PRICE TWO CENTS

Final Tribute Was Paid Late Robert Brodie

Well-known Fruit Grower Was Pioneer Resident of This District—Rev. F. W. Kerr and Rev. W. J. Clarke, Emeritus Minister Officiated—"Present Generation Will Never See Man of His Type"

A large number of relatives and friends paid their last tribute Tuesday afternoon to Robert Brodie, well known fruit grower and one of the pioneer residents of this district, at St. Andrew's United Church, 487 St. Antoine Road. The service was conducted by the Reverend Dr. F. W. Kerr assisted by the Rev. Dr. W. J. Clarke, emeritus minister. Two hymns were sung by the choir, under the direction of Fred Whitely, organist.

In the eulogy Dr. Kerr referred to the sterling qualities and high Christian character of the deceased. "He was frank in declaring his convictions," stated the pastor "and stood foursquare against the breakdown of the standards of morality and sobriety. Recently when he became aware of the encroachment of age he set down in writing his philosophy of life, illustrating the workings of the laws of cause and effect as inexorable."

Dr. Kerr described Robert Brodie as an embodiment of the best traditions of the past, and expressed the fear that the present generation would never again see a man of his type.

Brodie was born December 27, 1853, in the house in which he died on Upper Lachine Road. His grandfather, Hugh Brodie, came to Canada from Renfrewshire, Scotland, in 1797, settling on what is now Upper Road on the spot where the present house is situated.

Like his father before him, Brodie devoted his entire life to the study and development of fruit growing. He was a numerous and successful exhibitor at international exhibitions, and won many prizes, among which was an award for the best collection of table varieties of apples at the Glasgow exhibition.

Past president of the Quebec Pomological and Fruit Growing Society, Brodie and his associates were instrumental in establishing and developing the apple growing industry in the province, by the location in the principal growing districts of demonstration orchards, each in charge of a college graduate.

He found by experimentation that the soil in the district is ideal for growing musk melons and he first produced the now famous Montreal musk melon.

He also collaborated with the late Dr. Maccom of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa and helped develop several hardy varieties of plums and cherries able to withstand the Quebec winters and which are now quite common.

Brodie received in recognition for his many years' services in 1917 an honorary diploma from MacDonald College.

An active member of St. Andrew's United Church, Westmount, he took a keen interest in the church affairs, first in the management and later as an elder.

In his youthful days he attended the old St. Andrew's Church on Beaver Hill and later Crescent Street Church.

He was twice married, first to Jane Agilvie who died in 1891, and of this marriage there were two sons Hugh Carlyle and Robert Archibald Brodie of Montreal; and four daughters, Mrs. J. B. MacLeod and Mrs. J. M. Thompson, of Montreal, Mrs. George A. Gillies of Vancouver and Mrs. George Irvine of London, England. His second wife, who survives him, is Clementina Davie Kerr, and of this marriage there are two daughters, Mrs. Howard Cliff of Montreal and Mrs. Arnold Muirhead, of Kenogami, Quebec. There are also 24 grandchildren.

Among those present were: Rev. S. F. Newton, Robert Findlay, S. Whittaker, Alex Stewart, D. G. Wardrop, S. R. Russell, G. Russell, W. B. Baikie, W. A. Reid, James S. Costigan, John Smithers, S. C. GROCERY STORE FIRE WEDNESDAY EVENING

A fire of unknown origin caused slight damage to a grocery store at 4887 Sherbrooke Street West, corner Prince Albert Avenue, Wednesday evening at 7.15 p.m.

The blaze was first noticed by Mr. French who occupies the rooms above the store. He telephoned the fire department and both Westmount Stations responded to the call. Five wagons and more than twenty men coming upon the scene, found the back room of the store, which is used as a storeroom, full of smoke. However, with the aid of crow-bars and pickaxes the base of the flames was soon reached and the fire was quickly extinguished.

NO ACTION ON SCHOOL ZONING

Parents of Argyle School Children Visited Board Monday Afternoon.

No definite action will be taken by the Westmount School Board until further study has been made into the proposal to create an intermediate or junior high school, Dr. Francis McNaughton, chairman, announced Monday evening following a closed meeting at which a delegation of parents of pupils of the Argyle school were heard.

The chairman said that the delegation was favorable to the junior high school plan but felt that grades three, four, five and six, which were accommodated in the old Argyle school, should continue there when the new building, now nearing completion, is open for educational purposes. Otherwise a complete re-zoning of Westmount would be necessary, he said.

This scheme would be rather difficult, Dr. McNaughton said, but he felt that it was possible to adjust matters so they would prove satisfactory to all.

Dr. McNaughton said that the board has received a request from the Westmount Municipal Association asking that the matter be discussed with a committee representing that organization before anything definite is decided upon.

"This will be done," he said, "but meanwhile the board will discuss the question further at a meeting sometime during the next two weeks."

The parents' committee was composed of Jonathon Robinson, Mrs. R. D. Harkness, J. W. Beaton, George H. Kohl, Marcus Sperber, K.C., and Mrs. Hendrie Hay, secretary.

Members of the board present were, in addition to Dr. McNaughton: Prof. C. M. McKegow, C. M. Holt, K.C., Col. F. M. McRobbie and Robert Steele.

Also present were the following school officials: S. F. Kneeland, superintendent; H. B. Parker, principal of Westmount High School, and E. W. T. Raddon, secretary-treasurer.

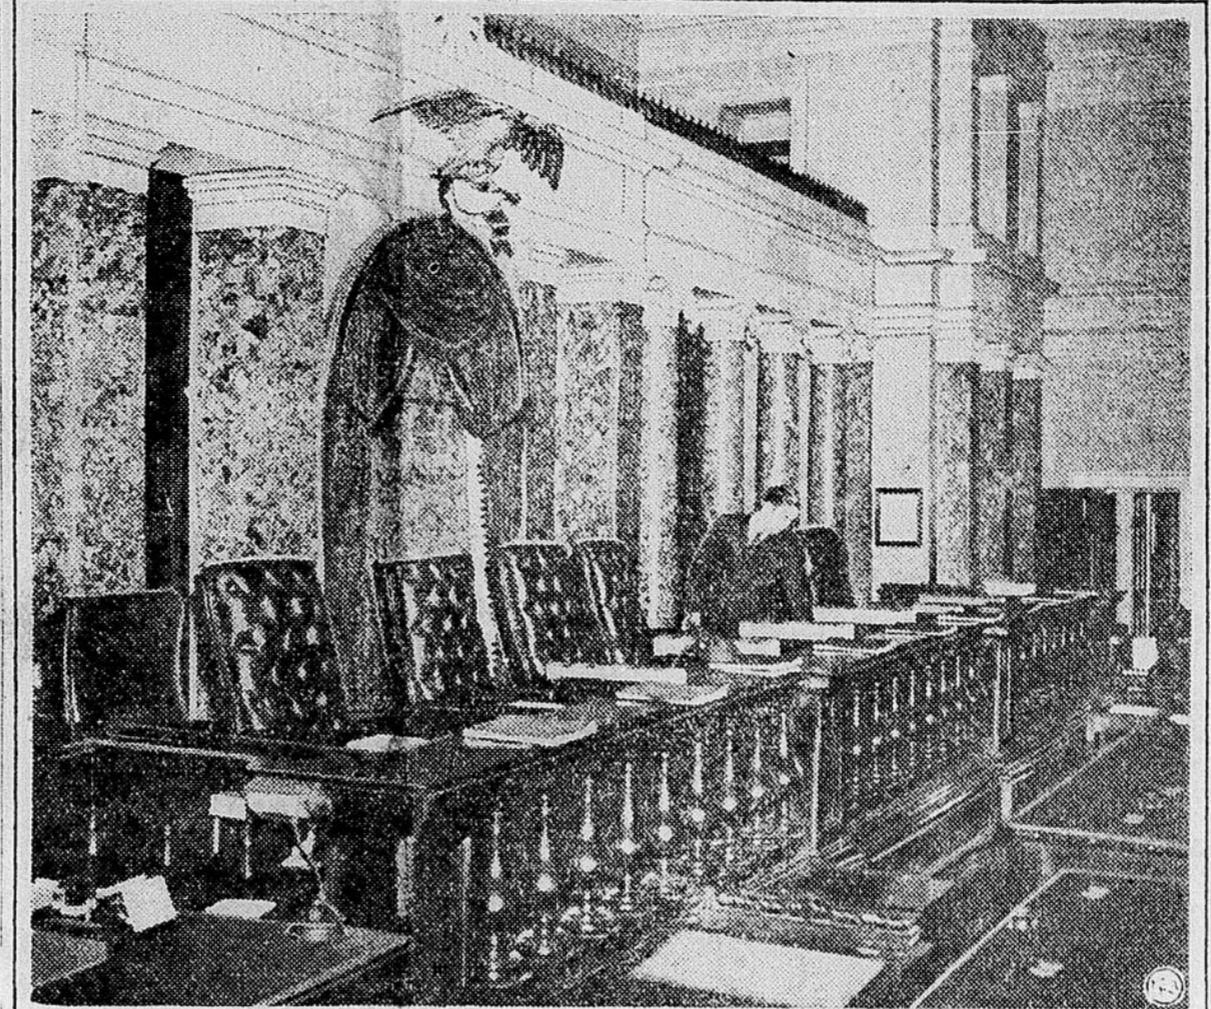

Minstrel Show Next Week End

The Square Circle Club of Calvary Church will present their Annual Minstrel Show, which is entitled "POP", with assisting artists, Friday evenings, February 28th and March 1st at 8.15 P.M. The script for the Show was written by Alex R. Hasley, a local author, who has had lots of experience in this line. The Music is under the direction of Mr. Frank Findlay and Mr. Frank Simmons, "Curly, the Yodelling Cowboy" will also be present, and any who have heard Curly on the radio will now have the opportunity of both hearing and seeing him on either of the above nights. Come, and laugh all your troubles away.

R. C. BINGHAM TO ADDRESS CLUB

R. C. Bingham, well known lecturer will speak on "Ceylon" this afternoon at three o'clock in Victoria Hall before the members of the Westmount Women's Club. This lecture will be illustrated. The speaker has been substituted for Mrs. George Black, who on account of illness will be unable to present her illustrated lecture "The Yukon—Yesterday and Today."

Where Supreme Court Of U.S. Handed Down Gold Ruling

The decision for which the world waited tensely, the Supreme Court ruling on the Gold Clause Cases, was handed down in this room, where the nine justices of the highest tribunal in the United States sat.

MEN INJURED IN EXPLOSION HERE

Chauffeur and Houseman Burned as Gasoline in Sink Causes Blaze

A chauffeur and a houseman were badly burned in a gasoline explosion in the garage of George E. Cooke, 400 Elm avenue, last Friday afternoon, which completely destroyed two automobiles and badly damaged the garage.

The injured: Joseph Miller, 40, chauffeur of 4378 Western avenue, who suffered severe burns about his hands and face; and D. Ballila, 26, houseman living at 400 Elm, who was burned about the face, hands and feet.

Both were removed to the Western division of the Montreal General Hospital and later sent home after treatment.

Westmount firemen under Deputy-Chief Merechal fought the outbreak, which spread to the servants' living quarters above the garage, for some time before the flames were extinguished.

The firemen learned that Miller and Ballila had poured a gallon of gasoline into a sink in the garage and were cleaning a carpet, when suddenly there was a terrific explosion and the front part of the garage was blown out.

Windows of the garage and servants' quarters above were blown out and the two men enveloped in a sheet of flame. They ran shouting from the garage and were rushed to hospital by a neighbour.

When Westmount firemen arrived the garage was a mass of flames and it was impossible to save the two automobiles which were totally destroyed.

While the exact cause of the fire is unknown firemen said that the explosion was probably brought about by either of the two men causing friction by rubbing the carpet, with the gasoline fumes igniting to cause the explosion.

LOCAL BRIDGE EXPERTS SHOW HOW IT'S DONE

"We use common sense and nothing else" modestly replied Patrick Quinn, who with Peter Lariviere (both local residents), has been winning bridge tournaments with consistent regularity during the past four months, when questioned concerning what system he and his partner used.

"What made us take bridge seriously was that Peter and I were sure we could play against all the systems and be triumphant, just by using our heads."

Peter and Patrick are at present playing a series of five matches against two well-known bridge experts, J. H. Quinn and M. L. McCormick. Friday evening when the third match was brought to a close, young Quinn and his partner Lariviere were in the lead by 2700 points.

In the four months during which they have been playing, on occasions against many of the most prominent local bridge authorities, they have yet to be defeated.

Murray Park Cop Is Favorite With Kids

Of all the civic characters in Westmount, there is probably none more popular with the kiddies of the city than William Maxwell, familiarly known as "Mac" or "Bill" to the hundreds of young residents who frequent Murray Park throughout the winter and summer.

A genial character, who takes his duties as they come, he will lend a hand to the youngster whose scarf needs tightening or whose coat needs to be rebuttoned with the same grace and aplomb that come to his aid in untangling the average domestic or civic difficulties that pop up in any municipality no matter how well or efficiently it may be run.

Born some forty odd years ago he came to this country from Ireland at an early age and his first police work was with the Canadian Pacific Railway Police and he was sent to the White River Mining District which in those days was the so-called "wild and woolly west" of Canada. There his many encounters with unruly miners, lumberjacks, crooks and bums all helped to mould his character and today he is a modest member of the force who does not care to boast of his days among the fortune-hunting devil-may-care pioneers.

After three years in the mining districts he came to Westmount and joined the police force here, finally taking over the Murray Park beat.

His is a beat that requires patience, geniality and he must at all times keep the trust of his charges. This he is able to do, and that fact, more than any other, spells success for him in his present position.

SQUARE CIRCLE CLUB MEETING

Alex Hasley Addressed Group on "Meaning Of A Liberal Education"

The regular weekly meeting of the Square Circle Club of Calvary Church was held on Sunday, February 17th, 1935 at 3:00 o'clock P.M., with the President, Mr. Victor Baker, in the chair.

The Guest Speaker was Mr. Alex R. Hasley, who gave a very enlightening talk on "The Meaning of a Liberal Education."

Mr. Hasley, as the conclusion of his talk, was thanked by Mr. Hay Finlay, the Mentor of the Club.

