MONTREAL, March [illegible], 1874.

Dr. Miller: [illegible]

Dear Sir,—I [illegible] two years [illegible] I applied [illegible] stopping at the [illegible] for a [illegible] of your DIAMOND RHEUMATIC [illegible] three doses of your valuable medicine [illegible] effects [illegible], and [illegible] of the efficacy of this wonderful cure.

J. ABRAHAMS,
Ottawa Hotel Cigar Store.

MR. ISAACSON'S ENDORSATION.

MONTREAL, 21st March, 1874.

Messrs. DEVINS & BOLTON,

Dear Sir,—I with pleasure concede to the agents wish that I give my endorsation to the immediate relief I experienced from a few doses of Dr. Miller's Diamond Rheumatic Cure, having been a sufferer from the effects of Rheumatism, I am now, after taking two bottles of this medicine, entirely free from pain. You are at liberty to use this letter, if you deem it advisable to do so.

I am, sir, yours respectfully,
JOHN HELDER ISAACSON.

There is no medicine which so promptly recives the depressed vital action restores the general and local circulation allays the pain, dissipates the congestion, prevents inflammation, and restores the healty action as the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE. In thousands of [illegible] the prompt and free use of this medicine has saved valuable human lives. Hence the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE should be in every hospital and infirmary, in every doctor's office, in every family or factory, in every shop or ship, in every office or counting-room. It is the remedy always ready for an emergency, prompt in its action, always reliable, always curable, doing all that it is advertised to do. An infallible specific, removing the cause, chronic, acute, or muscular Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Nervous Headache, Neuralgia of the head, heart stomach and kidneys, Tic Doloureux, nervousness, flying pains, twisted joints, swollen joints, pain in the back and loins, weakness of the kidneys, tired feeling, languid, weary prostration, and all nervous and chronic diseases.

In simple cases sometimes one or two doses suffice. In the most chronic case it is sure to give way by the use of two or three bottles. By this efficient and simple remedy hundreds of dollars are saved to those who can least afford to throw it away, as surely it is by the purchase of useless prescriptions.

This medicine is prepared by a careful, experienced and conscientious physician in obedience to the desire of numberless friends in the profession, in the trade and among the people. Every bottle is warranted to contain the full strength of the medicine in its highest state of purity and development, and is superior to any medicine ever compounded for this terrible complaint.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the Province. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to

TO THE AFFLICTED.—[illegible] wish to state that I have removed my consulting rooms to the [illegible] Bank Chambers, No. 1[illegible] St. James street [illegible] I will, as usual, pay special attention to chronic diseases of all kinds, particularly those of a character that need not be mentioned, resulting in more misery than all the [illegible] in this world put together. Nervous Irritability, Morbid Sensitiveness, Loss of Memory, Lack of Confidence, Indecision of Character, Depression of Spirits, Incapacity to apply the mind to any occupation, Impotency, [illegible], and sometimes almost total depression. All of which can be corrected by restoring the [illegible] forces, which can be done without the usual drug and nostrum treatment, by which thousands have been injured or murdered. I have practised my [illegible] mode of treatment for eight years, and during that time have treated an immense [illegible] in the world, in the best walks of life, and [illegible] that I have ever done them an [illegible] all can say that I have cured them. PURE, FRESH MILK.

THE MOTHER'S BLESSING AND THE CHILD'S HEALTH.

The proprietor of the Grey's Creek Dairy, Cornwall Ont., having removed one hundred and fifty cows (which have recently arrived) to the city of Montreal, where he has erected commodious, well ventilated stables by the canal side, is now ready to deliver, every morning and evening, pure fresh milk in any part of the city, in quantities from one gallon to a hundred gallons within one hour from the "milking time." The cows are foddered with the best cut hay, moulie and bran steamed at every meal. No brewers' grains or swill of any kind used. The vessels in which the milk is collected are scrupulously scalded by steam, and thus kept constantly, after use, absolutely clean. These remarks strictly apply to the stables fodder and dairy at Grey's Creek, from which the milk is sent to Montreal every morning and evening by Express.

The proprietor having over three hundred cows, is prepared to supply daily one thousand gallons of milk among the hotel-keepers, hospitals, public institutions, confectioners, milk-vendors, and others consuming large quantities. The proprietor is not only anxious but willing to have every test applied to the milk in order to prove its purity.

N.B.—Orders received at [illegible] Bonaventure street will meet with prompt attention. 82*

PULLMAN RAILWAY CARS.

The London Times of March 23 prints the following remarks upon the introduction into England of the palace cars, so popular in the United States:

"It has for some time been rumored," says the Times, "that the Directors of the Midland Railway Company were about to introduce into England the system of 'palace cars' which has rendered American travelling, notwithstanding the distances to be accomplished, not only comfortable, but even luxurious. The rumor was fortunately well-founded, and though the general public will have to wait a few weeks longer for the privileges about to be afforded to them, the cars are quite ready for use. On Saturday a train composed of four of them made a trip to Bedford and back, for the purpose of exhibiting the chief peculiarities of the system.

The new cars were constructed in America, at the works of the Pullman Company, at Detroit, and were sent over piecemeal, to be put together at the Midland Company's works at Derby. They differ from those used on the American lines in being somewhat narrower, a difference rendered necessary by the smaller available space between the up and down lines of rail, as well as between the near rail and the platforms, but in all other respects they are like the conveyances with which visitors to the United States are so familiar. Of those used on Saturday two were 'parlor' and two were 'drawing-room and sleeping cars.' Between these there are many points in common, as well as certain differences."

The Times then devotes much space to a minute description of the cars, continuing thus:

"The perfection of the Pullman system however, does not depend wholly, or chiefly, upon the cars themselves. The Messrs. Pullman owe much of their success to the extreme care which they have exercised in the selection of their car attendants, in the maintenance of the most scrupulous cleanliness, and in providing that everything comprised under the head of service, from the arrangement of the dinner-tables to the soap and towels in the lavatories, the very best of its kind. The sleeping cars in England will be in demand chiefly for long journeys. But few people, and especially few ladies, will hesitate to exchange the confined boxes in which we now travel, with a possibility of unpleasant companions, with a certainty of being covered by blacks and half choaked by dust, and with the hurry, crowding, and discomfort of the refreshment bars, for the light, handsome, clean, and well-ventilated rooms in which there is power to move freely about from place to place, in which there will usually be passengers enough to render the most timid lady comfortable, and in which a trained servant is at call, ready at any time to bring any refreshment that may be asked for, and that the commissariat of the cars will furnish. In America this commissariat is very complete, in England it will probably be more limited.

"As regards the question of safe travelling, the Pullman cars have many advantages. The great strength of their flooring, to which we have already referred, would carry them with little injury through collisions or shocks by which English carriages would be no doubt smashed to pieces; and, as they are all fitted with the Westinghouse air-brake, they are effectually protected against one of the most common sources of danger. The arrangement of their springs and bogies almost entirely destroys the oscillation with which we are only too familiar and the cars at the highest speeds run with well-nigh absolute smoothness. The visitors to Bedford on Saturday were asked to write their names in a book, and they did so without the smallest difficulty when the train was running at the rate of fifty miles an hour. It will be quite possible for a busy man to devote much of the time spent on a railway to his correspondence, and the rest, if it so please him, to sleep.

"The cars are to be placed, in the first instance, upon the line from St. Pancas to Liverpool, and as soon as the direct line to Liverpool from Woodley Junction is open for traffic. The directors propose to run the sleeping cars late at night—say after the London theatres are closed—and to shunt them on to a siding at Liverpool, where the occupants may finish their slumbers undisturbed, and may rise and depart when they are inclined. The arrangement with the Pullman Company is that they supply cars and attendants, and take the extra charge above first-class fare which will be demanded from those who occupy them. The amount of this charge is not yet settled, but it will probably range from half a crown to half a sovereign, according to length of journey.

"We understand that the public are indebted to Mr. Allport, the well-known manager of the Midland Railway, for the introduction of the cars into this country; but the enterprise of the Pullman Company, now that they have crossed the Atlantic, will not be limited to England. A drawing-room and sleeping car was despatched last week to France, and will be exhibited in all the chief cities of the continent."

EXTRACTS.

THE PEABODY TRUST.

The report of the past year states that the trustees have received from Mr. Peabody's executors, in acocordance with the terms of his will, the sum of £150,000, so that the whole amount given and bequeathed by Mr. Peabody is £500,000. To this sum has been added, by receipts from rents and interests, £78,059 8s. 5d., making the total fund on the 31st of December last, £578,059 9s. 5d. as shown in the subjoined statements of accounts. The trustees have expended up to the close of the year, in land and buildings, £300,000. Upwards of £66,000 of this sum is at present unproductive, as two sites are not yet built upon, and the dwellings upon two other sites are not yet finished. The numbers of families now in residence at the trustees' buildings is 882, occupying 1875 rooms. The average rent per room is 1s. 10d. per week, and the average weekly earnings of the head of each family is about £1 3s. 1d. Although the cost of labor and building materials is constantly increasing the trustees have not up to the present time advanced their rents, saving in a few exceptional instances; while at Shadwell, where there is a large number of very poor people, the rents have been reduced, so that the average per room in these dwellings does not exceed 1s. 8d. per week.

The rents have also been somewhat lowered at Islington. The trustees have purchased a site of about four and a-half acres near the Grosvenor road, Pimlico, and within a short distance of the Victoria Station. Two more blocks for the accommodation of 44 families have been built on the Blackfriars road estate, which will shortly be opened; while 16 blocks for 352 families are in course of erection on the site near Stamford street. The trustees had hoped to be able to open six new blocks of buildings at Bermondsey, in the month of October last, but owing to the tardiness of the contractors they are not yet completed. These blocks will accommodate 72 families. The expenditure during the year, for land and buildings, exceeds £39,000, and the income of the two Trusts amounts to £12,973. 5s. 8d. The net income derived from the buildings is about two and a-half per cent. per annum upon the outlay. It should, however, be stated that, while on the first buildings the income is under two per cent., on those lately erected at Blackfriars the return is over four per cent.—London paper.

THE BURGLAR'S OUTFITTER.

