

Report Cabinet Agreed That Social Security In Canada Needs Revision

Council Presents Brief

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet Friday was reported to have accepted the contention that Canada's social security program should be thoroughly reviewed.

R. E. G. Davis, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council, said he was "very pleased" with the cabinet's reaction to a council request that the program be studied.

Mr. Davis spoke to reporters after a council delegation presented a brief on social security to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Health Minister Monteith and Labor Minister Starr.

"The contention we made that a review of the total program is necessary was accepted," he said.

ACCUSES DIEFENBAKER

Friday night, in a CBC radio address, executive vice-president George Marler of the National Liberal Federation accused Mr. Diefenbaker of "deliberately misleading" Canadians about social security.

He said Mr. Diefenbaker has declared he found evidence on taking office of "careless inaction" by the former Liberal government and that it took the Conservatives 2½ years to begin to catch up.

"To put it quite plainly," said the former Liberal transport minister, "such a statement from someone who knows the facts can only be described as deliberately misleading."

Late Bulletin

Sherbrooke municipal police this morning are investigating an estimated $1,000 robbery early today at the H. Guertin Jewelry store, 263 King st., W.

According to Capt. Armand Genest of the Sherbrooke Police, the brigands broke a window and reached into the showcase for a number of precious articles.

The proprietor of the store said he believed about $1,000 worth of merchandise was missing.

Police reports showed that the break occurred sometime between 4:30 and 6:00 a.m. this morning.

Time For Cat-And-Mouse Game As Well As For Electioneering

By CUTHBERT JONES (Record Staff Reporter)

Belief that a provincial general election will be called early in 1960 is strengthened by the introduction of Finance Minister Bourque's budget on Thursday, some two months earlier than usual.

Government observers say there is no administrative reason for the change so some political reasoning must lay behind the action.

Reports around the Parliament Buildings at Quebec say Premier Sauve hopes to finish the Legislature sessions earlier than in past years — probably by February 15 — and that getting the budget down and the budget de-

Nehru Terms Visit 'Pilgrimage Of Peace'

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru today called President Eisenhower's visit to India "a pilgrimage in quest of peace," of special significance at this time in world events.

Nehru said "it's obvious it would anyhow be of significance," but added that events in Asia and other parts of the world increase the visit's importance now.

Nehru said the visit had to be viewed in the context of "peace, co-operation and freedom and in the context of events here, in Asia, and in the world."

He did not elaborate on which events he had in mind. Nehru spoke to reporters in a press room established by the Indian government for coverage of Eisenhower's stay in India.

THE THEME Many things related to peace, co-operation and freedom have been discussed between them, Nehru said, and everything has been in this context.

The two leaders have met for about three hours of private conferences so far in addition to contacts at dinners, public meetings and other events.

More meetings are expected before Eisenhower leaves for Tehran early Monday morning.

Nehru was in his usual enthusiastic mood when he came to inspect the press room. Reporters elbowed each other in trying to follow closely behind as Nehru made a thorough tour. M. C. Chandra, Indian ambassador to the U.S., reported Prime Minister Nehru estimated the massive crowds that welcomed Eisenhower here Wednesday at 2,500,000—three times the size of New Delhi's reception for Nikita Khrushchev in 1955.

RESTS TODAY Eisenhower seized a chance today for his first real daylight rest since the beginning of his goodwill tour of three continents nine days ago.

With only two formal functions on his schedule, he relaxed at the russet-colored mansion of India's President Rajendra Prasad and caught up on White House business he is conducting 9,300 miles from Washington.

First was an afternoon reception in the garden of Prasad's mansion. About 5,000 guests were invited.

The only other event was a dinner at U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker's home, with Eisenhower as host and Nehru as the guest of honor.

Scotland Yard Men Nab Jewel Thieves

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland Yard's flying squad officers detained two men Friday night in connection with a £250,000 ($700,000) jewel robbery in London last October.

THE LAST ONE — Eric Schiller, (second from right) ski expert hired by the city to supervise construction of the ski center on the slopes of the luminous cross mountain is pictured doing just that. He is supervising the installation of the last steel pole to be installed for the installation of the $200,000 "poma lift". Installation of the lift should be completed by next week. (Record Photo by Gerry Lemay)

Ski-Trail And Lift Near Completion

By PAT BOUGIE (Record Staff Reporter)

Sherbrooke children and grown-ups may be given a Christmas present this year by the Sherbrooke City Council.

A spanking new ski-trail and "poma lift" in the city's West ward on the slopes of mountain near the illuminated cross.

Eric Schiller, a ski expert hired by the city to construct the trail, said yesterday that completion date of the trail is expected to be a few days before Christmas.

"If the weather holds out, the trail should go into operation for Christmas," Mr. Schiller said yesterday.

At present, work has been held up because of rain. The surrounding land about the working sites is a veritable quagmire.

"As soon as the land freezes, we will be able to work faster," Mr. Schiller said.

At present, poles for the "poma lift" have been erected, while the two 10 feet high cross sections will be erected Monday, the weather permitting.

Six 1,200 pound steel poles each 24 feet high have been installed at the site.

The last one of these poles was installed yesterday afternoon.

Length of the ride up the slopes of the mountain will be 1,500 feet.

Altitude of the mountain from where the skiers will get their start will be at the 1,300-foot level.

THE TRAIL The trail itself, half completed, will be about 2,000 feet long. It will be a slalom course most of the way down.

At present, the land for the trail has been grubbed, but certain spots have as yet to be levelled.

One trail will be built this year. But sufficient land remains for the opening of several other trails in future years.

PARKING LOT At the bottom of the trail, a parking lot to be called Jogues street is presently under construction and is expected to be ready within two weeks.

Several hundred feet long and 65 feet wide, the lot will accommodate about 200 cars.

Bible Is Most Important Baggage For Traveller On The Road Of Life

Mastering the techniques for convenient and comfortable traveling is an art, especially when one travels by plane or bus where there is a weight limit, or an extra charge on excess baggage.

For long trips and long stop-overs one must choose wisely and well the non-essential and eliminate the nonessentials. Light-weight bags and plastic containers, nylon garments, and slippers that fold and fill corners without creasing, are ideal. To say nothing of the plug-in gadget for brewing tea and coffee in the hotel room.

With modern equipment it is no trick at all to travel conveniently and comfortably. Bodily needs have been amply provided for by clever designers.

But I have a problem: I consider my big, black, large-print Bible and a few books essential for the full enjoyment of any trip, and the few books I require outweigh the rest of my traveling equipment and require much space, and the big Bible is the chief offender, but it is the most essential piece of luggage for travelers on the Road of Life and I want it with me.

THE ROAD MAP It is the divinely designed road map and time table which lists the important stations between birth and eternity. It explains the stop-overs and lists the times when we may expect to pause for refreshments.

And, like a full-blown time table, it requires a little skill to understand the symbols and references at the back, the middle and the front pages. And so I need the whole Bible to keep me posted on the journey which will finally get me to my desired destination.

With the discoveries in other fields, one wonders why some genius has not produced a feather-weight, celluloid Bible with concordance and maps included (which could be tucked into the corner of one's purse, like a plastic rain hat), and equipped with a magic contact lens which would magnify the tiny pages to a full size so that folk with limited vision could read and not be weary.

This would solve the excess baggage problem and provide a novel solution to our Christmas shopping for a year or two. The genius who brings my dream Bible into being might enclose the tiny pages in a walnut shell on which the words: The Good News in a Nutshell (and keep

Talks Break Down

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Gosselin, president of the National Textile Federation CCCL, today asked the Quebec labor minister to intervene in the union's dispute with the Dominion Textile Company, Ltd.

Mr. Gosselin's request, in the form of a letter to Labor Minister Antonio Barrette, came after negotiations between the union and the company broke down Friday.

It said that after 14 days of talks the two parties were still unable to find grounds for agreement.

Union and company statements issued after the breakdown in talks blamed the difficulty on disagreement as to whether day-to-day changes in company operation should be taken to arbitration if the union desired.

STARTED SEPT. 27 The company's plant at Magog, Que., has been shut down by a strike since Sept. 27. The negotiations also covered employees at untraced company plants in Montmorency, Sherbrooke and Drummondville, Que.

Mr. Barrette has so far refused to intervene in the strike at Magog, where violence has threatened several times. None of the other plants has yet been struck.

The union has called a meeting of the Magog strikers today.

Mr. Gosselin said the company's position denies the principle of arbitration. The company statement said minor changes in operation should not be subject to union dispute.

Boy Slips Is Killed By Car

LAKE MEGANTIC — Slippery roads have been partially blamed for the death of young Alfred Andrews, aged 10, of R.R.1, Megantic, fatally injured yesterday afternoon after being struck by a car on his way back from school.

Driver of the car was Henri Hamel, of North Portland, Me.

Crossing the road near his home, the boy slipped on the road into the path of the oncoming vehicle after Hamel sounded his horn.

A coroner's inquest last night rendered a verdict of accidental death, but made a strong recommendation that all police and municipal roads departments place signs or warnings of some sort at places in the road when driving conditions could prove dangerous to pedestrians.

Eisenhower Hailed On Asian Visit

Summary of the week: President Eisenhower was hailed by millions on his visit to Asia. At the United Nations, Canada asked Hungary about reports of new reprisals for the 1956 revolt. The worst storms in 20 years hit Europe.

TRIUMPHAL JOURNEY The enthusiasm of Eisenhower's welcome in Turkey, Pakistan and India was described in such words as stupendous, tumultuous, colossal.

Some Indian villagers thought he was a reincarnation of Vishnu, the protector in the Hindu trinity. One old Hindu woman said that like Vishnu, he held the power to destroy the world and was at the same time a great benefactor.

APPEAL TO HUNGARY The United Nations' General Assembly renewed its appeal to Russia and Hungary Wednesday to end their repression of anti-Communist Hungarians. Few diplomats believed a mildly-worded resolution deploring the Communists' "continued disregard" of UN resolutions on the 1956 uprising and its aftermath would have much effect.

On Tuesday, the Canadian delegate, Wallace B. Nesbitt, said there is "reason to believe that new and shocking events may have taken place in recent months." He referred to reports that teen-agers involved in the unsuccessful revolt had been held for execution until they reached the age of 16.

External Affairs Minister

Howard Green said in Ottawa that Canada hoped the publicity would help stop the executions.

It was a "calculated risk" that Canada's stand at the UN might increase world tension, he added.

HAPPY FAMILIES The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, says it takes at least three children to make a family. "One child," he said at a prayer church dedication ceremony in England Monday, "is just miserable all by itself. Two children just fight each other but with three you have got an arbitration court. Three of them can talk it out."

UNIVERSITY AID PLAN The government has agreed to a plan for federal aid to universities proposed by Quebec Premier Paul Sauve. Provided Parliament approves, it will take effect in April.

Since 1952, Quebec universities had refused federal aid because of the late Premier Maurice Duplessis' disapproval. Sauve's government suggested that Quebec be allowed to increase its corporation in-

Mrs. R. Gale Addresses W. A. Of Beebe Church

BEEBE — Mrs. R. Gale, of Waterville, Presbytery W.A. secretary, was guest speaker at a meeting of the Woman's Association of Wesley United Church, Stanstead South United Church in Rock Island and from Centenary United Church, Stanstead.

Mrs. Gale brought greetings from the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbytery and also from the W.A. in Waterville, and she gave an interesting and enlightening talk on the amalgamation of the Woman's Associations and Women's Missionary Societies, which will take place in 1962. An informative question and answer period followed. Mrs. Gale was introduced by Mrs. H. Beane and thanked by Mrs. F. Stanton and Mrs. C. Darby.

At 7 o'clock the W.A. members had met in the church parlor for the regular business meeting with the president, Mrs. B. Haselton in the chair. The treasurer's report showed profits of over $300 realized from the Christmas supper and bazaar.

It was decided that $100 be given to the Sunday School towards supplies, part of the money used for gifts and candy bags for the Christmas entertainment. It was also decided that $300 be given the Official Board to help defray church expenses. Book shelves are being built in the study at the parsonage and it was suggested that the Church Board be approached on the matter of a waste paper collection. At the present time no storage space seems available.

