Fifty-Third Year

World News In Brief

Vienna, Sept. 14.—(Reuters)—A 54-year-old Austrian, who galloped a horse across a bridge into the British sector of Vienna with Russian-sector police in hot pursuit on motorcycles, is in the custody of British sector police today pending inquiries.

The Austrian, Ernst Guentersberger, said he was riding in a Russian-sector park yesterday when a police officer picked him up. As they approached the bridge leading to the British sector, Guentersberger put the spur to his horse and with a wild flurry of hooves left the policeman behind.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—(CP)—Walter H. Vos of Muskegon, Mich., drowned in the Soulanges Canal, 20 miles west of here, last night while attempting to rescue his wife after their car skidded off the road and fell into the water. Mrs. Vos was saved.

Vos and his wife got clear of the car and started swimming for shore. Vos reached the bank and when he noticed his wife was in trouble, plunged back into the water and sank. Mrs. Vos was saved by two motorists from Cornwall, Ont.

New York, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The New York Times says today in a London dispatch that informed financial sources in Britain predict the pound sterling, now pegged at $4.03, will be devalued to $3.20.

The Times says the devaluation announcement will be made this week-end by the international monetary fund, now meeting in Washington.

Currencies of some other European countries also will be scaled down, the newspaper says.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 14.—(AP)—Theatre owners were told yesterday that "television is not only here to stay, it is here to expand and grow."

Marcus Cohen of Washington, D.C., television consultant for the Theatre Owners of America, said to the organization's convention:

"Every industry — broadcasting, newspaper and motion pictures — must face up to the fact that this new billion-dollar industry will have an important impact upon it, and each must accommodate its own thinking and operation so that television is a part of it."

Fakir "Blows" Man To Death

Karachi, Sept. 14.—(Reuters)—A half-naked fakir, said to have the power of killing people with a puff of his breath, received gifts of candy and flowers from an excited crowd who gathered outside the police station where police questioned him yesterday. A police officer called the fakir a mentally unsound man.

Yesterday morning he had tried to enter a mosque, but as he was so dirty and half-naked the muzzin (assistant priest) told him to go away.

The policeman said the fakir then blew through his hand at the muzzin, who walked back into the mosque and fell down dead. A postmortem showed he had died of a heart attack, it was stated. The fakir was not detained.

Britain, U.S. May Follow Same Line In The Far East

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Development of anti-communist policies by Britain and the United States in the Far East, along parallel lines, was forecast today by diplomatic authorities.

Their prediction was based on talks now underway between foreign secretary Ernest Bevin and state secretary Dean Acheson.

The two were believed to be in agreement, particularly that a peace treaty for Japan is long overdue. Three were no conclusions reported as to whether the western powers should now proceed to active work on drafting a Japanese treaty with or without the participation of Russia.

Indications were that Bevin and Acheson were also in general agreement on several other points reported to have been discussed in their first session of political talks here yesterday. These points included:

1. The western powers should move slowly and cautiously on the question of recognition of a Chinese communist government if and when such a regime is established.
2. Nationalism is the most powerful force working against the spread of communism into other Asiatic countries; it should be encouraged by the western countries both for that reason and because it is in line with their established policies.
3. Western capital should be put to work on a wide scale than at present to raise the living stand-

Britain Is Not Expected To Yield To Pressure For Devaluation Of The Pound

Many Familiar Faces Will Be Missing In Parliament

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Many familiar faces will be missing from the ranks of members of the Senate and the Commons when they met tomorrow for the opening of the first session of Canada's 21st Parliament.

Retirements, deaths in the June 27 general election, appointments to new posts and deaths have all combined to remove prominent people from legislative ranks.

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, who retired last year after setting a 20-year record in the office of Prime Minister, will, for the first time in a quarter of a century, watch the opening of the session as a private citizen. He did not run in the last election.

John Bracken, former Progressive Conservative leader, also will be missing. He retired from the leadership in October but decided to contest the election as a regular candidate of his party. He was defeated in Brandon, Man., by J. E. Matthews.

Hon. Ernest Bertrand and Hon. Joseph Jean will be missing from the cabinet ranks this session. Mr. Bertrand gave up the portfolio of postmaster general a few weeks ago to accept a post on the Court of King's Bench in Montreal. Mr. Jean left the post of solicitor general a short time ago to go to the Superior Court in Montreal.

On the opposition side there will be lacking such men as John R. MacNicol, defeated in the last election after representing Toronto-Davenport from 1930.

J. M. Macdonnell, who in 1945 gave up the presidency of the National Trust Company to devote himself to politics, was another Progressive Conservative member defeated.

For the first time in about 20 years, the Commons will be without a woman representative.

In the Senate, there will be missing Rt. Hon. Ian Mackenzie, former minister of veterans affairs and Liberal Senator for British Columbia, who died recently. Another claimed by death was Senator James Murdoch, a Liberal from Ontario who was federal minister of labor from 1921 to 1925.

Newcomers include men such as colorful Mayor Camille Houde of Montreal, who successfully carried the Montreal Papineau constituency as an independent; Lionel Conacher, the "Big Train" of Canadian sports in the 1920s and early 1930s, who won Toronto Trinity for the Liberals; and Jack Garland, a 500-pounder, who carried the Ontario constituency of Sudbury for the Liberals.

Among new faces in the Senate will be Hon. James Mackinnon, former minister of mines and resources, and Thomas Reid, the bagpipe-playing member from the British Columbia constituency of New Westminster.

U.S. Officials Say They See No Sign of U.K. Giving Ground on Monetary Question.

By STERLING F. GREEN

Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Silence from Britain's monetary delegation indicated today that it has no present intention of yielding to pressure for a devaluation of the pound.

Some United States officials at the fourth annual meeting of governors of the world bank and international monetary fund conceded they see no sign that Britain will give ground in the near future.

The fund's annual report yesterday poured on Britain the heaviest pressure to date—without mentioning either that country or its currencies by name.

It invited the deficit countries—those like Britain which have a critical dollar shortage—to re-evaluate their currencies if such action will help to increase their exports and their dollar-earning capacity.

Before the same 48-country forum, Eugene R. Black, president of the world bank, said he fails to see how devaluation "can be avoided." He later stated this was his personal view.

But after a closed committee discussion of the fund's report, at which Britain was one of the seventeen countries participating, managing director Camille Gutt told reporters he saw "no indication" that any country had changed its mind.

And Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, in a brief speech following the public remarks of Black and Gutt, confined himself to polite formalities.

Gutt revealed that one country raised its voice in opposition to devaluation in the closed meeting. This was later discovered to be Czechoslovakia, whose delegation yesterday demanded unsuccessfully that the bank and fund's discussions be opened to the public and the press.

American officials opined that Britain is satisfied that the 10-point agreement reached in last week's Anglo-American-Canadian conference will tide them over the present dollar famine and afford time to work out longer-range methods of balancing the foreign trade accounts.

However, it was predicted that the fund will not relax its rule barring the lending of its money to any country receiving Marshall plan assistance, as long as some fund countries are dissatisfied with the par values prevailing.

Under the plan, Britain was understood to be planning to request repeal of that ruling. Whether she will enter such a request now is uncertain.

Gutt, still without naming Britain specifically, noted that the fund's charter forbids any revaluation study until the country concerned proposes a change.

