Two Mills in Huntingdon To Enlarge Plants

Huntingdon Woollen Mills To Increase Floor Space by 10,000 Feet — Fawcett & Grant to Make Increase of 3,000 Feet

Progress and economy will march hand in hand as two of Huntingdon's mills proceed with plans to enlarge their plants.

Huntingdon Woollen Mills Ltd. have had plans in hand for some time for making additions to their plant, but pressure of other work and shortage of labour have delayed them. A Gleaner reporter in an interview with Mr. Isaac Roskie, was told that an application for a permit to build was made last year and granted. Before this could be made use of, the time limit on it had expired. Therefore a new application is being made at this time for the following: One building 60 feet by 50 feet and 12 feet high to be built by the side of the present weaving shop; an extension to the present mixing picker building which is now 25 feet by 50 feet by 12 feet, so as to make it 75 feet by 50 feet with an additional floor above of the same size. Certain new machinery will be installed in this latter building and the approximate cost of the whole is estimated at $14,000.

The building to be erected by the side of the weaving shop will house the mending and burling departments in which from fifteen to twenty people are employed. No new machinery would be installed in this building, but it is expected that working conditions will be much improved and that certain economies will be effected that will prove of great value to the production of the plant.

Centenarian, Thomas Hood Dies at Valleyfield

Thomas Hood, of Valleyfield, Que., who celebrated his 100th birthday in November of last year, died at his home on Friday night, the "grand old man" of the Chateauguay Valley district, last member of one of the oldest families to settle in this area, succumbed to a brief illness at his home after having been in excellent health until about two months ago. He had celebrated his 100th birthday last November 18.

Son of the late Thomas Hood and Marjorie Brown, Mr. Hood was one of seven children, three boys and four girls, all of whom lived to be more than 80 years old.

His parents came from Scotland and made their home in Ormstown early in the 19th century, but Mr. Hood spent the greater part of his life in Valleyfield.

He retired from an active fruit

The whole plan will produce better working conditions for the employees and the savings by means of the economies and speeding up of production will mean that the cost of production will be reduced and enable the mill to sell at lower prices. At the present time Huntingdon Woollen Mills Ltd. is not working on war orders but have been switched to civilian orders as the need for war material has been caught up with. It is expected that a return to war orders will be made in September.

As soon as the permit has been given, it is expected that work on the new buildings will commence without delay and that the contract will be let. The approximate increase in floor space will be 10,000 feet.

The firm of Fawcett & Grant Limited is also intending to make an extension to the present mill premises, and excavation work has already started. The size of the extension is to be 60 feet by 60 feet which will give an additional floor space of over 3,000 feet. This extension when completed will be used for a storeroom and thus provide greater room in the mill itself, and help in speeding up production and effect certain economies. The extension will be made to the present building at the rear, and will be finished in the same material as the original building. Shortage of labour is holding up the work on this job to some extent, but it might be said that the work is in hand.

The need for increased space in both these mills speaks well for the industrial activity of Huntingdon and marks a further forward step in the industrial foundations already established here.

Man Drowned Near Valleyfield on Sunday

Twenty-five-year-old Marcel Boucher, an employee of the D.I.L. plant at Valleyfield, drowned while swimming a half mile east of Valleyfield on Sunday.

Police said that Boucher went swimming with Jean Louis Bilodeau, a friend, and got into difficulties immediately. He called for help and when Bilodeau attempted a rescue almost drew him under.

Two guards of the D.I.L. plant managed to draw both from the water, but Boucher was already dead.

TWO ROOSEVELTS ARE DECORATED

Washington—A son and a grandson of former President Theodore Roosevelt were listed among the nation's war heroes, decorated by the army for gallantry in action in North Africa.

Brigadier Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, son of the former president, received an oak leaf cluster in lieu of a second silver star. His son, Capt. Quentin Roosevelt, was awarded a silver star.

All the awards were for heroism in North Africa.

Possessed of unusual vitality, and keenly interested in news of the day, Mr. Hood until a few months ago made regular business calls in town although he was somewhat handicapped by failing eyesight and hearing.

He was rarely ill during his lifetime, and only once seriously, when at the age of 82 he underwent a major operation in hospital in Montreal.

REPRESENTATION ON HOSPITAL BOARD FOR EASTERN PART OF HUNTINGDON COUNTY

In this age when so many of us are looking to the time when we can create and put into force a mode of security of living for one and all in Canada, whatever public undertaking is attempted, the thought of the future must play an important part.

In bringing about the establishment of a hospital for Huntingdon County, we have perhaps not been thinking as far ahead in the way of ultimate development as we might, yet it is not too late to make plans for the future. The Beverage and Marsh plans on Social Security certainly incline us all to believe the day is not very far off when some sort of hospitalization will have to be included in the Social Security set-up when it is put into effect. When that day arrives, The Huntingdon County Hospital would just naturally be called upon to play its part in the health programme of the citizens of Huntingdon County.

In preparing plans for the first meeting of the members of The Huntingdon County Hospital, which takes place on Thursday evening, July 29, at 8.00 p.m., the thought of who should comprise the 15 Governors of the Hospital, was very much to the fore. Looking to the future, more than the present, it was felt that before nominations for Governors were received, an expression of feeling as to The Huntingdon County Hospital should be sought from the people residing east of the Hinchinbrook-Franklin line in Huntingdon County. On Friday three men visited Havelock and Hemmingford and interviewed as many people as time would permit. The findings of the three gentlemen were: that the people felt pleased to know that Huntingdon County was to have its own hospital, but did not appreciate the belief that it would be regarded as a west end county proposition in its entirety. The people interviewed, all spoke highly of the Barrie Memorial Hospital, at Ormstown, and the Hotel Dieu, at Valleyfield, where the majority of hospital cases from Havelock and Hemmingford are taken. These same folks felt that in viewing what was before us in this country The Huntingdon County Hospital should be made an institution that could rightly claim the name of County, through invitation to the people of the entire County to participate in its financing and by according a seat on the Board of Governors to someone in the east end of the County.

On Thursday evening, July 29, when the first meeting of the persons who constitute The Huntingdon County Hospital membership takes place in the County Building, it is hoped the meeting will see fit to name some one to the Board of Governors who presently resides in the east end of the County.

The Huntingdon County Hospital financial campaign is now making favourable progress, the $16,000 mark now being passed, and confidence is being expressed that the $20,000 mark can be expected before snow flies; if time and gasoline conditions permitted more intensive canvassing, the fund could be doubled.

No hospital ever operates without a certain amount of Government financial support. When the day comes that Social Security is a reality and provides for some hospitalization plan, The Huntingdon County Hospital would more than likely be called upon to supply the hospital service to the people of Huntingdon County, whilst the Barrie Memorial would provide the service for citizens of Chateauguay County, and Hotel Dieu for Beauharnois County. With such an outlook on our future, we feel the people interviewed on Friday, in Havelock and Hemmingford, have taken the right view in that they feel they should be offered an opportunity to take part in the founding of The Huntingdon County Hospital, with a representative on the Board of Governors.

Two Persons Injured in Car Wreck

Three Cars Figure in Accidents the Past Week—Two Women Suffer Injuries

In the last issue of The Gleaner we reported two car accidents and again this week it is our duty to report a further two accidents which occurred the latter part of the past week. One of these accidents was of a more serious nature, as several of the occupants of the car in question were injured, and the car itself was a complete wreck.

The car, a 1936 Ford V-8 coach, owned by John Deschambault, of Hinchinbrook, and driven by him, was a complete wreck after it had struck a stone wall near Floyd Stevens farm on Route 52, last Friday night, between 10 and 11 p.m. The cause of the accident is said to be through not seeing a sign which is situated near this point at a curve in the road. The sign was said to be covered by tall weeds and branches of some subery growing around it. The driver was keeping a look-out for the sign but failed to see it, consequently he went off the road and plowed into the stone wall nearby. One side of the car was crumpled up and torn, practically all the glass was broken, one front wheel completely torn off, the radiator and engine instrument panel were pushed back and fenders were crumpled and torn, a hole was broken in the top. The car will be of no further use except for parts.

Riding in the car were six other persons, all relatives of the driver, and baby Mrs. Deschambault, the driver's wife, suffered injuries that will confine her to bed for possibly six weeks, while a sister-in-law, Mrs. Vaillancourt, was taken to Barrie Memorial Hospital, Ormstown, with leg injuries. Mrs. Deschambault's mother and father were cut about the head, but the 3-month-old baby never received a scratch and apparently escaped unharmed in any way. The driver escaped with a few cuts. The car was hauled into Huntingdon on Saturday.

