1,000 PAY RESPECTS TO WAGNER

MONTREAL (CP) — Politicians and citizens alike paid their last respects on Monday to Senator Claude Wagner, who died last week after a long illness.

More than 1,000 people, including Prime Minister Joe Clark, attended the hour-long funeral service at St. Joseph de Bordeaux Roman Catholic church in north Montreal.

Clark, who defeated the former judge in the 1976 Progressive Conservative leadership convention, was one of the few who walked in procession through scorching heat to the church. He was accompanied by his wife, Maureen McTeer, and Ontario Premier William Davis.

Others who followed the four wreath-laden limousines and a hearse carrying Wagner's remains were 13 members of the Progressive Conservative cabinet and several other leading politicians.

They included Quebec Social Affairs Minister Denis Lazure, former Liberal ministers Marc Lalonde and Francis Fox, Senator Jean Marchand, Air Canada board chairman Bryce Mackasey, veteran NDP parliamentarian Stanley Knowles, former senator Eugene Forsey and former Quebec justice minister Jerome Choquette.

Wagner's wife, Giselle, and his 23-year-old daughter, Johanne, were escorted from the church by the late senator's sons, Richard, 21, and Christian, 18.

Wagner's body was later buried at St. Vincent de Paul cemetery in adjacent Laval. Clark and many of the dignitaries did not attend the burial.

Nicaragua's Somoza resigns

MANAGUA (AP) — Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza resigned early today, ending 42 years of dictatorship by his family, and members of Congress elected the president of their lower house, Francisco Urcuyo, to succeed him.

Urcuyo, 54, was expected to serve only until the arrival from neighboring Costa Rica of the provisional junta named by the Sandinista guerrillas who in a successful, seven-week rebellion fought Somoza's national guard to a standstill and toppled the one-time strongman.

The 53-year-old ex-president was expected to leave the country before dawn and fly to Miami, where he owns an estate and other property. The U.S. state department ordered Homestead Air Force Base near Miami sealed off

Monday night by "security personnel assigned to handle President Somoza," an Air Force spokesman in Florida reported.

The Carter administration had been urging Somoza to quit for weeks, but the state department had no immediate comment on his resignation.

Four of the five rebel junta members were waiting in San Jose, the Costa Rican capital, for Somoza's departure in hopes that they could take over without a battle for Managua.

ACCOMPANY SANDINISTAS

The foreign ministers of the Andean Pact countries — Colombia, Venezuela, Bolivia, Ecuador and Peru — arrived in San Jose on Monday night to accompany them to Managua, and Costa Rican radio stations said they would fly up by chartered plane as soon as Somoza left. But other sources said they would not come until the guerrillas secured the Managua airport.

OPEC praises energy plan

Carter to listen more

JIMMY CARTER... learned lesson?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, who says "I've learned my lesson" and will listen more to private U.S. citizens, is meeting with their representatives in the U.S. Congress for the first time since outlining his fresh agenda for energy legislation.

Democratic and Republican congressional leaders were joining Carter at a White House breakfast meeting today. Carter invited them to discuss the proposals he outlined Sunday night and in two appearances Monday.

The president's Sunday speech was forceful, clear and eloquent, Senator Alan Cranston of California, the second-ranking U.S. Senate Democrat, said Monday.

But Republican Senator S. I. Hayakawa of California said Carter's address, "like most Sunday sermons," would be forgotten in a day's time.

In a question-and-answer session with union members in Detroit on Monday, Carter acknowledged he has lost close touch with ordinary citizens.

"I've learned my lesson," he told the annual convention of the Communications Workers of America.

He declared he would spend more time listening to Americans everywhere and said that in the 1976 campaign, "I had to do that or I wouldn't have been elected."

Earlier, before the National Association of Counties in Kansas City, Mo., he declared, "We can and will regroup."

President Carter's new energy policy for the United States drew praise Monday from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries as well as from the European Common Market, the Japanese and West German governments and a Western energy planning agency.

Some foreign officials and newspapers criticized it as short on specifics and wondered whether Carter can make it work. Investors reacted negatively too, sending gold to a record $291.875 U.S. an ounce in Zurich.

In Vienna, Austria, OPEC Secretary-General Rene Ortiz declared: "We in OPEC welcome Mr. Carter's statement outlining a program to cut the U.S. consumption of oil over the next decade... We appreciate any steps taken by consuming countries which are the major importers of OPEC oil, reducing their oil consumption."

In his Sunday night television speech, Carter said excessive dependence on OPEC is "the direct cause" of long gasoline lines and one cause of inflation and unemployment in the U.S. "This intolerable dependence on foreign oil threatens our economic independence and the very security of our nation," he said.

EUROPE PLEASED

Common Market Energy Commissioner Guido Brunner said he "welcomes unreservedly" Carter's proposals to cut U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

He said in a statement issued at the Market's headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, that the measures reinforced the decisions taken at the recent Tokyo economic summit "and even go beyond them."

Brunner said he is confident the U.S. will succeed in halving oil imports by 1990 and lowering this year's imports to 8.2 million barrels a day from the 8.5 million target it set in Tokyo.

REFUGEE TRANSPORT PLANS OUTLINED

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Ron Atkey announced a major breakthrough Monday in transportation, processing and private sponsorship arrangements for Indochinese refugees.

He said arrangements have been made to use military and commercial aircraft and that the government is considering chartering a ship.

Atkey made no mention in his written statement of increasing the government-sponsored Indochinese refugee quota of 8,000.

He said only that the transportation will cover the current refugee movement plus "a substantial contingency reserve."

Atkey also announced that immigration officers have issued immigrant visas to 25 residents in Vietnam, permitting them to join relatives in Canada soon. And two Canadian visa officers arrived in Vietnam last week to begin interviewing others who want to come here under a family reunification program.

The announcements said 4,319 refugees from Vietnam, Kampuchea (Cambodia), Laos and other Southeast Asian countries have settled in Canada since the beginning of the year.

The report said three more immigration officers are on their way to Southeast Asia to help an existing staff

major breakthrough

Asian countries have settled in Canada since the beginning of the year.

The report said three more immigration officers are on their way to Southeast Asia to help an existing staff of 11 which is screening refugees in the dozens of camps in Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand, Hong Kong and the Philippines.

"There are 27 other immigration officers in Asia who can be diverted to refugee processing in an emergency and contingency arrangements have been made to send trained staff from Canada," Atkey said.

The report listed the telephone numbers of immigration offices across the country to which would-be sponsors can make inquiries, contained figures on past refugee settlement and spelled out recent developments, such as a $1 million donation by Alberta to improve refugee camps, that already have been announced.

It said 123 local groups across the country have signed contracts to sponsor 293 refugees into Canada and 265 national groups have agreed to sponsor 1,311 refugees.

Ten Southern Asian refugees are expected to arrive in Sherbrooke. See Page 3.

British to vote on hanging Thursday

LONDON (CP) — Under the shadow of Big Ben, members of Parliament will vote Thursday on the subject of capital punishment.

No one has been hanged in Britain since August, 1964, when two gallows traps slammed open about 48 kilometres apart and two milkmen died for slaying a dairy manager.

Rockslide threatens Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (CP) — U.S. government geologists warned Monday there is a serious possibility that subsurface rock movement at Niagara Falls might cause the largest rockslide in the falls modern history.

And concern over a possible rockslide forced the popular Maid of the Mist tour boats to alter their routes away from the thundering water at the bottom of the cascade.

A team of Canadian geologists was called in earlier Monday to reinspect the rock face on the Ontario side of Peter Allen was hanged in Manchester and Gwynne Evans died in Liverpool.

Today, one gallows still remains in Britain — in Wandsworth Prison, London — because Britain has never technically abandoned the death penalty.

Capital punishment is available for offences against the Treason Act, the Armed Forces Act, and the Piracy Act.

Horseshoe Falls after confirmation of rock movement on the U.S. side.

Ron Devereux, public relations director for the Niagara Parks Commission, said there is no apparent movement on the Ontario side of the falls at Table Rock.

The geologists, who inspected Table Rock in May, were called to confirm their earlier finding after one of three seismic devices at Terrapin Point, an observation area on the U.S. side, sounded an alarm Friday.

Also, under a 200-year-old act, it is possible to be executed for committing arson in Royal Navy dockyards.

But that is not what legislators will be talking about Thursday. In the forefront of their minds will be terrorist bombings in Britain in recent years as well as increasing raids on banks, post offices and armored cars.

In Britain, until 1957, the penalty for all types of murder was death by hanging. Then the law was changed to distinguish between capital and non-capital murder.

Capital punishment was suspended for a five-year trial period in 1965. In December, 1969, continued abolition was approved.

The last hangings, in 1964 came within a gentler age. Terrorists such as Carlos the Jackal were still in school. The new upsurge of Irish terrorism was four years in the future. Armed robbery was a rare offence.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, in an election promise, vowed to give the Commons "an early opportunity for a free vote" on the issue of capital punishment.

Obituary

ARCHIE R. SHERRER
of Dunham

Archie Sherrer passed away at the BMP Hospital, Cowansville, Que., on May 24, 1979, after a few months of failing health.

Last summer he was able to take two trips with the Golden Age Group from Abercorn, one to Niagara Falls and one to Cape Breton Island and Nova Scotia.

He was born at what was then called North Pinnacle, near the Abercorn border, on Nov. 1, 1894, the fifth son of the late Patrick Sherrer and his wife, Florence Laplante.

On March 13, 1917, he married Lillian Winnifred Johnson, who predeceased him on April 24, 1970.

The funeral service took place at Grace Church, Sutton, on Sunday, May 27, with interment in Fairmount Cemetery, Sutton.

He leaves to mourn, his seven children, Oscar, with whom he had made his home for the past few years, Archena (Mrs. G. Chalfoux), Eric of Dunham and his wife Ruby Shonyo, Dwight of Port Burwell, Ont., Carlton and his wife Lois Roy of Sutton, Norma and her husband Kenneth Gibson of Stanbridge Station, and Beverly and her husband Dorson Johnston of Bromes; 22 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren; a brother Eustace and two sisters, Cora Lang, St. Albans Bay, Vt., and Claudia and her husband Dale Sargent, Longueuil, Que., three brothers-in-law and four sisters-in-law, Nellie, Mrs. DeForest Sherrer, St. Lambert, Ethel, Mrs. Hugh Strange, North Brookfield, Mass., Howard Johnson and his wife Edna of Dunham; Helen and her husband Percy Ling and Leland Sanford, all of Knowlton, and several nieces and nephews.

Bearers were six grandsons, Rolland, Leslie, Roger and Michael Sherrer, Terry Johnston and Stanley Gibson.

Relatives and friends were present from Vermont, Ontario and the surrounding area.

WI Meeting

BURY (NR) — The July meeting of the Bury Women's Institute was held in the Bury Town Hall on the regular date with ten members and one visitor present.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner with the president, Mrs. Susan Renaud presiding. The motto was: "Nature, time and patience are the three great physicians."

