

LHS students take over town council

By DENNIS FINLAY
(Record Staff Reporter)

Lennoxville High School was represented at the Lennoxville Town Council meeting last night by its own duly appointed mayor, secretary-treasurer and five aldermen.

The students were sitting in as a mock council as a part of the program scheduled for Youth Appreciation Week in Lennoxville which will be held the week of Nov. 13-19.

The mock council mayor was Albert Grant and the secretary-treasurer was Virginia Thompson.

The five aldermen on the mock council, who each represented a chairman on the Lennoxville Council, were Grant Wood, Maxine Worsley, Mary Reynolds, Lynn McKindsey and Marlene Johnson.

These seven students were elected by the students at L.H.S. and are all members of the student council and as Cecil Dougherty, Mayor of Lennoxville said, "They have all the support with them which is slightly more than we can say."

Each member of this mock council sat beside the member of the Lennoxville Town Council which he or she represented.

The student body was also represented by members of the student council who stood by as spectators at the meeting.

The mock council members were invited by Mr. Dougherty to make suggestions to the council on the observations they have made in Lennoxville as to the changes they would consider worthwhile for the good of the municipality.

Following the correspondence session at the meeting, Mayor Dougherty told the mock council and the students attending the meeting that he hoped they now better understood why municipal government is the strongest form of democracy in the country today.

He also suggested since there were 997 French-speaking people in Lennoxville, that next year French-speaking students be on the mock council.

He added that this was constructive criticism and not direct criticism to the organizers.

The event was under the auspices of the Lennoxville Optimist Club who sponsor Youth Appreciation Week in Lennoxville.

Albert Grant, mayor of the mock council, said that the students learned more about the municipal affairs last night and also were shown the problems which the town council encounters.

As Mayor Dougherty said to the students, "I hope you have learned what goes on at Town Hall tonight because in a few years you may be sitting in our places and you will face these problems we face."

He also urged the students of Lennoxville High School to participate in the Armistice Day parade in Lennoxville on Sunday, Nov. 12, because as he said, "There is a place for you."

He told the students that the men who died to insure our democracy ask only 30 minutes every year and he hoped that the students would be in the parade to give thanks to the war dead.

Launch today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (Reuters) — The United States today launched another Surveyor space shot designed to take a closer look at a possible astronaut landing site right in the middle of the moon's face.

Sixth in the Surveyor series, the latest unmanned satellite is a robot chemist with a revolving camera eye. Its mission is to analyse soil on an crater-pocked lunar plain so rugged the spacecraft was given less than a 50-50 chance of landing safely Thursday after a 65-hour journey.

Under control

ADEN (Reuters) — South Arabian military chiefs said today they were in control of the situation here a few hours after aligning themselves with one of the rival nationalist groups involved in savage fighting for the last four days.

"Everything is back to normal," the federal command said in a statement and asked people who fled during the fighting to return to their homes.

LBJ unpopular

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two polls find President Johnson's popularity is at a record low.

A poll by Louis Harris, published Monday in the Washington Post, shows Johnson losing to six possible Republican opponents if he were to run against them now.

Seventy-first year

ALWAYS A FIRST TIME — When a fella has a couple of pretty girls looking after him, he can take just about anything — even giving blood for the first time. Above, Record staff reporter Dennis Finlay grins his approval of Montreal Red Cross volunteers Jeanne Thibault and Ionaida Thibodeau. The fellow in the background with his arm up to his forehead is Dave St. Laurent, who has given blood 26 times. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

His very first blood pint, and not a hint of fear

By PETER VERRAL
(Who has given blood 10 times)

His heart might have been "thump-a-thumping" a little under his black watch tartan vest, but when Dennis gazed up and saw the golden-haired Red Cross volunteer who was smiling at him, he rapidly regained his cool.

"Hey", he chirped with a wide grin, "I think I've set a record."

Jeanne Thibault, gave a "You meet all kinds of donors" type of smile and removed the little plastic bag.

It was all over, Dennis, who had just donated blood for the first time swung his legs over the cot and proudly walked (no dizzy spells for this boy), over to another cot to rest awhile.

Dennis Finlay is one of the Record's staff reporters. And the whole idea of his giving blood started last Friday when he "opened his mouth and inserted his foot" by saying he had never given blood.

"Never given blood," chorused the blood donor veteran reporters, with an incredulous air. The only solution would be to speed Dennis down to the Armory building on Belvedere Street as soon as the blood clinic opened Monday afternoon. And so it was Dennis' wide-eyed innocence that took him to the clinic flanked on either side by a reporter and photographer to take note of and record the historic "first occasion."

Once inside, Dennis bravely joined the line of donors queuing up for a blood type test. Standing a little ways away, you could see his head bobbing up and down occasionally. Was the wily rascal trying to slink out of the line?

But not a chance, for within minutes Dennis emerged from the line with a wide grin and brandishing a blue card which welcomed him to the club of group "O" donors.

Now the time of donating blood was approaching and Dennis hop-scotched from one chair to another.

When the call came, Dennis took an athletic hop onto the cot, while a little shower of papers and a wallet slipped from his pocket.

Was Dennis nervous? Not a bit, ho, ho!

And with one hand tucked underneath his head Dennis was soon well on his way to giving his first pint of blood.

"Freshman" blood donor Dennis was cotted next door to a donor who has donated blood 26 times. He is Dave St. Laurent, a physical education director at the Sherbrooke YM-YWCA.

Sherbrooke citizens are asked to donate 2,000 pints of blood during the clinic's four day stay from November 6 to 9.

Miss opportunity

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec's outspoken Rene Levesque said Monday night that his province today has an opportunity for "branching out" that it may never get again.

Mr. Levesque, a former Liberal welfare minister of Quebec who recently quit his party to sit in the legislature as independent member for Laurier, said Quebec has already obtained an "embryo special status" within Confederation.

Mrs. Marcel Savard, executive president of the Sherbrooke section blood clinic committee is optimistic that there will be "more than 2,000 donors." There were about 570 donors at yesterday's opening clinic.

Each donor receives a pack of 20 cigarettes, a steaming cup of coffee and the opportunity to munch into a plateful of doughnuts after giving blood.

Donors may also see a movie entitled "The River of Life" every hour. This movie, an animated cartoon, was prepared by Leda films for the French national Blood Transfusion Service. It's under the auspices of the French Red Cross.

Tomorrow is Mayor's Day and all City Hall employees will be given time off to donate blood.

The clinic is open each of the three remaining days continuously from 1:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Friday November 10 the clinic moves on to East Angus. The next stops will be Acton Vale, Asbestos, and Drummondville which will be the last stop on November 17.

Byelections according to form

Tory leader wins first federal race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three federal by-elections, as they usually do, went according to form Monday. Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield swamped two independents to take the Nova Scotia ridings of Colchester-Hants. The earliest he can assume his Commons seat is Nov. 15.

Charles Granger, minister without portfolio, retained the Newfoundland riding of Bonaville-Twillingate for the Liberals with a sharply reduced majority. The earliest he can take his Commons seat is Nov. 16.

Doug Caston retained the Alberta constituency of Jasper-Edson for the Conservatives. He can take his seat Nov. 20 at the earliest.

CHIEF SPEAKS

Mr. Stanfield is scheduled to arrive in Ottawa today and to make a free-press political broadcast on CBC television Wednesday night.

He said he has not started work yet on his maiden speech in the Commons.

Commons standing after the by-elections: Liberals 132, Conservatives 95; New Democratic Party 22, Creditistes 8, Social Credit 4, independent 3, vacant 1—total 265.

The vacancy is Grey-Bruce in Ontario, made vacant by the resignation of former Conservative whip Eric Winkler to enter provincial politics.

There have been 11 by-elections since the 1965 general election which returned a minority Liberal administration.

Of the 11, the Liberals have retained eight—gaining Nicolet-Yamaska in Quebec from the Conservatives but losing Sudbury to the NDP. The Conservatives kept two and the NDP gained one.

Mr. Stanfield garnered 92 per cent of the vote in Colchester-Hants against a strong independent Liberal Robert Kirk and independent Edward Smith.

The by-election was such a foregone conclusion that only 52 per cent of 23,500 eligible voters cast ballots compared with 85 per cent in the 1965 general election.

The seat was made vacant by the resignation of Conservative Cyril Kennedy after Mr. Stanfield won the party leadership Sept. 9.

PRE-ELECTION POST

Mr. Granger, appointed to the cabinet before the by-election, defeated Conservative Wilfred French and independent Samuel Drover with room to spare but his majority was much reduced from that of his predecessor, former transport minister J. W. Pickersill who resigned the seat to become head of the transport commission.

It could not be learned whether the U.S. would modify the wording of its draft to meet Communist objections or with draw it.

EXPECTS SOLUTION

A British spokesman predicted that in any case it was a "fair bet" that the 15-nation council would meet on the Arab-Israeli conflict before the week is over.

Informed sources said the American plan, like that of the six nations, calls on Israel to withdraw from Arab soil seized in the June war. But it also seeks action by the Arabs to end their 19-year-old state of belligerency against Israel.

The informants said the draft also authorized sending a UN representative to the Middle East to try to work out a settlement but did not bind him to specific instructions.

The U.S. began circulating its plan after the big powers had held weekend consultations with Arab and Israeli leaders.

The major powers took over the problem after the 10 non-permanent members of the council reported Friday that they had failed to agree among themselves on council action.

Mayor Ovila Bergeron ousted in Magog municipal elections

MAGOG—(Special)—A former mayor of Magog, Maurice Theroux won the municipal election held here Monday, defeating Mayor Ovila Bergeron with a 247 vote majority. Mr. Theroux's lead dominated four of the city's six wards. Mr. Bergeron held a 28 majority lead in his own ward, and a three vote gain in Ward 6.

