PC flag sub amendment

Move to extend debate on flag

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative move late Thursday night spelling out what the official opposition wants in a national plebiscite on the flag, will enable further lengthening of the flag debate in the Commons.

Ken More PC - Regina moved a sub-amendment to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's amendment calling for a referendum.

Meanwhile, outside the House it was learned that Prime Minister Pearson has invited party leaders to meet next Tuesday in an effort to reach a compromise on his resolution for a maple leaf flag.

Mr. More's motion would have a national plebiscite ask Canadians the following questions:

1. Are you in favor of the Canadian Red Ensign?
2. Are you in favor of the Canadian Red Ensign changed in some details so as to show the heritage of the two founding races?
3. Are you in favor of a three-maple leaf flag design?
4. Are you in favor of a one-maple leaf design?

The motion would permit all MPs who already have spoken in the protracted debate to make another speech on the flag.

SEE DEBATE EXTENSION

Parliamentary observers also saw its introduction as first evidence of an intention, expressed privately by many Conservatives, to extend the flag debate by a series of sub-amendments. So far 32 Conservatives have spoken on Mr. Diefenbaker's amendment.

Today the Commons takes a one-day break from the flag debate, which resumes Monday on its ninth day. Scheduled business is consideration of immigration departmental spending estimates for 1964-65 during which a reorganization of the department is expected to be announced.

Thursday's debate saw the government's proposed maple leaf flag become increasingly embroiled in the biculturalism controversy.

An almost continuous sequence of English-speaking Conservatives dominated the debate.

They accused Mr. Pearson of seeking to appease a minority in Quebec. His introduction of the design of three red maple leaves on a white background with blue vertical borders would set back the clock of national unity by 50 years.

A French-speaking Liberal MP from Quebec, Vincent Drouin, argued that the maple leaf flag would be a symbol of Canadian independence. The Red Ensign stood for the onetime domination by England.

Meanwhile, it was understood that next Tuesday's meeting of party leaders would be an attempt to reach a compromise which might satisfy many Conservative MPs, who have declared themselves for adoption of the Canadian Red Ensign as a distinctive symbol.

NDP ENDORSED DESIGN

Informants say the compromise proposals include adoption of a maple leaf flag—but with only one instead of three maple leaves. Such a design has already been endorsed publicly by the New Democrats Party caucus of MPs.

The other suggestion is that the Red Ensign, which now flies over federal buildings, would become the symbol of Canada's Commonwealth connection in

Manitoba may get sales tax

WINNIPEG (CP) — Whether Premier Duff Roblin intends to impose a provincial sales tax to meet rising costs is expected to be revealed during the third session of the 27th Manitoba legislature which opens Monday.

He called the unusual summer session to "consider government proposals" on the recommendations made by the royal commission on local government and finance.

Headed by former Commons Speaker Roland Michener, the commission suggested the province take more financial responsibility in the fields of education, health and welfare and relieve the burden on real property owners. It recommended a sales tax as one means of raising the additional $14,000,000 estimated revenue required to implement the suggestions.

The premier earlier said he would not impose a sales tax—only Manitoba and Alberta now are free of such a tax—to pay for the additional services if he cannot pass on the saving to ratepayers.

FORECAST HIGHER TAXES

Presenting his 1964-65 budget last February, Mr. Roblin forecast a surplus of $158,815 on revenues of $151,761,000 and hinted Manitobans could be faced with additional taxation before the fiscal year ends March 31, 1965. He cited in particular increasing costs of the hospital services plan.

With mounting opposition to the prospect of a sales tax, speculation has increased that Mr. Roblin will impose additional taxes on existing sources of revenue, gasoline, liquor, royalties and licences.

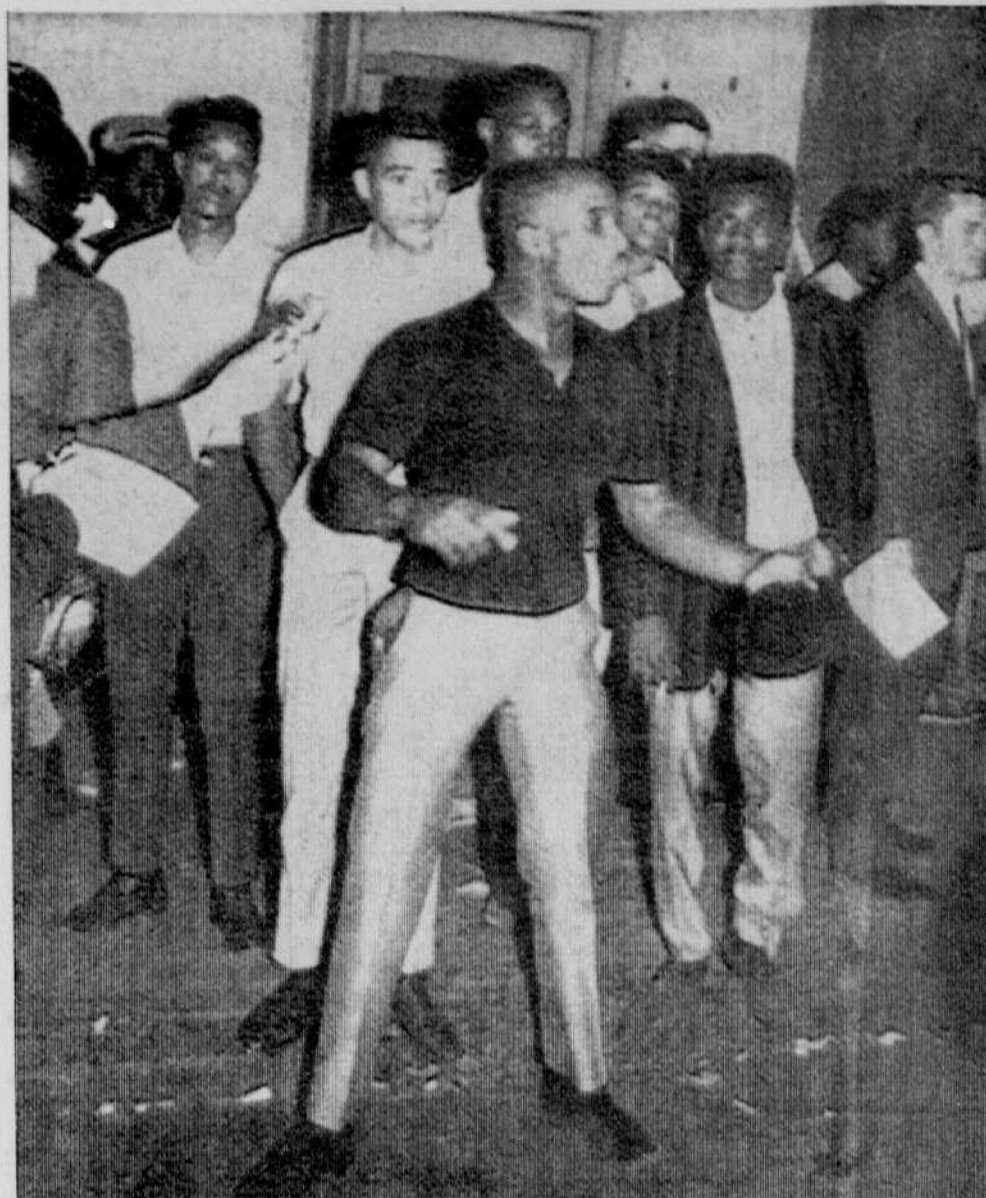

All the opposition parties oppose the sales tax proposal. Standings in the 57-member House are Conservatives 36, Liberals 13, NDP seven and Social Credit one.

Kennedy ahead

NEW YORK (AP)—Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy apparently has a sure majority of the delegates to the New York state Democratic convention to win the nomination for U.S. senator.

Counties regarded in his corner, or leaning toward him, have more than 570 delegates to the state convention opening here Sept. 1. This tally, however, does not mean that support in all these counties would be solid.

There will be 1,144 delegate votes and 573 will be needed for nomination.

NJ tension reported subsiding; authorities charge 'hoodlums'

PATERSON, N.J. (AP)—Gasoline bombs, bottles and bricks crashed in the streets of Paterson's Negro district for the third successive night, but city officials called the disorder, less serious.

In Elizabeth, police swinging nightsticks swept a street clear of hundreds of Negro and white youths at midnight after a police car was struck with a bottle. There, too, on the third night of violence, authorities said the tension appeared to be subsiding.

The pattern matched that of recent racial rioting in Harlem, Brooklyn and Rochester, N.Y., and Jersey City.

Paterson police reported that between 50 and 60 incidents occurred Thursday night in and near the city's predominantly Negro district. They arrested 23 Negroes, one white man and a dozen juveniles. The unidentified white man allegedly was arrested with a bottle in his hand.

Three policemen and a teenager suffered minor injuries. A police car was "extensively damaged" by rocks and bricks. Mayor Frank X. Graves said. Several store windows were

Attack Soviet vehicle

BERLIN (CP)—West Berliners observed an hour of silence Thursday on the third anniversary of the Communist - built wall. Then silence turned to violence as rioters surged to the barricade and attacked a Soviet army car.

"The wall must go!" shouted the demonstrators. Others sent a truck trailer smashing through barriers put up to keep West Berliners away from the wall between East and West Berlin.

The car drove through the crowd assembled at Checkpoint Charlie, the crossing-point for foreigners. Police said the Russians missed signs re-routing traffic in the area and drove through the crowd by mistake.

An American military policeman said there were four Russian officers in the car. The crowd rained fists on the roof and windows but did not attack the passengers.

Demonstrators pushed the truck trailer from a parking lot and sent it speeding down the street toward the police barriers. The police jumped aside and the trailer smashed several barriers before stopping some distance from the wall.

The demonstrators raced for the breach in the barriers, but police closed ranks, swung their clubs and held off the demonstrators.

The wall was built three years ago by the Communists to stop the westward exodus of East Germans.

point . . . I think they know we mean business—a year in jail for fooling around with a cop."

Officials in both Elizabeth and Paterson, about 20 miles apart, have blamed "hoodlums" for the disturbances. "We are up against the lowest form of hoodlum that man can develop," Mayor Graves said.

