Number systems are varied

For some time now, there has been a lot of controversy over the numbering system used by some catalogue producers. Scott's has been the accepted system throughout North America since its inception. In 1983, Canada Specialized introduced a Canadian numbering system which was quickly followed by Lyman's in 1984. This is where the controversy sets in.

Dealers, for the most part, do not want the status quo disturbed. They advertise Canadian stamps using the Scott Numbering system and, they rely on you the customer to use this system when placing orders.

In my opinion, it doesn't make much difference what numbering system is used. When all the catalogues were using the Scott numbering system, they did not correspond completely in either price, description or number. A good example is the April 10, 1957 issue of the loon. Scott and Lyman's list it as just that, where as, Canada Specialized lists a dot in the water variety in addition. The prices in Scott's Volume I and Scott's Canada Specialized differ greatly.

The catalogue should be a means of letting you know what is available on the market. Even positions of this have been dropped. Officials perforated O.H.M.S. are no longer listed. I don't know why. They are every bit as important as as those overprinted O.H.M.S.

Stamp corner

By Peter McCarthy

A catalogue is also a very useful item in the laying out of album pages or the setting up of exhibitions. Yet a catalogue number should never be used on an album page.

As for myself, I use them all. Scott's Canada Specialized, Lyman's, Canada Specialized and, I also use a B.N.A. catalogue that lists all the revenues and law stamps.

For stamps of Great Britain, Stanley Gibbons catalogue, Collect British Stamps, is a must. Here you will find all the different varieties of watermarks and tags that are not listed in other catalogues. Stanley Gibbons is the first and last word on British stamps.

Scott's Volume I should be the catalogue used for the remainder of the British Commonwealth, the United Nations and countries under U.S. administration. Volume I also lists stamps of the U.S. but, if you specialize in this country, the Scott's U.S. specialized should be the catalogue used.

H.E. Harris also has a good U.S. listing. I don't really think they come close to Scott's though.

For those who are serious collectors of European stamps, the Michel catalogues are purported to be the best.

I have listed what are supposed to be the best catalogues available for the general collector. Scott's, Gibbons, Michel and Harris. They all use a different numbering system. So what is all the flap about a Canadian publisher using a distinctive numbering system for Canadian stamps? What is wrong with using the abbreviation C.S. (Canada Specialized) followed by the number when ordering from this catalogue, or, Sc. for Scott's. For that matter, what is wrong with ordering by date and description of issue. For instance, 1967-1973 Q.E. II definitive issue, 1¢ H.B. paper tagged Wpg. 1 bar M.N.H. If there's a dealer who doesn't understand that, he shouldn't be in business.

Rather than all this petty controversy that has been going on, I would like to see one of the major Canadian catalogue publishers put out a catalogue that would include, beside the regular issues, all known varieties, perforated officials, tagged errors and revenue and law stamps. He who puts out a catalogue of this nature, regardless of the numbering system, is bound to capture the catalogue market. It certainly would be a benefit to us the collectors.

Rosés are becoming a popular fashion

Over the last years or so, there has been a drastic change in the drinking habits of North Americans and Canadians in particular. As a nation, we found ourselves at the end of the last war fond of beer, rye and sherry. But with the return of Canadian servicemen and women from Europe and the arrival of thousands of European immigrants, our ideas concerning alcoholic beverages began to shift.

First, came a gradual shift away from the fortified wines that had dominated the market for over one hundred years. Produced primarily in Ontario from the North American vitis labrusca grape, these "sherries" and "ports" had been the mainstay of the Canadian social drinker. In their place came an increase in the number of homegrown hybrid and vitis vinifera wines.

A second major change came with a movement away from the traditional rye-based cocktail. More and more Canadians were trying vodka, gin, rum (usually white) and scotch.

Finally, with the increased emphasis on physical fitness, came a shift from all of the above, including beer, to the generally more refreshing and less caloric white wine.

As with all fads however, the white wine phenomena is gradually fading as beer companies produce more and more "light beer" and liquor companies fight back with slick advertising campaigns. Also involved in this latest switch is that little understood concept of "style".

Apparently, the "in thing" today in California — the definite style setter in so many ways — is an increased awareness and acceptance of rosé wines. Not, mind you, the sparkling, semi-dry rosés that so many of us began our drinking career with but the dry, non-sparkling versions being produced in California in abundance. The popularity of rosé also extends to many of the European brands that have been long overlooked and come from areas bearing such names as Travel, Anjou and Provence.

The point is, that for many of us, trends are irresistible and this one should prove the same. Thus, it is probably best, that before jumping on the bandwagon, so to speak, we take a good look at the wagon's contents. Next week therefore (this was only the introduction) I'll take a good look at what the local Société outlets have to offer in the way of still rosés. Until then, cheers!

Cirque de Soleil a circus treat for entire family

By Laurel Sherrer

SHERBROOKE — The Circus has come to town!

The Cirque du Soleil, an Oriental-style circus based in Montreal, is back in Sherbrooke for a second time. The show starts tonight and continues until June 16.

Last summer Sherbrooke was one of 11 communities the circus visited in Quebec, with its troupe of Quebec and international artists.

There are 42 artists from eight countries involved in the show this year. These include acrobats, jugglers, contortionists, mimes, gymnasts, dancers and, of course, clowns.

The Oriental circus tradition puts the emphasis on acrobatics and team work rather than on trained animal acts, as in the American tradition.

The circus is a production of the Club des talons hauts Inc., a non-profit organization founded in 1981 to promote circus arts.

It is a "tribute to youth", said director-general Guy Laliberté, since it arose from the imagination of a group of young people, and gives young people a chance to express their creativity.

"The circus gives students of the Montreal National School of Circus a chance to perform in public," said Laliberté. There are five students involved in the production, including one from Switzerland.

This year the circus will be at the Plateau Parc/Palais des sports with shows every night except Monday at 8:00 and matinees at 2:00 on weekends. June 12, 13 and 14 there will be demonstrations for area schools at 12:30.

Laliberté says the show will employ 30 local young people as stage hands, ushers and vendors for the ten days it will be in town.

Last year there were two separate tents, with one for acts by local artists, but this year the locals will only be involved as support staff.

"We want to concentrate on one big show," said Laliberté.

Eight forty-foot vans will transport the circus from town to town. The tent, which is 40 feet in diameter, can hold 1,500 spectators.

Tickets are on sale at Ticketron counters and at the circus ground on the days of the shows.

Admission for adults is $10, $8 and $6, and for children under 12, $6, $4 and $3. There are special rates for groups of 20 and over. For information or group reservations call 418-694-9983.

Youngsters from the Chez les amis day care centre get a preview of Pierre Duhaime's exercise in quick wits and manual dexterity.

"Aluna", puts on a demonstration of rhythmic arts drawn from Argentinian culture.

Montreal's Gilles Ste-Croix gives the traditional tall man act a new twist.

Newest Matthew Hope thriller a double thrill

Snow White & Rose Red by Ed McBain (HOLT, RINEHART & WINSTON): $22.50, 248 pp.

In the fifth of his fairy-tale motif titled murder mysteries, Ed McBain again features Matthew Hope, a crusading lawyer in the Florida Gulf Coast city of Calusa. McBain, (the pseudonym of American novelist Evan Hunter, The Blackboard Jungle), who recently won acclaim for Hope's case reported in Jack & The Beans-talk, this time involves the divorced, handsome attorney in a pair of cases that unravel simultaneously.

Creating a slight problem for his narrative point of view that develops through first person observation of Matthew Hope, McBain untangles one case rather effortlessly, while the second investigation creates considerable difficulties in perspective. Hope becomes engaged in a professional capacity in the plight of beautiful Sarah Whittaker, a young woman involuntarily committed to a mental hospital by her multi-millionaire mother. When he is convinced that Sarah has been wrongly incarcerated in the institution, Hope sets out to interview and cross-examine the principals in the Whittaker girl's case — the icy-cool mother, several psychiatrists, and the police authorities involved in the arrest when she apparently attempted suicide.

The problematic half of this dual-perspective is McBain's decision to have lawyer Hope reveal aspects of the second case, a ho-the discovery of a girl's body in a bird sanctuary, which has been submerged for 6 to 9 months and is almost beyond identification. The result is that Hope must report all of this gruesome police case from one remove, with the reader wondering how the exact conversations could be so meticulously conveyed when the narrator was never present.

These technical drawbacks aside, McBain's two cases are skillfully interwoven, with the small-town Florida cast being authentically replicated, while the dialogue crackles with verisimilitude. Snow White & Rose Red with its twin case technique, played out against lawyer Matthew Hope's worsening marital complications, is a welcome addition to the string of police procedurals that Ed McBain has written in his highly lauded 87th Precinct series.

Onyx John by Trevor Ferguson (MCLELLAND & STEWART): $19.95, 355 pp.

With an ingenious, fantastic premise, Trevor Ferguson's Onyx John works enough action into its plotline to fuel half a dozen novels. The book features the saga of the Cameron family, the kind of eccentric unit usually found in John Irving's novels, with a fine blend of realism and fantasy underplaying the odd characterizations of father Hugh Cameron and his memorable brood. He's a demobilized Air Force veteran who meets his wife Diamond Esmeralda Featherston in Saskatchewan in 1946, as we learn in one of the book's many flashbacks. The children are all named after rare jewels — Onyx John, Olivine and Opal — and the father, after preaching the gospel to the prairie cropbustlers, turns to his life-long fixation. He devotes every waking hour to the pursuit of the ancient study of alchemy, striving to turn base metals into gold.

Having a family background that is unique indeed, Onyx John begins the novel — which is really a journal to be sent to his sister Olivine — from an oceanside retreat in a small town called Camden, Maine. Onyx has just had a gorgeous prostitute named Oriole Highstreet ("Oreo") flown in to entertain him, courtesy of Zoltan Tinodi, a hood who develops into a pure villain later in the book. As the frolic between Onyx and Oreo develops, so too does the novel's variegated landscape, taking the reader from Saskatchewan to Montreal's Park Extension, from the window-parades of Amsterdam's hooker heaven to the quaint New England virtues of Camden, Maine, the site of Edna St. Vincent Millay's homestead.

