Soviets make last effort for Israeli retreat

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet Union was reported to be making one last effort Thursday night to salvage something from the wreckage of the UN General Assembly's emergency session on the Middle East. Diplomatic sources said Soviet diplomats were trying to win support for a resolution that would specifically instruct a special UN representative to seek the withdrawal of Israeli forces from occupied Arab territory and to report to the Security Council. They said the Russians were finding, however, that a majority of countries in the 122-member assembly weren't prepared to support instructions limiting a UN representative to these tasks. Canada, the United States, most west European and Latin American countries and some African and Asian countries want the UN effort to be aimed also at making the Arabs take steps to end their avowed "state of belligerence" with Israel.

The assembly adjourned Thursday, after meeting for only six minutes, until today at 3 p.m. EDT.

It had been expected to end its emergency session Thursday but Ambassador Max Jakobson of Finland, moving for adjournment until today, said it was his feeling private consultations on the Middle East situation should continue "a little longer."

Diplomatic sources said the session will probably end with a resolution referring the problems of the Middle East back to the Security Council.

The Soviet Union requested the emergency session of the assembly after it had failed to persuade the council to condemn Israel for aggression against its Arab neighbors last month and demand the unconditional withdrawal of Israeli forces from conquered land. But it has suffered a similar defeat in the assembly.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko invited U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg to tea late Wednesday to talk over the situation. Diplomatic sources said the U.S. and Soviet positions on basic issues remained as far apart as ever.

Finland, Austria and Sweden were prepared to submit a resolution tossing the problem back to the Security Council but also authorizing Abdul Rahman Pazhwak of Afghanistan, the assembly president, to reconvene the assembly "as and when necessary."

But the sponsors bumped into opposition from the Arab delegates, who remained interested only in unconditional withdrawal of Israeli forces from Arab territory.

Under the three-country resolution, the council would be asked to consider "the tense situation in the Middle East as a matter of urgency."

Diplomatic sources said the Arabs objected to that as too mild a description of a situation; the Arabs said it amounted to a threat to world peace.

Mao opponent

PEKING — (Reuters) — Tao Chu, former propaganda chief and No. 4 in the Chinese Communist party, today was openly named in the official Chinese press as an opponent of Mao Tse-tung.

Political observers here interpreted this as an indication of his dismissal.

Bomb threat

EDMONTON — (CP) — A telephoned bomb threat Thursday night grounded an airlift of a 75-man contingent of Coldstream Guards returning to London after a month of training at Camp Wainwright, Alta.

One of two planes in the airlift had taken off when the threat was received at Canadian Forces Base Namao, five miles north of Edmonton, that a bomb had been planted aboard.

Try again

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A United States Quaker organization which recently transported a cargo of medical supplies to North Vietnam in defiance of the U.S. government made known today it will try to make another shipment soon.

"It's a matter of conscience," said Lawrence Scott, 58, leader of the project. "When people are being bombed and are bleeding, it's a religious right and duty to help them, whoever they are."

Racial tension

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Rock throwing, at least two shootings and a dozen small fires were reported as violence flared up in Minneapolis, Minn., Thursday night and early today.

A police inspector said the second outbreak in two nights occurred on the Negro north side of the city. There were no deaths from the shootings but two injuries.

Anti-US blasts

WASHINGTON (CP) — President de Gaulle's Canadian visit starting Sunday is expected by U.S. officials to produce another round of anti-American blasts.

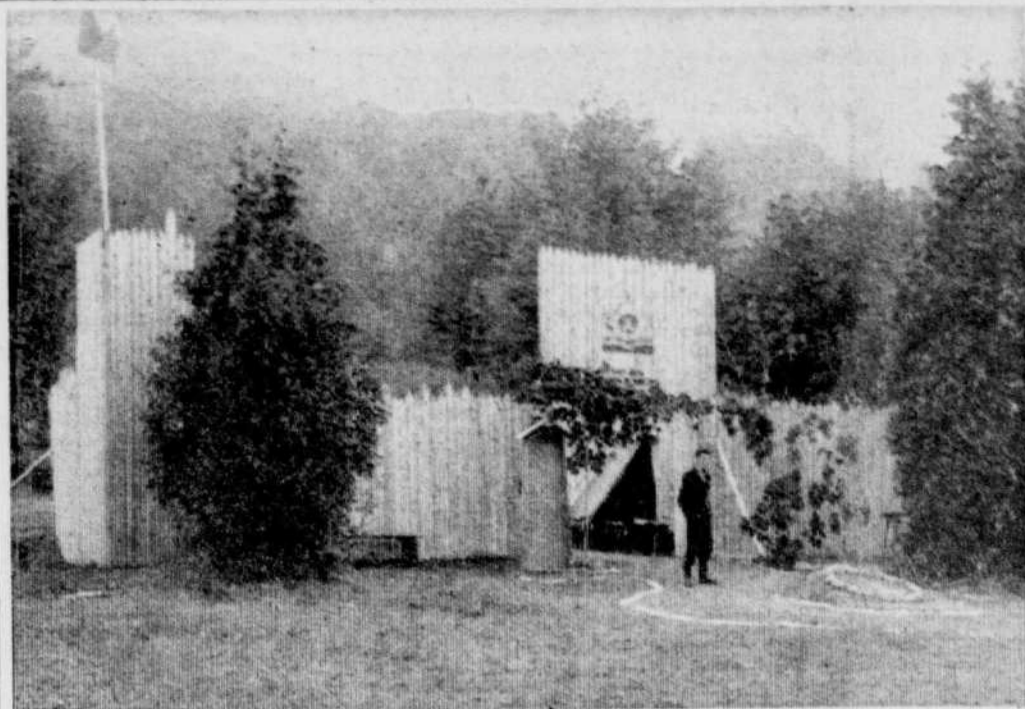

By now, they're used to it. But some quarters here suspect that the French leader intends to roll up both internal Canadian divisions and relations with the U.S.

Keep statue

MONTREAL (CP) — The bronze statue of Finnish Olympic runner Paavo Nurmi will remain at Expo 67's Olympic House for the duration of the world's fair, it was announced Thursday.

Lasse Oka, deputy commissioner-general for Finland's participation at Expo, said authorities in Finland have decided to allow the 1,400-pound statue-damaged last week by vandals—to remain at the fair after having "reconsidered the decision to return the statue to Helsinki."

New riot law is predicted to lose Johnson Negro votes

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A Black Power spokesman said Thursday that President Johnson's actions regarding Newark rioting last week amounted to writing off Negro votes.

The president was ready to help "racist authorities" stop violence but made no move to improve conditions for Negroes, said H. Rapp Brown, national chairman of the Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee which introduced the Black Power slogan a year ago.

"He ignored that vote for 1968," Brown-told reporters. Brown answered questions at a news conference shortly before the National Conference on Black Power began in this riot-scarred city. As Brown talked to several reporters later, a white New York Times reporter was shoved out of the room through a low window a few feet away.

"Get out of here! Don't come through the window!" shouted a Negro man, shouting reporter Martin Arnold, who had stepped into the room through the open window after finding the door locked. Minutes later, reporters were told to leave by a staff member. Brown said that there was "a move to crush black organizations by the white people's press."

Brown said in an interview that Black Power is gaining acceptance among Negroes. "Black people have taken it a degree farther—they have legitimized rebellions," he said.

"Counter-revolutionary violence will be met with revolutionary violence." When Negroes react against conditions, it is not a riot but a rebellion, Brown said. He described the anti-riot bill approved by the U.S. House of Representatives, as a "picaresque" step.

Although there is plenty of pomp and formality scheduled, the theme underlying much of the visit's preparation stresses fun such as street dancing, folk-singing and fireworks.

It is going to be a warm-hearted welcome with, according to plans, thousands of tiny tots waving flags of France and Quebec wherever the general goes. And four organizers anticipate several unscheduled stops at the general's request.

De Gaulle will disembark at Wolfe's Cove beneath the cliffs of the Plains of Abraham where New France fell to British forces in 1759. Much notice has been given that this harbor property belongs to the government of Canada.

He will be greeted by Gov. Gen. Roland Michener and travel across the plains, also Canadian government territory, to the Citadel, summer residence of the Governor-General, where there will be a federal reception.

Triumphant visit in St. Pierre De Gaulle leaves French islands, headed for Que.

ST. PIERRE (CP) — French President Charles de Gaulle left here Thursday night for Quebec City following a triumphant 10-hour visit to the small French fishing islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon.

Cries of "Vive la France" and "Vive de Gaulle" from hundreds of dockside spectators and a blare of horns from trawlers in the harbor echoed across the water as the French President stepped aboard a motor launch at about 7:10 p.m. EDT.

He boarded the French cruiser Colbert anchored just inside the harbor entrance as fog began rolling in from the sea blotting out the sun.

The Colbert and its destroyer escort Bouvet will be met by the Canadian navy destroyers Skeena and Terra Nova this morning in Cabot Strait, 25 miles southwest of Cape Ray, Nfld.

They will escort the Colbert up the St. Lawrence Gulf and river to Quebec City.

The French President received a tumultuous welcome when he arrived here Thursday morning.

CHEERED BY THOUSANDS — Under sunny skies the 76-year-old president was cheered by thousands as he drove from the quay where he landed aboard a motor launch.

The French tricolor flag fluttered from windows as his car moved along narrow streets from the harbor to the main square—La Place de General de Gaulle.

Residents swarmed around his car as the President shook hands and chatted while being escorted to a dais in the square.

In the afternoon Gen. de Gaulle met local government officials to discuss the territory's problems, later he visited the city hall and inspected a $3,000,000 harbor development before attending a reception at the governor's residence.

In his address to hundreds massed in La Place de General de Gaulle he said St. Pierre and Miquelon have been a token of French independence from everybody.

The agreement also provided that the trip by train from Montreal to Ottawa was matter for the Canadian commission for state visits to arrange.

Roger Cyr, director of the provincial government's office of information and publicity, told the news conference that the federal government could not be allowed to arrange General de Gaulle's visit to Quebec City "because of its way of falsifying everything."

Approves sale of La Presse

QUEBEC (CP) — The public bills committee of the legislature Thursday approved a bill to permit sale of Montreal La Presse to the Trans-Canada Corp. Fund of Montreal.

The bill now goes to the legislative assembly for a third reading and to the legislative council, Quebec's upper house, before receiving royal assent.

The committee approved a redrafted bill with major changes compared with the original draft, which had received approval in principle from the legislative assembly.

Biggest change was that the legislature retains the right to authorize any change in control of La Compagnie de Publication de La Presse Ltée.

LAW LIMITS SALE

Legislative action to permit the sale was necessary because of a 1961 law limiting sale of La Presse Co. shares to within the family of the newspaper's founder.

Premier Daniel Johnson said sale of La Presse ends an era of newspaper tradition in the family of the late Trefle Berthiaume, considered the paper's founder, who died in 1915.

"We are all sad to see the end of an era, a glorious era for La Presse," Mr. Johnson said. "We wish the new owners success."

The 1961 legislation restricted sale of shares to within the family until the youngest of the great-grandchildren of the late Mr. Berthiaume became 21, which would occur in 1975.

The legislature, petitioned by the family, was asked to eliminate this restriction since all members involved have agreed to Trans-Canada's offer. Terms of sale have not been disclosed.

Also involved in the transaction are the French-language weekly newspaper La Patrie and CKAC, oldest French-language radio station in Canada.

Ottawa is accused of trying to interfere

HULL, Que. (CP) — Marcel Masse, minister without portfolio attached to the Quebec education department, Thursday accused the federal government of having tried to interfere in the organization of the visit by General de Gaulle to Quebec City Sunday.

He told a news conference at city hall in Hull that a previous agreement between Quebec and Ottawa had the Quebec government alone in charge of protocol arrangements for the French president's visit to the provincial capital and for his motor trip to Montreal.

In Montreal, Mr. Masse added, the arrangements for Gen. de Gaulle's visit to Expo fell under the jurisdiction of the world's fair which is under the authority of the federal government.