Governor Richard J. Hughes said an "anti-social element" was responsible for the disturbances. "It's not white versus black," he said in the state capital at Trenton.

In Elizabeth, the midnight clash climaxed a night of milling in the streets of the city's multi-racial Elizabethport district by Negroes and whites.

Shortly before midnight, some 40 Negro youths began a march on one side of First Street, but they broke into a run when a white man in a telephone booth yelled, "Hey, get that boy in the grey jacket."

A bottle struck a police car; others smashed in the street. The milling crowd of between 200 and 300 persons began running and shouting along several blocks.

Twenty squad cars roared onto First street from all directions, and helmeted policemen with clubs took command immediately.

Renewed fighting expected

Anti-UN general heads Cypriots

NICOSIA (CP) — Gen. George Grivas today took over as leader of the Cyprus national guard after he was reported to have said he considers the United Nations peace - keeping force in the troubled Mediterranean island "a bloody nuisance."

UN Secretary - General U Thant wants more soldiers to bolster the Cyprus force in the face of a warning by the UN force commander that the halt in hostilities "is only a breather."

Gen. K. S. Thimayya of India, the commander of the UN force, said after a trip to the troubled area in northwest Cyprus, that he felt Grivas, the Greek-born former leader of the anti-British underground, did not want the UN interfering with the Greek-Turk communal struggle that has wracked the island since December.

Thimayya said Grivas regarded the UN as "a bloody nuisance."

Grivas succeeded 57-year-old Lt. Gen. George Karayannis who resigned apparently over differences with him.

Grivas went into self-imposed exile in Greece after independence but returned to Cyprus this spring.

Karayannis turned in his resignation to President Makarios and then went to Athens, Greece, with a copy of it which he gave to Greek Defence Minister Petros Garofalios.

The reasons for Karayannis' resignation were not disclosed.

DISAGREED WITH GRIVAS

But it was understood he did not agree with Grivas over attacks launched Aug. 6 against Turkish-Cypriots in northwest Cyprus which triggered air intervention by Turkey last weekend and threatened to escalate into a major war.

The Security Council intervened and recommended a halt to all military flights. A shaky cease-fire has been in effect since Tuesday.

Thimayya described a heated half-hour argument Wednesday night between Grivas, Makarios and Interior Minister Polycarpus Gheorghadjis.

The UN commander said Makarios ordered Grivas and Gheorghadjis to accompany him to the front lines and Grivas got "very upset."

Thimayya said the 1,000 Turkish-Cypriots remaining in the Kokkina beachhead of northwest Cyprus were "starving," adding that he expected renewed fighting to break out between

To oppose Chapdelaine

Local Creditistes to enter candidate

By CUTHBERT JONES
(Record Staff Writer)

Gerard Chapdelaine, Social Credit MP for Sherbrooke, appears assured of at least one opponent in the next federal elections, a candidate who may rob him of an important element of the support he received in the last general election.

The Ralliement des Creditistes, supporters of Real Caouette which broke with the national Social Credit party led by Robert Thompson at a convention held in Granby last September, has announced that it will enter the Sherbrooke County fight against Mr. Chapdelaine.

Georges Leclerc, local organizer for the Creditistes, has called a meeting of the faithful to be held at Ralliement headquarters on Saturday evening when the campaign plans will be outlined.

Whether or not a candidate will be nominated at that time is uncertain. Some local Creditistes are pressing for an early nomination but many feel that it would be advisable to withhold a definite decision until the date of the election is announced by Prime Minister Pearson.

But of one thing they are certain.

Mr. Chapdelaine must be defeated at all costs.

To them he is a Judas who betrayed his supporters by refusing to go along with Real Caouette in his break with the federal party and continued his loyalty to Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Chapdelaine refuses any comment on his future plans, preferring to wait until the election picture becomes clearer.

Following the Creditiste convention in Quebec City last week-end at which the party decided to contest the next provincial elections it was announced that Mr. Caouette, the federal leader, plans an extended speaking campaign in the Eastern Townships during October and November.

Rallies have been planned prospective delegates.

for Sherbrooke, Granby, Drummondville, Asbestos and Thetford Mines, although the dates have not been determined.

By many the speaking campaign is regarded as part of an overall drive by Mr. Caouette to seek the leadership of the provincial party.

Under the rules for the leadership convention adopted at the Quebec City meeting, the selection of a provincial chief will be made by delegates chosen at regional rallies — the province being divided into eight such regions.

Operating similarly to major party conventions in the United States, the delegates will be instructed to vote for the candidate approved by the regional rally.

Thus it is to the advantage of a leadership candidate to be acquainted himself with the rank and file of the party at local meetings, thus increasing his potential strength among the

New satellite

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia launched a new unmanned Cosmos scientific satellite today, Tass news agency reported. The launching was announced after unidentified signals were picked up in Bochum, West Germany, earlier in the day.

Tass said today's Cosmos satellite — the 37th in the series — carried scientific instruments for continuing a space exploration program first begun in March, 1962.

Signals heard today and earlier this week by West European radio observatories coincided with persistent rumors in Moscow that Russia would soon launch a group of three cosmonauts.

To renew talks

MANILA (AP)—Indonesia has agreed to resume peace talks with Malaysia below the ministerial level, Foreign Secretary Mauro Mendez said today.

Mendez told a press conference Indonesia has advised the Philippines that the talks should centre on the proposed creation of an Afro-Asian commission in preparation for further discussion of the Malaysian dispute. The Philippines proposed the commission last June in Tokyo before the Malaysia summit conference broke up.

Neither Indonesia nor the Philippines recognized Malaysia, which was formed in September, 1963, from the former British territories of Malaya, Singapore, Sarawak and Sabah.

Plan a first

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Space Agency says it is ready for a first—using a satellite already in orbit to help direct another satellite into the proper orbit.

The feat will be attempted next Tuesday when Syncom II, a communications satellite in near - stationary orbit 22,300 miles above the mid-Pacific, will assist Syncom C, a sister satellite, after its launching from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The orbit chosen for Syncom C is the same as Syncom II's—to hover above the international dateline at the equator.

Study increased US aid

High official in Congo capital

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—G. Mennon Williams, assistant U.S. secretary of state for African affairs, arrived here early today for talks with the Congolese government on increased American aid to this rebel-wracked country.

He flew in a few hours after four C-130 Hercules transport planes arrived with about 40 U.S. Army paratroopers, a high-ranking command and a force and jeeps and other equipment.

Three C-124 transports, each carrying one helicopter, were scheduled to arrive later.

The Associated Press reported the paratroopers, armed with light weapons, including grenade launchers and bazookas, were expected to fly missions close to rebel-held territory.

Premier Moise Tshombe sometime late today, an authoritative source said.

His talks with the Congolese government follow consultations between Averell Harriman of the U.S. and Belgian government officials in Brussels last week.

Washington officials have said the American servicemen will not take part in military operations here.

TO EVACUATE STAFF

Meanwhile, arrangements were made for a plane to land at Stanleyville. The Congo's third largest city, to evacuate the five-man staff of the American consulate headed by Consul Michael Hoyt.

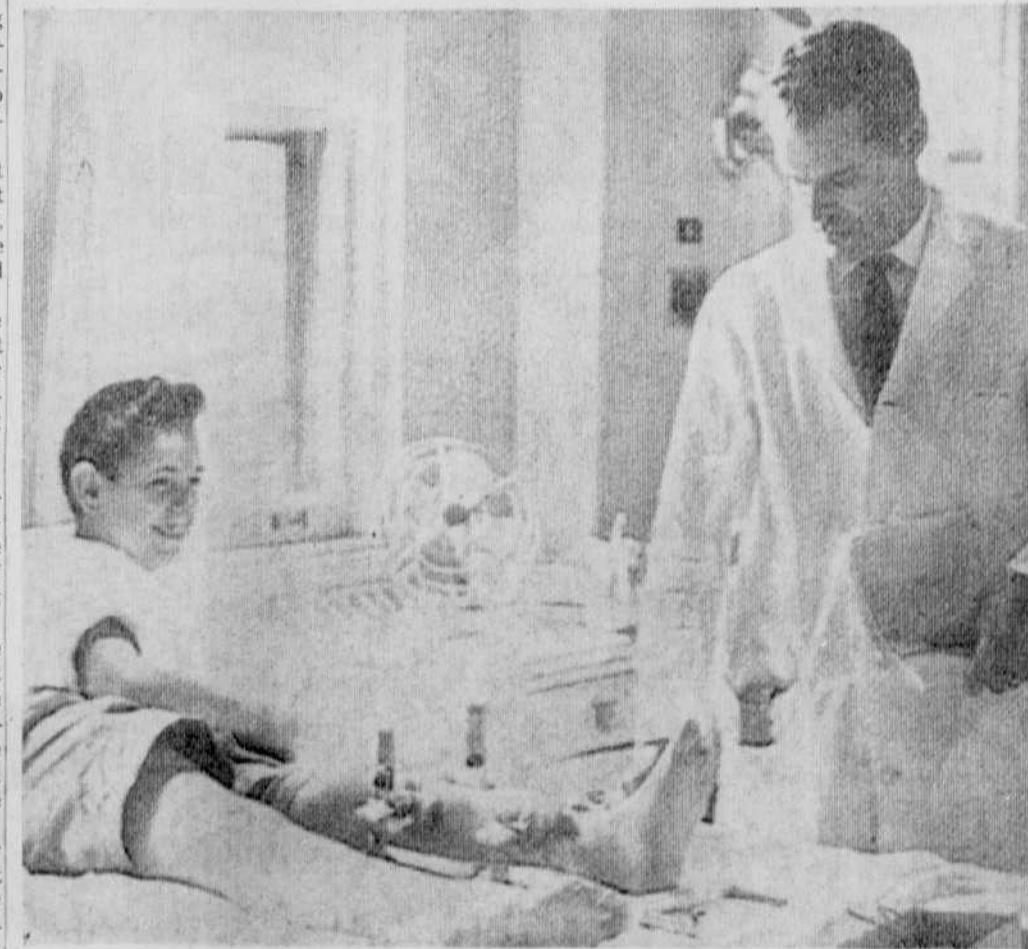

Hoyt, 33, chose to stay in the city when it fell into leftwing rebel hands. The Americans were not thought to be in danger but rebel leader Gen. Nicolas Olenga in Stanleyville sent a message to the U.S. embassy in Leopoldville asking for the consulate staff to get out.