The comic recollections of Onyx John about his strange family, with daddy lodged deep in a cellar in Park Ex, Montreal flirting with instant molecularization as he mixes quantities of nitrate, sulphur and carbon (potentially gunpowder!) in the endless search for the gold-producing alchemic formula, have a distinctly Canadian flavour to many of them. Other memorable characterizations include a randy Park Ex paraplegic who seduces Onyx named Berri Framboise, an oleaginous, Sidney Greenstreet type of caricature known as Charles Wiltshire, and a range of supporting minor characters out of the world of Garp.

The family ordeal of the Camerons, père et fils, and the strange behaviour of Olivine and Opal, serves as the continuing thread holding Onyx John together—but it is a rambling, comedic tour de force that blends such topics as diamond smuggling, cocaine run-

Queen and the Soldier" is a modern ballad about a very old theme, in which a young soldier attempts to ask his sovereign why she insists on waging wars, with her haughty response.

In addition to Suzanne Vega's very creative melodies, the guitar work here, an interplay between her own acoustic playing and the 12-string, synclavier and electric guitars of Steve Addabbo, is often magical and creates a delicate, lacy framework for these contemporary folk pieces. With the talent revealed here, Suzanne Vega does not appear to be relegated to being merely a New York City phenomenon much longer — the rock world can use an injection of melody and pure voice, just when the madonnas and virgins have us almost bejewelled and beglamoured to the saturation point.

The Commodores NIGHT SHIFT (MOTOWN—QUALITY)

The incredible success of the Motown 25th Anniversary TV special, and the more recent tribute to the famed Apollo Theatre in Harlem has rekindled the kind of interest in black music that made the Detroit Sound the only real competition to the British Invasion of 1964-65. The same type of musical necrophilia that led to "Rock & Roll Heaven's" celebration of lost, departed early rock legends has now spiraled the Commodore's "Night Shift" to the peak of the video and record charts. The groovy song, from the album of the same title, is inspired by the death of Marvin Gaye and the sad loss of Jackie Wilson, and uses references to their hit songs such as "What's Goin' On" and "Your Love Keeps Liftin' Me Higher and Higher". This nostalgic song features some of the sweetest choral singing the Commodores have done since "Sail Away", with the gospel-inspired harmonies being carefully blended in with the quirky percussion backing.

Other formidable tracks include "Animal Instinct", a driving, relentless tune that gets closer to the spirit of rock than it does to the soul sound; perhaps this flavour on NIGHTSHIFT is the inevitable purple-rain fall-out that seems to have blighted the rock world in the way that acid rain has our forests. The Commodores, noted for beautiful ballads and close vocalizing, appear to be edging toward the Michael Jackson, Prince territory of agitating glitter rock. One song here captures the element that the Commodores used in their vocal triumphs — "The Woman In My Life" is vintage Commodores even if the rest of the album is very heavy on syncopation and lighter on the soothing vocals that the group has built their career on. The monsterhit status of "Night Shift" will likely carry this album along with it and persuade the Commodores that their future lies in funk and not in velvet harmonies — pity.

micide, in an as-told-to narrative. With Hope as a first person observer, he cannot be present when the city police of Calusa start to investigate the circumstances in ning, breaking Brahman bulls, sailing and kinky romance into a never-flagging, constantly shifting episodic novel that marks the entry of a bright new voice in Canadian fiction.

RECORD REVIEWS
Suzanne Vega SUZANNE VEGA (A&M)

She's being touted as a female Dylan but there is a more accurate sixties analogy for the whimsical, folksy style of New Yorker Suzanne Vega. Her music has the imagistic power of the songs of Eric Anderson, who had none of Dylan's commercial success, but an equally poetic and even more melodic approach to observing and recording. Vega herself has a distinct impression of the role her music takes in today's glitzy rock world: "My music is not as romantic as the old folk music was. It's not as pastoral or escapist. I grew up in tough New York neighbourhoods, where what you see looking out the window is harder and colder than the things you'd see in the country. A lot of my imagery is about confronting, not escaping."

Despite the disclaimer about being non-romantic, several tracks on the 25 year-old Vega's debut, such as "Some Journey", take a very romance-laden stance — "I could have played your lady fair/ all dressed in lace like the form from the sea". "The

HORACE's duPont exhibit original, imaginative

By Michael McDevitt

SHERBROOKE — Chantal duPont is a complex woman. She is fascinated with form and images, textures and perspectives and has a vivid attraction for symbols. A gifted artist, she has blended and combined these interests in a remarkable show now appearing at Sherbrooke's HORACE gallery.

Dupont is a native of Montreal, but now resides in the south shore town of St-Jacques-le-mineur, although she frequently visits the Eastern Townships community of Cherry River, where much of this show was composed. She has a Ph.D. from the University of Montreal in education and studied art at both Sir George Williams University and at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts de Montréal. She has studied in Paris, taught at both the high school and university levels and has produced films and television programs for children. As an artist, she has exhibited widely in Quebec, Canada and Europe.

This exhibit is a difficult one to classify. It contains some stunning photography, some sculptured pieces and some symbolic and expressive drawings. Called trans/mu/temps, the show is an orgy of experimentation and design, of symbolism and transcendence, and is a visual and intellectual delight.

Dupont has chosen to use what nature has given her to create this show, but has not remained content to merely transmit the images she finds. Anything but passive, she has plunged into her surroundings, chosen her subjects and materials and carefully yet almost playfully bent and shaped and colored them with little pieces of herself. The result is stunning and fun.

Her photography in this show is both technically excellent and artistically inspired. The scenes themselves are sculpted from the raw, rough contours of a sand pit, lined with brightly painted posts outlining a pathway to somewhere. There are rocks and pebbles arranged in patterns shot from different angles, rearranged and photographed again. Driftwood, picked up on the beaches of Martinique, is arranged in hieroglyphically-reminiscent symbols which in turn are poked, re-arranged, and visually dissected. Smooth footprints in the damp sand beneath the images, reflect hauntingly the artist's intense and vital participation in what is happening before the camera. In her drawings, individual symbols lifted from the photographs are examined, fondled and re-arranged.

In the centre of the large HORACE exhibition room, sculptures from the mounted exhibit are re-created using the driftwood and rocks placed on a bed of sand. The footprints are still — and necessarily — there.

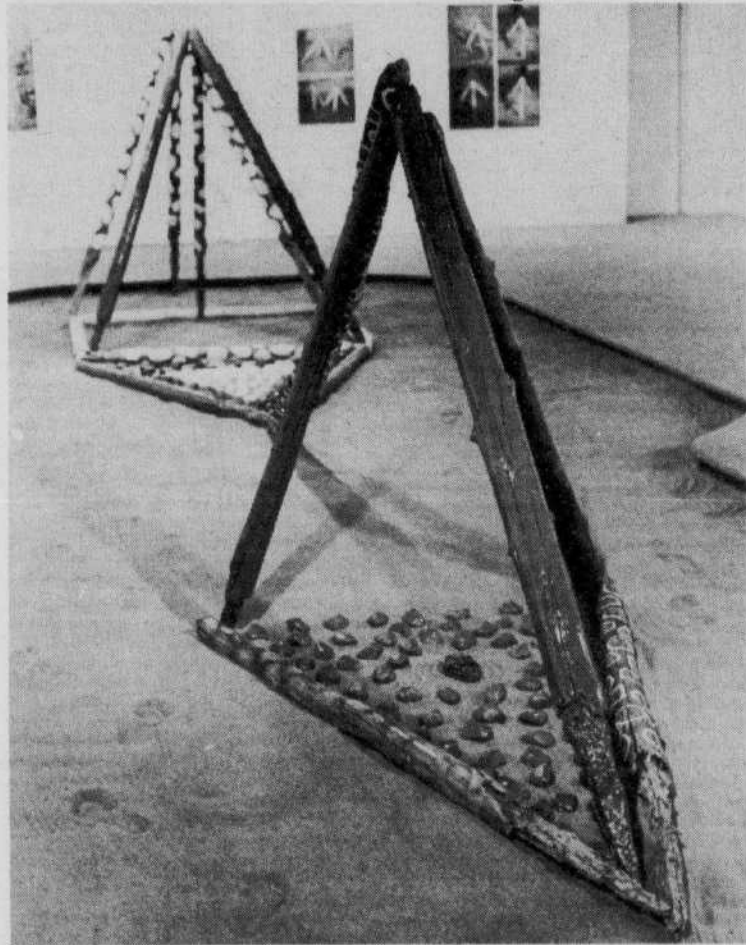

This is an incredibly personal exhibit, yet it is not an introspective one. It is the visual recreation of an artist's intense desire to learn, to feel and to understand.

Perfectly accenting the main show at HORACE, is a small but effective showing of drawings by Sherbrooke graphic artist Pierre Jeannotte. Jeannotte has chosen paper — the official kind — as a theme for this show and has decided that forms, schedules, memoranda, agenda, and all other types of 'official' papers take themselves much too seriously, and he's effectively taken some of the wind out of their sails. Created over the last several years, the drawings are a playful and loving attempt to make officialdom settle down, have a drink and enjoy itself. His training and vocation as a graphic artist are evident in the meaningless, but visually interesting writings which superimpose themselves on the paper. Not deep or wide-ranging, the show is nevertheless a solid statement that life is too short for people to be enslaved by little pieces of paper telling them what to do.

The HORACE gallery is run by the Regroupement des Artistes des Cantons de l'Est (R.A.C.E.) and is located at 906 King Street west in Sherbrooke. It is open from noon until 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays, and from 1 to 5 on Saturdays and Sundays. The shows continue until June 23.