Therefore, despite the fact that a general currency revision is now under study by the fund, action

Federal Aid Is Sought For Teachers

Fredericton, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The teachers' drive to get federal aid for Canada's provincially-controlled education may be among the topics up for discussion today at a closed meeting of the provincial ministers of education.

Six ministers, S. J. Hefferton of Newfoundland, James Brittain of New Brunswick, Dana Porter of Ontario, Woodrow Lloyd of Saskatchewan, Ivan Casey of Alberta, and W. T. Straits of British Columbia, are attending the Canadian Education Association convention in session here, and deputy ministers have arrived from the other provinces.

Mr. Brittain is chairman of their meeting, regarded in convention circles as one of the most significant factors in this three-day education conference.

At a dinner-meeting last night, Dr. F. E. MacDiarmid, New Brunswick's minister of education, chief superintendent for education, particularly noted the number of ministers of education present.

"I am glad so many... are attending this meeting," he said. "It may be that from their meditations some definite action will result." Something must be done to induce young persons to enter and remain in the teaching profession, Dr. MacDiarmid continued. The problem could not be entirely solved by increasing salaries—the next problem would be to find the money, especially in the eastern provinces. He wondered if the remedy could be found in federal aid.

"Education is the responsibility of the provinces, provincial governments and citizens of the province," he said.

"Any federal aid should be a direct grant to the provinces with no strings attached."

Lull Still Hangs Over China Front

Canton, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Nationalist China's top military men today laid plans to cope with the impending Communist offensive on the central and southern fronts.

Army sources said high-level conferences had placed equal emphasis on defence and offence. Vital points will be defended at any cost and attacks will be initiated when expedient, they claimed.

An atmosphere of confidence pervaded this refugee capital even as the Reds massed forces in Kiangsi province 140 miles away to the northeast.

In Kwangtung province, home of Canton, the nationalists reinforced their positions against the Red concentrations across the border.

Both sides also were building up their forces in Hunan province to the north of Canton where Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi, nationalist central China commander, has been beating back the Reds.

From the far interior of China, however, came a note of discord in contrast to the optimism expressed by Pai—and even some foreign observers—that the imminent Red drive could be turned back.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek said he had gone to Szechwan province to align warlords there against the Communists but had not yet succeeded.

The Nationalist leader admitted yesterday that but for lack of harmony among its leaders the province could become an important base for the fight against the Reds.

Chungking, which was the provisional capital in the last war, has been designated the seat of government if Canton falls.

Guerrilla Raids May Bring Greek Invasion Of Albania

Athens, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Greece will invade Albania "in self defence" if any new attacks are launched by communist guerrillas from the Albanian side, a responsible Greek source said today.

He said his country would notify the United Nations of its plan of action at the coming U.N. General Assembly. The source, as ranking delegate to the Assembly, said Greece had decided on this action to put an end to the guerrilla threat of the Greek-Albanian border.

The delegate said the General Assembly would be told Greece will invoke article 51 of the U.N. charter if there are any more guerrilla attacks from the Albanian side. The article sustains the right of self-defence if an armed attack occurs against a U.N. member.

Recently there has been an almost unanimous demand in the Greek press for drastic action if the communists start any new aggressions on Greece from Albanian soil.

While Greek leaders realize that an invasion of Albania might be the spark to touch off a third world war, if Russia intervened, it is the consensus in Athens that the Soviet Union would not risk a war

Britain's Health Scheme Is Subject Of Criticism

(Editor's Note: This is the first of three articles on Britain's national health service, now well into its second year. The first discusses the new role of the family doctor.)

By ALAN HARVEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 14.—(AP)—Socialist Britain, administrator of the world's largest group medical practice, finds her suave bedside manner rattled by a steady surge of criticism.

The national health service, like many young doctors, is having a tough time getting started.

When the state hung out its shingle July 5, 1948, three main divisions of medicine were offered—hospital services, local government services and a group of family services headed by the general practitioner, or family doctor.

So far, most complaints have come from the family doctor. Generally, he feels that he is underpaid, that he works twice as hard as he used to, that he is becoming a glorified pill-dispenser, and that his prestige is suffering.

On the other hand, many doctors admit that state medicine may be the one way of assuring the greatest medical good for the greatest number. Most of them think it's a good thing that the man who comes on a bicycle gets the same treatment as one who arrives in a luxury automobile.

Other favorable points mentioned by family doctors are that the health service has produced a new understanding among practitioners, resulting in "gentlemen's agreements" to shore work at busy periods; they no longer need worry about patients not paying their bills; their prescriptions are standardized; and young doctors are better paid than formerly.

All but 500 of Britain's 21,000 general practitioners have "signed up" under the health scheme. Their set-up hasn't changed much. They still have their old consulting rooms. The big difference is that the government pays the doctor a set fee—18 shillings ($3.60) a year—for each patient who registers with him.

Everyone aged 16 and over can choose his own doctor. A family need not all have the same one but parents or guardians choose for those under 16.

The doctor is limited to a maximum of 4,000 patients (plus an extra 2,400 if he has an assistant). Not all doctors have 4,000, and to try to obtain a fair distribution the government employs a system of "negative direction." This means that doctors are discouraged from entering areas considered over-doctored.

So if Johnny gets a stomach ache, and one of the 96 in every 100 Britons who have registered with a health service doctor, all he has to do is call the doctor to come and see him, or visit the doctor's surgery at specified hours. Sometimes there are long queues. There he obtains a certificate for drugs, X-rays, or whatever treatment he needs.

Everyone can change doctors, whenever desired, and the doctor (with some exceptions) can remove from his list any persons he no longer wants to serve. Persons no doctor wants to accept can apply to a special board, which will allocate them to one.

The family doctor still performs minor operations under anaesthetic where necessary, but is not expected to deliver babies except by special arrangement. People who need a doctor when away from home can apply to any doctor in the service for treatment as "temporary residents."

One of the grievances raised by doctors is that of 162 health centres proposed under the scheme, only one is under construction. The result is that many doctors find their waiting rooms overcrowded and can't obtain new accommodation.

The early days of the health service were marked by frequent reports of people sitting on stairways and in alleys waiting for the doctor.

Nobody knows whether the health plan is responsible, but the last year has seen a drop in the number of new recruits to medicine. Most of them want to be trained specialists. The Lancet, a British medical publication, said the result is that general practice tends to be looked on as a "resort of the mediocre who have failed to secure preferential employment elsewhere in medicine."

Meanwhile, doctors keep on complaining that people now come to them with trivial complaints, that mothers bring the whole family "just to make sure there's nothing wrong with the others," that there is too much centralization, that doctors get writer's camp from filling in prescription forms, and that health minister Aneurin Bevan is too arbitrary in administering the scheme.

Asian Pact Discussed At Conference

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bigwin Inn, Ont., Sept. 14.—(AP)—The spotlight of the unofficial Commonwealth relations conference swung today to the possibility of a security pact for Asiatic nations in the wake of a searching study of the North Atlantic Pact.

The conference, made up of nearly 100 non-governmental delegates from 10 Commonwealth countries, generally agreed yesterday that the Atlantic pact is a good thing and that it provides the best in the Atlantic area.

This conclusion was reached after the delegates canvassed behind closed doors the possibility of re-arming Germany as a step towards providing a bulwark against an aggressive Russia.