In the aldermanic contest, all but one of the former councillors was returned to office, and that was in Ward 4, where former Alderman Armand Pouliot gained a victory over Gaston Huot, winning the seat by 219 votes to 181. This seat saw the election's most fiery attacks, and harsh accusations, while the other campaigns were quite discreetly conducted.

In Ward 1, Oliva Hamel was returned with a 28 majority, defeating Gerard Longpre, a newcomer to the election scene.

Ward 2, Alderman Ernest St. Jacques retained his post by downing Fernand Gagnon 267 to 165, registering a 102 majority.

Gerard L. Longpre, Ward 3 councillor held a slim 52 majority to defeat Wilfred Simard, another newcomer to the Magog political scene.

Most decisive of the aldermanic victories, was that gained by Gerard Page, of Ward 5, who received 278 votes, compared to Wilfred Gagne's 110.

Ward 6 saw veteran Alderman Armand Gagne sweep up an 88 majority, downing Lionel Roy 193 to 105.

While voting was steady from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday, it was surprising to note that only 50 per cent of Magog's eligible voters cast ballots. 4,237 were entitled to vote, while the number exercising their mandate was 2,113.

All of Monday's activity was in the Magog city hall, where information and electors were counting on the first floor, and voting was on the second floor.

Magog's secretary-treasurer, Jean-Paul Lange acted as election president, and his assistant, Yves Langlois, was election secretary.

Following the counting, and announcement of final results, the victors addressed a capacity crowd in the city hall.

Mr. Theroux said his policy would be an open door approach to governing the city, and he hoped that the citizens of Magog would freely express their views to him. Mr. Theroux also spoke most forcefully about going after new industry for Magog.

"There's no reason why this community cannot receive government subsidies like St. Jean does," he said, and insisted that new strides of progress could be registered here.

Saying he was really pleased with results of the election, Mr. Theroux noted that the majority who put their effort behind his campaign actually did very little until the last few days.

In answering the reason for Ovila Bergeron's defeat, one alderman expressed belief that it was due to his affiliation with the Roman Catholic school board, where he holds the post of secretary-treasurer.

Other speculation at city hall last evening, concerning the deposition of Mr. Bergeron found one of his organizers saying those who supposedly worked for their side, was in fact promoting Mr. Theroux.

Another person said he believed the recent trip to Nassau by the council was the reason for Mr. Bergeron's defeat, but this seemed highly unlikely, since four of the aldermen returned were on the same trip.

All but one of the candidates spoke, and it was said Mr. Bergeron went home, as Mr. Theroux had done when Mr. Bergeron defeated Mr. Theroux in a previous election.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

NORTH USES LANDY BACK-IN

Bridge experts use numerous special artificial conventions for one reason and one reason only. That reason is that they want to win, and they know that they can't win without them. Every one needs an ace showing method. Blackwood is the most popular but there are others that have one thing in common. Each one is better than no convention at all.

In response to no-trump, we all use some artificial set of responses, and against no-trump we need some artificial method to get into the bidding.

The most popular of these is the Landy convention, named after Alvin Landy, the man who ran the American Contract Bridge League for the last 20 years. National tournaments aren't going to be the same without Alvin around to keep things going and to keep everybody happy, or at least as happy as possible.

The Landy convention is a simple one. Specifically, when an opponent opens one no-trump, you bid two clubs to show both major suits. In the back-in position you don't need much of a hand to make this bid.

The Landy convention made it possible for today's North to reopen safely after East's no-trump was passed around to him. South responded with two spades and proceeded to make four odd with some mild help from the defense.

Declarer won the club lead with his jack, returned to dummy with the ace and led a low heart. East rose with the king

Cleveland Women's Institute makes plans for applied quilt project

CLEVELAND — Members of the Women's Institute held its November meeting at the home of Mrs. Royce Taylor. They were asked to buy a poppy for Remembrance Day.

A report of the county meeting was given by Mrs. Alfred Smith.

Plans were discussed for an applied quilt to be made for the inter-branch competition at the Richmond Fair. Members were asked to bring patterns for the quilt to the next meeting.

Conveners reports were given by the citizenship convener, a reading on Halloween; home economics convener, a reading on Indian Summer.

Prizes offered to grades six, St. Francis High School, for general proficiency were awarded to Miss Audrey Fee.

WATERLOO —

Douglas Boyd, of Montreal, spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Roma Boyd, after spending several months in Regina and Winnipeg. He was accompanied by Miss Sarah Ramdon. Lorne Boyd, Macdonald College, was also home for the weekend, and Larry Boyd, R.C.A.F. Base, Uplands, Ont., spent two weeks furlough here.

Dr. J. L. S. Simpson has returned to her home in Chula Vista, Calif., after visiting Mrs. Emilienne Godbout. Dr. Simpson attended the 50th reunion of her class at McGill University during her stay.

Mrs. A. J. Buckland spent a few days in Montreal with her friends, Mrs. R. L. Cochrane and Miss Elinor Lawrence, of New York City.

Flowers on the altar of St. Luke's church on Nov. 5 were in memory of Clara Neill and Faye Cox Neill, from the family.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Weppert, of St. Hubert, and Mrs. G. Mac-Willie, Ste. Dorothee, called on Mrs. Roma Boyd recently.

Miss Debra Armstrong and Marshall Robb.

Mrs. Royce Taylor was asked to replace Mrs. Lottie Osborne on the buying committee, during her absence.

Two drawings on material were won by Mrs. Clarence Pease. A birthday auction was brought in by Miss Flora Fletcher.

Names were drawn for the exchange of Christmas gifts. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Flora Fletcher when a contest on cookies will be held. The cookies will be used for Christmas cheer parcels.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Taylor at the close of the meeting.

FULFORD

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — From New York City to Monterey, Calif., towns are competing to lure film production away from Hollywood.

Mayor John V. Lindsay's campaign has been so successful they're calling New York "Hollywood on the Hudson."

With such inducements as streamlined issuance of permits, a recent tabulation showed 51 features filmed there wholly or partly in 20 months.

A Florida producers association hopes to subsidize Hollywood production there. Oregon sends producers brochures ballyhooing its scenic attractions. So does Sonora, Calif., reporting current costs of renting horses, cattle, sheep and railroads.

NEEDS VARY
 A Monterey, Calif., representative helps with hotel accommodations, hiring extras and finding locations. New Mexico has a movie-luring committee. Arizona eased its workmen's compensation law and Colorado its state tax to encourage movie-making. A Wimberley, Tex., ranch resort offered to build sets free.

Why? Money, mostly. Stimulation of the local economy and tourist-attracting publicity.

In Moab, Utah — population 5,100—where Paramount filmed Blue and Fade — In simultaneously this summer, the weekly Times-Independent reported:

"Both bankers agree the monetary impact has upgraded the town's economy. Extra service has been established to facilitate cheque cashing. Markets note an increase in business over last year."

"Old bills are being paid, almost all businesses confirmed, and they are often paid direct with Paramount cheques."

OUTFITTED TEENS
 "I wrote cheques totalling about $500,000, including $100,000 for the construction of sets," wrote Joe Kenny, production manager of the project. "We hired a lot of kids who were finishing high school."

"They made enough money to outfit themselves and have money for college."

Warner Bros.-Seven Arts' Bonnie and Clyde left more than $400,000 in and around Dallas. Locally-hired extras got about $40,000. Townspeople are delighted to turn actors, but a studio official warns them not to start if they can't beat sitting around, waiting, sometimes in atrocious weather.

TOMIFOBIA

Mr. and Mrs. E. Priestly, who are occupying their cottage at Fitch Bay, visited the former's mother, Mrs. M. Priestly at the Elliott Rest Home.

Mrs. Donald Little, North Hatley, is spending an indefinite time at the Elliott Rest Home.

Mrs. Edith Keet, who has been a patient at the Elliott Rest Home has gone to a nursing home in Knowlton.

Rev. Worden, Beebe, and the Rev. Albons, Mansonville, were calling on Rev. Macklin at the Elliott Rest Home.

Mr. Allan Husk, Melbourne, was a recent guest of his grandmother, Mrs. Jessie Elliott and aunt, Miss Eileen Elliott. He also called on other relatives in the community.

LENNOXVILLE CONSTABLE OFFICIALLY COMMENDED

At the Lennoxville Town Council meeting last night, a motion was passed to send a letter of commendation to police constable, Russell Wells for his quick and decisive action which led to the capture of the thief who broke into Paradis' Garage in the town over the weekend.

Constable Wells was sitting in the police car in the yard of St. Anthony's Church in Lennoxville the night of the break-in and noticed that the garage truck was being loaded with merchandise from the garage.

He immediately drove to the garage and the thief attempted to escape in the truck loaded with the goods.

Constable Wells pursued the truck and contacted the Sherbrooke, Bromptonville and Provincial police forces to set up road-blocks.

The thief took a side road in the direction of Bromptonville and eluded Constable Wells who was still chasing the thief.

The burglar then doubled back to Sherbrooke but was caught at a road-block which was set up because of Constable Wells' calls to the various police forces.

The motion to send the letter was unanimously passed.

Normand Morin, 25, of 215 Brooks Street, Sherbrooke, pleaded guilty to a theft charge yesterday in the court of sessions and Judge Benoit Turmel set Nov. 9 as the day Morin would be sentenced.

He pleaded guilty to stealing $3,000 worth of goods from Paradis Garage on College Street in Lennoxville on or about the night of Nov. 4 or 5.

The merchandise included a 1963, GMC truck, 151 packages of cigarettes, $21 in cash, 10 tires, 27 batteries, three electric drills, an adding machine, a machine used to print checks, 14 battery cables, a stereoscope and a compression key.