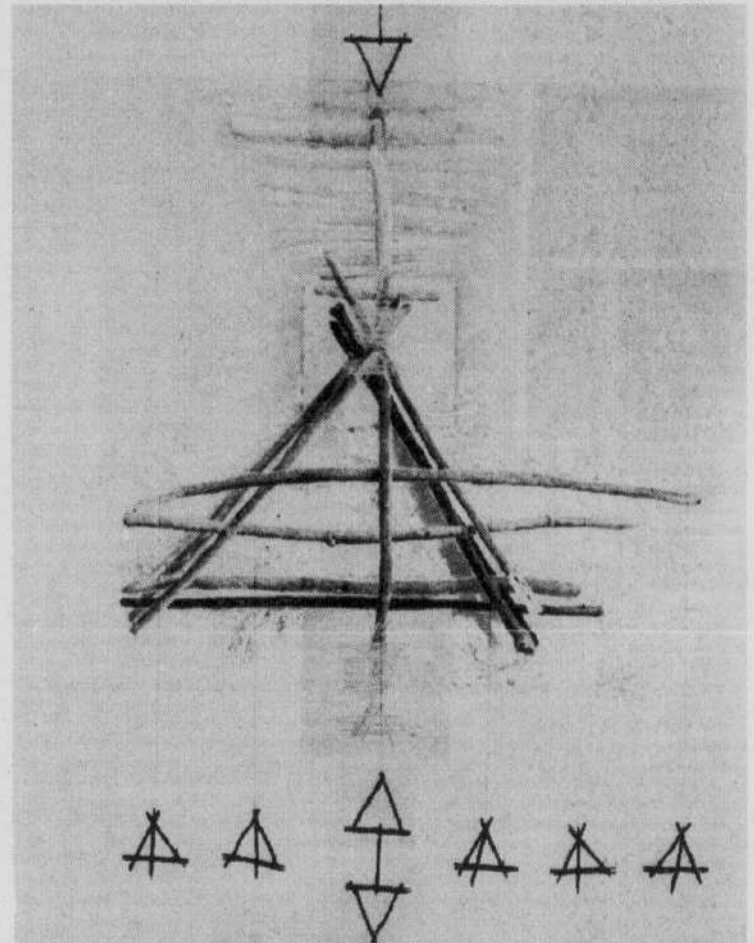

Variations of the same theme are only one aspect of Chantal duPont's exercise in perspective and participation.

Driftwood, pebbles and sand all work together to create shapes that are sometimes representative, sometimes not, depending on viewpoint and design.

Dupont creates hieroglyphic-like symbols and works with them until they seem to grow on their own.

Funding up, Lac des Nations fête ready to go

By William Harris

SHERBROOKE — First there was 'more than a city;' next we had 'more than a week;' and now, logically, Sherbrooke's fourth-annual 'Fête du Lac des Nations,' which will take place from July 17 to July 21, has been officially dubbed 'more than a festival.'

In a press conference held earlier this week, Jean Perreault, president and founder of the festival, said that the overall budget for the celebration has doubled since last year.

"We're sure that our increased funds will be reflected in the number and the quality of our activities," Perreault said. "Also, two federal government grants have allowed us to have people working on the organization of the event for two months now, and they'll continue to work hard right up until July 17."

To kick-off the 1985 festival, which is based on water-skiing and other water sports on Sherbrooke's Lac des Nations, the organizing committee has purchased a brand new speed boat, worth $26,000, which is made especially for water-skiing purposes. The boat was officially launched in a sea of bursting water balloons at Jacques Cartier park last week.

"Our profits from the last three years enabled us to buy the boat," said Perreault, "and we now have one of the most modern pieces of water-skiing equipment around."

Marcel Boisvert, marketing vice-president of Labatt Breweries, said last week that his organization is once again proud to be sponsoring the Lac des Nations festival.

"The event promotes water-skiing, tourism, and the city of Sherbrooke all at the same time," said Boisvert. "The festival reached a height of popularity that has never before been reached by a summer event in Sherbrooke last year, as over 100,000 people visited Jacques Cartier Park over the five days. With even bigger and better activities planned for 1985, the sky's the limit."

According to Perreault, the five-day festival will include everything from parades and orchestras to rock groups and comedians. Also, popular Quebec musical performers Veronique Beliveau and Nathalie Simard will be on hand. "We started out with nothing but a small, simple idea four years ago," Perreault said, "but now our festival is admired as the 'event of the summer' in Sherbrooke."

Lac des Nations fête founder Jean Perreault (left) and Labatt v.p. Marcel Boisverts believe this year's event will be bigger and better than ever.

Some 30 artists share the space at La Niche's new location in Sutton.

Sutton's new La Niche behind Café Mocador

By Merritt Clifton

SUTTON — "There are 30 of us, and we're grossing $30,000 a week," potter Stanley Lake jokes.

In truth, there are six artisans involved in 'La Niche', and they're not grossing much of anything yet, because they've just opened.

A cooperative boutique, 'La Niche' evolved out of the artisans' gallery that formerly occupied the back room at Arts Sutton. That back room now houses an antique shop.

"That location was too far from the central part of Sutton and too hidden away to draw many people," Lake says. "Now we're behind the Café Mocador here, and the Mocador is the hub of Sutton." The new site is in half of a converted garage that also houses a mini-bakery, 'The Cookie Barn.'

Besides potters Lake and Ellen Riker, 'La Niche' participants include batik and fabric painter Myriam Bardoul Plomteux, weaver Brenda Carson, glass engraver Claudine Francey, and Gwen Dowker Blanchard, who offers sketches, watercolors, embroidery, and quilting.

The mystery of soccer violence finally cleared up

So that's what does it! For those of you who have been wondering how the British, a nice, well-mannered and civilized people — the ones who brought us tea and Twiggy — can suddenly metamorphose into a horde of raging, murderous lunatics at the sight of a soccer ball, maybe this guy has the answer. It seems that a Carlos Bilardo, manager of Argentina's national team (they lost a big one against the British a few years back) claims that soccer players frequently suffer from the embarrassing complaint of premature ejaculation. Bilardo told an interviewer with Playboy magazine (now why didn't he mention it to me when we had lunch last week?) that the root of the problem stems from the fact that soccer players only make whoope about twice a month due to the rigorous demands made upon their time by the sport. "The player is stuffed full of vitamins, concentrated and tense, which turns him into a real wild beast when he returns home." So you see, there it is. The typical British soccer fan so identifies with his heroes that he too explodes before the first whistle has even been blown.

I want to personally join the throng in its admiration for the performance put on in the House of Commons this week by our Justice Minister John Crosbie as he rose to defend the sullied honor of his young son, after Liberal critic Bob Kaplan had cast shadows on his professional proficiency. Using language so musical it was a pleasure to behold, Crosbie informed Kaplan that he was a 'despicable and cowardly member'. You see, parliamentary regulations prevent certain kinds of language from being used in the House so 'member' becomes a perfectly acceptable substitute for what he really wanted to call him. The justice minister forgot, however, that 'despicable' and 'cowardly' are also verboten, and had to retract his statements before he could continue challenging him to a duel out in the hallway. Calling feisty Sheila Copps 'baby' and telling her to 'Copp-out' took a lot of member's accoutrements too. I love politics, they're so uplifting.

Who's who

A few weeks back, I mentioned a column in The National, the newspaper of the Canadian Bar Association which included a collection of the stupidest questions ever asked in court by lawyers. Well here's some more:

— Officer, was the silent alarm still ringing when you arrived at the scene?

— What color were your blue jeans?

— Scolded by a judge who told him he could not "ask that witness what he was told by someone else. If you want that information you will have to get it some other way", an undaunted public prosecutor said: "Very well then. Witness, without telling me what he said to you, what did he tell you to say?" I would engage that gentleman to represent me anytime.

Quote of the week: At a dinner banquet last weekend honoring the late great poet Frank Scott, Liberal MNA and Justice critic Herbert Marx revealed to a startled Mike McDavitt that he wants his chief, Robert Bourassa's job. McDavitt, between stuffing mouthfuls of something reputed to have once been part of a steer, asked Marx if he wasn't worried that the Liberals might win all 122

National Assembly seats in the next general election. "That would be great," Marx replied, "then I could be the Leader of the Opposition. A good politician has to be an opportunist," Marx grinned.

The CBC-radio newsroom in Sherbrooke seems destined to remain unoccupied, at least for the time being. A new boy was said to have been hired in April or so but he hasn't been seen in the Eastern Townships yet. Contrary to the rumors, president Pierre 'Psst, wanna buy a network' Juneau is not trying to bump himself down the union seniority list to get a little job security himself. My sources say a real reporter is on the way — somewhere.

"Sure it looks great, but you soccer players never stick around long enough for it to do anybody any good except yourselves."

New gallery directors

HORACE gallery has appointed a new committee to oversee the experimental art gallery. They are, from left, director Micheline Caouette, treasurer Sylvie Couture, and co-director Ophra Benazon.

WHAT'S ON

Music

Well, there you have it. I want first off to congratulate and thank all the musicians, organizers and sponsors of last week's rather disappointing concert for Ethiopia although it is a real crying shame more of you out there couldn't make the effort to go out and participate. But that's no reflection on the above-mentioned, whose spirit, generosity and goodwill are appreciated by some of us anyway. What can you do? You can't force people to go to a free concert if they don't want to.

Anyway, back to brighter things.

Harmonica Zeke concludes his two-night gig at Le Pigeonnier tonight, beginning his concert at 8:30. If you are not familiar with this wonderful performer, Mikey urges you to get out and catch his act tonight — he's great. An excellent singer and blues-harp-player, he is also a super slide-guitar-player and combines the three into a traditional yet unique approach to the blues. Yeah, I know that sounds contradictory, but it's true. If you don't believe me, check it out. Tickets are a very reasonable $5. The Pigeonnier is located at 138 Wellington north in Sherbrooke (upstairs).

Also this weekend, at the Centre Sportif Orford out in St-Eli, Quebec, legend Johnny Farago performs in concert. This guy is a true veteran of the Quebec pop scene, and has been a major star longer than he'd probably care to admit, but he's good and that's what counts. The music starts at 9:30 and tickets are only $6. Performances tonight and Saturday only.

Tomorrow evening at 7, at St-Antoine school, the Expo-artisanale Lennoxville is presenting some neat-o music in the form of Pendragon, a Celtic music outfit that's made up of Jim Slocombe, Robert Common, John Foster, and Peter Delorme which sounds very interesting to me. At the same place on Sunday afternoon at 2, the Canadian Rainbows, made up of the ubiquitous Kathy Musty, Craig Drew and Scott Lowd.

