

BLIND WAR VET FINDS FREEDOM — WITH 'EYES'

Emile Vermette and his new-found friend, Toby, leave their home in Cookshire to take a walk.

By ALISON HOGAN

COOKSHIRE — Emile Vermette and Toby met for the first time just over a month ago, and they're now constant companions, but Vermette's wife Laura isn't jealous — the golden retriever has meant new-found freedom for her blind husband.

Vermette, 75 this week, started losing his sight 30 years ago as a result of three harsh years in a German prisoner-of-war camp. Captured with other Montreal Fusiliers taking part in the first landing of Canadians at Dieppe in the Second World War, Vermette and another soldier managed to escape the cattle truck the prisoners were packed into and made their way to the Spanish frontier. Vermette was recaptured and spent a miserable time being moved from prison to prison for three years.

"I was handcuffed for fourteen months," he said. "My weight went down to 90 pounds from 170."

Undaunted, Vermette got tired of not understanding what his captors were saying so he managed to get a dictionary from the Red Cross and taught himself German. The spirit which never let Vermette be defeated in the war helped him to fight the loss of his sight, and he was delighted when the Canadian Institute for the Blind in Sherbrooke, informed him in July that he had been nominated by the Weedon Lions Club to go to the Leader Dogs for the Blind Centre, Rochester, Michigan.

Vermette was the oldest of the group of 25 on the four-week intensive course.

"It was very tiring," he said. "We got up every morning at 6 a.m." The first few days were spent at the training centre and then the group were taken by bus to the

Marion jury pick continues

MONTREAL (CP) — Seven of the 12 jurors necessary to try Jeanne and Claude Valence in connection with the kidnapping of Charles Marion were chosen Tuesday before Quebec Superior Court Justice Marc Beauregard.

The couple is charged with conspiracy, kidnapping, forcible detention and two counts of extortion in connection with the Marion affair. Claude Valence, 43, was in the prisoner's docket, while his 42-year-old wife sat in the audience as jury members were chosen.

By the end of the afternoon session, 44 prospective jury members had been dealt with— either eliminated, asked to wait for questioning or selected.

Earlier Tuesday, Mr. Justice Beauregard clarified instructions to reporters that had effectively muzzled coverage of proceedings when they started Monday.

The judge had told reporters he adopted "as his own" a severe ban on publication ordered during the preliminary hearing in Sherbrooke of five people charged in connection with the Marion kidnapping.

He then said that only the facts that the Valences appeared in court and lawyers argued points of law would be acceptable publicity.

Tuesday, after reporters persuaded defence lawyers to request further clarification, Mr. Justice Beauregard said the five charges against the Valences, the couple's plea of not guilty, and that the case involved the "Marion affair," could be included in news reports.

He said it was uppermost in his mind to ensure prospective jurors would not be influenced by news reports of the preliminary steps in the trial, but he added he did not want to unnecessarily deny information to the public. Jury selection continues today.

Premier vows early release of options

QUEBEC (CP) — The basics of the sovereignty-association option to be presented to Quebec voters in a referendum as early as next fall will be unveiled either today or Thursday in the national assembly.

Premier Rene Levesque made a commitment Tuesday to explain the essential elements of the Parti Quebecois constitutional position in response to a question from Gerard D. Levesque, parliamentary leader of the opposition Liberals.

The opposition leader has been asking what kind of new deal the PQ will offer Quebecers in the referendum since his party was dislodged from power two years ago.

The premier repeated that the position he will present to the assembly will conform with the tenets of the Parti Quebecois program, calling for political sovereignty for Quebec in tandem with an economic association, preserving existing links with Canada.

He said that documents analysing the advantages and disadvantages of Confederation for Quebec will be released before the end of the year.

ASSEMBLY SHUFFLE
The proceedings were televised for the first time and the coming of television saw the advent of the assembly shuffle— Quebec's version of the commons shuffle, the practice in the House of Commons of filling in empty seats within camera range of a member making a speech. Maurice Bellemare (UN—Johnson) noted that members had taken extra care for their appearance now that the assembly was being televised.

"There are no more checked shirts and jeans anywhere," Bellemare said. A new member took his place in the assembly at the start of the sitting.

Reed Scowen, who held the mainly English-speaking Montreal riding of Notre Dame de Grace for the Liberals in a byelection, took his place on the opposition backbenches.

He won his seat in a July 5 vote made necessary by the resignation of Bryce Mackasey.

Mackasey's resignation, shortly after a Liberal convention where Claude Ryan was selected party leader, raised speculation that Ryan would take advantage of the opening to get into the assembly.

However Ryan chose not to run, preferring to remain outside the assembly to reorganize the party structure.

ROLL 'EM — ASSEMBLY'S IN SESSION

QUEBEC (CP) — Under the glare of television lights, the 110 members of the national assembly resumed their work Tuesday after a three-month summer recess.

For the first time, TV cameras filmed the daily deliberations of the assembly, carried live by 45 cable-TV systems across the province.

Familiar topics resurfaced at the daily question period, as the opposition asked questions about sovereignty-association, construction regulations and continued attempts by Quebec to attract more investments.

In ecumenical spirit, the session began with a minute's silence in memory of the two recently-deceased popes and ended with a message of congratulation to the province's Jewish community on the occasion of Rosh Hashanah.

The only thing politically new were accusations by the Liberals that the wife of the man responsible for overseeing political party financing was actively working for the Parti Quebecois in a Montreal riding.

Plans, not money, stalled Big O, Velo

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau says work did not begin on Olympic facilities before 1973 because plans were not ready, apparently contradicting his repeated assertion earlier that the reason was a lack of funds. Drapeau's statement Tuesday came near the end of his third day of testimony before a provincial inquiry into the $1.27-billion cost of the 1976 Games. Commission counsel Jacques Dagenais spent most of the day questioning Drapeau as to why so little progress was made between May, 1970, when the Games were awarded to Montreal, and May, 1973, when the first consulting firms were hired to draw up engineering plans. Drapeau had maintained that the reason for this delay was that federal legislation establishing Olympic self-financing programs was not passed until 1973. But near the end of Tuesday's hearing, Dagenais produced a document indicating that work could not have begun before 1973 because French architect Roger Taillibert changed his designs for the main facilities in the year after they were shown at a news conference in April, 1972.

"Is it true engineers were not hired because there were no plans?" Dagenais asked. Drapeau, who said he had never seen the document before, replied, "Yes."

The document was a paper presented in 1976 to an international architectural convention by two of Taillibert's assistants, engineer Kazimierz Flaga and Stanislaw Bogorria, who described himself as an architect-engineer.

In the paper, they described how changes were made to the designs of the 70,000-seat Olympic Stadium and the 7,200-seat cycling Velodrome in the year after the Taillibert designs were made public in a scale model and film shown to journalists in 1972.

The stadium, which has a spherical shape, originally had the outer edges near ground level while Taillibert's revised version has the outer edges elevated 26 metres above the ground. The original velodrome had no roof on it while the revised version had a roof.

The city originally estimated it could build a velodrome for $7.5 million, but costs climbed to $74.5 million for the final version of the velodrome with its 41,000-ton curved roof.

PQ disrupts referendum meet

ST. JEAN, Que. (CP) — It was the first public meeting of the pre-referendum committee, the umbrella organization grouping pro-federalist associations. But to the annoyance of some, Parti Quebecois supporters were first at the micro-phones Tuesday night. "Vive le Quebec libre!" shouted one man who said he was a member of the independence movement since its founding hours. "It's time for the rest of Canada to put up or shut up," he added, still screaming, as some members of the audience groaned and others tried to shout him down. Premier Rene Levesque has said the independence referendum will be held after the next federal election. The pre-referendum committee includes the Quebec Canada movement, Decision Canada, the Positive Action Committee and the Council for Canadian Unity—all profederalist groups—as well as federal and provincial political parties. SCHEDULES MEETINGS Decision Canada has scheduled 47 public meetings across the province between now and next March at which local personalities will speak.

Included among Tuesday's guest speakers were Solange Chaput-Rolland, Quebec writer and broadcaster and member of the Task Force on Canadian Unity; Davidson Dunton, former CBC president and co-chairman of the federal bilingualism and biculturalism commission in the late 1960s; and Col. Pierre Sevigny, former cabinet minister in the Diefenbaker government.

Col. Sevigny drew the ire of one young male audience member when he predicted civil unrest worse than that of the 1970 October crisis unless Quebecers and Canadians in other provinces come to terms with national unity problems.

A young man said Quebecers will never stay in Canada under threat of the army moving in.

CRASH PROVED TIRES DEFECTIVE

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Air Canada took all its Klieber DC-9 tires out of service following the June 26 crash of one of its jets at Toronto International Airport, an Air Canada engineer told a coroner's jury Tuesday.

James Riddoch testified that tests of the tires, conducted in the United States after the plane crash, showed that there was a defect.

He said a third of the 50 tires tested were found to be defective. The tires were made in France by Kleber-Colombes Co.

Riddoch said there was a defect in the original part of the tire that lost its tread during the take-off of the DC-9 jet which crashed in Toronto. However, he said the retread on the plane's tire was not defective when Air Canada bought the tire in 1976.

Riddoch said that before the tests were conducted, about a third of all tires used on Air Canada's DC-9s were made by the French company.

In other testimony at the inquest Tuesday, Captain Reginald Stewart said the runway from which his plane skidded and crashed last June was disastrous.

Stewart, his voice shaking, criticized the 2,945-metre runway which terminates 124 metres from an 18.5-metre ravine.

Two persons were killed in the June 26 crash and 105 other passengers were injured when the two-engine jet aircraft slid off the end of the runway and plunged into the ravine, breaking into three pieces.

Stewart said it was disastrous for the runway to have less than 124 metres over-run.

John Painter, an expert on aerodynamic performance for MacDonnell Douglas Corp., builders of the aircraft, testified that the fully-loaded plane would have needed an additional 16 metres to stop in the damp conditions.

Earlier, the inquest was told that Stewart had not received training in the specific emergency procedures required when the undercarriage warning light of a DC-9 flashes on.

Testimony revealed that the tread of a tire tore away during take-off and knocked an undercarriage switch which flashed a warning light in the cockpit.

Part of the tread also bounced off the plane's wing before being sucked into the right engine, causing a loss of power.

Tom Thususka, Air Canada's chief pilot for DC-9s in the Toronto area, testified that no training for emergency reaction to the warning light has been given to any of the 216 DC-9 pilots.

Melon travelled to CNE from Arkansas

TORONTO (CP) — Pod Rogers, the Arkansas watermelon man, escorted a 135-pound melon to the Canadian National Exhibition's 100th birthday celebrations this summer.

As Bob Wimberley, advertising dynamo behind the southern state's energetic role in the CNE Centennial, put it: "Heck, no roomful of us publicists could have dreamed up Pod Rogers. He's an original. He invented himself."

Rogers invented himself in Hope, a small city in southern Arkansas, where he is circulation chief of the daily newspaper, The Hope Star; chairman of the annual Watermelon Festival; and a self-appointed melonovoy of fun and friendship. Watermelons came originally from Africa, desert fruits that flourish in the long, hot growing season of the U.S. South. Although they've long since been replaced as the prime crop around Hope, melons still are grown. And the city still claims history's largest watermelon: a 195-pounder shipped in 1935 to film star Dick Powell, an Arkansas native.

That's a long time for a claim to last, and it's a disputed boast to boot with a North Carolina man seeking recognition for a 197-pounder.

Rogers, however, dismissed the Carolina claim as not properly verified and

Life for the standard watermelon is dull, but things are more glamorous for the hybrids known as Hope specials. Pampered to more than 100 pounds, they become the VIPs (Very Important Produce) of the melon world, such as the one Rogers sent to baseball commentator Dizzy Dean in 1955.

It was his first watermelon stunt, and the play it got live on television taught Rogers a lesson.

"If you are going to publicize," he said, "you've got to get it big... on national television and the wire services."

Quebec's new staircase...

Funicular ride competes

QUEBEC (CP) — A newly-built staircase is businessman Jean-Guy Armstrong's biggest competitor.

Armstrong is president and owner of Le Funiculaire du Vieux Quebec Inc., which runs one of the few funicular elevators in Canada.

The funicular carries 400,000 passengers a year 200 feet up the side of the cliff that separates Quebec City's Lower Town from Dufferin Terrace.

The ride takes a minute, costs 50 cents and gives a spectacular view of the St. Lawrence River, the port of Quebec and the city of Levis across the river.

Armstrong has just invested $600,000 in building a completely new funicular, including two $60,000 glass and steel cabins which go up and down the 44-degree slope 16 hours a day.

The modern cabins, which carry 15 passengers each, are a long way from the original steam-powered funicular installed in 1879 by William Griffith, which ran only six months a year.

The new system replaces a rickety elevator which rumbled up the hill inside a galvanized steel shaft, considered by many an eyesore on the city's skyline.

Meanwhile, the city, with aid from Parks Canada, has built a new staircase nearby which eases the climb for athletic visitors who don't mind a bit of exercise.

Armstrong doesn't seem bothered by the competition. He estimates 40 per cent more passengers take the ride uphill than down.

"It's a lot harder to climb up a hill than go down it," he says.

About 60 per cent of his clients are tourists, headed to historic Place Royale from Upper Town, but there are local residents who are regular customers, including many commuters from the Levis ferry

Rail unions bargain

MONTREAL (CP) — Union leaders for 95,000 rail workers presented 1979 contract proposals to the major railways Monday, officially kicking off the country's largest round of collective bargaining.

Wage increases are the main issue in the talks, which start in earnest at the end of October. The present one-year contract expires Dec. 31.

While precise money demands won't be made until mid-November at the earliest, senior union officials are hinting at a 12-per cent increase as a minimum.

The 16 rail unions want to resurrect the Hall formula, drafted by Mr. Justice Emmett Hall in 1973 to provide a permanent method for calculating wage increases in the industry.

The Hall formula takes into account inflation, productivity and the historical wage differentials of rail workers and employees in other industries.

By resurrecting the formula, the unions are virtually guaranteeing that wage demands will be well above 10 per cent, assuming inflation continues at the present nine per cent.

The Associated Non-operating Railway Unions, representing 56,000 workers in six unions, also says its 1979 increases will have to compensate for the cost-of-living increase during 1977 and 1978 in the amount not provided for during the period of wage controls.

MIGHT BACK TWO

The unions are committed officially to another one-year contract, but their negotiators say they will consider reasonable two-year offers from Canadian National and CP Rail, who also bargain for 11 smaller companies.

Other major items for the non-operating unions include a cost-of-living clause to protect 1979 wage increases, improved pension benefits as well as better job security and layoff benefits.

For the first time in several years, the 16 unions have dissolved their joint bargaining coalition—the Associated Railway Unions—and will be negotiating in four distinct groups: The non-ops, the shop craft group with eight unions representing 21,000 workers, the United Transportation Union (UTU) with 16,000 trainmen and the 5,000-member Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers (BLE).

The non-ops include express, office staff, ticket agents—all people who don't directly run or service trains. The shop-craft workers maintain the trains while UTU and BLE members run them.

Each group is submitting its own demands, which do not vary widely.

YOU NAME IT... THEY RENT IT

TORONTO (CP) — Name it. These companies rent everything from teacups to tractors.

All members of the Rental Association of Canada, which is holding its annual meeting here this week, say their products are fit for a queen or a ditch digger.

For example, one Toronto member says it has a $60,000-inventory of Rosenthal fine china—3,200 place settings—enough to serve a large royal entourage.

Peter Manahan of Halifax, newly-elected president of the association, estimated Monday the group will gross at least $300 million this year, "and we're looking for a growth of about 20 per cent over the next 12 months."

As examples of available equipment, Manahan said a $9,000-gasoline compressor would rent for about $50 a day, a $850-popcorn machine for $25 a night and a $12,500-trenching machine for $125 a day.

But customers are sometimes a little rough on equipment, he said.

"A lawn mower used as a rental for one year gets the same amount of wear and tear that your own mower at home would get in about eight years. We usually have to replace our entire inventory of mowers every year.

Theft is another problem.

"In Vancouver recently, two guys stole a truck and within an hour disappeared with $10,000 worth of air compressors which they had rented from several different companies using phoney identification," Manahan said.

Agriculture note...

Farm succession

The Quebec Department of Agriculture is implementing a programme, the three main aims of which are to ensure the preparation of farm succession, help future farmers plan their establishment and promote the training of future leaders.

The Farm Succession Service and the Department's regional offices are in charge of implementing this programme. There is a farm succession counsellor working out of each regional office.

Guy Blanchet, Director of the Farm Succession Service, lists the following ways of reaching the specific aims:

1 — Farm training sessions which allow for a wide-spread education on farming methods, management, financial administration of a farm, etc., according to needs.

2 — Visits and encounter-exchanges. These consist of one-day visits or tours of a few days, in centres of agricultural interest, specialized farms, research, education or service centres, laboratories, processing plants, etc.

3 — "Establishment File" sessions, the purpose of which is to help future farmers prepare their establishment files.

4 — "Personal Establishment File" Competition (prizes offered) is designed to encourage prospective farmers to prepare their own establishment file.

5 — Practical projects of agricultural experimentation are aimed at future farmers carrying out various practical experiments on production, administration, marketing, and social and economic life.

6 — Group Farm Study (prizes offered) which introduces the future farmer to all aspects of a farming enterprise in this area.

7 — Leadership Sessions intended for those in charge of groups of future farmers and for farm project leaders.

8 — Travel and Exchanges outside Quebec, in the Canadian West, Europe, Australia, or New Zealand.

9 — Provincial Farm Succession Days to benefit young farm leaders.

10 — Agro-Youth Competition (prizes offered) organized by the Rural Youth Clubs, 4-H Clubs and Young Naturalists' Clubs in co-operation with the Department, for young people 10 to 18 years of age.

Further details on this program may be obtained from the Farm Succession Service, 200A, Chemin Sainte-Foy, 9th Floor, Quebec, Que., G1R 4X6, or at any of the Department's regional offices.

The Department defrays the cost of premises, instructional materials or any other materials needed for practical projects, the hiring of specialists, resource persons, certain public transportation, meals and accommodations, and the promotion of group activities.

International Salon

The Quebec Department of Agriculture will take part in the International Salon of Food and Agriculture which will be held at the Montreal Olympic Stadium from Sunday, October 22 to Sunday, October 29 inclusive. The 1978 Salon promises to be the largest gathering of farm producers, food processors and consumers Quebec has ever seen. In the heart of Montreal, during these eight days, an unprecedented number of animals of all types, agricultural and food products and a variety of equipment will be on display. Numerous countries such as France, Italy, the Netherlands, Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco will be represented.

Manure storage

Michel Fortier, agronomist and engineer with the Farm Buildings and Farm Machinery Service of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, predicts that manure storage in "above-ground silos" is expected to become more popular in the near future.

There are numerous reasons which support the installation of a greater number of "above-ground silos". Such silos are first of all more impervious and are less likely to pollute the environment than liquid manure pits. The latter, especially those made of concrete blocks, are often not impervious. They, therefore, contribute to the pollution of water sources and, when the water level in the soil is high, it may either decrease the storage capacity because of seepage or cause the walls to crack or give way to external pressure.