Biggest, brashest bash

Quebec goes all out for de Gaulle visit

QUEBEC (CP) — The state visit of President de Gaulle of France shapes up as the biggest, brashest and costliest bash in the history of what Premier Daniel Johnson calls the French-Canadian nation.

The Quebec government has prepared an all-stops-pulled welcome for the general, who arrives July 23 aboard the French navy cruiser Colbert to begin a five-day state visit to Canada.

Most of the visit will be spent in this province. The accent of elaborate preparations, intricate right down to the last fleur-de-lys in detail, is on a popular tour of the French president among the people of France's former colony in North America.

Official predictions of Quebecers who will line streets and highways to glimpse the general exceed 1,000,000. Thousands of flags of France and Quebec line the route and the cost of it all is in the tens of thousands.

It's a headache for police, but no concern is shown for the general's personal safety. Police say the biggest problems will be posed by crowd and traffic control along the many miles of de Gaulle's Quebec travels.

Although there is plenty of pomp and formality scheduled, the theme underlying much of the visit's preparation stresses fun such as street dancing, folk-singing and fireworks.

It is going to be a warm-hearted welcome with, according to plans, thousands of tiny tots waving flags of France and Quebec wherever the general goes. And four organizers anticipate several unscheduled stops at the general's request.

CANADA'S CENTURY A news background special on the Centennial of Confederation

Canada's On The Move On Land, Sea And Air

(Eighteenth of A Series) By WALT McDAYTER — Transportation has always been a king-size problem in Canada, but this is hardly surprising when one remembers that Canada is a king-size country. In fact, she is the second largest in the world (the Soviet Union is first), boasting a territory of 3,851,909 square miles!

When the first settlers came to Canada, apart from a few moccasin-treaded forest trails, there were no avenues at all into the interior. Early pioneers built their homes along the coasts and on the shores of the St. Lawrence, and on rivers draining into it.

But soon the fur traders set out to barter with Indians in the hinterland. They adopted the Indian birch-bark canoe, and as trade grew more lucrative and cargoes bigger, the canoe was replaced by the bateau, then the Durham boat, and finally the versatile York boat.

There were many obstacles in the natural water routes . . . from rapids, long portages, and shallow waters . . . and to overcome these, canals had to be built.

Canada's largest "canal" is the St. Lawrence Seaway, completed Apr. 1, 1959, linking Montreal to the Great Lakes. It brought deep-sea shipping to the Lakes for the first time.

The first large ship to sail the Great Lakes was the Griffon, built at Niagara in 1679 by Caveller de La Salle. Unfortunately, she sank with a load of furs on her maiden expedition.

It was in 1806 that the first road was built in Canada. Directed by Samuel de Champlain, its surface was simply laid-out logs. It stretched 10 miles, from Port Royal to Digby Cape . . . a sad forerunner compared to the Trans-Canada Highway, completed in 1962, which crosses 4,860 miles of Canadian territory. Today Canada has 450,000 miles of road and highway serving the 6 million motor vehicles in the nation.

The aviation age dawned in Canada on Feb. 23, 1909, when John McCurdy flew the Silver Dart over Brass D'Oor Lake, N.S., and became the first man to fly in Canada. The Silver Dart was designed by Alexander Graham Bell.

Veteran World War I pilots initiated many a commercial airline in Canada, pioneering the routes of the sophisticated jet domestic airliners of today. Trans-Canada Airlines (now Air Canada) was founded as a government agency in 1937, and Canadian Pacific Airlines was established five years later.

Aviation played an invaluable role in Canadian development, especially in the far north. Bush pilots such as "Punch" Dickins, "Doc" Oaks, and "Wop" May have opened up vast areas of the northland, where once only men on snowshoes could venture.

The first was in 1779, between Lake St. Louis and Lake St. Francis. No Suez Canal this, it was just wide enough for a bateau to squeeze through.

After Confederation, the Canadian government launched a concerted program to increase and improve canals throughout the new nation, to spur trade. The famous Welland Canal near Niagara, first built in 1824, was just one of many widened and deepened.

Back from prison-like atmosphere of Congo

"We felt like prisoners. From 6 p.m. till 6 a.m. we couldn't even cross the street to see our neighbors. We didn't know what was going on."

Philippe Sharp, seated now in the tranquility of his father-in-law's Sherbrooke home, shook his head as if he wasn't sure what he had just said was really over. Mr. Sharp, who arrived in Sherbrooke only last Monday from the Democratic Republic of the Congo (formerly the Belgian Congo) where he was in charge of scholarships at the General Secretariat of the Lovanium University, was referring to the hostilities in the Congo July 5-12.

Mr. Sharp at this time was at Lovanium University, about 15 miles from Kinshasa (formerly Leopoldville). "There was no fighting near Kinshasa but the tension was very high. At the university during the day we were not allowed to leave the campus and at night

By PETER VERRAL (Record Staff Reporter)

"This 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew was in force throughout the Congo and nobody was allowed to leave or enter the country during the week of July 5-12," he said.

"During this time we were subject to halt and search inspections by the National Congolese Army (ANC). These soldiers had the authority to search our cars had the proper registration and that our identification papers were in order."

Mr. Sharp said there was a heavy fighting in Bukavu as well as Kisangani. "All of the people injured in the fighting were brought to the Lovanium University Hospital, and last Thursday two planes arrived at the hospitals — with casualties from the fighting in Kisangani."

"Also," he added, "the Congolese government took all non-nationals out of the 'haut' Congo region where the fighting was and brought them to Kinshasa.

Fortunately Mrs. Sharp, who graduated from the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital in 1961, was not with her husband at the university. She returned to Canada last May.

On July 14, Mr. Sharp was able to get a seat on the second plane out of the Congo since the violence began. "This wasn't an evacuation," he insisted. "Although the Boeing 1 was on lacked first class seats to make more room, this was mainly because all flights in and out of the Congo were one week behind schedule because of the fighting."

"My flight had about 198 people aboard. When it arrived in Brussels we were met by great crowds of anxious relatives and friends who had heard the reports of the trouble in the Congo. They were certainly relieved to see familiar faces."

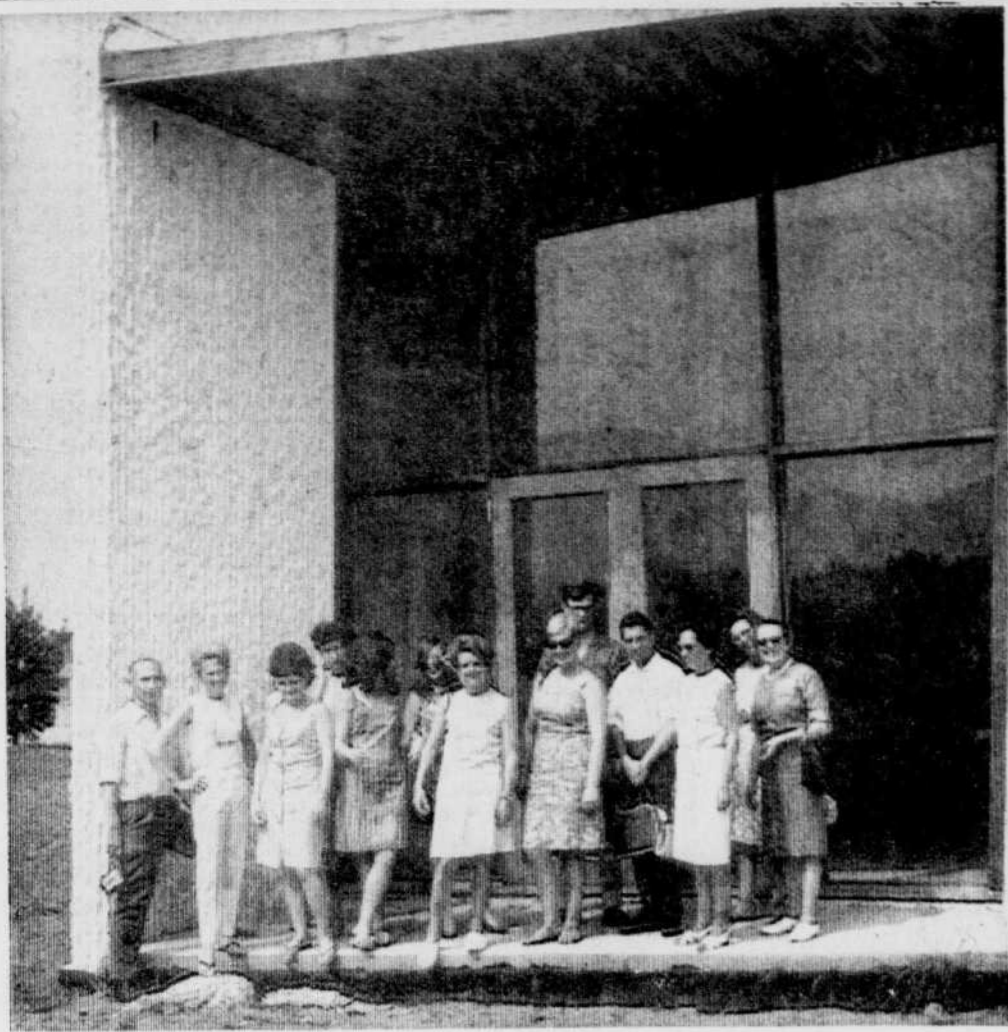

"One reason for this apprehension," he suggested, "was probably because the first plane out of the Congo stopped over in Paris and so our plane was really the first to reach Belgium. There or four days after I left the Congo, things were pretty much back to normal."

In fact by the week's end the Kisangani radio announced that the Mobutu forces had recaptured Kisangani and Bukavu.

However, not all of their three year stay in the Congo was a period of tension and anxiety for the Sharps. Mrs. Sharp, who was working at the maternity ward of the university hospital, found many differences from her training in Sherbrooke's St. Vincent de Paul Hospital.

The delegates from over 15 countries arrived by bus from Montreal in the early afternoon, and firstly took to the cool water to escape the very humid weather.

Others lounged on the grass and enjoyed a short snack. The dignitaries, among them Sir Ernest and Mrs. Macmillan, formerly one of Canada's foremost conductors, arrived by private car, after having picnicked at the summit of Mount Orford.

At 4 p.m. shortly after the VIP's had arrived, all were requested to gather in the concert hall for a short program.

These visiting delegates who came to Orford yesterday, returned to Montreal to attend a concert of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra at Salle

CASSVILLE MEMORIAL MONUMENT

Cassville memorial dedicated

By IVY HATCH (Record Correspondent)

CASSVILLE — (Special) — Despite the inclement weather of last Sunday, the dedication ceremony of the memorial monument took place in Cassville on the site of the old church which was dismantled a year ago.

There were mixed feelings among those attending, including memories of past years when the old church played such an active part of the pioneers way of life, its closing and opening once a year for a service of worship when friends would gather from far and near to attend.

Then the announcement that the church was unsafe for further use and there were no funds to renovate, the decision was made that it must be taken down.

Much of the interior of the church was donated to the Stanstead Historical Society for preservation and is in the Rock Island museum.

In the place of the church stands a monument, designed by Jack Anderson of Beebe and a committee, and made of local granite stone in a half circle, engraved with the words, "Cassville United Church, 1806-1966" which sits upon a granite base.

This church was built in 1806 and served the people for miles around the then popular settlement of Cassville. Families came to church in horse and buggy in the early days. They brought their mid-day lunch and after the service picnicked on the grounds.

Some of the materials used to build the church in 1806 were taken from the Old Union Church at North Stanstead, the latter being the first Christian church in the area.

Rev. Geoffrey Joyce, of Rock Island, was one of the speakers at the dedication service on Sunday afternoon. He paid tribute to those early settlers who had built the church and their descendants and all who came to worship.

Rev. A. B. Lovelace of Sherbrooke, secretary for the Quebec Sherbrooke Presbytery, said that although the building is gone, in reality the people had taken their church with them when they left to take up new lives in other parts of the country for the Christian teaching of this church was their inheritance and it will remain always with them.

Alan Law, Montreal, and David Joyce, Rock Island, spoke briefly as did Rev. James Brooks of Waterville.

