Nfld. UCC says no to homosexuals

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — United Church officials in Newfoundland joined their counterparts in the other Atlantic provinces Sunday in rejecting a church recommendation that homosexuals be eligible for ordination.

During a weekend meeting, about 350 lay people and ministers adopted resolutions taking a stand against the ordination of homosexuals and lesbians.

They also opposed giving gay couples the same rights as married couples.

Rev. Boyd Hiscock, executive-secretary of the provincial conference, said the consensus was that a controversial church report recommending ordination for gays was too much, too soon.

Hiscock said the intense debate on the recommendation hasn't hurt the church's image and has raised awareness of church problems.

Officials from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island also rejected the recommendation Sunday during a Maritime Conference of the United Church held in Sackville, N.B.

Bouchard acclaimed

ALMA, Que. (CP) — Secretary of State Lucien Bouchard was acclaimed on Sunday as the Conservative candidate for an upcoming byelection in the federal riding of Lac-St-Jean.

The minister, appointed to the cabinet March 31 from his former post as the Canadian ambassador to France, received the nomination Sunday at a meeting in Alma, a remote community in the Lac-St-Jean riding where he has opened a departmental office.

About 600 members of the Tory riding association attended the meeting, where Bouchard criticized opponents of the Meech Lake constitutional accord.

Lévesque's widow warns keep your eye on Bill 101

MONTREAL (CP) — The widow of former premier René Lévesque says Quebecers must keep an eye on the language issue so that Premier Robert Bourassa does not amend Bill 101, the province's controversial language law passed by Lévesque's government in 1977.

"I hope Mr. Bourassa realizes the importance of the law and that he won't touch it," Corinne Côté-Lévesque said in an interview.

"I trust him but at the same time I'm vigilant, as I hope other Quebecers are. We must remain vigilant."

Bill 101, which entrenched French as Quebec's official language law, prohibits the use of languages other than French on public signs.

Quebec anglophones have long urged Bourassa to allow bilingual signs but the Liberal premier has said he won't reveal his intentions until the Supreme Court of Canada decides whether the language law is unconstitutional. The ruling is expected later this year.

Côté-Lévesque said she follows provincial politics closely but she is "aware of my limitations."

Lévesque, who was Parti Québécois premier from 1976 to 1985, died of a heart attack six months ago.

LET HER ALONE
 People who recognize her in public are discreet enough not to bother her, said Côté-Lévesque, born in the Saguenay community of Alma, about 200 kilometres north of Quebec City.

Côté-Lévesque said she enjoys a job that she began earlier this month as head of the bestseller division at Les Editions Quebec Amerique, a Montreal publishing house.

"A writer becomes so caught up with his work that he can't look at it from a distance," said Côté-Lévesque.

"We're there to suggest cuts, additions or other ways of helping the writer," said Côté-Lévesque who acknowledged the work is stressful but "I'm confident I can do a good job."

The former teacher has been asked to revive a Quebec Ameri-

que quarterly news bulletin which was last published four years ago.

Côté-Lévesque also reviews books for L'actualité, a current-affairs monthly magazine, but a short stint as a Montreal radio announcer taught her she can't handle every media job.

"As a communicator, you either have what it takes or you don't. The experience brought it home to me that I don't have it. At the mike, you need to be at ease, which I wasn't."

Picnic in the park

Even though Sunday was not as sunny as promised, many got out of the house to enjoy the warmth. Carmin James, the ray of sunshine in Leonard Morin's life, came from Montreal so the two could have a late lunch in Howard Park and enjoy the wonderful weather together.

'We still have some way to go'

Turner: Popularity not money is problem

By Robert Russo

MONTREAL (CP) — An internal document showing the federal Liberal party reached just one-quarter of its popular financing goal last year tarnished an otherwise successful fundraiser Sunday featuring Opposition leader John Turner.

But Turner and other party officials said other sectors of the Liberals' fundraising efforts — such as corporate donations and direct mail — are doing well. "We still have some way to go on the popular side," Turner said.

More than 2,600 Liberals paid $300 a plate to attend the brunch, with Turner making his first appearance in the province since a Quebec-based movement tried to force him to resign earlier this month.

The event was nearly scrubbed two weeks ago, with only 800 tickets sold, after people began cancelling their reservations because of questions surrounding Turner's leadership. Last week, party organizers said they hoped close to 2,000 would attend.

But bad news continued to dog the Liberals in the form of the internal document obtained by the Montreal newspaper La Presse which showed the party could only squeeze $1.1 million out of its members in 1987, far short of the objective of $4.1 million.

The report indicates that the Liberal party would almost have to close shop without the financial contributions it receives from Ontario and Quebec. It said the party's financial situation was so bleak in Newfoundland, Manitoba and Prince Edward Island that these three provinces did not raise any money for the federal party.

Party president Michel Robert, who was responsible for fundraising before he the post was taken away from him by Turner 10 days ago, tried to duck past reporters before being cornered and admitting that the poor financial picture was accurate.

"It's true to say that our forecast was probably too optimistic," said Robert.

"We did not put in place the infrastructure needed to meet our objectives for 1987. We have now done this and we expect the 1988 figures to be much better."

However, Robert said the party had halved its target of funds raised from party members to $2 million.

After a tame question-and-answer period with the audience, Turner received polite, but not wildly enthusiastic applause from the gathering, which included several of those who led the aborted campaign to oust him two weeks ago.

"The caucus and the party is solidly united behind me," Turner told reporters later. "I think the past two weeks have clearly shown that."

FEELS THE SAME
 But Pierre Dalphond, vice-president of the Quebec wing of the party and one of the leading anti-Turner Liberals, was unrepentant about his attempt to dump his leader.

"I think he should quit," Dalphond said between courses during the brunch. "I said it (two weeks ago) and I still think it."

Dalphond, who organized a meeting of 14 Montreal-area riding association presidents to call for Turner's resignation, said he attended the brunch to help raise money to elect Liberal MPs.

But he refused to say whether he would work to get the leader elected.

Turner, who said the turnout at the brunch was "an extraordinary achievement given the difficult circumstances of the last 10 days," did not make any direct comment on the attempt on his leadership.

However, he felt enough at ease to joke about his recent leadership problems and referred to a Gallup poll taken in the midst of his struggle indicating the Liberals would win the next federal election.

"I see a headline that says 'John Turner wins the country — his caucus demands a recount,'" he quipped to applause and laughter.

Raymond Garneau, Turner's Quebec political lieutenant, said the brunch grossed $788,000 and netted $650,000 for federal Liberal coffers.

Bonus should go further — sociologist

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec government efforts to fuel a new baby boom by offering incentives to potential parents in its latest budget could simply increase the number of poor children in Quebec, a sociologist has warned.

Morton Weinfeld, a sociologist at McGill University, said the government will have to introduce measures to go along with the incentives to ensure these children get an equal shot at prosperity.

He said Quebec's promises of $500 for first and second babies and $3,000 for subsequent children may be less than desirable if policies aren't adopted to help parents raise these babies.

Quebec's fertility rate is one of the lowest in the Western Hemisphere: 1.4 babies for each woman of child-bearing age. In the next five years, the provincial government hopes the babies-for-bucks provision in the budget will boost the rate to 1.8, said Robert Dutil, minister responsible for family policy.

The minimum rate needed to replace the current population is 2.1.

Weinfeld, who is studying Canadian population trends, said the money being offered is probably going to be attractive to low-income families, "perhaps even welfare families," he said.

"Then the problem is that society is going to have to provide adequate social services and education to give these children an equal opportunity," said Weinfeld. "Generally, children born into welfare don't have an equal chance."

"If you're going to make a commitment to natality, you have to make a commitment to the quality of life of the new children," he said, noting the number of poor children is overtaking the number of poor elderly in Quebec.

Jacques Henripin, a University of Montreal demographer who has warned that the descendants of today's Quebecers will make up just 12 to 15 per cent of the population in 100 years if the province relies on immigration to replenish itself, says the budget's measures are a step in the right direction.

But he sees no baby boom on the horizon.

"Nobody is going to have a child just to get $500," he said. "Much more is needed. But it's good to see the government saying the (fertility) rate has fallen too far and needs to be raised."

But Henripin said changes to the workplace are also needed to reduce the "incompatibility" of raising children and pursuing careers.

He suggested such measures as guaranteeing women's jobs for two or three years while they're on maternity leave, or allowing parents to convert their full-time jobs to part-time to spend time with children, as is done in France.

In the 1960s, eastern European countries began taking steps to revive a fertility rate that had fallen below the replacement level, said Ben Wattenberg, a demographics expert based in Washington, D.C.

Now, as a proportion of their gross national products, they spend three times as much as their western neighbors on programs to raise the birth rate, and their fertility rates are up to 2.1 children, compared with 1.6 for Western Europe, said Wattenberg, author of The Birth Dearth.

But, along with incentives, east-bloc countries also have taken measures that might not wash in the west, such as outlawing abortion.

First convoy of Soviet troops leaves Afghanistan

KABUL (CP) — The first convoy of Soviet troops pulling out of Afghanistan rolled into Kabul on Sunday after a harrowing eight-hour ride from the eastern base of Jalalabad through rebel-held mountains and dusty plains.

Shots rang out from distant hills as the 300 armored personnel carriers and Soviet-made BTR-80 tanks snaked through gorges and along steep precipices under searing heat during the 130-kilometre journey.

Crowds in Jalalabad threw flowers at the departing troop. But some threw clods of mud and dung at the 1,200 soldiers in the convoy, the first of an estimated 115,000 Soviet troops to withdraw after 8½ years of war.

"Don't worry, you'll make it to Kabul," Lieut.-Gen. Vladimir Bogdanov told 20 western journalists riding with the convoy before it set out.

As the convoy reached the dusty outskirts of Kabul, the capital, Col.

Alexander Zubrilin told reporters there were no casualties during the trip.

The journalists were flown Saturday from Kabul to Jalalabad, about 65 kilometres west of the Khyber Pass on the border with Pakistan.

Reuter correspondent Helen Womack reported that the thud of heavy bombardment could be heard in Jalalabad throughout the night. As local Afghan elders addressed a midnight news conference, a surface-to-surface missile landed about 30 metres away, jolting all present.

Bogdanov said the most dangerous part of the trip would be passage through what the Soviets call the Black Mountains not far outside Jalalabad, where Muslim guerrillas fighting Kabul are entrenched.

A Soviet officer who declined to identify himself said, "If you decide to go, you can only go forward."

Transport accident board coming at end of month

OTTAWA (CP) — The final lines of the Tory transportation trilogy are set to be written.

First was deregulation, and then the Railway Safety Act.

Now it's the transport accident investigation board — an agency to investigate all accidents and incidents affecting safety in air, rail, marine and pipeline operations.

Legislation to set up the board should be introduced by the end of May, says Transport Minister Benoit Bouchard.

The board was promised three years ago when then transport minister Don Mazankowski, now the deputy prime minister, unveiled his grand design for transportation deregulation to promote more competition as well as lower fares and freight rates.

Mazankowski said the agency and the Railway Safety Act were key companions to deregulation in assuring the public there would be no compromise on safety.

The National Transportation Agency succeeded the Canadian Transport Commission to referee disputes over freight rates, airline routes and branchline abandonments.

The Transport Department will be primarily responsible for setting and enforcing safety rules and regulations while the accident board — dubbed Crash Canada — will investigate accidents and recommend to the department how transportation can be made safer.

The model for the agency was the Canadian Aviation Safety Board, established in 1984 by the previous Liberal government.

But federal law makers soon discovered there were tensions within the aviation board — mainly a power struggle between the members of the board and its investigators.

The Air Transport Association of Canada, which represents the country's airlines, said the board members don't have the expertise to get involved in accident investigations.

A Bouchard spokesman said the new legislation will clearly detail the roles and responsibilities of the board members and the accident investigators.

'By combining services you save money' — J.P. Pelletier

Sherbrooke offers police, fire service to more neighbors — Lenn and Ascot

By Rita Legault

SHERBROOKE — The municipalities of Lennoxville and Ascot Township are considering an offer made by the city of Sherbrooke to share its police and fire department services.

Last Thursday Sherbrooke suggested sharing its police and fire departments with the two adjacent municipalities. This came as a surprise to both towns, which had not been consulted before the offer was made.

The offer came on the heels of a similar agreement Sherbrooke concluded with the town of Fleurimont a couple of weeks ago, Sherbrooke Mayor Jean-Paul Pelletier said.

"Because of the agreement with Fleurimont we had all the figures on hand," Pelletier said in an interview. "We had considered offering them (Lennoxville and Ascot) the services in the past and we thought now was an opportune time to do it."

Pelletier wouldn't release costs of the proposed deal but said that it would be in the interests of both Sherbrooke and its two neighbors. "Normally by combining services you save money," Pelletier said. "We feel we can offer them a reasonable service."

SAVINGS

"According to Sherbrooke there will be a reasonable savings for Lennoxville," Lennoxville Mayor Duncan Bruce said.

"We received the dossier on Thursday and it has been turned over to the finance chairman to study," Bruce said. "They will study it and bring the report to council in early June."

Bruce was non-committal about the offer saying council will have to study it.

"And, of course, we still have to discuss the offer with Ascot," he said.

As for Ascot Township Mayor Robert Pouliot, he said he is in no hurry to sign a new agreement. "It isn't an urgent file," he said. "After all we have a five-year contract with Metro-Police."

Sherbrooke Mayor Pelletier has made it clear that the offer is for both municipalities and the city will not deal with only one of the two.

Pelletier said Fleurimont, Lennoxville and Ascot are the only municipalities Sherbrooke has approached to sign an intermunicipal agreement to share police and fire services. He said there are no plans to approach any other Sherbrooke area municipalities at this point.

The Lennoxville volunteer fire department provides fire protection in Lennoxville and parts of neighboring Eaton Township as well as some of Ascot.

Other areas of sprawling Ascot are already covered by the Sherbrooke department.

Young and elderly 'the most vulnerable'

Metro officers plan extra duties for police week

SHERBROOKE (RL) — The Lennoxville-Ascot police do more than just hand out tickets and arrest drunk drivers, says Captain Jacques Gagnon. And during National Police Week, this week, Metro-Police plans to prove this.

The theme for this year's police week is 'Beyond the Uniform' and Lenn-Ascot's combined police force has planned several activities to increase their visibility in the community.

One of the police activities is giving Lennoxville primary school a video on child safety, entitled The Police Constable and You and signed by the entire police force.

