

J. McAlpine's Rink Wins Fisher Bowling Trophy

Twelfth Annual Fisher Lawn Bowling Bonspiel Finds Eight District Teams Competing—A. Fawcett Skips Runners-up

The twelfth annual lawn bowling bonspiel in competition for the Martin B. Fisher Trophy, took place on Saturday, on the Huntingdon Bowling Green. Three rinks from Valleyfield, one from Ormstown and four from the Huntingdon Club participated. The greens were in good condition. During the afternoon two games were played by each team with the final game in the evening. Plus and minus scores were kept in order to determine the winners.

The trophy was won by Wilfrid Grant, Huntingdon, in 1941, and this year it went to Jack McAlpine, Valleyfield. Mr. McAlpine, in receiving the cup stated that he had participated in practically every Fisher Bonspiel but that this was the first time he had completed the day's sport with the winning of the prized trophy. Mr. McAlpine's team won all three games played with a plus score of 21 points.

Mr. Alex Fawcett, Huntingdon, skipped the runners-up team, winning two games, a tie and a plus score of 12.

Prizes were presented to the individual players on each team: Dress shirts being presented to Messrs. McAlpine, Seed, R. Caton and T. Owen; to the runners-up a pair of socks were presented each player, viz Messrs. A. Fawcett, Rev. T. Knowles, W. K. Pope and Rev. H. Lindley.

President J. Holmes announced at the supper hour that many fine prizes were in store for the winners and also a good booby prize. The team to win the booby prize was skipped by Adam L. Sellar, and it certainly earned its rating, for not only did they lose all three games, but they had a minus score of 24. Suspenders were duly presented Messrs. A. L. Sellar, Ray Ross, N. W. Sparrow and S. Smith.

At the tea hour, the ladies of the Huntingdon Club, served a supper to the bowlers in the Club Rooms of the Curling Rink, and of course was much appreciated. Words of appreciation were voiced for the wonderful co-operation being accorded by the ladies by members of the three clubs represented.

Following the supper the final game of the evening was played. The teams and their plus or minus scores were as follows: Valleyfield, J. McAlpine, skip, A. Seed, R. Caton, T. Owen, Won 3, plus 21.

H'don.: A. Fawcett, skip, Rev. T. Knowles, W. K. Pope, Rev. H. Lindley, Won 2, draw, plus score 12.

H'don.: J. J. McNeil, skip, J. Presho, S. Chambers, J. Dow, Won 2, draw, plus 10.

H'don.: W. Grant, skip, J. Holmes, D. L. Kelly, F. L. Barrett, Won 2, lost 1, plus 3.

Ormstown: L. Ross, skip, W. Pinlayson, J. Rice, S. Griffiths, Won 1, lost 2, minus 7.

H'don.: E. C. Martin, skip, J. Fox, F. G. Braithwaite, G. Holmes, Won 1, lost 2, minus 7.

Val'd.: G. Crook, skip, W. Colquhoun, P. Muir, J. McDonald, Lost 3, minus 5.

H'don.: A. L. Sellar, skip, R. Ross, N. W. Sparrow, S. Smith, Lost 3, minus 24.

Hail Damages Apple Crop at Franklin West

In the hail storm which occurred on Saturday, July 11th, the apple crops of Floyd Steens and Charles Waller of Franklin West, were severely damaged. In talking with Mr. Waller, he said that the hail did about 55 per cent damage to the apple crops, the fruit being cut and bruised. He said that before the storm a very good crop of McIntosh apples was in prospect, but the storm changed all this. Mr. Waller has his own storehouse for the fruit and there is a co-operative packing house where the fruit is packed and graded for market. Commenting on the storm further, Mr. Waller said that there was a little damage to the corn crop; the wind was very slight and so was the electrical part of the storm.

High School Boys Aiding Production

150 Help Fine Foods Firm With Canned Food For The Armed Forces

In Ste. Martine, Que., is situated one of the largest canning factories of its kind in this province and the brand of goods canned at this factory are well-known to housewives all over Canada. The brand name of the product is The Green Giant and all carry a picture of a green giant dressed in leaves. The products canned are peas, beans and corn, and we feel sure that a very large number of people have seen them on the shelves at their local grocery store.

But this story is not so much about the product as a campaign being sponsored by the producers of this fine brand of goods and known as "We'll Feed 'em". The idea behind the slogan is that of supplying the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force. Each of the employees at the canning plant at Ste. Martine wears a large celluloid badge on which is the Green Giant and the words "We'll Feed 'em". Many large posters worded in different ways are posted around the plant which are indicative of the war production job the company is doing. One circular reads "We have a War Production job to do. Not a job producing tanks, or guns, or planes. But food... food for the fighting men who fight and the men who build the fighting tools. It's the biggest job we've ever had. It's one of the biggest jobs any food producer ever had." The posters are placed on the continuous stream of trucks which are constantly bringing in the raw product to the factory for the canning process.

Mr. John Wall, president of the company is the man behind the campaign and is responsible for the plan to encourage the participation of the employees. Mr. Wall is with the Head Office Staff at Tecumseh, Ont., where a similar plan is in progress. The campaign at Ste. Martine branch is in the hands of the manager, Mr. H. L. Mathews, D.S.O., M.D., that everything possible be done to encourage the participation of army men whether in Reserve or the Active Forces.

Sports fans are already aware of the fact that the Active force already has a self-contained unit and were at war, the efforts of our citizens to defeat the enemy would be measured by:

1. The number and quality of the men who did the fighting.
2. The quantity and quality of the weapons placed in their hands.

All other efforts made by the population would be secondary.

During Army Week, the Gleaner published the names and many of the pictures of those men from our district who are in the fighting forces. The number of these men is most gratifying; the quality cannot be surpassed anywhere. Some have made the supreme sacrifice—others will be called upon to endure hardships and dangers that we cannot visualize.

Now, what of the quantity and quality of the tools of war that we are placing in the hands of our fighting men? In the main, our contribution in materials for war purposes must be measured in dollars and cents. We have, according to those who know, maintained our good reputation in supporting those organizations which directly aid our boys in the front line, such as the Red Cross and War Services Fund. We have aided Canada's War Effort in subscribing to Victory Loans and War Savings Certificates and, in so doing, have aided ourselves. But are we willing to pay in dollars and cents for an "All Out War Effort"? Are we willing to do without enough to enable such a war effort to materialize? Mr. Isley, Canada's Minister of Finance, has raised our

Tree and Power Line Blown Down in Sunday's Storm

High Wind Causes Disruption of Power Services in Huntingdon and District

Considerable damage has been reported in Huntingdon district as a result of the high wind that accompanied the electrical storm which passed through this district on Sunday afternoon. The gale which was travelling from the west to the east, caused a silo to collapse on the property of S. E. Quenneville, Trout River. Traffic was blocked for some time at the west end of Chateauguay street in Huntingdon, when the wind tore part of a large maple tree down in front of Dr. J. C. Moore's residence. At the same time a telephone pole a few feet from the tree was felled, and the broken transformer caused considerable excitement for a few minutes, while the live wires prevented pedestrians and motorists from passing that way until the wreckage was cleared away.

A large poplar tree situated near the home of Mrs. John Purcell, about two miles west of Huntingdon on the Ridge road, was blown against the house, causing some damage to the roof. There was no electricity for several hours after the storm, which was attributed to damage near St. Thomee and St. Louis de Gonzague. The main part of the storm struck Huntingdon on Sunday at 4 o'clock.

On Tuesday, the employees of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company were busily engaged in erecting a new pole to replace the one destroyed in the storm. At the same time, the damaged tree on Dr. Moore's property was being removed, as well as one on the property of Mrs. T. B. Pringle.

Further Plans For Reserve Army Unit

Committees Formed to Proceed With Organization

A further meeting regarding the forming of a Reserve Army Unit in this district, was held at the Drill Hall, Chateauguay Barracks, on Thursday evening.

There was still only a small attendance, and it was remarked that more would have been present except for the report in last week's Gleaner, which stated that three nights each week would be required for training. Apparently some of the farmers thought they could not spare this amount of time from their work and in consequence decided not to attend the meeting or to find out further particulars. However, those present decided to go ahead with plans and two committees were formed to look after organization.

Mr. W. F. Welch of Howick, was appointed to draw up suggestions as to how it was thought a unit could be best operated in this district. When these suggestions have been completed, they will be handed in to Lieut-Col. Brooks, who will forward them to M.D. 4 Headquarters for approval and for recommendation to Ottawa. In the suggestions it is likely that the amount of time to be given to training will be mentioned, and other matters taken up which will be with a view to enabling the farmer to take this training and become a member of the unit. It is not intended to interfere with the regular work, but it is the idea to have a reserve army in readiness if the emergency was to arise that such a body of men would be needed.

Another committee was formed composed of the following men: H. G. Bickford (Chairman), Cecil Stark, Gordon Perry, George Dickson, Reg. Cooper and A. R. Tinker, for the purpose of interviewing men around the district who were interested in the Reserve Army, and explaining to them the purpose of it. They are to work with Mr. Welch in drawing up suggestions regarding the training and organizing of the unit here and to make reports on what objections may be raised to joining the Reserve Army.

It is felt that the rules of the Reserve Army can be made flexible enough so as not to work a hardship on anyone who may wish to join. It was also felt that regardless of whether persons thought they could not join, that if they are interested at all, they should attend the meetings and hear and join in the discussions. In this way it was felt that many objections could be overcome and the way smoothed out.