Olenga accused "U.S. troops" of acting "against the popular army." He also expressed displeasure at American and Belgian pledges of aid to government forces.

According to reports from Bukavu, capital of central Kivu province, army troops assisted by two U.S. T-28 fighter planes have pushed back rebel forces to about 50 miles west of the city.

Previously the rebels had advanced to about 20 miles of Bukavu. Action by the planes Wednesday killed about 100 rebels and destroyed four trucks and a jeep in supporting the troops, the reports said.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

THERE IS A TIME
FOR FALSE-CARDING
By OSWALD JACOBY

There is a time when a false-card play is practically obligatory. That is when you want to make a defender think that his partner has signalled come-on rather than stop and lead something else.

With 18 high card points and a good five card suit, the South hand is too powerful for a no-trump opening even if you are one of those players who opens one no-trump with 18 points.

South might well have jumped to three no-trump as his rebid after North's heart raise, but he wanted to collect for his 100 hours.

West opened the king of clubs. East dropped the five spot and South made the obligatory false-card of the eight spot.

West thought for a long while. Where was the three of clubs? If East held it, then he had asked for a club continuation and was ready to ruff the third lead of the suit. Eventually, West played out his ace of clubs, finished South's queen and al-

Q—The bidding has been:

1 N.T. Pass 3 Hrts. Pass
3 N.T. Pass 4 Dia. Pass

What do you do?
A—Bid four hearts. You have had two chances to show heart support already so your partner won't expect you to have any more in hearts than you do.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Three years ago Max von Sydow had been signed to portray Jesus in The Greatest Story Ever Told and was reminded of H. B. Warner, whose career was almost halted after playing the role in King of Kings.

"Then," the Swedish actor told me in Stockholm, "I should insist on playing a gunfighter in a western immediately afterward."

Having completed his year's work in The Greatest Story Ever Told, Von Sydow is back in Hollywood appearing in a western.

"Not really a western," he said. "It's more of a modern story against a western background. And I don't carry a gun, although I do get shot at."

Von Sydow, Yvette Mimieux, Efrim Zimbalist Jr. and Gilbert Roland are making The Reward, first American film directed by Frenchman Serge Bourguignon (Sundays and Cyebe). With his penchant for realism, the director insisted on shooting in Death Valley in mid-summer, when the place lives up to its name.

TEMPERAMENT CHANGED

Von Sydow seemed much different from when he was absorbed in The Greatest Story. Then his concentration was in tense, and it was George Stevens' wish that he remain aloof from the usual interviews and set activity that stars are subjected to.

There were even reports that Stevens had decreed an interview blackout.

"That was not true," von Sydow said. "George's reasoning is that he does not want this picture to receive the same kind of commercial treatment that other films receive. Because of its nature he wants to avoid saying that so many millions were spent on it or that so many thousands of extras were used in the crowd scenes."

"He also restricted the release of photographs from the film, because he wanted to control what was issued and also because the release date is still distant. But there are no restraints on what I should talk about."

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television's 1964-65 season looms as the year of the computer. The machines soon will be blossoming forth as actors.

The star of a new CBS comedy series, My Living Doll, has a computer in the title role. The character looks like a beautiful human female, but is a disguised machine programmed to exhibit every human characteristic except emotion.

Then there is Thrush, the international cartel of evil that NBC's Man From U.N.C.L.E. will fight each week. The scheming head of this vicious organization is a computer, programmed by the villainous agents to dream up dreadful plots for the brave agents of U.N.C.L.E., the crime-fighting organization, to foil just before the final commercial.

So far, there is no cause for alarm on the part of human actors, their agents and unions or by owners of animal stars. But there may come a day when it will be easier and cheaper to build actors on order, and program their parts, thus eliminating the need for retakes of fluffed scenes or haggling over new contracts.

Friends gather at tea in honor of Mrs. S. Rydzek

WATERLOO — A large gathering of friends and relatives attended a tea held at the home of Mrs. Irene Jackson on Aug. 7, given by Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. H. Lucia in honor of Mrs. Shirley Rydzek, who is leaving shortly to reside in New Jersey.

Mrs. Jackson's home was attractively decorated with seasonal flowers.

Student-soldiers finish summer of training in military skills

The benefits of summer military training for secondary school students were emphasized during a passing-out parade at the Parade Grounds last night which culminated five weeks intensive training in the Sherbrooke Sector of the Student Militia Program for 149 such students from Sherbrooke and neighbouring communities.

Brigadier Jean Prosper Gaudier, D.S.O., C.D. the Commander of 9 Militia Group, told the student-soldiers that the "self-discipline" and "team spirit" they had acquired would make them "better citizens."

The fundamental ability to take orders and the added skill of giving them, said the brigadier, would be beneficial in civilian as well as military affairs.

He emphasized that the summer training was not to be regarded as an end in itself, but as a measure of progress toward further training and qualification which he hoped, he said, the young troops would take.

Brig. Gaudier praised the young men, two-thirds of which were French-speaking, for their satisfactory standing and for a baring on parade which was he claimed, a source of pride to their instructors. The credit for the success of the troops rested largely with each individual one of them, he added, for their achievements were founded essentially upon their individual interest and motivation.

Speaking later to the Record, the brigadier described as "valuable" also the "linking of military life" which the young men are thus able to receive.

When asked to comment on the possibility of the two phases of the program being offered again next year, and the likelihood of a third phase being added to the Sherbrooke program, Brig. Gaudier expressed "hope" that the program would be so extended. He said that he "would recommend" such a course, although there can be no certainty of its existence at present.

This year, phase one, a course of both basic military training and special civil defence skills, was given for the third year in Sherbrooke, to 117 boys. Phase two, emphasizing Junior NCO abilities, was given for the second year here to 32 graduates of Phase one. Phase three, if it was initiated here next year, would consist largely of actual instructing by those who passed phase two this year.

The secondary-school students were instructed this summer in drill; the use of small arms; rescue procedures, nuclear, biological, and chemical warfare; first aid; traffic control; basic military law; map-reading; fieldcraft; and auxiliary skills. Phase two pupils concentrated on the technique of instruction. These various skills, commented Lt. Alan Marshall of the Sherbrooke Regiment, one of 25 instructors participating, are "valuable in themselves."

The most successful follower of these programs was judged to be Trooper David C. Bondurant, 17, of the Sherbrooke Regiment-sponsored group. He was awarded a prize for being the "Top Candidate" of the program, and was also appointed acting company commander for the evening, handling this job with marked precision.

Although somewhat hoarse after an evening of ordering, Trooper Bondurant, managed to discuss with the Record the meaning of the course to him. "I plan to spend my salary while taking Grade Eleven at Sherbrooke High School this year," said — the Phase Two graduate. He plans to use his background of training, he added, to further his qualifications in the Regiment, with which he will be working in the fall, and, if possible, to help him gain admittance to a Canadian military college in the ROTP program.

By DOUGLAS WHATLEY
(Record staff reporter)

Young Bondurant believes that "everyone should take some military training," echoing Brig. Gaudier's comments on the specific benefits of it.

"Self-discipline and moral courage" can be developed by all who participate in the program, added its officer in charge, Major W. T. M. Edwards, permanent force advisor to the 9 Militia Group Headquarters.

Brigadier Gaudier and Major Edwards headed the inspecting party, which also included Alderman J. M. Jeanson, representing Mayor Armand Nadeau, and Lt.-Col. John J. Dunn, former Fusiliers de Sherbrooke commander and now attached to 9 Militia Group headquarters.

Also present were the commanders of the two phases of training, Captain Pierre Masse of the Fusiliers commanded the Phase One basic-training-and-civil-defence program, while Captains Denis Champagne and A. C. Price headed the Phase Two Junior-NCO-qualification course. A 6:1 overall student-teacher ratio was maintained by these men.

Representatives of five sponsoring military groups of the region were also present, as were several hundred onlookers. All appeared to be impressed with the efficiency and carriage of the troops on parade.

Each sponsoring military group presented awards for "best candidates." Recipients were: W. K. Sanderson (Phase Two, Sherbrooke Regiment), D. B. Maxwell (Phase One, Sherbrooke Regiment), M. Learned (Phase Two, 7/11 Hussars, who was also acting Sgt.-Maj. of the company), B. R. Wheeler (Phase One, 7/11 Hussars), G. Bergeron (Phase One, Fusiliers de Sherbrooke), C. Guertette (Phase One, 14 Ind. Signal Squadron), D. Samson (8th Medical Company, RCAMC).

The local program was one of ten in the Quebec Command this summer, said an Army officer, which are in turn part of an extensive national effort to train teenage students in militia work and civil defence operations.

McGill geography school ends its twelfth year of activity

STANSTEAD — (Special) — The twelfth year of the McGill University Geography Summer school will close this weekend.

The students have written exams this week. The first McGill Geography Summer school was held at Stanstead College in 1947. Professor George H. T. Kimble, started the school with the collaboration of Professor (now Dean) Kenneth Hare, the purpose, to assist teachers who wished to improve their training in geography, particularly for use in the high school teaching.

In the 12 years the school has been held in Stanstead it has drawn students and staff from many parts of the world. Not only is the school beneficial to the enrolled students but to the area, for five lectures each year are held in the Haskell Opera House. These are open to the public free of charge.

Usually the lectures are illustrated with colored slides. One evening during each of five weeks, slides are shown in Stanstead College Pierce hall. Members of the staff accept invitations to speak at gatherings.

This summer Dr. Donn Haglund was speaker at the Boundary Rotary Club, and Dr. Trevor Lloyd, present director of the school, was a guest speaker at the Sherbrooke Rotary Club. Dr. Lloyd took over as Director of the Summer school in 1963. He is a native of Wales, and was formerly on the staff at Dartmouth College. He holds a teaching certificate from Britain and Manitoba and doctorates in geography from both the University of Bristol, England and Clark University, Mass.

