Toronto, they are usually graded from 'C' club to 'A' and even setting foot on the stage at any level often requires a $40,000 equipment setup.

Singfield concedes that Oliver Klaus aren't in this financial league but he's still confident that the group can bypass the lower levels and begin collecting class A pay cheques.

"Usually if you have a hit single you can just jump right in," he said. "Of course at that point you probably wouldn't be playing clubs anyway. But we're hoping that the regional action we got on 'Rock 'n Roll Heaven' will get us to that level because I don't think we could go to Toronto and start from scratch. If it means playing 'C' or 'B' level then we may as well stay around here."

Rock 'n Roll Heaven has a curious history in the career of Oliver Klaus and when the group released the 45 recently with Aquarius Records, the company responsible for the success of April Wine, it was almost like inviting fate to another audition.

Oliver Klaus originally released the song - which is a tribute to deceased greats in the musical realm such as Hendricks, Joplin, and Otis Redding - in 1972, a full six months before The Righteous Brothers turned it into a hit single.

The Townships group at that time were recording out of EAB Studios in Lewiston, Me., and for a hundred bucks they flew John Stewart, the chief engineer at Eastern Sound in Toronto, down to the studio to assess the new recording.

"He was very nice about it," recalled Singfield. "We did the session in about four days and produced three songs (one of which was Rock 'n Roll Heaven). When we had it finished we sent it back to him and the guy in charge of the studio - I can't remember his name - wanted to release it in 10 days."

"He was phoning us for four days straight, asking us what was going on, but Ed Bouchee of EAB didn't say anything because he'd been told by John Stewart we had to produce an album. The guy just cooled off, and it was a matter of six months or so when the Righteous Brothers came up with their version. That was about the closest we've come to the big time so far."

Maurice Singfield shook his head wistfully as he pondered the impact which such an event may have created.

"What a break that would have been ... I guess it's all related to the cosmic. Then again, we would have had to come up with more material ... we were young and I don't think we were prepared for that. To be thrust upon an international market like that you really have to be together."

The updated version of Rock 'n Roll Heaven, which contains a tribute to Elvis Presley, may provide the springboard to vault Oliver Klaus into the international prominence they weren't equipped to handle six years ago. The song isn't burning up the Quebec market but it spent several months at the top of the charts in Fredericton and Moncton, N.B. The band plans to cash in on this popularity by touring the Maritimes this summer.

The Eastern hospitality may be cordial but even Singfield realizes the reception won't approach twelve years of Townships' warmth. Since the group emerged from those long basement practice sessions in its hometown, Waterloo, the rapport it has established with its followers would put any Italian family to shame.

"I would say the Townships is one of the few musical strongholds left," noted the band's leader. "If you talk about Granby, Warden, Knowlton, Waterloo... these areas... they actually have more clubs than the complete island of Montreal. We've been living on this market quite lucratively, too, for the last three years but of course you over-extend your stay when you do three years in the same area."

"But we couldn't do it without the participation of our audience," he continued. "Oh, we could pull it off even if there were only six people in the place but if you really want to get that electricity happening between the band members it's good to have the audience."

There's no record of electricity consumption with Hydro-Quebec but it's safe to assume thousands of kilowatts have been expended since Oliver Klaus began their music career by playing at regional high schools twice a week.

Though the exposure seemed modest it may have hastened the band's discovery. Years later when Ed Bouchee of EAB Studios was recording various "vedettes" on the Quebecois music scene, mainly country and western groups around Sherbrooke, he learned of a rising rock band in nearby Waterloo, heard the act, and signed them within a week.

The dozen or more songs which Oliver Klaus recorded with EAB didn't exactly fill their jeans with a thrick wad of bills but it was more to the young men's taste than picking peaches in St. Catharines. Pressed for funds earlier in 1971, the group, at that time a threesome, struck out for the fruit belt and managed to combine peach picking with a few strums on the guitar.

"It ended up that we were playing to these people - I don't really know how to describe them ... really decrepit, down and out. They spent most of their time drinking. Two weeks was all we could take," recalled Singfield.

There have been a lot of more appreciative audiences since those depressing days but despite the Pied Piper grip which Oliver Klaus seems to have on music aficionados, Singfield remains fearful that the group may have fashioned a cocoon from which it must now escape.