Stanley Steinman, Crown Prosecutor, told the court that Morin had recently served two sentences of two years each and suggested that the sentence be postponed until Nov. 9.

Two young men from Magog, Michel Bourque, 21, and Andre Lemieux, 20, faced one charge of theft and one of attempted theft, both alleged to have occurred in Magog. They are accused of stealing a $200 camera and $100 in cash.

They chose a trial by judge alone on the theft charge and pleaded not guilty to the attempted theft charge.

Their cases will be heard on Nov. 9 and bail was set at $750 cash or $1,500 property.

Jean Cormier, their lawyer, asked for bail of $500 cash and $1,000 property, but Mr. Steinman interjected that the crime was serious enough to merit $1,000 cash bail or $2,000 property.

Judge Turmel said he would divide the sum of the two amounts asked for and set bail as it was.

Jacques Pomerleau, 20, of Bromptonville, pleaded guilty to a hit and run charge and was fined $100 and his driver's licence was suspended for six months.

He has 30 days to pay the fine and in default of payment, he would spend 30 days in jail. He had no previous record.

Guy Remington, 40, of Montreal, pleaded guilty to a See "Man Steals" On Page 3

Two Civic Action League appointed Director of the Fire Department, starting tomorrow by city council.

In effect, a director, assistant director and chief of administration are the three key positions in the new report, and these three posts were the main bones of contention among council members last night.

The report presented by Ald. Carl Camirand, president of the police and fire commission, is based on a study of the city's fire department made several months ago free of charge, by the province of Quebec Fire Commission.

The actual recommendations made in last night's report were suggested by M. C. Audet, assistant director of the fire department. Mr. Audet was appointed director of the Fire Department, starting tomorrow by city council.

Mr. Audet who made a brief appearance at the council meeting later told the Record that the main change made by the report is that the director will no longer be burdened with the direct responsibility of all facets of the department.

The assistant director will receive all problems and recommendations first before they finally proceed up to the director for the final decision. The new administrative setup will be as follows in a decreasing chain of command: city council (the final arbitrator), protection commission headed by Ald. Carl Camirand, the director (presently Mr. Audet), the assistant director and chief of administration (to be appointed after qualifying examinations), fire prevention and personnel training (directly responsible to the assistant director), the electrical, mechanical and maintenance of fire hydrants (who also reports to the assistant director and director).

From here are the four fire captains of stations one, two, four and five, who are responsible to the assistant director, director, and also to the chief of administration.

At present, there are five stations, two at number one and one each at the other stations.

Former director Percy W. Donahue, who retired several months ago will remain with the force on a consulting basis until the new year.

The total cost of the recommendations suggested by the Province of Quebec Fire Commission was $274,760, while budget in the report by Mr. Audet and passed by city council totaled $243,956.

These amounts include the total number of men in the fire department, their yearly salaries, costs of lodging and other expenses.

The actual responsibilities of the different positions in the administrative reorganization start with the director. He keeps surveillance over and aids the three divisions of his service: Administration, Fire Prevention and Training. He also maintains relations with the fire commission and the fireman's association, as well as the public.

The assistant director replaces the director if the occasion arises. He is, however, under the supervision of the director. In addition the assistant director is responsible for the prevention of fires and collaborates with the lieutenant inspector of fire prevention. The chief of administration is

Two CAL men claim they were 'tricked'

In an interview with journalists outside city hall council chambers last night, an irate alderman Romeo Quintal said: "We have been tricked".

He was referring to a report passed shortly before by council that called for an administrative reorganization of the Sherbrooke Fire Department.

The report was prepared by the assistant director of the fire department, M. C. Audet, who implemented ideas in his recommendations from a recent study made of the city's fire department by the Province of Quebec Fire Commission.

Ald. Quintal gave the journalists a copy of his own plan of administrative reorganization which council rejected. He had worked four months on his plan.

One reason why Ald. Quintal felt that he was "fooled" is because his idea to make the promotion to the post of director binding on an examination, was not accepted by council.

He told the journalists in the corridor conversation that the best way to get the top men for the fire department was through examinations.

During the council meeting, Ald. Quintal was supported by fellow CAL Ald. Hilaire Beliveau.

Although there will be no obligatory examinations for promotion to the key post of director, there will be applications followed by examinations to glean the top men to fill the posts of assistant director and chief of administration.

The main difference in Ald. Quintal's plan and the accepted one can be seen in the command posts following that of the director.

Under Ald. Quintal's rejected recommendation there would have been an assistant director votes and Henri Masse defeat of administration and an assistant director "of the fight against fire."

In Mr. Audet's accepted plan, there is an assistant director and a chief of administration next to the director in the command structure.

It is believed by city hall observers that Ald. Quintal was attempting to reduce the three-man system proposed by Mr. Audet, to two under his plan.

Yet, Aldermen Quintal and Beliveau agreed to the director, assistant director and chief of administration at one point during the council meeting.

Sherbrooke MP joins quest for a sketch

Another official figure joined the request yesterday for a sketch or photograph of the federally proposed contemporary sculpture to be erected in Sherbrooke's Mitchell Park in the memory of Sir Alexander T. Galt.

Maurice Allard, MP for Sherbrooke told the Record to write him a note in Ottawa explaining just what was wanted.

Mr. Allard said he would contact Mr. Cole, associate deputy minister of Northern and Indian Affairs to see if it is possible to obtain information about the sculpture from that department.

Mr. Allard added he would call the Record late Wednesday afternoon with any news on the whereabouts of the sculpture.

Recently, Patrick Asselin, MP for Richmond Wolfe said a photograph or sketch hasn't been available of the proposed sculpture because federal authorities want to make sure that it is presented properly in the newspapers.

Richmond water tax increase is 15%

RICHMOND — (Staff) — the reason for the increase from $36 to $44 now in effect, 15 per cent increase in their water tax now in effect.

Mayor Georges Savoie said the reason for the increase from $36 to $44 now in effect, 15 per cent increase in their water tax now in effect.

Previously the tax was $32 for residents without an outdoor faucet and $36 for residents with the use of outdoor faucet.

Mr. Savoie said the city will have to pay back annually in capital and interest an amount of $34,964.

He said this debt would be amortized in the three ways. Part of the debt will come from a provincial grant of $18,000 per year, which can be renewed for a five year period.

The city expects to receive approximately $14,000 in revenue from the water taxes, and the remaining $2,000 is expected to be realized in the annual savings from the new water system.

Mr. Savoie said the old water system, which was 75 years old, used to cause periodic water shortages throughout Richmond which could last for three or four days.

He said the new system will be officially opened next month.

Mill rate the same for 1968, town planning for a surplus

At the monthly meeting of the Lennoxville Town Council last night, Mayor Cecil Dougherty announced that the council would operate on a slight surplus in the 1968 budget for the municipality.

The mill rate will remain at 14, the same as this year, it was announced at the meeting.

Finance chairman Taylor reported that the town has an expenditure of $38,000 on paper but Mayor Dougherty said the council could not spend the money that was only visible in the finance books, as $29,000 of the $38,000 are taxes which have not as yet been collected.

A major problem is the rental tax as it was disclosed that people move in the month of May and September and collecting this rental tax is very difficult if taxes are collected only once a year.

It was suggested that a revised roll be drawn up of the citizens who pay rental tax and conduct a bi-yearly collection. The people who did not pay the first time would pay the second time around.

It was suggested that the revised roll be figured by a door-to-door survey this fall.

The collections would be conducted after January 1 if the survey was completed this fall and it was said that part of the battle of collecting rental taxes would be won.

Town Council also discussed the water pipe running under Bishop's University football field which connected the reservoirs to the town and to the area in the vicinity of the Experimental Farm.

It was disclosed that if a break should occur under the football field, it would be very costly to the people of Lennoxville because the town would be without water unless the football field is dug up and this would be a great expense.

It was decided to have a valve at both ends of the football field so the water could be shut off under the football field but still supply the town and the Experimental Farm district.

There is already one such valve at the football field on the town's end of the field.

Negotiations are under way with officials at the University to decide what portions will be paid by the College and the town.

The operation would cost approximately $1,000.

Mayor Dougherty specified that there is no indication of any type of break in the water pipes beneath the field but said that these valves would be an added precaution.

An engineer's report was read on plans for the widening of the corner at Warren and Queen Streets.

There are two vacant lots on each side of this corner and the town owns a small portion on either side. The side-walks will be moved slightly to make a corner that is more rounded and easier to drive around than the present square corner.

The Mayor said that if the two vacant lots are bought, the town will buy the small corners of the lot and further expand the radius of the curve.

The motions to make an immediate temporary change on the corner and to make a further expansion when the two vacant lots are purchased were both passed.

Negotiations are in progress between the town of Lennoxville and the Notre Dame des Anges Sisters concerning a trunk sewer which would run from Ascot and under their land to the town and into the St. Francis.

Permission would have to be granted by the Sisters' superiors before the project can get underway.

A letter was received from the attorney of Romeo Talbot of Queen Street in Lennoxville demanding $500 damages to be paid Mr. Talbot for damage to his property caused by high water.

Mayor Dougherty said that if the town accept responsibility and paid Mr. Talbot, the expense could probably recur every year.

He said the town's insurance covered the situation but also said that by accepting responsibility, the town might be obliged to increase the size of the water-pipe crossing behind Mr. Talbot's house.

This is on the land of three railways and Mr. Dougherty said the cost of a new crossing could be $500,000.

It was decided to seek legal

4th robbery suspect arrested by police

A fourth suspect in Racine bank hold-up Nov. 2 was apprehended by the Sherbrooke Municipal Police in Sherbrooke yesterday.