The choir of Beulah United Church, Ayer's Cliff, which in the past had sung at the annual services, were here on Sunday. Arrangements are being made for the grounds on the site to be landscaped and to have per-

Hees and Fleming to visit Sherbrooke

At least three of the eight men seeking the leaderships of the national Progressive Conservative party at the convention being held in Toronto in September will visit the Sherbrooke area to seek support of the regional delegates.

Following Thursday's announcement that Hon. Davie Fulton would be here at the beginning of next week, supporters of Hon. George Hees and Hon. Donald Fleming stated that their favourites would also visit Sherbrooke to hold regional caucuses.

Mr. Hees plans to be here about August 1 while Mr. Fleming's meeting will take place towards the end of August.

Mr. Fulton plans to meet the delegates from Sherbrooke, Compton and Richmond counties in Sherbrooke Monday evening and also will hold a press conference.

Sherbrooke County delegates to the national convention are Liguori Brodeur, Charles Samson, Yves Comtois, Yves O'Ready and Miss Claudette Steinman.

Two other Sherbrooke residents will also attend the rally as part of the Quebec province delegation — Stanley Steinman, vice-president of the Quebec Progressive Conservative Association, and Roland Dugre, QC.

Stanstead Legion Auxiliary tea to benefit student bursary fund

STANSTEAD — The meeting of the Auxiliary of Frontier Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion was held July 4 in the Memorial Home.

It was agreed to hold the autumn tea and sale on Oct. 14, in the Memorial Home. Proceeds will be for the benefit of two student bursaries of $50 each, to go to a son or daughter of a veteran or Auxiliary member planning to further their education, following graduation from High School. Mrs. Gladys Chartier and Mrs. Margaret Black, chairman of the July 1 celebrations at the Memorial Park, Beebe, and the float, gave reports and expressed appreciation to those who had contributed to the successful event.

Mrs. Leslie presented to Mrs. Gladys Hunter, the Past President's pin and Legion medal. She paid tribute to Mrs. Hunter for her efficiency and leadership.

Plans were made to cater for a July wedding reception.

Mrs. John Heald and Mrs. Gladys Hunter agreed to chair the October tea and refreshment arrangements.

Condition improved

Henri Goudreau, 21, of 9 Pearce Street, Stanstead, was reported in improved condition at the St. Vincent de Paul hospital this morning.

Mr. Goudreau suffered injuries to his abdomen last Wednesday afternoon when he lost control of his gravel truck and hit a row of trees on RR 1 Georgeville near the Ridgewood Inn.

Mr. Goudreau, who was unconscious when he was admitted to the hospital last Wednesday, has now regained consciousness.

Launch local historical museum

Decision of the Sherbrooke Seminary to hand over to the Eastern Townships Historical Society its valuable historical collection built up over the past 75 years will be welcomed by history lovers, who have long felt, perhaps without reason, that the Canadiana on display at the Seminary represented more or less a private collection.

In possession of the Historical Society they will form the basis of an historical museum open to viewing by the public.

But the transfer also creates certain problems which must be solved before the museum becomes a reality.

One is the selection of a proper building in which to house the collection.

Most generally favored is the present

City Hall which it is hoped will be replaced by a new structure in the near future.

The proposition has certain advantages, one of which should be a comparatively low capital cost provided there is proper co-operation between the municipal, provincial and federal authorities, which might offset certain weaknesses including parking difficulties.

Another major problem will be that of financing the maintenance and operation of the museum once it is established.

This amounts to a substantial sum annually and it is essential that some adequate source of income—either through government grants or endowments—be assured before the project is launched.

Reverses cooling Red ambitions?

The reportedly cool reception given by the Kremlin to the demands by certain Arab leaders visiting Moscow for increased military aid in a possible renewal of the Holy War with Israel is understandable in view of the sorry showing by successive Communist governments in the domestic and foreign fields since 1945.

In the internal field, the economy lags dismally and foreign visitors from advancing Western countries find that life for the ordinary Russians seems drab and dismal.

Russian ventures abroad in attempting to reshape the course of affairs in other nations have been attended with an almost uniform record of reverses, some of them being extremely embarrassing to say the least.

The most recent failure of Russian foreign policy in the Middle East undoubtedly has caused a great deal of soul-searching within the Kremlin, as the complete rout of Russian-armed and Russian-trained Arab forces by tiny Israel during the short desert war represented a costly setback for Soviet policy aimed at gaining strategic and political control of the Middle East.

While Khrushchev was fired for his disastrous adventure in Cuba, it is less likely that heads will roll in the Kremlin following the Arab debacle because now there is no single individual in control.

However appearances may require that one or more of the top leaders be replaced before long, a factor that may be contributing to the reluctance of the Russian chiefs to commit themselves too drastically in the still-troubled Eastern Mediterranean area.

One of the weaknesses of successive Soviet leaders has been the obsession for becoming the world's greatest military power and spreading the Communist revolution all over the globe.

To this end they have diverted resources badly needed for improving their domestic economy, with the result that Russia is a poor showcase of what Communism can do for the people.

It is regrettable, for the Russians themselves and the world at large, that the Red dictatorship cannot shake itself loose from its long-established fetishes and adopt some sane national and international policies.

A tropical paradise

But Maldives offer no housing

MALE, Maldives (AP)—If you've been looking for an isolated tropic isle, a place where you can get away from television, city noise, smog, and lung cancer statistics, consider the Maldives Islands.

The Maldives—pronounced as in leaves—have no television, no smog, no income tax, no property tax, no banks, no gas stations, no political parties and no dogs.

If you are tired of your wife, all you have to do is to walk to the city square, repeat three times, "I divorce you," and just like that, instant bachelorhood. Or, if you are so inclined, you can pick up another wife, or as many as four—all at the same time; it is perfectly legal here.

Money doesn't grow on trees in the Maldives, but it can be picked up along the beaches at low tide. Cowry shells, the home of a type of mollusk, are found in abundance and they are as good as money.

According to Webster's, the cowry has been used as money in Africa and some Asiatic countries. It was the "coin of the realm" in the Maldives for years. According to street corner gossip here in Male, the Maldives' capital, two countries will even today buy a cowrie in some places in Africa.

GOOD VACATION SPOT

All this should make for a fairly decent place to vacation, if not retire. But there are some substantial drawbacks, among them the fact that the Maldives just aren't ready for visitors.

First of all, it isn't easy to get to the Maldives, an archipelago of about 2,000 islands with a population of fewer than 100,000 tucked away in the north Indian Ocean. About once a month a chartered Air Ceylon twin-engine plane flies the 400 miles to the Maldives from Colombo, Ceylon, with cargo, mail and perhaps a passenger or two.

The two-hour flight is out for most visitors though, because the Maldivian ambassador in Colombo will, as he put it, "issue a visa only when accommodations are available, and there are no accommodations."

It was able to make arrangements with Capt. P. P. Nair of the Ocean Princess, a 2,500-ton British cargo ship under charter to the Maldives, to use the stateroom of a ship's officer who was on leave and to sleep aboard ship the five nights she would be in harbor.

None of the 2,000 islets, which about 215 are inhabited, is more than five square miles in area and all are level and low-lying.

Little was heard of the Maldives until 1965, when this newly-independent country of about 97,000 population surprised the United Nations by Indian Ocean. About once a month a chartered Air Ceylon twin-engine plane flies the 400 miles to the Maldives from Colombo, Ceylon, with cargo, mail and perhaps a passenger or two.

Other tiny former colonies such as Guyana and Barbados have been admitted to the United Nations since then, but the Maldives are still the smallest in population and area—112 square miles.

"HE'S NOT ABOARD AT PRESENT... OFF FOR A STROLL..."

French Canada says:

Cultural jurisdiction quarrel nothing but a useless runabout

Montreal La Presse—It had to be expected. The awarding of a $100,000 federal grant to the Cultural Centre of Old Montreal and the statements by Pierre Elliott Trudeau on Ottawa's jurisdiction in the cultural field could only revive an old controversy which resembles in many respects a dialogue between deaf persons.

In a place where intelligent co-operation could accomplish wonders or at least achieve something positive and valid, partisan hostility leads only to a runaround.

What results from the "lively debate" that took place Friday in the legislative assembly between spokesmen for the government and opposition?

On the level of principles, the federal justice minister spiritedly defended a thesis which has been discussed for a number of years. It cannot be contested that, basing itself on the text of the constitution, silent on the question (since a century ago the word "culture" was unknown on this side of the Atlantic), the federal government possesses a certain jurisdiction in cultural matters.

For this simple reason, it is nowhere stated in the British North America Act that aid to culture, that is to arts and sciences, extensions of education, is within the jurisdiction of the provinces. Nor is it stated that this assistance is the responsibility of the federal government.

While waiting for a new constitution to define jurisdiction in this field, it would be much better to seek a reasonable "modus vivendi," beneficial for all, than to return to a sterile controversy at the least excuse.

Unlike Mr. Trudeau, we do not believe that it is a good thing for two levels of government to try to outbid one another in the field of culture. Very often it can lead to duplication of effort, as well as to waste of public funds and creative energies.

In a general way, the state or the government of Quebec must be able to direct the development of a culture capable of satisfying the aspirations of the majority of the province's population.

This field should not be left to the federal government, where preoccupations are more widespread. But we will always be in a perilous situation with Ottawa if, after the promising surge of the '60s, we are satisfied with the present inertia.—Cyrille Felteau (July 17)

Granby La Voix de l'Est—In some circles, there are predictions of provincial elections in this fall. . . . Under present circumstances, nothing obliges the Daniel Johnson government of Quebec to go to the people. Without doubt, it would be in the premier's interest to shake up his cabinet. Some of his ministers are really not up to the task. . . . This reorganization, however, can very well be effected without an election. Mr. Johnson can, as Mr. Lesage did a few years ago, go and seek outside his legislature members persons fit to assure an effective provincial administration. . . . The people do not elect governments for one year, two years, but for four years; it is at this time, and at this time only, that judgment can be made on the worthiness of the administration, to replace it or re-elect it.—Roland Gagne (July 14)

Montreal Le Devoir—That there be questions about La Presse passing into other hands is not at all astounding. A daily newspaper is, under our system of government, a private possession. It is normal that individuals conduct transactions with such possessions without having to submit to special interference by the state.

We will go even further: The legislator, who will soon be called on to ratify the transaction, would be ill-advised to make use of a comma in a special law, adopted in 1961, to prevent Trans-Canada Corporation from acquiring La Presse. . . . The transaction being prepared at La Presse may very well give the St. James Street daily the injection of new blood it needs. However, it is linked with other developments which oblige us to raise the broader problem of the future of the French-language press of Quebec province.

Because of the gravity of these problems—and the serious threat they represent to our community and the future of freedom itself—the Quebec government should, while approving the sale of La Presse, take advantage of the event to conduct an inquiry into the daily press.

The inquiry commission would have as mandate the study of present problems and of the future prospects of the daily press. It could study how newspapers are financed, administered, produced from day to day and distributed.

It could document itself on the various types of legal systems which might be envisaged for the daily newspapers. It could obtain information on the technical problems each newspaper must solve.

It would study as a matter of fact the treatment our newspapers give daily to the public's right to factual information. It would collect information on the administrative and editorial personnel of newspapers.

It would gather information on the sources which supply the Quebec dailies with news. It would closely scrutinize the organized labor phenomenon in newspaper enterprises. It would study the influence of advertisers on the volume and output of newspapers.

It would study ways in which it would be possible for the public powers to contribute to the realization of a free press. Finally it could propose the basis for a revision of outmoded laws (they date back more than 40 years) which now govern this field of activity.

At present there exists in the press of Quebec an indefinable malaise which no one has been able to describe precisely. A competent commission of inquiry could help to grasp the cause and the nature of this malaise and to discern the solutions.—Claude Ryan (July 8)

The presentation was made by president George Murphy at the club's weekly dinner-meeting held at the Country Club.

Mr. Murphy said that the gift was a token of appreciation from the club "in view of the honor reflecting on the Sherbrooke Squadron through the fact that the youth was chosen as one of the 46 air cadets selected from all parts of Canada to take part in this trip."

