Liberals feud
with Dorion

PM's word at issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Firing inquiry transcripts and statements from the hip, the federal government and Chief Justice Frederic Dorion kept up a long-range feud Dominion Day.

At issue was a statement in the Dorion report which cast doubt on Prime Minister Pearson's word.

The report into charges of attempted bribery and political coercion by federal ministerial aides to try to spring narcotics trafficker Lucien Rivard from jail said, among a great many other things, that Justice Minister Favreau informed Mr. Pearson last Sept. 2 about the involvement in the Rivard affair of Liberal MP Guy Rouleau.

Mr. Rouleau then was parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson.

The prime minister told the Commons Nov. 24 — and his Commons statement was part of the evidence placed before the Dorion inquiry — that he wasn't told about Mr. Rouleau's part in the case until that very day, 102 days after Mr. Favreau knew about it.

RAISES MATTER

Gordon Churchill, Conservative MP for Winnipeg South Centre, brought the Dorion report's mention of the Sept. 2 date to the attention of the Commons Wednesday just hours before the summer recess began.

Transport Minister Pickersgill said there wasn't a "tittle of evidence" to support Chief Justice Dorion's assertion that Mr. Pearson was told about Mr. Rouleau Sept. 2.

The judge shot back from Quebec City: "We should say to that man that he should read the evidence before talking."

Then began some wild thumbing through the transcript of the inquiry. Chief Justice Dorion referring reporters to one passage, Mr. Pearson referring other reporters to another passage.

Mr. Pearson said Wednesday that Mr. Favreau had categorically denied at the inquiry telling him Sept. 2 about Mr. Rouleau.

His office made public a Tuesday letter to the judge which concluded: "If such an error (the Sept. 2 date) has crept into the report, I assume you will wish to make a statement to correct it."

Mr. Pearson assumed wrong.

Diefenbaker promises non-confidence motion

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker gave notice Thursday that the Liberal government will face a non-confidence motion on the Dorion report Sept. 27.

Charging that the report shows the federal government to be "undermined by vice and crime," Mr. Diefenbaker said the Progressive Conservative motion will be made the day Parliament reconvenes after its summer recess.

He said he would make a full statement on the report today.

The Opposition leader and Mrs. Diefenbaker were to visit Cypress Hills National Park today, extending a planned one-day stay here before going on to Regina. They arrived Thursday to open a rodeo.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Dorion report, into allegations of attempted bribery and coercion by federal ministerial aides to obtain the release on bail of narcotics suspect Lucien Rivard, "shocked the public's conscience."

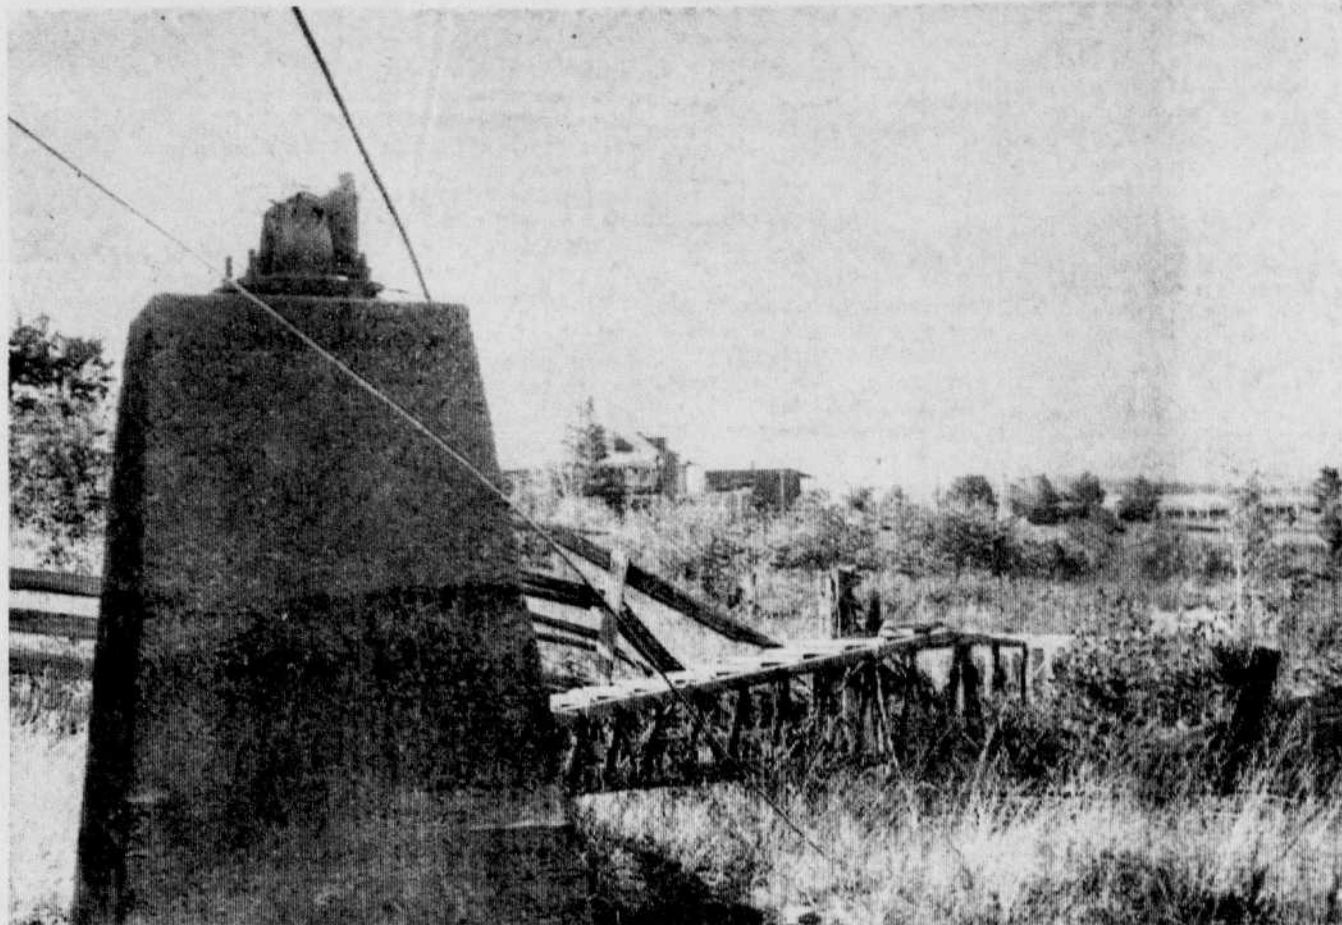

He said at a brief press conference this probably would put an end to any plans the Liberals had for calling a fall election.

The report indicated former justice minister Guy Favreau had "deceived Parliament," the Opposition leader said.

"He (Favreau) should have been summarily dismissed for his handling of the Rivard case," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

English language station in Sherbrooke hit, FLQ symbols left

CKTS radio tower is toppled

TOPPLE TRANSMITTING TOWER — The main transmitting tower of the CKTS English language radio station located in Sherbrooke's East Ward was toppled early this morning. A night transmitting tower about 200 feet away was not damaged. The station is carrying on with regular programming from the night transmitting tower.

By PAUL WHITELAW
(Record staff reporter)

The main transmitting tower of the Sherbrooke English-language radio station, CKTS, was toppled early this morning by saboteurs who identified themselves with painted slogans near the tower as members of the separatist "FLQ," the militant Quebec Liberation Front.

CKTS is owned by the Telegram Printing and Publishing Company and is part of the La Tribune organization.

Officials of the radio station say regular programming will be carried on from a "night and auxiliary" transmitting tower that the saboteurs did not damage.

It is located about 200 feet from the main tower in a field in the East Ward off Papineau Street.

The station came on the air at 7:20 a.m. this morning after an 80 minute delay. The station usually signs on at 6 a.m.

Station officials said no prior warning or threats were received at the station. The officials noted the damage could possibly be the work of pranksters.

CUT GUY WIRES

Some of the guy wires of the 200-foot tower were cut and it toppled, program manager Ken Fowler, said this morning.

Sherbrooke municipal police chief Edouard Moreau said this morning that his force is conducting an investigation but that they had no leads as yet.

A station engineer estimated the damage at "roughly $5,000" and that it would take about two weeks to repair the tower.

Besides the letters "FLQ" painted on a nearby cabin housing station equipment, the slogans "Long Live the Queen" painted in French, and "Quebec Libre" were also present.

"One station official said the "Long Live the Queen" slogan led him to believe the damage "... could very possibly be the work of Dominion Day pranksters."

MAY CUT POWER

Station manager Gordon Beerworth said the station would probably operate on full power until the main transmitter is repaired. He said there was a possibility that a reduction of transmitting power to 250 watts from the usual 1,000 watts might be effective in the evenings. Final word would be received from station engineers later today, he said.

A station official said a reduction to 250 watts would not affect city reception, although places on the outskirts of the 50-to-60-mile transmitting range might experience reception difficulties.

Demonstrate

EDMONTON (CP) — Demonstrators carrying placards paraded Thursday outside the hotel where Ivan Shpedko, Russian ambassador to Canada, is staying on a Western Canadian tour.

*** Birthday wishes

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadians may not always agree with the United States, an American congressman said on Canada's 98th birthday, but "yours has always been an honorable course and we respect you."

Cornelius Gallagher, New Jersey Democrat who heads the House of Representatives delegation to the Canada-U.S. inter-parliamentary group, said it was his pleasure to say "Happy Birthday" to Canadians from sea to sea.

Canadians demonstrate, celebrate

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dominion Day '65 was mostly a story of the usual celebrations — gun salutes, massed band concerts, ethnic recitals, sports events and demonstrations in Montreal.

In Toronto, ceremonies behind the provincial legislative buildings lasted eight minutes and consisted of a 21-gun salute — that was all. There were no speeches, no flags and only 150 persons showed up.

On Parliament Hill it was a different story. A 12-hour program drew thousands of spectators. The changing of the guard ceremony drew 2,000 spectators and an ethnic folk festival in the evening attracted an estimated 5,000.

The festival included everything from a Caribou Indian pipe band to a Japanese sword ritual by a British Columbia group.

In southwestern Ontario, an estimated 750,000 people watched tons of fireworks marking the seventh International Freedom Festival celebrated jointly by Windsor and Detroit, Mich.