If you haven't shelled out your $100 for the benefit concert by Colette Boky and the Sherbrooke Symphony tomorrow evening at Centre d'Arts d'Orford, then you probably couldn't care less about it so I won't bother even telling you, so there!

Tomorrow evening, and again on Sunday afternoon The Old Brick Church in West Brome is offering a free concert by the Belmont Ensemble. Music by Beethoven, Villa-Lobos, Poulenc and Rimsky-Korsakoff. The Ensemble is made up of flautist Carolyn Christie, clarinetist Robert Crowley, bassoonist Nadia Mackie, horn player Jean Gaudreault, and pianist Eugene Plawutsky. The concert will consist of selected rarely-heard pieces by the composers named. The concert begins at 8 p.m. on Saturday and at 3 on Sunday.

Festival Lac Massawippi is back and this week's presents a concert by The Lennoxville Elementary School Choir and the Richmond Elementary School Choir at 11 a.m. Sunday morning at the St. James Church in East Hatley. The choirs are directed by Nancy Rahn and Pam Eby respectively. This should be kinda fun, all them little kids singing their sweet little heads off.

Next Thursday evening at the Huntingville Community Church, a singing-group from Briercrest Bible College in Carleton Place, where in God's green acre that is, will be performing a concert of traditional and contemporary (one presumes non-traditional) music at 7:30. A 'free will' offering will be requested. Accompanying the kids will be one Janelle Eddinger, a member of the Bible College faculty, who will present a slide show and talk and will tell you everything you wanna know about Briercrest Bible College. Could somebody ask her for me where SK is. I sure hope they don't mean Sask.

Also on Thursday and continuing through Saturday at Le Vieux Clocher in Magog, is the great Richard Séguin. This man, with his sister Marie-Claire was one of the major forces during contemporary Quebec music's golden years back in the early to mid-seventies. And he's still got it and he's great. He'll be accompanied by a five-piece outfit this time out and the shows start at 8:30 QCT (Quebec Current Time).

On the bar scene, the great Hall Brothers are back again this week at the FL Hideaway with some steady rock and roll tonight and Saturday. Mick and brother Ted will be backed by Chris 'shut up, Mel, or I'll deck ya' Griffith and Jim 'bubba' Buck (that's not a nickname, my childhood stutter is coming back).

The redundantly named Avenue Road (or Road Avenue, the lady wasn't sure) are hitting the Del Monty this weekend, through Sunday. Rock and roll.

By MICHAEL McDEVITT

The Koncordes take over at the Shady Crest in Ayer's Cliff this weekend through Sunday and will be back for the rest of the month as well.

At the Motel Bretagne this Friday and Saturday Steve Aulis and Country Fever take to the stage with their country and rockabilly act. Big Steve has a voice that's just as powerful as the rest of him is so don't make him mad or he'll yell at you. On Sunday afternoon it's Rosaire et Renaud.

Out at the Salle Jean-Paul in Bury, the Carrousels are back again this Saturday, doing the stuff they do so well.

For jazz, Jacques Jobin and Marc Bolduc break loose each Friday evening at Hovey Manor in North Hatley, and Normand Bouchard and Jean-Jacques Beauchamp still hold court on the terrace at the Café du Palais. Finally, in Windsor, the group Effusion take to the stage at Bardéco in the Chateau Windsor hotel in Windsor.

Exhibitions/Events

The big top, sort of, arrives in town this weekend with the Cirque du Soleil and continues through the week up at the Sports Palace complex under a massive tent, and this should be a very good time for the entire family, especially the kids. This is a circus in the oriental sense so they don't make their money brutalizing wild animals into pathetic submission. This features human entertainment of the classic kind, jugglers, acrobats and such (see story page 3) so you can have a good time with a clear conscience. Should be fun.

As mentioned in another article in this section (page 5) Mikey is impressed with the HORACE exhibit by Chantal duPont and Pierre Jeannotte. Dupont takes centre stage here with a really wonderful showing of photographs, sculptures and drawings, but Jeannotte's whimsical and satirical drawings are also a lot of fun. One of the best and, incidentally, most accessible shows they've had recently at the experimental gallery. HORACE is open from noon to 5 Tuesdays through Fridays and from 1 to 5 on weekends. The show closes June 23.

At the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-est we have a dual exhibit by photographer Jean Bédard and painter Michelle Quintin. Bédard likes to refer to his pictures as 'slices of life' even though they are completely devoid of living things. He is obviously interested in sharp lines, contrast and stark imagery and is very successful, if not exactly inspiring. Quintin is more emotive in a sensual sort of way, calm, yet involved. The contrast between the artists adds a certain flavour to this interesting show.

At the Léon Marcotte Centre on Sherbrooke's Frontenac Street, the exhibits Archeology and Rue des Enfants Trouvés are now on view. Both of these shows deal with the subject of Canadian archeology. Presented in collaboration with Parks Canada and the City of Montreal, the shows feature artifacts, photographs and a film on the archeological research being done in Montreal and on the historical knowledge we are gaining through them. The shows continue until June 30. The Centre is open from 12:30 to 5 Tuesdays through Sundays, except on Thursdays when it stays open until 9 p.m. Admission is $1.

There's a lot to look at up at the Orford Arts Centre this summer, and although Mikey hasn't had a chance to get up there and check them out, he'll let you know what they are just in case you wanna beat him to it. First off is a collection of Prints of British Artists. This collection features over 50 pieces by 30 well-known artistic Britons and offers a marvelous panoramic view of one aspect of modern British art. Brought together in collaboration with the National Museum of Canada and the British Consulate, this should be a very good showing.

Also on view at the Centre is Traditional Latvian (Letish) Art. This exhibit features sculpture, ceramics and an extensive collection of beautiful traditional Latvian costumes.

The Centre also has permanent collections, including a Pavillion of Man and Music and several murals in front of the Salle Gilles-Lefebvre.

In Lennoxville it's the last weekend of the Expo-

Artisinal Lennoxville where a whole bunch of things are going on. The festival is taking place at the St-Antoine school and is worth checking out. Follow the banner in downtown Lennoxville or, for more information, call Rolande Daigle at 562-5545.

The Laurier Museum in Arthabaska continues its Homage à Narcisse Poirier until June 16, featuring work on and by one of Canada's foremost painters who died in 1984 at the age of 101.

The Lennoxville Library has begun an admirable new program this summer called Tales Told Aloud and has engaged the articulate and active Jennifer Epps to read stories for children in English or French depending on who's there. This good idea materializes for about an hour each Wednesday afternoon at 3 p.m. in the library. To make it even more interesting, parents or kids can make requests for readings on a sheet conveniently left hanging in the library's children's section.

For those who prefer reading literature to my drivel, the Lennoxville Library has asked me to mention that it has acquired a whole bunch of new books that include Farley Mowat's Sea of Slaughter, Dick Francis' Proof, and John D. MacDonald's The Lonely Silver Rain.

Out in Sutton, the Summer Market opens this weekend at the corner of Academy and Curley streets and features handicrafts of all kinds, home-baking, jewelry, ceramics, antiques and a general flea market. There are picnic tables and a canteen available and the market is sponsored by the Sutton Council, a non-profit organization.

The Sherbrooke Exposition is sponsoring a Flower Garden Contest this year and is inviting folks to sign right up. First prize will be a trip for two to Florida and there are many other excellent prizes. To register, merely honk on the hooter to Hélène Jacob at 565-0099.

Out in Brome-Missisquoi, a Canada Day Committee has been formed and is eagerly accepting the participation of any musicians, choirs, dancers, majorettes, jugglers and whatever. If interested, call Yvette Marchesault at (514) 534-2812.

Guided tours are now available of the wonderful Beckett Woods in Sherbrooke, and this week the theme is The flowers of the underbrush. The tour departs tomorrow and Sunday from the entrance to the woods on Beckett Street at 1 p.m. For groups of at least eight people, special tours can be arranged during the week as well, but you must call and reserve. The number is 821-5781.

Movies

Not lots of news here in Sherbrooke this week, as the Cinéma Carrefour are hanging on to A View To a Kill starring Roger Moore as double-naught seven James Bond and Grace Jones as a tall, skinny, mean black lady whom one would not wish to encounter surreptitiously in any unlighted bylanes. There's not much to say about yet another Bond movie, except that it's just that — another Bond movie.

Down at the Cinéma Capitol the lovely Sylvester 'rahrrh' Stallone stars as Rambo for another noisy week. Stallone is brilliant as the shy sensitive Dominican friar obsessed with man's inhumanity and weakness in the face of a cruel world and a stern deity, and sets out on a spiritual mission that brings him closer to the central Briercrest Bible College singers perform next Thursday at the Huntingville Community Church.

WHAT'S ON

Truth. Fooled you, didn't I. Wouldn't it be nice; but of course, Rambo features Stallone as a brainless Neanderthal who can't pronounce two-syllable words, but can wipe out several Southeast Asian armies with a flick of his mighty wrist. Loud, vulgar, violent and senseless, this film is a sure hit. You'll love it.

Things are brighter in Cowansville where the Cinéma Princesse has a mediocre film at 7:15 and a better (I hope) feature. The first movie is Vision Quest, a rather silly story of a high school wrestler and the lady he loves. It'll keep you awake, but barely. The Goonies on the other hand has the possibility of being something much better. It's got all the ingredients it needs — Steven Spielberg. I'm not quite sure what it's about other than it's an adventure horror film starring a bunch of kids and some great little monsters and special effects. How the hell can it go wrong, he asks?

The Goonies are also visiting Newport, Vt., where the Merrill's Showplace Cinemas are giving it top billing. It shows at 7 and 9 p.m. with matinées at 1:45 on weekends. Unfortunately, Rambo is also still there (7:20 and 9:35) as is something called Girls Just Want To Have Fun (7:10 and 9:25). This movie is supposed to be so trashy that Cyndi Lauper refused to even have her name associated with it and coming from a kid who's a front for the newly-chic professional wrestling racket, that says an awful lot. Except for The Goonies, you're probably best off renting a cassette and staying home with your lover (if your spouse will let you, that is).

