Canada Day: Most of us will celebrate but...

By Charles Bury

SHERBROOKE — While most Canadians take tomorrow off, a minority of Quebecers will spend the Dominion Day holiday working as hard, and in conditions as difficult, as many of them are ever likely to encounter.

It's moving day in Quebec, as standard-form residential leases all expire, trucks suddenly become a rare and illusive item and sceptics claim it's all a provincial government plot to dampen the federalist holiday spirit — with gallons of blood, sweat and tears.

The blood comes from fingers and toes pinched, gouged, squeezed, folded, bent, twisted, spindled or mutilated by errant furniture. The sweat comes from hauling it up and down stairs and around corners where a washing machine was never meant to fit, and where that folding couch always managed to unfold — often for the first time since Aunt Bessie came to visit during Expo '67. The tears come from the blood and sweat, and from that parting, which, Shakespeare to the contrary, isn't always such sweet sorrow, especially when it comes down to whether that box of old school books or the broken lawnmower should get the last place in the truck.

"Rent a truck? I'm short myself, and I can't even rent any for myself," said Blair (Sandy) Donnachie, operator of Dave's Transport, a major local moving company and Allied Van Lines agent. "It's the same every year at this time."

With time running out, last-minute movers will go for anything with at least four wheels and one door, as ancient Detroit Iron hulks are dragged sputtering and roaring out of retirement for the occasion. And finding a truck isn't the only problem. Then it has to be filled, moved and emptied again, all hopefully without starting a fight with the replacement tenant.

And heyday for the movers is a source of only doubt for cynics who claim that the whole thing is a Parti Quebecois plot. They say the only reason moving day was changed a few years

Trapped guerrillas stall as Begin warns civilians

Yasser Arafat's trapped guerrillas studied a Saudi offer to fly them out of West Beirut to avoid an Israeli invasion while Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin gave them a 48-hour deadline and warned civilians to "get out, get out!"

Begin said Tuesday that his forces outside the Palestine Liberation Organization's last retreat would wait "another day, two days" before routing the 8,000 cornered guerrillas by force, completing the objective of their invasion.

"Under no conditions will we let them stay in Beirut," Begin told Israel's parliament, the Knesset. "They will leave Beirut. Nothing will help them. They will leave."

He urged civilian residents in the shattered western sector of the Lebanese capital to flee, as Israeli planes for the third day running showered besieged neighborhoods with leaflets warning of a possible invasion.

"Civilians get out, get out!" Begin said from the Knesset floor. "We don't want to hurt any of you. By foot or by vehicle, get out of Beirut."

Hundreds of Israelis outside the Knesset demonstrated for and against Israel's invasion as Begin spoke.

MAY FLY OUT

Official sources in Beirut who requested anonymity said the Saudi Arabian government of King Fahd proposed Tuesday to fly the guerrillas to countries of their choice as an alternative to the Israeli offer of safe-conduct in buses to Syria. The Saudi plan would spare the guerrillas the humiliation of travelling under Israeli guard.

The right-wing Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said the Saudi offer is being examined by the Lebanese government and PLO.

Palestinian and Lebanese leaders would not comment on this. But soon after the Saudi plan was disclosed, Arafat told reporters: "There is a new hope."

Lebanese sources said Arafat has been amenable to the principle of leaving Beirut provided the PLO is assured of a token military and political presence in Lebanon and guarantees that the 500,000 Palestinian civilians living there will not be expelled.

The eight-faction guerrilla group Arafat heads has been based in Lebanon for 12 years in its campaign to regain a homeland on Israeli-occupied territory.

Begin told Israeli lawmakers he accepted the PLO guerrillas' demand to be allowed to keep their personal weapons. But he rejected their insistence that Israeli forces withdraw five kilometres from Beirut.

"They have no right to dictate terms to us," Begin said.

Begin spoke in reaction to opposition calls that Israel stay out of West Beirut. He and Defence Minister Ariel Sharon said such a pledge would embolden the guerrillas to stall for more time.

'MOMENT OF TRUTH'

"From a purely military point of view, the Israel defence forces are able to wipe out this centre of international and anti-Israeli terrorism," Sharon told the Knesset. "The terrorists would do well to make their self-accounting at this moment of truth."

Acting Lebanese Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan said U.S. special envoy Philip Habib also is working on a compromise formula that would allow the PLO to leave Lebanon peacefully, avoiding a military showdown between the Israeli invaders and armed guerrillas. Habib helped arrange the current truce, which went into effect Friday.

Wazzan refused to disclose details of Habib's latest proposal but said: "We hope that a political solution is at hand much more than is the eventuality of storming Beirut — unless the Israelis think otherwise."

Israel invaded Lebanon on June 6 to rout the PLO and Syria's 30,000-member force sent to police a truce following the 1975-76 Moslem-Christian civil war. Israel says Syria's real purpose was to attack Israeli-backed Lebanese Christian forces and annex Lebanon.

Israel has said it will not leave Lebanon until the PLO disarms and evacuates, the Syrians leave and a strong central government emerges that will recognize the Jewish state. The Jewish state also has demanded a multinational force police in southern Lebanon to prevent future Palestinian attacks on northern Israeli settlements.

Johnson defends dental care cuts

Emphasis shifts to prevention

By Michael McDevitt

SHERBROOKE — Social Affairs Minister Pierre-Marc Johnson says budget cuts enacted by his ministry this year should be enough to balance the social affairs budget by April 1983, and no further cut backs should be necessary.

In defending recent cut backs in government spending, Johnson says that in view of the current economic crisis, all segments of society will have to do their part to help wipe out the province's large deficit. He defended the government's recent decision to cut wages in the public and para-public sectors.

Speaking at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon here yesterday, Johnson said "We are facing an economic crisis worse than any we've seen since the depression of the thirties, and it is affecting all levels of society. In times like this the need for social services goes up, and the government has to spend more money. We cannot continue to tax the workers in the private sector who do not enjoy the same degree of job security as those in the public sector. Everybody has to do his part."

Johnson says Bills 91 and 70, those ending the recent strike by Quebec General Practitioners, and the law restricting wages in the civil service respectively, are part of the government's attempt to deal with the economic crunch as equitably as possible. He adds the action was necessary because the only alternative would be to increase taxes on already-overburdened taxpayers, or to cut back or abolish programs already set up.

He defended a recent decision to cut back the province's Denticare program for children by saying that the revised program would still offer adequate protection at a savings of $30 million for the government.

When asked by Dentists' Association President Dr. Charles Tessier why the government had chosen to ignore his organization's proposal to lower the qualifying age limit, rather than reduce coverage Johnson hedged the issue by saying "its only natural for the dentists association to try and look out for its own interests, but our objective is to look after that of the public." He then said the government decision would still offer adequate curative coverage while shifting attention to preventive measures, such as the use of dental

Opposition MPs urge new budget vote test

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs urged the government Tuesday to test its new budget in an election, pointing to plummeting stock prices and another dip in the dollar's value as signs Canadians have lost faith in the Liberal's ability to manage the economy.

Progressive Conservatives and New Democrats have been asked to stay in Ottawa this evening — and risk missing Thursday's Dominion Day celebrations in their constituencies — to vote on a non-confidence motion condemning the budget.

If the traditional non-confidence motion proposed by Tory finance critic Michael Wilson is approved, the government will be forced to resign and take its economic plan to the voters.

However, a large number of the 146 Liberal members will have to be absent and all 100 Tories, 32 New Democrats and one independent member must be present and support the motion for the government to be defeated.

"An election is necessary to give Canadians the opportunity to rid this country of this government of failure," Wilson told the Commons during the first of six days allocated to budget debate.

Wilson said Canadians are frightened by Monday night's budget and fear the forecast $19.6 billion deficit — almost double that predicted in the Nov. 12 budget — is out of control.

That fear is already apparent in the marketplace, he said, where stock prices dropped dramatically Tuesday and the Canadian dollar dipped briefly below 77 cents U.S. before closing at 77.43, down about one-quarter of a cent.

Auditor General Kenneth Dye also condemned the deficit, calling it appalling.

CUT INFLATION

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Trudeau was greeted with hoots of derision as he claimed the budget can halve the 11.8 per cent annual inflation rate by next year if Canadians heed his call to voluntarily limit wage and price demands to six per cent in 1982.

The budget imposes a six-per-cent ceiling on wage increases for more than 500,000 public servants in the year starting Thursday and five per cent the next year.

A similar but more flexible limit will be placed on federally-regulated prices such as telephone rates and air fares.

Employment Minister Lloyd Axworthy also defended the wage controls and said he is surprised by organized labor's strenuous objections to the program.

"They are, in effect, opposing a chance for brothers and sisters in other unions to go back to work," Axworthy said.

"Surely the time has come for all Canadians to pull together."

Trudeau will urge provincial premiers to adopt his restraint measures in their jurisdictions when he meets with them today.

APPEAR SKEPTICAL

Several premiers have already implemented restraint programs, but many appeared skeptical of the more rigid federal proposals, indicating the meeting could end in the same stalemate and disarray as last February's first ministers' conference on the economy.

At least three provinces — British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba — say the across-the-board limits are unfair to lower-income earners.

New Democrat Leader Ed Broadbent urged Trudeau to ask the premiers to reopen federal-provincial energy-pricing agreements to postpone Thursday's two-cent-a-litre gas price increase at the wellhead.

Broadbent said the increase, which will work its way through to the pumps Sept. 1, will force inflation up an extra percentage point and cost 22,000 more jobs.

Trudeau said he will bring Broadbent's request to the premiers' attention, but will not try to reopen the deal because it took 18 months to reach.

Broadbent called the budget "an unmitigated disaster" and hinted the NDP may try to force Parliament to sit through the summer.

His party's finance critic Nelson Riis called the document a betrayal and predicted it will cause "an overwhelming wave of protest of discontent and anger unprecedented in Canadian history."

PQ into bedrooms with sexual history

MONTREAL (CP) — Beginning Thursday, Quebec gynecologists must fill out provincial government forms describing the sexual histories of patients who receive abortions, sterilizations or fertility tests.

But many doctors say they will refuse to fill the forms because they violate the confidentiality of the doctor-patient relationship.

The government's copy of the sexual history form does not conceal the patient's name, address, telephone number or hospital identification and filling out the forms would be a breach of medical ethics, doctors in several Montreal hospitals said Tuesday.

"The government is going into the bedrooms of the patients," fumed Dr. Jacques Desrosiers, chief of the family planning clinic at Maisonneuve-Rosemont Hospital.

"This is absolute nonsense. The form could fall into any hands," he added. The form does not require the patient's consent.

Social affairs department officials said Tuesday that a printing error was to blame for the disclosure of the patient's identity on the government's copy of the forms.

It is not known whether the 50,000 defective forms will be recalled or whether hospitals will be told to discard them, said family planning researcher Jules Henri Gourgues.

Doctors were asked to fill out the forms because the social affairs department wants to know what kind of patients are asking for abortions, sterilizations and fertility tests, in order to ensure "the best scientific quality" in provincial family planning clinics, Gourgues said.

Check watches: Today an extra second long

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Wednesday seems to drag a little, there's a reason: it will be longer than any other day of the year.

The U.S. National Bureau of Standards reports that a "leap second" will be added Wednesday night. It will make the minute starting at 7:59 p.m. EDT last a total of 61 seconds.

Atomic clocks used by the government timekeepers are extremely accurate, while the time kept by the sun varies slightly, sometimes gaining and sometimes losing in comparison with the clocks.

Since the sun cannot be adjusted, the clocks must be, said Dr. Sam Stein of the bureau.

Leap seconds were introduced in 1972 and have been used every year since, except 1980. The sun didn't change much that year.

Quiet southern spaceman finally gives a 'damn'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts Ken Mattingly and Henry Hartsfield, working in monk-like silence, put the space shuttle Columbia's Canadian-built mechanical arm through vigorous lifting exercises Tuesday in its most extensive test to date.

The quiet was broken once, over Australia, when Hartsfield said "damn" in his rich Alabama drawl. He had hardly spoken to the ground at all since launch on Sunday.

"It surprised me, too," said Flight Director Harold Draughton. "I don't know what that was all about."

Day 3 of Columbia's seven-day 113-orbit journey, was "absolutely the busiest day in the whole flight plan," Draughton said.

The ship was in fine shape and "we don't have any meaningful problems," he said.

Meanwhile, NASA spokesman George Hardy said the space agency has ships at the site where the shuttle's two rocket boosters sank in the Atlantic after Sunday's launch, ready to use remote television cameras for an underwater inspection.

Hardy put the loss at $36 million and said NASA has no plans to salvage the casings from their watery grave more than 1,000 metres below the surface.

PARACHUTE FAILS

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said a parachute malfunction allowed the reusable boosters to hit the water at too great a speed, causing them to sink.

Hartsfield told astronaut doctors his headaches and queasiness of Monday had disappeared after taking aspirin and an anti-nausea pill.

The astronauts got 6½ hours sleep after complaining that troubleshooting "all the little problems" had put them behind schedule.

When you're cornered, you grab their ears

PEKING (Reuters) — A crippled Chinese grandmother caught a leopard by the ears, wrestled it to the ground and then helped kill it with her bare hands, official reports said today.