"I think the audience senses that they want to see us in a more professional state," he explained. "When you start winding up in the same old grimy clubs, night after night, they start wondering whether you're actually going to make it no matter how much they believe in you."

To remove the skepticism and in turn to translate the renewed confidence into record sales, the band may come up with a remedy during recording sessions at Studio 6 in downtown Montreal. Oliver Klaus are working on six music tracks which eventually they expect will be converted into a 10 or 12 song package to complete an album.

On this chilly evening in February, though, the "little packages of energy" which is Maurice Singfield's succinct description of his group's music, are not compacted onto a disc. They are evident in facial expressions, the crispness of tone, and dashing fingers across tight guitar strings.

It is 9:30 at the Abercorn House and the band is Oliver Klaus.

A few minutes earlier I had asked Maurice Singfield what influence Elvis Presley had had upon the foursome and lead guitarist John Mines compared his presence to the Rock of Gibraltar. But if the King had a stabilizing influence on the two aspiring musicians, the Beatles knocked them over as quickly as pins in a bowling alley.

"They're responsible for the melodic influence on the band," stated Singfield. "If it comes to writing a song or something I guess the way we like to hear a musical phrase comes from them."

You couldn't detect the Beatles' upbringing as John Mines lead the guys through a Moody Blues' tune to open the set but the stylistic resemblance grew as they churned out, "You Don't Care", some original material, as the second song of the set.

And later when they moved solidly and assuredly through a brief Beatles' medley the vague facsimile became almost an impersonation.

As the dance floor became more congested Oliver Klaus began to mix their repertoire - Fleetwood Mac here and a Deep Purple there - and I was reminded of a comment made by Singfield earlier in the evening.

"The Townships is about the only area where you can play the heavier rock like Deep Purple or Led Zeppelin," he noted. "The buzzy guitar rock... the audience really gets off on it. You can go out and just buzz to your heart's content and they'll love it. You couldn't expect to do that in Toronto."

Toronto... the word crops up again, but it assumes an irony as Oliver Klaus breeze through a song written by Maurice Singfield called "Eastern Townships Land". It speaks of maple sugar shacks and lonely railroad tracks. Knowlton, Bolton Centre, Waterloo, Ste. Anne de la Rochelle... places that are close to the heart of all four of them.

Actually, Singfield won a prize as the runner-up in the "Hear Canada Sing" contest about five years ago after submitting the song and he had it sung nationally by Stompin' Tom Connors.

The group is relaxed as they slide through the light verse and they have demonstrated this quality throughout the evening, even while Maurice Singfield bit off the words of "Hurricane" as fiercely as Bob Dylan and bass player Bob Turmel lashed his instrument as intensely as the prolific Mr. Z.

John Mines had probably put it best when he said, "it's the travelling and setup work that tires you out. Actually, when you're playing it's a big relief."

"Where do you think you'll be a couple months from now?" I had asked Maurice Singfield before he prepared for what may be one of the last one night stands on home hardwood in some time.

"Oh, one or two months from now it's hard to tell. If you were to say a couple of years from now, we'd be famous," he replied, without the trace of a snicker.

"That's our attitude. We're really confident about the original material we have. It just needs a break. It's just a matter of getting our material out because we have enough connections. I think, for instance, there's three potential big sellers on the album we're working on."

Maple syrup and Oliver Klaus. Not a bad listing of assets from the Eastern Townships.

IODE Udolphus Chapter

RICHMOND — The regular meeting of Udolphus Lord Aylmer Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in Chalmers Church parlor on Feb. 10, with fourteen members present and the Regent, Miss B. Dougherty in the chair.

The meeting was opened in form, after which the minutes of the January meeting and the Executive meeting were read and approved.

An I.O.D.E. Poster received from Provincial was on display. It was decided to order six of these to be displayed around town.

At this point, the meeting was adjourned and the annual meeting was held.

The following reports were read — Secretary, Treasurer, Education, Services, Cheer and Membership, Flag Bearer and Publicity.

Mrs. C.E. Manning read the report of the Nominating Committee, which showed that the following had been selected for the officers for the coming year:

Regent, Mrs. Marjorie Armstrong; Vice-Regent, Mrs. C.E. Manning; Recording Sec., Mrs. C. Fleury; Corresponding Sec., Mrs. L.F. Somerville; Treasurer, Miss B. Dougherty; Education Sec., Mrs. E.J. Newell; Services

Sec., Mrs. F. Wintle; Echoes Sec., Mrs. C. Ross; Flag Bearer, Mrs. C. Gunter; Cheer & Membership, Mrs. K.G. Nourse; Publicity, Miss V. Noble.