The ceremonies marked both Canada's Dominion Day — the 98th anniversary of Confederation — and Independence Day in the United States, usually celebrated July 4.

Thousands of Canadians took advantage of the generally sunny and warm weather to stream to beaches, resorts and golf courses.

In British Columbia temperatures of 80 and 90 degrees made it the warmest day of the year. The temperature reached 97 at Lytton in central B.C.

Saskatchewan and Newfoundland reported variable cloud-ness and scattered showers. Alberta and Saskatchewan received visits from two dignitaries — Ivan F. Shpedko, the Soviet ambassador to Canada, was in Edmonton, and Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker opened a rodeo in Swift Current, Sask.

In Manitoba, Thursday was the day schools had to stop flying the Red Ensign and raise the new maple leaf flag. And a four-day inter-city cricket tournament started, marking the 100th anniversary of the playing of the first cricket game in the province.

Dominion Day celebrations in Quebec included separatist scuffles in Montreal. There were 55 arrests and at least one demonstrator was injured.

In Pugwash, N.S., the 15th annual gathering of the clans and fishermen's regatta was opened by Highways Minister Stephen Pyke. Harness racing drew crowds in both Truro and Sackville Downs, N.S.

Jockey Ron Turcotte, who rode Tom Rolfe to victory in the Preakness Stakes this year, was honored in Grand Falls, N.B.

BRIDE AND GROOM — This petite couple, made up of Lynn Boulanger, 7, of Bury, left, and Nancy Holson, 6, also of Bury, was the winner of a special prize in the children's Dominion Day parade in Bury yesterday. Lynn may enjoy kissing his bride now but in five years he'll probably wish this photo was never taken. See story and picture on page 3.

In opinion of Western diplomats

New Algeria moving to neutrality

ALGIERS (AP) — The new Algerian regime, in the opinion of Western diplomats here, is moving toward a more neutral position in world affairs coupled with an anti-Communist policy at home.

This can have a wide effect on political relations among the nations of the Afro-Asian community.

It can lead many nations to take a new look at the Afro-Asian summit conference, now scheduled for Nov. 5.

Cherif Belkacem, minister of education and information in the new regime, served notice of the switch in domestic policy in an interview with the official newspaper. Belkacem put it this way:

"We have known strange professors, who, in a capable of achieving the revolution in their own countries, pretend to be doing it here, according to plans which have nothing to do with Algeria."

"We have put them aside. We do not want them as guides... they are free to go where they wish, but not to indoctrinate our youth."

Col. Houari Boumedienne's regime has expelled a number of French, Chinese and Egyptian Communists who acted as advisers to deposed president Ahmed Ben Bella.

On the other hand, Fidel Castro in Cuba and Sikou Toure in Guinea have issued statements attacking Boumedienne. Castro Boumedienne's military regime ordered Prensa Latina, the Cuban news agency, to close its Alger office Thursday because it distributed copies of Castro's speech.

Toure praised Ben Bella and said he hoped Algerians will avoid "Congolization" of their country.

This points to closer relations with French-speaking states of "Black Africa" which refused to attend the Afro-Asian conference as originally scheduled here June 29.

It also points to better relations with Algeria's neighbors in the Arab world, Tunisia to the east and Morocco to the west.

The new regime is expected to tread a careful course between East and West, much in the manner of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

If Boumedienne and his colleagues take an actively anti-Communist line at home, it is difficult to see how China can persist in its campaign to stage an Afro-Asian summit conference here.

POLICE MOVE ARMY-LIKE ON DEMONSTRATORS

Today's Chuckle
Why doesn't the Department of Revenue offer us our money back if we're not satisfied?

MONTREAL (CP) — City police, using army-style code names, deployed 500 men Thursday to snuff out two separatist demonstrations during which 55 persons were arrested and at least one person injured.

Also arrested were two men near the United States consulate when police said a check of the car they were in disclosed a quantity of explosives believed to be detonators.

A bomb blast two months ago damaged a corridor connecting the two consulate buildings.

Police Director J. Adrien Robert said Quebec Provincial Police and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police were "aroused but not involved" in the action, as Montreal police carried the load.

He said those arrested during the day and evening — aside from the two near the U.S. consulate — will be charged with disorderly conduct. Conviction could result in a maximum fine of $50 or 60 days in jail.

Director Robert said the demonstrators "were teenagers but not necessarily students."

Four separatists were arrested and one of them was in-

Dominican settlement indicated in statements by junta leaders

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — New statements by two leaders of the Dominican junta appeared today to open the door to a settlement of the stalemate in the Caribbean trouble spot.

Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, civilian-military junta president, said Thursday night the most difficult part of his task is completed and he will step down when the Dominican people are assured of safety from communism, anarchy and despotism.

Communism, Imbert said in a televised speech, has been confined to just one sector of Santo Domingo. He meant the rebel sector.

The remaining task, he said, could be done by any "well-intentioned Dominican." He added that the armed forces and the political parties should share in the responsibility for safeguarding the country.

Imbert said any attempt by the Organization of American States to impose a provisional government would be a "gross act of intervention."

He said he will not be an obstacle to a peaceful solution of the crisis touched off by the rebellion April 24. Previously, Imbert had said he would step down only after an elected government took office.

Newport man is astronaut

NEWPORT, Vt. (AP) — Dr. Duane E. Graveline, 34, a physician researcher chosen as one of six scientist-astronauts for the Apollo moon program has deep roots in his native Newport near the Canadian border.

His sister-in-law, Mrs. Norman Graveline, says: "We are very proud of him. He has loved the work. He's done a lot of research."

Dr. Graveline's appointment was announced Saturday.

His brother Norman, one year younger, works with their father operating a Newport marina on Lake Memphremagog, a 20 mile long lake that crosses the Canadian border into Quebec.

Their father has been in hospital for what the family calls a minor ailment and is due home next week.

Duane Graveline went through Newport High School where he was captain of the football team, then to the University of Vermont and its medical school.

After graduation he entered the air force. He also married a Newport girl—Carol Tollerton—and they have four children.

His family says he returns to Newport as often as possible to hunt and fish.

Firemen stop fire from spreading to whole village

BARNSTON — (Special) — Fire, which at one time threatened to destroy this village in Stanstead County near the American border, levelled a sawmill and home here Thursday afternoon.

The fire broke out about 1 p.m. in the sawmill, operated by Bernard Sparnaay, and spread to the home of Napoleon Madore nearby.

Both buildings were gutted but volunteers managed to save much of the furniture from the Madore home.

The local volunteer fire brigade was assisted by the Way's Mills and Ayer's Cliff volunteer departments and by the Coaticook fire brigade which dispatched a large pumper and a tank truck.

The latter is credited with saving the town from destruction as the town hall and general store were threatened at the time the Coaticook contingent arrived on the scene.

At one time during the afternoon the flames spread to the home of Mrs. Jessie Rose but were extinguished by a hastily-organized bucket brigade.

Although the fire was brought under control shortly before five o'clock Thursday afternoon, large piles of sawdust continued to smoulder and local residents maintained a watch until late in the evening to prevent any renewal of the flames.

The sawmill gave employment to eight men, most of them members of the Sparnaay family.

Machinery and equipment in the mill was owned by Mr. Sparnaay but the buildings themselves were the property of the Misses Stevens of Stanhope.

Mr. Sparnaay late last night was unable to give any estimate of the loss suffered or of his future intentions in regard to the future operation of the mill.

The Misses Stevens of Stanhope estimated the value of the buildings alone at $10,000, and said they carried little insurance on them. Mr. Madore estimated the value of his partially insured house at about $5,000.

The fire was reported to have begun in a pile of shavings outside in a sawmill from which it spread to the mill and thence to the house. Cause of its beginning is unknown.

The heat of the blaze broke windows in other buildings nearby.

Local Scouts to Jamboree

Two dozen Boy Scouts from Sherbrooke and Lennoxville will form a troop to participate in the first Quebec Scout Jamboree at Parc des Voltigeurs, near Drummondville, next week.

Roughly two-thirds of them will be from the First and Second Lennoxville troops, and the other third from the First and Fifth Sherbrooke troops, says District Commissioner Percy Gray.

They will be driven to the site of the jamboree by several men, including scoutmaster Bill Van Horne of Second Lennoxville and Russ Gilling of Fifth Sherbrooke.

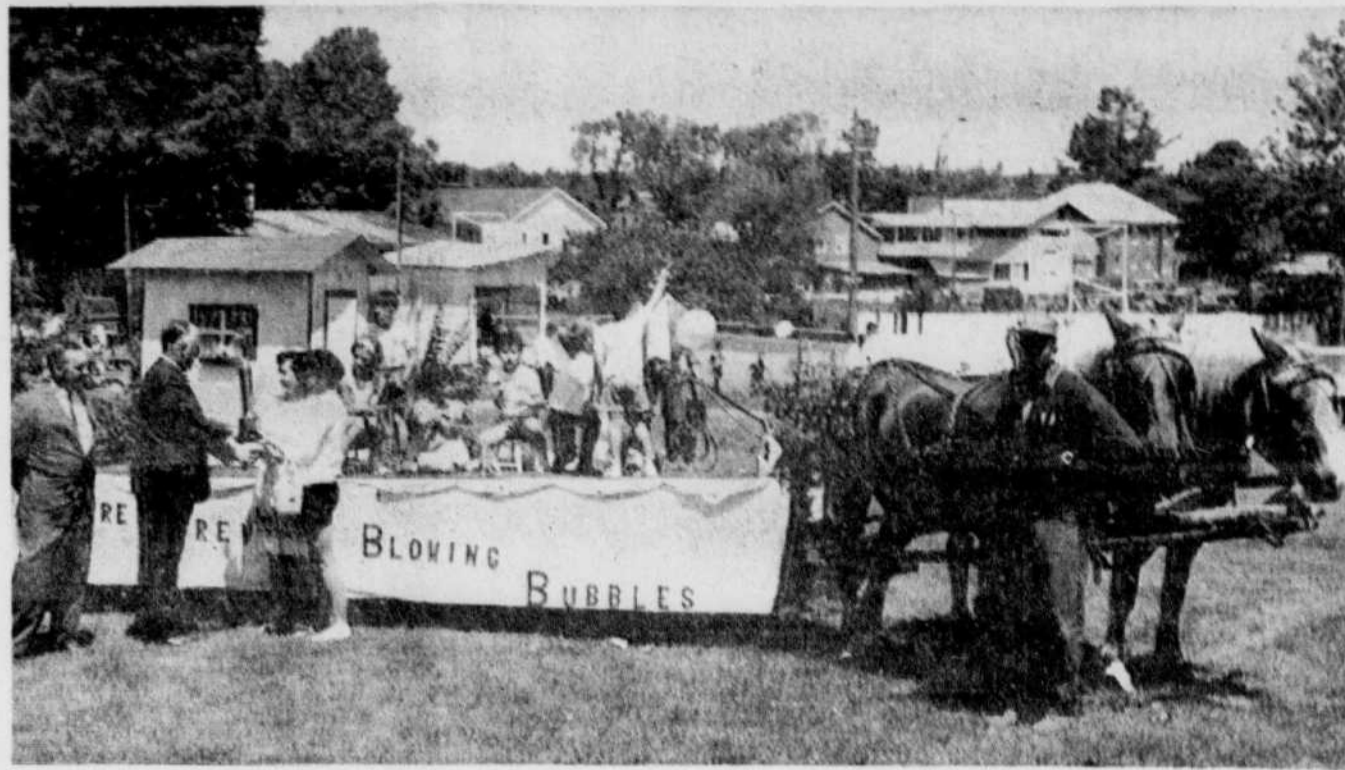

The Quebec Scout Jamboree, first event of its kind ever held in the province, will be opened by Lieutenant-Governor Paul Comtois Sunday afternoon, and will last until next Saturday.