The Honorary President of the Club, the Rev. T. W. Jones, M.A., B.D., was present, and he requested the co-operation of the Club in connection with the religious census of the City of Westmount, which is to be taken in a few weeks. Mr. Baker assured Mr. Jones that the Club would gladly co-operate to the fullest extent in this connection.

The business meeting then opened, and many discussions ensued; the main item being the Minstrel Show, which is to be presented by the Club in Calvary Church Hall on Thursday and Friday evenings, February 28th and March 1st, 1935 at 8.15 P.M. The Members of the Club have been working on the script and music for over three months now, and they are all looking forward to the big nights when the Show is to be presented.

CALVARY CHURCH BROTHERHOOD NOTES

Calvary Men's Own, meeting in Calvary Church, at 3 p.m. Sunday, February 24th, will be addressed by the Rev. Wm. McLean, of the Outremont Presbyterian Church.

Tuesday, Feb. 26th, in the Macaulay Hall, members and friends will gather at 8 p.m., to spend a short period in carpet bowling, to be followed by a sing-song.

WESTMOUNT ROTARY ENTERTAINED KIDS

The Rotary Club of Westmount entertained the children from the School from the school sat down to a Supper, which had been prepared by a Committee of Rotarians' wives, under the leadership of Mrs. Stanley B. Cayford.

Following supper, moving pictures were put on, and entertainers—Charles Hutchins and Charles Peet—contributed numbers to the program that were enjoyed by all the children.

"One of the features of the program was the splendid singing of the children who sang several songs.

FOSSILS TO GIVE ANNUAL SHOW SOON

The tenth annual show of the Fossils Club of Westmount will be held in Victoria Hall March 7 and 8.

A bigger and better show is being planned and is now in rehearsal under the supervision of Herbert Anderson, the director. The proceeds from these entertainments go to helping underprivileged boys go to camp and assisting them to procure memberships in the Y.M.C.A.

HORACE PERODEAU BURIED MONDAY

Premier Taschereau, Cabinet Members, Paid Last Tribute to Deceased.

Premier L. A. Taschereau, members of his cabinet, and leading citizens of Westmount were present at the funeral Monday morning of Horace Perodeau held from St. Leon de Westmount church.

The cortege proceeded to the church from the residence preceded by four cars bearing floral tributes. Rev. Father O. P. Gauthier, pastor, received the body and gave absolution. The service was sung by Rev. Armand Perrier, assisted by two professors from the College de Montreal.

The choir, under the direction of Romaine Pelletier, organist, sang Yon's mass, and the soloists were: Arthur Massier, M. Dupont, G. Cusson, L. Normandin, L. Leblanc and Maurice Sanscartier.

Chief mourners were: his two sons, Gilles and Allan; and two brothers, Jean and Arthur Perodeau; his father-in-law, G. W. T. Nicholson; a nephew, Guy Perodeau; and two cousins, E. H. Laframboise and Maurice Laframboise.

Among those present were: Premier L. A. Taschereau, Hon. Irene Vaurin, Hon. Walter Mitchell, Mr. Justice Joseph Walsh, Judge Maurice Tremblay, Alphonse Raymond, Dr. Ernest Charon, L. G. Beaubien, H. Perodeau, T. Taggart Smith, J. L. Tarte, Georges Garneau, Louis Gelinus, Louis Geoffroy, R. Panet-Raymond, Emile Chaput, Maurice Forget, H. L. de Martigny, Hector Racine, Marcel Rainville, Capt. R. B. Leblanc, Grant Johnston, P. E. Ostiguy, W. R. G. Holt, Patrick Heffernan and others.

One point, the speaker admitted, Mr. Bennett had succeeded in. He has made it respectable to speak of the Capitalistic system and he has shown that the Capitalistic system of today is not the Capitalistic system of our forefathers. Today capitalism means monopolies with the "open marketplaces gone" as the premier stated in his radio addresses.

"When Litvinoff was referred to as having 'bright ideals', and Cripps and John Stacey were said to have contributed something to the new social order, it was not only my colleagues or myself talking, it was the premier of Canada," Bennett, the speaker admitted, had made it possible for the public to discuss a change in the system without becoming embarrassed and "seeing red".

Mr. Bennett, it was stated, has changed the face of Canadian politics and whether it was a wise thing or not to go ahead, there will be no chance of going back. In the next generation the battles will be along the line of reforms. You cannot turn the tide of history back up hill, stated Mr. Forsey.

In closing the speaker stated that he was a Conservative by birth and temperament although he had difficulty in making his friends believe it. He would like to think that the Bennett reforms were the answer to the social and economic problems of the day. But he could not see that anything the premier had so far brought out was cause for the "unbounded optimism" that Mr. Bennett is giving way to.

"I do not believe in the Bennett prescription" stated the speaker "because I do not think that the diagnosis goes deep enough."

"No matter what economic theory you hold" he concluded, "you must admit that the present reforms as outlined do not hold the key to the solution. If I am wrong then in 1945 give me a chance to come back to you and repent in sackcloth and ashes, if I am right, then I may come back at that date and give you the answer to 'if reform fails—what then?'"

INDUSTRY TRIP

Mr. John Kiddman of the Gazette will speak to the Young Men's Division of the local Y. M. C. A. tonight on Newspaper Work. Following the address, the young men will be taken through the Gazette Plant. This is the first of a series of trips to various industrial plants.

The Annual Camp Kanawana Reunion will be held tomorrow night at the Westmount Y.M.C.A. It is expected that about two hundred Campers will attend.

Several Stunts will be put on by the boys; and the Life Saving Certificates, awarded at Camp last summer, will be presented.

BENNETT REFORMS WERE TOPIC

Professor Eugene Forsey, McGill Department of Economics and Political Science Addressed Rotarians

Professor Eugene Forsey, of the department of economics and political science at McGill University addressed the members of the Westmount Rotary Club yesterday at their regular weekly luncheon meeting on the subject "Can Reform succeed?"

Referring to Premier R. B. Bennett as "the daring young man on the flying trapeze", and labeling Major Douglas as an "economic lunatic" the professor ran briefly over the proposed reforms of the Conservative leader and then attempted to show that they had all been tried in other countries during the last half century and had all failed to save the countries in which they were tried from the ravages of the depression. "They are better than nothing," summed up the speaker, but they do not go far enough. There is nothing new in them."

Social insurance, minimum wage laws, scaling of hours, regulation of business, child labour abolition, taxation of unearned increments and all the other Bennett reforms were named, the country in which they were tried out, whether it be Germany, England, the United States or some other country, was referred to, and the effects shown.

One point, the speaker admitted, Mr. Bennett had succeeded in. He has made it respectable to speak of the Capitalistic system and he has shown that the Capitalistic system of today is not the Capitalistic system of our forefathers. The Late Robert Brodie

Robert Brodie, one of Western Montreal's outstanding citizens, and one of the leading fruit growers of the Province of Quebec, died Sunday in the century-old house on the Upper Lachine Road where he was born over eighty years ago. The late Mr. Brodie was, indeed, one of this country's most famous growers of fruit. He was largely responsible for the cultivation of the "fameuse" apple which won world-wide renown. With these apples, Mr. Brodie won the gold medal for fruit at the Paris Exhibition; and with these and other fruits won honours at Glasgow Exhibition, and at various international exhibitions. The Brodie family came to Canada in 1797, when Hugh Brodie crossed the Atlantic from Renfrewshire, Scotland, and established himself in Montreal. In 1812 he built the family home on the Upper Lachine Road, and it was there that Robert Brodie was born, December 27, 1853. In the years before Notre Dame de Grace was a part of Montreal, Mr. Brodie took an active interest in the development of this area, and was for ten years an alderman. Every movement for the good of the community found in Mr. Brodie an enthusiastic supporter. The West End has lost one of its most esteemed and widely-known residents. Hundreds of friends will join us in extending sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

The Truth Hurts

Government in Germany and Italy is based on the theory that the people should be given, not what is true or reasonable or just, but what, in the opinion of the dictators is best suited to the purposes of the government. For this reason there is a government monopoly of news and radio sources; truth is frowned upon as being dangerous. Adolph Hitler, whose rise to power was financed by the European international armament ring, it is alleged, maintains a standing threat to sue anyone who makes available in a foreign language the full text of his war-breathing autobiography, "My Battle" which has sold well over 1,000,000 copies in Germany. As Time magazine says: "Available in English is nothing but a bowdlerized version with all the more violent passages purged." Hitler's theory is that it is good for Germans to read his hymnal of hate, but bad for Germans to have foreigners read it. But foreigners know, nevertheless! To quote Time again: "Typical of hundreds of anti-German boycott organizations which are ruining Nazi trade is Manhattan's Fur Trade Boycott Committee. Last week its secretary sent out a proud circular letter to members: 'Gentlemen: Looking back at our efforts since the formation of the Fur Trade Boycott Committee in 1933, we are proud to say that importation of furs from and via Germany has almost ceased. . . . Some day the fur trade will have reason to be proud of the part it played in the great, historical battle for the preservation of human rights.' The latest official German trade figures show that Germany's favourable trade balance of 1,072,000,000 marks in 1932—the last pre-Hitler year—declined in 1933 to a favourable balance of 947,000,000 marks, then slumped deeply in 1934 to an unfavourable balance of 243,000,000.

Francis Bacon Said:

Reading, writing and talking develop the mind in different ways and bring out certain qualities. Francis Bacon, called the best philosophical mind since Aristotle, gives this excellent definition: "Reading maketh a full man, conference (conversation) a ready man, and writing an exact man." Reading maketh a full man. From books men absorb facts that fill the brain. Conference, or conversation, maketh a ready man. In conversation you must be ready with your answer. In talking to each other men sharpen their wits as they sharpen a knife holding it against a grindstone. Writing makes "an exact man." The spoken word can be changed, added to, spun out indefinitely and swiftly. With the written word, where the hand must form each letter of each word, thought is more careful. And writing of the right kind, as Bacon says, "maketh an exact man."

What Good Are They?

With the record of dirigibles little more than a tale of tragedy, the wonder is that the United States goes on building them. England, following the loss of the R-101, abandoned them, and little is being done about them in France, Russia, Japan, or even Germany. In the United States, however, where their record has been particularly disastrous, there is a school of thought which believes in them. The main argument against the dirigible, from the standpoint of the layman, is that, apart from their insecurity, they are valueless for commercial purposes. Requiring expensive masts as terminals, and difficult to anchor, they cannot be regarded as in the class of 'planes, can be used only for long flights. And they are expensive to construct. Regarding the dirigible's value in war, no layman may speak. But, if their war value be admitted, why should the world become excited over an agency valuable only in war?

The B.N.A. Act

If the people who lived in Canada in 1867 could be sensible and patriotic enough to work out the B.N.A. Act, the people who live in Canada in 1935 ought to be sensible and patriotic enough to make necessary adjustments in the B.N.A. Act. To argue that it can't be done, or that it can't be done without injustice to some minority or group, is to argue that we have gone backward. That we are devoid of common sense. No one wants, or should want, to change the B.N.A. Act without consent or agreement from the provinces. No one wants, or should want, to amend it so as to deprive any minority or province of religious or racial or civil rights and privileges. All of us should want to amend it so as to make it more workable, more serviceable, more an instrument to promote Canada's progress. That, really, is all there is to the question. Let it be hoped, therefore, that the House of Commons committee appointed to inquire into what changes should be made, and how they may be made, works vigorously and earnestly. Its task is as important as any that has been given a Parliamentary committee in very many years.

THE BOOK

the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures
by BRUCE BARTON

Reared as the grandson of an emperor, doted on by a royal foster mother, Moses, who might have had every luxury, preferred, like Abraham, like each of the prophets, like John the Baptist and Saint Paul, to be "not disobedient to the Heavenly vision." He was modest, as most men of genius are.

And Moses said unto God, Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt? . . . Behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The Lord hath not appeared unto thee. . . . And the Lord said unto him, What is in thine hand? And he said, a rod. . . . And He said, Cast it on the ground, and He cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent; and Moses fled from before it. . . . And the Lord said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand. That rod was to play a mighty part in the history of the next forty years. By it the plagues were brought upon the Egyptians in tragic succession until even the stubborn will of Pharaoh was broken; the Red Sea divided at its touch to let the children of Israel pass through; and in the wilderness, when water failed, the rock which it smote gave forth a crystal stream. Moses had need of its help and of all the encouragement and support that Aaron, his colleague, and the strong men of the twelve tribes could give. As law-giver, military commander and executive, Moses transformed his ex-slave followers into a self-governing people. There have been many leaders of powerful personality who failed because they could not associate strong men with them. Moses was not one of these. He realized clearly the necessity for first-class helpers. He needed the wise counsel of Jethro, who urged Moses to set up a group of associate judges. He needed the sword of Joshua. He needed the eloquence and priestly help of Aaron. . . . And Moses said unto the Lord, O my Lord, I am not eloquent . . . but I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue. . . . And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Moses, and he said, Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well. . . . And thou shalt speak unto him, and put words in his mouth. . . . And He shall be to thee instead of a mouth, and thou shalt be to him instead of God. The special talent of each of these associates supplemented his own abilities, and he was big enough to know that they required supplementing. But the great essentials—courage, idealism, vision, faith—he borrowed from no man. He had them in abundance.

Thirty-eight per cent of Canada's National Income goes for taxation. All of the revenue from Income Tax goes for railway deficits. We have ten governments for 10,000,000 people. Every Canadian Government shows deficits. The only remedy occurring so far to our representatives is to increase taxation.

It is not easy for taxpayers to meet increased taxes while suffering from decreased ability to pay.

Two things every business man should do: first, cooperate in his trade organization; second, keep in contact with his parliamentary representative, and express his views to him.—From the attractive callendar of Thomas V. Bell Limited, Montreal.

Since the Ontario Power Service Corporation went bankrupt it has been brought to light that it was started on an investment of $5.00 and was bonded for $20,000,000. Those patriotic citizens to whom we owe so much, and who owe us so much, the bankers, peddled the bonds. The president of the company was the man who put up the $5.00. For this great risk he was paid a salary of $85,000 a year.

Austria's hangman, widely renowned because he always wore evening clothes and a silk hat at hangings, has gone insane from overwork. For each legal killing he received $33.50, half of which went to himself and the other half to his two assistants. Jails are so over-crowded that factories, gymnasiums and warehouses have been turned into prisons. Tourists have dodged the country, trains are running empty, the streets are full of beggars, thousands cannot pay rent, stores are empty and going into bankruptcy every day.