Another accident occurred on Saturday night about 11:15, on the highway about three miles south of Huntingdon, when two cars collided and sideswiped each other. One car belonging to Clifford Ricard, of Huntingdon, was proceeding along the highway toward Malone, while the other driven by Raoul Tessier, of Montreal, was proceeding in the direction of Huntingdon when they collided. The exact cause of the accident is not known, but both cars were badly damaged and had to be brought into Huntingdon for repairs. The Ricard car had the front wheel and front fender torn off and other minor damages, while the Tessier car had the front fender, left front wheel, front axle and headlight badly damaged.

Luckily no one was badly hurt and eleven persons were involved in the accident, three in the Tessier car and eight in the Ricard car. Mrs. Rose Varin of Huntingdon, one of the women in the Ricard car received a cut on the head, while the others escaped with a few scratches. No one was hurt beyond a scratch or so, in the Tessier car.

It was marvelous that no more serious injuries were sustained, especially in the Ricard car, which undoubtedly was overloaded. Both cars will be in dry dock for some time as they could not be driven on their own power.

There are many cars on the road today, which are badly in need of repair, and as repairs are hard to get, their condition will get continually worse and they will become a menace to other drivers unless they are driven with care and caution. It is a wise driver who has his car carefully checked and drives with care and according to the ability of himself and the car's condition. Many accidents can be averted if speed is checked and proper precautions taken in driving to the common safety.

Mr. Earl McNicol, St. Anicet, Victim of Accident

Mr. Earl McNicol of St. Anicet was the victim of a rather unfortunate accident on Tuesday noon, while unloading hay from a wagon in the barn, on his farm. He was attempting to climb up the front ladder of the wagon into a small loft to assist in spreading some hay, when he lost his footing and fell several feet striking his right side and back on the front of the hayrack. As his injuries were very painful, he was taken to Dr. McGrimmon's office by his neighbour, Mr. Paul Trempanier. Examination revealed one broken rib and the possible fracture of a second and a severe shaking up. It is expected he will be unable to work for about three weeks.

Huntingdon Bowlers Hold O'Connor Challenge Trophy

Greens in Excellent Condition Provide Fine Bowling on Friday Night — Huntingdon Defeats Valleyfield in Cup Round and League Game

Either Huntingdon bowlers are getting better or Valleyfield bowlers are getting to be more lenient; in any event, on Friday evening the aggregate scores of the Huntingdon teams show they scored a second win on the league game and successfully defended the O'Connor Challenge Trophy.

Valleyfield and Huntingdon bowlers unanimously agreed that the three greens used on Friday, were the finest greens they had played on this season. When one stops to consider it took Gerald Potter and his rink eight ends to get onto the green and score a point, simply because the green was so fast, speaks well for the condition of same. Much credit for the excellence of the greens goes to Mr. James Fox, Keen and close bowling took place in the games between Jack McAlpine, Valleyfield, and D. M. Currie. At the end of their game of 14 ends, the scores stood 12 for Valleyfield, The David Williamson vs. E. C. Martin game went in winning streaks. The Valleyfield team took the lead, then Martin caught up, after which Valleyfield again made a winning spurt. In the 15th end the Martin rink scored 5 points thereby taking a lead of 2 points, however, in the final end the Valleyfield team scored 3 points with the game ending 27 to 19 in favour of Valleyfield. The Gerald Potter, Valleyfield, vs. W. Grant, Huntingdon, saw Grant hold the lead from the very beginning of the game, and ending in a 7 to 19 victory for Huntingdon.

The aggregate score for the three rinks at the end of the 14th end for the league game stood 44 to 36 in favour of Huntingdon. Two rinks competed for the O'Connor Challenge Trophy and at the end of the 16th end the aggregate score stood 27 to 38 for Huntingdon.

The teams were: Valleyfield: F. Crooke, R. Caion, R. Fisiwick, D. Williamson, skip, 20 vs. Huntingdon: Roy T. Knowles, James Fox, A. Fawcett, E. C. Martin, skip, 19.

Valleyfield: N. Dowling, L. Proctor, A. Nuttall, G. Potter, skip, 7 vs. Huntingdon: H. G. Bickford, A. L. Sellar, J. Holmes, W. Grant, skip, 19.

Valleyfield: A. Stretch, J. Gifford, G. Crook, J. McAlpine, skip, 13 vs. Huntingdon: H. Bingley, J. B. Carr, G. C. Stark, D. M. Currie, skip, 12.

Catholic Sister, "Sergeant-Major" to Boys in England

Rev. Father Hervé Charlebois, Former Vicar of St. Joseph's Church, Sends Story of Sister Winnifred

Rev. Father Hervé Charlebois, chaplain with the Canadian Armed Forces Overseas, and former vicar at St. Joseph's Church, Huntingdon, forwarded us the following item which should be of general interest to the public. It describes the solemn procession of Corpus Christi which took place during mid-June.

"Chapel bells toll peacefully in an English wooded nook, as Canadian soldiers, in respectful past their 'Sergeant-Major' to attend a Sunday morning Mass.

"The 'Sergeant-Major' stands at the door and greets each lad individually, with a smile for each one. To the uninitiated the idea of a sergeant-major smiling at the boys sounds fantastic.

"There's no catch in it. The 'Sergeant-Major' is well past military age and is a sister of Notre Dame, named Sister Winnifred.

"Every Sunday morning she greets her Canadian boys, and without a roll call, mentally notices if there are any absentees. There are no field punishments for missing a

Subsidy For Farmers Who Buy Grain Now

As an incentive to farmers in Eastern Canada to buy Western feed grains as soon as possible and store them on their own farms so that next winter's live-stock feeding requirements will be met, the Dominion Government will pay a per bushel subsidy based upon a sliding scale, the Agriculture Department stated on July 16.

Farmers in the Eastern provinces who buy Western feed grains under this plan, to be known as Plan B, will receive a 3 cent per bushel subsidy for grain bought in July; 2 1/2 cents per bushel for August; 2 cents for September; 1 1/2 cents for October; 1 cent for November, and 1/2 cent for December.

Orders placed since July 1, 1943, will be eligible for the subsidy.

The present Feed Administrator, under whom the plan is being administered, stated that it is anticipated it will increase the immediate demand for Western feed grains at a time when transportation facilities are more favourable than during the winter months.

New Consolidated School in Franklin

The building which is to become the New Consolidated School at Franklin Centre, was built by Judson McNeil, who had formed a company with a scheme that the building was to be used as a sanitarium and offices, in 1912 or 1913. But it was not completed at that time. The main building is 40 feet by 40 feet and a wing at the rear is 20 feet by 30 feet, later the building was sold at a sheriff's sale and purchased by the late C. R. Barr, who completed the structure as a dwelling place. It has running water and three floors of higher grades. The School Board proposes to have two class rooms at first, with a possibility of a third for higher grades. As will be seen by the illustration above, the building is quite large with wide doors, in a pretty setting and presents a distinctive appearance. Two views of the building are shown above, Mr. D. J. O'Connor, M.P.P., has received word of a grant which the Provincial Government is making toward the expenses of the new building, of which further particulars will be given in a later issue of The Gleaner.

Rome Has Been Bombed

OUTSIDE of the announcement that Rome had been bombed and then the full story of how it had been accomplished, comment on the bombing of this ancient city has been strangely lacking. Perhaps the reason for this was because commentators were awaiting the re-actions from the city itself. First comments said that the general re-action was favorable, even several of the Catholic clergy had made favorable remarks about the action. But the announcement was made on Thursday that the Pope deplored the bombing of the city.

Such an announcement could only be expected, it is hardly likely that the Pope could say he was jubilantly in favor of such action. But to "deplore the deception of our reasonable aspirations that Rome would not be bombed", as the letter expressed it, was not quite the announcement that might have been expected. There was no deception as to whether Rome would be bombed. Prime Minister Churchill has warned the people of Italy and the world, that if deemed advisable, Rome would be bombed. Seeing that Rome is the distribution centre for Italy and harbours much of the Axis war machine, it may be considered a military object. Italy was warned to surrender unconditionally or suffer the consequences, by radio and by leaflets dropped from the air, such a warning would take in Rome as part of Italy. If the Italians wished to spare Rome from being bombed, it would have been an easy matter for them to have taken everything of a military nature away from that city and used some other point as their distribution centre. But as Rome contains the Vatican City and is the residence of the Holy See, the Axis Powers considered that was a safe place in which to operate their infernal total war machine.