Some 800 scouts from Quebec, both French and English, as well as 400 others from the rest of Canada and the United States, will attend, along with 200 scout leaders.

It is being arranged jointly by the Quebec Provincial Council of the Boy Scouts of Canada and La Federation des Scouts Catholiques. John Miner of Granby, representing the former organization, is one of the two camp-c chiefs.

BURY — Large crowds attended the traditional Dominion Day festivities here yesterday in cool, sunny summer weather.

The day-long program included baseball games, float parade, athletic competition, horse-pulling contest, variety show, dance and fireworks display.

A central event was the float parade which, including cars, horses, bikes and pedestrians, had some 30 entries.

The cars included one covered from stem to stern with criss-crossed red, white and blue crepe paper and an incredibly ugly "planned abomination" car with as a finishing touch, a dummy of a hanged man dangling over the hood.

Bikes in the parades were decorated with various colours of crepe paper, threaded around the spokes of the wheels.

Pedestrians included the Les Ambassadeurs corps of La Colle and the younger Bury Majorettes.

The float entries included a model of the Alton college of the Bury Redemptorist Fathers, a depiction of saving Moses from his fate in the bullrushes by the St. John's Guild, and a float from St. Peter's, Cookshire, titled Dreams and Nightmares.

Total attendance at the Dominion Day festivities was unofficially estimated at 8,000.

In the morning baseball game the Lennoxville Truckers and the Bury team were unable to break a five-all deadlock though the game was prolonged from five innings to seven.

A later ladies' ball game between teams from La Patrie and Scotstown also ended with a tie score: nine-all.

Organizers of the Dominion Day program included president Rayfield Ross; secretary Miss L. Palmer; parade chairman D. H. Harrison and Byron Martin; children's parade chairman Mrs. K. Tarrant, sports committee chairman, Bruce Taylor; and chairman of horse-pulling committee, Ross Goodwin.

Awards were presented by Bury mayor Gordon Dougherty. Canada's new red and white maple leaf flag was everywhere in evidence, often coupled with the blue and white Quebec ensign.

The parade entries were judged as follows: Grand prize — Mrs. R. Goodwin and Mrs. W. Harper, team owned by Roger Bolduc, "I'm forever blowing bubbles"; Tractor Drawn, In Town; L. Cerle de Ferniere; 2. College D'Alton; 3. Pope Memorial School, Little Bo-Bop; 4. Bury United Church, All Nations Float; 5. Rebekahs, Bury; 6. Tractor Drawn, out of town; 7. ## Sherbrooke Courts

Protests innocence — loudly

A youth, charged Wednesday with theft of articles worth $200 from a Deauville cottage June 10, left no doubt on how he was pleading.

Marcel Dagenais, about 18 years old, a short, dark, wiry youth, with long black hair, yelled out in court that police had no right to hold him.

"I'm not guilty," he shouted. Court officials duly registered his plea of not guilty and set trial pro forma (tentatively) for July 7.

He then let loose a string of oaths at court officials. Dagenais was led out of the courtroom down the stairs to the courthouse prison cells still screaming.

A second youth, charged with Dagenais with theft from the Deauville cottage, also raised his voice but not in anger.

Touille-haired Gaston Fiset, about 20 years old, asked if he could be released on bail.

"Have you any previous record," asked Judge Benoit Turmel.

"I was given three months once," he replied.

Then bail, said the judge, will be $500 in cash or $950 in property.

Court lawyers grinned when Fiset then asked if he could be set free to raise the bail money.

Armand Grandhois, a tall, slim youth about 21 years old, was sentenced to six months in prison for passing four false cheques.

Mr. Blanchette had recommended a prison sentence telling Judge Benoit Turmel that Grandhois had committed other offences.

Yet another youth, Andre Lacroix, was charged with burglary of goods worth $115 from an Esplanade St., Sherbrooke, restaurant on the night of June 27.

Lacroix, looking about 19 years old, appeared in court dressed in a blue denim jacket with his dark hair cut in a long brush-cut.

When asked whether he chose to plead guilty or not guilty, apparently confused, he remained silent.

Judge Turmel ordered preliminary hearing at a later date.

Cars checked at 'lane'

Sherbrooke area motorists are again getting the chance to have their cars inspected free of charge at a "check lane" set up at the King Street West shopping centre.

The inspection service is being given by the Quebec transport and communications department as part of a province-wide campaign to reduce accidents.

The service started last Monday and is to continue at the centre until next Friday, July 9.

The Sherbrooke service was formally opened Wednesday afternoon by department officials, including Pierre Mercier, driver education director; Claude Bergeron, executive secretary to transport minister, Mrs. Claire Kirkland-Casgrain; and department technical advisor, Robert Martin.

Mrs. Kirkland-Casgrain had planned to attend the ceremony but was unable to come due to a death in her family, officials said.

The car inspection takes about eight minutes and includes checkup of wheel alignment, braking power on each wheel, steering and headlight direction and power.

Such a checkup would cost about $10 if given by a garage, said department members.

If an auto passes the test a sticker signifying that it has been checked will be put on the front windshield. If not the driver will be advised to have defects repaired within 48 hours.

The check lane will be open Monday through Friday and Saturday morning. Hours are 10 until 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 until 6 p.m.

Mr. Mercier estimated that 1,200 cars were checked by a similar inspection service held for two weeks late last fall at the shopping centre.

"This year we hope that more will be checked," he said. Some 10 cars were seen waiting in line for inspection shortly after the opening ceremonies.

The department officials planned to attend the final sitting of a three-day French language drivers' clinic being held Wednesday evening at the St. Michel parish hall.

The clinic, being given in centres across the province, consists of lectures, demonstrations and tests on highway code, road signs, driving technique and drivers' reflexes.

Similar English-language driving clinics are being planned for centres with English-speaking population, including Sherbrooke, said Mr. Martin.

23 months in prison for series of thefts

A young Sherbrooke man charged in early January with a long series of thefts Wednesday changed his plea to guilty and was sentenced to 23 months in prison.

Marcel Talon, about 23 years old, short, dark and smartly-dressed in a dark suit jacket appeared in Sessions Court and, in a tired voice, acknowledged the charges against him.

"You asked for jury trial February 10 on seven car thefts and one burglary charge," stated court clerk Jean-Marie Gregoire.

He read off additional charges against Talon: theft of gasoline and licence plates; theft of a $3,000 car from Standish Brothers in Cookshire January 2; possession of the car January 3; burglary of $3,200 worth of articles from the Sherbrooke home of notary Gaston Savard at the beginning of the year; possession of a revolver in Sherbrooke January 3.

Defence lawyer Raynald Frchette acknowledged that Talon had previous records but added that though he had a right to trial by jury, he decided to plead guilty.

"If my information is correct all the articles stolen by Talon have been recovered," he said.

Mr. Frchette added that Talon had already spent several months in prison.

Talon was to be tried at next year's criminal assizes court and was being held in Montreal's Bordeaux jail, crown prosecutor Guy Blanchette remarked later. "He recently phoned us to say he wanted to change his plea from not guilty to guilty," he added.

OTTAWA — Behind the federal-provincial wrangling over ownership of offshore oil rights are two mutually incompatible philosophies. One, that of the provinces, is to get while the getting is good, and to charge all the traffic will bear. The other, that of the federal government, is to keep oil exploration costs low so that oil companies will be encouraged to look for submarine oil fields.

The federal government wants the oil found, for the ultimate benefit of all Canada, and is content to wait on the discovery of oil before collecting its title as royalties. The British Columbia government is forcing the dispute. In common with other provinces, it is desperate for revenues, and it has seized upon the offshore oil hunt as a source of immediate revenue.

A federal permit to explore 80,000 acres off the BC coast for six years costs $16,250. A BC permit covering the same area costs $123,500, or nearly eight times as much. Oil companies are taking out both permits — in effect, paying off Victoria as insurance against provincial harassment or retaliation. But the high provincial charges, which come pretty close to extortion, deprive the industry and the country of the development advantages of Ottawa's low cost policy.

The federal government's position is that offshore resources, vested in the Canadian nation by the UN convention of 1960, must be developed for the benefit of the country as a whole, and not just the coastal provinces. The provinces contend that as of right their jurisdiction extends out to sea for three miles, so that with the extension of that limit for resources purposes by the 1960 convention, they became the titular owners of offshore resources. Ottawa denies both claims, saying that provincial jurisdiction ends at low water mark, and from there out the jurisdiction is federal.

These are questions that Ottawa's reference of the BC dispute to the Supreme Court is intended to settle. The issues are so important, encompassing the rights of all Canadians to share in the benefits from offshore oil as well as the federal policy of keeping exploration costs down, that any abandonment of the court reference under provincial pressure is virtually unthinkable.