Within three hours after the Canadian National Bank and an adjoining general store had been robbed of $3,300, three of the four suspects were arrested.

The fourth suspect was a 16-year-old Sherbrooke resident. He was carrying $207 when captured.

Police said they believed the young man went to Montreal for a few days and that was why he was not captured earlier.

He was returned to Sweet'sburg prison where all four suspects were transported by the Sherbrooke QPP.

Preliminary hearing was held this morning in the Sweet'sburg court.

Last Thursday four men robbed the Racine bank and fled in a car they had stolen in Sherbrooke one-half hour ear-

Words are different, ideas alike

Anyone witnessing the debate between RIN leader Pierre Bourgault and Sherbrooke MP Maurice Allard must have thought of the comment on a music critic on the outpourings of rival pop music groups: The words are different but the music remains the same.

One speaker demanded complete independence for Quebec. The other spoke of special status for this province under a new constitution.

But both had a common thought. The power of the central government must be curtailed and that of the provincial administrations, especially in the case of Quebec, must be increased.

The only point at issue was the extent to which this transfer of power should take place.

Neither man came out for a policy designed to strengthen Canada as a whole. Neither wished to make it stronger than its segments.

The chief difference between the two men appeared to be that Mr. Bourgault outrightly favored the establishment of an independent Quebec with all the advantages or disadvantages this may hold for the people of this province and for Canada as a whole while Mr. Allard would so strengthen the provinces that the central authority would virtually lose its ability to function.

Deplores practical in education

Traditionally the prime purpose of a young man or woman attending a university was to learn, but apparently this idea is a thing of the past if one is to accept the thesis put forward by Edward J. Hundert, a graduate of American universities who is a professor of history at the University of Calgary.

Prof. Hundert is much displeased with the youth he teaches because he regards them as out of tune with major social issues, as dull and unresponsive in class, as lacking in social consciousness and being too docile.

He claims the quiet student is the result of anti-intellectual community pressure aimed at fostering economic productivity and he abhors the fact that a university is viewed primarily as a means of ensuring the student greater scope for economic advancement in later life.

In other words Prof. Hundert gives the impression that the student should not waste his or her time in learning something useful but should espouse radicalism for the sake of being radical, dissent for the sake of dissent and change for the sake of change.

Probably there are occasions when students have solid grounds for taking an unusual and radical position of a certain issue, but to most parents skimping to pay college tuition charges and other expenses to the taxpayer pouring millions, or even billions, into university maintenance, there are still practical aspects to higher education.

After junior had neatly hung up all his clothes for a week, mom took him to the doctor. Figured he HAD to be sick.

Readers say:

Johnson can't cope with situation

Dear Sir:

According to the Montreal press, Premier Johnson leaves Tuesday for New York where he will spend four days attempting to bolster the Quebec investment climate. It has proven impossible to find out from government sources just how good or how bad the market is for Quebec bonds. All top financial experts have been in a huddle and one official said, "conditions are so crucial it is better if nobody says anything". But one government spokesman did say the men Mr. Johnson would meet were top-notch Wall Street financiers.

The current financial situation in the Province of Quebec serves well to vindicate the time worn adage: "He who sows the wind shall reap the whirlwind". It is only a few short months ago since Premier Johnson carefully packed his praying hassock, and traipsed off for New York with a retinue of so-called experts. He carefully denied most of the more radical and nationally disruptive statements that he had erupted with during the previous few months, and stated that he had been misquoted by the press. He is apparently so constituted, and his sense of proportion is such that he could not resist embellishing his remarks with a parting fling when he stated, "that if the nation would remove the causes of Quebec rest, that separatism would not be considered."

He utterly fails to realize that his remarks have always been broadcast throughout the continent, and given much more significance than they deserve. They are the remarks of a badly confused Quebec politician who is finding that the complexity of modern day economic conditions are such that temperamental, emotional, and educationally he finds himself unable to cope with them. He also heads one of the weakest governments that the Province has ever been afflicted with.

The antics and posturing of Rene Levesque and Daniel Johnson have done a greater disservice to the Province and nation than any other known factor.

We have always known what to expect from the minor separatist parties such as the RIN and others. Their policies have always catered to the more irresponsible, and fanatical minded of the population. But from Daniel Johnson, and the National Union Party something more rational, and statesmanlike has been expected. His policies have always been crudely anti-American and abusive, and yet now when he sees that American Capital investment is utterly vital to the Province he attempts with a fawning approach to nullify and deny his previous utterances and attitudes.

The time is not far distant when Quebec bonds enjoyed a number one rating on the American market, and when industry was locating in the Province in large numbers, and in preference even to the Province of Ontario, but those days are apparently gone forever. It will in all probability be fifty years or more before such priority will occur again. Both capital and industry have been leaving the province, and as a sign of the times we see the toll office of the Bell Telephone Company removed to Ottawa, with the statement that the head office will be removed to the same location during the next five years. This is just a forerunner of things to come unless a greater degree of rationality enters the thinking and actions of the Province.

It should be apparent to the thinking portion of the Province that these are not the times when a boy should be sent to do a man's job, and Premier Johnson should be relegated to the sphere of the small town lawyer from which he originally emerged to the great detriment of the Province and the nation, not to mention the ordinary citizen who is left holding the bag.

"PRO BONO PUBLICO"

Relaxed but thinking

Deposed Sukarno still shrewd

RUNG GUNUNG (AP)—A visitor to deposed President Sukarno of Indonesia can easily get the impression that not a worry clouds his skies.

Even so, it's obvious that underneath his relaxed exterior his mind is churning with the shrewdness that kept him in power for 22 years.

He prefers to talk about other things than politics.

"Is that a mini-skirt?" he asked this AP reporter's wife. She noted the hemline was just above the knees and therefore did not qualify.

Sukarno seemed disappointed. "I want my daughters to see a mini-skirt," he said.

He was lunching with his three attractive daughters and a 14-year-old son. Military guards were nearby to make sure face and arms were deeply Sukarno stayed under wraps, as he was ordered to do eight months ago when he was toppled by the military regime headed by Gen. Suharto.

Asked about government claims that he was seriously sick, Sukarno laughed, tapped his head and purred, "Some people even say I am thick."

His comment, whether intentional or not, was an indirect crack at Suharto, who stated after Sukarno's removal that he was sick, both physically and mentally.

APPEARS FIT

On the contrary, Sukarno looked exceptionally fit. Gone was the palace pallor that plagued him while in office. His face and arms were deeply tailed, reflecting the many hours he now spends walking in the gardens of his palace of exile in nearby Bogor.

When asked to comment on the present political scene he grimaced and then playfully elbowed the reporter in the chest. "You want me to throw you out of my house?" he growled.

Sukarno is forbidden to leave the area of his palace in Bogor, some 40 miles from Jakarta.

He still moves about considerably despite the close watch kept on him by Suharto's guards. That he would like to return to power is open knowledge. What he is doing about it remains unanswered.

One of the ways he has fun is to bargain with fruit hawkers who have no idea who he is.

LONDON — (TNS) — While the learned argument goes on the leaves of autumn drift over the grave of Peter Spackman: born New Zealand, June 11, 1947, died East Molesey, Surrey, Aug. 31, 1967.

The argument involves such disparate public figures as MP Tom Driberg, Beatle John Lennon and Black Power leader Michael De Freitas — members of a host who signed a full-page advertisement advocating the legal sale of marijuana — and Tory shadow minister Quintin Hogg, who has blasted the signatories and The Times for printing it.

And in a sense, the argument involves the crowd of teen-age girls who broke into tears on Monday in a London courtroom when Brian Jones, the third member of the Rolling Stones pop group to get into trouble over drugs, was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment.

A NOISE IN THE NIGHT

But for George Spackman father of Peter, the argument was resolved when:

"At 1 a.m. I heard a noise and went out. I thought it was a cat. I came back and looked into Peter's bedroom. He had his hand up by his mouth. I moved his hands to help him with his breathing. At 7:45 a.m. I went to wake him. He was in the same position. He was dead."

Peter Spackman was one of 1,400 registered drug addicts in Great Britain. When he was 18, he told his parents: "I will be dead by the time I am 20."

Dr. David Paul, deputy coroner of Surrey, reported at an inquest in Epsom the other day that there were 33 needle marks on Peter's thighs and four on an arm vein.

He had died from a massive injection of methyl amphetamine, one of the so-called "soft" drugs which are being taken at such an alarming rate that Britain — where addiction is not illegal — is planning stiffer legislation.

That legislation may be framed this year, George Spackman hopes so. He thinks those now campaigning for legalization of soft drugs like marijuana are "dangerous fools."

So does Dr. Philip Boyd who sees plenty of youthful addicts as head of the psychiatric adolescent unit at London's Middlesex Hospital. He has said: "If our junior teenagers were able to obtain hard liquor as they do these drugs we would be appalled."

So does Quintin Hogg who stirred delegates to his party's annual convention at Brighton recently by demanding that the government drop its permissive role and put some teeth in the law. Hogg is one of the country's ablest orators. But George Spackman said it better.

From the time his son took his first purple heart at 18 until he died, Spackman and his wife, Mary, learned that soft drugs can — contrary to hippie propaganda — lead inexorably to others.

Within a year, Peter was taking heroin, cocaine methedrine, LSD, purple hearts and, when nothing else was handy, asthma pills. At one stage his intake was 50 pills a day.

He spent six weeks in hospitals, five months in a detention centre and a month in jail.

The night of Aug. 16, 1966 was one of the worst. Peter was high on heroin when a mental health officer decided to commit him to a hospital.