A report of a County Executive meeting was read by the secretary.

Monetary donations were given in place of the hand bags.

Articles for the Cookshire Fish Pond and buttons for the guessing contest are to be taken to Muriel Fitzsimmons in time for the Fair. Several members agreed to help at the Fair on Saturday afternoon.

Plans to cater to the Kirkpatrick Re-union were discussed and also for a food sale at the Farmers' Market, a tentative date for this was set for August 25.

The Roll Call was: "Name a Canadian Weed and tell something it can be used for."

Visitors will be invited to the September meeting which will be held in the Town Hall, with all members as hostesses.

A scrambled word contest was held with Mrs. Alma Pehlemann, Serena Wintle and Nina Rowell winning prizes. Lillian Coates won a prize in a guessing contest.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Sydney Wintle, Mrs. Irene Matheson and Mrs. Serena Wintle and a social time enjoyed.

Workers paid more 1977 dues, report says

OTTAWA (CP) — Organized workers paid more than twice as much in dues to international unions in 1977 than they got back in strike funds and other benefits, a government report shows.

Statistics released Monday indicate workers paid $198.4 million in union dues in 1977. Of this, $75.3 million was sent to international headquarters and $29.9 million returned to this country as strike benefits, pensions, welfare benefits and salaries and wages for Canadian staff.

The report covered all 179 unions and 2.8 million organized workers in the country. There are more than 12,000 union locals.

In 1977, 32.6 per cent of the labor force was unionized compared with 32.2 per cent the previous year.

Although slightly more than half of all union members belonged to internationally-affiliated organizations, this proportion was dropping. It fell to 53.6 per cent from a 1976 level of 54.4 per cent.

At the same time, national unions reported a 3.7-per-cent increase in membership and government unions reported their ranks rose by 3.1 per cent.

The most dramatic growth was reported by the largest union in the country, the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

Large dinosaur bone found

PROVO, Utah (AP) — A Brigham Young University paleontologist who dreamed about finding dinosaurs as a boy has found what he thinks is the world's largest dinosaur — he calls it an ultrasaurus.

James Jensen said Monday that a dinosaur shoulder blade he unearthed recently in a Colorado mesa measures three metres in length, indicating the creature was approximately 20 metres tall.

The ultrasaurus will keep its nickname until it can be classified and christened with a formal scientific name. But it may take years to dig out all of its fossilized remains.

Jensen added that he found the fossilized bone near Delta, Colo., 20 metres from where he unearthed a previous record-breaking bone, also a shoulder blade, in 1972.

Loto Canada wins support

OTTAWA (CP) — Opponents of government efforts to drop the national lottery have picked up some superheavyweight support.

Marc Cardinal, a six-foot-six, 300-pound weightlifter, called on Prime Minister Clark on Monday to hold onto Loto Canada to make sure amateur sports gets the money it needs to keep improving in world competition.

The 23-year-old medical student, who won gold and silver medals in superheavyweight weightlifting at the Commonwealth and Pan-American Games in the last two years, made his pitch in an open letter to the prime minister.

It was released the day before two provincial ministers are to meet Sport Minister Steve Paproski to discuss federal withdrawal from lotteries, an election campaign promise.

Gold close to $300 US

LONDON (AP) — Gold hit a record $297.125 (U.S.) an ounce today, and there was speculation it would leap the $300 hurdle soon. The U.S. dollar continued to take a beating amid skepticism over whether President Carter will be able to implement his energy policies.

The gold record was set in London. It was up $4.25 from the previous all-time mark of $292.875 recorded in Zurich at the close of trading Monday. Gold finished the day in London Monday at $292.75.

In Zurich, gold opened trading at $296.875 an ounce today, up $4 from the close Monday. Gold is a traditional hedge in times of monetary uncertainty, and the mounting price reflected concern over the twin problems of inflation and recession.

In Tokyo, the U.S. dollar finished the day at 216.80 Japanese yen, down from 217.70 at Monday's close.

QPF recovers stolen money

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec provincial police officers lost a speeding car they were chasing Monday night, but recovered $25,000 stolen during a June 5 robbery at the main post office here.

Police said a sack containing $100, $50 and $20 bills was tossed from a car being pursued by police for a speeding offence.

The money was from $234,000 taken by four armed men who broke into the home of a post office supervisor. The official was forced to let two of the men into the registered mail section of the post office while his wife and daughter were held hostage by the other two.

Last month, police recovered $8,000 and arrested two men in connection with the robbery.

Vietnamese refugee gives birth

TORONTO (CP) — A diminutive Vietnamese refugee bride who landed in Toronto Sunday night became a mother early Monday, hours after she ended a 24-hour trip from Malaysia.

Kim Chi Tran was brought to St. Michael's hospital by her new Greek-Canadian landlord, where she bore her first child, a five-pound, four-ounce son.

Mrs. Tran and her husband, Tam Lam, both in their early 20s, were among eight refugees, including Lam's 19-year-old brother, who arrived together. The other family of five were taken to separate furnished apartments in the city.

Members of the welcoming committee, part of 24 members of Our Lady of Assumption Roman Catholic Church who are sponsoring the families, said they hadn't noticed Mrs. Tran's condition because of her size.

"She couldn't speak to us," said Pat Houston. "We had no idea she was starting labor pains."

Trudeau returns from vacation

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Former prime minister Pierre Trudeau and his three sons ended a Maritime vacation Monday when they boarded a private rail car here for a trip back to Ottawa.

Trudeau, who arrived here from Halifax on Sunday for a visit at the nearby summer home of former fisheries minister Romeo LeBlanc, refused to give interviews as he avoided public areas of the rail terminal.

The Opposition Leader signed a few autographs and his children — Michel, 3, Sasha, 5, and Justin, 7 — posed for pictures and chatted with people who gathered around the car.

The Trudeaus travelled on a car normally used by Canadian National president Dr. Robert Bandeen. It contains three bedrooms, an observation room and dining room.

727 pound man dies

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — One-half of the world's heaviest set of twins was killed by a blood clot that entered his heart, an official for a local museum says.

Billy McGuire, 32, died in hospital Saturday after being admitted for respiratory trouble. He was in town with his 727-pound twin brother, Benny, doing promotional work for Ripley's Believe It or Not Museum.

Ed Golubienko, assistant manager for the museum, said McGuire's body would probably be flown to Henderson, N.C., his home town, today.

Benny said his brother's respiratory problems started after a July 1 fall from a motorcycle, ridden as part of the twins' promotion work for the museum. In the fall, Billy's weight damaged his kidneys, liver, lungs and heart, all of which were of normal size.

Council: pork prices will drop

EDMONTON (CP) — The Canadian Pork Council had good news for consumers Monday — pork prices will continue to drop and the council wants to save them from disease.

Some council members, representing provincial hog producer organizations, expressed concern that prices will fall as production soars. Production is growing as more farmers get into the hog business.

Howard Malcolm, chairman of the Ontario pork producers marketing board, said his board is concerned about the possibility of over-production. So far this year, 2,300 to 2,500 new producers have registered with the board.

the delegates who responded said yes, 12.5 per cent said no and nine per cent said they were not sure.

The questionnaire was made available to all of the approximately 3,300 delegates. Carter addressed the convention Monday. There were 144 responses.

Asked if they thought the president's proposals will help improve the U.S. economy, 62.6 per cent said yes, 23.9 per cent said no and 13.3 per cent said they were not sure.

Americans, mentioned virtually every source of energy except nuclear power.

An Associated Press roll of delegates to the National Association of Counties convention indicated a majority believe President Carter's new energy policies will lead the United States away from foreign oil dependence and combat inflation.

Asked in an AP questionnaire whether they believe the initiatives Carter proposed Sunday will help solve U.S. energy problems, 78.4 per cent of working for AECL, he saw improper welding of reactor vessels, dangerous corner-cutting to save money on weld x-rays and lax inspections by company inspectors.

In one instance, he said, he was appalled by x-rays done by a company for AECL.

GOT TWO IMAGES

"I'd never seen a film of a plate like this before. They'd used a double-wall technique — you get images of two surfaces of a vessel. It's as if two of us went to get a chest x-ray and we stood pressed right against each other."

Newby insisted that the x-rays be redone using a singlewall technique. He said a crack was then found in the casting.

Nuclear energy received a vote of confidence on Monday from President Carter, reassuring an industry that feared the administration had decided to ignore atomic power in the wake of the Three Mile Island accident.

"Nuclear power must play an important role in the United States to insure our energy future," Carter said in Kansas City.

The comment came a day after Carter, in his major energy address to

Lax controls could hide defects

TORONTO (CP) — A former inspector with Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL) says that faulty welds in Canadian nuclear reactors could remain undetected because of poor quality control by the federal agency.

George Newby said that because of sloppy inspection techniques, the agency was unable to detect whether welds were bad. A faulty weld could cause a serious accident at a nuclear reactor.

The agency provides nuclear designs and consultants for some Canadian utilities and it sells the Candu reactor abroad.

Newby said in a recent interview that while he was

Police strike vote called in NB

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Amid charges their right to strike is being stolen, police take a strike vote today after city council rejected the latest contract offer that the union said was less than one made earlier.

The city's rejection of the offer helped negotiations break down Monday between the Canadian Union of Public Employees local that represents the police, and representatives of this city of 85,000.

Wages for police and inside workers were still the outstanding issue in negotiations, after city council left the question open after debate on the subject Monday.

However, the city council did back off one issue it had been insisting on when it said police and other civic workers need not live within city limits.

That demand has caused heated debate on both sides of the dispute.

Earlier, the police union president, Gerald Shannon, charged that the New Brunswick Cities Association was conspiring to remove from the province's municipal police their right to strike.

Shannon said the association was trying to provoke police into walkouts in order to muster public antagonism against police unions, making it easier for the province to take away strike rights.

Loto ticket forger fined

TORONTO (CP) — "I was dumb, a fool and I'm not buying another lottery ticket in my life," Edward Palait said after he was fined $100 in provincial court Monday for forging Loto Canada tickets.

Palait, 70, pleading guilty of forging the lottery tickets after spending $22,000 — his life savings — during the last three years on losing lottery tickets. He was given three months to pay his fine.

"I had 2,000 tickets last July and not one of the damn things was a winner," Palait said in an interview outside the courtroom. "After I got caught, I stopped buying."

Moose-vehicle collisions studied

QUEBEC (CP) — Scores of moose are involved every year in collisions with automobiles in Quebec's provincial parks and the tourism department concludes it's mainly because of the salt.

The department says the mammals are attracted to the shoulders of highways in provincial parks because of the presence of road salt used to melt snow in the winter.

The salt often turns roadside pools of water into brine which the moose adore. In addition, the animals are attracted to the roads by the warmth of the pavement.

Asbestos takeover fight: Opposing sides deadlocked

MONTREAL (CP) — The dispute between the Parti Quebecois and Asbestos Corp. Ltd. over a state takeover of the company's $105 million in Quebec assets has turned into a legal dogfight.