Not a few people have, doubtless, been puzzled to know where house-breakers secure the tools with which to carry on their nefarious trade. Many of the instruments used in breaking open safes are of the most elaborate design, and require in their construction an unusual degree of skillful and artistic workmanship. Of course, it is apparent that no reputable concern would furnish such articles. It would seem equally clear that an artisan having the requisite skill for the manufacture of these unlawful implements, must command such a remuneration in the legitimate exercise of his trade as to destroy all temptation to illicit courses. Yet it is a fact that there are mechanics of this unusual degree of skill, not only dishonest enough, but insensate enough, to sacrifice all their honorable prospects of success for the sake of earning a precarious livelihood as the purveyors and outfitters of thieves.

One of this class was arrested on Friday morning by what appears to be an exceedingly good bit of detective work. It was ascertained that the many late escapes from Sing Sing were the fruit of a settled system of prison release, tools being regularly furnished to the convicts by a gang operating from this city. Some of these confederates were arrested and it became an object of primary importance to ferret out the agency that supplied the tools. This was at last traced to one John Steurer, a German machinist and locksmith, at No. 106 Hester street, in this city. Steurer was arrested, after fully committing himself, and engaging to make for the disguised detectives a complete set of burglar's tools, of the most approved pattern, for what seems a remarkably low price. For a sectional jimmy, for example, this disinterested abbettor of villainy wanted but $15; a jackscrew he was willing to furnish for the same price, and a hydraulic ram—the most formidable weapon in the cracksman's armory—he offered to provide for $60. Specimens of his handicraft scattered about his shop are described as having a high degree of finish and excellence, and at Police Headquarters he identified many tools, taken from lately captured burglars, as of his manufacture.—N. Y. Times.

REMARKABLE MEMORY.

(From the Lexington (Ky.) Gazette.)

There is a negro girl in Brucetown about nine years of age whose memory is truly marvellous. Her wonderful powers were first brought to the notice of a white man, who keeps a grocery in that part of the city, about two weeks ago. He had been reading aloud in her presence the day before and accidentally heard her repeat word for word what he had read from the paper, though twenty-four hours had intervened. After this he tested her memory frequently, and has found her capable of repeating thirty or forty lines from a book after hearing it read once over. Her intellect in other respects does not seem at all above, if equal to, the average. Such instances of memory are not very unusual. Mary Summerville tells of an idiot in Edinburgh who never failed to repeat the sermon, word for word, after attending the kirk each Sunday, saying: "Here the minister coughed;" "Here he stopped to blow his nose." She also tells of another whom she met in the Highlands, who knew the Bible so perfectly that if he was asked where such a verse was to be found, he could tell without hesitation, and repeat the chapter. We remember, also, to have read a year or two ago an account of a man in New York who could read one side of the New York Herald, and then repeat it word for word, advertisements and all. Thirty years ago, or thereabouts, there was a book-peddler in this part of Kentucky who had a considerable reputation for his remarkable memory. Old "Jimmy Hutchison" sold Pilgrim's Progress, Clelland's Hymns, Children of the Abbey, Solitude Sweetened, and was able to repeat whole pages from almost any part of these books.

PRESIDENT GRANT AND THE LATE SENATOR SUMNER.

An American contemporary says:—

Senator Sumner speaks from the grave words most damaging to President Grant and Secretary Fish. The cause of the estrangement which existed between the President and the Senator is now before the world; and the posthumos production will take its place in the history of the United States as one of the most remarkable of its records. The suppressed speech prepared by Mr. Sumner for delivery when he was ruled out of the Republican Senatorial caucus has been published by his literary executors. It charges that because Mr. Sumner had openly, patriotically, and on purely constitutional grounds, opposed the San Domingo annexation scheme, and the maintenance of Baez in position by means of the American Navy, he incurred the personal enmity of President Grant and his family—one member of which threatened him with personal violence; that Secretary Fish tried all of the influence of friendship, of importunate solicitation, and of an offer of the mission to London to make him desist from exposing the annexation design; that the day after the San Domingo treaty was rejected Mr. Motley, the minister to England, was removed because of Mr. Sumner's friendship to him; and that, finally, Secretary Fish alleged in a formal paper to the Senate, that Mr. Motley's appointment was due to Mr. Sumner's influence and urgency, and that Mr. Sumner had incurred the scorn and contempt of the President, because he used "the words and assurance of friendship to cover a secret and determined purpose of hostility"—statements at variance with fact, and with the printed account of Mr. Sumner's action in the San Domingo affair—thus adding injury to insult, publicly impugning the principles of the man, who was unable to be bought by the offer of an important foreign mission. Such is the disclosure, and a most melancholy one it is, for the reading of succeeding generations.

WONDERFUL WISDOM.

There is a vast deal of useful information to be got from an ordinary census report, but the English census for 1871, which has just been published, contains some very remarkable facts. We are told, for instance, that "what the population of England will be in future ages, no one can prophesy. The problem is beyond us." Furthermore, "Nations differ in the proportion of the sexes and ages of their people." "Marriage is the institution by which the population is primarily regulated." "To the urns of death all contribute." "The natural family is founded by marriage, and consists, in its complete state, of husband, wife, and children."

"Family is generally held in England to be synonymous with household, as a family occupies a house." "Some families remain fixed in a paternal mansion for a long series of years, but it is not the common lot." "Families move from house to house in the same parish or town; from town to town; from country to country." "Races such as gypsies indulge the wandering propensity to the utmost, and the Jews are found in every civilized country." Speaking of families, the report mentions a curious case of a family, the members of which were not all born in the same place. "The head of the family, living in Camberwell, was born at Cowbridge, in Wales; his wife at Hythe, in Kent; his three children at Camberwell, in Surrey; his cook at Croydon, in Surrey; and his other servant at Beakstourne, in Kent." "London, the capital of the empire, is a great centre of population." "In the interval between two censuses there is a continual inflow and outflow of people of all ages, some entering the gates as visitors, some as settlers, some as new-born infants; and others leaving it as travellers, as emigrants, as passengers to that country from whose bourne no traveller returns." Truly this census-gatherer has made some startling discoveries!

ALL HANDS ON BOARD!

The Scientific American asks:—"Why should not a child be taught to write and draw with both hands? The very natural echo is, "Why?" The human body can be educated to do almost anything. Men have written with their toes and done all sorts of wonderful things with their teeth; and yet since the creation of man that intelligent animal seems to have regarded the left hand as a sort of tender to the right. In fact, the left hand is the laziest member of the human body. When the right is scribbling away for bare life the left looks on placidly; keeps down the paper with its fingers and shows its rings. In truth the only thing in which it seems to excel, except when occasionally helping its big brother in an indifferent sort of way, consists in hitting from the shoulder in a prize-fight, and in using a fork to advantage. The left hand is always too pretty to do any hard work. Ladies show off its lines of beauty while delicately resting their lovely chins upon its fingers. Let a poor fellow have his right hand shot away, and then see what the left can do! In a wonderful short space of time it can button a coat, write a letter, and do things which, in its palmy days, it never dreamt of. By all means educate the left hand, and if it will not work make it. There is nothing in the world to hinder a man writing two letters at once, like Ristori in 'Queen Elizabeth,' and keeping up an animated conversation with his unruly member at the same time. The left hand was given to man to do its share in the business of life, just as its twin brother in boots. At present it is a kind of loafer, doing the gentle pressure business in love affairs, and having all the fun. We are down on left hands, and strongly recommend that they be put to school."

EXCHANGE OF COMPLIMENTS.

At the end of the siege of Paris, the City of London sent over very large quantities of provisions of all kinds. Two years ago, towards the end of February, 1871, M. Leon Say, then Prefect of the Seine, and M. Vautrain, then and still President of the Municipal Council, came to London to thank the Lord Mayor, and to present to him, as well as to the Aldermen, large commemorative medals. The Municipal Council of Paris also presented to the City of London a bronze model, on a large scale and minutely exact in every detail, of that very fine building the Hotel de Ville, to which the Communards applied the incendiary's torch. There was discussion and perplexity in the Paris Council as to what mark of gratitude could be offered to their friends in London.

Finally they hit upon the bronze medal in question, which is the only one existing. Neither M. Say nor M. Vautrain has forgotten that visit to London, nor the kindly feelings the occasion elicited. In November of the same year the Lord Mayor and Common Council sent an address to the Municipal Council, thanking it for the present, and abounding in expressions of the most friendly sympathy. The address is about two feet high, splendidly framed, and is a caligraphic curiosity, illuminated in the Gothic style, in a manner worthy of those monks of old who passed their time in the elaborate illumination of missals. It is hung in the place of honor at the Great Luxembourg, above the desk of the president of the Municipal Coucil, until such time as it can be finally installed in a new Hotel de Ville.

A SUNBEAM.

The greatest of physicial paradoxes is the sunbeam. It is the most potent and versatile force we have, and yet it behaves itself like the gentlest and most accommodating. Nothing can fall more softly or more silently upon the earth than the rays of our great luminary—not even the feathery flakes of snow which thread their way through the atmosphere as if they were too filmy to yield to the demands of gravity like grosser things. The most delicate slip of gold leaf, exposed as a target to the sun's shafts, is not stirred to the extent of a hair, though an infant's faintest breath would set it in tremulous motion.

The tenderest of human organs—the apple of the eye—though pierced and buffeted each day by thousands of sunbeams, suffers no pain by the process, but rejoices in their sweetness, blesses the useful light. Yet a few of those rays insinuating themselves into a mass of iron, like the Britannia Tubular Bridge, will compel the closely-knit particles to separate, and will move the whole enormous fabric with as much ease as a giant would a straw.

The play of these beams upon a sheet of water lifts up layer after layer into the atmosphere, and hoists whole rivers from their beds, only to drop them again in snows upon the hills or in fattening showers upon the plants. Let but the air drink in a little more sunshine at one place than another, and it desolates a whole region in its lunatic wrath. The marvel is that a power which is capable of assuming such a diversity of forms, and of producing such stupendous results, should come to us in so gentle, so peaceful, and so unpretentious a manner.

THE REPORT OF THE MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE.