When the crops were being gathered there were so many workers in jail as to make the harvesting a serious matter.

T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, estimated recently that during the current fiscal year, which ends October 31, 1935, a total of 474 miles of rural power line will be built in the province, at a cost of $1,131,600, of which the government's share will be $665,000.

The estimate is based on the distinct upward trend in rural line construction that is now apparent to the commission. Mr. Lyon said figures showed that rural line extension was going ahead to a ratio of two-and-a-half times that of the low point of the depression, in November and December, 1933.

The American Federation of Labor proposes a thirty-hour week for all industries, and figures it would work out about as follows: As the average length of the work week is now forty hours, a reduction of ten hours would mean that there would be work for 25 per cent more workers than at present employed, or one-fourth of nearly 40,000,000. Instead of 40,000,000 workers, there would be 50,000,000, and these would receive as much for the thirty-hour week as was formerly paid for the forty-hour week. Employers would thus be paying out 25 per cent more for labor, but it is argued that the increased income of these millions would result in the sale of more merchandise.

Grey Nuns Close Hostel

After 50 years of service as a hostel for working women and girls, the Patronage d'Youville has been closed. For the past four years the institution has been operated at an annual loss of $10,000 and the Grey Nuns, who conducted it, felt it impossible to continue the work.

The Old Story

"Under the spreading chestnut tree
A stubborn auto stands.
The Smith, an angry man is he,
With trouble on his hands.

"The carburetor seemed to be
The cause of all his woe;
He tightens half a dozen bolts,
But still it doesn't go.

He sits beside the road to give
His brain a chance to cool;
He ponders on his training
In the correspondence school.
And then he starts his job once more,
And just by chance 'tis seen
The cause of all the trouble is
He's out of gasoline.

INVESTMENTS pictures, books
J. P. Morgan sold half a dozen paintings from his collection the other day for $1,500,000. He did not state how much he or his father had paid for them but there is little doubt that he made a very handsome profit.

For anyone who has capital that he can afford to tie up for a period of years there is probably no more profitable investment than in rare pictures and rare books. Of course it is not easy to acquire the necessary expert knowledge to make such investments intelligently, but I know of many instances in which men have taken out several hundred times what they put in after only a few years.

One friend of mine who had died a number of years ago had the walls of his house, even the stair walls, covered with paintings by George Innes, which he bought at low prices while Innes was alive, figuring that after the artist's death they would command high prices. He also spent several years and

The Family DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

WITH THE SEASON
Each morning finds me with the big-city newspaper in my hand, usually at the breakfast table, indulged with my allotment of coffee, eggs, toast, butter, cereal and fruit. And, I seldom miss the column of deaths; it has become a habit, I suppose, for me to watch the doings of man's chiefest enemy. . . .

With winter came the lengthening of this grim column. And the ages of the victims—and, when mentioned, the CAUSE of death. This morning as I ran over the names, I found some who were not old enough to die natural deaths—and these, to me, make up the tragedies. I don't like to read of deaths at forty-five; they make me think somebody is fearfully to blame. It is man's unquestionable right to die of old age. It is the business of my profession to add all the years possible to life's span. I haven't room for all the long list, but there are some; but a retired farmer dies at 83; a wife—age not given—dies at a hospital; another wife dies at home—66. A retired dairyman dies at 84; another, wife, 76. Then another, only 34; hospital death. Another, 41. A man, 62; a mother, 74; another, 78. Still another, 76. And a woman, 68. And so on.

This practically every day. Each death marks the culmination of the fiercest battles—the battle for life itself—and—lost!

To me, there is a lesson in this column. Why didn't they all live to the four-score figure? Some of them should have—but only one did—and he had lived the most natural of lives—a farmer's.

Just one rule I give you today: Don't neglect the trifling complaint. The neglected thing kills—especially coming along about middle life. The common cold is, of all, the most treacherous.

kind of people who read the so-called "high-brow" books and find that they circulate among people of every walk of life and every degree of education. We hear more about the popular books of the day that sell 100,000 copies or more; these are often quickly forgotten while the old stand-bys, which really reveal people to themselves because their authors had a deep understanding of human nature, live forever.

CIGARETTES . . . they grow
Twenty years ago, in 1915, there was just one respectable restaurant in New York in which women were permitted to smoke. In the mezzanine gallery of the old Cafe Martin, at 26th Street and Broadway, a lady might light a cigarette but she would be thrown out of any other restaurant or hotel in New York if she dared to light one. To smoke a cigarette in public was regarded as a public confession of immorality. Respectable women just didn't do it.

I saw some figures the other day indicating that as a result of the spread of cigarette smoking among women the United States is now consuming eight times as many cigarettes as 20 years ago and only half as many cigars. We smoke 2.8 cigarettes per person per day. We also drink 2.8 cups of coffee per person per day. Whether there is any relation between the consumption of coffee and of cigarettes I am not sure but I am inclined to think that the stimulating effect of coffee breeds a desire for the sedative effect of cigarettes.

I have not seen any recent figures on chewing tobacco but that is one use of the weed, to which the ladies never did take kindly, although in my youth it was far more wide-spread than smoking either cigars, cigarettes or pipes.

THE WEEKLY SHORT STORY

THE "LEARNT" ONE

by Richard Hall Wilkinson

Somewhere Glen Seaver had got some schooling. No one knew where, because at that time there weren't any schools in Bottom Creek, and nobody would have attended them if there were. But Glen had been "learnt" somewhere, and it set him apart from the rest. Men were just a little awed by him, as men are apt to be of one who possesses strange powers; and those who weren't awed were afraid, for besides being schooled, Glen was the best rough and tumble fighter in the Bottom Creek Valley. It might have been Glen's schooling or it might have been the fact that he had been around some or it might have been a natural instinct — or it might have been none of these things — that gave Glen his vision. At any rate, when the rumors first got around that the railroad was going to shoot a main line through Bottom Creek, up into Montreal, Glen began to think of what might happen. He looked over the proposed right of way and told himself that up on Cedar mountain some day there'd be a hotel. It was the only site anywhere around Bottom Creek that could be used for a tourist resort and it was the best site anywhere along the line, up as far as Montreal. The natural grandeur and resources were there and it was convenient to the railroad. Therefore, thought Glen, same day the land would be valuable. Glen looked over the site carefully, and then came down and talked to Pap Brackley. Pap owned the whole of Cedar mountain, and when Glen offered him $5000 cash for it, the old man thought he was crazy. He concealed his eagerness and joy with a good deal of effort, until the papers had been drawn up, and Glen had turned over his entire savings, which amount was $50 short of the five thousand. Then Pap crowed and laughed triumphantly, and everyone else crowded and laughed triumphantly, too, because they thought it a great joke the way Glen, the "learnt" one, had been taken in by old Pap Brackley. But that was because none of them was bright enough to look into the future.

A year later the railroad came through, and at the same time the Adam Whitney Hotels, Inc., sent a representative along the line looking for a hotel site. The representative spotted Cedar mountain, and his eyes gleamed. Anyone's eyes would gleam, if he were interested in erecting a tourist hotel. For Cedar mountain had everything that hotel men dream of.

The representative suppressed his eagerness and made inquiries at Bottom Creek and eventually found himself studying the "learnt" Glen Seaver across a kitchen table in the latter's house.

"It isn't worth much," Myron Stafford, the representative was saying, "but my company is thinking of erecting a hotel there, if they can buy it cheap. Be a great thing for the town."

"You can't," said Glen shortly, "buy it cheap, or for any price. I'm going to erect my own hotel there."

The hotel man studied the "learnt" Glen for a moment or two in silence. He knew men, did this Myron Stafford. And he began to laugh. "You're crazy! It takes money to build a hotel. You'd better sell and clean up while you can. We'll give you fifty thousand. Otherwise we'll force you out."

Down in the village, when folks heard about the hotel company's offer, they said Glen was crazier than ever, because he had refused $50,000. No one in Bottom Creek had ever seen that much money and it was hard to imagine. No one but Glen himself could visualize the tremendous fortune that a hotel on Cedar mountain would bring to its owner. And when he told of his plans, they didn't bear with him at all. It took money to erect a hotel. And Glen didn't have a dime.

"You'd be a millionaire, if you could do it," Dave Alcus, Glen's best friend, admitted. "But don't forget, Glen, you ain't got a dime, or a reputation on which you can borrow any. You might as well take your fifty thousand and quit. That hotel company's powerful. They'll throw you out, broke, if you try to buck them."

"I'll get the money somewhere," said Glen stubbornly. And Dave was silent, because he was thinking that Glen had outfooled them all when he bought from Pap Brackley in the first place, and he might outfool them on this, too.

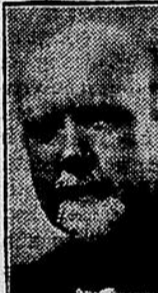

No one knew what went on in Glen's mind during the weeks that followed, or how discouraged he became or how near he was to the abandonment of his scheme. They knew only that he made two trips to the outside, and guessed he'd gone to borrow money, and failed. They still thought him crazy.

A month later Myron Stafford came back to town and called on Glen once more. The representative had given the "learnt" one time to think things over, and felt pretty sure of success.

"I won't beat around the bush with you, Seaver," he said. "The Whitney outfit, as you know, has a big reputation, with millions behind it. You can't fight us without money, but in order to be fair, we'll raise the ante to seventy-five thousand!"

Glen carefully rolled a cigarette and sucked on it a moment. "I guess you been fair with me," he said, "therefore I'll lay my cards on the table. I ain't in this alone. I got a partner down country, who lent me two thousand, so I could buy from Pap. Seventy-five thousand is a lot of money, and if he's willing to sell, I am, too."

Myron Stafford's eyes gleamed for just a second, as a fortune danced before his vision. But he controlled himself almost at once. "Fine. Fine. And when can you see this partner to talk things over?"

caught the evening train down country.

He was back the next afternoon and met Myron Stafford, as arranged, in the kitchen of his home. There was a sort of gleam in the "learnt" one's eyes.

"Sorry," he said. "Partner seems to think we ought to hold on."

Myron Stafford's face reddened. He saw victory and a bigger fortune than this backwoods yokel had ever dreamed of, slipping from his fingers. It made him mad because paying a measly $75,000 for Cedar mountain would have been one of the slickest deals he'd ever put over. "You're crazy!" he bellowed. "You can't fight us! You haven't got a dime!"

Glen grinned. "I got lots of dimes now," he grinned. "Bank down in Lawrence lent me $50,000 yesterday."

Myron Stafford's eyes goggled and his jaw dropped. He felt he was being made a fool of. "Don't pull that stuff on me, Seaver. No bank would lend you fifty thousand. Not on your reputation!"

"They didn't lend it on my reputation," said Glen. "They lent it on the reputation of the Adam Whitney Hotels, Inc. Soon as I showed that written offer you made of seventy-five thousand, they figured right away that Cedar mountain must be worth a heap more'n that, if the Whitney gang wanted it that bad, so they lent me the money and seemed danged glad to do it."

And so Myron Stafford congratulated himself on his success pending out an offer of $75,000 for Cedar mountain, to which Glen Seaver held title. And the "learnt" one stuffed it in his pocket and

MRS. J. S. EVERETT HEADS MONKLAND CHAPTER I.O.D.E.

Annual Meeting of Branch Was Held Thursday in Mount Royal Hotel.

The sixth annual meeting of the Monkland Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was held Thursday in the Mount Royal Hotel, when encouraging reports for the past year were submitted.

The reports showed steady work during the year, with 24 members enrolled. The education of two boys in High school was sponsored and financial assistance given to three students at McGill University, Macdonald College and the agricultural bursary, respectively.

Five layettes and 135 garments were sewn and 83 knitted. Garments, to the number of 320, were given to various relief bodies. Money donations were given to the Milk Fund, and 100 per cent of all the money raised was given to the National Endowment fund. Books were sent to the Peace River district and to the Gilson School. Two children were given vacations in a holiday camp.

The Chapter is fully subscribed to Echoes, supports the work in India and is an associate member of the Last Post fund and the League of Nations.

Christmas cheer was provided for 12 families, and the Chapter took an active part in the Poppy Day campaign and at the I.O.O.E. carnival. The Chapter fund was raised by means of bridges, home-cooked food sale and drawings, total receipts for the year totalling $449.46. Total disbursements were $449.78.

Officers elected for the coming year were:

Honorary regent Mrs. J. M. C. Muir, regent Mrs. J. S. Everett, vice regents Mrs. Norman Vickers and Mrs. H. F. Archibald, treasurer Mrs. Fred. Crowley, secretary Mrs. F. W. Motton, educational secretary Mrs. W. E. Morrison, Echoes secretary Mrs. C. O. Post and standard bearer Mrs. A. L. Champion.

ROYAL ARCH MASONS MET TUESDAY NIGHT

Westmount Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, No. 17, Grand Register of Quebec, opened up its active season Tuesday evening, February 19th, by advancing Brother Frank Richard Wood, a member of Mount Moriah Lodge No. 38, G.R.Q., to the Honorary Degree of Mark Master Mason. The work of the evening was put on by the Officers of the Chapter, assisted by the Past-Masters, and Excellent Companion Bedford Thacker of Fairmount Chapter who was present with a large delegation of his Companions. Westmount Chapter anticipates a very busy season this year. Among its outside interests is a combined meeting, which will be held in the near future, with the Royal Victoria and Fairmount Chapters at the Royal Victoria Chapter rooms, at which time the Most Excellent Degree will be given.

The Officers for the year are as follows:

George W. Dunn Z
John Baillie I.P.Z.
E. M. Kirke Boyd H.
Edward W. Francis J.
V. H. Yost Treasurer
E. J. White Scribe E.
V. E. Walker Scribe N.

Westmount High

Happenings . . . By Sol Ein

Professor H. E. Reilly, of the Physics Department of McGill University, was the guest speaker at the second meeting of the Westmount High Physics Club, held in the school Physics Lab Thursday evening. A very appreciative audience of more than a hundred and fifty third and fourth form students, both boys and girls, were held spellbound for almost two hours by the seemingly impossible "magical feats" performed by Professor Reilly in illustrating his talk on "Liquid Air". The Chair was occupied by Edward de Grey, who introduced the speaker, and a vote of thanks was moved by the Secretary, Ann Graham. This was the second of a series of lectures on different phases of physics which the club has planned to conduct during the year. The first meeting heard Professor W. H. Watson, also Professor of Physics at McGill, who spoke on "Electricity".