Young Hazle will leave for Montreal on Saturday, to take off next Wednesday for England from Dorval Airport. The cadets will be flown in and R.A.F. Transport Command aircraft. They will be in England from July 31 to August 10.

Not a place, not a location

Expo a state of ecstatic abstraction

By DAVID ALLNUTT (Record Staff Reporter)

MONTREAL — The 1967 Universal and International Exhibition being held in Montreal is not a place, not a location; it is a state of ecstatic abstraction.

The exhibition is not a world's fair, as many would style it. Rather, the spectacle that appears before the eyes of millions of visitors is an enrapturing kaleidoscope of imagery, psychedelia, and all other elements that bombard the senses of human man.

The show presents the achievements and failures of this being, man, and attempts to illustrate how he intends to rectify those conditions of what we call "existence" which present that stark and shattering contrast between two islands and Little Burgundy.

A thousand-acre area in the middle of the St. Lawrence River is the showcase of man, the laboratory of experimental technique, and an embodiment of the idea of co-existence.

The thought of men working together for the betterment of the other is a pleasant one. Hence, the use of the Expo grounds after the exhibition, for a world university could not be more fitting.

While the participating nations endeavor to put their best foot forward, commercialism has been kept out of the fore, and to a minimum.

Only two pavilions have been closed since they had been built, those of Latin American lands and of the oil-rich country of Kuwait. But economics and politics persist in occupying a position at every event.

The ultimate successes and failures of the exposition will be measurable in the years to come. Canadians and visitors alike will feel the spreading effect of what has and will occur on the site and in Montreal due to the dynamic proposal of several men.

Expo has been called a rallying point for all Canadians, but in this concept, it is also a rallying point for ALL creeds and races.

A projected deficit of $138 million will be no waste or loss to our people if Expo produces the effects that Pierre Dupuy and Jean Drapeau have ardently strived and hoped for.

The drawbacks of the exhibition are not to be overlooked, but again, not to be stressed. The atmosphere and the prevailing mood of the Expo site is one of joy and disappointment, hope and sorrow, yet exuberance.

The Centennial spirit is intense and no words or man-made images can aptly describe it. No photographs can portray the ideals that exist. One can truly be "in love" with this show, and it is a unique experience.

The highest ideals of man and men are put on display, and all hope that he will not deceive himself by turning away on October 29 to the savagery that man can well exhibit.

So many buildings, and so many people, from so many different worlds and backgrounds — an interesting reflection. So interesting in fact, that it deserves thought. Expo is food for thought.

There is no more suitable occasion for a visitor to rest and reflect that when his feet are "killing" him after a long trek through "Man and His World."

Reflection upon the diversity of man and his deepest thoughts; the ideas and plans of a Finn who walks by on the journey to his pavilion, in fact our pavilion.

Bureaucracy prevails at Expo in the administration pavilion, but a unique and different brand of that institution of man.

It is bureaucracy in form and name, but hospitality in practice.

Perhaps no World Exposition has come so close to the ultimate ideals of man and his world as this one has.

But Expo 70, to be held in Osaka, Japan from March 15 to September 13 will undoubtedly develop further what the ordinary man esteems and prizes, and idolizes.

Meanwhile, what will happen during those three "empty" years, when we have no specific showcase. The effects of Expo 67 will measure the occurrences during this period, and the idealistic not the commercial success of OUR exhibition will determine the effectiveness of the man's capacity to abstain from his innate savagery.

Totem pole sculptor exhibits in Sutton

SUTTON — (Special) — A display of hand carved Northwest coast Totem Poles by Sammy Robinson of Kitimat Village, B.C., is causing considerable interest in Sutton.

The display is in the window of Jack Sheppard, a Sutton businessman. Mr. Sheppard took advantage of Mr. Robinson being in the district while visiting Expo to arrange the exhibition as part of Sutton's centennial activities.

The display consists of five poles, carved from yellow cedar ranging from twelve to thirty inches in height. Three are composite poles, telling no story but incorporating some of the family crests of the Haisla people a branch of the Kwakwaka'nan nation of which Mr. Robinson is a member. The crests represented include, eagle, raven, wolf, killerwhale or blackfish, frog, grizzly bear, beaver and owl.

Two poles tell legends. Numas the story of an old man whose wife and three sons were cruel to him while the youngest son helped his father and brought retribution on the ones who spurned him.

The Jasee pole, tells the story of the migration of the Haisla people from Alaska, down the coast, up the Skeena River and eventually down the Kitimat Valley to their home on the Douglas Channel, an arm of the Pacific Ocean.

A small carving of a grizzly bear was used to illustrate a book of the legends of a Skeena River people, the Gitsen. This book has been in constant demand by department of anthropology in major universities in America.

Also included in the display is a miniature canoe bailer with a beaver carved for a handle and a ceremonial rattle used in the old days in rituals of secret societies of the native people of the west coast.

The infrequent work of Mr. Robinson considered by a number of authorities as the finest today is in great demand by collectors.

Mr. Robinson and his wife Rose are making their first trip to the east to visit Expo and are the guests of old time friends, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Rough of Sutton Junction.

Canadian teachers win respect of Ghanians

ACCRA (CP) — When a Canadian teacher was fired upon during the Feb. 24, 1966, coup that ousted Kwame Nkrumah, Ghanaian authorities issued maple leaf patches to the teachers to prevent another such incident.

"That's a measure of the respect the teachers have earned since the school opened two years ago," says George Brown, the Irish-born principal of the Accra Technical Trades School.

"That night soldiers were looking for Russians who served in Nkrumah's elite guard. Unfortunately, the teacher was in the area and was stopped. They thought he was a Russian and a shot was fired."

"A Canadian army officer came upon the scene and things were quickly straightened out." The modern stone-and-brick school on the outer edge of this capital was built and equipped by Canada under a special Commonwealth African aid program, said Brown.

All its department heads are recruited from Saskatchewan technical schools at Moose Jaw, Regina and Saskatoon.

"There are 13 of us now and we hope to increase that total if we can get approval to set up an instructor-training program here for Ghanians."

DUTIES DIVIDED

While Canadians plot and administer the over-all courses in each department, 21 Ghanians, all graduates of special two- and three-year courses in Saskatchewan, handle the classroom chores.

"Eventually we hope these people will move up to department heads and we Canadians can withdraw. But that will be a few years yet."

Enrolment in the 7:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. classes now is 300, but if additional teachers can be recruited it is hoped night classes might be initiated.

Ghana, which provided the labor to build the school, is responsible for all operational costs outside salaries paid Canadian teachers.

"You could say Canada provided the car and Ghana the gas, but since the coup the gas

Diefenbaker Lake makes an oasis in wheat belt

ELBOW, Sask. (CP) — An oasis on a grand scale is being created in the midst of the arid wheat farming country of eastern Saskatchewan.

In a tremendous development effort that already is altering the way of life of many of the rural people in this area, a great string of new recreational facilities is being developed along the 475-mile shoreline of Diefenbaker Lake, the reservoir almost filled behind Saskatchewan's Gardiner dam.

The lake, the biggest body of water in the well-populated part of the province, has filled the wide valley of the South Saskatchewan River to a depth of almost 200 feet. The flat prairie and rolling brown hills along the two sides of the river now have a new scenic appeal.

When the three-mile long Gardiner dam is officially dedicated today by Prime Minister Pearson the recreation potential created by the massive structure may take a back seat in many people's minds to the hydro power and irrigation benefits it has conferred.

PEOPLE BENEFIT

But, for Saskatchewan, where the populated areas are generally 100 or more miles from good natural water-based outdoor recreation facilities, a man-made lake of this size is a big event for people as well as industries and farms.

"Pretty well everything we have in water-based recreation facilities is man-made," W. A. Hartwell, the provincial government's director of park operations, said Thursday.

"Water is the basis of a great proportion of outdoor recreation, and this reservoir gives us a lake that many parts of North America would give their eye teeth for."

"The long-range potential of this area can't be foreseen right now, but we think it's going to be tremendous," Mr. Hartwell said.

For the people around the lake it is a godsend, especially during a hot, dry summer like the current one.

Already, regattas and fishing derbies are being held, and powerboats, likely soon to become as much a part of regular farm equipment here as combines, dot the water surface. Hundreds of people are using the six provincial and regional parks now being developed around the lakeshore.

At Riverhurst, a community of about 300 people, 70 miles northwest of Moose Jaw, Mayor Jack Friesen explained:

"Before we got this lake, we had to go away up north for fishing and nobody did much boating at all. There just hasn't been any opportunity around here before now."

"But now people are taking up boating, camping, water skiing. It's really tremendous," Mr. Friesen said.

The Palliser regional park, on the lakeshore, five miles from Riverhurst, is typical of parks under development now.

NEW SWIMPOOL — It includes a popular swimming pool, playground equipment for children, picnic areas and boat-launching facilities.

Since the recreation development work started four years ago in this area, more than 1,000,000 trees have been planted around the lake.

Fisheries experts now are studying what species should be stocked in the lake for anglers. More than $300,000 is being spent by the province in capital and maintenance costs on the development.

Canada peace effort praised

MONTREAL (CP) — Tanzania praised Canada's peace efforts Thursday as she celebrated her national day at Expo 67 under a hot and humid haze.

Rashidi M. Kawawa, second vice-president of the African nation, paid tribute to Canada's effort in the field of peace and assistance to underdeveloped countries.

Mr. Kawawa, accompanied by Mrs. Kawawa, spoke as about 1,500 visitors to Expo watched his country's flag being raised at Place des Nations.

A 19-gun salute was fired from the tip of Cite du Havre at the opening of the ceremony, which included a welcome by Pierre Dupuy, commissioner-general of Expo, and an inspection of a guard of honor of the 3rd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment.

Mr. Kawawa brought greetings from President M. J. K. Nyerere and said that he had come to Expo to express the best wishes to the people of Canada for a happy centennial celebration.

Canada has never abused her international position or demanded subservience in return for her participation and assistance in the problems of other nations despite her strength, he said. He added:

"Despite her size and wealth, Canada demonstrates her sympathy and understanding with the problems of small and underdeveloped countries like my own."

Sutton beats out Expo 67

SUTTON JUNCTION — (Special) — What's the biggest attraction in Canada this year? Expo? You are wrong as far as Anne Pousette aged nine and John, 11, of Terrace, British Columbia are concerned.

Anne's big thrill came when she visited Madame Jeanne Benoit, Canada's favourite cook who lives up East Hill way, near the top of the Rosenbury Road.

Anne watched Madame Benoit at every opportunity on TV clipped her pictures and recipes from magazines and newspapers.

The Pousettes were staying with Stan and Bert Rough at Sutton Junction and arrangements were made for Anne to meet Madame Benoit.

Finally the great day arrived and little Anne, dressed in her best dress visited Madame Benoit in her home.

Madame Benoit was most kind and understanding and talked to the little girl about cooking and what a fascinating and wonderful art it is and drew Anne out with questions about her likes in the culinary field.

The visit was over all too soon for Anne but she came away with an autographed cookbook and something to tell her friends in far off Terrace.

John wanted to see the United States so after Sutton's Centennial Food Fair and before the opening of the Art and Antique Exhibition and Centennial Fashion Show his hosts took him for a drive down to Riverhurst.

As the party passed through the customs and into the States little John was amazed, "Why it's no different from Canada," he exclaimed.

He too will have tales to tell to his friends in Terrace.

A splurge of noise greets Queen mother

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A 21-gun royal salute echoed across the harbor and church bells pealed gaily as Queen Mother Elizabeth arrived Thursday for her first visit to the province of Newfoundland.

She paid her last visit here with her husband, King George VI, in 1939 when the island was still a British colony. Newfoundland became a province in 1949.

More than 30,000 people lined the streets of the oldest seaport in North America, to see the Queen Mother drive by in a convertible. She wore a deep pink dress with matching hat and sparkling diamond brooch on her shoulder.

The biggest crowd assembled at the government wharf where the royal yacht Britannia docked at 9 a.m. NDT. There were about 4,000 people at the dock by 11.15 a.m. when the Queen Mother emerged from the yacht to be greeted by Newfoundland's Lt.-Gov. Fabian O'Dea, Premier Joseph Smallwood and Transport Minister Jack Pickersgill, Newfoundland's representative in the federal cabinet, who was here to welcome the Queen Mother on behalf of Prime Minister Pearson.