The report of the Minister of Agriculture shows that the number of patents, copyrights and trademarks issued during 1873 were 3,184, against 2,215 the previous year. The immigrants who had arrived during the same period were 99,108, against 89,186 in 1872. The number of immigrants who announced their intention to settle in Canada rose from 36,578 in 1872 to 50,050 in 1873, being an increase of 36.83 per cent. An arrangement has been made for the renewal of the system of passage warrants with the Allan, Dominion and Temperley steamers, all upon precisely the same footing. Reference is made to the proposed advent of the Mennonites to Manitoba.

The privileges granted these people as conditions of settlement are exemption from military service, free grant lands, religious schools of their own, the privilege of making affirmation instead of oath in courts, and favorable terms of ocean passage per the Dominion line of steamers, as well as passage from Quebec to Fort Garry with meals to Collingwood. The votes in aid of immigration to the several provinces was distributed as follows. Ontario, $35,000; Quebec, $20,000; New Brunswick, $10,000; Nova Scotia, $10,000; British Columbia, $5,000; total, $70,000. The combined expenditure of the Dominion and the provinces leaving out the above $70,000 was $511,251; for the transport of emigrants from Point Levis to Quebec and Ontario, $60,620.

A GHASTLY DISCOVERY.

The London Echo remarks:—

"Sister, let thy sorrows cease; sinful brother, part in peace," are grisly words, apt to haunt the pillow of every youthful reader of Sir Walter Scott's masterpiece. The awful drama, of which they form the climax, has too often had its counterpart in reality.

The traces of a conventual tragedy have just been discovered, says the Neue Freie Presse, in the court-yard adjoining the Church of St. Euphemia, at Verona. Some children playing in this yard amused themselves by throwing stones at the wall, a small portion of which gave way, and fell inward. In the cavity thus detected was found a large, roughly hewn wooden chest, containing the bodies of a man and woman. Both had been decapitated, and their heads lay at their feet.

These corpses were reduced almost to the condition of skeletons. That of the man appeared to belong to one in the full vigor of early manhood; that of the woman betokened extreme youth and perfection of form, the hands and feet being surprisingly small and well shaped. What remained of her dress showed that she was either a nun, or in some way connected with the religious establishment which has left this memento of its existence. The man appears to have worn an embroidered shirt, which leads to the inference that he, like Marmion, had sought his Constance on forbidden ground, and paid the penalty of his temerity with his life. The cloister of St. Euphemia belonged to the Augustinians, and was abolished in 1805.

WHAT THE BLIND SEE.

"When passing along a street I can distinguish shops from private houses, and even point out the doors and the windows, &c., and this whether the doors be shut or open. When a window consists of one entire sheet of glass it is more difficult to discover than one composed of a number of small panes. From this it would appear that glass is a bad conductor of sensation, or at any rate of the sensation specially connected with this sense. When objects below the face are perceived, the sensation seems to come in an oblique line from the objects to the upper part of the face. While walking with a friend in Forrest Land, Stafford, I said, pointing to a fence which separated the road from a field, 'Those rails are not quite so high as my shoulder.' He looked at them, and said they were higher. They, however, measured about three inches lower than my shoulder. When I made this observation I was about four feet from the rails. Certainly in this instance facial perception was more accurate than sight. When the lower part of a fence is brickwork, and the upper part rails, the fact can be detected, and the line where the two meet easily perceived. Irregularities in height, projections and indentations in walls, can also be discovered. A similar sense is found among the animal creation, and especially in bats, who have been known to fly about without striking against anything after the cruel experiment has been made of extracting their eyes."

THE DAWSON ROUTE.

The Dominion Government has resolved to put the conveyance of passengers and merchandise from Prince Arthur's Landing to Winnipeg into the hands of contractors, and has accordingly advertised for tenders. The Toronto organ of the Government says:—

"We have no doubt that parties will be found willing to embark in the enterprise on terms advantageous to the country and themselves. While the Pacific Railway between Lake Superior and Red River will be pushed on with all possible haste, yet, for some years to come, it is evident that the Dawson route will be the only Canadian highway to the North-West.

"It is, in every respect, then, desirable that it should be made as efficient as possible, and that transport along the whole route should be rapid and comfortable. The volume of trade and travel flowing towards the Canadian prairies will every year be largely increased, and will be very much influenced in its growth by the facilities presented. A Transportation Company will attend to this far more efficiently than Government servants. Its pecuniary interests will be so directly subserved by civility, economy, and despatch that there is not much danger of red-tape routine or the insolent indifference of monopolists."

OUR MINERAL WEALTH.

We are pleased to notice that a meeting of gentlemen interested in the manufacture of iron from ore has recently been held in Ottawa. If furnaces were constructed at Brockville, and the Brockville and Westport Railway built, the freight on the iron ore transported from Newboro and Westport would pay the working expenses of the road. By the geological survey of Dr. Hunt, Bedford is classed among the richest, if not the richest, township of Ontario, in iron ore. North Crosby at present contains two mines that are worked in the summer season on an extensive scale. At Lyndhurst iron of a superior character was manufactured by a charcoal furnace some forty years since. Near Delta the Howard mine only awaits developement. Let us hope the Government will encourage the manufacture of native iron; then would not only Leeds County, but the entire Dominion, reap the benefit of the wealth now buried in the earth, undeveloped and uncared for.—Brockville Recorder.

The above remarks apply to the mountainous country north of Montreal and the Northern Colonization Railway.

HORRIBLE.

An American exchange says:—

The insignificance of human life compared with a few cents a day, added to or taken from the pay of a rolling-mill laborer, was illustrated recently at Indianapolis. Fifteen hands at the Capital City Rolling Mills struck, and their places were filled by colored men. Shortly after midnight the fires were started under the boilers and, a few hours later, the engineer came along, tested the water gauges and found no water. He was about to start the pumps when he discovered that the boilers had been tapped and were perfectly dry. Had he not made the discovery in time, the mill would have been blown to atoms, and every person in it killed to a certainty. It is not wonderful that strikers, no matter where or what their provocation, meet with little public sympathy when such atrocities are meditated by any of them. The cause of the workingman is incalculably injured by the frequent discovery of such desperate efforts at revenge.

THE BRUCE LETTERS.

OTTAWA, April 8.

Mr. Brokovoski, publisher of the Manitoba Gazette, publishes the following letter in the Citizen to-night:—"My attention has been called to a paragraph in the Ottawa Times with regard to the intellectual capabilities of ex-President Bruce. It is but just to that gentleman to state, as the publisher of his letters, that upon each occasion he has personally handed in the Gazette office the letters in question written in the French language, and in each instance has read them to one of the editors of that paper. Being in French it was necessary to have them translated into English. In three instances his letters have been published in both languages in the Gazette. Any person conversing with Mr. Bruce on the subject on which he writes, will not fail to observe that he is one of the most intelligent French Metis in Manitoba, and his ignorance of the English language is fully balanced by his qualities as a fluent speaker in his own language."

MARRIAGE TREATY.

The English papers contain the treaty between the Queen and Emperor of Russia for the marriage of the Duke of Edinburgh with the Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrowna of Russia. The chief stipulations are that her Imperial Highness shall not be in any way hindered in the full, free, and unrestrained exercise of the religious worship of the Orthodox Church in which she has been brought up. Nevertheless, "of her own free will" she shall accompany her august Consort to the churches established by law in England and Scotland. The children are to be brought up as Protestants. The Emperor of Russia assigned to his daughter two marriage portions of one million roubles, each to bear interest at five per cent. If the Duchess becomes a widow the English Parliament has provided that she shall be paid £6,000 per annum.

BENNY DAVIS' TRAINED RAT.

(From the Detroit Free Press.)

A boy, 12 years old, named Benny Davis, whose parents live on the River road, broke his leg some months ago, and has been confined to the house ever since. He has, during the last three months, trained a rat to come forth at his whistle, stand on his hind feet, roll over, leap through a hoop covered with paper, and to execute various other manœuvres. The family own a big cat, and she has been trained to stretch out and let the rat leap over her, and the two are great friends, though Grimalkin is death on all other rodents. The lad has an exhibition twice a week, and secures quite an income by charging an admission fee of 5 cents.

TOO MUCH CHARITY.

(N.Y. Tribune.)

It is time now to check the profuse charity which has brightened the winter. Thousands of idlers are drawn to the city by the prospect of free meals and lodging, whose labor is sorely needed. Building and out-door work of all kinds are checked by the extravagant prices demanded by laborers who prefer to remain idle rather than take less. Stop the profuse and miscellaneous charity and it will be better for the laboring classes, and better for the industry and prosperity of the whole community.

STRANGE.

(From the St. Louis Republican.)

A man by the name of John Hornback, a farmer, near Exeter, Scott County, Ill., was arrested the other day for a burglary on his own house. As they were taking him to jail he jumped out of the buggy, and, with several shots after him, he escaped. He is a wealthy man, and the case causes much comment. The amount stolen from his house was $3,000, and those who procured his arrest were his creditors, who regarded the reported burglary as a ruse to defraud them.

A MINISTER RELINQUISHING HIS SALARY.

BOSTON, April 11.

The Rev. W. H. H. Murray has addressed a letter to the Committee of Park street Church Society giving Scriptural and other reasons why he should have an associate in his pastoral labors. He says it a lack of funds stands in the way it will be an actual pleasure for him to assist the organization in this direction. He, therefore, proposes to the church and parish, in case they call an associate pastor, to surrender his present salary to the treasury of the parish until such time as the income to it shall so far exceed the annual expenses that they shall feel at liberty to renew it or such portions of it as may seem to them needful and proper. In closing his letter Mr. Murray says that an associate pastor seems to him both advisable and feasible. He feels unable to perform the work which the present and prospective necessities of the organization put upon him. The committee of the church have the communication under consideration.

A TEXAN TRAGEDY.

GALVESTON, April 9.

Ardazal, Italian captain of the sloop New-Lousiana, entered the residence of Mr. Jett, three miles from Orange, Tex., during the owner's absence, and murdered Mrs. Jett and two children. A daughter, nearly grown, made her escape and gave an alarm, when Mr. Lyons and other citizens arrived in time to catch Ardazal in the act of endeavoring to burn the bodies. He was immediately arrested, and last night, soon after the Sheriff entered the jail to give the prisoner his supper, a crowd of armed men rushed in, overpowered the officer, took Ardazal outside the prison and literally riddled him with bullets.

