

Richard Nixon Campaign halted by injury

WASHINGTON (CP)—Richard Nixon has been floored temporarily by an infected left knee, forcing him into a hospital bed for two weeks or more—crucial weeks in the tight fight for the presidency.

Republicans, buoyed by the vice-president's popularity gains in initial campaigning, were distressed by the sudden turn of events which may give Senator Kennedy, the Democratic standard-bearer, opportunity to make political hay on the road while Nixon is shut away from the public eye.

Doctors ordered the 47-year-old Nixon into Walter Reed General Hospital Monday after laboratory tests disclosed his left knee is infected by a potentially dangerous bacteria.

One doctor suggested this could cause infectious arthritis; it could destroy knee cartilage and cause a permanent stiff joint if not caught in time. The disease yields to antibiotic treatment.

COMPLAINED OF PAIN

Just how deeply the infection has penetrated in Nixon's case is not known. It started 14 days ago when the vice-president hit his knee against an automobile door during a campaign trip to Greensboro, N.C. He complained of pain ever since.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders immediately expressed their sympathies and hopes for speedy recovery. Kennedy's running mate, Senator Johnson, sent flowers.

With voting day Nov. 8, both sides have indicated that every moment counts. Since the July nomination conventions the two candidates have been running hard. Nixon had said he would visit all 50 states. Now his plans may have to be curtailed.

Some observers suggest Nixon's hospital sojourn would not be a complete loss. It would give him a chance to rest and it might also stir up a lot of public sympathy for him.

On the other hand, his following may be disturbed by being linked to an ailing candidate—especially if the ailment isn't cured quickly. Physical strength appears to be a definite factor in the presidential fight, though the late president Franklin Roosevelt, a polio victim, campaigned successfully from a wheelchair.

Nasser suspect?

Maintain order in Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—King Hussein apparently held firm control of Jordan today despite the assassination of Premier Hazza Majali.

The young king named Bahjat el Talhouni, veteran chief of the royal cabinet, to succeed Majali and Monday night approved a new 11-man cabinet. Seven members were ministers in Majali's government.

London newspapers said President Nasser of the United Arab Republic is bound to be suspected of ordering the time-bombing of the Jordan government offices Monday, in which 10 persons beside the premier were killed and 41 wounded.

Majali was regarded in Cairo as a leader of Arab forces opposed to Nasser. However, shortly before his death he approved the recommendation from the meeting of Arab foreign ministers in Lebanon that Arab nations halt propaganda attacks against each other. The bitter exchanges have been between Jordan and the U.A.R.

Forest fire destroys five homes

Evacuate town in Gaspé

No signs of letup are seen

QUEBEC — (CP) — A giant forest fire that has already destroyed five homes and scorched some 72 square miles of timberland showed no signs of letting up today near the Gaspé Peninsula community of St. Gabriel de Rameau.

The fire, in its 12th day, forced the evacuation of the community of 400 Monday and then levelled five of the homes several hours later. The other buildings were reported out of danger, providing the direction of the wind did not change.

Observers at the scene said the situation was "serious." More than 300 men from Grande Rivière and other nearby communities were fighting the blaze which has burned over an area six miles wide by 12 miles long. The timber destroyed was mainly spruce.

The fire had been believed dead after several days of rain last week but a stiff weekend breeze gave it new life. Now, observers estimated it would take a prolonged rain to halt its destruction path.

The country where the fire is located—Gaspé South—was ordered closed to travel by Forest Minister Bona Arseneault at 3 p.m. Monday. The region was closed briefly last week.

Meanwhile, a strong breeze caused another fire on the Consolidated Paper Corporation property near Forestville, 160 miles downriver from Quebec City, to widen its path.

Some 350 men, about two-thirds of the personnel employed by the company in the area, were fighting the blaze which has already burned over more than 2,000 acres of land.

Other fires of lesser magnitude were reported burning in the Lake St. John area, about 120 miles north of here. Most were believed set by blueberry pickers over the weekend and none were considered serious.

Claim Nazi now lives in Winnipeg

LONDON (Reuters)—The former commandant of a Nazi prison camp in Estonia now is living in Winnipeg, the Soviet news agency Tass said Monday. It said the man—whom it did not identify—has bought a house in Winnipeg with the proceeds of valuables stolen from the victims of mass executions.

The agency claimed evidence unearthed in the unpopulated district of Kalevi-Liiva, 18 miles from Tallinn, Estonia, showed that in 1942-43 "Fascists" tortured to death more than 3,000 persons.

Tass said the executioners were Nazi and Estonian security police, directed personally by the commandant of the Jämsä camp, who now is 53 and has fled to Canada.

Lumumba facing challenge

ELISABETHVILLE — (AP)

— Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba faced a new challenge in Kasai Province today, where his soldiers were reported to be battling tribal warriors backing the secessionist move there.

United Nations forces meanwhile planned to take over control today of Belgium's big Katanga military base in Katanga Province. The last of the Belgian combat troops at the base were pulling out for home or the neighboring trusteeship territory of Ruanda-Urundi, but several hundred Belgian army maintenance men were to remain until Belgian equipment is removed.

Under an agreement between the UN and Belgium, only UN troops will be allowed to use Katanga's $100,000,000 worth of facilities, including one of the biggest runways in Africa. The idea is to keep Lumumba's troops from using the base as an invasion point against Katanga.

News of the fighting in Kasai was confused.

Premier Pascal Ngandu of Kasai Province told the Belgian news agency that Baluba tribesmen had counterattacked with bows, arrows and spears against several hundred Congolese Army troops who thrust into Kasai's rebellious "mining state" area three days ago and captured its capital, Bakwanga.

ASKED FOR TRANSPORT

A military station in Katanga monitored a radio appeal from Bakwanga to Leopoldville asking for transport to fly out 10 wounded men.

Lumumba's invasion of Kasai previously had been virtually bloodless, with no serious fighting reported.

The Katanga Army commander in the small rail and farming town of Kaniama, near Kasai's border, said every road and rail line leading into Katanga along the 800-mile frontier has been mined or blocked.

Oil drums also block the airstrips at Kaniama and other fields along the frontier to prevent unwanted planes landing. A company of Belgian soldiers previously stationed at Kaniama have been replaced by Ethiopian UN troops.

Belgian farmer vigilantes guarded the airstrip. "We have got machine-guns and grenades as well," said one Belgian wife. "We hope we don't have to use them, but we are ready if Lumumba's army tries to march in."

The Belgian foreign ministry denied a statement by U.S. Senator J. Allen Frear, Democratic of Delaware, that a plane load of children whose hands had been chopped off were flown back to Belgium from the Congo a month ago.

Put case to UN—Verwoerd

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa — (AP) — "We shall be going to the United Nations to maintain our point of view and not to lie down," Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa told a mass meeting of party followers Monday night.

"We are going to put our standpoint because we believe it is a lesson to the world. If our standpoint had been understood by the United Nations, the situation in the Congo would not have arisen," the leader of the ruling Nationalist party said.

Verwoerd was opening the first national conference of the party to be held in 15 years. It was called to discuss the forthcoming referendum in which white voters will be asked to sanction a changeover from the present monarchy to a republican constitution.

Verwoerd reiterated that he believed continued membership in the Commonwealth could be to the advantage of South Africa and could have a unifying effect.

NON-INTERFERENCE

But he pointed out a condition was that the fundamental principles of the Commonwealth must remain unchanged.

He mentioned non-interference by one member state in the domestic affairs of another, that each state was fully independent and that co-operation with other states was sought on matters of common concern.

In spite of clashes between members and as long as there struggle in Africa was not merely selfish but aimed at ensuring a future for every part of the population.