With Quebec the dispute is more political than economic. The Lesage government issued exploration permits to Quebec Hydro, a provincial crown company, covering areas of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, to protect Quebec's interest and position.

Recently Resources Minister Laing granted a permit to Pan-American Petroleum Corp. of Calgary, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of Indiana, covering gulf areas which overlap the areas granted to Quebec Hydro by the Lesage government. This was not done to protect Ottawa's position, although this would be logical in light of Quebec's action, but rather because Pan-Am complied with federal regulations covering applications for exploration permits.

The court is expected to sit on the case next spring, and bring down a decision in 1967 or 1968. It is confidently expected here that the decision will confirm federal jurisdiction. "Then," says a federal source, "we might, just might, negotiate with the provinces to give them out to the three mile limit."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Amelia Earhart, pioneer American aviator, and her navigator disappeared 28 years ago today—in 1937—while nearly at the end of a flight around the world.

They reported by radio, while flying 2,556 miles from New Guinea to Howland Island, in the Pacific, that they were lost and short of fuel—and were never heard from again. It was later suggested they had been asked to spy on Japanese fortifications in the Pacific and eventually died in Japanese hands.

1881—U.S. President Garfield was shot by Charles J. Guiteau. 1961 — Novelist Ernest Hemingway committed suicide.

First World War Fifty years ago today—in 1915—six large British ships, including the liners Caucasian and Inglemoor, were sunk by submarines; a British submarine torpedoed the German battleship Pommern, which escaped without sinking. Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—Marshal Pétain's government moved to Vichy; the first shipload of children evacuated from Britain reached Canada; the sinking of the Italian cruiser Espero and four submarines was announced; pogroms began in Bucharest; in India, nationalist leader Subhas Chandra Bose was arrested.

Bygone days

TWENTY YEARS AGO (From the Record of Monday, July 2, 1945)

KNOWLTON — The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was entertained at the home of Mrs. McCutcheon in Brome.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. William Godden presided over the meeting. The regular program for June was followed with Mrs. L. M. Knowlton acting as leader and several ladies taking part. The hymns "O For a Thousand Tongues to Sing" and "Break Thou the Bread of Life" were sung with Mrs. Elton Bockus at the piano.

In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Carter, Mrs. L. M. Knowlton gave the report.

Those present at the meeting were as follows: Mrs. L. M. Knowlton, Mrs. C. B. Bulard, Mrs. William Godden, Mrs. McCutcheon, Miss Ethel Marsh, Mrs. James R. Armstrong, Mrs. Donald Miller, and daughter Ann, Mrs. Robinson and daughter, Jane, and Mrs. Elton Bockus.

TEN YEARS AGO (From the Record of Saturday, July 2, 1955)

MAGOG — A very enjoyable social evening was held in St. Paul's United Church Hall when many friends met to say good-bye to Dr. K. Willis and Mrs. Willis, Miss Grace Brown, Mr. D. Carroll and Mr. Robert MacDonald.

The evening was spent in playing games with E. Foggo as master of ceremonies assisted by R. Trew. At the close of the games Rev. C. Gustafson pastor of St. Paul's thanked Dr. K. Willis, Mrs. Willis, Miss Brown, Mr. Carroll and Mr. MacDonald for their services to St. Paul's and the community while living in Magog. He presented to each a copy of the United Church Hymnary.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation.

Dear Arnold... He discovers royal relationships through his genealogical hobby

MONTREAL (CP) — "Dear Arnold... The salutation is not an unusual one to receive from an acquaintance but when that acquaintance is Earl Mountbatten of Burma, Grand Duchess Olga of Russia or the sister of the Duke of Edinburgh it is significant.

A soft-spoken bachelor who lives an unassuming life in a Montreal suburb has earned the distinction of being addressed by his first name by a number of members of royalty around the world.

His hobby is compiling royal genealogical trees. Through his hobby an "exciting, interesting and enjoyable life" has blossomed for Arnold McNaughton, born 34 years ago on a farm in Hemmingford, Que., 40 miles south of Montreal.

"The highlight was meeting Earl Mountbatten at Buckingham Palace when I was invited at age 21 to attend the coronation of Queen Elizabeth in 1953," Mr. McNaughton said in an interview.

"If when I returned I thought I had been in a dream, do you wonder?" In just 18 years, he has compiled a staggering extensive study of the 15,000 descendants of George I, who was born in Germany in 1680.

COMPILES OWN INDEX The study titled The Book of Kings covers 1,346 pages, at first hand-printed in ink and now being typed and indexed by McNaughton himself.

His work has given him a wide knowledge of history despite breaking off formal education at Grade 10 and he has discovered more about some royal families than the members themselves know. He has brought to light: —That Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip are related in

By TIM PETERS Olga, who died recently in Canada, was a sister of Czar Nicholas II of Russia, murdered with his family during the Bolshevik revolution. "I am amazed now at my audacity in writing to her," Mr. McNaughton said, "but she very kindly answered my questions and later we became quite close."

This success led him to intensify his research and write to other royal families in hopes of discovering missing data for his study.

INTEREST WHETTED His letters soon expanded into lengthy questionnaires, some of which went unanswered. However, a significant number resulted in full replies.

By the time Queen Victoria's tree was near completion, McNaughton's interest was aroused to such an extent that he decided to start anew from George I, to whom the royal houses of 20 countries could be traced.

This enormous labor—a labor of love for McNaughton—largely was accomplished at his office in the hour before he begins work at 8:30 a.m. Despite the intensive study which has consumed unaccountable hours, he still takes time to bowl, watch the occasional TV program — "I enjoy historical narratives and family comedies"—and play the organ at church before the Sunday service.

His one obvious luxury is a big, blue convertible late-model car. He is hoping one day to publish the work, complete even to illegitimate children and constantly kept up to date. Some day he would like to see it displayed or used for reference purposes.

A Montreal businessman has placed its value at $50,000. Reference books were scarce, he found, so when he read that Grand Duchess Olga of Russia was living in Campbellville, (later in Cooksville) Ont. he wrote her to ask about her relations and about where he could gather further information.

As the crops keep bumpering Canada a year ahead on wheat

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada —off on a good start for a fourth straight bumper harvest—will enter the 1965-66 crop year Aug. 1 with almost enough wheat already on hand to meet anticipated crop-year demands.

The carryover is likely to be about 500,000,000 bushels, up from last year's 460,000,000 but below the average of about 580,000,000 for the previous 10 years.

While there is no agreed ideal, 500,000,000 bushels is considered well within workable bounds—big enough to carry Canada through a poor crop year and not so big as to clog storage and transport facilities.

The carryover amounts to the difference between supply and disposal. Last year's carryover plus a 600,000,000-bushel 1964 wheat crop put the supply at 1,060,000,000. Anticipated exports of 40,000,000 bushels plus domestic use—likely to be about 155,000,000—gives the disposal.

That would make the Aug. 1 carryover 505,000,000 bushels, but one informed source figured it would be no more than 500,000,000. Given reasonable Prairie growing weather and an average yield, Canadian wheat farmers will just about double that figure with this year's crop to year make the 1965-66 supplies in the neighborhood of 1,000,000,000 bushels.

SALES TARGET SET The federal government has announced a goal of selling 1,200,000,000 bushels of wheat abroad in the three crop years following last Aug. 1. A third of this—or 400,000,000 bushels—in the 1965-66 crop year plus domestic use of 155,000,000 bushels would make the year's disposal again about 555,000,000.

The export picture is partly firm, partly subject to change. About 260,000,000 bushels of wheat go to regular customers, including such big buyers as Britain, Japan and West Germany.

Communist countries, including China, Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia East Germany and Bulgaria, take another 100,000,000 to 125,000,000 bushels. Other countries in a less predictable category generally take about 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 bushels.

The Canadian wheat board, a government agency which markets Canadian wheat, is tight-lipped about sales prospects but one authoritative Winnipeg grain source says the 1965-66 sales picture is favorable at present compared with previous years.

At the same time he figures there is no reason for exports to go far above 400,000,000 bushels unless there is a major crop failure in Australia, which has been providing competition for wheat markets in some areas.

RUSSIA MAY BUY Russia was expected to be in the market again in 1965-66 as she was in 1964-65, but there was no indication of massive Russian purchases such as in the 1963-64 crop year.

That year Russia bought about 250,000,000 bushels in wheat and wheat flour to push Canadian exports to a record 584,000,000 bushels.

Luck offset the impact of that sale as farmers harvested a record 723,000,000 bushels. Domestic disposal represents a more stable figure than do exports. The 155,000,000 bushels estimated for this year compares with slightly more than 155,000,000 in 1963-64, about 138,000,000 in 1962-63 and about 142,000,000 in 1961-62.

Movement of wheat was described as generally satisfactory in the current crop year. Railways had picked up after what was perhaps a somewhat slow start following the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes.

Irresponsibility is FLQ trademark

Demonstrations by dewy-eyed Quebec nationalists in the cause of separatism are becoming a bore.

This time last year, the question was the cause of some concern as thinking people wondered whether the boys and girls shouting "Quebec Libre", and scrawling it on walls and rocks, were a manifestation of a popular movement.

During the past 12 months, however, the prospect of freedom from the chains of Ottawa has evinced little more than a Gallic shrug and a wry grin from many Quebecois.

The student demonstrators appeared again this Dominion Day. Some of them were probably new to the ranks, having reached an age to be allowed out of the house alone. Others, undoubtedly, were missing, having graduated from school and gone on to other, more serious pursuits.

In fact, it seems that the separatist cause has degenerated into something of a student amusement. We can foresee Dominion Day separatist demonstrations becoming an annual event, like marbles and yo-yos each spring for the younger set and New Year's Eve parties for the older folks.

Until that time, however, such acts as the damage caused to the CKTS radio tower early this morning must be regarded for what they are: wanton acts of destruction by irresponsible minds, to be dealt with accordingly by police authorities.

There can be no greater example of the irrationality of those who destroy property in the name of the separatist cause than this morning's incident. CKTS, while an English-language station, is part of the La Tribune organization — a native, French-language operation.

Obviously, no one is safe from the indiscriminate depredations of these callow pseudo-patriots.

A child care expert says girls can whine longer than boys. That's news to husbands?

Long shadow cast over our politics

The Dorion report, in general, contained few surprises. Most of the more sensational, and seedier aspects of the situation which Chief Justice Dorion investigated came out during commission hearings.