In a brisk debate which at times split the United Kingdom delegation, spokesmen from several Commonwealth states said they feared that Germany, if restored as a military power, might play off east against west and again foment disorder on the continent.

Some British delegates, with support from Canadians, suggested the best course would be to proceed with the economic and political development of Germany, bringing her to the point where, if she then could be trusted, she could be armed as a western ally.

The conference considered, and then rejected, the possibility of the United Kingdom going in full partnership into a federation of western Europe as a means of forestalling any possible Soviet drive across Europe to the Atlantic coast.

Spokesmen for Canada, Australia and India agreed with some members of the U.K. union with-out surrendering some of her Commonwealth ties, unless the rest of the Commonwealth and the United States also became partners.

The question was dropped, with general agreement that it raised possibilities too far-reaching at this stage of world development.

Conservation Plea Made By Wilson

Banff, Alta., Sept. 14.—(AP)—A "century of misinformed school-room dogma" has persuaded millions of Canadians that Canada wallows in natural resources, surplus and surpluses, directors of the Canadian Forestry Association were told last night.

James Wilson, president of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company, said these "pleasant fictions" explained why the public set the torch to 3,500,000 acres of Canada's forests last summer and why the annual fire waste was 400,000,000 cubic feet.

"The entire story of retrograde forests, water and soil is a reflection of the Canadian mind and conscience," he said. "The damage done to timberlands, crop lands, watersheds and wildlife is chargeable to the Canadian people."

Canadian industries which represent billions of dollars in investments and whose well-being depends on the maintenance of Canada's forests were failing in their duty of promoting conservation. The same engineering sense now applied to industry should be turned to the saving of the Dominion's natural resources.

U.N. Plans For Jerusalem Control Meet Opposition

Lake Success, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The new United Nations' proposal for international control of Jerusalem appeared today to be headed for trouble.

The plan was submitted yesterday for consideration in the 59-country General Assembly by the Palestine conciliation commission as a basis for peace in the Holy City.

U.N. delegates were reluctant to comment on the plan until they had time to study it more, but informed quarters said bitter opposition may be expected, at least from the Israeli government.

It still was not known whether the plan would meet the approval of other vitally-interested religious and political groups: Arabs and the Vatican and other Christian churches.

To become effective, the plan must be accepted by Israel and Hashemite Jordan, the two countries now occupying Jerusalem. The Assembly had no power to enforce its decisions; it can only recommend—and use persuasive force.

The commission's blueprint would preserve the Arab and Jewish sectors of the Holy City and provide a measure of self-rule for each, but would give supreme authority to the U.N. commissioner named by the General Assembly.

Sources familiar with Israeli policy explained that Israel already had told the U.N. she could accept no plan which recognized an international regime as supreme in the Holy City. Israel has suggested instead that the U.N. set up a control over the Holy Places without interfering in local administration.

An Israeli government spokesman said in Tel Aviv last night that plan contains "specific proposals which the government of Israel and the Jews of Jerusalem cannot accept." He said "any settlement in any degree severe Jewish Jerusalem from the living body of the Israeli state would be regarded as unacceptable."

The spokesman charged that the commission ignored the fundamental problem of sovereignty and "without a positive solution of that problem no stable regime can be set up in the Jerusalem area."

The Vatican, on the other hand, has urged creation of full international rule.

At present, Hashemite Jordan troops of Arab King Abdullah occupy the walled old city and apparently intend to stay. Israel has the new city on the other side of a narrow no-man's-land and claims Jerusalem is part of Israel.

It had been hoped that the new plan, drafted at Lausanne, Switzerland, would embody a compromise formula. It differed from the 1948 trusteeship plan primarily, however, in its recognition of the existing division in the city with the two separate local administrations.

Under the new plan, these administrations would continue but the U.N. would create above them a central government consisting of a commissioner, a 14-member general council, an international tribunal and a mixed tribunal of local residents.

PITCHING HORSESHOES
By BILLY ROSE

When Martin Quint, 71, married Ellie Reynolds, 34, their friends in Nyack didn't give the union much chance of success. Five years later, however, they were ready to admit they had been wrong—Ellie was doing a good job of taking care of Martin, and as for the old coot—well, he was a lot friendlier than anyone had ever thought possible.

On their fifth anniversary, Martin sent Ellie to New York on an errand, filled the parlor with gifts and paper curlicues, and invited a dozen neighbors in for a surprise party. The plan was for a lookout at the railroad depot to phone when he saw Ellie get off the train, and they would turn out the lights and hide. When Ellie walked in and turned them on again, every one would yell, "Surprise!"

Well, what happened was a surprise, all right, but there was no yelling. As the front door opened, Quint and his guests heard Ellie whisper, "Sssh! He might be awake!"

"I don't like this sneaking around," said the voice of a man.
"Why don't you ask him for a divorce?"

"Think I'm crazy? He doesn't figure to live much longer, and I'm pretty sure to get the savings and insurance. Thanks for taking me home. See you Tuesday at the regular time."

Then Ellie closed the door and switched on the lights. . . .
After the embarrassed guests had left, she said to her husband, "I suppose you want me to pack."

"Why should I?" said Martin.
"It's only human nature for you to take up with someone nearer your own age."

"Don't you want a divorce?"
"Not unless you insist on it. All I ask is that you stop seeing the young man as long as I'm alive. If you'll agree and put it in writing,
I'll fix it so you'll get every cent
I've got."

And that's how it was arranged.
An agreement was signed and locked in the wall safe, and the couple went on living together.

Of course, the neighbors gossip-ed a lot, particularly when it was whispered around that Ellie was still seeing the young man, but their talk seemed to make no impression on Martin. Instead, he busied himself with a new hobby—the study of insects—and spent most of his waking hours in a spare room over the garage, mounting butterflies and beetles on small exhibit boards.

"I wouldn't mention this around,"
he told his wife. "As it is, people think I'm not quite all there."

One evening, just after Ellie had brought him the usual glass of warm milk, Martin began to have convulsions. Ellie phoned the doctor that her husband was having a heart attack, but by the time he arrived the old man was dead. The doctor examined the body, then called the coroner, and an hour later the corpse, together with the

Active Year For Community Group
At Sawyerville

The Sawyerville Community School will begin its tenth annual session this year on Friday, Sept.
16. This will take the form of a public meeting to be held in the I.O.O.F. Hall at 8.00 p. m. The speaker on this occasion will be Hugh McLennan, one of the most eminent of modern Canadian authors. His three novels "Baromet-ter Rising," "Two Solitudes," and
"The Precipice" have been widely acclaimed.

The regular classes, which will continue on Friday evenings until November 13, will begin on September 23. Courses this year will include leather craft and felt work, James Gray of Bishop's College will conduct a course in public speaking. Mr. Laski, also of Bishop's College, will give a course entitled "Know Yourself and Your Neighbour." Different instructors will give leadership on the subject of vocational guidance —a class intended primarily for high school pupils. Public health will be considered under the direction of people informed on various aspects of this question. Plans for the school include a generous use of films. This year, as last, The Eastern Townships Committee on Adult Education has worked closely with the Sawyerville committee in arranging the program.

The School is open to any who wish to attend and the fees are remarkably modest.

empty milk glass, was taken away.
Early the following morning, a detective rang Ellie's doorbell.