Television

Vermont ETV brings back one of the best musicals of 1950 tonight at 9 with Judy Garland and Gene Kelly starring in Summer Stock, a delightful tale of a theatre troupe summering in the splendors of rural Connecticut.

This is followed at 11:15 by another 1950 winner, Born Yesterday, featuring Broderick Crawford as a junk man who hits the big-time and decides that his dipsy girlfriend needs a little culture and hires a college prof to give it to her. He does. The result is a wonderful comedy which gave Judy Holiday an Oscar for her performance as the classic dumb (but not as dumb as you think) blonde. Nobody could play that part with as much charm and believability as Holiday.

At 1 p.m. Saturday, Elizabeth Taylor, Jane Fonda and Cecily Tyson star in the Russo-American production of the old Russian fairy-tale The Bluebird.

At 3, Vermont ETV begins a country music extravaganza with Country Music Jubilee, featuring performances by the likes of Ricky Skaggs, The Gatlin Brothers, Tom T. Hall and the Charlie Parker band.

At 6, Hoyt Axton hosts a tribute to the Legends of Country Music, featuring Eddy Arnold, Kitty Wells, Carl Perkins and Ray Price among others.

At 9, Vermont ETV pushes the image just a bit further with True Grit, the movie that gave John Wayne an Academy Award for his portrayal of Rooster Cogburn, the aging, but still tough, one-eyed U.S. Marshall. Kim Darby and Glen Campbell co-star.

It's awards night on Canadian television Saturday, beginning at 9 p.m. with CTV's presentation of The American Video Awards. This is the show that toasts the best of North America's newest and fastest growing entertainment industry, the music video, and guests will include some of pop music's biggest stars, including Laura Branigan, Cyndi Lauper, B.B. King and Weird Al Yankovic. Could be good.

At 10, CBC presents the Banff Television Festival Awards, where North America's major T.V. festival honors what it considers the best in the past year's offerings.

At midnight, on Channel 12, Tom Skeritt and Sigourney Weaver star in Alien, a sci-fi thriller about a commercial spacecraft infiltrated by an outsider.

If you're still awake after that, Channel 12 offers a second feature, the cute but funny satire Health starring Carol Burnett, Glenda Jackson and Lauren Bacall, in a tongue-in-cheek look at a convention of health-food fanatics.

On Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 12 Pierre Berton Revisited looks back to the golden days of the Pierre Berton Show and in timely fashion features an interview with Canadian Justice Minister Pierre E. Trudeau, in the middle of his bid for the leadership of the Liberal Party of Canada, and then switches to a young and aspiring René Lévesque discussing the pressures of leadership.

At 7:30, CTV's In Session features a blues jam with the incredible Stevie Ray Vaughan and the legendary Albert King. M-m-m.

At 9, CBC introduces a three-part series called Modern Country, with Cities in the Landscape, a look at the architecture and make-up of three of Canada's most distinctive cities — Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

On Monday at 8, Vermont ETV's beautiful The Heart of the Dragon portrait of China looks at Marrying. The show focusses on a newly-married rural Chinese couple and their families as they progress through the ancient rituals of marriage bargaining, bridal dowries and payment — in pig entrails and cigarettes — for the bride.

At 9, on CTV, George Segal, Natalie Wood and Richard Benjamin star in The Last Married Couple in America, a comedy dealing with a happily married couple trying to stay that way in the midst of the marital crises surrounding them.

At 10, Vermont ETV brings what should be an exciting but chilling spectacle in the form of Great Confrontations at the Oxford Union, where American evangelist Gerry Falwell takes on New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange on The morality of nuclear weapons. Falwell believes that God would be happy if all Americans became spiteful, vicious, bigotted, narrow-minded, pig-headed, arrogant hypocrites like himself and believes eternity would be guaranteed Republican if we could only incinerate all the Commie bastards in a man-made hell. Lange, the fanatic, believes that nuclear weapons are inherently evil and has refused American ships carrying them permission to dock in his country. Jeez, I bet the rev. will put that pinko pansy in his place!

On Tuesday at 9, Vermont ETV presents The Military and the Media, in which professor Arthur Miller of the Harvard Law School chairs a session dealing with a hypothetical situation in Central America where the U.S. stations troops to defend some nice fascists against a bunch of left-wing savages who don't even dress for dinner.

At 10:30 the long-awaited science-fiction series The Tripods begins on Vermont ETV. This 13-part epic is set in the year 2089 where, a small English village celebrates Capping Day, a ritual whereby a Tripod (one of the machines that rule the world) comes to town to perform the ceremony which is the highlight of every 16-year-old's life. Three local boys are not so sure they want this, thank you very much and do their darnedest to escape.

Vermont ETV also has a good late-nighter at 11 with Anna Magnani as a young widow who compares every man she meets to her late lamented, until she meets a rough-and-tumble truck driver played by Burt Lancaster.

On Wednesday at 8, Rich Little hosts the Second Annual NHL Awards Special. At one time, they used to have a boring but dignified dinner and hand out these trophies to the year's outstanding National Hockey League players, but now they figure they might as well get just as tacky as everybody else and do it all glitzy on the boob tube. Because of this, the awards will be presented by such great hockey names as Mila Mulroney, Linda Thom, Alex Bauman, Ken Taylor, Ann Ditchburn and that great body-checker Liona Boyd. Will somebody please, please just once give me a break?!

Radio

Tonight at 7:30 on Variety Tonight, a concert from Vancouver by the new country-swing sensation Riders in the Sky.

At 9:45, stage director Richard Ouzounian continues his Forgotten Broadway series with music from shows that never quite made it. Tonight's featured flops are the legendary Celebration Mr. President and the unforgettable Subways are for Sleeping. Wow!

At 11:30, Vanishing Point begins broadcasts of a series of specially-recorded American chillers that were put together for the National Public Radio network. Tonight's episode is Stephen King's The Mist. A small town is hit by a sudden storm which then proceeds to enclose the town in a dense mist in which horrible things are lurking. CBC Stereo suggests that if you can, you listen to this incredible audio-rich recording with headphones so as not to miss the nuances made possible by this technique.

On Saturday on CBC Stereo at 2:05 Saturday Afternoon at the Opera presents Verdi's La Forza del Destino which deals with a man trapped by fate after he accidentally kills his lover's father and earns the vengeful hatred of the man's son. Leona Mitchell headlines the Manitoba Opera Association led by Elio Boncompagni.

There's good stuff on Jazz Beat tonight on CBC Stereo at 8:05 as Jubilation Choir member Kathleen Dyson Oliver takes to the stage with the fantastic Vic Vogel Band to sing the songs of Billy Holiday. Next up, piano wiz Keith Jarrett, one of jazz piano's great performers.

At 10:10 on CBC Radio Anthology presents Another Country, a new story by Connecticut-born New Brunswicker Ann Copeland. Also poems by westerner Dale Zieroth.

On Sunday at 3:05 on CBC Stereo's Command Performance, Roumanian opera star Nelly Miricioiu makes her Canadian stage debut in a recital of music by Puccini, Verdi, Donizetti, Fauré and many more.

At 4:05, Sunday Matinée on CBC Radio presents Who Killed Sir Harry Oaks. In 1943, Sir Harry Oaks, who had made a fortune as a prospector in Northern Ontario was found dead in his Bahamian home. His son-in-law was charged with the murder but as this recreation shows, the subsequent trial left the identity of Oaks's killer very much a mystery. Douglas Rain and Harold Christie head the cast. The script was written by Susan and Ray Stancer.

At 7:05 Stereo Theatre offers Family Troubles by Max Haines. The mysterious disappearance in August 1952 of a rural Ontario housewife named Helen Kendall was explained by her husband as a desertion on her part of himself and the couple's five kids. An intensive search by police turned up nothing and it was several years before the truth finally emerged. Ken James and Elva Mai Hoover star.

At 9:05, CBC Radio's Ideas begins a five-part series called Latin America — At War With the Past. The problems that seem insurmountable in present-day Latin America have deep and sturdy roots in the history of the region, and can be solved only by Latin Americans themselves. Carlos Fuentes, former ambassador to France from Mexico and now a visiting Harvard literature professor is presently one of Latin America's leading men of letters and this series of lectures gives us personal and historical insights from the inside. The series continues through the week.

At 8:05 Testament presents one of its Great Theologians and Pastors with an interview with controversial Catholic theologian Hans Kung, who has stirred the consciences of many modern Catholics and has earned the wrath of the Vatican as a result. Here he discusses some of his theories which put him outside the Catholic pale and outside mainstream Christianity in general.

Finally, on Morningside through this week, the story To the Colonies, You Say? by Alan Hughes is dramatized. In this raucous tale a young English nobleman, fallen out of favor with his stern father, is sent to Canada where it is hoped he will be somewhat tamed. Ha! The young rascal makes it out to Calgary where his own indiscretions seem pale next to the everyday goings-on in the prairie cowtown.

Three young boys desperately try to avoid the ceremony known as 'capping' in The Tripods, premiering next Tuesday on Vermont ETV.

Lake Stukey resort restful and tranquil

By Laurel Sherrer

BONSECOURS—The Base de plein air Jouvence invited about 40 people to celebrate the completion of renovations to its auberge Tuesday.

Nestled in a hollow close to Stukely Lake, Jouvence is a four-season resort where up to 200 people can stay at one time and just relax or take part in activities such as swimming and sail-boarding in the summer, cross-country skiing and snow-shoeing in the winter.

Jouvence has two sections, one just for adults, and one for families. Adults stay in the auberge, and in the past few years the demand for rooms has been so high that the owners decided it was time to expand.

Two months ago work began on an addition which includes seven new bedrooms, a salon and a spacious new dining room.

The renovations cost $200,000, and $160,000 of that was provided by the Ministère de loisir, chasse et pêche.

The auberge used to house 36 people and now it can house 50. Already the auberge is just about booked for the whole summer, says director Michel Martin. Their busiest season starts in a couple of weeks.