But even lacking the element of surprise, the report still had the power to shock, for it is one thing to listen to and read about evidence during day-to-day commission proceedings, and quite another to hear the whole mess summarized and commented upon in the calm, reasoned tones of a respected legal judgment.

Mr. Favreau had little choice but to resign under the circumstances. Although the Dorion report found him innocent of any direct contact with the unsavory aspects of the Rivard case, it threw a cloud over his judgment as a cabinet minister. And judgment, after all, is the one quality above all others upon which the reputation of a cabinet minister rests.

Moving Mr. Favreau to another cabinet post removes him from the "hot seat" for the time being, but it will take some time for him to rebuild his ministerial image. And he may never succeed. Much will depend on Mr. Favreau's own effort and, of course, the luck of politics.

For the Liberal party generally, the Dorion report paints a dismal picture of disarray, caused most of all by ignorance in high places of what was going on. Mr. Pearson, his own integrity unquestioned, has nevertheless emerged once again as being not one of the best informed government leaders.

The Dorion report has brought our national politics generally into question. The suggestion of party links at whatever level with organized crime has appalling implications. Is this a picture of one small segment of the Liberal party? Is it a glimpse of the kind of activity that is general in one party? or is it an indication of the direction in which the whole of our political life is going?

In the largest sense, what the Dorion report has done is to shake public confidence in our political system. A thorough clean-up of the specific situation under investigation is obviously necessary to help restore it. But even this kind of action will not do a complete job. Politicians at all levels and of all parties have been touched by the long shadow which the Dorion report casts. It is incumbent upon all of them now more than ever to demonstrate in both word and deed that good politics is good government, and not a dirty game.

Other papers say:

Stabilizing Canadian sugar prices

Reports from Ottawa say that the federal government will soon announce a national sugar-buying policy which will involve Canada in long-term bilateral agreements with sugar producing countries. The purpose of the new policy would be to stabilize domestic sugar prices and supplies.

There has been talk of a change in our national sugar-buying policy for many months. In November 1963, when retail sugar prices were high and public reaction to them was vigorous, Mr. Sharp, the minister of trade and commerce, made a long statement in Parliament in which he said that the government was considering offers of long-term, fixed-price supplies of raw sugar from Commonwealth countries.

(Winnipeg Free Press) According to the Financial Times, pressure for the new policy, which was mentioned again in March by the minister of agriculture, Mr. Hays, comes largely from the sugar beet industry, which would like to have the government agree to buy a certain amount of beet sugar each year and set aside a certain share of the market for sugar beets at prices set under the agreement. Large sugar refiners, however, apparently prefer the present system of buying sugar.

If the change is made, the consumer will not see much difference in the long run. Today, many countries buy their sugar under long-term agreements at a fixed price.

Magna Carta, pillar of freedom

If there had been such beings as news analysts in Thirteenth-Century Great Britain, they might well have missed the deep significance of the event that took place 750 years ago on the Thomas-side meadow above London, known as Runnymede.

It was there on June 15, 1215, that King John, confronted by twenty-five rebellious barons, grudgingly approved a charter written in Latin and containing sixty-three clauses that became known as the Magna Carta, or Great Charter.

No great public stir was caused by the event. The document was not concerned with ordinary people but with limiting royal power and that of the nobility. It guaranteed "freemen" protection from unlawful prosecution, exile and imprisonment, as

The Calgary Herald the history of the English nation commences from the moment King John put his seal on the charter.

The Magna Carta has come to mean much more in succeeding centuries than it did in the Thirteenth Century. Wherever the principles it sets forth are not honored, men are still not free.

Water system to be enlarged

KNOWLTON—(Staff)—The Town Council approved the expenditure of $18,000 for enlargement and extension of the town water system, and nomination date for the position of mayor and three aldermen was set for July 14.

The nominations can only be submitted on July 14th between the hours of 10 a.m. and noon to the secretary-treasurer's office.

Knowlton alderman Partridge, chairman of the water committee, said that repairs and the addition to the present water system is scheduled to be finished within two months and the work will be done by local workers.

Kindergarten at Granby Re-opens in September

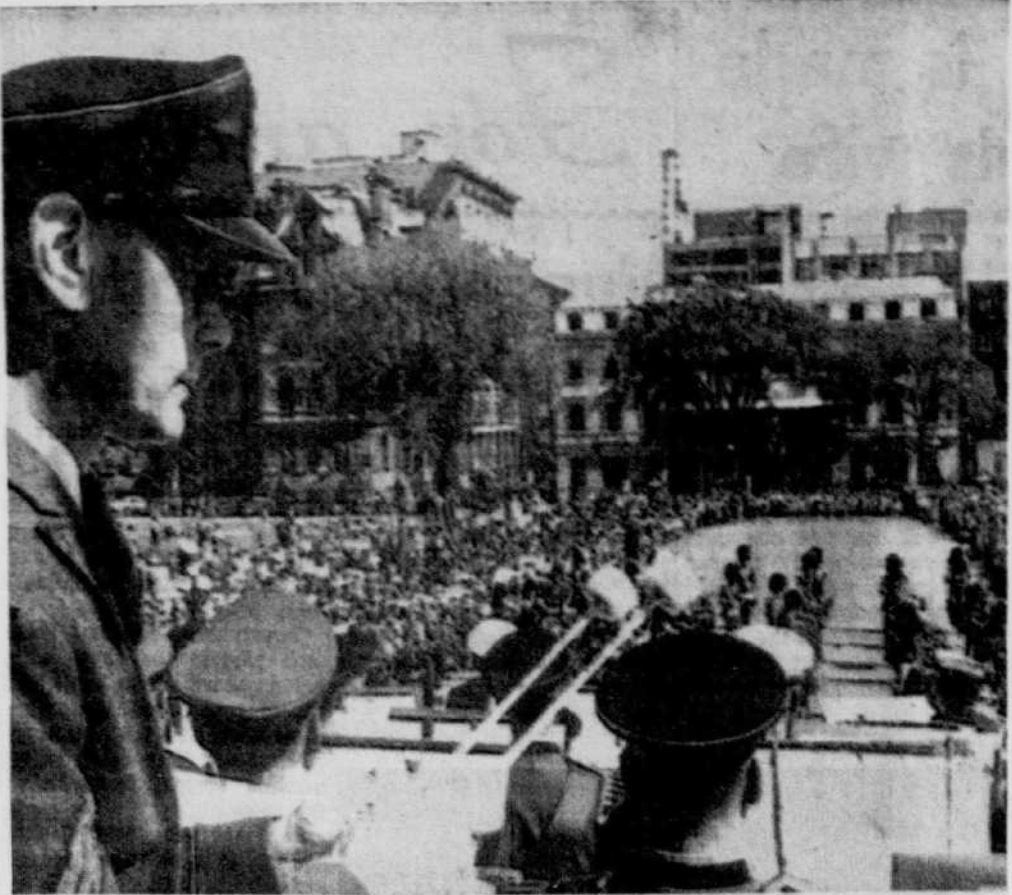

GRANBY — Mrs. Eric Pollard's kindergarten, which has been closed for the summer, will re-open in September. Enrollment will be limited to 25 and to be eligible a child must be five years old by Dec. 31, 1965.

Presently Knowlton is serviced by four, five and six inch water pipelines which are not adequate and will be replaced by a 10 inch pipeline.

Those wishing to make registration should call Mrs. Pollard at 372-3147 or Mrs. Pritchard at 372-5117, either now or at the beginning of the school term on Sept. 13.

The term of Mayor H. C. Parkes has also expired and nominations for this position are also open.

A newly formed committee includes Mrs. R. Simpson, chairman, Mrs. N. Klein, treasurer, and Mrs. J. P. Pritchard, secretary.

Country notebook

By WALKER RILEY
Macdonald College

Reports from some areas of Quebec indicate a very serious feed situation coming up. In Pontiac County especially, winter-killing was bad; an ice sheet covered the ground for several weeks. And now it is drought.

I asked Dr. John Bubar of the Agronomy Dept. what he would do with a field of last year's seeding that had failed. This is his answer.

"The question is what to do when your new seeding is gone so badly this year that you have decided to plow up now. You are short of feed for this year and won't have the second-year hay you counted on for next year. And everything is awfully dry.

"I think the best approach this late in the season is to plan to seed oats in late July or early August. I would wait until a good rain is forecast, then seed three or four bushels oats per acre. We did an experiment to try this in 1960 and found that Garry or Glen oats seeded on a winterkilled pasture that was plowed in June gave us one and one-half tons of oat hay per acre by October 21st. You need to seed heavy because birds may get a lot of your slower-maturing grain — this depends to some extent on how dry it will be after seeding. Also, I would expect quite a response to Nitrogen fertilizer (say 50 lb. N. per acre) but would want to be careful because of the risk of nitrate poisoning to livestock

Growing raspberries

It is kind of nice on a summer morning in early July to go out to your garden and pick fresh raspberries for breakfast or lunch.

There are few gardens so small that there isn't room for a dozen or so raspberry bushes. They're so easy to grow that even the newest beginner to gardening should be able to handle them with complete success.

The biggest mistake that you can make is to set them out in poor soil.

Planted in earth containing plenty of humus and plant food the effective fruiting life of a raspberry bush without replanting is a minimum of ten years and a maximum of 12 to 15.

Contrast this with strawberries which must be replanted every year for successful fruiting.

Raspberries need a permanent location in the garden where the bushes will receive full sunshine.

It is very easy to prepare the soil for planting. You merely dig into the soil a minimum of six to eight bushels of humus.

At the same time also work into the soil a complete fertilizer at the rate of four pounds per hundred square feet.

Any of the following forms of humus are satisfactory: organic compost, well rotted barnyard manure, discarded mushroom manure, peat moss or material from the home compost heap.

Make sure that the humus fertilizer and soil have been thoroughly mixed together. For the small bed of a dozen or so canes, this can be easily done with a spade.

However, for larger plantings, the best plan is to either rent a rotary tiller or hire a man who does custom rotary tilling.

In renting a machine, make sure that it is heavy enough and has sufficient power to do the job. Some of the small, under-powered machines simply aren't capable of tilling the soil deep enough.

Effective rotary tilling has several benefits. It thoroughly mixes the humus, soil and fertilizer together down to a depth of eight inches.