"I have a warrant for your arrest," he said. "According to the coroner, your husband died of cyanide poisoning, and the drugstore in town reports that you bought a bottle of the stuff two weeks ago."

"That's right," said Ellie. "Martin used the cyanide to kill the insects he was studying. There are hundreds of specimens in the laboratory over the garage."

"I never heard of his being interested in bugs," said the detective. "Can I see this laboratory?"

Ellie led the way up the garage stairs and opened the door. There was nothing in the room but a few bits of junk and an old bicycle.

"I'm sorry, but you'll have to come along," said the detective.
"You're the only person who figured to profit by M. Quint's death."

"I swear I didn't do it," said Ellie.
"Both Martin and I knew he wouldn't live long, and we signed an agreement which explains everything. It's in his study."

She ran into the house, opened the wall safe and took out a brown envelope, but when she tore it open there was nothing inside but a piece of blank paper.

Blank, that is, except for one word pencilled in a childish scrawl:
"Surprise!"

Metropolitan Artists Gave Polished Performance Of Barber Of Seville

By MARGARET DOHERTY
Many music lovers, including this reviewer, saw a dream materialize last night. Opera—at its best—finally came to Sherbrooke.

While the local public has long been music conscious and has had many opportunities to listen to excellent artists, it was really the first time that an entire opera has been presented in such a finished manner.

Rossini's Barber of Seville is an opera with a great deal of audience appeal and therefore is always a good choice as an initial presentation. Last night even those who have seen it performed at the Metropolitan felt that it profited from the intimacy created by a smaller theatre.

Colorful costumes and effective settings added to the beauty of the performance and it was pure joy to watch the effortless ease of the entire cast as they carried on the rather lively action required by the score.

Although the first act did get off to a doubtful start, one felt that it was because the artists were concerned with adjusting themselves to a small stage and the acoustics of a motion picture theatre. When the curtain rose on the second act the audience was enthralled and remained so until the final note.

The singers, every one of them showing sound training and years of experience, were well balanced cast. Their ensemble work particularly was flawless and the intricate passages, which are numerous, were handled with an accuracy and dexterity seldom equalled.

Salvatore Baccaloni is an opera in himself and one might almost venture to say that the role of Dr. Bartolo was created for him. Critics have been lavish in their praise of this artist and after last night's performance there can be little doubt that all of it is deserved.

Virgilio Lazzari as the comical music teacher, Don Basilio, was outstanding. Combining a tremendous bass voice with excellent acting ability, he was a great favorite with the audience.

Figaro, the Barber, is of course one of the main figures in the opera and carries much of the responsibility for its success. Francesco Valentino, young American baritone, born of Italian parents, acquitted himself admirably in this colorful role and was much applauded, particularly for the well known aria in the first act. His scenes with Count Almaviva and Rosina were also excellently sung.

Carmen Torres has a lovely voice which at times, however, seemed to show more lyric than coloratura quality. She was an appealing Rosina, with an attractive stage presence, her voice showing to greatest advantage during the music lesson when Count Almaviva, her lover, impersonates a singing teacher and, for Dr. Bartolo's benefit, has her sing two songs. These selections, sung in French, were exquisite, bringing out the rich tones in her voice, and adding greatly to her role.

Gabor Carelli was a convincing Count Almaviva. His tenor voice has a pleasing quality and was particularly beautiful and effective in the pianissimo passages.

Bertha, Dr. Bartolo's housemaid, was interpreted by Thelma Votipka, who can always be depended upon for a good performance. Listening to her last night, one had the impression that it would be good to

J. A. Archambault Is Named To Chamber Board

Hull, Que., Sept. 14.—A vigorous program of highway improvement and increased tourist facilities was urged on the Quebec government yesterday.

The program was called for in a series of resolutions approved at the final session of the Quebec Chambers of Commerce 14th annual convention. About 300 delegates, representing 125 member bodies in the province, attended the three-day meeting. Main theme of the convention was "tourism."

Earlier yesterday Maurice Trudeau of Montreal was elected president of the organization, succeeding C. E. Boivin of Chicoutimi.

Resolutions passed asked the government to establish a tourist department; classify all hotels and Admission cards will be sent to the members a week before the first concert.

Arbitration Board Told Asbestosis Is Not A Cause Of Tuberculosis

Montreal, Sept. 14.—Dr. Paul Cartier of Thetford Mines, Que., yesterday told an arbitration board that asbestosis is less harmful than silicosis because silicosis is progressive and predisposes a patient to tuberculosis.

Dr. Cartier appeared before the board, headed by Judge Thomas Tremblay of Quebec, which is hearing representatives of three asbestos mining companies and the asbestos workers' syndicate with a view toward establishing a collective agreement.

The workers were heard at sittings last month in Thetford Mines, and the companies began presentations yesterday. The companies are Asbestos Corporation, Ltd., Johnson Company and Finkote Mine.

Dr. Cartier, medical director of the Thetford Industrial Clinic, Inc., said silicosis, asbestosis and tuberculosis are three distinct diseases and there is no evidence that asbestosis predisposes to T.B. Surveys in the United States among some 30,000 asbestos employees showed incidence of T.B. was not higher than in any other industrial group.

In the last five years in the Thetford district, he said, there had been 74 cases of tuberculosis among men and 77 among women. No women worked in the asbestos mines.

Dr. Cartier said two types of dust are created in mining of asbestos. The first is inert and merely a nuisance, not affecting health, the second, a fibrous type, may be harmful but cases of asbestosis have occurred only after about 14 years' exposure to this type of dust. He estimated that only 22 per cent of asbestos workers are exposed to sufficient concentration of fibrous dust to harm them.

George F. Jenkins, general manager of Asbestos Corporation, told the board the modern filtering methods have practically controlled asbestosis.

Mr. Jenkins, who has worked in gold, coal and hard ore mines, is a mining engineer with more than 30 years of experience. He said modern control measures, including the introduction of wet drilling and special filter plants had resulted in a 95-per cent asbestos dust control. He stated further that at his mine, the Asbestos Corporation Limited, only 12 per cent of the men worked under ground.

Speaking of the danger of asbestos mining in general, Mr. Jenkins said that all small tunnel work, done by special squads, is safeguarded by precautionary measures, including the erection of steel structures to prevent falling ore, ventilation of all mining shafts and the erection of safety chains. These precautions make it impossible for men working in an explosive section of a shaft to enter without breaking the electrical contact which leads to the explosive charge.

"Asbestos mining is less dangerous than any other form of mining because there is no dust, no danger of explosive gases, no fumes and an the whole general cleanliness in comparison to coal, gold or hard ore mining," he said. The temperature in an asbestos underground pit is normally about 49 degrees Fahrenheit, he said. To avoid asbestosis, he stated, the companies are providing special safety masks for all employees but the workers do not usually make use of them. He said also that employees at the beginning were opposed to wet drilling and preferred to accept the dust rather than work with wet drills.

Mr. Jenkins told board members that the Asbestos Corporation had spent a total of $562,762 on dust elimination during the last few years. Cost of the Thetford Industrial Clinic was $75,000 plus an operating cost of $35,000 per year.

Two Speeders Are Fined Here

Two local speedsters paid out fines of $10.70 and $28.50, respectively, in the Recorder's Court this morning. Both pleaded guilty to a charge of excessive speeding.