REVIVING TRADE.

ST. JOHNSBURY, VT., April 9.

The business of this place is rapidly regaining all it lost during the panic, and promises to exceed that of any previous spring. Fairbanks & Co. have this week received an order from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company for 24 of their 500-bushel hopper scales for their new elevator at Locust Point, Baltimore. Those scales represent a combined capacity of 360 tons, or 36 car loads of grain, which, allowing 12 draughts per hour, effects a measurement of 1,440,000 bushels per day of ten hours. Two hundred of these scales are now in constant use in Chicago.

Use the Power We Have.

Of the several excellent speeches made at the temperance meeting held last that by Dr. Carpenter upon the Special Duty of the Hour seems to us to carry off the palm as being the most practical, and therefore most likely to lead to tangible beneficial results. The evils of intemperance and the desirability of measures to lessen these evils are universally recognised—the great thing is to carry those convictions to a practical issue. That was the aim of Dr. Carpenter's address and he pointed out very plainly that the law has put it within the power of the friends of temperance to correct and counteract much of the evil which it is so easy to deplore in the pulpit, on the platform or in the press.

Dr. Carpenter spoke not one whit too strongly when he said that neglecting to use the provisions of the law in this respect laid teetotalers especially and friends of the order generally, under a grave responsibility; that they were in reality aiding and abetting the liquor interest. Such is the fact, and we sincerely trust that the result of the Doctor's timely and eminently practical remarks will be a flood of protests poured in upon the License Commissioners and a consequent restriction of the liquor traffic to such limits and under such circumstances as shall largely tend to the welfare of the community.

THE TEMPERANCE CAUSE.

The meeting last night in Association Hall was well attended—chairs being placed down the aisles to accomodate the late comers.

The proceedings were opened by hymn and prayer. The Rev. J. Carmichael presided and briefly introduced Dean Bond, who spoke upon the Evils of Intemperance, dealing with the subject in a very able manner and giving many vivid illustrations of the evil wrought by intoxicating liquor. Alluding to what was being done to combat the evil, the rev. gentleman regretted that an effort had been made to crush one of the newspapers which favored the cause and had done so much in its behalf. This allusion elicted prolonged applause.

Canon Baldwin dealt with The License System, and inveighed in bitter terms against that institution as a disgrace to a Christian country. He stated that the word alcohol was derived from a Turkish worn signifying "devil," and proceeded to show how well the name applied. He deplored the number of groggeries to be found along our streets—every three or four doors on Craig and Bonaventure streets—and closed with an eloquent exposition of the wickedness of the licensing system.

Rev. A. Sutherland spoke of Prohibition, and presented powerful arguments in its favor. He set forth that the very essence of good government was the willingness of the people to give up some amount of personal liberty, and contended that the benefit to the community at large which would result from prohibition would overwhelmingly surpass the inconvenience—so-called—which might result to individuals.

Dr. Carpenter made a most practical speech upon "The Special Duty of the Hour," and reminded the Protestants of the fact—mentioned in the STAR some days ago—that the Roman Catholics were early in the field with their memorials to the License Commissioners, with a view to decreasing the number of places where liquor could be obtained. He remarked that it seemed to him that very few temperance people realized the great power which the amended law put in their hands. He was for prohibition and would ever keep that in view, but it was the duty of all to avail themselves of the power they had at the present time. The new law gave the people a first installment of prohibition and a very grand beginning it was. The residents of any locality had it in their power to prohibit the sale of liquor by simply signing a statement setting forth some reason why they desired that a license should not granted—that it was a nuisance, not fitted according to law, that the applicant was unfit to keep a tavern, &c., &c. Dr. Carpenter went on to say that the temperance people had been apathetic in this matter and required to wake up, as no time was to be lost. They should take up the newspapers and read the list of names advertised as applicants. Then single out such as were in their neighborhood and draft a short memorial, sign it and get as many neighbors as they could to do likewise. He said that in this way the hands of the Commissioners would be strengthened and he knew that one at least of these gentlemen ardently desired to lessen the number of drinking places. He lauded the new law as placing a very powerful lever in the hands of the temperance interest, and pointed out the great responsibility every Christian would incur if that power was neglected. In conclusion he submitted a memorial to be presented to the Commissioners, similar to that presented by the Roman Catholics, and proposed that if the meeting assented the Chairman should sign it.

The motion was carried with cheers, and the Rev. Mr. Carmichael signed it accordingly, as did the other clergymen.

Rev. J. Carmichael concluded with a capital Appeal to the Unpledged—witty yet forcible. He then repeated the St. George's Temperance Society pledge, the members standing up and repeating it after him.

In the course of the speeches allusion was made more than once to the recent effort to muzzle the press and, remarking upon the probability that the question of prohibition would soon be submitted to the people through their representative the Rev. Mr. Sutherland, said he was glad to know that it would not be decided by a Montreal jury. These sentiments were applauded to the echo.

The meeting, which throughout had been very enthusiastic, broke up about 10 o'clock, the benediction being pronounced by Dean Bond.

A SAD CASE.

About nine o'clock last evening Eliza Doran, wife of Thomas McCaffrey, claimed protection at the Chaboillez Square Station. She had a child about nine months old in her arms, which Sergeant Hogue, on examination, found to be dead. The Coroner was notified and held an inquest, the verdict being "Death from want of proper care and food." This is the same woman whose two children were frozen to death about two years ago in Kempt street. Her husband is at present in the hospital.

Ald. David moved that the application be referred to the Finance Committee, and that the Aldermen representing the Council on the Board of Direction be requested to examine the subscription list to ascertain whether the conditions of the by-law, No. 59, with reference to the subscriptions by municipalities and others, have been complied with, and that the City Surveyor be appointed Engineer, on behalf of the Corporation, to examine and certify the estimates and certificates of the Company's Engineer.

The City Attorneys gave their opinion in writing that the Grand Trunk Railway Company had no right whatever to employ Wellington streetas a shunting ground. Such an abuse could be stopped either by action at common law, or by indictment, as a nuisance. (Hear, hear.)

Stephens and McShane, who moved amendments, was adopted; also the report naming Commissioners to value damages claimed by Messrs. It was suggested that the Council assist in the erection of a permanent roof.

The Council adjourned at 10 o'clock.

CONTEMPORARY OPINION.

The Dominion Deficit.

[From the Gazette.]

The deficiency for the present year will probably be a little over a million dollars, allowing for a fair spring trade, and taking into account the large amount of duties paid within the last week or two. Now it must be remembered that this deficiency was anticipated by Mr. Tilley, and provided for. When the Act passed assuming the debts of the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, and granting equivalents to the other Provinces, an Act passed by the almost unanimous consent of the House, the then Finance Minister announced that this legislation would involve a probable deficit of about three-quarters of a million of dollars for the year 1873-4. He proposed, however, to recoup the Treasury from the surplus of the previous year, and thus avoid any interference with the tariff or any increase in the ordinary taxation. Such a course was perfectly legitimate.

During the first six years of Confederation, upwards of nine millions of dollars of surplus revenue had been expended on capital account for which the Dominion was authorized to issue its debentures. And it was surely, therefore, not unreasonable that when, by the assumption of new and unforseen burdens, such as the excess of debt of the Provinces, a deficit was to be faced, that deficit should be made good from the surplus of the preceding year. It is important, therefore, to remember that the deficit of the present year has already been provided for, and that it is the contingencies of the year 1874-5 for which Mr. Cartwright will be called upon to provide in his proposed budget.

A Tale of the Sea.

NEW YORK, April 14.

The captain of the Europe insists that he was not allowed to return to the ship by the officers of the Greece, but this is as positively denied by the latter. The collision between the Greece and the Europe occurred after the rescue, and was caused by an effort made to turn the Europe around. She struck the Greece near the stern, making quite a hole, and there was for a short time quite a panic, but no material damage however was done. The French captain was quite indignant at his alleged ill-treatment.

A number of small children who were on the Europe were very much frightened, but were all saved by being fastened together and let down tenderly into the boats in blankets.

There were 18,000 baskets of champagne, an immense quantity of valuable silks, and about forty tons of sundries.

U. S. FINANCES.

A Times' Washington despatch states that the inflationists boast they will pass their Finance Bill in the House to-day, and to do so they will have to sustain Maynard's proposition prohibiting any further amendments.

The Committee on Civil Service reform have authorized a bill to be reported to the House reorganizing the Treasury Department, which reduces the present force over three hundred, and the expenses nearly four hundred thousand dollars per annum. It abolishes all distinction of sex as to salary, omitting the word "female," thus making women eligible to the highest office in the Department.

FREE CARRIAGE OF NEWSPAPERS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13.

In the House the Bill for the free exchange of newspapers between publishers, and the free transmission by mails of newspapers within the county of publication was taken up and passed under suspension of rules. Yeas, 178; nays, 41. The text of the bill is as follows:

"That from and after passage of this act, the following mail matter shall be allowed to pass free in mail:—1st. Newspapers, periodicals and magazines, reciprocally interchanged between publishers and not exceeding sixteen ounces in weight to be confined to single copy of each publication. 2nd. Newspapers, one copy to each actual subscriber residing in the same county where the paper is published by carriers, publishers shall not be required to distribute such papers unless postage is paid upon them at usual rates."

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Senate.

OTTAWA, April 13.

After the reception of a number of petitions for a prohibitory liquor law, to protect home industries, and one to amend the Corporation Act,

Hon. Mr. Alexander introduced a motion declaring it desirable that the Extradition Treaty between Great Britain and the United States include fugitive debtors liable for $2,000 and over.

The motion was generally opposed as not in accord with the spirit of the age and inhuman in its tendency. It was finally withdrawn.

Hon. Mr. Wilmot brought up the subject of the disallowance of the Parliamentary Committee Oaths Bill in England and, in reply,

Hon. Mr. Scott said he could not say what the Government intended to do in the matter.