The slate of officers for the coming year was not complete and the nominating committee asked for another month to complete the slate. The nominations and election will take place at the January meeting.

Following the business meeting the members joined with the guests in the dining hall. A short devotional period was held.

Refreshments were served buffet style from a table beautifully appointed with a Christmas centrepiece flanked by tall red tapers in silver holders. Mrs.

Townships Fish And Game Notes

By IVY HATCH

How time does fly, the fishing and deer hunting season has come and gone. A hunter in Waterloo area shot a huge buck of over 250 pounds with horns like a moose, so says Rene Paquette, who took pictures of it.

Figures on the deer kill in Sherbrooke area, released by Chief Warden Clement Bouchard, show a total of 978, broken down into countries as follows: Brome, male 67; Shefford, male 55; Sherbrooke, male 6, female 2; Stanstead, male 57, female 85; Richmond, male 93, female 81; Compton, male 224, female 231; Wolfe, male 43, female 34.

The Baldwin's Mills hatchery has re-stocked Baldwin's Pond with 16,500 speckled trout, from five to eight inches, 1,000 Quebec reds from nine to 11 inches and 300 large trout of various species from 12 to 15 inches. This pond was cleaned at a cost of nearly $300 by the Stanstead County Fish and Game Club last fall. There should be good spring fishing there.

The Lake Massawippi Fish and Protection Club is now thinking about Christmas and turkeys are being raffled in various villages. Good chance to win a turkey and help the club at the same time in a financial way.

This club is making every effort to have legal take of smelt in the spring, earlier season for bass fishing and hopes to have another rearing pond before too long.

Stanstead County Fish and Game club is planning a game sanctuary in Hatley Township before another spring. Several farmers who own land seem very interested in this project. We will know more about this the first of the New Year.

There are rumors of a game club being formed in Baldwin's Mills area, brought about by hunters not looking to see what they shoot, resulting in killing of cattle, a great loss to any farmer.

Clark Jones in Tomifobia had two valuable Hereford cows shot. One was so badly injured she had to be killed, a considerable loss, as she was valued at $400. May I take this opportunity to send all my readers greetings of the Yuletide season and wishes for good fishing and hunting in 1960.

Montreal Meeting

Textile Talks Said At Impasse

(SPECIAL TO THE RECORD)

MONTREAL — The Dominion Textile Company Ltd. last night announced that negotiations with the National Textile Federation have reached an "impasse."

Meetings were held in Montreal last week and this week regarding labor contracts concerning the Company mills in Magog, Sherbrooke, Drummondville and Montmorency.

The Company statement read: "Negotiations with the National Textile Federation have again reached an impasse. During the discussions the syndicates held the position regarding the right to question all changes made by the Company including the right to take even the most minor of them to arbitration."

"The Company could not agree to making all the minor changes subject to arbitration procedures."

"The Company has offered to meet next Monday, but no further meetings have been scheduled."

"The union representatives stated that they could see no purpose in any further meetings at this time. The syndicates also held to their refusal to share the costs of the arbitration chairmen."

"Negotiations this week did not deal with the question of wages at all. They concerned the question of day-to-day operations of the Company's plants."

"In an attempt to arrive at a compromise on this point, the Company has made various proposals which would make available to the union all information on these minor changes which are such an important issue."

"This would give the union full knowledge of all changes made. At all times the Company places all major job changes under trial period and the union has a complete right to arbitration in those matters."

"The syndicate now insists on demanding for new rights insofar as the daily routine operating matters are concerned."

Frans Brouw Soloist With Local Symphony

Frans Brouw was born in Furnes, Belgium, Jan. 31, 1929. He began his piano studies at the age of five under the tutelage of his father. Later he entered the Royal Conservatory of Music at Brussels and in 1948 received a first prize in the class of the famous master, Marcel Maas.

Tax Increase Said Not Hard On Small Owner

Mayor Nadeau Refutes Proprietors' League Statements

Mayor Armand Nadeau said yesterday that the Sherbrooke Proprietors' League was strictly an association to protect the city's small property owners and that Sherbrooke's small property owners were not severely affected by the city's recent tax increase.

Mr. Nadeau, speaking at his weekly press conference was commenting on a Proprietors' League press release urging city proprietors to fight all loan by-laws presented by the city.

The release stated that it was the proprietors that suffered the consequences of such by-laws.

"In reality," the mayor said, "the tax increase does not affect the small property owners very much."

LOW EVALUATION

Mayor Nadeau added that the city's evaluation on property should be 65 per cent of the value of the property.

"In many cases this is not so," he said. "It is below what it should be," Mr. Nadeau added.

"Loan by-laws that were presented to the public were accepted," the mayor went on.

"These by-laws were presented for the accomplishment of urgent public works."

The mayor went on to say that by approving these loan by-laws, the population of Sherbrooke showed that it was interested in the city's progress.

"A municipal government that does not improve its city should not exist," Mr. Nadeau said.

"A municipal government that does not advance, has no choice but to go backwards," he concluded.

Lennoxville Red Cross Meeting Monday

Selection of a slate of officers for the Lennoxville district Red Cross Society is to take place at St. Anthony's Church Hall on Monday evening, starting at eight o'clock it was announced yesterday by J. S. Hamilton, of Lennoxville, chairman of the nominating committee.

Miss L. Mesnard, Red Cross Field director from Montreal, will attend the meeting and give a short address on the activities of the Red Cross throughout the country.

Residents of Lennoxville and the surrounding district are asked to attend and bring along prospective members for the Society.

Parking Lot Contract Awarded

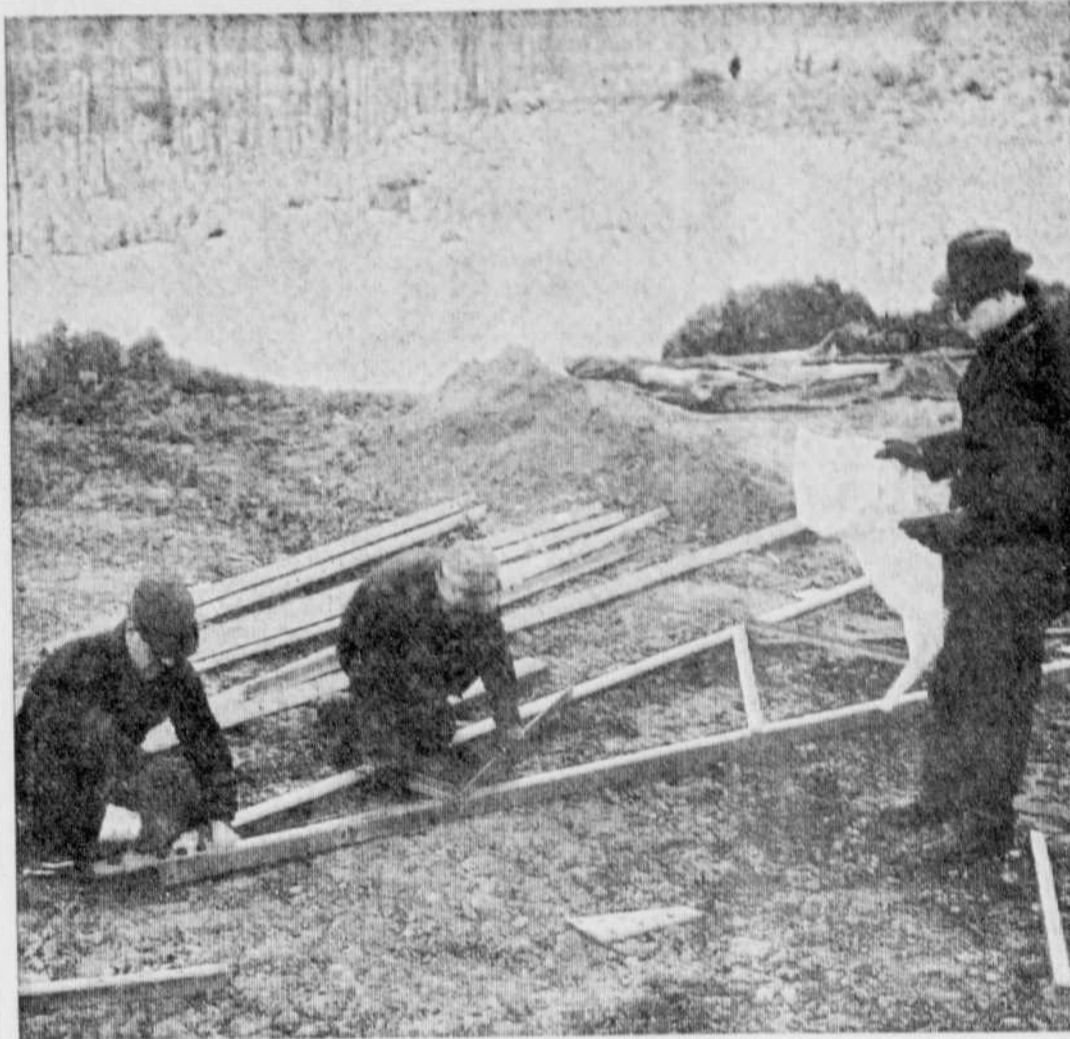

The contract for the new parking grounds near the Unemployment Insurance Commission on Alexander st. has been awarded to Fabi et Fils contractors of Sherbrooke, it was announced yesterday by Maurice Allard, Progressive Conservative MP for Sherbrooke.

Tenders were called last month and were opened yesterday.

The project has been a major question for the past four years, said Mr. Allard, and once completed will greatly ease parking problems in that area, particularly for employees of the Commission.

'Medical' Exhibit At Volleyball Game

By JUDY BANKS

The other day the Tigers, football heroes, of S.H.S., were interviewed as they emerged from their lavish dressing rooms. They say that as a result of their busy and completely successful local season, they plan to take it easy for a while. Of course, there is that little game with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, but it is of no consequence. The Grey Cup will look quite nice in our trophy cabinet.

Speaking about successes, our senior boys and senior girls volleyball stars had a delectable taste of it when they won the St. Francis Valley Volleyball League's tournament, a few weeks ago.

The basketball teams are warming up with a few exhibition games.

In the first week of November, Sherbrooke High School was very proud to welcome two very distinguished gentlemen, Dr. Chou from Korea and Mr. Nehal from Trinidad. The force of their personalities and voices will make us remember their visit and their words of importance for a long time to come.

The entire student body observed Remembrance Day by a solemn November 11th ceremony. Gary Quinn, Joyce Veary, Peter Math and Lois Sawyer were the senior students who carried out the impressive proceedings. The message presented to us by John Hogg awakened our realization of Canada's greatness; we must never forget the men who died

Priceless Art Moving Half A Mile

New Modern Quarters For National Gallery

By JACK BEST
 Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Gallery's multi-million-dollar art show is moving to a permanent home in its own showplace.

Surrounded by security precautions, trucks will transfer the gallery's vast collection of Canadian and European works from their old home in the Victoria Museum to a gleaming new building just off Confederation Square.

The project, in active preparation for six months, will be Canada's largest movement of art.

50-YEAR STAY

Since 1910 the gallery has occupied the east wing of the museum, a grey rambling structure on Elgin Street about half a mile south of the square.

Its new quarters are in the seven-story Lorne Building named after the Marquis of Lorne, former governor-general who founded the gallery in 1880.

For obvious reasons, gallery officials will not disclose just when the transfer will take place.

"We are not anxious to have a hijacking," said associate director D.W. Buchanan, in charge of the moving operation.

There has been speculation that at least part of the varied collection of Canadian, British, Italian, Spanish, Flemish, German, Dutch and other works will be moved at night, under heavy guard. Streets along the route of the caravan would be closed to other traffic.

USE HEATED TRUCKS

Trucks used in the operation will be electrically heated to protect the paintings against deterioration. Paintings will be transferred to the trucks under a canopy erected to shield them from the elements.

Many of the works—especially old masters executed on wood—have been hermetically sealed under glass to prevent damage from fluctuations in humidity.

The new $5,000,000 home of the gallery will have air conditioning and humidity control. It will provide three times the hanging space and five times the over-all space available until now.

Officials are hoping for a run of warm, dry weather for the moving operation. Ideally, said one, the temperature should be about 70 degrees and the relative humidity 50 per cent. If air conditions are exceptionally unfavorable, a day's moving might have to be put off.