He said the Nationalists believed white people were placed in South Africa for a specific reason. It was not only their task to preserve white civilization but also to preserve Christianity with all its values apart from the color of a man's skin.

"Our opponents have seen tragedy unfolding in Africa and still they say no (to a republic). There are those who speak of partnership and of concessions. Belgium made concessions and the Congo was the heritage . . . we must know that we have a strong case and that eventually justice will prevail."

Normand Ruel, aged 28, 462 Mercer Street, Sherbrooke, was found criminally responsible this morning by a coroner's jury following an inquest into the death of Fernand "Mike" Seminaro, 29, manager of a local Steinberg's store, killed in a car accident in the early morning of Tuesday, August 23.

The jury, under district coroner Dr. Louis Gagnon, deliberated for only three minutes before returning the verdict.

Ruel and a companion Richard Monette, 31, also of Sherbrooke, suffered minor injuries in the crash.

Work stoppages

OTTAWA (CP) — Work stoppages, either strikes or lockouts, accounted for 37,770 man-days lost during July, the labor department said Monday. There were 37 work stoppages last month, involving 5,067 workers. In June there were 43 work stoppages, involving 7,309 workers for a total duration of 52,269 man-days.

He said Thetford Mines was a one industry community which holds a distinct threat to its future if nothing is done to remedy the situation.

He said the mines had been moved on two or three occasions and might be moved eventually right out of the city.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A motorist shot a pedestrian who shouted a complaint about his driving Sunday.

Olav Johannassen, 27, was taken to hospital with a wound in the lower back. A companion, Albert Wheeler, told police a car narrowly missed him and Johannassen as they crossed a street. Johannassen shouted at the driver to watch where he was going, with embellishments.

The driver stopped, stepped out, unwrapped a .22-caliber rifle from a cloth cover and fired, then drove away.

During the ride to jail, he was struck three times in the face with a cocked submachine gun. His condition is not serious. Captain Marois, whose home

Unesco task

Calls for assault on prejudice

MONTREAL (CP)—The idea of world citizenship is a difficult one to convey, but it must be done, the UNESCO world conference on adult education agreed Monday.

The report of the commission on the role and content of adult education, as finally approved by the full conference, called for an all-out assault on the citadels of prejudice and misunderstanding.

It was presented by Prof. Roushdi Khater, professor of education at Bin Shams University of Cairo, and Prof. F. W. Jessup, head of extra-mural studies at Oxford University.

Getting people to understand the meaning of world citizenship, and the "noble responsibilities" it involved, was even more difficult than to get them to take an interest in their own communities.

"But," the report said, "difficult though it is, it must be done, and it is a main responsibility of adult educators. We all have much to learn from each other, and much existing prejudice and misunderstanding is the result of ignorance."

The report expressed concern about the lack of importance attached in education and in mass communication to the promotion of respect and understanding among peoples of the world.

The report also urged that more attention be paid to educating consumers.

The technical and vocational education of the producer was "generally well provided for because its economic value is obvious."

"Less immediately obvious, but equally important," the report said, "is the need for consumer education, for an understanding of the basic economic factors that are of immense importance in the lives of ordinary people."

PRESERVE CULTURE

Among other major purposes of adult education, the report listed the preservation of worthwhile things in a country's traditional culture, provision of the utmost opportunity for the individual's personal development, bridging the gap between the specialist and non-specialist, helping women to adjust to the new order of things in places where old patterns of family and economic relationships are rapidly changing, the plugging gaps in the adult's earlier formal education.

In the commission on methods of adult education, Donald Wetmore of Halifax stressed the use of drama as an instrument for the communication of ideas about life.

Mr. Wetmore, director of the adult education division in the Nova Scotia department of education, said drama is most effective as a tool of adult education when there is no audience present.

Trawler explodes four are killed

OSLO, Norway (Reuters)—The skipper and three crew members died Monday night after an explosion—believed caused by a bomb or mine—ripped through the British trawler St. Hubert, which later foundered off the northern coast of Norway.

A harbor official at Kirekenes, near the Russian frontier, put the blame for the explosion on a bomb or mine caught in the St. Hubert's net.

Was beaten, jailed by Congolese

LEOPOLDVILLE (Special) — Capt. J. B. L. Marois, of Sherbrooke, Que., with the United Nations forces in the Congo, was one of the Canadian soldiers beaten by Congolese last weekend it was revealed today.

Capt. Marois was one of six Canadians arrested and taken to jail in Leopoldville by the Congolese. The arresting officer knew the commanding officer of the party, but refused to take his word that the remainder were Canadians and not Belgian paratroopers.

Capt. Marois and the others arrested with him, were taken to jail where they were stripped, searched and beaten before being released.

During the ride to jail, he was struck three times in the face with a cocked submachine gun. His condition is not serious. Captain Marois, whose home

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Watching Bing Crosby rehearse for his latest television show is deceiving. He looks as relaxed as a soaking wet wash, but actually the old pro is poised and serious. Crosby moves through the backstage chaos of spotting cameras and performers with the seemingly amused bewilderment of someone who has just wandered in off the street.

Bing's next hour-long special will be shown on the ABC network Oct. 5.

The format is the successful one used in his two specials last year. Crosby strolls around a austere and apparently vast stage, meeting his guest stars and singing a long, uninterrupted string of familiar old songs.

There will be a lot of that apparently spontaneous kidding in the Crosby style, particularly with some Lindsay, Philip and Dennis.

Crosby thinks he has his working schedule organized to perfection this year: "Just about right—a couple of shows of my own, a few guest shows, and my golf match. Now, if we can just get good weather for the golf match."

Stanstead Convent Nuns Observe Golden Jubilee

STANSTEAD—A day of celebrations took place at the Ursuline Convent on Sunday when "open house" for relatives, friends, former students and their families was held honoring the Golden Jubilee of Rev. Mother Carmel, and Rev. Sister St. Euchariste and Rev. Sister Joseph. The guests arrived throughout the day and were warmly welcomed by the convent sisters. At eleven o'clock the Jubilee Mass was celebrated in the convent chapel, where white, coral and yellow gladioli adorned the altar and Sanctuary.

The Mass was celebrated by Rev. Roger Lamoureux, assisted by Rev. Jean Guy Lamoureux, as deacon, both nephews of Mother

Carmel, and Rev. Raymond Delamarre, convent chaplain, as sub-deacon.

In the choir were Rev. Joseph Labrecque, a former chaplain of the convent, Rev. Aime Legendre of the Blessed Sacrament, Cleveland, Ohio, two C.S.V. brothers and one from the Holy Cross, all relatives of the golden jubilee celebrants.

During the communion the three nuns renewed the vows of their religious profession.

At noon 225 guests enjoyed a salad luncheon in the dining rooms, where gold link garlands and 50 numerales, with gladioli, were used to decorate. The three-tier white anniversary cake, made by Rev. Sister Ste. Jules, was sprinkled with gold, decorated with pastel colored flowers and topped with three candles, calla lilies and a dove.

The guests spent an hour meeting old acquaintances reminiscing, visiting the shrine of the Blessed Virgin and beautiful flower gardens and paid respects in the cemetery to the deceased sisters until three o'clock when the Benediction Mass was held in the chapel. Rev. Joseph Labrecque was celebrant, assisted by Rev. Lamoureux and Rev. Legendre.

Afternoon tea served in the dining room brought the festivities to a close. Throughout the day the celebrating nuns received congratulations, and several lovely gifts, which were on display in the music room and a recreation room.

Fifty years ago Augustine Lamoureux, of Ham North, became Mother Carmel. She was a former student and graduate of the convent, and has devoted her life to teaching.