In reply to a member,

Hon. L. St. Just said the Government had the question of compulsory prepayment of postage under consideration.

With regard to the Pacific R.R., he did not know whether Government intended to bring in a measure respecting its construction.

A motion for a statement of details of trips made by the Allan steamers last year was carried.

The Food Adulteration Bill will be read a second time on Monday.

A Committee will be appointed to act with that of the Commons on the Prohibitory Liquor Law question.

The House adjourned.

House of Commons.

OTTAWA, April 13.

After the business reported in Monday's STAR,

The Caughnawaga Ship Canal Incorporation Bill was referred to the Railroad Committee.

Sir John A. Macdonald asked when the Pacific R.R. scheme would be submitted; also when the return of officials dismissed by the present Government, would be ready.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie said to the first question: within a week or two; 2nd, that he would accelerate the compilation of the return.

In reply to questions,

The Hon. Postmaster-General said Government had not considered the question of free newspaper delivery, and were considering free delivery of postal matter in cities.

The Premier said plans for an examining warehouse in Montreal were being prepared.

Also that the Government did not intend to introduce any measure to restrict or prohibit the importation or manufacture of liquor; nor to re-arrange electoral divisions; also when Government arrived at a determination to apply for an amnesty for North-West offenders they would announce it—not before; also that they had a measure preparing to provide for greater safety of life on steamboats.

Hon. Dr. Tupper moved for a return of correspondence relating to the Nova Scotia "Better Terms" negotiations. He would say, in explanation, that his principal reason for making this motion was because he desired to make a statement which was due to himself and to his colleagues from Nova Scotia. As would be recollected, last year when the Minister of Finance introduced his resolution for the re-adjustment of the debt of Ontario and Quebec, and making a corresponding adjustment with the other Provinces, the question was raised; what effect would this have upon the amount payable to Nova Scotia. He need not remind the House that the Union Act granted to Nova Scotia an indemnity of eight millions. In 1869, an act was passed by this House which considerably increased the indemnity to Nova Scotia. But the question now came, how did the re-adjustment of last session affect this? He had brought the matter before the Privy Council at the time, when his right. hon. friend, the Finance Minister, gave it as his opinion that the Union Act should have read as amended in 1869, giving the indemnity as $9,186,756 instead of eight millions, and have been increased on this amount by the amount granted last session. This opinion of the First Minister he had been empowered to give by the Council. It had, however, happened that when the first payment under the reamended Act had been paid the Finance Minister was absent from Ottawa, and it had been paid in the absence of instructions and based upon the old debt of eight millions, increased only by the Act of last session, thus practically depriving Nova Scotia of some ten thousand dollars annually. Previous to the retirement of the late Government the people of Nova Scotia had not drawn attention to this fact, but he had recently been informed of it. He had since then put himself into communication with the Finance Minister and with the Minister of Justice, who now had the matter in hand.

Hon. Mr. Cartwright had no objection to the motion of his hon. friend; he believed that he had stated the facts as they existed. He would not give his opinion until the papers were brought down.

After some discussion, the motion was carried.

A motion for a select Committee to enquire into the condition of Port Stanley Harbor was carried.

CONSTITUTION OF THE SENATE.

Mr. Mills moved that the House go into Committee of the Whole to consider the following resolution:—"That the present mode of constituting the Senate is inconsistent with the Federal principles in our system of Government, makes the Senate alike independent of the people and of the Crown, and is in other material respects defective, and that our constitution ought to be amended so as to confer upon each province the power of appointing its own Senators, and to define the mode of their appointment."

The House went into Committee of the Whole, Mr. Ross, (P. E. I.,) in the chair.

Mr. Mills said he had in course of preparation a series of resolutions on this subject. He considered the Senate too large to be efficient, and he proposed it should be reduced by one-half. He proposed that there should be only returned twelve Senators by the Local Legislatures, and that the Senators should be elected according to the political complexion of these Legislatures. If three-quarters were Reformers, and one-fourth Conservatives, the proportion of Reformers should be greater than the Conservatives. A quarter of the Senators should be elected every two years, and half every four years; the elections to be for eight years. The additions would be made to the present Senate, and the existing members allowed to die out, but if any Senator chose an election, then his life Senatorship would terminate.

Sir J. A. Macdonald held that the hon. gentleman had no authority for entering into the details of his scheme at present. They were considering the principle.

Hon. Mr. Blake supported Mr. Mills.

Hon. Mr. Holton contended that the principle had been affirmed by allowing the House to go into Committee. He thought they might fairly assume that they had now a prospect of carrying out the principle, as none of the parties of the House had opposed it.

Mr. Palmer said whatever his opinion as to the constitution of the Senate, he considered an attempt to alter the law passed by the Imperial Parliament, upon the agreement of all the Provinces, as decidedly vicious.

Hon. Mr. Mitchell also protested against Mr. Holton's construction of the action of the House, and several members followed suit.

Mr. Cauchon opposed the motion.

AFTER RECESS.

Mr. Bodwell resumed the debate, supporting the motion. He was for resident Senators, eight Ontario Senators were from Toronto, which was unjust to the rural districts.

Mr. Ross, Middlesex, moved an amendment basing the Senate upon the popular franchise, believing that they would do it as faithfully and as well as the people had done in electing the present House of Commons.

Hon. Malcolm Cameron entirely concurred in the remarks of the last speaker. Our Legislative Council in the past had never been looked up to with any amount of respect until it had been made elective.

Mr. Cauchon opposed an elective Senate, arguing that if the Senate had the same motive power as the Commons, it would not act as a break, which it had been intended to be, but would rather be radical than otherwise. He regretted the disposition for tinkering with the constitution, as was the case with the United States.

Dr. Brouse approved of the elective principle.

Mr. Chisholm said he would vote for the measure if the people were allowed to elect Senators, and the Provinces were divided into proper Senatorial districts.

Messrs. Patterson, Dymond, and Gordon would vote the same way.

Mr. Mills moved that the House rise, report progress and ask leave to sit again. Carried.

CULLING TIMBER.

Mr. McDougall, South Renfrew, moved for a Select Committee to enquire into the state of the Quebec office for culling and measuring wood, and to recommend, with a view to efficiency and economy, such changes in the regulations, and of the staff in and out of the office, as may be required by the existing circumstances and dimensions of the Quebec timber trade.

After some discussion,

Hon. Mr. Fournier suggested an amendment to the motion.

Sir John Macdonald contended the practice of the Government in deputing to a committee an enquiry into the working of a branch of the Inland Revenue Department was not to be approved. He thought it was a most extraordinary mode of doing business. The Government seemed to have abnegated their functions by handing them over to Committees.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie said of course the hon. gentleman must complain about something. It was quite natural, and they had expected it; but the hon. gentleman might have been more happy in choosing his subject. He denied that the Government delegated its work to Committees and asserted that they do not intend to abegate their functions. He stated that the course adopted by the Government last year was to submit all their measures to public committees.

Mr. McDougall said the matter should be submitted to a committee, and would move that the committee be as follows: Messrs. Cauchon, Thibaudeau, White (Renfrew), Currier, Cockburn, Pelletier, Tremblay, Cook and the mover.—Carried.

MONTREAL HARBOUR.

Mr. Ryan moved for the correspondence between the Government and the Harbour Commissioners of Montreal with copies of letters of the dismissal of Messrs. Delisle, Workman, Hudon and Ryan from said Commission.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie said that unless some evidence was given to the Government that the powers entrusted to the Commissioners had been abused, he did not think they could proceed in the manner the hon. member suggested.

The motion was carried.

WHITBY HARBOUR.

Mr. Jordan moved for a return of Order of Council selling or leasing the Whitby harbour to the present Company. He took it the harbour should be taken out of the hands of the present Company, and he believed that when the return was made there would be sufficient to induce the Government to take action.—Carried.

Mr. Mitchell said there was one item on the order paper which it was advisable to pass before the Finance Minister brought down his statement. He therefore would move for a comparative statement of revenues collected in the first nine months of the fiscal years 1872, 1873 and 1874.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie said these statements should be brought down as quickly as possible.

Mr. Bowell said he had a motion on the order paper in reference to the Riel affair which he desired to get through with.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie said he had no objection to the matter coming up on Wednesday as the first order.

On motion of Mr. Cartwright the House took a step in supply and resolved to go again into commitee of supply to-morrow.

The House then adjourned at 11:20.

CARRATRACA.

OFFICE CARRATRACA SPRING CO., Plantagenet, O. 389 ST. PAUL STREET, Montreal.

Having received last Fall an ample stock of the justly celebrated CARRATRACA WATER, sufficient, as we supposed, to meet the requirements of our Customers during the Winter, and finding the demand greater than we expected, we ordered a further supply to be shipped, but owing to the very early closing of navigation on the Ottawa River, we were disappointed in getting the additional quantity.

Our stock, which was large, was entirely consumed by the end of January, by the unprecedented call for it. In future, we shall endeavor to have ALWAYS a sufficient quantity on hand to meet any demand, and hope this explanation will prove entirely satisfactory to all who have been disappointed since, in not being able to get the water.

Upon the opening of navigation we will ship either from the Springs direct, or from our office here, any desired quantity.

News of the West.

[Special to THE STAR.]

TORONTO, April 14.

Ald. Spence has met with an accident which will prevent him attending to his official duties for some time.

A meeting of vessel owners was held last night at Robinson House. It was convened for the purpose of appointing delegates to meet the vessel owners' convention at Detroit on the 15th inst., in order to protest against bridging on the Detroit River, but the attendance being small, the meetieg simply resolved to write a letter to the convention expressing their views.

The schooner Meteor, bound from Oakville to Ogdensburg, sprung a leak on Saturday night. The Captain tried to run into Oswego, but the vessel sunk five miles from that port. The crew were taken off by the propellor Milwaukee.

The Assizes at Berlin opened yesterday. The business is unimportant. The Court is expected to close to-day.

An American lady is at present in London lecturing, with a view to promote a local crusade upon liquor saloons.

S. B. Freeman, Q. C., of Hamilton, is worse. No hopes are entertained of his recovery.

An unsuccessful attempt was made yesterday morning to break open the County Treasurer's vault in the Hamilton Court House.