WAVED TO CROWD — A few minutes earlier, the Queen Mother made a surprise momentary appearance on the deck to wave to the rapidly-growing crowd at the wharf.

Early in the morning hundreds of St. John's residents swarmed over Signal Hill to watch the Britannia glide gracefully through the narrows, entrance to hill-encircled St. John's harbor.

Temperatures rose to the high 80s, under sunny skies by late morning as the Queen Mother arrived outside Memorial Stadium to review the Church Lads Brigade, a Church of England youth movement based on military principles.

She stopped to talk to officers of the Brigade, which is led by a prominent Newfoundland lawyer, Col. Gordon Stirling. Among the members of the movement reviewed by the Queen Mother were six church lads from Bermuda, here for a summer exchange visit.

CHILDREN CHEERED — A thousand children made a joyful cheering uproar when the Queen Mother drove inside Memorial Stadium to pay a brief visit to a rally which included brownies, guides, cubs and boy scouts.

She told the children in a brief speech:

"In this, your Centennial Year, the emphasis has been on youth, because it is on you that the future depends."

"During the past ten days, it has given me very great pleasure to see as much as possible of the Atlantic provinces, and wherever I went, I have been made welcome by the smiling faces of the younger generation.

"In 1939, when I was last here, I remember so well attending a youth rally, and I am sure that many of the children of those who were there on that occasion, are here today."

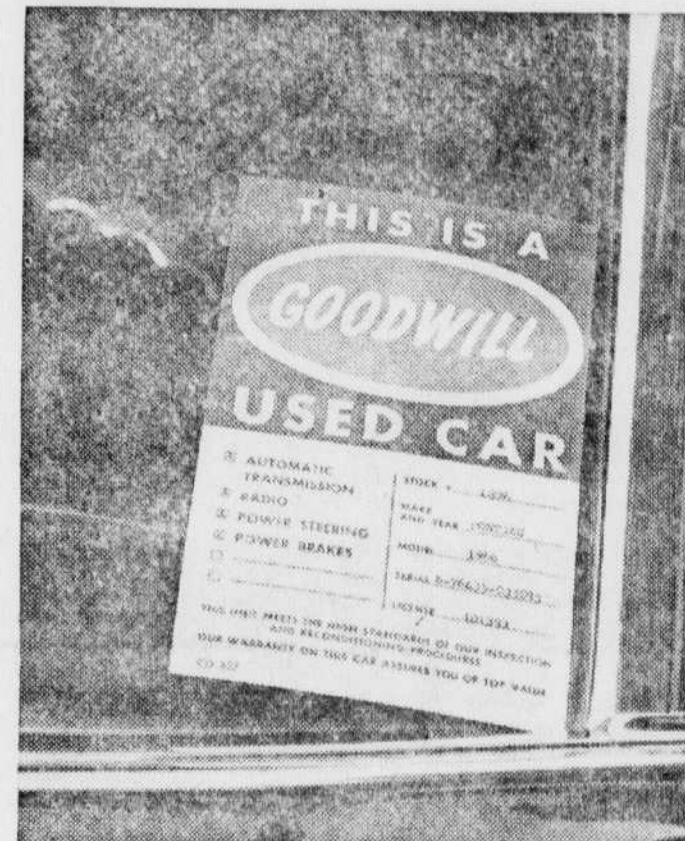

As the children cheered the Queen Mother ended her speech with these words:

"In giving you my warmest greetings, I would like to include all the children and young people throughout the length and breadth of Canada."

ATTENDS CEREMONY — After a luncheon at Government House, the Queen Mother attended a trooping of the color ceremony at Pleasantville, near Quidi Vidi Lake. The ceremony was performed by the Royal Newfoundland Regiment.

The Queen Mother then presented the Canadian Forces Decoration to the Honorary Lt.-Col. of the regiment, Mr. Albert Martin. The decoration is given after 12 years of service in the Canadian forces.

The Queen Mother continues her visit to St. John's today with a visit to Memorial University and a garden party at Government House. She will end her 13-day centennial tour of the Atlantic provinces Saturday when she flies home to London on an RCAF Yukon aircraft.

Allow time for beauty care

Along with summer blossoms come summer brides, prettiest of the year in their white wedding gowns, the stars of their day. Every bride wants to arrive at the church looking cool and unflustered. Plans centre around the marriage preparations for weeks ahead: The wedding gown is chosen, the reception arranged, guests invited. In the midst of all the details, the bride may forget to plan an important part of her schedule for "The Day," her beauty routine. One of the great secrets of arriving at any big occasion looking pink with radiance, rather than flushed from hurrying, is to allow time for hairdressing and makeup, says hair color beauty expert Anne Karpati. "Set aside at least an hour to avoid uncomfortable last minute rush," she advises. Anne believes starting beauty preparations for this important day at least two weeks ahead. Permanent waves are best done that far in advance because the waves are given a chance to settle, she says. Haircoloring, which must never be done at the same time as permanent waving, can then follow a week later. Hair condition is important to the bride also. Dry hair can be made more manageable, less fly-away, if it is given deep penetrating conditioning treatments. Conditioning is for normal hair too, especially on the day when the wedding coiffure is created: A special one-minute treatment applied after shampoo and rinse can be left on the hair to continue its work and improve the staying-power of the set also. "Remember that haircolor plays a large part in choosing makeup, and cosmetics should be color keyed to the hair for the bride to achieve the ideal look," Anne recommends. "Fashion in both clothing and makeup calls for the total look." Most brides have one important fact on their side when they're choosing makeup, she comments. That is a youthful skin. "Too many girls forget that young skin needs only a touch of makeup and use cosmetics unsuitably. Bridal makeup, in particular, should be delicate and transparent to give the bride a delicate look." The bride should aim for pastel shaded makeup, not a pallor, says Anne, and the lipstick look is out. The lips should be touched with pale pink or coral, and a dash of flicker stick for special radiance. She suggests that makeup base be toned to skin and hair color, so a honey blonde with light pink skin tones would select a light ivory foundation, while a brunette with medium pink skin coloring would select one in a light beige. How far to go down the throat? No need at all, says Anne, but she advises to check against demarcation lines at the jawbone. She dislikes the heavily made-up look created when cosmetics are extended down the throat, and points out that it's unnecessary to do so. Powder, the same shade, or in a tone to blend with the foundation, should be fluffed on generously and pressed into the skin. Next comes eyeshadow, which should also be keyed to hair color. Cheek blusher is also color keyed to hair.

No hanky panky allowed here

TUNIS (Reuters) — Casanova was in Tunisia, where Islam is the state religion, now risk a prison sentence as courts become more stern in cases involving "immoral behavior." As these cases increase, newspapers frequently publish reports of court sentences on seducers or men who fail to keep their marriage vows. Some unfaithful wives also go to prison. In one of the most serious cases, a grandfather fell in love with his married grand-daughter and she with him. He was sent to prison for five years. A photographer who had a love affair with a girl after she "provocatively" walked into his studio was accused by her later of failing to keep his promise to marry her and was imprisoned for three months. In another case a young Tunisian who approached a foreign girl tourist in the street and tried to embrace her was sentenced to three months' imprisonment. A six-month sentence was passed on a married man with four children who fell in love with a girl, although she later was declared a virgin by an examining doctor.

SENT TO PRISON
A woman and her lover, her husband's friend, were both imprisoned for four months and a woman who abandoned her husband and went to live with another man received a six-month sentence.

The signal for fighting adultery and "guilty relationships" was given by President Bourguiba. "Relations between sexes, although natural, can be legitimate only if consecrated by marriage," the 63-year-old Tunisian leader told a gathering of judges. He attacked seducers for whom, he said, there should be no clemency.

"The state has the task of protecting young girls who are in practice the only ones to suffer from the evil consequences of guilty relationships," he said. President Bourguiba played a decisive role in emancipating Tunisian women and giving them equal rights with men. He sometimes defied Arab traditions and even the established rules of the Moslem religion, but he is anxious that this new freedom shall not go too far too fast. Last year he banned mini-skirts, Beatle-style haircuts and morbid and degrading dances originating in the Western world. This year, mini-skirts and bushy hair styles have reappeared in the streets of the capital. L'Action, the official Tunisian newspaper, says: "Against wind and tide, the mini-skirt endures. It can be seen everywhere again—with what it allows to be seen in addition."

Accident therapy brings embroidery fame

en and Volendam; the costumes worn today, are resplendent with embroidery. For today's needleworker, Mrs. Dreesmann pointed out there are two basic kinds of embroidery. One is governed by the structure of the fabric; the other treats fabric as a background for the stitches. Rarely is a person gifted in both embroidery forms and you must experiment to learn which area best suits your skill. Mrs. Dreesmann studied at the Royal School of Needlework in London, where she received technical training and developed her needlework skill. Her belief that needlework gives a woman both esthetic and creative fulfillment is proved by her own accomplishments. Mrs. Dreesmann is recognized as one of the world's great authorities in embroidery. She's an internationally known lecturer, has instructed more than 1,500 women in embroidery and has written many books and articles on the subject. Her work has been photographed and reproduced for cards, calendars and record album covers. Mrs. Dreesmann lives in Laren, near Amsterdam, and she has an atelier and embroidery workshop in her 18th century farmhouse. Her lovely House of Orange Panels, chronicling in stitches and semiprecious stones the history of Holland's royal family, are on display at The Netherlands Pavilion at Expo 67.

When you travel in The Netherlands you can see Mrs. Dreesmann's work in her shop in the center of Amsterdam. Needlework is exhibited widely in the museum of the country, also, and in such villages as Mark

Specialty shops help ballet guild

TORONTO (CP)—Standing behind the National Ballet of Canada is a budding chain of stores specializing in the sale of all sorts of things made of paper. Two such stores are in operation and two more are soon to open. Run by volunteers from the National Ballet Guild of Canada, they turn their profits over to the ballet company to help pay its expenses. The stores are called Paper Things and they sell such items as paper flowers, gift wrap, place mats, writing paper, bags, decorations and even paper birds. The original Paper Things is a boutique in Toronto's Colonnade, an indoor shopping centre in the fashionable Bay - Bloor area. It was opened in October, 1963, and last year made $17,000 profit. A second store is operated in Windsor, Ont., by the local branch of the guild. Montreal will open one in Westmount Plaza and Toronto will get a second, in the downtown Toronto Dominion Centre. Mrs. St. Clair Balfour, who has been chairman of the original store, will be chairman of the new Toronto outlet, due to open in September. Mrs. Balfour, wife of the president of Southern Press Ltd., says the stores are staffed entirely by volunteers who work as buyers, sales clerks and stock room staff. It takes about 50 volunteers, including the chairman whose job has become almost a full-time one as business has increased. The Toronto store is open six days a week. Sales volunteers work one four-hour shift each week. They are organized by a volunteer chairman with the help of daily captains. Mrs. Balfour explains the guild's main function is to raise money. It also sells tickets and dispenses information about ballet and the company. The store helps it do all these things. People aren't necessarily aware at first that the guild runs the store but they see the volunteers there and the volunteers wear smocks that identify the organization. Customers can pick up ticket-order forms and information in the store. "People are contributing now that we wouldn't reach in any other way," Mrs. Balfour says. As a bonus, the store gives members an extra sense of involvement and has been a morale-booster for the whole group. "We needed a continuing project so we shouldn't have to be casting about for ways of making money or jumping at a project whether it was suitable or not. We thought paper was a coming thing and we could develop this idea and narrow the field of buying. With an ordinary gift shop our field would have been so vast we wouldn't have known what to do. We try to keep our prices competitive. We don't mark things up because we are the National Ballet Guild. We have a buying staff who go to the gift shows and keep in touch with suppliers."