Trained staff now are taking works down from the walls of the old gallery and assembling them on the ground floor. With the elevator out of order, many of the classical works have had to be carried down four flights of stairs.

CLOSED FOUR MONTHS

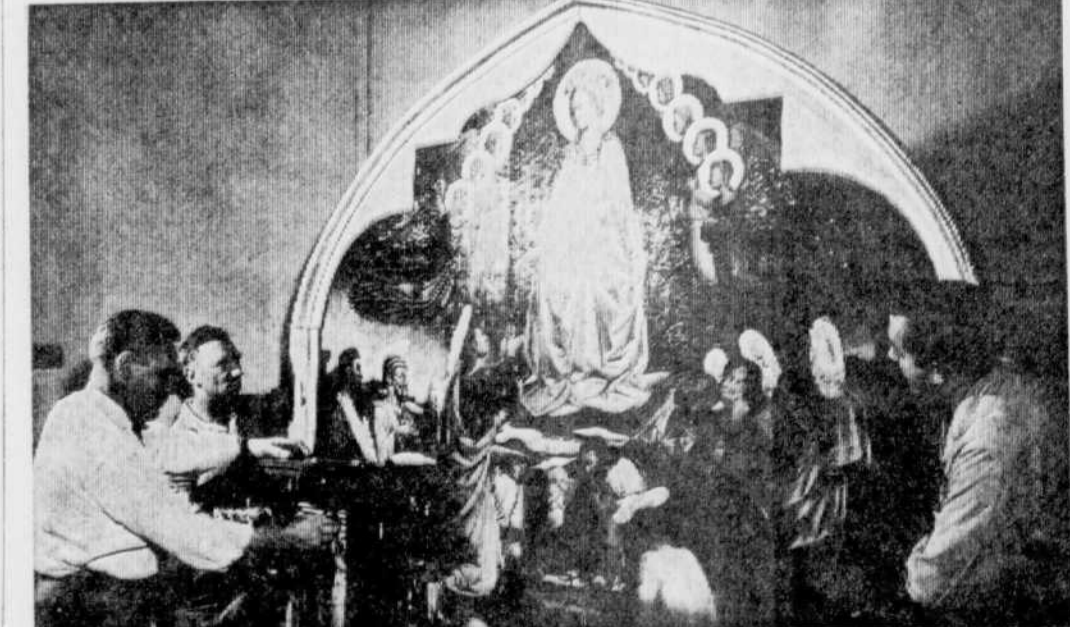

The gallery has been closed for four months to allow the taking of an inventory, packing, and attending to other details. Feb. 17 is the target date for opening in the new quarters.

Transfer of office supplies and equipment, including the gallery's extensive reference library, already has begun.

Involved in the move are perhaps 400 paintings, 800 to 1,000 prints and drawings, and hundreds of sculptures from the museum building. Well over 1,000 paintings that have been in storage will also be moved.

In addition, 200 or so paintings on loan to government offices and foreign embassies are being called back. Also being transferred are 25,000 photos — 10,000 of them mounted—and 23,000 slides, in both color and black and white.

Associate director Buchanan said it is impossible to place an over-all value on the collection of paintings. It has been estimated variously at anywhere from $3,000,000 to $20,000,000. In effect, it is priceless.

MASTERPIECE CHECKED — The 15th century Florentine masterpiece "The Assumption of the Virgin" by Neri Di Bicci is checked by officials of the National Gallery after being taken down from the wall. The painting is one of thousands of works of art being moved from the gallery's old home in the Victoria Museum at Ottawa to a new home in Lorne Building near Confederation Square. On Second Thought

Keep Station Law

Mayor Armand Nadeau said yesterday that on second thought, his suggestion that requests to construct gas service stations within the city limits be left to the discretion of council could open the door to possible abuses.

"The council would probably be criticized more if such a thing were done," Mayor Nadeau said at his weekly press conference.

"But it is only through aldermen bringing up their decisions before council that we will be able to arrive at a logical solution on the zoning question," the mayor added.

At the moment, council is awaiting a report from city attorney Albert Rivard on the mayor's suggestion presented at last week's council meeting.

The mayor said then that he thought the present zone by-laws concerning gas service station construction in the city should be done away with, and all applications be left to the discretion of the council.

But yesterday he said: "The zoning by-law should not be completely done away with."

"It should be modified in the interests of the public," he added. "With the expansion of any city zoning and construction by-laws become more and more incomplete," Mr. Nadeau said.

"The gasoline service station problems we are experiencing in Sherbrooke are not peculiar to this city," the mayor added.

that early disciple who, beside the Syrian sea, without a word, rose up and followed Christ. And henceforth as servants of God serve men our brethren, not only on the home front but in "all the world" till ALL knew and acknowledge the Sovereignty of God Whom all things must serve.

Aware that to be an inheritor of the Kingdom of heaven, we must resist the posers of evil. This requires that strength which God supplies in the sacrament of His most holy Word and the Altar. And so by sharing in Christ's baptism and eating at His table, we are empowered as Spirit-led individuals to join Him in His passion and victory.

And towards the attainment of this achievement tremendous, ye O ye heralds of the King, must rightly and duly dispense the Word and the Sacraments. Be of good cheer. Such a weighty work is correspondingly rewarding and glorious.

O ye heralds of the King, we know that you know that "It is the office of the clergy to be heralds of His Kingdom, to announce its coming boldly, authoritatively, and with entire certitude, until men order their lives as those who stand ready to welcome the Lord".

To assist you to attain this, we herewith pledge our hearts and our prayers as we do our part in the great work of establishing the Kingdom of God in men's hearts and lives here and now.

That is why, on this your day, with the whole church throughout the world, we bow our heads and in the words of the collect, beseech Christ to grant that the ministers and stewards of His mysteries may, like John of old, "likewise so prepare and make ready thy way, by turning the hearts of the disobedient to the wisdom of the just, that at thy second coming to judge the world, we may be found an acceptable people in thy sight who livest and reignest with the Father and the Holy Ghost, ever one God, world without end. Amen.

"ONE HOPE OF YOUR CALLING"

So we, thy spiritual children, committed to the "accept and obey Christ" theory will at all times, till the end of the day, support you in your endeavour to "warn the sinner, cheer the saint, feed Christ's lambs and tend His sheep". And when your work is finished here, may you in hope your charge resign. And when your Master shall appear, may you with crowns of glory shine!

This is our prayer as well as that of God's people everywhere for His heralds. THE KING'S HERALDS.

STORM'S TOLL

Not since February, 1936, when more than 200 died had the North Atlantic and Europe known such storms. More than 100 perished on land and at sea in the last six days. Seven ships were known to have gone down and more were missing.

A Portuguese tug and its tow capsized, a Greek ferryboat turned turtle on a lake and many North Sea fishing vessels were wrecked.

A large part of Warsaw's water supply was frozen for a time. Italian fruit crops were damaged, parts of southern England were flooded, gale-driven snow blanketed Sweden and there were fears of a second flood at Frejus in the south of France.

THE CHAN CASE

Canada will deport a 40-year old Chinese and his family—when the immigration department finds the man.

Immigration Minister Ellen Fairclough said Thursday that Weldon Chan had "attempted to make a mockery of the law" when he brought his wife and daughter to Canada in April, 1958, on a non-immigrant visa obtained by misrepresentation. He had been denied permission to enter the country three times before.

The day—Wednesday, November 25 (mentioned for the sake of historical accuracy).

THE WEEK IN QUEBEC

Finance Minister John Bourque Thursday presented the earliest budget ever to be brought down in Quebec, forecasting record income and spending without any change in the level of taxation.

The budget forecast revenue for the 1960-61 fiscal year at $617,797,200 and ordinary expenditures at $617,297,300, leaving an over-all surplus of $499,900.

In the north-end Montreal district of Cartierville Thursday, a $350,000 fire razed five hangars and destroyed eight aircraft at the Curtiss-Reid aircraft company's installations. No one was injured.

The RCAF last weekend rescued five men and two women, including the wife of Quebec's solicitor-general, following an emergency landing by a twin-engine aircraft Friday night on a slushy sandbar 285 miles northwest of Ottawa. The plane was on a 180-mile flight from Val d'Or to Chibougamau.

Montreal Police Director J. Albert Langlois made two appearances before the city's executive committee Thursday to answer charges that vice is flourishing in Montreal.

No statement was issued but, Mr. Langlois has been ordered to submit a report to the committee and a transcript of the investigation would be made public later.

The investigation was sparked by former committee chairman Pierre DesMarais who said illegal drinking establishments distributed business cards to taxidrivers and drivers were also given addresses of prostitutes and gambling houses.

for her. Tuesday, December 1, weeping, wailing, lamentation, gnashing of teeth, regrets—the First Term Reports.

As a result of inspiration from the Student Council Conference at Verdun, the world-renowned Staff All Stars were urged to display their talents against the Senior Boys' Volleyball Champions.

They picked up the gauntlet. What followed was a shattering game which will surely change the course of history (local). Our reversed institution will never be the same. Therefore, an event of such importance should be described at length. It will be.

The game commenced at 12:35. At 12:36, 350 roaring fans, who overflowed the balcony and spilled on the gym floor, greeted the Staff All Stars led by their medical master-mind "Doctor" Porter. One of the outstanding features of the All Stars is that they carry a complete medical dispensary with them on their travels; crutches, stretchers, iodine, stethoscope, and a makeshift oxygen inhalator (a bicycle pump). It was obvious from the very beginning that the All Stars were in top condition.

Shortly after the start of the game a guard collapsed. Oxygen was rushed on to the floor. Just before the end of the first half, a forward fainted. The expert application of a jug of "pure" Sherbrooke water revived this unfortunate. The discipline and strict training of the All Stars showed up well in the last half. One of their players "broke" his leg and had to be "shot" on the floor. So strongly drilled was the team that the whole matter was dispatched in 10 seconds flat. Play resumed.

The whistle blew the game to a close at 1:05. Naturally, the Staff All Stars crashed to a superb 36 to 30 victory. Oh, yes, a special word of mention should be given to the Senior Boys' Champions who presented the All Stars with a 25 point lead at the opening gun.

A bitterly-fought campaign was foreseen ever before the death of Premier Duplessis in September. The arrival of a new Union Nationale leader on the Quebec scene has reinforced this expectation.

The Quebec Liberal Federation is officially affiliated with the national federation. Provincial Liberal Leader Jean Lesage is a former federal cabinet minister. Less strong, at least in official terms, is the reputed link between the Progressive Conservative party and Premier Paul Sauve's Union Nationale.

Federal Conservatives, at their Ottawa meeting earlier this month, demonstrated their intention of maintaining organizations in the provinces independent of provincial associations. There is no provincial Conservative party in Quebec, but it is generally assumed that most of the Conservative vote goes to the Union Nationale in provincial elections.

Some Liberal sources have said that a Sauve-Diefenbaker axis may eventually be formed. They note that Mr. Sauve comes from an old Conservative family and ed support and tomorrow he will be able to rely on the effective support of the entire population of our province.

AN IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE — There is one important difference between the Quebec budget and that tabled at Ottawa.

The Quebec budget never contains tax changes and is simply a review of the year's financial operations with forecasts for the coming fiscal year.

Tax changes are brought down piecemeal during the House session. There was one happy feature of Thursday's budget however—it promised no tax increase, a logical move in view of the impending elections.

LIBERALS FEUD — Quebec gossip says the long-awaited Lesage-Lapalme rift is now a fact, with House Leader Lapalme resigning in his tent following a dressing-down he received in Quebec's Reform Club about ten days ago.

Mr. Lapalme, rather peeved ever since the party took him at his word when he said on several occasions that he wished to quit the leadership, has never been too friendly to Hon. Jean Lesage, named as his successor. The latter has hinted that the House Leader wishes to "pull the mat from under him."

Apparently Mr. Lesage felt Mr. Lapalme had done this very effectively when the latter introduced his bill into the Legislative Assembly requiring that the Assembly Speaker give up his directorships and interests in any company holding contracts with the government.

The speed with which the Government accepted this bill appeared a surprise to many but not to Mr. Lesage.