Spackman said: "We tried something like nine hospitals. They were all full or not equipped to handle him. We finally had to transfer him to an ambulance. His withdrawal symptoms were getting too much for me to be able to drive him."

But the worst night was May 18, 1967. Spackman said: "I had a panic call from him in the middle of the night. He said he had overdosed. He had no idea where he was. I asked him to read the number in the telephone box and he couldn't because he had double vision. He could only make out something saying Marketing Board."

Spackman drove around until he found his son lying in the gutter near the Milk Marketing Board office in a neighboring town called Thames Ditton.

Spackman is bitter because his son was better supplied by the state as a registered drug addict and Britain has failed to provide more than a scattering of treatment centres.

After the inquest, he talked to anyone who would listen because he wanted to drive the lesson home.

The PRAYER
FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest. (Joshua 1:9).

PRAYER: O Lord, when we suffer failure in our lives, save us from discouragement. Help us to put our trust in Thee, for Thou wilt not cast us off. Lead us in calm confidence that Thou canst still use us and give us victory. In Jesus' name. Amen.

OTTAWA — (TNS) — Economic storm signals are flashing all over the place.

After Economic Council Chairman Arthur Smith's restraint-or-bush speech in Vancouver, budget-slashing Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp called on the provinces to hold down their spending and lending. Bank of Canada Governor Louis Rasminsky warned against the potential perils of "inflation psychosis", and Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher brooded over a growing prospect of higher taxes and a further devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

The essence of all these warnings is that unless we all stop insisting on taking more out of the economy than we are putting in, price-wage inflation will cripple our export trade, our money will buy less and less, and mass unemployment will creep in.

Is the general public getting the message?

I doubt it. For although the storm signals are flashing all around us, the storm itself is still some distance away and many people, seeing no menacing clouds above their own heads, tend to dismiss the warnings as a plot concocted by the "establishment" against their self-interests.

Why should anybody heed appeals for restraint when the economy is, as far as layman can judge, running in a higher gear than ever before?

Credibility gap

The outcome of the contrast between the merry jangle of cash registers and the apprehensive tone of the seemingly unwarranted warnings is to use the fashionable phrase, a "credibility gap" which prods people to pay no heed to the appeals for restraint.

Yet there are solid reasons for the official alarm.

While it is true that our economy is still doing remarkably well, it is beginning to show unmistakable confusion about costs, credit rates and money supply.

To the man in the street who measures his well-being by the purchasing power of the content of his pay envelope, this strange combination has no meaning. He may not even consider it strange. All he is concerned about is to keep his wage in line with, and preferably ahead of, the rising prices. His and his union's slogan is to get more and more while the going is good.

The investor reasons along parallel lines. While production costs and wages keep on chasing and pushing one another, he wants higher interest rates.

And so it goes, all along the line of perfectly understandable personal (or organized group) concern which seeks expression in money terms. The cumulative effect of it is what Mr. Rasminsky calls "inflation psychosis" which loses sight of what the economy as a whole can be reasonably expected to bear without going into a sudden tailspin.

The moment "inflation psychosis" sets in and combines with welfare state mentality, conditions of economic solvency and sanity become virtually impossible to maintain.

So when Mr. Rasminsky tells us that "it is a hard fact, and not a political or social judgment, that over a period of time what we can consume depends on what we can produce," the common sense of his reminder is lost in the scramble for more money and public services, regardless of whether the collective economic output can cover the demand.

Small businessmen understand

In small-sized private business, people still have no trouble understanding the simple fact that you cannot go on extracting from it more than you put in — in terms of capital, human effort and ingenuity — without ruining the enterprise.

But the moment the consideration becomes impersonal this basic rule of any sound economic endeavor is forgotten. Under the impact of welfare state philosophy we have come to take it for granted that a nation can, and indeed should, get more from its collective economic effort that it is willing to put in.

This fallacy is reflected in the steadily growing public demand for more and more services and welfare benefits from governments which, mindful of the next election, find it virtually impossible to resist pressures for more more than is economically feasible.

There is no reason why a mature and industrious people cannot have all the social services deemed necessary for individual and national well-being, provided that everybody understands the obligation of paying his just share of the total cost, and provided that the total cost does not start crippling economic growth.

Unfortunately, few people seem to realize that their demands have economic limits, which, if overstepped, cannot but harm the nation as a whole, as well as their own self-interests.

Much of the widespread misunderstanding stems from the popular but naive welfare state notion that social benefits can be had "free," that somehow governments possess a magic power of producing welfare rabbits out of election hats.

The fact is that all the services governments provide on public demand must be paid for from taxes. And if, for reasons of political expediency, a government oversteps the manageable limit of public spending and thereby sets in motion inflationary pressures, the only solution is deficit financing which, when it reaches a certain level, hampers the economic growth of the country.

Though the economy does not as yet show it in some easily recognizable way, we have already overstepped the manageable limit. That's what all the warnings and pleas for restraint are about.

The question is: Are we listening and trying to understand?

Ladies' Curling Club meets

The semi-annual dinner meeting of the Ladies' Sherbrooke Curling Club took place Friday evening, November 3, at the clubhouse, attended by a large number of the three sections, active, business and social members.

Grace was offered by Mrs. L. Thomson, immediate past president. The president, Mrs. James Strickland, after proposing the toast to the Queen, welcomed the guests and introduced the executive, committee heads and conveners.

Following an excellent dinner, reports of the various conveners were given. Mrs. D. Bourne, recording secretary, introduced the new active, business and social members, who stood for identification. She then gave the minutes of the annual meeting.

The detailed financial report, given by the treasurer, Mrs. G. Sylvestre, showed a satisfactory bank balance.

Mrs. H. A. Dale, match convener, presented her report, followed by an announcement that new curlers would receive instruction beginning Monday, November 6, of which, prospective curlers are asked to take advantage.

Reports were heard from Mrs. Rene Blouin, tea convener, and Miss Priscilla Tuite, president of the business girls.

Dates for the Ladies' bonspiel were noted as January 30, 31 and February 1. Convener for this event is Mrs. Doug Arnott.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know the proper way to wash and dry a double-sized crocheted bedspread. It is done in the Radiant Star pattern—RUBY.

DEAR POLLY—I no longer use my electric curling iron on my hair so I put it to use in the kitchen. Whenever anyone is taking a sandwich to school or work I put the sandwich on a piece of folded waxed paper, then use the hot curling iron to seal the other three sides together. The sandwich stays fresh until opened. This makes a bag that is certainly cheaper than those one buys.—BONNIE

When there are small children in the house, small appliances should be unplugged when not in use, even when one is at home. Do not leave them so the child could be tempted to slip the plug back into the outlet. Frayed cords are always a hazard and should be repaired as soon as possible. Of course, we would not unplug the television, refrigerator and radio every time we leave the house.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I think Mrs. K. A. R. should ignore the opinions of friends who warned her of the resulting dirt and go ahead with her ideas for an open fireplace. I had never been without one until we moved from New England to Florida, to enjoy our September years, and bought a cracker-box farmhouse in this glorious Southland. Since it had no fireplace, we lost no time in designing and having one built. To use it means companionship, warmth and it is a maker of dreams as we look into it and see the things we want to see. It spells family love. Yes, Mrs. K.A.R., have the fireplace, enjoy it and think of us transplanted New Englanders who never before had it so good.—MILDRED

DEAR POLLY—I have a mattress that is still good but it could stand a good cleaning. I would really appreciate it if someone could suggest a way to clean a mattress without it getting soaked.—MAE

Simple remedy to brighten up a dull bathroom

Do the Bathroom Blues bother you? Is your bathroom dull, uninteresting, monotone when it should be bright beautiful and one-of-a-kind? The simple remedy is a generous prescription of individuality combined with know-how and desire. And surprisingly little cash.

You can brighten up a dull bathroom by increasing the watt power of the light fixtures. Extremely simple — and very effective. Or add color via big, bold paper flowers which you can either make yourself or buy. ($2-$4 each but you need only two or three).

Small and colorful dried straw flowers (about $1 a bunch) in a vase or peacock feathers (about 40 cents each) can brighten up counters or shelves and add a delicate, feminine touch. You can personalize even the bathroom door (front AND back) with brightly bold art nouveau posters ($1 and up) or a huge, blow-up poster of YOU (about $5) or signs saying anything silly or groovy you want. The letters can be cut out from magazines so they will all be different and colorful.

Any bathroom will seem larger by the use of mirrors. A long mirror, or more than one will cut down morning competition if you share a bathroom with others. If you have any vacant walls in your bathroom, an effective, individual and lovely treatment is the use of many mirrors of all shapes and sizes hung at random all over the wall. These can be bought as mirrors, but it is often less expensive to frequent auctions and pick up old picture frames into which a mirror can be fitted.

Another individual wall treatment — and a handy one — is the use of a spicerack to hold all the odds of cosmetics we girls collect. Or put in a floor-to-ceiling rack with shelves placed at random to accommodate the biggest bathroom collection of towels or supplies or cosmetics.

Odd spaces can be dressed up with a hanging plant and plants can help the bare top of a toilet look prettier. Leave a few magazines or one of those hilarious Jokes for the John books in your bathroom for those times when they will be appreciated.

Shower curtains come in the brightest of colors and the gayest of patterns these days, so indulge your flair for decorating. Bright plastic rings will attach the curtain of your choice to the rod. For different and zingy bathroom drapes, buy thick terry cloth patterned towels, turn over and sew down one end, and fit it on an inexpensive expandable rod.

Any plain surface can be jazzed up by a covering of sticky-back decorating paper that you can find in any department or hardware store — the fronts of cupboards, waste baskets, tin cans to hold eye brushes and pencils, a cigar box to hold lipsticks and eye shadows. These are my suggestions.

