It's a remedy that rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, and through it cleanses and invigorates the whole system. Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, and the worst Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, are perfectly and permanently cured by it.

Unlike the ordinary Spring medicines or sarsaparillas, the "Discovery" works equally well at all seasons. All the year round and in all cases, it is guaranteed, as no other blood medicine is. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

You pay only for the good you get.

Isn't it safe to say that no other blood-purifier can be "just as good?"

If it were, wouldn't it be sold so?

By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy perfectly and permanently cures Catarrh in the Head.

COUNTY NEWS.

North Barnston.

Sugar making is the order of the day here. The weather for the past week has been all that a sugar maker could desire; a large quantity of sugar has been made, but at the time of writing it is quite stormy which bids fair to bring forth another run of sap. The roads here are almost impassable. Mr. Moses Raymond presented her husband with a daughter on Wednesday April 19th.

Our school re-opened April 24th, after a short vacation under the management of Miss Nellie Bishop of this place. Several of the neighbors use the famous Grimm sugar arches manufactured at Montreal and they consider them far superior to any other. The cheese factory on A. W. Martin's farm will resume operations on the 8th of May.

Coaticook.

The Methodist church here is now lighted with electric light, which it is thought will in some respects be more satisfactory, yet more expensive than lighting with oil.

Mrs. Sylvester Lee went to Lawrence, Mass., last fall, and about the first of January Mr. Lee himself went there, intending to make that their home. About 1st of April Mrs. Lee died and Mr. Lee came back bringing the body hers for burial. Last week Mr. Lee was taken sick and died on Tuesday night. Mr. Lee was almost seventy years old and had been for a long time a resident of Coaticook.

They both had children by their first marriage and two by their last marriage, who will doubtless be cared for by relations of the deceased parents.

A large amount of sugar was made in this vicinity last week, and the weather continues cold and favorable for quite a good yield this week.

East Hatley.

A very unexpected death occurred on Sabbath morning. It was that of Mrs. Glen, a widow lady, who had been stopping for nearly three weeks at the home of Mr. H. Davis. She was ill about five days, although not considered dangerously so, and her friends were not notified until Saturday. Her brother Mr. Robert Dean of Minton, arrived Sunday morning just an hour or two too late to see his sister in life. Although she was among comparative strangers with the exception of her young daughter aged about 11 years whose care and devotion was a marvel to all who witnessed it, kind friends were not wanting to care for her tenderly throughout her illness, and to perform the last offices and shed the tear of sympathy for the orphaned children and the bereaved friends scattered in various parts of Compton and Hatley. Three children, the eldest a girl of 15, a boy younger and the one mentioned are left without a mother's care, the father Mr. A. Glen of North Hatley having died a number of years ago. She also leaves an aged mother, a sister and four brothers to mourn her loss.

Mrs. A. Parker returned from the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital in Boston about two weeks ago, having had a most successful operation performed in a very satisfactory manner. She has already regained nearly her usual strength and speaks in the highest terms of the Institute and the physicians and nurses in connection with it. Miss Lydia Heath, of St. Johnsbury, has lately been the GENTLEMEN.—Permit me through you to express my most grateful thanks to the executive committee of the Canadian Order of Foresters for the prompt payment of $1000, the amount my late husband was insured for in your order.

I also beg to thank the officers and members of your Court for their attention and kindness towards me in the hours of my affliction. May God bless and protect your order and may it long live to carry on its noble work.

North Hatley.

Changeable weather... A little less mud... Much cough medicine required.

Mr. Wilder Reed has been ill for several days, but is recovering. On Monday of last week Chas. Hawes and wife, F. Polkie and D. Bell left for Spring Hill, where they are employed by T. V. Reed.

Several painters are busily engaged on the new R. R. station here. In moving his slaughter house recently, Chas. Jackson with help killed 416 rats.

Mr. Elbridge Farmer has been visiting friends here for a few days. The funeral of Mrs. Alex. Glenn took place here on Tuesday the 25th inst. Rev. Mr. O'Hare, of North Hatley, officiated. Mr. Glenn had formerly been a resident of this place and much sympathy is extended to all the mourning ones especially the three orphaned children.

Marsboro.

The cry of cold weather has ceased and now the travelling through mud is unpleasant. We have lots of snow yet, especially in the valleys, but the singing of the birds is announcing that the summer is approaching. Lumbering around Lake Megantic is getting to be known especially in the States for the most of it is shipped there. Messrs. Pattee and Winslow are getting the new machinery in the mill so the whistle will be heard soon.

Canada can boast of its size and riches and yet the boys must go to the States to earn the dollars to keep the old people comfortable at home. The N. P. party will soon be turned out of their cushions for the boys of to-day are going to school and learning for themselves what to do.

Mr. Spence from Collingwood, Ont. gave us a rousing lecture on temperance. We must not drink the stuff any more.

North Barnston.

Last week was a veritable harvest for the sugar makers. Some men this spring have taken up a new line of business, viz., bankruptcy, and judging from appearances it has been brisk. The latest addition to this number is one of our worthy butchers who shows six hundred dollars liabilities and seven hundred dollars assets in book debts which in this place average ten cents on the dollar. We are sorry that this disease is so contagious. One peculiarity about this epidemic is that farmers do not contract it no matter how often they are exposed. It may be that some of them will become "bled white" by this last failure. Last week the house and outbuildings of Mr. Jno. E. Hicks were burned to the ground scarcely anything was saved. We understand the Insurance Company has not yet settled the claim but propose arbitration. We hope for the credit of the Company concerned, prompt payment will be made.

Windsor Mills.

A new novel soon to be added to "Harper's Franklin Square Library" is a novel by M. A. Bengough, entitled "In a Promised Land." The story is located chiefly in South Africa.