A short, sleepy-eyed 21-year-old youth, charged with drunkenness and refusing to obey a constable's order to move along, was next to appear before Recorder O'Brien.

When he mumbled "not guilty," the youth was escorted to the Winter street jail where he will remain until his case comes up again tomorrow. He spent last night in the cells at the Sherbrooke Police Station.

Court was then adjourned.

Wholesome Community Life Cited As Aid In Reduction Of Social Problems

"As you can keep life wholesome, family life normal, provide decent houses for people to live in, and suitable churches wherein they may worship, then you can keep serious community problems at a minimum," Rev. Stanley Andrews, well known Social Welfare and Youth worker, connected with Montreal's Juvenile Court, told members of the Rotary Club at their regular meeting last evening.

Mr. Andrews, speaking on Social Service, defined it as being "that which enables people to live so that spiritual, mental and physical productivity and satisfaction are secured."

He urged individuals and groups such as the Rotary Club to take the initiative in dealing with local problems, to see that attention is given to the things which need to be dealt with and asked them not to let any system of service stand still, because it is bound to grow lax and become defective.

First of all, however, he said it is necessary to see what the problem is, get together to discuss it and understand it thoroughly, and then set about planning a course of action.

"This spirit of getting together should not only exist in communities," he continued, "but should be planned on a wider basis throughout the world. Personal service is of the utmost importance and we must be concerned with the moral and spiritual side of life as well as the physical."

Lashing out at some of the parents whose example is the immediate cause of delinquency in their children, the speaker said that since 1935, the consumption of alcohol has increased more than 400 per cent.

While he admitted that the home and the school are responsible to a certain extent for the development of the youth, he stressed the fact that the Church should play a more important part in the life of the young people, and urged that suitable programs be provided for them.

In conclusion he said "All of us have a job to do. If we are good citizens in a community, we have a lot of the proper machinery set up already, but we must not stop there."

Rev. Mr. Andrews was introduced by G. Pouliot and thanked by Everett Nicol.

President B. D. Lyon was in the chair and welcomed one visiting Rotarian, Henry L. Croil, of Belleville, and the following guests: Rev. T. F. D. Everett, Sherbrooke; David Johnson, St. Lambert, M. Jones, Daytona Beach, Fla., and Roland Creswe, of the Bank of Montreal, Sherbrooke.

Past President Douglas Stevenson gave a brief report on the anniversary of the Randolph Club, celebrated at Northfield, and on the Fall Conclave held at the Balsams, last week.

Seated at the head table with the president and speaker were J. A. Metivier, Past President Stevenson, Jay Joslin, G. Pouliot, Everett Nicol, Fred Kirby, Alex Ross, Past Presidents, G. Wiggitt and E. W. Gilbey.

WALTER LEGGE

The death of Walter Legge, editor and publisher of the Granby Leader-Mail, deprives the Eastern Townships of one of its most prominent citizens and removes from the ranks of the newspaper profession one of its most remarkable characters. For despite the great esteem in which he was held by the profession as a whole and by the weekly journalists in particular, Mr. Legge was not a life-long newspaperman. In fact, his active association with the business began only seventeen years ago when he took over the Granby Leader-Mail upon the death of his father.

However, he soon displayed a natural born instinct for the journalistic world which brought him such general respect that barely four years after his assumption of control of the Granby paper he was named president of the Ontario-Quebec division of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association and five years later became president of the Dominion association.

His interest in the welfare of his community was not confined to the limited scope of his own business but extended into every branch of community betterment. He was a member of and a keen worker in numerous Granby organizations and for seventeen years served as organist and choir director of St. George's Church, Granby.

The Sherbrooke Record will join with the rest of the press in Canada in extending sympathy to his family and the people of Granby in the loss of a fine man and a truly leading citizen.

FREE ENTERPRISE

In the discussion of the various economic and political theories laid before the people today, the question is sometimes asked: Just what is free enterprise? This is answered in the house organ of an American industrial concern which says:

It has nothing to do with politics nor wealth nor class. It is a way of living in which you as an individual are important. Little things make up this way of living, but think of what you would lose if you ever surrendered it.

Free enterprise is the right to open a gas station or grocery store or buy a farm, if you want to be your own boss, or change your job if you don't like the man you work for. (Under communism you work where you are told, and you live and die bossed by hard-fisted bureaucrats who tell you every move you dare make).

Free enterprise is the right to lock your door at night. (In communist countries the dread secret police can break it down any time they like).

Free enterprise is the right to argue. (In communist countries you humbly say "yes" to whatever is told you).

Free enterprise is the right to save money if you want, or blow it on a good time if that is what you prefer. (Under communism you've never the money to do either—back-breaking hours only earn you enough to keep alive).

Free enterprise is looking on a policeman as someone to protect you, on a judge as a friend to help you. (In communist countries you had better be afraid of all police . . . and dread all judges).

Free enterprise is the right to raise your children as you think best. (Under communism the state decides what your child shall learn to do, where he or she shall go. Respect for parents and family life are held in contempt).

Free enterprise is the right to speak freely about anything you wish. (In communist countries you can never know whether your best friend or your own child is an informer. You are told what opinions to have; you'd better not voice any others).

Free enterprise has nothing to do with how much money you have or don't have, nor what your job is or is not. Free enterprise means the right to be yourself instead of some nameless number in a horde bossed by a few despots. Free enterprise is the sum of many little things—but how miserable you'd be if someone stole it from you.

LOSING TAXPAYERS

Ottawa's City Council has approved the buying of the local privately-owned electric company which has for long been in competition with the municipal hydro-electric system. But, it is pointed out by The Printed Word, one condition is that the system continue to pay its city taxes. The reason for this is obvious. About a year ago that city hilariously took over the street railway system and belatedly discovered that it had lost a big taxpayer by the move.

If, as seems highly likely, the new deal is completed, the Dominion and provincial governments will both lose one of their larger taxpayers. Undoubtedly, one of the greatest reasons why the present owners of the private system are ready to sell is that the competition with the tax-free hydro is too tough. The corporation taxes alone add up to forty per cent of the net earnings.

If Hydro did not escape these and other taxes it would be shown that the publicly-owned power in Ontario is more expensive than power bought from private companies.

PRESS COMMENTS

LOWERING OF TARIFFS WOULD MAKE BRITISH SALES EASIER IN U.S.

The proposal that the United States ought to consider lowering its tariff walls and simplifying its customs procedure as a means of encouraging the sale of sterling area products in its markets is not an unreasonable one if it is accepted, as we think it must be, that a solvent and strong Britain is essential to the prosperity and security of the U.S. and the world.

Although U.S. tariffs have been reduced under successive Democratic administrations in recent years and now impose an average rate on dutiable goods of about 15 per cent, the tariff on some products for which Britain is famous continues very high. For instance, it is stated that the U.S. tariff on cotton goods is between 35 per cent and 40 per cent and on woollen textiles it averages 50 per cent. It will be seen from these figures that British textiles must jump a high hurdle to get into the United States. The Canadian duties are much lower and at times they have been entirely off many lines of British textiles.