Philomene Champoux came from Ste. Gabrielle de Stratford and after her vows received the name of Rev. Sister Euchariste Lumina Lalier, from Black Lake, received the name of Rev. Sister Joseph. All three took perpetual vows at the Ursuline Convent chapel in 1910 and have since dedicated their lives to God.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dolores Del Rio is making her first Hollywood movie in 18 years—playing Elvis Presley's mother, of all things.

How does she look? Fabulous. She has the same smooth face, the same waist-length auburn hair as when she played Ramona, Evangeline and made DuBarry. The record books show her to be 55.

How does she do it? "I have no particular secrets," she said in her dressing room. "Except perhaps that I am never bored. I think boredom is a woman's worst enemy. When she stops taking interest in what is going on around her, that's when she starts to grow old."

"I am too busy to be bored. I have my home in Mexico. I have my husband (stage and TV producer Lew Riley), whom I married last year. And I have my career."

"Actually, I have had four careers. The first was here in silent films; I started in What Price Glory 34 years ago. The second career was talking films. I was really in trouble because my English was very poor. But I took lessons and I survived, while most of the other silent stars disappeared."

She remained in Hollywood until 1942. After starring with Orson Welles in Journey Into Fear, she returned to her native land.

"I was unhappy with the kind of roles I was getting," she explained. "Also, I wanted to go home. Something happens to a person who lives too long in a foreign country. He becomes neither a part of the new country, nor of his own. A person needs to have an identity."

"My third career was in Mexican films. The stage is my fourth career, and perhaps the most satisfying one. I started it only recently, and it was a real challenge to enter a new medium and to face audiences in different cities. I was playing Lady Windemere's Fan in Buenos Aires when the call came for this picture."

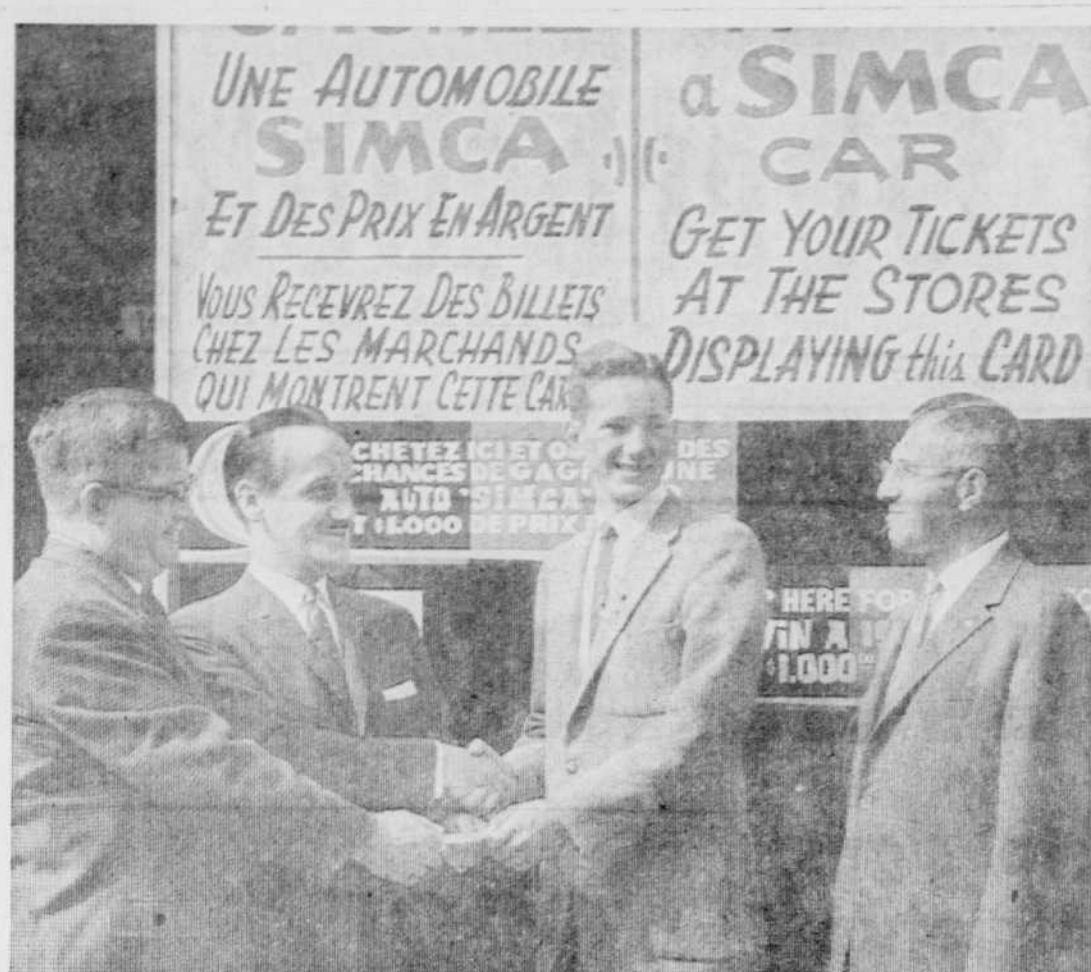

This picture is Black Star, and she plays an Indian, as she did in so many Hollywood films before. Presley is to be her half-breed son.

"I am much impressed with him as a serious, courteous boy who wants to do the best possible work. I think he is going to be very convincing as an Indian boy."

City liability insurance divided among nine firms

Public liability insurance for the city of Sherbrooke will be handled by nine different insurance company representatives instead of by one for the next three years, it was decided at city council last night.

The firm of C. W. Dunn representing the Hartford Insurance Co. will be responsible for the administration of this insurance which concerns sidewalks, public buildings and vacant lots owned by the city.

In addition, this firm will retain 52 per cent of the premium paid by the city and will divide the balance among the eight other insurance company representatives, giving six per cent to each.

Lowest ramp tender rejected by council

City council decided last night not to accept the lowest tender submitted for the building of a pedestrian ramp between the Webster Parking Lot and King Street West.

Instead, the next lowest was accepted. Four tenders submitted were as follows: Clovis Masson, $19,350; Paul Talbot, $19,125; Dorilas Grenier, $19,110; Albert Morin, $18,950.

Although the latter was the lowest, several aldermen suggested that because of a bad experience the city had with this contractor concerning the construction of a wading-pool, the contract for the ramp should go to the next lowest tender.

Alderman J. M. Jeanson protested this move and maintained that council should accept the tender forwarded by Morin.

Council leader Carrier Fortin moved that the tender submitted by Dorilas Grenier should be accepted. The motion was seconded by Alderman Everett Nicol and was approved by a vote of five to three with pro-mayor Marcel Savard not exercising his vote.

President to spread Chamber information

In order to promote the Chamber of Commerce and following the initiative of past president Claude Genest, president Len Curtis will contact various service and social clubs in the city to ask for opportunities to address members on the activities and aims of the chamber, it was decided at a meeting yesterday morning.

The annual tournament of the Chamber under the chairmanship of Aime Bergeron is now scheduled to take place on Sept. 7 at the Sherbrooke Country Club. This event will start at 1 p.m. and will terminate with a supper in the evening. In the event of unfavorable weather, the tournament will be postponed to Sept. 8.

Children's Day huge success

Attendance figures keep mounting as Sherbrooke Fair enters 4th day

Attendance figures continue to mount towards a possible record as the 75th Sherbrooke Exhibition moved into its fourth day today, fair officials announced this morning.

Thus far, 50,775 people have paid their way into the grounds, over 10,000 more than comparative figures for the 1959 Sherbrooke Fair.

Yesterday, Children's Day brought the attendance up by more than 15,000, with all children under the age of 12 years being admitted free of charge.

During the afternoon, the youngsters had a special grandstand performance all of their own, with the various acts spaced by harness races. Today, Provincial Day, is being marked by a special banquet for provincial ministers.