Italy has been warned that she can expect the United Nations to invade her country until she is willing to accept unconditional surrender, and the precedence to an invasion in this war, is air bombardment to soften up points of likely resistance. Rome becomes one of the points which must be softened up. But care was taken in the bombing of this city, that a picked personnel was instructed to see that only military targets were bombed and that the Vatican City and numerous historical portions were preserved.

How different is this to the bombing of London and Coventry, of Warsaw, Rotterdam and other equally as valuable cities. Was there any care to see that buildings of historical and religious value were not damaged? Monuments in these places which have religious and historical significance were bombed indiscriminately. To see such destruction, made the people's hearts writhe in agony, to say nothing of those who lost loved ones or were injured. Who was it who wanted to have a part in this destruction? None other than Italy. Mussolini asked Hitler to be allowed to have a share in the Bombing of London. Italian planes took part in many raids over London and some of them were shot down, such places as Westminster Cathedral and Buckingham Palace were damaged, numerous old churches with hundreds of years history attached to them, and the Guildhall, were among those which suffered. Numbers of historic sites and buildings have suffered in raids on London. What would the Italians say if they had seen their cathedrals wrecked as were those in Coventry, Canterbury and other such places. What has the Pope to say of these acts of sacrilege perpetrated against the beautiful buildings and monuments in Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Russia and Poland? As far as can be ascertained, the beautiful buildings, monuments and other historical things have been preserved in Rome, only military targets were hit. Great damage was done as the raid was on a fairly large scale, but the airmen were those who had been to Rome and knew where its historical sites were situated, and were instructed to see that they were not damaged. From all accounts so far received, it would appear that these instructions were carried out to the letter.

If there was any trace of deception in a raid of this nature, or that the people could admit that they did not know it would take place, then we fall to see it.

Hitler and his cronies were the ones who started total warfare. Total warfare takes everything in its stride, with no regard to creed or suffering, civilian or soldier, all are trampled if they get in its way or attempt to hinder it. Such was the plan of collaboration that Mussolini and the Italian people agreed upon. When they are repaid in their own coin, they raise the most awful fuss.

It has been in the minds of numbers of people that the Pope had it in his power to have kept Italy out of the war, but that he did not use his influence, if he had such, to do so. Germany persecuted many members of the Catholic clergy and forbade them to hold services other than the type dictated by the State, and many of them were ill-treated along with members of other religious orders. The Papal State has its seat in the great City of Rome, in Italy, yet all the supposed influence of the Pope could not keep Italy out of the war, and what is worse, Italy was allowed to side in with a country that was persecuting the members belonging to the Papal regime. A country that was disregarding the worship of God in almost any form and was worshipping the idol Hitler, instead.

The people of the United Nations go forth in a crusade to free the people who have been trampled upon by Italy and Germany, so that they may enjoy freedom from want, freedom from fear, freedom of religion and freedom of speech. They seek no territory but their own, and in those countries of the Axis they seek to free the people who have been oppressed by their fanatic leaders. The hope is that out of all this chaos, a world of free and peace loving people will emerge. This is what the Pope has been asking all through the war, for peace. Peace can only come when those who will not abide by the rules of peace, are exterminated. In the process of extermination much suffering will be seen as the innocent and the guilty will suffer and it is only to be expected that the war will be brought unpleasantly close to the Vatican. That fact is to be deplored, but there can be no deception, when the fact is so well known.

A spotless reputation may be gained in two ways: By never sinning; by never being caught at it.

Whatever his other troubles may be, the "points" system of rationing clothing will never worry Mohandas K. Gandhi.

Mussolini is Out

THE report on Sunday that Mussolini had resigned as premier of Italy, came as a bombshell, but a pleasant one at that. It has been known for some time that there has been resentment against the Fascist regime in Italy, and that the Germans in Italy have been treated with much disrespect. Therefore, it seems that the resignation of Benito should not really be a great surprise. The crumbling of Italy's defences and its empire have all led up to the state of affairs that evidently resulted in the sudden upheaval of the Italian Cabinet.

Hitler's meeting with Mussolini recently, evidently required further large sacrifices from Italy, which Mussolini did not feel he could grant on his own hook. He therefore referred the whole matter to the King, and the Cabinet was called to make a decision. They apparently could not agree, so a new premier was appointed by the King in the person of Marshall Badoglio, who it appears had the entire Cabinet and Mussolini put under House Arrest. The King, Victor Emmanuel, read a proclamation to the people of Italy, in which a declaration of the facts was given and the announcement of the new premier was made. Martial law was proclaimed throughout Italy. The intention was given that Italy would continue the war against the United Nations. It is thought, however, that Italy may eventually capitulate to the terms of the United Nations in unconditional surrender.

That this state of affairs may have the effect of causing the collapse of the Germans is not thought feasible, as the Germans are in a much worse position than Italy, and will no doubt choose to fight to the last. This may take some considerable time.

Ration coupons will not be required when buying those kinds of meat which Mr. Isley designated as "butcher's offals." However, serving them in restaurants on meatless Tuesdays is forbidden. That's awful.

The Cartier Scandal

THE recent events in the Cartier election preliminaries as brought out in the Federal House by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F., that padding of the voters' lists and corrupt practices are being resorted to, has caused quite a stir. So much of a stir that a complete investigation is taking place to see if these facts have any foundation. Immediately the matter was brought before the House, Premier King gave assurance that it would receive immediate attention. Other members in the House took it as a reflection on every member, and expressed the thought that any member might be there under false pretences, if the matters referred to by Mr. Coldwell were taking place on such a wide scale as he inferred to be the case.

It was stated that a large number of non-existent persons were placed on the voters' list at Cartier, and small children were listed as adults with adult occupations. Such practice, if true, could easily give extra votes to candidates to which they would not be entitled and may swing the election in favor of any one party.

It has been announced that a whole army of enumerators has been sworn in to make a house to house canvass of the district to try and discover any irregularities. If such is found, the guilty persons will be punished according to law.

A stigma of this nature can reflect much discredit on the Government in power and may have dire consequences in the result of the election, even though it is cleared up. To the credit of Premier King, he wasted no time in seeing that an investigation into the affair was started. According to the remarks of the Returning Officer for the district, he was aware that something was being done to add names to the list that should not have been there, but he was of the opinion that this would be straightened out when the list was revised at the allotted time given for those to add to, or have taken from, names that they considered should, or should not, be there. But it would seem that a stricter adherence to the regulations should have been observed than this.

The results of the investigation will be awaited by all, as its political significance is such that will show that greater care should be taken in the selection of persons chosen for the compiling of election material. The ballot is a vital part of Democracy and should be carefully guarded that capital is not made of the secrecy in voting, and that only those who have the right, are allowed to cast a vote.

NEVER AGAIN!
 We must solemnly resolve that in the future we will not tolerate the economic evils which breed poverty and war—

NICHOLAS FARLINGER (continued): The coming up was most laborious. The crew consisted of powerful Canadians, a class by themselves, and whose right shoulder blade was calloused by pushing at the poles. At some of the rapids four horses led at one, eighteen were used, aided by a windlass at the point. Turning the points was the great struggle. I remember one trip when my uncle ordered all the Irish immigrants to stay in the hold, so he might have a clear view, and when one old woman attempted to come up, she was pushed back. Each man had a small hatchet at his waist to cut the towrope in case the current was too strong for the animals, which were occasionally dragged in and drowned. The ascent was made by the bank, the land—had a rope sometimes made in a week. The first steamer was the Rob Roy.

In 1838, when the men were all away on the Chateauguay, the Irish Catholics on the other side proposed to come and seize the land—had actually allotted the farms. There would have been nothing to prevent them had it not been that the U. S. Government had sent a company to maintain the neutrality, and having got word that Captain (Montgomery) marched them down on the night and fired to the Lines and kept them there until morning. The soldiers were bitter after the Catholics and would have fought stoutly had they come which they prudently did not do.

The first settlers in Fort Covington were most superior men—intelligent and enterprising but their sons with a few exceptions have been failures. Our range road was cut out on the line which did not suit Davidson, and when he got the government grant he refused to pay the farmers unless they made a new end and bent it so as to come out at his store. He was a most selfish and overbearing man.

McCauley of Glenarry, cut out a great deal of timber in this section.