It was felt that the number of nights' training could be adjusted so that it would be suitable to almost everyone, and a suggestion along these lines is to be made by Mr. Welch in his plan.

A number of those present saw the training as not so hard as that given to Active Service Soldiers, but more along the lines of knowing how to handle a rifle, machine gun, gas mask, knowing how to map-read, and with physical and drill training as a secondary part. They thought it would not be possible to give men in the Reserve Army the same training as men in the actual army, on account of the time devoted to it. An amount of from 40 to 60 days is required each year for the Reserve Army training, this being divided into the allotted nights per week of approximately two hours each night and the amount of time spent in camp during the summer. The camp was optional, providing the time was made up by extra nights or so many week ends could be spent in camps and the time made up this way. While none of the foregoing is absolutely authentic, it merely being opinions passed, it is thought that the training can be taken by men and see for themselves alike, without hardship to anyone.

Therefore, it was suggested, that all those interested at all, should take the time to attend the next meeting and hear and see for themselves what is intended and what can be done. The date of the next meeting will be published in the Gleaner as soon as it is known.

Two Injured When Car Burns

Roger and Gerald Nantel, brothers of Montreal, were severely burned on Sunday, about 2 a.m., when their car, a coach model, caught fire and was burned on the Cazaville side road, about 9 miles west of Huntingdon.

The boys, who were treated by Dr. F. G. McCrimmon for burns about the arms and face, stated that their car had previously left the road and had run into the ditch. The car, at that time, was only slightly damaged, however, and with the help of the six other occupants of the car, they managed to get it back onto the road. Before starting off, one of the boys saw gasoline coming from the gas tank, and lit a match to see if there was a hole in it. There was, with the result that the car was completely ruined and the two boys were sent to the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

The six friends were uninjured.

Special Sugar Rationing Provision For Threshing Time

It is recognized that a problem will confront farmers' wives this Summer and Fall in providing pies, cakes, and other sugar-containing foods, as well as sugar itself, for threshing gangs who visit the farms for a day or for several days to handle cereal crops.

Special provision has been made by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to meet this problem. The farmer's wife will know from experience approximately how many men will compose the threshing gang and how long it will remain at her farm, and, therefore, how much sugar she will require. She should apply in good time to the nearest Rationing Officer of the Board for a special purchase permit to obtain the sugar she requires for this special purpose, and she should state:

1. How many men she expects.
2. How long they will remain.
3. How many meals she expects to supply and.
4. What quantity of sugar she expects to use.

This request will be carefully scrutinized by the Rationing Officer, and, if found in order, he will issue a special purchase permit for a stated amount of sugar. This permit should be presented to the grocer or other supplier and will be his authority to sell the exact amount to the purchaser for this specific purpose.

Resignation of Ald. Laberge, Valleyfield, to be Reviewed

Valleyfield Council Greatly Concerned, Ask Ste-Cecile Representative to Reconsider Decision

Some startling developments are expected to take place at the regular session of the Valleyfield council this evening as this public body will endeavour to change Ald. Merel Laberge's decision who offered his resignation at the last meeting.

After reading the minutes of the previous meeting, Ald. Laberge informed the council that he was resigning as representative for Ste. Cecile. "My health and daily duties do not permit me to fulfill this post as it should be. Consequently, I ask this council to accept my resignation so that Ste. Cecile ward will have an active representative on the board of this council," said Mr. Laberge.

This decision caused great concern at the meeting and the council as a whole urged the Ste. Cecile representative to reconsider his decision. Ald. Laberge remarked that his ward had been neglected for so long and that urgent work had been done here only when the council seemed disposed to do it. At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Laberge stated that an official decision would be taken at the next meeting. This meeting is taking place this evening.

In a letter addressed to the council, the Salvage committee asked if the city would not place two trucks at their disposal so that salvage material could be gathered at least once a week from the religious institutions and the business men. This would not only prove a convenience to the interested parties but it would help to keep the city clean. A resolution was passed whereby the committee will be asked to pay for the truck and men as the local salvage body is remunerated for the salvage collected in Valleyfield.

The council delegated Chief Jules Vinet to attend the convention of the Police and Firemen of Quebec, which is being held this week in Quebec City.

Complaints were received and acknowledged by the council from certain property owners on Victoria street. Some damage was caused when a heavy rain storm blocked the drains on Victoria street and the water entered some business establishments and homes. An investigation will take place this week.

Tenants living in temporary homes on Victoria street were notified that the property where their homes are located is owned by the city and that the property where their homes are located is owned by the city and that the property where their homes are located is owned by the city.

Second Front Plans Progressing at Secret Conferences

London—Creation of a limited diversion on the European continent is being discussed by high British and American military, naval and air leaders, it was reliably reported today.

The conferences are silhouetted against the background of the German drive in Southern Russia and reports that the Japanese have almost completed plans to start a "second front" themselves by invading Siberia.

A highly reliable source, whose identity can not be disclosed, said the conferences are being conducted in great secrecy and will continue for some time. Well informed British sources said they were sure to have "a far reaching effect on Allied strategy in the next 18 months."

Prime Minister Churchill and his service chiefs are representing Britain. Names of the Americans can not be disclosed.

Mr. Churchill and the War Secretary and First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir James Grigg and A. V. Alexander, were received by the King tonight.

It was also learned reliably that Sir John Dill, Britain's chief military representative in the United States, is expected here shortly to report to the War Office.

All decisions of a second front are affected by events in Southern Russia. The possibility that a worsening of the Russian position might force Britain and the United States to launch a limited offensive occasioned wide speculation.

The Japanese angle was raised by a British source who said Japan's preparations for an attack on Vladivostok and the maritime province in Siberia are almost complete, and that if necessary Japan can "press Siberia."

This source, whose identity can not be disclosed, predicted the Japanese are preparing to gamble at least 500,000 men in such a drive, but added, "The Japanese will attack when it suits them, not the Germans."

SPORTS IN THE ARMY...

Competitive sport and the lessons of teamplay and co-ordination of thought and action which it teaches are a vital phase of the Canadian Army program.

A major illustration of how public attention can be directed to the fighting forces through major sports competitions, is by inter-district and inter-community sports competitions in hockey, baseball, bicycling, track events, basketball, football, swimming, soccer, or tag-of-war, horse-shoe and volleyball competitions.

It is the desire of Brig-General E. de B. Panet, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.D., that everything possible be done to encourage the participation of army men whether in Reserve or the Active Forces.

Sports fans are already aware of the fact that the Active force already has a self-contained unit and were at war, the efforts of our citizens to defeat the enemy would be measured by:

1. The number and quality of the men who did the fighting.
2. The quantity and quality of the weapons placed in their hands.

Do we want an "ALL OUT WAR EFFORT" in Chateauguay-Huntingdon

Merchants in every district will be asked to sell these stamps to their customers. Every stamp that is sold not only provides another 25c towards the purchase of a gun or tank but also provides that amount of purchasing power for the buying of goods from the merchant after the war is over. In the interest of themselves as well as their Country, the merchants all over the territory will, without doubt, co-operate to the fullest extent. As in other forms of war effort, the Women of Canada will be asked to play an increasing part.

Later, the stress will be laid upon the sale of War Savings Certificates, which are sold in multiples of $4.00 maturing in 7 1/2 years in multiples of $5.00. As income taxes become more and more a factor in our personal budgets, the fact that no income tax is payable on the interest earned through the purchase of War Savings Certificates, it is expected that many investors will purchase the maximum allowed each year per person, i.e. $600 maturity value.

It is probable the next Victory Loan will be launched some time this Fall. Before that occurs, much headway can surely be made in organizing our communities for the regular purchase of War Stamps and Certificates in order that the maximum in financing this war may be reached by this district.

In order to have an "ALL OUT WAR EFFORT" we must pay for it for a time last week. From them we learn that the first step in this continuous operation will be to bolster the sale of War Savings Stamps.

Fire Causes Much Damage

One Horse, Tools, Harness Lost in Barn Fire

On Thursday of last week, the barn belonging to Mr. Marcel Benoit, located on the island commonly known as "Ile aux Chats" was completely destroyed by fire. The flames were noticed around 10:30 p.m. and the fire spread rapidly to the call for assistance. Until early in the morning, the flames threatened to spread to the neighboring buildings.

According to reports, the fire was caused by oxygen in the new hay crease, being a marked one. The flames expanded so rapidly that all hope of saving the barn was given up, and all effort was pit forth in preventing further damage.

The building itself is a total loss; one horse was also burnt and a quantity of gardening tools and harness.

The firemen were successful in saving a hay wagon, cultivator and other farm implements. The damage is estimated at several thousand dollars, and is partly covered by insurance.

Shawinigan Earnings Higher Than Last Year

Statement of earnings and expenses of The Shawinigan Water & Power Company for the first six months of 1942 is given below, with comparative figures for the similar period of 1941. Gross revenue, $1,023,770.88, showed a marked increase, being $272,358 higher than last year, while operating expenses at $493,783.86, including amounts paid for power purchased, were $588,691 greater. With a slight increase in fixed charges, which were $1,918,112.89, there was a profit before depreciation of $55,172,874.13 as compared with $2,928,126.60 in 1941. After making provision for depreciation, amounting to $1,400,000 as against $1,000,000 in 1941, net profit, subject to income and profits taxes, amounted to $53,772,874.13 as against $1,928,126.60.

RETURNS TO CANADA

Mr. and Mrs. William Harrigan, of Huntingdon, received a telegram this week stating that their son, Bennie, recently returned from overseas and is a patient at Ste. Anne's Military Hospital, Ste. Anne de Bellevue. Bennie joined the Black Watch regiment in July 1940, and was accepted July 12th. He was born at Huntingdon on February 17th, 1920.