Following Mr. Howells' lead apparently, both Frank R. Stockton and Mrs. Frances Hogson Burnett have gone over to "The Ladies' Home Journal," and the most important works by these authors upon which they are now engaged, will shortly see publication in this magazine.

The current number of Harper's Weekly, published April 26th, well maintains its usual standard of excellence and timeliness, containing, besides a variety of other interesting matter, the following special attractions: Illustrations of the Naval Rendezvous at Hampton Roads, with descriptive article by Lieutenant J. D. J. Kelley, U. S. N.; a portrait and sketch of Hon. James C. Carter, apropos of his services in connection with the Behring Sea Court of Arbitration; an illustration and sketch of the new Gorham Art Gallery in Washington; an article by W. H. Bishop on Bradley's Columbia; illustrated; a portrait and sketch of the Duke of Veragua; and a graphic description of the city of Lisbon, by Armand Dayot, profusely illustrated.

The Methodist Magazine for May. The Editor begins in this number his series of papers (illustrated) on "Tent life in Palestine," describing journeys from Jaffa to Jerico, and Hebron to Damascus, which are announced to be more fully illustrated with engravings of sacred scenes than any other magazine series of the sort ever published in any country. Her Majesty's seventy-fourth birthday is commemorated by a paper on "Our Gracious Queen," with a number of excellent pictures of her favorite health resort. Of patriotic interest is a review of "Parkman's Great History of Canada," with portrait and other pictures. "Forty Years Among the Zulus" is a well-written missionary article, by Mr. J. R. Patterson. Rev. Dr. J. V. Smith gives one of his charming Cumberland sketches, "The Diamond in the Rough." J. W. Bengough the "Will Carleton" of Canada has a graphic narrative poem of the moral reclamation of a jail-bird, entitled "Made Whole." Archdeacon Farrar on "The Science of Preaching," and instalments of the serial stories, make up an excellent number.

A BORDER SHEPHERDESS. A ROMANCE OF ESKDALE. BY AMELIA E. BARR.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued. "But if the man you love is unworthy of you, Faith, I assure you that Renwick is not fit to latch the buckles on your shoes." "Still I have set him high as my heart, ma'am. If none but the worthy were loved, there would be many a starved heart in this world. I ken naething wrang o' Archie, and I dinna want to ken wrang o' him. Most folks have some faults." Then she turned from the table and looked steadily at Terres. "You have a true face, Miss Grieme; I think if you loved a man you would love the same man for life—him, and nae ither. It is sae wi' me, too." "You are quite right, Faith—him and no ither." "But, indeed, ma'am, you mustna think I am not grateful for your kindness, and for Lord Graeme's liking. We may be pleased with the offer we dinna think it right to tak'; and I'll no say but what I am vera much pleased, mair especial wi' your ain guide will in the matter." "And you will not listen to my brother then?" "Archie's voice is in my ear. I can hear nae ither voice for it." "Grieme would be good to this poor boy. Last night he was talking to me of the great surgeons in London and Paris who might do something for him." "That is the greatest temptation mortal man can give me; but folk mustna do ill for a chance of some possible good. God has plenty better roads than that one—and when Davie is a bit stronger, if there is help on earth for him he shall have it." Then Miss Grieme rose, and Faith turned from her work and stood beside her. Into her clear, steadfast eyes Terres looked with a long, questioning gaze. "I want such a friend as you could be, Faith Harribee; may I come and see you often?" "You'll be welcome, Miss Grieme; for there is this and that to talk about, without spending mair words on what it is useless to ever think of." "You mean we are not to speak again of Lord Graeme's love for you?" "That is just what I mean, ma'am. From me, one 'no' is as good as a hundred, and the thing I mean to-day I'd be likely to mean to the vera day o' my death." They were walking together down the garden as these words were uttered, and Terres did not answer them. She stepped into her carriage in a sudden gleam; and being quite unused to control her feelings, she made no effort to conceal the sadness and indifference which had taken possession of her. Faith thought she was offended, for to her farewell smile she made no return, save a slight movement of the head as she drove away. Yet nothing was further from the truth. She had received during her visit an insight into a life which she might have led. She was unhappy and occupied with her own reflection, and by force of long habit not able to put aside personal feelings even for the sake of those whom she really liked. Her dark face troubled Grieme as soon as she saw it. "You have been cross, Terres," he said, fretfully. "I might have known it. I dare say you have contrived to frighten Faith to death." "I was not cross with her. She is a grand woman, but she is not for you." He pulled two chairs to the hearth, and in her bonnet and mantilla she sat down, and reviewed her visit to Faith with him. Faith, however, refused to believe in Grieme's resolution. "A woman pater tired of saying 'no,' I shall not get tired of asking her to say 'yes.' I mean to marry Faith Harribee." "She will not marry you." "Yes, she will." "She told me she would marry that man who is farming Shepherd's Bush." "He won't farm Shepherd's Bush much longer. Thanks be! I have him under my hand, and he shall feel the weight of it." "I don't blame you. I wish I had Will Seaton under my hand." "Pooh! For what good? You would have a hard cry and then forgive him." "Would I? You know better." "Renwick is a weak, miserable creature. To think of such an animal pretending to the love of a woman like Faith Harribee! He is forever in some public house singing senesceles, rading, riding songs; he is never on the hills. Lately he has done nothing but dangle after Lauder's pretty daughter. Shepherd's Bush has gone to rack and ruin in his care." "If Faith knew these things!" "She shall know them. A score of tongues on every side shall tell her; and if, in spite of all warnings, she still marries him, then—" "Then what?" "She may sup the sorrow she is so fain and foolish to brew. I'll not lift a finger for Archie Renwick's wife." Unfortunately there was only too much truth in Grieme's accusations. But the heart as well as the understanding has its arguments, and Faith's heart found plenty of excuses for her lover that her understanding did not always approve. Archie's great temptation was one she did not comprehend, one of which she was only ignorant, and which therefore, she had no power to charm away. It lay in his hatred of Davie. He had, indeed, made spasmodic attempts to conquer the unnatural sin, but in spite of them he found his dislike and jealousy stronger and bitterer every day. And never is hatred so unreasonable and so pitiless as when it is nursed against helpless childhood. Cruel people do to babies whom they dislike such spiteful and barbarous injuries as they never would think of inflicting upon men. Therefore no hatred is so devilish and corrupting to the moral nature as the hatred cherished against the helpless. Archie himself was often terrified at the wicked thoughts which tormented him about the unfortunate boy whom he regarded as standing in the way of his prosperity. To find himself wishing Davie in the grave and to suddenly arrest his thoughts in the middle of some infamous scheme for compassing such a result, was a lamb—lamb can be sold for something—but a man is such a common creature. I am dying for a kind word, Faith. When will you have pity on me?" "I am the same as a married woman, lord. You should think shame o' your self to say such words. Let me pass you, for the lambs are cauld and hungry." "You are not the same as married, Faith. Renwick will never marry you. Mind what I say." "Then, lord, I'll think no kinder o' you for being sae ill a prophet. This is na a day for me to be minding myself, and I'll no speak another word on the matter." "Good-night then, Faith. You cannot prevent me from thinking about you." "Dinna mix me up wi' any ill thoughts, lord. Hae that much care o' me, ony way."