WILLIAM SCHRYVER: My father belonged to Albion, Vt. and left there in 1817 in search of a new location. He settled on the broken point of Dundee, made a clearing and built a shanty. In March 1818 he brought my brother and the family in a sleigh. He had no live-stock, but bought a cow afterwards. The shanty had a stick chimney and the trees could be seen waving overhead from the fireside. An American, named Bagely was on J. Y. Cameron's farm at the time he came, and there was another American, Sebastian, near Aubrey's Corners. A Canadian, Jerome, lived on Bannock's place, and Sandy McGowan, an uncle of the Stevens, was either on their lot or came soon after my father. He was the most even-tempered man I ever knew. When he would come into our home and found us at a meal, he would say, "I need not ask how ye are." The oak had been cut before my father came, and there were stumps of some 4 feet across. The trees were past belief on the hollow at the butt, 8 feet across. Our sole living for many years was potato, and could only go to the Fort by travelling over trees felled lengthwise. The spring after we came an Indian appeared and drove off our cow in payment of taking up the land. Father was out at the time, but he followed and got the cow. He then took out a regular lease for 999 years for 200 acres. 50 of these were afterwards given to Farlinger in exchange for 50 on the south side of the road. Old Davidson was hated by the settlers for his meanness and overbearing ways, but his wife was the best woman I ever knew. My first school master and, I think, the first in our settlement, was Hector McRae from Glenarry. He was addicted to drink and so terribly severe that I vowed I would thrash him when I grew up. He went back to Glenarry where he got a farm and was, I think,

SECRET OF SUCCESS

Mrs. Wade is a successful historian. For over thirty years she has been writing the history of the Big Chute—and getting this history published, too. Another feature that puts her ahead of some historians is that a good many people read every word she writes. And they like to read her history; this sends her away out in front of many more people read only because they think they should.

Around the Big Chute, which is not big at all, but only a very small village, nobody thinks of Mrs. Wade as being an historian. They take her for granted as a wife and mother who makes good potato pies. It is well known of course that once a week she turns in a handful of "personals" that appear in the newspaper of the nearby town under the heading of Big Chute News. Everybody in the village, who is old enough to see, gives close attention to the half-column of Big Chute News sometime during the week, although they don't all subscribe to the paper, copies of which circulate on fairly definite schedules from one house to another.

There are there are over five thousand historians like Mrs. Wade, although not all so good. They are the district correspondents to the weekly and smaller daily newspapers. Unknown outside their districts and not recognized in their districts as historians, these people have what every ambitious author longs for—an absolutely loyal following of readers. As a class the historians of the "personals" stand in the very first rank, according to the surveys of who reads what in the newspapers. They have the secret of literary success: they write about their readers.—The Printed Word.

AMAZING ANTICS BY THE AUTHORITIES

Newspapers this week carried the stories of two young men, both in their teens, whose only crime was that had squeezed into the air force under age.

At 16, Cliff Wherley of Elmwood, Ill., is a staff sergeant in the United States Air Force. At 16, he has won four decorations for brilliant action as a turret gunner on a Martin bomber in Africa. At 16, he is being sent home to his father and mother because he is "too young to be a soldier."

Then there is the story of Patrick O'Reilly of Rangoon, Burma. Patrick escaped to England and enlisted in the R.A.F. but they found out he was 15 and put him to work as an air raid warden in the Battle of Britain. Now that he is old enough he has been accepted in the R.A.F. After training in England and Arizona, U.S.A., he is now in Toronto waiting to be posted to another station.

Amazing that we should have young men so imbued with the spirit of freedom that they lie about their age to get the opportunity to fight and die for it. More amazing still is that these young men should be sent home on learning of their age, the American after travelling thousands of miles to win decorations for bravery and the Burmese after travelling thousands of miles to enlist.

With such incidents as these it is amazing to watch the antics of some young men who avoid getting their call and when they do "get out of going."—Bowmanville Statesman.

WEEK AT OTTAWA

Parliament on the verge of adjournment has been a dynamo of high voltage. Members anxious to get back to their offices and their farms have been working steadily and indefatigably to finish bills and estimates. Of first importance has been the final passage of the war appropriation bill of $3,890,000,000 which embodied in a general way the whole war effort or at least the major part of it. The bill has been discussed off and on for twelve weeks. Now the money appropriation needed for the armed services and war equipment and supplies is approved. The amended Farmers Creditors Arrangement Act has been of primary interest to western farmers but it is at the same time of interest to all Canadians. The whole nation has in a sense a stake in the prairies. A number of Western members made a strong effort to have the legislation broadened out into a present and future means of scaling down farmers debts in relation to the changing values of farm lands. The minister of finance, Mr. Isley, however, would not accept this open-ended type of legislation which would, he said, destroy the credit of the farmers. The bill provides means of reducing debts of very hard pressed farmers, but there can be only one proposal for adjusting a farmer's debt. The legislation is of an "emergency" kind to help keep efficient farmers on the land and thus increase production needed in wartime. In the act which has been in operation since 1934 proposals for cutting down debts were heard by boards of review. In the new legislation courts will take the place of the boards, thus ensuring, it is held, greater consistency. There will be a right of appeal to an appeal court judge. Some Western members have been urging the government to put farm products prices on a "parity" basis, and have also asked for crop insurance. The government has, however, held tight to the principle of helping without assuming wardship of the farmers. It looked as if there would develop quite a row over censorship regulations. There was considerable discussion in the house but explanations quietly and politely given took the edge off the attack. Censorship does of course mean restrictions on the liberties of the individual, rights which are carefully guarded. The point raised by Mr. Graydon, and others in the house was that restrictions should be kept at a minimum consistent with national security. Censorship was concerned only with the prosecution of the war, the house was informed by General LaFleche, the minister whose department administers censorship. It didn't concern itself with civilian matters which had no relationship with the war. There was quite close liaison between the censorship officials of the United Nations, although there was no joint organization on censorship. General LaFleche apologized to a member whose mail had been opened by a regional censor. Opening of letters going to members of either house of parliament was against explicit instructions. It has, however, happened a number of times.

Considerable heat was engendered in the debate on whether the Communists, Jehovah's Witnesses and other bodies declared illegal under the Defence of Canada Regulations should have the ban raised from them. It wasn't a simple matter of saying that Russians are our allies and that Canadian Communists should therefore be allowed to (Continued on page 7)

The production of food for our boys overseas, our Allied Nations and the workers of Canada is one of the most important of all the Home Front services.

The farmers of Quebec are doing an excellent job in maintaining farm production for war, despite manpower deficiencies. The low cost electrical power supplied by The Shawinigan Water & Power Co. enables the farmers of Quebec to counter the shortage of hired help.

ALLIES ARMY TO BE IN ITALY IN 10 DAYS, SAYS SENATOR

Springfield, Ill.—The prediction that "we'll be in Italy within 10 days with a pretty fair size army" was made by U. S. Senator Scott W. Lucas (D-Ill.) a member of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee. "I don't think Italy will be in the war long," Lucas predicted in an interview. "I think she will collapse, but not so with Germany. It's victory or destruction with the Germans, and they know it." The war "will last a minimum of two years—maybe four years," he said. "We are just entering the crucial phase now." He said he was speaking of the Pacific as well as the European phase of the war.

EXTRA MEAT FOR MEDICAL CASES

Extra meat rations for medical cases will not be provided except in cases of diabetic or colic diseases, the Ratio Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has announced. Applications, accompanied by a doctor's certificate, may be sent to the nearest local ration board. Diabetics who have already surrendered sugar coupons will not be required to present a second doctor's certificate when applying for extra meat rations. It is stated that the maximum extra ration will be three slice coupons per person, per week.

TASTY RECIPES ...

The following recipes are prepared by The Home Service Dept. of The Canada Starch Company Ltd. and will provide several suggestions for summer dishes, which will conserve on sugar. Tempering dishes are required during the hot weather and the housewife requires something that does not need the building of a too hot fire.

Devilled Egg Salad with Tomatoes
6 shelled hard-cooked eggs
1-4 cup eggless mayonnaise
1-2 tsp. salt
Dash pepper
Dash cayenne
1-4 tsp. dry mustard
1 tbsp. chopped olives or finely-chopped onion
4 to 6 small peeled tomatoes
1 cup cottage cheese
Cut each hard-cooked egg in half. Remove yolks carefully, place in a bowl and add salad dressing and seasonings. Blend smooth. Re-stuff each eggwhite half with this mixture and decorate with paprika. Peel tomatoes (by blanching) and slice. Place two stuffed egg halves in nests of crisp lettuce on each of six chilled salad plates; arrange tomato slices, overlapping, beside them. Top tomato slices with cottage cheese and garnish with parsley sprigs. Serves 6.