No doubt American industry would dislike to see its tariff protection removed, but if it is as efficient as it claims to be it should not fear to meet British goods in fair competition, especially as allegations are frequently heard in the U.S. that British industry is inefficient and its production costs high. The U.S. market is so immense that all the manufactured goods the British could ship would be a mere drop in the bucket of American consumptive capacity. In 1948 the people of the U.S. bought consumer goods worth $130 billion, but in this tremendous total there was less than two billion dollars worth from the whole sterling area, including Britain.

Paul G. Hoffman, administrator of ERP, has pointed out that if the U.S. would double its purchases of sterling area goods the dollar crisis would be solved. It is to promote this that Mr. Abbott has suggested that the U.S. should consider making it easier for British goods to enter the markets of the neighboring country.

JAPAN: PROS AND CONS

General MacArthur's report on Japan's four years of occupation points with pride to the undoubted accomplishments of that period. The comparative smoothness of the occupation in a turbulent Far East is particularly striking and a tribute both to the general's leadership and to the continuing Japanese worship of authority.

It is perhaps that very smoothness which constitutes the chief danger in Japan. So long as American power and economic subsidies keep the situation reasonably in order, Japanese docility appears to be an asset. But there are economic and political crises much closer to the surface than General MacArthur's report suggests, and, with the lessening of American influence, they could easily lead to the emergence of anti-democratic strong-arm leadership before which a docile people would again bow.

We are not pessimistic about Japan's future, but we cannot quite accept the general's optimism at face value. Neither the dangers of a resurgent police state nor of communism seem to us to be past, as he declares categorically, adding that communism has been decisively repulsed in Japan by the public opinion rather than by police action. The fact remains that the right-wing government continues to press for increased police powers to deal with what it continues to view as a communist threat, and communism continues to make an intellectual appeal to Japanese youth in rebellion against the resurgent old order.

A most hopeful factor is the anticipated emergence of a new middle class, of which General MacArthur writes glowingly. Yet by ruling out Japanese trade with Red China he raises the question of where Japan can find the economic base to support such a class. The sooner this and related questions are tackled by joint international action on Asia's interrelated problems the better.

MOLOTOV'S CIGARET CASE

The story is told of an incident on the House of Commons' terrace when Marshall was secretary of state for the U.S.A. and Molotov was here for the conference of foreign ministers. They were seated together with Ernest Bevin, our own foreign secretary, when Marshall took out his cigarette case and passed it round.

As each helped himself he noticed that the simple gun metal case was inscribed inside: "To Our General—From the Army."

Bevin's case, when it was passed round, was a more elaborate one made of gold, and it was inscribed: "To Ernie—From the Dockers."

Eventually it was Molotov's turn. His cigarette case proved to be the handsomest of all.

It was made of platinum, richly embossed and decorated with large emeralds. Inside, the inscription read: "From Count Esterhazy to his beloved Fifi with love and kisses."

And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, saying, Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth.—Revelations 19:6.

To Him no high, no low, no great, no small;

He fills, He bounds, connects and equals all —Pope.

This England...

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, September 14.—(C)—Britain's Peter Pan—sparetime craftsmen who retain the inventive enthusiasm of boys—have created a world in miniature at the model engineering exhibition in Westminster.

More than 400 models entered by amateurs whose ages range from 14 to 87 are on view. Of these only three have been made by women.

Albert Stannard, a London bus driver, spent 300 hours making a small scale model, about four inches long, of a lightweight motor cycle.

Most exhibits suggest that the average modeller is so much in love with his everyday work that he spends his leisure hours making replicas of the tools of his trade.

Thus, a lifeboat coxswain sends in a model lifeboat, a fireman a miniature fire engine, a locomotive engineer a locomotive.

The professions, however, go in more for escapism. A clergyman submits, not a model cathedral, but a gay little model of a Nile boat of 1450 B. C., while a doctor enters a scale model of a sailing boat.

Models on show range from jet airplanes to antique furniture and a spray of roses made from copper. Smallest of them is a rigged sailing boat that can be covered by a silver threepenny bit—smaller than a Canadian dime.

It was built by T. E. Butler, of Ramsgate, Kent, at a model engineering club which he attends three times a week. While he was away, his wife set to work on the kitchen table and built a two-ounce scale of the club in question.

Models of ships range from working model liners of the future to tiny sailing ships in bottles. A Sheffield man went one better and produced a model encased in an electric light bulb.

Though most of the exhibits are static, one section is given over to action models. Cars, trains and boats equipped with tiny electric engines whiz round specially-built tracks at dazzling speeds while toy airplanes on control lines roar overhead.

Bonn Residents Find Pace Of Capital City Life Is Too Fast

By GEORGE MARTIN

Bonn, Germany, September 14.—(AP)—Bonn's easy going residents are finding it hard to adjust their traditional slow pace to the speed of a national capital.

So far, they are more amused than altered by the feverish activity that began when their little college town was chosen as the seat of the new west-German Government.

They haven't quickened their pace much, if at all, but they are at least taking it in good humor.

One new addition that fascinates them is the bus line which replaced the old trolley for the rail station to the parliament building. It is Bonn's first bus line.

An elderly conductor tries to educate Bonners to hurry up. "New times have come, lady," he calls out. "We are a capital now. Get in quickly."

But the lady only laughs and answers with a joke. The other passengers chime in and the bus finally starts only a little later than it would have if no one had suggested hurry.

The parliament deputies don't seem in much of a hurry, either, or they wouldn't eat in the parliament restaurant which offers some of the slowest service in the world.

Telephone service is equally slow, but no one complains—possibly because in the current turmoil nobody can be found to whom to complain.

Government buildings are going up so fast that workers get in each other's way. Plans are afoot for raising prefabricated buildings for the horde of government workers expected to move in soon.

As in any boom town, prices are going up. But Herr Schmitz—Bonn's counterpart to citizen John Doe—puts up willingly with the rising prices.

"It is fine that Bonn has become a capital," he says. "Now our city will be rebuilt quickly."

Then he adds: "When it is rebuilt, I hope the whole government gang will move to Frankfurt."

The Record Short Story

I Want To Be An Actress

By HOLLIS STARNES

Katie Kilfeather's "kids," as the veteran chambermaid of the old Broadway theatrical hotel San Pedro called her guests, all seemed beset by the same problem. They never had money enough. When the buxom maid went each day to make their beds they'd tell of rent overdue, or no cash for food, or smart clothes to make an impression on managers.

Now Katie had wits that were keen, as well as a heart that was outside. She began concocting what she called "gr-and schemes" to help her penniless pets out of trouble. As her schemes worked, she was hailed as a miracle woman. But before she could puff up with pride at her prowess, a new kid—with taffy-colored hair and appealing blue eyes—came along. Laurel Eustace's problem was that she had too much money.

Luscious Laurel didn't live at the grubby San Pedro, but was one of several rich girls who came each day for drama lessons with Celia Webber, one-time stage star. Stopping in Katie's linen room one morning before her lesson, the blonde beauty declared, "I'm the unhappiest girl in the world!"

"How come?" the maid asked mildly.

"I want to be an actress, live my own life, stand on my own feet! I want to be treated like a regular human being!"

"What's stoppin' ye?" asked Katie.

She was knocked for a loop when Laurel said, "Money!"

"How'd ye figure that?" demanded Katie. "Don't money pay for your acting lessons, good clothes, overhead?"