Now I'd like to hear yours. Certainly many of the readers of this column have added individual touches to their bathrooms for a more feminine or exciting look. Please write in and let me know — the most interesting and original I will be happy to publish. Also coming up in the future for The Model You is a column on doing over bathrooms so I would also like to hear any suggestions on that topic. (TNS)

Scottish breakfast favorites gain popularity in Canada

Scones have always been a favorite breakfast or afternoon treat in Scotland and are fast becoming a Canadian favorite for breakfast. Local "Kaffee Klatch" clubs have discovered scones as an ideal accompaniment to coffee when neighbors drop in for their coffee break.

An ideal go-along-with, whether for breakfast, afternoon, coffee break or Sunday morning brunch is a spiced plum sauce. With an abundance of California plums on the market it is time to enjoy the delightful sauce. These plums are generally tart and juicy and add a particular taste treat to any dish, whether salad or dessert. You can choose from red, yellow or crimson now, and later from varieties, which are smaller, firmer in texture, milder and sweeter.

Regardless of which variety you choose the spiced plum sauce will become a hit with family and friends every time you serve it.

SCONES
3 cups sifted flour
3 tablespoons sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons shortening
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter

Sift dry ingredients together. Cut in shortening. Add milk and mix lightly. Roll out on floured board to 1/4 inch thickness. Cut into rounds. Spread half the rounds with butter and top with unbuttered round. Bake at 450 degrees F. for 15 minutes. Split scones open and cover both halves with spiced plum sauce.

SPICED PLUM SAUCE
1 lb. fresh plums
3/4 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon allspice
1 1/2 cups water

Cut plum in half; remove pits and slice. Combine sugar, cornstarch and spices. Gradually stir in water. Cook over medium heat until mixture begins to thicken. Add sliced plums, cover and simmer 10 minutes.

Win or lose, Shirley is fashion news

NEW YORK (AP)—Whether the adult version makes it to the U.S. Congress or not, the Shirley Temple of the mid-generation's memories already has won a place in American fashion.

Influential Franco-American designer Jacques Tiffau Thursday presented a crowded show-room of buyers a group of darling dolls with curly wigs and bows, and a dolly wardrobe of mini-clothes suitable for journeymen of any captain of a Good Ship Lollipop.

Sometimes saluting like the Little Colonel, and swinging their arms like wind-up toys, the moppets entered the show-room in twos wearing a spring collection that nevertheless betrayed their womanly maturity.

V-necked wool jerseys and heavy crepe dresses in bright pastels were cinched high under non-childlike bosoms by black plastic belts, or sashes, or they were belted lightly in back. Some dolls shielded their bare arms with wide, matching stoles.

BELLES JINGLE
Those belles that jingle jangle turned out to be Shirley Temple girls heeding the hippie's Indian mysticism. They were floating exotica in mini and maxi versions of Oriental printed silk and chiffon party dresses.

Those Indian bells on strings, as well as astrological signs and paper flowers, were the kind of inexpensive substitutes for jewelry that husbands would applaud.

Miss Dior goes to the masses

PARIS — (NEA) — "Miss Dior" was born and named just a few weeks ago.

Keeping pace with a rapidly changing scale of values, the House of Dior here, after 20 years of supremacy in high fashion, realized the importance of reaching a much wider audience.

Until now "Mrs. Everyone" could hardly aspire to own one Dior model. The price tag was probably higher than her dress budget for a year.

Even the Dior Boutique, opened several years ago, was one of the most expensive of its kind, with prices ranging from $150 to $500.

So Miss Dior was created and aimed at the woman with a modest budget and more dress sense than money. The new salon not only caters to the ye-ye group, the minettes, but also to their "elders"—30 and over.

All these 50 off-the-peg, with-it designs in dresses, coats and suits have that "little difference" that adds up to a lot.

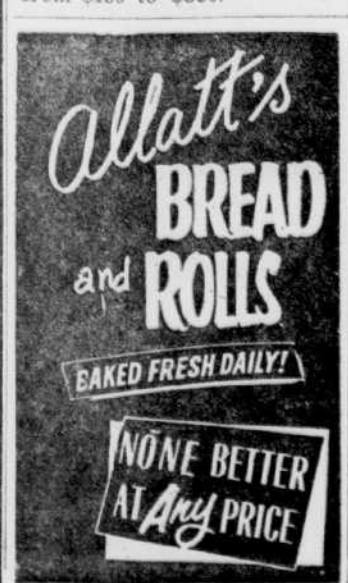

They were created by 32-year-old Philippe Guibourge, who for the last seven years was assistant to the top designer at Dior, Marc Bohan.

The clothes, of course, are made in less expensive fabrics than those that come from the House of Dior itself or the Dior Boutique. And the cut is less complicated. But they do capture the current Dior look. There are also little gold buttons reading "Miss Dior" on them which contribute to that wonderful "little difference."

Starting at $75 for a jersey dress and going to $150 for a long, embroidered evening dress, the shop has a wide range of prices in between those two.

The accessory department is there to capture the head-to-toe Dior look.

High, skinny black boots, black felt Al Capone hats, sheer black stockings, all are there at the fingertips, as are

THE QUEBEC SCENE

Protest Council use of English

AYLMER, Que. (CP) — Noisy demonstrators shouting "Vive le Quebec Libre" said "Aylmer, another Rhodesia" broke up the town council meeting here Monday night.

Police were ordered to clear the council chamber after a group of about 50 persons protested against use of the English language by one of the town's French-speaking councillors, Robert Martail.

Mr. Martail, trying to explain a notice of motion in English, was interrupted three times by clapping, stomping, coughing and cries of "en Francais."

After being herded from the chamber, the group continued to demonstrate in front of the building until dispersed by police. A number of the participants were identified as members of the separatist Rassemblement pour l'Independence nationale.

Back legal aid

MONTREAL (CP) — The head of the Quebec Bar Association Monday night threw his organization's full weight behind the concept of comprehensive free legal aid.

Quebec Baronier Francois Lajoie told the association's annual dinner that it is clear "the present system is becoming less and less adequate."

Deny obscenity

MONTREAL (CP) — Defence lawyers for nine young actors charged with obscenity said Monday they intend to call as witnesses a group of literary experts to judge the merit of Pierre Moretti's play Equation Pour Un Homme Actuel — Equation for a Man of Today — at Expo's Youth pavilion.

It was a scene from the play — renamed Absurd Erotomania — that led to the arrest of the actors after a performance Sept. 25 at Expo's Youth pavilion.

Council postpones decision on sewer system for housing area

A four-man delegation of building contractors with bundles of blueprints descended upon a city council meeting last night determined to fight for a sewer system in a proposed new housing area.

City council decided to postpone a decision and suggested the four men (Sam Fabi, Gary Longchamps, J. D. Breton and Rosaire Fournier), meet with the city engineer, Mr. Langlois, to study their request.

Mr. Fabi, who owns most of the land on the street concerned, Malouin Street, frequently jumped to his feet during the discussion and jabbed at the blueprints to emphasize his point.

Mr. Fabi said the street hasn't been opened yet, but since there are no sewers people are not buying the land to construct houses. He said that the four men could have built 15 houses since last spring if a sewer system had been installed.

Several aldermen replied that about two months ago the men were asked to build a minimum of 37 houses in a year if they expected to have a sewer system.

The men apparently could not say whether they could meet this minimum guarantee. After the contractors left the meeting, Ald. Gaston Roy suggested that perhaps 12 houses could be built during this winter and 25 next spring and summer. However this suggestion has yet to be made to the contractors.

The men also argued that the sewers were necessary on Malouin Street because a school is presently being constructed on Lachance, a nearby street.

Gary Longchamps said the school would cost approximately $358,000. But, Ald. Everett Nicol seemed to doubt that construction of the school had started since there was no sewer system nearby.

Mr. Langlois cast a dim light on the hopes of the four contractors when he explained that everything had been studied and that it would cost $227,000 to build a sewer system in the whole area, not just on Malouin Street.

Ald. Savard added that the city was reluctant to spend money on a sewer system because there had been no guarantee that a minimum number of houses would be built.

He also said the city's budget probably wouldn't warrant such an expenditure.

The latest hassle over truck tenders has ended with the city accepting a $4,754 tender for two station wagons from Brouillard Automobile Ltd., and a tender of $2,400 from N. V. Cloutier Inc., for one window van.

Towards the end of last night's council meeting Ald. Antonio Pinard expressed anger at a sports writer for the French language daily who had said it cost the Alouette baseball club about $30,000 to operate during the past season.

Last week city council agreed to give a $13,000 grant to the club to cover a deficit it had picked up over the season.

Ald. Pinard said that it had cost the club approximately $10,000 to operate during the past season.

The documents may also be consulted at the Bid Depository Office of the Eastern Townships Construction Association, 78 Peel Street, Sherbrooke.

CLOSING OF TENDERS: — 3:00 P.M. NOVEMBER 21, 1967, for this Hardware specialty of which tenders will be received by mail, at the Department of Public Works, Parliament Buildings, Quebec City. If brought by messenger, the envelopes should be handed to the Department of Public Works, 2700 Laurier Boulevard, St-Foy, Quebec, (Laurier Shopping Center, 3rd floor, West section).

GUARANTEES: — Tenders will have to be accompanied by a certified cheque or a bid bond to the order of the Minister of Finance for an amount at least equal to 10% of the tender price. When signing the contract, the guarantee shall be replaced by a performance bond and a labour, materials and services bond, each for 50% of the contract price.

THE DEPARTMENT does not bind itself to accept the lowest nor any tender.

advice on the matter before any action is decided.