He had been attacking Speaker Maurice Tellier for being a director of a company that sold road-building equipment to the government.

The effect of Mr. Lapalme's action was to declare that Mr. Tellier was perfectly justified in his past actions but that he could not do it in the future.

Witnesses say that Mr. Lesage pulled no punches in chastising his associate. Anyway, Mr. Lapalme has been missing from the House ever since, Rene Hamel, member for Shawinigan, leading the Opposition forces.

LOCALLY — The Liberals are still seeking a candidate in Sherbrooke but without much success.

There are plenty of ambitious aspirants, but unfortunately for the party hierarchy most of them are championed by one or other of the feuding groups. The desired candidate must be one who can bring these factions together, at the same time a man strong enough to make inroads into the independent vote.

One or two names have been advanced in this respect, but have declined with thanks. It would not be surprising if a veteran now under the wraps goes into active training before very long as compromise nominee.

AN OTTAWA VIEW — According to veteran political observers in Ottawa, Quebec is in store for one of the most high-powered election campaigns in its history.

A bitterly-fought campaign was foreseen ever before the death of Premier Duplessis in September. The arrival of a new Union Nationale leader on the Quebec scene has reinforced this expectation.

The Quebec Liberal Federation is officially affiliated with the national federation. Provincial Liberal Leader Jean Lesage is a former federal cabinet minister. Less strong, at least in official terms, is the reputed link between the Progressive Conservative party and Premier Paul Sauve's Union Nationale.

Federal Conservatives, at their Ottawa meeting earlier this month, demonstrated their intention of maintaining organizations in the provinces independent of provincial associations. There is no provincial Conservative party in Quebec, but it is generally assumed that most of the Conservative vote goes to the Union Nationale in provincial elections.

Some Liberal sources have said that a Sauve-Diefenbaker axis may eventually be formed. They note that Mr. Sauve comes from an old Conservative family and that he has expressed support for that party in the past. In fact, he was twice elected to the Legislature as a Conservative before the Union Nationale was formed.

Any rapprochement, the Ottawa sources say, would not take place before the next Quebec election. They maintain Mr. Diefenbaker's popularity in Quebec is not great enough to be of any help in the Union Nationale.

Not the least of the factors contributing to the interest in the forthcoming Quebec campaign is the strong personality of the two party leaders. Both young and dynamic, they are expected to stage a whirlwind drive for votes.

Magog Strike

FLEXIBILITY and COMPETITION

The Syndicates are trying to gain even more power to restrict the company's flexibility in managing the mills at Magog, Montmorency, Sherbrooke and Drummondville.

Flexibility to operate is vital to this business, thus to the employees themselves.

American textile mills, which keep increasing their business in Canada, can offer customers this flexibility in response to customer demands. American mills continue to increase their business in Canada. Canadian mills are getting a smaller share of the orders.

American mills can produce cheaply because they manufacture for such a large market—20 times the size of the Canadian market. This greatly reduces the cost per yard. And wages are not greatly different.

Average hourly earnings at Dominion Textile are $1.28. This, plus fringe benefits of 11 cents per hour, makes our labour cost $1.39 per hour.

In Southern U.S. textile mills (where stiffest competition comes from) wages plus fringe benefits, expressed in Canadian dollars, are $1.45 per hour.

Few Canadian industries pay wages this close to the level of their American counterparts.

Mr. Brouw made his first concert tours in 1953, one to Canada and one to the Belgian Congo. In 1954 he toured Europe, and was enthusiastically received in Paris, London, Oslo, Milan, Brussels, Amsterdam, Copenhagen and other major cities.

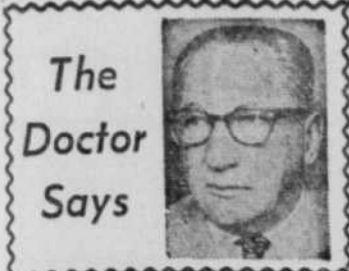

The Brussels Philharmonic Society called upon him for its Bach Festival in 1955 and also that year he obtained the Harriet Cohen International prize in London.

More concert tours followed in Canada, United States and the Belgian Congo. In 1957 he was appointed piano professor at the J.M.C. Musical Camp at Mt. Orford and has performed the same duties the last two summers.

The Doctor Says

ALERT PARENTS HELP MINIMIZE RAVAGES OF RHEUMATIC FEVER

By Harold Thomas Hyman, M.D. Written for NEA Service

In a previous column, I wrote about the part played by sore throat in the production of rheumatic cardiac invalidism. Today, I'd like to tell you how you can help to save your children from becoming victims of heart disease.

Whether the first phase of rheumatic fever is a mild or a severe sore throat or an attack of scarlet fever or erysipelas, the infection is a result of tissue invasion by a particularly sneaky and treacherous brand of streptococci. During the acute phase of the streptococcal infection, there may not be the slightest evidence of heart involvement.

The second phase of the rheumatic disease, which lasts about 10 days to a few weeks, is equally deceptive. Like the proverbial calm that follows the storm, the soreness of the throat may ease off, the rash may disappear and the temperature return to normal to the relief of everyone concerned.

Then, just about the time the youngster returns to school and resumes full activity, the joints begin to kick up, or fever returns, or the mother or the teacher observes that the convalescent tires too easily, doesn't look right or has a bad color. And it is at this time that the skilled physician notes the first evidence of heart involvement.

And it is at this time or earlier, that case finding by YOU or the teacher, or the school nurse, or

Here's what Dr. A. L. Chapman told fellow members of the American Public Health Association at its last meeting:

"We know that if children with rheumatic fever take penicillin prophylactically (preventively), there is little chance that they will get rheumatic heart disease."

"Yet, studies show that children by and large are not taking penicillin regularly."

"We have failed signally," Dr. Chapman said further, "to sell the value of preventive medicine to the taxpayer-to the man in the street. He has bought research but he has not bought application. Spending millions for research and pennies for application is like buying bread and not eating it."

Do you think Dr. Chapman might have been referring to YOU?

Mukluks On The Market

Eskimo Women Urged To Sew Commercially

OTTAWA (CP) — The Eskimo housewife, who for centuries has literally sewed for her family's lives, is being encouraged to do it commercially.

Stitches designed to keep the Eskimo cozy in bitter temperatures are earning dollars now and northern affairs department officials say demand is "very very great."

Parkas, mukluks — or boots—purses, stoles and mittens are being produced in fur at one centre and cloth parkas in another. Production elsewhere will be encouraged on the basis of a market research survey, it was disclosed Thursday by chief Don Snowden of the industrial development division.

Eskimo co-operatives, borrowing from a special loan fund of $150,000 established several years ago, are expected to enter the seamstress business, adding another commodity to the carvings, furs, blueberries, arctic char and tourism already being marketed.

But the sewing machine is taking the place of more primitive methods, once restricted to a bone needle, thread of animal sinew and the furs of muskrat, fox, caribou, seal and walrus.

AKLAVIK CENTRE
The biggest "factory" right now is at Aklavik in the muskrat-rich marshy delta of the Mackenzie River where department officials imported two sewing machines a year ago in a vocational training project.
Using designs suggested by Edmonton furrier Ernest Latour, Eskimo woman began turning out light, warm coats, parkas and other items and a big backlog of orders has been built up. A parka may sell for $150 and a white fox stole for $125.

Cape Dorset, on the western end of Baffin Island in the eastern Arctic, is the other production centre, and has done several hundred parkas in grenfell or duffie cloth. They haven't any muskrats. Caribou skin, even if the once-teeming herds still existed, sheds hair too readily for southern tastes.
Mr. Snowden said that clothes-making is going to be introduced as well in northern Quebec's Ungava where the first two Eskimo co-operatives were introduced this year. The Eskimos at George River built a log community hall last summer and would use that for the shop.

Association For Retarded Children Holds Meeting

The regular meeting of the Association for Retarded Children was held recently with only five members present. President, Mrs. L. Buckman, read a letter from Miss Leduc, Montreal Assn. Psychologist, reporting on her visit to teachers and parents of pupils in the Sherbrooke School last month. A new member was welcomed to the group.

In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. R. Allatt gave the report of the proceeds from the tag days and newspaper appeals of Retarded Children's Week in November. The results of the taggers were most gratifying and the president and members wish to thank all those who tagged for the Assn., especially the pupils of Mitchell School who collected ninety dollars.

Mrs. Buckman and several other members visited the School for Retarded Children in Newport, Vt., recently and she reported that the classes were held in the Library but were only for educable retarded students, and the parents were asked for very little help as the local School Board ran this school and hired the teacher.

The visitors were told there is a school in Burlington, Vt., for trainable retarded children and they hope later to have an opportunity to visit that school, which is also run by the State of Vermont.

It was decided to use the money from the sale of large plastic bags as a flower fund, and Mrs. Watt kindly consented to be in charge of this money. It was also decided to have a dime collection at each meeting to build up a reserve.

Mrs. Buckman then announced the winners of the recent PAY WHAT YOU PAID drawing, of which she had word from Montreal. By a most unusual coincidence, two winners were from the same family: Mr. W. A. Somerset won a toaster and Mrs. Somerset won a sweater.

The oil painting was won by Mrs. Ella M. Nichol of Lennoxville. Of the larger money prizes there were no local winners. The thousand dollar prize was won by Mrs. A. Turner Bone, of Westmount; the mink stole by Mr. Louis Romisher of Montreal; and the hundred dollars by Mr. S. L. Lawton of Ottawa.

Marriage

GRAHAM—BALSHAW
Miss Juliet Anne Balshaw, of Bearsden, Scotland, and Doctor Alexander Graham, of Harrington, P.Q. were married in St. George's Church, Lennoxville, on December 9, the ceremony being performed by the Rector, Ven. T. J. Matthews, assisted by the Rev. Garth Morrill.

The bride, who was unattended, was given in marriage by Lt. Col. L. M. Watson. Her pale blue dress was accented by a small hat in white fur, and she carried a nosegay of pink rosebuds.

Mr. Douglas Brown, of Bishop's University, was best man. Following the ceremony, the wedding party was entertained at the Rectory, where tea was poured by Mrs. L. M. Watson.

Doctor and Mrs. Graham plan to visit Ottawa, after which they will fly to Harrington, where Doctor Graham is on the Staff of the Grenfell Mission Hospital.

Today's Pattern

At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. Maude McKeage, on behalf of the Baptist Ladies' Auxiliary, presented Miss Edna Salter, a December bride-to-be, with a small gift and wishes for her future happiness.
Miss Salter expressed her thanks for their kindness.
A social hour followed. Mrs. Norman Peveril poured at the pretty tea-table covered with a Christmas tablecloth and centered by a miniature Christmas tree, flanked by red candles in wrought-iron holders.
Assisting the convener, Mrs. Ernest Wheeler in serving were: Miss Thelma Graham, Miss Jessie Hopkins, Miss Beulah Thomas, Mrs. Norman Bradley, Mrs. Henry Leech, Jr., and Mrs. Noel Humphries.

Check List For Homemakers Tells Much Of Husbands, Too

You can be sure that you are doing your part to help your husband get ahead if:

—He much prefers to have you go on a business trip with him than to go without you.
—He frequently tries out ideas or talks out problems while you sit quietly and listen, asking an occasional question or making an occasional suggestion.

—He wants you to know his business associates and their wives.
—He tells you things about business matters he wouldn't dare tell you if he weren't absolutely sure that you have the good judgment to refrain from repeating them to even your closest friend.

—He consults you before making important decisions that will affect you both.
—He would rather bring an important client or associate or prospective customer home to dinner than to take him out to lunch in a restaurant.

—He doesn't act impatient when you ask questions about his work so that you can better understand his problems and be more keenly aware of his successes.
—He is obviously proud to introduce you as his wife.
—He doesn't consider you extravagant or childish when it comes to money matters and has never doled out money or put you on an allowance, like a parent handing out money to a child.
—He has complete confidence in your ability to entertain nicely, to put guests at ease and to get along with other women.

Through Canadian Eyes

A Glimpse At Petticoat Lane

By OLIVE SANBORN RUBENS
(Record District Correspondent)

Petticoat Lane is in reality Middlesex Street in the east end of London. On Sunday it becomes an open-air market and its stalls spill into two adjoining roads. Although aware of its fame, I had never before ventured a visit—perhaps frightened by the old saying that they'll rob you of your watch at one end and sell it to you at the other!