It leaves the soil in a smooth, ready-to-plant condition. The only job left before planting is to rake it once to relieve the puffed up condition created by the tilling.

The commercial grower tries to get his canes planted in the fall but this doesn't mean that they cannot be set in the ground in the spring.

When you plant at this time of the year it's most important to get the canes into the soil just as soon as it's workable.

Red raspberries need this extra early planting because of the speed with which the canes start to grow just as soon as the soil starts to warm up.

For small beds the canes are set three feet apart each way. In larger gardens they're planted three feet apart in the row and you make the rows six feet apart.

fed on this forage. This could either be grazed in late fall or put in as grass silage. You might even make hay if you get suitable weather in late October.

"I wouldn't want to seed sorghum-sudan or corn this late since I would count on getting a lot of my growth in the cool-moist (we hope) part of the fall after we have had too much frost for corn to continue growing. Millet is O.K. in warm weather, but I think oats are the best choice for later growth.

"Possibilities for next year are to seed in the conventional manner after disking up the oat stubble. I would do this on alfalfa land. You could use DuPuits or Alfa without a companion crop, or you could seed one recommended mixture with a companion crop. You could then use this field for hay or for a conventional grain crop.

"The alternative is to leave the oat stubble undisturbed and broadcast freeze seed on to the frozen ground early in the spring. This will give a fair hay and pasture crop next year. Timothy and trefoil establish quite nicely this way. I think Ladino and possibly red clover will also. I wish I had more experimental evidence to back up these ideas. This is the best I can do with the available evidence."

At Lachute Fair, I saw the controversial new dairy cattle judging classes in operation for the first time. And I liked what I saw.

From a spectator's point of view, the judging was so much easier to follow; there were nine classes only in each breed and these were simple and straight forward.

The exhibitors I talked to liked them also. Restricted to entering nine animals, it gave each man a chance to put forward his best, and still left room for the new competitor.

And the fair manager, my namesake Ken Riley, liked them too. Entries were well up over last year. For instance, four Jersey herds turned out, in place of last year's one herd. And Canadian cattle also were there this year.

But most important, will the new scheme improve our National Herd? I think it will.

Injured in 2 car collision

COWANSVILLE—(Staff)—A Sutton woman was hospitalized as a result of a two-car collision Saturday morning on the road to Knowlton.

Miss Doris Bridgett was rushed to the Brome-Missisquoi-Perkins hospital for treatment for shock and minor bruises. On Monday hospital officials reported that she was released from the hospital.

The accident occurred at about 10:50 a.m. on the road from Cowansville to Knowlton. Miss Bridgett was a passenger in the car driven by Cedric Douc- glas, 74, of Sutton, whose car is a complete loss, Cowansville police report.

The driver of the other car was Pierre Chausse, 19, of Brigham, whose car received $20 in damages.

Cowansville assistant police chief Gerard Clement and constable Guy Bachand investigated the accident.

Do-it-yourself

Carefully follow rules to avoid sloppy gluing

To many, gluing sounds like a makeshift expedient in repairing or joining two surfaces. But glue is used all the time and by highly skilled craftsmen.

Most of the joints in the wood furniture in your home are held with glue.

Sloppy gluing is the result of picking the wrong glue and failing to follow time-tested procedures in preparing the joint and holding the pieces together while the glue sets.

For repairing furniture or for making your own, knowing how to glue is essential. A wellglued wood joint is stronger than the wood itself.

Do not use a general purpose glue. Wood Casein glue is one of the most popular wood glues, is extremely durable. Animal and fish glues are also used a great deal, although not where moisture is likely to be encountered.

The glues referred to as resin glues are quick drying and moisture proof.

No matter which glue you use, follow the manufacturer's instructions to the letter. Allow plenty of drying time.

Preparation must be perfect. Surfaces must be absolutely clean. Sandpaper or scrape wood until it is free of old glue or any finish. Glue bonds by penetrating the wood.

Make joints fit as closely as possible. Remember that the larger the gluing area, the stronger the joint will be.

Apply Glue Properly. Apply glue properly. Best results occur when glue is applied in a room where the temperature is 70 degrees or warmer.

If the object to be glued has been out in the garage or some other cooler area, give it time to warm up before applying glue. If you must work at a lower temperature, use a resin glue, good at 60 degrees or warmer.

If there is an end grain in the wood joint, remember that it will soak up the glue and result in a weak joint. Give the end grain a thin coat of glue a little ahead of time. When you spread glue over the joint, give the end grain a second coat.

Brushing glue on is probably the best way to apply it. For small seams, using glue out of a tube is handy.

Do not joint the surfaces right away. Wait until the glue gets tacky before putting the parts together.

Holds Joints Tightly. The joint must be held tightly together while the glue dries. There are a variety of clamps available, from the simplest C-clamp to the most elaborate and versatile adjustable clamps.

Spring clothespins and paper holding metal clamps will serve on small jobs. You can improvise in many ways. Regluing the joints in a chair leg? Wrap a rope around the legs and then twist it with a piece of wood in the middle, tourniquet style.

Give the glue plenty of time to set. Most glue, to 48 hours drying. Follow the manufacturer's instructions. If temperatures drop, allow more time. To speed drying, apply heat lamp.

Be neat as you work. Keep your hands clean and free of glue so that you don't leave any excess glue that may squeeze out of joints. It will stain the wood. Try to use just enough to begin with.

Garage broken into

KNOWLTON — (Staff) — Thieves broke into the Crandall Auto Body Garage a week ago and stole four outdoor engines and a lawnmower with a total value of $1,899.95.

Norm Crandall proprietor of the Bridge Street garage, discovered the theft at 7 a.m. when he came to the garage.

Apparently the thieves forced their way into the garage by the front door, he said.

"But they seemed to be out just for the outdoor engines and the lawnmower as nothing else was taken and no damage was done to the shop," he said.

Knowlton police chief McElroy and QPP are investigating the theft. Mr. Crandall had asked that no news of the robbery should be printed until today to help in the investigation.

Brome WA to attend Knowlton service

KNOWLTON — (Special) — The evening service on July 4th at St. Paul's Church will be attended by the members of the Women's Auxiliary, Brome Branch No. 23, of the Canadian Legion. The new colors of the branch will be dedicated at this service.

Small tree fire quickly put out

COWANSVILLE—(Staff) — A small tree fire which broke out Tuesday morning was quickly extinguished by Cowansville firemen.

The fire broke out at about 9:30 a.m. on Lauder Street, behind the R.C.A. Victor plant, and firemen arrived minutes later.

The fire which spread into several trees, was quickly extinguished with little damage, and the firemen returned to the station at 10:30 a.m.

Cancer financial drive successful

PRINTED WOOL LACE — In this National Collection show, fashion writers saw this sophisticated evening dress of printed wool lace, the pattern outlined in colored beads and payettes. The bodice is high at the neckline, finished with a turnover collar, and the back plunges to the waistline. A Union Label style by Ruth Dukas of Toronto.

Mary Brooks Picken on sewing

Use mirror and fittings for well-styled dress

Recently a young friend of mine who had just taken up sewing brought a finished dress to me to ask why it didn't fit although she had followed the pattern meticulously.

"Did you check your measurements with those of the pattern?" I asked. The answer: "No."

"Did you baste the front and back together and try on the dress in front of a full-length mirror?" was my next question. Again, the answer was "No."

Figures vary as do thumb prints. There always is a slight difference. That's why basting is necessary.

True, many women pin baste, some even machine baste, using the longest stitch on their machine and a thread different in color from the fabric so that when the final stitching is in, the machine basting can be removed.

Recently a designer of foundation garments said, "We work to lift the bust. A longer line in front gives the bust line a younger look which we think proves more slenderizing." Think about this designer's idea when you are fitting your dress.

By the way, always fit your dress over your very best-fitting foundation garments.

If your bust is high, slant the darts upward for a good fit. If bust is small and the waistline large in proportion to the pattern, pin the darts downward and make them smaller. This will help the fit through the diaphragm and cause the dress to be more comfortable when worn.

Always fit a dress before finishing the neckline. Perhaps you will want your neckline lower or higher than the pattern calls for.

A dress well cut is one-third a success. A dress correctly fitted represents another third. The stitching and finishing make the final third. Do your dresses in the three stages and work to have each in its way a complete success.

Questions readers ask

Q—My husband and I are now on a 1,500-calorie-a-day diet. But he seems to lose faster than I do although we both eat the same amount of food. How do you explain that?

A—As a rule, women on a 1,500-calorie diet will lose from 1/2 to 3/4 of a pound a week. But on the same diet, men will probably lose about 1 1/2 pounds more or less a week.

The push-button life is made for the man and his wife

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The frequency with which a woman finds herself at the business end of a push button is no less than amazing.

Just consider the day of the average homemaker. She can spray-clean her windows and oven, mothproof her closets and polish her furniture with the touch of a button on an aerosol can. (And she does, it would seem, since 388,400,000 units of household spray products were produced this year alone.) And when she has finished her chores, she can spray on some hand lotion to prevent roughness.

If she's expecting dinner guests and plans to wear the little yellow dress she bought recently, she won't worry if she has no shoes to match. While she is shopping for food, she can pick up some spray shoe coloring at a push of the button, last year's tan shoes will become a matching yellow.

Should she cut her finger while preparing dinner, she can spray on a bandage before she starts to dress for her guests.

After her bath, she sprays on talcum, slips into her underpinnings and pushes a button that releases the delightful scent of her favorite perfume. After she arranges her hair, she sprays it into place.

When the successful dinner is all over but the dessert, she may push another button to release a whipped topping for her strawberry shortcake. And if any of the guests are youngsters, she can spray them chocolate milk shakes.

Aerosols have become a way of life. They have crept almost imperceptibly into the kitchen, the medicine chest and the world of fashion and beauty. It's a wonder we all don't have permanent little dents on our fingertips.

But aside from the household products, toiletries and waxes and paints one can spray on, there are other little buttons that will release a few surprises.

To a name a few, did you know you can get spray horse-radish? In fact, if you know the right people in the right laboratories you can even spray yourself a peanut butter sandwich (but there's some question, I'm sure, as to whether you wouldn't care to.)

If you're accident-prone, you might want to spray on some bathtub-slip preventive. It's available. And should your neighbors complain about the noise your car makes when you come home late at night, just get some antinoise undercoating spray.

Don't like rabbits? There's rabbit repellent, too.