Furthermore, "above-ground manure silos" provide the following advantages: 1 - they do not require excavation work; 2 - they are less affected by freezing of the soil; 3 - they can be built in just two or three days; 4 - they do not require a roof; 5 - they do not cost more than liquid manure pits; 6 - they are guaranteed by the builder to be impervious; 7 - the height of these silos prevents man or animals from falling into them.

The preceding advantages greatly outweigh certain disadvantages such as the need to collect the manure in a pit before pumping it into an "above-ground silo", and the cost of equipment to fill and empty an "above-ground silo" and to stir the manure.

Whether of concrete or steel, "above-ground silos" must be circular for easier construction. The most common and the most economical are of reinforced concrete; they may be poured on location or prefabricated in sections 4 ft. high and 26 ft. long which are assembled with the help of steel bolts, on the site chosen by the farmer.

Mr. Fortier advises farmers not to construct their own "above-ground manure silos" since their circular form requires an expert builder.

The "above-ground silos" on the market today have a diameter of 50 to 100 ft. and a height of 8 to 20 ft.

Insemination centre

Work under way for expansion of the Quebec Artificial Insemination Centre at St-Hyacinthe is expected to be completed by mid-November. It was begun at the start of August, at which time Jean Garon, Quebec Minister of Agriculture, officiated at a sod-turning ceremony. A new barn which can house 96 breeding bulls is being constructed at a cost of $630,000. This will enable the Centre, along with its satellite farms, to keep a herd of 400 bulls in service or on reserve. The Centre is the largest of its kind in Canada.

Horse technology

The Institute of Agricultural Technology at La Pocatiere trains "horse technologists", boys and girls. Once these technologists have obtained their diplomas after having specialized during three years in equine studies, horse breeding and riding, they are qualified to direct an equine enterprise; ensure the training of mounts for equestrian sports; act as an equestrian organizer; and co-operate in training amateurs and professionals in this field, etc.

Machinery care

It costs more to leave farm machinery out in all kinds of weather than to put it away in a shed. A good shed does not let in the rain or snow, protects machinery against rust and too long exposure in the sun, which may damage tires and belts. A workshop adjoining the shed allows for maintenance of farm machinery at all times and often saves calling in expensive skilled labour. Machinery which is left outside and poorly maintained gives inadequate service, wears out abnormally, breaks down, delays work, may cause crop losses and has to be replaced sooner.

Cattle rebuilding urged

In a recent analysis and report on Canada's future beef supply situation, the Canadian Cattlemen's Association says that there are now clear signs that North American beef producers have killed off too many potential breeding cattle and that an immediate rebuilding process should begin.

While admitting that the huge losses incurred by cattlemen over the last four years indicated some needed reduction in cattle numbers, the association points out that since 1975 cattle numbers across North America have declined by nearly 15 per cent and that as a consequence prices have improved significantly. Despite this price improvement, however, the slaughter of breeding cattle continues and the Association predicts that by 1981 per capita beef supplies in Canada will be down by about 20 per cent from the level in 1977 - or a reduction of 22 pounds per person per year.

While this reduction in beef supply will mean sharply higher prices for producers, the benefits of the higher prices will be more than offset by reduction in volume and such prices may also result in very strong consumer and political reaction.

Chrysler attack renewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group is renewing its attack on two Chrysler Corp. cars even though the U.S. government says it can't find any safety problem with the vehicles.

Consumers Union, a nonprofit testing group, urged again in the October issue of its magazine Consumer Reports that the Dodge Omni and the almost identical Plymouth Horizon be changed to remove any doubt about their handling qualities.

The consumer group started the controversy in June by rating the cars not acceptable, the first time it has given such a rating to an automobile in many years.

Dairy quota policy attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — National dairy policy, one of the sacred cows of agricultural politics, needs a massive overhaul because it hurts farmers and taxpayers, says the new federal agency monitoring wages and prices.

The Centre for the Study of Inflation and Productivity says the policy does not make economical sense.

The study suggests reducing production of industrial milk, used in making cheese, butter and ice cream, by as much as one-third to eliminate skim milk powder surpluses, which require hefty taxpayer subsidies to be disposed of on the world market.

Alcan receives backing

MONTREAL (CP) — Auginish Finance Ltd. signed loan agreements Monday for $308 million U.S. to finance the alumina extraction plant under construction at Auginish Island on the Shannon Estuary in County Limerick, Ireland. Alcan Aluminium Ltd. announced.

Alcan Ireland Ltd. owns 40 per cent of Auginish Finance Ltd., Billiton Aluminium Ireland Ltd., 35 per cent and Anaconda Ireland Co., 25 per cent.

A company statement said the agreements include a 10-year Eurodollar loan of $250 million U.S. provided by a group of 16 international banks, led by Citicorp International Group.

Stock brokers warned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government ordered stock brokers Monday to end a series of widespread practices described as unfair to customers.

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) said it was particularly disturbed to find that many of the practices reflect established policies and practices of several of the country's leading broker-dealers.

The SEC, responding to customer complaints, expressed concern about the following practices:

—Issuing customers cheques drawn on distant banks in order to prolong the broker's use of the customer's money, a practice called "remote chequeing."

—Retention of interest and dividend payments rather than disbursing such payments to customers promptly without receipt. Often customers are not given prior notice and a reasonable chance to elect immediate or deferred payment.

—Imposition of increased commission rates without adequate prior notice.

—Imposition of custodial fees on inactive customer accounts without adequate prior notice.

—Failure to transfer customer accounts promptly to another broker-dealer in response to customer requests.

Syrup debate continues

A letter received from Quebec Maple Products Limited of Lennoxville has clarified a number of points for us regarding the relationship between maple product companies and government maple syrup inspectors, as well as the responsibilities of each.

The operations of Quebec Maple Products Ltd., a licensed commercial packer of maple syrup, are governed by regulations which allow them to receive, take possession of, and pay for syrup only on the basis of classification by a government grader; the amount that the company pays is determined by the classification made by the government inspector.

Eugene Moreau, manager of QMP, indicated in his letter that the company has found this system to work well, and also that Quebec Maple Products Ltd. has always had cordial relations with both farmers and officials from the Department of Agriculture.

As far as Q.M.P. itself is concerned, a producer who is dissatisfied with the classification that he is given by the inspector, is free to take his produce elsewhere. However, the final word does not rest in their hands. The government inspector may order the detention, seizure, confiscation or dumping of any lot of maple products which he finds in contravention of the Agricultural Products Act and regulations.

Our thanks to Quebec Maple Products Ltd. for responding to our request for clarification.

Next week, information on the rights of maple syrup producers and the role of the Syndicat des Producteurs de Sucre et Sirop d'Erable.

Family allowance

Now for more on family allowance cutbacks: Every family in the country will have its family allowance cheque slashed by 22 per cent; its dependent children's exemption for children aged 16 and 17 reduced from $840 to $460; and its $50-per-child federal income tax reduction eliminated, if the present government proposals are implemented.

In a semi-Robin Hood scheme of taking from the rich and the poor to give to the poor, these cuts are to be counter-balanced by a new mechanism called the "diminishing refundable child tax credit," designed to benefit low income families.

The diminishing refundable child tax credit, (the d.r.c.t.c., for convenience's sake), is part of the taxation program. It entitles families with an income of $18,000 or less to a refundable tax credit of $200 per child under the age of 18. Families with a higher income may be eligible for a lesser amount, depending upon the number of children in the family and their income.

(Does 'family income' refer to the family's net, gross, or taxable income? We have been unable to find out. Officials in the Health and Welfare and the Revenue departments believe that in the government's mind, it is taxable income, but they are not sure. It seems that only those working on the actual legislation know.)

An important point to note: The d.r.c.t.c. can be claimed only by the person who receives the family allowance cheque. Since this is almost always the mother, a lot of Canadian women who have never before made income tax declarations, will have to do so, beginning in 1979.

Here's how the system will work. Take the example of the Smiths who have two dependent children, Mary and Jonathan, and a family income of $15,000. According to the proposed legislation, the Smith family will be entitled to a tax credit of $200 times two, or $400. Next spring, Mrs. Smith will have to complete a federal income tax form, even though she is not employed. Because she owes no income tax, she will be sent a cheque for $400.

In the case of the Joneses, who have three children and a family income over $18,000 ($21,000), the d.r.c.t.c. is calculated in a more complicated manner. They must subtract the basic $18,000 from their income of $21,000; multiply this number by five per cent; subtract this from $200 times the number of children - three. End result, the Jones family will have a d.r.c.t.c. of $450.

Because Mrs. Jones works part-time and normally has income tax deducted from her cheque, she can claim a $450 credit in addition to what she has already paid in, and will be entitled to a refund of $450, provided her employer has deducted the correct amount from her pay cheque.

Now let's see whether the Smiths and the Joneses are going to gain or lose in the long run. In 1979, Mrs. Smith's family allowance cheque will be $8.52 less each month, for an annual loss of $102. Mrs. Smith will be able to claim her $400 child tax credit. Mr. Smith's dependent children's exemptions remain the same, but he loses the $100 tax reduction he had in past years. Altogether, the family will gain $400 and lose $202, for a net gain of $198.

The Jones family will get a cut of $20.44 in their monthly family allowance payment beginning in January. In 1979, they will receive $245 less than in 1978. Mrs. Jones will be entitled to her $450 d.r.c.t.c. Because in his 1978 income tax return, Mr. Jones will be able to claim only an exemption of $460 for his daughter Ann, as opposed to the $840 exemption he had the previous year, he will have to pay extra income tax, to the tune of approximately $110. He will also lose the $150 exemption for his children. The net result is a loss of $55 to the Jones family.

If you have the mathematical inclination, sit down and do a bit of calculating. Aren't you curious to know whether our Robin Hood government classifies you as rich or poor?

Quebec insurance

J.M. of Richmond wrote in asking a number of questions relating to the Quebec Automobile Insurance Plan.

In the case of an accident involving a vehicle and an animal, who should contact the owner of the animal; the government or the victim's insurance company?

Does the insurance agent or the victim pursue a claim for bodily injury?

First of all, in the case of bodily injury, there is no longer a distinction between who is at fault and who is not, so nobody contacts the owner of the animal in the case of bodily injury. Private insurance companies now have nothing to do with claims for bodily injury. Any bodily injuries incurred in an accident involving a motor vehicle, except for those resulting from car races or caused by certain vehicles not on public roads, are covered by the Regie de l'Assurance Automobile du Quebec.

Your insurance company is responsible for material damages only. As usual, following an accident, you must call your insurance agent, if there is material damage. But, you must also contact the Regie de l'Assurance Automobile as soon as possible, if you want to claim bodily injury. You can either go to the Sherbrooke office at 1335 King Street West, 1st floor, 566-4770 and get the appropriate forms to fill out; or you can call 1-800-361-7620 and the forms will be sent to you from Montreal.

U de S to grant honorary doctorates

SHERBROOKE (AH) — Four honorary doctorates will be granted at the Université de Sherbrooke's annual convocation on Friday, October 6, 1978. The ceremony will take place in the amphitheatre of the faculty of educational sciences under the auspices of the Rector M. Yves Martin. The four men being honored are: Dr. Eugene Robillard, Mm. Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Robert A. Boyd and

Gilles G. Granger. Mr. Boyd was born in Sherbrooke and received his BA degree there. He is president of Hydro-Quebec, a company he joined in its first year of operations in 1944 and also of the James Bay Energy Corporation.

M. Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Q.C., has had a distinguished career in law and has ten honorary doctorates to date. Among his political appointments, Gerin-Lajoie was first Quebec Minister of Education, 1964-69; vice-president of the Executive Council of the province of Quebec, 1964-66; and chairman of the Constitutional Affairs Committee of the Quebec Liberal Party, 1966-69.

Dr. Eugene Robillard received a doctorate of medicine and a masters of sciences from the Université de Montreal. He has held many positions in the University, becoming dean of the faculty of medicine in 1968 and in 1975 was made professor emeritus. Dr. Robillard has received many prizes and medals in his career including the commemorative medal of Queen Elizabeth II.

M. Gilles Granger was born in Paris in 1920. He has graduated in philosophy, law and mathematical sciences and is a doctor of letters. He has travelled extensively, holding the posts of professor at the University of Sao Paulo in Brazil, director of the Ecole normale supérieure d'Afrique centrale in Brazzaville, and presently is teaching at the Institute of Philosophy at the Université de Provence.

BU-CRC gallery opens

LENNOXVILLE — Bishop's University and Champlain Regional College proudly announce the opening of their new art gallery on Tuesday, October 10, 1978 at 7:30 p.m. "The Art of the Caves" is an exhibition of color photographs of Cro-Magnon art, which will be on display from October 10 to 24 in the Marjorie Donald House wing of the Students' Centre on the Bishop's - Champlain campus. The photographs are by John Hollander; the exhibit appears courtesy of the Art Gallery of Ontario. Gallery hours are from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays, and from 6 to 10 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. A reception will be held at 10:30 p.m. on October 10, following John Mills' performance in Centennial Theatre.

Jewellers meet

DRUMMONDVILLE (AH) — "The consumer and his jewellery" is the theme of this year's annual conference of the Quebec Jewellers' Corporation to be held in Drummondville on October 8 and 9.

The main consideration of the congress will be to establish an ethical code for the protection of the consumer. The code will probably consist of four elements: precise obligations concerning the quality of the product and guarantee; the reimbursement of money if the product does not give satisfaction; the establishment of strong sanctions for those who violate the code; the formation of a conciliation committee composed of members of the profession and non-members in equal numbers to publicize consumer information.

It has been 30 years since the first general assembly of jewellers was held in Drummondville which provided the framework for the present corporation.

Dance troupe at U de S

SHERBROOKE — The Anne Wyman Dance Theatre of Vancouver will give a performance at the Centre Culturel, Université de Sherbrooke, on Tuesday, October 10, 1978 at 8:30 p.m.

The group of seven dancers have travelled in Canada, the United States and Europe. In their second season they were judged in the best three in a competition of young choreographers in Cologne, Germany.

Centre Culturel hosts Lara

SHERBROOKE — Catherine Lara, singer and musician, is giving a concert at the Centre Culturel, Université de Sherbrooke on Wednesday, October 11, in the Maurice O'Bready Room.

Accompanied by pianist, Georges Rabol, Catherine Lara will sing a charming collection of semi-classical songs, influenced by the sounds of 'pop-folk'.

Florescent vests a must

It is now obligatory for hunters and the general public to wear fluorescent orange vests in the parks, reserves and ZECs of Quebec and a good idea for hunters everywhere. This regulation follows an investigation into accidents by the Ministry of Tourism, Fish and Game which found that since 1965, 29 hunters would probably have been alive today had they been wearing such vests. Of all accidents which occurred last year, 13 per cent could probably have been avoided if such precautions had been taken.

Chapman acquitted

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Clarence Chapman, 53, of Cowansville was acquitted of a charge of simple assault on Cowansville Constable Claude Lefebvre March 20 following defence representations here yesterday. Constable Lefebvre and Sergeant Gilles Waltz testified earlier the accused committed the alleged assault when they were seated in a patrol car on South Street during the evening of March 20.

Defence lawyer Pierre Gibeau, of the legal aid office, who has studiously avoided strike action, told the court his client had been detained for almost two and a half months, which included a 30-day psychiatric examination to determine if he was fit to answer the charge. "The report indicates he is able to act on his behalf," Gibeau said.

Chapman took the stand and told the court he was in a restaurant when he ordered two cups of coffee. "He wanted eight or ten dollars for the coffees and when I told him it was too expensive, he hit me," Chapman said. "I hit him back."

"Are the doctors competent?" Judge Guy Genest queried.

"I think so," Mr. Gibeau said. "I don't think it is in the interests of justice that he be acquitted on grounds of insanity as that would cause a lot of problems." Crown attorney Claude Noiseux said, "There is a complete absence of 'mens rea' and the court can order an absolute acquittal."

Judge Genest ruled there was no prior formation of intent in the commission of the crime and ordered an acquittal. "You can go but stay quiet in the future," he concluded.

Concert tickets available

SHERBROOKE (SH) — Tickets to three shows at the Montreal forum are available at the Miracle Mart on Belvedere St., Sherbrooke.

Heart, a six-member band originally from the West Coast, is led by vocalist-flautist Ann Wilson and her sister Nancy, a guitarist. Guitarist turned flautist, Ian Anderson, leads Jethro Tull through numbers that range from simple blues to lightly-flavored jazz. Peter Gabriel left the group Genesis in 1975 to strike out on his own. He is an accomplished songwriter, vocalist, keyboardman and flautist.

The dates of the three shows will be announced shortly.

Asbestos institute...

PLESSISVILLE (AF) — The head offices of the recently-announced Asbestos Research Institute will be in Thetford Mines while the future institute itself will be located at the Université de Sherbrooke and shared with the City of Thetford Mines. Economic Development Minister Bernard Landry has revealed.

It was on September 6 while at the Université that Minister of Natural Resources Yves Berube announced the creation of a new centre for asbestos research and development at the Université de Sherbrooke but declined to divulge the location which will share the centre with the U de S.

Landry, speaking before a group of businessmen here this week, was trying to demonstrate that the region would experience a great economic boost and that the creation of the centre's head offices in Thetford Mines represented a renewal for the asbestos region.

While in Thetford Mines recently, Premier Levesque stated that one did not have to be extremely intelligent to guess which city would be involved in the new asbestos research centre. Also a short while ago, Minister of Finance Jacques Parizeau revealed in Noranda it was a matter of several weeks before negotiations with the General Dynamics Corporation over the sale of Thetford Mines' Asbestos Corporation would be concluded.

'New Dimensions' launched

LENNOXVILLE — Champlain Regional College, through its Continuing Education Services, has devised a new program tailored to the needs of women who, for one reason or another left school "prematurely" and who would like now to pick up where they left off.

New Dimensions offers classes on two days a week, in the mornings and afternoons. The students will qualify as full-time adult CEGEP students so that the college receives a grant and the program is free. The student can complete her diploma in about two and a half years.

Champlain's Continuing Education Services plans to offer this program in a number of communities in the Townships, wherever numbers are sufficient to form a class. Over the coming months, meetings will be held in various centres with interested women to discuss the New Dimensions program in detail and to allow women the opportunity to participate in the design of their own program. Women of Lennoxville, Sherbrooke and area are to meet on Thursday, October 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the faculty lounge of McGreer Hall on the Bishop's-Champlain campus.

Other Townships women who would like to attend such an information meeting in their own community are invited to call the Continuing Education Service at (819) 563-6881, extension 40.

The friendly neighbourhood exercise.

United Tory front needed to spark Clark win

Last Monday, Joe Clark visited Sherbrooke, then on later to Montreal, Westmount, then to Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. The form and content of the start of this particular electoral swing gives us some idea of what we can expect over the next few months.

The appeal is practical and realistic. The tax deduction on mortgage interest and property tax payments will stimulate the construction and house-furnishing industries. It will stimulate private enterprise, get the economy going again, and relieve unemployment. This is what his audience wanted to hear. Local businessmen and PC sympathizers in the solid, prosperous Social Club, at a lunch organized by the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce, listened to him respectfully.