Qi Deying, who can barely walk since her feet were bound from birth, was gathering herbs with her niece and grandchildren on a mountain in China's Shaanxi province when the leopard attacked her, sinking his teeth into her arm.

Qi, 67, grabbed the animal by the ears, wedged its jaw shut with her shoulder and forced it to the ground, the Shaanxi Daily said.

Their bodies locked in combat, the grandmother and the leopard rolled more than 36 metres down the mountainside, bouncing off rocks before coming to rest in a wheatfield.

Qi called to her grandchildren, who were hiding behind a boulder, to come to her aid. They tore branches off a tree and helped her beat the animal to death.

Qi, only bruised, told the paper: "Whenever you're cornered, the only way out is to fight."

Leatherheads busted for torture tactics

ROME (Reuters) — In a move that stunned fellow officers, Italian police have arrested four members of the crack anti-terrorist squad that freed U.S. Gen. James Dozier, charging them with torturing Red Brigades guerrilla suspects.

All four men arrested Tuesday were members of the Leatherheads, a squad praised by politicians and the media alike when Dozier was freed last January.

Another officer who works for Uicigos, the anti-terrorist co-ordinating command, was also arrested, sources said.

It was not clear whether the four Leatherheads were part of the squad which actually burst into Dozier's prison or whether they were involved in related activities.

Sources at Rome police headquarters said the arrests caused consternation among the police and several of the officers ordered to carry out the arrests planned a protest.

All five arrests were made on warrants from Rome magistrates investigating allegations of torture by terrorist suspects in the Dozier case.

Tuesday's arrests, coming after months of favorable publicity for the security forces, seemed certain to provoke a political uproar.

Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni denied the government supported torture and promised that any officers using it would be punished.

Judicial sources said they believed Tuesday's arrests followed statements by Antonio Savasta, the repentant leader of the Dozier kidnap gang, who is a key witness in the trial of the alleged killers of former Premier Aldo Moro.

Lunch-hour claim doesn't fool Superteller

MONTREAL (CP) — For years Ken Clark's nickname has been Clark Kent, and Tuesday the 21-year-old bank teller did something that would have done Superman's alter-ego proud.

Clark, a commerce student working for the summer in a downtown branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, coolly disarmed a man who flashed a gun and tried to rob him.

"I don't know why I did it," he said. "I was very afraid. . . terrified."

"But I just sensed that under the circumstances, this was the thing to do. If he'd had his hand on the gun, I wouldn't have done it. But he didn't and he looked weak."

Clark said he was suspicious of the would-be robber as soon as he saw him.

"His teeth were bad, he had ratty clothing and a half-beard. He came over to my cash while I was serving another customer and said he was on his lunch hour and could I serve him next. I knew this guy hadn't been on a lunch hour in a long time."

The man, in his 30s, had an old newspaper in his hand. When he got to Clark's window, he opened the paper to reveal a black gun about six inches long.

Clark would learn later it was a pellet gun.

"He asked for $10s and $20s," said the teller, who told the man he didn't have those denominations, apparently confusing him.

In that moment of distraction, Clark grabbed the newspaper and gun from the counter where the thief had lain them. There was a brief struggle for the package, and Clark won.

The man fled the bank and made good his escape by hopping into a taxi.

News-in-brief

Sorry, wrong molester

MONTREAL (CP) — A man who sexually attacked a seven-year-old girl in the city's east end Saturday is still at large, but police have appealed for calm in the neighborhood after a man wrongly suspected of the crime was set upon by vigilantes wielding baseball bats. He was not seriously hurt. The girl was molested by a man who asked her to deliver a quart of milk to an abandoned building. She was described as "badly shaken" but was to be released from hospital today.

Bedard wants police forces

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard said Tuesday he will accept no more excuses from towns of over 5,000 population that refuse to set up their own police departments. He told a police conference that provincial police, currently patrolling eight towns that ought by law to have their own forces, will not be used to plug holes. Four of the towns have reached agreement with the government on a timetable for creating their own forces, while four others continue to resist.

CIP will lay off 1,200

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian International Paper Ltd. will lay off 1,200 employees at its mill here from July 11 to 19 because of a shortage of orders. The same number of employees was laid off from June 20 to 28.

'Operation Clic-Clic'

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Transport Minister Michel Clair Tuesday announced a publicity campaign aimed to get Quebecers to buckle on their car seat belts. Sponsored by the provincial automobile insurance board and various police forces, "Operation Clic-Clic" will focus on the one of every two Quebec motorists who do not use their belts.

SSJB youth to burn constitution

MONTREAL (CP) — The youth section of the national St. Jean Baptiste Society will burn copies of the new Canadian Constitution and the federal Charter of Rights on July 1, Canada Day. Aged 18-30, the 50 members say the documents go against Quebec's interests.

Suicide-prevention centres

MONTREAL (CP) — Faced with statistics that indicate the suicide rate of young Quebecers is one of the highest in the world, a Social Affairs Department committee is exploring the possibility of establishing a chain of suicide-prevention centres.

A department study based on 1979 data found that the suicide rate in the 15 to 29 age bracket was 14.9 suicides per 100,000 population, almost triple the rate of 5.1 in 1960-64. It peaks among young adults aged 20 to 24.

Marie-France Charron, a research officer with the Social Affairs Department, said that many recent victims — particularly young men — have suffered enormous feelings of guilt, failure and loneliness following divorce or separation.

"They could not cope," she said.

Development Bank nets losses

MONTREAL (CP) — The Federal Business Development Bank has reported a loss of $75.6 million for the year ending March 31 — a loss that president Guy Lavigne attributes to failures among the bank's small business customers.

The Crown corporation provides financing assistance to small and medium-sized businesses unable to obtain help from other sources on reasonable terms and conditions.

It also offers consulting programs to new and established entrepreneurs, using the services of successful retired businessmen.

Foam insulation suit deadline

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec residents seeking damages for the effects of urea formaldehyde foam insulation have one day left to file suits that are immune from the legal rule of reasonable delay.

So far more than 2,000 Quebecers have filed suits, taking advantage of a provincial law passed last year that disallows a defence based on reasonable delay. The time limit for filing such suits expires Thursday.

Montrealers charged with murder

MONTREAL (CP) — Adrien Dubois, 39, and Camille Francoeur, 38, were charged with murder Tuesday in connection with the October, 1974, murder of Jacques McSweeney, 34.

Dubois, a member of an east-end Montreal family investigated by a Quebec government inquiry into organized crime, was arrested along with Francoeur during a police raid Monday.

'Campout of despair'

STE. THERESE, Que. (CP) — Four hundred laid-off employees of Canadian Kenworth Co. have begun a "campout of despair" to draw attention to their plight and that of 243 colleagues scheduled to be laid off next month by the struggling transport truck manufacturer. The employees are living in tents across the street from the plant. Kenworth has also laid off a third of its management personnel.

An end to illegal living

QUEBEC (CP) — Some 10,000 people illegally living on crown land in Quebec must obtain government authorization by November to stay where they are, or face possible eviction, Energy and Resources Minister Yves Duhaime announced Tuesday.

Duhaime said the government intends to put an end to illegal occupation of Quebec-owned land with an eye to encouraging the holiday resort industry.

Chretien looks for 'Kiddie porn'

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Jean Chretien and his officials admitted Tuesday they have been unable to find any "kiddie porn" in Canada.

He knows it exists, he told the Commons justice committee, but he isn't sure where.

"So much the better there is no production in Canada," the minister said as MPs tried to discover the reason behind extensive Criminal Code amendments dealing with child pornography.

"We're trying to make sure production could not start. These laws will make sure there isn't any."

Oil prices up on Thursday

OTTAWA (CP) — The wellhead price of oil increases Thursday by $2.25 a barrel to $25.75, but consumers will not see gasoline and heating oil prices rise to reflect the hike until the end of August.

Under an agreement with the government, oil companies do not pass on the wellhead increase to consumers for 60 days. That means consumers of gasoline and heating oil are spared an increase of two cents a litre, or about seven cents a gallon, until Aug. 29.

Higher premiums promised

OTTAWA (CP) — Employment Minister Lloyd Axworthy confirmed Tuesday that unemployment insurance premiums will be increased next year because of soaring jobless rates, but he refused to say by how much.

Axworthy was commenting on figures in the new federal budget which show the unemployment insurance fund with a whopping $2.2-billion deficit for 1982 instead of a $218-million shortfall predicted in the Nov. 12 budget.

Finance department officials said Monday that premiums could rise to $2.50 next year for each $100 of insurable earnings, up from $1.65 this year. Rates for employers, currently $2.31, could rise to $3 or more, the officials said.

CNR pensioners suffer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian National Railways makes hundreds of millions of dollars from its pension fund investments but benefits for pensioners have "stretched our resources" and can't be increased often, CNR officials said Tuesday.

CNR president Maurice LeClair told the Commons transport committee that company pensions are generous and among the best in the country, but some MPs said the railway's side of the story is slightly distorted.

Three weeks ago, railway pensioners told the committee many retired CN employees are forced to apply for welfare to make ends meet. They wondered why the company used contributions to invest but didn't use investment profits to improve benefits.

Lou Snider dead at 64

TORONTO (CP) — Lou Snider, 64, former member of the radio show The Happy Gang, has died of a heart attack.

Considered one of Canada's most accomplished pianists and hailed as a prodigy at the age of 10, he played as many as 15 or 20 radio programs a week with the CBC in the 1930s and 1940s.

He was best known as a member of the two-man piano team of Snider and Ross. When Murray Ross left to further his career in the United States, Snider elected to stay in Canada where, he insisted, a musician could do as well as anywhere.

Haitians' release ordered

MIAMI (Reuters) — A U.S. federal judge Tuesday ordered the release "forthwith" of approximately 2,000 Haitians who have entered the U.S. illegally since May last year and are currently held in detention centres across the country.

District Court Judge Eugene Spellman set rules under which release would take place. But the rules did not satisfy U.S. government lawyers, who said they would appeal the judge's decision. They also asked Spellman for a stay of his release order.

Spellman's rules for release included a stipulation that parolees must be photographed, finger-printed and documented by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Haitian refugees, most who reached Florida aboard rickety sailboats, are currently held at Miami's Krome Avenue detention centre and in Puerto Rico, New York, Kentucky, Texas and West Virginia.

Jury commissioner sets example

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Since 1965, city jury commissioner John Barrett has been listening to excuses why people can't serve on juries.

"I'm always telling everybody they've got to serve," says Barrett, 66. And since he took the job his name has turned up for jury duty about four times. Each time he has told his staff not to send him a summons. But now, Barrett reports, more and more people have been asking him why he doesn't serve. And so, he has decided he will — next month.

Barrett, a former state senator, says he changed his mind because "it gets harder all the time to get juries."

"I can be as fair as the next person," says Barrett.

Passersby cash in on robbery

NEW YORK (AP) — Passersby scooped up loose bills when a suspected bank robber dropped a bag of cash while fleeing Monday, police said.

The suspect was captured, but two accomplices and several passersby got away with $3,500, police said.

Police said three people robbed the Manufacturers Hanover Trust branch Monday of $7,000. Two of them escaped in a car, while the third dropped the money while running down the street.

Stowaway bites pilot

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A pilot from Massachusetts grabbed for a control lever as he tried to land his private plane in central Sweden on the weekend and found a stowaway snake that bit him, press reports said today.

They gave this account: Sven-Gunnar Myrbeck, 61, returning to Sweden with three friends for a vacation, felt something coiling around his hand as he manoeuvred his plane for a landing approach to the town of Sundsvall.

He quickly pulled his hand back and tried to shake off what turned out to be a snake. But before he managed to get rid of the wildly-twisting reptile, the snake bit his hand.

Myrbeck landed and went to the Sundsvall hospital with the snake in a plastic bag. Doctors found no symptoms of poisoning and released him after 24 hours of observation.

The reports said the snake was of a species not found in Sweden and had probably slipped on board in the U.S. The type of species was not reported.

The identities of Myrbeck's three passengers were not known.

Que. worst hit by acid rain

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Canada urged the United States on Tuesday to step up efforts to combat acid rain and not to let the pollution issue be sidetracked by economic concerns.

Senator Bud Olson, minister of state for economic development attending an environment ministers' conference in the Swedish capital, said the United States has shown good will about the problem but wants to conduct more research than Canada does before implementing concrete and expensive anti-pollution measures.

Land and lakes in Canada and the United States have been poisoned by wind-blown sulphur and nitrogen oxides, from burnt fossil fuels, falling as acids in the rain.

The worst hit area is Quebec, where 60 per cent of sulphur in the air originates in the United States, Canadian officials said.

Quebec Environment Minister Marcel Leger said he is concerned the Reagan administration is concentrating on economic problems at the expense of the environment.

The Stockholm meeting has drawn representatives from 33 countries to study the acid rain question around the world.

Soviet-European circuits cut

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union will drastically reduce its telephone circuits to a number of western European countries on July 1, western sources said Tuesday.

A European diplomat in Moscow, who declined to be identified, branded the Soviet move a "drastic limitation on the flow of communication" and declared, "we cannot accept this without doing something."

He did not specify what retaliatory steps were being contemplated.