Baked Rhubarb
Tem. 350 deg. F. Time 30 minutes.
4 cups diced rhubarb
1-2 cup white sugar
1 tsp. lemon juice
1-4 tsp. cinnamon (optional)
1-2 cup Crown Brand corn syrup
Combine the rhubarb, sugar, lemon juice and cinnamon; place in a greased 1 1/2 quart casserole. Over all pour the Crown Brand corn syrup. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) until tender—about 30 minutes. Rhubarb baked in this manner does not break up, and retains its colour to a greater extent than when cooked on top of the stove. Serves 6.

Nutbrown Cup Cakes
Tem. 375 deg. F. Time about 20 min.
1-2 cup shortening
1-2 cup sugar
1-3 cup Crown Brand corn syrup
2 eggs, beaten

The Children's Corner ...

THE AMAZING ALPACA
If you should climb 16,000 dizzy feet above the sea to the lofty tablelands of Chile or Peru where some majestic peak of the Andes—Giant of the Western Star—Looks from his throne of clouds. Over half the world you would find very few other creatures to share the solitude with you. But look! Do you see those gray and tan figures over there against the background of giant cliffs? At first they look no larger than mice, but as they draw nearer they turn into woolly sheep-like animals. The size of a deer, and it almost takes your breath away to watch them scamper sure-footedly over boulders, up steep crags, and along yawning gorges with as much confidence and speed as if they were trotting along a modern American highway!

These are the alpacas—amazing alpacas we might well call them—related closely to the camel and the llama. The coat of this unusual height loving creature, sometimes two feet long, enables the hardy alpaca to endure the snow storms and icy winds of his lofty home. The alpaca is extremely alert to dangers, and Nature helps him overcome many difficulties. His cushioned feet, with their hard curved toe-nails help him to climb the steep rocky peaks with ease and safety; his long flexible camel-like neck and pointed muzzle enable him to reach herbage growing on high ledges; and his strong teeth help him to chew the tough leaves and stalks; while his queerly constructed stomach—like that of his camel cousin—with its many tiny pocket-like reservoirs for liquid, makes it possible for him to endure both thirst and hunger for long periods when violent storms make it impossible to get food and drink. And so we see a wonderful example of how the great Creator has fitted this queer creature for life at an altitude that would soon make us quite ill.

DAHLIA'S WHATNOTS

CAROLINE CHISHOLM

Caroline, while still young, lost her father, but his place was well filled by her mother, a woman of great resolution, and perception, and whose policy led her to think that she should not only believe God's truth but also God's will. Caroline's rearing is described thus: She became not only imbued with the highest principles, but also acquainted with the principles in practice. She came to be poor, and the sick, soothed the distressed and this at an age when girls usually have not learned to think seriously of life's realities.

When she was 19 she married Captain Chisholm of the Madras army. Two years afterwards they went out to India, and then Mrs. Chisholm began her life of practical philanthropy. She found a number of the children, sometimes orphans, about the barracks in a way which as they grew up, led to the worst moral crimes. Immediately grappling with this evil, Mrs. Chisholm started a girls' school where, besides the usual subjects, housekeeping was taught. The matron selected for "The School of Industry" could not read, so all the reports had to come through the scholars, of whom a committee was chosen to decide on the duties to be performed. A strict account was kept by the little girls of the money spent on food, utensils, clothing, firing, and wages. Another committee of the pupils had charge of the stores, weighing out and charging for the supplies as they were consumed. Discussions were conducted daily as to the bill-of-fare, and the loss sustained by the several modes of cooking—boiling, baking and roasting, the last, of course, being done in those years when there was no fire in the house. The new ration book has a grey cover, in contrast with the present book's green cover. Another difference is that tea, coffee and sugar coupons which now bear on their backs the dates on which they become valid, will not carry this information.

NOTE: If corn syrup is temporarily unavailable, omit from recipe and increase sugar to 3-4 cup; also increase sour milk or buttermilk to 1-1-4 cups.

Lemon Snow
1-3 cups boiling water
1-3 cup sugar
1-3 cup Crown Brand corn syrup
Few shavings lemon rind
3 tsp. Benson's or Canada corn starch
1-8 tsp. salt
2 tsp. cold water
1 to 2 tbs. lemon juice
2 egg whites
Make a syrup of water, sugar, corn syrup and lemon rind; place in top of double boiler. Place over direct heat, bring to boil and boil 5 minutes. Remove rind. Blend corn starch and cold water and pour gradually into syrup, stirring until thick. Now place over boiling water and cook 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from heat, add lemon juice and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Blend with rotary beater, turn into moistened moulds and chill. Serve with Custard Sauce, using (if convenient) the two-egg yolks remaining from the above recipe. Garnish with bright red jelly. Serves 6.

Many Canadians Lack Vitamin C In Their Diet

"During the winter and spring months many Canadians do not get enough Vitamin C in their diets," says Dr. L. B. Pett, Director of Nutrition Services at Ottawa.

Canadian studies show a high percentage of individuals examined between October and June to be deficient in Vitamin C, while during the months from June to October the percentage found deficient is negligible.

The reason for this is, of course, that during the summer months fresh fruits and vegetables rich in Vitamin C are readily available and more of them are eaten raw. It is not possible for the body to store up Vitamin C as the farmer can store up food for winter use. A daily supply to meet the daily needs of the body is absolutely essential.

Stored foods as potatoes, cabbage and turnips lose some of their Vitamin C during storage, so at this time of year it becomes doubly important that as little of the vitamin as possible is lost during the preparation of foods.

A good rule to remember is expressed in a jingle which runs—"Foods that give us Vitamin C Frequently eaten raw should be. But when you cook them, do be sure—Just till tender, not a moment more."

Trim excess fat from meat, melt in frying pan. Cut lamb in pieces for serving and roll lightly in flour seasoned with part of the salt and pepper. Sauté onion in fat then add flour and meat and cook till golden brown. Turn into a casserole. Add mushrooms, salt, sugar, pepper, hot water and tomatoes. Cover and cook till golden brown. Turn into a casserole. Add mushrooms, salt, sugar, pepper, hot water and tomatoes. Cover and cook in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F., until meat is tender, about 1-1-2 hours. Remove cover during last half hour. Serve with baked potatoes, cooked macaroni, spaghetti or noodles.

IF THEY HAD KNOWN AT BALACLAVA!

Toronto.—Two-way vocal communication of commands would have averted a military tragedy such as the charge of the Light Brigade at Balacava in the Crimean War, George L. Long of Montreal, declared here.

Long, assigned to train R.C.A.F. recruits in enunciation of vocal sounds, said now that two-way communication is in vogue "it is imperative that speech training be efficiently taught to crews of planes and tanks because this is an important factor in the carrying out of commands in what can be mildly described as indescribably noisy warfare."

Ration Book 3 To be Issued In August

New Book Will Show Some Slight Changes

Ration Book No. 3 will be distributed some time between August 15 and the end of the month, it was announced last week. Distribution of the new books will be carried out in the same manner as the issuing of Book No. 2 last February. The book will be valid for eight months instead of six as was the case with the two former books. It was explained that the two-month extension was arranged to avoid the necessity of having to distribute Book No. 4 in the winter months when country dwellers, especially, would be seriously inconvenienced by impassable roads and other weather conditions.

Though Book No. 3 will be in the hands of the public before the end of next month, Book No. 2 should be retained because the validity of some of the coupons will not expire before November 18.

The new ration book has a grey cover, in contrast with the present book's green cover. Another difference is that tea, coffee and sugar coupons which now bear on their backs the dates on which they become valid, will not carry this information.

Some Helpful Hints

A Deodorizer

Removing Paint

If sandpaper is used to removing old paint, dampen the sandpaper with benzine to get quick results.

Raisins

To prevent raisins from sticking to the food chopper, heat the chopper in boiling water before running the raisins through it.

The Piano

If one keeps a piano in a wet or humid climate it is well to keep a small bag of unslack lime inside the case to prevent rusting of the strings.

Washing Embroidery

Place in cold water, lightly blue, and then add the juices of a lemon. Boil for about half an hour, rinse in cold water and hang in the open air to dry.

Jelly Jars

There will not be so much breakage of jelly jars if they are heated, then set on a cloth wrung out of hot water and the jelly or fruit poured in slowly.