Wisely, personality and leadership issues did not come up. Particularly in Quebec, as opinion polls continue to show, attacking Trudeau per se might boomerang back on Clark. Instead he makes local appeal. Quebec-ers, he said, pay more in property taxes than anyone else, so they would stand to benefit most from the PC scheme.

He dealt adeptly — as he does with most things — with the fact that the Conservatives are so very under-represented in Quebec (only two MPs at present in Ottawa). The PC is first in nine provinces and two territories, he claimed, and "it is almost impossible for the Liberals to regain any strength." He was here to give Quebecers some opportunity to support the Conservatives, "the only properly representative party in the country as a whole."

This is just too smooth. Even a modest increase of PC members from Quebec ridings in Ottawa — which doesn't seem too likely — would still leave a Tory government seriously weak in efforts to deal with Quebec matters. In an interview after the lunch, Mr. Clark said he had come to Sherbrooke because "it is an important area for the Conservative party — and it has a history of changing parties — it's interesting to be here."

He also admitted the PC's are "trailing fairly dramatically" in Quebec. So part of his reason for coming out to Sherbrooke, far from any current by-election, was probably to try to persuade local 'notables' to add lustre to the PC's by running as candidates.

It's not clear yet how much success he had in this respect, but he needs it, for two reasons. First, any party that wants to win has to run winners, for a change. Secondly, his own style needs, to put it kindly, a lot of support.

His whole speech was given in French. (Not even two or three words in English in this traditionally bilingual area, where there is a strong and rooted Anglophone minority). His command of the language is admittedly better than Diefenbaker's, or Stanfield's, but, all praise aside, it still just limps along.

Yet language is not the problem. A Crombie or a Conservative Jack Horner, someone with fire in his belly, would have roused the Sherbrooke audience more, even if he had spoken in worse French than earlier Tory leaders. Joe Clark is just too dry and dispassionate, too efficiency-oriented and technocratic. Almost two years ago Quebec voters kicked Bourassa's government out, to quite some extent for that reason.

So Clark needs clear, strong support, and not just in Quebec. Paradoxically, then, the nature of his leadership — if he can get and present this support — may be the making of him rather than his downfall.

He seems to be growing in the job, becoming more confident, a bit more relaxed. Not too surprising, really, because he has spent his whole working life at it and next year, election year, he will be 40. There's also a growing feeling that, parallel with the steep decline in Trudeau's population, as he's mercilessly mauled by the cartoonists, Joe's star is rising.

For it to continue to rise, he and his staff will need continually to remind themselves that it's because of the times, not the man. Another relative outsider came from nowhere to take command a decade ago, but voters have more basic concerns now. Times they are 'changing; the Just Society's just forgotten and many of the would-be participants in participatory democracy want to take part in the economy first.

A new style of leadership, different in both quality and quantity, might help a lot of voters to float to the other side. Clark showed by his hard-headed, specific attacks on Liberal policies and by his presentation of alternatives that he's prepared to go out and get these voters.

Trudeau himself, at the end of the last decade implicitly indicated that different forms of leadership are sometimes required and that leaders should not be too closely compared. In September 1969 at a Town Meeting in Geraldton, Ont., he remarked:

"It is completely conceivable that this country will need a very different kind of prime minister than I am, and perhaps that will be much sooner than even I think, or much longer than perhaps many of you wish. I think in a democratic society like ours and in a society which changes as quickly as ours does, I think that each time, each decade, puts forward people who are different, who have different approaches to life, different approaches to problems."

Joe Clark won laughs in Sherbrooke when he referred in his speech to two recent polls: the IQOP one in Quebec which showed both Trudeau and Levesque enjoying the support of over 50 per cent of the electorate, and only 10 per cent supporting the Conservatives; and the 'real' poll, by the electors of Nova Scotia.

If the Conservatives want the latter to spread across the country, they'll need to provide evidence of a strong and united front behind Joe Clark.

Is nothing sacred

Women in taverns? Is nothing sacred?

A tavern is some men's best friend. It's a refuge and a kitchen, a port in the storm of life where he can have a fast bite and a couple of pints — or an afternoon of chatter with the boys. A tavern is a place where a guy can watch the playoffs in peace, far from the frustrations of home, be a loudmouth, pig or whatever fellow patrons will put up with.

Sure, taverns are sexist. But can women who go crusading forth into hallowed, beer-stinking confines like a bunch of latter-day Carrie Nations expect meekness?

Oh, taverns probably will be outlawed in a few years, victims of all this egalitarianism, which has been going around lately.

Men and women who like each other's company when they drink beer can go to brasseries, which were licenced to defuse this whole silly business five years ago.

Come to think of it, maybe it would be better if women were permitted into taverns. Then they could get an idea of how sleazy some of them are. As for the swankier joints who'd benefit from the company of women, they've probably already gotten brasserie licences.

So drop the law and open them up. What is there to fear from these crusaders who wouldn't be caught dead in a tavern if they were allowed to be there?

JAMES DUFF

Explanations?

One could tell by the splutter in Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau's reaction to a report released Monday by the Minister of State for Federal-Provincial Relations seems to indicate the feds have hit home with some telling truths.

The report, a weighty little 96-page document in both French and English, is entitled Trade Realities in Canada and the issue of "sovereignty-association". It goes to some lengths to prove Quebec is four times more dependent on markets in the rest of Canada than vice versa.

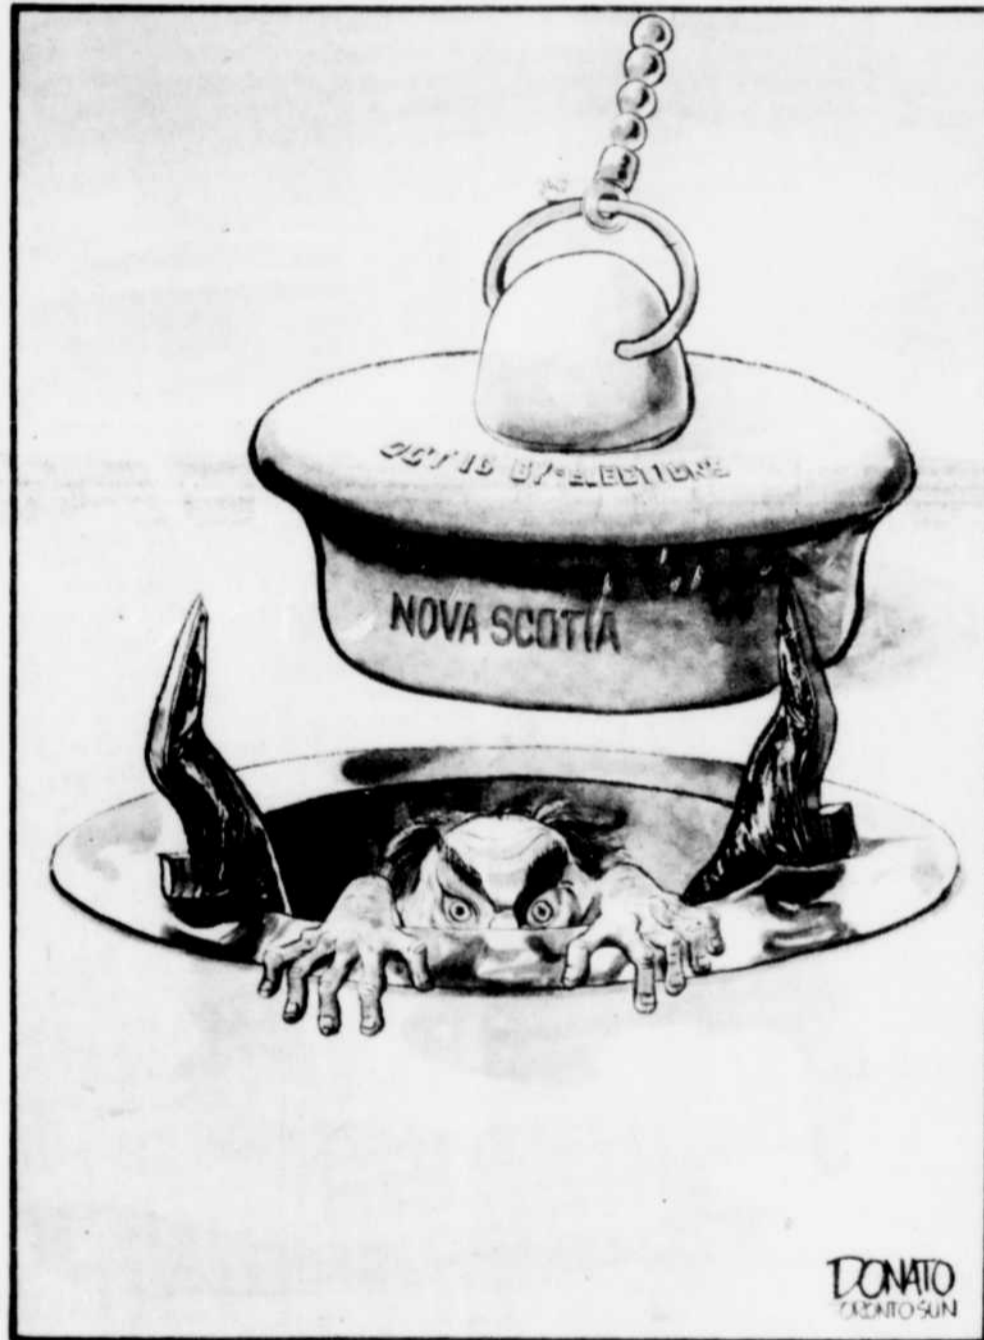

The report draws several interesting conclusions, one of which is the suggestion that the rest of Canada would let trade barriers fall if Quebec were no longer a part of Canada, since those tariffs stand mainly to protect Quebec industry.

Mr. Parizeau called the report economic terrorism. He said there was more to Quebec's desire for sovereignty-association than mere economic considerations, which is odd coming from a facts-and-figures traditional economist.

The truth is Ottawa scored a few points on this one. It's not that they caught Mr. Parizeau sleeping — since the Parti Quebecois government began releasing its 'dossiers noirs' on various federal failings in Quebec, they must have known the opposition would do the same.

Mr. Parizeau should come out with a stronger, better-researched answer to the study Mr. Lalonde laid on Quebec's door. Either that, Mr. Parizeau, or it's going to be a long, hard job trying to explain it to the people at home.

Letters

DPL returns

Editor:

The Democratic Party of Lennoxville has been quiet for the last two months. Many of the town's residents were on vacation. We decided to wait until after the summer months to resume our monthly notices on what is going on in Lennoxville. We hope everyone had a good summer. We have a lot of work ahead and a great deal to talk about.

During July the mayor was given several cans of paint. He authorized someone to paint pictures of "Mickey Mouse" on several fire hydrants. This was to attract the tourists. The tourists came, but they ruined their cars on the town's roads. Perhaps the mayor could have been given several cans of tar instead. However, we are fortunate to have an auto parts dealer in Sherbrooke.

Since Labor Day a disgrace has befallen Lennoxville. All the businesses have been in a decline for the past month. Some have lost up to 30 per cent of their business. One garage and a co-op have been rendered virtually unusable. This, of course, is due to the building of a new sewer line on College Street.

The planning for this line has been haphazard and awkward. It has caused countless inconveniences.

The mayor and the council did not show any signs of intelligence in the way they organized the building of the line. The drop in business sales indicates this.

If the D.P.L. had initiated this we would have kept one lane open. Work would have started on Little Forks Street and then to College Street. We would have made sure that one lane would have been serviceable to the main flow of traffic.

The biggest cancer in Lennoxville is the Police Department. The big news is that the Police Chief has been guaranteed his position. The "mama" told him to go down on his knees and provide a protective blanket to the "papa" of the organization. This "papa" is the chairman of the Police Department.

The time for renegotiating the town's police force is coming. If Mr. Calder cares for the town he would cut the cancer in half. If he wants to become respected by the Lennoxville taxpayers, he would cut out the cancer and disband the force completely.

We have already been told to expect a minimum of a $65 raise in taxes for 1979. If the police force budget is not controlled, this tax hike will be considerably more.

Thanksgiving will soon be here. The Lennoxville taxpayers have little to thank of their municipal government. Perhaps the mayor and council can treat the community by letting in some common sense.

He taught us

Editor:

The following is a message from Archbishop Fortier on the occasion of the death of Pope John-Paul the First:

Consternation and sorrow are the feelings which affect me since I heard of the death of Pope John-Paul the First, early this morning (Sept. 29).

Since his election, he has already won our respect and affection and this through his simplicity and his heartiness.

Unpredictable was the way he was chosen as pastor of the Church and unexpected is also his sudden death.

As successor of St. Peter his pastoral work was short-lived but it was not fruitless. He has taught us that charity and joy are some of the human images of God who is love.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Secretary faced high courtroom drama — alone

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — There was a moment of high drama the other day in the federal courtroom in downtown Manhattan. A shy, frightened secretary, Gerolyn Hobbs, faced federal inquisitors. She had been crying softly like a little girl lost.

On the witness stand, she would soon be asked to challenge the angry, voluble statements of two of the nation's most powerful men. She would be questioned under oath about telephone calls and letters implicating President Carter's two most trusted associates, political adviser Hamilton Jordan and Atlanta attorney Charles Kirbo, in a $10 million influence case.

In a series of earlier interviews, Hobbs had told us that she had placed and received telephone calls between the two presidential advisers and some Georgia influence peddlers. The fixers had collected $10 million worth of stock for helping fugitive financier Robert Vesco with his legal troubles.

Hobbs had also identified for us two embarrassing letters, which she claimed to have typed and mailed to Jordan and Kirbo. The letters allegedly were written by Jordan's boyhood buddy, Spencer Lee IV, who practices law and politics in Albany, Ga.

The letter to Jordan implied that he knew about the $10 million payoff which was supposed to be laundered through a Bahamian bank. With the letter to Kirbo, Hobbs said she had enclosed a memo that Vesco had dictated to her on the overseas telephone.

She swore to these facts in affidavits which we cited in subsequent columns. Our stories led the Securities and Exchange Commission to subpoena her to repeat her allegations in federal court.

On the eve of her testimony, an alarmed friend called us to report she had tried to reach Hobbs but had been shut off by a stranger with a gruff male voice. Then another friend confided that Hobbs was distraught, that she had stayed awake all night staring at the walls and that she had been weeping.

At last we heard directly from Gerolyn Hobbs on the telephone. "It was all a mistake! It was all a mistake!" she blurted. Our associate Les Whitten asked whether she wanted to change her story. But she just repeated in a broken voice: "It was all a mistake!" There was no reconciling her.

She had been a crucial witness in our investigation of the attempted Vesco fix. We had interviewed the ringleader, R.L. Herring, in jail and had obtained an affidavit from him scrawled on lined, yellow paper in his cell.

A crack private detective, Richard Bast, had put Herring under oath and cross-examined him for 14 hours on tape. Bast's instructions were to break down Herring's story if he could. Bast concluded that Herring was telling the truth.

We listened to the full 14 hours. In painstaking detail, Herring told of his attempt to influence the Carter administration and of the $10 million payoff through a series of complex financial transactions. Herring swore that, through Spencer Lee, he had made contact with Jordan and Kirbo and had received the green light from them to go ahead with the Vesco deal.

Still, Herring was hardly a credible witness, a shady operator awaiting trial on unrelated fraud charges. We also questioned Vesco in Nassau for three days. We drew from him a grudging, cautious confirmation of the Georgia connection.

We persuaded him to write in his own hand a brief chronology of his contacts with the Georgia fixers. Perhaps the most interesting item was one dated Feb. 8, 1977. Scribbled Vesco: "S.L. at Washington Hilton V. talks to H.J."

This was Vesco's shorthand for reporting that he had spoken over the phone to a man introduced as Hamilton Jordan during Spencer Lee's visit to Washington. But an international swindler also is not a credible witness.

There were paper tracks — telephone message slips, appointment schedules and flight logs — which pointed to Jordan and Kirbo. Some of the other conspirators also gave us affidavits. Still, we felt the evidence was inconclusive and the witnesses tainted.

Then we discovered the presence of a Snow White among the seven dwarfs. Gerolyn Hobbs impressed us over a month-long period as a sensitive, guileless young woman. Her friends and neighbors confirmed that she "tells the truth" and "she would never lie."

Hobbs could authenticate the messages and letters. We questioned her carefully; we asked her to tell the truth, nothing more nor less. It was her sworn word that she mailed the letters, more than anything else, that persuaded us to go ahead with the story.

The angry men involved — Jordan, Kirbo and Lee — indignantly denied that they knew anything about the letters. It was to be her word, supported by the telephone message slips, against the White House itself.

No wonder Gerolyn Hobbs could not sleep and resorted finally to tears. By all accounts, she was panicky when she was sworn in on the witness stand.

Long after the passage of time has caused these events to recede, the courtroom scene will remain in our memory. This shy, slender secretary, with nothing to gain, unable to defend herself, stuck to her story.

She spoke softly, almost inaudibly at times. Yes, she had typed and mailed the embarrassing letters to Jordan and Kirbo. "I was impressed by the names," she testified. "They were important people."

45th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Tolhurst, Lennoxville, are congratulated on their 45th anniversary, October 14.

50th anniversary

As the bells of St. Raphael Catholic Church in Bury rang on Saturday afternoon, September 2, 1978, friends and relatives of Gordon and Lena Dougherty gathered on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

The bride and groom of 50 years, accompanied by their children, were met at the church door by the parish priest, Rev. Father Dominique Breton and altar boys, Yves, Martial and Serge Vachon, who escorted them to the altar, and conducted the bilingual ceremony. The choir, accompanied by Sister Flore Jette as organist, sang several hymns in both English and French.

Rev. L. Westman, incumbent of St. Paul's Anglican Church, assisted in the service with a reading from the Bible. Both Father Breton and Rev. Westman extended their blessings as the couple exchanged rings and renewed their marriage vows.

Tributes were paid to their parents by Raymond Parsons in French, and by Connie Martel in English, who also on behalf of the family, extended love and best wishes. Baskets of gladioli and mums and blue vases of gladioli adorned the altar, with gold 50s completing the arrangement.

Following the service, the attending guests were joined by others for a reception at the Salle Jean Paul, where on entering the hall, Rock Martel and Cindy Parsons pinned red souvenir ribbons, printed in gold on each guest.

Receiving in the reception line were: the honored couple, Gordon and Lena, their three daughters, Jean Letky, Marguerite Bennett and Connie Martel and their two nephews, Robert and Raymond Parsons, who had shared their home and love since early childhood, being regarded as members of the family.

Lena looked elegant in a mint green, finely pleated sheer gown. Her corsage was of gold roses and she wore gold earrings and necklace, a gift from her daughters. Jean was dressed in a powder blue nylon gown and she wore a corsage of red roses. Marguerite wore a peach colored knit gown, with a gardenia corsage and Connie wore a kelly green acrylic gown and a white gardenia corsage. Gordon had a white carnation boutonniere, while the other gentlemen of the family wore red carnation boutonnieres.