CHAPTER VIII. FAITH'S DARK HOUR. No more thy life by loss instead of gain. Not by the wine drunk, but the wine poured forth. Yet this one thing I learn to know Each day more surely as I go— That I am glad the good and ill By changeless laws are ordered still Not as I will. THE Spring had opened early with some fine warm days, but betrayed its promise around Esk Water, and delayed long its full fruition. So Faith had much anxious care, and many long walks concerning her flocks; which, however, in spite of the chilly nights and damp days, prospered wonderfully. One night near the end of April she came home very weary. It is the heart holds up the body, and Faith's heart had been heavy for nearly a week, during which space Archie had not been at the farm. She was afraid he had heard of her interview with Graeme on the previous Sabbath. For the hatred was not upon one side; Archie returned his landlord's dislike very heartily.

On this night she was alone on the fold. Davie was not with her; he had been sitting lately, and the air was foggy and chilling; so her own fearful thoughts were her only companions. As she entered the kitchen upon her return, Phenie looked through the houseplate door with a face full of suppressed excitement. "You are welcome home, Faith; and look ye here! Carrier Jell has left a box for you. It's frae London or some foreign port I'm thinking." "A box?" "Such a thing had never happened to Faith before. She started up instanter to go to it. "You're wet-shod, ma'am, and you'll be to change your shoon first." There was no denying the old woman's positive manner, nor yet the justice of her direction, so Faith not only complied with it, but also removed her plaid and bonnet, and gave her usual directions about the milk for the young lambs. Then she felt at liberty to satisfy her curiosity. The box was a large deal box secured with bands of iron, and there was much pleasant curiosity exercised in the removal of these bands, and the opening of the lid. The first thing that presented itself to her eager eyes was an exquisite painting of the unforgotten Agnes. The fair, flower-like face was so like her mother's face, that Faith felt as if she had received both mother and sister back again. She uttered a joyful cry, and kissed it over and over with a passionate affection. Then she put it in Phenie's hands, and Phenie pressed it to her breast and cried above it, as if Agnes was once more a baby in her arms. Agnes had been gone more than eight years, and this was the first token of her remembrance she had sent back to those who had long forgotten but never forgotten her. It was such a wonderful thing to happen! It was impossible not to be excited and full of joy over it.

Below the picture there was a piece of rich satin, some fine laces, and a heavy gold brooch for Faith. Many other beautiful things followed, ornamental and useful both; but the presents which touched Faith's heart most were the books and pictures and playthings suitable for a lad of Davie's age, and which had evidently been selected with great care and love. It was a box full of affection as well as of beauty—a box which induced all kinds of pleasant memories and conversation and joyful wonder. They were still standing over it when Renwick entered. He had been drinking and was, as Phenie whispered to Faith, "Much the waur o' it." What is man ever the better of it? Faith scarcely noticed the warning. She felt as if in a singular state of happy excitement, and she called out joyfully, "Look ye here, Archie! Our bonnie Agnes has sent us these braw things! And here the best o' all is her ain sweet self!" He looked at the gifts in a sullen, scornful manner, steady himself as he stood by leaning against the long oak dresser, his tall sturvy figure looming up against the shelves filled with shining rows of china ware and brass ware. "You are much set up for naething! A bit painted face! Ay, it's gude enou' for her!" Faith was much grieved, more by the expression given to the words than by their actual import; but she refused to notice the ill-nature of the remark, and added, "Look at this bonnie satin and lace, and the gold brooch forbye! I'll need to wear no siller now on my wedding dress, Archie. They ha'e come in gude time, ha'e they not?"

Grease-Heel or Scratches.

Physic your horse well with Dick's Blood Purifier: feed on soft cooling food. Keep him clean and dry and he will recover in time. Washing with caustic soap and warm water will be useful if the legs are carefully but gently rubbed after each washing. Do not use bandages. What is most desirable is to keep his skin dry and his blood thoroughly cooled. It may take some time to get rid of the fever and impurities in the blood that have caused the trouble, but Dick's Blood Purifier will accomplish it if used as directed. 4w

Snow, rain and Sunshine followed in rapid succession on Sunday, since when it has been cool and at times very windy with frosty nights.