Swiss Banks crack down

ZURICH (Reuters) — Switzerland's banks Tuesday tightened rules aimed at preventing the country's banking secrecy law from being abused for the illegal flight of capital, tax evasion or "laundering" of criminal funds.

For the first time, banks will check the identity of customers seeking to carry out cash transactions worth more than $235,000. The same rule will apply to clients opening most types of accounts or renting safes.

The new convention between the Swiss National Bank and the Swiss Bankers' Association replaces a 917 version which expires this week.

Worst flood in 30 years

PEKING (AP) — Floods set off by 11 days of heavy rain killed 75 people, wrecked 18,604 houses and flooded about 80,000 hectares of rice fields in southeast China's Fujian province, a provincial newspaper reports.

Parts of Jianyang prefecture in northern Fujian had up to 58 centimetres of rain in that period, the Fujian Daily reported, and 44 per cent of its families were affected.

Recent issues of the paper, seen in Peking on Tuesday, said the flooding was the worst in 30 years.

British rail drivers to strike

LONDON (Reuters) — British Rail's locomotive drivers union called a countrywide strike Tuesday night, just as a two-day stoppage by other railway employees was about to end.

A spokesman for the drivers' union, — the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen — said the strike would begin Sunday.

Slave girls rescued in Jakarta

JAKARTA (AP) — Indonesian police Tuesday announced the rescue of 33 young girls from two factories where they were slaves.

Police spokesman Col. Hindarto said the girls, aged 10 to 13, were recruited from Central Java under false promises that they would get salaries of about $24 a month in the Indonesian capital.

Lost journalists recovered

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — A military spokesman said six journalists were found "safe and sound" Tuesday, a day after they disappeared near the scene of a firefight north of the capital between guerrillas and army forces.

"They were rescued by elements of the armed forces," said the spokesman, Col. Marco Auerelio Gonzalez. He declined to give details.

The journalists, all working for foreign news media, did not return to their vehicles after they apparently fled the scene of the fight under heavy army fire near Suchitoto, 50 kilometres north of San Salvador.

ago from May 1 to July 1 was to foil the festive federalists. July 1, they point out, comes only a week after St-Jean-Baptiste Day, and while in Champlain's day St. Jean was the patron saint of all Canadians, Quebec has recently claimed the holiday more and more as its own.

"They just want to save all the fun for June 24," said one local maple-leaf wag. "They know people can't have a good time while they are moving furniture."

"Maybe they just want to balance gasoline and beer sales off," said another. "It's probably another of those constitutional disagreements."

At sunrise Thursday, citizens of St. John's, Nfld., will be singing O Canada on Signal Hill.

And in the Yukon and Northwest Territories, where the sun barely sets this time of year, there will be displays of special brilliance-enhanced fireworks to mark the country's 115th birthday.

In the ensuing hours, Canadians will observe their national holiday with a variety of parades, concerts and sports events. Nickel ice cream cones and 10-cent hot dogs will be available as well as pancake breakfasts, turkey lunches, salmon barbecues, fish fries and marshmallow roasts.

There will be free domestic caviar, thinly spread on crackers, at — where else? — Sturgeon Falls, Ont. Traditional French dishes will be served at St. Boniface, Man. And you can pick up a slice of birthday cake anywhere from St. John's to Chilliwack, B.C.

Fireworks exploded prematurely at Yellowknife, N.W.T., where the chamber of commerce and other citizens launched a rocket at city council for voting to accept a $25,000 grant from Ottawa to finance the pyrotechnical display.

A year ago, council received congratulatory letters from all over the country when it turned down a federal offer of $75,000 on the grounds that it was a waste of taxpayers' money to set off fireworks in broad daylight.

CHANGED THEIR MINDS

Acting Mayor Don Sian said the city fathers changed their minds this year because the sum was smaller and they didn't want to deprive residents of the display two years in a row.

Vicki Brown, one of the dissenters, protested that the money "equals the ice-time budget of our figure skaters for an entire year or the budget for our young hockey players for almost a season."

Prime Minister Trudeau uses his July 1 message to urge Canadians to cooperate in the battle against inflation and high unemployment.

The celebrations of Canada's 115th birthday can help bring Canadians closer together and "strengthen our resolve to face (the) future with unity and confidence," Trudeau said in a statement Tuesday.

"Even when times are tough... it is good to celebrate because by doing so we come closer together in our appreciation of each other."

That closeness and co-operation can be applied to the present economic problems, he said.

Oh yes, it will still be Dominion Day. The federal government had planned to whisk a bill through Parliament last week changing the name to Canada Day. But it didn't get passed because Progressive Conservative MPs walked out of the House during a procedural hassle over a vote on spending estimates.

Next year, maybe.

Lennoxville CIL outlet closes 'to reduce loans'

By Bobby Fisher

LENNOXVILLE — At a time when everything is looking bleak, the Lennoxville area has been hit with just what it doesn't need — another business closure.

This time it will be the CIL farm supply outlet. The 15-year-old business is closing its doors today because of what company officials term in a newsletter to employees as "a need to reduce loans by selling all available assets."

The closure of the CIL outlet means six full-time and three part-time people will be unemployed.

Jean Marie Lefebvre, a 28-year-old salesman who has been working at CIL for two and a half years, says he learned about the closure in mid-April. "We knew about it (the closure) in mid-April but we were not told officially until May 22. We received a letter from the company on June 15 telling us exactly what was happening."

Lefebvre, a Compton resident and father of one, says he will be finding other employment. "I'm lucky because my father has business similar to this and I can work for him." "Most of the part-time people will go on unemployment for the summer," he added.

The CIL warehouse has been one of the largest sellers of pesticides and its related products in the area. "The farmers will probably suffer because we are one of the biggest furnishers of pesticide," Lefebvre says. "There are not a lot of people who know how to use them."

Most customers will now head for the co-op to buy their agricultural needs but Lefebvre says he cannot figure why the outlet is being closed. "I find it strange that they are closing because, if they were to look in the books, they would see that we made money here." The CIL warehouse sold some 6,000 tons of fertilizer this year up from last year's total of 5,000 tons and almost triple the figures of a few years ago.

The Lennoxville company did an estimated $1 million in sales last year.

Farmers from Richmond to Stanstead to Weedon buy from CIL. With the Lennoxville closure, Lefebvre says he thinks the nearest dealership will be in Farnham or Victoriaville, making the trek quite long for those who continue using these products.

Lefebvre says there are small distributors in the area that buy both from the Lennoxville outlet and from the main offices in McMasterville or switch products.

One possible solution to the dilemma facing the employees of the company is the possibility of manager Gilles Cloutier buying the entire operations and continuing as a private business. Lefebvre says Cloutier has been thinking about this but has not decided yet. Cloutier was out of town yesterday and could not be reached for comment.

With estimates of the stock value at the Lennoxville branch roughly $100,000 Lefebvre says this year was the best year since CIL started in Lennoxville. The only ones who will really profit from this closure are our competitors," says Lefebvre.

With the closing of the CIL agricultural suppliers today the only ones who stand to profit are CIL's competitors. In this case, the beneficiaries of the shutdown are the people at the Co-operative Agricole in Lennoxville. Employees over there were not saying anything about the CIL closure, however. Jean Pierre Couombe, manager of the fertilizer warehouse would only say that it would give his company some more sales but would not estimate how much more.

Our local museums are gearing up for the summer, and in addition to their regular displays have some very interesting programmes planned. You can find out what they have lined up by calling or writing to the individual museum.

The Missisquoi Museum in Stanbridge East has on display over 10,000 items of Canadiana located in Hodge's General Store, Bill's Barn and the beautiful and historic Cornell Mill. The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily until October.

The Compton County Historical and Museum Society has begun its season as well. Located in Eaton Corner, the museum consists of two buildings - the former Congregational Church and the old Academy - which have been declared historic sites by the provincial government. In addition to its collection of family histories and archival documents, the museum features household wares and furnishings and a collection of antique farm implements. The museum is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to noon and from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The Brome County Museum, on Lakeside Road in Knowlton, houses its collection in four separate buildings. The museum is already open for the season, weekdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. This is a large museum with thousands of interesting items from Brome County's past.

The Stanstead County Historical Society operates two museums - the Barn Museum in Stanstead and the Colby-Curtis Museum in Beebe. The Barn Museum has a large collection of wooden items, including school and church furnishings and a blacksmith shop. The Colby-Curtis Museum contains the society's archival material as well as home furnishings, a doll collection and a military display.

The Richmond County Historical Society Museum at Melbourn is open Wednesday to Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. all summer. In addition to their usual displays, which include household furnishings and costumes, the museum will be presenting several special programmes over the summer. From July 7 to 11, there will be a display of quilts and quilting; during the month of August, a collection of cards of all types will be the focus, and on August 15, the Eastern Townships Vintage Auto Club will have their cars at the museum.

The Lennoxville Ascot Museum, in the old post office at Lennoxville, is open Wednesdays and Sundays from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Their collection concentrates on antique china and dinnerware, and they also have a good collection of archival material.

When your out-of-province summer visitors arrive, remember to show off our very fine museums. But don't wait for company before dropping by. The museums are working hard to preserve our heritage and culture and would love to have your support.

hygienists in all of Quebec's schools. Under the government's new system, only some procedures, and only some teeth, will be covered.

In reference to a recent plan to penalize graduating doctors who choose to practice in areas the government deems already adequately serviced by the medical profession, Johnson said the plan would "at least guarantee work for doctors for three years," and would encourage young doctors to settle in out-lying areas where medical services are scarce. Under this plan doctors who choose to practice in areas where the government feels they are needed would be paid more than the standard rate for their services. Those who choose the cities will be paid significantly less for three years.

Johnson said Quebec, like Ontario, is graduating doctors at a rate that will guarantee the province will have far more than it will need in only 10 years.

"Pretty soon a family will consist of a father, a mother, a child, and a doctor," he said.

Johnson also admitted the government had recently considered closing down the medical centre of the University of Sherbrooke, but had been convinced by St. Francis MNA Real Rancourt, and Sherbrooke MNA and Revenue Minister Raynald Frechette that the CHUS served a valuable regional function, and would not be closed down "for at least a few more years." He emphasized, however, that the CHUS would have to continue to maintain a "significant regional importance" in order to guarantee its existence.

Johnson also announced government allocations of more than $800,000 to buy the Foyer Sacre-Coeur in Magog from the Sisters of Charity of the Sacred Heart, and additional funds of around $1 million to refurbish the rest home.

He also announced additional funds of $100,000 were being made to complete renovations at La Providence hospital, increasing the project's budget to $300,000.

Woman held in stabbing

SHERBROOKE (McD) — Police have charged a 34-year-old mother of five with assault with intent to cause bodily harm, following a stabbing incident at the Voyageur bus terminus on Monday night.

Dalylas Carte, a native of France, and a former Sherbrooke resident, was apparently boarding a bus to Montreal, when the victim, her estranged husband, was suddenly stabbed in the neck with a pen-knife.

Better off

Beginning tomorrow, Quebec gynecologists will be asked to fill out "sexual history" forms for anyone receiving an abortion, sterilization or a fertility test. The doctors are justifiably irate, since someone in the Social Affairs Ministry neglected to remove the section indicating the patient's name, address and phone number. The problem thus becomes one of doctor-patient confidentiality, since anyone with access to the forms would automatically have access to the patient's sexual past.

Knowing the average civil servant's inability to keep a secret — just think of all the budget leaks, Pornobec etc. — both patients and doctors can be forgiven for their alarm.

A spokesman for the ministry claims it is all a mistake and the section identifying the patient should never have appeared on the form in the first place. One presumes new forms are on order and once they arrive that will be that.

Unfortunately the creation of new forms doesn't solve the problem. The information that the government seeks is not of a voluntary nature since the patient's consent is not required. The ministry defends the forms on the basis that knowledge of the type of patient requiring abortions, sterilizations and fertility tests, will aid it in ensuring "the best scientific quality" in provincial family planning clinics.

It is not completely clear what the connection between a patient's sexual history and the quality of health care is. However, what is apparent is that the government is once again poking its nose into an area where it has no business and is unlikely to receive the co-operation of its citizens.

Since for most human beings the sexual aspect of their life is a matter of deep personal privacy, the government is unlikely to receive anything resembling the complete truth. Thus, any data collected will be less than adequate on which to base "scientific" conclusions. What will remain however, is another headache for already overworked gynecologists, more busy work for the Social Affairs bureaucrats and another addition to our tax bill.

The essential problem with the Ministry of Social Affairs, which is complaining of budget cutbacks and a shortage of staff, appears to be just the opposite — too much time on their hands. If they would spend more time doing what is necessary and less time creating new headaches we would all be better off.

Israelis beat and kill prisoners — doctor

OTTAWA (CP) — Chris Giannou, a Toronto-born doctor just returned from Lebanon, says he saw Israeli guards beat many prisoners and even kill four in a detention centre in Lebanon during the current conflict.

Challenging Israeli authorities, he told reporters Tuesday he is ready to undergo any test to prove his claims of widespread maltreatment of prisoners during the invasion. He urged Israeli authorities to invite outside observers to investigate.

Giannou was arrested by the Israelis while serving in a Sidon hospital, ostensibly on suspicion of pro-Palestinian sympathies. He and two Norwegians picked up with him were not badly treated, he said, but Africans, Asians and Arabs were "beaten most savagely."