KIDS ARE FRIENDS

"The video is about two policemen who are on patrol and who plan what they should do to protect their friends, the children," Gagnon said. It discusses such things as traffic-safety, security in parks, water safety and crime prevention.

Members of Metro-Police will also visit three area old folks homes with students from Alexander Galt Regional High School, to perform a little show with songs and poetry for the residents.

"This will show the elderly they are appreciated for all they have done for us," Gagnon said. "It will show them that young people value and like them."

Officers will also help deliver Meals on Wheels on Wednesday and are joining the Optimist Club in Ascot's Belvedere Park all day Saturday to promote bicycle safety.

BURNOUT

During the week there will also be a talk on 'stress and burnout in the police milieu' by an instructor from the Quebec Police Institute in Nicolet, and a ball game for policemen and their families organized by the policeman's union.

The activities to promote Metro-Police and their services are aimed mostly at the young and the elderly, Gagnon said. "These are the people who are the most vulnerable in our society and the clientele which for which we take a particular care."

"Policemen consider themselves educators, as agents of change in society," Gagnon said. "We want to associate ourselves with other organizations in our community to encourage and promote them."

The Lennoxville-Ascot police force has 17 officers and has been around for five years since it was set up in 1983. It replaced the former Lennoxville force which was more than a hundred years old.

Boy hurt when car doesn't stop

An eight-year-old boy was taken to hospital yesterday evening after he was struck by a souped-up car which failed to stop at a stop sign on Galt Street west of Lisieux in Sherbrooke. The grade two student was conscious when taken to the hospital with a cut forehead, bleeding nose and suspected broken wrist. The 20-year-old driver was visibly shaken as he spoke to police afterwards. His skid marks started about 30 feet before the stop sign and ended where the car stopped (above).

Civil liberties groups: Zero tolerance is overkill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government calls it "zero tolerance," but industry and civil liberties groups have begun to question whether "overkill" isn't an equally accurate description of the policy under which property is being seized in the battle against drugs.

In the latest episode, the U.S. Coast Guard confiscated on Saturday the yacht Monkey Business — the charter vessel that once ferried presidential contender Gary Hart and model Donna Rice to the Bahamas — after officers said they found one gram of marijuana aboard.

Only days earlier, the coast guard seized the $2.5-million US yacht Ark Royal on grounds that about three grams of marijuana was aboard. No one was arrested in either case.

Even rental cars and leased boats and trucks are being seized by U.S. Customs Service agents and the coast guard, triggering complaints from owners who argue that they shouldn't be penalized for the acts of their customers.

Richard Schwartz, president of the Boat Owners Association of the United States, protested to the commandant of the Coast Guard that the seizure of the yacht Ark Royal was "overkill."

The association, which has 265,000 members, estimates there are 15 million boat owners across the country.

'NOT FAIR'

"We're concerned about the drug problem in America, but there has to be a rule of reasonableness here," Michael Sciuila, the association's vice-president, said

Friday.

In the case of the Ark Royal, "the owner of the boat was not on board, no one was arrested as far as we can tell, there were no large amounts of drugs found on the boat," Sciuila said. "It just doesn't seem fair that the absent owner would face forfeiture on those grounds."

Three days after the yacht seizure, the coast guard released the Ark Royal when the Irvine, Calif., owner of the 40-metre yacht paid a $1,000 fine and $600 in seizure fees. Some marijuana seeds and two stems had been found in a dresser drawer and a trash can aboard the boat.

The government shows no signs of backing away from its new policy. Last week, the coast guard seized another yacht off the Florida coast after a search turned up a dollar bill with traces of cocaine and a bag with marijuana residue. It also seized a 17-metre fishing boat off San Diego after finding less than 28 grams of marijuana and a small amount of what appeared to be methamphetamine.

Since April 11, the coast guard has confiscated 27 boats under the Zero Tolerance campaign. The customs service is stepping up its program, and since March 21, agents have seized 700 vehicles containing drugs.

Mary Coombs, a Miami representative of the American Civil Liberties Union, says it is excessive "to take somebody's property from them for something they probably couldn't control ...

"It's putting people at enormous risk with no very effective way of protecting themselves."

News-in-brief

Anti-apartheid rally

OTTAWA (CP) — About 250 people carried signs and chanted slogans on Parliament Hill on Saturday urging the Canadian government to break all diplomatic and economic ties with South Africa.

The protest rally, sponsored by black community groups in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa, stopped first at the South African embassy before moving to Parliament Hill.

New Democrat MP Howard McCurdy, the only black MP, said he came to protest apartheid and join Canadians who want the government to "up the ante" in the fight against South Africa's white racist policy.

Subway murder

TORONTO (CP) — A man has been charged with murder after another man was stabbed to death during a fight at an east-end subway station early Saturday.

Police said Peter Jackson, 23, was taking the subway home with friends at about 2 a.m. when an argument broke out between his group and another man.

Jackson, a Saint John, N.B. native, was stabbed during the dispute and died shortly afterward, police said.

He had moved to Toronto about three years ago and was working as a bricklayer. David Smith, 22, of Toronto, has been charged with second-degree murder.

Newspaperman honored

TORONTO (CP) — Joseph Atkinson, who built the Toronto Star into Canada's largest daily newspaper, was one of four men and women inducted Saturday into the Canadian News Hall of Fame.

Atkinson spent almost a half century as publisher of the Star, taking it from a dying newspaper with a circulation of 7,000 in 1899 to a booming operation with a circulation of 396,000 when he died in 1948 at age 82.

Computer crime costs bucks

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The average computer thief is more likely to be a trusted company employee than a "hacker" trying to break into a system from outside, a police expert says.

Eighty-five per cent of computer crimes are committed by business insiders, said Cpl. Hal Daley of the RCMP's commercial crime section.

A typical thief is a man under 35 who is well-educated, well-regarded by the company from which he's stealing, and has no previous record, said Daley, who recently drew a computer criminal profile for high school students.

In one scheme, a Bank of Nova Scotia employee tried to transfer $2.8 million from bank funds to an account in California. Eventually the person was caught and sent to jail for two years. The loot was recovered.

Albertans give Turner support

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — The Alberta Young Liberals have come out in support of party leader John Turner.

At a news conference Saturday in this southern Alberta city, members of the group's executive said they were standing by Turner, despite reports from Quebec that they were behind a move to oust him.

The Alberta Liberals met in Lethbridge for a weekend convention.

Karri Knetsch, youth group president, said she had contacted most of the Liberal youth organizations across Canada and they all voiced support for Turner.

The Alberta group sent a letter to Turner pledging its support.

Western premiers meet

VICTORIA (CP) — Drought, trade and economic diversification will be the key topics when the four Western premiers begin three days of floating meetings Thursday on a $3-million luxury yacht.

Bill Vander Zalm of British Columbia, Don Getty of Alberta, Grant Devine of Saskatchewan and Gary Filmon of Manitoba will do their talking on board an opulent 35-metre yacht complete with a hot tub and three bars.

Attendance at the informal discussions has been limited to the three crew, security staff, the four premiers and one adviser for each premier.

27 killed in bus crash

CARROLLTON, Ky. (AP-CP) — A bus carrying a church group home from an amusement park became a fiery deathtrap when it collided with a pickup truck travelling the wrong way on a divided highway. Officials said 27 people were killed.

Between 30 and 40 people were injured in Saturday night's crash, and at least eight of them, including the truck driver, were in critical condition, police and hospital officials said.

The bus, carrying 67 teenagers and adults from the First Assembly of God Church in Radcliff, Ky., about 55 kilometres south of Louisville, was headed south on Interstate 71 when it was hit by the truck at about 10:55 p.m. Saturday. The group was returning from King's Island amusement park north of Cincinnati.

Syria challenges Shiites

BEIRUT (AP) — The Syrian army demanded Sunday that rival Shiite militias halt their 10-day-old bloodbath, saying it plans to move into Beirut's southern slums with shoot-to-kill orders.

More than 7,500 Syrian troops and about 500 tanks and armored vehicles were massed around the labyrinthine slums. The force includes two battalions of Special Forces commandos, military sources said.

Golden Temple Sikhs surrender

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — About 125 men, most of them Sikh extremists, surrendered to police Sunday after Indian security forces fired hundreds of rounds from machine-guns and automatic rifles into the besieged Golden Temple complex.

Punjab Police Chief K.P.S. Gill said 40 to 50 Sikh extremists were still in the temple, Sikhism's holiest shrine.

Police said 18 women and eight children, all believed to be relatives of the militants, also walked from the temple compound, which has been surrounded for a week by 2,800 security forces.

Yugoslavia reforms

BELGRADE (AP) — Parliament approved economic reforms to freeze wages and open Yugoslavia to world markets Sunday, a day after the country's two most westernized republics tried to topple the government.

Both chambers of parliament backed the reforms, which Premier Branko Mikulic worked out with the International Monetary Fund.

Mikulic outlined the economic reforms in general terms on Saturday, when he survived calls for his government's ouster from Slovenia and Croatia.

Pope prays among bombing

LIMA (AP) — Pope John Paul celebrated the largest mass of his Latin American tour Sunday, surrounded by 20,000 soldiers and police after rebels set off explosions that plunged parts of the Peruvian capital into darkness.

An estimated 1.5 million people gathered at a park on the city outskirts for the outdoor mass. The Pope appealed in his homily for the building of a "civilization of love."

Big elephant killed

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Botswana has lost its best-loved elephant.

Baby Huey, who preferred humans to his own herd, has been destroyed.

The giant African bull elephant with tusks that dragged on the ground was shot earlier this month by game guards at the Savuti Lodge in Botswana's Chobe National Park, the Johannesburg Star newspaper reported Saturday.

Lloyd Wilmot, who runs the lodge, said Baby Huey had to be killed because his appetite for treats handed out by humans had become dangerous.

He had taken to turning over cars, crushing tents and breaking into huts in search of apples, oranges and sweets.

Hundreds of visitors to the Savuti Lodge met Baby Huey at the lunch table, where Wilmot would curb the elephant's demands with a slap on his probing trunk.

But Huey's demands became more pressing and, though camp staff were forbidden to feed him, treats secretly passed on by tourists kept him in the vicinity of the camp until he became a threat to the safety of visitors.

The RECORD

Now that the government won't chip in $560,000, the residents might have to

Brome Lake sewer extension plan clogged by lack of government money

By Rita Legault

SHERBROOKE — There's more bad news about Route 243 in Knowlton.

The Office de Planification et développement de Québec (OPDQ) has refused a grant of $560,000 to the city of Brome Lake in order to help pay for the extension of a water and sewage system to Fisher Point and to the Auberge du Lac Brome condominiums.

In March, the mayor of Brome Lake said the total cost of the project would be about $4.1 million. A large part of the costs were to be divided between the condominium promoter, the provincial environment and transport ministries and the OPDQ. The water and sewage system extension would go under Route 243 which will be re-paved and possibly re-routed at the same time.

The final cost to taxpayers at that point was $1.4 million. Fifty per cent of those costs were to be paid by the users of the system while the remaining 50 per cent would be paid for by the whole of Brome Lake taxpayers.

The transport and environment ministries have confirmed their contributions but without the OPDQ grants, a considerable rise in taxes for users of the services is likely.

WHO WILL PAY

"I think we are going to have to go ahead with the works," said

Mayor Gilles Descelles. "The big question is who is going to pay for it."

Descelles said the city has two choices.

"We could go ahead and spend the $400,000 that has already been committed and then call it quits." But he said that would leave them open to lawsuits from the condominium promoters who were promised the extension of the services by the former administration.

Descelles said a majority of the costs should be absorbed by Groupe Pinso which owns the condominium project. But it has refused saying the city had agreed to pay for half the costs.

"We have handed out a construction permit and we have to live up to our commitments," said Descelles. "Those 200 dwellings need sewage."

THREAT TO ECOLOGY

He said this will cost a fair amount of money but if they don't do it there is a threat to the ecology and the risk that Groupe Pinso will take them to court.

"That could end up costing even more," Descelles said.

Descelles said the town will have to act soon and a decision on the redistribution of costs will probably be made this week. But he said that if any changes affecting taxpayers are made, a public information will be held.

Meanwhile there are two Route

243 bypass cases before the courts.

Developer Maurice Pinsonneault has asked Quebec Superior Court to void an environment ministry regulation requiring a second environmental impact study before the bypass is built. The case is set for June 15 at Granby courthouse.

A decision in that case, however, may not be necessary if Brome Lake resident Marc Descelles wins his case. He has asked Superior Court to overturn the resolution adopted by the previous town council to allow the bypass of Route 243 behind the condo project.

That case is scheduled to be heard on May 18 at Cowansville Courthouse.

Gilles Descelles... 'The big question is who is going to pay for it.'

Doctor, support group say BMP needs more money or services will disappear

By Rita Legault

SHERBROOKE — The budget for Cowansville's Brome-Missisquoi Perkins Hospital is unrealistic and if the present deficit situation persists, services may be cut in order to make ends meet, says a BMP doctor.

"The budget given to us by the Health Ministry is simply not adequate for the services we offer," Dr. André Martel said Sunday.

"The problem is global throughout Quebec," he said. "They tell us this is what you've got, work with it."

"The ministry has told us they will look at our needs once we have balanced our budgets," said Martel. "At the ministry they are not disturbed by the fact that we will have to cut services."

Martel says the hospital is trying to cut services that are administrative and non-medical, but those have already been cut. He says it becoming almost impossible to balance the budget without cutting back medical services.

"Every year our clientele goes up by 10 per cent and our budget goes up by four per cent. The gap keeps getting wider," Martel said.

Les Amis de l'Hopital Brome-

Missisquoi Perkins, a local lobby group, has appealed to their MNA, Labor Minister Pierre Paradis for his help in their fight to get a more realistic budget so they can keep specialized services.

Unless operational budgets are improved, the BMP may lose some specialized services to hospitals in Sherbrooke and Montreal, say members of the group in a letter to Paradis.

"We understand that hospital budgets are being discussed in Quebec," said Peter Kerrigan, vice-president of the group. "We want to make sure Mr. Paradis intervenes on our behalf."

Part of the problem, according to BMP Chief of Medical Services Dr. William J. Barakett, is that there are two hospitals in their region. Because the hospital in Granby has the largest population base, it gets the money for specialized services.

"The government doesn't see why they should duplicate services," Barakett said.

"Through the years we have attracted more specialists. They come here, the money goes to Granby," Barakett said.