Tuesday evening, August 11, Dr. Lloyd and his staff entertained the students, members of Stanstead College Board of Trustees and the community. The staff and students have had field trips while here for the six-week course. They climbed Owl's Head Mountain, and travelled to New Hampshire.

The resolution also asked the department to notify Magog of the results of the Sherbrooke-Dominion Textiles meeting held August 4.

School sold to Legion

The eighty-year-old East-Ward School and property has been sold to the Sherbrooke Branch 10 of the Royal Canadian Legion for $20,000, the Sherbrooke Protestant School Board announced yesterday.

President of the Sherbrooke Legion, A. Henri Mailhot told The Record this morning the building will be renovated to become the Legion's new "home."

Confirmation of the sale, approved at a special meeting of the School Board July 30, was made by secretary-treasurer John MacLeod.

Details of the sale were made known following approval of the sale by the department of Education.

ONLY BID

The Sherbrooke Legion offered was the only one that the school board received in writing, said Mr. MacLeod, although other parties had indicated they were interested in the school and property.

The sale to the Legion includes the two-story brick schoolhouse, grounds and a house on the grounds which had previously been the janitor's residence.

As of this morning, Mr. Mailhot had not officially heard of Quebec's approval of the sale.

He commented that lack of space and parking facilities has forced the Sherbrooke Legion to seek new headquarters.

The Legion's present home is on the corner of Queen and Prospect. The Legion purchased the former private home in 1945 and "because it was a private home, no rooms are large enough and there is no

Pipeline start awaits letters

The beginning of construction of Sherbrooke-Lake Memphrington pipeline is awaiting two letters — one from the Quebec department of municipal affairs, and the other from Dominion Textile Company.

Neither is likely to change plans for the project, according to Sherbrooke Mayor Armand Nadeau. "We don't expect to have any trouble," he said yesterday.

The letter from the department of municipal affairs is to approve the $3,960,000 loan by-law passed by Sherbrooke in July. Shortly after being passed, the by-law was sent to Quebec where it has been under study for some time. Its approval is considered merely a formality.

The letter from Dominion Textile is to formalize the agreement by which Sherbrooke will pay the company compensation of an estimated six to seven hundred dollars per year.

The compensation is for loss of power from the Dominion Textile power dam at the mouth of the lake. The Sherbrooke pipeline will reduce the outflow and thus the amount of power Dominion Textile can produce.

The Dominion Textiles-Sherbrooke agreement must be ratified by the Quebec department of natural resources.

The city of Magog, however, hopes to meet again with the department of natural resources before ratification is made.

Department Deputy Minister Paul Auger promised, at a July 31 meeting with Magog officials, that another such meeting would be called, said Magog secretary J.P. Lange.

Magog city council also passed a resolution at its regular meeting last Friday seeking such a meeting before Sherbrooke is granted permission, he added.

The resolution also asked the department to notify Magog of the results of the Sherbrooke-Dominion Textiles meeting held August 4.

Thus, if Magog's request is granted, the department will delay ratification of the project until the further meeting with Magog officials.

Fair should be open to any nation

Reportedly officials of the 1967 World's Fair are in somewhat of a fluster over difficulties that might result from the admission of certain nations to the great Montreal Exhibition.

One case is that of Communist China. To admit the Peking regime to exhibit would prevent Formosa from officially appearing because the Reds would insist that the Nationalists be excluded.

Similarly, the argument goes, the admission of Red China would open the door to East Germany. And the entry of East Germany would alienate West Germany which would decline to exhibit.

And there are possible complications over disputes between Israel and members of the Arab bloc.

But the problem could be solved quite easily.

Canadian officials should take the responsibility for administering the fair and not be chased around by extremists in Peking, Bonn or East Berlin.

Fair administrators claim that there is plenty of exhibition space available so there should be no bar to inviting any nation anywhere to erect a pavilion or join with a neighbor in a joint undertaking.

The Canadian Government, as a matter of official policy, does not let ideological differences govern her trade, except in respect to strictly defined strategic goods.

Thus Ottawa, which in the end will pay most of the bills for the fair, should make it clear as soon as possible that anyone is welcome.

Military role in the UN for Cyprus

One of the most discouraging aspects of the Cyprus situation has been the obvious fact that the presence of United Nations forces has not been able to halt violence, or even prevent intensified fighting.

But perhaps those who ever thought that UN troops could be indulging in wishful thinking. The roots of the conflict are deep. The undercurrent of bitterness between Greek and Turkish Cypriot is a virulent one that spills over into relations between the two parent countries.

Thus we have the spectacle of two good Western allies, one of them an important member of NATO, coming to blows with each other while the United Nations looks on.

To some, this may suggest that a simple solution would be to give the United Nations force in Cyprus the authority to engage in more active police work than it has so far. In theory, this could be done. But in practice, it would hardly do for the world body to take upon itself a major combatant role at this stage in the development of the United Nations.

It is one of the imperfections of the United Nations that not all of its members agree on the interpretation of its various functions. And however hard it may be, if the spirit of the United Nations is ever to be nourished, it must be done from within the framework of the UN itself; that is, through the mutual consent of the vast majority of its members.

In effect, this means that an effective UN police force that could take on a combat role in settling arguments between allies — such as Turkey and Greece — would have to be endowed with some part of that national sovereignty countries now retain for themselves.

There has been no such endowment in the kind of situation in which the UN finds itself in Cyprus. That is why any decision to make the UN role there a more active one militarily is fraught with many pitfalls.

How do you like new building tax?

Dear Sir:
How do you like the new system of taxation on building products we are forced to pay? Tax on tax is the good word for it. Mine alone does not amount to very much, but think of how many thousands of dollars in material is being taxed in such a manner. We are supposed to be able to trust our parliament members to the fullest extent, but if this is one example of trust, I believe it should be stopped in some manner.

US knows Canadian history better

Dear Sir:
On Wednesday June 17th, there was an item in your paper headed U.S. VIEW ON CANADIAN FLAG PROBLEM.

May I take the liberty to say I think our friends across the border know more about the history of Canada than those who are trying to stir up trouble in the Province of Quebec.

I quote: "Quebec has always demanded the biggest piece of cake and the largest wedge of pie from the federal government in Ottawa than the other nine provinces. . . Canada became a British colony when the French were defeated at Quebec. French Canadians, however, were granted the use of their own language, religion and schools and in addition French common law was instituted in Quebec as part of a liberal peace settlement. One would assume that such a generous arrangement would produce the best of relations down through the years. Unfortunately, this has not been the case, as French Canada has a dislike for any flag with the Union Jack in it, a flag under which they have been richly blessed even since Wolfe won the historic battle on the Plains of Abraham against Montcalm."

I would also like to add that in 1962 there was a FIRST Cleveland Canada Day when the kilties of Toronto visited that City and the Canadian Ensign which floated in front of the Euclid Arcade on Euclid Avenue was the flag which decorated the Red Cross Room at East Angus, Que., during the four years of World War 1.

Yes, French Canada as they call themselves owes a great deal to the Union Jack and Canadian Ensign. It is our flag, let us cling to it.

Respectfully,
C. E. RIDDLE.

French Canada says:

Drugs, provinces, unilingualism are federal fields of interest

Ottawa Le Droit—The minister of national health and welfare has announced the establishment of a consumers' advisory council to help the government solve problems involving drugs, medicines, pharmaceutical specialties and patent medicines. . . .

Our economic system has lent great importance to the idea of buying on the installment plan. So it is to be hoped that the new council will be allowed to denounce the pirates who take advantage of people's needs in order to sell at twice the normal price products indispensable to human life.

The council could itself be stimulated by private organizations set up to act as watchdogs against the rise of economic wolves.

The council's composition, including as it does the names of Canadians from a variety of provinces, is an indication of the variety of opinions that will be heard in its sessions. . . . All told, it is made up for the most part of women and this is only proper, since it has been properly recognized that most family budgets are in the hands of the women. Good luck to the council.—Maurice Huot (Aug. 4)

Montreal Le Devoir—Contrary to what some people would like to think, the conference of provincial premiers does not seem destined to become a political force of first importance in Canada.

For a while, it appeared that this organization would be used to set up some sort of common front among the provinces against Ottawa. But the meeting (of the premiers) at Jasper, Alta., has just shattered any illusions one could have entertained on this point.

At Jasper, some interesting subjects were mullied over, but few of burning importance. First on the order paper were practical matters involving provincial jurisdiction and having interprovincial ramifications. Federal-provincial questions were scarcely touched on.

This was in no way astonishing. It merely confirms a well-known theory that the principal lines in Canada are drawn no longer between Ottawa on the one hand and the 10 provinces on the other, but rather between Ottawa and certain provinces—Quebec in particular—and also between what might be called the central area of the country and the two extremities.

The premiers' conference is still useful. It is a necessary instrument of our federal system. But it will never be an institution generating important policies. This latter role will remain the monopoly of individual governments, federal as well as provincial, and of the federal-provincial conferences. —Claude Ryan (Aug. 7)

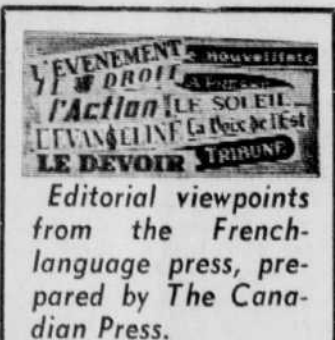

Granby La Voix de l'Est—No one has forgotten the energetic protests by French Canada against unilingualism in the Canadian Army. A few years ago one could not hope for advancement if one did not speak English. . . . But, like many other federal services, the army has announced its decision to favor bilingualism at all levels of the defence system.

The directive speaks for itself. If it is applied, French-speaking soldiers will have an excellent chance for advancement because many of them speak English quite well. Others are assured that if they learn English their merit will be recognized by the high command which we hope will not practise discrimination when it comes to choosing candidates for higher positions.

What is true for our people will also be true for English-speaking officers and men who speak our language. This is only fair and equitable.