Now having been there, I must admit that, although I clutched my handbag firmly as we wended our way along the street crowded with pedestrians—mainly Londoners, but international—I found the people goodnatured and law-abiding.

What was on sale? Everything from toothpaste to eiderdowns. The quality, where not standard, was often shoddy and the prices variable. Booths appeared to be licensed. Merchandise included shoes, clothing for men, women and children, toys, ornaments, luggage, novelties, "Canadian" ice cream, sarsaparilla soft drink, records, etc. There were two disc counters. Popular tunes blared from them and be-jeaned teenage customers swayed rock 'n' roll rhythm at one and hummed "Morgan" at the other.

The vendors had a patter, delivered with apparently inexhaustible vocal power: "I saw your friend Mr. Johnson, 'e said you'd be along,—'Ave a look, dear, lovely blouses."—"Best quality shirts, 25 bob, you'd pay 39 in the West End!"—"I've just the coat for you, sir; I'd like to take some of your money!"—"Beautiful dresses, 30 shillin's, only one button missin', see, the zip works, well, you'll give me 25 for it? Sold."

Change of price was also evident where an old chap offered plastic combs: "One shillin' apiece" he was droning as we passed up the street; by the time we returned the price was ninepence.

Both ways we heard the rather startling "No bloody customers!" from a stout red-faced woman who sold matches. Obviously her "line" was successful.

Twice we saw bearers of evangelical signs. As one, whose message read: "Jesus Saves," passed the umbrella stand, the semitic-looking owner touched him on the sleeve and grinned: "Pray for a little rine (rain) for me, will you, guv-nor?"

Despite the amusement of strolling up Petticoat Lane, I did not purchase much above a trinket. The atmosphere gave me the uneasy feeling that I experienced concerning Mexican street bargaining. But I am glad that I have been there!

Element of Comedy in Story of 'High Drama'

QUEBEC, 1759 — THE SIEGE AND THE BATTLE — C. P. Stacey — 210 p.p. (6 Maps, 15 Illustrations) MacMillan, $5.00 — "And the story itself had all the appurtenances of high drama: the apparently impregnable fortress, the dark river, the midnight ascent of the frowning cliffs, the short fierce encounter on the Plains (of Abraham), the deaths of the two opposing commanders in the moment of victory and defeat." The author, Col. Stacey, (the official historian of the Canadian Army) in his own introduction provides, in capsule form, the commonly held concept of the battle of Quebec, September 13th, 1759.

Drama, perhaps, it was, and certainly a decisive event in the history of North America, and recognized as such by Maj. Gen. J.F.C. Fuller in his book Decisive Battles of the Western World — but one has only to start this fascinating book to realize that there is the element of comedy as well; for was not the enterprise a comedy of errors after all — errors on the part of both besieged and besiegers?

This book will prove a revelation to those Canadians, both French and English speaking, with preconceived and essentially romantic ideas about this famous battle. Col. Stacey is at pains to point out that previous historians have often erred in fact and emphasis in dealing with both the protagonists Montcalm and Wolfe, their characters motives and actions.

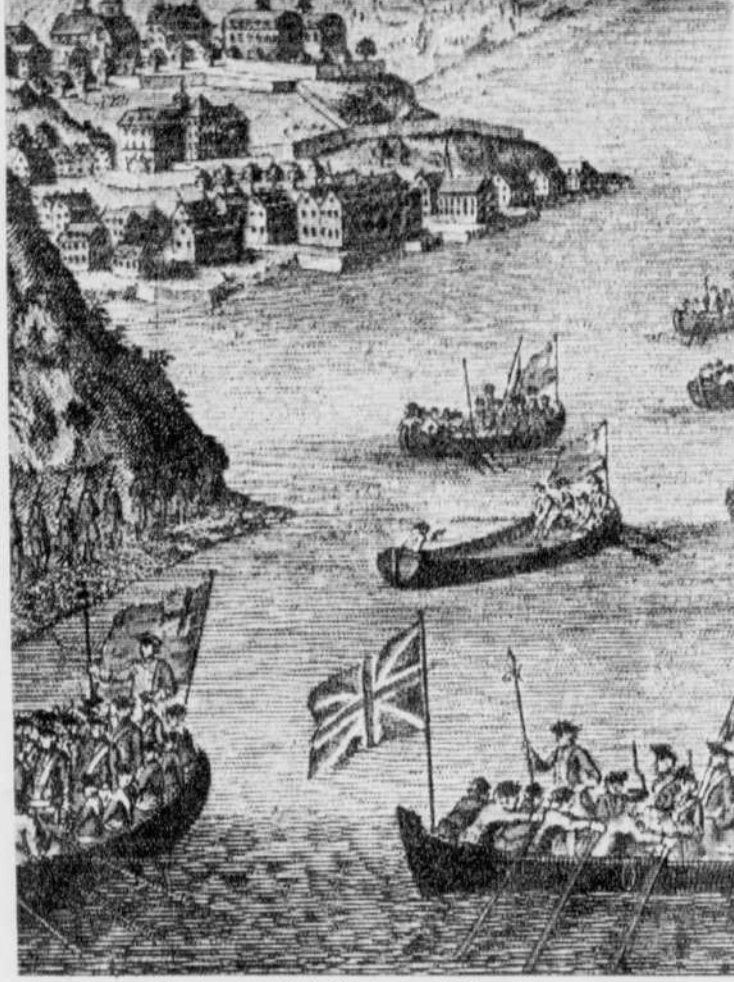

Such errors in fact are understandable in view of the frequently contradictory evidence available, and when one considers the outcome of this battle it is equally understandable that prejudice, either English or French, could easily enter into any appraisal of an inadequately documented event, with unfortunate effect.

With the customary care of the competent military historian, Colonel Stacey has examined all available evidence, evaluated it without fear or favour and come up with what is probably the most definitive book ever written on the subject. What emerges is a rather cold appraisal of the opposing commanders and their subordinates, an appraisal which reveals military ineptitude and indecision on the part of both. One cannot help but remember another work which exploded a similar historical myth — "The Charge of the Light Brigade", in the Crimean War — which was stripped forever of its glamour by Cecil Woodham-Smith in her engaging book The Reason Why. One wonders what the outcome might have been had other less ineffective men been in charge at Quebec — indeed the only military efficiency shown in the whole affair was by the Royal Navy which in its usual workmanlike manner carried out all manoeuvres exactly as required, in the tradition of a Hornblower novel.

This is a book primarily for the scholar or military student, but for those who would like to know more of the real story of the battle which shaped the future of our land, this carefully written and well documented treatise should be required reading. L. C. CAMPBELL.

er would be guided to look for the same quality as the publisher saw in the book and not finish it in disappointment. And the prize winner would not be driven to apologies for something the reader expected to find and didn't — or to drink because like the Pulitzer winner he was afraid his next books wouldn't measure up to the standard the prize and the public had set him!

Doris Hedges, well-known Montreal writer has received a signal honor from the Poetry Society of America. Her poem "Prayer" has been selected for inclusion in THE GOLDEN YEAR, the new Poetry Society of America Anthology, scheduled for publication in 1960, the society's 50th anniversary year.

The Disappearing West Is Captured In Novel

PRAIRIE HARVEST - by Arthur G. Storey 210 pages... RYERSON PRESS... $4.00 — I must confess that for me the best thing about this book is its name. Unfortunately I do not agree with Mr. Storey in the Western "harvest" that he has pictured.

I think perhaps he pined his hopes of a "prairie harvest" on vessels that were too weak to reap anything worthwhile — particularly in the case of his main characters Marie and Henry Torey who came through to me so vaguely in the reading of this book that I had to hunt for some five minutes to find out what their names really were before writing this review. Surely the main characters of a novel should make a greater impression than that!

But if Mr. Storey's characterization of people is weak, there is a form of characterization in this book which comes out strong and clear and which I think accounts for its choice as the RYERSON FICTION AWARD winner for 1959.

That characterization is of the West. The west of the cold winters: "A cloud of steam rose outside over the door as she opened it and a corresponding cloud swept in over the floor"; the west of farm operations: "The grain moved along with the canvas, up between the elevator canvases and into the knottier"; the west of disappointment: "Some rain did come, but after it swarms of grasshoppers"; the west of dreams: "A thousand acres of land... a trainload of grain... a good harvest..."

This book is worth a place in one's library of Canadiana, if only because of the picture it gives us of the West, that west that is fast being lost in the age of combines, Cadillacs and farm-life carried on from the comforts of a city or town home. GLADYS TAYLOR.

Quiet Salute To Pioneers In Novel, Sons Of The Soil

SONS OF THE SOIL—Iliia Kiriak 302 pp.—The Ryerson Press—$4.50. The author of this book spent most of his life as a teacher and only after his retirement did he find time to write this novel which was to be his epitaph. "SONS OF THE SOIL" was obviously written unburdened and lovingly; it is an unpretentious story, completely unsophisticated and gentle.

It tells of the arrival in Canada of four families, emigrants from the Ukraine, and of their first five years in a pioneer settlement in Alberta.

The story is introduced in a flashback: recollections of the leader of the group of settlers, as he lies dying, form the plot. In each of the four families, whose members are the main characters of the book, there are endearing human frailties as well as strengths.

Mr. Kiriak has made his characters credible as people, not just as types. This is so true that at the book's end one feels regretful that one may follow these friends for just the first five years of their adjustment to life in Canada. One wonders what their destinies may have been.

What makes this book a pleasure to read is its quality of sincerity. There is nothing arresting or dramatic to hold one's interest. "SONS OF THE SOIL" is a quiet salute to the pioneer spirit that existed in the early settlers of the West. The same sort of story has been told countless times before, but usually with the accompaniment of blood and thunder. Mr. Kiriak's approach gives us a welcome change of pace.

The book is written with special reference to the Ukrainians who brought with them from their own country traditions and customs that they maintained as well as they could in their new homes.

From its original Ukrainian "SONS OF THE SOIL" has been translated not very expertly — modern slang as put into the mouths of pioneers sounds too anachronistic to pass over lightly! Probably the book was written for the Ukrainians in Alberta who are the descendants of such settlers as are depicted in the story, as a testimonial to the fortitude and enterprise of their forbears.

With no thought of a mass appeal to more than a limited number of readers, one suspects that the novel's translation into English was unplanned by the author. But the weak translation notwithstanding, the book should be of interest to any thoughtful Canadian reader. It tells a little-known story of part of our history, and it is written with a contagious pride in Canada that we would do well to share. ELIZABETH CAMPBELL.

Freakish Characters Assembled

OLGA—by John Cornish, 175 pages—MACMILLAN OF CANADA—$2.50—To quote from the publisher's comments on the jacket of the book—"Mr. Cornish has assembled here as queer a crowd of eccentrics as ever snarled up the decent pages of a novel."

Indeed the book is as daffy as Madge Harbottle, one of the freakish characters in it which John Cornish has seen fit to create. After reading it through, I can't pass up the opportunity to use Madge's own words, spoken in her own frank, if off-beat vernacular, "I could vom."

I suppose it is mainly an attempt at satire, with the author being facetious throughout, for if he wished to convey a particular point to his readers, it has remained consistently obscure.

The book's setting is the coast of British Columbia, a district with which the author, a native of Vancouver, is very familiar. The area is populated by the English, depicted as unfaithful and immoral, and by the "Little Brothers" who go about starting fires, derailing trains and praying that no life will be lost thereby.

Olga is a Russian girl, sensitive and ashamed of her affiliations with the "Little Brothers." She wants desperately to measure up to "English" standards because of her love for Donald Harbottle.

The story weaves back and forth from Olga's life with her grandmother and their sojourn with the Harbottle family to the chaos in the home of Charles Bussey, the philandering father of Lucy, Olga's best friend.

Judging from the line-up of singular characters in his book, it would appear that the author has a distorted view of the human race. With the barely possible exception of Olga herself, they are an accumulation of weak, shallow creatures with no depth or substance.

The jacket of the book tells us that this novel won the $5,000 MacLean's novel award, a fact unaccountable, unless the judges gave double points for the unusual and the eccentric. HAZEL HALL.