Last night, a special banquet was held for breeders and the press. Tonight, 4-H club trophy winners will be announced at a banquet in the Hotel Sherbrooke.

JUDGING CONTINUES

Meanwhile judging continues for Jerseys and Canadians, started yesterday, with special competition today for sheep, heavy and light horses and the 4-H Calf Clubs.

Again this afternoon, races will take place in front of the grandstand followed by a horse and calf parade.

Judging of Holstein cattle also starts today and there is to be the cattle parade in the arena building at 4:00 p.m.

The usual grandstand performance will start at 8:00 p.m.

At Bishop's University

Workshop will study education, welfare

A thorough study and appraisal of education and welfare procedures will be undertaken by the Canadian Cancer Society at a three-day workshop conference to be held at Bishop's University, Lennoxville, September 7, 8 and 9, it was announced today.

Delegates from the Society's 54 sections throughout the Province of Quebec will attend as will a panel of doctors and scientists representing every phase of medicine and its application to cancer research, diagnosis and treatment. Pierre de Lean, of the Provincial Department of Health and Chairman of the Education Committee of the Canadian Cancer Society, will act as conference chairman.

Dr. Carlton Auger, Professor of Pathology of the Faculty of Medicine of Laval University, Quebec and President of the National Cancer Institute of Canada, will lead a panel discussion in cancer control on the opening day of the conference.

Maurice Forget, president of the Quebec Division and National vice-president of the Canadian Cancer Society will welcome the delegates. The conference will be held in the university lecture halls and delegates will be housed in the college dormitories during the three-day meeting.

On Thursday, September 8, the second day of the conference, education and welfare delegates will meet separately to evaluate and discuss the education and welfare programs, and will make their reports at a general meeting. Prior to adjournment an open discussion and question period will be held.

Mr. de Lean said the chief purpose of the conference was to evaluate the Society's education and welfare programs, set objectives for the coming year in all sections of the province and to train volunteer workers in their effective application.

Volunteer workers representing the various sections of the Society in Quebec City, Three Rivers, Drummondville, Amos, Arvida, Port-Arthur, Bonaventure, Cap-de-la-Madeleine, Champlain, Chicoutimi, Donnacona, Gaspe, Ste-Anne-des-Monts, Grand'Mere, Hull, Isle Maligne, Joliette, La Tuque, Louiseville, Malartic, Manawick, Mont-Laurier, Noranda, Portneuf, Roberval, Ste-Anne-de-Beaupre, St-Casimir, St-Hyacinthe, St-Pierre, St-Raymond, Shawinigan, Sherbrooke, Thetford Mines, Victoriaville, Lévis and six Montreal Sections will attend.

Early honors in the judging of Jersey and Canadian cattle were awarded yesterday afternoon: Mrs. A. R. Virgin, of North Hatley, won the grand champion Jersey bull award, with the reserve championship going to Wilfrid Hadlock, of Freighsburg.

Otis Fowler, of Kingsbury carried off the male grand championships for the Canadians while J. A. Verpaest, of Ayer's Cliff took the reserve ribbon.

Tomorrow, Federal Day, judging continues on the Holsteins and is expected to start for Ayrshires. At 2:00 p.m., there will be a Grand Parade of horses and 4-H Club Calves in front of the Grandstand, followed by the Grand Parade of cattle in the arena at 4:00 p.m.

Thursday, the final day of the Jubilee Exhibition, will start with the judging competitions, judging of Guernsey cattle and at 8:00 p.m. performance in the Grandstand.

At 10:00 p.m. there is to be the grand drawing for five automobiles, 11:45 p.m. the official closing of the Fair will take place.

Penny machines still exist

Hurry, hurry, hurry to the midway see if the cow really has six legs

"Step right up, ladies and gentlemen and get your tickets for the big show—Approchez, approchez, mesdames et messieurs; venez acheter vos billets immédiatement!"

With this bilingual chant, barkers on the midway of the Sherbrooke Fair are once again luring customers into the various sideshows with enticing promises of seeing something you've never seen before.

You can have an electronic analysis of your handwriting done almost as soon as you step through the gates. Later, you can try a bewildering variety of rides including the Moon-Rocket, the Rollo-Plane, the Round-up, the Broadway Express, or even the tunnel of love.

And there is still a penny arcade in which some of the machines can actually be worked with a penny. But the nickel and dime machines are taking up quite a bit of space now.

Sideshows include a reptile exhibit, one entitled "nature's mistakes" and a "Thrill-a-Rama" among others. Altogether, there are 26 different rides including 12 which are exclusively for the kiddies, nine shows, 25 games, six novelty stands and ten refreshment stands.

There are two more rides and four more shows than last year, but the most popular of all the concessions is the bingo stand, says Frank Conklin of the Conklin Brothers who operate the midway.

"Next to bingo, of course, the merry-go-round is the all-time favorite," he added.

In spite of the fact that attendance to date is up 10,000 from last year, the books show that receipts are down on the midway, according to Mr. Conklin.

"On Sunday, we had about 2,400 more people attending than on the same day last year, but total receipts on the midway were down 20 per cent," he said.

He puts the blame for this situation squarely on the shoulders of the unemployment problem in Canada.

But, in spite of this rather gloomy outlook, people are still flocking to the fairs in ever-increasing numbers and a good percentage of them are still willing to pay for the privilege of finding out for themselves whether or not the "Six-legged Cow" really has six legs.

At present, City of Sherbrooke council members are studying the J. C. LaHaye urbanism plan and are expected to adopt the $45,000 plan shortly.

The speaker said he believed that such plans should be put into operation immediately so that the municipalities can adopt themselves to the new kind of life.

"The work week will be reduced thus increasing the individual's recreation hours. Therefore recreational activities will play a major part in city life in the near future," he said.

Another specialist invited to speak at the convention was Philippe Garigue, dean of the Faculty of Social Sciences at the University of Montreal. He said that within the next 10 years, the increase in population will cause complex problems.

Mr. Garigue said that in 1970, 80 per cent of the population will be living in urban areas.

Mr. Charbonneau also predicted that within the next 10 years the work week would be shortened because of automation and other developments in municipal service while productivity will be increased.

These comments from Mr. Hamel follow the lines of statements issued by Sherbrooke valuers concerning the proposed increase in Sherbrooke's valuation roll.

The City's valuation office has received over 600 protests which will be revised by the valuation office's revision bureau.

Municipalities should put into operation their urbanism and allotment plans immediately if they want to overcome the complex problems that will be created by the developments of the next 10 years, Roger Charbonneau, assistant director of the Ecole des Hautes Etudes Commerciales, of Montreal said yesterday.

Criminally responsible in mishap

COATCOOK — Donat Lachapelle, 49, East Hatley truck driver, was held criminally responsible by a coroner's jury last night for the August 6 death of Fernand Martin in a traffic accident at nearby Barnston.

Following the jury verdict, Lachapelle was arrested on a warrant issued by the coroner, Dr. Louis Gagnon, and transferred to the provincial police cells at Sherbrooke. He is scheduled to appear in court sometime today.

Over 100 persons crowded into the council chamber of the Town Hall to hear the evidence of the eight witnesses. Five attorneys, including Crown Prosecutor Benoit Turmel, representing interested parties also took part in proceedings.

Witnesses included Lachapelle, who blamed the collision on a mechanical defect in the truck; Real Favreau and Clement, waiters in a Coatcook tavern; Dr. Gustave Lajoie, whose car was following the truck at the time of the crash; Clement Mongeau, whose car was ahead of that driven by the victim, and Miss Jeanne d'Arc Bonhomme, of Magog, a passenger in the victim's car.