Before June 22, there was a deadlock in talks for a state purchase of the 54.6-per-cent majority shareholding by the American multinational, General Dynamics Inc.

But that day, the Quebec government passed a law to expropriate the assets of Asbestos Corp. The company filed a suit challenging the constitutionality of the law and obtained an injunction barring expropriation until July 6.

On Monday, the government and the company appeared at loggerheads.

The company says it needs an injunction barring expropriation until the constitutional case is dealt with, which could take two years. It would, however, accept a government promise not to issue an expropriation notice unless the courts rule the law constitutional.

The government says the law must be presumed constitutional unless the courts declare it invalid. Injunctions cannot be issued against the Crown, represented by the provincial cabinet, the government says.

GIVEN PROMISE

Justice department lawyers have promised that the cabinet will not issue an expropriation notice before the end of the hearing on Thursday.

Michel Decary, associate deputy justice minister, said Monday he would not force the constitutional debate.

Now, three days separate the company from possible expropriation minutes after the 5:00 p.m. EDT deadline on Thursday.

Meanwhile, the company has presented evidence designed to show that if its Quebec assets — mines, mills, shipping centres and a highly-developed world marketing organization — were expropriated, the company would be irreparably disrupted.

Decary has argued that a government agency, the Societe Nationale de l'Amiante, could run the new company as usual. No contracts or commitments would be broken.

Wayne Wells, General Dynamics vice-president and treasurer, introduced on Monday the issue of health claims against the asbestos companies by victims of the lung disease, asbestosis.

The American company had negotiated favorable terms for insurance policies protecting Asbestos Corp. in 50 to 100 courts actions pending in the U.S.

An expropriation could disrupt these arrangements and the company would be unable to renegotiate 1979 terms later because of nervousness among brokers and insurance firms about the health issue, Wells said.

A benefit auction on Sunday, July 22, will raise money to repair damages done to St. Paul's Church at St. Felix de Kingsey. It was vandalized a month ago.

Auction proceeds to aid church repair

ST. FELIX DE KINGSEY (BVS) — It wasn't long — only a day or two — after auctioneer James Todd read in The Record about St. Paul's Anglican Church being vandalized before he called warden Nelson Mastine to volunteer his services for a benefit auction.

That was a month ago. Since then the Mastine family has been working to organize an auction for Sunday, July 22. Money raised will go towards repairing the church. One pew and the ends of several pews had been ripped out; windows, altar railings and the baptismal font had been broken. Some windows have already been replaced and funds raised will go towards putting shutters over the windows and repairing the other damages.

St. Paul's is used annually for a harvest service as well as for special occasions. Following the auction at about 3:30 p.m., Rev. R. McCulloch will hold an Evensong Service in the church.

Auctioneer James Todd lives in Bedford now, but originally came from the Richmond-Melbourne area which is nearby. He will get things underway at 1 p.m. on the church grounds but everyone is invited to come earlier and bring a picnic lunch. If it rains, organizers plan to use a large tent.

Anyone with anything to donate to the auction can call Mr. Mastine at 848-2538. He's ready to pick things up, or you can bring them to the church grounds between 10 and 11 a.m. that day.

Organizers already have some antiques, maple syrup, hand-made whiffle trees and yokes, and posters of the church. Anything is welcome.

To get there, take Route 243 north through Richmond's main street and stay on the same route number right to the church. Near St. Paul's it turns left on to a gravel road. The route is well marked and there will be signs.

Yamaska cleanup

Farnham wants pact honored

FARNHAM (MC) — Mayor Gilles Desrosiers has called for the provincial government to honor an agreement to clean up the Yamaska River in the wake of the tenth contamination of the river in the past six years.

Desrosiers, fed up with the continuing pollution of the river, said Monday night that he has appealed to five neighboring mayors to pressure the government to build water-purification plants promised in 1977 for the communities along the river.

The 7,000 residents of Farnham were warned last week not to drink tap water after 3,000 gallons of a latex chemical were accidentally dumped into the river by a carpet factory, turning the water milky white.

Environment officials have since declared the water safe to drink.

Desrosiers said the river has been contaminated at least 10 times in the past six years and that municipipalities taking their drinking water from the Yamaska have complained for 10 years to the government about pollution.

None of the municipalities has sewage-treatment facilities and raw, untreated industrial wastes routinely drain into the river along with agricultural pesticides, the mayor said.

In 1977, the Quebec government signed an agreement with the Yamaska River municipalities to pay for 90 per cent of the cost of building a series of water-treatment plants at an estimated cost of $100 million. The municipalities involved were Farnham, Granby, St. Hyacinthe, Cowansville, Waterloo and Acton Vale.

Since the signing, there has been no move to construct the plants, Desrosiers said.

The latest spill was the third major disaster for the Yamaska within six weeks. Granby officials caused a mammoth fish kill polluting Farnham water in early June, when they deliberately lowered the level of Granby Pond to allow a factory to repair an intake pipe. The West Brome train derailment June 21 leaked a tank car load of ethyl hexanol into the river, polluting Cowansville water supplies and triggering a second fish kill. The two kills, one on each of the Yamaska's major forks left few fish to be affected by this latest incident.

Latex is a non-toxic, liquid form of rubber. While it could not directly poison either fish or people, the scum it forms can reduce oxygen levels in the water, suffocating fish, whose corpses would in turn create pollution problems. Latex can also clog pipes if sucked up in sufficient quantities. However, it is water soluble. "Cowansville opens their reservoir for use to let extra water wash it away," said Farnham Secretary-Treasurer J.B. Luneau, "and then the rains Sunday night helped to disperse it."

The effect was the same as when one washes brushes and trays under the tap after using latex based house paint.

Gilles Chevrier of Environment Quebec speculated that after leaving the Farnham vicinity with the current, the latex would cause no further problems. "Maybe for Masséville," he said, a small community without a filtration plant. St. Hyacinthe and St. Joseph are protected by filtration, however. Late Monday, the heaviest latex concentration had reached St. Césaire and had already been diluted to near invisibility.

According to Gilles Benjamin, Coronet Carpets director of Production the spill resulted from, "just a valve opened by mistake," sometime Thursday. The new latex was not waste, and was to be used in making rubberized carpet padding. Losing the 3,000 gallons cost the company some $20,000, Benjamin estimated. "When we discovered the mistake around eight o'clock Thursday night," he said, "we could do nothing. The tank was already empty. We cleaned out the hole and worked very hard trying to clean the river." While the latex remained floating on the surface a special truck attempted to siphon it up. Later, the company concentrated on diluting what was left.

Coronet Carpet manufacturing plans are not disrupted because the Farnham plant is in the midst of their annual two-week summer shutdown. Maintenance and repair crews have been at work, and one apparently mistook the latex for stored waste water or confused one valve with another.

Ten refugees to arrive

SHERBROOKE (FJM) — Ten Cambodian and Laotian refugees who arrived in Montreal with 50 others last Friday should be arriving in Sherbrooke today or tomorrow.

The refugees have come from camps in Thailand and went through immigration in Toronto before being sent to Montreal.

Six Vietnamese refugees arrived in Sherbrooke by bus from Montreal on November 29, 1978, and these were followed on December 1 by 31 more Vietnamese. Both groups had left the same Vietnamese town on a boat called the Hai Hong.

The refugees are being given financial aid by the federal government and will be helped to find work and a place to live. Since none of them speak anything other than their native language the first thing they will have to do is learn to speak French.

The Centre d'Orientation et de Formation des Immigrants (COFI) will offer French courses to the refugees and try to facilitate their integration into Quebec society in other ways.

Since only a small number of refugees are expected to arrive today COFI may decide to wait until further refugees arrive before starting the next session of courses.

Knowlton girl killed as car strikes bike

COWANSVILLE (JM) — Quebec Police report Barbara Armstrong, 19, of Knowlton, was dead on arrival at the BMP Hospital Sunday night following a collision between a motorcycle and an automobile on Route 243 near Bud's Snack Bar in West Bolton.

The duty corporal said Miss Armstrong was a passenger on a motorcycle operated by Osborne "Ozzie" Stone, 26, of RRI Brome, when his vehicle, contacted an automobile driven by Tudor Johnston, 42, of Knowlton. The corporal said he was unable to provide further details of the circumstances pending completion of the accident report. He confirmed Stone was taken to the BMP for treatment of minor injuries and none of the passengers in Mr. Johnston's car were injured. Constable Claude Marchand is in charge of the investigation.

Dixville Home news

DIXVILLE (LA) — The Foundation Board of the Dixville Home met recently in the Administration Building. Discussion concerned the successful annual meeting on May 25 in Sherbrooke and a committee was chosen to arrange a similar affair for next spring. Plans were made to increase the membership of the foundation in order to acquaint more people with the objectives of the Home and to involve a greater number with a wealth of ideas in its projects. Muriel Wilson of Lennoxville and Mayor Gaston Jeanmarie of Dixville were appointed to the executive committee.

Wayne Little detailed a report on completed and anticipated trip by the residents who otherwise would have little opportunity to leave the Dixville environment during the summer. Different young people are selected for these outings except for those taking part in the special Olympics. Three of the Home residents will be among the twenty-one handicapped from Quebec competing in the International Olympics in Brookport, N.Y., an event that has generated glee and interest among the residents and staff of the institution.

Paul Bourtault told the Board of the events that led to the entry in the Canadian Special Olympics in Montreal on June 15-17. His enthusiasm was contagious and the money necessary for the trip to Brookport on August 10-12 was cheerfully given.

The regular Dixville Home operating budget does not allow for expenditures for these extra trips which benefit the residents in using acquired skills and in gaining in life experiences. The staff accompanying the residents receive their regular wages but pay for their own meals and provide occasional transportation at a minimal price. Some of the residents are able to pay some of the costs but most need help if they are to participate. Financial assistance is required for them.

Townships talk

Brigham store held up

BRIGHAM (JM) — A lone armed man held up the J.L. Samson general store here Friday at approximately 6:30 p.m. He dashed into the store brandishing a weapon and fled with an undisclosed amount from the cash register.

No shots were fired and nobody was injured, but Cowansville QPF launched operation 100 about 10 minutes later, seeking a man driving a brown vehicle. The vehicle had not been recovered by 8 p.m. when the operation was abandoned.

Members of the QPF armed robbery squad are continuing the investigation.

SCSC summer program registration

SHERBROOKE (SM) — Local youngsters will be able to frolic in the sun soon as Sherbrooke Catholic School Commission's recreation department opens its summer program of outdoor courses.

Children 7 to 12 years old are eligible for an action-packed program of canoeing, gymnastics, or hill climbing but parents are urged to register them as soon as possible, since these activities will be beginning early.

For further information and registration, contact Jacques Paquette at the Recreation Department at 565-3097.

Tax evaders must make amends

SHERBROOKE (SM) — Roland Thibeault, a cesspool contractor from Ste. Cecile de Milton, and Real Poulin, a Granby resident, have until the end of this week to make amends with the Quebec Ministry of Revenue.