Some of the Israeli captors objected to the beatings, he said, but other guards reacted to cries for water by punching, slapping, or even striking people with metal-studded ropes.

Giannou said he was "sympathetic to the plight of the Palestinian people" before the early June invasion of Lebanon. But he also believes the Israeli nation has rights and is a "historic fact."

Canada should take a more even-handed approach to the region to make sure there is a genuine peace settlement, said the young surgeon.

Giannou will be submitting a report to the International Red Cross in Geneva on his experience and expects the Red Cross will investigate.

Some of the Israeli invaders behaved admirably, he said, even helping him to evacuate patients from hospital. But he also saw civilians blasted by anti-personnel cluster bombs and whole buildings wiped out. He said he saw Israeli troops allow women and children to return to refugee camps and then resume shelling of the camps.

HERD OF PRISONERS
Israeli guards herded 500 to 600 people into a yard in Sidon in 35-degree heat, allowing each person three glasses of water a day and limited food, Giannou said.

Under these conditions, the crowd got ugly on occasion and some people shouted for water or for permission to relieve themselves against a wall.

Reacting to this, some guards beat the prisoners, killing four before his eyes, said Giannou.

Of the four, "one was among a group of four or five being beaten at the same time." Giannou was asked to examine one man who had been beaten and allowed to lie in the sun for hours — the man was dead.

He also saw an Iraqi surgeon being beaten in violation of the international rules of war, he said.

"It isn't an agreeable sight, as a surgeon, to watch a fellow surgeon being beaten savagely in the view of 600 prisoners."

There are a thousand prisoners in an Israeli prison in Megiddo in northern Israel, he said, and they should be examined by outside observers.

Giannou spent four days in a Lebanese detention camp before being taken for an additional four days to an Israeli prison. No charges were laid against him, he said.

Weapons men haven't figured freeze tactics yet

By Al Colletti

NEW YORK (CP) — The idea of a nuclear-weapons freeze being pushed by peace groups, politicians and church hierarchies worries Western defence specialists.

As yet, they have found no "battle" plan to combat a growing Western peace movement that crosses political lines from the radical left to right-wing conservatives.

Freezing both Soviet and U.S. nuclear-weapon development is a key element of the peace movement's anti-nuclear campaign.

In Congress, opposition Democrats are calling for a nuclear freeze at present levels, followed by negotiated reductions.

The House of Representatives foreign affairs committee voted for such a resolution after it failed in the Senate.

The freeze probably will become part of the Democratic platform in November's congressional and the 1984 presidential elections.

BATTLE BEGINS

One of its staunchest supporters is Senator Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, already a favorite in the Democratic presidential sweepstakes.

The political battle lines for 1984 already are being drawn with President Reagan, who probably will run again, opposed to any freeze that gives Moscow an edge in Europe.

The U.S. military establishment already is out taking the anti-nuclear pulse, hoping to generate a publicity campaign to counter it.

Some defence specialists concede that the military posturing and anti-Soviet rhetoric of Reagan and his surrogates served only to raise public awareness of the deadly potential of nuclear war.

Maurice Tugwell, a Canadian authority on world conflict, says that while a nuclear freeze is a most attractive option, it has several flaws.

The major flaw is that in Europe the Soviets have deployed a whole new generation of nuclear weapons for European use and they're obviously very anxious that NATO should not deploy an equivalent generation of weapons.

NATO's response has been the so-called zero option, first proposed by Reagan. NATO would not deploy new Pershing and cruise missiles in 1983 if Moscow withdraws its SS-20s, which now number about 300.

HARMFUL TO NATO

"The zero option is a great idea," says Tugwell, director of the Centre for Conflict Studies at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton.

But in an interview he warned that the nuclear freeze, if applied by the United States, would also cover Europe since the weapons due to be deployed there are American.

"It would have the effect of consolidating the current Soviet lead at the European level of nuclear power. That is the real danger."

"I'm not too worried about the alleged strategic imbalance. I think that both sides could probably live with what they've got."

He said that perhaps the freeze proposal would have been more acceptable to military planners if proponents had made a deliberate exception to Europe.

"If they had backed the zero option and the freeze together they might have been on to something.

"But by backing a freeze which undermines the zero option, they are guilty of an oversimplistic and rather dangerously destabilizing proposal."

New negotiations on strategic nuclear arms reduction started between the United States and the Soviet Union on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, talks on reduction of intermediate nuclear weapons in Europe seem to be getting nowhere.

Tugwell believes the intermediate weapons talks will have to be swallowed up by the main strategic arms reduction talks, or START.

He hopes any new START agreement will take into account the theatre level of nuclear weapons in Europe, something the first and the second strategic arms limitation talks didn't do.

Tugwell supports Prime Minister Trudeau's call for a new treaty to keep warfare from outer space.

From other papers... The Budget:

By The Canadian Press

Following is a selection of excerpts from editorials in Canadian newspapers concerning the federal budget presented Monday night by Finance Minister Allan MacEachen:

Toronto Globe and Mail (Thomson): The budget is frightening. The deficit has gone higher than anybody expected — from $10.5 billion in November to $19.6 billion. The basic policies which dismayed investors and savers in the National Energy Plan and the November budget are chiefly "postponed" or "will be reviewed;" they are not ended.

The finance minister was highly political in his speech. He tried to sound generous, but he is taking much more than he is giving. He made a great thing of government restraints. He did his best to conceal a huge tax increase that will go on mounting year after year. He promises aid to homeowners, small businessmen, farmers, fishermen, to investors, to borrowers. Before they cheer, they had better deduct what he is taking away.

This is a budget which says that the government has no notion of the economic crisis Canada faces, is slapping plaster on some political cracks, and has reached out for a gigantic tax grab.

Winnipeg Free Press

Finance Minister Allan MacEachen opened his budget speech with a litany of failure. . . . The federal government's deficit has almost doubled to $19.6 billion; cash requirements have almost tripled to $17.1 billion.

The question now is whether Mr. MacEachen's budget contains enough confidence-building ingredients to counteract those devastating figures. The answer from investors, from trade unionists, from businessmen large and small and from Canadians in all walks of life will almost certainly be that it does not.

The minister shuffled around his taxes and spending to aim some money at desperately weak areas of the economy without making his deficit any larger than it is.

There is no reason to believe, however, the wage restraint in the public sector will be picked up in the private. There is no reason to believe the aim of bringing inflation down to six per cent will be achieved within the next two years. There is no reason to believe the trimming of the wings of FIRA, along with the failure to touch the National Energy Program, will change Canada's image abroad as a lousy place to invest. There is every reason to believe Mr. MacEachen's initiatives will be regarded by ordinary citizens and investors as inadequate to the crisis in which Canada finds itself.

Moncton Transcript: There are three glaring omissions in the latest MacEachen budget: no easing of the Bank of Canada's tight money policy, no steps to alleviate cash-flow problems caused by high interest rates and no indication of real restraint on the part of the government by means of ruthless cuts in government programs. . . .

The most worrying aspect is the deficit. . . . A deficit of $19.6 billion. . . will place tremendous demands on the money market. . . will ensure that interest rates will remain high. And it is those devastating interest rates that are destroying Canadians, collectively and individually.

Ottawa Citizen: Hard as it is to believe, Allan MacEachen has brought down a second socially unjust, economically unproductive, inflationary, recessionary and self-defeating budget.

The most alarming immediate problem, which the finance minister virtually ignored, is the level of interest rates in this country. . . This country cannot recover unless interest rates fall, but the government does not have the political backbone to bring in the kind of controls that will force interest rates lower.

This latest budget. . . is still hopelessly inadequate for the conditions that exist now.

Indeed, so is the present government.

Saint John Times-Globe: On Monday night we witnessed a beleaguered and desperate man calling for a sharing of the problem — a sharing of what little there is to be shared. He appealed for solidarity and sharing the Canadian way. That may once have been the Canadian way, but it is not a lifestyle that is known to millions of Canadians who have grown to maturity in a society where they have been encouraged to seek more while doing less. Tragically, Allan MacEachen might just as well have been speaking a foreign language when he issued his appeal for voluntary restraint by Canadian workers. . . . Barring a miracle, both Mr. MacEachen and Mr. Trudeau are nearing the end of their political careers — but we may well have to live with them for the next two years. We may even have to live with Mr. MacEachen's latest gamble because the alternative — the threat that Mr. MacEachen dropped on us Monday night — that of a controlled economy, is hardly an inviting option.

Does William really want to know?

The Canadian Press

The night light glowed in the darkness of the royal nursery. The little Prince William of Wales stirred.

"He'll have to be told," whispered the royal nanny.

"Aye, he will — but there's plenty of time for that," murmured the lady of the bedchamber.

But they knew the time would come. One day, the little tyke would cast aloft those innocent, cornflower-blue eyes and inquire why it was that he would, some day, be known as King William V. "Who were the other IV?" he would hiss.

And they would have to tell him:

William I: Born in 1027 or 1028 or thereabouts. Bastard son from a liaison between Robert the Devil, duke of Normandy, and a tanner's daughter. He became king in 1066, following a series of intrigues ending when King Harold took an arrow in the eye at the Battle of Hastings.

A tall, corpulent, moustached man, he turned out four sons — including future kings William II and Henry I — and, in the slipshod bookkeeping of the day, "five or six daughters."

William II: Son of the above. One older brother was disinherited and the other was given Normandy. He comes down to us as unattractive, bull-knocked, fat and awkward, and came to a sticky end via an arrow loosed by an unknown hand in the New Forest.

HATED BY CATHOLICS

William III: Prince of Orange, and the "King Billy" revered by Protestants and hated by Catholics in Northern Ireland. He came along in the late 1600s and ended up not only as William III of England but also William II of Scotland.

A military man, he was renowned for "making the best of his defeats." History is kind. During his time, the Bill of Rights and the Act of Settlement went through. Freedom of the press was proclaimed and the Bank of England established — much of all this to his profound disinterest, however.

William IV: Another 100 years were to flit by between Williams. This one was the son of George III — who lost the 13 American colonies by revolution. This William, we read, "amused or revenged" himself on his father by defending the extravagances of the Prince of Wales, speaking out on the Divorce Bill and vehemently opposing the abolition of slavery.

He lived for 20 years with an actress named Mrs. Jordan. Historians sum him up as a "genial, frank, warm-hearted man, but a blundering, though well-intentioned, prince." He was succeeded by a niece, Queen Victoria.

There have been other Williams in other realms, of course — William the Bad of Sicily, for instance; Kaiser Bill of Germany. . . .

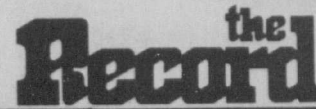

The nanny tucked a tiny arm beneath the royal coverlet.

"I wonder which one he'll take after?"

The lady of the bedchamber smiled in the gloom.

"At this stage? I should hope it would be William, count of Nassau and another prince of Orange, born at the castle of Dillenburg on April 24, 1533. They called him William the Silent."

Farm and Business

Quebec Young Farmers add new field staff to province-wide team

All nine QYF clubs in the Townships are extremely active. To assist the clubs in their many activities are, left to right: Angus MacKinnon, fieldman; Bruce Barr, QYF Vice-President;

Nora Clancy, QYF Secretary Manager; Tim Beland, Fieldman; Shelly Ross, Fieldman; and QYF Provincial President, Neil Burns.

Tim Beland, of Waterloo, and Shelly Ross, of St. Denis de Brompton, join Angus MacKinnon, of Coaticook, as the Quebec Young Farmers fieldmen for the Eastern Townships. Tim will be working with the Brome, Cowansville, and Waterloo clubs, while the Sherbrooke, Island Brook, Sawyerville, Hatley, Lennoxville, and Richmond clubs will be Angus and Shelly's responsibilities.

Along with all the farm work to be done, it is during the summer that all the local Quebec Young Farmers' clubs are the busiest. There are animals to prepare, ice cream to be scooped and travelling to be done.

To assist the local club members with the variety of activities, the Quebec Young Farmers have hired some senior QYF members in all areas as fieldmen. The fieldman position began in 1975 when the provincial staff realized they needed more contact with the local clubs in order to keep an efficient communication network across the province. The role of a fieldman is to be the liaison between the local QYF clubs in his-her area and the provincial office, keeping both levels informed of all activities. The fieldmen attend as many local club meetings and activities as possible, and participate in training workshops and meetings, offered through the provincial office, to insure good communication. Although hired through the provincial office, the true boss of the fieldman is the local clubs, as he is there to assist them in whatever way he can. Many fieldmen have developed talents as chauffeurs, ice-cream scoopers and journalists.

Along with the activities in their areas, the fieldmen will be working very closely with QYF Secretary Manager, Nora Clancy, in the administration of the QYF provincial activities, such as the Calf Rally to be held in Lachute (July 16 to 18), a junior camp (July 27 to 28), QYF night at the Piggery Theatre (July 14), and a judging competition.

The fieldman is the QYF representative in the community. If you would like more information about Young Farmers' clubs in your areas, or would like to support their activities, please contact:

Blimp comeback planned for moving heavy forest loads to mill

VANCOUVER (CP) — The stately airships that sailed the skies at the turn of the century are being revived by transportation firms looking for a fuel-efficient vessel to move large loads over difficult terrain.