Concerning the air pollution problem in Lennoxville, letters were sent to various factories and establishments and two answers were received.

The Union Screen Plate Co. Ltd. and the Philip Carey Co. Ltd. sent the council letters pledging their full co-operation in controlling their boilers to eliminate any possible air pollution caused at their respective factories.

It was decided last evening that if there is any digging within a reasonable distance of an underground Bell Telephone cable, the Bell would be notified to send a man to point out where the cable is buried.

This is to eliminate the danger of the town severing a cable and being responsible for the damages and the costs of repairs.

It was declared that the Bell offers 100 percent accuracy and service when they are called and it would also remove the responsibility of severing a cable from the town.

Mayor Dougherty suggested that the water which runs from the springs above the water system be tested and analyzed.

He said this is a steady six inch stream which was Lennoxville's original water supply and if the water proved potable, it could be pressed into service saving the town much money because a smaller pump could be used than the one presently in service.

It was voted that 250 watt mercury vapor lamps be installed on Warner Street.

Fire hydrants will also be installed on MacMurray Street, Upper Academy Street and two on Baker Street.

charge of driving with impaired faculties and was fined $100 and lost his licence for six months.

Remington pleaded guilty with explanations and when Judge Turmel asked him what his explanations were, Remington said he was driving to Montreal after having a drink in Sherbrooke and he decided to rest.

He said when he pulled his car over to the curb, he went into a ditch.

Prosecutor Steinman said that this was true — Remington was found in his car in a ditch.

directly responsible to the director. The Province of Quebec Fire Commission recommended a captain of administration. But, the report by Mr. Audet suggested a chief for the following reasons: first, 90 percent of the work done in a fire department concerns administration. Second, it is necessary to give orders to captains of the fire stations. Third, the work of the chief of administration would have more responsibility than that of the captains.

The fire captains are responsible to the director for all the activity of the fire department in their particular sector. One of their main jobs is to make inspection trips of the various commercial and industrial buildings in their sector.

In Memoriam
BROWN — In loving memory of my dear wife, who passed away November 7, 1963. Time takes away the edge of grief, but memory turns back every leaf. Always remembered by ERNEST BROWN (husband).

DOHERTY, Gilbert — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, who passed away on November 7, 1963. There is a smile we will always remember. A voice we will always recall. A memory to cherish forever. Of one so dear, to us all. Beautiful memories are wonderful things. They last through the longest day. They never wear out, they never get lost. And can never be given away. A little prayer keeps us in touch. With a wonderful father we loved so much. Always remembered and sadly missed by MURIEL (daughter), ALLEN (son-in-law), JANICE, PAULA, KAREN AND KEVIN (grandchildren).

DOHERTY — In loving memory of a dear husband, Gilbert Doherty, who passed away on November 7, 1963. This month comes with deep regrets. It brings back a day I will never forget. Deep in my heart the memory is kept. Of one I loved dearly and will never forget. Always remembered and sadly missed by MURIEL (daughter), ALLEN (son-in-law), JANICE, PAULA, KAREN AND KEVIN (grandchildren).

George Stanbury is relaxed about his future with Canada Life

"As a manufacturer's agent I have to judge the quality of the leisure and beach-wear, children's clothes and other types of merchandise we sell to many leading stores in Quebec. It takes careful planning to anticipate the needs of our clients and their customers."

"It takes careful planning also to anticipate future financial needs for your family and yourself. That is why I have found the advice of a Canada Life agent to be particularly helpful."

"In fact, insurance with this company is something of a tradition in our family. My son is a fourth-generation Canada Life policyholder."

"This Company has helped provide security for generations of many Quebec families and over the past one hundred and twenty years has invested their money to help the economy of Quebec."

BEAVERS SHOWING IMPROVEMENT
SHERBROOKE BEAVERS are beginning to look like a hockey club if we can use their last couple of games as a rule. They are gradually showing improvement and the big factor was the addition of Andre Gagnon in the nets.

SINCE GAGNON HAS joined the club he has certainly gave them more power and his playing has been a big factor in the Beavers' showing. He has the ability of a senior goalie and with his experience will be a great help for the Beavers.

AS FOR THE REST of the club things are beginning to look a little better. It takes time to get a line to function properly especially if the boys have never played together before. Each player has his own style and the coach must try and place him where he will pay the most dividends.

THE BEAVERS, in their last two games have looked and played as though they meant business. Their defense has been weak and young Luc Tremblay didn't get too much protection but since then they have added Jacques Lampron to go along with Andre Gagnon and these two seem to have given the club more fight.

THE TEAM HELD the Tigers of Victoriaville to a 3-3 deadlock and then Sunday evening they battled the fast-stepping Nationals on even terms for 56 minutes before they lost out 1-0. Sunday they had sufficient chances to win two games but around the nets they didn't look too good. They made too many mistakes, especially with their poor passing. Coach Roy realized this and no doubt he will have his charges working and trying to straighten them out.

PIERRE LEPAGE HAS returned and he should once he gets in better shape, help. Last year he was one of the better centres on the club and was a good play maker. He is still limping from his accident and he tells me his toes are a little sore but with a week or so he figures he will be back to normal.

THE BEAVERS MOVE to Drummondville Thursday to take on the Eagles and this could be a big game. So far this year the Beavers haven't fared too well against the Cline squad and they will have to be at their best if they wish to topple them out of first place.

THE CLUB IS still hunting for reinforcements and maybe they will come up with a couple. We understand that Jeff Burga has his transfer and Coach Roy may use him Thursday. The Beavers won't be back at home until Thursday, Nov. 16, when they meet the Eagles.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE one season can make with a club, especially if the team is at a university. Last year Bruce Coulter's Gaitsers ran away with honors in the football section coping the championship but graduation certainly split the ranks.

THE GAITSERS HAD trouble all year with injuries and new players but maybe Coach Coulter will have a good squad next year. It was a bad one for the purple and white but here's hoping they have better luck with their hockey squad.

MONTREAL ALQUETTES finished the season in the same manner in which they opened, errors and fumbles. I wonder if Ted Workman will bring in another coach for the coming season.

IT IS A SHAME but what can you expect. Each time he hires a new coach it is a case of rebuilding all over. The Als have been doing this now for several years. The new pilot can't get off the ground before he gets the hoist. It takes a few years to build a good club and it can't be done in a year or so.

COACH DALTON has a good bunch of players but they lack the experience to cope with the Rough Riders and Tiacs but maybe in a few years they will settle down. When a team is losing the coach tries everything to try and improve the club until he gets what he wants. This takes time and the sooner Ted Workman realizes this the better off the Als will be.

RACING AT THE LOCAL OVAL seems to be holding its own and with the addition of several outside horses a lot more interest has suddenly been created. This is very well but the executive shouldn't overlook the owners who have been helping all season by staying here while others have roamed around.

THIS SEEMS TO BE the big fault just at present. The outsiders are getting more consideration than those who have helped the track all summer and this just shouldn't be the case. Here's hoping the track realizes their mistake and straightens it out as soon as possible or they may find themselves short a lot of horses one day.

MONTREAL CANADIENS got a jolt on the weekend when the Flyers of Philadelphia walked into the Forum and dealt them a humiliating 4-1 defeat. This certainly must have made Coach Blake chew his gum a little faster, if that could be done.

THAN TO ADD MORE insult to it the Flyers held them to a 1-1 tie Sunday. This must have made Blake's ulcers jump a little more. But all fooling aside it is hard to understand what is wrong with the Habs. They have the same players who ran over the opposition last year but so far a lot of the boys have failed to look like the team of last year. So don't be surprised if some changes are made shortly. Knowing Toe and Sam Pollock I am sure they will come up with something as they aren't in the habit of letting things go.

Snowflakes fall as men prepare to lay new sod for Grey Cup, Rough Riders meet Argos Saturday

OTTAWA (CP) — A few snowflakes fell Monday as workmen began laying new sod on the Lansdowne Park football field.

Shivering fans at the same time waited to get their first chance at tickets for the Dec. 2 Grey Cup game. But Ed Friel, head grounds keeper at the city-owned field, was worrying more about this Sunday's Eastern Football Conference semi-final than the December CFL final to be played here.

"The field shouldn't be too bad if we get some decent weather this week," he said as a small tractor pulled a roller over the first section of new sod.

"But when you do anything to a field this late in the year you have to depend on luck."

THIRD SODDING

Friel expects the sodding operation—third this season for the field—to be completed tonight. This will leave only four days before Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders meet in the EFC sudden-death playoff to determine which team meets Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the two-game, total-point Eastern final. Monday, the new sod looked ragged and lumpy as it was placed, but improved after rolling.

To Ottawa players used to a mixture of mud and loose sand in their last three home games, the still-green grass may have looked like a well-manicured lawn.

"It'll be a big improvement over that sand," said Billy Cline, the defensive half and punter who is Ottawa's backup quarterback.

After the semi-final, the entire playing surface will be covered by a clear plastic tarpaulin. Warm air will be blown under the covering to keep the field dry and unfrozen.

He's the one — With blood streaming down his nose and face, Boston Bruins Bobby Orr, right, points finger at Toronto's Brian Conacher, left, as Orr presses in to continue fight that was triggered when Orr was cut in a collision with Conacher in the second period of their game at Boston Garden. Linesmen wait as Orr tries to keep them apart. Conacher's shirt is splashed with blood from the close quarters fistfights between the two. (AP Wirephoto).

League turns down request from Granby

One game is on tap this evening in the Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League with Drummondville Eagles moving into Granby to take on the Vics.

This is the fourth meeting so far between these clubs and the Eagles eked out 3-2 and 7-6 decisions after close battles but dropped the other one 3-1 on their home ice. The Cline squad will be seeking their seventh straight victory tonight but may run into a little trouble.