The two services most at risk are orthopedics and ophtamology. But Martel says it would be unrealistic to expect Granby to take these cases because it is less equipped in these departments and has less specialists. For example, Granby has only one orthopedist who recently had a heart attack. BMP has two orthopedists and Granby turns to them for help, says Martel.

"The injustice is not that Granby has the means," said Martel. "The injustice is that we do not."

"The biggest danger is that we will lose the specialists we had difficulty in recruiting," Martel said. Martel says its unrealistic to cut the services in Cowansville. He says if the services the hospital offers are no longer available, people will have to go elsewhere to get them.

"This will force people to go to Sherbrooke or Montreal, where we know the hospitals are already overcrowded," said Kerrigan. "It is not acceptable for people to go these distances to get services."

"We would like to do the impossible and balance our budgets," Martel said. "Then we could return to the government and see what they had to offer. I suspect it wouldn't be much."

Driver being held for Magog girl's death

SHERBROOKE (CTP) — A man is being held in Sherbrooke after a 14-year-old Magog girl was instantly killed when hit on a sidewalk by a car Saturday night.

Mélanie Bergeron was riding her bike with a 14-year-old friend at 10 p.m. Saturday night when the car hit her. The girls, headed to Bergeron's friend's place to spend the night, were travelling south on Route 133, Merry South, towards Lake Lovering. The car, which had bumped up on to the curb, hit the girl from behind just passed the McDonald's restaurant.

A Magog police spokesman said the driver had consumed "a few bottles" prior to the accident. The man will be criminally charged, the spokesman said, but police haven't decided what charges to lay.

Historian talks on Magog's first settler

SHERBROOKE — As part of the celebration of Magog's 100th birthday, a talk in English on Magog's first settler, Ralph Merry III, will be given at the town hall Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Historian and lecturer Marie-Paule LaBrière, who wrote the entry on Merry in the 1987 Dictionary of Canadian Biography as well as 15 other articles on the same subject, will review the life and times of Magog's first pioneer.

"Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fields and Mr. and Mrs. Garth Fields," present owners of the Merry House, will be guests of honor at the reception, said a press release from Memphremagog Library, organizer of the event.

Refreshments will follow Labrière's address. Admission is free and everyone is welcome.

Incumbent MP celebrates birthday with candidacy acclamation

Mme Bertrand is running again: and all she needs is brains, not brawn

By Rita Legault

COWANSVILLE — Local MP Gabrielle Bertrand celebrated two things Sunday.

Firstly, it was her 65th birthday. Secondly, she was acclaimed the Progressive Conservative candidate for her riding of Brome-Missisquoi for the upcoming federal election.

In an unprepared speech Bertrand gave her reason for running again.

"I have fallen in love with my riding and its population," said Bertrand. "And because I'm in love, I don't want to break up that love affair."

"I have always given my best, responded to all demands on my time and been ever-present in my riding," she told the more than 200 supporters who turned up for the PC nomination meeting at the Auberge des Carrefours in Cowansville, Sunday afternoon.

Bertrand says that the Brome-Missisquoi riding has seen a lot of economic development in the nearly four years she has been Member of Parliament for the area. More than $1 billion has been invested over the past four years, she said.

"There has been an economic boom that is almost scary, that makes us dizzy," she said. "We owe this to the businessmen and local people and I have been happy to be able to lend a helping hand."

Now, she says, the time has come to begin to develop the area for tourism.

Bertrand also had a couple of words for her adversaries in the upcoming elections, Liberal André Bachand and New Democrat Paul Vachon. She says she wants to ask them a couple of questions, particularly about where they stand on the issues of the Meech Lake constitutional accord and the free trade agreement with the United States which she says are Brian Mulroney's greatest achievements.

"I wonder what Bachand's position is on Meech Lake?" she asked. "His party is for it, but his caucus is 50 per cent against it."

She also criticized Bachand for his lack of interest in the economic development of the riding when he was MP before he was defeated in the last election by Bachand.

The tiny, white-haired grandmother of seven also invited NDP Paul Vachon, a former wrestler, into her ring.

Gabrielle Bertrand... 'I have fallen in love with my riding.'

"Vachon says that they need a real heavyweight in Ottawa," Bertrand said. "If that's what they think is important, that's their problem. I think it's more important to have something in your head and in your heart."

Sherbrooke MP Jean Charest, Minister of State for Youth and Minister of State Fitness and Amateur Sport, on hand for the nominating ceremonies praised Bertrand for her dedication and hard work.

"Here, in Brome-Missisquoi, we measure the candidates from here up," said Charest, indicating his neck and above.

"The only thing that works to get anything done, is not by nice speeches, it's by hard work," Charest said. "This is a value that I share with Mme Bertrand."

Charest also took advantage of the occasion to plug his leader and his party and to give a couple of jabs of his own to the opposition.

"If there is one thing that separates us from our predecessors it is that we have always put the interests of our population ahead of all other considerations," he said. "We have never lost sight of the interests of Canadians."

Charest said the Conservatives have accomplished a lot during their first mandate. He gave examples like job creation, controlling the deficit and unemployment.

"Never in the history of confederation have the Townships ever been treated as well by a federal government," Charest said. "No one contradicts that truth."

Charest told the audience Conservatives needed to renew their mandate to finish the work they started during their first term.

"The work is started and we cannot allow it to be continued by people who are completely incompetent," he said.

"How can we allow our country to be led by a party which waits for its leader to attend his mother's funeral before trying to overthrow him?" he asked.

Charest also laughed at the NDP's idea of fielding "Mad Dog" as a 'prestige' candidate, referring to Paul Vachon's campaign. (Mad Dog is actually Paul Vachon's brother Maurice's wrestling name. Paul Vachon was called the Butcher.)

Charest also read a telegram from Prime Minister Mulroney which wished Bertrand a happy birthday and praised her for her energy and determination.

Jean Charest... 'We measure the candidates from here up.'

SOS exhibit on national tour

Seminary museum takes environment prize

SHERBROOKE (RM) — The Musée de Séminaire beat out 12 other nominees to win a provincial environmental award.

The Musée won the prize for the Eastern Townships region at a Jacques Cartier Park ceremony yesterday.

The museum received the honors for its exhibit SOS—Save Our Species.

Save our Species, co-sponsored by the National Museums of Canada and now on a national tour, deals with Canada's endangered wildlife and offers solutions to help prevent more species from becoming extinct.

The prize was awarded on the occasion of Environment Month 1988.

Under the heading Environment, its for Life the contest was intended to reward those who have "greatly contributed towards the protection and conservation of the environment."

The Musée du Séminaire's bilingual exhibit was first shown in Sherbrooke in 1986. More than 300,000 people have seen Save Our Species since its conception.

NATIONAL IMPACT

The competition jury, Jean-Marc Biron, information officer for the Catholic School Board of Sherbrooke, and Roland Mercier, Roger Gagnon, and Paul Jeannotte from the environment ministry's Eastern Township office, chose Save Our Species over the 12 other entries because it was original and had national impact.

Colette Dufresne, assistant director of the museum, accepted a bronze sculpture entitled "When the bird lands on the shoulder of the man" on behalf of the museum's staff. The piece was created by Quebec artist Maurice Chauveau and represents the protection of life and nature.

Musée du Séminaire general manager Charles Farrar was unable to attend the presentation because he is in France on a bursary from another award the museum won recently.

The museum is now eligible to win the provincial final which will be presented by Environment Minister Clifford Lincoln on May 30 in Montreal.

Townships talk

COWANSVILLE (JM) — It cost Robert Busby a total of $2,600 to stay out of jail after the Venise-en-Québec resident pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving and refusal to submit to breathalyzer tests on October 31, 1987 and December 12, 1987.

Crown attorney Henry Keyserlingk admitted Busby had not been served with a notice of a second offence and said the situation had been aggravated as Busby committed $20,000 in damages in December 1987 when he drove through the plate glass window of a store in Pike River.

Defence lawyer Claude Hamann suggested his client be subjected to heavy fines and donations to the Granby detoxification program, La-boussolle, rather than prison. He suggested fines of $500 and costs for the first charge, $300 and costs on the second, and a total donation of $1000 to the self-help organization followed by counselling.

Keyserlingk relented to see if Busby might be eligible for treatment and Judge Claude Léveillé adjourned his sentence for three days. A representative of Laboussolle said Busby was "a casual drunk, especially when unemployed." He suggested AA therapy as often as available and a monthly follow-up at Laboussolle.

Judge Léveillé imposed the suggested fines and donations, the bound Busby over for three weeks ordering him to attend weekly AA meetings and to meet monthly with Laboussolle. A progress report was demanded for December 6.

François Boulanger, of Cowansville, wasn't as lucky as Busby. He had been convicted of impaired driving in Sherbrooke during December 1987 and was served with a repeat offenders notice and pleaded guilty to another charge of driving a motor vehicle when his blood-alcohol content was .200 mgs.

Claude Hamann of the Legal Aid office stepped in and told Boulanger of the consequences, then convinced Judge Léveillé to allow Boulanger to do the minimum 14 days over seven weekends at the Waterloo Rehabilitation Centre rather than losing his job.

Baby Bonus idea is on right track

While the government's latest measure to help save the declining birth rate has been hailed by many, there's more there than meets the eye.

Under the new budget, the government has promised $500 for first and second babies and $3000 for subsequent children — a good move for the rich but not so advantageous for less fortunate Quebecers.

Yuppies will certainly benefit from the move. While $500 may not seem like a great deal of money, it's a nice bonus for those who can afford to raise a child. For Quebecers living below the poverty line, $500 can seem like a big bonus but unfortunately, it's not enough to raise a child on.

Traditionally, people living below the poverty line are less likely to be able to afford birth control so having a baby may seem like an easy way to make a few bucks.

But it's not so good for the child who will continue to be raised in an underprivileged family. What the government should do now is ensure that those children, and all others, can survive the system and benefit from it.

Overall, the government's baby bonus system is a good thing. The fertility rate in Quebec is the lowest in the Western Hemisphere: 1.4 babies for each woman of child-bearing age. With the new measures, the government is hoping to boost that rate to 1.8 over the next five years. The minimum rate needed to replace the current population is 2.1 so aiming for 1.8 doesn't seem so bad. Mostly, it's good the government has recognized the problem and acted on it.

But soon, the government will have to come up with a plan to ensure the futures of those babies born under the bonus plan. Additional education and social service funding will be needed for these baby bonus children and as a University of Montreal demographer says, there should also be changes in the workplace for pregnant women.

Jacques Henripin says changes in the workplace are needed so mothers can continue their careers while they help raise the fertility rate. Henripin suggests guaranteeing jobs for two or three years while the women are on maternity leave would be a good idea as well as looking into similar programs underway in Europe.

The baby bonus plan is good Mr. Levesque. Congratulations on your first step.

1,517 AIDS cases reported in Canada

ATLANTA (AP) — Health officials say AIDS cases reported worldwide fall into three patterns: industrialized countries with large numbers of cases, countries with mostly heterosexual cases and countries only starting to report the disease.

The World Health Organization has reported 88,091 AIDS cases in 138 countries, but the actual number is believed to be much higher because reporting efforts have just begun in some places.

Thirty-six countries have told the Geneva-based organization they have had no cases of the deadly disease.

AIDS reporting worldwide seems to indicate "three broad yet distinct geographic patterns of transmission," the organization said in a report published Thursday by the Atlanta-based U.S. Centres for Disease Control, whose researchers collaborated with those of WHO.

Those patterns are:

— Industrialized countries with large numbers of AIDS cases, such as North America, Western Europe, Australia, New Zealand, and parts of Latin America. In these areas, most cases have occurred among homosexual or bisexual men and among drug abusers; male patients outnumber females by as much as a 15-1 ratio. Heterosexual transmission accounts for a small, albeit growing, number of cases.

CASES INCREASE

— Areas of central, eastern and southern Africa and some Caribbean countries. In these areas, most cases have occurred among heterosexuals, affecting as many women as men. In some urban areas in these countries, researchers estimate up to 25 per cent of the sexually active population is infected with the virus which causes AIDS.

— Areas of Eastern Europe, the Middle East, Asia and most of the Pacific. Here, the AIDS virus was apparently not introduced until the early to mid-1980s, and only small numbers of cases have been reported. Generally, cases here have occurred among people who have travelled to AIDS-endemic areas or had sexual contact with people from such areas.

The CDC report included analysis on 84,256 AIDS cases reported to the WHO through March 21, the latest data available at the time the report was prepared. As of that date, 34,913 cases had been reported for 1987, a 72-per-cent increase over 1986.

However, 1987 reporting remains incomplete, and the exact percentage increase is not known. AIDS worldwide increased 92 per cent from 1985 to 1986, and 110 per cent from 1984 to 1985.

U.S. LEADS

Forty-two countries in the Americas have reported 61,602 cases, or 73 per cent of the world's AIDS cases, as of March 21. The United States had accounted for 54,233 of those cases, with 2,325 in Brazil and 1,517 in Canada.

As of May 2, the number of AIDS cases in Canada had increased to 1,730, including 965 deaths. The United States has reported 61,596 cases as of this week.

Eight other countries in the Americas have reported more than 100 AIDS cases: Haiti, Mexico, the Dominican Republic, Trinidad and Tobago, the Bahamas, Colombia, Argentina and Venezuela.

Africa has reported 10,973 cases, second to the Americas. Uganda, Tanzania, Congo, Kenya, Burundi, Rwanda, Malawi and Zambia have each reported more than 500 AIDS cases. More than 70 per cent of Africa's AIDS cases were reported last year. Forty-two African countries or territories have reported AIDS.

Gay minister says life is much more relaxed now

EDMONTON (CP) — A gay minister who was married for 22 years says his life has changed for the better since he declared his homosexuality.

Rev. Dr. Charles Bidwell, the father of two children, decided to stop hiding his homosexuality seven years ago. He slowly dissolved his marriage and moved in with a male friend.

"Life is much more relaxed and free," Bidwell said in an interview. "I was deceiving myself. I was deceiving the people who were important to me."

"When you're trying to hide, you use up a lot of your energy keeping up that mask. You censor. You filter everything you say and do for fear somebody will find out."

After declaring his homosexuality, Bidwell joined the Edmonton Metropolitan Community Church, which ministers to gays and lesbians. He holds an education doctorate and is associate professor with the University of Alberta's medicine faculty.

Bidwell, 52, said he was always sexually drawn to males. He had girlfriends as a teenager, but they were just buddies.

"It was the guys I was really attracted to, but I knew you didn't act on it. I thought the only options were to be single or get married."