Colored Silks

Colored silk fabrics require care when washing. Do not allow it to become real soiled before laundering. Add a little salt to cold water to prevent the color from running.

Falling Hair

Salt is a good remedy for falling hair. Rub it well into the scalp and also add salt to the water when washing the hair. Pure olive oil rubbed into the scalp every night is also good.

Chamois Gloves

When washing chamois gloves use soap lather with several drops of ammonia. Put on the gloves and rub in the lather as if washing the hands, then wipe them dry with a linen cloth.

Polishing Damp Shoes

No matter how damp boots and shoes may be, they can be polished in a few minutes if a drop or two of kerosene is added to the blacking. This will also prevent the leather from cracking.

Varnished Surfaces

Furniture varnish can be protected if a piece of oilcloth is cut the same size of a small dolly and placed under the centrepiece on which a plant stands. The table is thus protected from moisture.

New Variations For Popular French Dressing

A well seasoned French dressing adds just the right touch to raw vegetable salads. The trick in using French dressing is a light hand in tossing salad ingredients and dressing together. The dressing should be added just before serving and only enough dressing should be used to give the vegetables a shiny appearance.

This basic recipe for French dressing and its variations comes from the testing kitchen of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

French Dressing

1 tsp. sugar
1-2 tsp. dry mustard
1-2 tsp. salt
1-2 tsp. chopped onion or 1 clove garlic, cut in three pieces
1-4 tsp. paprika
1-2 cup vegetable oil
1-4 cup vinegar

Place all ingredients in a fruit jar, adjust cover and shake well. Let stand in refrigerator before serving. When well seasoned remove garlic. Always shake well before using and serve cold.

Variations:

1. Add 2 tsp. chopped parsley, 1 hard-cooked egg, chopped, and 1-4 cup chopped cooked beets. Serve with plain lettuce salad.
2. Add 1-4 cup tomato ketchup.
3. Add 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce and a dash of tabasco.

ALASKA HIGHWAY IS OFFICIAL NAME

The Canadian and United States governments have agreed that the highway from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Fairbanks, Alaska, shall be given the official name "Alaska Highway." The decision was reached by an exchange of notes dated July 19 and made public recently by the External Affairs Department.

Canning Hints For Cherries

Directions For Use of Sugar and Sugarless Canning Given

Cherries are ripe and, if canned now, will bring a taste of summer into many winter meals. Either sugarless canning or canning in the usual way in syrup will give successful results. Perhaps you will want to do some with and some without sugar this year. If so, plan to use the cherries you can in syrup as canned fruit and the sugarless ones for pies and puddings.

Here are some points that will be of help when you are canning cherries.

Syrup For Canning

For sweet cherries, the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, recommends a syrup made in the proportion of one cup sugar to two cups water. This amount will be sufficient for three pints of cherries. For sour cherries, a syrup in the proportion of one cup of sugar to 1 1/2 cups of water is advised.

Processing

If cherries are to be processed in the oven, they should be precooked in the syrup for five minutes, then packed hot in sterilized sealers. If processing is to be done in the boiling water bath, steam or pressure cooker, the cherries may be packed into the sterilized sealers and the boiling syrup added.

Processing times for cherries canned with sugar are:
Boiling water bath: 20 minutes.
Oven (for glass sealers): 20 minutes at 275 Fahr.
Pressure cooker: 10 minutes at 5 pounds pressure.

These times are given for pint sealers. Quarts require five minutes longer in boiling water bath and steam cooker, ten minutes longer for oven processing.

Canning Without Sugar

If cherries are canned without sugar, crush part of the cherries in the bottom of the preserving kettle, add enough water to keep the fruit from burning, then add the rest of the cherries. Heat slowly until the juice is extracted. Pack hot into sterilized sealers. The fruit should be packed quite solidly and there should be enough juice to fill the sealers. Processing times are the same as those given for cherries canned in syrup.

Canning Corner

By Laura C. Pepper, Chief, Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture

At the very top of the list of Vitamin C-rich foods stand black currants. Even when they are cooked or canned they take precedence over tomatoes and citrus fruits as a source of this important vitamin, according to Nutrition Services. Red and white currants are also excellent sources of Vitamin C. Not many of us will be able to spare sugar to make currant jelly this year, but in any case we'll get best value from fruit and sugar by canning our currants or making them into juice. They will appear next winter in pies, and puddings, as sauces and the modern version of Grandmother's black currant tea. Here then are directions, recommended by the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture for canning currants, red, white or black and with or without sugar.

Method 1—With Sugar

Wash and stem currants, pack into hot, sterilized sealers. Fill sealers with boiling syrup made in the proportion of 1 cup sugar to 1 1/2 cups water and boiled 5 minutes. Adjust sterilized rubbers and partially seal. Process—
Boiling water bath: pints 20 minutes, quarts 25 minutes
Oven 275F: pints 35 minutes, quarts 45 minutes
Steam cooker: pints 35 minutes, quarts 40 minutes
Pressure cooker—pints or quarts 10 minutes at 5 lbs. pressure.

Remove from sterilizer as soon as processing time is up. Complete the seal immediately. Invert sealers for a few minutes to test for possible leakage.

Method 2—Sugarless

Wash and stem currants. Crush part of the fruit in the bottom of the preserving kettle, add rest of fruit and just enough water to prevent burning. Heat slowly to extract juice. Pack in hot sterilized sealers and finish as in method 1. Extra processing time need not be given, as fruit is pre-cooked before packing.

Black Currant Juice

Wash and stem the currants. Measure into preserving kettle and crush. Add water, using 2 cups water to 3 cups currants. Bring slowly to boiling point and boil 5 minutes. Strain through a jelly bag. Pour into sterilized sealers, adjust sterile rubbers and partially seal. Process in hot water bath at simmering temperature for 30 minutes. Remove from water bath and complete the seal immediately.

"We would if we could, BUT...."

Many people are greatly inconvenienced because they cannot get a telephone. We are sorry that this should be so, but it is part of the price of fighting a war.

Copper, rubber, steel and other vital telephone materials are also war materials. Without them we cannot expand telephone facilities. We must rigidly conserve our fast-dwindling margin of spare equipment in order that requirements essential to the war or to public health, welfare or security may be met.

And so applicants for telephones who cannot qualify as war workers with duties making a telephone essential, or who are not entitled to service in the interests of public health or public safety, must be denied. Very often, business subscribers asking for additional telephones can be shown how a re-arrangement of those telephones they have will take care of their additional needs.

Everything possible is being done to make the most effective use of present facilities. We regret that so many would-be subscribers must be denied service.

WAR TIME PHOTOGRAPHY

A list of places situated in the Province of Quebec where photography of any kind was prohibited, except by special permission from military authorities, was published in September 1942.

According to a recently-adopted amendment to the War Time Measures Act, military authorities have added to this list the two shores of the St. Lawrence River, from Cornwall in Ontario, to the mouth of the river, as well as the Saguenay River.

The new prohibition concerns principally passengers on vessels navigating the St. Lawrence and not only is taking of photographs prohibited, but possession of photographic apparatus is likewise banned while on the St. Lawrence or Saguenay.

The Province of Quebec Tourist and Publicity Bureau will be pleased to forward, on request, copies of the new amendment to persons who may be interested in obtaining them.

TEA IN NORWAY

New York.—Cato Hambro, 32, son of Dr. C. J. Hambro, former head of the Norwegian Parliament, said that after three years of occupation the Germans control every phase of civilian life in Norway.

Hambro escaped from Norway a few weeks ago. Gestapo officials had suspected him of undercover work, and he was about to be arrested when he escaped, hiding in a forest near the Swedish border and crossing over at night.

He was interviewed here while enroute to Princeton University to serve as secretary to his father, who is a professor there. Hambro said tea costs $175 a pound and butter $3.50 a pound when there is any. He said only about two per cent of the population were followers of Quisling.

A WEEKLY EDITOR LOOKS AT Ottawa

By Jim Greenblatt

This introduces, from the nation's capital, a new series of weekly letters, designed exclusively for community papers of Canada and that vast audience of readers which never gets out to a night club. For the rancher, farmer, fruit grower, miner; the semi-urban and rural people whose feet are directly and indirectly rooted in the soil of Canada.

Your own editor among others has been annoyed to high heaven with the flood of material which comes from Ottawa, much of which he cannot use. Like you he's a busy person running that old paper you think so much of, whether you agree with him on politics or not. And this weekly feature, for your editor's sake and especially you, I hope will fill the bill.