That ferocious, green-eyed monster "Monthly Examinations" again rears his ugly head, causing a pall of darkest gloom to fall over the students at Westmount High (not to mention the poor teachers, who have to correct the papers.) But Education must be served, so the midnight oil will run low in many a Westmount home this week.

At a meeting of the Magazine Board held last week, at which Ian Shaw, Editor-in-Chief, presided, it was revealed that over twenty-seven hundred paid-up subscriptions have been taken for the 1935 Annual. That means, of course, that the magazine is already a financial success, and plans to make it a literary one as well are now well underway.

Westmount High came second in the finals of the Schoolboy relay races held at the Forum last Friday night. McConnell, Hamilton, Merrick, and Smith, who formed the team, were sadly out-distanced by a faster-skating, more experienced squad from Mont St. Louis College. Oh, well, the boys may be slow, but they get there just the same.

BRILLIANT AUTHOR SPOKE TO ARTISTS

The following news item is printed for its general interest and without comment. The Incorporated Association of Headmasters, a representative body of the principals of Britain's largest and most noted secondary schools, at a meeting held recently in London, passed a resolution to the effect that "School examinations are too stiff, and the present examination system fails in its purpose".

Mr. L. H. O. Flecker, who presented the resolution, declared that employers insisted on academic qualifications altogether out of proportion to the work demanded. A conference will soon be held to discuss possibilities of a new system.

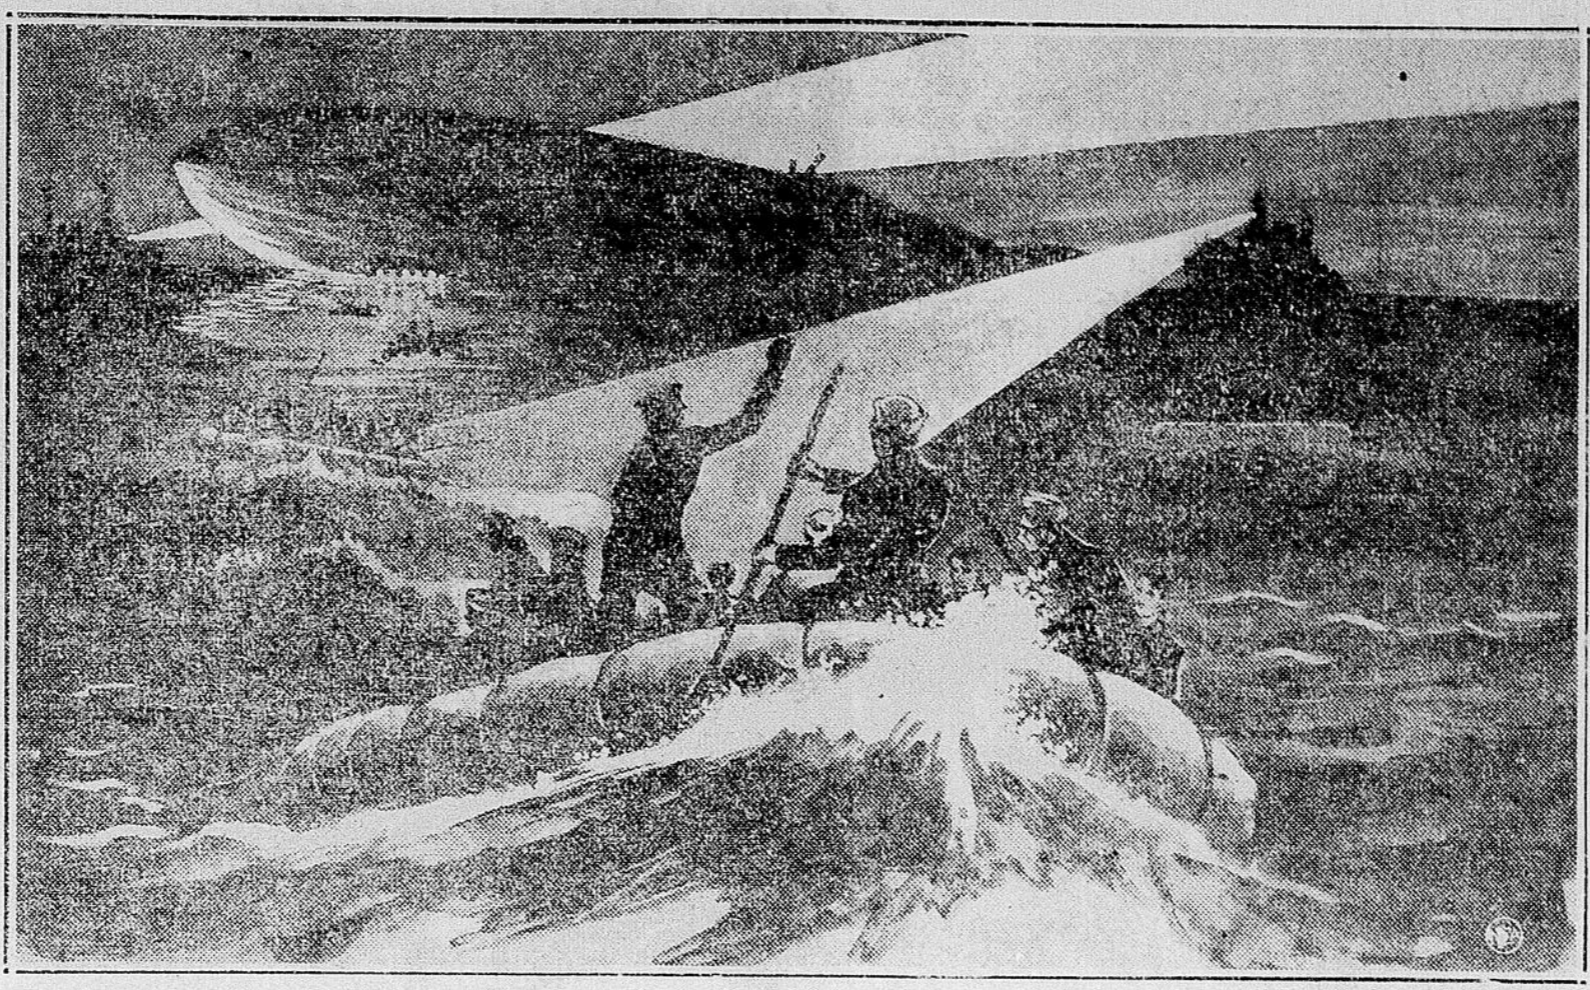

Mr. Kenneth Murray, assistant-coach at Westmount High, is instructing a group of students in First Aid. Meetings are held every Friday afternoon and at the end of the year those successfully completing the course and passing the necessary examination will receive a First Aid Certificate from the St. John Ambulance Association.

Readers of this column who know anything of Westmount's many Alumni will be conferring a favour by writing a short note about same and submitting it, care of this column, to the "Examiner".

As Macon Crashed And Rescue Came

ABOVE—A graphic sketch of disaster and thrilling rescue at sea is this drawing by Artist Paul Kroesen, picturing the $2,500,000 dirigible Macon as it goes to its doom off Point Sur, Calif., the officers and crew members on their pitching life rafts, and the glare of battleships' searchlights as they flash on the survivors. Of the personnel of 83 men aboard, 81 were saved by ships of the battle fleet.

LEFT—Executive officer of the dirigible Macon when it crashed in the Pacific, Lieut. Comm. Jesse L. Kenworthy was one of those rescued by ships of the battle fleet. Kenworthy was serving as executive officer and acting commander at the Lakehurst, N.J., station when the Akron crashed with a loss of 73 lives.

RIGHT—A veteran of lighter-than-air craft, Lieut. Comm. E. F. Cochrane, of Philadelphia, was saved when the Macon crashed off the California coast. He was chief engineer on the ill-fated giant. Cochrane represented the U. S. navy as observer on the flight of the Graf Zeppelin from Akron to Friedrichshafen in 1933.

ST. MATTHIAS GUILD REPEAT PRODUCTION

"Much Ado About Nothing" Received Very Favorable Comment From Critics.

For the second time, and in response to numerous requests, the Guild of Players of St. Matthias Church are going to give a return presentation of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" in their spacious and recently-opened hall this Saturday evening.

The St. Matthias Players Guild have achieved in the short time since their inception, a wonderful standard of amateur dramatic production that has seldom been exceeded by societies of a similar nature. Many plays of both fictional and classical derivation have been given by the Group, and in their latest production, they feel sure that they have perfected a play which even the most discerning critic would applaud.

The latest production, "Much Ado About Nothing", was very enthusiastically received last week. Hundreds turned out to see the three performances. The audiences particularly admired the mediaeval costumes and colorful backgrounds, because, as is not the general rule, the Guild believe in presenting Shakespeare with a colorful and interesting background. The acting was of high calibre, and the players spoke clearly and distinctly, giving life and sparkle to their witty lines.

The story of the play, is, of course, familiar to everyone. But to really enjoy Shakespeare, the lover of his works must see his novels as they were originally intended—as plays.

"Much Ado About Nothing" gains considerably when seen and not read. It's sparkling satire and dry humour that characterizes all of Shakespeare's comedies is greatly stressed and therefore most enjoyable.

Next Saturday's performance, which is sponsored by the Anglican Council of Emergency Relief, is well worth the attention of all drama lovers.

CRUTCHFIELD AT JUNIOR SUPPER

Nels Crutchfield was guest at the Junior Supper held at the Westmount "Y". There were about 45 boys present who took the opportunity of asking the Hockey star many questions, the answers proving both instructive and interesting.

Nels expressed the opinion that Les Canadiens have as good a chance as any team of winning the Stanley Cup.

TRINITY PLAYERS PRESENT COMEDY

Tonight the Trinity Players will present "See Naples and Die", a comedy in three acts by Elmer Rice, in Trinity Memorial Hall at 8.15 o'clock. The play will be repeated tomorrow and Saturday.

The scene is laid in Sorrento on the Bay of Naples and deals with humorous episodes in the lives of Americans visiting on the Continent.

Hazel Molson, Connie Davies, Jack Clifford and Percy Roberts will take the leading roles, supported by a strong cast.

Basil Donn is producing the play with Creighton Patton and Fred Chivers responsible for scenic effects.

Jerome Kern, famous composer, now at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, wrote the song "Old Man River" on a hunch? It became one of the best known songs in the world.

Brisbane, Australia, plans a $10,000,000 bridge to connect Kangaroo Point and Fortitude Valley. The valley, we take it, is too deep even for the kangaroos.

Edmonton, Alta. — If a man is bitten by a dog in Alberta he has no redress at law, but if a dog bites a horse or cow the owner of the injured animal may claim damages.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE FINE PRESENTATION

"A very creditable performance" was the consensus of opinion voiced Saturday afternoon as the audience filed out of Victoria Hall after witnessing the annual performance of the Children's Theatre.

The production this year was "The Three Wishes" which made possible a large cast and yet featured the most talented of the members of the group in suitable settings.

In the specialty numbers Martin Franklin and Shirley Pearce performed splendidly while in the general cast Dorothy Aronoff and Leo Costiner gave performances that were worthy of real troopers, the former giving a "human" treatment to her role that was far beyond her years and the latter presenting an amusing side that was one of the bright spots of the production.

Nelson Eddy, famous baritone appearing with Jeanette MacDonald in "Naughty Marietta," plays a brisk game of tennis the day before he sings, "just to check on his wind?"

SHAAR HASHOMAYIM CONGREGATION NOTES

The sixth annual Father-Son and Mother-Daughter Banquet will be held on Monday evening, March 18, in the Main Hall. The Women's Auxiliary Society and the Men of Shaar Hashomayim will take charge of the arrangements. The entertainment committee will present a novel feature in the form of an Operetta, under the direction of Mr. S. Lerner.

The yearly Purim Masquerade will take place on Sunday afternoon, March 17, at three p.m. and will consist of a Fancy Dress Parade, and programmes presented by various departments of the Sunday School.

A very successful assembly programme was given by the girls of the eighth year in the Sunday School. Heinrich Heine's poem on "The Neglect of Jewish Poetry" was very ably dramatized by a small but well-directed group of students.

The usual gifts of food baskets for the poor, distributed every year at about this time, will be gathered during the week in the various classes of the Religious School. Last year fourteen baskets were given to poor families through the generosity of the school.

The executive committee have now commenced work on the Purim issue of the "Echo", the Shaar Hashomayim Sunday School magazine, which will be ready for distribution on Sunday, March 17th.

The WOMAN'S Page

Some Seasonable Recipes For Discerning Housewives

Curried Lamb

1 slice onion
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 tablespoons flour
3/4 cup lamb stock
1/4 to 1 teaspoon curry powder
Salt and pepper
Cooked lamb
Cooked or canned peas
Steamed rice
Parsley

Cook onion slice, chopped fine, with butter until tender. Add flour and a lamb stock, stir until thick and flavor to taste with curry powder, salt and pepper. Add lamb cut in slices free from fat, and let stand in the sauce until heated through. Do not allow to boil or the meat will become toughened. Put a row of peas in the bottom of a greased ring mould and fill with the cooked rice mixed with chopped parsley. Unmould on a hot platter and fill the centre with curried lamb. Garnish with peas and sprigs of parsley.

Pimiento Dressing

1/4 cup French dressing
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon minced pimiento
1 tablespoon tomato catsup
Few drops pepper sauce, or other rather peppery table sauce

Ad the chopped ingredients to the French dressing and chill. This dressing may be stored for several days. Serve with a green salad.

Lemon Sherbet

1-3 cup lemon juice
1 1/2 cups water
3/4 cup sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon
Few grains of salt
2 egg whites

Combine sugar and water and boil slowly until sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Cool syrup, add lemon juice and grated rind. Pour into freezing tray of mechanical refrigerator and freeze to the consistency of mush, stirring once. Follow suggested rules in folding in stiffly beaten egg whites and complete freezing. Excellent as a dessert course or an accompaniment to the meat course.

Cheese Puffs

1 cup grated Canadian cheese
1/4 cup soft, stale bread crumbs
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Fine, dry bread crumbs
Mix the soft bread crumbs with the seasonings and the beaten egg yolk. Add the cheese and fold in the stiffly beaten egg white. Shape mixture into small balls and roll in bread crumbs. Store in refrigerator until ready to fry. Cook in hot deep fat until a golden brown. To be served with salads. Makes eight small balls.