Will the same sort of directive be issued by the navy and the air force? We do not know . . . but it is important that these two services follow the example of the army and require that their officers and men know both English and French. (Aug. 1)

Quebec Le Soleil—The provincial premiers took advantage of their meeting at Jasper to discuss the problem of the preference granted by various provinces, particularly Quebec, to provincial private enterprise when dealing out contracts or buying material.

It will be recalled that the attitude of Quebec in this matter provoked fairly severe criticism in the other provinces, particularly Ontario. . . .

From the conversations between the premiers it appears that all the provinces agree on giving their contractors a certain preference in granting government contracts. Each province uses its own standards in making the decision but they agree on the principle. . . .

American President F. D. Roosevelt indicated in a speech that the U.S. would attempt to erect a sphere of influence extending over the entire American hemisphere, north and south. "From the point of view of national defence," he added, "it is essential that our control of the sea-route from Washington state to the Orient 'be undisputed'."

Art show does nothing

Canada fails to promote Canada

By GORDON DONALDSON

WASHINGTON — (TNS) — I spent nearly thirty minutes at a display of modern Canadian art which opened in Washington, and came away with several lasting impressions.

These included "Don't shoot the piano player, he's doing his best"; "at least we're showing the flag (which flag?) so it must be a good thing" and; "I don't know anything about modern art but I know, etc. etc."

The only serious review published in Washington demolished the claims made in the catalogue and said: "On the evidence of this show I'd say there aren't any striking developments in Canadian art unless you happen to feel it's amazing that conservative Canada has caught up with that old-time avant-garde religion."

I still remember one large effort, half mustard yellow and half blue, the halves sloppily joined, with slobbers of red and green on the yellow side.

Did Wolfe and Montcalm die for this?

Now that the pain has subsided, a moral emerges. I have stolen it from a new book called "Foreign and Other Affairs" (W. W. Norton and Co., New York) by a former U.S. State Department Official, John Paton Davies.

Davies, who was fired in the 1930's because he just didn't believe Chiang Kai-shek could conquer Red China says flatly that the secret of America's appeal to the rest of the world is its sheer vulgarity.

Nobody abroad cares that the United States has musicians who can perform the German classics better than most; that it has abstract painters, beatniks and souls of profound sensitivity.

Nobody abroad cares too much about the 18th Century ideas of the Founding Fathers; the great ideals of liberty which tend to bog down in the details of what shall be at liberty to do what to whom.

"In contrast," Mr. Davies says "the combination of American materialism and American pop culture is one of the most potent influences ever loosed in the world. The appeal is nearly universal because merchandizing, creativity, research and development meant it to be so. . . . simple people every where sigh and say 'ah, this is America.

America, to most of the world, is the refrigerator, the TV set and the chance for the humblest to make seventy dollars a week. For culture there is American jazz and popular music, original products which sparkle over most of the east.

And why not?

It is fashionable in well-heated homes in many countries to jeer at United States culture. I forget who said this was the only civilization to have gone from adolescence to decadence without an intervening period of maturity.

You can jeer at the pop-top beer can which damages the thumb. Or vermouth in an aerosol-spray gun. Or jeweled tranquillizer boxes or golden toothpicks. Or the new light-bulbs which go 'op' in three weeks.

But nobody can ignore the highest standard of living in the world or the vast technical skills that can move mountains or fire TV cameras to hit the moon.

The millions who would like to emigrate to America this year still include "your, tired, poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free." But the bulk of those who make it just want more pay and a large tin automobile. Freedom is relative, and the air is polluted anyway.

The crass appeal of dollar-lush America - has done more to combat Communism than all the fine slogans. This is Mr. Davies' theme.

Creditistes poise barrier on all bills

OTTAWA (CP)—Real Caouette and his Ralliement des Creditistes poise a legislative barrier Thursday in front of all bills from the Senate.

He indicated their aim is to get further action by the upper chamber on a bill seeking a bank charter for the proposed Bank of British Columbia in which that province's Social Credit government holds an interest.

Mr. Caouette served notice in the Commons that his 13-member group will try to block all bills originating in the Senate, which has sent the B.C. bank bill to a committee for study.

A number of measures, including some sponsored by the government, now are on the order paper of the Senate, which can initiate any legislation except that involving spending of public funds. Two private measures seeking bank charters for two other groups started their way through Parliament in the upper chamber. One was sent on to the Commons.

AGAINST SENATE BILLS

The Creditiste leader said during Commons debate on a private bill to increase Bell Telephone Company directors to 20 from 15 that bills originating in the Senate do not interest the Creditistes.

"We will do everything in our power to block them. We do not want to be dictated to by people who are not elected."

Later in his speech, he said the blockade would be in effect as long as the bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia remains unapproved by the Senate.

It is not the first threat of legislative blockade made by the Creditiste leader. At the last session, his group fought a delaying action on legislation until the Ralliement was given the status of a separate political party.

The Creditistes broke away a year ago from the Social Credit party led by Robert Thompson and won recognition as a separate party in the House although Mr. Caouette, whose MP's outnumber those of Mr. Thompson, was placed behind his former leader in precedence in seating and debate.

Mortier Bay project

Plans for full-fledged port make NFLD's Joey 'very happy'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood says he would be "very happy" if development of Mortier Bay as a full-fledged port on Newfoundland's south coast is under way.

The premier was commenting on a statement issued Wednesday by C. F. MacLellan of Toronto, president of a group of Toronto businessmen who form the Mortier Bay Development Company.

Mr. MacLellan said long-planned developments, such as a fish-processing plant and a meat-packing plant, were soon to be built on the shore of the ice-free bay which has room for more than 200 ocean-going freighters.

"We asked Mr. MacLellan to undertake the development of Mortier Bay 15 years ago," Mr. Smallwood said in an interview. "We got legislation passed giving him the concession. This has expired four times and we have renewed it just as often. I will be very happy if development is under way."

Mr. MacLellan's announcement contains the hope that a large fish-processing plant might be built at the proposed port with trans-shipment facilities made available. However, Canada has a law making landing of fish by foreign vessels illegal and Newfoundland Fisheries Minister C. Max Lane said Thursday it was "doubtful" that this law would be repealed.

IDEA CONCEIVED IN 1908

The idea of developing Mortier Bay as a great port and industrial centre was first conceived in 1908. Since then, announcements of proposed developments have been made almost annually.

Although Mr. MacLellan's statement said "plans over the next year or two call for building of a meat packing plant," a statement issued more than a year ago said contracts had been signed with Trans-Atlantic Packers Limited providing for the establishment of the plant before the end of last summer.

Possibly the biggest snag in getting the idea off the ground would be opposition from other Eastern Canadian ports. Should the port be established, it would draw almost all Canadian shipping trade, both export and import, from such ports as Halifax and Saint John, N.B.

Situated almost on top of the major shipping lanes of the world, Mortier Bay is thought of as someday being a "free port" which would start out as a transshipment point between Europe and North America.

CUT OUT PAYMENTS

This plan would not only cut out payments of customs duties but the ocean-going ships would not have to navigate the St.

Retirement proposal low on session list

OTTAWA (CP) — Retirement of senators at age 75 on pensions now is far down the government's list of priority legislation, but cabinet sources say it is still one item it hopes will be passed at this session of Parliament.

Senate sources indicate the proposal's long period in parliamentary limbo, waiting to be acted on first by the Commons and then by the Senate, has resulted in some softening of attitude among the senators who would be affected.

The Senate traditionally is opposed to any reform being imposed on it. In fact, no changes in the laws affecting the Senate can be made without its consent, just as the Senate must agree with the Commons on every clause of every bill before it can be given royal assent and become law.

The retirement proposal, in the resolution stage on the Commons order paper since May 19, would require senators appointed after passage of the legislation to retire at age 75 on pension. Those who are senators now could remain in the Senate for life or retire at age 75 or afterwards on an annuity.

Senate reform is a basic plank in the platform of all parties in the Commons, with the New Democrats through their predecessor party, the CCF, pledged to its abolition.

These arguments are bound to be revived when the Senate retirement debate starts in the Commons sometime this autumn.

Except for some of the more radical reformers in the opposition, however, the cry isn't likely to be "End 'em, don't mend 'em"—a slogan developed by the Labor party in the United Kingdom in an effort to reform the hereditary House of Lords out of existence.

Experience of both Conservative and Liberal governments has been that the Senate can play a big role through its committees, particularly its important banking and commerce committee, in the fine points of legislative draughtsmanship.

Anne more like mom every day

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, 14 Saturday, has emerged as a potential beauty.

Once a toothy tomboy, the blonde princess has added the curves that go with her height and clearly is past the ugly duckling stage. Every day she gets more like her mother, Queen Elizabeth.

Anne's biggest pre-birthday thrill was to star as the only girl in the 17-man crew of Prince Philip's yacht Bloodhound.

At the opening day of the Cowes Regatta, premier event of the British yachting season, the princess emerged in jeans and a faded blue shirt.

As fourth in line to the British throne, Anne already has performed the occasional public functions which will be her regular lot once school is over.

Basically she's a country girl, with hunting and fishing high on her list of pleasures. Westerns are her favorite TV programs and that's because of the horses.

SHARED TUTOR

Until last year her education was confined to the schoolroom at Buckingham Palace, where she shared a tutor with two young friends of the Royal Family.

Now, setting a precedent for royal daughters, she goes to Benenden, a girls' school set in 200 acres of Kentish parkland. There she wears the traditional uniforms of English girlhood. Cotton frocks and bobbisocks in summer. Suit, cloak and pudding basin hat in winter.

She sleeps in a dormitory with five other girls who have to take turns in waiting at tables and washing the dishes. The staff call her Princess Anne, the girls just Anne.

A century ago Anne's future would have been clear. A dozen future kings would have queued for her hand.

Now Europe's monarchies are few—and have a surplus of princesses.

Anne, however, will not languish on the shelf. Her aunt, Princess Margaret, and her cousin, Princess Alexandra, set the pattern. She will be free to marry a commoner if she wishes.

Asked if the two projects might be tied together, Mr. Smallwood said: "No, they are two different projects."