The Wartime Information Board has been made aware that readers of weekly papers are entitled to something in their own language from Ottawa, and so accepting this assumption would be interesting to get your collective reaction through your editor.

If you have any particular problem which has its anchor in Ottawa, and you want to know what makes it tick, feel free to drop a line this column. Maybe it can be interesting for you. Possibly there are thousands of others who want to know about the same thing. But it would be better if none of us get too personal or too political. We'll leave that sort of thing to the politicians.

This column to justify itself should be a national mirror of the home town. I don't suppose you are much interested in the fact that Ottawa looks really beautiful this time of year. So is your own place out east and west. But you might like, occasionally, to hear of strange people, strange faces, strange ideas, all of which makes Ottawa so intriguing even if you have to stand in line to eat.

There could be little sidelights, like seeing the Soviet fliers recently; the fellows who flew from Moscow to Ottawa—just like that. I watched them in the hotel lobby, in black knee length boots, loose fitting tunics, rakish fur caps; smart earnest looking fellows who looked as if they had a mission in life. Undoubtedly their's is a stirring Germany. They were watching the smartly dressed girls in and out of uniforms; men of our armed forces, civilians and seemed to be measuring the standards of democracy as against Communism. I got a kick out of watching them struggle with the jammed hotel cafe.

Well, that's part of Ottawa. A little of this, a little of that about government activities, legislation, Parliament, none of it too wearying—but informative.

Just recently heard Hon. Humphrey Mitchell in the House of Commons justify the government's manpower policy. When he said that 5,100,000 men and women out of a total population of 8,720,000 were in the armed forces, or at work, this in the face of it speaks mightily well for Canada at war. The Opposition calls it a "muddle". Well, after listening in on the debates for weeks on end, it becomes increasingly clear that Canadians have got to think and interpret for themselves a little, too. We'll try to unravel things if possible, always keeping in perspective the national picture and that millions of others have problems and ideas, too.

Letters in from editors all over Canada relative to this new service reveal that people in Canada are pondering these days and want to take the works of the clock apart themselves. One editor suggests we dig in with both hands into a Health Insurance measure now pending which he claims would be foisted on us by a medical monopoly, and which in its present form would cost the people plenty.

Air Raids and Civilian Defense

By Bevan Monks, Anti-Sabotage Division, The Shawinigan Water and Power Company

Can it happen here? We have all wondered if it is possible for the enemy to conduct an air raid on Canada. It is a reasonable question and everyone has the right to guess the answer. There are those who are certain that "it can never happen here," and we all hope they are right, but there are many who think otherwise.

A growing number of us are inclined to agree with the latter school of thought but naturally we all hope that we are wrong.

In the fact of this apparent paradox it is well to examine and assess all available information on the subject before forming a definite opinion. Either way, however, it can only be an opinion because our enemies are the only ones who know definitely and it may be that they have not yet made the final decision. If they have, it is possible that the Allied Secret Services either have knowledge of it now or may learn it later. It is hardly probable that the latter would advertise their knowledge of any detailed information because our enemies would change their plans and then our information would be of no use to us. Furthermore, if our Government is so certain of the enemy at the last minute we may gain extra time for organizing our defenses while he is making fresh plans.

The following information is offered for what it is worth in the hope that it may show a very real danger against which immediate defenses should be set up.

1. The enemy has accomplished so many things that were at one time considered "impossible," that one hesitates to state that anything else is "impossible" for them to do. They showed us that the Magnet Line was not "invincible"; the Hood was not the "most powerful battleship in the world"; and the "Renown" and the "Prince of Wales" were not too powerful to be sunk by aircraft.

2. The people who are in the best position to have opinions have stated publicly by radio and in the press that there will definitely be raids on Canada and the United States before the end of the war. Both Dr. R. J. Cantow and Mr. James M. Landis, who are in charge of Air Raid Precautions in Canada and the United States respectively, are firmly convinced that enemy bombs will fall on North America in the near future. Both of these men are in the confidence of their Governments and are advised by the highest authorities of the Armed Forces. They have good reason to believe themselves as completely as they do.

3. The German and Italian radios have broadcasted promises of revenge on North America because of Canadian and American raids on Europe.

4. Tokyo raided by allied (U.S.) airmen. The significant fact about this is that they overcame more difficulties than German raiders would have in crossing the Atlantic.

5. Coming closer to home let us look at the St. Maurice Valley. The huge power and industrial development scattered along its length would provide tempting targets and within a comparatively short flying range in a convenient row and distance. Enemy raiders could fly either up or down the river and attack one after the other. Such a raid was conducted over Germany on May 16, 1943. The B.B.C. stated, "heavy bombers flew to Germany and hit two of the biggest dams in the country, in a blow at the sources of water power for industrial Germany. One dam holds 134,000,000 tons of water and the other 202,000 tons, and both of the dams were breached by our bombers. Water rushed into the valleys of the Ruhr and the Eder in heavy waves. The German high command, which is always slow to report reverses was forced to make an announcement of the devastating attack on the dams, the ensuing blow at the wheels of German industry, and the civilian casualties caused by it. One of the dams is the biggest water power producer in the Ruhr, while the Eder dam holds more water and is the largest reservoir."

There is no apparent reason to believe that this can be done in Germany with all its highly organized anti-air and fighter plane defenses and not in Canada.

8. It may also be worth mentioning in passing that North America has already been attacked. We know that submarines are active around both the East and the West Coasts plane in Southern Oregon. The bomb was examined and found to be of Japanese make. How it was dropped is uncertain but James M. Landis believes it may well have been released from a small Japanese seaplane which was carried on board a submarine to within flying distance of our shores.

Another recent newspaper report stated that an enemy plane has been seen within 200 miles of New York. This is of some interest to us because the majority of Quebec cities are nearer to Europe than New York is.

9. To the most sceptical these facts seem to suggest that, "It can happen here." If it does, some of our immediate families will be killed or injured, trapped in burning ruins or subjected to poison gases.

10. The size and destructive power of modern aerial bombs is such that there are bound to be some casualties and property damage. This can be reduced to a minimum, however, by the conscientious application of the precautions that have proved their effectiveness elsewhere and have been developed over a number of years of bitter experience. This is known as "Civilian Defense."

Helmets for Heroes Produced in Canada

Utility, not style, influences the manufacture of "derbies" for the Canadian army, according to an article on steel helmets in the C.I.L. Oval.

Today a Toronto plant produces as many as 3,000 helmets a day whereas not one was produced in Canada during World War I, the soldiers of the Dominion being outfitted when they arrived in England. Experts assert, however, that the helmets now being produced in Canada are superior both in strength and durability to those used in the 1914-18 period.

Subsidy for Farmers ...

(Continued from page 1) A small grain crop is in prospect in Eastern Canada, he said, and with the substantial increases in live stock and poultry on Eastern Canadian farms, which are being raised so as to meet the abnormal food demands from every direction, it is necessary that steps be taken at once to assure that sufficient feed be available for next winter.

Blistering Paint

Blistering of paint is usually the result of dampness, although it is sometimes due to excessive painting or sappy or resinous wood and the sun shining on it. If the cause is dampness, it must be thoroughly removed before satisfactory painting can be done. Usually the burning off of all the old paint is the best procedure.

General Giraud Visit to Montreal

France deserves all your affection. You who realize the cost of effort, who are aware of the trials and hardships of life, you fully understand that France today is suffering in body and spirit. The lot of a prisoner of war is a hard one. He knows not how long his incarceration will last.

These are the words of General Henri-Honore Giraud, commander-in-chief of French armies in Africa, and joint president with General Charles de Gaulle of the French Committee for National Liberation, when he addressed a distinguished gathering at the dinner tendered him by the City of Montreal.

"Canadian Army Overseas" Not Magical Phrase

"Canadian Army Overseas"—that familiar phrase. It is written by thousands of Canadians every day on envelopes addressed to their men on active service.

The fact that it does, can be credited to the Canadian Postal Corps and its organization. But the length of time required to get it there depends to a large extent on the sender.

T.C. 41 Sports at Chateauguay Barracks Softball Team Has Winning Streak—Score Fifth Place in Track and Field Meet

Highlights (and they are high) of the Centre softball team—Since the last edition of The Gleaner was published, the Centre softball team has played four league games, winning three of the four.

Monday night saw the army boys at home for a change. This time playing the Valleyfield Training Centre on the Levee Lodge diamond. This game ended like just another run on the ladder to that cup which is in the stakes for the winning team.