REMEMBERED HER MANNERS
A Belgian recently arrived in Great Britain witnessed the following scene in occupied Belgium:
A little four-year-old girl was sitting crying by her mother's side in a street car. A German officer found this opportunity for propaganda too good to miss and offered her a candy. Without looking at him, the little girl took the present before her mother could intervene, and wiping her eyes, whispered: "Thank you, you dirty Boche!"

The Reserve Army

A SHORT time ago a meeting was called at the Chateaugay Barracks for the purpose of trying to organize a unit of the Reserve Army in this district. Lieut.-Col. Brooks explained the requirements that would be expected of those who wished to join such a unit and these were published in the last issue of the Gleaner.

It would appear from discussions at the meeting in support of the Reserve Army, held on Thursday night, that some persons refrained from attending because three nights a week would be required of them, if they should decide to join the Reserve Army. The Gleaner was blamed for presenting the facts too bluntly and with dampening the ardour of some persons as a result. But the Gleaner was only presenting the facts as announced at a public meeting and which upon further enquiry, many of those attending, have substantiated. The Gleaner has no wish to spoil the chances of forming a Reserve Army Unit here, in fact it is right behind the movement and is trying to create enthusiasm in it so that the plan can become operative.

All such plans must have a foundation and fundamentals to work upon before the organization can be put into effect. Too many persons are ready to jump to conclusions without first having analysed the facts. As far as we can understand, the rules in connection with the Reserve Army are made flexible so as to meet the complicated requirements of different persons who are willing to serve providing training time can be fitted in with their own scheme of work. The report in the Gleaner was merely the outline of requirements as it was thought would be expected and nothing was certain and in any case the whole thing has to be submitted to Ottawa first before anything can be proceeded with. But beforehand, it is necessary that some organization work be done in order that something of a concrete nature can be presented to Ottawa. Therefore, the first meeting was called to set the ball rolling and the plan in motion. Names of all those interested were asked for and if a sufficient number could be obtained, a request for permission to form a unit here would be forwarded to Ottawa. Only after permission is granted, can the real plan of forming a unit be proceeded with. In the meantime all the preliminaries of organization must be gone through in order to ascertain whether or not there are sufficient numbers interested to form a unit. We believe that a Reserve Army Unit will supply the answer to the question often asked, "What Can I do to Help?" If you are interested here is an opportunity for you to do something which will help you in keeping fit, give you a knowledge of something you did not know before, and stand in good stead if an emergency arose and you were called upon for assistance. It is a war effort that anyone who is not able to do more, should be proud of. We know there are a number of men who are unable to serve in the active army of other forces, or to leave their farms or businesses in order to do war work. But, there are many of these men who would be willing to put in three or four hours each week doing a little training and be glad to do it. We therefore urge all those who are interested in this project to get out and attend the next meeting in connection with the Reserve Army. Get the facts, enter the discussions, give your own point of view, then make up your own mind as to what you want to do. Don't jump to conclusions until you have analysed the whole situation. Remember the forming of the Reserve Army is only in the preliminary stages as yet, but your support is needed if the plan is to become effective.

We know the Huntingdon-Chateaugay district does not want to lag behind in the matter of a Reserve Army unit, when other places are forming local units. Further, we are fortunate in having the facilities available in the Chateaugay Barracks, for proper training under ideal conditions, and where advice can be readily obtained. Everything fits in so that we could have a real first class Reserve Army unit here, providing a sufficient number will get behind the movement.

Farmers — An Opportunity

THIS week there has been published a fine forty-eight page catalogue in which is offered some of the finest Ayrshire cattle to be obtained, by means of an invitational sale. The book is sponsored by R. R. Ness & Sons of Burnside Farm, Howick, Que. and the sale is scheduled to take place at that point on Saturday, August 1st, 1942.

Throughout the catalogue are shown pictures of the Ayrshire cattle to be offered for sale, together with their descriptions, and some splendid specimens of the breed are to be seen. The event is known as the Burnside Invitational Ayrshire Sale. The idea is to promote general interest in the Ayrshire breed. A large number of the animals are prize winners in their class and have won high honors. The animals have been selected by the firm of R. R. Ness & Sons and are of the highest quality obtainable, not only as regards individuality, but also as regards pedigree and production backing.

Such a sale as this, should prove of a great value to the farmer who wishes to improve his herd by offering him the opportunity of buying one or more of the animals for breeding purposes. The value of good stock cannot be too important in this day and age, when quality is so much in demand. The markets of Britain are open to the farmers of this country, quality is demanded for these markets, and the produce shipped to that country must be of the highest. If we can maintain a high quality, we can retain this market and enjoy better prices in the days to come. Further to this, the sale offers many farmers an opportunity to see other cattle and make and compare notes with their neighbors. Ostensibly, the sale is held for the purpose of marketing the cattle to those farmers who wish to purchase them, but there is nothing to prevent those present taking advantage of the opportunity of making notes on the various characteristics of the animals.

Six heifers have been generously donated by prominent breeders to the Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association "British War Relief Fund". The entire proceeds from the sales of these calves will be transmitted to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth's War Relief Fund.

All-in-all a sale of this nature has many advantages for the farmer in the dairy country of Quebec, Ontario, Eastern Canada and the United States, and no doubt it will be widely attended and many a herd will be the better for some purchase or purchases made.

A Life Well Spent—Mrs. John Scott

LAST Wednesday morning a full and well spent life ended, when death came to the late Mrs. John Scott, at her residence in Montreal. The venerable lady was born in Glasgow, Scotland, on March 21st, 1855, and educated in that city and came to Canada in 1874. She was married to a young Scot from her home city and had seven children.

In her earlier life she always had her hands full with her family, but managed to help her husband with his numerous duties as Mayor, Chairman of the School Board, Ruling Elder in the church, Telegraph Operator, Station Agent and the Operator of a store. In their spare time they managed to attend the weekly prayer meeting and a meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society. The late Mrs. John Scott, previous to her marriage, was a school teacher, and her public service began with the Women's Christian Temperance Union, of which she was a life member. She was Editor of "White Ribbon Tidings," organizer of the Conservative Association of Montreal and District, honorary member of the Alliance Canadien pour le Vote des Femmes de Quebec and she took part in the delegation to the Dominion Government in support of women's suffrage.

During the last war she gave great assistance in the 1917 Conscription Election, being strongly for it and seeking solid backing for the boys at the front by the people back home in Canada. She had two sons in the last war and was responsible for forming many "Win-the-War" societies in various towns and villages.

The late Mrs. Scott was very determined, possessed of a great sense of humour and generally managed to put even the most determined type of heckler, in a good frame of mind and to make him an attentive listener. Thus her 88 years of life were spent in a full way and devoted to the public service, to the people and the country. Her campaigning on behalf of women's rights has brought forth fruit which the woman of today are enjoying. To say she will be missed, is to put it lightly, her loss will be hard to replace, but her work will stand as an everlasting monument to a life well spent.

JOHN GILMORE: Bryant came in 1830. He had his blacksmith shop where Milne's old tavern stands. Best's being where Leslie's house is. Bryant was a brother-in-law of French and came, like him, from Slab City. He was a drunken, bad man, and was taken away by the nuns when old. One day a child of his fell through a hole in the upper bridge. Her clothes spread and kept her afloat when — Mur-chison sprang in. I helped to haul a canoe down and rescued them below the bend at the churchyard, when ready to sink. It was during the time the wolves were out. One morning Wesley Palmer came to me to say he had caught a wolf in a trap in a field back of George Hunter's and wanted me to go and help carry it. He bound its feet and muzzle and slinging it on a pole carried it to his house. It feigned to be dead.

THOMAS BURROWS:—When I was a boy, it was the war sport for us to go to Palmer's house when he had caught a wolf. Losing its bonds, he would tell us to all go into the house. Watching through the windows we would see the wolf, when left alone though it had feigned to be dead, raise its head slowly and then dash away, to be brought up by the trap, which was still attached. Palmer would then let his dog out to bring it back, and afterwards kill it. One night, an American who had been at the mill, came to our door and woke up father. He said he was driving in his jumper home towards, when, being near Hyde's, a pack of wolves came in sight. Unhitching his horse, he got on it and rode back, and said the wolves followed until near to the village.

The country between Athelstan and Huntingdon was a swamp for years after I came and many thought that it could never be cleared. The wolves had their dens in it and their howling on moonlight nights in winter was blood-curdling. I have often come on spots where a pack had killed a deer, eating everything save bones and paunch. The swamp was known as Konova's and in season the young people went to pick cranberries there. Old Palmer killed wolves to get the bounty $10 for each head. He complained bitterly that Bowron was slow and sometimes did not pay him the money he got from the government for him. I think he killed none after '37 though they were to be seen in the Ireland later. When the sawmill was carried away by the flood below the dam, some saws took Smith's sign (who kept store there) and nailed it to it.

In the fall of '36, about November, there was a violent shock of an earthquake one night—apparently it travelled south.

Hazelton Moore was married to a daughter of Smith, who kept tavern at the Basin. She had one child, a boy, Hazelton Moore, who afterwards married a daughter of John Seely's. His mother was Hiram Seely's second wife.