Off-Beat Books Make Good Gifts

By ROBERT R. METZ, NEA Staff Correspondent, NEW YORK —(NEA)—There are Christmas gift answers this year for the wife who can't afford a Ferrari for her sports car-loving husband, and the husband who can't buy a roomful of Louis XIV furniture for his antique-loving wife.

The answers are books—"The Book of Sports Cars" by Charles Lam Markmann and Mark Sherwin, and "The Complete Guide to Furniture Styles" by Louise Ade Boger.

They're big, lavish and handsomely illustrated volumes that are part of a growing trend in book publishing toward the production of volumes particularly suited for holiday gift-giving.

Chances are you'll be able to find selections to fit the interests of everyone from gardeners ("The Gardener's World" by Joseph Wood Krutch, "America's Garden Book" by James and Louise Bush-Brown) and Civil War buffs ("They Who Fought Here" by Bell Irvin Wiley and Hirst D. Milhollen) to advertising men ("They Laughed When I Sat Down" by Frank Rowsome Jr.) to philosophers ("Wisdom of the West" by Bertrand Russell).

Another major field is pictorial biography such as "The Life and Times of Theodore Roosevelt" by Stefan Lorant, "Victoria R" by Helmut and Alison Gernsheim, and "Churchill: The Walk With Destiny," compiled by H. Tatlock Miller and London Sainthill. Among the costliest and most beautiful of the gift books are the Skira and Universe art volumes.

A BEST SELLER
This tiny Book of books would be a best seller in no time because there are millions of men and women, like myself, who do not feel safe traaveling without the Bible. "It is a Lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." Psalm 119: 105. It is the comforting and enlightening word.

It makes men wise unto salvation and points the way to peace and eternal prosperity. It tells the most thrilling love story mankind has ever heard, and it reveals the secrets and the techniques whereby men and women may achieve power and glory as they align themselves with their divine and loving Creator.

But the Bible itself deals with the problem of excess baggage. It tells how to solve my problem. And believe me, it is a super method for taking The World with you anywhere you go without the bother of packing and carrying and paying for excess baggage.

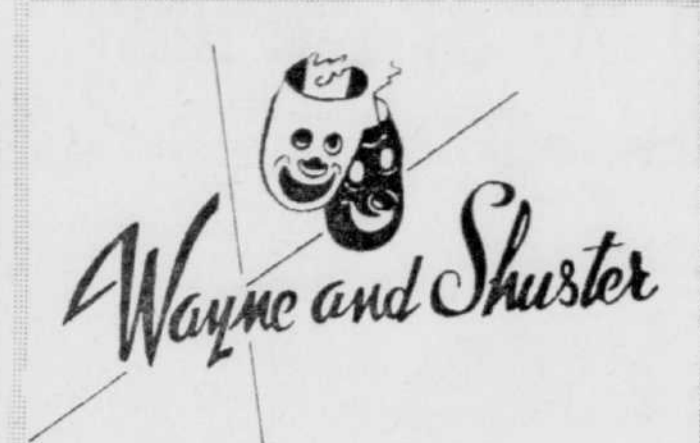

And what is the scriptural method for storing The Word? "Let the word of Christ dwell in you." Tuck those precious gems of truth into the corners of your heart and mind from childhood on, and by the time you have become too weary to carry a big, black Bible, or to see the fading print, you will be so loaded with spiritual ammunition that you won't need to worry.

GOD'S PROMPTER
Then, too, we may count on God's prompter, the Holy Spirit, to bring to our remembrance the truths which we have learned, for did not Jesus say: "But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you." John 14: 26.

And you will find by the mysterious action of the Holy Spirit the scriptures which you memorized in childhood and had forgotten for many years will come back to you like a page from the Bible flashed on a TV screen. And you will remember the side of the page and the location of the verse in the Bible from which you learned the scripture.

This is wonderful as well as a convenient experience for the man or woman who would travel all the way by the light of God's word. "They word have I hid in my heart," wrote David, "that I might not sin against thee." Ps. 119: 11. On the eve of Bible Sunday we would urge our younger readers to start tucking God's words of wisdom into every corner of your heart and mind for future reference.

No one can take it away from you after you have memorized it and stored it. Though the written Bible may be destroyed, as it was in Communist camps during the war, no one can rob the storehouse of your mind. His word is both literally and figuratively "light" and convenient to carry, and it brings the maximum of "delight" and comfort to wayfaring men and women.

A Toronto cab-driver buttonholed us the other day and complained about the publicity we've been giving Sam our favorite New York caddy. He demanded equal time, so here's his story... and he claims it's true.

An enormously obese woman struggled into his taxi with great difficulty. After puffing, grunting and wheezing she managed to seat herself uncomfortably and our hero turned and said: "Where to, Madam?"

She glared at him imperiously and snarled... "To a larger cab!"

Our Calcutta correspondent writes us about the son of an Indian maharajah who is so snobbish he only drives foreign elephants.

Diogenes Schwartz, the Socratic sage of our neighborhood delicatessen, passes along this bit of philosophy.

Remember, when you are telling people your troubles, half of them aren't interested and the other half are glad to see you're finally getting what's coming to you.

Here's the latest bit of whimsy convulsing the acting crowd at the CBC.

Two drunks wandered by mistake into the balcony of an operating theatre, sat down and owlishly watched an appendectomy.

When it was all over, one turned to the other and said... "How did you like it?"

"Not bad, but I liked the book better!"

Professor Wayne-gartner, the distinguished mad scientist, who was recently awarded the Nobel Prize for Stupidity (one more year and he gets to keep it), has just come up with another startling invention. It's a rubberlined vest pocket for people who use tea bags twice.

From up north comes the tale of two deer-hunters who arrived at their hunting camp to discover that their favorite guide had deserted them and gone to work guiding fishermen instead.

"What's the matter with you?" they asked him. "Don't you like deer hunters?"

"I like 'em all right."

"Do you get better pay guiding for fishermen?"

"Nope."

"Well, why do you prefer working for them?"

"Well," drawled the guide fingering a bullet hole in his hat. "So far nobody's mistaken me for a speckled trout."

One of the wackiest exchanges we ever overheard took place at Maple Leaf Gardens the other day.

Two sports reporters were discussing the troubles of the cellar-dwelling Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers.

"Well, at least one thing you can say about the Hawks and Rangers," said the first reporter, "They're good losers."

"Good?" exclaimed the other. "They're perfect!"

Alex Barris, the eminent columnist, TV personality, poet and peasant gave us permission to use this charming definition in our column. A perfect wife is one who doesn't expect her husband to be perfect.

The funniest line of the week was overheard at the CBC Studios the other day. Two Toronto actors were discussing a third.

"He ought to go to Hollywood. The walk would do him good!"

Check Before Stringing Yule Lights

BY MR. FIX

Christmas is the holiday that brings out the amateur electrician in all of us. For most of us the efforts will pay off with a sparkling and glittering holiday. For a few the efforts will bring on a tragic aftermath of fire and injury.

Even the most careful person may run into trouble if he waits until the last minute and then hastily drags out last year's strings of lights and puts them up quickly without examining them.

Inspect carefully. Plug each string in separately. If lights flicker after you've tightened all the bulbs it means sockets may be loose or there may be a short in the wire. Examine the strings carefully (while disconnected) for broken, frayed spots.

Parallel Preferred

Replace defective strings. Use strings of lights that are connected in parallel, especially for outdoor decorations. Parallel connections permit the remaining bulbs to continue burning even though one or more has burned out.

Use only the light strings designed for exterior use for outdoor lighting. Extensions should be of heavy-duty wire with weatherproof covering. Outdoor connections between cords should be wrapped with rubber or plastic tape to seal out moisture.

Use an outdoor weatherproof outlet for your power supply if possible. Next best is use of an outdoor light, such as a porch light, after removing the bulb. Fasten extensions securely — don't let them flap in the wind.

Insulate

If a line is being run to a tree or display some distance from the house, run the line up the side of the house at least seven feet and secure it with an insulator. Run it from that point to the tree and tie it to a sturdy limb.

If a small shrub near the foundation is to be lighted, run the extension to the top of a stake driven in the ground.

If floodlighting the house or a

Christmas safety circuit begins with the household fuse box. Average fuse (15 amps) can carry load up to 1,800 watts. Total wattage of tree bulbs (average: 6 1/2 each) plus load of other lights and appliances should not total more than 1,800.

display, use weatherproof bulbs along with special outdoor receptacles.

Indoors or out, don't overload circuits. An average branch circuit, fused for 15 amperes, can handle a load of about 1,800 watts. Circuits of heavier wire and protected with 20-amp fuses can handle up to 2,400 watts if divided through several outlets.

Count It Up

To estimate the load, multiply the number of bulbs by the wattage for each. The smallest bulb, used in strings connected in series (when one bulb goes, they all go out) is rated at five watts. The next larger, and now the most popular, used in indoor parallel strings is rated at 6 1/2 watts. The larger bulb used in outdoor strings is a 10-watt bulb.

Floodlights and spotlights are generally 150 watts each.

When you figure the load, don't forget that other lights and appliances are already using the same circuit. Don't try for maximum capacity. If a fuse does blow, don't replace it with a heavier fuse. Remove some of the lights instead.

Q—Black and brown spots are appearing on windows, floors and walls. What causes this condition?—L. R.

A—This seems to be a symptom of rotting wood. To repair, sand, refinish and wax. For a long-range cure, check home ventilating system. See that home dryer is properly vented, install louvers in attic; if wash is hung in cellar, be sure two windows are opened slightly.

Farm Forum Activities

COOKSHIRE

A goodly number assembled at St. Peter's Rectory, on the December 7th meeting of the Farm Forum, and a good discussion resulted. The subject for the evening was, "Social Security on Canadian Farms."

The first consideration was about unemployment insurance for farm workers. All were in favor of some such protection, and that to be successful it would have to be on a compulsory basis. One discussion thought it should start on a voluntary basis, experimentally, and when proved successful, then on a compulsory basis.

The second question had to do with pension plans for farmers. Again, all were in favor of such private pension plans, though there were varied ideas as to how it should be carried out. All agreed that it could best be done through a co-operative organization or some other farmer organization. But there is also the possibility of government annuities and various forms of endowment insurance. It would be difficult to make it compulsory. For such a pension investment to be adequate, a young farmer should decide that farming is going to be his life-work, and make his pension plans early in life.

During the business session, the Rev. Canon Dunn reported some of the decisions reached at a meeting of the Provincial Board of Directors which he had attended in Montreal.

This was followed by a social hour at 500, Chinese checkers, and friendly visiting, and the ladies served lunch.

Next week's meeting, Dec. 14, will be at home of Mrs. E. E. Clarke, and the subject for discussion, "Market Expansion."

HIGH AND LOW FOREST

The Forum met on Dec. 7, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ward in Sawyerville with 21 present.

The discussion was on unemployment insurance for farm workers. The majority were against this plan as most felt unemployment insurance is abused. We don't feel it is needed for dairy farming as there is always work to be done; it is needed more for seasonal workers such

The Record's Farm Report

PRICE SPREADS AN APPRAISAL

The Report of the Royal Commission on Price Spreads will be a milestone in Canada. It provides an excellent description of the marketing of food products and a careful measurement of the spread between prices at the farm and prices paid by consumers. Both of these jobs have been done better than ever before in Canada. They establish benchmarks on which this kind of work can be continued by Government and by the Council on Prices, Productivity and Incomes recommended in the Report.

It is in its conclusions and recommendations that the Stewart Commission has been less certain. Conclusions fall somewhere between the radical criticisms of big business of the Stevens Commission of 1935 and the clean state given by the Curtis Commission of 1949. In trying to let "the facts tell their own story", conclusions are often obscured. In a few cases, there is such a maze of qualifications that there seems little justification left for the recommendations made. Perhaps this is because the Commission members had such a diversity of views. This may account for such statements as "a rate of return in excess of 10 per cent in the food industries justifies comment" (p. 42). The reader is left wondering what the "comment" should be.