At 25, he married a McMaster University classmate. Bidwell felt his attraction to men was unique, but two years into the marriage he met another homosexual.

"It was the first time in my life I felt connected to the human race. It opened up the floodgates of everything I wanted to talk about. What's it like and how many others are there like me? Are we all strange?"

FAITHFUL HUSBAND

Bidwell was faithful to his wife throughout the marriage. When he finally told her of his true feelings, she was hurt and angry.

"One of her expressions was, 'I wish it had been another woman. I could compete with another woman.'"

The couple separated for a year before divorcing. He helped prepare his son and daughter for the ridicule they would face.

Bidwell met and dated a male Edmonton sculptor, 19 years his junior. They exchanged vows and rings five years ago.

He also wears a ring with a pink triangle, the symbol homosexuals had to wear in Nazi concentration camps. Bidwell said it now is a symbol of pride rather than of oppression.

But he still sees oppression when he talks to heterosexual congregations. He tries to show them he doesn't fit the stereotype.

"They come in such a rage. I get people accusing me of being an animal and not being a Christian."

Staff at the university gradually learned of his sexual orientation. They now consider he and his partner a couple and they both get invited to parties.

As a United Church of Canada member, Bidwell was on a national church committee studying sexual orientation, lifestyles and ministry.

Two divisions of the church have recommended ordination of homosexuals. This has angered many church members.

Bidwell said ordination would allow gay and lesbian ministers to join the church honestly and let those already ordained be more open.

"In all churches, there are more homosexual ministers and clergy than people probably assume. They've always been there. We've just not known about it."

Letters Farmers are still the Orphan Annie of society

Soon the annual graduation ceremonies are upon us again. A few years back I was privileged to witness the ceremony at McDonald College.

As I was approaching the campus I felt the excitement in the air, a tense expectation and a festive mood was everywhere. As the time approached, the erected stage started to fill up with columns to occupy their prearranged seating in front of the stage.

Speech after speech outlined the great achievements of yesterday and a prosperous futur for agriculture. The dignitaries were introduced with long lists of degrees, honours and accomplishments outlining their success on behalf of agriculture and were then donned with more honours and degrees. It was an impressive sight, a coronation of events and a day to remember.

As the last diploma was handed out and the last citation proclaimed the crowd stated slowly to disperse. I made my way to the car convinced that these great fountains of wisdom can quench all the thirst of knowledge for the agricultural society, and yes farming must be the most prosperous business in this country.

Soon however I learned differently. The farmers are still the Orphan Annie of society. Even though we contribute the most important part of life, sustenance, we have to be subsidized. But as soon as our product leaves the farm and gets in the hands of the packers, wholesalers and retailers they all are able to make a profit.

The environment experts are not complimenting us either. We are accused of being one of the biggest polluters in the country. The U.P.A. confirmed that we are washing our topsoil down the river at an alarming rate.

Some chemical fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides have been endorsed and recommended by our agricultural experts only to be taken off the market as cancer causing and unsafe. Apples, meat and other agricultural products have to be removed from the shelves as health hazards despite the advice and guidance of our peers.

McDonald and no doubt other universities are experimenting with growth hormones in order to squeeze more out of a cow than nature intended. Having disposed of ethics we now cater to greed. A professor from McDonald College assured us that the cost of these treatments will be negligible and the benefit substantial but once the dust has settled the cost will be as much as the market can bear and the benefits negligible. And the all important consumer is completely ignored. We may produce more milk but find a smaller market. But what burns me up is that when the recommendation and guidance from our agricultural experts turn out in failures, the farmer and the consumer bear all the bruises and the culprits walk away without a scratch.

The methods we employ, the quality of our product and the financial reward are below expectation. As farmers, we may well be wondering if we are not led into a Fool's Paradise.

Meech Lake rewrites Canada's constitutional history

Editor:

In the Record's May 5 report by Robert Russo, Garneau Warning: Kiss Meech Goodbye, he states "The deal which enjoys strong popularity in Quebec, makes the province a signatory of the 1982 Constitution..."

This is untrue. Quebec, just as any other province which ratifies Meech Lake, is a signatory of the BNA Act drastically rewritten, the 1982 Constitution Act considerably altered, and of Amendment 16 — the only part which will bear the 1987 date if all provinces adopt Meech Lake before June 23, 1990.

In fact, seven of Meech's sixteen amendments alter the 1982 Act. Eight — the most contentious parts — amend the 1867 (BNA) Act, not the Act of 1982. So, no consenting province can be said to accept the 1982 Constitution, as such.

In reality, what Meech Lake does is rewrite Canada's constitutional history. It makes it appear that, among other things, the distinct society clause has been part of our constitution since 1867. Obviously, this is false.

At least one legal critic contends that this is done to make the most controversial amendments pre-date and, thereby, escape challenge under the Charter of Rights and Freedoms and, at the same time, take precedence over the Charter.

Amendment 16 appears to confirm this. It reads "Nothing in section 2 of the Constitution Act, 1867 affects section 25 or section 27 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms..." At the moment there is no section 2 in the 1867 Act. It was repealed in 1893. The section 2 referred to here in the new (Meech Lake) section 2 — Meech's first amendment — the one containing the distinct society clause. If this new section does not affect section 25 or 27 of the Charter, it does, or at least may, affect all other Charter sections. No wonder so many Canadians reject Meech Lake. No wonder we don't believe the politicians' soothing words.

Journalists have repeatedly referred to Quebec being brought into the constitutional fold by Meech Lake. True! But, what constitution? Certainly not the Constitution Canada, except Quebec, adopted in 1982.

POLITICAL MAP OF CANADA

Broadbent has high hopes for Vachon and Edmonston

By Donald McKenzie

MONTREAL (CP) — It was an unscientific poll of fewer than 400 people in a hamburger restaurant, but NDP Leader Ed Broadbent took heart from the survey which indicates his party would make mincemeat of its rivals in a downtown riding.

"The poll does exaggerate but it's not far out," Broadbent said of the survey taken among customers this week at a restaurant owned by former wrestler Maurice (Mad Dog) Vachon.

The poll indicated 48 per cent of respondents in the riding of Laurier-St-Marie would vote NDP, compared with 28 per cent for the Liberals and 24 per cent for the Conservatives.

"There have been problems recently with the Reid poll, Sorecom poll, Gallup poll, everyone has called these into question," he quipped. "I think perhaps the reliable poll is the hamburger poll."

Broadbent, in town for the nomination of Francois Beaulne as the NDP candidate in Laurier-St-Marie, was surrounded by several prospective NDP candidates, including Phil Edmonston, Michel Agnaieff and Paul Vachon, Mad Dog's burly brother.

VALUABLE CATCH

Broadbent said Paul Vachon, also a former wrestler, will be a valuable acquisition for the party if, as expected, he lands the nomination in June to run in the Eastern Townships riding of Brome-Missisquoi.

"He's an honest man who works for the good of the people," Broadbent said as he munched on a juicy Mad Dog Burger after he had declined an offer to eat a hot dog.

"I'm not a hot-dog eater, that's for other parties here," he cracked.

Paul Vachon, who said he followed politics closely during his 30-year wrestling career, said he believes the party is about to make an impressive election breakthrough.

"I really think people are ready to vote NDP this time — right across the country," the burly Vachon, nicknamed The Butcher, told reporters as Broadbent and his wife, Lucille, complimented his brother on the fare.

The NDP has never elected a member, federally or provincially, in Quebec, but Broadbent also predicted a major breakthrough in the next election.

CONFIDENT ABOUT VOTE

"I am totally confident we will elect a large number of candidates in the next election from almost every region in Quebec."

Recent opinion polls suggest the party is running first or second in Quebec with between 25 and 36 per cent of the popular vote.

Broadbent acknowledged, however, that the party faces an uphill battle against Secretary of State Lucien Bouchard in a June 20 byelection in Lac-Saint-Jean.

"We have a whole new political environment in Quebec but I have no illusions (about Lac-Saint-Jean)."

Broadbent also criticized Prime Minister Brian Mulroney for saying Friday that the president of the Canadian Labor Congress could be inciting acts of violence against politicians by "declaring war" on the Conservative government.

"He's becoming like a child. The metaphor for war has been used for many things. A recent U.S. president had a war on poverty. Is that a bad thing?"

"I'm sure one could go back in not too distant history and find a number of Conservative candidates who said 'Well, we're going to wage war against the Liberals or war against the NDP.' He's just being silly if he's now objecting to that."

Broadbent said Mulroney is still trying to capitalize politically on an incident during a labor rally last weekend when Mulroney's wife, Mila, was struck by a picket sign.

Inflation anxiety leads to cautious market

NEW YORK (AP)—Inflation paranoia that has gripped financial markets is unwarranted and based on outdated economic formulas, say some U.S. economists.

They argue that unlike the 1970s, when price spirals became ingrained, the economy of the 1980s has been reshaped by changes that have restrained costs and wages, two key components of inflation.

Moreover, their reasoning goes, the competitive global economy and higher U.S. productivity provide compelling evidence that acute inflation will not come back to the United States in the near future.

"There's a very slow learning process in the markets," said John Hekman. "We've had inflation scares every year."

Hekman is senior economist at the Claremont Economics Institute, a forecasting firm in California that rejects the prevalent thinking on inflation.

Unfounded or not, the anxiety over inflation has helped to pull down stock and bond prices and raise long-term Treasury yields to the highest levels of 1988.

And the Federal Reserve has been manoeuvring to tighten credit to thwart inflation. On Wednesday major U.S. banks responded by raising prime lending rates.

In Canada, the fear of inflation has been cited as a reason investors are being cautious, dampening the markets.

The governor of the Bank of Canada has said interest rates have been pushed up in the country to fight inflation. The trend-setting Bank of Canada rate held steady at 9.12 per cent Thursday, but the boost in prime rates in the U.S. could still spill over the border in the next few weeks.

The fear of rising prices comes only a few months after the markets were preoccupied with another threat — recession.

To some degree, economists say, inflation anxiety results from the global stock market crash seven months ago. After the collapse the Federal Reserve used a mix of confidence-building public statements and big injections of money into the banking system to quell fears a recession loomed.

Since then the U.S. economy has shown surprising strength, but the uncertainty raised by the crash has lingered. Many investors now say they fear a rapidly expanding economy because it would mean higher wages, more demand for credit and too much money chasing too few goods. That translates into inflation.

Economists who dispute that view argue that wages in the United States have not risen, despite the lowest unemployment in 14 years. On the contrary, wages have fallen in some areas relative to inflation, which last year totalled 4.4 per cent and for the first three months of this year ran at an annual rate of 4.2 per cent.

"Labor costs have remained meek and mild," said Richard Belous, a labor economist at the Conference Board, a business-financed economic research group in New York. "If inflationary costs start getting imbedded in labor costs, then the ball game's over, but I don't think it's happening."

The primary reason for this, Belous and others say, is that the labor market is radically different now. Many companies have restructured into smaller, leaner operations with non-union workers. Moreover, many Americans are employed in temporary and part-time jobs that offer relatively low wages, little job security and often no benefits.

"Management is now playing hardball with labor," Belous said. "It can't just pass costs on to the consumer. Markets are deregulated, there's more competition. We're part of a global economy."

Richard Rahn, economist at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in Washington, argues that inflation worriers are using outdated economic formulas for assuming that less unemployment means higher prices.

On the contrary, he said, less unemployment means higher production, therefore lower prices. "Rapidly growing economies tend to have declining cost curves. Just because the unemployment rate is coming down doesn't translate into inflation."

Businessmen approve as budget gives shot in the arm to QSSP's

By Allan Swift

MONTREAL (CP) — Business people are pleased with new provincial budget provisions to revive the wounded Quebec Stock Savings Plan, but they're skeptical the plan will succeed unless the overall stock market improves.

"Looking at the market right now it would be surprising if it had an immediate impact," Jean-Paul Caron, an economist at the National Bank of Canada, said Friday.

The measures were included in the budget tabled Thursday by Finance Minister Gerard-D. Levesque. The nine-year-old stock plan was highly successful in attracting new investors and capital until the stock-market crash last October. Quebecers get a tax writeoff up to 100 per cent by investing in new share issues of Quebec companies.

"We had to give a little shot in the arm to the QSSP," said Levesque.

Levesque removed the $5,500 ceiling that people can invest in shares eligible for the savings plan. Eligible companies can be bigger, with assets up to $50 million instead of $25 million, all good for a 100-per-cent tax deduction.

Most important, as of June 1 investors who hold savings-plan stock will be able to sell it and buy stock-plan issues already trading on the stock exchange, the so-called secondary market.

"That will make the market more liquid, increase demand for secondary issues," said Caron. Many people are keeping poor stock, hoping it will improve, while waiting for another new issue they could buy instead that might be better, he said. But only two eligible issues have been floated since last October.

This lack of liquidity is a concern of the Montreal Exchange, because some stocks fell to the bottom after the October crash and haven't budged.

"Now the incentive to keep their stocks disappears completely because they can trade on the secondary market as they wish," noted Caron.

The downside is that the "bad stocks could go even lower" as investors dump them for a stock they feel is on the way up, said Caron.

Caron said the measure will at least bring new activity to the market, and higher volumes help all share prices.

The secondary trading is limited to three years. In other words, three years after they are first issued, those shares will no longer be eligible for a tax break. After that they're on their own.

A small-business owner who had to withdraw his first stock issue just after the market crash agrees that the changes will have no effect without better market conditions.

"All they've done is helpful but it all comes back to what the stock market is doing and the restoration of confidence in the stock market, particularly for the small investor who got burned," said Jim Wyant, of Wyant and Co. Ltd.

"That's going to take time and a strong showing by the stock market."

Bruno Riverin, president of the Montreal Exchange, said in a statement Friday the budget changes "should stimulate the secondary market and assure the investor of a more dynamic market."

Claude Garcia, president of the Montreal Chamber of Commerce, said the new measures will improve the market because "investors will get more choice" among tax-subsidized stocks.

Rapid change a threat to the foundations of most secure businesses — U.S. study

By Martin Crutsinger

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a four-year study on new technologies, the U.S. government has concluded that the next two decades will be a time of massive change in which virtually every product, service and job will be reshaped.

The study, released Saturday, is called Technology and the American Economic Transition and was prepared by the congressional Office of Technology Assessment.

It says emerging technologies should offer the opportunity to expand educational opportunities, extend life and reduce sickness, and make work more rewarding by using machines for tedious, repetitive jobs.