Quite a number of strange faces appear in town this week, attendants at the Musical Festival which everybody grants has been a great success.

Yesterday a drizzling rain made things damp and uncomfortable, a contrast from the perfect weather of the day and evening previous.

The Eagle's Gulch Dramatic Co. will occupy the boards at the Rink Opera House for three nights with their wild west combination. See adv. and posters.

BAPTIST CHURCH.—Next Sunday Rev. C. W. Townsend will preach on the following subjects: Morning—"The Sons of God, who are they?" Evening—"Unconditional Surrender."

The heavy wind last Thursday night did some damage about town; the large window in the end of the drill shed was blown in and the sash and glass all smashed, requiring its being replaced.

R. W. Darby, dealer in fruits and confectionery will remove to the store occupied by E. G. Wiggitt & Co. in the square, where he hopes to receive a continuance of the past liberal patronage accorded him.

The Bisley rifle team is complete, Lieut. R. J. Spearing of the 53rd Batt. of this city, is the waiting man. He has been written to asking him to go, but we understand that he will have to decline owing to business engagements.

Last Sunday, April 23rd, was St. George's Day, and several flags were hoisted in honor of the day, Capt. Grindrod running up a pretty St. George's Cross (the meteor flag of England.)

OPHELLOWS.—The members of "Unity" Lodge, No. 8, L. O. O. F. are to celebrate the 74th anniversary of the Order in America by attending church in a body at St. Andrews Presbyterian church on Sunday morning next. A large turnout is hoped for.

The Sherbrooke Telephone Association are preparing to remove their Central Office to the McCarthy Block and wires will be disconnected from the switchboard at one o'clock Monday morning May 1st. Service will be re-established with the least possible delay.

The Mapleson Opera Co. drew a good house Friday evening at the Art Hall, who enjoyed most of the singing very much. In Faust Madame Mapleson as Marguerite was inimitable while the singing of Signor Barron was very fine. The Costumes were good, particularly in Faust.

A large and magnificent photograph of Chicago has been got out by the C. P. Ry Co. one of which adorns the front window at the ticket office in the Art Building and is a fine specimen of the photographer's art. It was got up especially for the C. P. Ry. in connection with the World's Fair excursions over that line.

The Rev. Francis Hunt, an aged and highly esteemed minister of the Methodist church died at his son's residence in Lennoxville on Monday last at the age of 77. The deceased owing to poor health, has been out of the active work for several years, but he has now entered into rest.

COCOA.—Messrs. Walter Baker & Co. of Boston, the manufacturers of the celebrated Baker's Cocoa, have prepared a fine exhibit for the World's Fair. In this connection they have issued a pretty and useful book of chocolate recipes, prepared by Miss Parloa that will be found of use to the housewives. The factory of the firm is at Dorchester, Massachusetts, and is quite extensive.

Choral Society Concerts.

The series of Festival concerts given by the Sherbrooke Choral Society were brought to a close last night when they rendered in a grand manner Hadyn's "Creation" to a full and enthusiastic house. The Society have scored a complete success from a musical point of view and we hope from a financial one as well. We will allude to the concerts more fully in next issue.

School of Cookery.

Mr. Lawford has handed us a letter just received from Mr. Fred Kingston of Montreal informing him that a lady friend of his, Mrs. Ormond, will be in Sherbrooke next week with a view to opening a school of cookery. The classes will last about three weeks. Mrs. Ormond comes supported by the highest diplomas granted by the school of cookery at South Kensington and has been conducting classes in Montreal during the winter with great success. This is an opportunity of which the ladies of Sherbrooke will gladly avail themselves.

REGULAR RATES.—The Palmer House, Chicago, a hotel known all over the continent for its fine location superb furnishings and splendid cuisine, announces to the public that it will not advance regular prices any during the world's fair, a fact that will be received with satisfaction by the public who are fortunate enough to get accommodation there. The prices range with meals from $3.50 up, or for rooms only $1.50 per day and up. The hotel is situated within a few blocks the elevated and steam railways and steamboat wharfs leading direct to the fair grounds; electric street cars pass every two minutes in the same direction. Letters for rooms, addressed Palmer House Co., stating the number and if with or without board will be promptly responded to.

Owing to the Choral Society's concert there were not enough members present at the Bard of Trade meetings Tuesday to transact any business. Letters have been received from the different railways entering the City expressing their willingness to make Sherbrooke a "stop-over" point on World's Fair tickets. A letter from the Hon. W. B. Ives was also received in reply to the resolution of the Board of Trade regarding Sherbrooke being made the Headquarters of the sixth Military District in which he expressed his appreciation of the arguments in favor of this City and promised to take an early opportunity to present the resolution to the Minister of Militia and urge upon him the adoption of the views stated therein. Should occasion arise a special meeting will be called by the President.

Killed by the Cars.

The body of Frederick Cruikshanks, aged 25, was brought to Sherbrooke Tuesday for burial. Deceased was a son of Robt Cruikshanks and was employed on the Fitchburg Railway, and by some means not yet explained fell between the cars at Cambridge near Boston on Monday night and was instantly killed, his body being fearfully mangled. His father and brother brought the body here where they formerly lived for burial. The accident is peculiarly sad when it is remembered that another son of Mr. Cruikshanks was killed in the yard at Lowell by the cars only about a year ago.

53rd Battalion.

The regular drill muster of Nos. 1, 2 and 3 companies are far from well attended. This is not fair to your officers, lads. No. 1 are the worst offenders in the respect. Turn out men and show that you appreciate the efforts of your officers.

No. 4 continues to turn out strong, nearly as many turning out each night, as there turns out in the other three companies. Stick to it No. 4.