For the past six years Jouvence has received $145,000 annually from the Ministère de loisir, chasse et pêche, and Martin hopes expansion will help them move toward autonomy.

He doesn't really want to expand any further than needed for self-sufficiency.

"There's been a trend toward 'small is beautiful' in recent years," he said. "When you get too big the friendliness isn't there, and that's too bad."

The managers also want to preserve the peaceful atmosphere, and that's why they require guests to stay at least one night.

"We want it to be restful and tranquil," said Yvon Tapin, director-general of Jouvence. "When you have people in for just a day they're very active, and if you're spending a week here you don't want to be disturbed by the others."

Tapin said it's unfortunate more local people don't visit Jouvence, although more of them are finding out about it each year. At least 75 per cent of the guests are from Montreal and area.

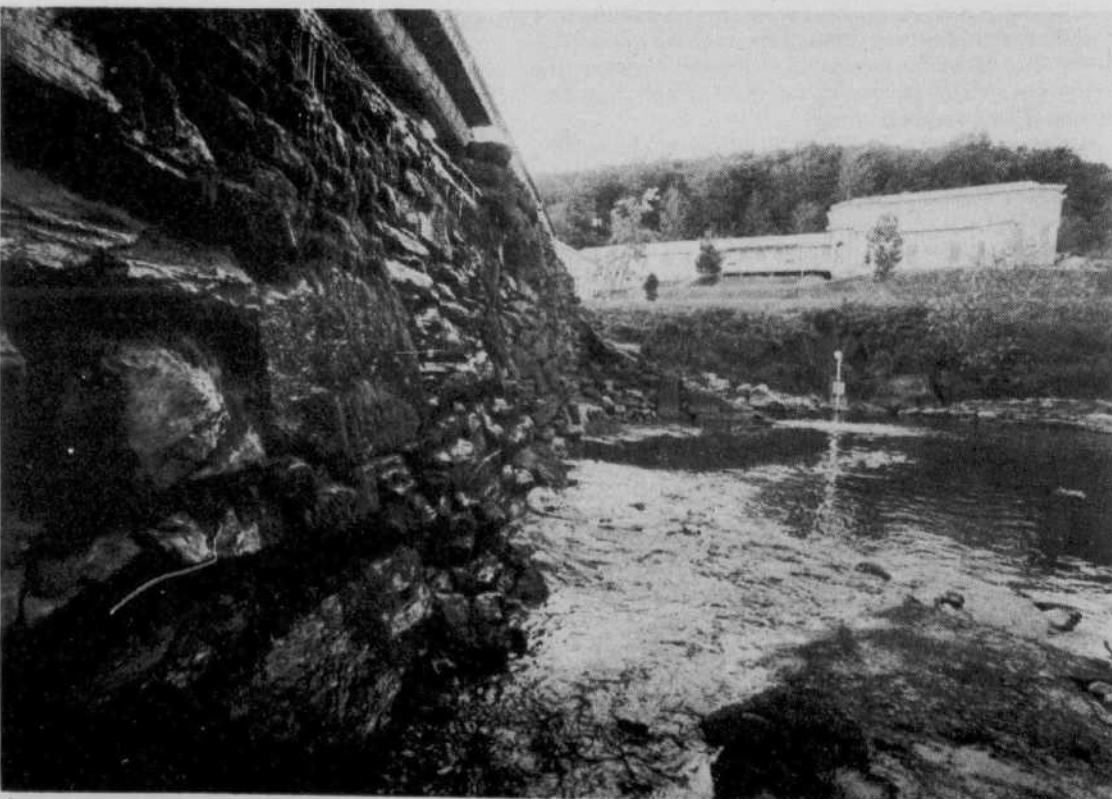

The family section has been closed since January because of a fire that destroyed the dining hall, but will reopen June 21.

Bright new dining room boasts a skylight and unobstructed view of the river.

The richness of the natural surroundings is one of the auberge's major drawing points.

Moss-covered stones from an old saw mill lend the auberge a rustic charm.

Fredericton gears up for 200th birthday as capital

New Brunswick has been called Canada's Picture Province; and so it provides a fitting framework for its capital city Fredericton.

Fredericton is a city of timeless natural beauty, with a deep-rooted concern for preserving its past. Evidence of this will be even more apparent this year as the "City of Stately Elms" celebrates its 200th birthday as capital of New Brunswick.

Residents of Fredericton, other New Brunswickers and visitors to the province are all invited to "Catch the Spirit", the slogan that promises to be contagious.

From the Officers' Square, where visitors can view the ancient ceremony of the changing of the guard, to the many historic monuments, plaques, flags and paintings on proud display along King and Queen Streets in the city's centre, there is much to be seen.

The York-Sunbury Historical Society Museum exhibits local military and domestic artifacts from Fredericton's earliest settlers—the Micmac Indians—to the Second World War.

Just past the guardhouse, where a costumed sentry stands on duty, visitors can enter the soldiers' barracks and see for themselves how British soldiers lived in the 1860s. Admission is free and guided tours are available.

Life in the barracks was crowded, uncomfortable and lonely for the British soldiers. This, along with bitter cold, poor food and severe punishment for misconduct, only added to their discomfort. Nevertheless, history books state that British ranks regarded the Fredericton barracks as a superior station compared to others.

The Christ Church Cathedral offers one of the finest examples of Gothic architecture in North America.

When built in 1854, Christ Church became the first cathedral founded on British soil since the Norman conquest in 1066. The church is open to the public and free guided tours are available on request.

The Beaverbrook Art Gallery features works by such artists as Salvador Dali, Thomas Gainsborough and Sir Joshua Reynolds. A special collection of art by the famous 19th century Canadian artist, Cornelius Krieghoff, is the largest held by any gallery.

These attractions, and more, are located in central Fredericton within walking distance of one another. But if you choose to use your car, free tourist parking passes are available at the Visitors' Information Centre in City Hall.

The Provincial Legislative Assembly Building has been a majestic landmark in Fredericton since 1882. Visitors may tour the building and the legislative library, free of charge. When the legislature is in session, you may sit in the public gallery and hear the proceedings.

Another highly regarded city landmark is the University of New Brunswick, located at the 'top of the hill', just outside the city's centre.

For those visitors wanting to step back into 'living history', Kings Landing, 34 km west of Fredericton offers everyone the opportunity.

Primarily a self-supporting settlement, Kings Landing is an authentic restoration of a village representing the lifestyles of the Saint John River Valley settlers from the 1780s through to the end of the 19th century.

Visitors can enter the houses occupied by "families" and chat about life in the 1780s. The settlement's staff of over 100 are all costumed and work to keep the village operational.

The "families" in the private houses keep the household running. Wives spend their days cooking and cleaning while the men and older sons tend chores. Children attend school in a small wooden school house.

Stroll along country lanes and visit the blacksmith or the carpenter at work. Services are still held at the small white Anglican church. If you get tired of walking, follow the sound of horses' hooves, and catch a hay-wagon taxi.

The King's Head Inn offers a 19th century menu for weary travellers in need of some traditional food and drink.

En route back into the 20th century, Mactaquac Provincial Park, 24 km west of Fredericton and 10 km east of Kings Landing, offers natural beauty coupled with modern recreational facilities.

Covering more than 560 hectares of forest and farmland, Mactaquac is the largest provincial park in New Brunswick.

Hiking, two beach areas, windsurfing, boating, waterskiing, fishing and an 18-hole championship golf course are some of the recreational facilities available.

An all-season campsite located in the park has 269 summer camping sites with 227 electrical hook-ups. Hot showers, heated washrooms, kitchen shelters, sewage disposal and water tank filling stations are also available to campers.

Closer to the city, Odell and Killarney Lake parks offer an abundance of natural enjoyments and recreation. Odell Park was purchased by the city of Fredericton in 1942 and was established to preserve wildlife and a natural landscape for the enjoyment of the people.

Walking trails can allow spectacular sights of deer, moose, beaver and many other forms of wildlife in their natural habitat. Other facilities include a lodge, barbecue pits, picnic tables, riding trails and lots of scenic wooded area.

Killarney Lake Park is a water lover's dream. Located on the north side of the Saint John River, the park has a natural basin, a spring-fed clear-water lake of 9 hectares and 10 hectares of land.

Kings Landing, west of Fredericton, recreates a thriving 18th century settlement.

Swimming and fishing are popular. Speckled trout are the park's game fish and the swimming areas are supervised by lifeguards.

Near the city centre, a grassy, tree-shaded area along the Saint John River called The Green gives visitors and locals a chance to sit, relax, and let thoughts drift with the sailboats.

Since the Saint John River is both deep and wide, it is excellent for boating and sailing enthusiasts. A modern marina is located in the city.

Sports enthusiasts won't be disappointed with Fredericton's recreational facilities. Most tennis courts and swimming pools are available free of charge to out-of-city visitors. The Fredericton Golf Club has an 18-hole course with one of the most picturesque layouts in Eastern Canada.

Or take a walk or a jog through the city's residential area and bring your camera. The combination of the majestic stately elms that line the streets and the angular charms and intrigues of the pre-1910 homes are a temptation to any photographer.

If you're wondering where the locals are headed every Saturday morning, just follow the crowd. No doubt you'll end up at the Boyce Farmers' Market, just outside the city centre.

Here, the market tradition from Fredericton's earliest days is carried on—Saturdays only—from 7:00 a.m. to noon.

Fresh vegetables, meat and breads are brought in by local farmers. Home-baked goods, maple syrup, apple cider, flowers and even pets are sold.

Visitors are drawn to the handicrafts available at the market. Fredericton holds the largest concentration of craftspeople in the province of New Brunswick; and every form of their art—from apple dolls, leatherwork and pottery to pewter and woodwork—can be found proudly displayed by the artisans.

Don't leave the market before visiting Goofy Roofy's. Tucked away in an obscure corner, this locally famous restaurant offers some of the best omelettes to be found anywhere in the eastern provinces. Plus, an ever-changing abundance of the home-baked temptations.

The restaurant is small and extremely informal, but don't be surprised if you find yourself at a table with a provincial premier, a member of the legislature, or even some aspiring artist.