News of Quebec.

[Press Despatch.]

QUEBEC, April 14.

The municipal nominations passed off quietly. The only Wards contested are St. Rochs and Jacques Cartier.

The change in the personnel of the Council is very marked; nine or ten of the oldest members retiring and being replaced by new ones.

The annual rifle match between the officers and men of the 8th Battalion resulted in a victory for the men by four points, Sergt. Hawkins making 18 at 600 yards out of a possible 20.

The candidates for the Local House are working hard, and both sides are confident of success.

The weather to-day is warm.

ROUND TOWN.

— Customs receipts yesterday, $79,371.45.

— Vosburg at a late hour last evening was found guilty by the jury of assault.

— The wife of one Thomas McCaffrey last evening entered Chaboillez Square Police Station for protection, when the Sergeant discovered that a child which she carried in her arms was dead. The Coroner was notified.

— Napoleon Hogue, street car driver, was fined $6 or twenty days this morning, at the Police Court, for assaulting Odelila Hogue, his sister; and Elmira Wood, $10 or twenty days, for assaulting Bridget Murphy; Oscar Lafortune was fined $50 and costs, to be levied by distress, or three months, for selling liquor without a license; William Harold, 19, a laborer, convicted of the theft of a gold chain from Josephine Labelle, was sent down for four months.

TO-MORROW, at 2 o'clock, a very large number of valuable pianos will be sold at Mr. Shaw's stores, Craig street.—See advertisement.

TO-MORROW, Wednesday morning, Henry J. Shaw will sell at the residence, No. 83 St. Urbain street, the whole of the neat household furniture, carpets, bedding, glassware, cooking stoves, oil cloth, &c., for removal the day of sale. Sale at ten o'clock.

INQUESTS.

Inquests were held at a late hour yesterday afternoon on two bodies found in the canal, both seriously decomposed, and one frightfully so, being reduced to a keleton. The latter was indentified by M. Adam, hotel-keeper, Bonsecours street, as that of his son-in-law, Henri Beauchemin, who was drowned in the canal in the neighborhood of Cote St. Paul last fall, on the 16th of October, when it is presumed he was passing along the canal bank, and fell in through accident; his remains were found at the St. Gabriel Locks.

The other body was that of a man middle-aged, recovered in the flume of Pillow & Hersey's nail works, above Black's bridge; the remains have not been indentified. The verdict in each case was "found drowned."

FIRE.

A serious fire was discovered about six o'clock this morning in the third and fourth flats of the factory of the Beaver Stamping Co., on King street. These two flats were completely gutted, and the remainder of the building was damaged by water. The building, which belongs to Mr. Warmington, Manager, is understood to be sufficiently insured to cover the loss. Policies are held on the machinery and stock by the Company to the extent of $15,000, comprising $11,500 in the Royal Canadian; $2,000 in the London Imperial; and $1,500 in the Scottish Imperial. It is supposed that the fire was smouldering for several hours previous to discovery, but its cause has not been definitely ascertained. The entire brigade was in attendance.

THE REVOLVER AGAIN.

About seven o'clock last evening a Frenchman, lately from France according to his own account, entered Rapin's Hotel, St. Joseph street, and asked for a glass of brandy. Being given a bottle and glass, he filled the glass full and threw down a ten cent piece. The barkeeper, who was alone in the bar, put the money in the till, whereupon the Frenchman asked for his change.

The bar-keeper replied that he had taken more than ten cents worth, and that there was no change for him; the man then drew a revolver and pointing it at the head of the bar-keeper forced him to return five cents, threatening to shoot him if he did not return the money; the man then left the saloon. Information was laid at the Chaboillez Square Station to Acting Sergeant Hogue, and an effort made to find the man, but he could not be found.

Piano-Forte Warerooms.

The elegant and commodious premises of the New York and Boston Piano Company, established at No. 432 Notre Dame street, have recently been subject to many marked improvements, which have contributed to add greatly to their appearance. The members of the Company are sole agents for the celebrated piano-fortes manufactured by Hallet Davis & Co., Boston, which have obtained thirty-six first premiums and in all forty-nine premiums; for the Henry F. Miller pianos; for the Weber grand, square, and upright piano-fortes, warranted for five years; George Wood's & Co's parlor and vestry organs, preeminent for beauty and purity of tone; also for the beautiful pianos manufactured by C. D. Pease & Co., of New York. The variety is infinite, and the instruments on exhibition are, without exception, finely and chastely finished; their tone is unexceptionable, and in view of these facts, it is indeed no matter for surprise that the business transacted by the Company has been steadily increasing in volume, and to such a gratifying extent as to give ground for the most happy auguries with respect to the future. Catalogues, with price lists, are supplied on application. and it may be mentioned as a most desirable circumstance that the prices run an extended gamut, being such as to suit almost every purse.

The Press and the Law of Libel.

The Herald says: The ruling of the Hon. Judge Ramsay in the case of the Witness is one of those extraordinary events which come upon society from time to time like an earthquake upon the physical world. It is calculated at once to overthrow everything which seems to be established in all the habits of our daily life. Let it be understood that we do not here enter into any discussion as to the merits of the publication which was complained of. We are not disposed to sanction libels, properly so-called, more than to approve of other offences against society. But if the ruling of the learned Judge be accepted as the law, we are thrown back for a century, and this branch of jurisprudence and half our political life and machinery will be absolutely destroyed. * * * In short, any information through the press as to the misdeeds of public men can be given only at the risk of fine and imprisonment. His Honour will have created a paradise for evil doing officials by this decision. If it be maintained our letters may be stolen, our treasury plundered, our steamers and railways run in such a manner as to cause loss of property and life, and no one can have any warning of what is going on except at the cost of some adventurous personage who, for the glory of being a journalist, will submit himself to the chance of being treated like a felon. That newspaper press which we hear so often toasted at public dinners, will be annihilated, for it must be remembered that the mere history of transactions in Courts and in Parliament is just as obnoxious to the law as now laid down as the most malicious invention of a personal enemy. * * * *

In Canada, in short, the free press is to be able to narrate nothing that interests the public, and the public is to know from the press nothing that interests itself. If this be law, Judge Ramsay has, perhaps, done us all a service in finding out how far we are behind our fellow subjects in England. In that country justification is a regular plea in criminal prosecutions as well as on civil suits for libel, and we constantly see it affirmed in that country with respect to these prosecutions that the aggrieved person proceeds in that way instead of civilly because by so doing he can go into the box himself and submit to the cross-examination of the defendant in order in that way to submit to the severest possible test his freedom from the charges brought against him in the alleged libel. It is evident that under the ruling in the Witness case this chivalrous and satisfactory restoration of a character unjustly assailed can form no part of the motive of the private prosecutor. He may, on the contrary, only desire to revenge himself for the exposure of offences against the public which he does not deny, but which the Court will not allow to be proved. * * *

But we cannot congratulate Mr. Mousseau on the effect of the trial. We cannot suppose that it will afford him very much gratification, even if some substantial punishment be inflicted on the proprietors of the Witness, and, so far as the trial is concerned, as the Judge refused to permit the truth of the libel to be discussed, it is evident that he has lost that opportunity for denying and absolutely refuting his accusers, which a more enlightened jurisprudence would have afforded him.

The Gazette, while approving of the trial and the result, is compelled to admit that:—

The law regulating the procedure appears to be in need of amendment, for the defendant is debarred from attempting to justify himself by proving the truth of the statement complained of.

PUBLIC OPINION.

Mr T. D. King as First Grave-Digger.

To the Editor of THE STAR:

DEAR SIR:—In a Herald leader to-day I find an unqualified mistake, to put it mildly.

Mr. T. D. King distinctly proferred in presence of Mr. Gregston, and others, to play the part of 1st Grave-digger, and I willingly accepted his offer. He, moreover, gave me his ideas and new readings, and being always willing to learn, I accepted the teachings of the Shakespearian commentator.

I do not think Mr. T. D. King authorized the Herald denial in the terms therein stated.

If his courage faileth, I am grievously sorry, but I think if he will screw up his courage to the sticking point, he will not fail. In fact, I know that Mr. King is a man of his word and will keep it by playing on Thursday night, spite of outside influences.

Yours, &c.,
HARRY LINDLEY.

POST-OFFICE INVESTIGATION.

The examination of John T. Wright was commenced at 10:30 yesterday morning. Witness deposed: I was engaged as a temporary mail conductor by the then Inspector, Mr. Freer, now Postmaster, in July, 1860. I continued as such until February, 1861, when I was specially engaged by Mr. Freer, on his taking the Postmastership, to assist them in reorganizing the office, and in the accounts generally, still as a temporary clerk. In March, 1861, all the temporary employees were dismissed, myself amongst the number; but I was permanently appointed in the month of August of the same year. Between March, 1861, and August, 1861, I assisted the Postmaster whenever he required my services. I have been under appointment continually from that date until the ninth of June, 1873. I saw for the first time, posted on the outside of the Post-office, the handbill subscribed by Mr. King, Post-office Inspector. I immediately identified the fac simile of handwriting at the head of it as that of Mr. Joseph L. Palmer, clerk in the Montreal Post-office. I felt no doubt of its being the fac simile of his handwriting; the writing on the envelope was more disguised than that on the slip. When I returned home in the evening I looked up some pencil memorandums of Mr. Palmer's which I had preserved for a different purpose.