The chain stores appear as the bad boy in the Report but it is not always clear why this is so. The bald statement that chains are not low cost firms (p. 10, Vol. 1) seems weakened by the facts noted elsewhere that the chains are drawing business away from other retailers and are making higher profits while doing so. Apparently the claim that the cost of services provided by chain stores is what is widening the spread is not clearly justified because the chains provide less services than the independent food stores they are replacing (p. 85, Vol. 1).

It would be unfortunate if the attack on chains which is apparently recommended in the Report resulted (as it did in the United States) in raising the costs of food marketing without any gain to the farmer.

The chain stores are here to stay. But farmers need to be better prepared to meet the chain's competition and bargaining strength if they are to have a reasonable share of the consumer dollar. This could have been spelled out better in the Report. This further attention to the farmers' problem would have blended well with the excellence of the Report in other respects especially where it describes food marketing and measures the spread.

ROUGH-HOUSE HOCKEY IS CURBED

This seems to be the week where hockey has moved into the limelight with fines and suspensions. Andy Bathgate of the Rangers hit the headlines with his story on "spearing" and this outburst has earned him a private hearing with President Clarence Campbell.

It is a shame that Bathgate didn't take the trouble to check the records this year before he sounded off. So far only three penalties have been called for spearing and none of them went to the six players he indicated in his story.

We think that he may have something but we didn't like the method in which he blew the story wide open. He even mentions one of his own team-mates, Lou Fontinato. This should certainly make him very popular with his mates. Anyway it has earned him a special meeting with the top brass and it will be interesting to see how it turns out.

On the local scene there has been plenty of action in all ways. We, as president of the league and chief referee, handed out a few and we are of the opinion they were justified. When it gets to the point that players are beginning to break all rules then it's time to do something.

Our main objective is to try and curb "rough-house tactics" before someone gets seriously hurt and at the same time put a little respect for officials back in the game.

As we previously pointed out the rules are there but it seems that everybody figures they are the sole judge of what happens and what penalties should be dished out. The referees, in their estimation, are there just to face the puck and call offside.

The interest in the league has certainly shown a big increase if we can judge by the games. The brand of hockey has been very good and if it keeps up, and the players stick to the game, then the fans should see some great battles before the end of the season.

It is a shame that players just can't seem to control themselves and are always trying to get away with something. They are never wrong it is always the other fellow who did it.

As for the referees they call them as they see it and we think, under the circumstances, they are doing a good job. It has reached the point everytime they blow their whistles the players figure it is time for them to voice their opinions about the play.

After listening to some of them talk they have very little respect and the language they use is terrible. We figured it was time to halt these acts and after reviewing the various game reports we decided to act.

The four suspensions handed down may have been tough for the clubs to take but on the other we figured they were deserved. We like a good hard-hitting game, and we have played many, but when you start to curse and swear that is a different story. When players lose respect for the officials things are bad.

We have a good league and if these things should continue we think it would be the end of hockey around these parts. There is nothing which will kill any sport faster than rough-work.

It seems that our suspensions certainly caused some commotion if we can judge by the phone calls we received. Some were in our favor and the ones from the clubs, especially Sherbrooke, were certainly not in favor of our viewpoint.

Gilles Goyette, our confrere from La Tribune, states that the "innocent paid for the guilty." How can anyone who knows something about the rules of hockey make such a statement is beyond us. He states that the suspensions handed out weren't deserved. We wonder if he wants to see blood shed before something is done. He also states that the refereeing is below par. We wonder on what he bases such a statement.

It is the easiest thing in the world to sit back and criticize the work of others but we wonder if all these "so-called whistle-blowers" in the stands could do as well. We doubt if some of them would have what it takes to do the job.

We have always maintained, and made a habit, that unless rules have been broken referees should be supported 100% because without them there would be no sport. The referees working around here are doing a good job in our opinion and we intend to give them our full support and if the teams want hockey then they better do likewise.

It is the responsibility of all home rink managers to see that proper protection is given to visiting teams and officials. It is also their job to keep the fans under control and we have notified all clubs about this. We trust that the players will settle down and play hockey cutting out the rough stuff and respect the officials according to the rules we intend to see that this is done.

Apple A Day Keeping Pounds Away, Says Dieting Bob Turley Of Yanks

NEW YORK (AP)—"Apples," says righthander Bob Turley of New York Yankees, "are keeping wrinkles off my stomach. What's more important, they might put those dollars back in my pocket."

That's a terse self-appraisal Turley made Friday midway through a dietary off season dictated by the fans under control and we have notified all clubs about this. We trust that the players will settle down and play hockey cutting out the rough stuff and respect the officials according to the rules we intend to see that this is done.

"The way I got it figured," Turley told the Journal-American from his home in Maryland, "I was bad last year because I felt sluggish because I was too heavy."

"I like to eat," said the husky pitcher, "and I like to eat a lot. I used to say 'it's only December, I'll eat what I want. Walk over to the refrigerator and go for those big desserts and snacks.'"

"Sure, I get tempted every day. But I just grab another apple. My stomach cries all the time for another apple."

The official opening of the Sherbrooke Junior Hockey League will take place tomorrow afternoon at the Arena and Mayor Armand Nadeau is expected to be on hand to get the 1939-40 season underway. In the first half of the twin-bill the Maroons will clash with St. Francis while the Beavers and the Indians will meet.

Floyd Patterson, Former World Heavyweight Champion, To Stage Exhibition At Granada Tomorrow

What does it feel like to be heavyweight boxing champion of the world, to be the best professional fighting man alive?

This afternoon the man who held the most prized boxing title in the world arrives in Sherbrooke. Tomorrow he shows how he won it with the two fastest fists in the prize fighting business.

Floyd Patterson, presently second only to Ingemar Johansson in the senior division of the fight game, will fight twice tomorrow at the Granada Theatre.

Patterson takes on his sparring partners in three round bouts on the stage between features at 4:20 p.m. and 8:20 p.m.

Floyd is presently touring this section of the country in preparations for his return bout with newly-crowned heavyweight champ Johansson. Comments Floyd, "The title will be brought back to this side of the Atlantic very soon."

Football Spotlight Is Centered On Los Angeles With Baltimore Colts Meeting Rams For Western Title

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The football spotlight centers on the Los Angeles today when the champion Baltimore Colts seek to sew up the western division title of the National Football League.

Quarterback Johnny Unitas and his mates are 12-point favorites to defeat the luckless Los Angeles Rams and send the Colts into the championship battle with New York Giants for the second straight year.

The Colts have not beaten the Rams in Memorial Coliseum since 1954, and only once since 1950. But Green Bay Packers had not won here since 1947 and they turned the trick, rather easily, last Sunday.

Despite the Rams' poorest season ever in Los Angeles, nine losses and only two wins, a crowd of around 60,000 is expected.

Baltimore must win. Otherwise, they might have to contend in a playoff with the San Francisco 49ers or the Chicago Bears or both.

The Colts have an 8-3 record. Tied just behind are the Bears and 49ers with 7-4 records.

The Sunday slate of games in the western division includes Green Bay at San Francisco and Detroit at Chicago.

New York already has won the eastern division title and closes out the regular campaign Sunday against the Redskins at Washington.

The remainder of the schedule: Cleveland Brown at Philadelphia, and Chicago Cardinals at Pittsburgh.

Coach Weeb Ewbank, who brought the Colts into town from San Francisco, made it plain he is not taking the Rams lightly.

"There isn't an easy team in the league," Ewbank noted, adding that any team in the loop is fully capable of registering an upset on any given afternoon.

Sid Gillman, whose five-year tenure as headman of the Rams is in a precarious state, said he could only hope for a few breaks. The Rams have not enjoyed too many this season.

Los Angeles lost to Baltimore back east Nov. 29, 35-21.

Commissioner Joe Foss Of Newly Formed AFL Will Have To Meet NFL To Avert Possible War Over TV

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Foss, the recently appointed commissioner of the new American Football League, believes the AFL will have to get together with the established National Football League to avert a possible war over television.

Foss, former marine air ace and ex-governor of South Dakota, made the observation Friday after hearing Harry Wismer, president of the New York Titans of his league, discuss the TV situation at a press conference.

Wismer, chairman of the AFL's television committee, said the league has a potential package of $2,500,000 for TV rights next season when the eight-team circuit expects to begin operations.

He said that under the league's constitution and by-laws all eight clubs will share equally in TV receipts.

Wismar said he has received offers from five top advertising agencies for TV rights.

The NFL TV policy is to black out cities where games are being played. The new league, however, will buck the NFL in Los Angeles and New York.

Wismar indicated he favored blackouts but whether the two leagues could get together on the proposition from a business and legal standpoint was something else again.

"There's a Kefauver bill pending in Washington," said Wismar, "that specifically states there shall be no television in cities where games are being played. This could result in no television of pro games in New York."

He added, however, that the Titans are considering playing Friday and Saturday nights as well as Sunday afternoon. The Giants play all their home games on Sunday.

Wismar added that the question of blackouts would be discussed at the league's meeting in Dallas, Jan. 19.

The local tilt will get underway at 2.30 and the three mayors of the district are expected to be on hand. E. J. Struthers, Stanstead, R. E. Fregau, Rock Island, and Hugo Lepenna of Beebe will represent their communities at the opening.

The league is comprised of four clubs with Dr. R. Bernier of Richmond as the new president. The circuit is rated as intermediate "C" and it is expected that the fans of the four towns will give their home clubs solid support.

Sherbrooke Rink Wins Len'ville Invitation 'Spiel

The ladies' annual invitation Bonspiel staged by the Lennoxville Curling Club was held this week with eight clubs taking part in the tournament.

Sherbrooke ladies were the winners but it took a draw to decide the issue. Danville and the local foursome ended in a tie after the points were totalled up and Mrs. C. E. Parkin, who was in charge of the tourney, attended to final act.

The clubs represented were from Danville, Sutton, Sherbrooke, Magog, Border Club, Granby, Windsor Mills and North Hatley. Sherbrooke defeated Magog, skipped by Mrs. Jackson, while the Danville rink with Mrs. Hendry in charge downed Mrs. Rowe's Sutton foursome. Mrs. N. Lothrop skipped the Sherbrooke quartet of Mrs. Gosselin, Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Keeler.

Jack Solomons Confident To Get Johansson

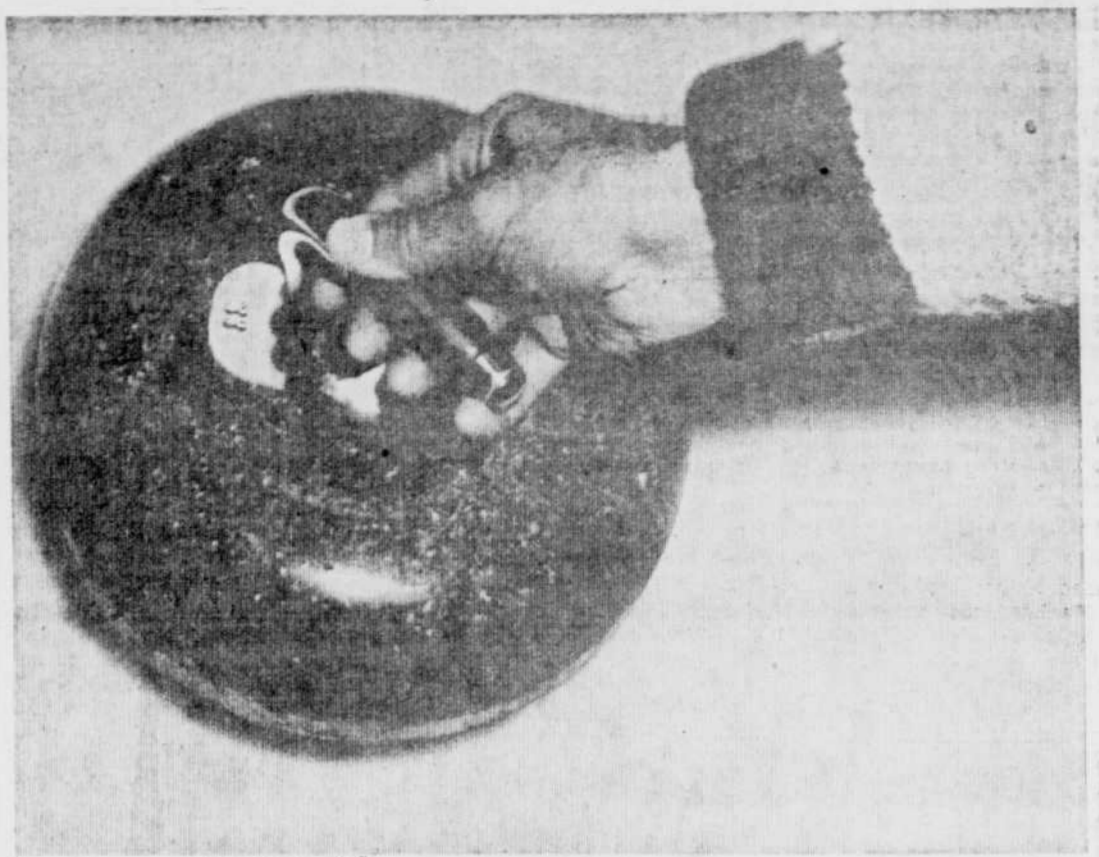

LONDON (AP)—British promoter Jack Solomons flew back from Sweden Friday confident he will be able to stage a fight between heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson and British ruler Henry Cooper in London next May 31.