After going there, the boats having stopped, I went by way of Ogdensburg to Malone and thence by Fort Covington to LaGuerre. It was a cold drive, for it was in November. I was landed at John MacDonald's, and on telling him who I was, he bluntly said I was not wanted. That if they could not get placed, minister of their choosing, they did not want a missionary. A Second Front

THERE is much clamour at the present time for a "Second Front" against the Germans. Every day articles are appearing in the newspapers for the establishment of a second front in Europe. Members of Parliament are asking that some action be taken in the matter, newspaper editorials are demanding that an all out action somewhere in Europe be taken. The Russians are asking that something be done to relieve the pressure on their forces and detract the Germans. Now, we notice that an organization known as the "Quebec Committee for Allied Victory," is pushing hard for the establishment of a "Second Front." This organization is planning to hold a monster demonstration in Montreal, on August 2nd. They say that the battles on the Eastern Front are the battles of Montreal and Quebec. The fate of Canada—of all civilizations—will be decided this summer. They demand action to crush Hitler this year in a two-front war.

Meantime, we are told that every effort is being made and planned toward the establishment of a second front. President Roosevelt has said that it definitely will take place. The clamour at the moment is that no time be lost, time lost on our side is time gained for the Germans, so the sponsors of immediate action claim. We are inclined to believe them. Action, and immediate action is the only thing which will bring Hitler to time. We have fought with delayed action for too long.

Your Income Tax

THE greatest conundrum of the recent Budget is the new Income Tax which has provided arguments on the streets, in the office, in the home and every other place one can think of. So far the real rock bottom answer to the question, "What will I have to pay?" has not been forthcoming. Every time it is explained, or a chart made up, it does not fit the individual concerned, and he turns away in disgust. The question is still asked, "What will I have to pay?" Apparently Mr. Isley is bombarded with complaints on his Income Tax part of the Budget and many modifications have been put into effect. Until such times as there is a real clarification of all the different changes, it is going to be hard to find the correct answer to the burning question which is being asked. One person works it all out and says I know what I have to pay, another one comes along and says you're wrong; the first gets out paper and pencil and starts refiguring, then in a rage tears up the paper and gives it all up as a bad job. So the tax remains a conundrum, and not wishing to be involved, we are going to leave it as such.

I stayed out my six months when they gave me a call and I became their first minister. I lodged with McD. After a pastorate of nine months I accepted a call to Inverness, Megantic Co. My people were from Arran, two shiploads sent by the Duke in 1829 and 1831. They had been part fishermen and part farmers and managed their lands poorly. At first they could raise wheat, but not latterly. There was only one wheeled vehicle when I went—a French cabare—in which I was driven to my appointments. They were a truly pious people, but carried their observance of Sabbath to excess—not cooking, making beds, or even drawing water from the well. They turned up the bottom of the sap-buckets on Saturday night. I was told when they came, if the fire went out, they would not go to a neighbor, for a coal until Monday, preferring to sit in the cold and to eat frozen food, to breaking the Sabbath.

New Stamp Issue Pays For Itself Three Times Over

Canada's new stamp issue, depicting various phases of the war effort, paid for itself "three times over" in the first day. Postmaster General Mullock has announced.

By July 3, a day after the new issue went on sale, philatelists and "first day" collectors had invested $25,000 in the issue. The total now stands at $40,000.

The first three stamp sheets, Colonel Mullock disclosed, were issued to the King, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

In announcing the heavy sales, Mr. Mullock said revenue from stamps sold to philatelists is "practically clear profit" because the stamps are not used on letters and the post office gives no service for them.

REPORT NORWEGIAN VILLAGE WIPED OUT

London—Reuters News Agency said last week the Soviet Information Bureau broadcast a report the Nazis have wiped out a village in Telemark province of Southern Norway and "shot all its residents, including women and children."

A spokesman here for the Norwegian Government, however, said "we have received no information that a village was wiped out in Telemark province."

Opinions of Others...

WHO WILL BUILD THIS "NEW WORLD?"

The peoples of the democracies during the past three decades have talked a good deal about internationalism. As governments, we have never achieved it. The one great attempt at such collectivism failed because its participants failed, as nations, to achieve the unselfish will to co-operate that would have been possible between the individuals of those nations.

The member countries of the League of Nations could not make up their minds about Spain or China. But a Dr. Bethune could readily enough make up his mind that there was something he could do about those countries. So there was born the Bethune Blood Transfusion Service that brought a little bit of help and ply into lands torn by bitter strife.

There wasn't much thought of internationalism before the first Great War. The Carnegie and Rockefeller and Nobel foundations were not the result of governmental planning. They sprang from the inspired thinking of private citizens who had a vision of a better world that did not stop at some geographical boundary. There is nothing novel about international conventions of social workers or educators or doctors or literary groups or Romanians. In those things, the peoples of this and other democracies showed that they could step across boundary lines, that they recognized that the world is made up of people who live and work and suffer and chieve, and not of coldly impersonal divisions on a map.

But, strangely enough, these same people who could think so broadly as individuals, seemed to lose the vision of a service that knew no boundaries when they combined as governments. Trade and politics and economics they set aside as something different from these broad humanities. These were ideas that couldn't be shared without the possibility of some disadvantageous happening.

But there is a new spirit in the world today. It is the spirit of people who want a better social order, not for themselves alone but for every one. It is presented in the words of the American Ambassador John G. Winant as he challenges Britons and the world to implement the ideals and the dreams of the new order that is our enduring hope.

"When the war is done," says Mr. Winant, "the drive for tanks must become a drive for houses. The drive for food to prevent the enemy from starting us must become a drive for food to satisfy the needs of all the peoples of all countries. The drive for physical fitness in the forces must become a drive for bringing death and sickness rates in the whole population down to the lowest possible level."

WEEK IN OTTAWA

Parliament which is swinging round the curve towards adjournment at the end of the week has still heavy ground before it. Estimates of departments as well as final stages of the budget and the now renowned bill 80 on manpower mobilization have still to be passed at the time of writing. With morning sittings, however, parliament, working under full draft, will get through a great deal of work. The session has already run a full six months and adjournment will be welcomed. There is little light heartedness discernible in the proceedings of parliament these days. It would of course be strange if it were otherwise. With the anxieties of the war hanging like a cloud above the members no one is inclined to labor any inconsequential point in debate. It needs no particular stretch of the imagination to hear in the house of commons at Ottawa the echo of the distant rattle and thunder of the guns along the Don river and in the Egyptian desert. Certainly these sounds, with all that they imply, are in the ears of the members and are potent forces in debate eliminating trivialities and holding members to the main issues of the hour.

In the minds also of the members are war events which are geographically nearer home. On Thursday of last week there was a debate of two hours on a motion by J. S. Roy, member for Gaspé, that there should be a secret session to discuss recent sinkings in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. He was supported by R. B. Hanson, Conservative leader and M. J. Coldwell, head of the C.C.F. party and others. The Prime Minister pointed out that there have been a great many ships lost off Nova Scotia. It would be surprising if the war didn't bring other acts of war both east and west. He intimated that a sense of proportion would prevent the government calling a secret session whenever a boat was lost. He urged members who are in possession of any information about incidents on the coasts to give the information to the minister of naval services. If Mr. Roy and Mr. Hanson had information, would they kindly tell the minister? Then the government would decide whether a secret session was warranted. In relation to giving out information in the open house Canada has a similar policy to that followed in Britain. Announcements of sinkings are withheld so that useful information may not be given the enemy. The United States has a different policy. It publishes sinkings as they occur. Before parliament adjourns a discussion will be held on the Hong Kong report. Censorship prevents (Continued on page 6) it's really not hard to explain...

IN one respect, a Telephone System is like an iceberg—ninety per cent of it is unseen. Your telephone instrument is just one small part of an intricate mechanism of wires, cables, relays and central switching apparatus.

This unseen equipment may already be taxed to capacity in the service of existing subscribers in the area to which you have moved. And because the war has created a serious shortage of the materials used in telephone equipment, we are committed to the policy of increasing present civilian facilities only in cases of urgent need.

That is why it may be impossible to give you a telephone, even when an instrument is already in place. We realize that this wartime measure will work some hardships. But we also hope that it will lead to a neighborly sharing of telephone service in emergencies. We suggest too, that you make note of the public telephone near you—perhaps at the corner drug store—for use in case of need.

WARTIME TELEPHONE TACTICS

- BE SURE you have the right number, consult the directory.
- SPEAK DISTINCTLY, directly into the microphone.
- ANSWER PROMPTLY, dial the bell rings.
- BE BRIEF. Clear your line for the next call.
- USE OFF-PEAK hours for Long Distance calls: before 9:30 a.m., 12 p.m., 5:30 p.m. after 9 p.m.

These things may look trifling, but on 6,500,000 daily telephone calls, they are very important.

Porch Party Surprises

This is a "Porch Party" year. You have probably sensed it already. With gas limited and thousands of cars jacked up for the duration, time has passed in its flight and the wait for the grandmothers' youth when porch parties, lawn luncheons and plain sociable get-togethers of friends and neighbors were the order of the day. "We can't ride far, so we'll get acquainted with our neighbors" is again a popular slogan.

Make your porch luncheons so delightful that your new friends won't want to leave our modern "horse and buggy" days. Here are a few recipes for dishes that will aid you materially.

Porch Party Cofolate

- 1 cup strong decaffeinated coffee
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 3 tsp. sugar
- Dash of salt
- 3 cups milk

Make decaffeinated coffee extra-strong using 1 1/2 tsp. for each cup (1/2 pint) water. Add chocolate to coffee in top of double boiler and place over low flame, stirring until chocolate is melted and blended. Add sugar and salt, and boil 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Place over boiling water. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly, then heat. When hot, beat with rotary egg beater until frothy. Serve hot or chill and serve iced. Top with whipped cream, if desired. Serves 4. Your guests can drink second cups without worrying over sleeping problems.