John and Sylvie Letky were in charge of the guest book, while Janice (Mrs. Robert Parsons) and Nicole (Mrs. Raymond Parsons) presided at the punch bowls.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion with gold streamers, golden bells, gold wreaths with "50s" on a red backing, "Happy Anniversary" banners, a hand-painted family tree made by Sister Jeanne d'Arc Begin of Audet, and baskets of summer flowers. Allan Parsons, Dennis Martel and Donna Bennett were in charge of the gift table which was covered with a sparkling gold tablecloth, centred by a large gold bell, made to accommodate the many congratulatory messages.

The tables in the dining hall, where a delicious banquet was served to 140 guests, featured summer flowers in gold-covered vases, gold doilies and individual pieces of anniversary cake wrapped in gold foil. The head table was centred by a three-tiered cake, decorated by their daughter, Marguerite. Seated at the head table were the guests of honor,

Miscellaneous shower

SUTTON — Mr. and Mrs. Real Beaulac and three daughters were hostesses to a New Home Miscellaneous Shower at their home on Maple St. here, on Thursday evening September 21, in honour of Mrs. Armand Laplante.

Mrs. Laplante, accompanied by her daughter Murielle, came to the Beaulac home, on the pretense of attending another shower and to her surprise found some 25 ladies awaiting her.

Ruth was certainly surprised and a little overcome, but after a lot of joking and laughing, she rose to the occasion.

She received many and useful gifts, which she was assisted in opening by her two daughters, Murielle and France. After the gifts had been passed around for all to see, Mrs. Laplante thanked her hostesses and everyone present for all the useful articles which she will use in her new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Laplante lost their home and contents in a fire earlier this year. They have built a new home on the same foundation on Maple St. and hope to be residing in it by November 1st.

Club reception

94 Downs Street, Lennoxville, P.Q., the home of Mrs. Robert Calder was the scene of a very happy and relaxed afternoon, on Thursday, Sept. 21, when the executive of the Women's Canadian Club of the Eastern Townships hosted the president's reception.

Over one hundred ladies gathered together to successfully open a new season for their club. On arrival, guests were greeted by the president, Mrs. D.G. Loomis and by any executive member who was not busy preparing and serving the delicious tea and refreshments.

Mrs. Calder's spacious home was made-to-order for the occasion, with gaily colored flowers complementing the decor, and the table in the quaint dining room elegantly set, having a centrepiece of cosmos, which attracted everyone's eye, especially the pourers. A perfect addition to the afternoon's pleasant atmosphere was the selection of piano music, offered by Mme G. Desmarais, talented pianist, whose choice of tunes was delightful.

The members of the executive of the Canadian Club, Sherbrooke, P.Q. wish to take this opportunity to say thank you to those many ladies who travelled from Ayer's Cliff and Massawippi; Bishopton, Bury and Cookshire; Coaticook, Danville and Magog; North Hatley, Richmond and Sawyerville; Waterville and from wherever, to attend this reception which reassures them of your interest in the club's future.

Gordon and Lena, their daughters, Jean, Marguerite and Connie, sons-in-law, Lionel Martel and Gordon Bennett, nephews, Robert and Raymond Parsons and their wives, Janice and Nicole, Father Breton, Rev. and Mrs. L. Westman and Master of Ceremonies, Ted Bennett and his wife, Margorie. Seated at a separate table in the centre of the room were all the grandchildren.

Little Carolyn Martel presented her grandmother with a bouquet of red roses, while Christine Parsons presented them both with a pair of gold goblets. Father Breton asked the blessing. Ted Bennett expressed the honor he felt on being asked to act as M.C., emphasizing the compatibility felt in the combination of cultures and religions, extending congratulations to the honored couple on this memorable day, for the success they have derived and for their family, for which they have reason to be proud. He also mentioned the years that Gordon had faithfully served the municipality as councillor and later as mayor. He then called on William R. Batley, who had been secretary-treasurer during Gordon's Mayorship, who proposed a toast to the couple. Others who were called on to speak were: Osborne Quinn, present mayor of Bury, Arthur Ward, who has delivered the mail in their community for over 60 years, Father Breton and Rev. Westman who added their felicitations. John Letky, on behalf of all the grandchildren, proposed a toast to their grandparents.

Gordon expressed thanks and appreciation to their family for hosting such a lovely party, and to everyone for coming and for the many gifts, extending a warm invitation to visit them. Lena confirmed his sentiments in French. An enjoyable evening was spent dancing to the music of Art James' Orchestra. At intermission time a delicious lunch of fancy sandwiches, a variety of sweets and coffee was served buffet style by the family.

Out of town guests were from: Berlin, N.H., Plymouth, Mass., Alexandria and Kingston, Ont., Montreal, Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, Scotstown, Drummondville, St. Jerome, Knowlton, Cowansville, Sawyerville, East Angus and Stewiac, N.S. Lena Parsons, daughter of John and Mary Parsons of the Herringville neighborhood, and Gordon Dougherty, youngest son of Alex and Jessie Dougherty, were married September 15, 1928, at St. Raphael Church. They spent 49 years of their married life on the farm where Gordon was born, moving to the village in November 1977.

Joint custody becoming a Canadian trend

TORONTO (CP) — Divorced parents may still fight about everything else, but they can cooperate over their children, says Toronto child psychiatrist Edward Rosen.

As a result, the awarding of joint custody by courts is gradually becoming a trend in Canada.

A concerned and growing number of parents, lawyers, child experts and judges who deal with the shattering trauma of custody battles, say joint custody is the answer.

The term joint custody—sometimes interchanged with shared custody—means the court grants both parents an equal stake in major decisions that affect their child even after the parents go their separate ways.

Presently, the majority of custody court orders call for "sole custody, care and control," for a child by a parent. The "loser" receives access or visiting rights that are strictly defined.

Historically, children were the legal possessions of their fathers.

But popular wisdom of this century deemed that mothers were the best choice if children had to be raised by only one parent. More than 400,000 Canadian women were given sole custody of their children last year.

Recent trends however have swung toward acknowledging the importance of fathers. As one

Toronto lawyer puts it: "Fatherhood has become chic."

In the last five years, more than 100,000 Canadian fathers, including Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, have gained sole custody of their children.

Now a grassroots movement of parents and a handful of professionals are questioning the premise that only one parent is best for the child.

Edith Bater, counsellor with the Unified Family

Court in Hamilton, said "we must get away from denying children the care and love of one of their parents."

Issues around joint custody include such questions as: What does joint custody mean and which parents qualify for it?

Even advocates of joint custody disagree on the definition.

Joint custody ranges from couples who move in and out of their base home a week at a time while the children remain stationary.

ANN LANDERS SAYS:

Morally right, legally wrong

Dear Ann Landers:

I was interested in the letter from "Love Thy What?" concerning the 12-year-old who left his bicycle in the neighbor's driveway and the neighbor ran over it. I experienced the same thing but from the other side.

I am a police officer and was on duty when I had to relieve myself. Since my home was nearby, I drove the cruiser to my house and parked in the driveway. Within minutes a call of assistance went over the air. As I backed out, I heard a scraping noise and thought that I had run over a trash can. It was a bicycle that a little girl had parked directly behind my car. I moved the bike and responded to the call.

I returned home to find two irate parents complaining that I did not have the right to go home while on duty. I showed the parents where the bicycle had been parked and told them their daughter should know better than to leave anything behind a car. They became angry and foul-mouthed. Had it not been for the fact that I was personally involved, I would have arrested the father for disorderly conduct.

After consulting with my attorney, I was advised that I was responsible for the bicycle. My insurance company refused to pay because a city vehicle was involved. I did not ask the city to pay for the bicycle, since I could be subject to internal discipline for not making sure that the rear of the vehicle was clear before backing. To make a long story short, I went to the neighbor's house. They said how sorry they were, but they weren't sorry when I wrote the cheque for 100 dollars.

Sign me — Out A Hundred, But A Hundred Percent Wiser

Dear Wiser:

Your letter is a fine example of how a person can be morally right and legally wrong. Thanks for the short course.

Kay's Kitchen Korner

By Kay Taylor

With the fall weather, we will be serving more hot puddings and desserts. Here is a butterscotch sauce that I like for cottage pudding, apple pudding, etc.

BUTTERSCOTCH SAUCE
1/4 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vinegar

Boil up a minute. Add 1/4 cup of cream. (I have used evaporated milk in a pinch.) Also good is the following recipe from the late Mrs. George Wragge - very good on cottage pudding and economical.

CARAMEL SAUCE
1 teaspoon butter AND
1/2 cup white sugar browned together
Add 1/2 cup boiling water
Still till dissolved. Thicken with 1 teaspoon cornstarch mixed to a paste with cold water.

If you like batter fried fish perhaps this English recipe will please.

FISH BATTER
2 eggs beaten
Add two-thirds cup milk
1 tablespoon melted shortening
1 cup pastry flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt.

Beat smooth. Sprinkle fish with lemon juice; roll in flour. Dip in batter and fry. And when we dig our turnips...

TURNIP NOVA SCOTIA
About 2 lbs. turnip
4 medium potatoes
Cream, butter, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, pepper to taste, 1 1/2 teaspoons sugar. Cook turnip and mash well. Put in bag and squeeze out water. Cook potatoes. Mash and add remaining ingredients and beat till fluffy. Keep warm in double boiler. Any leftovers may be made into patties.

Second Bulgarian defector murdered

LONDON (Reuter) — A second Bulgarian defector working for the BBC has been found dead, the public corporation said Monday.

The body of Vladimir Simeonov, 30, was found by a neighbor in his London home after he failed to arrive at work earlier in the day, BBC television news said.

Police investigating the murder last month of another Bulgarian defector employed by the BBC, Georgi Markov, 49, said he might have been killed by a minute poisoned ball smaller than a pinhead.

Markov said before he died he had been stabbed with the poisoned tip of an umbrella in a London street.

Police said Simeonov's case is being treated as a suspicious death.

Simeonov left Bulgaria in 1971 and joined the BBC Bulgarian service a year later. Markov left Bulgaria in 1970 and also worked for the BBC Bulgarian service.

Police sources said there is no indication how Simeonov died.

Labor Party opposes leadership

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Britain's Labor government suffered an embarrassing defeat Monday at the hands of its own supporters when the annual party conference overwhelmingly rejected Prime Minister James Callaghan's wage curbs and anti-inflation policies.

Callaghan's curbs limit any future pay increases to five per cent. Prices in Britain have jumped 50 per cent in three years.

The party conference rejected any wage restraints by a vote of 2 to 1 and then defeated a separate motion to support the government's economic strategy.

Conference delegates come from local Labor parties and from trade unions. The unions control 90 per cent of conference votes and 60 per cent of the seats on the party's national executive committee. Unions are the major supporters of the Labor party and provide much of its financial support.

APPEALS FOR RESTRAINT

Callaghan and Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey had tried with appeals to the conference to avert a defeat on the votes.

Parliamentary system mooted

QUEBEC (CP) — A conference—with the theme the British Parliamentary System: An Anachronism or a Modern Reality?—will be held Oct. 11-14 at the Quebec national assembly.

Delegates from Britain, France and the United States, as well as from the federal and provincial governments, will attend the conference, a spokesman for Quebec office of interparliamentary affairs said Monday.

The U.S. delegation will be headed by Thomas O'Neil, Speaker of the House of Representatives. MP George Thomas will represent the British Parliament.

Jacques Chaban-Delmas, Speaker of the French national assembly, is to lead the delegation from France.

James Jerome, Speaker of the House of Commons, and Renaude Lapointe, Speaker of the Senate, will lead the Canadian delegation.

Carter to go to Egypt

CAIRO (CP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Monday that President Carter has accepted an invitation to come to Egypt to witness the signing of an Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty resulting from the Camp David accords.

The Egyptian foreign ministry, meanwhile, said Sadat has received and accepted an invitation from Carter to attend peace talks in Washington with Israel.

A ministry spokesman said Carter has proposed that the talks begin Oct. 12.

More women unemployed after 24

OTTAWA (CP) — Men and women share the burden of unemployment almost equally between the ages of 20 and 24, but beyond this age group, women are hit much harder.

This is one of the findings of a labor force study released Monday by Statistics Canada.

Basing its figures on the 1976 census, the study showed men and women between the ages of 20 and 24 faced unemployment rates of 11.5 per cent and 11.6 per cent respectively. At that time the national unemployment rate was 6.8 per cent.

New pope may be under 60

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The death of Pope John Paul I only 34 days after his election has made health an important new factor in the election of his successor. It may affect the tradition that the pontiff should be over 60.

"Health does count; this is a demanding position," said Humberto Cardinal Medeiros of Boston as he arrived for the funeral of the Pope Wednesday and the conclave starting Oct. 14 to elect his successor.

Franz Cardinal Koenig of Vienna referred to the papacy as too trying a task and Leo Cardinal Suenens of Belgium called it a burden. John Paul, the morning after his election, described it as "a danger."

The last pope under 60 was Pius IX, who was 54 when elected in 1846. His reign lasted 32 years, the longest in history. Since then popes have ranged in age from Benedict XV, who was 60 when elected in 1914, to John XXIII, 77 when elected in 1958.

Both John Paul I and Paul VI, his immediate predecessor, were elected at 65, considered the ideal papal age. But Paul's reign lasted 15 years and ended after several years of slowly failing health.

ALHMENT UNKNOWN

John Paul succumbed to a sudden heart attack. He suffered from rheumatism, and a niece said he was delicate and had to be careful about what he ate. But he was not known to have had a history of heart trouble.

Vatican experts say the health factor may improve the chances of one younger cardinal among the papabili, or possible popes, 57-year-old Giovanni Benelli, Archbishop of Florence. But the emphasis still is on finding another pastoral pope like John Paul, one with grass roots in a diocese instead of a man whose career has been in the bureaucracy of the Vatican Curia and its diplomatic service. Benelli has been in Florence only a year after 13 years at the Vatican and 17 years in diplomatic posts.

Deepest sympathies are extended to family, relatives and friends from the Potton community.

Korchnoi changes tactics

BAGUIO, Philippines (Reuter) - Challenger Viktor Korchnoi, believing he still has a chance to take the chess crown away from champion Anatoly Karpov, decided Monday to change his tactics in the world chess championship.

The battle enters its 12th week with today's 29th game, making it the second-longest title battle in history. Only the 1927 match—when Russian emigre Alexander Alekhine beat champion Jose Raoul Capablanca of Cuba in 34 games—has lasted longer.

US immigration changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration officials announced Monday they are loosening employment restrictions on selected groups of workers, easing passport rules for United States travellers and requiring visas from visitors in five new countries.

The changes are designed to accommodate special employment programs under federal/provincial immigration agreements, to eliminate some of the red tape created under the new Immigration Act and to permit pre-screening of visitors from five countries formerly exempt from visa requirements.

US government sued for giving LSD

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former U.S. Army private sued the U.S. government for $10 million Monday, alleging that he was given the drug LSD without his knowledge 17 years ago.

James Thornwell, 41, said the drug left him "a social and emotional cripple, chronically and painfully isolated and withdrawn from the normal experiences of life in human society."

Thornwell said he was a "a stable, healthy, highly motivated and productive individual" who had graduated first in his high school class.

'Revived' crash victim dies

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Roger Ragland, who showed signs of life after being declared dead following an auto accident last week, died Monday at Brackenridge Hospital, a hospital official said.

Ragland, 19, of Dripping Springs, Tex., suffered massive head injuries in the accident last Wednesday. He was declared dead at the hospital after the accident. But 12 hours later, doctors noticed signs of life as they prepared to remove one of his kidneys for a transplant.

After brain surgery, Ragland clung to life on a life support machine for several days before dying Monday.

Lawyer maintains secrecy

MONTREAL (CP) — A lawyer representing Commonwealth Plywood Ltd. has refused to appear before a provincial legislative committee looking into the bitter, year-old labor dispute involving the company. Pierre Fournier said Monday he was bound by professional secrecy not to discuss publicly his legal work for the company.

In a letter to Labor Minister Pierre-Marc Johnson, he refused an invitation to testify and said he would appear only if forced to do so by a committee subpoena.

Ryan: Upper incomes penalized

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's upper-income executives are unfairly penalized under the tax laws of the Parti Quebecois government, Liberal leader Claude Ryan said Tuesday.

Ryan told the Western Business Club of Montreal that Quebec's higher-than-average taxes on those earning more than $30,000 a year are detrimental to the economy.

Ryan said he would "redress" the situation if elected, implying that he favors income tax cuts for high-wage earners.

"I think the present margin between the tax burden of executives in Quebec and in other provinces, particularly Ontario, is much too large and very dangerous," he said. "I think it's a real incitation to executives to leave Quebec and not to come to Quebec if they are outside of Quebec at the moment."

Ryan was referring to provisions in the April budget, which offered tax cuts to middle-income and low-income earners while hiking taxes for Quebec's wealthier taxpayers.

"We would redress perspectives so that the fiscal burden that the executive has to bear would not be heavier, all proportions taken into account, than that of other classes of taxpayers," he said.

Under the present budget, a man with two children under 16 years old who earns $30,000 this year in Quebec will pay $1,075 more in income taxes than he would in Ontario, according to the accounting firm of Thorne, Riddell and Co.

Canadian dollar shoots back up

MONTREAL (CP) — After diving below the 84-cent mark Tuesday, the Canadian dollar shot up on a wave of free-for-all profit taking to close at 84.39 U.S. cents.

Traders said the sudden recovery—a half-cent gain over Monday's close of 83.89 U.S. cents—may be short-lived with speculators who were swept up in panic buying turning around dumping Canadian currency today.

"The Canadian market has had a reputation of being an orderly market, but this is the most disorderly market I have ever seen," one trader said.

The dollar dived in early trading, mainly in response to the release of figures showing that the Bank of Canada intervened to the tune of $1.14 billion to support the currency in September. It had spent $700 million to soak up unwanted dollars in August.

After the dollar lost about a quarter of a cent, the trend quickly reversed itself and "the rush was on" as speculators, mainly from the international money market in Chicago, started buying huge sums of Canadian dollars.

BLOODY TUESDAY
"A lot of blood was drawn on the markets," one trader said.

Another estimated that between $200 million and $300 million were purchased within a couple of hours, one trader said.

"As soon as the market saw that, panic developed," he said, adding that banks and other institutions quickly entered the fray.

"The speculators had been selling dollars, but then suddenly reversed themselves, causing some panic," another trader said.

The consensus was that the dollar's climb was a "technical adjustment" rather than a firm indication that the market considered the currency to be undervalued at its current level, the lowest since April, 1933, when it stood at 82.47 U.S. cents.

"The general feeling is that dollar deserves to be worth only 83 cents," a trader said.

In Winnipeg, the Manitoba government announced it had called off plans to borrow $100 million in Europe or Japan this fall as a result of downward pressure on the dollar.

Lavoie criticizes PQ appointment

QUEBEC (CP) — The Parti Quebecois's main representative in the annual enumeration of voters in the Montreal riding of Ste-Marie is the wife of the director-general of political party financing, the national assembly was told Tuesday.