Lumber firms with inaccessible timber, exploration companies moving heavy equipment to oil rigs and construction firms with large loads to move across the hinterland have all looked to the sky for an answer.

They think they have found one in the melding of airship and helicopter technology to produce a vessel with vertical take off and landing capacity that can lift loads of up to 100 tonnes.

Roland McFarlane, an Alberta government official with a keen interest in airships, says these ships take over where helicopters leave off in terms of transporting heavy loads.

McFarlane, who works for the Alberta Ministry of Transport, was invited to chair a United Nations Industrial Development Organization conference last year in Vienna on the use of lighter-than-air ships.

He said in a telephone interview he was pleased and surprised to see the old Zeppelin Co. of Germany at the conference with an updated design and presentation. Zeppelin built 134 rigid-frame dirigibles at the turn of the century, including the largest the world has ever seen.

RESEARCH CONTINUING

Britain and Belgium also are co-operating on an airship project under Airship Industries, says McFarlane and research is being conducted for the U.S. government by Piasecki Aircraft Corp. in Lakehurst, N.J.

Five forest firms in B.C. are jointly funding research into an airship known as the Cyclocrane in Tillamook, Ore., and Van Dusen Development Corp. of Ottawa has developed a vessel that looks like it flew straight out of the pages of a science-fiction novel.

The Cyclocrane, Piasecki and Goodyear models all use various combinations of balloon and helicopter technology.

Cyclocrane inventor Art Crimmins said his finished airship will have a lifting capacity of about 15 tonnes and a balloon volume of 9,400 cubic metres. The largest helicopter available lifts about 11 tonnes with only a minimal fuel load.

The forest companies need the Cyclocrane to harvest timber on mountainsides or in environmentally sensitive areas.

In a telephone interview from Tillamook, Crimmins said the airship can lift twice the load of a helicopter at one quarter the cost. His company, Aerolift Inc., has completed a prototype with a lifting capacity of two tonnes which will be tested later this summer.

HANGARS EXIST

Although the research is funded by Canadian forest companies, it is being conducted in Tillamook because of the availability of two massive hangars built during the Second World War for army surveillance blimps.

Crimmins said the technology to build the ship has existed for 30 years, but engineers have been more interested in space flight than balloon development.

McFarlane says the increase in fuel costs in the last five to 10 years has driven engineers back to the drawing board.

He said his government has held talks with Goodyear and plans talks later this summer with Zeppelin on the possibility of producing airships in the province.

It is still too early to tell whether the Cyclocrane or the Van Dusen model is viable, he said.

BREAKING NEW GROUND

Fred Ferguson, inventor and developer of the Van Dusen craft, says he is breaking new ground by using an aerodynamic principle called the Magnus Effect.

Ferguson's finished airship will be a 55-metre sphere with a gondola slung from its horizontal axis. It has been described as a manta ray carrying a basketball on its back.

The helium-filled balloon, with a volume of 370,000 cubic metres, will rotate, taking advantage of the Magnus Effect which provides additional lift to a spinning object. This is the same principle used in golf balls or baseballs.

Ferguson's model will have a lifting capacity of about 73 tonnes, somewhat larger than the Cyclocrane and about the same capacity as the heavy-lift airship developed by Goodyear.

COMPLETED CONSTRUCTION

He has completed construction and testing of a six-metre model and expects to manufacture his first full-size model within 2½ years.

In a telephone interview from Ottawa, Ferguson said he does not anticipate any problem in marketing his airship, despite the international competition. He said a recent NASA survey showed the worldwide demand for such vessels in logging alone was 1,000.

McFarlane said an informal survey he saw estimated world demand at 2,000. And with fuel costs still escalating, more companies would turn to a more fuel-efficient means of transportation.

Paul Turk, a spokesman for Goodyear in Akron, Ohio, said there was no comparison between the fuel efficiency of an airship and a conventional aircraft.

Nature hiker taking the long route north

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — On the Arctic's barrens or windswept glaciers "you can't pretend you're something you're not," says Maggie Jones.

Jones, a 44-year-old professor of urban planning at Toronto's Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, is in transit at Frobisher Bay's airport, more than 2,000 kilometres from her desk and heading 960 kilometres farther north.

Pond Inlet, an Inuit hamlet on the northern coast of Baffin Island, is her next stop before trekking into the island's hinterland in search of a hiking route.

Jones leads backpacking trips for Canadian Nature Tours, an offshoot of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists and the Canadian Nature Federation. She says part of her two-week spring "holiday" will be spent searching out a route from Pond Inlet across the Borden Peninsula to Arctic Bay.

At Pond Inlet, the glaciers come right down to sea and the tides carve fabulous ice sculptures, says Jones. Nearby is the Bylot Island bird sanctuary, which teems with snow geese in the spring. The area's waters are home for beluga whales, narwhal and seals. Inland, polar bears, Arctic hares and fox roam the snowcaps or tundra.

Jones also raves about Baffin Island's Auyuittuq National Park, the setting for "magnificent glacial scenery, many beautiful mountains, including flat-topped Mount Asgard, arctic flowers and huge moraines."

This summer, Jones expects to lead 11 men across the peninsula. On her previous trip, most of the backpackers were teachers above the age of 35. "I guess those are the ones who can afford it."

For these nature lovers, mountaineers or those just interested in getting away from civilization, the midsummer excursion will cost just over $1,000 from Frobisher. That includes all meals, accommodation — "which, of course, is a tent" — and equipment provided by Toronto-based Canadian Nature Tours. Return regular air fare from Montreal to Frobisher is $686 via Nordair.

Jones warns that Arctic hiking isn't for everyone.

"Anyone who goes up there must be really prepared, in a sense, for the worst. You must take good equipment and know what you're doing, you must understand that in temperatures like this, 5 C., this is the time when you're most likely to get hyperthermia (heat prostration)."

The condition may result from over-exertion while wearing warm clothing and carrying a heavy pack in the relatively mild temperatures.

STORMS 'DON'T STICK'

Sudden summer snowstorms "don't usually stick," says Jones, "but you have to know how to put up a tent for shelter in a hurry when that sort of thing happens."

This summer, Jones's group should cover between eight and 13 kilometres a day. "But you're constantly going up and down moraines and moraines are really difficult."

Asked what brings her back to the rugged terrain and apparent dangers of northern hiking, Jones replied:

"I feel comfortable because there are very few choices that have to be made. You have everything that you need on your back and that's all that you need. It's a totally different kind of pressure or stress. You have to be aware of what you're doing."

"There is no pretending up here. You can't pretend you're something you're not. You are absolutely nothing and you are everything."

"If you use your head and know what you're doing there's an awful lot of satisfaction in living WITH the environment and being a part of it rather than apart from it."

Bell Canada cries foul

over rate-increase limit

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada's application for increases of up to 100 per cent for some telephone services should be judged on its merit and not be subject to a six-per-cent ceiling as suggested in the federal budget, the company says.

The utility, serving Ontario, Quebec and the Northwest Territories, sent its application to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission just hours before Finance Minister Allan MacEachen told the Commons Monday he was asking federal agencies to apply a six-per-cent annual ceiling on price increases which they regulate.

MacEachen said the agencies could grant higher increases in "exceptional circumstances" — and that's the loophole the utility will try to use during public hearings beginning Oct. 26.

"There will be circumstances requiring special treatment," said company spokesman David Orr. He said Bell has no control over major cost increases, such as postage stamps for the firm's seven million monthly bills, gasoline to run its fleet of 11,300 trucks and interest rate payments on its debt.

The utility wants to charge individuals a maximum $66 for a one-time installation fee, double the current price, while business subscribers would pay a maximum $117.50, up from $80.

TALK IT OVER

said the commission is assessing the implications of the budget.

The commission, which also regulates B.C. Telephone rates, has historically granted Bell about 80 per cent of what the utility has asked for.

If approved without change, Bell's 13th application since 1969 would mean customers would pay about 25 per cent more for basic monthly phone service and businesses would pay an additional 35 per cent.

And long-distance addicts would be stuck with an arbitrary connection charge of $1 to $2 for station-to-station calls, depending on the distance, or a flat $5.50 for person-to-person calls.

Both types of calls would be subject to time charges ranging from 17 cents to 65 cents a minute.

Finally, the utility asked for permission to replace its existing system of weekend discounts on long-distance calls with a single discount rate of 60 per cent on all such calls placed between 11 p.m. Friday and 6 p.m. Sunday.

Company president James Thackray said in a statement Monday Bell needs the increases because inflation is pushing up costs while economic conditions are weakening the demand for telecommunications services.

The new rates would raise Bell's 1983 revenues by 15.1 per cent, or $709 million, and give the company a rate of return on average common equity of 17 per cent, Thackray said.

BISHOP'S UNIVERSITY
ANNOUNCES YEAR NINE OF Field Biology

July 5 - August 14, 1982

Objective: Participants in this program will acquire a broad experience in the methods of field study and will gain familiarity with a diverse cross-section of the plants and animals of eastern Canada. The program is suitable for: (1) Biology undergraduates or graduates of any university who would like to develop their facility in field biology; (2) Quebec second year CEGEP students who have decided to study biology at university; (3) High school teachers who have not done intensive field work in biology.

Location: Bishop's University, situated 100 miles east of Montreal in the heart of the Eastern Townships of southern Quebec, affords a summer biological station atmosphere coupled with the facilities of spacious well-equipped laboratories. The Eastern Townships is a region of great physical diversity which permits the study of a wide range of distinctive habitats.

Program: The programme will be intensive and full time, requiring five full days per week, which will be occupied by class field trips with supporting lecture and laboratory work. Physical aspects of the environment relating to the biota will be studied as well as the flora and fauna. Areas of instruction will include aspects of physical geography, limnology, taxonomy and vascular plants, plant and animal ecology, entomology, ornithology and mammalogy.

Instruction: This program is team-taught by six qualified instructors associated with Bishop's University and various other universities. Each instructor teaches for one week in the area of his/her specialization.

Credit: The program is offered as two three-credit courses. Biology 113a: "Field Biology 1" and Biology 114b: "Field Biology 2". Biology 113a is prerequisite for Biology 114b. Those who wish to obtain credit for the courses from other universities should consult the appropriate administration in advance.

Enrolment: Limited to 25 participants.

Living Accommodation: Accommodation is available in a university residence for the six-week period and in private homes in the area. Residence fee for six weeks exclusive of meals $210.00

Meals: Meal plans are available from Dewhurst Dining Hall on campus.

Fees: Tuition, $65.00 for each three-credit course $130.00
Admission application fee (non refundable) 15.00

Application: Correspondence and requests for application forms should be directed to:

At home or at a Townships celebration, a picnic for Canada Day

Whether you're planning to go to the Bury or Hatley Canada Day celebrations or are hoping for a quiet day to work in the garden, a picnic is just right.

Pack up the kids, the blankets, a bottle of chilled white wine, some punch and the cooler and you're set.

To prevent spoilage, sandwiches, especially those containing mayonnaise, should be kept cool until lunch time. If lettuce is one of your salad ingredients, keep it separate until it's time to eat, then combine and toss.

Pray for sunshine and enjoy.

POLYNESIAN — STYLE POCKET SANDWICH

- Serves 4
- 2 cups cooked diced chicken
 - 1 ripe avocado, diced
 - 1 small papaya, diced
 - One-third cup dairy sour cream or yogurt
 - 3 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing
 - ½ teaspoon curry powder
 - ¼ teaspoon salt
 - Dash pepper
 - ½ cup finely chopped cashews
 - Lettuce
 - 4 pita bread, sliced in half

Combine chicken, avocado, papaya, sour cream, mayonnaise, curry, salt, pepper and cashews in bowl.

Spoon chicken and fruit mixture into lettuce lined pita pockets.

YUMMY CHEESE-IN-PITA SANDWICHES

- Makes 16 pita halves
- Salad
- ½ medium head of lettuce or a bunch of spinach
 - 1 cup of Colby cheese cubes flavoured with caraway seeds
 - 1 cup bean sprouts
 - ½ cup cucumber slices
 - 1 large tomato, seeded and diced
- Dressing
- 1 cup plain yogurt
 - ½ cup diced green pepper
 - One-third cup sliced raw mushrooms
 - 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
 - Freshly ground pepper
 - 6 inch pita whole wheat bread rounds
 - 1 green onion including top, chopped

Shred lettuce and add remaining ingredients except pita bread.

Cut pita bread in half crosswise. Gently separate sides until pocket forms. Fill pocket opening with 125 ml (½ cup) salad and top with a little yogurt-onion dressing. Serve immediately.

MINI-SUB SANDWICHES

- Serves 6
- 6 hard rolls, (4 inches) long
 - 1 cup shredded lettuce
 - ¼ cup minced onion
 - 1 large tomato, chopped
 - 3 tablespoons Italian dressing
 - 8 ounce package bologna slices
 - 6 ounces provolone cheese, sliced.
- Slice rolls almost in half horizontally, leaving one side attached.
- In small bowl, toss lettuce, onion, tomato with Italian dressing.
- In each roll, arrange 1 or 2 slices each of bologna and cheese and top with some lettuce mixture.