Thibeault and his company, Roland Thibeault Inc., was found guilty last week of tax evasion. Thibeault was accused of avoiding paying about $11,000 on some $60,000 in undeclared revenues.

Poulin was found guilty of avoiding taxes of $11,700 on revenues of $55,700.

In enforcing article 239 (1) (d) of the revenue tax laws, Judge Guy Genest ordered both men to pay the back-taxes with a supplementary 25 per cent fine, within 15 days as well as court fines of $7,100 or face several months each in jail.

Fort Chambly to be discussed

QUEBEC — Patrice Dionne, director for Parks Canada, Quebec Region, announced recently that a series of meetings will be held from July 17 to 24 in Chambly to exchange ideas on the Development concept of Fort Chambly National Historic Park with local people and some fifteen groups interested in the conservation of our Canadian heritage.

In 1976 Parks Canada was given the mandate to protect and develop Fort Chambly. During the last 3 years a group of researchers has undertaken a series of studies on numerous aspects of the site's 300 years of history.

SPACE RESEARCH

He said the department is aware that Space Research is under investigation but added that it is up to the courts to decide about criminal activity.

FEELING SQUEEZE

The official who wanted his name withheld said the company is feeling a financial squeeze. He said banks become less willing than usual to lend money when a company is under investigation. The company was reorganizing and was asking government help.

He said Space Research is a major supplier for the defence department and the government wants to be sure it can live up to its commitments, both at home and abroad. The government would always make sure Space Research obeyed the law.

The armed forces buys a training shell it helped Space Research develop. In the last fiscal year the government spent $4 million on the training shells plus $1.5 million in research and development at Space Research. It bought another $500,000 in training shells this year.

A defence spokesman said Space Research is valuable to the military, if only because it is one of the few Canadian companies that do ammunition research and development and has rights to shells that Canada wants to use.

Inconspicuous Trudeau to announce shadow cabinet

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pierre Trudeau, who has remained inconspicuous since the May 22 election, surfaces Thursday to name the MPs he hopes will become his party's stars in the next session of Parliament.

Party sources say the Opposition leader's so-called shadow cabinet includes the only three MPs elected from Western Canada and a group of more veteran MPs from Ontario who never served in cabinet but comprised the so-called second string of Liberal talent in the last Parliament.

The shadow cabinet also will include former ministers from Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes who survived the federal election and possibly two former ministers from more bygone days — Jean-Luc Pepin and Herb Gray.

The three western Canadians are rookies.

"They're all bright and will play a leading role in the next session of Parliament," confided a leading Liberal. "They had to be bright to be elected in Western Canada."

The three are: Lloyd Axworthy from Winnipeg-Fort Garry, Robert Bockstael from Winnipeg St. Boniface and Arthur Phillips from Vancouver-Centre.

Axworthy is rumored to be getting the job of monitoring the wheat board. All three are expected to share responsibilities as spokesmen on transport and agriculture as they affect the West.

Phillips and Axworthy are touted as possible replacements for Trudeau, should he resign, and could enhance their chances by vigorously attacking the Progressive Conservative government during the daily Commons question period.

Official Opposition critics often get as much, if not more, exposure from the national news media as the ministers they battle.

Top party spokesmen say the new Liberal stars from Ontario will include Mark MacGuigan (Windsor-Walkerville), Robert Kaplan (Toronto-York Centre) and Jim Fleming (Toronto-York West).

MacGuigan, knowledgeable on constitutional affairs, is expected to become the justice or federal-provincial relations affairs critic.

Kaplan, former chairman of the Commons finance committee, is expected to receive duties in the financial or trade sectors.

As back-benchers since 1968 or 1972, they have performed impressively in parliamentary committees and in their ridings but have been relatively mute in the Commons, where national reputations are spawned.

A good back-bencher does not pose embarrassing questions in the Commons if his or her party forms the government. A freer rein is given to members of an opposition party.

Thus, some of the previous thorns of the Liberal party could suddenly bloom as roses.

"The party discipline will not be so rigid," said Ursula Appolloni, member for Toronto-York Southwest, who did not always agree with the former government's policies on pensions, employment and immigration.

Mrs. Appolloni said it's a relief to be in opposition.

"I'm not intimidated by it; I'm looking forward to it," Serge Joyal of Montreal-Hochelaga-Maisonneuve and Jean-Robert Gauthier of Ottawa-Vanier, two ardent crusaders for French-Canadian language rights, now will be able to speak out more strongly on what they feel is a reluctance by Parliament to provide equality for the two official languages.

Gray, a former consumer and corporate affairs minister, who has assumed the role of the party conscience, said being in opposition will not change his public profile.

"I always felt free on the government side," Gray said. "Other people from the Liberal caucus will feel a lot freer on the other side."

For the first time, some Liberal veterans "will have a chance to make a mark in Parliament," he said.

Matter of time

Sunday was a windy day on Lake Memphremagog; toward the end of the afternoon a 25-mph breeze was kicking up three-foot waves and cleared all but the heavy-weather lovers off the water.

Heading into Sargent's Bay, we spotted an odd sight. A 12-foot aluminum cartop boat was attempting to tow a 28-foot cabin cruiser out into the main lake. They weren't having much success; as we watched, the towrope wound around the prop of the outboard, stopping the convoy dead in the water.

We closed in for a look. The fellow in the cartopper jumped into the water without a lifejacket to clear the prop and was having problems just hanging on. The crowd in the big boat hollered contradictory instructions at him, and as we drew close, we saw the whole crew was very drunk. Falling down drunk. Hanging over the rail drunk. The fellow in the bigger boat doing most of the shouting jumped into the dinghy, landing on top of the other occupant and nearly flipping the boat. Then he began tossing beer bottles out of the bottom. We counted at least a dozen. What followed would have been hilarious if it hadn't been so dangerous; they nearly dropped the outboard into the water as they removed the towrope knotted around its prop, and by the time they had it going again, both boats were in the shadow of the cliffs.

We hailed them to say there were four-foot swells running in the main lake and asked them where they were going. They said Magog, 15 miles downwind. We suggested they would be better advised to tie their boat up in Sargent's Bay until they could repair the engine. They yelled insults and curses back at us, so we shrugged and left them to sink or swim, half expecting to see their names in our Monday fatalities list.

It's hard to believe, but this isn't an isolated incident. Every weekend, Townships lakes are filled with water craft of all descriptions, many of them overlaid with people who have less knowledge of, or respect for the water, than the average cat. Sailboats, motorboats, canoes and kayaks jam harbor entrances, jockeying with one another and with swimmers on rubber rafts for the available space. Children piloting high-powered craft blast through the crowds as their parents look on indulgently.

We shake our heads in dismay at something like the capsizing of the tour boat at Man and His World, but how many local boaters even know there are rules of the road and Ministry of Transport safety regulations?

Our Stanstead Journal confrere Lloyd Bliss offered some very astute observations on the eventual consequences of the lack of any patrol boats in the Canadian part of Lake Memphremagog, and we can only echo what he says in all Quebec lakes. If law and order cannot be restored with the establishment of Quebec Police Force or RCMP patrol boats, tragedies are just looking for places and times to happen. And they could happen to any of us.

Letters

Editor:

In view of the fact that 1979 is designated as "The Year of the Child" and the interest of the Press in this Project, we thought the enclosed article might be of interest to your many readers.

The Baden Powell Chapter IODE, Quebec City, sponsors a Public Speaking Contest for Grade 6 Students each year. The winning speech this year portrays a child's approach to a subject of interest to everyone in this Province.

ISABEL C. NESBITT,
Education Secretary,
Baden Powell Chapter,
IODE

This is International Year of the Child and therefore, I would like to discuss with you a problem that we children face here in Quebec. Ever since I moved to Quebec I have observed a great bitterness between the French and English. This problem has been going on for many, many years. Why? I don't really know, do you? Is it because of the different languages? Or could it be our different cultures? Is there really any difference between a 12-year-old French child and a 12-year-old English child? Why is there so much misunderstanding between the two?

I can find no reason for this. In many cases our problem begins at home. The English parents will put down the French and the French parents will put down the English. While they're talking we're listening. The next day we go to school and put this talk into action. So we are also a part of this problem. I know no one is perfect but if just one of us could stop and think about what we are doing and saying, it would be one step up the ladder of understanding and accepting people as they are.

I belong to a bilingual Scout Troop and we all work and play together. We have no problems there. I have been playing hockey for the past five years and there have always been French and English boys on the team and we didn't fight with each other. We had one goal in mind and we worked toward that together — just as the Montreal Canadiens do. Does Steve Shutt not pass the puck to Guy Lafleur because he is French or does Serge Savard keep the puck from Larry Robinson because he is English.

Of course not! Then why can't we do the same at school and at play time. Each child wants to be taught in his own language but why is there such a division between the French and English? Why do we have to have recess at different times? Why can't we play basketball and floor hockey together? Why won't the teachers encourage us to mix together and solve this problem.

We sit back here in Canada and criticize other countries like Ireland, with its war between the Catholics and the Protestants, and the United States, with the blacks and whites constantly battling. I think it is time we took a good look in our own backyard. We are no better because we fight with the French and the French fight with us.

Our elders are trying to solve this problem but I don't think they are trying hard enough. If we, as children, start working now and try to do something positive, we might be able to move toward a better tomorrow for the next generation.

Will you help? Will you start today to make tomorrow brighter? We are all children — no one better than the other. I'm English and proud of my heritage as I am sure the French are proud of theirs. This is no reason to carry on a daily battle. Therefore, why can't we try to understand and learn from each other.

So let's have no more French Toast and English Muffins — just "Salut mes amis."

Rotary Club feedback

Editor:

I have just received my copy of your issue of July 12/79 and hasten to say that I am quite exercised by the writings on pages 1 and 5, concerning "Rotary Club Changeover". Both pages quoted "Gordon Loomis became the new District Governor for the Rotary Club of Sherbrooke".

While it is true that Dr. Loomis is a past president of the Sherbrooke Club, I think your readers should know that the above quote is incorrect and inadequate to cover the circumstances of his becoming District Governor.

Rotary International is a vast organization of over 1800 clubs in 152 countries and geographical regions. These clubs are divided world-wide into 375 districts with a total of about 845,000 members at this date.

The Rotary Club of Sherbrooke is in an international district numbered 785, comprised of 35 clubs — 32 of which are spaced in the northern half of Vermont and New Hampshire, and three are in this part of Quebec.

Our new District Governor — to hold office for one year — was elected a month ago at the Rotary International Convention in Rome, Italy. He has the direct supervision of the 35 clubs in our district (which necessitates visits to each club), and it is his duty to further the objects of Rotary International, to supervise the organization of clubs, and promote cordial relations between clubs in the District and between the clubs and Rotary International. He presides at all District functions, assemblies, institutes and conferences. He is a member of all District committees. The District Governor is the only recognized administrative officer of Rotary International in the operation of his District.

The office is a very demanding one and it is a high honor for any Rotary Club to have one of its members elected as District Governor.