Liberal House leader Jean-Noel Lavoie urged Premier Rene Levesque to rescind the appointment of lawyer Odette Lapalme on the grounds that it impugned the impartiality of her husband, Pierre-Olivier Boucher, in his non-partisan task.

While Lavoie viewed Mrs. Lapalme's appointment as chief PQ representative, responsible for watching over the party's interests in the selection of enumerators in the riding, Levesque dismissed the affair as "not even a tempest in a teapot."

Lavoie's suggestion irked Consumer Affairs Minister Lise Payette who rose on a point of privilege "in the name of the women of Quebec who, even when they are married, have the right to think and make their own choices."

Levesque and Ms. Payette took the tack that in today's society, a spouse cannot be kept from taking part in politics just because the husband or wife holds a sensitive post.

Guy Bisillon (PQ—Ste-Marie), said Mrs. Lapalme, a lawyer, had acted as a legal adviser for the party organization in three different ridings in the last three Quebec elections.

Boucher, a former PQ supporter, was named director-general of political party financing earlier this year. As such, he has the power to decide which parties are authorized to collect and spend funds and is responsible for making sure campaign financing rules are followed.

centre of town to cope with more hazardous traffic conditions.

Vermette graduated successfully from the course and brought Toby back home with him to Cookshire.

Toby is 18 months old, an intelligent dog with warm brown eyes, who never lets Vermette out of his sight. Since returning home Vermette has been getting Toby familiar with the area of Cookshire where he lives so that with a series of simple commands he can venture forth confidently and know that Toby will get them safely back home to the front door.

Vermette is very thankful to the Lions for giving him this opportunity. "I'm going to join the club right away," he says enthusiastically. He explained that every Leader Dog costs between $4,000 and $5,000 to train and the Lions contribute a great deal of their time and money to this project.

Citadel restoration halted

OTTAWA (CP) — The only federal public works project to be axed under the government's spending restraint program is a $2 million restoration of the Governor-General's private residence in Quebec City, a spokesman for Public Works Minister Judd Buchanan said Tuesday.

The Citadel, the private home of Governor-General Jules Léger, was destroyed by fire last year. The department of public works had already begun restoring it when Prime Minister Trudeau announced his spending restraint program Aug. 1.

The public works official said the decision to cancel the project was made at the request of Gov.-Gen. Léger, who sent a letter to the minister 10 days ago requesting that the Citadel restoration not be given special status in light of the need to cut federal expenditures.

He said the department had just concluded a project-by-project review of every current or planned outlay in its budget for the next three years and reached the conclusion that the Citadel was the only possible cancellation. A number of other projects will be trimmed or deferred, he said.

News Briefs

75% of buses fail test

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says 75 per cent of buses checked in the first two weeks of a provincial safety campaign failed to pass inspection.

The paper, noting in today's edition that the Quebec transport department is toughening its inspection system as part of a campaign to increase safety, says only 37 of 143 buses passed tests made in the province in the first two weeks of September.

Of 1,980 buses checked between January and August this year, only 20 per cent passed and inspectors ordered 86 scrapped, the Gazette says.

Voyageur drivers back on job

QUEBEC (CP) — Voyageur bus travel in most areas of the province was halted Tuesday by a one-day walkout of about 400 drivers.

The drivers, affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, stopped work to attend a meeting here on new contract offers made by management.

The previous labor contract with the company expired last May. The two parties have been unable to agree on salaries.

Turkey allows US bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Turkey has agreed to the reopening of four military bases the United States used for gathering intelligence information from the Soviet Union until they were closed in 1975, Pentagon sources said Tuesday.

The bases were shut down by the Turkish government in retaliation for the U.S. arms embargo imposed against Turkey after Turkish troops invaded Cyprus in 1974.

King Khaled undergoes surgery

CLEVELAND (AP) — King Khaled of Saudi Arabia underwent open-heart surgery Tuesday and was listed in satisfactory condition at the Cleveland Clinic, hospital officials said.

A hospital statement Tuesday said a double coronary bypass procedure was performed by Dr. Floyd Loop, head of thoracic and cardiovascular surgery.

Khaled, 64, ruler of oil-rich Saudi Arabia and a key figure in efforts to gain Arab acceptance of the latest Middle East peace effort, arrived here Sept. 27. He underwent open-heart at the clinic six years ago.

Trudeau tours election areas

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will fly through Newfoundland, Quebec and Ontario this week to meet by-election candidates, tour a fish plant and break ground at a new Ford plant, his office announced Tuesday.

A statement from his office said Trudeau will Thursday fly by transport department jet to Newfoundland where he will meet Stephenville residents during a half-hour main street walk.

Later that afternoon he will fly to Cornerbrook for a tour of Barry's Fish Plant before departing for Deer Lake, Nfld., where he will meet local Liberals.

Saskatchewan twice defeated

OTTAWA (CP) — Saskatchewan suffered two major legal defeats Tuesday when the country's highest court rejected potash pro-rationing, then ordered it to pay interest on millions of illegally collected tax dollars.

The Supreme Court of Canada ruled that the province's potash pro-rationing program, established in 1969, is unconstitutional. It also said the province is obligated to pay interest on $9 million collected from Canadian Industrial Gas and Oil Ltd. (CIGOL) under an illegal mineral income tax and crude oil surcharge.

In both cases the rulings went 7 to 0 against Saskatchewan's New Democratic government, which is in the midst of a campaign for re-election.

Ex-FBI informer indicted

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gary Thomas Rowe, a former FBI informer, has been indicted on a first-degree murder charge in the 1965 slaying of a civil-rights worker, authorities said Tuesday.

The indictment returned by a grand jury at nearby Hayneville two weeks ago was made public when District Attorney Jesse Bryant filed extradition papers with Attorney General Bill Baxley's office.

The indictment charges that Rowe "unlawfully and with malice aforethought killed Viola Gregg Liuzzo by shooting her with a pistol."

Artist carpets Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Christo, the man who covered a mountain gorge in Colorado with a curtain and put up a 40-kilometre draped fence near San Francisco, was busy carpeting five kilometres of Kansas City sidewalks with shimmering orange-yellow fabric Tuesday.

Seventy helpers recruited by the Bulgarian-born artist began laying down the nylon fabric on the pathways of Loose Park here Monday. They expect to complete their $100,000 job, dubbed The Wrapped Walk Ways, by today.

It will call people's attention to their feet and the way they walk, says Christo, 43.

15 dead in Finnish air crash

HELSINKI (AP) — Finnish government and business leaders were among 15 persons killed in the crash of a military transport aircraft Tuesday night.

The group was returning from an annual civil defence course when the twin-engined air force DC-3 crashed into a lake and exploded.

An air force spokesman said the victims included three members of parliament—Kirsti Hollming, a Conservative; Arto Merisaari, a Communist; and Olavi Majlander of the Christian party.

Also on board the aircraft were Gov. Antti Pohjonen of Vaasa province, Olli Varho, director of IBM Finland; two other company directors, the manager of the Central Bureau of Statistics, the director of the Export Guarantees Institute and the director of the justice ministry.

The plane, which had a crew of three, crashed into Lake Juuruvessi shortly after taking off from the airport at Kuopio.

Unemployment debate rejected

QUEBEC (CP) — Speaker Clement Richard rejected a request Tuesday by Liberal Andre Raynaud for an immediate debate in the national assembly on unemployment in Quebec.

Raynaud, who represents the Montreal riding of Outremont, moved for the debate saying: "The situation is urgent because it has lasted too long."

Richard, after referring to precedents on the admissibility of such a motion, suggested that Raynaud could bring up the question Thursday when the assembly will consider government policy on employment in the construction industry.

Equal blame for bridge accident

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled Tuesday that both engineer and contractor shared equal responsibility for a 1965 accident in which part of a bridge under construction in Trois-Rivieres, Que., collapsed, killing 12 workers.

The court determined that the successors of the late engineer Georges Demers must pay $700,000 to Dufresne Engineering and McNamara, the contractors in the project.

Subsequent to the accident, Dufresne and McNamara had to pay $1.4 million to rebuild a support which was partly destroyed when the bridge collapsed. The company then sued Demers, a consulting engineer for the Trois-Rivieres Bridge Corp., claiming a design error was to blame.

Quebec car industry underdeveloped

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's automotive industry has been "under-developed since the very beginning of Canadian Confederation," Rodrigue Tremblay, Quebec industry minister, charged Tuesday.

Responding to questions in the national assembly, Tremblay said the Parti Quebecois government would do everything possible to get its just part of the auto assembly and parts industry, now concentrated in Ontario.

Insurance agents criticized

QUEBEC (CP) — Insurance agents face a "flagrant conflict of interest" by being paid on commission, says consumer advocate Phil Edmunston.

This encourages the agents to sell consumers the most expensive policy possible, Edmunston said in a Tuesday speech to a convention of Quebec insurance brokers here. Edmunston, who is president of the Automobile Protection Association, also criticized the practice of "blackmailing" someone into buying all his insurance policies—automobile, house—from the same company by offering one kind of coverage only if the others are also purchased.

Anesthetist rightfully dismissed

FREDERICTON (CP) — An anesthetist who once kicked and punched another doctor and who on occasion would wander away, leaving a patient unattended under anesthesia, has lost her appeal against dismissal by a hospital in Campbellton, N.B.

In a judgment filed Monday, Chief Justice A.J. Cormier of the Queen's Bench division of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick dismissed charges brought by Dr. Celia Valderama against the Bay of Chaleur Soldiers Memorial Hospital for wrongful dismissal last year.

Noting evidence that her behavior followed an affair with a male medical practitioner of whom she became jealous, the chief justice said hospital authorities would have been remiss in their duties if they had not fired her.

The jurist added that it is difficult to understand why medical authorities so long tolerate colleagues who endanger the lives of their patients.

Reviewing testimony, he said he could not help "but sense a tendency, especially among some medical practitioners, to minimize Dr. Valderama's derelict of duty."

Fighting escalates in Beirut

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Shellfire engulfed the Christian east side of the Lebanese capital today in one of the biggest battles so far between Syrian troops and rightist militias.

The right-wing Falangist Party's radio, mouthpiece of the predominantly-Christian militias, estimated about 500 persons killed or wounded when the fighting with heavy artillery, rockets and tanks intensified during the night.

Somoza asserts authority

MANAGUA (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza said Tuesday he wants to quell the civil crisis in Nicaragua to save it from Communists and protect all Central America from economic chaos.

"If Nicaragua goes down the drain economically, then the rest of Central America will also go down the drain economically," Somoza said in an interview with The Associated Press.

Bulgarian deaths puzzle Yard

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard sought to determine Tuesday whether the death of a Bulgarian defector in a fall down his stairs was linked to the "poisoned-umbrella" murder of a fellow Bulgarian dissident.

Anti-terrorist chief James Nevill said that so far nothing suspicious has been found at the home of Vladimir Simeonov, 30-year-old bachelor killed in the fall Monday.

Outdoor funeral for Pope

VATICAN CITY (CP) — As heavy rain subsided today Vatican officials said they hope to go ahead with plans for an outdoor funeral for Pope John Paul I.

The Congregation of Cardinals is making a final decision on whether to go ahead with the outdoor ceremony, where 200,000 could be present, or move the funeral into St. Peter's Basilica, which has a capacity of 30,000.

The Family reassessed

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government ought to increase family allowances, revise its social assistance program and set up a minimum guaranteed annual income plan, says a report presented Tuesday to Social Affairs Minister Denis Lazure.

Obituary

LORRAINE SARGENT of Rock Island

A highly respected and much loved person, Mrs. Lorraine Sargent died Thursday, September 21st, 1978, at the age of 55.

The funeral service was held at Sacred Heart Church, Stanstead, September 25, at 10 a.m.

Interment at St. Mary's Cemetery, Stanstead.

Bearers were Wynn Dustin, Reg Bishop, Carol Goodsell, Wilder Hatch, Thomas Batchelor and Raymond Bodion.

Mrs. Sargent was born in St. Edward, Que., June 4, 1923, a daughter of Gertrude (Sharolin) and Joe Soutiere.

On July 12, 1975, she was united in marriage with Mr. Bruce Sargent in Lennoxville.

On Thursday, March 30, Lorraine was very proud to officially open the doors of Hillside Domaine, formerly the Lyman Hill house. Lorraine always wanted to take care of the elderly, and she was able to do just that. She also enjoyed dancing, playing bingo, and was a member of a dart team this year called the Eagles.

Left to mourn, are her husband, Bruce, her children, Sylvia, Norman and Marie Josie, her mother, Gertrude Soutiere, stepchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. Jerald Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Sargent, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sargent, Miss Marlyn Sargent, Miss Mary Sargent, all of Sherbrooke, thirteen brothers and sisters, brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Garth Peasley and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones.

Those attending the funeral from a distance were from Brantford, Ont., Sherbrooke, Granby, Sawyerville, Brompton, Richmond, Mansonville, Waterloo, Maine and many from the Three Villages.

Clubs meet

ROCK ISLAND (DB) — The Lucky 13 Club held their monthly get-together at the home of Mrs. Doris Cunningham, Rock Island, in the evening of Sept. 20, with nine members and one guest, Mrs. Vedena Dubois.

These ladies were soon busy playing bingo with Mrs. Vera Sisco being the lucky marathon winner.

Later in the evening, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Cunningham and co-hostess Mrs. Evelyn Kennesson.

The hostess for the October meeting will be decided at a later date.

ROCK ISLAND (CT) — The ladies of the Chit Chat club met at the home of Mrs. Violet Rieher in Rock Island for their September meeting, with seven members present for the evening.

Bingo was played during the evening with marathons being claimed by Pearl Crawford, Mable Crawford, Mary Lees and Madge Miller. Door prize won by Mary Lees.

To end an enjoyable evening, the hostess, Mrs. Rieher and Mrs. Paul Crawford served delicious refreshments.

Retirement

ROCK ISLAND (DB) — Good wishes are extended to Elmore Moss as he commences his early retirement from Butterfield division on Oct. 1st.

He has been employed by Butterfield for thirty eight years, four years as a machine operator on cutter turning and the balance in the tool room.

Elmore has been a loyal, conscientious employee and will be missed by his co-workers.

Everyone at Butterfield's wishes Elmore and Daisy a pleasant retirement.

short notes...

Canadian team wins gold

Canada's equestrian team won the gold medal at this year's world three-day championships held at Kentucky Horse Park, U.S.A. For Sherbrooke rider Danielle Bergeron, however, it was a sad occasion. Her horse, Gold Patch, an eight-year-old thorough-bred chestnut gelding went lame after the dressage event and had to retire from the competition.

Gold Patch is now back in his stables at the Ruth-Ny Riding Academy, Sherbrooke and should be fully recovered by next year.

ETIAC roundup

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Bishop's College School won two of three home soccer games yesterday against Richmond Regional, losing only the junior contest.

Clive Perry Gore scored twice as the BCS bantams took a 3-0 victory. Baldwin Evans got the other tally. Willie Stenason and Roger Therberge accounted for the seniors' markers while Mark Patterson had the RRR's goal in a 2-1 final. The Richmond juniors won 2-0 but the names of scorers weren't available.

A host of Eastern Townships Interscholastic Athletic Conference (ETIAC) games is on hand today. BCS hosts three boys soccer teams from Stanstead College as well as junior and senior football squads from Alexander Galt Regional. The ETIAC and ETWIAAC cross-country meet is being held at BCS also.

Stanstead footballers are at Massey-Vanier Regional in a senior match while the same two schools battle in junior competition at Stanstead. Richmond Senior boys soccer team travels to Galt for an afternoon tilt.

NHL brawl probed

NEW YORK (AP) — Coaches Fred Shero of New York Rangers and Bob McCammon of Philadelphia Flyers will meet with John Ziegler here today as the National Hockey League president continues his inquiry into the teams' bench-clearing brawl during an exhibition game last week.

The 21-minute fight, which resulted in the ejection of seven Flyers and five Rangers, produced more than $5,000 in fines and caused the suspension of left winger Frank Beaton of the Rangers for the first regular-season game in which he participates. Beaton was judged to have been first to leave his bench to become involved.

Teofilo to fight Ali

CHICAGO (AP) — Teofilo Stevenson, two-time Olympic heavyweight boxing champion, has received permission from the Cuban government to fight Muhammad Ali in a five-city series in the United States, it was announced at a news conference Tuesday.

"It depends on Ali and the TV networks for it to come off," said Bob Arum, chairman of the board of Top Rank Inc., a promotion firm which has handled many of Ali's previous fights.

Wade to be released today

MONTREAL (CP) — Quarterback Sonny Wade, who returned to play Sunday after knee surgery, entered hospital Tuesday night as a precaution against infection and was to be released again today, Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League said Tuesday.

Wade went all the way as quarterback in Montreal's 42-22 loss to Edmonton Eskimos at the Olympic Stadium.

Wade fared better than running back Ken Starch and receiver Bob Gaddis. Examination of his damaged ankle showed no break, but Starch was expected to be placed on the injury list. John O'Leary may come off it to replace him.

Gaddis lost several teeth in the Edmonton game. "He was fuzzy after being hit late in the second quarter," said head coach Joe Scannella. "He had half a dozen teeth knocked out. Some were broken at the roots. He underwent dental surgery Monday."

Smeaton dies

MONTREAL (CP) — J. Cooper Smeaton, a trustee of the Stanley Cup since 1946 and a member of the Hockey Hall of Fame, died Tuesday of a heart attack at Royal Victoria Hospital. He was 88.

Born in 1890 at Carleton Place, Ont., Smeaton was named to the officiating staff of the National Hockey Association, forerunner of the National Hockey League, in 1913.

Howe still wows 'em in Detroit

Gordie Howe still wows 'em in Detroit. It was as if the final game of the Stanley Cup playoffs were up for grabs Tuesday night at Olympia Stadium. More than 14,000 persons crowded into the 14,700-seat arena, primarily for one reason: Gordie Howe.

The legendary former National Hockey League superstar with Detroit—now wearing the colors of the World Hockey Association's New England Whalers—was playing at Olympia for the first time since he retired from the Red Wings after the 1970-71 season.

And his sons Mark and Marty also were on hand for the exhibition game between the two teams from rival leagues.

Fans with split loyalties couldn't have asked for more: Detroit won 7-5 and Gordie scored a goal—with assists from Mark and Marty.

New York Islanders thrashed Toronto Maple Leafs 7-4 and Los Angeles Kings blasted St. Louis Blues 7-2 in NHL contests. In other games, Quebec Nordiques of the WHA blanked Pittsburgh Penguins of the NHL, 3-0. Minnesota North Stars of the NHL, dumped Edmonton Oilers of the WHA 4-2. Birmingham Bulls of the WHA defeated Philadelphia Firebirds of the American Hockey League 5-2 and Maine Mariners of the AHL, humiliated Washington Capitals of the NHL 7-1.

'WELCOME HOME'

Banners blaring "Welcome Home Gordie!" hung from the balcony as Howe took the ice for pre-game warmups. The 50-year-old right-winger got a thunderous standing ovation.

It was even louder when he scored his goal at 4:47 of the third period, skating around Detroit defenceman Perry

Miller and firing a wrist shot from the circle to the left of goalie Rogie Vachon.