Dr. Lajoie, Mongeau and Miss Bonhomme all testified that Lachapelle's truck had been zig-zagging across the highway about the time the crash occurred.

Moscow-Peking split

Concrete evidence of the ideological split between Moscow and Peking is contained in a document now being circulated among world communist leaders.
It boasts Moscow's peaceful coexistence line and knocks Red China's theme that war with the West is inevitable.
This new "manifesto" was summarized two weeks ago by the Soviet army publication Red Star.
And while it does not specifically name China it hits at "dogmatists and sectarians" who continue to repeat the old Marxist line that wars are inevitable as long as capitalism remains.
The article repeats that now familiar refrain of the Kremlin — that the "supreme duty" of communism is to avert a world war.

Just how deep this split in the Communist bloc really goes is anyone's guess.

But it could be simply a desire for survival on the part of the Russians.

If the fight for world communism is waged on an ideological level then they may reason, they will have a chance of emerging as top dog.

But if, as Marx indicated, that war is to be a fighting one, then they might well entertain fears as to what their status would be among their more numerous Chinese comrades. Particularly would this be so if and when China gain full membership in the nuclear club.

Great restraint needed

Gen. Carl von Horn, commander of the United Nations forces in the Congo is quoted as saying yesterday: "I was so mad, I promised to fire the first shot myself if there was any interference."

It was reported that Gen. von Horn was infuriated at the latest clash between his men and Congolese forces.

It is to be hoped that the general's words, if he said them, were spoken in a moment of thoughtless pique.

No one will question the fact that UN soldiers in the Congo are in a position of great tension. They are understandably angered and irritated at the reception that has been given them. And it is unlikely that their position will be made any more comfortable in the near future.

Aid to municipalities

The declaration by Municipal Affairs Minister Rene Hamel in Montreal Sunday that the provincial government would seek means of providing the municipalities with a bigger share of the tax dollar is important in that it is a confirmation of earlier statements by Premier Jean Lesage and other members of his Government that the urgent needs of the municipalities have been recognized at Quebec.

Actually, the new administration appears to be following a policy of decentralization in administration.

Already it has announced that the municipalities will be expected to provide their own comprehensive police protection and not depend upon the provincial police to carry out local investigations.

But as representatives of the United Nations, it behooves them to act with all possible restraint and calmness. The country in which they are stationed belongs to the Congolese. UN forces are there not to fight the people of the Congo, but to help them.

There have undoubtedly been many instances in which UN forces have almost been provoked into a show of force. It speaks well for them and their leaders that they have not risen to the provocation.

This is an attitude that must be maintained. Gen. von Horn's anger to the contrary. Nothing would damage the cause of the United Nations and the free world more than open warfare between UN forces and people they came to help.

Similarly, in other fields, it has been indicated that local authorities must be prepared to accept their proper responsibilities.

But the Government is prepared to admit that these extra responsibilities will cost money, money that the cities, towns and villages have not available. To meet this situation, the province and perhaps the federal authorities must provide the municipalities with assistance — either through the ceding of certain tax sources or through direct subsidies on a statutory basis.

The chief interest at present is just how Premier Lesage and his associates propose to meet the situation, an issue that must be aired soon after the Legislature opens.

Communism's Cocoon

Fuel for man's energy

Mankind depends on 11 crops

By RICHARD P. POWERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The great bulk of mankind depends on 11 major food crops for subsistence. In one part of the world or another they provide the main fuel for man's energy. Five of these crops are tropical. They are rice, sugar cane, cassava, coconuts and bananas. The other six are wheat, corn, rye, potatoes, beans and peas. All but three—corn, potatoes and cassava—enter world trade in large amounts.

Of all the foodstuffs grown by mankind, the U.S. agriculture department says, it is difficult to know just why these 11 crops gained particular favor.

But the 11 have certain characteristics in common: (1) they yield heavily; (2) they have relatively good keeping and storage qualities; and (3) they are relatively easy to grow.

Wheat and rice are the two leading food staples. Four out of five of the world's inhabitants eat one or the other of them. Production of the two grains is about equal—150,000,000 tons a year.

Wheat, however, is grown on more of the world's acreage than any other crop, since man through plant-breeding has lifted the barriers of nature so that today there is no real wheat climate. Wheat can be grown as far north as Finland and near the equator in central India.

However, five countries, Canada, the United States, Australia, Argentina and France, supply most of the world wheat exports.

Rice is the subsistence food of the warm humid lands. More than 90 per cent of the world's yearly rice crop is produced in Asia and most of the trade in rice takes place in this area.

Rye is an important crop in northern Europe, but acreage is declining in favor of wheat. Rye can be grown wherever wheat is grown but because it is the most winter-hardy of the cereals it can be produced in climates too cold for wheat. Today rye is largely a crop of Europe and the Soviet Union.

Corn ranks third among the grains in acreage and production. Native to the Americas, it now is widely distributed over the earth. But corn is low on the list of desired foods, so that the bulk of the crop is converted into meat and poultry.

Potatoes rival grains in the amount of food produced and on a weight basis the world's potato crop exceeds its wheat crop. But storage is a problem and, also because of weight and volume, they move but little in export trade. Europe is the big potato continent.

Field beans are the most important of the seeded legumes and in areas where there is a scarcity of meat, they supply the diet's protein needs. The main centres of production are the Far East, Brazil, the Mediterranean basin, and the United States.

Sugar usually appears in some form in everyday meals of people all over the world, since it is one of the best and cheapest sources of energy. Sugar cane is less expensive to produce than sugar beets and leads in production. Cuba and India are the two largest producers, but most of India's sugar is consumed at home, so that Cuba and the Philippines are the major exporters.

Cassava, a staple food in tropical lands, originated in the Americas but has spread throughout equatorial Africa, Asia and the tropical islands. Most of it is eaten where it is grown, but some, mainly in the form of tapioca, reaches outside markets.

Coconuts, another tropical food, are also an outstanding source of vegetable oil. Bananas originated in Asia, but by the early 16th century they had spread to the humid tropics throughout the world.

The leading commercial banana area is in the Caribbean and Latin America.

BE YOUR AGE

(Cape Breton Post)
The youth vanity begins very young nowadays. It accounts for the reluctance of adolescents to grow up, and for the unwillingness of many young people to be grown up after they have reached physical maturity. In bygone centuries, when the average of a lifetime was briefer, young men were eager to take on the full stature of maturity. If they were to succeed this side of the grave they had to be quick about it.

BLUEBERRY PIE

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)
A spotlight blueberry pie is one reason why August is enduring. A man enjoys picking a few quarts. With a two-quart lard pail fastened under a suspender button, he uses both hands to gather the fruit.

Two deplorable aspects of the blueberry pie situation are that many cooks do not make them juicy enough, and that they do not sprinkle on a whiff of cinnamon just before the top crust is revetted tight. The blueberry needs that touch of spice along with the sugar and dots of butter to bring out the full, saliva-starting flavor.

A test of a blueberry pie is whether it is sufficiently juicy so that one must eat it with a dessert spoon. It isn't mentioned in any constitution, but one of a man's inalienable rights is a blueberry pie so juicy that nothing except a spoon serves as a logical eating tool. If a man can have two or three pies a week of this calibre, he can face the oncoming visit of his wife's sister's family with some degree of equanimity.

TRUE TO LIFE

(Manchester Guardian)
Children at Thurnscoe (South Yorkshire) found that the game of "weddings" they played in their gardens lacked reality. So they decided to make the game as true to life as possible—by playing in the parish church. They used the rector's prayer book to read the wedding service, lit altar candles and borrowed the choir's surplices.