With further reference to the article on page 5 of yesterday's Record: The outgoing District Governor was Richard L. "Pete" Perry of East Middlebury, Vermont — not Pete Perry.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Response to column on document deterioration good

WASHINGTON — Our recent column on the alarming state of decay and deterioration of priceless American historical documents at the National Archives generated an outpouring of letters from outraged readers to Archivist John Rhoads.

The response was swift and productive. Archives officials ordered some of the cluttered shelves and floors tidied up. They installed four new hydrothermograph machines to monitor temperature and humidity in an annex where some of the precious documents are kept. They began a crash program to lick the problem of deteriorating nitrate film; they also initiated security measures to keep unauthorized persons away from items that might tempt the sticky-fingered.

They even managed to locate a rare document signed by Karl Marx that we reported had been missing for 10 years. (It was found behind a shelf, two days after our story appeared.) Still missing, though, are some wartime telegrams of President Lincoln. In a meeting with us, Rhoads admitted that Archives officials hadn't even known they were lost until they read our column.

But Rhoads insisted that we had wrongfully assailed his stewardship of our national heritage. He and his top assistants gave us a Cook's tour of their domain to convince us we had treated them badly. Despite the hasty, gratifying cleanup campaign, however, we remain unconvinced.

For example, Rhoads and his top brass conceded that there is a "major preservation problem" at Archives. They merely argued that their inability to solve it can be blamed on lack of money provided by their parent agency, the General Services Administration.

Rhoads pointed proudly to the fact that in his 10 years as Archivist he has been able to angle $11 million out of GSA for preservation — a far cry from the $200,000 a year the agency was spending on preservation when he took over.

We agree that getting money has been a big problem for the Archives. But we must point out that Rhoads knew the magnitude of the preservation work needed — on deteriorating maps, treaties and papers of the Continental Congress — from an internal study he ordered back in 1969. Yet he asked for only $1.5 million for a five-year period.

It would cost more than that just to neutralize the acid that is eating away at the Continental Congress papers, whose bindings are also falling apart. If Rhoads had publicized his problem 10 years ago, he might have raised the needed funds.

A more fundamental problem is determining just how Archives handles the money it does get. We have learned that much of the agency's appropriated funds is spent in highly questionable ways.

There is, for instance, the private "trust fund" that Archives operates. Its main function is to reproduce records and sell them to the public; it was intended to be largely self-supporting. But we have learned that public funds appropriated for preservation work are regularly diverted into the trust fund as "reimbursement" for manpower and support costs. Although the fund's operation — with 200 employees and a $6 million revolving kitty — is almost as big as Archives' total budget of $10 million, the fund's private employees are often paid out of appropriated funds.

Then the trust fund, according to information we have received, is used to pay for such frivolities as cocktail parties, on which it is illegal to spend public funds. Government auditors are now trying to determine whether a cache of expensive booze discovered in the office of one former official came from the trust fund.

We have learned also that as much as one-fourth of the money shown on Archives' books as having been spent on preservation may instead have gone for such boondoggles as bureaucratic featherbedding by ambitious Archives empire builders.

For example, the educational arm of Archives, which used to be run by one special assistant and three or four aides, has now mushroomed into an office of nearly 100 employees headed by a GS-16 (salary range: $44,756 to $47,500). Its budget is as large as the preservation unit's, if not larger.

Other peripheral branches of Archives have shown similar growth in personnel and budget. These ancillary activities may be important, but they are not vital to the successful handling of the agency's designated function — to preserve documents of lasting historic importance for future generations.

To justify their empire building, Archives bureaucrats have accepted for safekeeping more and more material, some of which hardly qualifies as historic or even temporarily valuable. What is one to think of the audio-visual division's acquisition of old Harold Lloyd movies, "Gone With the Wind," network newscasts and sound tapes of 1930s "Amos 'n' Andy" radio shows?

Or a portrait of Richard Nixon rendered in bottle caps? Or a wax dummy of George Washington with collapsible legs — so grotesque that even Archives' packrat poobah sent it back after initially accepting it.

Despite his protestations of injured innocence, we think Archivist Rhoads still has plenty of explaining to do.

Counselling sessions open couples' eyes for marriage

WINNIPEG (CP) — Priests and ministers of many denominations have found out the hard way that a short chat with young couples does not prepare them well for marriage.

With marriage breakdown no longer an unusual occurrence, many Anglican and Roman Catholic priests in Winnipeg insist couples attend a weekend counselling session.

Ministers in other Protestant churches are less likely to require participation in any particular program, but they try to ensure couples enter marriage with their eyes wide open.

"I personally believe that moral suasion is the only kind of suasion the church should be using," says Rev. Clifford McMurtry, minister of Harrow United Church and co-ordinator of marriage preparation courses at the River Heights Family Life Education Centre.

"We extend the help and we hope the maximum number of people will avail themselves of it."

BECOMING FRUSTRATED

Rev. Alvin Miller, minister of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, says many ministers are becoming frustrated with couples who view the church as just a pretty backdrop.

"There's an expectation that you can walk into any church in the city and be met with open arms. I've even had people come in and measure the aisles," he says. "You begin to feel like you're being used."

Although he says his "pastoral disposition" is to accept everyone, "there are times when I wish I had more leverage in turning a couple away."

Father Peter Dunfee of John XXIII parish says marriage is a sacrament for Roman Catholics.

"And sacraments are for people who are practising the faith, not just anyone."

Marriage preparation programs in Winnipeg range from the spiritual to the practical and are offered to groups and individual couples.

OUTSIDE HELP

Although financial, legal, medical and social experts may be brought in to contribute, the programs are offered under the auspices of churches or church organizations.

Maureen Shields is co-ordinator of community services for Family Services of Winnipeg, the only secular organization in the city involved in marriage preparation.

Although it did not wish to be associated with a particular religious perspective, the agency had trouble reaching people, she says.

"Because we're not seen as a marriage preparation place, we have had to link up with churches in the neighborhood."

Ms. Shields says she regrets this, because engaged couples who want no affiliation with the church are left out in the cold.

Bennett Gallichon

The marriage of Sandra Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Bennett of Bury, to Mr. Andy Gallichon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Gallichon of La Tabatiere, Que. was celebrated in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Bury on May 26 at 4:00 p.m. The Rev. L. Westman performed the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Gallichon.

The church was decorated with pots of chrysanthemums and arrangements of spring flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Lace and pearl beads adorned the white silk and chiffon gown with a chapel train. She wore a mid-length veil and carried a bouquet of red roses, pink carnations and baby's breath.

The maid-of-honor, Miss Cheryl LaRocque of Lennoxville wore a pink floral floor-length dress and carried a bouquet of blue and white daisies. The bridesmaids, Miss Marjory Kirkpatrick and Miss Nancy Olson, both of Bury, were dressed in blue with bouquets of pink and white daisies.

The flower girl, Miss Gillian Ladd, the bride's cousin, carried a basket of red roses, white daisies, blue cornflower and baby's breath.

Mr. Lyle Roarke of Hatley was best man. The ushers were Mr. Bruce Bennett, brother of the bride, and Mr. Alfred McKinnon of Sherbrooke, also from La Tabatiere. The men were suited in brown with white carnation boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a cream and brown dress with a corsage of deep pink carnations. The groom's mother chose a dusty rose dress with a corsage of pink carnations.

The bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Arthur Ward, was in a beige and green two-piece dress. Mrs. Hildred Bennett, paternal grandmother of the bride, chose a navy blue dress. Both grandmothers wore pink carnation corsages.

The wedding reception was held at Salle Jean-Paul in Bury. The tables were decorated with spring flowers. The triple tier wedding cake was decorated with pink roses and lily-of-the-valley. Mrs. A. Goode of Sawyerville decorated the cake which was made by the bride's mother.

Guests from a distance were the groom's mother and sister, Mrs. Kathleen Gallichon and Miss Loretta Gallichon. They flew down from La Tabatiere, Que. on the North Shore.

The newly-weds have taken up residence in Lennoxville. Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored at a surprise shower given by Cheryl LaRocque. Mrs. George Lawrence and Miss Cathy Lawrence also entertained the bride-to-be at a miscellaneous shower.

Garden Fashion Show well-attended

KNOWLTON (KT) — The Garden Fashion Show held on Saturday, July 7 at St. Edouard's Summer Chapel was exceedingly well attended. This was the second year this event has been presented by Mrs. Lois Campbell of "La Petite Armoire," Bridge Street, under the sponsorship of L.A.F.E.A.S.

A stunning selection of At Home Wear, Casual and Sportswear, Evening and Dress Wear were shown, and were charmingly modelled by Eleanor Broderick, Janet Campbell, Evelyn Blackwood, Ann Campbell, Lucille Desmarais, Francoise Dube, Pierrette Lessard, and Andree St. Jean. Many of the numbers and their wearers received warm applause from the audience. In addition to the collection from La Petite Armoire there were a few golf outfits from Steve Cor-bier's Pro Shop at the Knowlton Golf Club.

The finale was a stunning showing of fur coats, courtesy of "Natural Furs Ltd." in Montreal.

Flower arrangements were courtesy of Richard Sarrazin of "Jardin de Foster" and music was taped for the occasion by Billy Campbell.

Door prizes were drawn during the intermissions, including the flowers provided by Mr. Sarrazin. The last, a beautiful arrangement of flowers, was won by a tiny girl, giving rise to some amusement and a big hand, as she carried the basket, almost as big as herself, back to her seat!

At the close of the Fashion Show, those attending were invited to a wine and cheese party on the church grounds.

New music therapy not "witch doctor" cure

TORONTO (CP) — Valerie Ivy, one of 40 qualified music therapists in Canada, knew she was in for an interesting career shortly after graduating from university.

After earning her degree at the University of Kansas, she was explaining music therapy to a doctor when he said: "Oh, what the witch-doctors used to do?"

Misconceptions like that are not helping the relatively new profession make a breakthrough.

"Most people think we just play for the patients, like a performer in a hospital, that we're just playing for the poor unfortunates in the hospital that everybody likes to have there," said Miss Ivy.

Capilano College in North Vancouver is the only Canadian institution to offer a course in music therapy. It has a two-year diploma course that produces a qualified therapist, but in the three years of its operation only 18 have graduated.

The Canadian Association for Music Therapists has asked the University of Quebec in Montreal to offer a music-therapy degree in 1980 in addition to the existing bachelor of music education degree with an orientation toward music therapy.

Still, there are many graduates like Miss Ivy who do not have jobs in that field. She is working as a social worker.

There's no spanking in Sweden

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — It is illegal to spank a child in Sweden.

It is also illegal, since July 1, to subject a child to "insulting treatment." This includes, according to the justice ministry, locking up or locking out children, or threatening, ridiculing or humiliating them.

In cocktail party conversation parents have wondered aloud whether their offspring now can send them to jail, or whether they will have to take annual vacations abroad just to whip the children back into shape.

In fact, the government has found no punishment for offenders. Instead, apparently in accordance with the carrot-not-stick spirit of the new law, the justice ministry has published a full-color pamphlet advising parents how to relate to their young, other than with a stick.