But it also warned that rapid change also threatens to "shake the foundations of the most secure American businesses."

"With each opportunity for progress, there are opportunities for serious misstep. Change can create an America in graceless decline, its living standards falling behind those of other world powers."

"We know that we are moving away from an economy heavily dependent on raw materials, where most businesses were isolated from international trade," said project director Henry Kelly.

CITIES EXAMPLE

As one example of how change has already reshaped the country, the study said the number of lawyers, bankers, scientists and accountants needed to supply Americans with food now is roughly equal to the number of farmers.

In fact, only four out of every 100 jobs in food production is on the farm. More than half of the jobs in food production now are held by sales people, precision craftsmen, managers and data entry clerks.

The study said that for the United States to take full advantage of emerging technologies, Congress should consider making fundamental changes in its tax laws and various government regulations.

"Regulations designed to protect consumers... may have outlived their usefulness in areas ranging from banking to housing to electric utilities," the study said.

In the tax area, the study urged reducing or abolishing the tax on capital gains and reforming or abolishing the corporate income tax. The report said these taxes reduce needed investment to boost U.S. productivity.

The study also said that the deduction for housing interest should be limited to a fixed amount because it made little sense to encourage investment savings in the form of home purchases but not permit the complete deductibility of educational expenses because this discouraged investment in human capital.

POINTS TO BRITAIN

Among the report's predictions about the future:

— New technologies for collecting, storing and manipulating information have the potential to revolutionize the economy. Businesses are already spending 40 per cent of their investment dollar on computers and other "information" machines, double the 1978 share.

— The loss of undisputed world economic leadership does not necessarily mean U.S. living standards will decline. Living standards in Britain rose steadily for a century after it lost its dominant position in the world economy.

— Consolidation of farm ownership is likely to continue so that by the year 2000, the 14 per cent of farms with annual sales higher than $250,000 will account for between 80 per cent and 90 per cent of total sales. Likewise, grocery stores will continue getting larger. So-called super stores with 200,000 square feet of space offering 20,000 products now account for 28 per cent of all grocery store sales.

— The U.S. housing industry, to combat the decline in home ownership, may follow the trends of Sweden and Japan, moving toward prefabricated houses built on assembly lines, sold in showrooms and then put together on the site.

— The educational system is on the brink of major technological changes through the use of computers that will make learning more productive and fun while allowing teachers more time to spend with individual students.

Revenues jumped but Campeau reports huge loss

TORONTO (CP) — Campeau Corp. has reported a huge loss of $254 million US — but only on paper, the retail and real-estate company says.

The year-end results were based on the 13 months ended Jan. 31, compared with a 12-month profit of $10 million the year before. The yearend was moved one month to coincide with other retailing operations.

But Campeau's continuing operations generated a strong profit of $450 million before accounting for the company's 1986 hostile takeover of Allied Stores Corp. The net loss came only after accounting costs from the takeover — costs that aren't paid in cash and are little more than balance-sheet entries.

The 1987 results are reported in U.S. dollars because most sales and earnings come from its U.S. department stores.

The net loss for each Campeau subordinated voting share was $6.49, compared with a 10-cent-a-share profit in 1986. The loss also included ongoing operations and results from stores as well as the sales of other assets.

"We knew it was going to be a losing year anyway, given the transitional phase with the Allied takeover," said Ross Cowan, analyst at Levesque Beaubien Inc.

REVENUE JUMPS

Revenue jumped to $3.53 billion from the $977 million in the prior year, which included only two months of Allied Stores operations.

Some analysts said Campeau generated a healthy profit, not counting the takeover costs.

"Before all the charges associated with the acquisition of Allied, results do look very strong," said

Janet Mangano, analyst at New York-based Josephthal and Co. "Basically, Allied pulled its weight for the 13-month period."

Campeau faces another painful round of accounting charges this year after its $8.8-billion deal to take over Federated Department Stores Inc. last month.

Cowan predicted Campeau will break even in 1989 after posting sharply higher sales and profit when the Federated store divisions are added to company results.

The U.S. retailing division should have a slim net profit after generating $415 million in 1989 cash flow and paying preferred share dividends, he said.

Details of Campeau's operating profit from continuing operations included:

— Total operating profit of $450 million, up from $260 million;

— Profit of $355 million from Allied's six U.S. store divisions, up from $154 million;

— Rental profit from the real estate division of $146 million, up from $103 million.

Business briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — Steinberg Inc. said Friday it has postponed a decision to sell most of its Canadian food operations pending a vote by unions on a company proposal.

Steinberg said in a statement it received several petitions signed earlier this week by thousands of employees urging the company to allow workers to vote on a proposal which would allow supermarket operations to be maintained.

The company said it wants the unions involved to vote on the offer soon. Steinberg has received bids for its supermarkets and other food-distribution properties from several companies, including George Weston Ltd., Oshawa Group Ltd., Provigo Inc. and Metro-Richelieu Inc.

Steinberg went on the block after Mitzi Dobrin, one of three sisters who control the Steinberg family trusts, launched a lawsuit last December seeking to remove her two sisters from the trusts. The lawsuit has since been dropped.

In February, the company said it was willing to sell its food-related assets piecemeal, inviting bids by March 25. The Steinberg board of directors met to consider the bids April 8, but has made no statement on a decision.

TORONTO (CP) — Slow sales have prompted a two-week layoff beginning June 13 of 1,000 workers at the new Eagle Premier car assembly plant in nearby Brampton.

Notice of the layoff was posted Friday, said Walter McCall, a spokesman for Chrysler Canada Ltd., which owns the plant.

About 400 office, maintenance and other workers will remain. "There's no question it's slower than we would like," McCall said. But he said car sales have climbed steadily month by month.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — General Electric Co. has won a $235.9-million contract to co-ordinate engineering and battle management research for phase one of the Star Wars anti-missile defence, the Pentagon said.

Pentagon officials said Thursday that General Dynamics Corp. was the other major defence firm which sought the contract.

"Cost was the major factor in picking GE," said one of the officials, who asked not to be identified. But he did say whether the firm had underbid General Dynamics.

General Electric's Aerospace Division in Philadelphia received the five-year contract to help draw test and validation programs so the next milestone decision on President Ronald Reagan's strategic defence initiative, or SDI, might be made in the early 1990s.

Programs under study for possible inclusion in initial SDI deployment in the mid- to late 1990s include space and ground-based surveillance and tracking systems and space and ground-based interceptors.

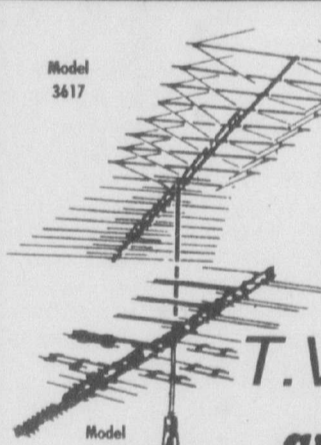

Co-ordination and command of systems to destroy attacking nuclear missiles in flight are key factors — and some congressional opponents say key barriers — in any final development of SDI, commonly called Star Wars.

Spring — Hopscotch, pussy willows and spring cleaning

Spring, that brief and lovely time of memories and inspiration is definitely with us once more. A tender time of puddles and pussy willows, a time when small flowers and shoots of green make a timid appearance through the cold earth and masses of damp leaves to give evidence of Nature's perennial miracle.

How do these tiny, fragile things know when to start their journey upward from the soil? Who tells the old bear that the time has come to rouse up, scratch, stretch and emerge from his dark cave? Is it a divine whisper that summons the birds north to fill our skies with song and color?

In Spring, according to our years, we look either forward or backward. I really do not mind my retrospective view but I do wonder about certain things. This has always been a season associated with romance, birds and bees and mating: now it seems that the government is offering to pay for any procreative activities. And we thought it was fun anyway!

Hard to understand why little children should become pawns in a game of politics and populations. It is like trying to remember the no-gadget bicycle — things like little boys squatting on curbs playing a game of "jacks" or some girls hopscotching all over the sidewalk. And isn't it wonderful to remember those dusky, just beginning-to-be-warm evenings when we were allowed outside until 7 P.M. to play hide and seek or a breathless game of kick the can.

At this stage of my life, however, amid all this lovely nostalgia, housecleaning rears its ugly and insistent head and demands immediate attention.

I do the same every year. I spread out all my garments most which should have been discarded long ago, and I end up by putting them all back in the same overcrowded drawers. Sweaters, worn and ancient but who knows? I might go on a pack-packing trip some day. Blouses, faded and too small — might need those for housecleaning. Reminds me of a verse of Dave Stevens who wrote:

"All Tuesday I spent madly dashing

Round the house in a housecleaning passion

I threw out the rags

That had buckles and sags

But on Wednesday, they came back into fashion."

My desk represents the supreme challenge. Invariably, I throw out everything that I should keep and keep everything that I should throw out. There are numerous old Elizabeth Arden jars filled with erasers and paper clips, coffee cans full of unsharpened pencils, outdated address books and thirty year old receipts (just in case).

And then, the beginning of many great novels: How about this: "They did not find the woman's body until Thursday afternoon. I was turning the key in the library door when the ambulance and the police car raced by...."

Or — "Night had become the time of terror. Shadows moved on the wall beside her in the big ward. A knife, gleaming with fresh blood, was suddenly in her hand and a voice that screamed and screamed in horror was silenced only when a merciful needle pierced her anguished flesh..." Perhaps I'd better tackle the desk first!

Knowlton Academy students win many honors in varied competitions during the school year

By Kay Taylor

Cheers and congratulations! Knowlton Academy's Gymnastic and Fitness Team brought home three plaques on Thursday, April 28 from the district-wide competition: First in Boys' Gymnastics; First in Boys' Fitness; First in Girls' Fitness. All this is good practice for the Canadian Fitness tests which all the students will be undergoing in their Physical Education classes.

More congratulations! Knowlton Academy hosted the first District of Bedford Math Competition for Level 6 students on Friday, April 15. Eight schools were represented in this activity which was well organized by Messrs Harvey and Stewart.

It is announced with great pleasure that Knowlton Academy came first overall and this competition is being keenly looked forward to as an annual event.

The students representing

Knowlton Academy so ably were: W. Stewart's Class: Kina Olsen; Azelia Serjeantson; Mandy Albert; Ruggie Thomson; D. Harvey's Class: Joanna Bliss; Jake Cornell; Kathryn Moore; Tara Newman.

Youtheatre- On April 14 Youtheatre visited Knowlton Academy to present the play "Age". It was a story about a young child who wanted to be older than he was. The students responded very favourably to the production and thanks is extended for the choice of plays appropriate for the youngsters in the school.

Speech Therapy: Though verbalization is our primary form of communication from early childhood on, some children have difficulty making themselves understood. Even though this problem is relatively common, there is a notable lack of speech therapy in the area. Anyone with concerns on this subject, or who would like to have therapy or assessment available in our area, please contact Maureen Brophy at 227 Principale, East Farnham, JOE 1N0 or phone 263-5332.

A Reminder: The dress code for Knowlton Academy is in force until May 24 when it will be relaxed for the final month of school. Parents should however be reminded that appropriate clothing is still expected in school dress for that final month.

For parents outfitting their children for the Fall, the colours are navy, white and grey. Navy tunics are sold at school ($18.00); a solid navy skirt or culottes or pants (excluding jeans), may be worn by girls from kindergarten through to Section 1. Solid navy pants are worn by boys from kindergarten to Section 1 also. All of these are worn with a white polo shirt, blouse or cotton shirt. The uniform is completed by a solid grey sweater of personal choice. Solid navy shorts may be worn during warm weather. Knowlton Academy jogging suits, shorts and T-shirts are recommended for gym days only.

The Volunteers- Knowlton Academy could not do without them! April 18 to 22nd was Volunteer Week. There was a special bulletin board with the Certificate of Merit and the name of every volunteer who works on behalf of the students. Since many will not have seen this "Thank-You", here is a public thanks to all these special people without whom things would not run as well as they do.

The School Newsletter for May ended with a special tribute from the Principal J.S. Trew, the students and staff: "Since this or any other school would not be necessary without you, the Mothers, we all wish you a Happy Mother's Day!"

Should airlines charge full fare for children Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A while back you printed a letter from a divorced woman in San Mateo who said she had put her 8-year-old on a plane to visit his father. Your correspondent stated that the airline took good care of the child and that they had darned well better, because they charged full fare for children who travel alone. You asked why the extra charge.

You can't be serious, Ann. That child takes up a seat, eats and drinks almost as much as an adult and demands extra attention. I can't believe you couldn't figure this out. — New Orleans

Dear N.O.: I had never given it any thought, but a great many readers had plenty to say on the subject. The mail has been mind-boggling. Read on:

From Lake Forest, Ill.: Not only does a parent pay full fare for a child who travels alone, $20 is added if the child is between 8 and 11 and it's a connecting flight. This ensures that the child will be delivered to a person who must produce identification as proof that he or she is the one authorized to meet the youngster. The peace of mind is certainly worth the extra money. Wake up, Annie.

From San Francisco: Many readers will call me nasty names but I wish the airlines would inaugurate child-free flights. I'd be willing to pay an additional 25 percent for a trip with no crying babies, no mothers yelling, "You're going to catch it when you get home," and no kids throwing up all over my shoes.

From Dallas: I am a flight attendant who wishes the airlines would not allow children to travel alone. I've seen parents put kids on planes with nothing to do for four hours — no coloring books, no toys, no games. I had one of those youngsters last week. She rang my call button at least 15 times and went to the bathroom every 10 minutes. I'm rethinking motherhood.

From Columbus, Ohio: A kid who appeared to be about 7 years old kicked the back of my seat all the way from Cleveland to New York. When I asked the flight attendant to ask him to stop, she said, "Sorry, I've got 57 meals to serve. You ask him."

From Vienna, Va.: As an airline agent at the hub of a regional jet carrier, I can tell you that unaccompanied minors are a frequent sight. While these little darlings are waiting for their connecting flights you need a radar screen to keep track of them. And you ask why they have to pay full fare? They should pay double.

From Detroit: We sent our 10-year-old daughter from Detroit to Fort Lauderdale last February. She and her two seatmates (who were younger) were virtually ignored by the airline personnel. She was told, "They are all taken." The two younger children slept huddled under my daughter's coat. So much for service people these days.