Engineering studies were carried out at Mortier Bay in 1962 by Shawinigan Engineering Company of Montreal and Newhook and Morgan Engineering of St. John's. Spokesman for Newhook and Morgan said today the studies were "only general surveys," but would not elaborate.

CLOSES RESTAURANT RATHER THAN SERVE NEGROES — Lester Maddox, Atlanta restaurant owner and arch segregationist, reads

No Negroes, no restaurant; owner fights civil rights

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Restaurant owner Lester Maddox pledged to continue his court fight against the federal civil rights law after he closed the doors of his segregated eating place rather than admit Negroes.

"I'd be a fool if I didn't take it to the U.S. Supreme Court," he told about 80 spectators and reporters outside the restaurant Thursday.

With tears streaming down his cheeks, Maddox said he was confident that with the help of almighty God and free people everywhere, the court will say to Congress you have violated the constitution. "They have killed my business and helped kill the American free enterprise system," he sobbed.

The scene took place shortly after two Atlanta Negro students, Calvin Jones and Gary Robinson, sought service. Maddox met them at the door of the restaurant, named the Pickrick.

He called them Communists, then shouted: "You've stolen my business. Get out of my door. You've just put 66 people out of work."

Of the 66 employees at the $500,000 restaurant, 44 are Negroes, he said. All will be taken care of as long as "there is a dime in the chequebook," he declared.

A three-judge federal court issued a ruling July 22 directing Maddox to comply with the public accommodations section of the civil rights law. The court set Tuesday, Aug. 18, as the date for compliance.

Knits offer any hour fashions

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The one girl who won't be thrown into a tizzy by an impromptu invitation this fall is the one who owns a wardrobe of knits.

If she hangs her knits carefully on padded hangers after each wearing, she can slip into any one of them in a jiffy and look pristine, without the time-consuming chore of last-minute pressing.

For travel, spectator sports, daytime wear and even evening wear, knits are ideal companions — especially this season when designers and manufacturers have given so much thought to styling.

Dresses and suits of woven fabrics don't have the shape-retaining, wrinkleproof qualities of knitwear, but until recently they offered far more fashion variety and higher style.

This fall, most cloth fashions have a counterpart in the new fine knits, all of which can boast of elegant styling and detail.

Pastel knits are combined with lurex to give glitter to slimming floor-length formal gowns and short dance dresses.

For daytime, two or three shades of wool yarn are often teamed to produce a knit that looks like tweed.

All the fall fashion news—pleated, flared and wrap skirts, capes, capelets, the longer suit jacket, leather trim and jumper—has been incorporated into fine knitwear for your pleasure this autumn.

With one knit design in your closet for each fashion category, you're set to accept any tempting, spur-of-the-moment date. For knits this fall have added high fashion to their easy-care qualities—an unbeatable combination.

DEAR POLLY — This pointer is for the working girls. My purses are all too large to fit in the drawer compartment of my desk at the office so I had a friend put an L-shaped screw-type hook, large enough for a purse handle, inside the kneehole. It's high enough and far enough in not to interfere with leg movements. — ANN

DEAR POLLY — My husband, a multiple sclerosis victim, had great difficulty handling a regular coffee cup due to poor co-ordination and weakness in his hands. After many experiments, we found that using a slim, five-inch-tall ovenware milk or cream pitcher worked better. It is tall and narrow enough so that a plastic straw does not flip out of it and the ovenware does not allow the heat of the coffee to penetrate to the hand. — MRS. W. M.

DEAR POLLY — I used and liked the hint for putting a sheet with pockets on the side of the playpen for baby. She enjoys it so much. Now I have made a sheet to hang on the outside of the playpen and tie it to the first one. In it I keep a variety of things to teach our three-year-old how to dress herself. A tiny jacket with a zipper, shoe with eyelets (laces and all), a belt, two items to button, a snap fastener and a hook and eye are all arranged so she can learn to manipulate them. Even her 5 and 7-year-old cousins like to play with this.

• After heating baby's bottle, I slip it into one of those knitted coaster jackets made for tumblers. It keeps the bottle warm longer when travelling in the car, going to church and so on. — DOROTHY

College marriages pass happiness test

Marriages made in college are far more successful than most, according to a recent survey.

And here is the experts' explanation: "There are no social pressures on married college students.

"They are not expected to buy new cars, smart clothes, better furniture to keep up with the Joneses, and in these first unpressured years they can really get to know and understand each other in a relaxed and carefree atmosphere."

Isn't there an idea here for all young couples just beginning their marriages?

If married college students can do without "things" for a few years while they complete their education, why can't other young couples give themselves two or three years of casual, inexpensive living? Why need they strain the budget with monthly payments on a house, a new auto, a dishwasher, a television, an automatic washer and dryer, a house full of new furniture—and so on?

Why should a young couple feel they have to start out with everything in order to be happy? Whom do they have to impress?

If a young couple has more fun and gets along better living very simply in a furnished apartment than in a house full of unpaid-for furniture and gadgets, why can't they give themselves this kind of a break?

They can then ease gradually into acquiring the things they want, instead of getting everything at once and being swamped by installment payments.

Meanwhile, they have had those few carefree years in which to find out that in order to be happy they don't have to keep up with the Joneses—or anybody else.

Poise that counts

You're pretty and charming. You have lots of elegant clothes.

You should have so many dates you're out every night of the week, but you're not.

Why? It may be because you lack poise. No man likes dating a girl who is clumsy and awkward, no matter how pretty she is. When he takes her to dine at the most exclusive restaurant in town, he's embarrassed when she upsets water glasses clambering into her seat.

To complete an attractive picture of yourself, learn to move with grace and ease. There's a correct way of doing everything.

Let's talk about that night on the town first. Your escort has a big, big car, with low, low seats. How do you get in without showing several yards of leg, and lots of lingerie?

SWING IN

It's simple: first sit on the edge of the seat your feet and knees together. Pull in your head and then, leaning over slightly on your left thigh, swing your feet together on the car floor.

Although your beau won't expect you to sit in the back seat of his car while he's driving, you should know the best way to get in there too. Stand beside the car, draw in your rear first, then your upper torso and head. Sit, and draw in your other foot, bringing your knees together.

Fashions this summer have decreed that long skirts are The look for informal entertaining. Long skirts can be comfortable, but unless you practise, you may have a little difficulty, or look ungainly when you walk up stairs.

To pick up the edge of your skirt and allow yourself a little more foot space, let your hand fall beside the skirt to the place where it naturally reaches. There and exactly there, pick up a bit of your skirt in the tips of your fingers, and lift it just high en-

To dredge river at Brompton

BROMPTONVILLE —(Staff) —The Quebec department of natural resources will dredge the St. Francis River at Bromptonville to remove rocks that have caused spring ice jams and floods for some years, town sources said today.

Bromptonville secretary-treasurer said that the department will do the work and pay the costs itself. The work will start this year, he added.

The news came after Bromptonville Mayor Dorilas Gagnon met in Quebec City with department deputy minister Paul Auger this week.

The department said that it would undertake the same project on the St. Francis River at Bromptonville as it has on the Chaudiere River in Beauce County.

The dredging is expected to end the spring flooding which has been a problem here for some years.

the two hostile communities.

He said the Turkish-Cypriots were getting "worked up" and unless the Greek-Cypriot embargo on vital materials were lifted against them they would react.

Thant's request for more troops came amid signs that relations between Greece and Turkey were worsening.

The secretary-general met at his New York headquarters Thursday delegates of the nine nations that contributed to the 6,200 - member Cyprus force.

Canada is one of the leading contributors with 1,100 men. How many soldiers Thant requested was not known.

New contingents presumably would be deployed between Greek and Turkish - Cypriots facing each other in villages on the critical northwest coast.

REJECT TURKISH APPEAL

On the diplomatic front, the government of Greece rejected a Turkish appeal for direct talks. Premier George Papandreu said the problem should be taken to the UN General Assembly if peace efforts under way at Geneva fail.

"We want to believe that it has become a common sense that spurious efforts not only do not improve the situation but worsen it and finally lead to catastrophe," he said.

"Only healthy solutions which cure not only the symptoms but also the disease can put an end to the crisis and restore peace," he added.

Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu had sent a message to Papandreu urging that negotiations begin as soon as possible so that "a quick solution could be found."

In a message to Soviet Premier Khrushchev, Inonu asked the Russian leader to use his influence to guide the Cyprus government into a course more "legal, humane and peaceful."

Cyprus appealed to the Soviet Union for support during last week's Turkish air attacks. Russia denounced the raids but offered no military aid to the Cyprus government.

Mrs. C. Drew

Funeral Saturday

STANSTEAD —(Special) —Mrs. Casmer Drew, the former Mattie Walker, died suddenly at her home here about 10 a.m. Thursday just nine hours after the death of her mother, Mrs. Charles Walker, the former Nellie Moffatt, which occurred suddenly at Beauharnois.

Mrs. Drew had observed her 67th birthday anniversary on Tuesday. Mrs. Walker was 90.

Both bodies are at the Cass Funeral Home, Stanstead, where a double funeral service will be held on Saturday at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Walker is survived by a daughter, Hazel, Mrs. William Keet, of Beauharnois, and a son, Harold Walker, of Dundas, Ont.

Mrs. Drew is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Isabel Ramage and a grandson, Shane, of Stanstead, and her sister and brother.

Seek curb on sulphur from West

WASHINGTON (CP) — Western Canada's burgeoning sulphur industry, a valuable by-product of Alberta and other natural gas, is meeting stiff United States resistance in its drive to penetrate the big mid-west market.

Canada has vaulted into second place in world sulphur production the last few years, raising output from natural gas to about 2,000,000 tons annually from a few thousand.

The international market shows steadily increasing demand for this brimstone, chiefly because of rising emphasis on fertilizers. Meanwhile, Canadian exports to the U.S. have caused sharp market dislocations because of rising emphasis on fertilizers.

Both American and Canadian informants here say this is the usual commercial pattern of events when a new product begins to intrude in established territory.

The U.S. treasury department at the request of an unidentified American concern has launched a preliminary examination of allegations that Canadian producers are "dumping" their product in the U.S.—selling at "less than fair value" and below their Canadian levels.