Battalion drill Friday, (to-night) at 8 sharp; a big muster is expected. Make it so.

The remedy for these stay-at-home Non-Coms. lays in the hands of the officers, who ought to make promotions and appointments either before or at least at the first company drill, and give notice of what positions there will be examinations for. That would leave no uncertainty in the minds of those active officers who try to do their whole duty.

Examination for promotion will take place on May 1st and for sergeant companies subjects as follows:—Squad drill (20 sections), Company drill (about 50 sections), Manual and Firing Exercises, with detail if necessary, Skirmishing and Field Work in so far as concerns Guides and Markers' duties, Guard and Posting of Sentries, Funeral Exercises, Guide and Markers' duties in Company, Battalion Brigade, etc. The above is a range of subjects that no volunteer in Canada or elsewhere can successfully compete in unless they have passed a special course of instruction at some military school. Best foot forward boys.

Yours not to reason why. Yours but to do or die. SNAP SHOT.

By the death of the Earl of Derby, Lord Stanley, Governor General of Canada, succeeds to the earldom with all the wealth and position bequeathed by that ancient title.

FACTS, FIGURES AND FICTION.

"That air is very familiar," said the musician as a gust of wind took his hat away... Coughs and colds lead to consumption if neglected. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup cures quickly and is pleasant to take.

She—"A pro printer! Why, he says that he is wedded to his art. He—"Perhaps that is the reason, then, that he dares treat her so badly."... Discovered at last—a remedy that is sure, safe, and painless. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor never fails, never causes pain, nor even the slightest discomfort.

Headache which is usually a symptom of stomach trouble, constipation or liver complaint can be entirely cured by B. B. B. (Burdock Blood Bitters) because this medicine acts upon and regulates the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

The man who sat out on the woodpile and told funny stories, expecting the wood would split, evidently did not strike a "responsive chord."... Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsville, Ind., says: "I had been in a diseased condition for three years from Nervousness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia and Indigestion until my health was gone."

Mr. Gladstone has just made a very bold announcement of his views on the terrible drink question. In a speech at Liverpool he said: "Let us all carry with us, deeply stamped upon our hearts and minds, a sense of shame for the plague of drunkenness which goes through the land, sapping and undermining character, breaking up the peace of families, often times choosing for its victims, not the men or the women originally the weaker, but persons of strong susceptibility and open, in special respects, to temptation."

DEAR SIRS—I have your Haggard's Yellow Oil for sprains, bruises, neuralgia, burns, rheumatism and all other ailments and find it an unequalled remedy. My neighbors also speak highly of it. Mrs. HOWE, Montreal, Que.

It is said that the following illustrated the experience of a school inspector in Scotland while examining a class—"Now, my little man, tell me what five and one make? No answer. Inspector—"Suppose I give you five rabbits, and take three another rabbit—how many would you have? Boy—"Seven." Inspector—"Seven! How do you make that out? Boy—"Because I've a rabbit of my own at home."

DEAR SIRS—I was greatly troubled with weak eyes, loss of appetite, restlessness and sleeplessness, and found B. B. B. the most strengthening and beneficial medicine I have taken. MISS HEAVY, 34 Huntley St. Toronto, Ont.

Dr. G. C. Osmond, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kirschner, Conway, Ar.

The Versatile Violin. "Behold me!" cried the Violin; "I have such harmonies within me, make the eye of beauty dim. I make a man smile, I bid them weep. I rouse their pride, or I bid them sleep. The children with a twilight hymn, From bird song sweet to thunder roll I voice the universal soul. Let but a master sweep the strings— I wake to all celestial things!"

Woman's Franchise. Franchise appears to be rather a delicate subject; if we mention it we hear on nearly all sides, "Why woman is mentally morally, and socially disqualified;" now I am sure, we could mention just as many reasons why men should be denied the privilege; how many of us have been heartick and discouraged, time and again, when putting our faith in man, to vote for God and home, and humanity.

Then again many are apt to consider what will be for their best interest, in many cases we cannot blame them, for a many more barter their birthright, but few drinks or something equally worthless. When we in disgust see men going to the poles under the influence of liquor, or for many other reasons morally incapable, then it is we feel the humiliation of unequal franchise.

By what right franchise was extended to man alone, I have yet to learn. In the second of Genesis we read that God made man of the dust of the ground, breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul, it then goes on to describe the garden, and all the things put in the garden, and ordered man to dress and keep it; when all this was done, God found there was still a great lack, that it was not good for man to be alone, after making every beast, fowl, and fish, and Adam had named them, he seems to feel his loneliness more than ever, so God made him an help meet (out of a much finer material than he had made man,) but he took her to him as his equal, not his housekeeper or inferior, as some men tell us to-day is out of place. The equality and unity was perfect, until the devil tried to separate. By his lies and deceit, he prevailed on her to eat of the forbidden fruit, and as a punishment, God told her that man should have dominion over her, but under the Gospel of Christ woman is reinstated in her former rights, for Christ came to destroy the work of the devil.

I wonder that a woman has ever been permitted to sit upon the throne, because God said that man should have dominion over her. About the only hold we have to-day in the unparalleled reign of Queen Victoria, what more could have done better or as well? Who when a child would not first think of Mother when wanting advice on some perplexing question? Have you ever noticed, when an old couple are ripening for the grave, her intellect is nearly always clearer than his? Your children, as they grow up are; are not your daughters just as intelligent and bright as your sons? God did not create woman with weaker intellect than man, still the reason given by some is, "they are so weak." I say, well if that were true, that is just a reason why we should have a right to help ourselves.