Miss Dougherty, retiring Regent, thanked the members for their help and co-operation during her term of office and Mrs. Armstrong took the chair.

The meeting was closed after which refreshments were served by Mrs. Ida Hazard, assisted by Mrs. Beryl Pritchard.

The members were reminded that the next meeting will be held in April.

Vestry Meeting

DITCHFIELD — The annual vestry meeting of St. John's Anglican Church was held on Saturday afternoon, February 11 at the home of Miss Violet Slater with seven present Rev. L. Westman conducted the meeting and Mrs. Bea Aikin of Scotstown was welcomed as a guest.

After the opening prayer the minutes of last year's meeting were read. Mr. Westman supplied copies of the financial reports of Victoria Parish Council, St. John's Church and Guild to all present, thus eliminating the necessity of reading these out. All reports showed satisfactory gains over the previous year. It was agreed that payments to the Parish Council be raised accordingly.

Officers remain unchanged as follows: Rector's warden, Keith Rider; People's warden, Nelson

Fletcher; vestry clerk, Violet Slater; auditors, Earl Veary and Mrs. David Rider.

Representation to Synod was discussed and Mrs. Otto Wood of St. Barnabas Church, Lake Megantic, agreed to represent the congregation of St. John's Church with Mr. W.R. Bailey of Bury as substitute.

Mr. Westman thanked the wardens and people for their co-operation during the year and the people in turn expressed their appreciation of the clergy, Rev. L. Westman and Mr. Glenn Coates, who assisted during the summer months, and of Mrs. Aikin who has very kindly acted as organist at the services.

Mr. Westman pronounced the Benediction and the meeting adjourned promptly at 3 p.m. after which refreshments were served and Mr. Westman moved a vote of thanks to the hostess.

SCOTSTOWN — The annual business meeting of the joint congregations of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Scotstown, Bethany Church, Milan, and St. Andrew's Church, Lake Megantic, was held in St. Paul's Church Scotstown. Rev. A. Ross Mackay of Montreal, intermoderator, was the Chairman, and opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Albert W. Murray was appointed secretary for the meeting.

The first report read was the Session's Report, given by Mr. Kelton MacKenzie, clerk of Session. During the year there were ten funerals.

The Ladies' Circle reported a financially successful year ending with a surplus.

The Women's Missionary Society Group reported having met their financial obligations. There were two deaths of members which are much regretted, viz. Mrs. D. A. Campbell and Mrs. L. McCraig. It is hoped that this Group will be able to continue the work of the W.M.S. but due to dwindling numbers the future is not encouraging.

It was decided to continue subscribing to the Presbyterian Record under the "Every Home Plan".

The Treasurer of the Congregation, Mrs. Dan P. Murray read the Financial Statement of St. Paul's congregation. During the year the Manse had been rewired, and other minor repairs made to the church property.

Mr. Peter Matheson and Mr. Kelton MacKenzie were re-elected to the Board of Managers, and Mrs. F.

Krotovich was elected to replace Mr. Wayne Monland who has moved away.

Mrs. Dan P. Murray was re-appointed Treasurer of St. Paul's.

After much discussion it was decided that due to the financial state of the joint charge and the stipend scale, we are not able to maintain an ordained resident minister Rev. Mr. MacKay will therefore ask

Presbytery to send us a married student or a retired minister, to replace Mr. Tony Boonstra who will be ordained this spring. It is with regret that we have to let Mr. Boonstra leave us. He and his family have been a great asset to the locality while he has been finishing his theological training at Presbyterian College in Montreal, and we shall miss him. However, we wish him Godspeed in his new location.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. Albert MacLeod for supplying flowers from her garden to beautify the sanctuary was expressed by Mr. Kelton MacKenzie on behalf of the congregation.

The individual reports of the Milan and Lake Megantic congregations were read by Mr. Duncan McLeod and Mr. Lawrence Rider, respectively.

Following the "In Remembrance" tribute to deceased members and adherents, Rev. Mr. Mackay closed the meeting with a prayer and the benediction.