The Canadian firms are listed as Shell, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Canadian subsidiary, Jefferson Lake and a firm in which Sony-Mobil has an interest.

OTHER CHARGES MADE

The sulphur complaint is added to dumping allegations which also include Canadian steel, apple juice, carbon steel bars, fertilizer and unlined auto brake shoes.

The examination means the Canadian firms are being asked via questionnaire to supply certain information. If the treasury department decides that dumping in fact exists, the matter goes to the tariff commission which would determine the extent of injury caused by the Canadian action, if any.

Then it would return to the treasury department's commissioner of customs for recommended remedial action which the treasury secretary can accept or reject.

All this takes considerable time.

There is another test of Canadian sulphur sales proceeding slowly in the Interstate Commerce Commission, where complaints have been made that Canadian sulphur competes unfairly because of lower Canadian freight rates. That all began in May, 1963, and a report still is awaited.

100 turn out to recover wee wanderer

WATERVILLE —(Staff) —A nine-year-old Waterville boy disappeared for the second time in two weeks last night. For the second time, he planned to travel. For the second time, he had over a hundred citizens searching for him before he was found.

This time, however, he took his six-year-old brother with him.

The boy with the wanderlust is Jean-Claude Marquis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Marquis of Waterville. His travelling companion last evening was his little brother Marcel.

He disappeared about 5:30 p.m., and was seen with his brother in a bus about 8 p.m. They were found at 11 p.m., a hundred yards from a garage owned by Benoit Pouliot of Waterville in which they had been hiding.

Last time, he was found 15 miles from Waterville.

His planned method of travel had changed following his last experience. Then, he had tried to walk to a relative's home in a nearby town, but lost his bearings. This time, he said to his parents, he was contemplating an excursion to Cookshire — but he stayed in Waterville, looking for a bus to that town.

parking space," said Mr. Mailhot.

Plans are to sell the present home, he said.

Extensive renovations will be carried out in the old school, said Mr. Mailhot. Plans call for a big hall, a lounge, game rooms and offices.

The Sherbrooke Protestant School Board closed the school this June due to the dwindling number of pupils attending classes and the high cost of maintaining the old school's facilities.

stead of the Union Jack as now proposed by the Liberal government.

In Thursday's debate, Lloyd R. Crouse (PC-Queens-Lunen-burg) advocated a design based on the Red Ensign. The Canadian coat of arms on the ensign would be replaced by a gold maple leaf superimposed with a fleur-de-lis.

Mr. Crouse said it is evident the Liberal party has not realized that it cannot pull down the Canadian Red Ensign without men rising to its defence.

"By introducing this flag resolution at this time the prime minister has stirred up racial differences between the two great founding races of the country which will set back the clock of national unity at least 50 years."

"I ask the House, is this the price the Liberal party is prepared to pay for its flag?"

Hugh John Flemming, former Conservative premier of New Brunswick, said "we have no right to arbitrarily decide upon or destroy the Canadian Red Ensign in the process."

Alouettes lose 9-5 to Royals in error-studded tilt

Loss puts Alouettes in fifth place behind Granby Knights in standing as Drumville drowns playoff hopes Sherbrooke Alouettes dropped a 9-5 verdict in an error-studded tilt last night to Drummondville Royals which eliminated the Alouettes from the playoffs.

Four hits, coupled with three big misuses on the part of the Als, gave the Royals a big third inning rally which sent six runs across the plate to complete Drummondville's scoring column.

Meanwhile Coaticook Canadiens dropped a 6-1 tilt to Acton Vale as the latter team ties up the lead for the league title. Acton heads into a doubleheader with Granby Knights this weekend, which could assure the Beavers of the title, should Coaticook lose one tilt.

Drummondville Royals capitalized on three big errors made by the Sherbrooke Alouettes to put the salt on the game, leaving the victors solidly in third place in the standing.

Michel Sawyer's seventh homer of the season came in the first inning as he made the game 2-0, sending in Tony Morro ahead of him.

The second saw another homer, this time connected by Russ Ayoub, who sent it clear over the left field fence. At this point, Sherbrooke was held to one hit by starting hurler, Andre Pleau.

Then along came the third inning, with the final six runs of the Drummondville side. Two errors by 'Kimo' Hurtubise at second base brought some changes in the field by Coach Len Cote. With these changes completed, the Als appeared to be in better shape, but ran afoul with another miscue sending in the eighth and ninth runs for the Royals.

Changes were also made on the mound last night, as none of Len Cote's stock seemed to quell the Royals outburst. Gilles Bernier started for Sherbrooke, but was relieved in the third by Andy Bessette.

The second pitcher didn't last long either, as he met with difficulties at the plate, namely the Drummondville hitters. Carlos Thorne relieved Bessette in the same inning and finished the game.

The fourth inning saw Sherbrooke get their second hit, when Gilles Robichaud connected for a single, but couldn't notch the scoring line, as he was caught on a third base steal.

Another single in the sixth was all for the Als to this point which led up to the five-run rally in the seventh. With two men out, Rene Pepin started the attack with a single, followed by Bessette, who connected for a double. Gilles Robichaud kept the spark ignited with another double, his second hit of the tilt.

Claude St. Vincent got on base through a Royal miscue which sent in the third of the five runs. Jacques Monette finished the offensive showing with a double to drive in the final two runs, bringing the Als within shooting range of the Royals.

Of the barrage of hits by Drummondville, Russ Ayoub and Mike Sawyer were responsible for the majority of the damage as both homers didn't help the situation. Sawyer and Benoit connected for two singles while Este, Morroco and St. Vincent registered the other hits.

Sherbrooke's best was Gilles Robichaud and Jacques Monette offensively as they connected for two hits, each getting a single and a double. The Alouettes' defensive performance was poor as compared to previous games in which the strong and tight defense stood out. The six errors proved that the Als were playing loosely in the field, thus not offering any strong opposition to Drummondville.

CBS set to complete deal to buy New York Yankees for $20,000,000 as few owners complain over deal

NEW YORK (AP)—The Columbia Broadcasting System today was set to complete the purchase of New York Yankees, the richest and most famous franchise in baseball.

As owners of the Yankees CBS presumably would gain full voting rights in American and major league matters.

That includes pending Monday night television package deal during prime viewing time that could bring as much as $20,000,000. The network has not yet been selected.

American League President Joe Cronin, who announced from Boston Thursday night that the necessary three-fourths of the league owners had approved the sale of 80 per cent of the Yankees, emphasized, however, that:

"The American League was advised that, if approval was granted, the Yankees will be a separate entity and an autonomous organization independent of CBS, with Dan Topping as president and other members of the organization continuing to formulate policy and to manage the Yankee organization."

The announcement brought heated, bitter retorts from Charles O. Finley, owner of Kansas City Athletics, and Arthur C. Allyn, Chicago White Sox' president, who raised the question of "the potential ramifications of a national radio and television network controlling a major league club."

FINLEY IS UNHAPPY
"This is a hell of a lousy way to run the American League," Finley said. "When the baseball fans of America see the way things are ramrodded, I fear many of them will change their allegiance to the National League."

"I'm confused, concerned and upset because of the way this deal was handled. None of us had the opportunity to sit down and discuss with Topping and Webb what they had in mind. We are completely in the dark. I can't understand the league office requesting such an important thing as this be settled by telegram."

Ticats face Rough Riders tonight and could end in EFC cellar if they lose, Als meet Argos tomorrow

It's little wonder, one football expert wrote on the eve of the Eastern Football Conference opening a week ago, that anyone who tries to predict this season's outcome is a candidate for a straight jacket.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, last year's Grey Cup winners and favorites to repeat this season, could find themselves alone on the bottom of the heap after they meet Ottawa Rough Riders in the capital tonight.

But either Toronto Argonauts or Montreal Alouettes, who were pre-season candidates for the final two rungs in the standings, could hold the undisputed lead after their meeting in Toronto Saturday night.

Tonight's game is televised on the eastern network of the CTV beginning at 8 p.m. EDT. Saturday's game will be nationally televised by the CBC beginning at 8 p.m. EDT.

Coach Ralph Sazio of Hamilton has a double row to hoe in tonight's game. His Ticats must wife out the memory of that disastrous 33-3 slaughter at the hands of Montreal last week, and he must come up with someone to match last week's Willie Betha's speed and drive.

Betha is out for an indefinite period with an injured elbow. Rookie Tom Boris of Purdue is Sazio's choice to replace Betha.

Despite the absence of Kaye Vaughn, out with a cracked leg, Ottawa coach Frank Clair says "we're getting some special stuff ready for them (Ticats)."

Without Vaughn, the Rough Riders will have to have "special stuff" to put some pressure on Ticat quarterback Bernie Faloney, who can accomplish wondrous feats without a big rush.

Ottawa will have one change in Jay Roberts, an end from the University of Kansas.

Hurling for the Indians could be Luc Gregoire or Daniel Champagne.

LL Playoffs resume tonight

Sher-Lenn Little League semi-final playoffs, scheduled for Wednesday evening, will get underway tonight at the Parade Grounds beginning at 6 p.m.

Bad weather conditions cancelled the slated games of both series Wednesday evening, thus bringing the semi-finals to a Friday night stand.

Tigers and Senators face elimination at the hands of Red Sox and Indians respectively as the latter teams are ahead in the two sections, leading the two-out-of-three series 1-0.

Quorum at Stanstead Game Club gives okay for two land purchases at special meeting held Tuesday

AYER'S CLIFF — A special meeting of the Stanstead County Fish and Game Club took place on Tuesday evening, August 11, in the hall of the County Building, with a quorum present under the presidency of Philip Poaps.

A vote to purchase property, a half interest in a cottage at Baldwin's Mills, and land at Crystal Lake, Stanstead, was taken and all present were in favor of the move. Authorization was given to Mr. Poaps to proceed with the legalities of the purchase of both properties.

A work party is arranged for members to do considerable work at the Crystal Lake outlet on Saturday morning, August 15, commencing at 8:00 a.m. and continuing throughout the day until the work is finished. Despite the shortage of water in many areas, the water in the rearing ponds is satisfactory.