CURB PARKING COSTLY

(Kingston Whig-Standard)
The astonishing fact that downtown parking spaces are worth from $15,000 to $20,000 each in annual sales in cities with populations of 10,000 to 100,000 is a powerful argument for the co-operation of all retailers in parking planning.

What is even more astonishing is that, with figures like that before them, store owners and managers permit themselves or their employees to park on the streets on which their establishments front.

RAILWAYS ADJUST

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)
Canada's railways have been forced to make another strategic withdrawal in the fight for the travel dollar.

Both the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways have announced plans to curtail cross-Canada sleeping car services during the off-season. Only the two top trains would have full sleeping car services under the new system.

In making the announcement, Donald Gordon, CNR president, admitted that the airlines have a decided edge in carrying passengers on long-distance hauls. The future of railways, he said, seemed to lie in rapid inter-city service or commuter business.

The managements of the two national systems have obviously been looking at their problems realistically. Clearly, where economy is not a governing factor, the transcontinental traveller in Canada today will usually prefer the airlines. After all today's jet aircraft have reduced the time involved to a matter of a few hours instead of the days required on the fastest passenger trains.

HOW TO USE

"UNUSUAL" N.T.

The unusual no-trump is one of the many conventions that have sprung from the fertile brain of Alvin Roth. Anything Al thinks of is likely to be good and, while many of his ideas are not ones that I approve of, I do use this unusual no-trump convention as do the great majority of expert players.

The basis of the unusual no-trump is that anytime a player bids no-trump when obviously he does not mean it he is expressing interest in the minor suits.

North had a perfect hand for this convention. He passed after the opening spade bid and came in with his unusual no-trump at the four level. East's double was apparently made to show 13 cards. South went to five five.

diamonds. The unusual no-trump had asked for minors and West promptly doubled. He assumed that his partner was showing minor suit strength by his double of four no-trump.

The king of spades was opened and South had no trouble gathering 11 tricks. You can figure out the method he used.

While the unusual no-trump is primarily a duplicate convention it can be used in rubber bridge also. There are two principal words of caution. First: Don't use it unless your partner and you know exactly what you are doing! Second: Don't use it unless you have at least 10 cards in the minor suits.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been:
South West North East
1 Heart Pass 1 N.T. Pass
3 Dms. Pass 4 Dms. Pass

You, South, hold:
Spades A-2, Hearts A-Q-J-10-5, Diamonds K-9-8-7-6-4, Clubs 0.

What do you do?
A—Bid five diamonds. There may be six or even seven, but you must remember that your partner has merely responded one no-trump to start with. If you have a very good partner you might compromise by bidding four spades and leaving slam action up to him.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You open the bidding with one heart holding:

Your partner responds one no-trump. What do you do?

Focus 'Colorama' on Maligne Lake

NEW YORK (CP)—The beauty of Maligne Lake in Canada's Jasper National Park will be featured in a "colorama" display in New York's Grand Central Terminal during September.

The Maligne Lake picture, made last summer in the shadow of the Queen Elizabeth Range in Jasper park, is the work of Peter Gales, Pasadena, Calif., photographer, who spent two weeks at the lake making exposure after exposure until he got the desired shot.

This marks the first time a Canadian picture has been used in a colorama display in Grand Central, where it will be seen at the east end of the concourse by the many thousands of travellers using the terminal.

Young China takes to the water

PEKING (Reuters) — Chinese young people, following the example of China's Communist Party Leader Mao Tse-tung, have taken to the water on a big scale this year as part of a campaign to build a healthy nation—and to escape the stifling summer heat.

In Peking, thousands of children and adults crowd large, modern swimming pools each hot summer's day.

From elsewhere in China, reports tell of similar crowds at newly built pools in rivers, lakes and sea coast resorts.

Swimming, one of the most popular recreations in sports-conscious China, has become more widespread as new pools are built under the patronage of Mao.

Mao, a keen swimmer since his youth, has retained his love of the water and even now, at 66, takes regular swims whenever he has an opportunity.

There are four major outdoor swimming centres in the Chinese capital as well as a number of smaller ones and several lakes, rivers and canals where swimming is possible. Now, communists, colleges and factories are building their own pools.

In Peking, swimmers must present a health certificate, signed by a doctor, which lists half a dozen simple "rules" calling for observance of health regulations, regard for public property and "mutual aid" in helping other swimmers.

The rules state that swimmers must wear "tidy and clean swimming suits; female comrades must wear bathing caps." The costumes are simple and without frills. Girls wear one-piece suits with high necklines. Bikinis are not seen.

Classes to improve swimming standards are held regularly for both adults and children.

Other Chinese cities have joined in the swimming boom.

At sub-tropical Canton, about 600,000 people are regular visitors to pools. Workers and leading Communist officials are given lessons alongside children and many groups are taking part in 140-kilometre (about 87 miles) relay swims.

At Shanghai, according to the physical culture and sports commission, about 1,000,000 people will have gone swimming this summer at 60 public pools—20 more than last year. Others will have used facilities at nearby lakes, rivers and sea beaches.

Ontario's last covered bridge being renovated

WEST MONTROSE, Ont. (CP) — Ontario's only remaining covered bridge is being renovated after local historical society members successfully fought against its demolition in the path of progress.

The 195-foot, 78-year-old bridge across the Grand River, 15 miles northwest of Kitchener, was to be replaced by a metal span. The highways department, according to tradition, now has agreed to repair it.

The covered bridge, made principally of white pine, has 20 shutter-tight windows, like venetian blinds, which let in some light. Old lanterns still hang from the roof, but are being converted to electricity.

Highways department officials say the roof has protected the roadway from rotting. Though too narrow for two cars to pass, the bridge can handle two buggies going in either direction. Trucks are prohibited.

prone to low back troubles than those who play frequently.

If you've been sitting for more than 15 minutes, you're probably getting a little uncomfortable. Sitting compresses the blood vessels in the thighs, causes fatigue and discomfort.

Now a new seat designed to end sit-down fatigue has been tested by Dr. Laurence E. Morehouse of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Morehouse said truck drivers reported less footswelling, leg numbness, backache and slowed reactions—all the old signs of driver fatigue.

The seat, now produced commercially, consists of two foam-rubber panels balanced on coil springs. Body weight is supported on seat bones instead of the thighs.

Between-meal snacks a top dental hazard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the weekend sportsman over 30, or the parent worried about a child's between-meal snacks, or the automobile driver, here is news with focus on health.

SNACKS, TOOTH DECAY

The more a child snacks between meals, the higher his rate of tooth decay, a U.S. public health survey shows.

The reason: Most snacks are high in sugar content or in stickiness — both factors in causing tooth decay, says Dr. Robert L. Weiss, an expert in the U.S. department of health, education and welfare.

Children who ate four or more such items in a day had three times as many defective teeth as children who had no such snacks.

The average child had 1.75 items a day.

Most popular snacks: Gum, candy, soft drinks, pastry and ice cream in that order.

You're more vulnerable to injury after 30—and you get more and more vulnerable as time goes on, a Beverly Hills, Calif., physician reports.

The reasons are these: Cumulative effects of past, even minor, injuries; slowing of reflexes; less elasticity of bone and muscle; less ability of these tissues to repair themselves to pre-injury state.

The best defence is conditioning and training. Some experts believe that baseball players reach their peak of value between the ages of 28 and 34, says Dr. Daniel H. Levinthal.

Occasional athletes are more

matter of FACT

Hans Van Meegeren had a tough decision to make. Would he rather be branded a traitor or a forger? After World War II he was accused of collaborating with the Nazis because he sold them a famous art treasure. Actually, he was a forger and the "art treasure" was phony, though it fooled experts. To prove he really was a forger, he painted another "old masterpiece" while officials watched.