With the arduous work of cataloguing 1800 books nearing an end, the library housed in the Legion Canteen will be open for use of the personnel of the Centre in a very short time. The books will be catalogued under various headings, such as detective, mystery, romance, history, biography, religion, educational, reference, manuals and miscellaneous subjects, and the readers of the Centre will have full scope for their old moments of reading or in referring to the many reference books for necessary data that might be required from time to time.

Track and Field Meet

The track and field team invaded Three Rivers training centre Saturday afternoon, for the purpose of address is the number of the unit, according to postal officials. For instance, letters addressed to the Canadian Armoured Corps or to D Company, are inadequately addressed. There are many units in the Canadian Armoured Corps and there are many D Companies. The omission of the all-important personal regimental number causes less inconvenience and delay than the omission of the unit number, officials stated.

Private John No. 20 CASCTCA (RL) Canadian Army Overseas. Every day the staff handles more than 20,000 air letters alone and every day at least 600 of these have to be held out for correction of address.

There is a temporary period immediately after a soldier goes overseas, when "Canadian Army Overseas" is the official address, but as soon as a more detailed address is available, it should be used in full.

copping the majority of the honours in the track and field events. Due to a pressing business engagement, Lt. Phil Shaughnessy was unable to participate in several events which he no doubt would have been able to win. Checking distances for the shot putt and discus made at the meet with those made by Mr. Shaughnessy during practices, leaves no doubt in the minds of those following sports at this centre that such events would have been placed to the credit of Huntingdon. However, under the able coaching of Lt. Dave Peebles, the eleven entrants participating in the meet showed up very well. The principals were: Pte. H. Glashan who won the 440 yds. run, Pte. W. L. Gray running second to Sgt. Gerard Cole, the well known marathoner, in the 1 mile run; Cpl. A. Simatos third in the discus throw and the Huntingdon team running third in the 440 yds. relay. With a total of 10 points, the Huntingdon team took fifth place amongst twenty-four centres. The whole purpose of running such a meet was to have the winners and runners-up enter the Inter-Services Meet at Molson Stadium on August 11. Taking all in all, the Centre feels that the team made a very creditable showing.

Extensions and Library Certain extensions have recently been made to the Legion Canteen which will allow a greater use to be made of existing facilities on hand that could not be made heretofore. With a considerable quantity of easy furniture on hand, the two rest rooms will be open for use of the men and relatives. The rumpus room will have a billiard table, two ping pong tables, dart boards and sand bag games. It is hoped that the painting and other necessary work will be completed this week-end, which will permit the men to make use of the three rooms.

With the arduous work of cataloguing 1800 books nearing an end, the library housed in the Legion Canteen will be open for use of the personnel of the Centre in a very short time. The books will be catalogued under various headings, such as detective, mystery, romance, history, biography, religion, educational, reference, manuals and miscellaneous subjects, and the readers of the Centre will have full scope for their old moments of reading or in referring to the many reference books for necessary data that might be required from time to time. Much credit must be tendered to several officers wives and individuals of the Centre for giving their valuable time and experience in preparing the books for cross indexing and filing under proper headings.

Obituary

THOMAS HOOD 1842-1943

In one of the most eloquent and moving essays in the language of man, Cicero discourses on old age. He points out its advantages, its blessings, its contributions and closes with an affirmation of immortality. Cicero wrote his age concerned in his day nearly two thousand years ago when the exceptional life of man was a comparatively short span, probably one of forty to sixty years. But even today when the expectation of existence has been lengthened, it is rare for an individual to round out a century as did Thomas Hood, of Valleyfield. Much has been penned by historians and poets, on the infirmities, the miseries, the sadness of old age. But Thomas Hood lived happily and serenely, like a child, from day to day, looking forward with delight and eagerness to succeeding rising suns. He really never grew old either in body or mind until the last few weeks of his life when Mother Nature slowed his step and Father Time gently beckoned him to rest and assured him, as Wordsworth puts it: "But an old age, serene and bright And lovely as Lapland might Shall lead thee to thy grave." It would be expected that much could be written of such an unusual and lengthy career, incidents and events that reveal what kind of man Thomas Hood was, his Scottish ancestry, his travels, his years of hard work, the reward of his sunset, but even such an interesting biography could not adequately appraise his place in the community and district where he was known by every man, woman and child, or would such a book suitably estimate the form of his character or the charm of his personality. His life was guided and influenced by the sterling qualities and standards of another age; his presence and his very conversation were coloured by the grace and courtliness of another world. He was a lover of children and was at his best when, in his lovely flower gardens he was surrounded by female company whom he could present those blooms. The streets of Valleyfield will miss his familiar figure, his home will lose its ancient tenant, and his widow, companion of nearly fifty years, will remember him and say with the poet: "To me, fair friend, you can never be old For as you were when first your eye I eyed Such seems your beauty still." Thomas Hood never grew old and had spared the long drawn out and painful eye of death. He fell quietly asleep, and came to his grave "in a full age like a shock of corn cometh in his season." He has gone to join his fathers and may his couch rest his sturdy soul.

Robt. Young, Laraine Day Score in Powerful Drama "Journey For Margaret"

America's admirable love for children is dramatized with powerful beauty in "Journey For Margaret," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's screen adaptation of War Correspondent W. L. White's best-seller. This picture will show on Sunday and Monday, Aug. 1 and 2, at the O'Connor Theatre, with Robert Young and Laraine Day in the leads, and five-year-old Margaret O'Brien in the title role.

Appearing with this remarkable child is another year her junior, Billy Severn, also playing the part of a war orphan in bomb-torn London.

Young, as the war correspondent, brings to the screen what is perhaps the most dramatic characterization of his career. Miss Day, one of Hollywood's most accomplished young actresses, rises to new emotional heights as his brilliant wife, a journalist and lecturer.

The story begins with the arrival of Davis and his wife in London. They are immediately caught in a surprise air raid. Leaving Nora in their hotel suite, John goes to cover the raid. He rescued a four-year-old boy, Peter, from his bombed home. Returning to his hotel, he finds that Nora, who was about to have a child, has been severely injured during the raid. An operation saves her, but the doctor informs John that his wife can never have a child.

Nora returns to America, but Davis remains in London to complete his assignment. He takes Peter to a home for orphans established by Trudy Strauss (Fay Bainter) where he meets Margaret, another child orphaned by the war. Drawn irresistibly to the children, he adopts them and plans to take them to America. How he accomplishes this, makes an absorbing story.

There were four lucky fellows who passed, with a very high percentage. They were Scouts Jimmy Robb, Francis Galpeau, Elmer Christensen, and Arthur Brown. Let me say that you have done your work well. But most important of all, I must ask you to keep it up and do not forget what you have learned and practiced. Run over your notes and practice the various types of bandages, splints, etc., in order to satisfy yourselves in the knowledge that you will not easily forget the things that you have been taught you. You will thus be worthy of your badge.

BLIND MAN VICTIM OF VANCOUVER THUG

When James Craig, a blind resident of Vancouver, was walking home one night early this year, he was attacked by an unknown assailant. Craig, according to the report he gave to the police, was knocked down and held face downwards to the sidewalk while his assailant searched his pockets. The thing may have had a gun—Craig reports that a hard object was pressed into his back.

It was a very unpleasant experience for Craig, but not a very profitable one for the robber, for all he got was a black wallet containing a street car pass.

BLINDED BY BOMBS THEY BUILD BOMBERS

Blind persons are doing their bit in war factories, said Col. Arthur Evans, M.P., for Cardiff, South, speaking at Cardiff recently.

On a recent visit to an aircraft factory, he said, he was surprised to see a number of blind men on important work. They told him they had been blinded in the early days of the war. They had been to St. Dunstan's and were glad of the opportunity to contribute their quota to the war effort.

NOT FOR SONNY

The little guests at a party were being arranged in a group for a flash-light photograph. Seeing one little fellow who appeared rather awed, the photographer spoke to him kindly. "Cheer up, sonny," he said. "Smile at this little girl over here."

"Why should I?" he asked indignantly. "She's my sister."

A NEW FISH STORY

A man and a shark caught each other.

The man lived at a boatshed built over the water in one of the arms of Sydney Harbor. One night he wanted both to fish and to sleep, so he baited a hook and threw it out of his bedroom window and tied the end of the line round his waist. A mighty jerk during the night nearly dragged him through the window, and he produced a nine-foot black whaler shark and marks round his waist to prove his story.

Of the approximately 5,964,000 big game animals in the United States, 3,526,000 are white-tailed deer.