Cabbage, Greek Style

Cut a small cabbage crosswise into one-inch slices; soak in cold salted water for half an hour; drain and parboil it for five minutes. Drain. Cover again with 2 cups of water, 1/4 cup olive oil, 1-3 cup lemon juice, 6 peppercorns, small piece of bay leaf, 1/4 teaspoon thyme, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons sugar and 1 cup diced celery. Cook until tender, then serve with a generous slice of boiled or broiled ham.

How To Spend A Food Dollar

A family with children should divide each dollar for food into five parts, as follows:

- 25 cents for milk and cheese.
- 15-20 cents for vegetables and fruit.
- 15-20 cents for flour, wheat, cornmeal, oats, rice, grits, bread and other grain foods.
- 20-15 cents for butter, lard, other fats, sugar, and molasses.
- 15-20 cents for meat, fish, eggs.

One can get along with the two main rules offered by the famous authority, Dr. H. C. Sherman. (1) At least as much should be spent for milk, including cream and cheese, as for meats, poultry, and fish. (2) At least as much should be spent for fruits and vegetables as for meats, poultry and fish. Each child should have at least a quart of milk a day and each adult, a pint, including what is used in cooking. First-class bottled milk may be bought for drinking.

Leopoldville, Belgian Congo. — Investigation has been asked of the case of a South African missionary fined and sentenced to seven months' imprisonment for alleged ill-treatment of natives.

The Versatile Lemon

Vegetables, although valuable foods, need proper seasoning and flavor to be relished. Lemon juice combines with many vegetables to increase flavor, while lemon garnishes add a decorative note that makes these dishes more appetizing. The following recipes for lemon with certain vegetables will give suggestions for other combinations.

General Suggestions

For refreshing wilted vegetables add juice of 1 lemon to pan of water. To keep such vegetables as old potatoes or cauliflower white during cooking, boil in water to which a slice of lemon or a little lemon juice have been added.

Asparagus in Lemon Rings

Cut 6 thick slices of lemon, remove pulp and in rings of rind insert 3 or 4 stalks of cooked asparagus. Serve hot with lemon butter or Hollandaise Sauce.

Beets With Lemon-Orange Dressing

Cover 8 small or 6 medium sized beets boiled and sliced thin, with 1 tablespoon of sugar to which has been added juice of 2 oranges and 2 small lemons.

Cole Slaw or Lettuce With Lemon

Mix thoroughly 3/4 teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 1 1/2 tablespoons sugar, 6 tablespoons cream and 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Combine with chopped or shredded cabbage or lettuce. Serve cold.

New Potatoes With Lemon

Boil 18 medium sized new potatoes, drain. Add 1/4 cup lemon juice to 3 tablespoons browned butter. Pour over potatoes.

Spinach With Lemon

Add lemon juice to cooked spinach, allowing 1 tablespoon lemon juice to each cup of cooked vegetable. Melted butter may also be added. Or spinach may be served with lemon garnishes, allowing each person to use lemon juice as desired.

British Film Club News

Purpose of Club — New Member — News From England — 2 Pictures in Town on Saturday

The purpose of the British Film Club is to establish the English talking-picture firmly within the minds of Canadians. Owing to many added technical improvements, and a larger gathering of well-known English and American stars, the British output is in every way as capable of providing entertainment as the pictures of Hollywood. But seeing is believing. Unless these new, improved and greatly interesting productions are actually witnessed, no one will believe their equality with other products. Out of the many pictures that issued from the eleven studios from Elstree last year, only thirty-five were shown in Montreal.

The members of the Club are constantly at work asking the exhibitor to give the English product a trial. The past few pictures that have been shown in Montreal such as "Evergreen", "Chu Chin Chow" and "Thine is My Heart" are only the beginning of a long line of smash hits. If you wish to belong to the Club, to boost British and Canadian products, apply to the secretary, Mr. G. Underwood, Apt. 16, 4961 Queen Mary Road. Many new members have joined since the first notice of the Club which appeared in this paper.

The members are anxiously awaiting news from the Imperial Club, a similar organization in the Old Country. Next week will probably bring an answer.

Two big British pictures will be shown at a downtown theatre on Saturday of this week. They are: Douglas Fairbanks in "The Life of Don Juan", and "The Runaway Queen" with Anna Neagle, re-titled from "The Queen's Affair".

Coming British pictures include George Arliss in "The Iron Duke", Nils Asther in "Abdul the Damned", Leslie Howard in "The Scarlet Pimpernel", several Lynn and Walls productions, a Maurice Chevalier picture, and others

DAILY DIET HINTS

In winter time especially, we have to pursue vitamin C if we are to be sure of getting it, says the bureau of home economics of the United States department of agriculture. And get it we must if we are to keep fit, summer and winter. This is the "anti-scorbutic vitamin"—so-called because of the prolonged lack of it causes scurvy. Not many of us nowadays are in danger of the acute form of that disease, but we do need anti-scorbutic foods, especially for good "tooth-nutrition" and healthy gums.

The question of cost comes up, of course. Where can we get the most vitamin C for our money in winter time? The answer is: In fresh vegetables and fruits, especially when we eat them raw—which sounds rather expensive, considering that many of the fresh foods are out of season during the greater part of Canada and the United States at this season of the year. But some of them are to be had anywhere, and there are ways of getting the necessary amount of vitamin C in fairly cheap winter meals.

The foods richest in vitamin C are, in the order of their richness, the citrus fruits (oranges, grapefruit, lemons, limes and tangerines), tomatoes, raw or canned, raw cabbage, other green leaves and other vegetables and fruits, especially if we eat them raw. We do get some vitamin C from cooked vegetables and fruits if they are cooked a very short time. But raw fruits or vegetables of some kind, or tomatoes, raw or canned, are the most dependable source. Tomatoes, fortunately, retain most of their vitamin C when canned. So do grapefruit and pineapple.

So then, a little figuring to count the cost of our vitamin C. Measure for measure, the citrus fruits are about twice as rich in this vitamin as are tomatoes, the next best source. But which are the cheapest for us will depend of course upon the prices in our local market. If we count an orange a day, yielding a quarter of a cup of juice, for each member of the family the cost would probably be 2 to 2 1/2 cents per person, or 10 to 12 1/2 cents per day enough vitamin C for a family of five. Half a grapefruit per person might be cheaper than the orange in some localities. Of tomatoes or tomato juice you would need about twice as much as of citrus fruit, or half a cup of tomatoes for each person.

Use the Cheaper Vegetables

But when you don't have citrus fruits at some meal during the day, and don't have tomatoes either, you need some other dependable source of vitamin C. Raw cabbage comes in here, and should be on the table often. But of course every day is oftener than most people would like, so we must turn to other raw vegetables and fruits for variety.

That brings us to the vegetable cocktail, the fresh fruit cup, and the mixed raw salad. These are not just a fad, or a decorative "extra" or "frill," but a very practical way of getting a food substance without which we cannot maintain health. If you do not

Fashion Hints

Rosalind Russell, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer featured player, who has appeared recently in such productions as "Forsaking All Others," with Joan Crawford, with Jean Harlow, is rapidly gaining her reputation for being one of the smartest dressed women in Hollywood.

Miss Russell declares that smart dressing is a matter of "don'ts," rather than "do's." Here is her list of ten don'ts for the smart woman:

- "Don't buy a dress suitable for only one occasion.
- "Don't try to outdo your friends.
- "Don't wear jewelry without a definite purpose.
- "Don't adopt a style simply because it is new.
- "Don't overlook the importance of accessories and personal grooming.
- "Don't wear black when you're tired.
- "Don't try and dress to please others. Think of yourself first.
- "Don't choose clothes that overshadow your personality.
- "Don't be afraid of simplicity in your wardrobe.
- "Don't dress so that one phase of your costume stands out separately from the others. Everything you wear should combine to form a perfect ensemble.

have citrus fruit, or tomatoes, but do have some raw vegetable or fruit, you have made a good start toward getting your day's requirement of Vitamin C, and what you get in small quantities here and there from the rest of your food will probably make up the full amount you need.

Winter Salads

And some of the salad vegetables of winter time are cheap and plentiful. Cabbage, one of the best for vitamin C, is probably as cheap as any vegetable we have at any time. Spinach, which many people use raw in salads, is another rich source of vitamin C, and so are green peppers and pimientos, which are always a flavorful addition. Lettuce, parsley and watercress are also good sources. So are raw turnips, raw carrots, raw onions and raw cucumbers. Apples raw, pineapples, canned as well as raw, bananas and raw cranberries are winter fruits that furnish vitamin C.

Here, then are suggestions for getting your vitamin C in winter by using fruits and raw vegetables:

Vegetable Cocktails, Relishes

Chopped cabbage, chopped celery, chopped carrots, with a sauce of catsup, or chili sauce and horseradish. Other mixtures of diced or chopped vegetables such as turnip, especially yellow turnip, with green pepper, seasoned with lemon juice, pepper and salt. Cabbage heart is good in such mixtures, or Jerusalem artichoke. And a flourish of raw cauliflower on top adds a flavor as well as a decorative touch.

A good tomato cocktail is made of tomato juice with a seasoning of onion, celery, pepper and salt. Stew the onions and celery together to blend their flavors; add them to the juice; and strain.

Raw carrot sticks, along with or without sticks of celery, or radish make a good relish. Or you can use turnips or Jerusalem artichokes this way.

FOR FRUIT CUPS

Canned sliced peaches, diced apple, sliced banana.
Grapefruit or orange sections cut small, sliced bananas.

FOR SALADS

Cole slaw, with or without chopped green pepper.
Chopped cabbage and chopped or ground carrots.
Chopped cabbage and diced apple.
Chopped carrots and diced apple.
Shredded cabbage with chopped or ground peanuts.
Shredded cabbage with very thin onion rings.
Shredded cabbage, chopped green pepper, chopped onion, chopped peanuts.
Chopped raw turnip and chopped celery.

In the preparation of vegetable cocktails, fruit cups and raw salads, nutritionists warn against letting them stand uncovered, or for any considerable length of time, because they lose vitamin C when cut surfaces or the juices are exposed to the air.

Cooked vegetables are not to be ignored as sources of vitamin C. But again the nutritionist warns that the cooking time should be as short as possible to save the most vitamin C. In the case of cabbage and greens, cook until the leaves are barely wilted. For the roots, just until they are tender. Then serve at once.

Fruit Salads Aid Balance Of Mid-Winter Family Meals

Salads made from grapefruit and oranges should be given a prominent place in the winter diet. They are rich in minerals and vitamin C, and aid the homemaker in balancing the family meals during a season when the usual salad materials are not procurable.

Following are a few practical suggestions.

Winter Salad

6 large oranges.
1-3 cup banana slices.
1-3 cup apple cubes
1-3 cup raisins.
1-4 cup mayonnaise.

Peel the oranges, removing skin and membrane down to juicy pulp. Cut in slices. Arrange circles of these slices on individual lettuce-covered salad plates. Marinate banana and apple with orange juice saved in preparing orange slices. This prevents discoloration. Combine these fruits with the raisins and mayonnaise. Place a mold of this mixture in centre of orange slices. Top each mound with additional mayonnaise and 3 raisins.

Orange Salad I

For six persons, pare four rather acid oranges, slice them very thin, cutting down the sides instead of across, and sprinkle with fruit sugar. Mix 1 tablespoon grapefruit with 1 of cider vinegar and 1 of lemon juice and pour it over the fruit. Set on ice an hour before using. Serve before a fowl or game course.

Orange Salad II

Peel oranges and free the sections entirely from the membrane. Remove seeds, cut sections in halves crosswise, lay on bed of lettuce leaves and serve with French dressing. Sprinkle with tarragon or with minced green pepper, if desired. Minced celery may be added.

Orange Basket Salad

Make orange baskets by cutting 2 pieces from each orange, leaving what remains in shape of basket with handle. Remove pulp from the basket and pieces and keep baskets in ice water until ready to fill. Mix the diced orange pieces with equal parts of diced alligator pear and diced pineapple. Serve in the baskets with cream mayonnaise to which has been added 1 tablespoon finely chopped ginger.

Arrange orange sections on lettuce like the petals of a flower. Put a cream cheese ball in the centre. Sprinkle cheese with chopped ripe olives. Serve with French dressing.

Melba Salad

1 grapefruit.
2 oranges.
3/4 cup white grapes, skinned and seeded.
1-3 cup pecan nut meats, broken in pieces.
Lettuce

Remove grapefruit and orange sections. Add grapes and nuts. Arrange on lettuce and pour over the following dressing.

Melba Dressing

4 tablespoons olive oil.
1 tablespoon grapefruit juice.
1/2 teaspoon vinegar.
1 teaspoon salt.
1-4 teaspoon paprika.
1-8 teaspoon pepper.
1 tablespoon finely chopped Roquefort cheese.

Mix ingredients, chill, and shake thoroughly.

NEEDLE FROM HEART

Sydney, N.S.W. — A two-inch needle was removed from the heart of a two-year-old girl by doctors here and the child apparently is little the worse for her terrible experience. When she was taken to the hospital the needle which had pierced her chest in a fall, had not only penetrated a inch into the heart, but was actually pulsating under the skin of its action.

BESSBOROUGH I.O.D.E. IN ANNUAL MEETING

The fourth annual meeting of the Earl of Bessborough Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was held February 6 at the residence of the regent, Mrs. A. W. Myers, 4346 Harvard avenue.

There are 17 members on the roll with an increase of seven new members.

The chapter has supported the municipal charter in many of its undertakings, including the endowment fund, the talking machine for St. Anne's Military Academy, Sastie Sorabji memorial fund in Poona, India, Navy League and the Russian Christmas tree.

The chapter has undertaken to look after a family of 11 in Rosemount, and food and clothing was provided them at Christmas. Fees are being paid of two boys attending West Hill High School.