The girl burst out, "But the family makes fun of my ambition. They think I haven't a grain of talent, that this is a whim!"

"All ye got to do is show 'em," the maid said. "I hear ye got a berth in one of them barn theaters this Summer. Don't that make ye feel good?"

The girl shook her head. "Not with everyone knowing my father's money bought me the chance!"

"That's no disgrace," Katie said. Laurel stormed. "Everyone resents you when they know every part you play has been bought and paid for. They treat you like an outsider. It does something to me inside, Katie—it hurts like a great stabbing pain. Outside, it freezes me up so I scarcely can speak!"

The maid thought, "If this girl could only act the way she can feel, she should make a good actress some day!" 'Twas a droll situation, trying to comfort the rich instead of the poor and all she could think of was the selfsame spiel she'd used countless times on the penniless. "Now dry them big eyes an' cheer up! I'm goin' to concoct some gr-and scheme that'll—"

Young things were a caution, she marveled as Laurel suddenly smiled up at her trustfully. "Oh, Katie, you are! What kind of a scheme?"

"Gimme time to concoct! Now be off—'tis time for your lesson."

Then Katie discovered she wasn't conditioned to deal with the money problem in reverse, as you might say. 'Twas easier to outwit bill sharks, lend her tip money to stranded actors, borrow clothes from ex-guests who had prospered. But Laurel's trusting eyes haunted her. "Poor mite, I can't let her down!" she goaded herself.

The Summer troupe was now starting rehearsals in town, before starting out for the cow pasture, as Katie called it. The first day Laurel reported with a shudder, "I heard one man say to another, 'You can't hear her beyond the third row, but she can't be fired—her old man kicked in heavy dough!' I felt like turning my part in. I think I'll do it tomorrow!"

"Where's your spunk?" challenged Katie. "Go back there tomorrow an' speak out your lines so they ring through the rafters! Then start makin' friends with the troupe, talk at folks, make the first advances!"

"I did smile," said Laurel, "but nobody smiled back."

"Keep on till somebody does! Then latch onto that someone, let 'em see ye're a regular human, bein' like everyone else. Remember this—no human o' good will an' heart ever stays friendless long, in any outfit. Now do like I tell ye, an' soon ye'll find pals. 'Fore extra food upon thorns and leaving it there, much as a butcher hangs up his meat."

STRIP AND ENDPLAY ENDS WITH SQUEEZE

Some time ago I received a very interesting smother play hand from Irving Rosenberg of Brooklyn, N.Y. Today he sent me another unusual hand, which combines a very nice strip and endplay and then, to top it off, a little squeeze play.

Mr. Rosenberg won the opening lead of the five of clubs with the king. His next play was the ten of diamonds which West promptly covered with the jack. Dummy's king won the trick.

Rosenberg won the six of hearts in his own hand with the king and proceeded to cash dummy's other three heart tricks, discarding the dence of clubs from his own hand on the fourth heart. He won the seven of diamonds in his own hand with the ace of diamonds.

Now comes the end play. He played the eight of diamonds, forcing West to win the trick with the queen. West was now stripped of hearts and diamonds, so he was forced to return either a club or a spade. He elected to return a small spade. The seven-spot from dummy forced East to play the queen and Irving won the trick with the king. At this point he led the nine of diamonds and West was squeezed. He had to discard either a club or spade. If he discarded a spade, he took the guess out of the spade finesse, while if he discarded a club, the jack would fall on the ace, setting up a good club.

tribute to Harold S. Pye of Sherwas held today in Sherbrooke, was director of physical education at Kenogami and Arvida Protestant which members of the school

Matthews said the people of the district, especially the boys and girls, were deeply shocked by the news of Mr. Pye's death which had "brought to an end a young and promising life.""The boys and girls feel the loss so keenly because they loved him," he said. "They loved him because he was a good man.""There are three things I want to say about Harold Pye," Mr.
Matthews said. "First: He was true to his profession - - he was absolutely trustworthy. He could be trusted with any boy or girl anywhere, anytime. I can pay no higher tribute to his memory than to say this - - he could be relied upon in his dealings with the children.""Secondly, He taught the pupils to work and play as a team. The games they played and the lessons they learned under his direction were taught with this purpose in mind, that a boy and a girl must learn to play and to work with others for the sake of others rather than alone for the benefit of himself. Because of this Harold Pye raised the standard of all school sports and made a vitally important contribution to the development of the students' personality.""Lastly, I would say this. If we really desire to honour the memory of a good man we can best do so by carrying on the principles of team-work and sportsmanship which he taught - not only in school, but at home and at work.
A football team is not the only kind of team there is; a family is a team, an office staff is a team, a congregation is a team. If we remember this and all work together and help each other and give our best to whatever task we undertake and through whatever associations we may have, we shall do more to make the place in which we live a better place, and the as-richer and happier associations—we shall indeed, keep alive the spirit which guided this man whom we all admired and loved."Walter Legge ported he had been attacked by four men armed with knives, while returning home from a theatre.

After being treated, Doucet said he was again attacked by two men.
In Sherbrooke, meanwhile, Clement Croteau is free on bail of $10 after having been charged with disturbance of the peace. He is alleged to have attacked Roland Ducharme.Have you read the Want Ads

tor of the Metropolitan.

Mr. Defrere, addressing the audience between the first and second acts, stated that the troupe, which is touring Eastern Canada, was making its initial appearance in Sherbrooke as a venture, with the hope that it would receive the whole-hearted support of a musical public. He said that he was well pleased with the reception given the artists and hoped to return next year with additional presentations.
He also paid tribute to the orchestra, recruited in this province, and to Joachim Bachand, local impresario, who was responsible for bringing the Metropolitan Opera to Sherbrooke.We would like to add that, in our opinion, last night's Barber of Seville was the most artistic and most enjoyable performance seen locally in many a year, and now that the movement has been started it is to be hoped that an opera season will gradually become an annual event in this city.District Masons

This quickly brought a number of speakers to their feet to point out the omission and mention of the past was re-established.The resolution stated that the synod recognized well "that today deep ideological differences are preventing establishment of peace and raising new barriers between nations and blocks of nations".
Marxian communism and totalitar-ianism were criticized and the resolution continued: "While acknowledging in the words . . .
that communism cannot be overcome by war, our opinion is that economic, political and military organization as well is necessary to present a defensive front against it."Prof. E. A. Dale of Toronto, who drafted the motion, said that an effort was made to combat any inroads of communism was to build a country in which justice and fairness were found, even if it meant "a greater distribution of those things which lead to satisfaction in living."CARD OF THANKSWe wish to express our sincere ap-

THE CARD PARTY

At Foster Was

A Huge Success

Foster, Sept. 14.—The jumbo
"500" card party, which was held in Brome Lake Pavilion, on Tuesday evening, August 30, was a decided success, both financially and socially. The object of this card party was to raise money for a carpet for the B. C. M. Church, Foster.

Arrangements were made and carried out for the card party by a committee under Mrs. R. H. Wright and Mrs. Fred Flood.

"500" was played at thirty-seven tables and bridge at eight tables, while a few of the younger set played "Rummy."