Follow up gift with telephone call

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a suggestion for those fools who have grown sour on gift-giving because the recipient failed to acknowledge that he or she received same. When a gift is mailed (or delivered, if it's local), a letter should be sent that very day saying:

"Congratulations. A gift was sent to you today (specify date). The post office informed me that it should take approximately X number of days (or weeks) to arrive. I would appreciate your acknowledging receipt and condition."

This is about as diplomatic as you can get without interfering with the person's God-given right to be forgetful or inconsiderate. Any effort to extract embarrassment, as you suggested, with a follow-up phone call or letter inquiring as to whether or not the gift was received doesn't say much for the giver.

A gift is not a gift if it has strings attached. Sure, it's nice to be thanked, but it's not really a gift if something is expected in return.

I believe it is petty to become indignant when people fail to live up to your expectations. "Expectations" is the world's No. 1 social disease. When will man learn to apply expectations only to himself and good will to others?

If one insists on having strings attached to his gift, he might just as well be honest about it and stamp on the gift, in huge red letters, "PLEASE HANDLE WITH CARE — SOCIAL OBLIGATION ENCLOSED." I'm signing this — Not So Foolish In

Eating In

BY PAT TRACY

WIENER-EGG SALAD BUNS

- Serves 8
- 4 wieners, finely chopped
 - 4 hard-cooked eggs coarsely chopped
 - 3 tablespoons chill sauce
 - 1 teaspoon prepared Mustard
 - ½ teaspoon minced onion salt.
 - 4 hot dog buns split and toasted
- In bun bowl, stir first 5 ingredients; add salt to taste.
- Spoon mixture onto bun halves.

SALMON CROISSANTS

- 1 can (7 ¾ oz.) salmon
- ¼ cup pineapple cream cheese softened
 - ¼ teaspoon lemon pepper
 - Alfalfa sprouts
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
- 4 sandwich-size croissants, split
- Drain salmon, break into small chunks, and set aside.
- Beat cream cheese with lemon pepper until light and fluffy. Spread cream cheese on croissant halves.
- Layer four halves with sprouts, egg slices, and salmon chunks. Top with remaining croissant halves.
- Makes four sandwiches.

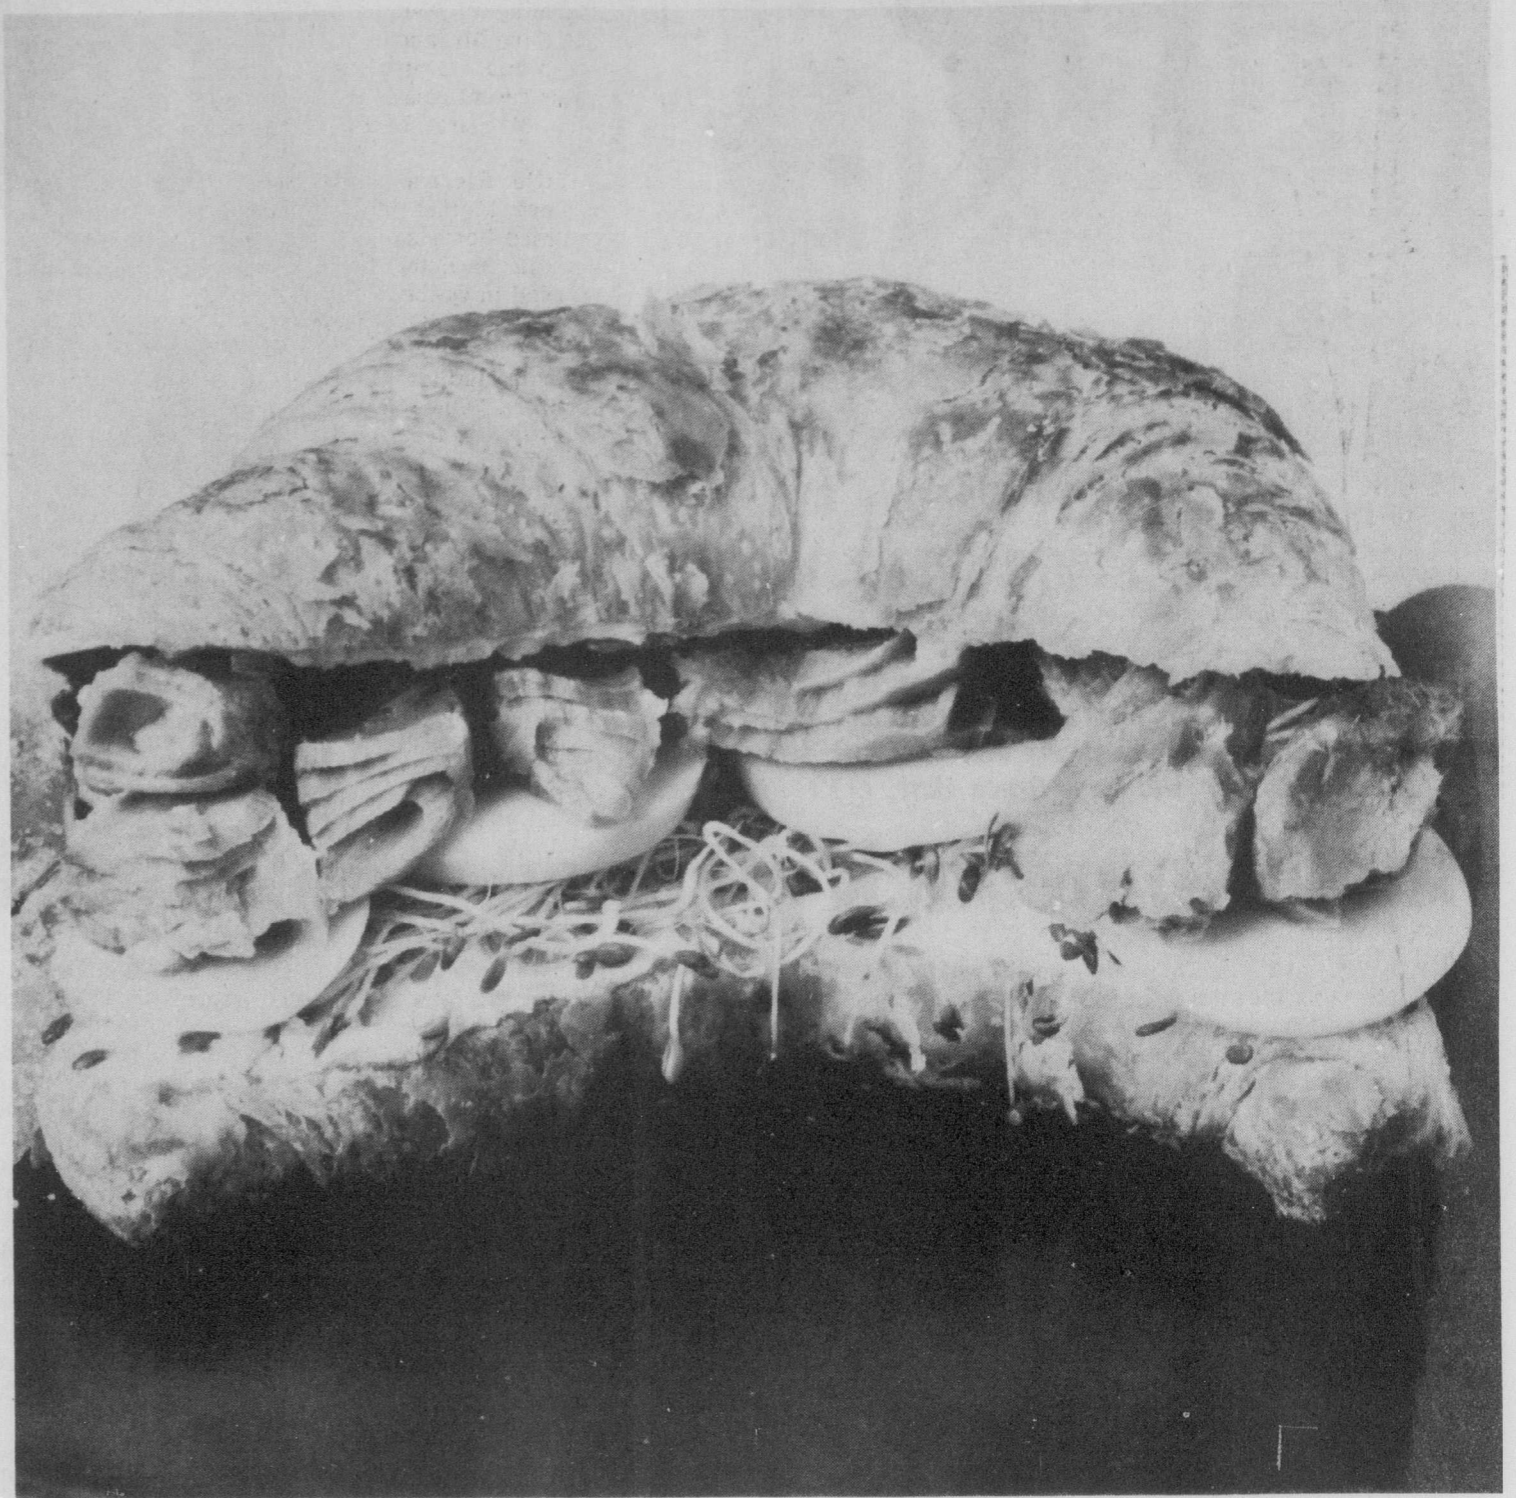

SUMMER ORANGE 'N' VEGETABLE SALAD

- 1 medium head iceberg lettuce, torn in bite-size pieces
- 3 oranges, peeled, cut in half-cartwheels
 - 1 red onion, sliced, separated into rings
 - 1 cucumber, sliced
 - 1 avocado, sliced
 - Two-third cup prepared Italian salad dressing
 - ¼ cup chopped parsley
 - Grated peel and juice of 1 fresh lemon
- In large bowl, combine lettuce, oranges, onion, cucumber and avocado; chill. Combine Italian dressing, parsley, lemon peel and juice. To serve, pour dressing over salad mixture; toss well. Makes 8 servings (about 12 cups).

Note: To prevent avocado slices from darkening, dip in fresh squeezed lemon juice.

FRESH FRUIT SALAD PLATES WITH ORANGE HONEY DRESSING

- 2 oranges, peeled, sliced in cartwheels +
- 1½ cups melon balls or grapes, halved
 - 1 apple, sliced
 - 1 pear, sliced
 - Salad greens
- Orange Honey Dressing
- On four individual salad plates, arrange fruit on salad greens. Serve with Orange Honey Dressing. Makes 4 servings.
- + Peel and slice oranges over bowl to reserve juice; sprinkle apple and pear with juice to prevent darkening.
- ORANGE HONEY DRESSING: Combine one-third cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, grated peel of 1 fresh orange, 2 tablespoons each fresh squeezed orange juice and honey. Makes about ½ cup.

Salmon Croissant... perfect for a picnic indoors or out.

Authentic Scotland gingerbread

Here is an authentic gingerbread recipe right from Scotland. It was given to me by Mheir Gunn when she first came to Canada to teach here.

- GINGERBREAD
- ½ lb. margarine or butter
 - ½ lb. sugar
 - ½ teaspoon ginger
 - 2 teacups of self-rising flour
 - ½ cup treacle
 - 1 teaspoon bicarbonate soda
 - 2 eggs
 - 1½ teaspoons mixed spice
 - ½ cup boiling water
- Method
- (1) Cream butter and sugar.
 - (2) Add well-beaten eggs, flour, ginger and spices.
 - (3) Add treacle and soda which has been dissolved in boiling water.
 - (4) Put in a greased lined tin.

(5) Bake in 350 deg F. oven.

Test with skewer or long needle. Dates or raisins may be added.

Here is a recipe that won a prize many years ago in a national contest by a 15-year-old schoolgirl.

- CHERRY WINKS
- 2¼ cups all purpose flour
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - ½ teaspoon soda
 - ¾ cup shortening
 - 1 cup white sugar
 - ½ teaspoon salt
 - 2 eggs
 - 4 tablespoons milk
 - 1 cup chopped dates
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
 - One-third cup cherries
 - 2½ cups cornflakes
- Sift flour, baking powder soda and salt. Cream shortening and sugar well. Add eggs, milk and vanilla. Beat well. Blend in dry

Kay's kitchen korner ingredients gradually, mix well, add dates, cherries, mix. Shape into balls using a level tablespoon of dough for each. Crush cornflakes. Roll each ball into the cornflakes and place on a greased baking sheet. Top each with ¼ maraschino cherry.

Bake at 375 degree F. oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 50-60 cookies.

Total preparation and making time about 40 minutes.

If you have some leftover ham this might be of help.

DEVILED HAM

Ann Landers

New York.

Dear Foolish: Your notion that expecting an acknowledgment of a gift is attaching a string to it is bullfeathers. Moreover, I didn't know that God had given people the right to be forgetful and inconsiderate.

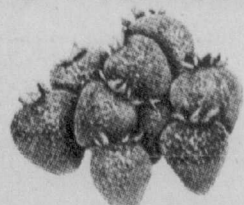

It seems to me that a gift-giver is entitled to know whether or not the gift was received. Where I come from we call it being a mensch.