You have all heard the simple ballad "Katie Lee and Willie Grey" where he says, "I will carry with a will, Katie basket up the hill," Katie answers with a laugh "No," but you may carry half. Now that is just our portion, this afternoon, we went to carry half, and become man's help meet in every sense of the word, because we believe it to be our divine calling. God knows we feel our helplessness enough, in some of the laws we have to submit to, for instance the protection thrown around the liquor traffic. We have heard it discussed in nearly all its different phases, but it has so much unpopularity about it, there is something new being brought to light all the time. If there is one thing more hateful than another in connection with the license system, it is governing the number of licenses granted, by our innocent children. Mothers did you ever think of this? The law says, for every two hundred and fifty persons a license may be granted. If your babe is only a few days old and the assessor comes around, it counts one, just as much as the biggest drunkard, who frequents and supports these places. We look with horror upon the heathen mother, who gives her babe to appease the wrath of her God, but (in a Christian country,) this is nearly as bad. Let men govern the traffic by the voters lists, or the drinking men and women, but not by our innocent children. Do you think Abraham and Sarah would have been so much rejoiced when God told them their seed should be as the stars in the firmament, if they could have looked down through all these ages and seen, that for every two hundred and fifty a license would be granted to sell intoxicating liquor, and their daughters so weak, they would not have even a voice in the matter. Examine this traffic as you will, you see it has a mortgage on us from our cradle to the grave. I pray God the time may soon come when it will not be so, when man will see that woman was given to him as a help meet, in this, as well as other things: To be willing to wipe out the ursed traffic, and everything else that hinders the Gospel of Christ, or give us the franchise, that we may be able to blot it out ourselves.—Com.

German Syrup

For Throat and Lungs

Homorrhage "I have been ill for about five years, "have had the best medical advice, "and I took the first dose in some doubt. This result ed in a few hours easy sleep. There was no further hemorrhage till next day, when I had a slight attack "which stopped almost immediately. By the third day all trace of blood had disappeared and I had recovered much strength. The fourth day I sat up in bed and ate my dinner, the first solid food for two months. Since that time I have gradually gotten better and am now able to move about the house. My death was daily expected and my recovery has been a great surprise to my friends and the doctor. There can be no doubt about the effect of German Syrup, as I had an attack just previous to its use. The only relief was after the first dose." J. R. LOUGHHEAD, Adelaide, Australia.

The Question of the Day.

Often Asked—Where can I find a home? Where can I make a living? Where can I, with ordinary diligence, prudence and economy, provide my family with the necessities of life, and feel assured that at the end of it I can leave to my children a decent inheritance? To what place can I go and find good land on terms reasonable that I may get a portion of it without burdening myself with debt, which I can never hope to pay off? Where can I find such a place on these terms and save from crop failure, and allow me to devote myself to any special branch of agriculture for which I may feel myself fitted. Answered in a few words. Get a home in the great Flour State of Minnesota. It never yet had a crop failure—where land values are increasing rapidly. What Am I To Do?

The symptoms of Biliousness are unhappy but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A Bilious man seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bare inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred it is rough, at all events. The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhoea or Constipation may be a symptom of the two may alternate. There are often Hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache, and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy. If

A Dog-Show Disappointment.

I went into the dog show just to while my time away. And saw of canines quite a marvellously fine display. And just before I came to leave, a little mongrel near Stopped up upon his after-legs and whispered in my ear.

"I am a little yellow dog without no pedigree, but you can bet I'll win a prize, a very V. V. V. they'll overlook my bandy-legs, my brilliant saffron coat. They'll overlook my stumpy tail and truly lanky throat."

"They'll overlook my velvetlike hue and floppy ears. They'll take no note of whinnying, or a nose bedecked with tears; They'll close their eyes on the fact that I'm the worst in town."

"The maids will stop and gush o'er me, the men will stand and gloat, And if a collar is put up, I'll win most every vote. Despite my most piteous bark, despite my stumpy tail, That maidsly beats upon the floor like any farmer's nail."

"And it is all because I am the little doggie sweet Of one who has society prostrate before his feet. Who has by some excessively old matrimonial ruse Become the sixteen-thous of a wealthy Irish Duke."

This said, the doggie broadly grinned and winked his nether eye. Got down upon all-fours again, and with a glad some cry, Which seemed to show he thought the world was made for him alone, I'll win most every vote. Left off his bragging for the nonce and gnawed a chicken bone.

Alas for his ambition! When I read the list to-day Of prizes the'd awarded for that wonderful display, No yellow doggie's name was there, though it were hard to find A finer hip-eared specimen of his peculiar kind. —Harper's Weekly.

A Woman's Estimate of the Woman's Building.

When this edifice arose among the crowd of palaces, itself a palace, its beauty of so pure a type, the first and natural thought of its directors was to fill it with the rarest and most precious things which had ever been made by or for women. To collect the feminine handwork of all ages, the costly things women had made, or worn, all the best of books that women had written, the greatest of pictures they had painted, to make a record of the worthiest deeds they had wrought in philanthropy, in charity, in education, and all they have done for the amelioration of life, and so to make the Woman's Building express an ideal of womanhood. But when this thought was formulated there arose from all the land a great and bitter cry, the voice of a multitude which seemed to say: We are of those who had no share in the past, and are only beginning to live in the present; we are the toilers who are building up industries for our sisters; we are busy with agriculture, manufactures, and commerce, with trades and professions; and most we be shut out from the palace of women because beauty has had small part in our lives! And an answering thought grew and shaped itself to a policy which would take in all of the present. The beautiful and precious things, the books and records, the pictures and embroideries; but also the grain and the honey and the wool, the flax, the dyed yarns, the cloth the cocoons, the silk threads, the glass which women have moulded, the metals they have shaped, the garments they have made—in short, all the industries woman has created, shared in, or monopolized—will be represented in the Woman's Building. It will have the value of suggestion and encouragement, the beauty of a sisterhood of effort; it will be the centre and visible sign of a new impulse in the world, a reaching out of invisible hands to clasp other invisible hands. It touches women every where from those of American tribes, where rudimentary and primitive manhood has seen in woman only the weaker animal, made for service and for labor, to the nations of the East, where, in apparently never-ending slavery, a long succession of women, reaching back into unrecorded history have been unrecognized and unacknowledged in their relation to the best welfare of the world. These women have been called out into the sunlight, beckoned by the hand of a woman who stands for all that belongs to the best estate of woman in this most fortunate and prosperous day, and to her will be owing much of the welcome and almost unlooked-for result.—From "A Dream City," by Candace Wheeler in Harper's Magazine for May.