Bare look is back

NEW YORK — Dior's suits loose, often caught in at the waist or top of the hip by gold chain links. You're going to see and worn with a soft version of a man's shirt. Waists are accentuated by belts. Jackets are smooth fitting. Skirts are pieated all around or have a deeply inverted front pleat or are slightly flared. Every suit has a hat. Hats are strong for fall. It started with the safari hat in Paris. Dior's suit look is completed by textured stockings and square-toe, square-heeled shoes which don't look bulky. But don't fret. Even the Duchess of Windsor has taken to wearing textured stockings. The side-buttoned slim coat is a Dior trademark. There are also two other coat looks: loose with the flare starting with narrow shoulders and ending in a full or modified A shape; and the slim, close body-hugger. The dresses are slim and have been with us so long.

Paper wardrobe craze makes the fashion scene

NEW YORK (AP)—The fun is in the bag—the paper bag—this summer. Paper bikinis, paper surf jackets, paper bras, paper culottes, Lord and Taylor, the New York-based department store chain. "Only time will tell if it is a fad. If designing keeps good, it will be lasting." "The whole area has begun to expand like crazy," said a spokesman for Kimberly - Stevens Corp., a major supplier of paper-type material which is 93 per cent cellulose and seven per cent nylon. Americans spent $3,500,000 on paper clothes last year when the first paper togery was introduced. This summer the paper caper is bigger than ever. Designs are more elaborate, prints are colorful. "We're doing fantastically," said William Guggenheim III, 28-year-old former stockbroker who opened In Disposable Disposables, a paper shop, on New York's Upper East Side last month. He predicts it soon will be a $1,000,000-a-year industry. By 1980, paper will account for 25 per cent of the apparel business, predicts Oliver James at Sterling, 30, a former Texas oilman. Sterling set up shop this year and now has six plants turning out 15,000 to 20,000 items a day—items like cowl-collared caftans, ruffle-skirted mini-dresses, pant suits, evening culottes and tortoise shell-strap evening dresses—all made from paper. His newest item is a double-breasted suit for men, to sell for about $12. "It looks like grey flannel," he says. "It should be great for businessmen and conventions." Guggenheim stocks many of Sterling's items in his shop, where paper sunglasses, paper bows, paper bracelets, paper jumpuits and paper raincoats are pinned to the walls. It began almost inadvertently last year when Scott Paper Co. offered a paper A-line dress for $1 to promote its colored tissues. It was swamped with orders for 500,000 dresses. There are a matching bedspreads and curtains, chests of drawers in dazzling prints, whimsical lampshades, mirrors, chairs and a seven-foot daisy $40—all made from paper—at Paper Place, the shop the Brooklyn department store Abraham and Straus opened this year.

Brown dominates British autumn fashion season

LONDON (Reuters) — The British autumn fashion season opened Wednesday with brown a prominent color. Amies, Hartnell and Paterson, all members of the Incorporated Society of London Fashion Designers, were first to show their autumn and winter couture collections. Hardy Amies and Ronald Paterson went in for two different interpretations of the brown-for-autumn ideas, with Amies' dark browns and blacks producing an elegant sparrow look and Paterson's riot of oranges, apricots, bronzes and greens getting nearer to the peacock class. Norman Hartnell, the Queen's dressmaker, was somewhere between the two. Paterson's most striking creations were pirate catuits with mid-calf length trousers over leg-hugging boots and the whole outfit topped by finger-length full swinging capes. String, bronze tweed and red wool were worked into one checked cape and set off by a bright red lining. Hemlines were well above the knee, but not mini. For evening he banished long dresses and substituted hemlines dipping from above knee level at the front to mid-calf level at the back. Amies used brilliantly colored scarves and white accessories to set off the dark elegance of his designs. For evening he produced stunning long dresses topped with beads and crystals and short sleeves. Hartnell's collection an-

Today's secretaries are swish dressers

TORONTO — (TNS)—No one but no one can accuse today's modern secretary of being a dowdy frump, says Mrs. Doris Towns of Houston, Tex. Mrs. Towns is one of more than 1,500 secretaries attending the first National Secretaries Association convention in its 22 years ever staged outside of the United States. Mrs. Towns says she doubts if anyone could find an example of sloppy dress or make-up among the hundreds of swishly-attired women walking about the convention centre at the Royal York Hotel. Most of the secretaries wear white gloves because, as Miss Sue Befrene, of Toronto, puts it: "They are the proper thing to wear." But some do admit they carry gloves from force of habit and because they are just the accepted complement to the poised, groomed secretary image. QUBEC Mrs. Carmen LeMay explains: "We girls from Quebec are a little fussier about our appearance and like to be well-dressed always." The average NSA secretary makes $5,678 a year exclusive of company benefits. Because 95 per cent of the 25,000 members polled are Americans these figures vary in Canada; and other foreign countries. Secretaries in Toronto and Quebec start at $75 a week and make up to $150 a week as to executive assistants. Bilingual secretaries, according to Mrs. Carmen LeMay an other members, make about $500 more per year and "I don't think that's very much when the bilingual secretary has twice as much work to do," says Mrs. LeMay.

The seventh member of the society, Clive, has shown a fur collection this week but is waiting until September to show his autumn and winter clothes. For evening he produced a glamorous half-trouser, half dress outfit — with one leg skirted in pale blue and the other more tightly covered in encrusted lime green materials. The bodice was also blue and the collar matched the material of the shiny leg. The seventh member of the society, Clive, has shown a fur collection this week but is waiting until September to show his autumn and winter clothes.

de Gaulle to have busy tour

President Charles de Gaulle will visit more pavilions than any other head of state to have visited Expo, when he tours the exhibition on France's national day, Tuesday July 25.

The 78-year-old president will visit nine pavilions: France, Canada, Quebec, Great Britain, Germany, Italy, Africa Place, USSR and USA. This itinerary will provide him with a good overall view of Expo, and also provide the 300,000 visitors expected on the day with an excellent chance to see "Le Grand Charles".

To allow time for the full schedule, welcoming ceremonies at Place des Nations will be held three-quarters of an hour earlier than usual — President de Gaulle will arrive at 10:15 instead of 11:00 as most official representatives have done.

The other national day during the week is that of Cuba, on Wednesday July 26. Highlight of that will be the 150-man "Carnaval de la Revolution" which will be held in Place des Nations during the afternoon.

The Canadian Association of Mayors and Municipalities holds its 1967 conference in Montreal, starting on Sunday July 23. The 1,200 delegates will visit Expo several times, and will make a special point of seeing Habitat 67, the transit systems, the many park and recreational areas and the Man in the Community theme Pavilion. With the party will be Mayor Neil Blaisdell of Honolulu, past president of the United States Conference of Mayors.

Three shows — all with premieres on Monday July 24, will provide entertainment for every taste throughout the week. At 15:45 in the Canadian Pavilion, television and revue star Dinah Christie will give the first of a series of one-girl shows.

At the Theatre Maison-neuve until July 29 is Fiesta Cubana, an evening of ballet, music and song that captures the rhythm and spirit of modern Cuba. Next door, in the Theatre Port-Royal, La Comedie de Sainte-Etienne has its North American premiere, while down on the banks of the St. Lawrence the Jack Benny Show with Jack Jones opens in Expo Theatre where it will run until the end of the month.

Tuesday July 25 is France's national day. Commissioner General Dupuy will welcome President and Mrs. de Gaulle at Place des Nations, after which they will go straight to the French Pavilion. Four French naval vessels will be moored in Bickerdike Basin during the week, among them the cruiser Colbert, on which the President and Mrs. de Gaulle crossed the Atlantic.

The Paris Opera Ballet will provide an appropriate ending to the day at 20:00 in Salle Wilfrid-Pelletier when they give the first performance of Coppelia. They will be there until the end of the week.

Cuba celebrates its national day on Wednesday July 26. Foreign Trade Minister Marcelo Fernandez Font will represent the country and pavilion officials are planning a three-hour show in Place des Nations. Titled the Carnaval de la Revolution, the show will be made up of bands

Canadian School of Signals Band, Ukrainian dancers from Montreal and two singing groups from New York State.

Lady Baden Powell, widow of the founder of the Scout Movement, will be the guest of honor at the International Scout Rally, scheduled for Friday July 28. At 19:30 of the Palestre Sainte-Helene, there will be a giant scout and guide pageant with pop groups and other entertainment centred around the camp fire. Afterwards an informal sing-song will entertain spectators until the sun goes down.

On the same day, at 13:00, 15:00 and 17:00 the crack drill squad of the Fort Henry Guard, Ontario will give a demonstration outside the Ontario Pavilion.

Saturday July 19 is an important date for classical music fans with a particular interest in the piano. Vlado Feriencik, one of the world's best known pianists and a professor at the Paris Conservatoire, gives a single concert in the Theatre Port-Royal. The program will consist of works by Ravel.

World news flashes

MUNICH — (Reuters) — Police toured West German news stands Thursday, seizing the latest issue of the extreme right-wing weekly National Soltdenzeitung, which compares Israel's Defence Minister Moshe Dayan with Hitler.

The newspaper, which has continually angered the authorities by its bitter personal attacks on cabinet ministers, has waged an anti-Israel campaign since the Arab-Israeli war.

The West German constitution enables a citizen to be deprived of freedom of speech if he misuses it.

OTTAWA — (CP) — The Middle East conflicts was not a "holy war" but one based on the expansionist desires of the Zionist movement, a bishop of the Coptic Orthodox Church from Cairo said Thursday.

Bishop Samuel, who heads his church's ecumenical and social services, has just completed a mission to North America to "explain to the churches in the Western Hemisphere and the World Council of Churches the position in the Middle East."

SAIGON — (AP) — U.S. Navy pilots shot down three MIG jet fighters in dogfights over North Vietnam today.

They were the first Communist enemy planes downed in a month and a half.

BOSTON — (AP) — A 36-year-old woman who has been in a coma since last January gave birth Thursday to a healthy six-pound girl at Massachusetts General Hospital here.

Shirley May Sweeney showed no signs of coming out of her coma during the delivery, which was described by attending doctors as normal.

HALIFAX — (CP) — The president of the Nova Scotia Innkeeper's Guild said Thursday Expo 67 has caused a "disastrous" situation in the province.

Mrs. Penny Gott of Digby said in an interview "all of the Expo excitement was at the expense of the rest of the country."

Mrs. Gott's opinion was shared by Mitchell Franklin, president of the Franklin and Herschorn chain of hotels.

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. — (CP) — David Fulton, one of eight candidates for the leadership of the national Conservative party, says the entry of Robert Stanfield, Nova Scotia premier, into the race will make no difference to the overall pattern of his campaign.

Mr. Fulton, former federal justice member, said in an interview Wednesday night he had taken the possibility of Mr. Stanfield's running into account.

He said the premier is a "good friend and a good Conservative" and would make a "great member" of the Conservative team in Ottawa.

"The hospital was conducted under the European system which has many different methods and techniques from Canadian hospitals," she explained. "For example, the nurses in the Lovanium clinic had more jobs to do than Canadian nurses."

"In the Congo, few women have their babies in a hospital. Only about 6,000 babies a year were born in our hospital. But, we did conduct clinics where women would often come for a monthly checkup before having their baby."

"As the hospital was part of the university, it was mainly more well-educated Congolese who stayed in the hospital."

For six months Mrs. Sharp and a doctor had to trek through the "brousse" region (an area of dense growth) about five miles from the university, to a native village where they had a dispensary. "The main ailment among the natives was malaria. I took temperatures and brought milk to the children. Oh yes, it was also very important to keep track of only thing he didn't take was the signal an approach of malnutrition," she explained.

"I took courses to learn the natives' local 'linguistic' but I really only learned medical terms. The language barrier didn't seem that important though, because the natives were always glad to see us."

Soon after, they acquired a good watch dog called Piggy who is a black cocker spaniel.

One day in Kinshasa an American military man was leaving for the States," Mrs. Sharp said. "He had with him a parakeet, a monkey and a dog. He wanted to give the dog away and so an American friend who was with us at the time told the man we'd like the dog and we got him." No more clothes were stolen from the Sharp household while they were in the Congo as Piggy kept a vigilant watch.

The Sharps are presently staying at the home of Mrs. Sharp's father, Gerrard Gauthier, 1450 Leonard Street. Mr. Sharp hopes to find employment in the administrative field in Sherbrooke.