After immersing yourself in the traditions of the past, present conveniences can be very appealing.

Evening activities could include dinner theatre at the Wandlyn Inn. Linger over a good meal while local actors present one-act plays worthy of applause.

Or spend an evening at The Playhouse, an intimate theatre and the major centre for the performing arts in the Maritime Provinces.

Fredericton offers visitors a chance to escape a hectic and noisy lifestyle. Take the time to absorb the relaxed, unhurried pace of life in a city that cares deeply about its past.

Ottawa defends its honor as worthy tourist spot

OTTAWA (CP) — The people who live here know it's a clean, beautiful city with plenty of tourist attractions.

Put beyond its borders, Ottawa is viewed as a dull, public service town, a grey sea of "bureaucrats and office buildings," say delegates to the Alliance of Canadian Travel Associations convention, meeting this week.

Herbert Wolf, Austrian Airlines' district manager for Canada, says Ottawa has "no image outside Canada... it's difficult to visualize what it's like, what it has to offer.

"Bureaucrats and office buildings," he shrugs. "We all have that ourselves. It's stale. It gives an image of not being dynamic, of red tape. You would probably bypass it on a trip anyway."

"Ottawa should be trying to show it's more than just the seat of government. It should show that there's a real city around it. You see a picture of the Parliament Buildings and usually it ends there."

Marilyne Desrochers Benson, of the Greater Montreal Convention and Tourism Bureau, told retail travel agents, tour packagers and representatives of airlines, hotels, cruise lines and car rental companies attending the convention that people think there's not much to do in Ottawa.

SUGGESTS LOOK

But Glen Moore, executive vice-president of Canada's Capital Visitors and Convention Bureau, suggested delegates take a closer look at the city instead of "waltzing into town and becoming immediate experts."

Moore agreed Ottawa is "overshadowed by larger Canadian centres if you're looking from an off-shore perspective."

But within Canada and the Eastern U.S., it's no longer considered "a civil service place."

"Programs such as the Changing of the Guard, Son et Lumiere, Winterlude and Festival of Spring don't smack of being bureaucratic and not fun."

Winterlude has been named one of the top 100 events in North America by the North American Bus Association, Moore said.

Joaquin Pastor of the National Tourist Office of Spain said nobody from that country wants to come to Canada.

"You have to sell the specifics. Promote Canada as a summer destination, for example. You can't show us winter, snow. They have that in Germany, Austria, places like this."

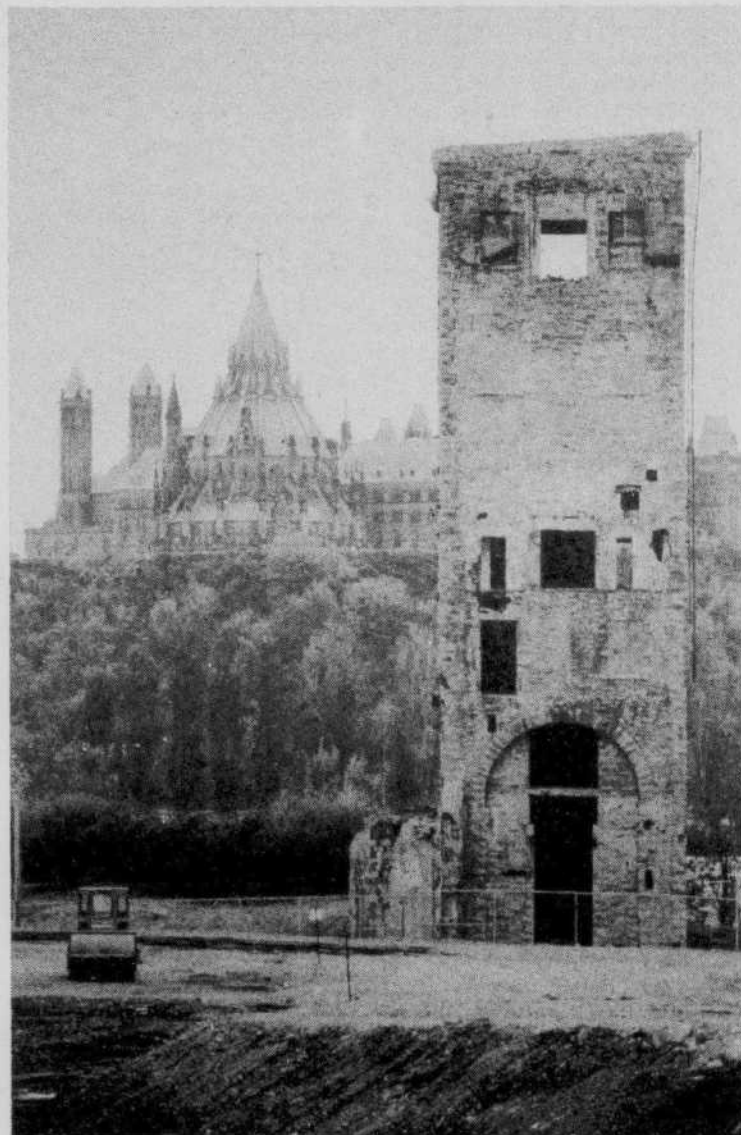

Some delegates felt Canada should capitalize on its multiculturalism.

Benson said 75 to 80 per cent of Canada's tourists are American.

"Americans are looking for the French side of Canada. After Toronto and the Rockies, that's a special attraction. A little of Europe in North America."

The Bishop's Palace and the stately Notre Dame Cathedral prove that Parliament is not the only thing for visitors to see in Canada's capitol city.

This old tower, once a part of a pulp and paper complex, eagerly awaits its role as centerpiece for the soon-to-be-constructed of Museum of Man.

Travel agents welcome but there's no room at the inn

OTTAWA (CP) — There was no room at the inn for about 150 travel agents who arrived here last Tuesday and Wednesday.

They were among more than 1,300 delegates attending the eighth annual convention of the Alliance of Canadian Travel Associations.

Organizers for the alliance say the no-vacancy problem arose when rooms at downtown Holiday Inn they say were reserved for the convention were not available when delegates arrived.

The rooms were booked more than two years ago, said Jeff Barlow, chairman of the convention's advisory committee.

Rawi Zayadi, executive assistant manager for the hotel said the association "did not pick up their room allotment" by the agreed date. So the rooms were released from the contract and made available to anyone.

Barlow said the association scrambled to find rooms, a difficult task because hotels everywhere were filled.

Some delegates said they have been asked to double up.

"The delegates have taken it in stride," said Barlow.

Southeast New Brunswick — wild and beautiful

By Vera Ayling

Southeast New Brunswick is the place to visit this year. With miles of sun-warmed, sandy beaches coaxing you to laze the hours away, and refreshing swims in the sparkling waters of sheltered bays of the Northumberland Strait, you'll find it the nearest thing to paradise.

This season make the city of Moncton your headquarters. From it, you can travel in any direction, for day jaunts or week-long trips. You can cast a line for some deep-sea fishing, watch an exciting hydroplane regatta, chat with farmers at country fairs, see historic places or visit one of the many festivals.

With an easy blend of English and French, Moncton is the major city in the Southeast. This city's holiday season gets off to a rousing start the last of June with Railroad Days. "Highball Sam" in his striped railway outfit is its mascot.

Moncton takes its name from Lt. Col. Robert Monckton, commander of the British forces that captured Fort Beauséjour from the French in 1755. The letter "k" was accidentally omitted when the provincial legislature approved the designation.

Situated on the Petitcodiac River, it was originally called The Bend after the crook in the river. An early Acadian settlement in 1698, it was permanently settled by Pennsylvania Germans in 1765, then by Irish immigrants and United Empire Loyalists.

You can watch for Moncton's phenomenon, the Tidal Bore, at Bore View park. A rush of water escorted by dozens of noisy seagulls will cover the chocolate-colored, tidal flats within an hour.

Railroad buffs will enjoy the railroad and ship-building dioramas in the Moncton Museum on Mountain Road. For a glimpse of the Acadian way of life, visit the Museum and Art Gallery on the Université de Moncton campus, the province's only French-language university.

In Centennial Park you will discover tree-shaded picnic sites, hiking, a beach and various recreational facilities, a pleasant break if you travel with children.

The famous Magnetic Hill in northwest Moncton may be an optical illusion, but it will continue to puzzle you long after you have coasted uphill several times with your motor off. And try to explain ditch water that runs uphill!

Nearby is the city's Game Farm where more than 250 animals, both exotic and those indigenous to the province, prowl their enclosures. Birds and water fowl are there too and children will love the petting zoo. Entrance to the Game Farm is through a covered bridge, one of the real "kissing" bridges for which New Brunswick is well known.

During the summer months nearly everyone heads for the golden sandy beaches and warm salt water at Parlee Beach Provincial Park. There are two fine marinas near by at Shediac Bay and Point du Chêne. Boat tours on the Northumberland Strait can be arranged.

Shediac calls itself the Lobster Capital of the World. The July 9 to 14 Lobster Festival is an extravaganza with stage shows, midway, and a huge lobster pot serving as a restaurant that is always packed with folk eating the succulent shellfish from the shell. You might even want to enter the amateur section of the fun-filled lobster eating contest on stage.

A new feature of interest to tourists is a bazaar held each weekend in the Shediac Festival Arena featuring the work of 50 fine artisans. It will commence June 28 and run until Labor Day.

At Barachois St. Henri Church, the oldest Acadian Church in the province, has been restored. Opened in 1826, it now is a gallery and museum. Notice the beautiful Lamb of God painted on the ceiling by some unknown artist.

From Shediac head north on Route 134, the shore road, leading to Kouchibouguac Park. Route 11 will get you there faster, but you will miss the picturesque, secluded villages on the coasts.

At Shediac Cape, see the beautiful St. Martin's-the-Wood Anglican Church, constructed by master craftsmen at the bidding of the first English-speaking settler, William Hanington, in the early 1800s. He paddled across the Northumberland Strait to Prince Edward Island searching for a worthy bride. He found her, a young maiden feeding chickens in her father's barn-yard. Married by a Justice of the Peace, they canoed back across the Strait.