From Vancouver: Last year I was visiting my mother. My two children, 7 and 8, were with me. Mom became seriously ill and I had to stay and take care of her. I was worried sick about sending kids back home to Los Angeles alone, but I had no choice. The flight attendants in Vancouver were angelic. Both my daughters were given "Junior Flight Attendant" pins and allowed to help pass peanuts. When they called me from Fresno, they said, "Mom, when we grow up we are going to work on airplanes."

Wool gathering project was an overwhelming success

BOUNDARY — November 1987 a wool gathering project was started by CBC-Quebec A.M. and was a tremendous success because of the generosity of a large number of people. During the winter that followed I was able to give mittens, slippers, toques and scarves to schools, namely Sunnyside, Rock Island and Sacred Heart, Stanstead.

Continuing with the program through the winter months the following people knitted, many using their own wool, others to knit wool donated by Mrs. Arthur Galbraith, Waterloo and Kate McCune, Rock Island.

Knitters to donate were Doris Gosselin, Tomifobia, Madelyn Hartley, Beebe, Eveline Balyea and daughter Joan of Stanstead, Gladys Haskell, Joan Getty, Beebe, Ena Ticehurst, Martha Rodrigue, Stanstead, St. Cuthbert's Church Guild, Dixville, Mrs. Real Forcier, Tomifobia. Christ Church ACW-Guild, Stanstead donated some almost new clothing which to celebrate Past Noble Grand night. We were joined by Sister Thelma Picken, President, and Sister Shirley Vaughan, Warden, also husbands and friends of the members. This get-together was enjoyed by all.

was given to a student.

I now have several things on hand in storage to provide for the Customs Christmas baskets for needy families in 1988, plus the schools here and this year the elementary school in Ayer's Cliff.

The schools tell me some youngsters forget to bring their boots, some have boots but not shoes for school, this is where the slippers are used on loan for the day; mittens and toques, scarves may be wet, they are placed to dry and the items loaned for the day. This program is carried out by the school staffs.

I would personally like to say thank you for these items, perhaps your reward will be to know how much these gifts mean to the school children, the school staffs, and when it is given to the needy families.

May God bless you for your thoughtfulness.

Obituary

LAWRENCE HENRY DEZAN of Ayer's Cliff, Quebec

Lawrence Dezan passed away on April 8, 1988 at the Toronto General Hospital, Toronto, Ont. He had gone to Toronto to the Falk Oncology Center for the treatment of cancer but due to his weakened condition he was put into the hospital.

He was born on July 15, 1919, in MacConnell, son of the late Charles W. Dezan and his wife the late Eva M. Hibbard.

Lawrence grew up on the family farm in MacConnell, later moving to Ayer's Cliff. As a young man he did carpenter work. In 1940 after the outbreak of World War 2 he enlisted in the armed forces and was soon sent overseas with the Canadian Forestry Corps #2 Company. They were stationed in Scotland and later entered the front lines in France, Belgium and Germany. In Sept. 1945 after the war ended he returned home, where he met Madeleine Tyler whom he had corresponded with during the war. A year later they were married on Sept. 2nd, 1946. Of this union there were two children—Richard Emmerson and Joyce Helen. He was a very proud and thoughtful husband, father and grandfather. He took great interest in the sports of hockey and baseball in which his son and later his grandson were involved. He also enjoyed going camping and on picnics with family and friends.

Lawrence worked for many years as caretaker at the summer home of William Rosengarten and later at Kilgours Furniture factory in Coaticook. He and his wife worked as caretaker and cook at the Bishop Mountain Hall in Coaticook. Upon his return home to Ayer's Cliff he was employed at Ayer's Cliff Industries until, due to failing health he was forced to retire in 1982.

He was a member of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch #128 Ayer's Cliff. He and his brother Ronald finished the interior of the new part that was built onto the hall as well as many jobs in the old part, this was done voluntarily in their spare time and on weekends.

In 1951 he became a member of Alexandra Lodge #59 and he was a member of King Edward Encampment. In 1958 he joined Fidelity Rebekah Lodge #33 and in 1987 received his Assembly Degree. He was a devoted member of these fraternal Orders and enjoyed travelling to district meetings and other functions.

He leaves to mourn his loss and will be greatly missed by his wife Madeleine, son Richard and wife Eileen, daughter Joyce and husband Eric Little, grandchildren Christopher, Cheryl and Crystal Dezan and Allyson Little; brothers Ulden and wife Sandra Dezan, Ronald and wife Geraldine; sisters Muriel Vanasse, Dorothy and husband Clayton Turner, aunts, uncles, nieces and nephews.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Rick Spies at the Beulah United Church. Two hymns were sung "Will Your Anchor Hold" and "Mine Eyes Have Seen The Glory". He was laid to rest in the MacConnell Cemetery. Bearers were three Oddfellows, Lloyd Smith, William Wharry and Paul Carrigan, two Legion members Mervin Drew and Norman Wintle and a veteran and close friend Alex Hibbard.

The many floral tributes, messages of sympathy and donations made in his memory showed the esteem in which he was held.

Finals set amongst old friends

EDMONTON (CP) — With the number of Boston Bruins and Edmonton Oilers who have traded loyalties, this spring's NHL Stanley Cup final could almost be subtitled Going Home Again.

Edmonton has four ex-Bruins on their roster — forwards Mike Krushelnyski, Craig MacTavish and Geoff Courtnall and goaltender Bill Ranford — and coaches Glen Sather, Ted Green and John Muckler all have ties to Boston. Sather and Green are ex-Bruin players while Muckler lives in the area.

The Bruins, in the final for the first time since 1978 when they lost in six games to the Montreal Canadiens, have two former Oilers — goaltender Andy Moog and centre Ken Linseman.

Defenceman Allen Pederson is an Edmonton native and Glen Wesley was born about an hour's drive away, in Red Deer, Alta. "It's funny, there seems to have been a lot of trades between the teams," said Courtnall, obtained in midseason with Ranford for Moog. "I'm sure that Craig and Mike as well as myself are really going to be gunning to have a big series and I'm sure Kenny and Andy will also."

The defending champion Oiler

ers, searching for a fourth championship in five years, open the best-of-seven series at home with games on Wednesday and Friday.

They go into Game 1 with a full week's rest after beating Detroit in five games. The Bruins won't be as rested — they needed seven games to get past the New Jersey Devils with a 6-2 victory Saturday night.

MIXED FEELINGS

MacTavish, picked up by the Oilers as a free agent in 1985, said Sunday he watched that final game with mixed feelings.

"The fact that I know a lot of guys on the Bruins, I was happy for them that they won it.

"But by the same token, I'm a little bit greedy, I want to win the Cup this year and I thought that we might have a little better chance going into New Jersey with the big ice surface and the fact that they're kind of inexperienced."

"(The Bruins) are playing on emotion right now," MacTavish said after an unusually strenuous 70-minute Edmonton practice.

"They've just come off a seven-game series, they're going to be a little tired and going into Game 1 they might not be right on top of their game like they should be, or could be, if they had a little time off. So it might be an advantage to us."

Edmonton beat Philadelphia in seven games to win the Cup last year. The last time Boston won the Cup was in 1972 when they beat the New York Rangers in six games.

"It's going to be a great series," said defenceman Kevin Lowe, who had a new playing cast put on his broken right thumb.

"There's as much tradition here with the Bruins as there has been with the Flyers or the Islanders." "I mean, the Bruins are a 64-year-old franchise. They've won a few Stanley Cups. Boston is a great sport town, a great hockey town, so I think the fan appreciation, the fan following, is going to be as high for this one as it was last year for the Flyers."

Christie takes Ottawa marathon

OTTAWA (CP) — Gord Christie of Charlottesville, Va. took the lead just past the halfway mark Sunday to comfortably win the 14th Toshiba National Capital Marathon in near-perfect weather conditions.

Christie's time was two hours, 18 minutes and 40 seconds, nearly six minutes slower than the course record of 2:12:58 set by Peter Maher of Thornhill, Ont. last year. Christie, 25, who was born in Inuvik, N.W.T., earned $5,000 with the win.

"I'm happy to win, I wanted to beat 2:20," said Christie, a graduate student in philosophy at the University of Virginia. "It's a personal best, but I knew I'd have a PB."

More than 1,200 runners took part in the torturous, hilly run along the Ottawa River to and from Carleton University under cloudy skies with a light breeze off the water to cool them.

Christie said this is the first serious marathon he has run. His previous best over the 41.6-kilometre distance was 2:21:17 in West Virginia last spring.

Bernard Voyer of Hull, Que., was second with a time of 2:20:13 and Michael Petrocchi, a family doctor from St. Catharines, Ont., was third in 2:21:30.

Marjariita Galycya, 26, of Del Consipito, Mexico, won the women's race in 2:52:06. Jean Payette of Toronto was second in 2:54:27 with Linda Vogel of Toronto third in 2:56:06.

Laura Konantz of Toronto, who led the women from the 23 kilometre mark to 38 kilometres, faded over the final four kilometres to finish fourth in 2:56:20.

Galycya, who said she needed a 2:35 to qualify for the Mexican marathon team in the Summer Olympics in Seoul, Korea, fell well short of her goal as she struggled throughout the race.

None of the women runners earned prize money because they missed the race standard of 2:50. The men's standard is 2:25.

Medicine Hat savors its victory

CHICOUTIMI (CP) — Trevor Linden held out his right hand and wondered on which finger he'd soon slip his second Memorial Cup ring in as many years.

Ten other members of the Medicine Hat Tigers had the same problem and five, including Linden, were trying to figure out what to do with the third piece of championship jewelry they'd won in 12 months.

Linden, Rob Dimaio, Scott McCurdy, Mark Pederson and Wayne McBean skated for the victorious Canadian junior team at the world championships in Moscow.

"Three rings in one year. It's unbelievable," said Linden after the Tigers beat the Windsor Spitfires 7-6 to become the sixth team in the 70-year history of the Memorial Cup to win consecutive titles.

"It's been an incredible year." And Linden's year isn't over.

He will go in the top three overall in June's National Hockey League draft. Linden had a stopover in Minnesota on his way home Sunday to meet with the North Stars, who pick first overall.

Dimaio, meanwhile, was thrilled.

"This year is something that I'll dream about for the rest of my life," said Dimaio, the eight-day tournament's most valuable player and, with Linden, an all-star.

The Spitfires won't be having many dreams about their first Memorial Cup appearance. Nightmares are more like it.

After jumping to a 3-0 lead, Windsor was outscored 6-1 for a two-goal Medicine Hat lead with less than 10 minutes left in the game. Windsor followed with a pair of goals and overtime was looming. Pederson, however, was the Tiger ace that downed the Spitfires, scoring with 2:43 left in the game to seal the victory.

"It's about a year to the day that I've been on three championship teams," said Pederson, the first-round draft choice of the Montreal Canadiens in 1986. "It's almost a dream come true."

The Spitfires racked up impressive numbers to qualify for the four-team round robin championship. Windsor had the best overall major-junior record in Canada and set seven team marks.

The club also had a 21-game winning streak, including a 5-2 triumph over the Tigers.

"All I can say is we both won a game," said losing coach Tom Webster. "I don't think we lost. We ran out of time."

The clock proved an ally to Medicine Hat, whose timely goals included one by Mark Woods with 53 seconds remaining in the first period.

"It was a momentum builder for them coming into the second period and it carried on," said Webster. "If there was a turning point that was it."

Tigers coach Barry Melrose agreed.

"They became unravelled a bit," said Melrose. "They hadn't had a team come back on them."

"They were used to when they had a three-goal lead. They steamrolled them."

The Cincinnati Reds tried to hand them a game, but the Pittsburgh Pirates dropped it.

Perron vows to stay aboard

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Perron says he has no intention of giving up his post as head coach of the Montreal Canadiens.

"You can get that idea out of your mind, I've never quit," Perron told reporters who greeted the NHL coach when he and his wife flew back Saturday night from a vacation in Gaudeloupe.

The issue arose when broadcaster Mario Tremblay, a former forward with the team, told television viewers last Tuesday he had been reliably informed that Perron would not continue as coach. The report was emphatically denied by Canadiens general manager Serge Savard.

Jean Perron... 'You can get that out of your mind I'll never quit.'

Perron, who first tried to avoid reporters but gave in when they found him in the airport's VIP lounge, said he had talked to Savard by telephone for two minutes and plans to meet him today.

Perron, who said one of his sons rang him in the Caribbean island to inform him of Tremblay's comment, said that the next day he phoned Savard who answered his questions and told him to relax and enjoy the holiday. Perron declined to discuss the conversation in detail.

Asked whether he would prefer coaching at the university level, Perron, 41, whose contract expires June 30, said only that he is a career coach and wants to stay behind the Canadiens' bench.

Murray stays put in Washington

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Bryan Murray will return next season as head coach of the Washington Capitals, the National Hockey League team has announced.

Murray, who has coached the Capitals for almost seven seasons, will fulfill the final year of his contract, Capitals general manager David Poile said Friday.

"Bryan is set for next year," Poile said. "In the seven years he's been with the organization, he's proven to be one of the best coaches in the NHL."

The question of Murray's return in 1988-89 was raised on more than one occasion last season, so Murray was understandably pleased by the decision.

"You hate to go through too long a period without being certain about things," the veteran coach said.

Murray, who has compiled a 283-192-68 regular-season record during his tenure with the Capitals, has been criticized because the team has failed to get past the Patrick Division finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs the last six seasons.

The Capitals scored their biggest playoff victory in franchise history in the first round of the Stanley Cup this year, rallying from a 3-1 series deficit to defeat the Philadelphia Flyers.

Washington was subsequently eliminated from this year's playoffs by the upstart New Jersey Devils in seven games in the Patrick Division finals.

Both Poile and Murray said the Capitals, who finished second in the Patrick Division with a 38-33-9 record this season, will see some lineup changes.

"We could bring in four or five of our younger players and be an entirely different type of hockey club," Poile said. "Bryan should be ready for that type of challenge."

Penske's team takes the top polls

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rick Mears muscled into the pole position for the 72nd Indianapolis 500, setting one- and four-lap speed records Saturday as he mastered a slippery track that ambushed a bitterly disappointed Mario Andretti three hours earlier.

The team owned by silver-haired business entrepreneur Roger Penske grabbed the spotlight from Andretti by sweeping the three front-row positions among the 19 drivers who qualified for the May 29 race on the first of the four days of time trials.

Danny Sullivan, the 1986 Indy winner, took the middle of the first row, between teammates Mears and four-time and defending champion Al Unser.