If your husband is a sportsman, you may want to add one of these items to his birthday gift list.

Is he a hunter who makes his own bullets? There's an aerosol mold glaze for use in bullet making. But perhaps you had better wait on this one until someone comes up with a spray on bulletproof vest for YOU.

Is he a camper? Give him some nice spray snake repellent.

Nuns model habits in British fashion show

LONDON (AP)—Roman Catholic Religious Orders of England and Wales.

Introducing the fashion parade, Rev. B. B. Slevin described it as a sisters' party. The audience consisted of nuns, housewives and a sprinkling of men.

Twenty-three religious orders took part in the show, which presented not only a nun's habit based on the court costume of King Louis XIV but also a stylish, modern grey outfit with a hemline several inches above the shoes.

One nun wore rakish-looking glasses to match her modern head dress, fashioned from up-late drip-dry synthetic material.

An ultra-modern touch was provided by a smiling member of the Little Sisters of the Assumption. She pushed a scooter to the edge of the stage and climbed on the platform wearing a raincoat and crash helmet. There was one order, however, which could not participate in the show because its members have no habit. They dress in ordinary street dress.

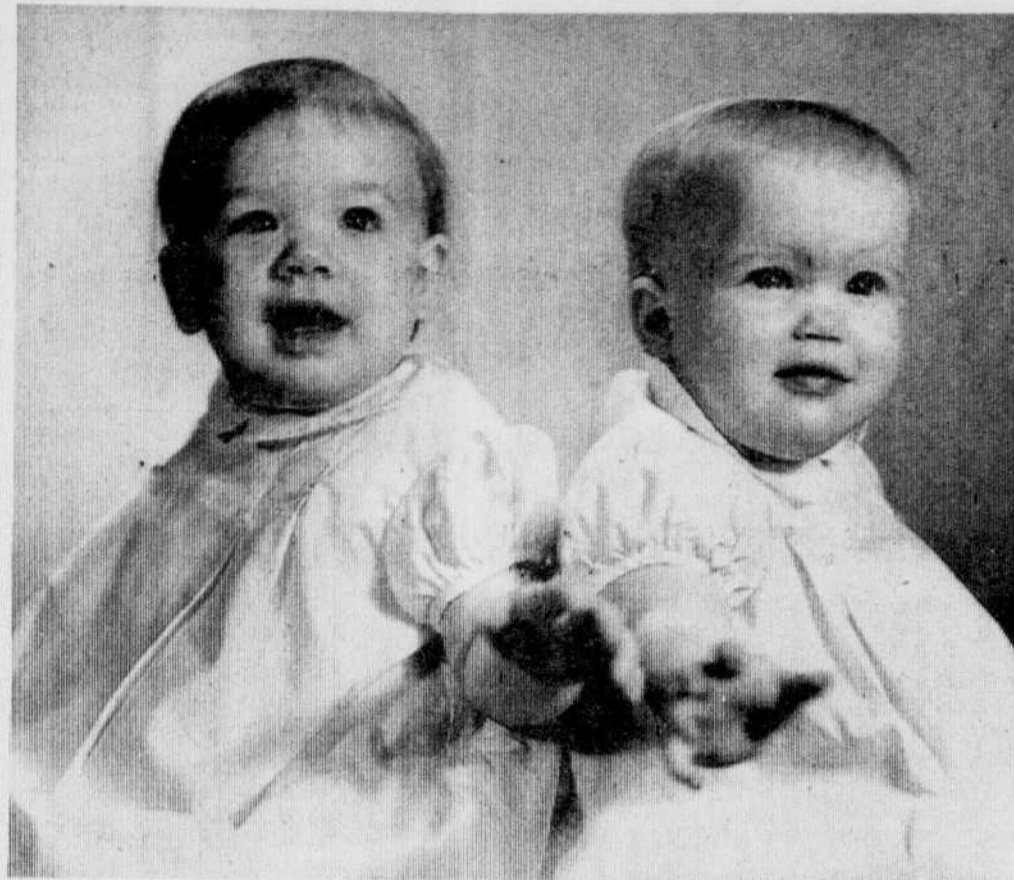

Explained Mother Jeanne Wauters of the Daughters of the Heart of Mary:

"My order was founded in France during the French Revolution when any nun wearing a habit would have been persecuted. To this day we all wear the dress of the outside world."

She had trouble trying to put herself in the picture. Every time she tried to pose with other nuns, photographers tried to escort her from the group. This happened three times before she finally convinced the photographers she is really a nun.

The hemline of the Empire-shaped dress is outlined in silk embroidery and crystal beads, the same embroidery edges the sleeves of the coat. Today's recipe

RHUBARB STRAWBERRY JAM

Yield: about 9 medium glasses (4 1/2 lbs. jam)

3 1/2 cups prepared fruit (about 1 lb. rhubarb and 1 qt. fully ripe strawberries)

6 1/2 cups sugar

1/2 bottle liquid fruit pectin

First, prepare the fruit. Slice thin or chop about 1 pound red-stalked rhubarb. Do not peel. Add 1/4 cup water and simmer, covered, until soft—about 1 minute. Crush thoroughly about 1 quart fully ripe strawberries. Combine fruits and measure 3 1/2 cups into a very large saucepan.

Then make the jam. Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover jam at once with 1/8 inch hot paraffin.

STRAWBERRY LIME JAM

Yield: about 10 medium glasses (5 lbs. jam)

3 1/2 cups prepared fruit (about 2 quarts ripe strawberries)

1/2 teaspoon grated lime rind

2 tablespoons lime juice (2 limes)

7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar

1/2 bottle liquid fruit pectin

First, prepare the fruit. Crush completely, one layer at a time, about 2 quarts fully ripe strawberries. Measure 3 1/2 cups into a very large saucepan. Add grated lime rind and lime juice.

Then make the jam. Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover jam at once with 1/8 inch hot paraffin.

Learn all about eggs

Eggs are plentiful. A new 32-page Consumer Service booklet of the Department of Agriculture called "Eggs in Family Meals" should be in every bride's kitchen library. It is as packed as an egg with value.

Here are some useful facts it reveals:

You can figure that a large egg has 80 calories, 60 of which come from the yolk. Nutritionists usually suggest 4 to 7 eggs a week, including those used in cooking. They are highly valued as a source of protein, iron, vitamin A, and riboflavin, and are one of the few foods that contain vitamin D. Because of the amount and quality of their proteins, eggs make a good alternate for meat.

To store eggs properly, keep them clean, cold, and covered. Most graded eggs sold in retail stores are clean. Eggs should not be washed before storing because washing removes the thin protective film or "bloom" that seals the pores, retains moisture, and keeps out bacteria, mold, and odors. Covering eggs retards moisture loss and helps prevent absorption of odors. The paper carton in which eggs are sold makes an excellent storage container. See that eggs are large end up in the carton to help keep the yolk centered. Put eggs in the refrigerator promptly after purchase; they cannot be expected to maintain their quality if held in a hot car or kitchen.

Cracked or soiled eggs may contain bacteria that can produce food poisoning. For your protection, use cracked or soiled eggs only when they are thoroughly cooked or when the foods in which they are an ingredient are thoroughly cooked. The booklet contains much more useful information about eggs in family meals.

Ruth Millett

— What about, etc. ...

So you hate housework? Well, what would you rather be doing "that you are equipped to do?"

A file clerk? Would it be less monotonous filing papers in the proper place than picking up after your family?

A private secretary? Putting up with the same man day after day and never being able to tell him off (as you can tell off your husband) when you think he is being impossible or blaming you for something that is his own fault?

An airline stewardess? Sounds glamorous, does it, flying from city to city? But don't you imagine those flights soon grow as monotonous as your job as chauffeuring the kids back and forth on their routine runs?

A clerk in a store? Trying, trying, trying to please the customer all day long. You might as well be trying to please a family—who if you succeed even a reasonable part of the time, will give you their love in repturn of your patience.

Owner of a small business or your own? That would bring on as many headaches as managing a home, wouldn't it? And you would have to show a profit, too.

A bookkeeper? Figures and more figures—and you telling your husband he shouldn't be so cross when you've made a mistake in the checkbook which he has to spend an evening in order to balance your joint checking account.

A typist? Page after dull page of words to take off a dictating machine and put down on paper, neatly and with no mistakes. Some fun — compared with housework? Are you sure?

If you think housework is dull, uninteresting and unrewarding, just consider all the other jobs that you are equipped to do—and think of spending your days doing them. Then being a housewife may look a little more appealing.

W.M. group honors July bride-elect

Miss Kathy Klinck, a July bride-to-be, was the guest of honor recently at a miscellaneous shower held by the Women's Missionary Prayer Group, at Grace Chapel.

On her arrival Miss Klinck was presented with a corsage by Mrs. A. Patton and escorted to the chair of honor. Mrs. N. Gentry presented her with a box of favorite recipes brought by her friends.

The many gifts, arranged on a table, were opened by the guest of honor, who expressed appreciation for the many useful things received for her new home.

The tea table was attractively appointed with spring flowers and pink tapers. Pouring were Mrs. W. Klinck, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. H. A. Welch, her aunt.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Patton, Miss B. MacMillan, Mrs. F. Hatch, Mrs. S. MacMillan, Mrs. T. Young and Mrs. M. Sparkes.

Eye beauty for mature woman

What began as a joke about age by Jack Benny now is a lifeline at which seeds of maturing women grab. But we can't all be 39 forever.

Many women try to stay the inevitable birthday with ridiculous-looking clothes, hairdos and freak make-up. Designers such as Courreges encourage millions to be later-day Shirley Temples but the truly chic woman takes her years in stride.

Properly used cosmetics, exercise and clothes cut and colored for her changing figure and complexion tone have turned out a raft of truly handsome, mature women.

Eye make-up does much to enhance the mature woman's features. In selecting eye make-up, key it to the changing color of your skin, whether your hair is gray or color-tinted. Overall blush make-up foundation is a boon to the mature woman. Exercise extreme care, though, and avoid too sharp or harsh contrast in the color of your cosmetic.

For the eyes, the hard-penciled eyebrow line is out for everyone. If you have penciled your brows this way through the years, correct it to a softer eyebrow line. You will find brush-on pressed powder eyebrow color makes defining your eyebrows easier. Also avoid really dark shades, even if your hair is tinted brown. The secret is to emphasize brows delicately.