BEDFORD — On Tuesday, January 31, Master Darren Chase celebrated his 12th birthday, with the all occasion festivities. His aunt, Mrs. Sue Crandall made the beautiful birthday cake topped with 12 candles which Darren blew out at once, expecting his wish to come true.

He received many gifts, also money, and a birthday supper given him by his father at the Opera Restaurant at Farnham. Now he is anxiously looking forward to the next one when he will be a teenager.

Among those calling on Mr. Homer Sornberger, on Jan. 22nd, were Mr. Wesley Stewart of Pigeon, Hill, also on the 31st, Mr. Wm. Taylor of Bedford.

On Saturday, Jan. 28, the Misses Walbridge and Primmerman were calling on all the patients, much to the delight of all. Then again on Feb. 1st, to help some of the patients with their religious problems. All were very grateful.

Much to the delight of all, one day recently, two ladies of St. James Anglican Church, stopped in to spend an afternoon with the patients here. The ladies were Mrs. G.B. Champagne and Mrs. I. Leney. Mrs. Champagne bringing each one a little treat of homemade cookies which she had made just that morning. The were delicious. Also, our visitors were wonderful. One patient remarked, after they left, that he had not spent such a pleasant and happy afternoon in a long, long time.

On Sunday, Jan. 15, Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chase's mother, Mrs. Belle Crandall, Mr. Earl and Mr. Walter Crandall. The following Sunday, their little niece, Shirley Ann, spent the whole day, as a guest at the same home.

A.D.S. joins in linguistic exchange

DANVILLE — On February 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, twenty-eight students and three staff members from A.D.S. participated with a group from Ste. Bernadette School in Sherbrooke.

The students were from level six and spent the three days at Park Side Ranch near Mount Orford. The weather was clear and cold-perfect for the outdoor activities.

The students each had a partner from the other school and were encouraged to use their second language as much as possible. They were grouped with their partner for most activities and for the sleeping arrangements in large dormitories.

The activities included cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, broomball, skating, sliding, basketball and cosom hockey.

The facilities made available to us through Mrs. Warnholtz were most adequate. The girls' residence and cafeteria were in the main building, the boys' quarters and gymnasium in the second building. The food was plentiful and nourishing.

The students from A.D.S. participated cheerfully and enthusiastically in all the events. They made many new friends and had the opportunity to practice their second language training. The students' only regret was that the camp didn't last longer.

Next activity - New York City in May!

UCW meetings

BEEBE — The February 8th meeting of Unit One U.C.W. was held at the home of Mrs. Lexie Rogers with assisting hostesses, Mrs. Dolly Nutbrown.

President, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller conducted the meeting, opening with repeating of the Purpose and Function and Lord's Prayer in unison.

Mrs. Agnes Myers conducted the devotions using the title "The Tinker with a Message for the World." Scripture was read from Paul's letter to the Colossians. She made several remarks regarding the 300th Anniversary of the publishing of John Bunyon's "The Pilgrim's Progress." Items were read from a diary and many pictures were shown that were taken during 1930 when Mrs. Myers visited the United Kingdom and the place where John Bunyon lived and was in prison for 12 years where much of Pilgrim's Progress was written. A prayer closed the devotional period.

Routine reports were read and approved.

Correspondence included a thank you from a member who had been remembered with flowers and get well cards while in hospital.

Holiday greetings from the former foster child, and a letter from Mrs. D. Belanger, regarding the Women's Educational Center project called "Switch", asking for an opportunity to explain the project to the unit. This will come under more discussion before a decision will be reached.

The president thanked the ladies who contributed to the refreshments at the annual congregational of the church on January 28.

Mrs. Dolly Nutbrown offered to write to the new foster child.

The World Day of Prayer service was discussed, more plans to be completed at a later date.

Following adjournment, refreshments were served by the hostesses to terminate a pleasant evening.

March 8th meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Sarah de Pencier with Mrs. Janie Somerville, assisting hostess.

DANVILLE — The February 8th, meeting was held in the Church Hall with seventeen members present. The U.C.W. Purpose opened the meeting followed by the Worship conducted by Doris Olney. It was decided to designate a portion of our allocation to two Live-Love Projects, namely, the Quebec Presbytery and Jamaica and Grand Cayman.

Reports from various committees were heard and accepted.

A card was read from Beulah Bishop thanking the group for flowers received during her recent illness. All are pleased to learn that she is feeling much better.