Glossy photographs show real children in real everyday situations throwing tantrums, scrawling on walls, howling and mashing baked beans into the kitchen table.

SUSPICION DEEPENS

But the text has a vague, idealistic quality about it which could leave many battle-scarred Swedish parents with the impression that the ministry has no children of its own.

The ministry says: "By continuous teamwork with a loving guardian the child eventually develops an inner voice to say what it must and must not do. Such a consciousness usually begins to develop around the age of three . . . This inner development is impoverished by punishment."

But what if this is only a still, small voice when the child reaches the trying age of early puberty?

"Violence is not a convincing argument," says the ministry about handling young teenagers. "If the grown-up pulls rank, punishes or spansks, the feeling of not being understood can be increased in the child and the conflict escalated."

And what of the mid-teens, when the kid just won't listen and the parent feels the only way to get through is with a smack?

"It is important for both parties to seek help and to seek other ways of solving conflicts," the ministry advises. But the ministry is also quick to point out that parents have not lost all of their rights under the new law. "Of course, you are allowed to get angry and show it," the pamphlet says.

Nor is manhandling children always forbidden: "With small children one just has to grab, hold on and lift them out of danger," the booklet says in a line perhaps inserted by the ministry's mother-in-residence.

OES annual church service

BOLTON CENTRE — Saint Patrick's Church welcomed members of the Eastern Star from Mansonville on Sunday for their annual church service.

The service was officiated by clergy: Rev. David Stanway, assisted by our new curate, the Rev. George Campbell. Members from Knowlton and South Bolton also attended the service.

Having many children at the service a special hymn was sung, Jesus Loves Me.

Following the service, everyone was invited to the town building for refreshments, and to meet our new curate, The Rev. George Campbell and his family.

After everyone was seated, being Mr. Grayson Cousins' birthday, he was presented with a surprise birthday cake made by his wife, and everyone sang Happy Birthday. Mr. Cousins thanked everyone and said he hadn't expected such a big birthday party.

Coffee and doughnuts were served by Saint Patrick's Ladies' Guild, everyone having an enjoyable morning.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Skin care

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know what blackheads are and how to help get rid of them. My question is how do you get rid of whiteheads and what causes them to break out?

DEAR READER — If you know what causes blackheads, you know what causes whiteheads. They're basically the same thing. They're a core of fatty acids formed by your skin glands. This little core of fat may have some pigment from your skin at the top of it or the fats may be affected by oxygen so that they change color.

Many people make the mistake of thinking that a blackhead means dirt. That's not true at all and you can't usually wash them off like you would wash off dirt because the discolored fat is just below the surface of the skin. If it's not pigmented then it's a whitehead.

The treatment is exactly the same. The best approach at home is merely to wash the face two or three times a day with warm water and a mild soap. Soak it thoroughly. Some doctors recommend a degreasing soap. You can also sponge off the face with alcohol sponges to help remove the excess oil formation by your skin glands.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, to give you more information on the whole problem of blackheads, whiteheads and pimples. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you referred to whether pills were dissolved or not when you took them and you suggested that perhaps some pills should be crushed before they are taken. My wife and I are both in our 70s and a few years ago we had an experience that made me vividly recognize this problem.

We live in a semirural area and had our septic tank cleaned. When the tank was pumped out and the operator was finished, I looked inside and there on the bottom of the tank were hundreds of vitamin and mineral tablets. I retrieved some of them and was able to identify the bone meal, liver, Dolomite and B complex. Ever since then all the vitamin tablets that have been taken in our household have been chewed before being swallowed.

I brought this to the attention of the manufacturer and he said our system was lacking in acid. This may be but the truth is we didn't get the benefit from the vitamin and mineral pills that we had expected.

DEAR READER — I included your letter in my column to highlight your point. The problem is even worse than you think. Not only are some vitamin pills passed through the digestive system without any benefit to the person who swallowed them but excess water soluble vitamins that are digested and enter the body are eliminated in the urine. You're not going to see those on the bottom of the septic tank. The penchant that some people have to take large amounts of unnecessary vitamins has led to the comment that Americans have the richest and most expensive urine in the world.

These remarks are not meant to indicate that people shouldn't have an adequate amount of vitamins. As I've said before, I like people to get these in a well-balanced diet. You're not likely to find a well-balanced diet on the bottom of the septic tank either.

Ann Landers says....

Emotional problems cause frigidity

Dear Ann Landers:

You have printed complaints from women living with impatient husbands. How about a complaint from the other side of the bed?

My wife (five years my junior) hit menopause and for five years fought off all advances toward lovemaking. I remained faithful to her. Finally, after plenty of misery, I put my cards on the table. She agreed to resume having sex and agreed that it had always been mutually satisfying.

No love play arouses her anymore. To me, giving as well as receiving is important. Even though I feel relaxed afterwards, the act is not satisfactory. I have tried all the tricks of bygone days to restore that old feeling, but nothing works. Is my wife unable to enjoy the act, or is it all in her mind?

Sexy Sixties — Who Says So?

Dear Who:

Almost all impotence in males and frigidity in females is caused by emotional problems. Your wife should have a checkup to make sure nothing is physically wrong. Then, together, you should have a frank talk with a gynecologist. Perhaps he can set the situation straight or suggest a counsellor.

A woman in her 60s who is in good health should be enjoying sex. Those five years of famine didn't do her any good — or you, either. When you don't use it you lose it — at least temporarily. I hope counselling helps and that you make up for time lost.

Dear Ann Landers:

Why do you insult your Catholic and Protestant readers by using such expressions as "Ten whacks with a stack of Presbyterian Outlooks?" Another expression you use when you've been in error is "mea culpa."

Why is it you never say, "Ten whacks with a Talmud"? Or, "A dozen lashes with a prayer shawl"? I dare you to print this.

Chicago

Dear Chicago:

I have used "mea culpa", but that phrase is merely a Latin translation of "I am to blame." Ten whacks with a stack of Presbyterian Outlooks never appeared in my column. You are confused.

I did once say, "A dozen lashes with a prayer shawl." (Someone asked about the expression, "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," and I offered by own interpretation which many theologians felt was incorrect.) The prayer shawl reference (suggested punishment for myself) produced a barrage of criticism from rabbis and members of my own faith. I apologized in print and have been mighty careful ever since.

Dear Ann Landers:

My sister-in-law is late for everything. I get especially annoyed when she asks me to pick her up to go to a luncheon or a club meeting. I like to be prompt and always am — except when I have to wait for Ella.

Yesterday we had it out. Her tardiness made me 20 minutes late for a League of Women Voters meeting — and I am the secretary. Ella became highly indignant, said people who are prompt let the world know they have little else to do. She thinks it's smart to give the impression of being very busy, occupied with many things and therefore "important".

I say to be consistently late is rude and inconsiderate and Ella is full of prunes. Comment, please.

San Antonio

Dear Ann:

People who are consistently late are not only rude and inconsiderate but poorly organized. The most important people I know rarely keep others waiting.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 14 and can't understand why my parents don't sleep

Lower Windsor holds annual community picnic

By MRS. C. McCOURT
(Record Correspondent)

WINDSOR — The annual Lower Windsor Community picnic was held on Canada Day, July 1st, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Farquhar. Some ninety people, from near and far away as B.C. gathered at the farm at the noon hour and enjoyed a picnic lunch together. Several new faces were welcomed and a few that usually attend were not present and were missed. Maybe next year they'll make it!

A paper-covered hay rack served as a very appropriate table and was well laden with food - salads, sandwiches, relishes and sweets. There was a wide choice of cold drinks and a cone of ice cream to top it all off.

At the lunch hour, Don Paterson was asked to come forward to accept a "Bon Voyage - Good Luck" cake, along with the best wishes of all. Steve Perkins made the presentation and also gave several "helpful hints" to Don, who left on July 4 for Calgary to see what the West offers in the line of employment.

At the same time, three people received gifts honoring their presence: Mrs. Gladys Perkins of Richmond received a corsage for being the eldest lady present; Arthur Moen, a plate of cookies for being the eldest gent, while Mrs. Arthur Moen received an arrangement of flowers for having travelled the farthest to attend. Mr. and Mrs. Moen are from Westbank, B.C. The three gifts were compliments of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McGee and presented by Steve Perkins. All three recipients expressed their thanks and appreciation. The cake was cut and served by Don, to all present.

Following lunch, the older ones gathered in the shade of the evergreen trees for an afternoon of visiting; the teenagers took off for a regular ball game, and the younger ones took part in some organized races, games, etc. There were prizes for everyone and Mrs. Lorina Watson was kept busy passing them out.

It proved to be a fun afternoon with English and French joining in together without a problem. As far as they were concerned, the day passed far too quickly and the prizes ran out far too early.

Races included marble-on-a-coin, potato hop, potato-on-a-popsicle stick, 3-legged race, sack race, and shoe scramble - to name a few. Participants included: 2-year-olds - Kelly McGee, Vicki Nixon, and Bruce Farquhar; 3-4-year-olds - Carrie Nixon, Craig McCourt, Anick Bourget, Kevin Watson and Lynn Watson. Patrick Stratford and Kevin McGee teamed off for the 5-6 age group, while the 8-10's included Sarah Fowler, Tracy Watson and Mark Fowler.

11-13 class included Peggy McCourt, Anne Watson, Scott Paterson, Steve Stratford, Ricky Watson, and Rory Doyle. Arthur Moen received a hand for being a good sport and joining in the sack race with Kevin McGee and Patrick Stratford.

In the late afternoon the ball players arrived back, and with a bit of persuasion, got into the act and got a lot of laughs, maybe some bruises too! The Three-legged-race-in-a-sack, lock-arm race and three-legged regular race, all saw plenty of tumbles. Taking part were Sheila McCourt, Shirley Paterson, Doug Perkins, Walter Verhoef, Robert Paterson, Charles Oakley, Brian McCourt, Don Paterson, Roy McCourt and Karen McCourt.

Afternoon activities concluded with a tug-of-war, single men against married men; single girls against married women; girls against boys, etc. Winners? Well, let's just say it was all in fun; one way this time, another way, the next. Possibly a few burned hands in the bargain!

There was a cold drink, a bit of lunch, and ice cream for anyone who wanted it, before all left for their respective homes. It had been a busy day, a good one, and everyone went home thinking they would do it all over next year.

Winner of the pinwheel pattern quilt was Mrs. Norma Batchelor of Lachine.

Those attending from a distance were from Westbank, B.C., Toronto, Scarborough and St. Catharines, Ont., Hillsboro, N.B., Beebe and Richmond.