Mears, a two-time Indy winner, grabbed his fourth Indianapolis pole and his eighth front-row start in 11 races at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway with his record run, which featured a sizzling lap of 220.453 miles an hour on his first trip around the historic 2½-mile oval.

Each of the three succeeding laps on his 10-mile qualifying run was slower as the track surface turned slippery from an unrelenting mid-afternoon sun. But Mears' four-lap average of 219.198 easily broke the record of 216.828 he set in 1986.

The expected battle for the pole between Mears and Andretti failed to materialize after Andretti became the first qualifier of the day with a disappointing 214.692 m.p.h. average.

ANDRETTI SLOWS

That four-lap speed, with a fast lap of 217.014, was far off the practice speeds which the 1969 Indy winner had been throwing at Mears throughout the week leading up to the opening of qualifying.

Until Mears turned a 222.827 lap in Saturday morning's practice session, the 221.565 by Andretti on Wednesday had stood as the unofficial-but-daunting Everest of Indy.

Andretti was supposed to have gained another edge Friday night when he drew the No. 1 qualifying position, allowing him to make his attempt while the track was still relatively cool.

"The track is what changed, not the car," said the fourth fastest qualifier.

Unser was the first of the Penske drivers to make a qualifying attempt on the treacherous asphalt surface, coming up with a four-lap average of 215.270.

Sullivan, in another of the team's new and potent Chevrolet-powered Penske PC17 race cars, bettered that with a four-lap run averaging 216.214, which included a lap of 217.749 that broke Mears' two-year-old mark of 217.581.

But, like virtually everyone in the estimated Speedway crowd of 200,000 hoping to see another record, Sullivan expected his teammate to take the top spot away from him.

Mears, smiling and talking with friends and officials before climbing into the cockpit of his bright yellow car, then went out and did what he was expected to do, following his record lap with speeds of 219.877, 218.781 and 217.702.

Joining Andretti in the second row were Al Unser Jr. at 214.186 and Arie Luyendyk of the Netherlands at 213.611.

Behind the first two rows were Scott Brayton at 212.624, former Formula One champion Emerson Fittipaldi at 212.512, Derek Daly at 212.295, Michael Andretti at 210.183 and Randy Lewis at 209.774.

Roberto Guerrero, coming back from a serious head injury suffered here last fall in a crash during tire testing, was next at 209.633, followed by 1986 runner-up Kevin Cogan at 209.552, 1983 winner Tom Sneva 208.659, Phil Krueger's two-year-old March at 208.212 and the new Porsche-powered March of Italian Teo Fabi at 207.244.

Also among the qualifiers was Scott Atchison, the only rookie in the tentative lineup and the slowest qualifier so far at 205.142.

Oquendo relishes his historic moment

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jose Oquendo has played every position but catcher in his major-league career. Now he has a new claim to fame — he's the first non-pitcher in 20 years to get a decision, albeit the wrong kind.

Oquendo, forced into action on the mound Saturday, nearly ended up on the winning side, tossing four innings of a 19-inning game with the Atlanta Braves. That he failed did not detract from his attempt.

"I gave it my all," said Oquendo, a 7-5 loser. "It was fun."

He could have been the first non-pitcher to win since New York Yankees outfielder Rocky Colavito shut out the Detroit Tigers for 22-3 innings Aug. 25, 1968.

Oquendo became the Cardinals' eighth pitcher after Randy O'Neal left with a sore arm following the 15th inning. He wriggled out of jams for three frames before giving up the winning runs on two walks and Ken Griffey's double in the 19th.

He surrendered four hits, walked six and struck out winning pitcher Rick Mahler.

"I don't think I could have gone any farther," said Oquendo. "My arm was starting to get sore."

He had several close calls.

Right fielder Tom Brunansky's strong throw nailed Griffey at home in the 16th. Nearly an hour later, Ron Gant lined out to Brunansky after Oquendo walked two with two outs in the 18th.

Finally, Griffey's double to left decided the five-hour, 40-minute contest.

Philadelphia Phillies, allowing three runs on four hits — including a homer.

"At least I improved on my ERA," he said. "I used fastballs and some sliders. The last couple of innings, I used the split-finger."

Oquendo came on in the ninth to play first base and changed gloves after Todd Worrell, Bob Forsch and O'Neal had joined St. Louis' pitching procession.

A rookie, Cris Carpenter, started for the Cardinals. Only Larry McWilliams, who started Sunday for St. Louis, wasn't used. John Tudor, another pitcher, pinch-hit for DeLeon in the Cardinals' last at-bat.

It was the longest game ever played in St. Louis and it rendered Oquendo, 24, unavailable for a repeat pitching performance Sunday.

"I don't think he'll be able to throw," said Herzog. "He may not be able to reach his leg."

Sherbrooke A's go 500 over weekend

By Roy MacLaren

SHERBROOKE — The Sherbrooke Athletics came out of their road trip this weekend with a .500 record in Quebec Major-Junior Elite Baseball League action.

GAME ONE
The A's lost their first game to Shawinigan Saturday, 11-7. The trip got off to a bad start with transportation problems and the team arrived in Shawinigan an hour and a half late.

Head coach Yvon Lachance was not disappointed with his team's effort. He believes Shawinigan to be one of the strongest teams in the Quebec Major-Junior Elite Baseball League and thought that it was "OK that they won." The coach conceded that Shawinigan was "a lot better than us."

The A's kept the game close until the sixth inning, with the score 8-7 for Shawinigan. After the sixth, however, the game began to pull away from the locals and they were kept off the scoreboard.

Coach Lachance was extremely happy with the play of third baseman Mathieu Roy. Roy hit a double scoring two RBIs in the first inning and brought in two more runs in the sixth with a home run.

"Errors in the infield cost us the match," concluded Lachance.

GAME TWO
Despite not leaving Shawinigan until 12:30 am, because of the game's late start, the Athletics fared better in Sunday's game, defeating the Lauzon Ambassadeurs 7-5.

The Ambassadeurs pitching was extremely good in the first half of the game and the A's were unable to score. Things picked up by the fifth inning, however, when the A's knocked in two runs.

They kept the momentum going with two more runs in the sixth inning and another three in the eighth.

Lachance feels the turn-around play came in the seventh inning when catcher Pascal St. Pierre picked off two runners with the bases loaded. St. Pierre also hit in two rbi's.

Pitcher Daniel Lamontagne was on the mound for the first six innings, striking out six opponents. Denis Primeau came in for the save.

This week the A's will be travelling to Trois Rivières on Tuesday and will return home to meet the Trois Rivières team again here on Thursday.

Bishop's Gaiters get a rebirth in Ontario

By Scott David Harrison

SHERBROOKE — Pessimism voiced last week by former Quebec University Athletics Association basketball commissioner Garth Smith was proven needless when the Quebec men's basketball league merged with the Ontario league Friday.

Next year, Bishop's, McGill and Concordia will be lacing up the high-tops against Ottawa and Carleton in the Ontario University Athletics Union, Eastern Division. Bishop's will also play a home-and-home series against the University of Toronto, York, Ryerson, Laurentian and Queen's.

Friday's announcement was as sweet to Smith and Bishop's Gaiters men's basketball head coach Eddie Pomykala as the swooshing sound of a last-second, game-winning basket.

"We're elated by it," said Smith. "It will be great for Quebec basketball."

Gaiters coach Eddie Pomykala thinks the merger is a break for the school's program.

"I think it is probably the best thing that has happened to Bishop's basketball — besides the two Quebec University Athletic Association basketball championships," he said. "This is the best thing."

"I'm more than happy," added Pomykala. "It pumps me up. I wish the season would start in two weeks."

"Three teams was a definite downer," he said referring to the intensive-care condition the QUAA was in after Trois Rivières folded, leaving Bishop's, McGill and Eddie Pomykala and his Gaiters basketball program will get a new life in the Ontario University Athletics Association.

Concordia to fend for themselves. "How could you expect to attract players to a three-team league when you play the same teams all the time?"

The merger means the OUAA's basketball league will expand to three divisions from its present two.

The Gaiters will play 18 games but only against teams from the Eastern and Central Divisions. Play against Western Division teams is reserved for league playoffs.

Come game time, local fans will be offered a feast of basketball action with nine teams travelling to the John H. Price sports centre to take on the Gaiters.

As Smith said, "the whole scene means that there'll definitely be a better grade of basketball."

Pomykala agrees.

"It helps in many ways," he said. "First there's the improvement in competition. The teams will be better, the players will be better and the coaches will be better. For me, it means seeing nine different coaches instead of just three."

"With nine different teams coming in to play the Gaiters there will be more excitement for the fans."

For the feisty Pomykala, the list of advantages goes on and on — especially with recruiting. With a bigger league the Gaiters will be able to recruit in areas where they were unable to before, believes the Gaiters head coach.

The defunct QUAA has been given a two-year commitment by the OUAA and unless the OUAA changes its mind the merger will be permanent — a fact that Smith is extremely happy about.

As for Gaiter players, Pomykala said they don't understand the beauty of the merger.

"They don't understand the significance of it all. They think 'That's great, we have a league to play in,' but they don't really understand what it all means."

What it means is that basketball will now have a chance to step out of the shadows of the school's very successful football program.

"Basketball now becomes a major, major sport at Bishop's," Pomykala said.

Pomykala said the new league will promote a better Bishop's club.

"I think we're in the best league in the country," said Pomykala. "If you win this league you have to be tough — a very good team. I couldn't really say the same thing for Quebec (the QUAA championship, which the Gaiters won last season)."

As for Bishop's chances in the new league, Pomykala is optimistic.

The merger "will make it that much tougher for us. We definitely have our work cut out for us. I hope it will make us a better team, that's my main concern."

Expos fall to Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Shane Mack's RBI single in the seventh inning scored Benito Santiago with the winning run as the San Diego Padres defeated the Montreal Expos 2-1 on Sunday.

The victory gave the Padres their third straight win and a sweep of the weekend series in which the Expos scored just four runs.

The game-winner came against Montreal righthander Jeff Parrett, who came on in the seventh inning to relieve starter Bryn Smith and was tagged with his first defeat against three victories. Smith pitched the first six innings and allowed one run on four hits.

Santiago led off the seventh with a single and was bunted to second by Randy Ready. After Carmelo Martinez flied to the warning track in left, Mack singled to centre for his second game-winning hit of the series.

The run gave starter Andy Hawkins the victory. Hawkins, 4-3, pitched seven innings, allowing one run and four hits.

He was replaced by Lance McCullers to start the eighth. McCullers faced four batters in the eighth before Mark Davis worked the final 1-3 to earn his fourth save, striking out three of the four batters he faced.

The Padres took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Ready singled, went to second on a groundout and scored on a single by Shawn Abner.

The Expos tied it in the sixth. Smith led off with a single and Tim Raines was hit by a pitch. Johnny Paredes bunted, but Smith was forced at third. Hubie Brooks then blooped a single, scoring Raines.

Rookie leads Chi-Sox over Blue Jays in 11

CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie Dave Gallagher, promoted from the minors two days earlier, hit his first major league home run in the 11th inning Sunday to give the Chicago White Sox a 6-5 win over Toronto Blue Jays.

The Blue Jays had tied the game 3-3 on Kelly Gruber's two-run single in the ninth. Lloyd Moseby's two-run double put Toronto ahead 5-3 in the top of the 10th before the White Sox scored twice off Tom Henke in their half.

Gallagher's solo shot helped Chicago win its third straight game. Bobby Thigpen, 1-3, got the victory and Mark Eichhorn, 0-2, took the loss.

Chicago starter Jerry Reuss pitched three-hit ball for seven innings but left after two rain delays totaling 35 minutes in the eighth. The Blue Jays loaded the bases in the ninth against John Davis on one-out singles by pinch hitter Rance Mulliniks and George Bell and a walk to pinch hitter Fred McGriff, and Gruber met Bill Long with a single that made it 3-3.

Nelson Liriano got a bunt hit and Tony Fernandez singled in the Toronto 10th before Moseby doubled off Long. The White Sox tied it in the bottom of the 10th on doubles by Ozzie Guillen and Ivan Calderon and an RBI single by pinch hitter Donnie Hill.

Henke entered in the eighth after the White Sox scored an unearned run for a 3-1 lead and had two runners on base with none out. He got Greg Walker to foul out and fanned the next two batters.

Daryl Boston and Harold Baines hit solo home runs in the Chicago first. Boston hit his third homer in to the upper deck in right-centre on the third pitch from Jim Clancy and one out later, Baines hit his sixth homer.

Toronto scored in the fourth as Juan Beniquez walked, took second on a groundout, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on Cecil Fielder's sacrifice fly.

The White Sox made it 3-1 in the eighth when Guillen walked and came home when Bell misplayed Baines's single to left field for an error.

NBA's Isiah Thomas leads Pistons within one

CHICAGO (AP) — The Detroit Pistons didn't deserve to lose Sunday. Isiah Thomas decided. And largely because of him, they didn't.

Thomas scored nine of his 19 points in the final 4:57 of the fourth quarter to go with Adrian Dantley's 24 points as the Detroit Pistons beat the Chicago Bulls 96-77 Sunday to take a 3-1 lead in their NBA playoff series.

The Pistons can clinch the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinals with a victory Wednesday at Pontiac, Mich.

"I said to myself, 'We've done everything to win.' Dantley had carried us all day," Thomas said. "I was determined to do everything in my power to make sure we won."

The Bulls, who trailed 71-55 after three quarters, moved within 81-76 with 4:57 left. But Thomas took over and the Pistons outscored the Bulls 15-1 to put the game away.

The Pistons once again put a defensive blanket on Michael Jordan, holding him to a playoff-low 23 points on 11-of-22 shooting from the field.

"Detroit does a great job on me — they won't let me penetrate and I kept giving up the ball," said Jordan, who came into the game averaging 39.4 points in the playoffs after leading all scorers during the NBA regular season with a 35-point-per-game average.

"They had three people playing Michael. That's not the problem," Bulls coach Doug Collins said. "The other guys aren't hitting their shots."

"They executed under pressure and we did not," he added. "That was the difference in playoff experience."

John Paxson sparked the Bulls' fourth-quarter rally with a 3-point basket that brought them within 79-68 with eight minutes left. After baskets by Jordan and Dantley, Paxson made a three-point play then another 3-point shot to pull Chicago within 81-76. But Thomas, who left the game in a daze midway through the third quarter after a collision with Jordan, scored nine straight points to put the Pistons up 90-76.

Thomas left the game with 6:36 left in the third quarter after Jordan's elbow hit him in the head but returned with a minute left in the period.