"The prospects are very, very good indeed," said the always optimistic Solomons. He had consulted with Johansson and the champ's adviser, Edwin Ahlquist, at Goteborg.

"Johansson said he likes to fight in England and when he fights in England he likes to fight for me and he wants to fight shortly," said Solomons. "My box office manager is preparing tickets, if that's any good."

Johansson knocked out Cooper in the fifth round at Stockholm 2 1/2 years ago.

Ken Watson On Curling No. 4

"Muscle Malady" Cause Of Problems

(Canada's "Mr. Curling", Ken Watson of Winnipeg, is covering the Canadian curling scene for The Sherbrooke Record. This is another in a series of 20 articles.)

For some strange reason many curlers favor the in-turn when asked for a particular shot because they feel more confident of their ability to get results with it. The cause of this prejudice can often be traced back to their first appearance on the ice. Usually, when a newly-initiated member is introduced to his skip as a very, very green curler, his lordship makes a careful note to give his new lead nothing but in-turns for the first 30 games.

With such a benevolently naive introduction to the royal and ancient pastime is it any wonder that a mental block occurs when an outturn shot is called for? Physically, this turn for a right-hander should be easier to manipulate, particularly for play directed to the right hand side of the ice. In such cases the curler in the back is swinging away from rather than across the body. The chief difficulty in executing an out-turn is caused by the player unwinding the handle of the rock during the backswing. Thus when the forward swing begins the arm and wrist have turned outward (away from the body) as far as the muscles permit. The handle has therefore ceased turning when the stone hits the ice and only by bending the elbow can the player force the wrist to give the handle a last-second wrench.

There are two cures for this muscular malady. First is to start the backswing with the handle pointing straight back then concentrate on pulling the stone back without turning the wrist. As only a small percentage of curlers succeed in this method effectively, let's look at the alternative.

A quick look at today's illustration reveals the handle of the stone slanted to the left at the stance position. This is

Curling Gaining Popularity At Windsor Mills

WINDSOR. — Curling is still a very popular pastime at Windsor Mills. The club has been open for some four weeks now and interest is as keen as ever—in fact one might say it has gained in popularity. Many of the curlers wander off into neighboring towns and it would not be adverse to say some of the local curlers are as well known in these towns as any exponent of the roaring game.

Last week the club was the scene of the Pat Lid bonspiel won by the inimitable Duke Doucet with T. Cumby 3rd, M. Cloutier 2nd and G. Paquet lead. Duke defeated a formidable opponent in the person of Andy Michaud. W. E. Rice won the consolation round.

Thus far we have had the Begginers, Richmond and the Pat Lid bonspiels—all local curling except the Richmond bonspiel, which was an invitation affair, and won by Sid Cross of Sherbrooke.

This newsletter will be published weekly and will cover activities of the club for that period. Watch for it and remember—the ice doesn't always "fall away"; sometimes you miss the broom.

Bruins Promote Larry Hillman

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Bruins Friday promoted Larry Hillman, a defenceman, from the Providence farm team of the American Hockey League for two weekend games with the New York Rangers.

The Athletics, who have made numerous previous transactions with the Yanks, also received outfielders Norm Siebern and Hank Bauer and first baseman - outfielder Marv Throneberry.

In addition to Maris, the Yanks got shortstop Joe Demaestri and first baseman Kent Hadeney. The deal nullified a New York player obligation resulting from last summer's trade in which Hector Lopez moved to New York.

Mrs. N. MacLeod Is Guest Of Honor At Miscellaneous Shower In Bury

BURY. — Mrs. Scott Allison, Mrs. R. Walker, Mrs. D. Saunders and Mrs. R. Strapps were hostesses at a delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower for Mrs. Newton MacLeod at the home of Mrs. Strapps.

On arrival the bride was presented with a corsage of pink roses and lily of the valley by her aunt, Mrs. Scott Allison. She was escorted to the seat of honor by Mrs. Strapps and seated with her mother, Mrs. Shirley Clark, and her aunt, Mrs. Scott Allison.

The room was tastefully decorated in pink and white. The centre of attraction was a beautiful bride-doll with its attendants, arranged on the buffet over which pink and white streamers led from the corners of the buffet to the ceiling. The same arrangement of streamers led from the corners of the lace-covered dining-room table to the ceiling, where festoons of confetti-filled inflated balloons were hanging, which, when burst showered the bride.

On the table before the guest of honor were many attractively-wrapped parcels as well as a shower cake most artistically decorated in blue and white. The top layer depicted a basket filled with gaily-tied parcels over which was tilted a large umbrella. Three smaller umbrellas were arranged around the basket. This was a gift from Mrs. Goode.

Mrs. Clayton Sylvester made the presentation to the bride, whom little Miss Muriel Strapps assisted in opening the parcels. The guest of honor expressed her appreciation to the hostesses for arranging the shower, to Mrs. Goode for the beautiful cake, and thanks to all for the nice gifts.

For entertainment each guest was given a pencil and paper and was requested to answer the question, "What was the happiest moment in your life? These were collected and read by Mrs. Clark and guesses made as to the identity of the writer.

The next subject was, "The funniest thing that ever happened to me." The same procedure followed with Mrs. Allison as reader. Some were very amusing.

Couple Honored On Anniversary At Rock Island

ROCK ISLAND. — The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Sisco was the scene of a delightful occasion honoring Mr. and Mrs. Edward Charland, of Coaticook, on their silver wedding anniversary and Mr. and Mrs. Sisco's son, Guy, on his birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Charland had been invited to attend a birthday party for Guy and on arriving were taken by complete surprise to be presented with a corsage of white carnations sprayed with silver and a carnation boutonniere by their daughters, Ruthaline and Irene.

The chestfield had been decorated in white, pink and silver with a large 25 silver numeral. Standing before this the couple received the congratulations of over 40 relatives and friends.

The evening was pleasantly spent in social chat with the younger group dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Charland were presented with a silver tea service from their five children, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Sisco, Edward Tincarre, Henry Rolf and Donald Sylvester, and other gifts from those attending and from others unable to be present. Guy Sisco was also remembered with gifts. The recipients voiced their appreciation.

A guest book in charge of Miss Phyllis Dahl was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Charland by their younger son, Guy Charland.

Refreshments were served from a white and silver covered table centered with a three-tiered anniversary cake beautifully decorated in white and silver and topped with a bride and groom, and made by Mrs. Sisco. As the initial cut was made by the bride and groom of the silver years flash pictures were taken, and later of the family who had not been all together for 17 years.

Among the guests were Mrs. Doug Stone, bridesmaid at the wedding 25 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Grenier, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Huff, Compton; Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Davis, Sherbrooke; Mr. and Mrs. A. Stone and family, Juds Mills; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Knowlton, Waterville; Mrs. O. W. Sisco, Rock Island; Mr. and Mrs. L. Huff, Coaticook; Mrs. Douglas Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Charland, Roland Charland, Mount Pleasant, Ont.; Mrs. Douglas Berwick, Burford, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Tincarre, and Edward Tincarre, East Angus, and Donald Sylvester, Waterville; and Henry Rolf.

Edward Charland and Laura Stone were married in Waterville on Nov. 26, 1934. They have five children, Ruthaline, Irene, Phyllis, Kenneth and Guy.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. F. Martin and Mrs. C. Sylvester.

Meanwhile at the home of Mr. Scott Allison, the groom was guest of honor at a card party. On behalf of the assembled guests Romeo Lapointe extended congratulations to Mr. MacLeod and presented him with a purse of money. Mr. MacLeod expressed his appreciation.

The host served refreshments assisted by several of the other gentlemen.

HUNTERS ENTERTAINED

The men who had spent weeks during the hunting season with Newton MacLeod, at Well Come Inn Camp, gathered together with their wives at the camp for the card party and supper served annually at the end of the hunting season.

The supper was under the supervision of Oscar Lassenba, the camp cook, assisted by several of the ladies.

Present were Mr. and Mrs. S. Allison, Mr. and Mrs. D. Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. A. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. C. Sylvester, Mr. and Mrs. R. Strapps, Mr. and Mrs. E. Barter, Mr. O. Quinn, Mr. H. Donaghy, Mr. and Mrs. Newton MacLeod and Mrs. Shirley Clark.

The highlight of the evening was a genuine surprise for Mr. and Mrs. N. H. MacLeod (nee Guerita Clark) whose marriage took place recently. A Martin, in his usual witty manner extended congratulations and presented the bride and groom with a beautifully decorated wedding cake topped with bride and groom under an arch. Pink roses and silver leaves completed the decorations. Several other nice gifts were presented by their friends.

The groom expressed appreciation of his bride and himself, and thanks for the honor bestowed on them.

The evening was pleasantly passed at cards. Before departing for home all decided to meet again on Sunday evening for another supper at camp.

FAMOUS TORSION-AIRE RIDE! It keeps your 2,700-pound Valiant flat on the curves, keeps you easy in the seat. Valiant is the compact car that gives you big-car comfort!

Chrysler of Canada's Valiant is the newest car in the world. And it looks it—with a daring new kind of styling that says more than just "economy". But new as it is, Valiant is already answering some very old questions.

How much "go" can you get from a car this size? Valiant shows you. When you take your first cruise in a new Valiant you'll discover that it can out-perform cars half-a-ton heavier and twice as powerful. Yet it visits the gas pump only half as often! Secret: Valiant's incredible new six-cylinder engine—an ingenious overhead-valve power plant that inclines to the side at a 30° angle, quietly puts out a practical 101 h.p., but hoards fuel like a confirmed tightwad. Valiant gives you up to 350 miles on one 11-gallon tankful of regular gas!

Can a compact car have a "big-car" ride? Valiant does. It is only 184 inches long. It has a 106½-inch wheelbase. Yet, compact as it is, Valiant rides like a car double its size. That's because Valiant (like other Chrysler of Canada cars) has famous Torsion-AIRE Ride—the finest suspension system yet devised for taking the way out of a corner, the lurch out of a stop or the bumps out of a road. If anything, Torsion-AIRE's superiority is just as obvious on a shorter-wheelbase auto as it is on the larger cars. Yet Valiant is the only one of the new compact cars that has it. It's the only one with the "big-car" ride.

What can be done about rattles and rust? Valiant's done it. In one fell swoop. Valiant features a new Unibody construction that combines frame and body in a single steel unit. Not a single bolt to rattle. And it is nearly four times as durable as the other two-piece kind. On top of that, every Valiant Unibody is dipped seven separate times to make it more permanently rustproof than any car before it—ever!

Where do you put all your luggage in a smaller car? If you own a Valiant, you put it in the trunk. It's hard to believe you can tuck so much usable space into a car only 184 inches long. But Valiant does it. All your luggage stows handily in a trunk that measures 24.9 cubic feet! And Valiant's new Unibody lets you sit down inside the frame with plenty of daylight between hat and roof. Six can ride comfortably.

These are only a hint of the questions that Valiant answers. You probably have a few to ask yourself. We urge you to do so. Just visit your dealer today. Drive a Valiant—the economy car you'd want at any price!