After refreshments were served, a generous array of prizes were given out. The Rev. W. A. Bockus acted as master of ceremonies, and was ably assisted by Mr. Gaston Lapalme. In "500" the ladies' first prize, a beautiful clothes hamper, was won by Mrs. Gaylor, of Ful-ford; 2, Mrs. E. Scott, West Brome;

Mr. Owen McLaughlin, of Foster.
The net proceeds of the evening amounted to $268.40. There were five hundred tickets sold, with numerous donations, and the auction of several articles. Mr. J. Jolin, of Waterloo, and Mr. Harry Harrington, of Foster, were the winners of the cakes, the numbers being drawn by Mrs. Wright. A basket of apples, donated for auction, was bought by Mrs. Sims, and Mr.
Polecastro bought the Chesterfield cigarettes donated by Mr. Kerr.

Cash donations of $176 have also been received, making a grand total of $444.49 which will be used towards the purchase of a floor covering for the church.

Several remained after the close of the card party to take advantage of the beautiful dance floor. The "Lucky Spot Dance" prize was won by Miss Betty Nurse, of Knowlton, and Mr. John Chapman, of Iron Hill.

Those in charge deeply appreciate the generosity of Mr. and Mrs.

"An Apple A Day Keeps The Doctor Away"

This famous old saying urges us to eat apples for their health-giving properties. It probably originated in the days when fresh fruits and vegetables were not obtainable in the winter months... but the fact is, even today, that there is no more pleasant way to consume your daily ration of fresh fruit than by eating apples.

We produce the world's best apples right here in the Eastern Townships... such famous varieties as: McIntosh and Fameuse are grown in St. Hilaire, St. Paul d'Abbotsford, Rougemont, Frelighsburg, Dunham, Cowansville, Compton, etc.

Ever since the firm of Thompson & Alix was founded we have encouraged local apple growers for two reasons... we feel that the Townships need this economical, nutritious fruit and we are happy to encourage local apple producers.

MARRIAGES

MACALLISTER-McELREAVY

The marriage of Bertha Edna McElreavy, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McElreavy, of Thetford Mines, to Charles Keith MacAllister, of Lennoxville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. MacAllister, of Lennoxville, took place on Saturday afternoon, August 20, at two-thirty o'clock, in the Lennoxville United Church, the Rev. N. D. McLeod officiating. The traditional wedding marches and soft music during the service were played by Mr. T. G. Scorer. Large baskets of pink and white phlox and hydrangeas were used for decoration. The pews, reserved for the guests, were marked with small bouquets of pink and white sweet peas tied with bows of white satin ribbon.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. A. D. Kinnear, wore a street-length dress of navy blue French crepe, fashioned with a round high neckline, cap sleeves, a peplum forming a deep point at the back edged with open work and embroidery. She wore navy accessories and carried a muff of pink sweet peas, matching a small hat made of the same flowers. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. Harold Worster, her sister's matron of honor, was in a street-length frock of navy silk patterned in a multicolored design, with which she wore a natural straw hat and accessories and a corsage of red gladioli.

Mr. Ross MacAllister was best man for his brother. The ushers were Mr. Scott MacAllister, brother of the groom, and Mr. Harold Worster, brother-in-law.

Mrs. A. Kinnear, the bride's sister, was gowned in a street-length dress of printed crepe, a black flower-trimmed hat and accessories and a corsage of rose colored sweet peas.

Mrs. MacAllister, the bridegroom's mother, was in a turquoise crepe afternoon dress, a navy flower-trimmed straw hat and she wore a cerise rosebud and gladioli corsage.

The reception was held at "Rock-cliffe," Quebec Street, where the rooms were adorned with tall standards of peach and pink gladioli. The bride's table, decorated with vases of gladioli in harmonizing shades, was centered with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bouquet of rosebuds and sweet peas, flanked by pink and white tapers in silver holders.

Later the bridal couple left for a wedding trip to Niagara and through New York State, staying at various points of interest on the way. The bride travelled in a bright green gabardine suit, with a white blouse, a green hat with white flowers, a luggage tan purse and a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

The out-of-town guests were from Kinnear's Mills, Inverness, Thetford Mines, Montreal, St. Johnsbury, Vt., and Weymouth, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. MacAllister are presently residing at 15 Main Street, Lennoxville.

The booths, and the persons responsible for operating them, are as follows:

Handicrafts made by veterans at the hospital will be on display, and for sale, and all proceeds from the booth will go to the veterans in the St. Hyacinthe hospital. This booth should be a big attraction, and officials of the fair hope that it will be well patronized.

The interior of the Coliseum will be especially decorated for the night and all equipment used in connection with the fair has been

Activities Of The Legion Are Varied

With the Richmond Branch No. 15 holding their 9th Annual Street Fair on Saturday night, it is interesting to note that the work of the Canadian Legion in a municipality is most diversified and covers many phases. First there is the man or woman who suffers from honorable wounds and disabilities. They need to be kept track of and made as happy as possible with their injuries. There is the family of the man who through war injuries or from other circumstances has passed on. To help these people and to see that they are getting along all right is part of the work of the Legion. The Richmond Branch of the Legion prides themselves that they do their best to carry on this work.

The securing of pensions is the main work to be done by some person or persons of a branch of the Legion. The Richmond branch maintains a pensions adviser who is willing at all times to assist a person that is eligible for pension. In most cases it is quite difficult to establish the entitlement of a person to a pension. A representative trained in presenting a case can do much and do it more readily than an inexperienced person. To know what is required in presenting the necessary papers to the pensions board is a big thing in speeding up the granting of a pension. In most cases a number of interviews are necessary before first steps can be taken to present a case so that the wheels can be started towards securing a pension.

Veterans' allowances is another matter that can be more easily and quickly done by an experienced man. The Legion is always willing and happy in preparing the necessary papers in connection with these cases. To this end they have at all times a man who is trained in the work and who is available to help those who need such assistance. Again it is training that counts in the presentation of these cases.

The service bureau of the Provincial and Dominion Commands are of untold value to the ex-serviceman in getting his case before the proper authorities. The members of a branch of the Legion gladly give $1.00 a year to carry on this work. This is earmarked from the dues that are paid to the branch and sent on to Provincial Command. Not a member has been heard to complain about paying this amount. When a person knows the money they are paying is for a good cause there is never a complaint.

During their period of service the man who has served his country learned the full meaning of comradeship. In a majority of cases this is being carried on into civilian life. It is a good thing to cultivate and the Legion does its best to see that comradeship is cultivated. It is not alone in doing the many kindly and necessary acts that this is carried on but in the general good fellowship around Legion clubhouses. It is doubtful if one would find such good fellowship as exists in the club premises of the many different Legion branches throughout the country.

By attending the Legion Fair held by the Richmond branch of the Legion on Saturday night, the general public of Richmond and the surrounding districts can show that they are interested in the work being carried on. They will also show that they are still mindful of the services given by the members of the Legion and by their comrades. When things were darkest there were many promises made that are being forgotten. This is a good time to refresh your mind and do something for the man or woman who served you.

Since the Legion came into being there has been little or no trouble from the ex-serviceman and there won't be so long as they have good leadership. The Legion of Canada is prepared to give this leadership and will give it come good or bad weather. The ex-serviceman has weathered many a stormy sea and young and old alike are prepared to do so again. Never so happy as when serving, the Legion will look after the many, many needs of the service man but would like financial assistance from the public. They know the public will not disappoint them and that they will attend the Street Fair — in greater numbers than ever.