RICHMOND — The death of Georges Cousineau, a highly respected resident and veteran of World Wars I and II, passed away on August 4, 1960, at the Veterans' Hospital, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, where he had been a patient for five months, following a period of failing health. He was 63 years of age.

The deceased was born at Magog, son of the late Georges Cousineau and his wife, Thies Pelletier, and came at an early age with his parents to reside at Valcourt. He was united in marriage to Bella Godbout of Lisgar, and left for Sherbrooke to reside. While there he served with the Royal Canadian Engineers Regiment in both World Wars. WILMER D. SMITH, OF COWANSVILLE.

WILMER D. SMITH

COWANSVILLE — A resident of Cowansville for many years, Wilmer D. Smith, died on July 28, 1960, at the B.M.P. Hospital, Sweetburg, in his 81st year, after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Smith was born and received his early education near Plantagenet, Ont. After attending business college in Ottawa, he began his long association with both the Eastern Townships and with the lumber industry by accepting a position with the Eastman Lumber Co. of Eastman. Subsequently he worked for lumber manufacturers in Cookshire and Labelle, Que., and in Vancouver, B.C.

In 1914 he became office manager of the Restigouche Lumber Co., located on the Restigouche River. He held this position until 1929, with the exception of three years during World War I. In 1916, although 37 years of age he enlisted with his younger brother in the 77th Battalion, C.E.F., and served overseas with the unit and with the Army Pay Office, London, until the end of the War, when he resumed his position in Restigouche.

In 1932, Mr. Smith came here to found his own business, Cowansville Building Supplies Ltd. The business grew steadily under his guidance, and he remained president and manager and majority shareholder until his death. This ended 60 years in the lumber business, throughout which he was respected for his integrity and progressive views.

Wherever he lived, he participated extensively in church and community affairs. He was envelope steward and secretary-treasurer of the Sunday School both in Campbellton, N.B., and Cowansville, for a total of 25 years. He was a steward and member of the trustee board of Emmanuel United Church, Cowansville, one-time treasurer of the M. and M. Fund and a faithful member of the church.

Mr. Smith joined the Canadian Legion in Campbellton upon its inception, later transferred to Knowlton, and in 1944 was instrumental in founding the Cowansville Branch. He served as its first corresponding secretary, later becoming treasurer, and was made an honorary life member in 1955. He was secretary-treasurer of the Red Cross campaigns during World War II and a member of Cornerstone Lodge No. 37 A.F. and A.M.

In 1924 he married Mary Gertrude Phelps, originally of Eastman, at which time he was employed at the Dominion of Canada Archives in Ottawa.

He is survived by his wife; one son, Douglas; a grandson, Lorne; a brother, Clifford, of Milestone, Sask.; and a sister, Mrs. William McCallum, Vancouver, B.C.

The funeral was held from his home on July 30, at Emmanuel Church, where the service was conducted by Rev. Carl J. Gustafson. The choir sang Still With Thee and The Lord Is My Shepherd. The bearers were all members of the Cowansville Legion.

Interment was in the Cowansville Cemetery, where the Last Post was sounded at the graveside by a member of the Legion.

You can take it with you...

This is comfort. This is peace. This is your favorite living-room chair. Why leave its ease when you travel — or take the anxious seat — when you can be cradled in such comfort as you go?

Those who ride in cushioned luxury with Canadian National Railways leave neither comfort nor ease at home. Neither do they ride with apprehension and concern.

They ride the way of the worry-free.

No traffic to contend with. No risks of the crowded road. There is neither fatigue to greet you nor tension to accompany you — you ride relaxed. You reach there rested.

It is these important, wanted things that constantly increase the number of motorists who say —

"When it's over 100 miles, I take the train".

The Doctor Says
EARLY GLAUCOMA
TREATMENT CAN WARD
OFF BLINDNESS
By HAROLD THOMAS HYMAN
M. D.

The human eye is shaped like a ball. What is ordinarily seen between upper and lower lids is just a small portion of its surface that is fitted with a window permitting unobstructed penetration by light waves.

Within the eyeball, there's a circulating fluid that's kept under fairly constant pressure. When there's an increase of the pressure within the eyeball (intraocular tension), the condition of glaucoma is said to exist.

Unless corrected, glaucoma produces visual impairment and even total blindness as a result of damage to the optic nerve that enters the eyeball at a point directly opposite to the pupillary window.

Of the nearly 30,000 Americans who become blind each year, approximately 13 per cent suffer visual loss because of undetected glaucoma.

To prevent needless suffering and incapacitation of glaucoma-blindness, many public-spirited organizations conduct mass screening surveys, especially for the 40-and-over age group of whom one in each 50 displays evidences of an unsuspected elevation of intraocular tension.

Recently, for example, 220 persons were tested at the Colorado State Medical convention and six cases of unsuspected glaucoma were discovered—four in doctors.

In the Pittsburgh area, almost 21,000 persons were examined by the local ophthalmological society under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind. Glaucoma was suspected in 499 men and 600 women, and it was proved in 389 or 1.8 per cent of all those examined.

The test for glaucoma is easily carried out. After instilling a few drops of a rapidly acting local anesthetic in the eye, a small circular measuring instrument (tonometer) is pressed against the anesthetized eyeball. The reading is then made on a scale comparable to an ordinary blood pressure machine.

The condition can most often be controlled by the instillation of eye drops that reduce the size of the pupillary opening and by mouth doses of one of the new drugs that regulate the fluid content of our tissues. Both drugs require a physician's prescription and supervision. Should drug treatment fail, recourse to surgery may successfully preserve vision.

Although glaucoma is often unsuspected, it may make its presence known.

In acute glaucoma, the attack is featured by such severe pain in the affected eye or eyes that medical consultation is soon sought.

In the more treacherous chronic phase, the suspicion of the alert patient may be aroused by blurring of vision, the appearance of halos around electric lights, nagging discomfort in one or both eyes, and contraction of the field of vision so that nothing is seen except what lies directly ahead like "looking through a gun barrel."

COWANSVILLE — An attractive arrangement of autumn flowers enhanced the rooms at the home of Mrs. Gardner Phelps on Thursday evening, Aug. 18, when her daughter, Miss Joan Phelps, entertained at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Grace Peron, a bride-to-be of early September.

About 25 friends and relatives of the bride-to-be were present, and, as she entered the room, she was presented with a lovely corsage of red roses by little Miss Carole Choquette.

The gifts were arranged under a large white wedding bell, the handle at the top forming an arch under which a miniature bride and groom stood. Lovely white satin ribbon bows and lilies-of-the-valley trimmed the beautiful bell, which was made by Miss Marion Phelps. Mrs. Stanley Peron assisted her daughter in opening the gifts for all to admire.

No Juvenile Delinquents In Turkey

VICTORIA (CP) — A Turkish police official visiting here said that his country has no juvenile delinquency problem.

Mehmet Evvin, chief of the Turkish national police communication branch, said in an interview here that Turkey had learned a lot about rearing respectful, law-abiding children.

"Our police have no trouble with juveniles. A Turkish city of the same size as Victoria would have a force of 300 compared with a third as many more here. There is a single police force of 13,000 for all Turkey."

"The Turkish family is strong. The children respect their family—even the monied children. They do nothing without parental consent until they are grown up and get married."

Mr. Evvin is touring Canada and the United States studying police methods.

Win Friends, Lose Them?
Could It Be Your Fault?

She makes friends easily enough but she has trouble holding on to them. "What could be wrong with me?" she asks.

Maybe you can get a clue from answering these questions:

Are you careful not to demand too much of your friends, taking up too much of their time, expecting to be included in all of their plans, wanting to know all about their personal affairs?

Do you make an effort to give help to friends when they need it, even though it inconveniences you to do so?