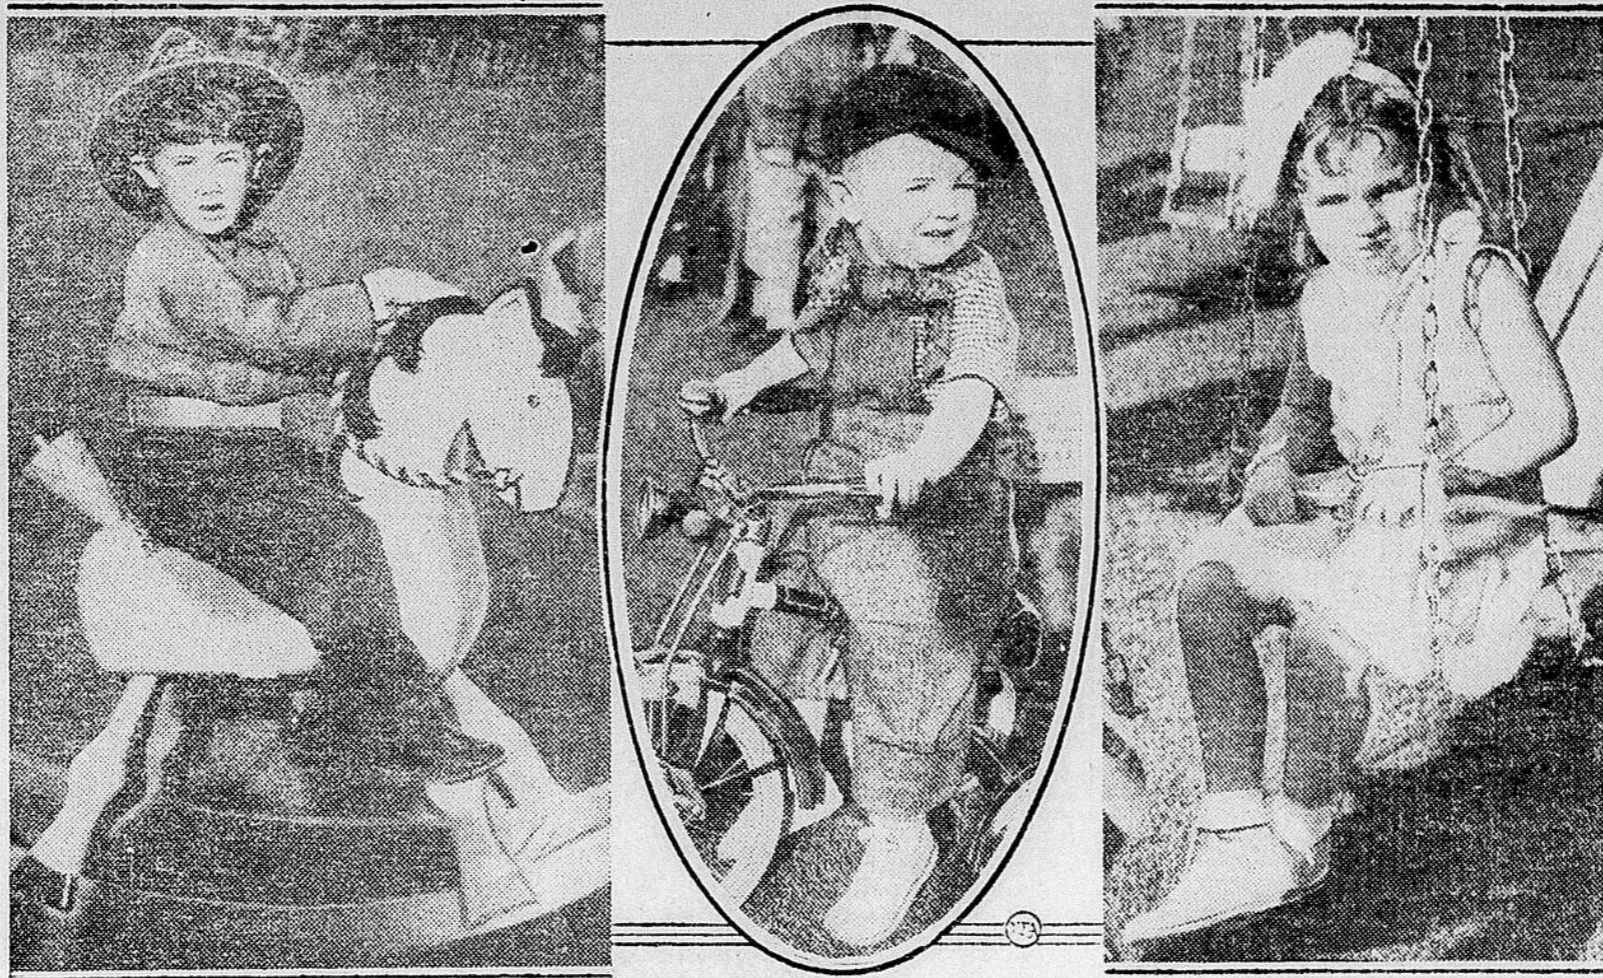

Other donations include: gift of clothing to the Bethany Home, magazines and playing cards to Valcartier Camp, canned goods, books and clothing to the "Better Ole", Christmas stockings to the Friendly Home, money to the Navy League for rubbers, and the gift of a ton stool to the Brownies of the Negro Community Centre.

On Armistice Day the chapter was active in selling poppies and realized $322. A wreath was placed on the N.D.G. Cenotaph. The Gift Shop booth in the I.O.D.E. carnival was honored by a visit from Her Excellency, the Countess of Bessborough, who was presented with a gift from the regent.

Officers were elected for the coming year as follows: Honorary regent, Mrs. B. Burland; honorary vice-regent, Mrs. C. P. Monks; regent, Mrs. A. W. Myers; vice-regent, Mrs. W. H. Towle and Mrs. A. Orendien; secretary, Mrs. E. V. Webster; treasurer, Mrs. L. J. Beesley; educational secretary, Mrs. William Hill; Echoes secretary, Mrs. Chas. Hollingworth; and standard bearer, Mrs. E. J. Ryal.

Hollywood Sets Pace For Baby Party

Many Movie Stars' Names On Divorce Docket This Spring, Records Reveal

"We've been married a year, And I think, my dear, That we'd better call it a day. I love you, of course, But let's get a divorce, For in greenland they do things That way."

That little parody on a popular song which has been very appropriate in Hollywood, for a year seems to be the average duration of many marriages involving famous folk of the cinema.

Of course, the motion picture colony has its "starry prenuptial" marriages. To cite only a few, there are the homespun philosopher, Will Rogers and the sweet, motherly "Ma", Rogers; Theda Bara, glamorous "vamp" of yesterday, and her director husband, Charles Brabin; Norma Shearer and Irving Thalberg; Lionel and Irene Fenwick Barrymore, and a host of others.

Many Suits Pending On the other hand— In the Los Angeles County divorce courts there were pending yesterday numerous suits directed by and against, filmland luminaries, most of whom haven't been married long enough to celebrate more than one anniversary.

And, in many instances, despite the filing of the divorce action, the couple about to be made ex-husband and ex-wife, have stated in chorus, in accordance with the best Hollywood tradition: "We are divorcing in order to best protect our great respect and affection for each other."

It was only the other day that Mary Pickford, the goldilocks who became "America's Sweetheart" and whose romance with the swash-buckling Douglas Fairbanks ended film fans the world over, went into court, headed her lovely little head in assent to a lawyer's questions and became once again a single lady.

Typical 'Program' The Pickford-Fairbanks matter settled, Superior Judge Marshall McComb, whose duty it is to set dates for divorce case hearings, took stock of unfinished business concerning movie celebrities. This was the "program," typical numerically, which he perused:

- Fay Webb vs. Rudy Vallee. Clara Ates vs. Roscoe Ates. Elissa Landi vs. John Cecil Lawrence. Angela Bennett vs. Richard Bennett. Ruth Clifford vs. James A. Cornelius. Mercedes Spark vs. Ned Sparks. Eleanor Hunt vs. Dr. Frank Nolan. Virginia Cherrill vs. Cary Grant. Jean Harlow vs. Hal Rosson. June Knight vs. Paul Ames. Clara Grant Ray vs. Charles Ray. Lupe Velez vs. Johnny Weissmuller. Diane Carlay vs. Rian James. Margaret B. Brown vs. Melville Brown.

Now, gentle reader, let us assume for the nonce that we are "doctors of domestic relations." Let us study for a moment, a few cases histories.

June Knight vs. Paul Ames. The singing star and the wealthy broker were wed in Chicago last November 30. Divorce complaint filed in Los Angeles last December 18—almost a record. Why was Miss Knight unhappy? Well, according to her complaint, a friend of Ames, one Murray Stern, intruded upon the privacy of the honeymoon.

Virginia Cherrill vs. Cary Grant, Charlie Chaplin's one-time leading lady and the handsome "he-man" Britisher were married in London last February 9. On December 3, in Los Angeles, Miss Cherrill sued for separate maintenance. She accused Grant of using "vile and opprobrious language" and asserted he was given, at times, to the consumption of "large quantities of liquor."

Elissa Landi vs. John Cecil Lawrence. Married in London January 28, 1928. Miss Landi who sued for divorce last May, declared her high regard for the marriage contract had caused her to be stigmatized as the "coldest woman in Hollywood." But, she said, her husband refused to submit to any situation that might entail his being called "Mr. Elissa Landi."

Her Third Mate Jean Harlow vs. Hal Rosson. The platinum blonde and the soft-spoken cameraman were wed in Yuma, September 18, 1933. The divorce suit was filed here last December 5. Miss Harlow accused Rosson, her third mate—successor of the late Paul Bern and of Charles F. McGrew II—of being sullen, irritable and ungenerous.

Eleanor Hunt vs. Dr. Frank Nolan. Another "less than a year" union. They were married at Las Vegas, Nev., November 15, 1932. She sued for separate maintenance last October 25. The reason? He gave her a "severe beating" she complained.

Robert Taylor, while on location at Randolph Field in Texas, where cadets are trained for air service, passed every test for admission with perfect scores. He was a member of "The West Point of the Air" company.

Hollywood's grownups rarely turned out in such festive splendor and gaiety as did the children of the more noteworthy film luminaries, at the birthday party of 2-year-old Wesley Ruggles, Jr., son of the famous director and the former Arline Judge. Representative of the pageantry and fun on the Ruggles lawn in Los Angeles are the pictures of the three little guests shown here. All recall great names on the screen and behind the scenes. Left to right, they are Irving Thalberg, Jr., son of the famous director and Norma Shearer; Susan Ann Gilbert, daughter of John Gilbert and Virginia Bruce, and Carol Ann Beery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Beery.

The Woman's Angle

By NANCY HART

Of all the advice on beauty, the soundest is "get eight hours' sleep every night." That will do more to take out the wrinkles than all the creams and lotions you can use. A sensible diet with only a moderate amount of sweets, a bit of exercise and plenty of water to drink and a good facial cream to counteract the ravages of winter winds are all helpful.

Now that repeal is definitely established, new flavors in foods are the order of the day. This for example: roast your leg of lamb in the usual way, but baste with equal parts of sherry wine and water. The difference is deliciously surprising.

Some of the most attractive of the new cooking and serving utensils are made in spun aluminum that refuses to tarnish. Light and practical, there are some new things on the market that look just as well on the table as in the kitchen.

The greatest criticism of Americans returning from travel in England is the unimaginative preparation of foods. Yet how many Americans use canned foods intelligently, adding unusual flavors? Have you ever added a bit of sugar, a clove or two and a slice of onion to tomatoes? Try it sometime and see.

An old fear seems to have been laid to rest—that ripe olives in cans are frequently poisonous. I haven't heard of anyone being poisoned in years, and the packers say that a long, long time ago when they hadn't learned how to process and pack so well, there was some difficulty, but that is years in the past.

Attractive mittens are being worn with winter sports costumes, with the old-fashioned strings up one sleeve, around the neck and down the other sleeve, to take out the mittens out of the snow when the sportsman stops to adjust a skate or a ski.

OPERATES ON BIDDY BY CUTTING THROAT Yarmouth, N.S.—Usually when a hen has its throat cut it stays cut—but Arthur Robicheau valued his hen too much for that. When he found his pet hen suffering from "impaction of the crop" Robicheau applied his surgical knowledge to save the bird's life. Making an incision, he removed the obstruction and then sewed it up again. After a few days' special diet, the farmer-surgeon had his charge as good as new again.

Premier Bennett used a little French the other day and was told that he did it well.

Paris Snapshots

Separate fur pieces are being primed by Paris designers for a spring of suits and furless coats. For capelets, fox stoles, and draped fox neckpieces pre-emptive.

The French milliners are reviving the sailor hat with a shallow crown and rolled or irregular brim for spring wear with the tailored suit.

Straw that is so shiny you can use your hat to adjust your make-up is being featured by Paris milliners for all kinds of spring hats. Pale blue is the favorite color.

Hats that make a point of a good profile are being shown in Paris. They have a brim that dips on one side and frames the profile.

Trimmings for the early spring hat are going to be gay if we can judge by present indications. Brilliant feather fancies in purple, parrot green, and American beauty red are placed on black or navy hats.

DOLE DECREASING IN NEWFOUNDLAND

St. John's, Nfld.—Decrease in the number of Newfoundlanders on the direct relief rolls at the end of 1934 as compared with the year previous is noted with satisfaction by the colony's commission government in an official communique.

There has been a "continued and gratifying decline," the commissioners state, both in the number of individuals receiving relief and in the amount disbursed. The number dropped from 71,172 to 53,191; the expenditure from $107,000 to $95,000.

WESTERN DISTRICT GIRL GUIDE SHOW

Companies of West-End Will Demonstrate Various Badgework, March 2nd

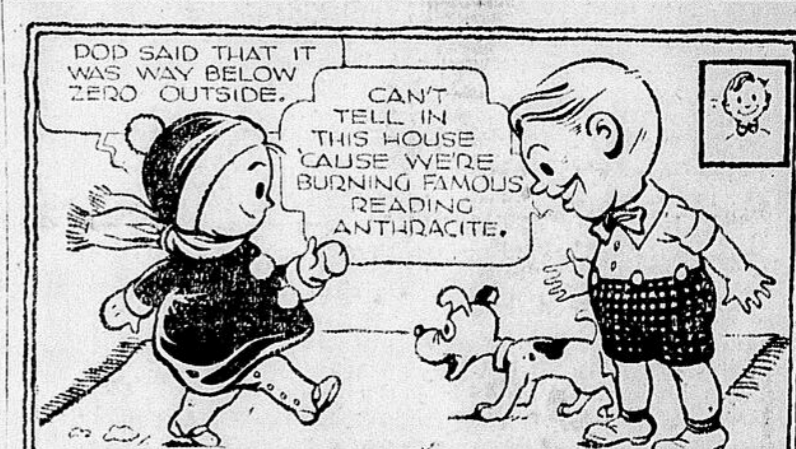

Through the kindness of D. W. Ogilvie and Company the Girl Guide and Brownie display of the Western District will be held at 5018 Sherbrooke street near Clarendon avenue March 2.