Your Birthday

July 18, 1979

Things could take a hopeful turn this coming year where your finances are concerned. Chance circumstances and luck could combine to fatten your bank balance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Valuable information could be passed on to you today through a friend in whom you have great confidence. It may be a tip that could either make or save your money. How you can get along with other signs is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your new Astro-Graph Letter that begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Lady Luck is likely to intervene today in situations where you find yourself competing for something worthwhile. Give her a helping hand. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions could develop in a unique manner today, making it possible for something that you've been secretly hoping for to become a reality. Have faith. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Devote as much time and energy as required today to any promising joint venture you're involved in. The return could be exceptionally large. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're an exceptionally sharp horse trader today. Strive to be fair and those you deal with will make added concessions. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A task you've been postponing because you thought it was a little too tough for you should be undertaken today. You're more than a match for it. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your forte today is your ability to manage complicated situations where others are involved. You're able to comprehend what they cannot. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Bettering the lot of those you love should be your major goal today. You'll bring joy to them and enhance your self-esteem as well. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you look upon your work as fun today, you could amaze yourself by what you will be able to accomplish. Treat all you do as a labor of love. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your best possibilities for accumulation today come from situations that you've already begun. Tie up the loose ends. TAURUS (April 20-May 10) You have the unique faculty today to take what is already a good idea and enlarge upon it. Utilize your imagination. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your instincts are very keen today regarding ways to add to your personal resources. Play your hunches if inspiration strikes. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Canada Day Celebrations at Knowlton a great success

KNOWLTON (KT) — It was surely "Fire Cracker Day" at Knowlton on Saturday, July 7, with the big Fireworks Display at the Lions Park that night. Postponed from Canada Day due to the rain, there was a huge crowd on hand to wind up the celebrations. It became necessary to close the Park to further cars after 500 or more were parked, and many then watched from adjacent fields and vehicles were lined up at the side of the road down to Victoria Street. A tip of the hat to Peter Flynn, the organizer and Town of Brome Lake Fire Department for a good show and a further salute to our Police Department for a fine job directing the traffic at the end of the display.

The actual Canada Day celebrations on July 1 were hampered by the weather, being rained out twice, only to continue once it cleared. It was not until the Square Dance demonstration by the Brome Squares was concluded and the open square dancing started that it became impossible to continue that night. The number attending may not have equalled last year, but is estimated at 2,000 or more during the day. The big Beef Barbecue at 5 p.m., put on by the Lions Club, served out 1200 to 1400 buns.

One of the morning attractions was the Decorated Bicycle Contest with 30 or more entries. There were only two entries in the two years and under class - Shaun Hadlock and Frederick Vezina and they were declared a tie. In 4, 5 and 6-year class: 1. Wyatt Hadlock; 2. Scott Evans; 3. Tracy Lavin; 7 and 8 years: 1. Sherry Bailey; 2. Cindy Royea; 3. Christopher Ayles; 9 and 10 years: 1. Tammy Dudley; 2. Duncan Rotherham; 3. Sandra Bowbrick. Colfax Rebekah Lodge sponsored the contest, the judges being Mrs. Laura Burnham, Mrs. Rachel Norton and Mrs. Judy Clifford.

There was an overwhelming number of entries for the Poster Contest on the theme "Festival Canada". Much originality was shown in each of the ten classes which were judged by Mrs. Duffin, Mrs. Sandy Parry and Mrs. Doreen Reglin. Organized by Mrs. Walter Stairs, the sponsor was the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

The children's games are always a huge success under the direction of Mrs. June Call and her friends and this year was as great as ever. In the Potato Sack Race, those placing first were: 4-5 years - Laurie Turner; 6-7 years - Sarah Joyce; 8-9 - Greg Eldridge; 10-11 - David Fuller; 12 years, Tammy Massey. Wheelbarrow Race, 4-5 - Lawrence Turner; 6-7 - Heather Crogan; 8-9 - Quentin Hadlock; 10-11 - Carl Kukchke. Potato on Spoon Race: 4-5 - Zip Johnston-Main; 6-7 - Jeff Paige; 8-9 Kiki Yuille; 10-11 - David Fuller; 12 years, Lisa Grant.

Three Legged Race: 4-5 - Colin Price; 6-7 - Jennifer Mathis; 8-9 - Quentin Hadlock; 10-11 - Tanya Budd. Special: Three-year-old race, Megan Gibbs was first. Runners up were Becky Wilson, Shawn Mullins, Steven Call, Natalie Barr (in that order).

Weather hampered the Teen and Adult Games but they carried on after a break. Ken Jones was in charge of the former Bill Steward the adult section. The Log Sawing attracted a big crowd and there was a good turnout of contestants for the men's event with 15 two-men teams competing. Results were: 1. Jeff Eastman and Armand Cyr - 19.2 seconds; 2. Arnold Page and Chas. Derby - 22.1 seconds; 3. Louis Cyr and Jim Battley - 22.5 seconds. Women's Section: 1. Marilyn Cyr and B. Aitken - 53 seconds; 2. Joane Lefebvre and Shirley Tipper - 1.35 sec.; 3. Shelley and Laura Mizener - 2 min. 17 sec. Winners of the Tug-of-War contest for men had to work hard to win the event. The competition was keen and bystanders judged it the best competition for years.

The children's dog show drew the biggest audience yet. Judges were Dr. J. Cote of Magog (formerly Knowlton), Mrs. Guenilla Koraen, South Stukely, Frank Simms of Knowlton. Organizers were Mrs. Homer Blackwood and Mrs. Keith Miz-

Public Speaking held at PMES

BURY (NR) — A Public Speaking competition was held recently at Pope Memorial Elementary School. Sebastian Hassinger acted as chairman, with representatives of the three local branches of the Women's Institutes as judges: Mrs. Jamima Stevenson, Brookbury; Mrs. Clara Chapman, Canterbury; and Mrs. Susan Renaud, Bury. Musical interludes by all classes were held during the judges' deliberations.

The following students were awarded prizes: Kindergarten - 1. Tina Jacklin; 2. Michael Roper; 3. Grant MacLeod; Level 1 - 1. Tina Perkins; 2. Matthew Begbie; 3. Jody McNab; Level 2 - 1. Denis Buckland; 2. Lesley Wintle; 3. Robert MacLeod; Level 3 - 1. Judy Morrison; 2. Heather Matheson; 3. Michael Goodin; Level 4 - 1. Amy MacAskill; 2. Anna Pelemann; 3. Debbie Harrison and David Jones; Level 5 - 1. Heather Morrison; 2. Julie Mackenzie; 3. John Buckland; Level 6 - 1. Jennifer Epps; 2. Marc Giroux; 3. Karen Coates.

The Osborne Pope Memorial Shields were awarded to Heather Morrison of Level 5, for the girls, and Marcel Giguere of Level 6, for the boys.

On June 18, a Graduation Dinner, sponsored by the Bury School Committee was held in honor of Level 6 students. Souvenir school pins were presented by Mr. R. Fitzsimmons.

Students leaving Pope Memorial to attend Alexander Galt School are: Marilyn Anderson, Johanne Campagna, Donna Coates, Karen Coates, Jennifer Epps, Marcel Giguere, Marc Giroux, Michael Hughes, Johanne Moulard, Dean Murray, Stacy Strapps, Danny Taillon and Donald Whitney. Sebastian Hassinger is leaving to reside in British Columbia and Hayley Fitzsimmons will be attending Grade Six Plus in Lennoxville.

Prizes included packaged dogfood and booklet for every entry, courtesy of Shur-Gain (Corderre Feed Store distributor), plus cans of "Flair" spray for the first in the 10 classes. Cash prizes were awarded to the first three in each class by the Lions Club.

Jean Grenier acted as announcer over the P.A. throughout the show.

Special Olympics coach readies athletes

By STEVE McDOUGALL

SHERBROOKE — It's been three years in the making and it seems like it's going to pay off for special education coach Stewart Gear and the athletic program he's administered for Dixville and Magog centers for the handicapped in that time.

Six of Gear's athletes — John Blanchard, Steve Lonsdale, Chris Garon, Marvin Kullberg, Dan Cote and Louis Duval — have been selected by the Canadian Special

Brian Hunter takes a breather before starting the slalom wheelchair race at St. Laurent.

Olympics Committee to join some 134 other special Olympic athletes from across Canada and compete at the Brockport Special Olympic Games August 8 to 13.

This athletic program, which led to Dixville and Butters centers entering a combined team to the Quebec chapter track meet at St. Laurent in June, was initiated by a joint effort of the Quebec Ministry of Education and the Eastern Townships Regional school board.

Stewart Gear, who was recruited from Montreal to develop and co-ordinate the program, decided that the results were worth showing off. What happened next was a successful sweep at the St. Laurent meet which led to selection of what he considers his six top athletes. He also has the option of selecting four more competitors from his area, since four from Ontario cannot go. Of the six athletes picked, Blanchard is considered to be the best runner on the team.

At his group home in Magog, Blanchard is always laughing about the time he almost got lost once when jogging. Trying to show his friends and coach that he could endure long distances, he left the others behind him and ended up on the wrong road. According to coach Gear, Blanchard is always trying to show off, such as the time, according to Gear, he did close to 100 sit-ups without stopping.

Blanchard himself says that you shouldn't have to stop when you are jogging, that the body is able to endure longer distances than one thinks.

Along with roommate Chris Garon, another Brockport hopeful, John gets into a regular schedule of jogging and lifting weights, as well as keeping up in baseball, hockey and soccer practice.

Blanchard and Garon have been on a regular schedule of physical improvement for some two and a half years when they got involved in competitive sports activities, such as floor hockey at Alexander Galt Regional High School. But it needed the encouragement of Stewart Gear to keep him at it, conceded Blanchard.

Gear, a former real estate salesman, is an avid sports freak who got involved in special education some five years ago. He says he doesn't want to play favorites with his athletes and claims he doesn't put the pressure of competition on any of them, even at Olympic events.

For Gear, the most important goal is that of self-improvement on any scale, for both his pupils and the team. "I've got to understand when not to push" says Gear, who realized that for many of them, it was difficult to begin the program when he first came out here.

Gear has run these programs almost by the seat of his pants since, up until now, he has lived with his family in Montreal and has had to drive out to Magog, Dixville and Sherbrooke several times a week to coach the handicapped. With the success of the programs, Gear decided both for economy's sake and for a change of pace to move out to Lennoxville permanently.

Another athlete showing great potential on Gear's team is Dixville's Duval, 21, who got into competitive athletics four years ago. Though he has great ability in running some eight miles a week, he believes he has more promise in floor hockey.

Despite Gear's philosophy, Duval believes that winning is much more important than any joy received at keeping in shape and self-improvement.

For Duval, waiting for Brockport means lifting weights running, and frequent work on the local farms. While he waits, he dreams of beating established Special Olympics records and going for the gold.

One athlete that Gear wants to take to Brockport who was not chosen by the committee, but who won two gold medals at St. Laurent, is wheelchair racing competitor Brian Hunter.

For Hunter, getting started in this event meant learning how to control his chair while coasting down the dirt roads near his community home in Knowlton's Landing.

"All I had to do was to make sure that there were no cars on the road, and that I didn't tip over," says Hunter, who got involved in training for the Special Olympics with the encouragement of coach Gear and the appeal of the Games' TV advertisements.