I would explain that this purpose was to prove that on a given date the letting of boxes had been taken from me by the Assistant Postmaster, Mr. Emery, he stating that he would attend to them himself; but, as I was aware, really to give them to Mr. Palmer; for this purpose I preserved the first few memoranda that came into my hands in Mr. Palmer's handwriting. These memoranda related to the letting of boxes, and bore the names of the applicants. I turned to these memoranda on the evening of the day on which I had seen the handbills, and found the similarity strikingly carried out. I may add that these memoranda were brought to me by the Assistant Postmaster, as from Mr. Palmer, for me to enter their names as either applicants for, or occupiers of, boxes, in a list that I kept for the Postmaster. The next morning early I went to Mr. King's house on University street before breakfast hour. I said to Mr. King, when he saw me, "I have called, Sir, to ask whether it is really the desire of the Government to find out the writer of the slip and envelope connected with the "Pope-Macdonald letter." Mr. King said, "Most certainly it is." I said then, "I cannot see the difficulty or the necessity of offering five hundred dollars reward." Mr. King said, "Oh, we know who it is." I then took out the memoranda now filed by me and said, "If the person you have under suspicion is not the person who wrote it then you have got the wrong pig by the ear." I also said, "You know I am pretty well versed in handwriting, and particularly that of the clerks in the office." I then asked Mr. King if he would give me a copy of the handbill; he brought one down from upstairs, and I placed the memoranda that I was exhibiting side by side with the handbill; he said "Well; and whose handwriting is this?" pointing to the memoranda. I said "Mr. Palmer's." He said "Oh! I do not know Mr. Palmer's writing; in fact my suspicions have not gone at all in that direction." I said, "You know, sir, that you have often asked my opinion as to handwriting, and I do not think you ever found me wrong." He said he thought I was in this case, but would turn his attention in that direction if I could give him any suggestions where to look for additional proofs. I told him he would, I had no doubt, find something corroborative in the office, and told him of a locked drawer used by Mr. Palmer in the front of the office. Mr. King said, "Oh, I did not know he had a drawer there; but, I will carry out your suggestion." He thanked me for the information and I left.

On the fifteenth (ten days afterwards) not having heard anything more from Mr. King, I wrote to Sir John A. Macdonald detailing the circumstances just narrated; and drawing his attention to the desirability of giving stringent instructions to have the matter investigated, as I found without them, the inquiry would be dropped. As to Mr. Palmer, I also asked leave to wait on him personally. I now produce a true copy of my letter to Sir John A. Macdonald.

On the afternoon of the seventeenth about four o'clock I received through my Post-office drawer a reply from Sir John A. Macdonald, requesting me to call on the Hon. J. H. Pope at the St. Lawrence Hall, and speak to him freely on the subject of my letter. I now produce the said paper. I saw Mr. Pope in the evening and showed him the specimens of Palmer's handwriting; and here I will qualify my statement as to exact dates as between the seventeenth and the twenty-fourth, not having taken any memorandum of the dates of what follows.

I believe it was on the twentieth that I called again and saw Mr. Pope at his request; and he expressed his inability to trace any resemblance between Mr. Palmer's memorandum and the fac simile; he said he was going out of town and he would send for me on his return. On the twenty-third he sent for me to my house and, on seeing him at the St. Lawrence Hall in the evening, he asked me to go up to his lawyer, Mr. Kerr, at once, as he would be expecting me at his dwelling. I went there and produced to Mr. Kerr the memoranda in Palmer's handwriting, and he expressed himself at once, the moment he looked at them, as struck by the resemblance. I said that possibly it would be well for the pencil memoranda to be compared with the original slip and envelope, wherever they were. Mr. Kerr asked me to meet him at his office in the morning at ten o'clock to inspect the originals. I went, and Mr. Kerr introduced me to his partner, Mr. Carter. Mr. Carter showed me a number of box lettering slips signed by Mr. Palmer, and which he stated he had got from Mr. King, the Inspector. We went to the Court House together, and the original slip (I do not think the envelope) was produced to me in Mr. Brehaut's private room. I noticed the paper on which it was written, and with very little difficulty selected from amongst the slips in Mr. Carter's possession one written on paper the counterpart of that on which the original slip found around Mr. Pope's letter was written.

Mr. Carter and myself held both samples of paper up to the light. The water marks, texture and color of each corresponded exactly. I believe the paper to have been a piece of some foolscap we received many years ago from Quebec, and which the Postmaster and myself used to call the "Foote" paper. I can speak now positively as to its texture and color for this reason. Mr. Carter seemed struck with the resemblance, and at my suggestion marked the particular slip identified as the paper, and said he would take particular care of it. After my return from the Court House I met Mr. Pope by appointment. I reported to him the result of my visit to the Court House and he said he felt a great difficulty in fixing the purloining of the letter upon any of the Post-office clerks, and more particularly Mr. Palmer, as he found on enquiry he was a most useful clerk, and he could not see what motive he could have in taking the letter.

I said from my knowledge of the young man's predeliction for politics and what I knew of his past character as a lover of mischief. I believed the motive on his part would be that of meddling in the political excitement of the hour, to make capital of it hereafter. Mr. Pope at once rejected this idea of motive and said he could not see any motive at all on Palmer's part; but he said, "Would it not be a more probable thing to happen that some one outside of the office might have got the letter from the General Delivery upon some false representation?" I said "How!" He said, "Suppose some one was employed by parties of adverse politics who had been surreptitiously acquainted with the fact of the dispatch of the telegram from Sir John A., to go to the Post Office and say "You have a letter for Hon. Mr. Pope; would they not have got it?" I said "Certainly not, if the commonest rules of the office were observed by the General Delivery clerks."

Mr. Pope said, "Well, I am told by Mr. Emery that they would have got such a letter if so asked for." I still persisted in my belief. Mr. Pope seemed annoyed at my dissent, and said, "think again." I said I had no fresh opinion to offer. I thought I understood the matter better now and had no evidence to offer in the direction referred to. I apologized to Mr. Pope for taking up so much of his time; he said he would see me the next week and I left. By the expression I understood the matter, I meant to express my idea that Mr. Pope's leaning was towards the belief that the letter was purloined by a direct agent employed by the Opposition. I have never seen Mr. Pope since. The last interview with Mr. Pope was on the twenty-fourth day of September.

In answer to a question about the opening of letters in the office the witness said: At the time of the Fenian troubles Sir George E. Cartier called upon the Postmaster several times. At one interview the Postmaster called me into his room and introduced me to Sir George Cartier. I then understood that the matter then under discussion was the desirability or necessity for ascertaining the movements of the Fenians and their friends in Canada by watching correspondence addressed to and from certain points in the Eastern and Western States. I also understood that Sir George E. Cartier was specially authorized to give instructions to the Postmaster to inspect any letters coming from these points and take memoranda of the Post marks. This was done for some days by Mr. Freer and myself; but the Fenian troubles increasing, I understood from the Postmaster that Sir George Cartier had authorized him to open such letters as came from certain places and take a memorandum of any facts of a suspicious or libellous character likely to assist the Government in putting down the trouble. I remember particularly one batch of about six letters from the States being opened in the Postmaster's private office, their being resealed and forwarded by the next mail, or delivered by next delivery. The next morning the Postmaster and myself went to Sir George Cartier's house and showed him extracts from the opened letters.

An adjournment for an hour here took place.

THE DEEP SECRET;

OR,

THE LIVING WONDER.

Lord Grosvenor opened a door just behind Giralda, disclosing a long, wide hall, suited to a baronial castle.

"Come in, Giralda," he said, offering her his arm. "The air from the sea is too cold and damp for you."

Giralda arose, not venturing to dispute his tone of gentle authority, took his arm and was conducted along the hall to a pleasant room, called the Oriel Parlour, from the fact of its possessing an oriel window. It was in this window that the red beacon-light she had noticed was still burning, swinging by a chain from the ceiling.

"This is my favourite sitting-room," said his lordship, wheeling a couch up near to the fire, and gently compelling Giralda to occupy it, he removing her bonnet with her own hands. "The first thing you need is food. I presume you have not eaten since morning?"

"I couldn't eat," said Giralda, stammering.

"I thought so," and the young lord gave a quick pull at the bell. "After you have food, what then, Giralda?"

"I must go home. I must warn papa."

"You are not fit to travel to-night. Let me plan for you. Lord Trevelyan loves you. He is doubtless half frantic at your disappearance. He does not know your secret, and I do not believe Lord Adlowe wants him to know it yet. Do not give up the work you have undertaken until you are absolutely compelled to! Let me take you back to the Park as soon as you are sufficiently rested!"

"But papa! Poor papa!"

"I will go to him. I will start by the morning train. I am acquinted with the Lady Beatrice. Let me go, Giralda. You are not able to make the journey."

Giralda smiled assent, and breathed a sigh of relief. She was about to give him the address of her father, and to ask him to telegraph at once a warning to The Evergreens, when the door opened and the housekeeper entered.

She was a plump, motherly woman, whom Giralda liked at the first glance. That glance was returned with a long stare of surprise, the woman being unable to conceive whence the young visitor had come.

"Miss Arevalo," said the young lord, "this is Mrs. Latten, my housekeeper, an excellent woman, who will take good care of you. "Mrs. Latten," he continued, Miss Arevalo, the niece of Lord Trevelyan. I found her but now in great distress on the coast. She is tired and ill. See that she has supper immediately, and order the carriage to take her to the Park."

"The young lady ought not to stir out of the Eyrie to-night!" exclaimed the motherly dame with emphasis. "She will be ill in earnest if she doesn't rest."

"Then send a messenger to the Park to assure Lord Trevelyan that she is in safety and that she will return home in the morning," said his lordship. "See that the man goes at once."

The housekeeper bowed, and went out with a heartful of pity for the pale and sad young stranger.

"She shall have such a supper as she never had at the Park," she thought, hurrying along the hall. "The poor dear! How sorrowful she looks, and she but a child that should be playing with her dolls."

While she despatched the messenger in haste, and hurried to prepare supper, Lord Grosvenor extinguished the red light in the window, and drew a seat near to his lovely young guest, who smiled up at him gratefully.

"As I said, I will start for the Evergreens in the morning," he said. "You must have no more anxieties, Giralda. If you would only let me shield you from them all! Now give me your father's address, and rely upon my earnest efforts to warn him in time."

CHAPTER XXXI.

A feeling of delicious langour crept over the tired frame of Giralda, as she reclined on the couch in the oriel parlour of the Eagle's Eyrie, and a delicious sense of dependence on her gallant young rescuer succeeded to her late bitter and terrible isolation.

Lord Grosvenor with a tender thoughtfulness befitting a woman, having drawn from her the address of her father, and transferred it to his pocket-tablets, exerted himself to expel from her mind all unpleasant thoughts, treating her recent imprisonment as an odd adventure, and gradually leading her from it to pleasanter subjects.