Coach Jean-Guy Charbonneau will have his players up for tonight's tiff and the Eagles can expect plenty of opposition. Coach Cline, on the other hand, expects a tough fight but he figures his crew can pull through with the decision.

VIC'S REQUEST TURNED DOWN

At a special meeting of the league held last evening at the Sports Palace the executive of the league turned down a request from Granby.

Gaston Fausse, general manager of the Vics, had asked for a meeting to seek permission to lineup Andre Dubuc, who played with the Los Angeles Blades of the Western Hockey League last year.

After a lengthy discussion representatives of the teams voted against breaking the constitution to allow the extra to join the Vics. Manager Fausse stated, following the meeting, that he wasn't sure what the executive of the Vics would do and there could be a possibility that the team would surrender their franchise.

Russians and Czechs can play it rough, says Aggie Kukulowicz after watching game in Moscow

WINNIPEG (CP) — Former National Hockey League player Aggie Kukulowicz saw the Czech-Russian hockey game in Moscow this year and was astonished "the way the two teams played, kicked and charged one another."

"It really opened my eyes. I'd never seen anything like it before. But the fans loved it," said Kukulowicz, now a Moscow-based station manager for Air Canada. "Don't let anyone tell you the Russians and Czechs can't play it rough. I know they can."

Kukulowicz, who played for Chicago Black Hawks and most recently with Winnipeg Maroons, was here for a short visit and business trip. In an interview, he gave his impressions of Russian life, with the emphasis on the well-known-to-him sport of hockey.

Kukulowicz, transferred to Moscow from Winnipeg in May, said he was welcomed with open arms by the hockey fraternity in the Russian capital.

Roger Crozier decides to quit "pure torture" for serenity of his own home

Pressure of playing in the National Hockey League claimed a second victim in less than a week Monday when Roger Crozier, the pint-sized Detroit goal tender, decided to quit hockey.

Demoted to Fort Worth of the Central Professional League earlier in the day after allowing 18 goals in the Red Wings last three games, Crozier told Detroit management he and his wife had decided Sunday night to return to their Bracebridge, Ont., home.

Last Thursday morning, just before their train left for Detroit, Toronto Maple Leafs lost the services of their leading scorer when Frank Mahovlich left the team's sleeping coach and was admitted to Toronto General Hospital suffering from fatigue and tension, technical terms for a nervous breakdown.

The Big M will be lost to the Toronto club for two to eight weeks. Crozier's departure appears permanent although club officials hope he will reconsider.

As with Mahovlich, Crozier's problems appear to be his nerves. The 150 pound, 25-year-old told general manager Sid Abel he "had lost his confidence."

"He might have been near a nervous breakdown and rather than get to that stage he decided to hang it up," Abel said Monday.

"I don't believe he has seen a doctor. I actually think he will reconsider—but he said 'don't try and talk me out of it.'"

Abel earlier in the day had recalled goalie Roy Edwards and his second in three years.

After a miserable 18-goal season last year, Mahovlich has been the team leader so far this season and played his best game in the 1965-66 Stanley Cup final.

He almost died of pancreatitis during the summer of 1966. He returned to the Detroit nets in the fall to have his most dismal NHL season with a 3.35 goal-against average.

Mahovlich's breakdown is his second in three years.

Big Gordie Howe picks up five points to move into tie with Hawks' Bobby Hull

MONTREAL (CP) — Big Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings doesn't let the fact his club is doing badly spoil his individual play.

The Wings ran into a road block in their three games last week as they were unable to pick up a point with three straight losses. They were outscored 18-9 and two of their setbacks were at the hands of teams from the National Hockey League's expansion division.

Howe, the player who has been in the NHL longer than anyone in history, demonstrated again why at age 39, he is one of hockey's hottest properties.

Despite the Wings' poor showing, he managed to pick up four goals and one assist. This total moved him into a tie with Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks in the NHL's individual scoring race.

Howe, who has won the scoring championship a record six times in his previous 21 seasons, is ahead of his goal-scoring pace of last season when he scored goal No. 10 in Detroit's 33rd game.

So far this season he has 10 goals in 12 games and six assists for a total of 16 points.

HULL SCORES 11

Hull's 16-point total is a result of his goal-a-game clip of 11 and five assists.

Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens stayed within reach of the leaders by virtue of his seven goals and seven assists for 14 points.

Six players are grouped behind Cournoyer with 13 points. They are Andy Bathgate of Boston Bruins, Fred Stanfield and John McKenzie of Boston Bruins, Dave Keon of Toronto Maple Leafs, and veteran Detroit captain Alex Delvecchio.

Another veteran, captain George Armstrong of Toronto, picked up seven points last week including three goals to raise his personal total to five.

Accuracy more important than distance, says Gary Player as players prepare for World Cup

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Long ball hitters won't have much of an advantage Thursday when play opens in the 72-hole World Cup golf tournament at the Club de Golf Mexico.

"This is a very narrow course," said Gary Player of South Africa. "Accuracy will be more important than distance."

Martin Roessink of Holland, one of professional golf's longest hitters, was inclined to agree.

"The fairways are very narrow and it'll be easy to get in trouble," he said. "The ball carries farther at this altitude so even people who normally aren't long off the tee will be getting more distance than they would at sea level."

"But accuracy will be the most important thing."

Eighty golfers from 40 countries tee off Thursday morning in two-man teams to play for national prestige and personal honor in the 15th running of what used to be called the Canada Cup. The United States' Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer are favored to repeat the team championship they won last year in Tokyo.

Canada will be represented by George Knudson, the Winnipeg native now playing out of Toronto to who won the individual honors at last year's tournament—then called the Canada Cup, and Al Balding of Toronto.

The park-like Club de Golf Mexico, site of the 1958 tournament, has been stretched to 7,250 yards to make the longest course ever used in the tournament.

Player, 1955 winner of the International Trophy signifying the individual championship, was pleased with the layout after 27 practice holes.

"It's a beautiful course, perhaps the most beautiful the tournament has ever been played on," he said. "But it is difficult. There are a lot of traps and I doubt that the long hitters will open up because the fairways are so narrow."

About half the 40 teams got in practice rounds Monday. The rest were due in Mexico City tonight in time for a dinner at the club.

It still was not certain that Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, a former team and individual winner, would appear. He was reported ill in Buenos Aires.

The Doctor Says

AGE IS NOT A FACTOR IN BLEEDING PEPTIC ULCER

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT M.D.

Q — How serious is peptic ulcer? Will it cause stomach cancer?

A — Peptic ulcer is not to be taken lightly, because of two complications that may occur in persons whose ulcers are causing little or no distress. An ulcer may erode the wall of the stomach or duodenum to the point of perforation. This allows the stomach contents to escape into the abdominal cavity and set up a severe peritonitis. The ulcer may also erode a blood vessel and cause a severe hemorrhage.

An ulcer in the duodenum (just beyond the outlet of the stomach) will not become cancerous but an ulcer in the stomach itself may. For this reason most surgeons prefer to remove true stomach ulcers.

Q — Is age a factor in the cause of bleeding peptic ulcers? Can they be cured?

A — Factors that lead to bleeding include chronic alcoholism, severe emotional stress, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries and excessive use of aspirin, cortisone, phenylbutazone and similar drugs. Age is not a factor except as it contributes to hardening of the arteries.

Some surgeons treat this type of hemorrhage by freezing the stomach. Others prefer to promote rest by giving sedatives and not allowing the victim to get out of bed. Transfusions are usually needed. If these measures do not control the bleeding, the abdomen must be opened, the source of the bleeding located and the ulcer removed.

Q — What diet should I take for a duodenal ulcer? What other treatment is necessary?

A — During the acute phase a bland diet of milk or gelatin every two hours between meals during the day, plus antacids, will get the healing off to a good start. A wide variety of diets have been used successfully for the later stages of treatment. The main thing is to avoid highly spiced foods, bran or whole wheat, raw vegetables and raw fruit.

Q — About two hours after my evening meal I get a gnawing distress in my stomach and an urge to eat. Could this be caused by an ulcer?

A — This type of history is typical of a peptic ulcer but a test of the acidity of your gastric juice and X-ray studies should be done to confirm the diagnosis.

Bible Society executive named at North Hatley

NORTH HATLEY — A business meeting of the Canadian Bible Society was held in the Community Hall on Nov. 1. Rev. N. D. Pilcher, Montreal, District Secretary, conducted the first meeting of the branch has held in eight years. He read the scripture lesson, from St. Mark's Gospel, and led in prayer. The secretary, Mrs. G. E. Bennett, read the minutes of the last meeting, held in 1959, which were approved.

A discussion followed, conducted by Mr. Pilcher, regarding officers for the local branch. An executive body was named: Rev. D. H. Buxton of the Anglican Church; Rev. A. J. G. Steeves, Baptist; Rev. J. Brooks, United Church; the presidents of the three women's organizations, Mrs. Richard Spriggs, Mrs. Orin Gardner, Mrs. R. E. Allworth; and two representatives from the Minton United Church, Kenneth MacRae and Allan MacRae, with Mrs. G. E. Bennett as secretary.

Mr. Pilcher showed a motion picture in beautiful color, dealing with the work of the Bible Society in Africa, stressing in particular how the responsibility for the distribution of the scriptures has been assumed more and more by the local people.

At the conclusion of the film, the meeting was dismissed with prayer.

ABERCORN — Miss Doreen Meacoe spent several days with friends in St. Lambert and attended Expo.

Miss Kynda Wighton canvassed for the Canadian Bible Society.

Mr. A. McGrath, Haysville, Conn., was a weekend guest of his cousin, Mr. Donald McGrath.