Magic Fresh Fruit

- 1-3 cups (15 oz. can) sweetened condensed milk
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1 cup quartered cherries, whole raspberries or sliced strawberries
- 24 vanilla wafers.

Blend sweetened condensed milk and lemon juice. Stir until mixture thickens. Add prepared fruit. Line narrow, oblong pan or spring form cake pan with wax paper. Cover with fruit mixture. Add layer of wafers, alternating in this way until fruit mixture is used; finishing with layer of wafers. Chill in refrigerator 6 hours or longer. Turn out on small platter and carefully remove wax paper. Even beginner cooks can be sure of success because the recipe is magically failure proof.

Ice Cream Sandwich with Peaches
Use eight 1 1/2 inch wedges of sponge cake, allowing two for each serving. Place a slice of brick vanilla ice cream on the wedge and cover with the second, turning so that the narrow end is above wide end of bottom cake wedge. Top with quick-frozen sliced peaches, just thawed, using 1 box serves 4. Quick-frozen peaches come to you all sliced and sweetened, so they are sugar savers. They're time savers, too, for all quick-frozen fruits and vegetables are sorted, cleaned and trimmed before quick-freezing, so in their full complement of vitamins and minerals.

not vex some mothers, but in most homes it is a constant source of worry.

The children actually need certain foods—milk, potatoes, greens and meats. But George despises potatoes, Grace ignores spinach, Gertrude has no particular use for meat—and they all refuse to drink that most important food, milk.

Mothers cannot afford to take the easy way out and serve dishes the children desire, unless they know how to make those desired dishes, required dishes as well. Really, this can very often be accomplished. Even though children refuse to drink milk, they will never refuse ice cream, or rennet-custards—both filled with rich milk. Rennet-custards are ideal for luncheon, dinner or before-bed snacks. They are easy to prepare, economical and healthful. Try the following as answers to your diet problems:

- Marshmallow Maple Rennet-Custard
1 pkg. maple rennet powder

- 1 pint milk, not canned
- 5 marshmallows, dried
- Dissolve marshmallows in 1 cup hot milk. Then add 1 cup cold milk and warm slowly, stirring constantly. Test a drop on the inside of wrist frequently. When comfortably warm, (110 deg. F.) not hot, proceed according to directions on package. Chill, then serve.
- Lemon Grape-Nut Rennet-Custard
1 rennet tablet
1 tsp. cold water
1 pint milk, not canned
4 tsp. Grape-Nuts
3 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. lemon flavoring
4 tsp. raisins
Few drops yellow food color

Mix Grape-Nuts and raisins. Divide among dessert glasses. Make rennet-custard according to directions in package. Pour over Grape-Nuts. Chill. When ready to serve, sprinkle with Grape-Nuts. This recipe may also be used with any kind of crisp cookie or graham cracker instead of Grape-Nuts. The raisins may be omitted for variety.

THE "SALS" ARE ON THE JOB

Doing her share in producing the tools of war is this attractive girl employee of Small Arms Limited, the government-owned company at Long Branch, near Toronto. The "SAL" on her smart overalls is the insignia of the company (not her name), worn proudly by hundreds of young women who are turning out quantities of Lee-Enfield rifles and sub-machine guns for their fathers, brothers and sweethearts in the armed forces. This girl is operating a milling machine on a Lee-Enfield rifle. The management of this plant has appealed for many more "SALS" to meet augmented production schedules. So if you're looking for a way to join the march to victory, girls, here's your chance.

HEALTH NOTES ...

A warning against too much sun bathing is given by Dr. Norman Wrong, in an article in "Health Magazine," organ of the Health League of Canada. Dr. Wrong, demonstrator in dermatology, University of Toronto, discusses facts and fallacies about the skin.

The chief function of the skin is to protect and cover, but "Equally important, however, are its functions of heat regulation, of elimination of sweat and of acquainting us with our surroundings through its sensory nerves," he declares.

"The skin is admirably suited to resist harmful physical agents such as heat, cold, drying, wetting, abrasives and minor violence." Dr. Wrong points out, "If this were not so, humans could not live in the tropics, the arctic, on the desert and in the water. Fats and oils can be applied to the skin and will lubricate and soften, but are not absorbed.

The skin can not be nourished or "fed" by rubbing in a cream any more than a piece of leather can be "fed" by oiling it. Vitamins added to skin creams are practically useless in their effect."

Our skin resists chemicals extremely well, according to Dr. Wrong, with the exception of such rare chemicals as mustard gas. It also resists remarkably well the invasion of most bacteria encountered. Pimples and boils are purely local skin infections, he declares.

It is dangerous to have too much sun, although "our skin offers fair protection against the ultraviolet rays of the sun. Tanning is an effort on the part of our skin to protect us further and, of course, the negro has the most protection of all against the sun's rays. Sun bathing, in moderation, is very healthful and undoubtedly increases our resistance to infection, and is a sure prevention of rickets. However, the vogue for sun-bathing is undoubtedly as harmful as moderate sun-bathing is healthful. Severe sunburn can make a person as ill as a heat burn, and sunstroke is not uncommon here."

"In Australia," Dr. Wrong states, "where sun bathing is almost a religion, the amount of skin cancer is greater than anywhere else in the world." He concludes: "Fair people must use discretion and moderation in their sun-bathing."

Powerscourt

The Women's Association met at the home of Mrs. John Wood on Wednesday afternoon. The ladies spent the work period sewing on quilt blocks, after which the president took charge of the business and devotional exercises. At the close of the afternoon refreshments were served.

Mrs. and Mrs. Darwin Stata, of Huntingdon, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Wood on Saturday.

HOME SWEET HOME

Visitors to French Canada are always impressed with the gallic habit of vivacity at table. Mealtimes should be happy times when the family sits down in amiable sociability. Eupetite is the word for it—and worth a trip to the dictionary. At mealtimes, don't worry about unpaid bills, scold the children, or gnaw at bones of contention. All the vitamins in the world won't help you or your children if the occasion is so unhappy as to impair digestion. Warm up that gloomy, cold-potato atmosphere.

Don't spoil mealtimes by forcing children to eat. If a child is seriously underweight there is likely enough an organic cause and it is wiser to consult your physician. Perhaps he's too excited with life to feel like settling down to a meal; after all, life is pretty exciting to youngsters whose serial currents have not been frozen by the anfractuosity of life! Or the child may be a bit upset or too tired. Let him alone; scolding or nagging won't help and may make him so resentful that he may go on a partial hunger strike.

Spiking the Appetite
Appetites are sure to decline if you serve the same dishes over and over again. It's too easy to fall into the habit of always serving the identical combination of dishes—such as cold slaw with stew or pan potatoes with a roast. For a change accompany stew with a green salad with a favourite dressing. Or with a roast, a gratin potatoes or baked onions that have been glazed with a little honey to give them eye appeal.

Conditioned reflexes make our mouths water when we smell the robust aroma of sausage in the skillet, while the word protein leaves us cold. The advice to eat one leafy green vegetable and one citrus fruit every day does not put this way: Think of the leafy green vegetable as tender, fresh broccoli sprinkled with grated cheese. Sounds better, doesn't it? And for citrus fruit imagine a salad of orange and grapefruit sections with some of our local fruits in season, served with a dash of a tart French dressing. Think of sausage in dressings in due proportion to the bulkier part of a meal, remembering what George Meredith had his bright young hero say:—

"The woman who has mastered sauces is sitting on the very apex of civilization."
If you have not already done so, the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, invites you to visit a free vitamin chair which may be found in the kitchen as an aid to navigation on the course of health.

DAHIA'S WHATNOTS
And gravies—homely dishes like Swiss steak earn the plaudits of gourmets with addition to the merest soupcon of vinegar and a conservative dash of mustard.

One difference between Mr. Chalout and Mark Twain is that when Mark Twain is thoughtful, and when Mr. Chalout is supposed to be thinking seriously he is provocative of mirth. Take the latter's statement that if the people of Canada had understood the significance of the Plebiscite more would have voted "No." This is tantamount to saying that the intelligence of the people of the other provinces is inferior to that of the inhabitants of Quebec. One has to be a little bit of a humorist to understand Mr. Chalout himself? Does he mean that compulsory education has stultified the mentality of other Canadians, or that he understands without compulsory education, we have so much native intelligence here in Quebec that we surpass all our fellow-Canadians in our grasp of public affairs.

Hands were raised in holy horror over conditions in Russia before the war. But whether we relish the pill or not the truth is that greater progress has been made in education in that country in a few years than has taken place in Quebec in many centuries. This applies especially to educational advancement among the masses of the population.

Before the war travellers delivered lectures depicting conditions in Russia as extremely shocking, but since she has been fighting our enemies it has been discovered that her people are admirable, with an intense patriotism which might well be emulated by her critics, and instilled into young minds by their instructors.

The doctor in city slum or rural district needs more to be a humanitarian than the one who treats wealthier class. To attend farm folk acceptably he will be all the better to have been raised on a farm, as have been so many clever doctors, such as Hington Moore, etc. In any case he will never be "the beloved physician" as long as his fee is of more importance to him than his patient. An interesting feature of a recent radio serial was an argument between two doctors, one of whom strove to convince his old friend, now his chief-of-staff that in order to get best results even a surgeon required to make a sympathetic study of his patient's personality.