At Cocagne the International Hydroplane Regatta takes place late each August, on a high tide, in the Cocagne River. Make reservations early if you plan to stay in the vicinity for accommodations are booked solid for the weekend event. Go to the grounds early and you'll see giant cranes lifting the seemingly fragile hydroplanes down into the river. When the gun goes, the craft follow a noisy course trailing rooster tails of white water. The lobster bash that night is something to remember. So is the Cocagne Village Bazaar held around the same time near the church, where you can sample Acadian cuisine and join in Acadian songs and dances.

Driving on, you'll reach the village of Buctouche, as the Indians called it, 'chebooktoosk,' the small, big harbor. Fishermen harvest oysters here and there is an annual Mollusk Festival. Buctouche is known as the home of New Brunswick industrialist K.C. Irving and the internationally famed Acadian novelist Antoine Maillet has her summer home here.

Quebec restaurants to be rewarded for promotion

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec restaurants have played a pioneer role in introducing more Quebecers to new foods, while giving a boost to the economy, said Agriculture Minister Jean Garon as he tabled a bill to recognize culinary achievement.

The bill created an order of merit for excellence in restaurant food and promotion of local produce by Quebec restaurateurs.

The province's restaurants have popularized several foods, such as endives, that were unknown 10 or 15 years ago, the minister said last month in the national assembly.

"Let's not forget the fundamental role, the pioneer role, Quebec restaurateurs played in promoting grain-fed veal or snow crab," he said.

In 1980, with Quebec crab processing plants on the verge of closing due to a surplus, restaurants agreed to promote the shellfish, Garon said. Within two months they sold five times more crab than in the entire preceding year. The bill is expected to see the agriculture department organize annual competitions leading to four levels of merit decorations.

The names of finalists, a description of their establishments and their specialties will be published in a brochure which could serve as a guide to good dining, Garon said.

The province also plans to classify restaurants according to their quality, said Tourism Minister Marcel Leger.

Instead of the commonly-used star symbol, Quebec restaurants will be awarded from one to four forks after a professional evaluation.

By promoting new and interesting dishes like this unique lobster salad, restaurants improve the markets for Quebec farmers and fishermen.

Agriculture minister Jean Garon has many reasons for being grateful to the restaurant business, but its promotional characteristics that he wants to reward.

RITUALS--Lacey confides in Diandra about her desperate move and Noel suspects Jeff of gambling again. Carter presses Julia for her support. C.J. and Sara receive a surprising visitor. C.J. sends Mike to immediately rescue his son and Christine tries to turn Sara against C.J.

RYAN'S HOPE--Johnny survives his heart attack but, turns away from Siobhan when she says she won't give up Max. Frank verbally attacks Max when he shows up at the hospital to visit Johnny. Max gasps as he sees Chessy posing as Gabrielle. Back in France, the doctors are amazed to realize that Gabrielle is making a recovery from mental illness. Katie is broken hearted when Dave is determined to marry Maggie. Dave insists on going to Maggie's first prenatal appointment. Maggie panics knowing that she has lied to Dave. At the wedding Maggie begins to exchange vows with Dave.

THIS WEEK: D.J. cons Ryan. Roger has fun at Maggie's expense.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE--Marco and Jinx become lovers. Mitch leaves a note that convinces Viki that she is in danger of being exposed as a dual-personality. Jenny promises to stick by Viki at the "Back Street Bar" so that she will not assume her Niki personality. Jenny learns from Viki's former doctor that without therapy Viki could assume her alternate personality permanently. Bo notices Trent's attraction to Delilah. Didi goes on a picnic with Rafe and the baby.

THIS WEEK: Bo makes a bid on the yacht. Tina is pressured by Mitch.

ALL MY CHILDREN--Tad

rescues Dottie from a mysterious stranger who tries to knock her out. Benny tells Donna he found pictures hidden in Zach's room. Donna agrees to take truth serum when she fears she may have been the one who killed Zach. Daisy's appeal is denied and she is taken to prison. Jesse gets very angry when he hears Frankie call Eugene "Daddy."

THIS WEEK: Cliff administers truth serum. Dottie is grateful.

LOVING--Gwyn and Dane rush back to New York as Clay has been spotted in Thailand. Dane tries to get armorous but, Gwyn is frightened that Clay may be alive. Ava seeks council from Ann, who advises her to ignore thoughts that Jack may be unfaithful. A drunk Ann seeks comfort from Cabot.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES--Bo agrees finally to help Theo, but it's clear he doesn't completely trust him, and makes Theo promise they will do it his way--no rock star. Bo tries to tell Hope, but when she talks about being a dedicated cop, he realizes he can't. Shane is furious about Richard holding Emma an accessory to the Dragon's crimes. Emma has a break-through and finally remembers everything the Dragon did to her. She lets it all out and Shane learns that she was kidnapped, and drugged, and stayed with the Dragon because he swore he'd kill Shane if Emma didn't. Liz is mugged by Vipers and Bo goes after them. Chris suspects Alex might be involved and comes on to Savannah to see if she can get him any information. At the benefit, Eugene tries to appear as Bettina Lovecraft, hoping he can pull it off in drag. But as he steps to the microphone, he knows he can't go through with the sham any longer, and he declares there is no Bettina, that he did it because of his true love for Calliope. Bo and Theo break into the video studio, but are surprised by the unexpected arrival of Tod, Savannah, Neil, Liz and Alex.

THIS WEEK: Bo and Theo wonder what to do. Hope is upset with Bo.

THE GUIDING LIGHT--Sally invokes HB's name to prevent Billy from shooting Kyle. Although Billy puts the gun away, he warns Sally that he will get Kyle. Suzette fears that the love may be gone from her relationship with David. Phillip is forced to realize that India is a valuable political asset if she remains his wife. Reva is still suffering from her intense migraine brought on by the tension of being torn between HB and Kyle. She struggles to overcome it so she can tell HB she loves Kyle and wants to be with him. India asks Phillip if he's still going to file for a divorce. Instead of answering her, he pulls her into a kiss. Maureen covers her hurt and anger, coolly tells Ed that she knows he is the father of Claire's baby. Sally, afraid her two sons may kill each other, tells HB that Kyle and Billy have to be told their secret: namely, that Sally's Billy's mother making Kyle and Billy brothers.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW--Danny instructs TR in the art of kissing. Dr. Green suggests that Liza may not be enjoying being a mother, Liza flares. TR offers a tentative hug. Lloyd suggests Liza is overburdened and perhaps TR should come live with him. Sunny and Lloyd share a common desire to have children, both agree that Hogan will make a good father. Sunny realizes Liza still hasn't told Lloyd about her suspected pregnancy. Danny flirts with Sarah. She simply but directly puts him in his place. Danny is deflated. Liza and Lloyd share their first real kiss. To her astonishment, Liza finds herself responding. TR tries to deal with Ryder's feelings about her and Danny. Liza informs Hogan she intends to marry Lloyd. Hogan erupts impulsively, telling her she can't!

THIS WEEK: Kate likes Sarah. Hogan argues with Liza.

GENERAL HOSPITAL--Mike learns about the baby and Rick assures him that he loves Mike as much as he would a child of his own blood. Alan and Grant are unsuccessful in locating Scropio to check out the quarantine. Alan bemoans the loss of profits. Edward, ready to gloat over Alan's possible failure in big business, takes pity and encourages him. Alan is moved. Peter, Slater and Prescott are making plans to get the treasure, which Slater believes is in the secret compartment aboard the medical ship. Derek tells Ginny he knows she is pregnant, and he thinks the child is his. If she rejects him, he'll fight tooth and nail to take Mike from her and Rick. Rick isn't sure where Ginny's loyalty lies. Robert gest proof-positive that Anna went on the last double agent assignment to save his life. Holly is devastated when Anna strokes Robert's face. Ginny learns from Jake that the unborn child, even if Derek is the father, will be legally Rick's child.

THIS WEEK: Ginny worries about Derek. Holly is upset about Anna.

AS THE WORLD TURNS--Craig juggles trying to pacify Sierra while not jeopardizing the contract. It doesn't work. Sierra leaves in a huff. Criag tries to continue dinner but finally asks Yvonne to sign the contracts now so he can go after Sierra. Marcy reads an article saying Stewart has pulled out of an important tournament. What's wrong with him? Kirk suggests he's got a crush on him or she'd ask him outright.

ANOTHER WORLD--When the lab reports come back, Larry suspects designer drugs are being manufactured in Bay City. Carter confesses to Grant he will not graduate because of the exam he missed. MJ's romance with Jamie is in trouble when she must keep her part in Larry's investigation a secret. Larry steals the drug samples from the Planes Motel and sends them to MJ to be analyzed. Catlin attempts once again to set Brittany straight, she will not listen to him, but she is beginning to hear. Sally is reassured when Catlin reaffirms his love for her. When Catlin angrily tells Brittany he will not be pushed around by her and storms off, she calls to him, her speech has returned. When the hospital confirms the substance as drugs, Larry begins his undercover investigation.

THIS WEEK: Rachel confronts Mac. Cass charms Daphne.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS--Danny thinks Traci may be trying to rush a decision that is really major in both their lives -- she is surprised Danny isn't jumping at the chance to get out of his marriage. Jazz warns his brother not to trust Kong for a minute -- particularly if Kong acts as if he trusts Tyrone. John announces, at the breakfast table, that he accepted Ashley's resignation and he made Jack vice chairman. Alana goes to exercise class and tells Amy that she is in love with Robert Tyrone. Amy has a hard time handling the news casually. Jack goes down to the photo lab where Nikki has been modeling. He informs her of his run in with Victor and tells her if Victor ever becomes too tough to live with she has an alternative ... he's always available to her.

THIS WEEK: Ashley has a comrade. Lauren plays games with Neil.

SANTA BARBARA--Cruz goes over the nature of C.C.'s threats against everyone in the room. Amy and Brick seek shelter from the storm and Amy begins to go into labor. Brick takes her to the hospital. Amy has a baby boy. The baby is abducted and Brick gives chase, falling into a trap.