Howe lifted his stick to the cheers, which then grew louder.

When the game ended, the boisterous fans chanted, "GOR-dee, GOR-dee, GOR-dee," and pounded the glass at rinkside waiting for him to answer their shouts and come back for a bow.

But he never came out for an encore and, after 15 minutes, the crowd boomed and went home.

"I just couldn't get back out," Howe said. "There was a hell of a crowd out there."

Howe was in his 12th season with the Red Wings when Willie Huber was born in Germany in 1958. Huber, Detroit's No. 1 draft choice, scored two goals against the Whalers and assisted on another.

Beavers blast Hull 5-2

HULL — Alan Haworth scored a pair of goals last night as the Sherbrooke Beavers downed Hull Olympiques 5-2 for their third straight Quebec Major Junior Hockey League triumph this season.

In addition to scoring back-to-back goals for the Beavers, Haworth also picked up an assist to give the rookie four points in his first five regular season matches.

Serge Boisvert started the Beavers out early in the opening frame, converting the passing combination of his linemates Louis Begin and Jimmie Mann at 3:56. Mario Chartrand and Andre Larocque replied for Hull by 11:02 but Jean Chouinard evened the count on a powerplay effort at 13:49 from Mann and Haworth. Haworth hit the mark behind Daniel Labrecque at 16:51 to give the Beavers a 3-2 edge going into the second period. Francois James and Chouinard assisted on Sherbrooke's third tally.

Haworth gave Sherbrooke another goal at 15:43 in the second period, assisted by Chouinard, while Jeff Leverman was sitting out a minor penalty. Mann capped the scoring in the third period with his second goal of the season at 5:10, aided by Begin and Boisvert.

Corrado Micalef saw his first regular season action last night after he replaced Yvan Charbonneau at 3:42 in the opening period. He blocked 30 of Hull's shots to record the victory as the Beavers blasted the Olympiques' netminder 36 times.

Referee Robert Olivier called only five minor infractions during the very calm contest in front of 2,601 fans, three of them going to Sherbrooke.

In the other QMJHL game last night, Cornwall Royals doubled the Shawinigan Cataractes 8-4 in a penalty-riddled tilt. Referee Yvon Belanger dished out 208 minutes in penalties in the match, 148 of them in the second period which saw nine minors, six majors, one misconduct, three double game misconducts and a triple game misconduct.

Mark Crawford scored an amazing five times for the Royals, with Dave Ezard getting two and Newell Brown scoring the last marker. Benoit Desjardins, Sylvain Cote, Pierre Dumouchel and Pierre Dumond scored for Shawinigan. The Royals outshot their opponents 40-31 in front of 1,761 home spectators.

Three Beavers, all on the same line, are currently in the league's top 10 list of scorers. Louis Begin has 10 points on four goals and six assists tying him for third place with two others. Serge Boisvert and Jimmie Mann and both tied with nine points.

Sherbrooke is in lone possession of second place in the Dilio Division after last night's win with six points, two points behind undefeated Quebec who has a game in hand and two ahead of undefeated Trois Rivieres who has three games in hand.

Games tonight has Quebec in Verdun and Montreal hosts Trois Rivieres. The Beavers return to the Sports Palace for their next encounter on Thursday night at 8 p.m. against the Montreal Juniors.

Jackson carries Yanks to 7-1 victory

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Reggie Jackson capped a perfect night with a huge three-run homer in the eighth inning Tuesday night, carrying New York Yankees to a 7-1 victory over Kansas City Royals in the opening game of the 1978 American League baseball championship series.

Jackson, who rewrote the record book with three home runs in the last game of last year's World Series, unloaded against relief ace Al Hrabosky, sealing a New York victory that was constructed around the air-tight pitching of a pair of young right-handers—Jim Beattie and Ken Clay.

Beattie and Clay, both second-line hurlers, delivered a two-hitter to help New York to a 1-0 lead in the best-of-five playoff. The second game was scheduled for 3:30 p.m. EDT today.

The Royals were still in the game until the eighth inning when Mickey Rivers and Lou Piniella singled against reliever Steve Mingori. At that point, Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog went to his bullpen for his No. 1 reliever, Hrabosky.

The man they call "The Mad Hungarian" went into his psyche act, stepping about 10 feet off the mound with his back to Jackson, before pitching.

On the second pitch, after a mighty swing and miss at the first one, Jackson destroyed the psyche act and the tight game with a towering home run that sailed well over the right-center field fence in front of the waterfalls that decorate Royals Stadium.

It was Jackson's third hit of the game. Earlier, he had singled and doubled and also walked twice, pacing a 16-hit attack that wore out the Royals.

Forced to start Beattie, their No. 4 pitcher, because they had to use ace Ron Guidry, 25-3, in the divisional playoff a day earlier, the Yankees were wary about this opener—especially because they were going up against Kansas City's top hurler, 21-game winner Dennis Leonard.

But Beattie, a 24-year-old rookie who began this season in the minors, pitched brilliantly until the sixth inning, allowing two hits. When his control got him in trouble, Clay—seldom used this season but a key man Tuesday night because bullpen ace Rich Gossage had pitched three innings on Monday—came on to preserve the victory.

Beattie, 6-9 during the regular season, did not allow a hit until the fifth inning, when Al Cowens opened with a checked-swing single to centre on a two-strike pitch.

By then, New York had ganged up on Leonard, knocking him out with a barrage of hits that built a 4-0 lead.

The Yankees beat a steady tattoo on Leonard, nicking him for single runs in the second and third innings and then picked up two more in the fifth.

New York got on the scoreboard in the second when Roy White doubled with one out and Bucky Dent, the home run hero of the playoff victory at Boston, drilled a single to centre with two out.

In the third, it was Jackson with a two-out double off the right-center field wall and then Graig Nettles with a triple high off the right field wall for a 2-0 New York lead.

Beattie held the Royals hitless through the first four innings and in the fifth, the Yankees added to their lead. Piniella opened with a single to right, the ninth hit off Leonard. Herzog brought Mingori in from the bullpen to face the left-handers who were coming up for New

PHILLIES 'TALKING TALL'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies were talking tall going into tonight's National League playoff opener, while Los Angeles Dodgers were relatively reserved.

"I just feel we're ready for an offensive explosion," said Mike Schmidt, among several Phils who haven't been their dynamite selves at bat this season. "But I don't think it matters what we do offensively because I think our pitching is going to stop them."

"We'll win it in three," Phillie manager Danny Ozark said casually in the dugout as he awaited the best-of-five set that starts with two games here and finishes in Los Angeles. "I think our pitching is as good as Los Angeles'. Our defence is better."

"We're about 20 points below the team batting average we had last year. But I really expect the guys in so-called prolonged slumps to be a hell of a lot better hitters than they were last year."

The Dodgers worked out later Thursday, and this is how they reacted to the Phillies' confidence.

"They're supposed to feel confident. They're giving their honest opinions about how they feel," said second baseman Dave Lopes. "All I know is that we'll find out in the next five days who is the best."

Manager Tom Lasorda, asked about Ozark's prediction of a sweep, gave the same answer again and again.

SAID IT LAST YEAR

"That's what he said last year," said Lasorda, whose team ousted the Phils in four games in the 1977 playoffs. "He is going to say what he believes," Lasorda added. "But opinions are like noses, everybody has one. We came here to win, and we feel like that's what we are going to do. But I'm not going to predict how many games it will take. I'm not that smart."

Philadelphia starting pitcher Larry Christenson takes a deceptive 13-14 record into tonight's match-up with Dodger starter Burt Hooton, 19-10.

In Christenson's 14 losses, the Phillies scored a total of 21 runs.

"I won't talk about that except to say that it's made me a better pitcher," he said. "I feel I've pitched my best baseball this past year."

Lasorda feels Hooton has been his best pitcher this season. "He's done so much to get us here. In my opinion, he's the Cy Young award winner," said Lasorda.

Hooton figures to face a strong test from the Phillies and a crowd of 64,000 at Veterans Stadium. In the third game of the playoffs here last season, he lasted less than two innings. Angry at the umpire's calls, badgered on each pitch by the roaring crowd, he was yanked after walking four batters in a row.

Philadelphia fans will almost certainly try to intimidate him with noise tonight.

"I don't have to get the fans out," said Hooton. "I have to get the Phillies out."

As English Canadians left their farms and rural way of life to move to more urbanized centres, the French-English ratio in the Eastern Townships began to change, gradually but steadily.

1954: The Canadian Journal

French-English ratio changed gradually

Editor's note: Dr. Aileen Ross published a study of population growth and shifts in the Eastern Townships in a 1954 edition of The Canadian Journal of Economics and Political Science. The following excerpt is the first part of a series of reprints from the journal.

By AILEEN D. ROSS
McGill University

The population of the Eastern Townships of the province of Quebec has been growing steadily since this area was first settled in the early nineteenth century, but its composition has been gradually changing from English-speaking to French-speaking Canadians. This change has been due to urban and industrial forces which have both influenced the English Canadians to leave the Townships and the French Canadians to use the area as a new frontier for their surplus population. The impact of these forces affected the English, the first settlers, sooner than the French. As early as 1860, influences stemming from the cities gradually caused drastic changes in their way of life. These included a declining birth-rate, mechanization of farms, and ambitions for a higher and more sophisticated standard of living. Also, the agricultural products of the English Canadians entered the wider provincial and national markets before those of the French, another factor influential in changing their mode of life.

The English speaking group moved to more urbanized parts of Canada.

This earlier orientation of the English-speaking group to urban patterns has caused them to move slowly out of the Townships to the more urbanized parts of Canada. Census figures show that this movement has been going on since 1861. At the same time, French Canadians have been steadily moving in, so that now the 12 counties comprising the Eastern Townships are from 70 to 99 per cent French.

During this change-over of population, the English Canadians have become increasingly hostile to, and afraid of the French, for they feel that the movement of the French Canadians into the Townships is a well-organized scheme to push them out completely. In fact, neither the French nor the English understand the underlying processes which have caused their changed positions. Nor do they understand that group hostility tends to strengthen with increased competition, particularly when two groups differ so markedly from each other that the one can be clearly identified by the other. Language, religion outlook, and mode of life keep the French and English in the Townships so far apart that each group still feels its own identity strongly, and there are few signs of assimilation. In fact, the English seldom identify themselves with the French even when there are too few of them left in a community to make a satisfactory life of their own.

Group relations can only be thoroughly understood by studying their effect on the structure of each group.

Sociologists claim that group relations and/or antagonisms can only be thoroughly understood by studying their effect on the structure of each group. The Eastern Townships, with its long gradual history of population change and group interaction, is an excellent area in which to study this phenomenon. Compton County was chosen as the main focus of this study, although trends in three adjacent counties were also studied, for enough old English Canadian families were left in these counties to permit the French Canadian invasion to be studied in perspective. As the proportion of French Canadians varies in each community, a cross-sectional analysis could be made of the reaction of English and French institutions at every state of population change-over, and the corresponding attitudes of the one group to the other. The material was collected over a period of 6 years, mainly through participant observation and intensive interviewing. A French Canadian student from Laval University assisted with the interviewing.

The English felt that their continued existence in the Townships was threatened by French infiltration.

The following analysis attempts to show the reactions of the economic, political, educational, and religious institutions of the English Canadians to the change-over of population, and the attitudes of the English to the French as these changes occur. The study must be understood in the context of the last stages of invasion, when the English are aware that the inevitability of the French infiltration threatens their continued existence in the Townships. Consequently, every "move" of the French is watched by them with suspicion, and is interpreted in terms of their fears and feelings of insecurity. In this situation, rumours will tend to increase, and attitudes to the other group will be formulated or changed in terms of hearsay evidence.

Two conditions are necessary if an institution is to carry on its essential functions. In the first place, enough people must continue to agree on its value and purpose to keep on supporting it, and secondly, it must be able to continue to recruit functionaries to take over its offices. Any change in the racial, religious, or ethnic character of a population, or a change in its sex or age composition is thus a potential institutional crisis. In the Townships, the functionaries of the economic and political institutions have gradually changed from English to French, and the French have taken over the support of these institutions as the English have left. However, the educational and religious institutions of the English differ so much from those of the French that they have not attracted French support, and so have died out and been replaced by French. The following descriptions trace in detail the way in which these changes have come about.

ECONOMIC INSTITUTIONS

Two types of industry must be considered in an analysis of the change-over of economic institutions from English to French in the Townships. On the one hand, there is the type of industry which, although situated in the Townships, is owned and controlled by English Canadian, English, or American agencies outside the Townships which produce for a national or world market rather than a local one. These are large enterprises which usually draw people from the surrounding country into the towns and cities in which they are established. Their arrival is at first welcomed by the English, for they have long feared that the depletion of local timber limits and the consequent closing-down of local industries, coupled with the movement of their young people to the cities, mean that they will no longer be able to hold out against the French. They believe that the new industries will provide jobs which will induce their children to remain at home. However, careful study shows that these industries tend to bring in their own top labour force and only recruit the local people for the less skilled, less interesting, and less remunerative jobs which do not attract the young English Canadians. Moreover, as industry in the more remote Townships has a somewhat protected position, and labour is not highly organized, conditions of labour and pay are generally not attractive enough to hold the young, vigorous English workers.

So, although the English regard a new industry as a great asset to their survival, in reality it may have quite the opposite effect. For, as the incoming French do not think in terms of an urban standard of living, they are willing to move in to take the unskilled industrial jobs which the English reject. The occupational hierarchy of this kind of industrial enterprise will thus finally be composed of a top group of "imported" Englishmen while the lower positions will be manned by French.

The second kind of industry is that which is at first owned and financed by local English Canadians and which serves the local market. A new industry of this kind is also welcomed eagerly by the English, for they see it too as a barrier against the French, and a means of keeping their community English. However, it also turns out to be a short-term psychological boost rather than a long-term asset. For top positions in these local industries are few, and are not always occupied by the local English but by trained personnel brought in from outside. Thus these industries do not act as effective career lines for the more ambitious English youth in the invaded towns. The lower economic positions come to be occupied, as in the case of the larger industries, by the French. Gradually, French Canadian capital will move in to buy up most of these English-owned industries or to set up industries on its own, and so these smaller industrial enterprises eventually become "French."

Both language groups welcomed new industry, but its effects were not always positive.

So the coming of industry has not kept the local English in the Townships, but in fact has aided the invasion of the French by supplying them with more job opportunities than the former agricultural economy.

Commercial Enterprises

Another effect of the coming of industry and the consequent increase in French population has been that the French have been able to gradually take over the local commercial enterprises. This change-over occurs in a rather typical way. It begins by the English storekeeper engaging an English clerk who can talk French when French Canadians begin to patronize the store. Then, as the French increase in number and show signs of becoming the majority in the village, the storekeeper will hire a French Canadian clerk. By this time the storekeeper's son may have become aware of the "writing on the wall" and has decided not to take over the store.

Eldest son: We feel that we're fighting a losing battle here. The French are going to come in, and so the young people leave because they don't think there'll be anything for them to do. I don't feel that there's any use taking over father's store when I grow up, because I couldn't carry it on if there were only French here in the village. If a person speaks French it helps. You could carry on a store a little longer. But even then you couldn't compete against a French storekeeper in the village.

When the English owner realizes that the village has become too "French" for his son to succeed him he will sell the store to a French Canadian.

The turn-over of any business enterprise from one owner to another may be a crisis or even a tragedy to the man who must give it up. But if the turn-over of ownership in the Townships is from English to French then it is a crisis for the whole group. For it is a clear sign that the French have gained control over one more area of the economy, and the new French owner has advanced to a position of some authority and prestige in the community. Conversely, the English will have lost an important leadership position. The first time this change-over occurs in an "English" town or village the feelings of fear and insecurity are great. But if it is the last English enterprise to change hands, the invasion will have advanced so far that the change will merely indicate to the few remaining English that the long-expected end is in sight.

"We feel that we're fighting a losing battle here."

Another concrete sign of the invasion is the building of a new French store. This is as much a shock to the English as the building of a Catholic church or school, for the remaining English merchants feel that the French will now confine their purchases to the new store, and they will thus lose an important block of clients.

Even nationally owned commercial enterprises such as banks must eventually yield to the French invasion. For the English-owned banks tend to leave and sell their properties to banks under French control when the French population is large enough to support the latter.

Unless local prejudices affect the inner workings of a plant, they do not disturb the wheels of industry, for factories and other large industries cater to outside markets which are not affected by local attitudes. But prejudice can be of vital concern to the small local commercial enterprise, for it may be the deciding factor in prompting a client to patronize one shop or garage as compared to another. Ethnic or religious prejudices may therefore determine the success or failure of a local shop. The English now feel so insecure in the Townships that they fear French prejudice and possibly discrimination in all areas of the economy. This feeling is strengthened by the fact that as they themselves try to keep their communities "English", they are sure that the French, in turn, try to keep theirs "French" when they have the power to do so. Many informants told of cases of what seemed to them to be actual or threatened discrimination. Some insisted that the priest often told his people not to patronize English stores when there was a French one in the village. Even the English who held government positions were alarmed about their jobs, for they believed that the French, as they increased in number, gradually gained the power to influence these appointments. Thus each English Canadian who is in a competitive position now fears discrimination from the French.

The building of a new French store came as a shock to the English.

As commercial enterprises can generally accommodate themselves gradually to the new French clientele they can withstand the invasion by slowly turning over to French ownership. When the French take over control of such enterprises, the English Canadians not only lose their hold on the economy of the area, but also some of the important top prestige positions of the community. This closes more channels of advancement for the young English Canadians.

Eventually more channels of advancement were closed to young English Canadians.

The formal control of a community is centred in its political institutions. As they represent all members and their controls are all-pervasive, it follows that political positions are symbols of great importance. The stages by which the French have taken over from the English are shown most clearly in the way political control passes from our ethnic group to the other as the invasion proceeds. Since the municipal vote in the province of Quebec is restricted to property owners, the gradual buying of land by the French has double significance for the English, for it means that with the acquisition of property the French not only take over the actual land, but also gain the power to take over the municipal council.

French and English Canadians in the Townships have been under the same political system long enough to agree on its purpose, but their values are so different that they have different conceptions of how political power should be manipulated. The English Canadians believe that the British are leaders par excellence, and that they have inherited the ability to lead. So they look askance at any encroachment of the French Canadians on the realm of political authority, and resist it with all the means at their disposal. They are sure that if the French gain municipal control they will not deal with the problems of the community in the way in which the English would, nor will the rights of the English be protected.

In spite of the concern each has to gain and hold political power, the two groups have lived side by side long enough to have worked out their major mutual political problems. So there is seldom open violence between them even at election time when tempers are hot. However, both French and English informants told of well-laid local schemes to gain political control at the expense of the other group. It was evident, in fact, that it is in the political realm that the English make their strongest attempt to resist the incoming French, and are most successful in holding out against them. One reason for this is that the French do not automatically gain representation as their numerical strength increases: most of their number are minors, so they have proportionately fewer voters; their incomes are proportionately smaller than those of the English, so they do not own as much property. The large industrial enterprises, too, are still largely owned by English-speaking people who control their tax payments. All these factors combine to give more voting power to the English, and largely explain why they can hold on to the municipal council long after they cease to be the numerical majority in a community.