Letty Sonneveld plans to write the March letter to our foster child in Bali. Letty also invited any interested member to attend the Sherbrooke Christian Women's Club on February 16.

A Cook Book, under the direction of Marion Williams, is to be compiled in the near future.

The Treasurer, Edith Stevens, reported a satisfactory balance.

The March meeting is to be held on March 15 instead of March 8.

At the close of the business session, the members and a few guests enjoyed slides shown by Steve Olney, taken on his recent trip to Hawaii.

Hostesses for the evening were Letty Sonneveld and Mavis Frost.

WATERVILLE — On Wednesday afternoon, the members of the Waterville U.C.W. met in the church hall, with an attendance of fifteen.

The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. Ed. Ball and she was joined by the members in the reading of the Purpose.

The devotional period followed and Mrs. Spafford chose as the topic, Meditation on St. Valentine's Day. Bible readings were taken from the Books of John 1st and Corinthians.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. Ralph Kinghorn, Community and Friendship, read a thank-you note which she had received from a recipient of a get-well card.

Programing was discussed and each member is to be responsible for a program.

Early in May a spring cleaning bee will take place in the hall.

ASTRO-GRAPH
Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Feb. 23, 1978

Extra responsibilities are likely this coming year, but they will be amply rewarded. There will also be lots of time for partying with an ever-expanding circle of friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Avoid bargaining today with persons you hardly know. Barter with those whom you are close to and respect. You'll find far more profitable give-and-take. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph. Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to AstroGraph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll greatly enjoy the small jobs you hardly ever get a chance to do. Work around the house today, but don't leave a host of things undone.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to go someplace to see a few new faces today. Listen to their talk and ideas, but keep it on a social level.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You manage things well today, whether it be applying your unique touch to a work situation or getting involved in making small changes around home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Put a high priority today on getting in touch with those close to you but far away, who have an interest in your work and welfare. Put it off and it won't happen.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Personal gains are very possible today, but not if you sit on your hands. You must provide the impetus for action. The results will follow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Self-confidence keys moving ahead today. You can juggle a lot of things and do it well, so long as you're sure of yourself and keep busy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Level with a pal today. He'll feel more like letting you in on some valuable secrets. If he knows where you stand, he's likely to feel he can trust you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's a fine day to get with the crowd and tour the mall. Buy only what you want, however, and not what they're pushing today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do your share today. Your cohorts will readily join in too. The aspects are good for gain. They'll come if everybody pitches in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An honest evaluation of what you can do and what it's worth is essential today. Realism will fend off those who could try to cheat you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In business you can star today if you're willing to be as good a listener as you are a talker. Your prospects enjoy you, but they like to be heard, too.

Prices effective Thurs. 9 AM. Illustrations herein not necessarily exact.

Mrs. Parker described the official formation of each and the work done and what the affiliations meant throughout.

PRECIOUS HOURS

Precious hours we spend together, are quickly passing by, and God, has promised, just so much time, before we say good-bye.

Idle hours, with idle hands and idle minds too. Are hours that have been wasted. God did not intend this, for me or you.

Lonely hours spent apart, could bring your soul to tears, but, please thank God for every hour, you have had, throughout the years.

B.J. HODGE
Sherbrooke, Que.

While not from the pen of an Eastern Townshipper - but nevertheless, from one with deep interests here - these little poems came from a recently published booklet "To Children FROM CANADIAN HOMESPUN Yarns and Poems" by Mae Mist, (of Toronto). This was made available by courtesy of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Constance Taylor of Foster with the thought that some of Mrs. Mist's verse might be enjoyable to young readers.

A-SLEIGHING!

Did you ever go a-sleighbing
On a cold Canadian night?
Your nose feels cold; your toes feel cold;
But your heart feels warm and light.

Pull down your toque! Pull up your scarf!
Smell that sweet horsy hay?
That's Mother Nature's cushion
For the hard floor of the sleigh.

The horses jerk their restless heads
And breathe out clouds of steam
Which makes the riders hold their breath
Like a wild exciting dream!

Now everybody holds on tight
As the runners find their groove,
There's some delightful jostling,
And the sleigh begins to move!

Then some get off to trail behind,
And the driver, just for fun,
Says "Giddap there!" and races on,
So the walkers laugh, and run!

The jingle of the shaking bells
Is music to the ears:
If we never sleigh again at night,
Those thrills will last for years.