Do you consider yourself "good company," cheerful, fun to be with, interested in a variety of things and not overly critical of others?

Do you do your part in keeping a friendship alive by making plans to get together with friends, entertaining in your own home and so on, instead of sitting around waiting to be asked to do something?

Do you accept your friends "as is" instead of trying to tell them things "for their own good" or offering unasked-for advice?

Are you a good listener, the kind of person in whom others feel they can confide?

Are you able to keep a secret and to use discrimination in deciding what things a friend would not want you to broadcast, even though you haven't been asked not to "tell a soul"?

Are you free of jealousy toward your friends?

Are you sure that you never take offense where no offense is meant?

Do you have an outgoing, warm-hearted personality that gives friends the assurance that they have a special place in your affections?

Somewhere in this list of questions you may find the answer to why you can make friends but have a hard time keeping them.

Homemaking

Fine wool blankets can be washed successfully in an automatic washer if you shake each one first to remove loose dirt, use lukewarm water, carefully measured soap or detergent and set the dial for a very short cycle.

Beauty Tips

If you've had an especially fatiguing day, try running your bath water hotter than you usually do. Take a glass of water before getting into the tub to encourage perspiration. Stay in the bath for about 15 minutes, then scrub with soap and finish with a cool shower. You'll feel completely relaxed.

Personals

A delightful pink and blue shower was held at the home of Mrs. W. K. Patton, Patricia St., in honor of Mrs. Albert Sylvester. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Bruce Patton and Miss Beverly Patton.

The guest of honor was the recipient of a number of useful and dainty articles, for which she expressed her thanks to her friends.

Games were then played, the prize winners being Mrs. G. Marcoux and Mrs. E. Wright. Later in the evening piano selections were rendered by Mr. Bruce Patton.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses assisted by the Misses Patricia Brooks and Betty Sylvester.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Jane Chaddock and Miss P. Brooks.

Friends of Mr. Harry Hunter, Queen St., Lennoxville, will regret to learn that he is a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Gunther Malue and children have returned to their home in Farnham, Que., having spent the weekend with Mrs. Malue's mother, Mrs. George Heath, Fairmount St.

Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Jeanpretre, whose marriage took place recently in France, will be "At Home" to their relatives and friends on Monday evening, September 5, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Kerr, Island Brook, Que.

This Army Camp Is A Family Affair

CAMP WAINWRIGHT, Alta. (CP)—Pte. Paul Mainwaring of Winnipeg is one Canadian soldier who has been subject to taking army orders from his mother.

Both Pte. Mainwaring, a member of the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps, and his mother Cpl. Marguerite Chandler, a member of the women's militia, were stationed at this eastern Alberta base this summer.

Another combination at the camp was a mother and daughter team. Sgt. Jean O'Neil and her daughter Pte. Patricia Thompson, both of Oak Bay, B.C., took their training with 155 Company, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps. There was also a 45-year-old grandmother and an 18-year-old girl who wrote some of her high school exams while at camp.

The part-time CWAC members were trained in driving and maintaining army vehicles, map reading, and radiation detection and monitoring.

Many found the camp, commanded by Capt. Kathleen Trudale of Edmonton, a welcome change from household chores. Said one CWAC:

"I left my husband at home to look after things. It won't do him any harm to see what goes into running a house."

'61 Paris Fashions Are Wearable

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK — The first pictures through from Paris show fall and winter fashions to be feminine and wearable, not at all drastic. Hems are just below the knee and, for both daytime and evening, get the luxury of fur trim. Many coat collars come up to the ears only to be met by hats reaching down to the ears. We show here daytime and evening clothes from the top French couturiers, all of them very flattering.

A LIGHT and airy look is achieved in this double-breasted turquoise coat by Michel Goma in a shaggy surface fabric. Semi-fitted at the front, it has high waistline with slightly flared skirt. Fabric is a blend of Orlon and mohair.

THIS SPORTY and casual suit has jacket with smooth fit, high pockets, cravat tie and saucer buttons. It's designed by Jean Patou. It's shown here in a new, lightweight tweed that's a blend of Orlon, reindeer hair and nylon.

Fashion

Newest of the fake furs for fall and winter is leopard. It often gets real fur as trim.

When shopping, don't rely on a price tag as a sure sign of quality.

Palace Party Is A Mad Scramble

LONDON (CP) — In sublime defiance of the inevitable, almost every woman at a Buckingham Palace garden party wears stiletto heels, a frothy, impractical hat and a pastel-colored outfit.

By the time she leaves, the hat looks like a used paper napkin. The shoes, if they haven't sunk without trace in the royal turf, are a tasteful mud color. The outfit, when it dries, will be useful for dusting furniture.

Everyone knows that it almost always rains at palace garden parties. But no one would be caught dead greeting the Queen in a raincoat and flat shoes.

Umbrellas are out. Not that anyone has scruples about jabbing her neighbor in the eye. It's simply that no woman would allow her umbrella to stand between her and the sight of a crowned head.

GOOD EXERCISE

To avoid getting their spiked heels entangled in topsoil, the female guests perform a ritual reminiscent of the mating dance of the whooping crane. The trick is to teeter about as if walking through a nursery when the children are asleep. Two hours of it works wonders for the leg muscles.

Another impressive athletic achievement is the battle for tea, cakes and a roll or two in one of the marquees, especially when the path is blocked by 5,000-odd fellow-guests intent on escaping the downpour.

Thus fortified, a survivor is free to burrow into the crowd of men and women staring unashamedly at their royal hostess as she chats with ex-servicemen.

Although formal presentations at palace garden parties were discontinued two years ago, there are still several reasons why people go to them. Primarily, of course, it is to see the Queen. A second is so they can say they have been inside the massive royal residence. A third is to see how many well-known personalities they can spot.

LOSING BATTLE

The last is a losing battle, except for those familiar enough with the great and near-great to have lost the thrill of the chase. Nothing is more disconcerting than gazing hopefully at an obviously aristocratic person, and then hearing him speak in an American accent.

There is an air of Aspidochelone about the place, due probably to the men in grey toppers and morning suits, and the women in gay hats. But, as someone pointed out: A palace garden party is less exciting since there is no opportunity to make a fortune on a long shot.

Anyway, the Queen looked lovely and the food was good. It was a nice party.

Buttery Rows Of Sweet Corn

BACON SOUR CREAM CORN SAUCE

Crunchy bacon bits and sour cream make a delicious and unusual spread for steaming, fresh sweet corn.

Chomping along buttery rows of fresh, sweet corn-on-the-cob is one of the most satisfying taste sensations in the world! There's no reason to make the family wait for that first real corn roast because there's some very pretty corn to be had in all months, ears which have been harvested with jet-age speed and rushed to your market from the sunlit fields of many states.

During cold weather corn is harvested in the south, then as the season advances, it comes from more northern areas.

The demand for sweet corn has grown so steadily in all parts of the country because of the fine quality of the ears. Growers and shippers in all producing states discovered the importance of prompt and constant refrigeration. The natural sweetness and tenderness of a prime ear of corn can be retained only if the field heat is removed quickly after harvest.

Much of the credit for the freshness of this sweet corn must go to the quick chill — hydro-cooling — which greets the ears as they're rushed in from the field. It takes four and a half miles of refrigerant-filled copper tubing in the larger hydro-cooling rooms used to drop the temperature of newly picked corn to 33°F. in half an hour. So efficient is this ice-water operation that 2,500 crates of corn can be chilled every hour by one of these big machines. From this cooler the crates of corn are transferred to refrigerated trucks or railroad cars to arrive at your market as fresh as modern science can make them.

Once you have bought your corn, remember to pop it into the refrigerator as soon as you can, then try some of these mouth-watering sweet corn dishes.