The stages by which the French gradually take over political control of the Townships can perhaps be most clearly seen in the turn-over of the municipal council from English to French. Thirteen of the municipalities of Compton County were settled by English Canadians and began with English mayors and councillors. These have now been either completely taken over by the French or are in the process of becoming French. The first step of the transfer is the election of a councillor to represent the French population. He will be either an English Catholic or a bilingual French Canadian who has lived long enough in the vicinity for the English to consider him "almost English." As the French buy more property they gradually get to the position where they can elect more representatives from their own group, and at last the stage is reached when they are strong enough to elect a French mayor. The well-known gentleman's agreement is then introduced whereby the office of mayor will alternate between the two groups, one year being filled by a French Canadian and the next by an English Canadian. By this time the French are numerous enough to introduce their own language at council meetings. Both French and English will be spoken, and the agenda and minutes will be written in the two languages. The next stage is reached when the gentleman's agreement to alternate the office of mayor is overlooked. By this time the English will have lost the right to use their language at council meetings. The last stage arrives when the sole remaining English representative on the council is "pushed" out (in the words of the English) by the French, and the use of English as an official language comes to an end.

The following descriptions of the political situation in some of the municipalities of Compton County, and the attitudes expressed by the English, will illustrate their reactions at each stage of this political struggle.

It was at the political level that the English made their strongest attempt to resist.

In Beeville, which is 30 per cent French, there is only one Frenchman on the council, "and he's almost more English than French. His children go to the English school." The English tend to bring in the "thin-edge-of-the-wedge" rationalization at this stage to justify their stand against admitting more French to power.

Minister's daughter: I was surprised at Dad's attitude to the Frenchman who has decided to run in the elections. The Frenchman is an R.C., but everyone likes him. He's a good chap, perfectly bilingual and almost English. But Dad says that it's the thin edge of the wedge. This man is acceptable to the English, but the next thing they'll have a Frenchman who isn't!

The French of Chipville, who represent 35 per cent of the population, are represented on the council by an English Catholic. The English Protestants showed great pleasure at their ability to keep the French out of office:

Councillor: The municipal Council is one place where the French haven't yet pushed in. There was a Frenchman on the council for awhile, and he had a hard time of it! (laughs) He wouldn't stand for another term! Smith represents them now, he's an English Catholic, but he's more "English" than "Catholic". He doesn't like the French any more than we do!

However, the mayor of Chipville is sensitive to changes of feeling in the community, for in speaking of the council he said: "The French will have to have another representative soon, they're getting uneasy."

On the municipal council of Elet, where the French form 45 per cent of the population, there are 3 French councillors and 3 English, but the English have managed to maintain an English mayor in office.

In Atown, which is now 57 per cent French, the stage of political turn-over has been reached at which the mayor is French and the feeling of the English against the French is very pronounced. Many English informants declared that the French put on pressure to elect French representatives and to manipulate the decisions of the council.

Part II: The political takeover.

FOLK MUSICAL A HIT

MAGOG — The folk musical "It's Cool in the Furnace" was presented at St. Paul's United Church, by members and friends of the Ayer's Cliff-Magog Pastoral Charge and directed by Miss Sandra McLauchlan.

Prior to the presentation, Stanley Beerworth, lay worker for the charge, in his usual friendly and jovial manner welcomed all present and explained the dual purpose of the evening — to present the folk musical and to bid farewell to Connie and Doug McLeod, student ministers, who had served the pastoral charge during the summer.

The programme opened with a short hymn sing, with Mrs. Evelyn Cuthbert at the organ.

"It's Cool in the Furnace" is a musical based on the Biblical story of King Nebuchadnezzar, Daniel, Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego.

Playing to a capacity audience, the chorus opened with the processional — a fanfare of kazoos which gave one the feeling of travelling along the road to Jerusalem, the site of the "fiery furnace" episode.

Arlen Bonnar captured the interest of the audience with his portrayal of the confused and bad-tempered King Nebuchadnezzar, who later became king and a believer in God, as he loudly decreed in the song "Your God is the God of Gods".

Daniel, played by Rev. Ron Coughlin, excelled in his role of the interpreter of the King's dream, and in proving the power of the God of his people.

Daniel's friends Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, played by David Dezan, Geoffrey Sanderson (due to illness was replaced by his brother Steven), and Pedro Antunes, respectively, showed their strong faith in their God as they 'stood up' to the raging King, resulting in their being thrown into "the fiery furnace".

Paula Donnan very ably relayed in recitation, the conversation of the three occupants, telling how cool it was in the furnace.

The solos were beautifully sung by Susan McLauchlan and Steven Donnan.

Connie McLeod, flautist; Steven Donnan, trumpeter; Bevin Skerratt, guitarist; Evelyn Cuthbert, organist; and Sandra McLauchlan, pianist added a real touch of professionalism to the show. Members of the chorus were: Gayle Chouinard, Paula Donnan, Phyllis Donnan, Cathy Gillick, Susan McLauchlan, Robin Hopps, Betty Richardson, Eva Trew, Stanley Beerworth, Charles Catchpugh, Steven Donnan, Doug McLeod, Julius Richardson, Bevan Skerratt and Ron Trew. Lighting and Scenery - Bob McLauchlan, David Dezan, Geoffrey Sanderson and Sandra McLauchlan.

The finale "Let The People Praise" — combined voices and orchestration including chimes — brought an hour of inspiration and fellowship to a close.

The tremendous applause and a standing ovation received from the audience was proof of an excellent performance.

Following the presentation, all gathered in the Church Hall where lunch was served by the U.C.W. groups. At this time two presentations were made. Rev. Ron Coughlin and Arlen Bonnar presented Sandy McLauchlan with red roses from the cast, in appreciation of her role as director, and also a farewell gift to Connie and Doug McLeod from the pastoral charge.

The following Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Hopps and Robin entertained the cast and friends at a barbecue held at their home.

A repeat performance of the musical was held in the Lennoxville United Church on August 30, where once again a large and appreciative audience attended.

Sincere thanks are expressed to Rev. Douglas Warren for his support, to the Lennoxville group who helped to augment the cast and to all who helped in any way.

A special thank-you to Rev. and Mrs. Carl Gustafson, who graciously entertained the group at their home, after the Lennoxville performance.

Farewell Party

SAWYERVILLE — On Thursday evening, Sept. 14, relatives, friends and neighbours gathered at the United Church Hall to honor Gayle and Harley Laroche, prior to their leaving to reside near Toronto.

The party was arranged by Harley's parents, Donald and Lillian, sister Bonnie, Alton and family, and aunt Vera Hover of Sherbrooke.

The guests were welcomed by his mother and Dareth and Deanna Fowler were in charge of the guest book.

They were taken by surprise, as they were to have supper with their three grandmothers at the Laroche-Fowler home, arriving to find no one home. On their return home Dareth and Deanna approached them to come to the Hall almost next door to their home.

They were greeted by all present, and Harry Graham as M.C. invited them to be seated before a lovely cake iced in yellow and white with their names and Our Best Wishes go with You, made and decorated by Bonnie.

The tables were laden with baked beans, casseroles, ham and rolls, along with all the trimmings and squares. Grace was asked by Mrs.

Wilson, a next door neighbour. The Youth Group very capably did the serving and the couple cut the cake and served it.

In a few well chosen words Harry expressed how sorry all were that their children Troy and Tina could not be present as they are attending school in Ontario, also said how much they all will be missed in the Community and their work in different organizations. He presented them with several gifts and a nicely decorated box containing cards and currency.

Harley expressed their thanks for the gifts and to his family for making it an enjoyable evening and said the reason for their leaving is the opportunity he has been offered by Parts Service of the Ingersoll Rand Co.

Rev. G. Simons came in for awhile and he said how much they will be missed but that all doors will be open for them whenever they could come back and gave an appropriate prayer, asking God to bless them and give them contentment in their new surroundings.

A social time followed and as guests left, all wished them the best in their new home.

Vatican funeral reps named

OTTAWA (CP) — Two federal cabinet members, a Quebec cabinet member, an Alberta legislature member and the president of an Italian-Canadian association will attend Wednesday the funeral for Pope John Paul in Rome, the prime minister's office announced Monday.

Senior Citizens card party

STANBRIDGE EAST — The Senior Citizens of Stanbridge East held a card party on Sept. 8, to raise funds for the club. A most enjoyable afternoon was spent with 13 tables of 500 and two tables of Bridge being played. Ticket results were most gratifying.

After a delicious lunch, the President held a short meeting, after which the prizes for the party were handed out, results being as follows:

1st prize in 500, Lois Martin, donated by Mrs. George Kidd; 1st prize in Bridge, Lily Campbell, donated by Mrs. Donald Guthrie; Men's 1st in 500, cut by two gents, won by Homer Sornberger; six ladies cut for 4 games in 500, won by Mrs. Elda Martin; men's 2nd in 500, two men cut, won by Mr. Arpin; low in Bridge, Mrs. Lenney.

No games in 500, two ladies cut, won by Mrs. Belle Fairfield; two games in 500, two men cut, won by Mr. Jenne Door prize - A $10.00 voucher, donated by Couture Store in Stanbridge Station, won by Mr. Arpin; $5.00 voucher, donated by Tremblay and Monette Store, Stanbridge East, won by Mrs. William Reaffe; $5.00 voucher, donated by Blinn and Tree Store, Stanbridge East, won by Mrs. Langlois.

After the awarding of prizes, an auction took place, with Mr. Homer Bedee, the highest bidder on a lovely decorated cake, donated by Mrs. McGee. Warren Thompson bid the highest on another beautiful cake, donated by Mrs. Frances Kemp, an attractive waste paper basket, made and donated by Mrs. E. Bracey.

Neil Baker being the highest bidder. The highest bid on a tray, donated by Mrs. McGee, was made by Mrs. E. Bracey.

A vote of thanks was extended to all those who donated so generously and helped to make the occasion such a success.

Opera program presented part of the Conte.

In the second play I. Paggiacci - L. Leon Pavallo, we heard the baritone voice of G. Latour.

The second scene was acted out by M. Osborne, soprano, playing the part of Nedda, R. Sedillot as Tonio, G. Latour as Silvio, both with beautiful baritone voices, while J.Y. Arseneault, a tenor, played the part of Canio.

The third play was "La Boheme" by G. Puccini, and was very well acted out by M. Osborne, soprano, playing the part of Mimi with J.Y. Arseneault, tenor, as Rodolfo in the first and second scenes.

The third and last scene, when the part of Mimi was played by J. Lechter, Marcella played by G. Latour, J.Y. Arseneault, the role of Rodolfo and Musetta very well done by M. Osborne.

The costumes and make up was very artistically done by Roger Laplante.

The outstanding piano playing was performed by Lorraine Thibeault-Glogoski.

Judging from the large attendance and hearty applause, this could be called another successful evening for the group.

Rally Day Service held

WINDSOR (CM) — On Sunday morning, Sept. 24, the Sunday School pupils of St. Andrew's United Church attended the morning service of that church to receive their promotion certificates and attendance awards.

Rev. A. Cameron welcomed the young folk and their teachers and later had a story especially for them. Mrs. M. Thomas presided at the organ.

Mrs. Henry Dubuc, superintendent of the S.S. presented the awards, assisted by Mrs. Sandra Oakley. In her remarks she had many words of encouragement to these young people for their continued interest and effort. There are enough pupils to fill four classes this year. There are five little ones in the kindergarten class, this being several more than there have been during the past.

Newcomers this year are Lisa Oakley, Jason Wheeler and Tammy Provis who join Vivi Ann Hall and Allan Mackay for this class. Donna McCourt and Deirdre Doyle are in charge of these little ones.

Promoted from Primary to Junior were Billy Cumby, Brian Oakley, Mark Devries, Patty Provis and Diane McCourt. Sandy Provis, the only primary student, will be sitting in with this class with Brenda McCourt in charge.

Promoted from Junior to Intermediate were Peggy McCourt, Rory Doyle, Kevin Morey, and Ricky Watson. Mrs. Dubuc appealed for a teacher for this class.

A senior class has been formed and the superintendent mentioned how pleased they were to have this group back. Mrs. Sandra Oakley is in charge of this class, made up of Donna and Tommy Provis, Steven Devries, Cathy Watson and Brian Smeltzer.

Attendance awards were presented to all who had made an effort to attend regularly and who had a reasonable excuse when they were not present.

Vivi Ann Hall and Allan Mackay received their first year pin and certificate; Peggy McCourt, second year; Sandy Provis and Brian Oakley, third year; Billy Cumby, Patty Provis and Donna Provis, fourth year; Mark Devries, fifth year; Ricky Watson, Rory Doyle, Cathy Watson and Steven Devries, seventh year; Kevin Morey, eighth year; Deirdre Doyle, ninth year; Brian Smeltzer, tenth year. Tommy Provis received his pin and certificate.

Two former teachers who are now in college received awards along with best wishes for success in their studies. Nancy Devries received her eighth year pin while Karen Morey received her fourteenth year pin. Brenda McCourt, a teacher, also received her third and fourth year pin.

In closing I would like to say that for such a small English community, our Sunday School can boast of a much larger number of pupils than many larger areas. I recently had the opportunity of speaking with a friend from Westmount and was told that one of the large churches there has an enrolment of twelve in their Sunday School, and this is the amalgamation of four churches, too.

UCW Meeting

BISHOPTON — Mrs. Rufus Stevenson entertained the Bishopston U.C.W. with a dessert meeting. She also opened the meeting with the Purpose, U.C.W. Creed and Lord's Prayer repeated in unison.

Mrs. S.N. Bishop led the devotional period with bible reading, "Bearing Burdens we cannot escape" and prayer.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Roll call was answered by seven members repeating a bible verse.

Mrs. Ralph St. Pierre read a letter from Project Genesis I.

Thank-you notes from Gladys Clarke, Mrs. Smith and family, Church of the Good Shepherd Guild and the Ralph Gilbert family with a generous donation.

Mrs. Ralph Gilbert gave the treasurer's report. A donation was made to Project Genesis I. The meeting was closed by repeating benediction and Mrs. Oral Downes will be hostess for the next meeting.

Jewett Family Home-Coming

MANSONVILLE (MB) — Recently a progressive "Home-Coming" was celebrated among members of the L.H. Jewett family, Hill Haven, From Hamilton, Ont., Claudia (Norton) with children Shelley-Marie and Sean Christopher, arrived in Montreal by Rapido and were met by Leverett and Pearl. The children were excited with their first train trip, also the underground train ride, and the Metro of Montreal. Cheryl from Agincourt, Ont., appeared several days pre-scheduled, to everyone's delight. These members, with Mrs. Jewett, motored to the Wales Home at Richmond in the company of Mr. and Mrs. Norton, Sr., of Sherbrooke, to visit "Auntie", Mrs. Annie Kendall, a resident.

A highlight of the gathering was a dual birthday party for Erica-Leigh, age three, daughter of Allan and Linda Jewett, River Road, Bolton Centre, where the party was held. Her little cousin Nancy, age two, shared the delightful birthday cake made and decorated by Linda with the storybook theme of "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe". The five children present were excited with their own individual table of gifts.

Guests who attended the buffet turkey dinner were Mrs. Cordelia Mitson, Magog, Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Norton, Sherbrooke, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Buzzell and Nancy, also Ann Buzzell, all of Cherry River, Claudia Norton and children, Shelley and Sean, Hamilton, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. L.H. Jewett and Conrad. Unfortunately the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Buzzell, were unable to attend.

Hopefully, cameras captured the twinkle in Grandpa Jewett's eyes as grandchildren Erica, Shelley and Sean presented him with a gaily trimmed post-birthday cake labelled, "Gramp the Champ". Equal delight and surprise was expressed when Shelley and Sean carried another lighted belated birthday cake to their "Grandpa Norton" with the happy birthday song.

Weatherwise the day was cool compared to the sweltering heat of the previous year's gathering. Later these Jewett grandchildren spent happy hours at the farm and "the li'l ole play-house".

Edd Norton, Hamilton, Ont., joined the family for the Labour Day weekend when all, including the Norton Sr. family of Sherbrooke, attended one day or another at the Big Brome Fair, the annual gathering place of friends and relatives.

The judge commented to one member that this fair, with its display of Maple Products, was second only in the Province, to the springtime Maple Festival at Plessisville. Congratulations!

Harvey arrived a week later at Hill Haven. His parents motored via Fredericton, N.B., to pick him up after his duties at St. Andrews-by-the-Sea. The

L.H. Jewetts attended the closing evening of the Fredericton Exhibition. The "down-home" atmosphere was readily felt as they chatted with a member of Love's Maple Syrup Inc., Mactaquac, N.B., one of Canada's largest maple operations and by choice, still on the bucket system. Sunday morning's drive across the Mactaquac Power Dam found them on Kanawick Bridge, passing the Love's development on through the St. John's River district to cross the Princess Margaret Bridge, then down to St. Stephen and St. Andrews. Harvey has since returned to Toronto for employment and studies at Ryerson Institute.

San Diego pilot calm

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A doomed pilot's calm advisory that his jet was going down was the only interruption in routine pilot-controller conversations before the worst air crash in United States history, tape recordings released Monday showed.

"Tower, we're going down. This is PSA," the pilot of Pacific Southwest Airlines Flight 182 told Lindbergh Field controllers just before the crash last Monday in which at least 144 persons died.

The transcripts, released by the Federal Aviation Administration, show no evidence of joking or inattention on the part of the PSA crew, as had been claimed in some news reports, but only routine transmissions between air and ground.

The PSA jet and a single-engine Cessna collided about five kilometres east of Lindbergh Field, raining flaming debris and bodies on the city's North Park residential area. All 135 persons on the PSA jet died, both persons in the Cessna were killed, and at least seven persons on the ground were killed.

Ploughing Match to be held

STANSTEAD (IH) — The 59th annual Stanstead County Ploughing Match will be held on Saturday, October 7 at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. John DeBoer on Highway 143 between Stanstead and Ayer's Cliff and will start off in the morning, lunch at noon and finish about mid-afternoon. The general public are most welcome to attend and watch the match, and purchase a noon lunch box of fried chicken.

There will be 12 classes in the field: Teams, open to all comers, and the directors have invited several owners of teams to participate; the Championship Class will include winners and second place in the 1977 Match in classes 2-3-4-6.

Tractor Trailer ploughs; hydraulic ploughs; two and three furrows, open to all; a class with tractors for those who have never plowed before; another special for foreign-made ploughs; and youth classes include boys and girls, 14-15 years competing for the Stoddard trophy, plowing with tractor and hydraulic ploughs; boys and girls competing for the Quebec Farmers Assoc. trophy and tractor ploughs by boys and girls under 14 years competing for the Hackett Trophy. The ladies will be in competition for the Sherbrooke Record trophy, this class is open to St. Francis District. The last is a class for tractors plowing four or more furrows.

The rules are much the same as in 1977, except No. 8 and the crown is to be 12 furrows each side and No. 8A, for 5 furrow plows, 15 furrows.