My heart ached the other day when I learned how a little boy had lost the sight of one eye. But, as people will, my thoughts went in quest of possible compensation and I remembered the case of a man similarly afflicted. He has the physical compensation of being able to see further than any one else around him. Figuratively speaking, he can see hundreds of dollars and scores of years further than most people. From this aspect he has been a "Seeing Eye" for folk with duller vision. Who knows but what the little boy may some day point out the stars to fellow-travellers whose tear-dimmed eyes cannot pierce the gloom?

Ever since Eve was made from one, the rib has caused frequent trouble, whether due to the ways and wiles of womanhood or to breakage. I know of four cases of broken ribs occurring recently in a limited area. Surely our very bones are not being influenced by that mass psychology

MRS. CARDINAL HAD HER WAY
(A. Leonard Butts)

When a cardinal decided to build his nest in a cedar tree at the side of our front porch, it conflicted with certain plans which we had made. It was time for the usual spring arrangement of our porch furniture, and also we wanted to clean and wax the floor.

I watched that cardinal with keen interest as it pulled tiny brown twigs from around the bottom of the cedar and placed them skillfully in forks of the tree. A very neat, partly lined with small scraps of paper, was soon constructed.

So the question to be decided was whether to proceed with our work on the porch, and endeavour to dislodge the cardinal as little as possible, or wait until the creature had finished with its nest. Then I remembered a previous spring when a cardinal had built its nest at one end of the porch in a rosebush. Apparently discovered that its location was not private enough, the nest was never used. Perhaps the same thing would happen in this case; thus, we decided to wait.

Dust accumulated on the porch floor, but it remained unused. In due time three tiny bundles of baby cardinals nestled in their cradle of twigs and leaves. Indeed the close-up glimpses of the family routine of those cardinals was compensation in abundance for our delay.

Frequently I placed sunflower seed near the edge of the porch floor only several feet from the nest. At such times it was quite interesting to watch the mother bird crack the seed and make numerous trips to and from the nest.

I observed that the male cardinal was quite helpful too. On one occasion he flew to a branch of an elm, holding a tender looking green worm in his bill. As though pre-arranged, the female flew to the branch and took that little worm in her bill and returned to her nest.

There is a vacant nest now in that useful cedar, and we are a bit sorry that our enjoyment was so brief. But, according to nature, these little cardinals are now thinking about with the guidance and protection of their parents. Yes, we are glad that we had some little part in making that fact possible.

I wonder if, in the exuberance of his glee, M. T. never strayed from the path of the literal in recounting his own adventures. Scientist's message "Innocents Abroad" i.e. snatches of it. Many readers would denounce him as a cynical unbeliever when he declares that he was shown part of the Crown of Thorns in an Italian cathedral after having viewed the whole in Notre Dame, Paris. But, on the other hand he expresses profoundest admiration for members of the Catholic priesthood who sacrificed their lives relieving victims of cholera epidemic in an Italian city. He describes the deplorable condition of the poor living in the shadow of magnificent edifices—not in Russia, in Italy and elsewhere. He draws a tragic picture of Pompeii and the centurion perishing at his post. M. T.'s humor bubbles over once more with the remark, "A policeman would have stayed, too, for he would have been asleep."

PIANO STUCK BETWEEN FLOORS
Seattle—Husky Tom Fleming, lumber worker, was heaving a piano up the stairs of an apartment house. It stuck between the second and third floors, and he couldn't budge it. Worn out, Fleming called three moving companies. None would touch the piano. Today it rested in the middle of the stairway. Fleming set out to join the army.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Howick, P.Q., July 21, 1942 The Editor, Huntingdon Gleaner, Dear Sir:

In the "Star" of Monday night, July 20th, 1942, there was an advertisement taking almost a full page which stated "We've got the Guns. We've got the Guns. Now's the time to open a Second Front". It spoke about a Mass Meeting to be held on Fletcher's Field and urged "the people to get in touch with a Second Front Headquarters to receive pamphlets, stickers, posters, etc., in effect all the various "aids" used in an election or a "drive" to build up a "public response".

This "campaign" is, to my mind a very dangerous one as well as being essentially foolish. Dangerous because it is designed to foster "mob action" and foolish because it seeks to get the general public to demand something about which they know very little.

Suppose it works? We all demand a Second Front, the powers that be, give in to the popular demand and create a Second Front for which, possibly, we may not be prepared. What? Men! Another Dunkirk?—perhaps disaster.

Now is a splendid time to open a Second Front in Western Europe, possibly more opportune now than we shall ever have again. Perhaps we have the guts and the guns but have we the tanks, the aeroplanes, the ships, etc., etc., perhaps we have "know-how"? Must we "Peep" into an emotional frenzy?—or our military leaders?

I like to kid myself that I have some military knowledge and experience, for over forty years I have made some study of the subject and I believe I have a very fair idea of just what is involved in the opening of a Second Front in Ottawa for the summer.

I have previously stated, even in the pages of this newspaper, what I consider as being essential for an attack in Western Europe and those essentials boil down to a "definite superiority in men and material".

Wartime Courses Given Woodsmen

Methods Studied to Improve Production in Pulp and Paper Industry

Mont Laurier, Que.—At Venne Depot fifty miles northwest of here, an unusual wartime course of instruction has just been given. Picked woodsmen from the leading pulp and paper companies of the Dominion have been studying to see how more pulpwood can be cut with the existing manpower available for woods operations, how waste effort can be eliminated and how greater economy can be effected in the use of equipment and materials.

The course was a combination of practical demonstrations of improved methods and informal discussions of points which had to be ironed out. Classes and field work on cutting technique were held together with demonstrations of tool fitting and care of equipment.

There was also a competition in buckaw filing among the sixty odd delegates. The final session was devoted to the care of horses and harness, a course which has particular significance now, in view of gasoline and equipment restrictions.

It Was a Dark and Stormy Night!

"We had heard several motorcycles going along the road at different intervals, so after a short confab it was decided that Bill and I would take the motorcycle, place it in our gear, and we arranged a place to meet with Jack later on. Just as we stepped out of the field into the road a motorcycle went by carrying two German soldiers, and one of them waved to us as they went by. Presumably we looked enough like Hunns not to arouse suspicion. It was lucky that we had seen this one go by because while two men were on the same machine, they were sitting back to back. If we had not seen them Bill and I would have travelled both facing in the same direction. Of course travelling back to back has its advantages, you can see up and down the road at the same time.

"The moon was by now going down, and it was getting quite a lot darker, and after traveling for about four or five miles we ran over a bridge across a railroad. The surrounding ground was flat, so the road climbed up to the bridge elevation and then descended on the other side. As we went down on the far side Bill saw the road ahead was clear, and I did not see any traffic behind me, so we stopped and climbed down into the road and brought the bike with us.

"This seemed a good place to stop and discuss where we were and what we should do. Not a glimmer of light shone anywhere at first, but a close scrutiny from the level of the road on the top of the bridge did show lights off in one direction, in fact after a while we could see an appreciable number of lights. 'Oh, oh,' said Bill, 'I guess that's our ghost town of these now. Just where is our real town?'

"We did not want to stay here too long. When the two Hunns we had accounted for did not report at their headquarters, undoubtedly their non-showing up would be investigated, and the Hun is quite an investigator when he starts to investigate.

"By now the moon had almost entirely disappeared and we could easily see the stars and so picked up our bearings. The railroad had four tracks, so was an important link with some place, and as it was running almost due West and East, either should take us to or from the place we had been detailed to visit, according to which way we walked. We, of course, knew where we would have been in relation to our objective had we landed in the field originally planned. We also had a general idea of its relation to the field in which we did land, but we did not know for sure in just what direction our motor trip along the road had taken us, so we decided Bill would walk the track in one direction and I in the other until we had struck an enlargement of the tracks evidently leading to a "goods yard" (freight yard to Canadians), and which undoubtedly was on the outskirts of our town, but so perfect a blackout had they that by now nothing could be seen, the moon having entirely gone.

"As it soon would become light again, it now being near morning, we looked around for a safe place to hide away for the day. After some search we found an old junk pile. It seemed to be a good place, and so we made for ourselves a hide-out in the junk pile which was right in full view of anyone who might come along. We also hid the bike.

"We did not spend a pleasant day. We took turns in trying to get some sleep, and once during my tour on watch I got a real fright. I heard the sound of a truck moving around, and heard somebody say, 'pick up some of this old stuff from here.' Gosh, if they should uncover our hiding place!

"However, the place indicated apparently was at the end of the junk pile, and we were left undisturbed, and eventually it grew cold and dark, and a nasty cold rain began to fall, and there I finally developed just the sort of night we really like, dark and dry.

make a long story short, we had to place a certain piece of equipment about the size of a 303 cartridge in various localities which would give off a light visible to a man from the air. They were a sort of flashlight, but worked by a very nicely adjusted piece of mechanism by which the flashlight would come on at the time for which it had been set. It was not a time bomb, but a flashlight with a time fuse, and whose light would, it was hoped, be really a very potent bomb. We had three colours in our lights, and we placed them red, white and blue. When I arrived back at our junk pile Bill was already there, and so was Jack, a little the worse for wear, but still in pretty good fettle.

"It was by now such a dirty night that we figured very few people would be on the road. Anyway on our little trip placing our coloured lights very little hiding had to be done, considering we were encircling a town and certain buildings in a town, so we decided to take a chance and use the motorcycle to take us to where we were to meet up with the plane. No Mister, it was not the same place as we landed. We take no chances like that. Anyway, we arrived at our field without any untoward circumstances, only once did we run into possible danger, and that was when a motor car passed us going at some speed. Lucky, we were keeping to the side of the road. Probably they didn't even see us. We marked the field with certain coloured lights, and then waited. We had to wait quite a while, at least it seemed quite a while, and then we heard some planes and finally were picked up and landed on our own particular air field.