Maybe I am abnormal, but when I send a gift I would like some assurance that it was received. It's tough enough these days to pay for things one buys without putting out money for gifts that never got there.

Your suggestion that a letter be sent on the day the gift is delivered or mailed is tacky.

My suggestion that the gift-giver telephone after eight weeks of silence is infinitely more civilized.

Boy Scouts keeping busy

KNOWLTON (KT) — The Boy Scout Group Committee had its regular meeting June 9. The next meeting will be August 2. Everyone is invited. All groups are busy with their star and badge work and summer outdoor activities.

The Cubs had their summer camp last weekend, again on the fields of Alan Webster. The use of these meadows and other facilities, especially the swimming pool, has been very much appreciated by all.

Thanks goes also to the volunteers who help set up and take down the tents and shelters. Despite the rain, which fell after bedtime only, and the sometime high winds, the leaders were able to complete the planned program. Boys and leaders enjoyed the camp again. Some tent poles broke under the high winds and will have to be replaced with a much sturdier material. Measurements have been taken and the support of the community is being counted on.

Six Venturers with their leaders, Bill Westhead and Eugene Jones, made a day-long canoe trip on the Missisquoi River to Lake Champlain. For the boys, it was a new and tiring but exciting experience.

The Group Committee supplied the first aid tent for the Lake Brome Marathon on the holiday weekend. Venturers and Scouts were busy at the different watering stations along the race course. Two Cub tents and one kitchen shelter were also lent to the Lions Group for their Canada Day activities at the Lion's Park. The Group Committee also set up a kitchen shelter to serve and an information booth for the Scout movement in this area.

In Memoriam

JUDGE, Roger — in loving memory of a dear son and brother who left us on July 1, 1978. Today recalls the memory of a loved one gone to rest. To those who think of him today Are those who loved him best The flowers we lay upon his grave May wither and decay But the love for him who lies beneath Will never fade away. Always loved, still missed. MOM and DAD BROTHERS SISTER SISTER-IN-LAW

Women's Institute meeting in the Eastern Townships

HATLEY — The June meeting of the Hatley Women's Institute was held at "Westview", the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Sharman with seven members present. Mrs. Fred Wright, co-president presided and all repeated the Mary Stewart Collect and Lord's Prayer. Roll call: "wear or bring an article of antique jewellery and tell its history". Minutes of the May meeting were read and approved. The treasurer's report of a very successful May Fair was given, thus swelling our bank account to meet the working expenses of the coming year. A motion was made and carried to have notes of appreciation written to the eleven people who had worked so hard and helped to make the fair the success it was. Donations to CanSave and the Town Council for the use of the hall were made.

Mona Sharman, publicity convenor reported that the May fair was advertised on TV, radio, newspapers and announced in both churches as well as five posters made and distributed. A delegate was appointed to attend the Quarterly meeting in North Hatley on August 2nd. Mrs. Madelene McClary gave a very interesting and complete report of the Convention held at Macdonald.

Mrs. Rose Johnson presented Mrs. Mona Sharman with a 25-year bar and delicious refreshments served by Mildred Miller and Oliver Whitcomb. The round robin was donated by Mrs. Whitcomb and won by Mrs. Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Premdas, Indra and

Stephen of St. Hilaire spent Father's Day at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William

Cutler and grandmother, Mrs. Nellie Hartwell. Mr. and Mrs. Lilloyd Hartwell of Sherbrooke were callers in the afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Terry Skeats of Waterville and Russell Pocock and friend of Moe's River were visiting Mrs. Willis Emery on Sunday.

Take pains to develop a better rapport with influential persons you meet socially this coming year. Not only will you build solid friendships, but they'll be helpful in other ways as well.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) At a gathering today others may seek the spotlight, but they'll not find it. The entire time it will be focused on you, whether you want it or not. Predictions of what's in store for you for each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your AstroGraph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be able to distinguish today between being protective of those you love or of merely being too possessive. It's a fine line you mustn't overstep.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Most people will go along with your ideas today, but a few may not. Be grateful for those who do. Don't make a big thing over those who don't.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Matters which could add to your resources or enhance your future security should be at the top of your agenda today. They're your luckiest listings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Of course being first has its compensations, but don't make it so important today that you brush others aside racing to reach the tape. Be a good sport.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't discount your logical evaluations, but also give equal credence to your hunches and flashes of inspiration. Both are in tune today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you may have to put yourself out a bit more for them than your friends will extend themselves for you. Do so with a smile. Everything will even out later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Regardless of the hand that is dealt to you today, where your career is concerned you'll know how to play your cards to the hilt in order to win the pot.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is a good day to review plans which have an effect upon your future. You can come up with revisions to make the road ahead easier.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Proceed cautiously in commercial dealings today. Be sure you know exactly what you're getting into before responding to any proposals.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may have to contend with someone today who holds strong views not in accord with your own. Handle this person with extreme tact.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Perform your work today as if the boss is watching your every move. Who knows? He or she might be doing just that.

July 2, 1982

A hobby or avocation in which you're interested looks like it will be turned into something profitable this coming year. You will find a co-worker who will help make this possible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your productiveness can be enhanced today if you don't lock yourself in on tedious methods and procedures. Look for new ways to do the job better. Predictions of what's in store for you for each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you are getting together with friends for a social activity today, try to steer them away from going to their usual haunts. New places will be more fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If your house is a bit cluttered today, it's best to put things in order early. Unexpected drop-ins could disrupt what you planned to do.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're likely to be rather restless today, so try not to involve yourself with things which tie you down to a fixed base. You'll be happiest moving about freely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Should you decide to go shopping today, take along a little extra cash. There's a possibility that you could spot an unusual bargain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're fun to be around today, because others won't know what to expect from you. You'll keep them guessing and entertained.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Follow your impulses today if you feel an urge to do something which you believe could be of benefit to you financially, or careerwise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Select companions today who, like yourself, are free spirits and are not looking for involvements which are too tightly planned or structured.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something opportune could develop now to help you further your worldly ambitions. A key person who never noticed you previously is beginning to pay attention.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You grasp ideas quickly today, but you may lack the patience to probe them in depth. This could cause you problems where more than surface knowledge is required.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A venture in which you're involved could be subject to some sudden and unusual changes today. Be flexible. Be prepared to move with events.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are blessed with the ability to size things up quickly and make snap judgments. Today this ability will be even more emphasized, and utilized advantageously.

The delegate to the convention at Macdonald submitted her expense account and a motion was made to pay this and all other bills. On a motion by Mrs. Stanley Whitcomb the usual amount of money will be donated to the School fair and for Art prizes to the children at the County fair.

A suggestion was made that a copy of QWI Pioneer Women be placed in the local library.

There is a story about a lost horse and the expert who found it by thinking about where he would go if he were a horse. In today's Karpin hand, East thought what South would hold to have bid as he had bid.

North had responded two no-trump to show weakness and then bid five hearts to invite a slam and South had accepted.

West's failure to open a diamond had indicated that he just did not hold a diamond to lead.

South had been careful not to cover that queen of clubs lead with dummy's king. You also know that South must hold the ace-deuce of diamonds among his collection of good cards. What is the rest of his hand?

Probably no clubs at all, but possibly just one. Then a long heart suit headed by ace-king-queen and almost surely ace-queen and some other spades.

Now that you have thought like the declarer you put your ace of clubs on your partner's queen. If declarer ruffs you may have allowed him to get an eventual diamond discard on the club king. But that discard will merely be giving him an overtrick.

As it is, declarer held a singleton club. You get your club ace and give your partner the all-important diamond ruff.

ECONOMY

When I was young, I'd run my legs off for a dime. But these days, for that pay, you can't even get the time.

No one works for nothing, they need that weekly pay. But after bills, there's little left to keep or put away.

I often wondered how it started and where it will all end. It may take a depression to build us up again.

So, all tie your belts tighter 'cause the shelf may soon be bare. And it's all because economy left us without a prayer.

Introducing the Constitution Dollar: the new circulating coin celebrating the proclamation of our Constitution.

The history of this coin began 115 years ago. Its future begins today.

Photography courtesy of Confederation Life Insurance Company

One hundred and fifteen years ago, the Fathers of Confederation met to determine the future of this nation. The official history of Canada began with that meeting.

Today, a new and significant page in our history has been turned; the Canadian Constitution has been proclaimed.

To mark this event, the Government of Canada has authorized the Royal Canadian Mint to strike a new circulating coin: the Constitution Dollar. The new coin represents the famous painting of the Fathers of Confederation, and the legend reads: "Confederation 1867 - Constitution 1982". The Constitution Dollar... a great way to remember a great day.

Women in a field previously dominated by men

Chauvinism isn't dead — yet

By Carla Straesse

SHERBROOKE — What obstacles must women lawyers overcome in a profession until quite recently dominated by men? In a series of interviews with some women lawyers in Sherbrooke, opinions varied greatly — depending on each one's particular experience and personality.

Ten years ago, the number of females in the Universite de Sherbrooke's first-year law class did not exceed 10 or 15 per cent, according to Marcel Dube, secretary of the faculty. This year (1981-82), for the first time ever, over 50 per cent of the first-year class are women.

Speaking for the men, criminal lawyer Marc Montplaisir said "I think it's perhaps more difficult for women. Chauvinism isn't dead. Most people think women won't be well enough qualified." He added that the only reason some firms are still hesitant about hiring women lawyers is, "entirely because of clients who don't want to be represented by a woman."

Montplaisir explained the reason he and the six other criminal lawyers in Sherbrooke are all men is because interest, not capability, determines what women end up doing. "I know many very good female criminal lawyers in Montreal, but the large majority of women lawyers I know practice family law." After having done much of this himself during two years of general-law practice before specializing in criminal law at the legal aid office, he commented, "Women are perhaps more understanding. Divorces are almost always asked for by the wife who can maybe relate better to another woman."

Montplaisir calls criminal law, "a phase in my career," and he has been at it for six years now. He says about 25 per cent of his class at U de S were women.

Jacqueline Kouri's supports what Montplaisir says about women lawyers and family law of which she does a great deal. "Women are better geared for family law. I've been married 23 years and can understand women's problems." She added, "For divorce cases, women seek female lawyers. Many men won't touch family law; they did it as junior lawyers. And I wouldn't want to do it 100 per cent, it's exhausting."

Kouri has been practicing at Hackett, Campbell and Associates for three years, after having raised a family and then gone back to school. She got her law degree from U de S in 1979, and says that while she was studying, not even 10 per cent of practising lawyers were women, and only one third of her class was female.

"I have felt no discrimination from males and have heard of only one case where a man was preferred," she says. She feels women lawyers have the same job opportunities as men and that she has an advantage being the only English woman lawyer in the St. Francis district. "For all English cases, the court names me."

She is also very active in the community and is vice-president of the Quebec Liberal Party. "Organizations are looking for women: it's hard to say no."

Danielle Gauthier has been practising general law with Delorme and Lebel since January. She said she has a "feeling" it's harder for women lawyers to find jobs although she herself has no proof to this effect. "I just have a feeling it's (discrimination) out there." Because of this, she thought she would need an edge on men, so went to Harvard University in Boston to get her master's degree after obtaining her first law degree at U de S. "The fact I am a woman counted in being accepted at Harvard. Harvard doesn't mean much here; judgment is more personal than in bigger cities."

She says about 35 per cent of her class at U de S was female and that only 10 out of 113 students in her Harvard were women.

Although Gauthier has these feelings, she says she has never encountered any blatant incident of discrimination. "I've never met anyone who wouldn't deal with me. One client worried that, because I am a woman, I wouldn't be a tough enough negotiator." She reports that her clientele is not any different from that of her male colleagues because "more men use lawyers."

She says it is impossible to determine whether or not women lawyers are actually discriminated against as it has "so much to do with personality." Gauthier was a journalist before becoming interested in law.

Colette Lavoie has been working with legal aid for six years, after practicing with a private firm for three years, where she says she was very happy. But she took this job when she got the offer. She says she feels job opportunities are the same for men and women. "They like to hire us (women). We don't ask too much from them, for example we don't ask to become associates right away, and we work hard. Boys (men) tend to interfere more."

But at least one woman lawyer says there is at least one large Sherbrooke firm, "where they don't want to hire women." A partner in the firm says that although there is no special reason they don't have any women working there, one did research for them for three or four years. "We were very happy with her," he says, although there are still no female lawyers on staff there. "They are lawyers, not men or women, they should be just as capable."

When trying to contact this firm, however, the receptionist had at first refused to relay the message. Later, she said a senior partner had said they had "no time for this type of interview".

Lavoie reports that while she was studying at U de S, she occasionally heard male students say the women were just there searching for a husband, or were taking the place of a buddy, "but in general, they didn't care much then."

She worked at a law firm as a student, so had a job waiting for her when she graduated. "I was like one of the boys." She says that since she does much matrimonial law at legal aid, more than 80 per cent of her clients are women — more than in private practices. "Only about 25 to 30 per cent of these cases actually end up in court," she says.