From two to four o'clock the Brownies will be in charge of the program and from four to nine the Guides will demonstrate proficiency badgework.

The badges being shown are: ambulance badge, Fiftieth Company, St. Saviour's Mission, Captain Miss Collins; cook's badge, 36th Company, Montreal West, Captain Miss H. Laing; Entertainer's badge, 13th Company, Church of St. Columba, Captain Miss R. Harvey; Domestic service badge, 72nd Company, St. Augustine's Church, Captain Miss E. Newell; needlewomen's and Knitters badges 23rd Company, Kensington Church, Captain Miss E. Murray; toy-maker's badge, 49th Company, Trinity Memorial Church, Captain Miss E. Wilkinson; sick nurse and child nurse badge, 81st Company, Rosedale Church, Captain Miss E. Cowans.

The twenty-first Company, Herbert Symonds School, with the captain Mrs. E. Christmas, will be in charge of home cooking, and the eighth company, the School for the Blind, is also taking part.

London.—Doctors are urging that use of the cane on girls in elementary schools should be prohibited on medical grounds. The board of education is not prepared to endorse this view. An effort is being made to secure the views of the medical profession so that an authoritative statement can be presented to the board.

The general policy of the board of education is to leave the question of corporal punishment to the discretion of local education authorities. The champion of the "no caning for girls," is Dr. R. L. Kitching of Wetherby, who publishes his correspondence with the board in the "British Medical Journal."

He claims that the board's policy is unsound because it leaves

Empire and Majestic Release New Features

Local residents are now thoroughly versed in the fine productions which Empire Pictures, large Canadian film agents, have been exhibiting at the Empress Theatre and other local houses. Although the films are not bombastically advertised and "ballyhooed", the unsolicited testimony of many residents in this district shows the discerning taste which theatre patrons of today possess.

Following other Gene-Statton Porter successes, Monogram are completing "The Keeper of the Bees", "The Nut Farm", a rollicking comedy from the newspaper strip is also on the Monogram lot. "Million Dollar Baby" is a family picture with direct appeal to every film connoisseur. "The Hoosier Schoolmaster", a best-seller which is endorsed by libraries and educational institutions everywhere, "Honey-moon Limited", a fast-moving railway story, "Women Must Dress", a novel picture with the winners of a national girl-contest, Robert Armstrong and Bill Cagney in "Reckless Romances", Lionel Atwill in "The Great God Gold", Bela Lugosi in "The Mysterious Mr. Wong", "The Mystery Man", another thriller, and "Cheers of the Crowd", a story of the cross-sections of the sport world, are all finished and ready for an early release at the Empress.

Majestic pictures, an independent production firm of note, have completed a large and expensive schedule which they consider of great importance to the film industry. Here are some of their new, and elaborately-produced specials. Judith Allen in "Young and Beautiful", Bruce Cabot in "Night Alarm", a thrilling romance—"Waterfront Lady", "One Frightened Night", a laugh and chill thriller, Esther Ralston in "The Marines Are Coming", David Manners in "The Perfect Chue", and Colleen Moore in "The Scarlet Letter".

The above list show that besides improvement in story-material and when witnessed, of technical understanding, there is also great

"name value" in Majestic's films for the current season.

Three big productions are awaiting distribution dates at Empire's Montreal office. They are "Little Men", a sequel to the immortal "Little Women", "The Unfinished Symphony" with Hans Jaray, a picture that is breaking records all over the world, and "Lorna Doone" with Victoria Hopper.

The following British productions which are explained in more detail elsewhere are also of Empire origin. Conrad Veidt in "Bella Donna", Betty Balfour in "Squibs", "Are You a Mason?", Merle Oberon in "Broken Melody", Gina Malo in "Lily of Killarney", "The DuBarry", Douglas Fairbanks in "La Boheme", Matheson Lang in "Drake of England", Will Hay and Claude Allister in "Those Were the Days", Dandy Dick with a large cast, Helen Chandler in "It's a Bet", Cyril Maude in "Girls Will be Boys", "The Old Curiosity Shop", Gracie Fields in a special J. B. Priestly vehicle, "Sing as We Go", Anna Wong and Elizabeth Allen in "Java Head", and Victor McLaglen in "Dick Turpin's Ride to York".

Household Hints

by the Family Druggist

The family medicine cabinet is not complete without an accurate clinical thermometer. This applies particularly to homes where there are children. The price of a reliable instrument is about one dollar but make sure that a certificate is enclosed. Remove a new thermometer carefully from the case and immerse in a warm solution of any household antiseptic for a few minutes. To shake down or reset the thermometer hold it firmly between the thumb and first finger, raise the hand to about the level of the face, then swing the hand down rapidly and finish with an upward flick similar to the method of flicking a whip. Place the bulb under the tongue and do not allow the saliva to collect in the month. Keep the mouth closed. Remove after three to five minutes. Twist the thermometer between thumb and forefinger until the light strikes the mercury column between the two parallel guiding lines. Normal temperature, 98.4, is indicated by an arrow. After taking temperature place the thermometer in the antiseptic solution, then remove and dry before placing in the case.

SPRAY FOR KILLING COCHRACHES
Roaches which infest houses are of several species, but all are similar in habit and mode of development.

They hide during the daytime in cracks and crevices, under floors, around water pipes and anywhere else where they can escape observation. In these places they lay their eggs which often do not hatch for long periods, and for this reason control measures should be kept up persistently.

A spray which will drive them from their hiding places is made by infusing 1/2 a pound of Pyrethrum powder in one gallon of Kerosene for two hours. Decant the liquid and use it in a spray with a fine nozzle. A little Wintergreen may or may not be added.

The following useful house-cleaning aids may be easily and cheaply prepared.

A "DUSTLESS DUSTER"
Saturate odd scraps of wool or silk cloths with Kerosene. Hang up so as to let as much of the oil evaporate as possible. Then rub the oiled cloth on a piece of wood till it is no longer streaks.

LACE BATHING SUIT GETS OFFICIAL O.K. OF BEACH CENSOR

Tomahawk Lake Children Get Proof of Little Red Riding Hood Story — Bold, Bad Wolf Follows Them Right to School House Door But, Not Having Grandma's Shawl And Specs, Can't Get In.

BEACH SIRENS may clothe themselves in peek-a-boo lace bathing suits at Atlantic City, according to a recent decision of Public Safety Director William Cuthbert and Dahlgreen Albertson, a 71-year-old beach censor. They gave the new lace swimming curtains a look over and through at private indoor pools and decided that they could be put on public view at the beach next summer. They are made of black lace with flesh-colored lining. But the director of public safety at the same time decided public safety would be menaced if men were allowed to appear clad only in bathing trunks. Though women may only have lace curtains to cover them, men must continue to hide up their manly bosoms.

SCHOOL CHILDREN at Lake Tomahawk, Wisconsin, are no longer sceptical about the story of Little Red Riding Hood and the wolf. They are pestered by a wolf of their own and not one of them was for a minute so deceived as to mistake it for grandma. When their school bus drove along the snow-covered road, a big gray timber-wolf trotted alongside of it and seemed determined to follow them to school. Just as they reached the little red schoolhouse the wolf thought better of it and took to the bush.

MOST COURTROOMS are populated by lawyers rather than doctors, but in a courtroom at Topeka, Kansas, when a woman fainted and the court bailiff called out, "Is there a doctor in the house?" seventeen answered his SOS. There were four pathologists, three surgeons, two toxicologists, a dentist, three general practitioners, two chemists and a pharmacist. The reason for this gathering of medical talent was the trial of Major Charles Shepard on a charge of wife murder. The accused himself is also a doctor. Faced with seventeen true bills, the fainting woman immediately recovered.

IT DOES not pay to damage government property in Russia, especially if it is a brand new stream-lined American motor car. Morris Blumenthal was at the wheel of one of the new and beautiful limousines which the Soviet travel agency provides for the use of distinguished visitors who are seeing the sights of Leningrad. Morris, proving that vodka and gasoline cannot mix any better than whiskey and gasoline, ran the beautiful car into a telegraph pole. A people's court decided that five years' imprisonment with hard labour was the fitting penalty for the crime of destroying such valuable property.

ASTA, a female dog belonging to Henry Bogelsack of Queens, New York, is dead because it loved its home and could not change houses with as much alacrity as its owner, Mr. Bogelsack moved to a new home and the next day his dog disappeared. After futile searching, he decided to reconnoitre the old neighborhood and he found that the dog had returned to the old home, which is now occupied by Mrs. Mary Huhn. Unfortunately he found also that when a strange dog occupied her backyard she had it destroyed. Mr. Bogelsack sued for $1,000 and Justice Richardson ruled that the dog in going back to its former kennel was a trespasser and rightfully punishable by death. So it would seem that though a dog is entitled to one bite, it is not entitled to a sentimental attachment to a house.

At Local Theatres

WESTMOUNT
In the "Thin Man", William Powell and Myrna Loy gave you a taste of sophisticated comedy to the "nth degree". In their latest production which is the current vehicle at the Westmount theatre till Saturday, they blend even more charming character with a story that is highly different and altogether interesting.

Mr. Powell gives his usual suave performance, whilst Myrna Loy as "Evelyn Prentice" is completely charming. "Evelyn Prentice" is full of that daring little lit that characterized "The Thin Man", but, added to this, there is a strong romantic interest. The comedy is also evident throughout the unfolding of this cleverly-concocted story. As the added attraction, the girl who thrilled you in "Bottoms Up" is seen again in another romance of a similar nature but without music. "Love-Time" is the rather appropriate title, and "Pat" Patterson and Nils Asther are the co-stars. This is a good program, and will appeal very strongly to those who like a romantic and humorous angle to their entertainment.

SEVILLE

There have been many pictures about doctors and nurses; their lives and interests; but the public never tire of them. "The White Parade" is another picture of life and romance in a big hospital. There are numerous complications and no little humour in this story, and altogether it makes a finely-narrated picture. John Boles, whose delicate and appreciative handling of the parts assigned to him has given a high standing which is the envy of many of his colleagues, is in the male lead, whilst Loretta Young, who is a consistently good actress outside herself in this film, "The White Parade" should appeal to the women, and will prove entertaining to the men. The other half of the program is occupied with a daring little picture of a rather enlarged portrait of the modern girl. It is called "Ready for Love" and stars Ida Lupin and Richard Arden. Without being strictly according to general ideas, it is interesting.

hunting trip? Pat Foley last fall while hunting in Maine, was bitten by a wood-tick and died seven days later from blood poisoning. His widow sued for $25,000 under an accident policy. The defence admitted that if Mr. Foley had been killed by a moose or a bear, that would have been an accident, but to be bitten by a bug in the rug over his bunk was just camp life. The jury, however, decided that the wood-tick was in the true sense of the word a beast of prey and that the late Pat Foley came to his death by accident.

THE CHICAGO unemployment relief service is thinking of erecting a monument to John Tureich. It will be a monument to almost unexampled probity. Tureich and his family were for a while on relief and received from the city of Chicago the amount of $55.94. Then John got a job. The other day he came into the relief office and slapped down on the counter the whole amount of his borrowings to the exact cent. "It is nothing to my credit," said modestly. "Every citizen on relief who again gets a job should do the same thing. It is just honest, that is all." Though Mr. Tureich thinks his action is so ordinary that it does not even deserve a news mention, the Chicago relief officers almost fainted from the shock and would like some permanent memorial of his unique sense of monetary honor.

Movie Notes

The largest motion picture expedition on record sailed from San Pedro harbor (Los Angeles) bound for the South Seas, where "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Typee" will be made into photoplays. A technical staff of sixty persons shipped aboard the Maunautani, together with Director Frank Lloyd of "Mutiny," Director Richard Thorp of "Typee," and a large group of players.

Clark Gable, Robert Montgomery and Charles Laughton have the principal roles in "Mutiny on the Bounty," adapted from the famous book by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall.

Undeterred by wholesale visions of damage suits for shattered windows, comedy producer Hal Roach blithely announces plans for the national mobilization of 1,000 juvenile "Our Gang" baseball teams. With 1000 dozen uniforms already manufactured, and with Master "Spanky" McFarland, "Our Gang" star as national honorary president, Hal Roach's army of diminutive ball players will go into action with the advent of major league "opening days." In the fall, if all goes well, an "Our Gang" World Series is a Hollywood possibility.

Picture making is a strenuous business — certainly Jean Harlow thinks so. When she arrived on the set in the morning to begin "Reckless" at M-G-M, she had previously had her hair washed, and waved—in short looking it's glorious best—and the first scene they shot the had to show her in a beauty parlor with the whites of eggs all over her platinum tresses!

"Vanessa: Her Love Story" is the fourth picture that Lewis Stone has played with Helen Hayes, and in each of them he has come to a violent death.

Louise Fazenda has the old fashioned habit of putting valuable notes and things in the top of her stocking, in lieu of a pocket. Production on "The Winning Ticket" was stopped for a minute or two when a white piece of paper was noticed just above Miss Fazenda's ankle. It was a cake recipe that someone had given her, that had slipped all of the way down.

Do You Know?

Jeanette MacDonald never leaves for work at the studio until she has personally fed her two dogs? They have been taught to accept food from no one else.

Joseph Cawthorn, who plays the German music master in "Naughty Marietta," was a personal friend of his composer, Victor Herbert, and was principal comedian in two Herbert masterpieces, "The Fortune Teller" and "The Singing Girl".

Charles Richman, now appearing with Constance Bennett and Clark Gable at M-G-M, played in "The Man From Home," the first Cecil de Mille picture filmed in Hollywood?

Hero Suffers Torture To Entertain Fans

Fredric March, Stopped and Heavily Shackled, Talks Whipping as Galley Prisoner in His Latest Picture.

Hollywood, — A sullen-looking man emerged from Fredric March's elaborate dressing quarters on the United Artists lot. A long straggling beard covered his face, matted hair fell over his eyes, his stooped body was covered with a loose tunic and tattered trousers.