"Well, good-night Mister." Yes, our Air Force have been getting in some good cracks at the Hun these last few weeks, and there'll be more and bigger. Just about a month ago they staged a big one, and it was quite a success. That time they did not hit any Ghost Town. No Sir, they sure hit their target that night. Yes, it was the same night we got out of Germany. 'Where were we in Germany?' I can't tell you that. It's a military secret, but if you have a real good imagination I can't stop you from thinking.

Good-night.

The regulation forbidding retailers to deliver any goods under one dollar, except fresh meat and fish, still holds good, Mr. McPhillips added.

GARDEN for VICTORY

Grow Vitamins at Your Kitchen Door

BABY SQUASH DELICIOUS AND RICH IN VITAMINS

In the Bowl Are Table Queen, or Des Moines Squash; and Yellow Straightneck. On the Table Are Blue Hubbard and Zucchini.

Squash occupies a new position in the list of summer foods since it was discovered that it is most delicious in its baby stage. Any summer squash or marrow can be picked when it is a week old or less, and boiled briefly in its skin with others like it, to make a dish that has few rivals. The "Squash" is an American Indian word and most of the varieties which we now grow are descended almost directly from those used by the Indians before the white men came. It is so closely related to the pumpkin that many of the varieties we know as pumpkins are, botanically, squash, and many so-called squashes are pumpkins, if one wishes to be meticulous.

Those that have yellow or orange flesh are rich in vitamins. The different varieties of squash differ in shape more than in any other way. There are two general classes, one usually called summer squash, which are eaten when the rind is soft; the other winter squash, which are allowed to mature with hard rinds, and which keep quite well into the winter.

With the first group the amateur should classify the marrows, including the Italian cocozelle, all of which grow in bush form. They may be eaten either in the early stage, or allowed to mature, as you choose. But early use may be recommended. The fruits, shaped like slender cucumbers, are delicious in the baby stage, two to six inches long. A little larger, they may be sliced and fried like eggplant. In the mature stage, when they reach several pounds in weight, they are usually baked.

The winter squashes include a group which can be baked, and are as sweet as melons. Among them are Des Moines or Table Queen, which is said to have been grown by the Indians; Buttercup, Sweet Potato, and others, each of which has its advocates as the sweetest of all.

At the Movies ...

TRACY AND HEPBURN TOGETHER AT LAST!

Appearing in roles especially written for them, Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn co-star in "Woman of the Year," which opens Sunday and Monday, July 26 and 27, at the O'Connor Theatre, Huntingdon.

This is their first co-starring picture, and Miss Hepburn's initial film since "The Philadelphia Story." Tracy appears as a hardboiled New York sports writer and Miss Hepburn is a sophisticated international columnist on the staff of the same daily. The story was written by Ring Lardner, Jr. and Michael Kanin, met the favor of Miss Hepburn, and was purchased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who produced "The Philadelphia Story."

The romance is played against humorous backgrounds. Until she meets Tracy in the picture, Miss Hepburn has never seen a baseball game or a football match. In his turn, Tracy has never traveled with the sparkling international set until he meets the columnist. But they have one thing in common—love—and are married.

When she is chosen as the most important woman of the year, Miss Hepburn concentrates on her career at the expense of home and husband. It requires some hard knocks and the Tracy technique to establish an ideally happy marriage.

George Stevens, who directed Miss Hepburn in "Alice Adams," had the guiding hand in the new picture. Fay Bainter, Reginald Owen, Minor Watson, William Bendix, Gladys Blake, Dan Tobin, Roscoe Karns and William Tannen complete the cast. Joseph L. Mankiewicz produced.

Huntingdon Town Council

At an adjourned meeting of the Huntingdon Town Council, on Monday evening, a number of bills were presented and ordered paid. An invoice from Francis Hankin and Co. was ordered paid with the exception of $82 for water troughs, which were used at the Filter Plant.

A letter was read from Major Sewell regarding the signing of an agreement for water being supplied by the Town to Chateaugay Barracks, for the swimming pool. It was decided that an amendment would be made before the agreement was signed.

The secretary-treasurer was authorized to purchase five water meters which will be installed in various sites of the Town.

A cheque was received from the Huntingdon Board of Trade for $175, which will be used towards the erecting of the bandstand in the park. It was decided that the stand would be painted a dark green color.

It was decided that Alderman James E. Barry, Chairman of the Poor, be authorized to allow a certain sum of money, in the form of a credit card for groceries, to be given to a family on Lake street until such time as the aid was no longer required.

It was voted by one Alderman that the heavy, black smoke issuing from the smoke stack of Fry-Cadbury, Ltd., on York street, was very trying to the residents of that neighbourhood. It was decided that the said concern would be advised to alleviate this annoyance. It was pointed out that the smoke stack on the building had been raised a few feet some time ago, but, as yet, had not remedied the situation.

A request from A. L. Sellar to build a sidewalk near his newly acquired property at the corner of Bouchette and Hunter streets was turned down as there were already too many requests of the same nature, and the Council did not see its way clear to comply with these requests at the present time.

WEEK AT OTTAWA

The publication in newspapers of the letter written by Col. George Drew to the government when the charges against him under the Defence of Canada Regulations were withdrawn. The letter in advice of counsel was not tabled in the commons. The point that arises is: to what extent can members of parliament use the contents of the letter in discussions in the House? The inquiry on Hong Kong was held in camera. Certain evidence was withheld from publication, including documents from the British government. This secret evidence will not be available to members. There are sure to be some sharp exchanges in the house if, as Mr. Coldwell suggests, he will use the Drew letter as the basis of his speech on the Hong Kong report. Government spokesmen have taken the stand that the sharp criticisms of the report are criticisms of the Chief Justice of Canada, Sir Lyman Duff, who was commissioner in the inquiry while opposition members claim it is criticism of the commissioner not of the chief justice and point to attacks that have been made in the British house on reports of commissions held by judges of high standing.

A number of members during discussions on changes in excise taxes in the budget referred to the alarming increase in the country's liquor bill. Mr. Isley stated the liquor question was a matter for the provinces under the constitution and that higher duties would bring greater illicit traffic. Mr. Hanson, Mrs. Casselman, Mr. Coldwell and others showed concern over the expansion of liquor consumption, now reaching a total of $250,000,000 annually.

During the debate on the budget, G. G. McGeer, liberal member for Vancouver, and Arthur Slaght, Liberal from Parry Sound, give interesting and adverse views on monetary reform which did not entirely accord with the opinions of the minister of finance. Mr. Slaght believed that the country could turn out $1,200,000,000 of new money, while still maintaining the price ceiling. Mr. Isley answered that the issue of that amount of money would "blow the price ceiling to kingdom come." Mr. McGeer told the house that a number of monetary reforms which had been considered "dangerous innovations" seven or eight years ago were now accepted as part of the national economy. Among these were the creation of a publicly-owned national central bank and the removal of the gold reserve limitation on the issue of paper currency. Mr. McGeer said that while realizing the danger of inflation he believed controls in operation would prevent inflation if the government made some use of currency issues of aid in financing the war.

*It was later decided to hold a secret session on Saturday, July 18.

Opinions of Others...

And Cardinal Villeneuve of Quebec, in a pastoral letter, is saying to his people, "We must keep in mind that victory over our enemies will be useless unless, afterwards, we establish a more just and equitable social order in which human rights will be more completely respected, and wealth more fairly distributed."

These ringing words are but the voicing of a spirit that is moving in the hearts of great multitudes of people in many different lands. It springs from a new warm feeling of comradeship that is born of tragic happenings and great obligations shared. It is fostered by the urgent necessities of the moment. It is touching even governments. There is an organization known as the Combined Production and Resources Board. On this board, in a sort of dual chairmanship, is Captain Lyttelton, an Englishman, and Donald Nelson, an American. Canada is still more closely allied with its great neighbor.

We have our Permanent Joint Board of Defense, our Joint War Production Committee, our Materials Co-ordinating Committee, our Joint Economic Committee. A half dozen years ago such arrangements would have been in- conceivable. Surely these unique developments may have their profound repercussions in a united effort to seek that better world of which we talk so glibly. It has been the grim necessity of a war for survival that has brought us so closely together in these days. But necessities do not last forever. It may be that when these of the moment have passed, governments will return to their old way of thinking, and groups within the community will begin acting again in the shortsighted terms of their own narrow interests.

Our hope is in the people, that they who have always gone further in their individual thinking than the corporate thinking of their leaders will maintain that leadership. It is the people's new world. It is they who can create from disaster a better way of life.—Joseph Lister Rutledge, "Liberty Magazine."

ACTUALLY it was the light that failed rather than Bobby, for it was poor lighting that caused Bobby's failure at school. He never knew his homework the next day.

Eye strain and knitted brows do not go hand in hand with a ready assimilation of knowledge. Through sight, authorities state, we acquire eighty-seven per cent of all of our learning. To function easily, quickly and clearly, the eyes must have correct light.

WHERE YOUR SALVAGE GOES

Broken glass rates with unbroken bottles for salvage. There is consolation in this minor domestic tragedy. The housewife places the sad wreckage in a separate container for the collector. Her broken plate can be reclaimed for war use.

Millions of old bottles are needed to meet Canada's glass shortage. Collected by salvage committees, they are sorted into thousands of types at central clearing depots. These medicine bottles will go to the army after being sterilized.