Why did Mr. Sharp go to Africa? "In May 1964, the rector of the Lovanium university came to Montreal and offered me a position on the university staff," he explained.

"I accepted it almost immediately because I have always been attracted by Africa."

MONTREAL (CP) — Five Canadian provinces have decided to alter plans to hold separate provincial days at Expo 67, some of them because of the cost.

The U.S. should consider joining Canada in a trading bloc that could compete with the European Free Market, according to David Rockefeller, President of Chase Manhattan Bank.

Mr. Rockefeller asked a joint Senate - House subcommittee on foreign economic policy to take a fresh look at Canadian-U.S. trade relations, with a view to establishing a Canadian - U.S. free trade area.

"Canada and the U.S. may no longer be able to expand their trade outside North America as rapidly as they have in the past. Under these circumstances, it is my view that we must seriously re-examine whether Canada and U.S. should not move toward establishment of a free trade area of their own."

THE QUEBEC SCENE

No loan talk during visit

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson told Opposition Leader Jean Lesage Thursday that Quebec will not take advantage of the state visit by President de Gaulle to borrow money from France on easy terms.

Mr. Lesage had suggested Quebec might pick up between $150,000,000 and $300,000,000 in loans from France which had granted a $150,000,000 loan with low interest to Mexico during general's visit there.

The opposition leader suggested to the legislature Quebec might cash in on the visit, "if one takes into account the importance of Quebec and the affection the general has for Quebec and for the premier."

Mr. Johnson accused Mr. Lesage of trying to create a bad climate for the de Gaulle visit.

"We don't yet have to get out on our knees for any country whatsoever, even France."

ingly into Expo 67 from Toronto Thursday—both nails missing from his big toes.

Sweat running down rubbery legs and dripping from his nose, the 47-year-old distance runner pronounced his seventh day run through Ontario and Quebec as "the hardest I've ever done."

Thundershowers had poured over him after he set out from Toronto early July 12 forcing "a much harder pace than I expected" during the 85-degree heat of the last three days.

"It's wonderful to be here, but my nerves are completely shattered," the bronzed Emmerton remarked as he staggered towards Place d'Acceuil in tan shorts and a white shirt emblazoned with his name.

Olympics capture second drubbing Montreal 14-6

The Sherbrooke Olympics who helped to bring some excitement into local team sports, captured their second victory over the Montreal Cougars 14-6 in a game played at the Sherbrooke Sports Palace.

On the merit of the win, Sherbrooke moves two points ahead of Sorel Titans into second place behind Drummondville, whose wide margin earlier in the season has been cut to five points. The Olympics have a game in hand, and the way Roger Despard's squad has been playing recently, it should represent a safe two more points.

Sherbrooke provided most of the exciting play last night for it was obvious after the second period that the Cougars had lost interest in the game and were interested only in returning home. Yet despite this half-hearted opposition and indifference shown by Bill Nimitz's tackle team, the Olympics were hustling all the way to pot goal after goal past the Montreal defence.

Andre Despard, Jean Franche, Denis Dagenais and Guy Hubert put on an impressive show for the 1,300 fans who helped to bring some excitement into local team sports.

Everything started five seconds after the opening face-off. Jean Franche thrilled the fans with a lovely shot that left goalie Gerard Lortie gaping.

The first frame ended with Sherbrooke nursing a 4-3 margin after a closely fought round. But coming into the second twenty minutes, Sherbrooke began to take the play seriously and tallied up a score of 9-3 as Terry Burgess held the opposition scoreless.

The third period was merely an anticlimatic finish with Sherbrooke assured of chalking up the win. They scored five more goals allowing three to the Cougars.

Jean Franche, who did not play the first two periods, and Denis Dagenais sparked the Sherbrooke offensive with three goals and two assists apiece. Claude Milot, Andre Despard and John Hansen each counted two while Remi Fleury and Charlie Belair rounded out the scoring.

Scorers for the Cougars included Mike Collins with three, Doug Carpenter with two, Don Barrie with one.

In other league action last night, the Athletics of Drummondville dropped another decision, as the Valleyfield Braves sliced the first-place A's 11-8. It was the second win this season of the Braves over Doc Chabot's fading squad.

Jim Ryun won't run in Expo-sponsored meet

MONTREAL (CP)—Jim Ryun of Wichita, Kan., the world's top miler, has declined an invitation to run in the Expo 67-sponsored Europe versus America track and field match Aug. 9-10.

The Expo match is the first of what world track officials hope will become a biennial series, with the venue alternating between Europe and this hemisphere.

Ryun also passed up the Pan-American Games scheduled to open this weekend at Winnipeg.

Dan Ferris, secretary-emeritus of the Amateur Athletic Union of the U.S. and chairman of the Americas selection committee, said Thursday he had "prevailed on" Ryun to attend the Montreal match.

Ferris said Ryun prefers to bypass the Montreal event in favor of the Great Britain versus the U.S. meet at London's White City Stadium Aug. 12.

UP AND OVER — Barbara Thompson, 17, of Toronto, flies over the horse into the arms of her coach Mrs. Marilyn Savage of West Hill, Ont., during practice Thursday for the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg. ## Dave Hill shoots record 66 to grab first round lead in PGA

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Home-town hero Dave Hill whipped the Columbine course to its knees with a wedge and a putter Thursday and took a one-stroke lead over favored Jack Nicklaus in the opening round of the 49th PGA golf championship.

The 30-year-old pro had an eagle and three birdies on the five finishing holes for a course record six-under-par 66.

Nicklaus, the reigning U.S. Open champion just back from a second-place finish in the British Open, had a hotter streak with five birds and an eagle over a space of seven holes but he tired at the finish, shooting a 67.

"My legs felt like I was carrying lead weights," Nicklaus said after hitting a drive into some knotty rough on the side of a bunker at No. 17 when a par-par windup would have given him a tie for first place.

The 7,436-yard, par 72 Columbine layout—tight, flat, heavily bunkered but a harmless adversary in sunny weather with no wind—took a thorough licking from the nation's tournament and teaching pros.

After turning in 35, one over par, he got off like a rocket after holding an eight-iron from about 170 yards out for an eagle two on the 473-yard 14th hole.

He sank an 11-foot putt at the 15th, rolled one in from 20 feet at the 16th and then after a routine par at No. 17 knocked home a downhill 23-foot putt for a birdie at No. 18.

Nicklaus' hot streak started at the sixth where he sank a 15-footer.

Ian Bruce wins World Cup dinghy race in England

COWES, England (Reuters)—Ian Bruce of Montreal won Thursday's race to become the first Canadian in the 40-year history of the international 14-foot dinghy races to win the Series' World Cup.

Bruce, racing in his dinghy T'ief with Don Bishop as crew, was the leader all the way among the 84 starters. He won by five minutes, 56 seconds, over the 15-mile course.

Don Wilson hurls Astro's to 7-0 win over Mets, Dodgers lose again

Jackie Brandt already knows it is easier to hit for teammate Don Wilson than against him, and the rest of the National League hitters are quickly learning it, too.

Wilson, a rookie right-hander who pitched a no-hitter a month ago, cut down New York on two hits Thursday night as the Houston Astros belted the Mets 7-0.

It was his third straight victory and while he has discouraged opposing hitters, his pitching has brought out the best in Brandt. The veteran reserve outfielder, hitting only .237, had six hits in 11 at bats with his only triple and homer and eight of his 10 runs batted in during those games.

Brandt drove in four runs Thursday night with a sacrifice fly and the homer and added a double.

Another part-time performer, Gene Oliver, also had a good night, stroking three singles and a two-run homer as he led Philadelphia Phillies over Los Angeles Dodgers 10-4.

League-leading St. Louis Cardinals unleashed Julian Javier, Orlando Cepeda and Bob Tolan, who each homered, and whipped Cincinnati Reds 7-3.

Pat Jarvis snapped the Chicago Cubs' five-game winning streak with a four-hitter that lifted Atlanta Braves, to a 2-1 victory, and Gaylord Perry broke his own six-game losing string by pitching San Francisco Giants to a 6-1 triumph over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Wilson, 22, allowed only singles by Ed Charles in the first inning and Larry Stahl in the ninth. He struck out nine, walked two and hit one and extended his shutout string to 25 innings, breaking the club record of 24 set by Robin Roberts.

The Astros and Brandt made the rest easy. Brandt drove in one of four second-inning runs with his fly and then hit a three-run homer in the fifth.

Oliver's first hit helped the Phillies to a four-run second-inning against Claude Osteen, and his homer made it 6-0 in the third. Bobby Wine belted his first homer of the season in the fifth with two on as Larry Jackson, 7-9, breezed.

Javier slammed a three-run shot, Cepeda a two-run blow and Tolan a solo homer as the Cardinals hammered Mel Queen and Don Nottebart and increased their lead to two games over the Cubs.

Tigers still in race with 8-4 win

Dick McAuliffe's wasn't rated much of the slugger when he joined Detroit six years ago. But his current distance hitting is keeping the Tigers within striking distance of the lead in the tight American League pennant race.

The 27-year-old second baseman rapped out his 17th homer and a triple Thursday night in leading Detroit to an 8-4 victory over Washington Senators. The triumph left the Tigers in fifth place, but only three games behind first-place Chicago White Sox.

Cleveland Indians dethroned New York Yankees 4-0 while the Boston-Baltimore game, the only other one scheduled, was postponed because of rain with the Red Sox leading 2-0 in the bottom of the third.

McAuliffe, a 5-foot-11, 175-pound left-handed batter, had only 24 homers in 497 minor league games covering five seasons before moving up to Detroit as a regular in 1961.

Dick found the home run range in 1964, slamming 24, added 15 the following year and hit 23 in 1966. He appears well on his way toward his big league high this season and is tied for fifth place in the homer derby with the Yanks' Mickey Mantle.

The Tigers jumped on Barry Moore, the Senators' starter, for two runs in the first inning on McAuliffe's homer, a triple by Don Wert and Willie Horne.

Legare allowed only six hits on the way to the win as the Corner took full advantage of three Sherbrooke errors. Jacques Boudreau, who was relieved in the eighth frame by Caron, was tagged with the loss. Michel Blouin and George Sanchez powered the Ascot hitting with a pair of singles each while Richard Doyon turned in the same effort for the Indians.

The Indians announced the suspension of Yvon Roy last night on charges of insubordination. When he will return to the squad still remains a question mark.

Belkin upsets Richey on clay

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Foot-sore Canadian Mike Belkin broke through the blistering service of defending champion Cliff Richey and advanced to the semi-finals of the national clay court tennis tournament Thursday with a 7-9, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1 victory.