A three-inch shackle around his neck, with iron chains running to equally wide ankle bands, marked him as a prisoner.

Surely this horrible-looking creature couldn't be the dashing, handsome March! But still he was coming out of March's dressing room. I decided to take a chance.

"How're you, Freddie," I called. The horrible-looking creature stopped. It was March!

I walked with him to the set where "Les Miserables" is being made. A hundred other men in similar makeups already were seated on the wooden benches of a triple-decked slave galley.

March took his place near the center of the galley. Director Richard Boleslawski locked the chains to his seat. Then he took his place by the cameras and called for action.

The haggard-looking prisoners began pulling the heavy wooden sweeps as if rowing a real boat. Over them stood a prison guard with a long whip which he lashed over the backs of March and the others.

Never did he strike with the force which will be suggested on the screen, but still hard enough to sting quite noticeably.

"That's what the movies call 'art.'"

Way of Wisdom

Leave it to Margaret Lindsay to figure out a way of avoiding embarrassing questions. When she sets her mind to it, this attractive young brunette can figure out practically anything.

"It's all so very simple," explains Margaret. "All you have to do is give the impression of going into deep thought before giving an answer, and most of the time the questioner will answer his own question for you."

"I worked that trick a lot during my first few months in Hollywood when I was posing as an English actress and got by beautifully."

Three's the Party

Peggy Fears, Charles Le Maire, and Lili Damita are making up Hollywood's latest threesome. They're practically inseparable. And they've got everyone guessing as to just where the romance lies.

Ann Wants Easy Job

"Oh, for the life of a movie star," sighed Ann Southern as she slowly left the "Eight Bells" set. "I wonder how it would feel to have a nice easy job, such as dishwasher." For one solid week she worked 16 hours a day, doing two films simultaneously, and next week she goes right back on that same schedule.

Simple Solution

Electricians on "The Goose and the Gander" set were having difficulty with a light. The switch was turned on, but nothing happened. For fully five minutes three of them worked frantically, switching plugs, cleaning out sockets, and doing all sorts of things.

Finally Genevieve Tobin looked up. "Perhaps," she said, "the light would burn if you'd put a globe in it."

Vicious Flying

Reginald Denny, whose flying activities have been curbed temporarily by his screen contracts, which prohibit him from leaving the ground, has turned his attention to constructing model airplanes.

He has one five feet in length, with an eight-foot wing spread, that is driven by a small electric motor and will remain in the air for an hour and a half.

Danny Blair, who used to play football in Toronto's senior league, is making quite a reputation for himself with Aston Villa of the English league, first division. Noted for a sound, steady game, he is rated one of the best defensive backs in the country.

St. Leo Juniors Tie In Playoff

The evenly-matched junior hockey squads of St. Leo's Academy and Loyola High School battled to a 3-3 deadlock at the Loyola Stadium Thursday afternoon in the first of a two-game total series for the junior division championship of the Western Inter-school League.

Ledoux, smart St. Leo's winger, barked up all three of his team's centers. Twice, in the initial period St. Leo's went ahead, on Ledoux's goals only to have Loyola tie the count. Loyola took the lead in the second period when Brown scored but Ledoux evened matters for St. Leo's late in the period.

The teams: St. Leo's goal Pullam; defence Pare; defence Lavoie; centre Tooby; wing Ledoux; St. Leo's goal Pullam; defence Pare; defence Lavoie; centre Tooby; wing Ledoux.

Penalties: St. Leo's, Ledoux, 8.15; Loyola, Newton, 9.46; St. Leo's, Ledoux, 13.30; Loyola, Costigan, 16.03. Penalties: St. Leo's, Ledoux, 16.10; Loyola, Newton, Costigan.

Birth Certificates

With the advent of the playoffs in the various divisions, birth certificates are being demanded of all boys signing Q.A.H.A. cards, otherwise they will not be allowed to take their places with their teams in the finals.

The regulations of the Q.A.H.A. requires that each boy produce his certificate as proof that he is within the age limit of the division in which his team plays.

INTER-CHURCH CARPET BOWLING NOTES

The race in the second half of the West End Inter-Church Carpet Bowling League has arrived at an exciting stage with the strong Wesley team tied with Westmount Park in points but with two games in hand.

| Team | Played | Points |
|--------------------|--------|--------|
| Wesley | 5 | 15 |
| Westmount Park | 7 | 15 |
| Scott Presbyterian | 5 | 15 |
| St. Simons | 5 | 10 |
| St. Andrews | 4 | 8 |
| Queen Mary | 4 | 6 |
| Calvary | 4 | 2 |

The annual church service of the league will this year be held at the Ephraim Scott Memorial Church Sunday at seven p.m. The preacher will be the Rev. Dr. McEvoy, honorary president of the league. A welcome is extended to members of this and other bowling leagues.

Westmount "Y" Again Wins Gymnasium Championship

Westmount Y.M.C.A. is again holder of the Senior Provincial Amateur Gymnasium Championship, the west-end organization retained its 1934 title last Thursday at Central Y.M.C.A. where the championships were held.

In addition to the team honors the Westmount "Y" boats of the individual championship with R. Koci winning the title, replacing Edward Stoessel. In winning the team honors in the senior class, the local "Y" retains the Wilfrid Wherry Trophy for another year. Koci only scored a first place on the side horse, but was well up in other events.

The Junior Division was an innovation this year, introduced in order to increase interest among the younger members of the clubs. Westmount scored in the Junior open class, although G. H. Holland, McGill, won the individual title with a margin of 684 to 638 over W. Reay, Westmount's top man. There was no team championship for junior novices, but C. G. Marshall, representing Montreal High School, won individual honors from C. Hobbs, McGill, 756 to 661.

Four events in as many classes comprised the lengthy program, which was conducted with punctuality, with the contestants performing on the high bar, parallel bars, side horse and mats.

Westmount "Y" Teams: Senior: R. Koci, Wm. Russell, and Stan. Edgar. Junior: E. Jones, W. Reay, and Stan. Dart.

Eight Former Star Players Now Major League Pilots

There is only one coach in the National Hockey League who was not rated as a star hockey player. He is Thomas Gorman, in charge of Montreal Maroons. Gorman was a good lacrosse player, and once was selected on an all-Canadian team to tour England.

Aitkenhead: Yeh.

The Reporter: See where Rangers have climbed from the bottom to the top of the American division in eight weeks.

Andy: Yeh.

Reporter: Guess Patrick is feeling fine now since Rangers have started going places. He was mighty inconspicuous couple of months ago.

Andy: Yeh.

Reporter: Well, it just goes to show. You can have the best forwards in the game, the best defence, but if you can't top the other guy's shots, it's tough.

Andy: Yeh.

Reporter: And conversely. With the best goalie in the world, unless you have the defence you don't get places.

Andy: Yeh.

Reporter: Well, now that the Rangers are in the playoffs guess we'll be having some compliments from the fans back home ole Noo Yawk. They're some bunch of customers.

STELLA WALSH DOFFS SPIKES, DONS MORTAR

Stella Walsh, one of the world's greatest woman athletes, is ready to quit being just an athlete.

She is to hang up her track shoes and settle down to a life of books. She is going to college to prepare for a career as teacher of physical education.

Although only 23 years old now Stella, a veteran in national and international competition, has had enough record-breaking and soon plans to give her flying feet a long rest.

Holder of national and international records for all distances from 40 yards to 1000 metres, Cleveland's girl speed king expects to defend a number of her titles this summer and then confine her track athletics to college competition.

Stella now is a student at Notre Dame Academy in Cleveland. She graduates in June to enter some girls' college in the fall and work for a degree in physical education.

Meanwhile she will devote her spare time to a number of sports, chiefly basketball.

Miss Walsh (her real name is Stella Walsiewicz), started her sensational career by "always hanging around the city playgrounds" as she puts it.

Having no inherent aptitude for running, Stella just ran and trained, and ran and trained some more.

She entered many city-wide track meets and branched out to take honors in district meets.

In the summer of 1930 she competed in the women's world games in Poland. She won three events in record times. Her next important competition was the 1932 Olympics when representing Poland she won the 100 metres dash and set a world record of 11.9. Last summer in Japan she lowered that mark by 2-10 of a second.

Today Miss Walsh holds 31 world, American, Polish and Canadian records, most of which are recognized by the Feminine Sportive Federation International.

It is not only in track that Stella excels. She is a whirlwind at virtually every sport she participates in—basketball, baseball, bowling, boxing, archery, rowing, skiing, ice skating, golf, wrestling, billiards, tennis and hockey.

Sneezing is a talent and people should not be ashamed of it.—Dr. Octavia Lewin.

Speaking of Golf records:—

Robert Coy, a Peoria golfer, claims to have set a world record by playing 450 holes of continuous golf recently. Mr. Coy did it in 39 hours. Elmer Twitchell, the holder of more golf records than any golfer still at large, today branded Mr. Coy's performance as insignificant.

"Four hundred and fifty-nine holes in 39 hours!" exclaimed Elmer. "Why I once spent 42 1/2 hours trying to sink one putt."

"I am in a class by myself as a golfer," continued Mr. Twitchell. "and all upstarts like this Peoria tyro will hear from me. The more I think of his performance the more picayune it becomes. I play six or seven hundred holes every time I get into my golf clothes, 18 on the course and the rest of 'em in the locker room past-mortems."

"Why, look at those cups on that shelf! That big and particularly useless one is for playing 27 continuous holes, no two, on the same course. Boy, that's the all time wild driving record, if I'm not mistaken!"

Elmer seemed quite pleased with himself. He pointed to another cup and declared, "There's another trophy that puts me apart from the herd."

"How did you win that?" we asked.

"I drove off the first tee one day in May and didn't come out of the woods until August. If the late James Gordon Bennett had been alive he would have sent somebody like Stanley to find me."

"What's that chafing dish beside the cup signify?" we inquired.

"Oh, that one!" replied Elmer, proudly. "I got it a few years ago. I was 11 hours 26 minutes and 14 and one-fifth seconds sinking a putt and then discovered I had putted the wrong ball! It was one of my outstanding achievements and probably will never be tied."

"That tall silver vase is an attractive trophy," we remarked.

"It'll be a long time before anybody betters the record that brought me that one," he replied. "I got it at Racebrook in 1932."

"How?"

"I lost 11 balls on the first 90 yards of a 135-yard hole," he announced, drawing himself to his full height.

"It doesn't seem possible," we remarked.

"Hell!" he replied. "I would have lost 12 if the ball hadn't hit a rock and bounded back on to the club property."

That clock on the wall is a trophy, too, is it not, Mr. Twitchell?"

"Yes, and I'd like to see that Peoria duffer tie that one."

"How did you get it?"

"I missed a hole in one at North Hills by one two feet and didn't stop talking about it for four years, nine months and 22 days!" concluded Elmer firmly.

Melting-Pot Notes From The Cosmopolitan N.H.L.

Here are a couple more "League of Nations" oddities from the melting pot of the National Hockey League:

Boston, an Irish city, frequently has a chance to cheer for an all-Irish forward line on the Bruins. Paul Haynes, a Jesuit college graduate originally destined to be a priest is at centre, Peggy O'Neil on one wing, Martin Barry on the other, Shannon is another Irishman on the Bruin line-up.

Chicago Black Hawks recently swung into action this way: Chabot (French Canadian) at goal, Burke (Irish) and Levinsky (Jewish) at defence, and March (English), Morenz (German) and Gotschlig (German descent, born in Russia) on the front line.

Went 25 Games Without Penalty

When Armand Mondou, Canadian left wing, got a two-minute penalty for high sticking against Rangers, it was his first penalty of the season in 25 games. This was not a record as Frankie Boucher and Cecil Dillon went unpenalized in the same number of National Hockey League matches.

Canadiens, Goldsworthy, the only N.H.L. player who also plays in organized professional baseball in the summer, is getting his goals regularly. He pitches for Winnipeg Maroons in the Northwestern Baseball league.

British Hockey Is Improving

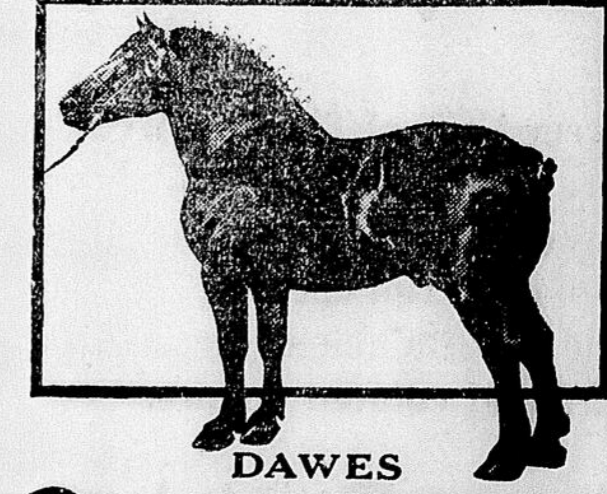

English-bred hockey players are progressing so rapidly in the Canadian game that they are capable of making it at least interesting for teams of Canadians that perform there. But players from the Dominion say the British are still some distance behind Europeans and Americans who have a better chance to play on natural ice.

Harris Turned Down A Ranger Contract

Claude Harris, Sarnia Imperial halfback, might be playing professional hockey if he wished. He turned down a contract with New York Rangers several years ago when his clubmates on the Toronto Marlboro junior team included Charlie Conacher and Harvey Jackson. Harris plays goal now for the Point Edward intermediates.

Goldsworthy Only Ball Star In N.H.L.

After being shunted here and there for several seasons, in and out of the National Hockey league, Leroy Goldsworthy seems to have definitely arrived at last with the

and BIRDSEYE CENTER!

A weekly chronicle in cartoon of doings at "the corners" that is like a letter from home to every man and woman who began life in a small town. Birdseye Center, the home of Old Archie and Pigskin Peters, is an original Star Weekly feature, drawn by Frise, The Star Weekly's Staff Cartoonist.

"VIGNETTES of LIFE"

Another half-page cartoon, in black and white, is rather more citified. Also a host of other cartoons, in black and white, drawn by famous cartoonists.

PICTURES — STORIES — NEWS

Eight pages of pictures in Rotogravure—32 pages of Stories of Romance and Adventure — Fashions — Cookery — News of the Movies—The Theatre and Radio—Interviews—Stories of Famous People—and special articles on timely subjects by Star Weekly staff writers. Eight pages of Sports and General News.