The judges will be Donald Goodfellow and John Rose. Directors of the Assoc. are Gerard Letourneau, president; Howard Ayer, secretary-treasurer, Douglas Johnston, Alex Johnston, Fred Keet, Stan Keet, Doug MacKinnon, Leslie Bliss, John Brus, Steve Brus, Stan Whitcomb, Willie Antink, Dale Miller, Mitchell Miller, Ritchie Harrison, Dewey Mosher, Robert Johnson, Larry Rever, Gordon Stuart, Roland Roy and Turner Hunter.

The annual dinner will be held the evening of October 14 in the United church hall at Hatley to start at 6:00 p.m. After all have enjoyed another delicious dinner, served by the church women, the program will take place.

This will include the announcement of the winners in the Match, the presentation of prizes and trophies. Those who attended last year will remember the magic tricks performed by Ivano Le Magician from Actonvale, this year he will return by popular demand and will give another interesting show. James Duff will be among the speakers. Any friends of the Association are invited to attend.

Take a step in the right direction. Take a few.

The bidding was identical at both tables as was the play of the first eight tricks. West opened the king of clubs and shifted to a spade. Hearts and spades were played from then on to come down to a five-card ending. North held A-9-7 of clubs and two diamonds; East two spades and three diamonds; South four diamonds and one club; West three clubs and two diamonds. There was one difference. Paul Soloway held the five of clubs, the other South the jack.

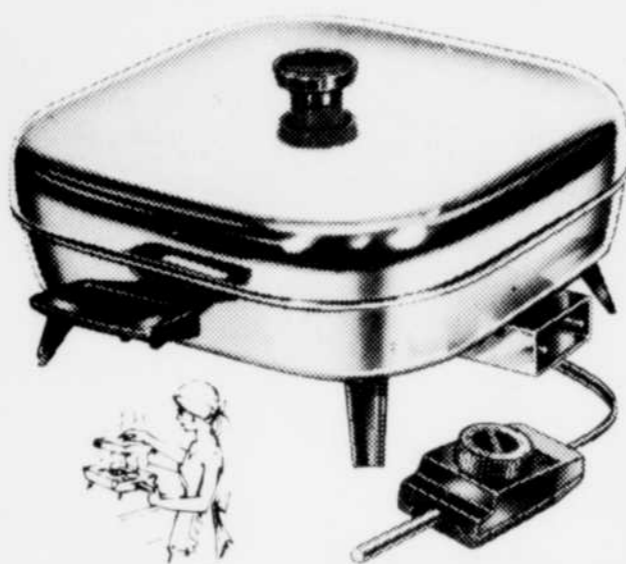

Both declarers took a diamond finesse and both Wests let the queen hold. Now Paul led his five of clubs. West played the 10; Paul ducked, and was sure of the rest of the tricks and his contract.

At the other table when South led his jack of clubs Eddy Kantar ducked. If South had played low from dummy he would have been stuck in his own hand and forced to lead a diamond. That would have given him the rest of the tricks but he thought East held the king. So he won in dummy, took a second finesse and watched Eddy take the last three tricks with the king of diamonds and queen-10 of clubs.

The team of Malcolm Brachman, Bobby Goldman and Mike Passell of Dallas and Eddy Kantar and Paul Soloway of Los Angeles has just accomplished the almost impossible feat of winning both the Vanderbilt and Spingold cups in the same year. This hand was worth 11 IMPs to them in the Spingold.

Shipton W.I. sponsors ADS

By Marion Sutherland (W.I. Publicity Convener) DANVILLE — Once again the children of Asbestos-Danville-Shipton Elementary School brought in their handiwork and garden produce to the school gym on a Wednesday evening in September. Our hard-working president, Mrs. Brocomb was on hand to receive them.

The following morning, Shipton W.I. branch members were there bright and early to label and place the vegetables and flowers. Samples of printing and penmanship, art work adorned the walls. Models of various kinds were displayed, including plasticene ones by the youngest pupils. Samples of needlework, handicrafts and cooking were displayed.

The judges toured the room later in the day and drew up the prize list. The following school day the prizes were given out by Mrs. Mona Taylor as follows:

The Shipton W.I. is very grateful for the generous donation from the C.J.M. Company of Asbestos, to the staff of A.D.S. and to the judges who gave of their time. Our membership is small, but we feel that the school fair is an important part of our work, for Home, Community and Country.

Tiempo

The one tire to save you time, trouble and money this Winter - next Summer, too!

NO MORE CHANGEOVERS WHEN YOU BUY GOODYEAR'S REVOLUTIONARY TIEMPO, THE STEEL-BELTED RADIAL FOR ALL SEASONS, ALL KINDS OF WEATHER, TOO!

PRICED FROM $44 each installation included P185/75R13 Replaces BR78-13

METRIC SIZE	REPLACES	PRICE	METRIC SIZE	REPLACES	PRICE

Imagine — no more tire changeovers! Simply buy Tiempo radials and keep them on season after season. You save the cost of 2 extra winter tires. You save time and money. And you avoid the risk of damage to your tires — every Fall and Spring.

This gas-saving radial is built tough with double steel belts. Takes plenty of punishment, lasts much longer than bias-ply tires. In summer, the centre 'whisper' rib gives you a quiet ride over hot roads. In winter, the computer-designed tread (with some 10,000 biting edges) gives you snow tire traction — even on glare ice.

Act now — and eliminate winter tire changeovers

ASTRO-GRAPH
 Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

October 5, 1978

Without being selfish you are going to have much stronger self-interests this coming year. As you progress you will carry those you love along as well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The spirits of someone you're fond of will be badly in need of a boost today. You'll know exactly what to say to cheer him up. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Open your heart and purse today where the needy are concerned. Being generous will make you feel as good about your deeds as those who receive them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Others may think you're a bit of a dreamer today, but actually you are very realistic where your visions are concerned. You'll devise ways to bring them to fruition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Challenges don't intimidate you today — they stimulate you toward achievement. How you pull things off wins the secret admiration of your peers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Friends are receptive to your suggestions today. You share your knowledge and experience rather than trying to foist your opinions upon them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) When the going gets tough today, that's when you'll get going. You have an enormous reservoir of fortitude and luck to fall back upon.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In decision-making today, do what your instincts dictate. You are quick to perceive facts and will have the ability to use them imaginatively.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If something needs to be systematized, do it today. Your organizational abilities are especially keen. Put them to use to bring order out of confusion.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your feelings for your friends are very intense today. If one finds himself in a tight spot, you'll have much to say in his defense.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The type of tasks that will be the most appealing to you today are those that require a creative touch and full use of your imagination.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your powers of persuasion are extremely effective today. When you speak, everyone will take notice of what you have to say.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Maintain a slight aura of mystery about yourself today in business matters. It could put you in a stronger bargaining position. Play your trump cards last.

Recent callers at the home of Mrs. Ettie Lane were Mr. and Mrs. James Scruton and family of Lachine, Mr. and Mrs. Lennie Beland and son of Lennoxville and Mrs. Raymond Schoolcraft, Mansonville.

Miss Betty-Ann Willey, Ottawa, Ont., spent a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Willey and sisters, Julie and Jane. While here, she visited her sister Lorna and her aunt Mrs. George Rogerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Willey visited the Wilson's Funeral Home, Mansonville, to pay their respect to the family of the late Bob Hamelin, who passed away suddenly at the home of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. P.A. (Chick and Mary) Hamelin. Dearest sympathy is extended to all the Hamelin family.

Mrs. Ettie Lane, accompanied by Mr. James Scruton, was in Knowlton and Cowansville on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Kent Durrell have returned home after spending a long weekend visiting relatives in Leamington, Ont.

WATERLOO

Alice Ashton
Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Buckland and son, Jim, have returned to their Waterloo home after having spent the summer months at their cottage near Baldwin's Mills.

Friends wishing to send their good wishes to Miss

Clara Mountford, who resides at the Bailey Nursing Home, Lewis St. and will be observing her 80th birthday on Oct. 5, may address her mail to Box 52, Waterloo.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Grubb, Shefford Mountain Rd. were: on Sat. eve Miss Muriel Williams and Mr. Russell Williams of Fulford, and Mr. Jerry Nottram of Shefford Mt. On Mon. eve Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Grubb were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Walter Williams and Miss Beulah at Iron Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Taylor of Mattawa, Ont., were calling one afternoon, on Miss Edith Hanna and Mrs. A. Hanna.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Buckland included Mrs. Ruth Cochrane, Montreal, her sister, Miss Elinor Lawrence, New York City, Mrs. Douglas Mackinnon, Barnston and her mother, Mrs. Margaret Ellis, Belfast, Ireland, Mr. and Mrs. Alan R. Buckland, Pointe Claire and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dunn, Way's Mills. Mr. and Mrs. George Young Sr. have been spending a few days visiting relatives at Petawawa, Ont.

Members of St. Paul's United Church are making plans to hold a chicken-pie supper in their Church Hall, on Sat. Oct. 21st. More particulars concerning this will be announced later.

At time of writing, Mr. Percy Ledoux is a patient in Sherbrooke Hospital where he was admitted on Sept. 11th for observation. The members of Waterloo-Warden W.I. wish to make it known to those interested in playing 500 that they will be holding their annual Card Party at the Elementary School, on Fri. eve Oct. 20. Bridge will also be played.

Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Rolfe and Miss Shelley Rolfe of Danville were calling on their aunts, Mrs. Lena Bobo and Mrs. Clara Gibbs.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Cushman of Cowansville were calling on her grandmother, Mrs. Clara Gibbs.

HUNTINGVILLE

Marian Dewing
We were saddened to hear of the passing of Mr. Ayton Cromwell. Our deepest sympathy to his sister Mrs. Chute and all other relatives, especially Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Chute and family, as he had spent quite a lot of his time with them, here in Huntingville.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hunting, accompanied by their cousins, Mrs. Dorothy Allen and Mrs. Harry Lewis of England have just returned from a trip to Niagara Falls, Ont., spending the first night at a motel near Niagara, going on to Buffalo, N.Y. and then started for Ottawa, stopping at a Motel near Picton, Ont. They were breakfast guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Edwards (formerly of Lennoxville) and then to Ottawa. Toured the Parliament Buildings and other places of interest. This trip was much enjoyed, especially by their cousins.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg Dewing were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Luce in Moe's River on Thursday and called at Webster-Cass Funeral Home on Friday. The Dewings received a long letter from Douglas Yates, Camrose, Alta., with an account of his trip that he requested be added to Huntingville local.

Mr. Douglas Yates has returned to Camrose, Alta., from a two weeks trip. He visited Mr. and Mrs. Seale and daughters at Caronport, Sask., for a week and then spent a day in Calgary visiting Mr. Lloyd McHarg, whom Douglas went to school with in Milby, in the 1940s. From there to British Columbia, going through Roger's Pass and Banff, on to Rosedale, where he visited cousins for five days, before going to Jasper, taking in the sights and then going on to Edmonton, Alta., and visited the Guernetts, returning to Camrose on Labour Day. One does not know what they are missing if they haven't seen the Rocky Mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenson Vintinner of Amherstview, Ont., were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Reggie Dewing on Saturday, Sept. 23rd.

Visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Aldrich were Mrs. Joe Talley and son Paul of Salinas, Calif., and her cousin Mrs. Larry Graves and daughter Sarah of St. Albans, Vt.

On Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Aldrich entertained Mr. and Mrs. Walter Unsworth, of Ottawa, who were called here by the death of their uncle, the late Mr. Ayton Cromwell, also Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Chute and daughter Brenda of this place.

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hunting were Mr. and Mrs. George Chase, Andover, Maine, Mr. and Mrs. William Meglitz, Hampton, N.H., and Mr. and Mrs. George Beers and sons, Andrew and Eric of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Newton James, Peterborough, Ont., also called at the same home.

They have been spending a holiday at their cottage at Eaton Corner and were calling on relatives, here, before returning home.

On account of postal strike, this news will really be late.

The Carpet bowling started at the ANAF Hut, St. Francis St., Lennoxville on Sept. 24 at 2 p.m. and the Wednesday card parties on Sept. 27. These will both continue on Sunday afternoons and Wednesday afternoons at 2:15 p.m. until further notice.

Mr. and Mrs. C.C. McLachlan called at Reg. and Marian Dewing's on Saturday and the Dewings called on Mrs. May Dewing and Mrs. Don Valliere in Earlistown on Friday.

Senior Citizens visit Experimental Farm

STANBRIDGE EAST — On Sept. 24, a bus load of 43 Stanbridge East Senior Citizens took a trip to the Lennoxville Experimental Farm.

The day was ideal and the beautiful fall foliage at its height, added much to the scenic route.

When well on the way, a sing song of old songs and hymns, ably led by Guy Martindale, was thoroughly enjoyed.

Upon arrival, we were taken on a hayride tour of the Farm, where we viewed acreage of corn, experimental plantings, beef cattle, sheep and cow barns.

After the open-air ride, all were ready to partake of the delicious barbecue of lamb, chicken and beef, with salad, roast potatoes, beans, rolls, celery, olives and coffee, furnished by the Odd Fellows. Everyone expressed their thanks for the sumptuous meal.

After the return trip, before leaving the bus, the President, Mr. Bracey, thanked all for the co-operation in making the trip so successful, and a round of applause was given the bus driver for our safe trip.

Each and everyone of us had had a most enjoyable day.

Residence holds tea and sale

COWANSVILLE (JB) — A very successful Tea and Sale was held at the Nesbitt Anglican Residence, 215 South St., Cowansville, Sat., Sept. 23. It was a grand day and with the beautiful fall colours, people came from many areas. Some for the very first time, while others, being old friends, called on the residents, who were "At Home", to guests.

Many of the articles on the sales tables were made by the residents themselves, while others were donated by relatives and friends. Something new was added this year, a "home bake" table with jams, jellies, pickles, preserves of all sorts, as well as breads, cookies, squares and candies, which soon disappeared!

The proceeds from this annual event goes into the Residence's own account, to be used as they so desire. They often purchase something for the Residence, "their home". An item that they will all enjoy and bring comfort to them.

Everyone connected with the Residence is very grateful to all those who donated, came, visited, purchased and made it such a happy event. To the many people who undertook the various duties, we offer our sincere thanks.

St. Luke's Church Women

WATERLOO — The September meeting of St. Luke's Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. Ola Streeter, with an attendance of seventeen. President Mrs. Ola Streeter called on Mrs. Tucker to open the meeting with a reading, then welcomed all back after the summer recess. A special welcome was given to Mrs. Nellie Darling, formerly of Knowlton, who is now residing in Waterloo once again.

Minutes of the June meeting were read by Sec. Mrs. Dorothy Copping, followed by the Treas. report given by Mrs. Lois Hollenbeck. The President reported that Mrs. Doris Wilson, Tel. 539-0712, is Rummage convener, replacing Mrs. Eleanor Elston who is now residing in Shelburne, Ont., and Mrs. Joyce Lequin is in charge of raffles, also a former duty of Mrs. Elston.

Rummage sale dates were set for Oct. 19th and 20th, from 2 to 4 p.m., and 7 to 8 p.m. The Christmas Tea date was set for Nov. 16th, from 3 to 6 p.m. with the usual salad plate and squares menu. The usual sales tables will be available namely Work, Food, Cards, Surprise Pkgs. and White Elephant. Tickets are being sold on an afghan as of this date and will be drawn for at the Christmas Tea.

Mrs. Doris Wilson, work convener, reported that she had wool for knitting and material for aprons if anyone wished to make these up for the work table.

The new church calendars are in and anyone wishing to purchase these may do so by contacting Mrs. Lois Hollenbeck, Tel. 539-3455 or any of the members.

The mystery package, given by Mrs. Edna Ledoux, was won by Mrs. Kay Lawrence.

The October meeting will be held on the 19th at the home of Mrs. Shirley Chapman.

There being no further business the meeting closed with the Benediction after which a half hour of entertainment took place, provided by the hostess. The first contest was "Who knows the difference between a natural pearl and a cultured pearl?" with Mrs. Alice Buckland giving the best answer on this and winning the top prize. The second contest was a Ring Toss game with Mrs. Doris Wilson winning the highest score. After this, refreshments were provided by Mrs. Streeter.

Mission Circle meets

SUTTON — On September 20 the Olivet Baptist Mission circle met at the home of Mrs. G.F. Knights. The President, Mrs. H.H. Woodard opened the meeting with prayer, which was followed by the Lord's Prayer.

The President took the devotional exercises, the theme was from Psalm 121, I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help, my help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth. Every believer has every access to God and we can worship by seeking guidance.

Clippings were read by the nine members who answered the roll call. Two members who had bad falls, Hazel Bates and Lees Bennett were remembered by signing cards for them.

Mrs. O.H. Baker was in charge of the Study. An article on Spiritism was read by the members. Spiritism is the fastest growing religion in Brazil. Missionaries have a clear response to Spiritism.

Hymns used at the meeting were: "What a friend we have in Jesus," "O Jesus I have promised to serve Thee to the end" and "Blest be the tie that binds our hearts in Christian love".

met at Freeport, the Grand Bahamas, for the continental assembly and 25th anniversary of the North American Baptist Women's Union. Mrs. Roland Gibson then offered prayer for missionaries and their work. The secretary, Mrs. G.F. Knights read the report of the Baptist Women's Missionary Society of Ontario and Quebec. Quebec has 18 Mission Circles with 323 members. Sutton Circle was on the honour list in the Reading Course Report for 1977.

The meeting was closed by all reading a Prayer of Thanksgiving.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Nettie Mudgett on October 19.

Social Evening

COOKSHIRE — The Guild of St. Peter's Anglican Church held a very successful social evening in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening, Sept. 21st.

There were 10 tables of 500, three of Bridge and one of Tuck, played.

1st prize winner in 500 was Dora McConnell, 2nd Lucienne Paetow; consolation, Mickie Povey. Men, 1st prize, Howard Neeley; 2nd, Donald Fraser; consolation, Walter Thorneloe.

1st prize winner in Bridge, Ruby Gray, table 1, 1st prize at table 2, Margaret Buckle; 1st prize at table 3, Mrs. A.W. Standish.

The prize winners in Tuck were Alice Fraser and Gerard Pageau.

At the close of the evening, the ladies served refreshments.

The proceeds will be used for rectory repairs.

The ladies appreciated having so many turn out for the evening, and were most grateful to the individuals and to the merchants who donated the prizes.

SALT-MORE DANGEROUS WE MIGHT THINK

Salt is everywhere. In just about every processed food. In salt shakers on every table. Salt looks perfectly nice and harmless, but we eat far too much of it. Salt causes high blood pressure in many people. And high blood pressure greatly increases the chances of having a heart attack. Try to eat less salt. People who use less salt, really taste the taste of food. Try other herbs and spices: curry, dill, oregano, basil, caraway, garlic, thyme. Why limit yourself to just one flavour? If you eat a lot of potato chips, hot dogs, pickles, canned soups, and other processed foods, it will be hard to avoid salt. But try to eat more fruits, vegetables and other real foods. And go easy on the salt shaker. You may find, as many people have, that unsalted or lightly salted foods taste great. Challenge yourself to add as little salt to your foods as possible. You will be doing your body a favour.