MAKING FLOWERS

People make flowers from paper, or cloth,
Or china, or plastic, or foil,
But nature can make them from tiny brown specks

HUNTINGVILLE
 Marian Dewing Mrs. Norrey Bonnallie has returned from the Sherbrooke Hospital, after spending a week there and undergoing surgery. We wish you a speedy recovery, Eleanor.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Dewing were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Luce recently. Mrs. Aulis is spending some time with her daughter Mrs. Wesley Aldrich and Mr. Aldrich.

Mrs. Winnie Dewing accompanied Mr. Dallas Campbell to Chomedey on Feb. 14, and visited Mr. and Mrs. Denis Findley and family. Mr. Elwin Dewing and son David and Marilyn Thornley of Whitby, Ont., are spending several days with his parents, Reggie and Marian. David was also an overnight guest of his aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson and family. While here, he enjoyed the Ice Carnival, held in Huntingville. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dewing, Compton, were Saturday supper guests of Fred's parents, also, and Sunday afternoon all attended the Carpet bowling and supper at the A.N.A.F. Hut, Lennoxville. Mr. Elwin Dewing and Marilyn Thornley were also callers of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smith, Waterville, on Monday evening.

We all enjoyed Miss Lois Sparkes singing at the Church Service on Sunday morning. It's always a real pleasure to hear Lois sing. We hope, at time of writing, that Mrs. Warren Heath, Mrs. Harry Haddon and Mr. Lynn Taylor are much improved in health. The next meeting of Huntingville Ladies Aid will be on Feb. 21st and we welcome anyone who cares to come. Also would welcome new members. The meeting to be held at Mrs. Marion St. Onge's at 8 p.m.

BEDFORD
 Guy Martindale 248-7906
 Mr. and Mrs. Len Ames are spending a few weeks in Florida. Mrs. M. Perkins of Dunham has been relieving as organist at St. James Church during the absence of Mrs. Harry Jones, who has been vacationing in Florida. Friends of Mrs. Frank Duncan are pleased to see her out and about again, after her confinement, due to a fall.

Miss May Ingalls of Montreal is spending a short time here, guest of her sister, Mrs. Austin Campbell and Mr. Campbell. Mrs. Edward Wightman motored to Calgary, Alta., where she will visit her daughter Barbara. Mrs. Maurice Benjamin of Franklin, Vt., was calling on her brother, Mr. Guy Martindale. Mrs. Gordon Jones is enjoying a holiday in California, visiting friends.

ISLAND BROOK
 Mrs. Garfield Spaulding 875-3671
 Mrs. Ilena Burns attended the January Event sponsored by Quebec Sherbrooke Presbyterian U.C.W. and she also attended the Executive meeting in Sherbrooke which took place at Plymouth Church. Miss Jocie Perras of Oakville, Ont., spent a long weekend with her mother, Mrs. Lucien Perras, who has been here caring for her father Mr. W.J. Dawson who has been ill with the gripe. Miss Laura Banks of Sherbrooke spent a weekend with her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. A.H. Banks and her friends, the Dawsons and Howells.

Those who took the Veterinary Course, held in Sawyerville, were Earl Stanley, Bruce Batley, Kevin Warburton, Fred Burns and Malcolm Burns. They enjoyed the course as well as learning many things. At the Association Building there has been an LIP program of an Art's Course with at least nine attending at times, any one who wishes to attend are very welcome. The course is given by Mrs. Marjorie Ball of Bury.

Mr. Alton Lister is a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital, where, hopefully, his condition will be helped. Mrs. Mable Wallace and Mrs. Ruby Greer of Rock Island were over-night visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kerr.

It was with regret that the community learned of the passing of Mr. Stan Lyster in his home. Mr. Lyster had been ailing for the past few months, and since the new year, his condition had worsened. He was in his 80th year. He came here from Montreal and has been here for a number of years. He looked after the cemetery for a number of years besides watching over the church and also helped many of his neighbours as well. He will be missed because any time one passed through the village, one saw Stan going between his home and the store or to the neighbours where he got his milk.

The largely attended funeral of Mrs. Alton Laduke was held on Mon. Feb. 6 at Dion's Funeral Home in Bedford. A host of friends, relatives and fellow workers from the Torrington Company filled the Home to overflowing to pay their last respects to this fine lady who will be greatly missed by her