Eyeshadow, too, must become a subtle understatement of color. You are very lucky to have a wide choice of pastel eye make-up, the muted blues and greens, frosted or silvery, to highlight gray or white hair.

Witnesses to attend assembly

James Calhoun, presiding minister of Jehovah's Witnesses, said today that the Lennoxville-Sherbrooke congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses has been invited to attend a four-day assembly to be held July 22 to 25 at Memorial Community Centre, Peterborough, Ont.

Mr. Calhoun will lead the local delegation of about 40 persons. The assembly is being arranged by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of Toronto for the congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses located in eastern Ontario and including some of the English-speaking ones from the province of Quebec. An attendance in excess of 5,000 is expected.

"The purpose of the assembly program," said Mr. Calhoun, "is to provide additional Bible instruction for the Witnesses to enable them to apply Bible principles more fully to their everyday lives and activities. The local minister explained that the four-day program would include talks, discussions and practical demonstrations.

Mr. Calhoun reported that several representatives of the Toronto Watchtower Branch office will speak in Peterborough. Highlight of the program is scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday when a Watchtower official will give a public address on "World Government on the Shoulder of the Prince of Peace."

DIXVILLE Mrs. Delmar Huff was the victim of a freak accident recently. As she was standing near Mr. Huff, who was splitting wood, the axe flew off the handle. The sharp side hit Mrs. Huff's leg, cutting the flesh and breaking both bones. She was taken by ambulance, to the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Sherbrooke. Latest reports are that she is resting as comfortably as can be expected.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cowhand, Huntingville, formerly of this place, are sorry to learn of the accident which befell their eldest son, Charles, when he was severely burned on the legs, necessitating his removal to the hospital where he is now a patient.

Mrs. Annie Smith, a life-long resident of this place, died June 9 at the Wales Home, Richmond. The funeral was held from the home of her niece, Mrs. Merriman Mayhew, June 11. Interment was in the Dixville cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Lampson, Derry, N.H., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wright.

Trustees of Continental Football League approves Tulsa as 11th team, commissioner must give OK

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - Trustees of the new Continental Football League gave tentative approval Thursday to accepting Tulsa, Okla., as the 11th team in the league...

Final approval will be left to A. B. (Happy) Chandler, the league's commissioner. If Chandler grants Tulsa a franchise, it will be for the 1966 season.

The trustees also were told of interest in league admission for Miami, Phoenix, Birmingham, Ala., Rochester, N.Y., and Anaheim, Calif. They took no action on these.

But they turned down a plan to reschedule all tie games and took no action on suggestions they eliminate the fair catch and inaugurate a one-point play similar to that used in Canadian football...

Reds lose to Mets while Cubs upset Dodgers 6-3

Pirates yank Hal Smith off coaching lines to give help to catching staff, Phillies upset Braves 2-1

Hal Smith caught his first in four years Thursday night and did enough work to last another four seasons.

Smith, a former all-star who was forced to quit playing because of a heart condition, was yanked off the coaching lines because of injuries to the entire Pittsburgh Pirate catching staff.

He caught eight innings of a 7-6 National League loss to St. Louis Cardinals and everything went along fine for the first seven.

But the Cardinals scored four times in an agonizing eighth to tie it up. Pirate starter Bob Veale and reliever Don Schwall getting together to walk four batters, hit two more and unleash a wild pitch.

It took 29 minutes before Frank Carpin, the third pitcher of the inning, ended it by striking out Tim McCarver.

By then Smith's 34-year-old legs could take no more and he hobbled to the dugout for good.

The one-two teams in the league trudged to their dugouts, too, the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers following a 6-3 loss to Chicago Cubs and the second-place Cincinnati Reds after a 5-1 defeat at the hands of New York Mets.

PHILLIES IN FOURTH

Philadelphia Phillies moved into fourth place with a 2-1 victory over Milwaukee Braves in the only other game scheduled.

Smith, who retired June 8, 1961 while he was with the Cardinals, failed to get a hit in three trips to the plate and was lifted for a pinch hitting in the eighth inning. Del Crandall was behind the plate in the ninth as the Cardinals snapped a 4-4 tie with three runs. Phil Gagliano's single and a double by Mike

Shannon produced one run.

Curt Flood singled in another and the third crossed on a force play. The Pirates rallied for two runs in their half but Ray Sadecki put down the uprising.

Glenn Beckert, who had hit only one previous homer for the Cubs, supplied the fireworks against the Dodgers. He put Chicago ahead 1-0 with a homer in the fourth inning off Johnny Podres and hit a three-run shot in the seventh that wrapped it up.

Ed Kranepool hit a two-run homer and Ron Swoboda slammed a two-run triple in support of Al Jackson's seventh hit pitching as the Mets defeated the Reds. Jim Maloney gave up six hits in six innings.

Ray Culp, 5-4, checked the Braves on three hits and scored the winning run in the eighth inning when he singled and came around on a hunt, a grounder and Johnny Callison's single.

Kathy Cornelius seeks golf title for second time

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (AP)—Kathy Cornelius wants to win the big one again and then settle down to the life of a housewife and mother.

"I won't play more than 10 tournaments next year," said the 32-year-old touring veteran from Rancho Sante Fe, Calif., after taking a one-stroke lead in the first round of the women's national Open golf championship Thursday.

Mrs. Cornelius, winner of the Open in 1956, shot a one-under-par 71 for a one-stroke lead over Marlene Bauer Hage of Sarasota, Fla.

But the surprise in the field was amateur Anne Quist Wells, whose 74 put her in third place. Mrs. Wells, three-time national women's amateur champ, hadn't played a tournament since last August and had a baby six months ago.

Betsy Rawls, seeking her fifth women's Open, shot a 75 and tied for fourth with last year's rookie of the year, Susie Maxwell, and Marilyn Smith.

Maria Bueno and Margaret Smith meet again

WIMBLEDON, England (CP)—The two queens of world tennis eyed each other warily today and refused to predict which of them will win this year's All-England tennis crown.

Maria Bueno of Brazil, reigning Wimbledon champion, nursed a slightly swollen knee after taking a tumble in the course of her 6-4, 5-7, 6-3 semi-final victory over Billie Jean Moffitt of the United States Thursday.

"It's not serious and it won't bother me in the final Saturday," the Brazilian said.

Big Margaret Smith of Australia, Wimbledon champion in 1963, looked fit and happy after trouncing Britain's Christine Truman, another big girl, 6-4, 6-0 in the other semi-final.

Miss Bueno and Miss Smith played each other in last year's final. The Brazilian scraped home after a three-set thriller.

"Can she win again?"

"You can never tell how a big match like this will go," Maria said. "Don't ask me to forecast. I take every match as just No. 2."

The bookies have made Margaret the favorite for this year's title — even before Wimbledon began. Against Christine Truman, she looked very fit, fast and keen.

Another Australian, Roy Emerson, also is a favorite—at 2-to-1—to retain his men's singles title today. He meets his doubles partner, Fred Stolle, in the final for the second successive year.

Stolle is in the final for the third straight year. He lost to Emerson 6-4, 12-10, 4-6, 6-3 last year, and in 1963 lost in straight sets to Chuck McKinley of the United States.

Emerson and Stolle have met four times before in the final round of major championships and each time, Emerson has won.

Both men are exponents of the big serve-volley game, but the wiry Emerson has much greater mobility and flexibility than the lanky Stolle.

Junior golf clinic to be held Monday

A junior golf development program, sponsored by the Province of Quebec Golf Association, will be held Monday at the Sherbrooke Country Club.

Pete Leblanc, director of the PQGA, will be in charge of the day tourney. A couple of professionals will be on hand to give instructions to the youngsters.

This is open to all youngsters between the ages of 12 and 18 years of age and must be members of a club affiliated with the PQGA. This is just one of the many such tournaments which will be staged to promote junior golf development.

Americans beat Snell in Games

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—Americans Jim Grelle and Deyrol Burleson finished one-two, beating Olympic champion Peter Snell of New Zealand, in a 1,500 metre race of the World Games in the Olympic Stadium Thursday night. Snell finished fifth.

The two Oregonians came from behind with a strong burst in the final 200 metres to pass pace-setting John Davies, another New Zealander, in the run to the tape.

Grelle was clocked in the comparatively slow time of 3:40.8 in the tactical race. Snell finished in 3:44.7.

Canadian champs lose to English duo when Hungerford's wrists lose their flexibility during event

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England (CP)—An eight-oared crew from British Columbia, survivor of an all-Canadian contest at the Henley royal regatta, faces an as-yet-unpressed Eton College crew today in the quarter-finals of the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup.

Shawnigan Lake School from Vancouver Island shot over the finish line Thursday a scant six feet ahead of St. Catharines, Ont., Collegiate with a time of six minutes, 48 seconds.

The Eton crew has not been pushed in either of its heats in the four-day regatta, which ends Saturday. Eton coasted past Oundle School of England in 6:56 Wednesday and eliminated Bryanston, another English school, in 6:57 Thursday.

Earlier, Olympic pairs champions George Hungerford and Roger Jackson of Canada were surprise losers to Ray Easterling and Jerry McCarthy, a pair of Cockney bargemen rowing a shell fixed up on 110 ($30) donations from friends, in a second-round Silver Goblets' heat.

Hungerford, 21, and Jackson, 23, highly rated representatives of the Vancouver Rowing Club after their performance at Tokyo last year, took an early Grand Challenge Cup match.

WRISTS 'TIED UP'

The pair, who used physical force in place of a rudder to navigate, veered off badly towards the English shell in the last part of the race when Hungerford's wrists "tied up." They narrowly missed colliding with Easterling and McCarthy and lost a half-length lead they built up, finishing 1/4 lengths behind the winners.

McCarthy, 23, said he and his 26-year-old partner rowed the fastest race of their career at 7:49—four seconds off the record set by an East German pair, Peter Gorny and Ginter Bergau, in a Silver Goblets heat earlier in the day.

In another match, Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, Olympic champions, rocketed over the one-mile 550-yard Henley course in 6:18, to end Harvard University's long winning streak. It was five seconds inside the record set by a Soviet crew last year.

The Harvard eight — finally beaten by two-thirds of a length — was inside the old record '00 by at least three seconds in the Tokyo last year, took an early Grand Challenge Cup match.