The Walrus.

HOW WALRUS MEAT TASTES; WHAT THE GREAT CREATURES LIVE UPON.

As the walrus lay upon the ice, their immense bulk and massive forms could be better appreciated. Lieutenant Schwatka described walrus as "huge seals with upper canine-teeth prolonged into tusks." These tusks are usually from one to two feet in length, and I have seen some that were two and a half and even three feet long. When full grown, the tusk weighs about five pounds. Their length does not seem to be dependent upon either the age or size of the animal, as often a young, small walrus will have long tusks. The average weight of the animal is about a ton, and ours weighed between 1200 and 1500 pounds. One was ten the other thirteen feet long. They attain, however a length of from fifteen to eighteen feet, and half as much round the fore flippers. The flippers are some two feet long, and capable, when extended, of covering a considerable area, and of forcing the animal rapidly through the water. Walrus also use these flippers to protect wounded comrades or to carry their offspring. The inside of these paws is covered by a horny skin that serves to protect their palms in scrambling around over the rough ice. The walrus flippers, when properly cooked, are considered a great delicacy by the Eskimos. The flavor of the flipper is very similar to that of the coarser clams. The meat did not seem as delicate as that of the seal or narwhale. The flesh of the walrus is protected by a thick blanket of fat—the blubber, which enables it to resist the icy water of the arctic seas. This fat yields nearly a barrel of oil. The hide and tusks are valuable. The hide is used by the Eskimos to make soles for their boots, or kamiks, and it is also cut into strips for their harpoon-lines. It is from one to one and a half inches thick. The formidable tusks are used as weapons of offense and defense, and also it is stated, to gather their food the clams. —April St. Nicholas.

Last Saturday morning the buildings of Mr. Henry Boudreau of Compton were destroyed by fire. The loss was partially covered by insurance. It is supposed that the fire originated in the chimney.

The town of Cookshire is issuing debentures to the amount of $30,000 to provide for a suitable system of water works and drainage and to discharge their liabilities to the county of Compton.

A wholesale theft has been committed in town the past week. A well known dealer in American goods complains of losing a half dozen nutmegs and three whole cigars from his wagon box. The robbers are unknown.

Last Monday evening the alarm of fire was sounded and very soon a crowd of men and boys were hurrying through the streets in search of the fire. The fire company got in readiness for action when it was learned that the cause of the alarm was a bon fire near the residence of Mr. Octave Garceau.

An order has been issued by the Postmaster General that no officer of Department shall act as Mayor, Alderman, Councillor, School Commissioner or School Trustee in any municipality of the Dominion. Postmasters or departmental officers now holding such positions are allowed to complete the term for which they have been elected.

S. B. Humphrey, Ticket Agent of the Grand Trunk R'y Co. has received instructions that the rates to the World's Fair at Chicago, which opens May 1st, will be $26 for return tickets limited to 30 days, and $32 limited until November 1st; for further information enquiries by mail or otherwise will be promptly answered.

The heavy wind last Tuesday caused considerable damage in this vicinity. Several shade trees in town were torn up while in a neighboring sugar bush 46 trees were counted on about half an acre, which had been blown down. In Barford the barns of Messrs Thomas Couture, Benjamin Cunningham and L. D. Dapont, were unroofed and the barn of Mr. Napoleon Charrette completely levelled to the ground.

"Mr. L. S. Chanell, of the Compton Chronicle, is now in Minneapolis, where he went for his health some weeks ago. He writes in a cheerful vein in regard to matters there. The latest excitement is a religious revival. A building holding eight thousand people was nightly filled and thousands not able to gain admission. It is estimated that ten thousand have been converted during the services."—Stansfeld Journal.

A great deal has been said in regard to the dishonesty of business men and the honesty of farmers. The following incident goes to show that even farmers are not altogether innocent of schemes to cheat their fellow men. One of our neighboring farmers, not having a large supply of new sugar as he wished to place on the market, was known to plate a certain quantity of sugar cakes which he had made the year previous, by dipping them into a kettle of hot new sugar. By this he was enabled to palm off his old cakes for new sugar.

Mr. S. B. Humphrey has finally concluded to offer for sale his valuable steed, "Bronco." The price required may be obtained as follows:—Place a kernel of wheat on the first square of an ordinary checker-board, double it for the second square, double this amount for the third and so on till the last square on the board is reached, laying down for each square twice the amount allowed for the preceding one. The person bringing down the amount of wheat required for the last square of the board may have the pleasure of congratulating himself as being the owner of the above well known racer.

Last week we called attention to the necessity of the people cleaning their back yards, this week we wish to draw the attention of the authorities to the cleaning off of Webster's corner. This seems to be the resort of all the idlers in town, and every evening, weather permitting, large numbers of them collect here much to the disgust of the public. If a lady wishes to go to the post office she must run this gauntlet and listen to the criticisms of these idlers as she passes. It is a public nuisance and a disgrace that this thing should be allowed in a town like Coaticook, and it is sincerely hoped that measures will soon be taken to compel those who have no other business to take up their attention to loaf in some less conspicuous place.