Salvaged glass is nearly 100 per cent reclaimable. Here a workman shovels salvaged glass that has been ground into powder. Melted to a white heat in a roaring furnace, it will go to ingenious machines that mould it into useful articles.

For the armed services many types of necessary equipment are made from salvaged glass. Here are some examples from one glass company—battery jars, water bottles, lamp shades, tableware, lantern globes, corvette port lights.

Support of Wife and Children 36 Cents Each a Day

Basis of New Income Tax Provisions Would Show Wife Support—$180. a Year

On the basis of new income tax provisions a married man is expected to support his wife and children for 36 cents each a day, Arthur Slaght (Lib. Parry Sound) said in the House of Commons.

He reviewed exemptions allowed for married men under budget proposals. A married man receiving $3,000 a year would pay $884 in income tax while a single man with the same income would pay $1,064.

That means the married man is expected to support his wife for a year for $180, said Mr. Slaght. "I thought we desired to encourage marriage and have a vigorous growing nation. Under this taxation it becomes expensive for a man to marry."

A married man receiving $3,000 annually and who had two children had a tax exemption $396 greater than that of the single man. "That means he has 36 cents a day to maintain each one of them," said Mr. Slaght.

He favored increasing the amount required by the army by $4,500,000 so that the minimum pay of men in the forces could be raised to $50 monthly.

Troop Movements Secret Railways Inform Public

No information regarding movements of troop trains in Canada may be issued by the railway companies, imperative instructions to that effect having been issued by the Department of National Defence and these instructions have since been reiterated.

The foregoing is contained in a statement prepared jointly by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways and released by the Passenger Traffic Departments of both systems.

The reason for prohibiting the issuance of information regarding troop train movements is fundamentally to ensure the safety of trains and ships engaged in the transport of troops. Enemy intelligence is keen and active and the publication of news regarding the arrival of men from overseas could readily form the basis from which to make a calculation as to the probable date on which the transports would again be at sea. With such information available, an enemy submarine could establish a station in the approximate route of the vessel. The probable consequences can easily be imagined.

At an appropriate time, news is released by Ottawa announcing the return to Canada of army personnel and of invalided troops. Railways have been instructed not to make known train movements and officials insist upon the strict observance of secrecy. It does happen that individuals believing that a relative or friend has reached Canada and is travelling toward his home, make inquiries and are greatly disappointed when told that no information is available. In such instances no fault applies to the railway officials and the disappointment of the individual must be accepted as a contribution to the general security of men and ships which must face the perils of the sea and the risk of enemy action.

The Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railways make every effort for the expeditious movement of troop trains but in a period when both systems are being confronted with the task of carrying peak loads to aid in Canada's war effort such delays as may occur occasionally are due to the unusual conditions of these days and to the fact that there are priorities in railway traffic. Considering the vast scale of daily train movements through the Dominion, delays are at a minimum and there are no bottlenecks such as sometimes occurred in the first Great War when freight traffic was in lesser volume.

Goes to Death In Beauharnois Canal

Friend's Attempt to Rescue Futile

Hervé Arcotte, residing at Les Cedres, Soulanges County, was drowned in the Beauharnois Canal shortly after midnight on Friday. A verdict of accidental death was rendered by the coroner for the district, Dr. O. E. Guza.

It is reported that Arcotte, employed by the Marine Industries Limited, was preparing to leave work when he slipped on a rafter and fell in the water. A friend nearness prevented him from jumping into the water. The body was recovered at about 12:45 a.m. and taken to Larin's Undertaking Parlors, in Valleyfield, where an inquest was held the following morning.

The funeral service was held at Les Cedres on Tuesday morning.

Reduce Food Costs And Improve Health

Cook potatoes in their jackets; don't discard the outer leaves of lettuce and cabbage; save all the water in which vegetables are cooked to put in soup or add to gravy; don't cut or shred fruits or vegetables for salad until the last possible moment before serving; insist on bread made from vitamin B (Canada Approved) flour. All these things add up to better health through increased vitamin intake without adding to food costs, and good health is vital for victory.

Potatoes can be a dependable source of vitamin C, but too frequently 50 per cent of this valuable quality is lost in the cooking, according to Nutrition Services, Department of Pensions and National Health. Much of the vitamin C content can be saved by cooking potatoes in their skins. This should be done not only in baking potatoes, but in boiling as well. They can be cooked in their jackets and peeled just before serving, or with the new potatoes many people like to eat the tender skins.

The dark green outer leaves of lettuce and cabbage are coarser in texture than the inner leaves but they are 10 to 30 times richer in vitamin A, so shred them up and put them in the soup pot or mixed salad. Leaf lettuce, by the way, is richer in vitamin content than head lettuce.

Bread made from Vitamin B White Flour (Canada Approved) contains several times more vitamin B, and more iron than ordinary white flour. Mental depression, lack of morale, fatigue and irritability are said to be attributable in large measure to deficiency of vitamin B.

Deadline to Register Cars Extended to August 1st

The July 15 deadline for the registration of all public passenger vehicles under an order issued on May 6 by George S. Gray, Transit Controller, has been extended to August 1, it was announced by the Department of Munitions and Supply.

The time extension has been made necessary because of the large amount of organization work required to implement new regulations.

The order, which is designed to aid in the conservation of rubber, gasoline and other essential materials, provides that every bus, taxi, and drive-yourself vehicle must display windshield markers to be supplied by a regional director of the Transit Controller indicating that such vehicles are registered. Taxis must also carry a special windshield marker naming the city or town in which they are registered. Only classes eight and nine, referring to the registration date, are affected by this extension. The balance of the order was effective May 13, 1942.

Mail the Clippings

The Post Office Department is asking Canadians to refrain from mailing whole newspapers overseas to men in the Armed Forces, but instead to send clippings of items of special interest. The purpose is the saving of shipping space.

It is a sensible request because, in most cases as departmental officials say, clippings are quite sufficient. The practice now recommended is familiar to many families with sons overseas, and it works out happily.

What John wants most to hear, in his English camp, is news of his friends in the old home town—who has been married, who has got his wings, who has a new baby, office buildings on Carter Square, the things that touch his immediate circle and the life he used to live. It is simple to clip such items from the newspapers each day, and to enclose the accumulation with each letter—and John gets his home news concentrated, boiled down to the bits of greatest concern to him.

In the aggregate an enormous amount of shipping space is needed for parcels, cigarettes, newspapers sent by relatives and friends to Canadians overseas in the Fighting Services. If it is imperative, and it must be, that some of this space be saved that can best be accomplished by clipping the newspapers and sending only what is of most interest to the recipient.

BRANDED WIFE

Worcester, England—James Taylor, 36, convicted of branding the word "liar" on his wife's back with a red-hot poker, was sentenced to 16 months' hard labour after the wife told the judge she forgave her husband. The judge had made up his mind to sentence the man to seven years.

Red Cross to Provide Jams and Preserves To British Isles

With the ever-growing restrictions being placed on sugar, both in Canada and in Great Britain, the Quebec Provincial Division of the Red Cross has undertaken to provide for this shortage by supplying quantities of jam and honey to the people of British Isles.

Working in co-operation with the Women's Institute and the Cercles des Fermiers throughout the province an objective of 42,000 pounds of jam has been set at present. The Red Cross will provide the pails, each holding two and a half pounds, and the Women's Institute and Cercles des Fermiers will supervise the canning of the fruit. Strawberries, raspberries, blueberries and other such edibles will be utilized, as well as apple jelly and honey later in the season.

The Red Cross is already in touch with the apple growing associations in the province as well as the honey producing organizations, seeking the fullest co-operation in the project which aims to provide for the shortage of sugar overseas.

The Red Cross is also seeking the assistance of people throughout the province in providing the fruit from which jam and jelly can be made. Residents are asked to contact their nearest Red Cross Branch, the local Women's Institute or the Cercles des Fermiers who will welcome donations of fruit to be preserved.

North American Life Enjoys Increased Business

Figures released by the Sales Department of North American Life Assurance Company indicate a 31% gain in new insurance sales for the first half of 1942. Sales for the past month were over $4,000,000, representing the best total for June in the Company's history.

Reflecting the improved economic circumstances of the people, there is reported a continued improvement in conservation of the Company's business, the number of lapses being at a low level. The insurance in force with the Company has increased since December 31st by approximately $9,000,000, the total now standing at $270,000,000. This gain in insurance is almost double the amount for the same period of 1941.

Boost in Draft Ages Brings Increase in R.C.A.F. Recruits

Ever since the recent notification that single men up to 40 years of age will be eligible for the army draft, the Royal Canadian Air Force recruiting centre on Queen street has been swamped with an unusual amount of applications from men between the ages of 30 and 40 years.

Many of these applicants were married since July, 1940, and are therefore considered as single by the draft board. As the majority of them are over age for air crew they will be filling non-combatant positions.

Although all applications are welcomed by the air force, some have not been able to gain immediate entrance as they were applying for positions that are now being filled by the Women's Division.

To Our Friends Our Growers Our Employees

We have a War Production job to do.

Not a job producing tanks. Or guns. Or planes. But food . . . food for the men who fight and the men who build fighting tools.

It's the biggest job we've ever had. It's one of the biggest jobs any food producer ever had.

It's up to us to help

Feed the Army
Feed the Navy
Feed the Air Force
Feed the men who build their guns, tanks, planes and ships . . . as well as millions more of the men, women and children of Canada.

That's our assignment! That's our War Production job. And we won't let 'em down.

So let's get going . . . all-out.