He had succeeded in bringing more than one smile to the pale, lovely face, exquisitely beautiful even in its weariness, when Mrs. Latten, the housekeeper, returned, followed by a maid.

A round table was drawn up near to the fire, relieved of its books, and spread with a cloth of snowy damask, which fell to the floor on every side. A costly silver tete-a-tete service was then disposed upon the table, and dishes of painted procelian succeeded. An exquisite little supper was then brought in, the maid dismissed and the housekeeper proceeded to wait upon table in person.

"Do not rise, Miss Arevalo," said Lord Grosvenor, as Giralda made an effort to do so. "Let me wait upon you." He ran and brought cushions, with which he propped her up into a half-sitting position, and he then wheeled the couch nearer to the table, and hastened to carve for her the daintiest sections of broild birds, and load her plate with delicacies.

Giralda made an effort to do justice to Mrs. Latten's cookery; but it was a vain one. She was too nearly exhausted to desire food, but sipped with feverish eagerness the cup of fragrant tea brought her, and then sank back upon her pillows.

"You can take away the things, Mrs. Latten," said the young lord, his own appetite gone. "Please see that the blue room is got ready at once."

The housekeeper bowed assent, and hastened to clear the table and to withdraw.

"I do not like to go away, leaving you so ill, Giralda," said Lord Grosvenor, with tender concern, when they found themselves again alone. "I shall be very anxious about you while I am absent."

"It is only fatigue, I think, Paul," said Giralda, her heart fluttering under his ardent glances. "Your going will make me well. I shall soon recover from my exhaustion if my mind is at rest."

"Let it be at rest from all anxieties from this moment then," said her young host, taking one of her hands in both his. "Hear me, Giralda. You have faith in me? You trust me?"

"As I would trust my darling mother!" exclaimed Giralda, with a sudden and uncontrolable impulsiveness, looking up at him with a trustfulness that went to his soul.

He dropped on his knees beside her couch, gathering both her hands in his, his face glowing with impassioned feeling.

"Giralda," he said, his voice trembling with his sudden emotion, "you have been working alone to clear your father's name! From this moment I will devote myself to the same holy cause! I swear it! The aim and object of my existence from this hour shall be to clear all stain from the reputation of the wronged Geoffrey Trevelyan, and to promote a reconciliation between him and his uncle."

Giralda started up, all joyful excitement.

"Oh, Paul," she said, growing radiant, "you believe in papa's innocence then? You will help me to prove that innocence to the world?"

"I believe in his innocence of all intended harm or ingratitude to his uncle, as I believe in my own existence!" exclaimed Lord Grosvenor, solemnly. "I believe him to be a much wronged man! I believe that he and Lord Trevelyan have been but the victims and dupes of Lord Adlowe! And I devote myself to the work of proving to the world that my convictions are true. Giralda, let us join hands in this sacred task. I will know neither peace nor happiness until Geoffrey Trevelyan stands clear before the world, restored to his rightful position, with his wife and children acknowledged before the world!"

Giralda clasped his hands in uncenscious fervour.

"Oh, Paul!" she murmured again, and now her eyes filled with glad tears, "you make me so happy!"

"First," said the young lord, still in his impassioned manner, "we will collect evidence that shall prove Adlowe's guilt and your father's innocence. Then we will shower these proofs upon Lord Trevelyan. We will humble his awful pride. We will soften his hard, proud heart. He shall welcome your wronged father with remorse, and tenderness, and love!"

"You will help me to do all this?" asked Giralda, all aglow. "It will be as easy to you, Paul, as my rescue from the swollen creek, or from my prison at the bluff cottage! Dear papa has found a friend—a powerful friend!"

"And his daughter has found a lover!" whispered the handsome young lord, shocked at his own temerity, yet not able to resist the glorious beauty of those pleading violet eyes, and stirred to the depths of his being by her trusting confidence. "Do not be angry with me, Giralda. I have frightened you! You are not angry?" he cried, as the young girl withdrew her hands from him, covering her eyes. "Say you are not angry with me, Giralda! I have spoken too soon, too suddenly! I should have waited until you had known me longer—until your father's fortune's had brightened Idiot that I am! I have ruined all my own hopes!"

His face clouded over with the storm of a terrible grief and disappointment. He essayed to lift her hand, that he might read her face.

Then Giralda, who did not dream of disguising her heart or being coquettish, let him withdraw her hand, and disclosed a face which the dullest dotard could not have called angry—a lovely face, burning with soft blushes, with eyes drooping, the long lashes trembling against her cheeks, and with lips quivering with a smile—a happy, bright, and tearful smile, that turned her young lover's despair into rapture.

He covered her hands with kisses. He stole an arm around her slight waist and drew the pretty head to his bosom. And then he pressed a tender, reverential kiss on her forehead and almost instantly released her from his clasp, returning to his chair beside her.

Despite his love and his rapture at her silent encouragement of his suit, his chivalrous nature would not permit him to frighten or embarrass her with caresses while she was his guest. He determined to woo her as gently as the humming-bird woos the rose.

"Giralda," he said, softly, his voice tremulous with happiness, "we have met but twice; but each meeting has made us better acquainted with each other than months of formal intercourse could have done. Love is not always of slow growth. I could not love you better if I had known you for years. I think—nay, I am sure now that often when kindred souls meet they recognize the fact at once. It is like the meeting of flint and steel. A spark is struck at once, which is often kindled into a great fire."

Giralda did not reply. She was looking away shyly, and her young lover saw but the tip of one rosy ear, as it gleamed from out the close-curling rings of her dusky hair.

"Perhaps I should have waited," he said, in a remorseful tone, which his happy eyes and glowing face belied. "Perhaps I have been ungenerous in speaking of love while you were under my care and protection. Perhaps I should have spoken first to your parents," he continued, bent on torturing himself, or on securing some more tangible evidence of encouragement. "But I will tell them all to-morrow," he added; "all my hopes and desires. May I not Giralda?"

The little ear grew rosier—the little head nodded gravely and shyly. He got no other answer.

A moment later the housekeeper entered, announcing that the blue room was ready.

"I will go to bed at once, then," said Giralda, rising, and not raising her eyes to those of her young host.

"One word more," whispered Lord Grosvenor. "You are not offended?"

"Offended!"

The long-fringed eyelids lifted themselves now, while the violet eyes gave one quick glance of shy surprise, and then they slowly drooped again.

Mrs. Latten began to bustle about, gathering up the effects of the young guest.

"I shall not see you again until my return," said his lordship. "I must be off at eight to catch the train. Good-night, Giralda. Good-night, and good-bye."

He pressed her hand warmly.

"I shall be up to take breakfast with you, if I am not ill," said Giralda shyly. "Good-night, my lord. Good-night—Paul."

She moved slowly from him, the housekeeper being ready for departure. The young lord flew to the door, and held it open until she had passed out, and then he flung himself on the couch she had quitted, and lived over again the experiences of the evening, recalling her every look and word, her very tone even, blaming himself for having been too precipitate in his avowals, and wondering if he had frightened her, and if it were possible that she really returned his love.

While he was thus torturing himself, Giralda followed the motherly housekeeper along the wide hall, and into a narrow corridor, from which several doors opened.

Mrs. Latten paused at one of these, and said, as she turned the knob—

"This is the blue room, miss. It was my lady's own chamber. As you look so ill I will sleep in the ante-room adjoining, so as to be within call."

She led the way into the chamber, Giralda following. It was a long, wide, stately room, with high walls hung with pictures, and a gigantic bay-window occupying nearly all of one side. It was furnished in blue of an exquisite shade, the carpet being blue with a pattern of silver arabesques, the couches and chairs of blue satin, and the low French bedstead having a coverlet of blue satin, embroidered in the centre with silver wheat-sheaves.

— Presentations have been to some extent the order of the day, on the principle "If you scratch me, I'll scratch you." A really genuine expression of good feeling and esteem is therefore a pleasing matter to record. Of this nature was the presentation of a handsome piece of plate to Mrs. Cumming, forewoman over the dress and costume department on the occasion of her retiring from that position in a large establishment in this city, to accept a more lucrative one with the enterprising firm of H. Beaudry & Co. The gift was the offering of the employees engaged under Mrs. Cumming, and was accompanied by a handsome address.

— Thomas Howell, moulder, was fined $20 and costs, with $20 in damages, or two months, at the Police Court Saturday morning, for damaging a buggy, &c., belonging to Noel Roy, a bailiff; and Joseph Leclair, $10 and costs or two months, for assaulting Eleonore Laventure, his wife. Joseph Dandelain and Adelard Marcil, moulders, Ovide Dandelain, finisher, and Auguste Belisle dit Gohier, carter, were arrested last night by M. Cinqmars, Government detective, for stealing 102 pigeons valued at $200, from M. Noah Delisle, merchant. The Dandelains and Gohier were committed each for three months; Marcil, for one month.

CARRATRACA.

OFFICE CARRATRACA SPRING CO., Plantagenet, O. 389 ST. PAUL STREET, Montreal.

Having received last fall an ample stock of the justly celebrated CARRATRACA WATER, sufficient, as we supposed, to meet the requirements of our customers during the Winter, and finding the demand greater than we expected, we ordered a further supply to be shipped, but owing to the very early closing of navigation on the Ottawa River, we were disappointed in getting the additional quantity.

Our stock, which was large, was entirely consumed by the end of January, by the unprecedented call for it. In future, we shall endeavor to have ALWAYS a sufficient quantity on hand to meet any demand, and hope this explanation will prove entirely satisfactory to all who have been disappointed since, in not being able to get the water.

Upon the opening of navigation we will ship either from the Springs direct, or from our office here, any desired quantity.

Telegram from ex Alderman Peel, London, Jan. 2nd

"Send another dozen of the Johnson; old good service at a fire last night."

Major Hamilton, Hamilton, says: "To find one the pump was of great service, a successful disastrous fire."

"Without it we could not have saved it I would not part with it for its weight in gold."

The Canadian Champion, Milton, of April 15th, 1873, says:—"We should not omit to mention a little Johnson hand-pump, of Mr. C. S. Facey's, which did valuable service in keeping the fire from spreading, and the way in which it threw the water was the theme of much praise."