The Magog News says: "The French Canadians are returning from the United States in as great numbers as they rushed into that country at the earlier part of the season. Every incoming train of the Central Vermont railway is laden with this class of passengers. Many of them make for their old homes but of course all will take work wherever it presents itself. As a rule their means are limited. The reason they give for coming back is that no work is to be had across the lines, and that there is no other alternative for them. Still, while these are returning the outward flow continues on a reduced scale, and between the incoming and the outgoing the railway companies are reaping a rich harvest. We are sorry that we are not able to report a returning as well, but, although large numbers are daily leaving. Very few are coming back.

Last Wednesday night about twelve o'clock fire broke out in the barn of Mr. A. H. Cutting, Cutting Street, now occupied by Mr. J. K. Brown. It spread so rapidly that before assistance reached the scene, the whole building was ablaze. Three horses belonging to Mr. Brown were burned. Both ends of the building were said to have been in flames when the fire was first discovered, making it seem like the work of an incendiary.

About eleven o'clock last Tuesday night a set of buildings owned by Mr. W. C. Webster was completely destroyed by fire. They had been vacant a few days, having been previously occupied by Mr. Lorenzo Babb. The firemen turned out in good time but through inefficient means of transportation the engine did not reach the scene of the fire at all. It originated in the barn and burned until both the barn and house had fallen to the ground, the engine being in sight all the time but stuck fast in the mud. Had there been men enough present to drag both the steamer and the horses there is no doubt that it could have been brought up within reasonable time. As it was, however, after about an hour's fruitless attempts, the horses were removed and then the engine was readily pulled out by hand. By this time the fire had abated so it was useless to proceed further. It was with considerable difficulty and labor that the neighboring buildings were saved and had it not been that the winds were favorable doubtless greater damage would have been done. There was no insurance on the property.

The New York World devotes over two columns to the career of Mr. A. A. McLeod, a native of Compton County, the former president of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad system and of the New York and New England railroad. Speaking of the great achievements of this railroad king it says: "Truly no career that has ever been unfolded in this country, either in the field of railroads, or finance, or politics or mercantile life, displays more sudden and startling contrasts and abounds more sensationally in lights and shadows brought into the sharpest kind of juxtaposition. Ever since he first came into general notice, a matter of a little more than six years ago, he has furnished a series of dramatic surprises, both to his friends and to his enemies, and has succeeded in giving everybody an uncomfortable impression, or comfortable impression, as he or she viewed it, of being a man abounding with unexpected possibilities. The latest investigations into the early history of Mr. McLeod has developed the fact that he comes of a very numerous family, and was born on a farm near Compton, in the province of Quebec. A great many brothers and sisters and cousins are to be found in Canada at the present time. Two first cousins, Margie McLeod and Christine McLeod, are household servants in Quebec to-day. Of course they have been interviewed, and it has been learned from them that the American branch of the family was first represented by Donald McLeod, the grandfather of Archibald who came to Quebec years ago and purchased the farm where Archibald was born. The father of Archibald was Angus McLeod and Archibald was the first of fifteen children. Before he came of age he left home for the United States, and, according to the cousins, obtained employment on a Vermont road. It is their impression that he finally became a locomotive engineer, but they have not heard from him directly since he left Canada, something like twenty-five years ago."

A special meeting of the municipal council was held last Tuesday evening, present the Mayor and Councillors Akhurst, Fourniere, Roy, Trenholme, Gronberg and Webster.

Moved by Councillor Akhurst seconded by Councillor Fourniere and resolved that the petition of A. Francis and al for a sidewalk on Compton street should be granted and that the sidewalk be a gravel walk.

Moved by Councillor Roy seconded by Councillor Webster that the certificate of L. C. Bacland al for a hotel license in favor of Mrs. D. Desaulniers, the certificate of J. Besu ne et al for a hotel license in favor of William Trudeau, the certificate of G. Morin et al for a hotel license in favor of J. R. Roy, the certificate of A. S. Ross et al for a hotel license in favor of Peter Gooley and the certificate of D. Mullins et al for a hotel license in favor of M. Knight be hereby confirmed. The Council then adjourned.

Baldwin's Mills.

We miss Mr. Baldwin's familiar form and face at the old stand, but Everett holds the fort during his absence and deals out the rations. Our cheese factory will start about the 13th of next month and we expect to have the largest run this year we ever had. Hurrah boys we can go fishing next week but the next thing is to catch the fish. Two lbs to the tree is what the sugar makers say with prospect of another good run. This is the place for horse buyers to come, the more they will buy the cheaper they can get them. The steamer is undergoing repairs to be in readiness for summer campaign. Those wishing to purchase building lots on lake shore will do well to correspond with L. E. Sutton.

The many admirers of Rosa Nouchette Carey will be gratified to learn that the complete novel in the May number of Lippincott's is from her facile and well-tried pen. Its title is "Mrs. Romney." The third in the series of Lippincott's Notable Stories, "A Pastel," by Cornelia Kane Rathbone, is a delicate and touching sketch of wasted loyalty and disappointed hope. It is illustrated throughout. James Cox furnishes a full and glowing account of "New St. Louis," illustrated with cuts of a dozen of the huge buildings which have lately risen in that thriving and progressive city. Mrs. Gertrude Atherton supplies a short but appreciative account of the American sculptress Kuhnle Beveridge, with a cut of her most notable work "The Sprinter." M. Crofton, in "Men of the Day," gives sketches of William Morris the poet, Archbishop Satoji, and Secretary of War Lamont. The poetry of the number is varied and good.