Carla Courtenay of Lennoxville, like Kouri, went back to school to get her law degree because she wanted more of a challenge. She got her first degree T McGill in common law, then went on to U de S for two years of civil law which she has just completed this spring. She said about 40 per cent of her class were women. "There are no barriers at all for women in law schools. They've just expanded to accommodate the women, they don't accept fewer men," she continued. "Things look good in universities, but it's different in the working world."

She says part of the problem is that "a law firm is unlikely to go beyond one woman lawyer. One young male lawyer who interviewed me — I'm 37 — said, 'I can't hire you, we already have one woman here, even the secretary is a woman. What would the other lawyers think?"

Courtenay says there is a sort of credibility gap between men and women lawyers. "If you have a family, you can't be serious — if you are a woman..." For two years, she commuted to Montreal from Lennoxville when her son was a few years old, in order to become a lawyer. "I was asked several times while studying, 'Do you really intend to practice law when finished with your family responsibilities?' For a man it's laudable, if a woman does it, it's selfish."

"It's a matter of time before people realize women have fine legal minds." She says she suspects that for the time being anyway, it is a disadvantage being a woman in the field. "The first question I always get in interviews is what my husband does, and how many children I have."

Courtenay also explains that it could be a problem of compatibility. "Men and women are not yet conditioned to work together outside the home."

Lawyer Helene Simoneau, a research specialist, summed up the situation, "It's a conservative profession, and so will take a long time to change. But there's been an improvement. There was even age discrimination at one point. Now they're thinking more and more in terms of competence, not whether the applicant is a man or a woman. Other women lawyers I know have had a mixture of experiences, some good, and some bad," she added. "I was always lucky and have had no unfortunate experiences."

Social notes from around the Townships

The Tartan Twirlers will join other groups in Halifax.

Square dancers from Townships to attend Halifax meeting

About 6,000 dancers will travel to Halifax July 29 to 31 for the third Canadian National Square Dance Convention. In all, there will be 11 official dance floors throughout the city. Among the crowd will be about 20 square dancers from Lennoxville's Townships Tartan Twirlers, one of several square dance clubs in this area. The contingent will be led by Lorne and Onie Scott, founders of The Townships Tartan Twirlers. A caravan is planned with local square dancers and some from Richmond, Brome, Calgary, and Edmundston, N.B. The square dancers will be dancing on Monday at Edmundston, Tuesday at Amherst, N.S., Wednesday at Truro, N.S., and then on to Halifax.

Modern square dancing is becoming increasingly popular in North America spreading all over Canada, the United States and overseas from its centres in the western states.

The form of the square dance grew out of the French Quadrille around 1600 and meshed with elements of Scottish Folk dance.

The square dance was recently authenticated as a genuine folk form by the government of the United States, who proclaimed it the official American dance. But the dance is not limited to America alone, as square and round dance clubs are registered in 60 nations of the world.

Former president and Mrs. Jimmy Carter are square dancers, as are Hank Show and the Crown Prince and Princess of Japan. There are many square dance clubs throughout Canada. Members take an introductory course one night a week for 30 weeks to learn the 50 basic steps. There are also clubs for blind dancers as well as three contingents of wheelchair dancers coming to Halifax for the convention.

The Halifax Convention activities include sewing clinics, a fashion show, a parade of banners (each club has their distinctive colors) and a grand march by Nova Scotia dancers in the special Convention '82 costume.

According to Bob Fowler, publicity chairman, the popularity of square and round dancing is number of reasons. It's inexpensive and a tremendous recreational activity, as simple or challenging as you want to make it. It's also colorful. People make their own costumes, with flared skirts and long sleeve shirts, with husband and wife having matching sets.

Beyond that, square dancing is a tremendous means of increasing communication. Once a member of a club you can dance at any other club, and you can do it in 60 countries of the world. It's a tremendous way to socialize, get to know people, and feel at home, wherever you are.

Anyone wishing information about the Halifax Convention or square dancing in the Townships should contact Robert Hopkins, President of The Townships Tartan Twirlers at 562-4617.

Howell and Lowd: Old time fiddling competition a way of life

By Claudia Bowers
EATON CORNER — Terry Howell doesn't remember when he started to play the old-time fiddle. But, with mastery of several instruments under his belt, Howell still clings to his first love and will be on hand to demonstrate his expertise next

Saturday at the Bury Canada Day competition. "My dad played the fiddle back in Gaspe where I was born, and music filled our house from morning to night," Howell recalled. Howell and Scott Lowd had turned out with their instruments in Eaton

Corner on the weekend. The event, organized by the Eaton Museum, featured the attractions of an old-fashioned lawn social, with turn-of-the-century costumes worn by organizers and supporters.

The two fiddlers, finding a seat on a pair of mill stones near the entrance, played traditional folk tunes first played by the early settlers and pioneers.

"This is as good as a practice, even better," Howell said. Competitions have been a part of my life from the start. My dad completed all over the Gaspe and I soon started to follow his footsteps."

Howell has been in this area for 22 years, and has played with four different groups during that time. Next Saturday Howell and his playing partner at Eaton Corner will be appearing in the competition at Bury.

Scott Lowd, barely 20, has eight years of study and practice behind him. "I started at age seven, and for the first years, classical music was all I knew." But, the traditional dance music began to sound more and more interesting to young Lowd and soon, the jigs and reels played by the old timers were flying from nimble fingers. "The old-time music is my bag now," Lowd said.

With the fiddler's tunes bridging the gap between old and young, eliminating language barriers, the Eaton Corner lawn social could have been a capsule sized taste of what's in store next Saturday at Bury.

Lowd and Howell... the old time music is the best.

Fiddlers from all over Quebec, New England to visit Bury for contest

By Claudia Bowers
LENNOXVILLE — An old-time fiddlers contest will bring added interest to the annual festivities at Bury during their 1982 version of Canada Day.

The village celebrated the 60th anniversary of confederation on July 1, 1927. Every year since, the Bury Athletic Association has continued the tradition of Canada Day. This year, with celebrations planned for Saturday, July 3, the 55th Canada Day promises to be another success. In the first years, sports and athletic events were the main features of the day. E.T. schools sent their very best track and field competitors and such notables as Ian Hume competed for several years. The amateur hour and traditional fireworks were important features of the day.

Through the years, new events have been added. Horse-pulling, flour packing, guest appearances by bands and majorette corps and, lately, traditional provincial music and dancing by troubadours and dancers have been points of interest.

For the first time, organizers have organized an old time fiddlers contest. Competitors are invited from all over the province as well as New England. L'Association des Violoneux de Quebec as well as the Northeast Fiddlers Association from Barre, Vermont have been collaborating in the preparation of a program which will see about 40 musicians compete during the day of festivities. The contest gets underway at 2 p.m., with finals beginning at 7 p.m., in conjunction with the amateur hour.

Horsepulling, track and field for children under 13 years of age, square dance demonstrations and the final display of fireworks should fill Bury's Canada Day 1982. The gates open officially at 8 p.m.

Bury, normally a quiet rural village, plays host to well over 10,000 people annually. Local church groups, the St. Paul's Rest Home and other organizations will serve the traditional baked beans, sandwiches, pancakes and sausages, salad plate dinners and strawberry shortcake.

The annual parade is scheduled for 12 p.m. Spectators are encouraged to bring lawn chairs.

Luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Weston Graham recently were William Graham of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Graham and son Brian of Nepean, Ont.,

Mr. and Mrs. William Kinnear and son Pat, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pratt of Kemptville, Ont., Mrs. Florence Graham and son John of Belleville and Toronto.

Your correspondent wishes to thank all the ladies of the community who helped in any way, with food, supplies and their time when lunch was served to the families of the late Mrs. Alma George. It's so nice to know the generosity of the people at such a time, when bereavement is so profound.

Townships celebrates Canada Day with breakfasts, contests, parades

By Michael McDevitt
We presume you've all recovered from last week's St. Jean-Baptiste celebrations and are ready to enjoy our other "national" holiday—Canada Day. If so, then you'll find lots of activities in the Townships in which to participate. In addition to Saturday's big fest in Bury, there are celebrations in many communities throughout the region: In Knowlton, the Lion's club is having a bash of the Lion's Park, which includes an art contest, a concert, games and dancing. East Farnham is having a parade, games, a barbecue and a dance. These events will take place at Town Hall. Notre-Dame de Ham is having an open-air picnic, games and a Canadian supper at the playgrounds. Abercorn begins its celebrations today and continues into July 1.

There will be a parade, dances, picnic, campfire, and sporting events. These activities will take place at city hall. Magog will be featuring films, art and handicraft exhibits, music, games, and songs at the Foyer du Sacre Coeur. At the University of Sherbrooke, there will be an historical exhibition, folk dancing and singing, an international fashion show and a military parade. These events are sponsored by the International and Multicultural Centre.

Estrie-France will be celebrating with games, a talent show, races, dinner, a campfire, and a dance, at the Parc Central in Rock Forest. The Legion Branch 158 will sponsor games and a dance at the Legion property in Sutton. Coaticook is having a concert in its Carier Park.

In Hatley, there will be a parade, dinners, sports and various entertainments. So if you're in the mood to party in recognition of Canada's birthday, there's lots out there for you to do. Have a good and careful holiday.

Mrs. Emily James was a weekend guest at the home of Harold and Roland Jamieson.

Mr. and Mrs. Vic Lowry and Kim were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Lowry and family, in Lennoxville, and also attended the annual spring supper of the Army and Navy Unit 318.

Weekend callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Jamieson included Mr. and Mrs. Brian Lowry and Meredith, Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Lowry, Thetford Mines and Mrs. Susan White, Chatham, Kent, England, who was spending a holiday with the Lowrys.

Mr. and Mrs. Ulric Nutbrown spent a few days in Montreal with their son Steve. While there, Mrs. Nutbrown attended the annual W.I. Convention at Macdonald College. They also called on Mr. and Mrs. Real Lachance and family, in Ile Perrot.

Miss Jacinda Lowry was an overnight guest of Miss Claudia Routhier, in Quebec.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric MacRae attended the wedding and supper of Bedard-Ferland, held at Leeds, while Lynn and Ricky both went to the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Routhier, Quebec, Miss Frances Beattie and Mr. and Mrs. Eric Allan were guests at the home of Roger Lowry and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Jamieson took their family together with Marc Groleau, Dale Stewart, Nancy Maxwell and Nellie Chancey to McDonald's to celebrate Kent's 7th birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Lowry, Mark and Michael of Lennoxville were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vic Lowry and family. Roger Lowry and family joined them for a Barbecue.

Supper guests at the Nutbrown farm were Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Lachance and Mark, of Ile Perrot.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Trepanier spent a day in Drummondville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan McKee, Inverness, called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David MacRae and Mr. and Mrs. Eric MacRae and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Vic Lowry, Roger Lowry and Mr. and Mrs. Rene Brochu attended the wedding reception for Lisette Bedard and Jean Yves Ferland at Leeds. The Ferlands have taken up residence in the home of the late Mrs. Annie Lowry.

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Lowry and Meredith of Thetford Mines and Mrs. Susan White, Kent, England, called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vic Lowry and were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Jamieson and boys. Other callers at the Jameisons were Mr. and Mrs. Terry Lowry, Erica and Neil, Granby, and Graydon Lowry, Thetford Mines.

Laurie Ann Lowry was visiting at her parental home at Kinnear's Mills.

The children of St. Patrick's School enjoyed their trip to Quebec City, the younger ones went to the Zoo while Grades 5 and 6 visited the Citadel and the Plains of Abraham.

Sports Awards were given out at St. Patrick's School recently. Roger Lowry received a Canada Fitness Award, Silver, and Robin Jamieson, Excellence.

At Johnson's High School, Canada Fitness Awards were given to Cinda and Daren Lowry, Gold, and Louise Trepanier, Excellence. Louise also received awards at the Track Events held at Disraeli, two Gold for 80 metres and relay, and two silver for 150 metres and high jump, and the High School relay team went on to Charlesbourg to the Regional Competition where they came in second. Daren was on the boys Relay Team who came in second at Disraeli. Congratulations to all the children.

Ronald Jamieson and Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Jamieson attended the wake of Mrs. Alma George, in Inverness. Sincere sympathy is extended to both the George and White families in their sadness.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hodge, Sherbrooke, spent a week's holiday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ulric Nutbrown.

Mrs. Victor Lowry and Mrs. John Evans, Sherbrooke, called to see Mrs. Terry Lowry, Erica and Neil at Granby.

Several people from the village attended the Rothney-Cook wedding reception at Birchton, they included Mr. and Mrs. Vic Lowry, Roger Lowry, Miss Frances Beattie, Sydney McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Eric MacRae, Lynn MacRae, Mr. and Mrs. Ulric Nutbrown and Ronald Jamieson. The bride, Miss Susan Rotheny, grew up in Kinnear's Mills, our congratulations and best wishes are extended to them both.

Visitors at the Rufus Jamieson home included Miss Jeanette Kelly, Paul Mooney, Miss Lupita Kerwin and Luc, of Quebec. Overnight guests at the same home were Brent Maxwell, Thetford Mines and David Houley, St. Sylvester. They were joined the next day by Karin Buckholz and Doreen Cox, Thetford Mines, for a party celebrating Rob's 9th birthday. The Jamiesons returned the children to their homes, visiting with the Maxwell family before they came home.