Resolutions drawn up by the committee for presentation to the E.T. Federation meeting in September, were presented by Mr. Poaps to the floor and opinions were expressed with amendments made to some.

Inquiry is to be made in regards to a safety arms inspection offered by the Quebec Department. The club hopes to have one this fall and if so, it will take place at the Sand Hill Rifle range.

The next regular meeting will be on September 8 at Ayer's Cliff.

YOUR GARDEN HEADQUARTERS

Short cut to color

By JOHN BRADSHAW

The perennial called Lythrum is a most unusual plant. So unusual, in fact, it is a wonder it is not more widely grown.

What makes it stand out is that it will bloom in the full sun, do well in the shade and thrive in almost any kind of soil, even moist or partially wet locations.

No other perennial provides the garden with so much color for so little care.

This hardy plant, which is also known as Loosestrife, starts to bloom in the last week of June and continues until some time in September.

After it is through flowering in September it produces seeds that have a very attractive color combination.

Also in the fall the foliage turns a striking reddish-purple. Plants are bushy and will grow three feet high when planted in a good soil mixture.

Dr. Leslie of the Modern Experiment Station in Manitoba has developed several new varieties that have given new impetus to the planting of this useful and attractive perennial.

Dr. Leslie's newest creations are Morden Gleam and Morden Pink. The former is the near red of any Lythrum — a brilliant gleaming carmine.

Modern Pink bears dozens of spikes covered with deep and glowing rose pink blooms. It grows well during the driest weather but comes to perfection in a moist sunny location.

SPARKLING

Another variety I've seen recently is a new one from England called Robert.

It doesn't grow nearly as tall as the other varieties — the spikes average only about 18 inches — but the plants were quite bushy and each contains a dozen or more spikes.

The color is an exciting sparkling reddish glow.

One of the best locations for it is near a pond, pool or stream where it will receive lots of moisture.

The Maiden Pink of Dianthus deltoideus is a mat-forming type whose growth is quite turf-like. Attractive, fragrant, rather small flowers are produced in great quantity on stems growing eight inches high.

RUTHLESS

Dianthus deltoideus start to flower in late June and continue until some time in July, depending on the local climatic conditions.

There are two types available. My own preference is for the Brilliant variety whose blooms are a deep crimson-red. The other type has rose-pink flowers.

Plant of both types are vigorous growers and have to be ruthlessly cut back each year to small clumps six to eight inches in diameter after the flowering season is over.

After you complete the cutting back, scatter a tablespoonful of complete fertilizer or plant food around each plant and work it gently into the soil.

In the test garden of the Royal Botanic Gardens in Hamilton is a magnificent specimen of Verbascum (mullein), the Cotswold Gem.

This is one of several beautiful new hybrids recently introduced which are truly outstanding.

If you are looking for something different that is truly exciting when in bloom, plant some verbascums at the back of your mixed border.

Verbascums like a light or medium soil that is well drained.

Planting time is in October or just as soon as the soil is workable in the spring. Set them in groups of three, 12 inches apart.

Once a colony of plants is established they will reproduce themselves. Heights vary from three to five feet.

Cotswold Gem and Pink Domino are two of the newer varieties I particularly admire.

Cotswold Gem received an Award of Merit of the Royal Horticultural Society when it was introduced a few years ago.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY

Last Friday, we packed the kids, collie, budgie, bedding, and all into our little Volkswagen and headed west. Ten hours driving up through Ottawa, across Algonquin Park and down through Muskoka brought us once again to our old farm.

The lane was a bit more overgrown, the doorstep hidden in grass, but the power was still connected and the pump worked. In half an hour, the place was, once again, alive.

Only a few years ago, farms like ours, small but prosperous, were found everywhere in this beautiful land of lakes and rocks. But there came the time with the changing agriculture when they could no longer expand and compete. One by one, the owners took outside jobs. One by one, the farms dropped out.

Our farm was one of the last in this neighborhood to go. Its turn inevitably came. Six years ago this fall, I sold out the dairy here, the endeavour of three generations, and went back to school.

Today the farm is idle; a neighbour takes the hay and pastures his cows here. But the small rent will not pay for fertilizer or for reseeding.

We hold on to the place with the illogical hope that someday, in some way, we may return to live. We love its rugged beauty, its lake and its rocks, its maples and its marsh — yes, even its reluctant sandy soil.

It felt good to walk the familiar fields again. I found, to my surprise, that Birdsfoot trefoil has completely taken over the "front" field. When this field was seeded down for the last time six years, without regard for the proper practice, I threw a few handfuls of trefoil seed into the mixture. I saw nothing more of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Errol Hardy have returned to St. Lambert, after visiting Mrs. Harry Hardy. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Boast and son Jimmy, who were guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Boast, have returned to Hemmingford.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sykes left by motor for Long Sault, Ont., where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Walter Abbott, their daughter, Mrs. Clarence Pope, accompanied them to Montreal, where she spent a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Dickson, and Mr. Dickson.

Mrs. Anson Bricker accompanied by Miss Edith McCourt motored to the Flambeau Home, Bondville, recently, where they delivered several boxes of donations from the U.C.W. The following were the donors: Mrs. C. E. Manning, Mrs. Eva Donahue, Miss Rae Epps, Montreal; Mrs. N. McNiff, Danville. After visiting the Home, they left for Farnham, where Mrs. Bricker visited Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Darby and Miss Darby. Mrs. Darby had recently returned from the hospital. Miss McCourt visited Mr. and Mrs. E. Barber and Mrs. J. Riddick.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Levia, Danny and Donna, accompanied by the former's niece and nephew, Miss Mary and Mr. Freddie Levia, of Montreal, have returned after visiting Mrs. Nelson Levia. Mr. Freddie Levia is remaining for a longer visit.

Mr. Walter McMorine has returned from North Bay, where he visited his daughters, the Misses Mary and Roberta McMorine.

Mr. and Mrs. Bullock and daughter, Jane, accompanied by Mrs. Bullock's mother, Mrs. Neil Adam spent a few days at Greenfield Park, with their sister and daughter, Mrs. Marcel Simard, Mr. Simard and family. Mr. and Mrs. Bullock also motored to Arundel.

A writer's notes

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that fathers get tired of hearing:

"Don't take off your shoes. Don't you remember — we're going out tonight."

"Is the head of the house in? Oh, excuse me — you're the head of the house?"

"I hate to trouble you at home, sir. But I'm sure that after you listen to the important message I have for you from the Thanatopsis Life Insurance Company about its new all-family protection plan, you'll bless the day I knocked on your door."

"That's your father coming in now, young man. Just wait until I tell him what you've been up to all day."

"You can spank me if you want to, dad. But if you do — don't expect any present from me next father's day."

"No, I'm not going to cut the roast. You slice it. After all, that's a man's work."

"I don't understand why you don't want to talk to me about your office. Other husbands I know love to discuss their jobs with their wives. They even ask for their advice."

"What's this blonde hair doing on your coat? We are getting real chummy with our new secretary, aren't we?"

"What do you mean you need lunch money? What did you do with the $3 I gave you yesterday?"

"I know you told me not to phone you at the office unless it's an emergency, dear. But this is an emergency. Can you stop off at the supermarket and pick up a pound of bacon, a dozen eggs, three boxes of breakfast food, four bottles of milk, some beef kidney for the cat, and . . ."

"Daddy, it's not fair for you to hog the television set. Who wants to listen to another old political speech? We want to watch that new program, Ratfinks in Space. It's real cool."

"I spoke to the orthodontist today about Danny's teeth. He says that to straighten them it'll take about two years and $750. Do you think we ought to go ahead now — or wait until the doctor takes Danny's tonsils out?"

"You'll have to sleep on the living room sofa, George. Judy and her girl friends are having a pajama party tonight."

"You're tired? What about me? If you think slaving all day for a husband and three kids is any bed of roses, let me tell you that . . ."

"No, I don't approve of your running off to play golf with those lockerroom idiot friends of yours. This is the weekend you promised me faithfully you'd stay home and dig out the crabgrass."

"Aw, gee, dad, don't you ever remember what it was like to be a kid yourself?"

Do-it-yourself

Will your home be solid when rain, winds come?

By Mr. FIX

Winds and wind-driven rain and snow can create a great deal of havoc in and around a house. Fortunately, preventive maintenance can minimize much of the damage.

Look around outside your house. Trees can be a hazard, but they can also protect your home from storm damage by deflecting the wind and lessening its impact.

Check trees for dead limbs. These are the first to go in a big windstorm. Prune them while the weather is still fair. Trees that have branches splitting away might be saved with wires and bolts. If you are not sure, consult a tree surgeon. Trees with shallow roots require extra support. Stakes and wires will make them secure. But make certain that the stakes are firmly set.

Watch Fences

A fence also can lessen the impact of a storm. But at the same time it can become a casualty.

Posts that are not properly set will not show up their weaknesses until it's too late. In soil that doesn't compact well, posts should be set in concrete. They should be set about one-third of their length below ground in any event.

Even posts set in concrete can give trouble. Water will often collect where the post enters the concrete and the constant moisture will cause the post to rot at that point. Concrete should be used so that the top of the base is slightly above the level of the ground around it. This will permit water to run off.

Patio roofs are often casualties. And when they blow away they can cause damage elsewhere. Make certain that framing is strong. If the roof is of glass fiber material, it should be held with more than just nails. Washers under the nail heads should prevent the roof from tearing loose.

Suffering Roof

On the house itself, it is generally the roof that suffers the most in a storm.

High winds will lift shingles and rip them loose. Watch your shingles next time the wind blows. If there's any fluttering, consider re-nailing.

Better than nails alone is a combination of nails and asphalt roof coating. Apply the roof coating under the forward edge of the shingle so that it sticks to the one below. Work on a warm day so the shingles won't be brittle.

The chimney and other brick surfaces will come through storms much better if sealed with a clear masonry sealer. Calking is a must in prevention of storm damage. Openings around doors and windows, no matter how slight, are highly vulnerable to wind-driven rain. Check the putty around the window panes. If cracked or loose, water can enter.