"St. Laurent was the first time that I raced in front of other people," claims Hunter.

Basic exercises for Hunter are push-ups in his chair for arm strength and to relieve any pressure sores on his legs. Last winter he started to develop back push-ups so as to involve more of his muscle groups that didn't have the chance to be developed before.

Hunter is keeping his arms, shoulders and chest muscles in shape in hopes that the committee will change its mind. Coach Gear hopes that he can persuade them to do so.

VETERAN PLAYER KEEN ON SON

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — It comes under the heading of a rarity when one of the game's top performers, such as Gary Player, finds himself competing for attention in the British Open with a 17-year-old golfer.

But when Player, the three-time champion of the Open, flew into Manchester for this year's tournament on Monday, he found the Player everyone was talking about was his son, Wayne.

Wayne, still an amateur, played two scorching rounds during the weekend and was one of the leading qualifiers for the $330,000 tournament, which starts Wednesday.

Gary and Wayne will be the first father and son to play in the same Open for more than 100 years.

To take the family connection even further, Gary's brother-in-law, Bobby Verwey, is also among the qualifiers.

"It was very exciting for me that Wayne did so well," said Gary. "I'm very proud, especially as I never pushed him into playing. He came to me and said he wanted to play."

"He really has an outstanding record at 17.

Results count and he has produced the goods. But that still doesn't mean he will be a great player."

Wayne, full of confidence, has predicted he could finish in the top 10 here, and his father did not rule out such a possibility.

"He has the ability to finish in the top 10," said Gary. "He could shoot a 66 on any golf course. I don't expect that though. If Wayne makes the cut, I would say that was an unbelievable achievement. If he doesn't, he has still done well."

The British media already has dubbed outspoken Wayne as a golfing "superbrat" and his father is glad the youngster faces two years in the South African army.

"I think the army will be the making of him," he said. "It will make him realize he is not a big shot."

Wayne already has turned down five golf scholarship offers from United States universities and enters the army next January.

He plays immediately in front of his father in Wednesday's first round.

"I will try not to let it worry me," said Gary. "But when you have a son that plays and take a great interest, you just have to watch your own game."

This will be the first Open at Lytham for five years.

The sleepy little seaside town, just down the road from the garish attractions of bustling Blackpool, saw a combined attendance of 92,000 in 1974.

This year the crowd is expected to exceed 125,000. Advance ticket sales already are approaching 80,000.

Of the more than $330,000 in prize money, the winner takes home $30,000.

50th all-star game

Batters can't wait to play

SEATTLE (AP) — It won't take a king-sized swat to clear the fences of the Kingdome, so batters are looking forward to tonight's 50th all-star baseball game with anticipation.

Even though they'll face the major-league strikeout king, Nolan Ryan, the National League hitters surveyed the enclosed stadium Monday with happiness.

After banging a few practice balls into the bleachers, Davey Lopes, the Los Angeles Dodgers second baseman, observed:

"This is very conducive to hitting. Everybody in batting practice was trying to hit the ball over the wall to hear the oohs and aahs from the crowd. It will be a different story against Nolan Ryan."

The California Angels' righthander was named to start for the American League with Steve Carlton of Philadelphia Phillies the choice of NL manager Tom Lasorda.

Ryan is 12-6 with 160 strikeouts. Carlton is 11-8 with 113 fans.

Lasorda said he went to Carlton as his starter because the AL would send up a flock of left-handed hitters and he wanted a southpaw going against them the first three innings.

NATIONAL HAS EDGE

The game is to start at 8:40 p.m. EDT as the NL goes after its eighth straight triumph and 16th in 17 games. Over-all, after 49 games, the NL has won 30 and the AL 18. There has been one tie.

Two years ago, Ryan refused a last-minute invitation to join the AL squad, thereby infuriating manager Billy Martin who said last season he wouldn't choose the flamethrowing hurler "if he had a 40-0 record."

Ironically, Bob Lemon succeeded Martin in mid-1978. New York Yankees won the AL pennant and beat the Dodgers in the World Series.

Thus Lemon chose the AL pitchers even though he was fired earlier this summer and Martin became manager again.

There will be no designated hitters in this game, so the pitchers bat ninth.

The AL batting order has shortstop Roy Smalley leading off, followed by third baseman George Brett, left fielder Don Baylor, right fielder Jim Rice, centre fielder Fred Lynn, first baseman Carl Yastrzemski, catcher Darrell Porter and second baseman Frank White.

GAME SOLD OUT

The Kingdome is sold out at 58,960 — a record for the park which measures 316 feet down the foul lines, 357 down the power alleys and 410 to centre.

Many feel the all-star game record of six home runs will be broken, and some are even predicting as many as a dozen homers will be driven out of the domed stadium. Six homers have been hit in all-star games on three occasions, in 1951 and 1971 at Detroit and in 1954 at Cleveland.

Brett of Kansas City Royals, no newcomer to the Kingdome, says: "Playing here is a lot of fun. I'm not a home-run hitter, but I can hit home runs here."

National League batters relished their times in the batting cage.

Gary Matthews of Atlanta Braves said: "You know how small it is when you are hitting. You hit it good and it's out."

Weather doesn't mean much in the enclosed Kingdome.

In this game, pitchers are limited to three innings of action. Lasorda said Steve Rogers of Montreal Expos would follow Carlton. Lemon said he didn't know who would follow Ryan.

Lemon 'back' in Yanks' uniform

SEATTLE (AP) — Bob Lemon dons New York Yankee uniform No. 21 again tonight as American League manager in baseball's 50th all-star game, and people are wondering:

Will Lemon ever put on a uniform again?

"I don't know," the 58-year-old former pitcher, member of the Hall of Fame, said as excitement mounted for the annual mid-summer display of baseball's finest talent. "I want to think about it."

"I won't make a decision until after this season. I will go home and decide what direction I want to take. I intend to stay in baseball."

Lemon's career is at a crossroads. After taking over the Yankees in mid-season a year ago, with the world champions 10 games out of first place, and leading them to a second pennant and World Series victory, he was unceremoniously removed from his job June 18.

That was the day owner George Steinbrenner decided his sagging "gold dust team" needed a shot in the arm and called in probationed Billy Martin half a year ahead of schedule to reassume control.

It was a bitter pill for Lemon.

"Sure, I was disappointed," Lemon said. "I'm always disappointed when I get fired. I was given only three days' notice. I wanted to finish out the season."

"Did I feel betrayed? Well, I didn't like it. But I understood the realities. A guy can do anything he wants with his property."

Floridians reunited as Als, Lions clash

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Florida State connection will be in action at Empire Stadium for the first time this season when British Columbia Lions meet Montreal Alouettes in a Canadian Football League game tonight.

Wide receiver Leon Bright, who went home to Florida last week after his father was wounded in a shooting incident, and running back Larry Key will team up in the interlocking game.

Key had some fluid on his left knee and was withheld from weekend scrimmage drills but head coach Vic Rapp said he expects his top running threat to play against the Als.

Bright, the CFL's 1977

Rookie of the Year, will bolster the Lions' running attack which chewed up Saskatchewan Roughriders in the fourth quarter of B.C.'s 28-4 opening game victory at Taylor Field last week.

The Alouettes are not going to be easy pickings this season even though they lost some of their prime American talent in NFL raids.

"Imports you can replace, Canadians you can't," says Bob Geary, Als general manager.

The Montreal team was a victim of NFL grabs on three of their best imports during the off-season, losing cornerback Vern Perry to Houston Oilers, linebacker Chuck Zapiec to Kansas City Chiefs and quarterback Sonny Wade to Philadelphia Eagles.

Joe Barnes, his sidekick Gerry Dattilio and rookie Ron Calcagni from Arkansas are the three Als quarterbacks.

But all is not smooth for Montreal because Barnes, at his best when he's running, has showed a marked lack of mobility, possibly from recurring knee problems.

Imlach decision 'in a few days'

TORONTO (CP) — Punch Imlach, general manager and director of hockey operations for Toronto Maple Leafs, said Monday that, while he hasn't made up his mind on a coach for the National Hockey League club, he "will be talking to the next Leaf coach within the next few days."

The man rumored to be at the top of Imlach's list of coaching candidates is Floyd Smith, a former NHL right winger with Detroit Red Wings and Toronto and later coach, under Imlach, with Buffalo Sabres.

"I talked with Punch last week and I expect to hear back from him by the end of this week," Smith said Monday in a telephone interview from his home near Buffalo. "We had a discussion and Punch gave me the impression he wanted to talk to others as well. We're kind of keeping in touch."

Hot temper loses match point losses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bruce Nichols paid a high price for a display of temper Monday, forfeiting a match point to Butch Walts in the first round of the $175,000 Washington Star international tennis tournament.

Nichols, a last-minute substitute, had charged back from a 1-6, 2-4 deficit to push the 16th-seeded Walts into a tiebreaker.

But after several unforced errors, Nichols was down 2-6, facing match point, and his temper snapped for the first time in the match.

He blasted a ball over the fence, an offence causing an automatic loss of a point under the Grand Prix rules. Umpire Zeno Pfau unhesitatingly awarded Walts the match 6-1, 7-6.

A disbelieving Nichols asked Pfau why there was no warning, since he had not displayed any pique until his outburst.

Grand Prix officials said they could not recall any other time when a player was penalized on match point, but they said they have instructed umpires on the men's circuit to enforce the rules without exception in an effort to cut down on temper tantrums.

Archers get last-minute go-ahead

WEST BERLIN (CP) — A seven-member Canadian team begins competition Tuesday in the world archery championships thanks to a last-minute Canadian government go-ahead.

Nine countries, including the Soviet Union, have withdrawn from the championship over the participation of South Africa.

Canadian team officials were uncertain whether competing here would affect Sport Canada funding of the national team following Sunday's vote by the International Archery Federation (FITA) to reject a Soviet proposal that South Africa and Rhodesia be excluded from the championships.

"We've just talked with Ottawa and Canada will shoot," said Canadian team manager Fred Usher of Mill Bay, B.C., 20 minutes before Monday's 3:00 p.m. deadline set by FITA officials for countries to announce their entries.

In Sunday's vote the Soviet proposal was defeated by a count of 26 to 20 with three abstentions. Canadian officials would not say how they voted.

Soccer players named for games

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Soccer Association announced the names Monday of 30 players to the pool representing Canada at the world youth soccer tournament, which begins Aug. 25 in four Japanese centres. The selections were made by national coach Barrie Clarke.

Eighteen of the players selected will travel to Hong Kong on Aug. 10 for a series of four tune-up games — two against the national youth team of Hong Kong and two against professional clubs. The remaining 12 players are substitutes.

The deadline for making changes to the roster is Aug. 16. At that time, the final selection of 18 players must be registered with the Federation Internationale de Football Amateur (FIFA), the world governing body of soccer.

The 16 countries competing in the tournament have been divided into four groups, with each group playing its games in a different city. Canada is in Group C, along with Portugal, South Korea and Paraguay, and will play in Kobe.