"I thought Isiah was knocked out," Pistons coach Chuck Daly said. "The next thing I saw was him coming up from the locker room."

Thomas said the collision left him dazed for several minutes.

"I could hear, but I just couldn't put anything together," he said.

Paxson and Scottie Pippen added 15 each for the Bulls.

HAWKS 110 CELTICS 92
ATLANTA (AP) — Kevin Willis had 23 points and 12 rebounds and reserve guard John Battle scored 10 points during a 30-17 second-half surge that gave the Atlanta Hawks a 110-92 playoff victory over the Boston Celtics on Sunday.

The Celtics, who won the first two games in Boston, still lead the best-of-seven series 2-1, with Game 4 scheduled for Atlanta tonight.

Only four teams in NBA playoff history have rallied from a 2-0 deficit to win a best-of-seven series, and nobody's done it to the Celtics.

Atlanta, which never trailed in the game and led by as many as 11 in the first half, had only a 56-53 advantage with 8:58 left in the third quarter.

The Hawks then outscored Boston 26-15 for the rest of the period for an 82-68 margin. The Celtics made only four of 14 shots in the quarter, missed their first seven of the fourth period and finished 27-for-70 — 40 per cent — for the game.

Larry Bird led Boston with 22 points, but he was five-for-18 from the field and missed his first five shots in the second half. Robert Parish and Kevin McHale had 17 points each, and Parish had 13 rebounds.

Dominique Wilkins, who scored 25 points, had seven of Atlanta's first 11 points during the 26-15 spurt, then left the game with his fourth foul.

Battle then scored the Hawks' last six points of the third period and the first four of the fourth quarter, extending their lead to 86-70.

The Celtics got no closer than 12 after that.

Battle finished with 14 points, all but two in the second half.

LAKERS 133 JAZZ 100
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — James Worthy scored 21 of his 29 points in the first half and Magic Johnson scored 10 of his 24 points during a third-quarter run as the Los Angeles Lakers defeated Utah 133-100 on Sunday.

The Lakers evened the second-round series 2-2.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mario Andretti apparently was right and the U.S. Auto Club was wrong, but his disappointing qualification for the Indianapolis 500 stands nevertheless, chief steward Tom Binford said Sunday.

Andretti, who qualified at 214.692 mph on Saturday, swore the remnants of an oil spill kept him from the pole position and what he thought could have been a record qualification run.

Binford at first didn't buy the argument that Andretti had no warning a mixture of sand and dry concrete used to soak up the oil was still on the track.

He reasoned Andretti had at least 40 minutes of practice before qualifications started and should have notified officials if a hazard was on the track. No other driver reported a problem.

BOSTON (AP) — Roger Clemens of the Boston Red Sox limped with an apparent strain in his right knee Sunday, 24 hours after pitching a second three-hit shutout in a row.

Dr. Arthur Pappas, the Red Sox' physician, said Clemens had some swelling on the outside of the knee. "We've put him on anti-inflammation medication and we'll keep a close watch this week," Pappas said. "Fortunately, because of an off day Thursday, he is not due to pitch again until Friday."

Clemens said he felt something pop in his knee in the dugout during the last half of the first inning Saturday against the Seattle Mariners.

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Alain Prost won his fourth Monaco Grand Prix Sunday after McLaren-Honda teammate Ayrton Senna was knocked out of the race while leading with 11 laps remaining.

It was the 30th Formula One victory of Prost's career. He has notched two firsts and a second in this season's three Grand Prix races to lead the World Champion Drivers standings with 24 points.

The 33-year-old Frenchmen won the 78-lap race in 1 hour, 57 minutes, 17.077 seconds over 161.204 miles. He averaged 82.52 miles per hour through the twisting 2.068-mile street course.

When they got the story they were rather proud of him

This from that Newsweek Special Report titled "The Pacific Century".

"It won't be much beyond 2010 before Japan becomes the leading power in world politics". So declares Richard Rosecrance, professor of International Affairs at Cornell University.

And Newsweek goes on to warn that "by 1955 the Japanese government and Japanese private investors will likely own... as much as 10 percent of all U.S. assets".

The statistics presented are as numerous as they are frightening, and what adds to the pain of reading such bleak prophecy is the suggestion that we North Americans have only ourselves to blame. That over here we seem to have become convinced we have a God-given right to eat more, own more and enjoy more while at the same time producing less and less.

And singled out for special blame is the American worker. The Asian produces so much more than his counterpart on this side of the water, so we are told, because of his pride in his work and his intense loyalty to his employer.

Indeed one might put this magazine aside convinced that the Asian employee is incurably infatuated with work; that his one ambition is to work as hard and as long as he possibly can. The American however is apt to demand even shorter and more leisurely work hours and still feel that he is being exploited.

H. Gordon Green

Now I had a special interest in that insinuation because when I was a University student in the U.S. back in the early '40's I ground steel in a bearing plant from midnight till eight in the morning, (this so I could afford to pursue classes that began at nine). And even though the nation was then frantically girding itself for war, I soon discovered that it was decidedly un-American for a worker to work too hard.

Each job had been rated, and if you happened to turn out more pieces than what had been established as being a full eight hours output, you would be visited by the union steward.

"The first thing to learn when you work here, boy," my steward warned, "is not to spoil the job. Mind your rate, boy, and don't try to get too fresh with it!"

But, I hear you say, that was back in the trembling days when the world was at war and help was so precious that employers had to humour workers in every way possible. It can't be the same today, can it?

Well hear now the story of my neighbour's lad John who quit his job not so long ago. I have known John's parents for many years. They are hard-working farmers from Scottish stock, better read than the most of us; and like most of us who are addicted to the soil and growing things, not rich. I know John too, though not so well. When he graduated from high school he decided that he wouldn't ask his parents to send him to college. Perhaps a little later he could find a way to put himself through.

When John found a job with the maintenance crew of a large engineering shop, his parents were delighted. The pay was good, the job to his liking, the firm well established and solid. But one afternoon when John reported for his shift he was told that his foreman had called in sick. So had the other man John worked with. (There were only three men in a maintenance crew in this shop.)

"You'll just have to take it easy, John," the supervisor told him. "You haven't been with us long enough to go ahead on your own... I'll tell you what. There's that big diesel tractor out there in the yard with a generator that needs to be changed. Why don't you just crawl up into the cab and sit out the shift there? It isn't your fault there's no work you can do here... We'll switch generators tomorrow if the other two are back by then..."

But John isn't the kind of boy who likes to sit. He is also a very versatile lad, and he had worked with diesels before on the farm. And when he looked the situation over, it seemed to him that it would be a relatively easy job for him to do what needed to be done, and he felt rather proud of himself when he had the whole thing done by the time the buzzer went at midnight.

Next day however, instead of being met with congratulatory smiles, he found himself up before a very angry steward of the shop union.

"Smart guy, eh?" the steward said. "Who told you you could do a job like that on your own?"

John wondered if there might be something wrong with the job he had done, but the steward soon let him know that he was missing the point entirely. Jobs like that were all rated, he was told. And that particular job was supposed to take three shifts of three men to complete. It was in the book: And doing it in less time and with only one man was not only making that hard-bought rating look ridiculous but it was ruining the job as well!

The union couldn't very well fire John, but they had made him so mad that he put on his coat and went home. His parents were terribly upset to see him come through the door and out of work again, but when they got the story they were rather proud of him. Which, I think, is to their credit.

Presbyterian Synodical Society of Quebec and Ontario meet at Carleton Place

The Synodical Society of Quebec and Eastern Ontario met for their annual meeting April 13 and 14 at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Carleton Place. The theme was "mission today and tomorrow". President Elizabeth Kennedy introduced Joan Sampson of the Council Finance Committee who reported on the continued need for financing beneficial projects that are urgent. Cut-backs are being considered in areas such as Area Christian Education Consultants. Miss Lois Powrie was introduced by Alice Berger. She spoke from her expertise as Council Children and Youth secretary on their special place in the community of faith. Respect and honour are due children. They seek stability and a place to grow to be the best they can be. Unique in varying abilities, they should be encouraged to become whole beings. In return they accept responsibility. Lively projects will be planned under the direction of Youth Director, Rev. Wendy Snook in this Synod.

Rev. John Bannerman, Kanata, presented a building plan for Synod's Gracefield Camp in Quebec. It promotes a christian outlook of togetherness in a support group of friendship in a wilderness setting. James Armour Jr. is the capable Wilderness Director. Construction will begin in the fall and extra funding is a priority.

Rev. Robert Hill brought greetings from Lanark and Renfrew

Legion Ladies Auxiliary branch 128 hold meeting

AYER'S CLIFF (CG) — On Thursday evening, April 28, the Ladies Auxiliary held their regular meeting at the Legion Hall with 11 members present.

The President Comrade Alice Vance chaired the meeting and welcomed the members. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary, Comrade Dyanne Saanum and the Treasurer's report by Comrade Barbara Wintle.

Comrade Myrtle Paige said she is in the process of obtaining three estimates for the installation of air conditioning in the Legion Hall and hopes to have completed same at the next meeting.

The Auxiliary reported having catered the annual firemen's Banquet at which they served 47.

Donations were made to the Sherbrooke Hospital and the Memorial Fund in memory of Lawrence Dezan.

It was decided to hold a Flea Market at the Legion Hall on Saturday, May 28 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Inside tables: $7.00, outside $5.00. Phone to reserve: Dyanne Saanum, 838-5092 or Betty Telford, 843-4109. Also planned are a Food table, Craft table etc.

After the meeting was adjourned, the Auxiliary held a miscellaneous shower for Comrade Shirley Doyon whose home and belongings were destroyed by fire.

They then served coffee and donuts to the senior branch upstairs, joining them for their usual social get-together.

Presbytery. Rev. Linda Bell, Moderator of Synod, brought words of appreciation. Rev. Hill led the worship on "Hiding from God".

Joyce Brunton introduced speaker Mary Nicol who has spent the past 40 years as a missionary. She returned to Smiths Falls from India and Nepal in February where she supervised nurses training in a number of hospitals. Nepal holds the policy of a closed gospel. There can be no open change in religion or christian churches built. There are as many as four Hindu temples on every street corner. People meet in homes for christian fellowship and the numbers grow quickly as they study the Bible in their own tongue. There are 420 missionaries in the United Mission to Nepal. Mr. and Mrs. Craig Taylor are supported by Presbyterian Missions. Sights peculiar to Nepal are pumpkins on the rooftops. Peppers hang from the second stories of houses to dry. Terraced fields and low hanging clouds on snow peaked mountains radiate upward at sunset. Piped in, clean water irrigates land and promotes good health. Reforestation laws require planting two trees for every one removed. New innovations are solar cooking and gas for light made of cow dung. A Russian jeep is the only vehicle to maneuver the rocky mountain roads. Miss Nicol brought home wild orchids, her two beloved prize winning dogs, and lasting memories of mountain top experiences.

On closing day Mrs. Joyce O'Hara appeared as Queen of the 75th anniversary 1989 marking the joining together of three groups which began as early as 1864 in the Western Division. Brockville Presbyterian performed an original song routine to be part of the celebration in London, Ontario at Western University gathering societies from B.C. to Quebec.

The honour of installing the new executive went to Mrs. Jean Rumball. St. Andrew's century old hospitality made everyone welcome.

Members of the Quebec Presbyterian attending the annual meeting of the Quebec and Eastern Ontario Synodical, held at Carleton Place, Ont., April 13 and 14 were Roxianne Walker, Joyce McLeod, Margaret Goodhue, Vera Hughes and Margaret Converse, Publicity Convener.

United Church Women meet

BEDFORD — The UCW met in the church hall on Thursday, April 21 with 12 members present and Esther Gilman presiding. Gladys Perault and Marion Oakes led in the devotional period.

During the business session plans were finalized for the ham supper, several of the ladies taking on responsibilities for soliciting food and working in the kitchen to assist the stewards who are sponsoring the project.

May 11 and 12 were set as the dates for the spring rummage sale.

Purchasing copies of the Heritage Book was discussed. Anyone wishing to buy a copy should contact Lottie Casey in the near future.

Use of the Mandate and Exchange and all the many pieces of literature that comes to the President was discussed and it was decided to pass it on to other members to read and report on thus giving everyone detailed information that a busy president doesn't have time to do.

Following the meeting adjournment Dorothy and Gladys Perault served refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed. Members were asked to bring short articles to read, some quite amusing.

Additional Church News

Blair Corcoran and family have arrived safely in Badger's Quay, Newfoundland, after a very stormy and unpleasant trip. All hope their summer there will be much more enjoyable than the journey was. Following the four month assignment, he will return to Bedford in September and complete his training for ordination in 1989.

During the summer the Bedford Pastoral Charge will be served by another student minister, Miss Cynthia Mitchell.

Miss Mitchell has already conducted services on two Sundays and has been well received by members of the four churches.

Once her classes are finished at the theological college she will no doubt be spending some time at the manse during the summer.

Friends of Rev. Peter and Joyce MacAskill will be interested to hear that their congregation in Chomedey hosted a dinner for them on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary in their church hall on Saturday, April 23rd. It also commemorated the 40th year of Peter's ordination. Several former members of the local congregation attended. Peter and Joyce served the Bedford Charge from 1963 to 1968. All their many friends extend love and good wishes.

Windsor

Countering bad breaks

When your contract looks cozy if all the suits split nicely, it's time to figure out what you can do if the key suits misbehave. At first glance, today's six-diamond contract looks easy, with a good chance for an overtrick. Nevertheless, there are pitfalls, and declarer trapped himself in one of them.

After winning the opening trump lead, South immediately played another high trump, and West showed out. South could not afford to give up a trump trick to East, since East would surely lead right into dummy's A-Q of clubs, eliminating an entry before the spade suit was established. So South cashed one more high diamond and then played A-K of spades. Alas, East ruffed the second spade. Eventually, despite taking a successful club finesse, declarer had to concede down one.

South can succeed if he guards against a bad spade distribution. At trick two he should lead a spade to the ace and then ruff a spade. This loses only if he is overruffed by West, but there is little chance that West has a singleton spade, since he didn't lead it. After ruffing a spade, declarer can ruff a heart to dummy and ruff another low spade. The spade suit is now good, and all declarer has to do is play his high diamonds and give up a diamond to East. The ace of clubs will be the entry to dummy and he will have plenty of tricks. The problem with playing a second high diamond before testing spades is that there will not be enough ways of getting to dummy to establish the long spades when the suit breaks badly.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.