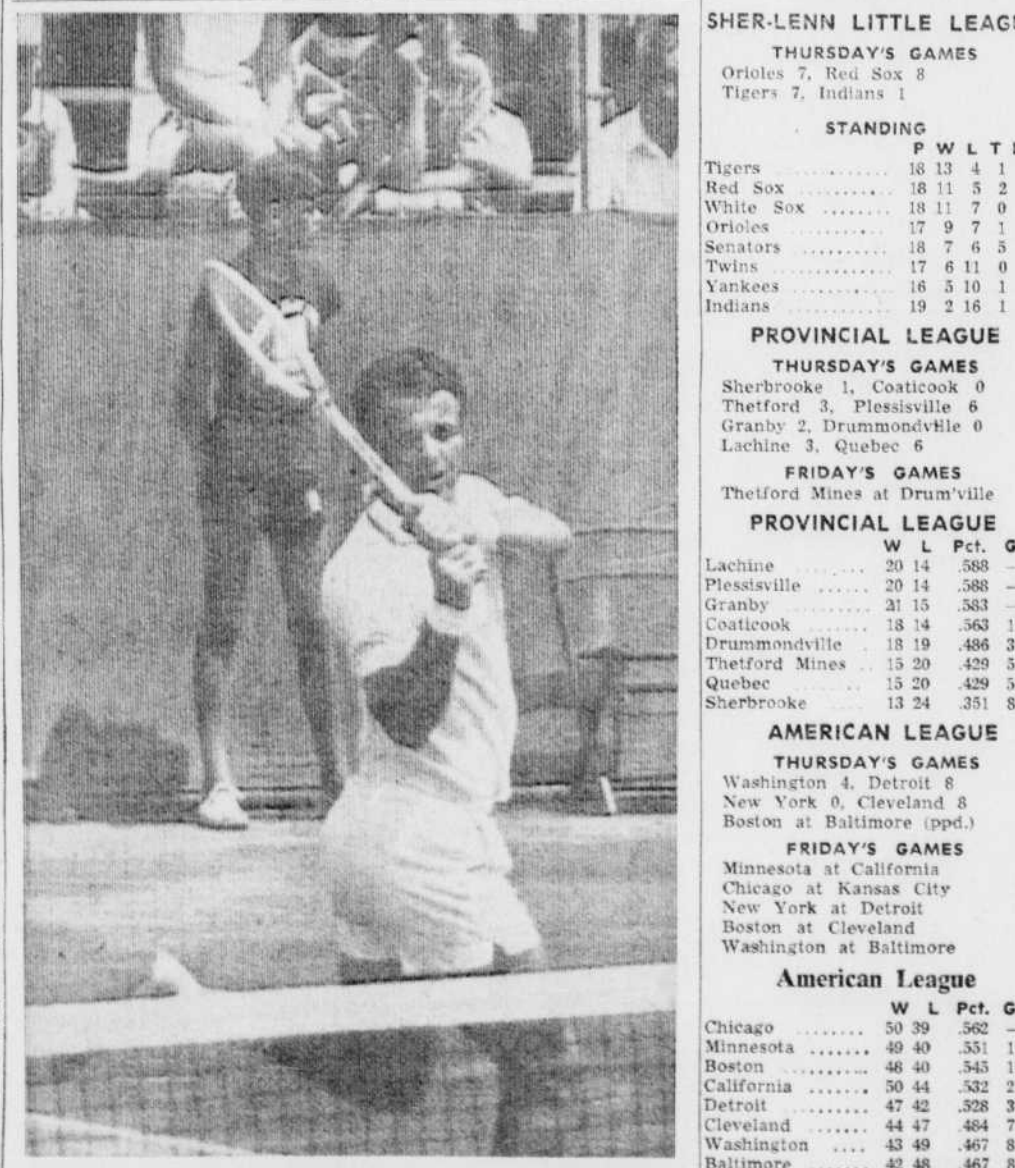

Now living in Miami, Belkin, a native of Montreal, is a former Canadian Davis Cup team member.

Slowed by foot blisters, Belkin broke second-seeded Richey's service six times during the match which began swinging Belkin's way midway through the second set.

Richey walked out on the tournament after the defeat.

His exit, as unexpected as his defeat, left top-seeded Arthur Ashe, the nation's ranking amateur, without a doubles partner.

"I've never reached this stage before," Richey told a news-papper man. "I can't even talk. You'll have to excuse me."

TWO HANDS FOR WINNER — Mike Belkin of Canada used two hands on the racket to put away a shot as he drubbed defending champion Cliff Richey in the quarter-final round of the National Clay Court Tennis tournament. Belkin won, 7-9, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1. (AP Wirephoto).

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Bobby Breen preserves Red Sox win with heads-up play, Tigers still at helm after scalping Indians

The alertness of Bobby Breen, second baseman of the Red Sox in the Sherbrooke Little League, was probably the main factor in the Red Sox's 8-7 win over the Orioles. Top of the sixth with the game score 8-6 in Red Sox favour, Orioles had the bases loaded and a hit from MacDonald sent in two runs. The first run counted but Breen, noticing the second runner did not touch third base on his way into the plate, immediately called for the umpire calling the second runner out on the play.

In the other game played last night the Tigers kept themselves at the top of the heap by taking a 7-1 win over Indians. No games are on tap for this evening. Monday Senators meet Orioles and Yankees visit Twins.

Orioles went down in order in the top of the first inning, Timmy Aubry the Sox pitcher striking out the first three men to face him. Red Sox in their part of the first came up with four runs hits from Marc Aubry, Rejean Roberge, Guy Frechette, Daniel Auger and Andre Caya sending in the runs.

Two errors by the Sox infield set up three runs for the Orioles in the top part of the second inning. These coupled with three hits from Marcel Barriere, Laflamme, and Gagnon did the damage. Red Sox duplicated their opponents by getting three runs in the last of the second. Breen, Roberge, Frechette and Auger hitting.

It was nothing across for the Orioles in the third and fourth. Red Sox got their eighth tally in the last of the third Breen with his second hit and Marc Aubry also getting his second safe hit. Orioles made it 8-6 in the top of the fifth coming up with three runs Red Sox going scoreless in the fourth and fifth. Top of the sixth Breen pulled off his play that gave the Red Sox a close 8-7 win. The game was well played by both teams with the verdict always in doubt.

The Tiger-Indian tilt was closer than the score indicates. The Indians played a little better in this one and a couple of hits when needed would have given the Tigers a scare. The Indians were held to two hits by Roger Cabana, the Tiger hurler. It was 5-0 for Tigers at the end of three innings. Indians got their single tally in the last of the fourth inning. Tigers closed out the scoring with single runs in the fourth and fifth. The Tiger batters came up with 16 hits in the game. Roger Cabana was the winner with Guy Dube the loser.

Bases-loaded single lifts Als over Coaticook; Self belts two homers while Lilas Poole shines

It took only one eighth-inning so far this season. The lanky superb pitching performance as hit for the Sherbrooke Alouettes to score the decisive run and blank the Coaticook Canadiens 10 last night in a game played at Coaticook. Only six hits were clouted by both teams in what turned out to be an exciting pitching duel between Ernesto Fiqueroo and Ray Johnson.

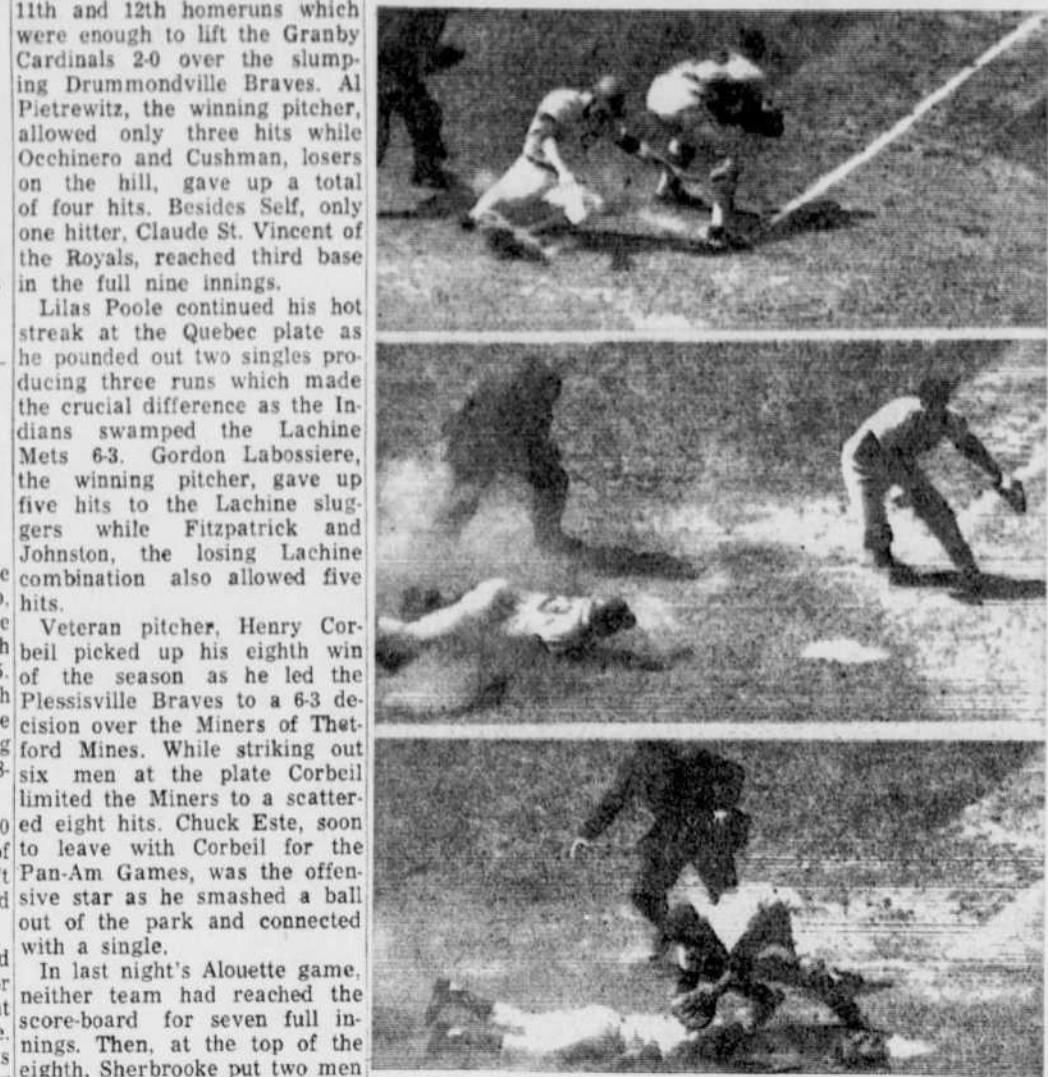

Elsewhere in the Provincial League, big John Self belted his 11th and 12th homers which were enough to lift the Granby Cardinals 2-0 over the slumping Drummondville Braves. Al Pietrewitz, the winning pitcher, allowed only three hits while Oechinero and Cushman, losers on the hill, gave up a total of four hits. Besides Self, only one hitter, Claude St. Vincent of the Royals, reached third base in the full nine innings.

Lilas Poole continued his hot streak at the Quebec plate as he pounded out two singles producing three runs which made the crucial difference as the Indians swamped the Lachine Mets 6-3. Gordon Labossiere, the winning pitcher, gave up five hits to the Lachine sluggers while Fitzpatrick and Johnston, the losing Lachine combination also allowed five hits.

Veteran pitcher, Henry Corbell picked up his eighth win of the season as he led the Plessisville Braves to a 6-3 decision over the Miners of Thetford Mines. While striking out six men at the plate Corbell limited the Miners to a scattered eight hits. Chuck Este, soon to leave with Corbell for the Pan-Am Games, was the offensive star as he smashed a ball out of the park and connected with a single.

In last night's Alouette game, neither team had reached the score-board for seven full innings. Then, at the top of the eighth, Sherbrooke put two men on base and pitcher Johnson gave Willie Madison an intentional walk. Russ Ayoub pulled the game out of the bushes with a single driving in the decisive run.

Sherbrooke pitcher Ernesto Fiqueroo pitched what must surely have been his best game

THIS PLAY PROTESTED BY CUBS — Chicago Cubs runner Glenn Beckert scoots around Atlanta Braves catcher Joe Torre, top, then scrambles for plate, center, and is tagged out, bottom, during sixth innings of game yesterday in Chicago. Cubs may have blocked Beckert's path before he had the ball and they are claiming a misinterpretation of obstruction rule by plate ump Paul Pryor. Braves won, 2-1. (AP Wirephoto).

Jacques Boudreau, who was relieved in the eighth frame by Caron, was tagged with the loss. Michel Blouin and George Sanchez powered the Ascot hitting with a pair of singles each while Richard Doyon turned in the same effort for the Indians.

The Indians announced the suspension of Yvon Roy last night on charges of insubordination. When he will return to the squad still remains a question mark.

Ascot Corner scores upset against Indians

Pitcher Claude Legare struck out a total of 16 hitters to lead the Ascot Corner squad to a 4-1 win over the Sherbrooke Indians of the Massawippi Baseball League Wednesday night.

The win marks the fifth straight for the surging Ascot team now making its bid for first place. The Indians have now suffered back-to-back losses as they also dropped a decision to Ascot Corner last weekend.

Legare allowed only six hits on the way to the win as the Corner took full advantage of three Sherbrooke errors. Jacques Boudreau, who was relieved in the eighth frame by Caron, was tagged with the loss.
